Aio was a man of very ſlender parts, and ſometimes, as Paulus Diaconus inſinuates, a diſtracted in his mind; which that writer aſcribes to a potion given him by the Romans. The father therefore, ſenſible of the incapacity of his ſon, recommended him on his death-bed to Rodoald and Grimoald, the ſons of Giſulf duke of Friuli, who, as we have related above, had fled to him, and were now in the flower of their age. Theſe Arechis looked upon as his own children, and therefore appointed them by his laſt will to ſucceed in the dukedom, in caſe his ſon ſhould die without iſſue male [p]. While Aio governed the dukedom, the Sclavonians, paſſing by ſea from Dalmatia, which they had ſeized, into Italy, landed at Sipontum, and laid waſte great part of Apulia. They dwelt originally on the banks of the Boryſthenes, now the Nieper, in European Sarmatia, and from thence advancing to the Danube, they paſſed that river b in the reign of Juſtinian, and made themſelves maſters of that part of Illyricum, which lies between the Drave and the Save, and is to this day from them called Sclavonia. Upon their landing in Apulia, they encamped in the neighbourhood of Sipontum, and ſurrounded their camp with deep ditches, which they covered with branches of trees, laying ſome earth and green turf over them. As Apulia was for the moſt part ſubject at that time to the duke of Benevento, Aio, hearing of their invaſion, marched againſt them with what troops he could aſſemble, without waiting the return of Rodoald and Grimoald, who were then abſent. But, having attacked their camp, he fell into one of the above-mentioned ditches, and was there ſlain by the enemy, after he had governed the dukedom five months with his father, and one year alone, Ro- c doald, hearing what had happened, aſſembled with incredible expedition a conſiderable body of forces, and, falling upon the enemy before they had the leaſt intelligence of his march, he gave them a total overthrow, and drove them quite out of the dukedom. Having thus revenged the death of Aio, he took, together with his brother Grimoald, poſſeſſion of the dukedom, purſuant to the laſt will of Arechis, who had appointed them to ſucceed himſelf and his ſon [q]. Theſe two princes governed jointly for the ſpace of five years, during which time they laid ſiege to Surrento, ſtill held by the Romans; but the inhabitants, encouraged by Agapitus their biſhop, made ſuch a vigorous reſiſtance, that the Lombards, after having attempted in vain to take the place by ſtorm, raiſed the ſiege, and returned home. Rodoald died in Bene- d vento, in the year 647. but his brother Grimoald held the dukedom ſixteen years after his death, and is ſaid to have gained ſeveral victories over the Neapolitans and Romans, and to have greatly extended the bounds of his dukedom. After he had governed the dukedom five years with his brother, and ſixteen alone, he poſſeſſed himſelf of the throne, and reigned nine years more over the whole nation of the Lombards, as we ſhall relate anon.

Who are defeated by Rodoald the fourth duke of Benevento.

Grimoald, the fifth duke, inlarges the dukedom.

Rotharis ſucceeded by his ſon Rodoald.

BUT to return to the Lombard kings: Rotharis was ſucceeded by his ſon Rodoald, who, as he was a prince of a peaceable diſpoſition, performed nothing which authors have thought worthy of tranſmitting to poſterity. He was tainted, as his fathers had been, with the Arian hereſy, which occaſioned ſome religious conteſts e between him and the orthodox biſhops; but theſe diſturbances were ſoon appeaſed. He had reigned four years with his father, but ſcarce reigned one after his father's death, being killed by a Lombard, whoſe wife he had debauched. He had married Gundeberg the daughter of Agilulf and Theudelinda; but, as he had no children by her, the Lombards, upon his death, aſſembled, in order to chuſe a new king, when the choice fell upon Aripert or Aribert, the ſon of Gundoald, and brother of Theudelinda. The only thing we find recorded of him in hiſtory, is his building in Pavia the oratory of St. Saviour. He died, after he had reigned, according to Paulus Diaconus [r], nine years, though Sigonius allows him but five at moſt. He left two ſons behind him, Partharit and Gundebert, between whom he moſt imprudently divided his king- f dom. Partharit, the eldeſt, choſe Milan for the place of his reſidence, and Gundebert Pavia. But the latter, not ſatisfied with the part allotted him began to quarrel with his brother; and, being puſhed on by his ambition, and encouraged by the evil counſellors about him, he reſolved in the end to drive his brother from the throne, and make himſelf maſter of the whole kingdom. He was well appriſed, that he could not accompliſh this with his own ſtrength; and therefore he diſpatched Garibald duke of Turin as his embaſſador to Grimoald duke of Benevento, at that time by far the moſt powerful of all the Lombard dukes, inviting him to his aſſiſtance, and promiſing to Aripert choſen king.

Who is murdered.

He divides the kingdom between his two ſons Partharit and Gundebert who quarrel.

Gundebert invites Romuald duke of Benevento to his aſſiſtance.

[p] Idem ibid. [q] Vide Camil. Pel. in diſſert. duc. Benev. p. 54. & Ughel. de archiepiſ. Surrent. p. 34. [r] Paul. Diac. l. iv. c. 18.

to give him his ſiſter in marriage, if he ſucceeded in the undertaking. But the duke of Turin, acting quite contrary to his inſtructions, inſtead of perſuading Grimoald to aſſiſt his maſter, adviſed him to lay hold of the preſent opportunity, and to decide the controverſy between the two brothers, by driving them both out, and ſeizing on the kingdom for himſelf. He told him, That the two brothers were young, raſh, and unexperienced; that the affairs of the Lombards required a prince of prudence, valour, and experience; and that the diſagreement between the two princes would, in all likelihood, end in the ruin of the whole nation. Grimoald, being naturally of an active and ambitious temper, was eaſily perſuaded to follow the advice of the embaſſador; and accordingly, having raiſed a conſiderable army, he marched at the head of it towards Pavia, leaving his ſon Romuald to govern the dukedom in his abſence. Being advanced as far as Placentia, he diſpatched Garibald to acquaint the king with his arrival. The inconſiderate prince received the news of his approach with the greateſt demonſtrations of joy imaginable; and, being at a loſs where he ſhould lodge and entertain his ſuppoſed friend and ally, Garibald told him, that his own palace was the only proper place for the reception of a perſon, to whom he had promiſed his ſiſter in marriage. He added, that, if he did not repoſe an intire confidence in Grimoald, or had the leaſt ſuſpicion of treachery, he ought, for his greater ſafety, to receive him with armour under his royal robes. The king put on armour accordingly, and the duke, with unheard-of treachery, returning to Grimoald, adviſed him to be upon his guard, ſince the king was coming to meet him in armour, no doubt with a deſign to murder him. Grimoald could not perſuade himſelf, that the king had any ſuch deſign, till they met, when, upon their embracing each other, he found, that Gundebert was really in armour; and, not doubting in the leaſt but that it was with a deſign to murder him, in order to be before-hand with him, he drew his ſword that inſtant, and killed the unhappy prince on the ſpot. Upon his death, he ſeized on the royal palace, and the treaſures lodged there, cauſing himſelf to be acknowledged king of the Lombards in his room. Gundebert left a ſon named Rambert or Reginbert, who was privately conveyed away, and brought up with great care by the friends of the deceaſed king, Grimoald making no great inquiſition after him, as he was but an infant. Partharit no ſooner heard of his brother's fate, than, abandoning Milan in the utmoſt confuſion, he fled to Chagan king of the Avares, and took refuge in his court. He left his queen Rodolind and his ſon Cunibert, yet an infant, to ſhift for themſelves; ſo that they both fell into the hands of Grimoald, by whom they were ſent to Benevento, and kept under confinement in that city. The inhabitants of Milan, finding themſelves abandoned by their king, opened their gates to Grimoald, who, having taken poſſeſſion of that important place, marched from thence to Pavia, where, in the latter end of the year 672. he was with one voice proclaimed by the people king of the Lombards. To gain the affection of the Lombards, and by that means eſtabliſh himſelf more firmly in his new kingdom, to the great joy of the whole nation, he married Gundebert, ſiſter to the two unhappy young princes. He then ſent back his army to Benevento, having firſt diſtributed conſiderable ſums amongſt them, but kept with him ſome of his moſt truſty friends, whom he raiſed to the firſt employments of the kingdom[s].

Who murders him, and ſeizes on the kingdom.

Grimoald proclaimed king. Year after Chriſt 662.

The new king, though confirmed in the power he had uſurped by the general conſent of the nation, yet reflecting on the fickleneſs and inconſtancy of the multitude, did not think himſelf ſafe, ſo long as Partharit, his competitor, reſided at the court of the king of the Avares, at that time a powerful prince. He did not doubt but the baniſhed king would watch all opportunities of attempting the recovery of his paternal kingdom, and would, in ſuch an attempt, be ſeconded by great numbers of the Lombards. To prevent therefore the diſturbances that would thence enſue, he diſpatched embaſſadors to Chagan, complaining of the protection he had given to his rival, and threatening to make war upon him, if he not did forthwith baniſh him his dominions. The king of the Avares, though greatly affected with the misfortunes of the unhappy prince, yet did not think it adviſeable to engage in a war for his ſake; and therefore, to avoid it, commanded him to quit his dominions. Partharit, ſeeing himſelf thus abandoned by his friend and ally, and not knowing where to find an aſylum, reſolved, in that deſperate condition, to throw himſelf upon the honour and generoſity of his greateſt enemy. Accordingly, he diſpatched one of his truſty friends, by name Unulf, to acquaint Grimoald with his reſolution, and obtain obtain leave for him to reſide at Pavia. Grimoald, highly pleaſed with the confidence the unfortunate prince repoſed in him, and glad of ſuch an opportunity to ſhew his generoſity, complied with the requeſt, and ordered a houſe to be got ready for him in Pavia every way fit for his reception. Upon his arrival, he received him with the greateſt demonſtrations of friendſhip and kindneſs; but obſerving, that the multitude attended his entry with unuſual marks of joy, and that perſons of diſtinction flocked to him night and day, and ſeemed, in a manner, to reſpect him ſtill as their prince, he began to be apprehenſive, leſt they ſhould attempt to reſtore him to the throne. This jealouſy increaſed daily, and at length wrought upon him ſo far, that, after ſome time, he placed a guard upon him; and his fears, by degrees, getting the better of his generoſity, he one day ſent private orders to the guard to diſpatch him the following night. Theſe orders, however private, did not eſcape the vigilancy of his truſty friend Unulf, who, acquainting Partharit with them, adviſed him to change cloaths with him, and, thus diſguiſed, to attempt his eſcape. Partharit followed his advice, and, having by that means deceived the centinels, he paſſed the Teſino undiſcovered, and finding, on the other ſide of the river, horſes and guides provided for him by the care of Unulf, he eſcaped firſt to Haſta, thence to Turin, and at laſt into Gaul. Grimoald, being informed the next morning of what had happened, was ſo far from puniſhing Unulf, that on the contrary, he beſtowed the higheſt commendations upon him for his unſhaken fidelity, leaving it to his choice either to ſtay at home, or follow his maſter. Clotaire III. then king of the Franks, was ſo touched with the misfortunes of Partharit and his family, that the following year he ſent a powerful army into Italy to replace him on the throne. Grimoald, well apprized that he was far inferior in ſtrength to the Franks, had recourſe to the following ſtratagem: at their approach he pretended to fly, leaving his camp well ſtored with all manner of proviſions, eſpecially with wine. Hereupon the inconſiderate Franks, inſtead of purſuing the enemy, began to plunder the camp; and, finding in it great plenty of proviſions, they abandoned themſelves to eating and drinking, which when they had done to exceſs, they betook themſelves to reſt, without the leaſt apprehenſion of an enemy. But Grimoald, returning in the dead of the night, fell upon them while they lay faſt aſleep, and made ſuch a dreadful havock of them before they could betake themſelves to their arms, that few of them were left alive to carry home the news of their defeat [t].

Partharit driven from the court of Chagan.

[s] Idem. ibid. & c. 19.

He recurs to Grimoald, who receives him kindly.

But afterwards orders him to be put to death.

He makes his eſcape.

The Franks eſpouſe his cauſe.

But receive a total overthrow. Year after Chriſt 663.

Grimoald, thus happily delivered from one war, was ſoon involved in another. Hitherto the emperors, neglecting the affairs of Italy, ſeemed to have laid aſide all thoughts of reuniting it to the empire, being well ſatisfied if they could but keep the few provinces and cities they held there, viz. the exarchate of Ravenna, the dukedom of Rome, and thoſe of Naples, Gaeta, and Amalfi, with ſome cities of Calabria and Brutium. But Conſtans, the ſon of Conſtantine and grandſon of Heraclius, having ſettled the affairs of the empire rent into parties and factions, reſolved to employ his whole ſtrength in driving the Lombards quite out of Italy. Purſuant to this reſolution, he cauſed a powerful fleet to be fitted out in Sicily; and, not ſatisfied with appointing the beſt officers he had to command in this expedition, he left Conſtantinople, and, coming into Italy, put himſelf at the head of his army. Some writers tell us, that, having murdered his brother Theodore, he was ſo haunted with ghaſtly ſpectres and terrible dreams, that, being no longer able to bear the ſight of the place where the murder had been committed, he left Conſtantinople, and repaired to Italy, hoping to find there ſome relief for his tormented conſcience. Others aſcribe his departure from the imperial ſeat to the hatred, which the Conſtantinopolitans bore him, on account of his having embraced the tenets of the Monothelites; and add, that he deſigned to transfer the ſeat of the empire from Conſtantinople to Rome [u]. But the moſt credible writers, and among the reſt Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius and Paulus Diaconus, [w] ſuppoſe him to have undertaken his journey into Italy upon no other account, but to drive the Lombards quite out of that country. Be that as it will, he landed at Tarentum in the ſpring of the year 663. and thence marched directly to Benevento, being joined on his march by the troops in the dukedom of Naples. This unexpected invaſion with a very conſiderable army, commanded by the emperor in perſon, ſtruck the Lombards of Benevento with ſuch terror and conſternation, that they abandoned ſeveral places in Apulia, and among the reſt Luceria, which Conſtans deſtroyed. From Luceria the emperor marched to Acerenza; but not being able to take

The expedition of the emperor Conſtans into Italy.

He takes ſome places, and beſieges Benevento.

[t] Paul. Diac. l. v. c. 2.—5. [u] Vide Sigon. de regn. Ital. ad ann. 663. [w] Paul. Diac. l. v. c. 4.

take it by ſtorm, on account of its ſtrong ſiutation, he purſued his march without loſs of time to Benevento, and inveſted the place with his whole army. Romuald, the ſon of Grimoald, at that time duke of Benevento, immediately diſpatched Geſuald, who had been his guardian, to acquaint his father with the danger he was in, and to ſolicit ſuccours. In the mean time, the Lombards not only repulſed with great vigour the Romans in their repeated aſſaults, but killed great numbers of them in the ſallies they daily made. Grimoald no ſooner heard, that the city was beſieged, than he aſſembled, with incredible expedition, all his forces, and, putting himſelf at their head, he marched to the relief of his ſon. He diſpatched back Geſuald to give him notice, that, in a very ſhort time, he ſhould be relieved, and to encourage him to hold out till his arrival. But Geſuald was unfortunately taken by the Romans, as he was attempting to get into the beſieged city, and carried before the emperor, to whom he ingenuouſly owned, that he was ſent by the king to acquaint the beſieged, that he was in full march, and already very near, with a powerful army to relieve them. The emperor, perplexed and greatly alarmed at this news, reſolved to conclude a peace with Romuald, that he might retire unmoleſted to Naples before the arrival of the king. But, in order to obtain better conditions, he commanded Geſuald to go to the walls, and tell Romuald, that his father could not poſſibly come to his relief, threatening to put him to a cruel death, if he refuſed to obey. Geſuald promiſed to do as he required; but when Romuald appeared upon the walls, with undaunted courage, and a loud voice, that Romans there preſent might likewiſe hear, Take courage, he cried, and baniſh all fear; for your father is near at hand with a powerful army to relieve you. This night he will reach the river Sangro. I earneſtly recommend to you my dear wife and children; for I am in the hands of a perfidious enemy, who this moment will put me to death. The emperor, highly provoked at this generous and bold action, inſtantly cauſed his head to be cut off, and with an engine to be thrown into the town, where it was taken up, and carried to Romuald, who, having kiſſed it with great affection, and bathed it with his tears, cauſed it together with the reſt of the body, which was ſoon after found, to be interred with the utmoſt pomp and magnificence. In the mean time, the emperor, hearing the king of the Lombards was within a ſhort march of him, raiſed the ſiege, and began, in great haſte, his march to Naples. But Mitula duke of Capua, meeting him at the river Calore, cut off great numbers of his men, and obliged the reſt, together with the emperor, to ſave themſelves by a precipitous flight. To revenge this diſgrace, Sabarrus, one of the emperor's generals, engaged to give the Lombards a total overthrow, and put Grimoald himſelf to flight, provided he were allowed but twenty thouſand men, with an unlimited command. Conſtans having granted him his requeſt, he encamped at the paſs of Formiæ, now, as is generally ſuppoſed, Mola di Gaeta, with a deſign to cover the emperor's march, who intended to viſit Rome, and, when he was out of danger, to go in queſt of the enemy. In the mean time, Grimoald, arriving with his army at Benevento, and being there informed of the boaſting engagement of Saburrus, reſolved to march directly againſt him, and offer him battle; but his ſon Romuald earneſtly intreating him to ſuffer him to command the army in his room, he complied with his requeſt, and detached the young prince with the flower of his army, who, meeting Saburrus in the neighbourhod of Formiæ, fell upon him with great intrepidity. The Romans, animated by the example of their leader, who behaved very gallantly, made a vigorous ſtand; ſo that the victory continued a long time doubtful. But, while both armies were fighting with the utmoſt fury, a Lombard, by name Amelogus, engaging a Roman horſeman, firſt ſtruck him from his horſe, and then, lifting him up on the point of his ſpear, held him over his head in the ſight of the Roman army; which ſtruck them with ſuch terror, that they began to give ground, and, being vigorouſly preſſed by the Lombards, they abandoned in the end the field of battle, and betook themſelves to a precipitous flight. Romuald, having purſued them for ſome time with great ſlaughter, returned to the field of battle, and from thence to Benevento, which he entered in a kind of triumph, being met at the gates by the king his father, and received with loud acclamations by the inhabitants, as the deliverer of his country [x]. In the mean time, Conſtans, arriving at Rome, was received there with extraordinary marks of honour, no emperor having, for a long time, ſet his foot in that city. He ſpent twelve days in viſiting, or in rather plundering, the remarkable places of that great metropolis; for he ſtripped her of all her moſt valuable able ornaments in gold, silver, brass, and marble, not sparing even the coverings of a churches, which he caused to be conveyed by sea into Sicily, in order to transport them from thence to Constantinople. He himself went by land to Naples, and from thence to Rhegium, where his army was a third time defeated by the Lombards. From Rhegium he crossed over into Sicily, and fixed his residence at Syracuse, where he was murdered in the bath by his own people in 668. so that the inestimable wealth and plunder, which he had brought from Rome, being left in Sicily, was, soon after his death, seized by the Saracens, and carried to Alexandria [y]. After his departure from Italy, the Lombards, wholly intent upon improving their late victores, made themselves masters of Bari, Tarento, Brindisi, and all the places in that country now known by the name of Terra d'Otranto, which were added to the dukedom of Benevento. 6

He raiſes the ſiege, and is defeated in his retreat.

The Roman army utterly defeated by Romuald. Year after Chriſt 663.

[x] Idem ibid.

The Lombards make themselves masters of several cities

Grimoald, to reward Mitula duke of Capua, who had defeated the Romans in their retreat from Benevento, gave him his daughter in marriage, and at the same time appointed him to succeed the late duke Zotho in the dukedom of Spoletum; which two dukedoms he governed for many years.

WHILE Grimoald was employed against the Romans in the dukedom of Benevento, Lupus duke of Friuli, taking advantage of his absence, oppressed his people in a most enormous manner, and, not satisfied with the wealth, which, by heavy taxes, he extorted from them, he broke into the territories of the Venetian Lombards, and there plundered the church of Aquileia of all its rich ornaments. For this the king, upon his return to Pavia, resolved to call him to a severe account; which he apprehending, renounced his allegiance to Grimoald, and openly revolted. Grimoald was determined at all events to punish him with exemplary severity; but being unwilling to lead his Lombards against their countrymen, or suffer them to imbrue their hands in the blood of each other, he employed Chagan king of the Huns to make war upon him, who broke into his territories the following year at the head of an infinite multitude, and laid them waste far and near. This Lupus did not tamely suffer; but, drawing together what forces he could, he marched against the Huns, and, engaging them four days successively, made a dreadful havock of the undisciplined multitude; but, in the fifth engagement, his men being tired out and quite spent, they were, after a most obstinate dispute, in which Lupus himself was killed, overpowered and put to flight. Upon the death of Lupus and the defeat of his army, Chagan over-ran the whole country, and laid it waste without controul. But Grimoald, who had employed the king of the Huns only to punish the rebellious duke, sent embassadors to put him in mind of their agreement, and require him to retire with his forces, since there was no further occasion for them in the dukedom of Friuli, or the territories of the Lombards. Chagan answered plainly, That he would not quit a country, which he had conquered with his arms, and the blood of so many of his subjects. Grimoald, provoked at this answer, resolved to drive him out by force; and accordingly marched against him at the head of a very considerable army; but as it was far inferior in numbers to that of the Huns, in order to make it appear more numerous than it really was, he mustered his troops in the presence of Chagan's embassadors, and made the same men pass thrice before him in different cloathing. By this device they appeared to be treble the number they really were; and such they were by the embassadors represented to the king, who thereupon, in great fear, retired to his own dominions [c]. Upon the retreat of Chagan, Warnefrid, son to the deceased duke, attempted, with the assistance of the Sclavonians, to possess himself of his father's dukedom; but Grimoald, having defeated the Sclavonians, and killed Warnefrid, appointed one Welcar to succeed Lupus in the dukedom of Friuli; and at the same time married Theodorata, the daughter of Lupus, to his son Romuald, duke of Benevento [a]. About this time Alczecus, one of the princes of the Bulgarians, abandoning his own country, entered Italy with a body of his countrymen, and, repairing to Pavia, offered his service to Grimoald, who, thinking he might prove very serviceable to his son against the Romans, sent him to Benevento, in which dukedom several cities were allotted to him and his followers, as we have related elsewhere [b].

The duke of Friuli revolts.

He is killed by the Hunns.

Welcar appointed duke of Friuli.

Grimoald corrects the edict of Rotharis.

AND now Grimoald, having no wars on his hands, and no enemy to fear, applied himself wholly to the arts of peace. The laws of king Rotharis, which had been published twenty-four years before, were by this time become familiar, not only to the Lombards, for whom they had been made, but likewise to the natives of Italy, who

[y] Idem ibid, & PAGI de consulib. p. 348. c. 21.

[z] PAUL. DIAC. l. v. c. 17—23.

[a] Idem ibid.

[b] Vide supra, p. 624.

who choſe to follow them, though they had never been forbidden the uſe of the Roman laws; but theſe laws, in proceſs of time, proving, as it generally happens, defective, and ſome of them being thought too ſevere, Grimoald, in the ſixth year of his reign, undertook the reviſing of the edict of Rotharis, and, in a general diet held in the year 668. with the conſent and approbation of his nobles, repealed ſome laws, enacted others in their room, publiſhed a new edict [c], containing eleven chapters, which is ſtill to be ſeen in the above-mentioned code lodged in the monaſtery of Cava. Grimoald, having thus performed all the duties of an excellent prince, was, to the great grief of the Lombards, unexpectedly ſnatched away by the following accident: he had been let blood in one of his arms, and as he was, nine days after, bending a bow, the vein opened, and, all poſſible means for cloſing it proving ineffectual, he bled to death [d]. He was a prince of uncommon parts, and in every reſpect equal to the high ſtation to which he was raiſed. Though he had been brought up in the principles of Arius, he renounced the errors of that hereſiarch, and embraced the catholic religion, yielding to the arguments of John biſhop of Bergamo, a prelate of great piety and learning. The example of Grimoald was followed by the kings his ſucceſſors, who all profeſſed the catholic religion; ſo that Arianiſm was, in a ſhort time, forſaken by the whole nation of the Lombards. He died in the year 672. the ninth of his reign, leaving behind him, beſides Romuald duke of Benevento, another ſon, by name Garibald, to whom, though yet very young, he bequeathed on his death-bed the kingdom of the Lombards. From his excluding Romuald, authors concluded that prince to have been his illegitimate ſon. Be that as it will, Garibald did not long enjoy his new dignity; for he had ſcarce mounted the throne, when Partharit, who was ſtill in Gaul, hearing of the death of his rival, haſtened into Italy, and, being received with extraordinary joy by great numbers of Lombards, he advanced, attended by crouds of followers, to Pavia, and was there received by the inhabitants and the great men of the nation, as their lawful ſovereign, Garibald having withdrawn to his brother in Benevento, after a ſhort reign of three months. Partharit, thus reſtored to the throne, recalled his wife Rodelinda and his ſon Cunipert, who, ever ſince his expulſion, had been in exile at Benevento. Having reigned alone in great peace and tranquillity for the ſpace of eight years, in the latter end of the year 680. he took his ſon Cunipert for his partner in the kingdom, and reigned with him ten years more. During their joint reign, Alachis duke of Trent, openly revolting, aſſumed the title of king of the Lombards. Hereupon Partharit, marching againſt him with all his forces, beſieged him in his own city; but Alachis, ſallying out with the flower of his troops, obliged the king to raiſe the ſiege, and ſave himſelf by flight. However, Alachis, finding himſelf abandoned by the greater part of his men, who refuſed to bear arms againſt their lawful ſovereign, thought it adviſeable to ſubmit, upon promiſe of pardon; which Partharit granted him, at the earneſt requeſt of his ſon Cunipert, who had a great friendſhip for the duke, with whom he had been brought up from his infancy; nay, the young prince, in order to win him by kindneſs, not only prevailed upon his father to take him anew into favour, but to create him duke of Breſcia, adding that dukedom to the dukedom of Trent. The king on that occaſion told his ſon, That, by his good offices, he did not ſo much oblige a friend, as ſtrengthen an enemy; but nevertheleſs he could not help complying with his requeſt. Some time after, Partharit died, a prince highly commended by our hiſtorian for his piety, juſtice, moderation, and above all for the great care he took of the poor [e]. Three years before his death, Deodorus Calliopa the exarch was recalled, and one John ſent to govern Italy in his room. Alachis, duke of Trent and Breſcia, was no ſooner informed of the death of Partharit, than, unmindful of the favours he had received at the hands of Cunipert, he reſolved to drive him from the throne, and place the crown upon his own head, agreeable to what Partharit had foretold his ſon, while he was ſtudying to gain him by kindneſs. The rebellious duke, having drawn into the conſpiracy two brothers, Aldo, and Granſo, the two moſt conſiderable citizens of Breſcia, and ſeveral other Lombards, while the king was abſent, ſeized on the royal place of Pavia, and took upon him the title of king. Hereupon Cunipert, who was quite unprovided, not imagining the duke could be guilty of ſuch treachery and ingratitude, fled to an iſland in the lake Larius, now Lago di Como, and there fortified himſelf in the beſt manner he could. In the mean time, the uſurper, behaving in a moſt deſpotic and tyrannical manner, highly diſobliged

Grimoald dies. Year after Chriſt 672.

Garibald ſucceeds; but is driven out by Partharit.

Who takes his ſon Cunipert for his partner.

Partharit dies. Year after Chriſt 690.

Alachis duke of Trent revolts, and drives Cunipert from the throne.

[c] Paul. Diac. l. v. c. 12. & Sigon. de regn. Ital. l. ii. ad ann. 668 [d] Paul. Diac. l. v. c. 33.
[e] Idem, l. v. c. 36.

liged all his subjects, even those to whom he was chiefly indebted for the crown he a wore. As he was one day telling money in his closet, he happened to let a piece drop, which the son of Aldo, who was present, officiously took up, and gave him.
The tyrant, in receiving it, Your father, said he, has many such pieces, which, ere it be long, shall be all mine. As the son of Aldo was but a child, the tyrant was not upon his guard; but the boy, remembring what he said, upon his return home, told it to his father, who concluding from thence, that his death and the ruin of his family would be the reward of all his services, if he did not, by some means or other, prevent them, consulted with his brother Gransо and his other friends, about deposing the usurper. They all agreed to seize on the city of Pavia, and recal their lawful sovereign, the first time Alachis should go out to take the diversion of hunting. This b they did accordingly, to the great satisfaction of the inhabitants, especially of the clergy, whom the tyrant had chiefly disobliged. Alachis, finding upon his return the gates shut against him, and Cunipert anew possessed of the royal palace, fled into Istria, and, having raised a considerable army there, he returned at the head of it, not doubting but he should be able to drive Cunipert anew from the throne. The king, hearing of his return, drew together all his forces, and, meeting the usurper in the plains of Coronata, he challenged him to a single combat, in order to save the lives of many innocent men, who must otherwise perish; but Alachis refusing the challenge, the two armies began to prepare for a general engagement. While they were drawn up, and Cunipert ready to charge the enemy, one Zeno, a deacon of the church of c Pavia, greatly attached, as were all the ecclesiastics, to the king's person, and firmly persuaded, that the welfare of the church depended upon his safety, with the greatest earnestness imaginable, begged leave to put on his armour, and counterfeit his person:
If I perish, said he, the loss will be small; but upon your safety depends the welfare both of the church and state. The king being, with much ado, prevailed upon by the tears and intreaties of his friends to accept the proposal, Zeno put on his armour, and appeared in it so like the king, whom he resembled in shape and stature, that he could hardly be distinguished from him; so that, when the two armies joined battle, Alachis, mistaking him for the king, engaged him with the utmost fury, and, have-ing with great ease overcome and slain him, in the greatest transports of joy imagin- d able, he ordered his head to be cut off, and exposed to the view of both armies on the point of a spear; but, finding it was the head of a priest, and not of the king, his joy was succeeded by a violent rage and passion, in which he vowed to emasculate all the ecclesiastics, in case he obtained the victory. In the mean time, Cunipert, observing that his men, disheartned with the report of his death, began to give ground, shewed himself to them, and, by shewing himself, encouraged them to such a degree, that, returning to the charge, they renewed the fight with fresh vigour.
However, Cunipert, to avoid the effusion of blood, sent a second time to Alachis, inviting him to decide the quarrel by a single combat; but he declining anew the challenge, the two armies fought with the utmost fury, till, Alachis being slain, his e men, disheartened by his death, fled in the utmost confusion. Most of them were cut off in the flight, and the rest drowned in the Adige. The army of the dukedom of Friuli, which Alachis enticed to his party, while they were marching to the assistance of the king, withdrew in the beginning of the battle, scrupling either to fight against him, to whom they had sworn allegiance, or against their lawful sovereign.
Cunipert, after this victory, which put an end to the civil war, returned in triumph to Pavia, having first caused the deacon Zeno to be interred with the greatest pomp and solemnity. He afterwards built, in honour of St. George, a magnificent monastery in the field where the battle had been fought [f]. Cunipert, having thus happily suppressed so dangerous a rebellion, reigned in great peace and tranquillity till the f year 703. when he died, universally lamented; for he was a prince, says our historian, of a most comely aspect, of a sweet temper, engaging behaviour, great courage, and extraordinary piety [g]. He had married Hermelinda, a princess of the blood royal of the Anglo-Saxons, and had by her one son, named Luitbert, to whom he bequeathed the kingdom; but, as he was then an infant, he committed him to the care of Asprand, a person of great distinction among the Lombards, and highly esteemed for his wisdom. Luitbert, or rather Asprand, had scarce governed eight months, when Ragumbert, duke of Turin, taking upon him the title of king, defeated Asprand in battle, and caused himself to be acknowledged by the whole nation; but he

Cunipert restored.

War between him and Alachis.

Alachis killed, and his army defeated.

Cunipert dies. Year after Christ 703.

Luitbert succeeds; but is driven out by Ragumbert.

[f] Idem. ibid. c. 38.—41.

[g] Idem. ibid.

he died the ſame year, and was ſucceeded by his ſon Aripert, in whoſe reign Luitbert, aſſiſted by ſeveral dukes, attempted the recovery of his paternal kingdom; but he was utterly defeated by the uſurper, and taken priſoner, in a battle fought at a ſmall diſtance from Pavia. Rotharit duke of Bergamo, who had eſpouſed with great zeal the cauſe of the king, fled, after the defeat of the army, to his own city, in which he was cloſely beſieged by Aripert, who, having in the end made himſelf maſter of the place, ſent the duke to Turin, where he was ſoon after put to death by his orders. Luitbert, his young competior, met with no better treatment; for he ſoon after ordered him to be ſtifled in a bath. As for Aſprand, whom, above all others, the tyrant was deſirous of getting into his power, he fled firſt to the above-mentioned b iſland in the lake Larius; but being informed, that a ſtrong detachment was marching againſt him, he fled from thence to Ravenna, and from Ravenna to Theudebert duke of the Boioarii, with whom he continued for the ſpace of nine years. Aripert's men reduced the iſland; but, not finding Aſprand there, they returned to Aripert, who, tranſported with rage at his diſappointment, put out the eyes of Sigibrand the ſon of Aſprand, and at the ſame time cauſed the noſe and ears of his wife Theuderata, and daughter Aurona, to be cut off. Aſprand had another ſon, by name Luitprand; but the tyrant ſpared him, as he was yet a child, and ſent him to his father, Providence reſerving him, as our hiſtorian obſerves, for great things [h]. Aripert, notwithſtanding the acts of cruelty he practiſed in the beginning of his reign, is ſaid to have ruled c afterwards with great prudence and equity. He was a great friend to the eccleſiaſtics, and very liberal to the churches, which he enriched with ample donations. To the church of Rome he reſtored many lands, eſpecially the patrimony of the Alps Cottiæ, which had been ſeized on by king Rotharis. We are told, that he ſent the inſtrument of this donation to the biſhop of Rome written in golden letters [i] (W). In the ninth year of his reign, Aſprand returned into Italy at the head of a powerful army, raiſed by the duke of the Boioarii, who, having eſpouſed his cauſe with great warmth, reſolved to aſſiſt him with all his ſtrength, in revenging the cruel treatment his wife and children had met with at the king's hands. Aripert met him on the confines with an army no-ways inferior to his. Hereupon a bloody battle enſued, which d laſted till night parted the combatants. The next day Aſprand was for renewing the fight; but Aripert, though he had not loſt near ſo many men as his adverſary, yet declining, Ragumbert ſucceeded by his ſon Aripert.

Who puts Luitbert to death.

His cruelty.

Is liberal to the churches.

Aſprand returns into Italy.

[h] Idem ibid: c. 18—21. & l. vi. c. 22. [i] Idem, l. vi. c. 28.

(W) The lands and eſtates, which the churches acquired, not only within the diſtrict of their reſpective cities, but in diſtant countries, were ſtyled patrimonies, as were likewiſe the hereditary eſtates both of princes and private perſons, but with this difference, that the prince's eſtate was called patrimonium ſacrum as appears from ſeveral conſtitutions of the Juſtinian code (1). The patrimonium ſacrum was what we now call the king's demain. As for the churches, ſo many profuſe donations were made to them, both by princes and private perſons, that, in proceſs of time, they acquired great eſtates, which, according to the ſtyle of thoſe times, were called patrimonies. Thus, in the letters of pope Gregory the Great, frequent mention is made, not only of the patrimony of the church of Rome, but of the church of Milan, Rimini, Ravenna, and ſeveral others. The churches of great cities, ſuch as Rome, Ravenna, and Milan, where the emperor's officers, and other illuſtrious perſons, reſided, acquired patrimonies, not only within their own diſtrict, but in diſtant countries; whereas the churches of ſmaller cities, whoſe inhabitants had but moderate fortunes, and their eſtates within their own limits, had no patrimonies out of their diſtricts. The church of Rome, above all others, acquired, by degrees, immenſe patrimonies, not only in Italy, but in the moſt diſtant provinces of Europe (2). In the time of Gregory the Great, that church held ample patrimonies in Sicily; for Gregory, in a letter to Juſtin governor of Sicily for the emperor, intreats him to cauſe the corn of the patrimony of St. Peter to be, without delay, conveyed to Rome, where there was great ſcarcity. The church of Rome had likewiſe a patrimony in France, and another in Dalmatia, of which the latter was committed to the care of one Antoninus a ſubdeacon, and the former to that of a prieſt named Candidus, whom Gregory, in one of his letters, earneſtly recommends to queen Brunichild, and likewiſe to king Childebert her ſon. In a letter to Candidus, he ſhews him how the revenues of that patrimony are to be diſpoſed of; nay, from the letters of the ſame pope it appears, that the church of Rome had, in his time, a patrimony in Africa; for, in a letter to Gennadius exarch of that province, he returns him thanks for taking care of the patrimony of St. Peter there, and in particular for ſending ſuch as depended upon him to till the lands, which had been abandoned by the tenants. In Italy the patrimonies of the Roman church were almoſt without number. In the province of the Alpes Cottiæ ſhe had a large patrimony, which was ſeized, and for a long time poſſeſſed, by the Lombards; but reſtored to her by king Aripert in the time of pope John VII. Aripert king of the Lombards, ſays Paulus Diaconus, reſtored the patrimony of the Alpes Cottiæ belonging to the apoſtolic ſee, but for a long time poſſeſſed by the Lombards, and ſent the donation to Rome in golden letters (3). This donation was, according to the ſame writer, confirmed by king Luitprand. Other patrimonies were held by the ſame church, as appears from the letters of ſeveral popes, in the exarchate of Ravenna, in the dukedom of Naples, in the territories of Salerno and Nola, in the provinces of Campania, Lucania, Calabria, Abruzzo, Liguria, Tuſcany, &c. That theſe patrimonies might be the more reſpected, declining, for reaſons unknown to our hiſtorian, a ſecond engagement, he left the a enemy maſters of the field of battle, and retired to Pavia. Being purſued by Aſprand, whoſe men were no leſs encouraged by his retreat, than Aripert's were diſheartened, he abandoned Pavia, with a deſign to paſs into Gaul, and there hire a new army, carrying with him for that effect the beſt part of his treaſures; but, attempting to ſwim croſs the Teſino, he was drowned in that river. His body was found the next day, and buried with great pomp in the church of St. Saviour, founded by Aribert, the firſt of that name. His brother, by name Guntbert, fled to the king of the Franks, and continued at his court to his death. Raginbert, the eldeſt ſon of Guntbert, governed the city of Orleans for the king of the Franks in the time of our hiſtorian [k]. The throne being vacant by the death of Aripert, Aſprand was placed on it b by the unanimous conſent of the whole nation; but he dying three months after his acceſſion, his ſon Luitprand ſucceeded him in the kingdom of the Lombards. But, before we ſpeak of his reign, we ſhall relate what happened till his time, worthy of notice, in the other provinces of Italy ſubject to the Lombards.

(1) Cod Juſtin. l. xii. (2) Vide Ammirat. in opuſc. diſcept. vii. (3) Pal. Diac. l. vi. c. 28.

Aripert drowned.

Aſprand declared king.

In the year 677. died Romuald duke of Benevento, and was ſucceeded by Grimoald II. his ſon, to whom he left that dukedom greatly inlarged by the addition of Tarento, Brindiſi, Bari, and their territories, which he took from the emperor of the eaſt, as we have related above. Grimoald governed, with his brother Giſulph not quite three years; and, upon his death, Giſulph held the dukedom alone fourteen years more. c All we find recorded of him in hiſtory is his laying waſte, upon what provocation we know not, the territory of Rome. Giſulph dying in 694. was ſucceeded in the dukedom by his ſon Romuald II. who ruled twenty-ſix years, during which time he greatly haraſſed the Neapolitans, and by, a ſtratagem, made himſelf maſter of Cumæ, belonging to them. Hereupon Gregory II. then biſhop of Rome, apprehending that metropolis to be in danger, did all that lay in his power to perſuade the duke to reſtore Cumæ, offering him even a conſiderable ſum in lieu of it. But his offers, and every other fair means, proving ineffectual, the biſhop in the end thundred againſt him the ſentence of excommunication; but finding, that Grimoald made no more account of his excommunications, than his offers, he had recourſe to John duke of Naples,

The dukes of Benevento.

[k] Idem ibid. c. 35.

the biſhops gave them the names of the ſaints, which each church had in ſpecial veneration. Thus the poſſeſſions of the church of Ravenna were called the patrimony of St. Apollinaris; thoſe of Rome, Milan, Naples, &c. the patrimony of St. Peter, St. Ambroſe, St. Aſpremus, &c. The name of patrimony did not import any ſovereignty or juriſdiction; for the pope, as well as the other biſhops, held their patrimonies of the prince, in whoſe ſtate they lay, paying the ſame taxes and impoſitions as other ſubjects. It is true, that, in ſome places, thoſe who had care of the patrimonies of St. Peter, attempted to take the adminiſtration of juſtice into their own hands; but this no prince would ſuffer; and beſides, Gregory the great forbid all attempts and encroachments of that kind, on pain of excommunication (4). In the year 681. the emperor Conſtantine Pogonatus granted an exemption from all tribute for the patrimonies of the Roman church in Sicily and Calabria; and the tribute paid for the patrimonies of the ſame church in Lucania and Abruzzo was remitted by Juſtinian, the ſucceſſor of Conſtantine, in 687. But Leo Iſauricus, provoked againſt the biſhop of Rome, on account of his hindering the imperial edict againſt the worſhip of images from being put in execution, firſt revoked the exemptions granted by his predeceſſors for the patrimonies in Sicily and Calabria; and afterwards, as the biſhop continued to oppoſe the edict, he ſeized on thoſe patrimonies, and ordered the revenues to be paid into the exchequer. The church of Rome poſſeſſed, as we have obſerved, ſeveral patrimonies in the different provinces of Italy, and this gave riſe to a great miſtake among the writers of later times, who, confounding the patrimonies which the church of Rome held in thoſe provinces with the provinces themſelves, have ſuppoſed the provinces of the Alpes Cottiæ, of Sicily and Calabria, the dukedoms of Benevento and Spoleto, and part of Tuſcany and Campania, to have belonged to the church of Rome. Into this miſtake ſeveral eminent authors have fallen, and among the reſt Scipio Ammiratus, who, though otherwiſe a moſt exact and accurate writer, ſuppoſes king Aripert, by the donation we have mentioned above, to have reſtored and confirmed to pope John VII. the province of the Alpes Cottiæ (5); whereas it is evident from the words of the hiſtorian, that the king reſtored to the church of Rome the patrimony, which ſhe had in that province, and not the province itſelf, which reached as far as Genoa, and compriſed a great tract of country, in which were many cities of note, and places of great importance. It is ſurpriſing any one ſhould imagine, that the king of the Lombards would have diveſted himſelf of ſuch a country, and given it to the pope, whom he knew to be greatly attached to the emperors of the eaſt, the implacable enemies of the Lombards. But of this ſubject we ſhall ſpeak more at length hereafter, on occaſion of the many famous donations made to the church of Rome by Charlemagne and Lewis the Pious, where it will appear, that what we read in them of Naples, Benevento, and Salerno, ought to be underſtood of the patrimonies, which the church of Rome had in thoſe dukedoms, and not of the dukedoms themſelves, it being certain, that the dukedom of Benevento came firſt under the dominion of the church in the year 1052. by way of exchange made between the emperor Henry II. and pope Leo IX. for the church of Bamberg (6).

(4) Vide Ant. Matt. man. ad jus can. l. iii. tit. 17.

(5) Scip. Ammirat. opuſc. diſcept. vii.

(6) Vide Pietro Giann. hiſt. civil. di Napoli, l. iv. ſect. 4.

Naples, whom he adviſed to attack the city in the night; which he did accordingly, and, having made himſelf maſter of the place, he put three hundred Lombards, with their gaſtald, to the ſword, and took five hundred more priſoners, whom he carried with him to Naples. As for the city, he ſold it to the biſhop, as had been agreed on before-hand, for ſeventy pounds weight of gold [l]. Romuald died in 720. and was ſucceeded by his ſon Adelai, who governed only two years, and performed nothing worthy of notice. In the dukedom of Friuli, Welcar, who had been appointed duke by Grimoald, as we have related above, was ſucceeded by Landar, and he by Rodoald, in whoſe abſence one Ansfrid ſeized on the dukedom, and ſoon after, aſpiring at the crown, began to make vaſt preparations for ſo great an undertaking. But Cunipert, who reigned then, being privately acquainted with his deſign, found means to intercept him as he was going to Verona. However, he ſpared his life, but ſent him into baniſhment, after he had cauſed his eyes to be put out. In the mean time Rodoald dying, his brother Aldo ſucceeded to the dukedom, which he governed, according to our hiſtorian, but one year and ſeven months [m], though Sigonius will have him to have held it ſeven years. Aldo, who by Paulus Diaconus is ſtyled only protector of the dukedom, was ſucceeded by Ferdulf, who was killed by the Sclavonians, with all the nobility of the dukedom, except Munichis, who had the good fortune to make his eſcape. One Corvulus was then appointed duke by king Aripert, whom he ſoon diſobliged, and was on that account depoſed, and deprived of his ſight. In his room was raiſed to the dukedom one Pemmo, who, ſeeking for the ſons of the nobility killed by the Sclavonians, brought them up with his own children [n]. During this time died Mitula, who had been rewarded by king Grimoald, as we have related above, with the dukedom of Spoleto, for his gallant behaviour againſt the emperor Conſtans. He was ſucceeded by his ſon Faroald, who governed jointly with his brother Wachilap [o]. To return, after this ſhort digreſſion, to Luitprand:

The dukes of Friuli,

And of Spoleto.

Luitprand. Year after Chriſt 711.

THAT prince, from the very beginning of his reign, gave great inſtances of his courage and prudence. He had ſcarce mounted the throne, when one of his kinſmen, named Rotharis, conſpiring againſt him, invited him to a banquet at his houſe, where he had aſſaſſins concealed, who, upon a ſignal agreed on before-hand, were to ruſh into the room where the king was, and diſpatch him. But Luitprand, receiving private intelligence of the treaſon that was hatching againſt him, ſent for Rotharis to the palace, who, finding himſelf diſcovered, drew his ſword all on a ſudden, with a deſign to kill the king; but he defended himſelf with great bravery, not ſhewing the leaſt tokens of fear or ſurprize, till his guards, coming in at the noiſe, diſpatched the traitor. He ſometimes ſuffered himſelf to be tranſported by his courage beyond what was prudent in a prince, on whoſe ſafety depended the welfare of his ſubjects. Thus, being informed that two of his attendants had conſpired againſt his life, and only watched a favourable opportunity of putting their deſign in execution, he one day walked out with them alone into a thick wood, and there, drawing his ſword, he upbraided them with their treachery, and told them, that they now had what they ſo long wiſhed for, the king alone; and therefore might try, if they pleaſed, to compaſs their wicked deſign. Theſe words, with the king's generoſity, and their own guilt, made ſuch a deep impreſſion upon their minds, that they threw themſelves diſarmed at his feet, and, owning the whole truth, acknowledged themſelves unworthy of mercy. The generous prince, however, not only forgave them, but, receiving them into favour, preferred them afterwards to great employments [p]. Having thus won his enemies at home by his kindneſs, and ſtrengthened his intereſt abroad, by marrying the daughter of the duke of the Boioarii, who had received and entertained him and his father in their diſtreſs, he applied himſelf, in imitation of his predeceſſors Rotharis and Grimoald, to the making of new laws, for the better regulation of his kingdom, and adminiſtration of juſtice. Having therefore, in the firſt year of his reign, convened a general diet in Pavia, with the conſent and approbation of his nobles, and the judges from all parts of his kingdom, he enacted ſeveral laws, which he added to the edicts of Rotharis and Grimoald. In the following years he publiſhed many others, as occaſion required; ſo that, next to Rotharis, he ought to be accounted the chief lawgiver of the Lombards [q]. His firſt edict was publiſhed the laſt day of February, in the eleventh indiction, and the firſt year of his reign, as appears from the preface prefixed to it (X), and ſeveral others. he

Two conſpiracies againſt him.

He publiſhes a new edict of laws.

[l] Idem, l. v. c. 44. & JOAN. DIAC. apud Ughell. de epiſc. Neap. p. 86. [m] PAUL. DIAC. l. v. c. 17. [n] Idem ibid. c. 24, 25. [o] Idem ibid. c. 30. [p] Idem ibid. c. 38. [q] Idem, l. vi. c. 58. BERNARD. SACCUS, hiſt. Ticin. l. ix. c. 5. SIGON. reg. Ital. ad ann. 713.

(X) The preface is couched in the following words: "Whereas our moſt mighty predeceſſor "and he publiſhed the following years; ſo that his laws amounted in the end to an hundred and fifty-two. But the wiſdom this prince ſhewed in ſettling his kingdom with excellent laws, and his other extraordinary parts, were not a little eclipſed by his unbounded ambition; for, not ſatisfied with the large and extenſive dominions left him by his predeceſſors, he undertook to drive the Romans quite out of Italy; which in the end occaſioned the ruin of the kingdom of the Lombards in that country: for the popes growing jealous of their too great power, and finding the emperors of the eaſt incapable of making head againſt them, or putting a ſtop to their conqueſts, had recourſe to a foreign nation, which raiſed a new empire in Italy, upon the ruins of the kingdom of the Lombards, as we ſhall relate in the ſequel of this hiſtory. Luitprand, puſhed on by his ambition, watched all opportunities of inlarging his dominions at b the expence of the emperors; and in the fifth year of his reign a very favourable one offered: for Leo Iſauricus, who at that time reigned in the eaſt, having, by his famous edict, forbidden the worſhip of images, and ordered them to be every-where pulled down, the people were ſo provoked at that innovation, that, in ſeveral places they openly revolted, and, falling upon the emperor's officers, drove them out of the cities. In the eaſt Germanus, patriarch of Conſtantinople, oppoſed the emperor's deſign with great warmth; but Leo cauſed him to be depoſed, and Anaſtaſius to be raiſed to that ſee in his room, ordering at the ſame time all the images in the imperi-

Diſturbances occaſioned in Italy by the edict of Leo Iſauricus.

rial city to be pulled down, and publicly burnt. He ſtrictly injoined his officers in the weſt, eſpecially the exarch of Ravenna, to ſee his edict punctually obeyed in their reſpec- c tive governments. In compliance with theſe orders, Scholaſticus, then exarch, began to pull down the images in all the churches and public places in Ravenna; which incenſed the ſuperſtitious multitude to ſuch a degree, that, taking arms, they openly declared they would rather renounce their allegiance to the emperor, than the worſhip of images. Thus a kind of civil war being kindled in the city, Luitprand thought he had now a favourable opportunity of making himſelf maſter of the ſeat of the exarch, not doubting but the conqueſt of ſuch an important place would be followed by that of the whole exarchate. Having therefore drawn together all his forces, he unexpectedly appeared before Ravenna, and cloſely beſieged it. The exarch little expected ſuch a ſurprize, as a friendly correſpondence had been maintained for many years between the d exarchs and the Lombard kings. However, he defended the place with ſuch courage and reſolution, that Luitprand, deſpairing of ſucceſs, broke up the ſiege, and led his army againſt Claſſis at a ſmall diſtance from Ravenna, which place he took, plundered, and levelled with the ground. The loſs of this place, and the ſevere treatment the inhabitants met with from the king, threw the citizens of Ravenna into the utmoſt conſternation; which Luitprand being informed of, he reſolved to take advantage of their fears, and, returning before Ravenna while the inhabitants were thus diſheartened, to attempt once more the reduction of that place. Accordingly he led his whole army againſt it, and, by frequent attacks, tired the inhabitants and gariſon to ſuch a degree, that the exarch, finding they could hold out no longer, and deſpairing of relief, privately withdrew.

Luitpand invades the exarchate.

Luitprand,

" and moſt eminent king, Rothar, publiſhed an edict " for the Lombards, wherein he prudently cauſed the " following words to be inſerted; If the princes of " the Lombards, our ſucceſſors, find any thing ſuper- " fluous in this edict, they may leave it out, and, with " the aſſiſtance of God add what they think wanting: " after him, the moſt glorious king Grimoald ac- " cordingly added and left out what to him ſeemed " fit; and we, following his example, and inſpired, " as we hope, by God, have decreed to be added " and omitted ſuch things, as, according to the law " of God, ſeemed to us proper: therefore, in the " name of the omnipotent God, I Luitprand, the " moſt excellent, the chriſtian and catholic, king of " the nation of the Lombards, beloved of God, in " the firſt year of my reign, the day before the " calends of March, in the eleventh indiction, toge- " ther with all the judges from the parts of Auſtria " and Neuſtria, and borders of Thuſcia, with others " of my faithful Lombards, and all the people aſſiſt- " ing, am pleaſed with the following regulations, " which to us have appeared good, according to " the fear and love of God." Then follow the ſix chapters of the edict, whereof the firſt bears this title De ſucceſſione filiarum. In the fifth year of his reign he publiſhed another edict, and a great many more in the following years, which are all to be ſeen intire in the manuſcript code lodged in the monaſtry of Cava, with ſeven other chapters added to them, under the following titles: I. De mercede magiſtri. II. De muro. III. De annona. IV. De opera. V. De caminata. VI. De furno. VII. De puteo. The laws of Luitprand are in all an hundred and fifty two, as appears from the above-mentioned code; but the compiler of the three books of the laws of the Lombards has thought fit to inſert in that work only an hundred and thirty-ſeven of them, viz. forty eight in the firſt book, and eighty-nine in the ſecond. As for the third book, it is chiefly compoſed of thoſe laws, which were made by the emperors who reigned in Italy, as ſucceſſors to the kings of the Lombards; for ſeveral laws were enacted by them, not as emperors or kings of France, but as kings of Italy, or of the Lombards; and hence the Lombard laws were never of any force in France, nor the French laws in Italy.

a Luitprand, informed of his retreat, attacked the town with more violence than ever, and, having carried it by ſtorm, gave it up to be plundered by his ſoldiers, who found in it an immenſe booty, as it had been for a long time the ſeat of the Roman emperors, of the Gothic kings, and the exarchs. The king ſtripped it of moſt of its valuable monuments of antiquity, and cauſed, among the reſt, an equeſtrian ſtatue of an emperor, of wonderful workmanſhip, to be conveyed to Pavia, where it is to be ſeen to this day. The reduction of Ravenna was followed by the ſurrender of ſeveral cities of the exarchate, which Luitprand reduced to a dukedom, appointing Hildebrand, his grandſon, to govern it with the title of duke, and giving him, as he was yet an infant, Peredeus duke of Vicenza for his guardian [r]. He takes and plunders Ravenna. Year after Chriſt 722.

b The conqueſt of Ravenna, and the greater part of the exarchate, did not a little alarm Gregory II. biſhop of Rome. He was then at variance with the emperor, whoſe edict againſt the worſhipping of images he had oppoſed with all his might, and by that means provoked Leo to ſuch a degree, that he had threatned to drive him from his ſee, and ſend him into exile. However, the pope, no leſs jealous of the power of the Lombards, than all his predeceſſors had been, reſolved, by ſome means or other, to put a ſtop to their conqueſts. The only prince in Italy, to whom he could have recourſe, was Urſus duke of Venice, the Venetians making already no inconſiderable figure. To him accordingly he wrote a very preſſing letter, conjuring him to aſſiſt his worthy ſon the exarch, and, for the love of the holy faith, to attempt c with him the recovery of the exarchate, which the wicked nation of the Lombards had unjuſtly taken from his ſons Leo and Conſtantine emperors. Urſus and the Venetians, moved with the pope's letter, and at the ſame time greatly alarmed at the growth of ſo powerful a neighbour, promiſed to aſſiſt the exarch with the whole ſtrength of their republic, and accordingly fitted out a conſiderable fleet, pretending it was deſigned for the ſervice of the emperor againſt the Saracens. At the ſame time the exarch, who had taken refuge in Venice, abandoning that place, as it were in deſpair of bringing the duke over to his party, raiſed, in the places ſtill ſubject to the emperor, what forces he was able; and having got together a conſiderable body he marched with them towards Imola, giving out, that he deſigned to beſiege that d city; but turning all on a ſudden towards Ravenna, as had been agreed on between him and the Venetians, he laid ſiege to it by land, while they inveſted it almoſt at the ſame inſtant by ſea. Peredeus defended the town for ſome time with great courage and reſolution, obliging all thoſe, who were able to bear arms, to repair to the walls. But the Venetians having, in ſpite of all oppoſition, forced open one of the gates on the ſide of the ſea, the city was taken, and Peredeus ſlain, while he was attempting, at the head of a choice body, to drive the enemy from the poſts they had ſeized. As for Hildebrand, he fell into the hands of the Venetians, who, having thus recovered Ravenna to the emperor, returned home, leaving the exarch in poſſeſſion of the city. Luitprand was then at Pavia; but the town was taken before he could aſſemble his e troops to relieve it [s]. And now Gregory biſhop of Rome, to whom the recovery of Ravenna was chiefly owing, purſuading himſelf, that the emperor would, out of gratitude, give ear to his remonſtrances and admonitions, began to ſolicit him with more preſſing letters than ever to revoke his edict againſt the worſhip of images; but Leo well appriſed, that the biſhop, in all the meaſures he had taken, had been more influenced by a regard to his own intereſt, than to that of the empire, inſtead of hearkening to his remonſtrances, was ſtill more provoked againſt him for thus obſtinately oppoſing the execution of his edict. Being therefore reſolved at all events to have it obſerved in Rome itſelf, and, on the other hand, not doubting but the pope would oppoſe it to the laſt with all his might, in order to remove all obſtacles, he f ſent three officers to Rome, with private orders either to diſpatch the pope, or to take him priſoner, and convey him to Conſtantinople. At the ſame time he wrote to Mauritius duke of Rome, ſecretely injoining him to aſſiſt his three officers in their undertaking; but no favourable opportunity offering to put their deſign in execution, the emperor, in the year 725. recalled Scholaſticus, and ſent Paul a patrician into Italy, to govern in his room, with private inſtructions to encourage the above-mentioned officers with the promiſe of great rewards, and to aſſure them of his protection. But in the mean time the plot was diſcovered, and two of the conſpirators apprehended by the citizens of Rome and put to death, the third having eſcaped into a monaſtery, where he took the monaſtic habit, and ended his days [t]. Hereupon the exarch, in compliance

Ravenna recovered by the exarch and the Venetians.

Leo and pope Gregory quarrel.

[r] Paul. Diac. l. vi. c. 32. & Anast. bibliothecar. in Greg. II. [s] Paul. Diac. ibid.
[t] Anastas. in Greg. II. Sigon. ad. ann. 725. Marg. Freher. in chron. exar. Rav. p. 38.

compliance with the emperor's orders, resolved to proceed no longer by secret plots, but by open force. Accordingly he drew together a considerable body of troops, and set out at the head of them on his march to Rome, with a design to seize on the pope, and send him, as he had engaged to do, in chains to Constantinople. But, on this occasion, Luitprand, though highly provoked against Gregory for having stirred up the Venetians against him, yet resolved to assist him, and the citizens of Rome, against the exarch, in order to keep the balance even between them, and, by assisting sometimes the one, and sometimes the other, weaken both. Pursuant to this resolution, he ordered the Lombards of Tuscany, and those of the dukedom of Spoleto, to join the pope, and the inhabitants of Rome, who being, by this reinforcement, far superior in strength and number to the exarch, obliged him to return to Ravenna, and give over all thoughts of any further attempt on the person of the pope. In the mean time Leo, persisting in his former resolution of suppressing throughout his dominions the worship of images, sent fresh orders to the exarch Paul, strictly injoining him to cause his edict to be put in execution in all the cities of Italy under his empire, especially in Rome. At the same time he wrote to the pope, promising him his favour and protection, if he complied with the edict, and declaring him, if he continued to oppose it, a rebel, and no longer vested with the papal dignity. But Gregory was so far from yielding to the emperor's threats or promises, that, on the contrary, he solemnly excommunicated the exarch for attempting to put the imperial edict in execution; and at the same time wrote circular letters to the Venetians, to king Luitprand, to the Lombard dukes, and to all the chief cities of the empire, exhorting them to continue stedfast in the catholic faith, and to oppose with all their might such a detestable innovation. These letters made such an impression on the minds of the people in Italy, that, though of different interests, and often at war with one another, they all united; protesting they would defend the catholic faith, and the life of the pope in so glorious a cause, at the expence of their own; nay, the citizens of Rome, and the inhabitants of Pentapolis, now Marca d' Ancona, not contenting themselves with such a protestation, openly revolted from the emperor, and, pulling down his statues, they elected, by their own authority, magistrates to govern them during the interregnum. We are even told, that, transported with a blind zeal, they were for chusing a new emperor, and conducting him to Constantinople, not doubting but the people would every where join them. But the pope, thinking this resolution unseasonable, and not to be easily put in execution, opposed it; so that it did not take place[u].

The exarch attempts to get the pope into his power.

Who is defended by Luitprand.

The pope opposes the emperor's edict against images.

Several cities revolt.

In the mean time the exarch Paul, having gained a considerable party in Ravenna, began, pursuant to the repeated orders from the emperor, to remove the images, as so many idols, out of the churches. Hereupon the adverse party, supported and encouraged by the pope, flew to arms, and, falling upon the iconoclasts or image-breakers, as they styled them, gave rise to a civil war within the walls of Ravenna. Great numbers were killed on both sides; but those who were for the worship of images prevailing in the end, a dreadful slaughter was made of the opposite party, and, among the rest, the exarch himself was murdered. However, the city of Ravenna continued faithful to the emperor; but most of the cities of Romagna belonging to the exarchate, and all those of Pentapolis or La Marca d' Ancona, abhorring the emperor as an heretic, submitted to Luitprand king of the Lombards, who, pretending a great zeal for the catholic religion, took care to improve the discontent of the people to his advantage, by representing to them, that they could never maintain their religious rights under a prince, who was not only a heretic, but a persecutor of the orthodox. In Naples, Exhilaratus, duke of that city, having received peremptory orders from the emperor to cause his edict to be put in execution, did all that lay in his power to persuade the people to receive it; but, finding all his endeavours thwarted by the bishop of Rome, for whom the Neapolitans had a great veneration, he hired assassins to murder him. But the plot being discovered, tho' carried on with great secrecy, the Neapolitans, highly provoked against the duke, tore both him and his son to pieces, and likewise put to death one of his chief officers, who had composed a libel against the pope[w]. Luitprand, and Gregory, at that time duke of Benevento, laying hold of so favourable an opportunity to make themselves masters of the dukedom of Naples, did all that lay in their power to persuade the Neapolitans to submit to them. But the Neapolitans, bearing an irreconcileable hatred to the Lombards, with whom they had been constantly at variance, rejected every overture of Great disturbances in Ravenna, and the exarch murdered.

All Pentapolis, and great part of Romagna, submit to Luitprand.

The Neapolitans put their duke to death.

[u] Paul. Diac. l. vi. c. 9. Regin. chronol. l. i. p. 47. Sigon. ad ann. 726. Maimb. hist. iconoclast. p. 73.

[w] Sigon. ad ann. 726.

a of that nature with the utmoſt indignation, and, continuing ſtedfaſt in their allegiance to Leo, received from Conſtantinople one Peter, who was ſent to govern them in the room of Exhilaratus. Some writers ſuppoſe the Neopolitans, in this general revolt of the cities of Italy, to have ſhaken off the yoke with the reſt, and to have appointed magiſtrates of their own election to govern them, in the room of the officers hitherto ſent from Conſtantinople, or named by the exarch; but they are therein certainly miſtaken, it being manifeſt from hiſtory, that Peter ſucceeded Exhilaratus in that dukedom; and that the Neapolitans continued to live under the emperors, till they were conquered many years after by the Normans, as we ſhall relate hereafter. In the mean time Leo, hearing of the murder of the exarch, and the general revolt of the b cities, and not doubting but the pope was the chief author of ſo much miſchief, ſent the eunuch Eutychius into Italy, with the title and authority of exarch, ſtrictly injoining him to get the pope diſpatched by ſome means or other, ſince his death was abſolutely neceſſary for the tranquillity of Italy. The exarch left no ſtone unturned to get the pope into his power; but a meſſenger, whom he had ſent to Rome, being apprehended by the citizens, and an order from the emperor found upon him to all his officers in that city, commanding them to put the pope to death at all events, the pope's friends thenceforth guarded him with ſuch care, that the exarch's emiſſaries could never afterwards find any opportunity of executing their deſign. As for the meſſenger, the Romans were for putting him to death; but the pope interpoſed, c contenting himſelf with excommunicating the exarch [x]. And now the Romans, provoked more than ever againſt Leo, and, on the other hand, unwilling to live under the Lombards, reſolved to revolt from the emperor, and appoint their own magiſtrates, keeping themſelves united under the pope, not yet as their prince, but only as their head. This they did accordingly, and from theſe ſlender beginnings the ſovereignty of the popes in Italy took its riſe, though they did not then, as is commonly ſuppoſed by hiſtorians, but many years after, become ſovereign lords of Rome (Y).

Eutychius the new exarch attempts to get the pope murdered.

The origin of the pope's temporal power.

Eutychius

[x] Freher. in chron. exarch. Raven. p. 82.

(Y) The Greek writers, who flouriſhed long after Gregory, Paulus Diaconus, and Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius, tell us, that the Romans, revolting from the emperor Leo, choſe Gregory for their prince, and took an oath of allegiance to him. They add, that the pope readily accepted the ſovereignty offered him; that he forbad the Romans, and the other inhabitants of Italy, to pay tribute for the future to the emperor; that he abſolved all the ſubjects of the empire from their oath of allegiance; and finally, that, with great ſolemnity, he excommunicated and depoſed Leo. Hence, ſays the Greek writers, viz. Theophanes, Cedrenes, Zonaras, and Nicephorus, the temporal dominion of the popes over Rome, and the Roman dukedom, took its riſe; to which were afterwards added, by Pepin and Charles the Great, the exarchate of Ravenna, Pentapolis or the Marca d' Ancona, and ſeveral other cities of Italy. On the other hand, Paulus Diaconus, Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius and Damaſcenus, take no notice of the pope's depoſing or excommunicating the emperor; of his forbidding tribute to be paid to him; or of his accepting from the rebellious Romans the ſovereignty of Rome. Theſe writers only ſay, that he oppoſed with all his might the edicts of Leo; that he prevented them from being received by the people; and that he earneſtly exhorted and conjured the emperor to revoke them, and give over, as they ſtyle it, ſuch an impious undertaking. Anaſtaſius, after having told us, that Leo depoſed Germanus patriarch of Conſtantinople for oppoſing his edict, and appointed Anaſtaſius in his room, adds, that Gregory excommunicated the new patriarch, and wrote to the emperor, exhorting him to revoke his edict. Had he likewiſe excommunicated the emperor, we cannot perſuade ourſelves, that Anaſtaſius, Paulus Diaconus, and Damaſcenus, would have paſſed over in ſilence ſuch a remarkable incident, it being agreed on by all writers, that no prince or emperor had been excommunicated till that time. As for what Cedrenus, Theophanes, Zonarus, and Nicephorus, write of the pope's depoſing the emperor, it is evidently falſe, ſince Gregory acknowledged Leo for emperor as long as he lived, as did likewiſe Gregory III. his ſucceſſor, who wrote ſeveral letters to him full of reſpect; nay, the dates of moſt of that pope's letters bear the years of Leo's reign; and in that, which he wrote to Boniface, he gives Leo the title of Moſt pious, Imperante domino piiſſimo Auguſto Leone imperii ejus XXIII (1). Hence the French writers, and among the reſt P. de Marca, Natalis, and Du Pin, maintain, that Gregory never excommunicated, or attempted to depoſe, the emperor Leo; that what the abovementioned Greek authors have written on that head, ought to be deemed fabulous; and, that, in ſo remarkable an incident, the ſilence of the Latin writers, who flouriſhed in times leſs diſtant, ought to be of far greater weight with every unbyaſſed reader, than the authority of the Greeks, who, out of their natural averſion to the Latin church, have obtruded ſuch fables on the public. But moſt of our proteſtant writers ſeem to give intire credit to the Greeks, and by all means will have it, that Gregory excommunicated the emperor; that he abſolved all his ſubjects from their allegiance; that he forbad them to pay him the uſual tribute; and that, being offered the ſovereignty of Rome by the rebellious Romans, he accepted the offer, and thenceforth took upon him all the ſtate of a temporal prince. Spanhemius thinks, that all this was denied by the French writers,

(1) Greg. III. ep. iii. P. de Marca de con. ſac. & imp. l. iii. c. 11. num. 5.

Eutychius failed in his design upon the life of the pope; but, having brought with a him from Constantinople a good number of troops, he easily quelled the rebellion in Ravenna, and severely punished the authors of the late disturbances. As for the rebellious Romans, he was well apprised he could never reduce them, so long as they were supported by the king of the Lombards; and therefore he employed all his art and policy to take off that prince from the party of the Romans, and bring him over to his own. Luitprand, for some time, withstood all his offers; but Trasimund duke of Spoleto revolting at this very juncture, the exarch, laying hold of that opportunity, offered to assist the king with all his strength against the rebellious duke, provided he would, in like manner, assist him against the pope and the Romans. With this proposal Luitprand readily closed, and a league being concluded upon these terms b between him and the exarch, the two armies joined, and began their march towards Spoleto. At their approach, the duke, despairing of being able two resist to such powers, writers, lest, in the reign of Lewis the Great, they should seem to acknowledge such a power in the popes (2). The Italian writers, even those among them who are most addicted to the court of Rome, agree with the protestants in giving credit to the Greeks, but with a different view, viz. to shew, that the power of excommunicating and deposing princes was so early exerted by the popes. To conclude, Theophanes, Cedrenus, Zonaras, and Nicephorus, say, that Gregory II. not only excommunicated the emperor Leo, but absolved his subjects from their allegiance, declaring, that they were no longer bound to obey him; that on this occasion the Romans, shaking off the yoke, offered the sovereignty of Rome to the pope; and that he, accepting the offer, became sovereign lord of that city, and its dukedom. On the other hand, Paulus Diaconus, Anastasius and Damascenus, who flourished before the Greek writers, only say, that the pope opposed the edicts of Leo; that he excommunicated both the exarch of Ravenna, and the patriarch of Constantinople; and that he exhorted the emperor to revoke his edict. Some modern writers give entire credit to the Greeks; others, from the silence of the Latins, conclude the accounts of the Greeks to be fabulous: and such truly they appear to us, since Gregory, so long as he lived, acknowledged Leo as emperor; and Gregory III. his successor, not only wrote respectful letters to him, but dated those he wrote to others by the years of his reign, as we have hinted above. As for the temporal dominion of the popes in Rome, we shall shew in a proper place, that it did not begin till several years after; and that their first acquisitions were in the exarchate; that they became afterwards masters of Pentapolis, of several places in the Roman dukedom, and lastly of Rome. As for the famous donation of all Italy, said to have been made by Constantine the Great in the year 324. to pope Sylvester, it is now universally exploded as fabulous. It was indeed formerly defended with great warmth by most of the Italian writers, who even maintained in their works, that the emperors, who succeeded Constantine, had no title or right to any part of Italy, as belonging to the pope, and being the patrimony of St. Peter; that from thence the investitures given by the popes took their rise; and that, from that time, Italy began to be disjoined from the empire, and was never afterwards subject to the emperors; nay, Matteo d' Affitti, a civilian of no small account, from this supposed donation, will have the constitutions published by the emperors, the successors of Constantine, to be of no force in Italy, since those princes had not the power of causing them to be received by the inhabitants of that country, who were no longer subject to them; and several eminent civilians, members of the collateral council in Naples, were of opinion, that in Italy recourse ought to be had to the canon, and not to the civil law (3). But, in later times, it has been evidently proved by many able writers (4), that this donation was forged in the eighth or ninth century, and then inserted into the decrees of Gratian, no mention of it being made by any writer before that time. The many copies of this famous instrument, which are still extant, and widely differ from each other, are so many evident proofs of forgery to every person, who does not delight in darkness, to use the expression of Pietro Giannone, and therefore shuts his eyes, lest he should be forced to see. A copy of this supposed donation is still to be seen in the Vatican library, but greatly differing from that, which we read in the decrees of Gratian. It is related in quite different words by the popes Melchias, Nicholas II. and Leo IX. and quoted by Petrus Damianus, Balstar, Juo de Chartres, Bursattus, and Albericus, with great disagreement both in words and sense. Besides, who can imagine, that Eusebius, and other contemporary writers, who have transmitted to posterity the most minute incidents of Constantine's reign, would have passed over in silence this, perhaps the most remarkable of all? This donation is said to have been made by Constantine at Rome, in the spring of the year 324. and four days after his baptism. But it is evident from history, that Constantine was not then at Rome, but engaged in a war against Licinius in the east; and that, the war being ended, he went the same year to Thessalonica, and continued there till the year following (5). He defeated Licinius in his third consulship, having Crispus for his collegue, who was likewise in his third consulship, as is affirmed by all historians. Now, according to the unanimous consent of chronologers, Constantine and Crispus, were consuls for the third time in 324. and in the spring of that year, the very time when he is supposed to have made that donation, he was at Thessalonica, as is manifest from two of his constitutions still to be seen in the Theodosian code, the one bearing the following date, Dat. VIII. id. Mart. Thessalonicæ, Crispo III. & Constantino III. coss. the other dated thus; Dat. VI. id. Aprilis, Thessalonicæ, Crispo III. & Constantino III. coss. (6). The latter is directed to Lucer. Verinus, that year prefect of Rome, as appears from the notitia of the prefects of that city, where we read Chrispo III. & Constantino III. coss. Lucer. Verinus præfectus urbi. From these constitutions, and likewise from the most credible historians, both Greek and Latin, it has been evidently proved by several writers, that Constantine was baptized in Nicomedia when he was dying, and not in Rome by pope Sylvester, to whom he is supposed to have made the above-mentioned donation four days after his baptism: so that, upon the whole, we may conclude Constantine's yielding Rome to Sylvester, and his receiving baptism at the hands of that pope, to be equally fabulous.

An alliance between the exarch and Luitprand.

(2) Spanhem. contra Maimburg. in hist. imag. p. 52. (3) Afflit. in constit. in prælud. q. 2. num. 2. & q. 20. num 1. Tappia de jur. reg. l. i. de legib. l. i. num. 6. (4) Marca. l. iii. c. 12. & l. vi. c. 6. Schol. strat. antiq. illust. part. ii. diss 3. c. 8. (5) Vide Zos. l. ii. & annoym. Sigeburd. (6) Cod. Theod. l. iv.

a powers, came out with a small attendance to meet them, and, throwing himself at the king's feet, sued, in that humble posture, for pardon; which Luitprand not only granted him, but confirmed him in the dukedom, after he had obliged him to take a new oath of allegiance, and give hostages for his fidelity in time to come. From Spoleto the two armies marched, in pursuance of the treaty, to Rome, and encamped in the meadows of Nero, between the Tiber and the Vatican. Gregory had caused the city of Rome to be fortified in the best manner he could; but being sensible, that the Romans alone could not long hold out against two such armies, and reflecting on the kind treatment the duke of Spoleto had met with upon his submitting to the king, he resolved to follow his example; and accordingly, taking with him some of b the clergy, and the principal inhabitants of the city, he went to wait on the king in his camp; and there, with a pathetic speech, as he was a great master of eloquence, softened Luitprand to such a degree, that, throwing himself at his feet in the presence of the whole army, he begged pardon for entering into an alliance against him, and, assuring him of his protection for the future, he went with him to the church of St. Peter, and there, disarming himself in the presence of his chief officers, he laid his girdle, his sword, and his gantlet, with his royal mantle, his crown of gold, and cross of silver, on the apostle's sepulchre. After this, he reconciled the pope with the exarch, who was thereupon received into the city, where he continued for some time, maintaining a friendly correspondence with the pope [y]. At this time an impos-

c tor, taking the name of Tiberius, and pretending to be descended from the emperors, seduced a great many people in Tuscany, and was by them proclaimed emperor. The exarch resolved to march against him; but, as he had not sufficient forces to oppose the rebels, Gregory, who let no opportunity slip of obliging Leo, persuaded the Romans to attend the exarch in this expedition; by which means the usurper being taken in a castle, his head was sent to the emperor, and the rebellion utterly suppressed. But the emperor still insisting upon his edict against the images being received in Rome, the Romans, at the instigation of the pope, publicly renounced their allegiance to Leo, paid him no more tribute, and withdrew for ever their obed dience to the emperors of the east. Leo, informed of this revolt, and not questioning but the pope was the author of it, immediately caused all the patrimonies of the church of Rome in Sicily, Calabria, and his other dominions, to be confiscated. At the same time he ordered a powerful army to be raised, with a design to recover the towns that had revolted, to chastise the Romans for their rebellion, and, above all, to be revenged on the pope, who had raised all these disturbances, by opposing himself, and persuading others to oppose, the execution of his edict. Gregory, greatly alarmed at the warlike preparations that were carrying on throughout the empire, and well apprised, that they were chiefly designed against him and the Romans, resolved to recur to the protection of the French, the only nation at that time capable e of coping with the emperor, and on whom, on account of their zeal for religion, he thought he might depend. The Lombards were then very powerful; but, as they wanted to be masters of Rome, he did not think it advisable to trust them. The Venetians, though zealous in the defence of the pope, were not yet in a condition to withstand the power of the emperor, and, besides, were jealous of the Lombards, who watched all opportunities of inlarging their dominions at the expence of their neighbours. As for Spain, it was then in a most deplorable condition, being over-run, and almost wholly ruined, by the Saracens. The French nation was at this time governed by the celebrated Charles Martel, who had distinguished himself in a most eminent manner in the wars of France and Germany, and had, not long before gained a signal victory over the Saracens in the neighbourhood of Tours; whence he was

f generally reputed the best general, and the greatest hero, of his time. To him therefore Gregory sent a solemn embassy, with a great number of reliques, earnestly entreating him to take the Romans, and the church, under his protection, and defend them against the attempts of Leo. The embassadors were received with extraordinary marks of honour, and a treaty soon concluded between them and Charles, who engaged to march into Italy in person, at the head of a powerful army, in defence of the Romans, and the church, if they should be attacked either by the emperor, or the Lombards. On the other hand, the Romans were to acknowledge him for their protector, and confer on him the honour of the consulship, as it had been formerly conferred on Clovis by the emperor Anastasius, after that prince had defeated the Visigoths. The embassadors returned from France loaded with rich presents [z]. But Gregory did not long enjoy the fruit of their negotiations; for he died the same year 731. and was succeeded by pope Gregory III. in whose time some place the above-mentioned

They besiege Rome.

The pope persuades Luitprand to raise the siege. Year after Christ 729.

Leo resolves to reduce the revolted cities, and to chastise the pope.

Who has recourse to the French. Year after Christ 731.

[y] Sigon. ad ann. 729. Vide append. ad Greg. Tur. p. 15.

mentioned embaſſy. Theſe authors tell us, that Luitprand, having defeated Thraſimund, who had revolted a ſecond time, invaded, after his victory, the Roman dukedom, and laid cloſe ſiege to Rome, being provoked againſt Gregory for receiving and entertaining the rebel; that the pope, finding his prayers and entreaties did not make the ſame impreſſion on the king, as thoſe of his predeceſſor, had recourſe to Charles Martel; and that Charles perſuaded the king of the Lombards to raiſe the ſiege, and, contenting himſelf with four cities only, to leave Rome, and the reſt of that dukedom, to the Romans and the pope [a]. Be that as it will, it is certain, that, upon the pope's recurring to France, the French firſt began to concern themſelves in the affairs of Italy, and afterwards, by degrees, made themſelves maſters of the country, as we ſhall relate anon.

In the mean time died the emperor Leo, and was ſucceeded by his ſon Conſtantine, ſurnamed Copronymus, who, treading in the footſteps of his father, renewed his edict againſt images, and began to proſecute all thoſe, who ſtood up in their defence; nay, not ſatisfied with ordering the images to be removed, he went farther, and forbad the invocation of ſaints, eſpecially of the virgin Mary, not ſuffering any holy days to be kept in her honour, or her aſſiſtance to be implored. This edict occaſioned new diſturbances in Italy, and confirmed the Romans in the reſolution they had taken of ſeparating themſelves entirely from the empire, the more as, being now under the protection of Charles Martel, they had nothing to fear from the emperor. They therefore drove out of their city ſuch of the imperial officers, as they had hitherto ſuffered to continue there, and by that means aboliſhed the very ſhadow of dominion, which the emperor had till this time among them. Soon after the emperor Leo, died Gregory III. and was ſucceeded by Zachary, who was no ſooner elected, than he diſpatched a ſolemn embaſſy to Luitprand, intreating him to reſtore the four cities, which had been yielded to him upon his raiſing the ſiege of Rome. Luitprand received the embaſſadors with extraordinary marks of honour, and ſeemed inclined to comply with their requeſt; but, as the deſired reſtitution was put off from time to time, Zachary, in imitation of Gregory, went in perſon to wait on the king, attended by all the clergy of Rome. Luitprand, who was then at Terni, received him with the greateſt reſpect imaginable, and not only granted him his requeſt, but reſtored to the church of Rome the patrimony in Sabina, which had been confiſcated thirty years before, and concluded a peace with the Romans for twenty years. Towards the latter end of his reign, being impatient of reſt, he invaded the exarchate, and, having taken Ceſena, was making the neceſſary preparations for beſieging Ravenna, and bringing that place once more under his dominion. But Zachary, for whom the king had the greateſt veneration, interpoſing, Luitprand, at his requeſt, not only laid aſide all thoughts of making further conqueſts, but even reſtored Ceſena, and ſome other places, which he had taken [b]. Not long after, Luitprand died, in the year 743. the thirty-ſecond of his reign, and was buried with great pomp and ſolemnity in the church of St. Adrian in Pavia. Paulus Diaconus beſtows on him the higheſt encomiums, and not undeſervedly; for he was endued with every good quality becoming a prince [c]. He governed with great juſtice and moderation, treating his ſubjects as his children, and giving daily inſtances of his generoſity and good-nature, even to his greateſt enemies. He inlarged his dominions by the addition of Pentapolis, and the greater part of Æmilia; and this his thirſt after conqueſts, and his ambition, are the only faults, which the writers of thoſe times have been able to diſcover in his character. He founded many churches and monaſteries, enumerated by Paulus Diaconus [d], whereof the veſtiges are admired to this day. With his death Paulus Diaconus cloſes his hiſtory of the Lombards (Z).

Luitprand dies Year after Chriſt 743.

Luitprand

[a] Sigon. ad ann. 739. [b] Paul. Diac. l. vi. c. 57, 58. [c] Idem, ibid. [d] Idem, ibid.

(Z) With the death of Luitprand, Paulus Diaconus cloſes his hiſtory of the Lombards. He was deacon of the church of Forum Julii, in the territory of which city his great grand-father's father ſettled, when the Lombards, his countrymen, firſt came into Italy. He left five ſons, who were carried into captivity by the Avares, when Forum Julii was betrayed to them, as we have related above, by Romilda the wife of Giſulf. Of the five brothers, one only, by name Lupicis, returned to the place of his nativity, where he married, and had a ſon named Arechis. The ſon of Arechis, named Warnefrid, had, by his wife Theudelinda, Paul Warnefrid our hiſtorian, commonly called Paulus Diaconus, or Paul the deacon. He betrays throughout his whole work, great partiality for his countrymen, of which the reader will find ſeveral inſtances in the learned Camillo Pellegrino (7).

(7) Camill. Peregrin. in diſſert. fin. ducat. Benevent. ad ſeptentrion. p. 37.

Luitprand was ſucceeded by his grandſon Hildeprand or Hildebrand, whom he had, a ſome years before taken for his partner in the kingdom. But the Lombards, finding him unequal to ſo great a charge, depoſed him, after a ſhort reign of ſeven months, and in his room raiſed to the throne Rachis duke of Friuli, a perſon highly eſteemed for his piety and eminent virtues [e], He aſcended the throne in 744. to the unſpeakable ſatisfaction of the whole nation, and, in the beginning of his reign, confirmed the peace with Zachary and the Romans, which had been granted them by his predeceſſor. In the ſecond year of his reign, finding the laws of the Lombards ſtill defective notwithſtanding the many alterations and additions made by the preceding kings, he reſolved to add ſome new laws to them, and ſoften the rigour of others. b Accordingly, having convened the ſtates in Pavia, with their conſent and approbation, he publiſhed a new edict in 745. and ordered it to be obſerved throughout his dominions. This edict, containing eleven chapters, is ſtill to be ſeen in the oftenmentioned code of the monaſtery of Cava in the kingdom of Naples [f]. Having thus provided his ſubjects with excellent laws, and ſettled the affairs of the kingdom to his ſatisfaction, though naturally inclined to peace, he turned all on a ſudden his thoughts upon war, and puſhed on by an ambition of inlarging his dominions, as his predeceſſors had done, he raiſed a conſiderable army, and, putting himſelf at the head of it, he firſt retook ſeveral places in Pentapolis, which had revolted from him, and then, entering the Roman dukedom, laid cloſe ſiege to Perugia. The emperor c was at a great diſtance, and did not mind the affairs of Italy. The exarch was not in a condition to defend himſelf, if attacked, much leſs to protect his neighbours. Zachary therefore, inſtead of ſolliciting the aſſiſtance either of the emperor or the exarch, reſolved to try, whether, by his own authority and character, he could divert the king of the Lombards, from purſuing his conqueſts. As his former journey had proved ſucceſsful beyond his expectation, he reſolved to undertake another. Accordingly, he went in perſon to the camp of Rachis, under the walls of Perugia, and, being received by that prince with great marks of reſpect and veneration, he repreſented to him, with ſuch force and energy, the puniſhment that is reſerved for thoſe, who unjuſtly invade the property of others, that Rachis, wonderfully affected with his d ſpeech, not only raiſed the ſiege of Perugia, but reſtored all the places he held in Pentapolis; nay, the preſence and authority of the biſhop made ſuch a deep impreſſion on his mind, that the following year he went to Rome, with his wife Taſia, and his daughter Ratruda, to pay him a viſit. Being overcome, while he was in that city, with the ſecret force of religion, he renounced his kingdom, and proſtrating himſelf at the pope's feet, took the habit of St. Benedict, and retired to the monaſtery of Monte Caſſino, where he ſpent the remainder of his days, and was honoured after his death by thoſe monks as a ſaint (A). Taſia his wife, and Ratruda his daughter, followed his example, retiring into a monaſtery of virgins, founded by them at a ſmall diſtance from Monte Caſſino [g]. The Lombards no ſooner heard, that Rachis had e reſigned, than aſſembling in Pavia, they choſe his brother Aſtulphus, or Aiſtulphus, in their dukedom, and not in Benevento their metropolis, or in ſome other city of note, ſuch as Capua, Salerno, Bari, &c. which were all cities of that dukedom. Villani, who flouriſhed in the reigns of Charles II. of Anjou, and Joan I. his niece, when Barletta was become one of the moſt conſiderable cities of Apulia, thinking it had been ſuch in the reign of Rachis, and ſeeing a ſtatue there, called by the natives Arrachio, concluded it to be the ſtatue of Rachis. The other reaſon alledged by Giannoni is, that the prince repreſented by that ſtatue is dreſſed after the manner of the Roman emperors, has in one hand a croſs, in the other a globe, and no beard; whereas the king of the Lombards are repreſented, as appears from the antient code of the monaſtery of Cava, with long beards, military garments, a ſceptre in their right-hand, and a crown on their head, none of them having either the croſs or the globe. Hence Giannoni concludes it to be the ſtatue of ſome Roman emperor, perhaps of Heraclius, there being ſome reſemblance between that emperor's name and the name, which, time out of mind, has been given to the ſtatue by the inhabitants of Barletta (11).

Hildebrand ſucceeds; but is depoſed, and Rachis choſen in his room.

He publiſhes a new edict of laws.

He invades the Roman dukedom, and lays ſiege to Perugia.

He raiſes the ſiege, and turns monk.

His brother Aſtulphus choſen king in his room. Year after Chriſt 751.

[e] Erch. apud Peregrin. in hiſt. princ. Longob. p. 5. Leo Ostiens. chron. l. i. c. 8. [f] Idem ibid. [g] Idem ibid. &

(A) Giovanni Villani, in his hiſtory of Florence, ſuppoſes the large ſtatue of braſs, which is ſtill to be ſeen at Barletta, a city of Apulia, and is called Arrachio, to have been erected by the Lombards of Benevento to this prince (8). Beatillus (9), and the abbot de Nuce (10), are of the ſame opinion; for, at this time, the dukedom of Benevento extended as far as Bari, ſo that it compriſed the city of Barletta; and it is not improbable, ſay they, that the Lombards of Benevento ſhould in one of their cities, erect a ſtatue to their king. They were it is true, immediately ſubject to their own duke; but both he and they were at the ſame time ſubject to the king, the kingdom of the Lombards compriſing not only that country, which is now known by the name of Lombardy, and the other ſmall dukedoms, but likewiſe the three famous dukedoms of Friuli, Spoleto, and Benevento. But Pietro Giannone alledges two ſtrong arguments againſt the opinion of Villani, and the two above-mentioned writers, who have eſpouſed, without due conſideration, his opinion. In the firſt place, it is altogether improbable, ſays he, that the Lombards of Benevento would have erected ſuch a large and magnificent ſtatue in a town at that time of no account and ſituated on the very borders of

(8) Villan. l. ii. c. 9. (9) Beatill. hiſt. di St. Stabino, p. 83. (10) De Nuce ad Oſtienſ. l. i. c. 8.
(11) Piet. Giannon. hiſt. civil. di Napol l. v. c. 1. ſect. 11.

in his room, a man of great gallantry in the field, and wiſdom in council. He raiſed a the kingdom of the Lombards to the higheſt pitch of its grandeur; which gave occaſion to its total ruin, as we ſhall relate anon. In the beginning of his reign, he confirmed the peace concluded between his brother and pope Zachary, who died the following year 752. and was ſucceeded by Stephen II. But Stephen, having held the ſee three days, died on the fourth, and in his room was choſen another named likewiſe Stephen, whom the antients call Stephen II. not reckoning his predeceſſor, who died before he was conſecrated; for, in thoſe days, the election alone did not make a pope, but the conſecration; and hence this pope is by Echerempertus, and Leo Oſtienſis, called Stephen II. and not Stephen III. but at preſent it is a ſettled point in the church of Rome, that the pope receives all authority from his election, contrary b to what was believed by the antients; and therefore the writers of later times reckon Stephen, who lived but three days, and was not conſecrated, among the popes, altering by that means the number of the ſubſequent Stephens; ſo that the ſecond is by them called the third, the third called the fourth, &c. and the ninth called the tenth, which has bred confuſion in the hiſtory of the church. Stephen II. or, as the modern writers call him, the third, three months after his election, diſpatched legates to king Aſtulphus, with rich preſents, to confirm the peace, which had been lately granted by that prince to Zachary. The king received the new popes legates with

He confirms the peace with the pope.

the greateſt reſpect, and not only ratified the peace, but extended it to forty years more. This he did with no other view, but to divert the pope from thwarting the c deſign he had upon the exarchate, which he was reſolved to invade, the emperor Conſtantine Copronymus being then engaged in a war with the Saracens and Bulgarians, and all Aſia and Greece miſerably waſted by a dreadful plague. He thought he could not have a more favourable opportunity of ſubjecting Ravenna, and the reſt of the

He invades the exarchate, and takes Ravenna.

exarchate; and therefore, having raiſed a very conſiderable army, he marched ſtrait to that city, and cloſely beſieged it. Eutychius, who was ſtill exarch, defended the place for ſome time with great valour; but finding his men quite tired out, and deſpairing of relief, he at laſt abandoned it to the enemy, and returned by ſea to Conſtantinople. Aſtulphus, thus become maſter of the metropolis of the exarchate, reduced, with great eaſe, the other cities, and all Pentapolis; which he added to his d kingdom, and, by that addition, raiſed the power of the Lombards to a higher pitch than any of his predeceſſors had done. Thus ended the exarchate of Ravenna, and with it the ſplendor of that city, which, ever ſince the time of Valentinian, the emperors had choſen for the place of their reſidence, as it was afterwards the ſeat of the Gothic kings, and, upon their expulſion, of the exarchs, who, for the ſpace of an hundred and eighty-three years, maintained the power and authority of the emperors of the eaſt in Italy. As the dukes of the other cities of Italy, and of Rome itſelf, were under the exarch, who reſided at Ravenna, the biſhops of that ſee contended for precedency even with the biſhops of Rome. But a period was at the ſame time put to the exarchate, and to the luſtre of that antient metropolis, which was reduced by the e Lombards to a dukedom; ſo that, by degrees, it decayed, and, in proceſs of time, came to the deplorable condition in which it is at preſent. Marquardus Freherus, in his chronology of the exarchs of Ravenna, writes, that the exarchate laſted for the ſpace of an hundred and ſeventy-five years [h]. But he does not reckon well; for he himſelf tells us, that it began in 568. and ended in 752. ſo that, even according to him, it muſt have laſted an hundred and eighty-three years.

An end of the exarchate, which is changed into a dukedom.

Year after Chriſt 752.

Aſtulphus invades the Roman dukedom.

Aſtulphus, now maſter of the exarchate, thought he had a juſt title to all the places depending on it, and conſequently to the Roman dukedom, and to Rome itſelf. He therefore diſpatched a meſſenger to that city, requiring the inhabitants to acknowledge him for their ſovereign, and alledging in juſtification of his demand, that f the exarchate, which was his by right of conqueſt, gave him the ſame power, which the emperors had till then in Italy over the inhabitants of Rome, and the Roman dukedom. At the ſame time he marched his army towards Rome, and, having taken Narnia, now Narni, he ſent from thence to acquaint the pope, that he was determined to plunder Rome, and put all the Romans to the ſword, if they refuſed to acknowledge him, by paying him yearly a golden ſolidus a head. The pope, alarmed at this ſevere meſſage, attempted firſt to divert the king from this reſolution by a ſolemn a ſolemn embaſſy, at the head of which were the two abbots of Monte Caſſino and St. Vincentius, who meeting the king at Vulturnum, a City in Campania, ſtanding on a river of that name, put him in mind of the peace he had lately concluded with Stephen and the Romans, and endeavoured, by arguments, prayers, and intreaties, to perſuade him not to break it, but to employ his arms elſewhere [i]. The two legates had brought rich preſents with them for the king; but he, rejecting them, inſiſted upon his being acknowledged by the pope and the Romans for their ſovereign. This threw Stephen into the greateſt perplexity imaginable; for he found the king of the Lombards unalterably determined upon the reduction of Rome, and the Roman dukedom; and, on the other hand, the emperor was no ways in a condition to defend b them, or put a ſtop to the conqueſts of ſo powerful and warlike a prince. The pope, upon the firſt irruption of the Lombards into the exarchate, had written preſſing letters to the emperor, repreſenting to him the danger Italy was in, the diſgrace, which, from the loſs of the countries, he ſtill held there, would, in future ages, redound upon his memory, and the glory, that would accrue to him from preſerving ſo valuable a portion of the empire. But the emperor, inſtead of an army, ſent one John, with the character of embaſſador, to the king of the Lombards, requiring him to reſtore the places he had already taken, and not to diſturb the peace of Italy, by attempting the reduction of others. John went firſt to Rome, and from thence, attended by Paul, the pope's brother, to Ravenna, where Aſtulphus then was. The king received c the meſſage with the utmoſt contempt, and diſmiſſed the meſſengers with great ſcorn, which they might well have expected. Hereupon the pope ſent his brother to Conſtantinople, to acquaint the emperor that the king of the Lombards was not to be reſtrained by his authority alone, and to intreat him to ſend a powerful army into Italy, without which Rome, and the remains of the Roman empire in that country, would be irreparably loſt. But Conſtantine at that time had no troops to ſpare, being engaged in other wars; ſo that the pope, upon the invaſion of the Roman dukedom, thinking it was in vain to have recourſe to him, reſolved, after the example of Zachary and the two Gregories, to recur to the protection of France. That kingdom had been transferred ſome years before from the Merovingian to the Carlovingian line; d and the celebrated Pepin, ſon to Charles Martel, was then king. As pope Zachary had had a great ſhare in that tranſlation, Pepin had promiſed to protect his ſee againſt all its enemies, eſpecially againſt the Lombards. Stephen therefore, not doubting but Pepin would readily perform what he had promiſed, diſpatched privately a meſſenger into France, to acquaint him with his diſtreſs, and the deſire he had of conferring with him in perſon, provided he could do it without danger, and a ſafe conduct was procured for him from the king of the Lombards, who already kept Rome, in a manner blocked up. Pepin, glad of the opportunity of obliging the pope, ſent immediately two perſons of diſtinction, to beg, in his name, of the king of the Lombards, leave for Stephen to come out of the city, and go with him into France. The two e embaſſadors found the Lombards in poſſeſſion of all the caſtles, and ſtrong-holds in the neighbourhood of Rome, and ready to inveſt that city. However, Aſtulphus readily complied with their requeſt, and ſuffered the pope, not only to come ſafe out of Rome, but to repair with them to France, where he was received by Pepin with the greateſt marks of eſteem and veneration. He laid before the king the deplorable condition to which he was reduced by the Lombards, and, imploring his aſſiſtance and protection he promiſed, as one good turn deſerves another, to employ all the authority of the apoſtolic ſee in his behalf. On the other hand, Pepin aſſured him of his aſſiſtance, and, having prevailed upon him to ſtay till the winter was over, and the army ready to march, both he, and his two ſons Charles and Carloman, were in the f mean time anointed by him with the holy unction, and, with great ſolemnity, conſecrated in the church of St. Dennis kings of France. This ceremony, Pepin thought would recommend him to the reſpect of his ſubjects, and greatly contribute to the eſtabliſhing of the kingdom in his perſon and poſterity [k].

The pope endeavours in vain to divert him from that invaſion.

[h] Freher. in Leuenclav. tom. i. jur. Græc-Rom.

Pope Stephen recurs to Pepin king of France.

He goes in perſon to France.

In the mean time Aſtulphus, not aware of the danger that threatened him, was wholly intent upon publiſhing a new edict of laws, which is ſtill to be ſeen in the code of the monaſtery of Cava, and contains twenty-two chapters. The preface prefixed to this edict is couched in the following words: "Having maturely and "ſeriouſly weighed and examined the laws enacted by my predeceſſors, I have found "many Aſtulphus publiſhes a new edict.

[i] Sigon. ad ann. 753.

[k] Leo. Ostiens. l. i. c. 8.

" many things wanting, and great disorders arising from that want: Therefore, in " the fifth year of my happy reign, in the name of god, on the first day of March, a
" the seventh indiction, having called together the chief lords and judges of my " kingdom, I have caused to be added to the laws of my predecessors, and to my
" own, what to me seemed just, and pleasing to God." But while Astulphus was busied in making new laws, pope Stephen was negotiating in France the ruin of him and his kingdom. Pepin upon the arrival of Stephen in France, had promised to assist him against the Lombards with the whole strength of his kingdom, and to drive them out of the exarchate and Pentapolis, which were to be restored, as Pepin understood, to the emperor, from whom the Lombards had taken them. But the pope finding the king ready to gratify him in all his demands, he resolved not to let slip b so favourable an opportunity of aggrandizing himself; and therefore insinuated to Pepin, that he could not better acquit himself of his obligations to the apostolic see, consult the welfare of his soul, or reward him for the dangers he had undergone, and the pains he had taken for the safety of Italy, and the church than by granting both the exarchate and Pentapolis to St. Peter, that is, to himself. As for Constantine, the pope pretended he had forfeited all right to those countries, by forsaking the protection of Italy, and persecuting the church. Pepin, to oblige the pope, not only promised to put him in possession of the exarchate and Pentapolis, if he should succeed in driving the Lombards out, but confirmed his promise, with a solemn oath, which was likewise taken by his two son Charles and Carloman [l]. When Pepin was ready to set c out on his march for Italy, in order to perform his promise, the pope was taken ill; so that the expedition was put off till the month of August. In the mean time the pope, by frequent letters and messages, endeavoured to persuade Astulphus to restore what he had taken, conjuring him by the holy misteries, and the tremendous day of judgment, to prevent, by his compliance, the effusion of christian blood. Pepin likewise interposed his good offices, sending three different embassies to the king of the Lombards, and earnestly intreating him to content himself with such countries as had been held by the kings his predecessors. But finding Astulphus deaf to his intreaties, he resolved to employ force; and accordingly, putting himself at the head of d his army, he marched, attended and spurred on by the pope, towards the Alps, sending a party of chosen men before to open the passes. These Astulphus attacked with great vigour; but his men being put to flight by the French, who had the advantage of the ground, he fled with great precipitation to Pavia. Pepin, finding the passes clear, crossed the mountains unmolested, and, entering Italy, advanced to Pavia, where the king had taken refuge, and closely besieged it. Astulphus, apprised of the danger he was in, sent one of his chief lords to Pepin to sue for peace; which was granted him, upon his engaging, by a solemn oath, to restore the places he had seized in the Roman dukedom, the exarchate, and Pentapolis, not to the emperor, but to the pope. For the performance of these articles, he delivered up forty hostages e to Pepin, who sent them into Thrace, and soon after followed them thither with his whole army, though in the depth of winter. As for Stephen, he returned with great joy to Rome, not doubting but Astulphus would soon put him in possession of the countries, which he had, by a solemn oath promised, to deliver up to him; but Astulphus, without the least regard either to his oath, or the hostages, when he thought the storm blown over by the departure of Pepin, instead of delivering up the countries he had seized before, broke unexpectedly, into the Roman dukedom, and made himself master of several cities, destroying all with fire and sword. At last he approached Rome with his army, and closely besieged it, not imagining that Pepin would pass the Alps a second time. In this extremity, Stephen had recourse to his protector, f writing to him the three letters that are still extant [m], and couched in the most submissive terms imaginable. St. Peter, to whom the donation had been made, is introduced speaking in these letters to the king, his two sons, and all the states of France, conjuring them to come to his relief, on pain of being debarred from the kingdom of heaven [n]. Pepin, greatly affected with the pope's letters, and looking upon the breach of faith in the king of the Lombards as an affront offered to him, resolved to have recourse anew to arms. Having therefore, with great expedition, assembled his forces, he again set out on his march for Italy; which Astulphus no sooner heard, than, breaking up the siege of Rome, which had lasted already three months, he returned

Pepin is persuaded by the pope to make war on the Lombards.

He enters Italy, and besieges Astulphus in his metropolis.

The exarchate and Pentapolis given by Pepin to the pope.

Year after Christ 754.

[l] Sigon. l. iii. p. 126, 127, Chesne hist. tom. iii. p. 705.

[m] Tom. vi. concil. p. 239. & Baron. ad ann. 755.

[n] Du

a returned in great haſte to the defence of his own country. In the mean time Pepin, having defeated, as formerly, the troops that had been ſent to defend the paſſes in the Alps, and entered Italy, Aſtulphus, whoſe army was not near ſo numerous as that of Pepin, threw himſelf a ſecond time into Pavia, with the flower of his army. Thither Pepin followed him, and inveſted the city on all ſides. In the mean time the emperor Conſtantinus Copronymus, receiving intelligence of the agreement between the pope and Pepin, in virtue of which the king was to drive the Lombards out of the exarchate, and then deliver it up, not to him, but to the pope, immediately diſpatched embaſſadors to Pepin, to proteſt againſt that donation, to convince him, if poſſible, of the injuſtice of it, and perſuade him to reſtore to the empire what had b been rent from it, and not to the pope, who had no manner of claim to any part of his dominions. The embaſſadors went firſt to Rome, and thence to Marſeilles, where they were informed, that Pepin had already paſſed the Alps. Hereupon one of them made privately the beſt of his way to Pavia, where he underſtood the king then was, leaving the reſt at Marſeilles with the legate, whom the pope had ſent with them from Rome, and who, as they apprehended, would have thwarted their negotiations. The embaſſador, who was immediately introduced to the king, after having extolled, in his maſter's name, the courage, valour, and conduct, which he had ſhewn in the preſent war with the Lombards, the common enemy of the empire and France, repreſented to him, that the exarchate, without all diſpute, belonged to the empire, from c which it had been taken with the greateſt injuſtice, while the emperor was engaged in a war with the Saracens; that, ſince the king had retaken it from the unjuſt invader, it was agreeable to the rules of equity, that he ſhould reſtore to the emperor what was his; that the biſhop of Rome was his ſubject; and that ſince he ſuffered him peaceably to enjoy what had been given him by princes and private perſons for maintaining his dignity, he could not uſurp the dominions of his ſovereign, without being guilty at the ſame time of high treaſon, and the moſt crying injuſtice. The embaſſador concluded his ſpeech by telling the king, that his maſter, who deſired nothing of others but what ſeemed agreeable to equity, was ready to practiſe it himſelf; and therefore would willingly reimburſe him all the expences he had been at in the recovery
d of the exarchate, and other places taken by the Lombards. Pepin, having heard with great attention what the embaſſador ſaid, replied, that the exarchate belonged to the conqueror of the Lombards, who had acquired it by right of war, as their forefathers had done; that many places had, of their own accord, ſubmitted to Luitprand, the inhabitants having no other means to maintain their religion; that therefore the right of the Lombards to thoſe countries was no more to be queſtioned, than that of the French to the countries, which they had taken from the Romans and Viſigoths; that the right which the Lombards had was devolved upon him, ſo that he could diſpoſe of thoſe countries as he thought fit; and he had judged it proper to beſtow them on the pope, that the catholic faith might be preſerved in its full purity, and e be no longer defiled with the many abominable errors of the Greeks; that this was his firm reſolution, which nothing could make him alter; and that he was determined to maintain, to the laſt drop of his blood, the pope, and the church, in the poſſeſſion of what he had given them. He then diſmiſſed the embaſſadors, without ſuffering them to reply [o]; and, purſuing the ſiege of Pavia with great vigour, reduced Aſtulphus to ſuch ſtreights, that, being no longer able to hold out, he ſent embaſſadors to ſue for peace; which was granted him by Pepin, upon his promiſing to perform immediately the treaty made the year before, and, over and above, to deliver up to the pope the city of Commachio, a place at that time of great importance. This promiſe was confirmed by a ſolemn oath, and hoſtages were given as formerly. Pepin
f then renewed his donation, whereby he yielded to St. Peter, and his ſucceſſors, the exarchate, Æmilia, now Romagna, and Pentapolis, now Marca d' Ancona, with all the cities therein, to be held by them for ever; and, having cauſed a new inſtrument of the donation to be drawn up, he delivered it, ſigned by himſelf, by his two ſons Charles and Carloman, and by the chief barons and prelates of France, to Fulard abbot of St. Denis, to be given into the pope's hands. Fulard, whom Pepin had appointed his commiſſary, having received this inſtrument, went, together with the commiſſaries named by Aſtulphus, to all the cities of the exarchate, Æmilia, and Pentapolis; and, taking poſſeſſion of them in the pope's name, he received hoſtages,

The emperor ſends embaſſadors to claim the exarchate.

Aſtulphus beſieged a ſecond time in Pavia by Pepin.

Pepin's anſwer to them.

Aſtulphus ſubmits.

Pepin renews his donation to the pope.

[o] Aastas. in vit. Steph. III. p. 87. P. de Marca de concord. ſacerdot. & imper. l. i. c. 11. num. 5.

And puts him in poſſeſſion of the exarchate, &c. Year after Chriſt, 756.

with whom he repaired to Rome, carrying with him the keys, and Pepin's doationn, a which were laid by the pope on St. Peter's ſepulchre. Pepin, having thus performed the promiſe he had made to the pope, left Italy, and returned with his army to France [p]. The exarchate compriſed, according to Sigonius [q], the following cities, viz. Ravenna, Bologna, Imola, Faenza, Forlimpopoli, Forli, Ceſena, Bobbio, Ferrara, Commachio, Adria, Cervia, and Secchia, which were all delivered to the pope, except Faenza and Ferrara. Pentapolis, or Marca d' Ancona, comprehended Rimini, Peſaro, Conca, Fano, Sinigaglia, Ancona, Oſimo, Umana, Jeſi, Foſſombrone, Monteferetro, Urbino, the Balneſian territory, Cagli, Luceoli, and Eugubio, with their territories and diſtricts, as appears from the donation of Lewis the Pious, by which Pepin's donation was confirmed. The pope committed the government of the exarchate to the archbiſhop of b Ravenna, who thereupon took the title of exarch, not as archbiſhop, but as an officer of the pope, now a temporal prince. Thus was the ſceptre added to the keys, the ſovereignty to the prieſthood, and the popes enriched with the ſpoils of the Lombard kings, and the Roman emperors. As thoſe countries belonged, without all doubt, to Conſtantine then emperor, ſome authors have thought, that this donation was made in his name, and that this gave riſe to the fable of the donation of Conſtantine the Great [r]. Be that as it will, from this time the popes left off taking notice of the years of the emperors in their bulls and letters, as they had done hitherto; and, depending upon the protection of France, they withdrew their obedience to the emperor, and would be no longer deemed his ſubjects. The French, who pique c themſelves upon being the firſt authors of the popes temporal grandeur, will not however allow Pepin to have ever inveſted them with the ſovereignty, it being manifeſt, ſay they, that the ſovereignty remained in Pepin and his deſcendants, and was exerciſed by them all over Italy. With them moſt authors agree, and, among the reſt, the learned Sigonius. Petrus de Marca maintains this opinion, and at the ſame time tells us how the popes, by degrees, became ſovereigns of Rome. The exarchate of Ravenna, ſays that writer, being yielded to the pope, the government of Rome, of courſe, devolved on him; for the Roman dukedom had been always ſubject to the exarch: the ſovereignty indeed was veſted in the emperor, but the adminiſtration belonged to the exarch; whence the pope, when he became maſter of the exarchate, claimed it, and continued to govern Rome, not as ſovereign, but only d with the authority that had been veſted in the exarch, till the year 876. when the authority of the emperors, ſucceſſors of Charlemagne, declining in Italy, Charles the Bald yielded all his claim to, and ſovereignty over Rome, to the apoſtolic ſee [s]. Hence Conſtantine Porphyrogenitus, deſcribing the ſtate of Europe in his time, that is, about the year 914. writes, that Rome was ſubject to the pope as its ſovereign. It was upon the declenſion of the weſtern empire, when it was confined to Germany alone, that the pope, as well as the ſeveral princes of Italy, aſſumed the ſovereignty, which they enjoy to this day, as we ſhall plainly demonſtrate in our modern hiſtory. A modern writer has endeavoured to prove, from the coins of the popes, that the French empe- e rors were never ſovereigns of Rome, nor had any authority in that city, but what was granted them by the pope; for, according to him, the ſenate and people of Rome, ſhaking off the yoke of the emperors of the eaſt, ſubjected themſelves to the pope, and acknowledged him for their ſovereign [t]. But that writer is, in our opinion, fully confuted by Le Blanc, in a treatiſe which he publiſhed on the coins of Charlemagne, Lewis the Pious, Lothaire, and their ſucceſſors, coined in Rome [u].

Whether the people was inveſted with the ſovereignty over thoſe countries.

BUT to return to Aſtulphus: That prince, finding himſelf conſtrained to ſurrender the exarchate, and the other countries, to one who had no more right to them than himſelf, began to make vaſt preparations, with a deſign to retake what he had been obliged to give up, and at the ſame time to put himſelf in a condition of withſtanding the French, who, he did not doubt, would return into Italy, and renew the war. f But while, in the height of theſe warlike preparations, he was one day taking the diverſion of hunting in a neighbouring foreſt, he was killed, according to ſome, by a wild boar, according to others, by a fall from his horſe. Erchempertus writes, that he was killed with an arrow [w]. We ſhould perhaps have been able to give a more favourable account of his reign, had Paulus Diaconus continued his hiſtory; but that writer, living in the time of Charlemagne, the ſon of Pepin, prudently declined writing the hiſtory of this and the following king's reign, leſt by relating the tranſactions of thoſe times, he ſhould diſoblige the French princes, who, having driven out a out the Lombards, ſucceeded them in the kingdom of Italy. His countrymen were, for the ſame reaſon, all ſilent; ſo that thoſe events have been tranſmitted to poſterity by ſuch writers only, as were byaſed in favour of the prevailing party. As the deceaſed king left no iſſue male behind him, and his brother Arachis had taken the monaſtic habit, the Lombard lords began to aſſemble, in order to proceed to a new election. But in the mean time Deſiderius, whom Aſtulphus had raiſed to the dukedom of Tuſcany, and beſides made him his comes ſtabuli, or maſter of the horſe, cauſed himſelf to be proclaimed king by his Tuſcan Lombards. This Rachis no ſooner underſtood, than repenting of his former reſolution, he reſolved to quit the monaſtic life, and reſume the purple, being encouraged thereunto by ſeveral perſons of b great authority among the Lombards, and by the inhabitants of Liguria and Venetia, who began to flock to him in great numbers. This gave great uneaſineſs to Deſiderius, who thereupon had recourſe to the pope, offering him the cities of Faenza, Ancona, Secchia, and Ferrara, which had not been reſtored by Aſtulphus, provided he aſſiſted him at this juncture, and, by his authority, maintained him on the throne. The pope readily cloſed with the propoſal, and, entering into an alliance with Deſiderius, found means to perſuade Rachis to continue in the ſtate he had embraced, and lay aſide all thoughts of recovering the kingdom, which was held by his friend and ally. Deſiderius, being thus delivered from the danger that threatened him, ſurrendered the above-mentioned cities to the pope, purſuant to the agreement. Pope c Stephen died ſoon after, that is, on the twenty-ſixth of April of the preſent year 757. To him the church of Rome is chiefly indebted for the grandeur it ſtill enjoys. He was ſucceeded by his brother Paul, who renewed the alliance with the king of the Lombards, but died in the third year of that prince's reign. In his room was choſen Stephen the third, or, as the modern writers will have it, the fourth, between whom and Deſiderius great jealouſies aroſe, which at laſt came to an open rupture, Deſiderius having, by his intereſt, cauſed one of his intimate friends, named Michael, to be choſen by the people and clergy archbiſhop of Ravenna, the pope, not approving the election, drove him from that ſee. Hereupon the king, to be revenged on the pope, cauſed the eyes of Chriſtopher and Sergius to be put out. Theſe were two d legates ſent from Rome to demand the reſtitution of ſome lands belonging to that church. After this, Deſiderius, not doubting but the pope would have recourſe to the kings of France, reſolved to be before-hand with them, and gain them over, if poſſible to his ſide. In order to this, he offered his two daughters in marriage to Charles and Carloman, who, upon the death of their father Pepin, had divided the kingdom between them. Pope Stephen was no ſooner informed of this treaty, than he wrote to the two princes, earneſtly intreating them not to enter into any ſort of alliance with the king of the Lombards, and threatening them with excommunication, nay, and damnation [w], if they conſented to marry his daughters. But Deſiderius having gained Bertrade, the mother of the two princes, the marriages were, by her e means, concluded, in ſpite of the utmoſt endeavours of the pope to prevent them. This alliance however was but ſhort-lived; for Charles ſoon after divorced his wife, pretending, that ſhe was incapable of bearing children, and married in her room Ildegarda, a princeſs of Suevia. His brother Carloman dying about the ſame time, Berta, the deceaſed king's widow, not thinking herſelf, and the two ſons ſhe had by him, ſafe in France, fled to her father in Italy, and put herſelf, and her children, under his protection. Deſiderius, who was highly incenſed againſt Charles for divorcing his daughter, received them with great joy, not doubting but he ſhould, one time or other, be able, by their means, to raiſe diſturbances in France; which would both give him the ſatisfaction of being revenged on Charles, and divert that prince from f intermeddling with the affairs of Italy. In the mean time died pope Stephen, and Adrian I. was, in the year 772. choſen in his room. He no ſooner ſaw himſelf raiſed to the apoſtolic ſee, than he ſent two legates to conclude a laſting peace with Deſiderius; and it was agreed, that neither of them ſhould diſturb the other in the poſſeſſion of the countries they held. Deſiderius, concluding, from this ſtep taken by Adrian, that he did not entertain ſuch jealouſies and ſuſpicions of the Lombard kings, as his predeceſſors had done, nor was ſo attached to the princes of France, propoſed to him the conſecrating and anointing the ſons of Carloman kings, not doubting but that would raiſe tumults and diſturbances in France, and at the ſame time create a miſunderſtanding between the pope and Charles, which would give him an opportunity of recovering

Aſtulphus dies. Year after Chriſt, 756.

[p] LEO OSTIENS. l. i. c. 8. ANASTAS, ibid. [q] SIGON. ad ann. 756. [r] SPANHEM. de imag. contra Maimburg. [s] P. DE MARCA, l. iii. c. 11. num. 7, 11, 12. CONST. PORPH. de themat. l. ii. [t] VIGNOLI antiquior. pont. Rom. denar. p. 19. [u] Vide LE BLANC. p. 17. [w] ERCHEMP. p. 6.

Deſiderius cauſes himſelf to be proclaimed king.

He is ſupported by the pope, to whom he yields ſome cities.

Miſunderſtanding between him and Charlemagne.

[w] Tom. vii. concil. p. 582.

recovering the countries taken by Pepin, and yielded to the church. The ceremony a of anointing, after the example of Pepin and his two ſons, had been, by degrees, introduced among chriſtian princes, the people deeming thoſe, who were thus anointed, lawful kings. But Adrian, who, notwithſtanding the peace he had concluded with the Lombards, who no leſs jealous of their power, than his predeceſſors had been, peremptorily refuſed to comply with the requeſt of Deſiderius, being well appriſed, that, by granting it, he ſhould incur the diſpleaſure of Charles, the only prince capable of protecting him againſt the Lombards. Deſiderius left no ſtone unturned to bring the pope into his meaſures; but, finding he could obtain nothing by fair
He quarrels with the pope, and takes ſeveral cities. means, he reſolved to employ force. Accordingly, he broke unexpectedly into the exarchate, and, having made himſelf maſter of Ferrara, Comachio, and Faenza, he b threatened Ravenna itſelf with a ſiege. Adrian, alarmed at theſe hoſtilities, immediately diſpatched embaſſadors to put the king in mind of the peace lately concluded, and to demand the reſtitution of the places, which he had taken with an open breach of the late treaty. The king received the embaſſadors with the greateſt marks of honour, and told them, that he was deſirous of treating with the pope in perſon; and that, if he came himſelf, nothing ſhould be denied him. But Adrian, rejecting the invitation, anſwered with great haughtineſs, That he would never appear before him, unleſs he reſtored the cities he had ſeized. Deſiderius, highly provoked at this anſwer, marched his army into Pentapolis, and, having there laid waſte the territories of Sinigaglia, Monteferetro, Urbino, and Eugubio, he approached Rome, deſtroying all c with fire and ſword, and carrying into captivity ſuch of the inhabitants, as fell into his hands. Hereupon Adrian ordered the abbot of St. Vincent, attended by twenty monks in great reputation for the ſanctity of their lives, to wait upon the king in his name, and earneſtly intreat him to reſtore the places he had taken, and deſiſt from further hoſtilities. The king received them in a very obliging manner, and aſſured them, that, if the pope would come in perſon to confer with him, the cities ſhould be immediately reſtored, and an end put to all hoſtilities. Not ſatisfied with ſignifying to the legate his earneſt deſire of a private interview with the pope, he ſent embaſſadors of his own to acquaint Adrian therewith, and perſuade him, if poſſible, to comply with his requeſt, ſince he had matters of the utmoſt importance to impart to d him. But Adrian, firm in his former reſolution, ſolemnly proteſted, that he would never appear before the king, till the towns he had taken were reſtored; but that, as ſoon as they were reſtored, he would meet him in what place ſoever he ſhould think proper to appoint, in order to ſettle, in concert with him, the tranquillity of Italy. Upon the return of theſe embaſſadors, Deſiderius ſent others, to whom the pope made the ſame anſwer, adding, that, if he did not comply with the king's requeſt, as ſoon as the cities were reſtored, he gave them leave to take them anew, and invade the territories of the church at his pleaſure. But Deſiderius, provoked more than ever at the obſtinacy of the pope, threatened to bring his army before Rome, and, by that means, oblige Adrian to grant him his requeſt. The pope was ſo ter- e rified with theſe menaces, that, thinking himſelf in the utmoſt danger, he reſolved, in imitation of his predeceſſors, to have recourſe to France. Accordingly he ſent one
The pope recurs to Charlemagne king of France. Peter by ſea, all the paſſes by land being guarded by the Lombards, to acquaint Charlemagne, then king of France, with the danger he was in, and not only to implore his aſſiſtance, but to invite him to the conqueſt of Italy, almoſt intirely ruined by the Lombards. Deſiderius was no ſooner informed of the arrival of the pope's legate in France, and of the things laid there to his charge, than he diſpatched embaſſadors to Charlemagne, aſſuring him of his inclination to live in peace with the pope, and complaining of Adrian's obſtinacy, in refuſing him a private interview for ſettling the tranquillity of Italy. But Charlemagne, who only wanted a favourable opportunity f of revenging himſelf on Deſiderius for keeping his two nephews, with a view, as he ſuppoſed, of raiſing diſturbances in France, received the invitation made him by Adrian with incredible ſatisfaction, and began to make ſuch preparations, as plainly ſhewed, that his deſign was not only to aſſiſt the pope, but to make an intire conqueſt of the kingdom of the Lombards [x]. He appointed Geneva for the place of the general rendezvous, and there, when the troops were all aſſembled, he divided his numerous army into two bodies, whereof the one he led in perſon, and committed the other to the conduct of his uncle Bernard. On the other hand, Deſiderius, having certain intelligence

[x] Sigon. p. 138—143.

a intelligence of his motions, ſent ſome troops to guard the paſſes in the Alps, and then, making numerous levies in the dukedoms of Friuli, Benevento, Spoleto, Etruria, and the other dukedoms, of which his kingdom was compoſed, he raiſed a mighty army, and, putting himſelf at the head of it, marched to Turin, with a deſign to give Charlemagne battle, in caſe he forced the ſtreights, and came into the plain country. We are told, that Charlemagne, as he drew near the Alps, to prevent the effuſion of chriſtian blood, diſpatched embaſſadors to the king of the Lombards, offering him fourteen thouſand ſolidi, provided he reſtored to the pope the cities he had taken; but that Deſiderius would hearken to no propoſals, being bent on the conqueſt of all Italy. Be that as it will, Charlemagne purſued his march to the Alps; and, finding b the paſſes guarded by the Lombards, he ſent a detachment, under the conduct of experienced guides, to croſs the mountains another way. This they happily accompliſhed, and, falling unexpectedly upon thoſe who guarded the paſſes, ſtruck them with ſuch terror, that, abandoning their poſts, they fled in the utmoſt conſternation. Upon their retreat, Charlemagne paſſed unmoleſted with his whole army, and, deſcending from the mountains, marched in queſt of the enemy. Some authors write, that the two armies came to an engagement, in which, after an obſtinate diſpute, Deſiderius was defeated. They add, that the place, where the battle was fought, from the great number of the ſlain, took the name of Mortuaria. Others, leſs affected to the Lombards, tells us, that, at the approach of Charlemagne, they fled in the c utmoſt confuſion, not daring to look the enemy in the face. Be that as it will, it is certain, that Deſiderius retired and ſhut himſelf up in Pavia, not being in a condition to keep the field. At the ſame time he ſent his ſon Adalgiſus, and his daughter Berta, the widow of Carloman, with her two ſons, to Verona, a place not inferior in ſtrength to Pavia itſelf. Charlemagne, hearing that the king had ſhut himſelf up in Pavia, led his whole army againſt that city, and cloſely beſieged it. The Lombards defended the place with great vigour; and, on the other hand, Charlemagne determined not to withdraw his troops from before it till it had ſubmitted, ſent for his wife and ſons, and continued with them in the camp till Chriſtmas, which feſtival he cele-
d brated with great pomp, and then, leaving his uncle Bernard to purſue the ſiege of Pavia, he went, with part of his army, to inveſt Verona. Adalgiſus defended the town, for ſome time, with great bravery; but, in the end, finding himſelf reduced to the laſt extremity, and deſpairing of relief, he withdrew in the night; and, after having wandered a long time about the country in diſguiſe, he found means at laſt, to make his eſcape by ſea to Conſtantinople, where he was received and entertained with great kindneſs by the emperor. Upon his departure, the garriſon and inhabitants of Verona ſurrendered to Charles, who, having got Berta and her two ſons into his power, ſent them immediately, under a ſtrong guard, into France; but what became afterwards of theſe two unfortunate princes, was never known. Verona being reduced, all the other cities on the ſame ſide of the Po ſubmitted upon the firſt ſum-e mons to the conqueror, who, returning before Pavia, purſued the ſiege with more vigour than ever. But, in the mean time Eaſter approaching, Charles reſolved to keep that ſolemnity at Rome; and accordingly, committing a ſecond time the care of the ſiege to Bernard, he ſet out for that city with a ſplendid train, and, being received, in all the places through which he paſſed, with the greateſt marks of honour imaginable, he reached Rome the day before Eaſter. Adrian exerted himſelf on this occaſion, thinking it incumbent upon him to receive ſo great a prince, and one to whom the church was ſo highly indebted, with the greateſt demonſtrations of honour, gratitude, and eſteem. By his orders the magiſtrates and judges, with their banners, and the badges of their reſpective offices, met him thirty miles from the city. At a f mile from the gate he was received by a proceſſion of children, carrying in their hands branches of palms and olives, and ſinging his heroic exploits and virtues. After them came a great number of croſs-bearers, for whom it was cuſtomary to attend the public entries of the exarchs and patricians. Charles, as ſoon as he ſaw the croſſes, alighted from his horſe, and, attended by his own nobility, and the Roman magiſtrates, went the reſt of the way on foot. As for the pope, he went early in the morning, with the clergy and people, to the church of the Vatican, and there, ſitting on a kind of throne on the ſteps, waited the arrival of the king, who going directly to the church, aſcended the ſteps, kiſſing each of them as he mounted. Being arrived at the throne, the pope, coming down, received him with great tenderneſs, and,

Charlemagne enters Italy.

Deſiderius retires, and is beſieged in Pavia.

Verona beſieged by Charles, and taken.

Charles goes to Rome.

His reception there.

after mutual embraces, and congratulatory ſpeeches, they went together into the church, the people following them with loud acclamations, and the clergy frequently repeating, Bleſſed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. When they came to the place, called then, as it is to this day, the confeſſion, proſtrating themſelves on the ground, they returned thanks to the Almighty, and to his apoſtle St. Peter, for the ſucceſs that had hitherto attended the king's arms againſt his enemies, and the enemies of the church, that is, the unhappy Lombards, who, in reality, were as well-wiſhers to the church as Charles, but were not willing the churchmen ſhould rob them of the countries they had purchaſed at the expence of their blood and treaſure. After this, Charles begged leave to go into the city, for the Vatican ſtood then without the walls, to perform a vow, and viſit the holy places; which was granted by the pope, after they had both ſworn upon the body of the apoſtle, that they deſigned no harm or injury to each other. The day following, being the feſtival of Eaſter, the king made a ſolemn entery into the city, attended by the nobility, clergy, and Roman people, who accompanied him to the church of St. Mary ad Præſepe, whence, after divine ſervice, he went to the Lateran, and dined there with Adrian. The next day he aſſiſted at public prayers in the Vatican; and, when the ſervice was over, Adrian cauſed thanks to be given him for his kindneſs to the church in an oration, on which occaſion the generoſity of Charles Martel, and his ſon Pepin, to the church of Rome, were highly extolled, the exemplary piety of their moſt illuſtrious family mightily commended, and great encomiums beſtowed on the whole nation. The orator told his auditors, that Charles, not degenerating from the piety of his glorious anceſtors, was come, with a mighty army, to humble the enemies of the church; that he had hitherto, with the aſſiſtance of Heaven, been as ſucceſsful in ſo commendable an enterprize, as he had been ready to undertake it; and that according to all appearance, Italy would, in a few days, have occaſion to congratulate him upon his accompliſhing the work, which he had ſo happily begun, as now both Italy and the church returned him their hearty thanks for what he had already performed [y]. When the rejoicings, feaſtings, and congratulations, were over, Adrian came to the main point, requiring Charles to confirm the donation, which his father Pepin had made to the church of Rome. Charles readily complied with the pope's requeſt; and, having ordered Iterius his ſecretary to draw up a new inſtrument, he ſigned it himſelf, cauſed it to be ſigned by the abbots, biſhops, and other great men, who had attended him to Rome, and, with his own hand, ſays Leo Oſtienſis, laid it, thus ſigned, on the altar of St. Peter [z]. Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius writes, that Charles, not ſatisfied with the donation of Pentapolis and the exarchate made by Pepin, added to to them the iſland of Corſica, and that large country, which extending from Luna to Sorano and Monte Bordone, comprehends the cities of Vercetri, Parma, Reggio, Mantua, and Monſelice: nay, according to that writer, the generoſity of Charles did not even ſtop here; for he tells us, that the new inſtrument compriſed the provinces of Venetia and Iſtria, and the two dukedoms of Benevento and Spoleto [a]. In the chronicle of the monaſtery of St. Clement, Charles is ſaid to have added to the donation of Pepin only thoſe two dukedoms. Sigonius will have the donation of Charles to have compriſed, beſides thoſe dukedoms, and the countries given by Pepin, the Sabinian territory, lying between Umbria and Latium, with part of Tuſcany and Campania. Petrus de Marca adds all Campania, with the city of Naples, and the provinces of Abruzzo and Puglia; and hence, according to him, the king of Naples have ever been, as they ſtill are, inveſted by the pope [b]. Some modern writers ſuppoſe Charles to have given likewiſe Saxony, which he had lately conquered, and other countries, which he never conquered, viz. Sardinia and Sicily; for theſe two iſlands were held by the emperors of the eaſt, till the Saracens became maſters of them. But as no copy of the ſuppoſed donation of theſe ſeveral countries is to be found, either in the archives of the Vatican, or the annals of France; and, on the other hand, it is manifeſt from hiſtory, that Charles, as king of Italy, held the dukedoms of Friuli, Spoleto, and Benevento, in the ſame manner as they had been held by the Lombard kings his predeceſſors, and that they were immediately governed by their own dukes; we may conclude from thence, that Charles only confirmed the donation of the exarchate and Pentapolis made by his father Pepin. Charles indeed cauſed the patrimonies, which the church of Rome poſſeſſed in the Alpes Cottiæ, and in the dukedoms of Benevento and Spoleto, to be reſtored; and hence, according to the learned civilian Pietro Giannone, aroſe the miſtake of thoſe

Honours done him at Rome.

He confirms the donation of Pepin.

Whether he added other countries to that donation.

[y] Leo Ostiens. l. i. c. 12. Anastas. Bibliothec. in Adrian. p. 75. [z] Leo Ostiens ibid.
[a] Anast. Bibliothec. in Adrian. [b] P. de Marca de concord. ſacerd. & imper. l. iii. c. 10. num. 5.

a thoſe writers, who will have Charles to have given that province, and thoſe dukedoms, to St. Peter: they confounded the patrimonies of the church in thoſe countries with the countries themſelves [c].

Charles, having thus ſatisfied his own curioſity, and the deſires of the pope, after a ſtay of eight days in Rome, returned to the camp before Pavia, which city he was reſolved at all events, to reduce, being well appriſed, that, if Deſiderius remained maſter of it, he might eaſily recover all the reſt. The ſame motive that prompted Charles to exert his utmoſt endeavours in the reduction of the place, animated the king of the Lombards to defend it with all his might. Charles finding his men conſtantly repulſed in their repeated attacks, and deſpairing of being able to carry it by b force, reſolved to reduce it by famine. Accordingly, beſieging it more cloſely, he ſhut up all the paſſes and avenues, ſo that nothing could poſſibly be conveyed into the city; which by that means was, in a ſhort time, reduced to the utmoſt extremity. Deſiderius however ſtill held out for a conſiderable time; but, a violent plague beginning to rage within the walls, and carrying off daily great numbers both of the garriſon and inhabitants, the unhappy prince, not able to contend with ſo many enemies at once, was obliged, in the end, to ſurrender the place, and deliver up himſelf, with his wife and children, to Charles, who ſent them all to France, where they ended their days, being never afterwards heard of. Thus ended the kingdom of the Lombards in Italy, after they had held that country for the ſpace of two hundred and ſix c years. They were at firſt a cruel and barbarous nation; but diveſting themſelves, by degrees of their native fierceneſs and barbarity, eſpecially after they had embraced the chriſtian religion, they governed with ſuch equity and mildneſs, that moſt other nations envied the happineſs of thoſe, who lived under them. As they had no other kingdom nor dominions elſewhere, Italy became their own country; whence the natives looked upon their kings as their natural princes, not thinking themſelves governed, much leſs kept in ſlavery, by a foreign nation, as it happened to them afterwards, when, by frequent changes, they groaned under the heavy yoke, ſometimes of one nation, and ſometimes of another. Under the government of the Lombards, ſays Paulus Diaconus [d], and with him agrees the abbot of Weſperg, no vio-

d lence was committed, no one unjuſtly diſpoſſeſſed of his property, none oppreſſed with taxes; theft, robberies, murder, and adultery, were ſeldom heard of; every one went, without the leaſt apprehenſion of danger, whether he pleaſed: and truly their many wholeſome laws, reſtraining, and ſeverely puniſhing all ſorts of crimes, the magnificent churches, and rich monaſteries, with which they filled that part of Italy, which was ſubject to them, the many biſhopricks, which they erected, the towns and cities, which they either built, or repaired, in moſt provinces of Italy, their generoſity even to the biſhop of Rome, their avowed enemy, and finally, the great numbers of perſons among them, whoſe ſanctity and eminent virtues have been acknowledged by the popes themſelves, muſt convince every impartial reader, that e the Lombards were not ſuch a ſavage, barbarous, and inhuman nation, as they are deſcribed by ſome of the popes eſpecially by Adrian, the chief author of the downfal of their kingdom. They were the only power in Italy capable of defeating the ambitious views of the biſhops of Rome, whom they would not ſuffer to enrich themſelves with the ſpoils of the emperors, but looked upon them as their own by right of conqueſt; and hence aroſe the inveterate hatred, which the pope's bore them, and could not help betraying in all their writings. But the many wholeſome laws which they left behind them, and devouring time has ſpared, are convincing proofs of their juſtice, humanity, and wiſdom, and at the ſame time a full confutation, as Grotius

f obſerves, of the many calumnies, with which the popes, and their partiſans, have endeavoured to aſperſe them. Their laws were found ſo juſt and equitable, that they were retained in Italy, and obſerved there, ſome ages after their kingdom was at an end. Paulus Diaconus, Grotius, Gunter, who was ſecretary to the emperor Frederic I. and ſeveral other writers, equal, and, in many particulars, prefer, the laws of the Lombards to thoſe of the Romans themſelves. Gunter, who was far from being prejudiced in their favour, after examining their laws, could not help calling them a ſagacious, wiſe, and induſtrious people, and above all, excellent lawgivers [e]. Hence it ſufficiently appears, with how much injuſtice they are ſtyled by pope Adrian, in his letter, an unpoliſhed, barbarous, and cruel people.

Charles returns to the ſiege of Pavia.

Deſiderius taken priſoner, and the end of the kingdom of the Lombards. Year after Chriſt 774.

The Lombards undeſervedly aſperſed by the popes.

BEFORE

[c] PIET. GIANN. hiſt. civil. di Napol. l. v. c. 4. [d] PAUL. DIAC. hiſt. Long. l. iii. c. 8. [e] GUNTER. in Ligurino, verſu 173, &c.

The ſtate of Italy in the time of Charlemagne.

Before we diſmiſs this ſubject, it may not be improper to give the reader a ſuccinct account of the ſtate of Italy at the time Charlemagne by the captivity of Deſiderius, put an end to the kingdom of the Lombards, and of the new form of government introduced by the conqueror. Italy was, at that time, divided, as it were, into four ſtates, held by the Venetians, the Lombards, the popes, and the emperors of the eaſt. The Venetians, by their trade to the Levant, were become very conſiderable, and, having a great number of veſſels, they bore no ſmall ſway in the affairs of Italy, though we do not yet find them poſſeſſed of any town on the terra firma or continent. The pope, by the generoſity of Pepin, and his ſon Charles, was maſter of the exarchate and Pentapolis, which we have deſcribed above. The dukedom of Naples, and ſome cities in the Hither and Farther Calabria, where ſtill held by the emperors of the eaſt. All the other provinces of Italy were held by the Lombards, viz. the three famous dukedoms of Friuli, Spoleto, and Benevento, and the provinces of Liguria, Venetia, Tuſcany, and the Alpes Cottiæ, which were properly called the kingdom of the Lombards. When Deſiderius was taken priſoner, the dukedom of Benevento was governed by Arechis, ſon-in-law to the unhappy prince. It compriſed then almoſt all the preſent kingdom of Naples; for of the twelve provinces, into which that kingdom is now divided, nine were ſubject to the duke of Benevento, viz. Terra di Lavoro, Contado di Moliſe, the Hither Abruzzo, Capitanata, Terra di Bari, Baſilicata, the Hither Calabria, and the Hither and Farther Principato's; ſo that it was bounded on the weſt by the dukedoms of Rome and Spoleto; on the ſouth by Gaeta, and its territory; on the eaſt by the territories of Coſenza and Caſſano; and on the north by Siponto, and the promontory of Gargano. This dukedom, on account of its extent, was by the Latins called Italia Ciſtiberina, and by the Greeks Longobardia Minor, to diſtinguiſh it from the Greater, which, lying on both ſides the Po in Ciſalpine Gaul, retains to this day the name of Lombardy. This extent of the dukedom induced the dukes to divide it, for the more convenient adminiſtration of juſtice, into ſeveral diſtricts, called counties, each of which had its proper governor, ſtyled count or guaſtald. Theſe counts or guaſtalds were, at firſt, appointed and removed by the dukes at their pleaſure; but, in proceſs of time, it became cuſtomary not to remove them, unleſs convicted of treaſon, and not to transfer the counties to other families, till their male line was extinct: and this was the firſt origin of counts and counties in that part of Italy. The only difference between the counts and guaſtalds was, that the latter governed only during pleaſure, and the former were never removed, unleſs guilty of treaſon: hence the title of count denoted dignity, and that of guaſtald only office. The other two great dukedoms, viz. of Spoleto and Friuli, were far inferior, both in power and extent, to that of Benevento. The former comprehended all Umbria, in which were many cities of great note; and the latter all Friuli, and the greater part of Iſtria. The dukedom of Naples, which continued ſubject to the emperors of the eaſt, extended towards the weſt as far as Cuma, comprehending within its limits the iſlands of Iſchia, Niſita, and Provida, with the maritime towns of Pozzuolo, Baia, and Miſeno. Towards the ſouth Caſtellamare, Sorrento, Amalfi, and the iſland of Caprea, were compriſed in it. Towards the eaſt and north its limits were much confined, the dukedom of Benevento reaching almoſt to the very gates of the city. The cities of this dukedom were governed by their particular rectores, who were appointed by, and ſubordinate to, the duke of Naples. Theſe rectores were likewiſe called counts; but were not, as in the dukedom of Benevento, feudatories; they only governed during the pleaſure of the duke: ſo that they were upon a footing with the Lombard guaſtalds. As for the duke, he was appointed and removed at pleaſure by the emperor. The duke of Naples was likewiſe ſtyled magiſter militiæ, and conſul; but how the title of conſul came to be given him, no writer has yet had the curioſity to inquire (B). Beſides the dukedom of Naples, the emperors of

The extent of the dukedom of Benevento.

And its government.

The dukedom of Naples, its extent and government.

Cities in Italy belonging to the emperor.

(B) The title of conſul, which the emperors had long had in great eſteem, and looked upon as an honour to themſelves, was, towards the latter end of the empire, intirely ſlighted by them, and laid aſide. What made them undervalue and deſpiſe it, was its being aſſumed by thoſe princes, whom they looked upon as barbarians and uſurpers. Thus Charlemagne, to ſhew, that he ſucceeded to all the rights of the emperors of the weſt, took upon him, amongſt other titles, that of conſul. The other French emperors, his ſucceſſors, followed his example, as did likewiſe a of the eaſt poſſeſſed ſeveral cities in antient Calabria, and in the country of the Brutii, now known by the name of Farther Calabria. In antient Calabria they held the cities of Gallipoli and Otranto; and, in Farther Calabria, Reggio, Gerace, Santa Severina, Crotone, and, beſides theſe, the two cities of Amantea and Agripoli, with the promontory now called Capo di Licoſa [f], the dukedoms of Gaeta and Amalfi. All theſe cities were immediately governed by their rectores, who were appointed and removed by the patrician, as he is ſtyled, or governor of Sicily; for to him were ſubject, at this time, all the places, the dukedom of Naples excepted, which the emperors ſtill held in Italy: hence they are all compriſed by Conſtantine Porphyrogenitus under the Thema of Sicily (C). In more antient times, only the Farther Calabria was ſubject to the b patrician of Sicily; but the cities, which the emperors held in that part of Italy, being reduced to a very ſmall number, they were all put under the government of the patrician, who was ſent from Conſtantinople to govern Sicily, as is evident from the themata of Conſtantine Porphyrogenitus [g], and likewiſe from one of pope Adrian's letters to Charlemagne, wherein he complains of the Beneventan Lombards, whom he calls a moſt wicked race, for taking from him the city of Gaeta, and reſtoring it to the patrician of Sicily. Gaeta belonged to the emperor, and was under the government of that patrician; Charles took it from the emperor, and yielded it to the pope; the Lombards of Benevento retook it, and reſtored it to its lawful owner; and on that account they are called by the pope a moſt wicked people [h]. From the ſuperinten-

c dency over the countries on this ſide the Faro, which, in thoſe times, belonged to the patrician of Sicily, ſome writers will have thoſe countries to have been called Sicily; which name was afterwards extended by the Norman and Suevian princes, and likewiſe likewiſe the Italian emperors, Berengarius duke of Friuli, and Guido duke of Spoleto; nay, even the Saracens, after they had conquered Spain, in imitation of the emperors of Conſtantinople, ſtyled themſelves conſuls. Thus Abderamus, who began to reign in Cordova in the year 821. and Mohammed, his ſon and ſucceſſor in that kingdom marked, in their writs, not only the years of their reign, but likewiſe of their conſulſhip (1). The emperors therefore, finding it thus aſſumed by foreign and barbarous nations, took it no longer themſelves, but gave it to their officers. Father Pagi thinks, that the emperors laid it quite aſide about the year 933 (2). The Saracens gave the title of conſul to their admirals; whence, in proceſs of time, it became common not only to them, but to all the governors of the maritime towns, and to thoſe who, reſiding in the ſea-ports, took care, that juſtice ſhould be adminiſtred to the merchants of their reſpective countries. Thus Codinus (3), Pachimeres (4), and Gregoras (5), obſerve, that the Piſan and Anconitan magiſtrates, reſiding at Conſtantinople, were ſtyled conſuls. No wonder therefore, that the title of conſul was given to the dukes of Naples, ſince it was beſtowed on magiſtrates of a much inferior rank.

Whence the kingdom of Naples called Sicily.

[f] Pellegrin. in diſſert. de finib. ducat. Benevent. p. 72. [g] Const. Porphyr. de themat. p. 8. [h] Adrian. ep. lxxiii. Pellegr. in fin. duc. Benevent. ad Merid.

(C) The empire of the eaſt being, by the invaſion of ſeveral barbarous nations, who had ſeized on Egypt, Africa, Syria, and other large provinces, confined to Aſia Minor, Greece, Thrace, and a ſmall part of Italy, with Sicily, and the adjacent iſlands, no further regard was had to the antient diviſion of provinces; but new diviſions into diſtricts, which had their particular governors, were introduced, and called themata. Of theſe themata or diviſions Conſtantine Porphyrogenitus wrote two books, whereof the firſt contains the themata or provinces of Aſia, ſeventeen in number, and the ſecond thoſe of Europe, which were but twelve. Among the themata of Europe, Sicily is the tenth, and Longobardia, or Lombardy, the eleventh. We have obſerved above, that, under the name of Lombardy, properly ſpeaking, came thoſe provinces in Ciſalpine Gaul, of which the kingdom of the Lombards was compoſed, and that the dukedom of Benevento was likewiſe called Lombardy. Of theſe two Lombardies the former was called Longobardia Major, and the latter Longobardia Minor; but neither of them was in the poſſeſſion of the Greeks, the Greater Lombardy being held by the French kings of Italy, and the Leſſer by the Beneventan Lombards, whoſe dukes had the ſame power and authority under the French kings of Italy, as they had had under the princes of their own nation. By the province of Lombardy therefore, mentioned by Conſtantine in his themata, muſt be underſtood that ſmall part of Italy, which was ſtill poſſeſſed by the emperors, who, out of vanity and oſtentation, gave it the name of Lombardy. The countries, which Conſtantine names under the thema of Lombardy, are the dukedom of Naples, and antient Calabria, in which however the Greeks poſſeſſed, at this time, but two cities, viz. Gallipoli and Otranto. The country of the Brutii, now Farther Calabria, with the cities of Reggio, Girace, Santa Severina, Crotone, and ſome other places, are compriſed under the thema of Sicily, as being ſubject to the patrician or governor of that iſland. That magiſtrate ſeems to have had ſome authority even in the dukedom of Naples; for Anthemius duke of that city being dead, and diſputes ariſing about the election of a new duke, the Neapolitans had recourſe to the patrician of Sicily, who appointed one Theocliſtus to be their duke; but the emperor, not approving of his choice, removed Theocliſtus, and ſent one Theodore to govern in his room (6). From this account Capacius, or whoever elſe is the author of the Latin hiſtory of Naples, and Camillo Pellegrino, conclude the Neapolitans to have been, at leaſt ſometimes, allowed to chuſe their own dukes.

(1) Pagi de conſulib. p. 370. & Eulog. in memorial. ſanctor. l. ii. c. 1. (2) Pagi ibid. (3) Codin. c. 7. num. 9. (4) Pachimer. l. ii. c. 32. (5) Gregor. l. iv. c. 6. (6) Vide Ugholl ibid.

wiſe by the popes, to all the provinces, of which the preſent kingdom of Naples is a compoſed. It is certain, that in the time of the Normans, the name of Sicily was common both to that iſland, and to the preſent kingdom of Naples; but with this difference, that the former was called Sicily beyond the Faro, and the latter Sicily on this ſide the Faro, as appears from a charter of Roger the Norman of the year 1115. quoted by Ughellus [i].

Deſiderius being taken captive, as we have related above, and the city of Pavia reduced, all the other cities ſubmitted of their own accord to Charles, who thereupon, claiming the kingdom of the Lombards by right of conqueſt, cauſed himſelf to be crowned king of Lombardy, with an iron crown, by the hands of the archbiſhop of Milan. The ceremony was performed by Thomas then archbiſhop of Milan, at a b place called Modoſtia, about ten miles from that city. Charles, as we read in an antient ritual called Ordo Romanus, was led out of his chamber by ſeveral biſhops to the church; and, being conducted to the high altar, after ſome ſolemn prayers, the archbiſhop aſked the people, Whether they would ſubject themſelves to Charles, and, with conſtant fidelity, obey his commands? The people anſwering they would, the biſhop anointed his head, breaſt, ſhoulders, and arms, praying, that the new king might prove ſucceſsful in his wars, and happy in his iſſue. He then girt him with a ſword, put bracelets on his arms, gave him a robe, a ring, a ſceptre, and, having placed the crown upon his head, he led him through the choir to the throne, and, having ſeated him there, and given him the kiſs of peace, he celebrated divine c ſervice [k]. Charles ordained, that the ſame ceremony ſhould be obſerved in the coronation of his ſucceſſors, and performed by the archbiſhop of Milan, who thenceforth began to contend for dignity with the archbiſhop of Ravenna. The ceremony of the coronation being over, Charles, now king of Italy, thought it neceſſary to ſettle the frame and polity of his new kingdom, and, in order to this, reſolved to go to Rome, and adviſe with Adrian. The pope, having notice of his deſign, aſſembled fifty biſhops, and a great number of abbots and other dignitaries, in order to conſult with them, what honours ought to be paid to ſo great a prince, whoſe father and grandfather, as well as himſelf, had ſo much deſerved of the Roman church. After ſeveral conſultations, it was unanimouſly agreed, that he ſhould be made a Roman patri- d cian; that, throughout the provinces, he ſhould inſtitute all biſhops and archbiſhops, who were not to be conſecrated, unleſs inſtituted by him; and that he ſhould appoint the biſhop of Rome, and be declared protector of the apoſtolic ſee. Charles, upon his arrival at Rome, was received by the pope, and the Roman people, with the greateſt marks of reſpect and eſteem, and the honours we have mentioned were, with the unanimous conſent of all, conferred upon him. The naming of the biſhop of Rome was granted to him, for preventing the tumults, that, to the great ſcandal of all good chriſtians, began to ariſe among the people and clergy, on occaſion of thoſe elections, no one having any power or authority to reſtrain them. But this right Charles uſed with great moderation, and, after ſome time, remitted it to the clergy e and people. The dignity of patrician was, at that time, the firſt in the whole empire, and the conferring of it belonged of right to the emperor; but his authority being now extinct in Italy, the pope arrogated to himſelf that, as well as he did, by degrees, all the other imperial honours and ornaments. Charles, extremely well pleaſed with the reception he met with at Rome, continued ſome time in that metropolis, conſulting with the pope about the manner of ſettling the affairs of Italy; and then returned to Pavia, where he declared, that he intended to maintain the ſame form of government, which had been introduced by the Lombard princes his predeceſſors. Accordingly, he allowed every one full liberty to live under the ſame Roman or Lombard laws, to which they had been accuſtomed; but to the latter he added, as king of the Lombards, ſome of his own. He did not diſturb the emperors in the poſſeſſion of the dukedom of Naples, and of the other places, which they ſtill held in Italy. As for the three famous dukedoms of Friuli, Spoleto, and Benevento, he allowed thoſe dukes the ſame power and authority, which they had enjoyed under the Lombard kings, requiring only, that, as they had been ſubject to theſe princes, they ſhould acknowledge him for their king. The exarchate, the Pentapolis, and the dukedom of Rome, he yielded to the pope; but retained the ſovereignty to himſelf. The other provinces, which we have mentioned above, he kept as the kingdom of Lombardy [l]. He continued, as his predeceſſors had done, the other dukes in their dukedoms, contenting himſelf with the oath of allegiance, which he obliged them, as Charlemagne crowned king of Lombardy.

He goes to Rome, where great honours are conferred upon him.

He retains the ſame form of government.

Allows the dukes the ſame power.

[i] Ugh. Ital. ſacra, tom. ix. in archiepiſ. S. Severin. [k] Ordo Roman. apud Sigon. [l] Sigon. p. 163.

as well as the greater dukes, to take annually to him. The oath was conceived in the following terms: I promiſe, without fraud or deceit, to be faithful to my ſovereign Charles, and his ſons, as long as I live; and I ſwear, by theſe holy goſpels, that I will be faithful to him, as a vaſſal to his lord and ſovereign; neither will I divulge any thing, which in virtue of my allegiance, he ſhall commit to me. The dukedoms he never transferred from one family to another, but when the dukes broke this oath, or died without iſſue male. This tranſlation from one to another was called inveſtiture; and hence it came, that fiefs were not granted but by inveſtiture, as was afterwards obſerved with reſpect to other vaſſals and feudatories, viz. counts, captains, and valvaſours, the model of whoſe ſervices and tenures were afterwards perfected by the princes of Germany. The limits of the kingdom, and the towns, Charles committed to the care of counts, who were veſted with great authority. Theſe limits or borders were called marchæ or marches; whence thoſe, who had the ſuperintendency of them, were ſtyled counts of the marches, and marquiſes; and hence the title of marquis had its riſe. Theſe were the ordinary magiſtrates appointed by Charles for the government of the cities, and the limits of the kingdom; but he ſometimes appointed extraordinary magiſtrates, or commiſſaries, who had greater authority than the counts, and were called miſſi. It was their province to part and diſtinguiſh the limits of each city, which, under the Lombards, were greatly confuſed; whence aroſe frequent diſputes among the neighbouring cities about their boundaries; but the miſſi aſſigned to each city its boundaries, and, for the moſt part, following nature, appointed mountains, rivers, brooks, vallies, and other perpetual and laſting limits to ſerve for marches, that time might not alter and confound them. He likewiſe obliged the cities to take an oath of allegiance to him, and impoſed upon them, as well as upon the fiefs, churches, and monaſteries, a kind of tribute, called foderum, parata, and manſionaticum, which was to be paid to him, eſpecially when he came into Italy; but this tribute he afterwards generouſly remitted for himſelf and his ſucceſſors. That Italy might retain at leaſt ſome ſhadow of liberty, as often as he returned thither, he convened a general aſſembly of all the biſhops, abbots, and barons of the kingdom, in order to ſettle with them the public affairs of importance. The Lombards had but one ſtate, compoſed of barons and judges; but the French, in the time of Charlemagne, had two, viz. of the eccleſiaſtics and nobility; hence by Charles was added likewiſe in Italy, after the manner of France, the order of the eccleſiaſtics to that of the barons or nobility. This cuſtom of aſſembling the two ſtates laſted in Italy till the time of the emperor Frederic I. They met, for the moſt part, at Roncaglia, a place not far diſtant from Placentia, and there enacted ſeveral laws for the better regulation of public affairs [m]. The affairs of Italy being thus ſettled, Charles, leaving a ſtrong gariſon in Pavia, returned to France in the year 774. But he was ſcarce gone, when the Lombard dukes, thoſe eſpecially of Friuli, Spoleto, and Benevento, ſcorning to live ſubject to a foreign prince, reſolved to ſhake off the yoke, and make themſelves abſolute in their reſpective dukedoms. While Charles therefore was engaged in a war with the Saxons, Rodgand duke of Friuli, laying hold of that opportunity, renounced his allegiance, and cauſed himſelf to be acknowledged ſovereign in his dukedom. But Charles, who had already put an end to the Saxon war, by the reduction of that country, was no ſooner informed of the revolt of Rodgand, which he apprehended, might prove of dangerous conſequence, if it was not timely ſuppreſſed, than he haſtened into Alſace, and, having kept his Chriſtmas there, marched, in the depth of winter, with a powerful army croſs the Alps, and entered the dukedom of Friuli. Rodgand met him with all the forces he could raiſe; but, in the engagement that enſued, he was utterly defeated, taken priſoner, and, ſoon after, publicly beheaded. Charles did not appoint another duke, but, adding the cities, of which this dukedom was compoſed, to his kingdom, appointed counts to govern them in the ſame manner as the other cities of his kingdom were governed. Thus ended the dukedom of Friuli, the firſt that was erected under Alboinus, and likewiſe the firſt that was ſuppreſſed by Charlemagne. Paulus Æmilius tells us, that it was afterwards reſtored by Charles, who appointed one Henry, a native of France, to govern it with the title of duke [n]. But of this, and the dukes who are ſuppoſed to have ſucceeded him, no mention is made by other hiſtorians. Hildebrand duke of Spoleto, who had likewiſe revolted, upon the news of the defeat and death of Rodgand, ſubmitted of his own accord, and was again received into favour by Charles. At this time Arechis, who had married Adelperga, daughter to Deſiderius, the laſt king of the Lombards, was duke of Benevento; but he, waiting a more Magiſtrates appointed by him.

Tribute impoſed by him.

The duke of Friuli revolts.

But is defeated, and put to death.

That dukedome ended.

[m] Vide SIGON. ibid. & FRANKEN. diſſ. de Majum. Maicamp. & Roncal. p. 42.

[n] PAUL. ÆMIL. de reb. Franc. p. 142.

more favourable opportunity of shaking off the yoke, continued quiet till such time a as Charles, after having appointed Pepin his eldest son king of Italy in 781. was returned to France, and engaged there in other wars. Then Arechis, scorning to live in subjection to a foreign prince, as he had done to his father-in-law, and trusting to his own strength, and the affection his subjects bore him, not only revolted, but, laying aside the title of duke, assumed that of prince, causing himself to be anointed and crowned with great solemnity as king by his bishops, and dating thenceforth all his writs and deplomas from our most sacred palace, according to the style of other princes and sovereigns. As it was then customary among princes, when they were crowned, to cause their images to be placed in all the churches throughout their dominions, representing them with a crown on their head, this custom was likewise b observed by Arechis, who was thereupon acknowledged by all the inhabitants of the dukedom as their sovereign. He coined money with his own image, made what alterations he thought fit both in civil and military affairs, without consulting either Charles or Pepin, and even enacted several laws; for his capitularia have reached our times; and, in the often mentioned manuscript code lodged in the monastery of Cava, among the edicts of the Lombard kings, is to be found one of this prince, containing seventeen chapters. His example was followed by the other princes his successors, namely by Adelchis, Sicardus, and Radelchisus, as appears from their capitularia published by Camillo Pellegrino °. Thus to the laws of the Lombard kings were added those of the princes of Benevento. Charles, finding that his son Pepin was not c able to reduce the Beneventan Lombards, returned in 786. with a powerful army into Italy, being then disengaged from other wars. But, Arechis suing for peace, Charles granted him it upon the following terms, viz. that he should pay to Pepin a yearly tribute; that he should deliver up to him his treasure, and with it his son Grimoald, and his daughter Adelgisa, by way of hostages. The peace being thus concluded, Charles returned to France, leaving Arechis in possession of the principality of Benevento, which was held by him, with the title of prince, as it was by his successors, who greatly enlarged it, till a cruel war being kindled in the bowels of their country between Siconulphus and Radelchisus, two competitors to the principality, the one invited the Saracens of Africa, and the other those of Spain, to their assistance, who after a twelve years war, completed the ruin of both; so that, to get rid of their d troublesome auxiliaries, they were obliged to have recourse to Lewis king of France, and, by taking an oath of allegiance to him, acknowledge him for their sovereign. Lewis divided the provinces of Benevento between the two competitors, by which division two principalities were made out of one; that of Benevento was allotted to Radelchisus; and the other, called from its metropolis the principality of Salerno, to Siconulphus, the emperors of the west exercising, as kings of Italy, the same authority over them, as the Lombard kings had formerly done.

Arechis duke of Benevento changes his dukedom into a principality. Year after Christ 781.

The Beneventans forced by their intestine broils, to submit to the emperors of the west.

And thus far of antient history, or the history of antient nations, from their first original, to their being either blended with, or giving rise to, some of the modern nations, which naturally paves us the way to modern history. We have spared no e pains in the execution of our proposals, and hope we have made no slips, but such as the candid reader will think excuseable, when he reflects on the many difficulties, that attend a work of this nature. We have not the vanity to think we have been guilty of no faults; but the encouragement which, far beyond our expectation, we have met with, we may say, from all ranks of people, both at home and abroad, and which we now acknowledge with the utmost gratitude, inclines us to believe, that the mistakes we may have committed, are no-ways material. This we are the more apt to imagine, as we find but very few alterations from the original made by the several men of learning, who have thought it worth their while to translate our work into their respective languages. As for a perfectly complete history, it is not to appear, as a modern writer expresses it [p], but in that year, which discovers the philosophers stone, and the perpetual motion.

° Camill. Pellegrin. capit. Arech. princ. p. 309. & cit. hist. p. 73—92. [p] La Motte.

The End of the Seventh Volume.

A N

AN INDEX

TO THE SEVENTH VOLUME.

The Numbers direct to the Page, the Small Letters to the Line of the Page, and the Great Letters to the Notes.

A

Aaron, king of Bulgaria, murdered by his brother, 633, c.

Abalitæ, Avalitæ, where ſited, 183, d.

Abaſeni, who, and where ſited, 229, c, d.

Abaſſia, part of Ethiopia, its limits, 180, b. Its high mountains, 185, e, f.

Abaſſines, their converſion, 217, & ſeq.

Abd Shem IV. king of the Arabs, his reign, 267, c.

Abiſwinda, daughter of Alboinus, 621, f. Sent to Conſtantinople, 622, a.

Abra and Asba, their joint reign, 218, d.

Abrahah's ſtrange puniſhment, 220, a.

—Al Aſbram, his fabulous defeat by the Arabs, 269, f, & ſeq. Mr. Sale's opinion of its reality exploded, 271, a—c.

Abrim, the Nile navigable from, 187, b.

Abu Carb Aſaad introduces Judaiſm into Arabia, 269, a.

Abyla, mount, where, 145, c, d.

Acanthine iſland, in Ethiopia, 190, b.

Acaritzi ſubdued by Attila, 464, f, & ſeq.

Acci, the biſhoprick of, 300, b. Colony, ibid.

Accitani, how they repreſented Mars, 354, c.

Achaia plundered by the Goths, 496, f.

Achris taken by Baſilius, 636, b. Its vaſt treaſures, 637, a.

Acicborius follows Brennus into Greece, 394, a. His retreat and end, ibid. b. (E).

Acra iſland, where ſited, 116, c.

Acridophagi, who, and why ſo called, 183, e. Why ſhort-lived, 201, a, (Z).

Actuarii, a tribe of the Franks, 548, a.

Acum defeats the Bulgarians, 624, a, b. Taken priſoner, ibid. c.

Ad, the old Arabian tribe of, 241, e.

Adad embraces chriſtianity, 218, b, c.

Adalgadſus, his eſcape out of Verona, 717, f.

Adalwald made co-partner with his father, 686, c, Peaceful reign, 688, a. Poiſoned by Euſebius, ibid. f. Dethroned and dies, 689, a—c.

Adalulf, his treachery to Ariovald and his queen, 689, d. Defeated, ibid. e.

Adam, the etymon of the name, 197, (Y).

Aden, its ſituation and etymon, 234, e, f.

Adherbal, the ſon of Micipſa, 127, d. Driven out by Jugurtha, 129, a. Obtains part of the kingdom, ibid. b. Beſieged at Cirta, ibid. c, d. Murdered, ibid. e.

Adiran ſtript of his territories, 171, d.

Adites, inhabitants of Ad. Their kings, government, &c. 241, e, & ſeq. Their gigantic ſtature exploded, 243, b, c.

Adminius protected by Caligula, 427, e. Proud letter to the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.

Adnan, whether deſcended from Iſhmael, 244, b. c.

Adonis, river in Tangitania, 145, a.

Adria, a city in Petræa, 227, d. Waſted by Hannibal 22, e.

Adrian, pope, why invaded by Deſiderius, 716, paſſ. Invites the French againſt him, 717, a, b. Hatred and partiality againſt the Lombards, 719, & ſeq.

Adrian's wall, in Britain, 414, e, f. When built, 415, b. Its length, ibid. e, f.

—His expedition thither, 431, d, e. (K). Coins, ibid. e, (L).

Adriane, Hadrianopolis, a city in Cyrenaica, 168, f.

Adrianople taken by the Bulgarians, 631, d, e.

Advatici, who, 398, a. Their dreadful fate, ibid. d.

Adulis emporium, in Ethiopia. 190. a, b, 219, (M).

Adyrmachidæ, who, 168. b. Their way of fighting, &c. ibid. c.

Ædemon defeated by the Romans, 159, a, b.

Ædui, who, 367, b, (B). Where ſited, ibid. & 397. (N). Their averſion to monarchy, 367, b, c. Conteſt with the Arverni, ibid. & ſeq. Ally with Cæſar, 368, a. Supplant him, 397, (N). Raiſe a revolt againſt him, 399, & ſeq.

Ægidius relieves Arles from the Goths 513, f. Defeats them, 514, a. Seizes on Childeric's crown, 564, d. Driven out, ibid. & ſeq. & (E).

Ægimarus's iſland taken by Marcius, 100, d.

Ægypt, how become habitable, 194, b, c.

Ælia pons, pont Elan, whence ſo named, 414. f.

Ælianus Deſiderius, governor of Britain, 434, a, (P).

Æmilius, Paul, marches againſt Hannibal, 28, c. Oppoſed by his collegue, ibid, d, e. Defeated and killed, 30, & ſeq. His court of judicature at York, 412, c.—Scaurus, his venality to Jugurtha, 129, d, e. 130, a.

Æminium, a city in Luſitania, 297, a.

Æras, the odd Spaniſh way of computing by, 316, c—e.

Æſitæ, who, and where, 228, b.

Æſtii, who, and where, [410], c, (H). Their amber trade, ibid. & ſeq. Conqueſt by Ermanaric [411], d.

Ætius's intimacy with Attila, 471, e, f. Oppoſes him with a vaſt army of Gauls, 474, e. Defeats him at Orleans, 475, b, c. Near Chalons, 476, & ſeq. Outwits Thoriſmond, 477, e. And Attila, ibid, f. Purſues him to the Rhine, 478, d. Succeſs againſt the Franks, 560, paſſ. Peace with them, 561, a.

Africa, whence ſo called, 178, d. Whether ever joined to Europe, ibid. e. Plundered by Cn. Scipio, 27, d. Ravaged by the Vandals, 532, e, f. 533, c, d. Yielded to Genſeric by the Romans, 539, e, f.

— Propria, made a Roman province, 137, b, c.

Africans, under Hannibal, armed after the Roman manner, 30, a. The ſucceſs of it, 41, d. Blended with the Libyans, 122.

Africus, eighteenth king of Yaman, 268, a.

Agarens, antient inhabitants of Petræa, 226, d. Why ſo called, 240, c, d. Noble defence againſt Trajan, &c. 283, b—e.

Agilmund, firſt king of the Lombards, 614, e. 615, d. Defeats the Vandals, 606, b, c. His death, ibid. e.

Agilulf choſen king of the Lombards, 684, b. Turns orthodox, ibid. d. Suppreſſes the revolted dukes, ibid. e, f. Conqueſts on the Roman exarchate, 685, a, & ſeq. Truce with him, 686, b. Death and character, 687, c. & ſeq.

Agræi, who, and where ſited, 228, d.

Agricola ſubdues Britain, 431, a—c. — Calpurnius quells it, 432.

Ajax infects the Suevi with Arianiſm, 546, f.

Aidab, a port near Mecca, 238, a.

Aildichus driven out of his kingdom, 617, b.

Ajo, duke of Benevento, defeated and killed, 692, b.

— king of the Lombards, 614, e. 615, d.

Air, mount, where, 237, d.

Alabbas, the region of, from whom ſo called, 238, a.

Alachis revolts, 697, d. Forgiven by Cunibert, ibid. e. Ingratitude to him, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and killed, 698, b—e.

Alans ſubmit to Attila, 466, b. Invaded by him, 480, b, c. By Thoriſmond, ibid, d. Regain their liberty, 482, a. Where ſettled, ibid. &c. Defeated by Wallia, 510, a. Aſſiſt the Vandals, 529, c—e. Enter Spain, 530, a, b. Their territories there, ibid. f, & ſeq.

Al-Arakh, where ſeated, 241, a.

Alaric, king of the Viſigoths, driven out by the Hunns, 492, e. Serves under the Romans, 504, e, f. Spirited up by Rufinus, 505, a. His dreadful ravages, ibid. b—f. Spared by Stilicho, 506, a. Preſerved by Arcadius ibid. c. Made king of the Goths, 507, d. Breaks into Italy, ibid. & ſeq. Peace with Stilicho, 508, a. Corrupted by him ibid. b, c. Enters Noricum, ibid. d. And Rome, ibid. f, & ſeq. His death, 509, a.

Albania, from whom ſo called, 421, (A).

Albinus ſent into Britain, 433, a.—Ill ſucceſs againſt Jugurtha, 130, d. —Sent embaſſador to Attila, 480, a.

Albion, the antient name of Britain, a, b.

Albofleda's converſion, 569, f. Death, 570, e.

Alboinus, king of the Lombards, his cruelty to Cunimundus, 597, d, e. Marries his daughter, ibid. f. His reign in Italy, 615, d. Valour and reward, 617, b—e. Conqueſts in Italy, 618, & ſeq. Proclaimed king, 620, c. d. Freſh conqueſts, ibid. d, e. Death and character, ibid. & ſeq.

Alcaabah, the ſepulcre of Iſhmael, 236, c, d.

Alcon the Saguntine comes to intreat Hannibal, 5, d.

Alcozecus ſettled in Benevento, 624, e, f, 696, f.

Alemans, why ſo called, [405], (A). Defeated by Clovis, 568, c—f. Where ſettled, 569, b. Submit to him, ibid c, d. Defeated by the Burgundi, 582, e. Their origin, 588, c. Territories, government, &c. ibid. d, e. Wars, ibid. & ſeq. Ravaged by Maximine, 589, b. Break into Gaul, and defeated, ibid. c. By Claudius, ibid. d. By Aurelian, ibid. e. Break into Italy, and defeated, 590, a, b. By Probus, ibid. c. By Maximian, &c. ibid. c, d. Sixty thouſand cut off by Chlorus, ibid. d, e. Beat by Conſtantine, &c. ibid. & ſeq. By Julian, 591, b—f. 592, paſſ. Defeated in Gaul, ibid. f, & ſeq. 593, b—f. Make peace with Valentinian, 594, b. Break it, ibid. c. Defeated by Gratian, ibid. c. d. Settled in Suitzerland, ibid. e, f. Defeated by Audoacrius, ibid, f. Settle in Alſace, 595, a. Defeated and diſperſed by Clovis, ibid, b, c.

Aletes deified for diſcovering a ſilver mine, 65, (Q).

Alexander's colloquy with the oracle of Ammon, 168, (B). Mad project againſt the Arabs, 279, e, f, & ſeq.

Alexius Angelus oppoſes Laſcaris's new empire, 286, & ſeq. Defeated and impriſoned, 287, b, c.

— Comnenus founds the empire of Trapezond, 288, e. The reſt ſee ſub Comnenus.

Alfius, M. defeated by the Romans. 44, a.

Al Hareth, the fifteenth king of Yaman, 268, a.

— the ſeventeenth king of Hira dethroned, 274, b. Whether the Aretas mentioned by St. Paul, 276, c, d, (C).

— king of Kenda, 277, b, c.

Al Heg'r, Hejr, Agra, where ſited, 237, e.

Aligern's brave defence of Cumæ, 679, a.

Allat worſhipped by the Arabs, 246, f. 248, a.

Allobroges, where ſeated, 397, (L). Diſcover Catiline's cabals, ibid. c.

Al Mondar aſſiſts Baharam, 273, e. Why called Maſſamai, 274, a.

Al Nooman turns chriſtian, and abdicates, 273, c. d.

—II. his wonderful converſation, 274, & ſeq. Death, 275, b, c.

Alone, antient Lancaſter, 412, d.

Alorcus ſent with Hannibal's conditions to Saguntum, 5, e.

Alpes Cottiæ taken by Rotaris, 691, a.

Altinius ſeverely puniſhed by Hannibal, 49, d, e.

Aluſianus undermined by John, 638, n. Made Deleanus's collegue, ib. c. Submits to Michael, ib. e, & ſeq.

Al Uzza worſhipped by the Arabs, 246, f, 248, a.

Amalaric, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, 492, e. In Spain reſtored to his crown, 645, a. His territories, 647, e.

Amalek, the tribe of, 243, e.

Amali, the princely tribe of 487, e. 492, d. 647, b.

Amalus, a Bathian prince, 492, d.

Amaſis's ſtratagem againſt Barca, 171, b, (E).

Amber, its plenty in Pruſſia, [410], & ſeq.

Ambigatus invades Germany, [434], & ſeq.

Ambiorix, his account of his regal power, 368, c. Succeſs againſt Cæſar, 399, c and e.

Ambronian women, their bravery, [374], & ſeq. [396], e, (K).

Ambroſius Aurel, ſucceeds Vortigern, 445, e. Defeats the Saxons, 446, a. His progreſs through England, ibid. b, c. Victories over the Saxons, ibid. d, e.

Amelongus throws the Romans into a panic, 695, f.

America, whether known to the antients, 179, b, c.

Ammer, mount, where, 164.

Ammon, the city and temple of, 168, a. Its pleaſant ſituation, and oracle, ibid, (B).

Ammonii, who, and where, 168, b—d, (A).

Ampſaga, where ſited, 108, a, b. —— River deſcribed, 111, e.

Amram, a wiſe king of Yaman, 268, e.

Amru, his ſtratagem and revenge againſt Zobah, 273, a.

Amſivarii, a tribe of Franks, 548, a.

Anagombri, mountains in Cyrenaica, 170, c.

Anas, river in Luſitania, 299, a.

Anaſtaſius confirms Theodoric king of Italy, 525, e.

—II's depoſition and death, 625, c, d.

Anatolius ſent to make peace with the Hunns, 469, b.

Anchialus plundered by the Oſtrogoths, 674, f.

Ancona beſieged by the Oſtrogoths, 674, f, & ſeq.

Anda ſurrendered to Scipio, 78, e.

Andaluſia, its antient names, 319, b.

Andate, her temple and worſhip in Britain, 406, c.

Anderchester razed by the Saxons, 447, a, b.

Andriſcus refuſes to ſuccour the Carthaginians, 101, b.

Aneroeſtus's narrow eſcape, 392, e. Death, ibid. & ſeq.

Angaucani, who, and where, 140, d.

Angels worſhipped by the Arabs, 246, f. Their names, &c. ibid. & ſeq.

Angiers, ſeized on by Childeric, 564, a, b.

Angles, their origin, &c. 441, a. Settlements, ibid. b. Joined to the Saxons, ibid. c. Why called Angli, 442, a, b. Aſſiſt the Britons, 453, d. A tribe of the Suevi, 540, e.

Angleſey taken by Suetonius, 430.

Anglia, whence ſo called, 441, b.

Annius of Viterbo, a fabulous author, 420, (A).

Anointing, why uſed by the antients, 19, (H).

Anquialum, taken by the Goths, 497, e.

Anſivarii, Anſinarii, who, 549, c. Why ſo called, ibid. d.

Anſirit

INDEX.

Anfrid's treaſon and puniſhment, 701, b, c.
Antæus's kingdom, when begun, 121, d, & ſeq. His ſhield worſhipped by the Moors, 150, e. One of the firſt kings of Mauritania, 153, b. Overcome by Hercules, ibid. c, d. The reſt ſee under Atlas, ibid. & ſeq.
Anthemius's ſucceſs againſt the Huns, 482, c, d. Choſen emperor againſt Genſeric, 537, a, b. Aſſiſts Leo againſt him, ib. d—f.
Anthropophagi, who, 184, d.
Antiochus's unjuſt ſuſpicion of Hannibal, 87, & ſeq. Deſerts him, 88, & ſeq. Diſtreſſed condition, 90, f, & ſeq.
Antoninus's wall in Britain, where and when built, 415, a. Why ſurnamed Britannicus, 432, a, (M).
Anzelas, kills a gigantic Goth in ſingle combat, 676, b, c.
Aorni, the high mountains of, deſcribed, 185, d, e.
Apis, the city and temple of, 168, a, b.
Apollinaris defeated by Clovis, 576, a, (I).
Apollo worſhipped by the Gauls, 355, paſſ. His names, ib. & ſeq. Statues, 356, paſſ.
—temple at Carthage plundered, 103, e.
—promontory, where ſited, 115, d.
Apollonius ſent embaſſador to Attila, 471, a. Noble anſwer to him, ib. b.—Treachery to Hannibal, 90, e, Appius Sabin. defeated by the Dacians, 612, b, c.
Apries defeated by the Cyrenians, 172, d, e.
Apulia waſted by Hannibal, 23, c.
Aquæ Calidæ, the antient time of Bath, 407.
Aquileia deſtroyed by Attila, 479, a, b. Taken by the Lombards, 619, e.
Aquitana Gallia deſcribed, 321, & ſeq. Subdued by Clovis, 576, d.
Aquitani ſubdued, 399, b.
Aquiulphus's treaſon and death, 513, a, b. 545, a, b.
Ara Palladis, an iſland in Ethiopia, 190, b.
Arabia, why called Cuſh, 182, paſſ. It's names and etymons, 222, & ſeq. Extent and limits, 223, & ſeq. How divided, 224, b. Firſt inhabitants, ib. c, d.
Arabia Petrea deſcribed, 224, e, & ſeq. Its towns, nations, &c. 226, & ſeq. Barrenneſs, 227, a, b. Remarkable places, ib. c—e.
—Deſerta, its limits, tribes, &c. 228, a. Barrenneſs, 229, a, b. Why called Abaſene, ib. c, d. Its towns, 230, a, b.
—Felix deſcribed, 230, & ſeq. Famed places, 233, e, & ſeq. How divided by the Orientals, 234, & ſeq. 241, d. Its plenty of gold, 263, a, b. From whom called Arabia, 266, b, c, (A). Whether conquered by Trajan, 282, f, & ſeq.
Arabic character, when and by whom introduced, 254, d, & ſeq. Various alphabets, 255—257.
Arabs, ſome of the firſt inhabitants of Mauritania, 149, a. Their extract and hiſtory, 240, & ſeq.
—Old, claſſes and tribes, 241, d, & ſeq. 243, f, & ſeq.
—Modern, their extract, 244, a—c.
—Scenitæ, their government, &c. ib. d, e, & ſeq. Kings, how choſen, 245, b, c. Laws, ib. d. Religion ib. & ſeq. Deities, 246—249. Idols, ib. e, & ſeq. Hold ſome Magian tenets, 259, f, & ſeq. Notion of a future ſtate, 251, c—e. Jewiſh and chriſtian notions borrowed by them, ib. & ſeq. Biſhopricks among them, 252, c, & ſeq. Sects, 253, b. Language and Dialects, ib. & ſeq. Writing, 254, d, & ſeq. Learning, poetry, &c. 257, ſeq. Way of reckoning weeks, months, and years, 260, a—c. Sciences, ib. & ſeq. Arts, 261, c. Signal hoſpitality, ib. & ſeq. Other characters, 262, & ſeq. Commerce, 263, b, c. Circumciſion, ib. d, Other cuſtoms, ib. & ſeq. Reſpect to their kings, 264, b, c. Feaſtings, &c. d, e. Hiſtory to the birth of Mohammed, 265, ad fin. cap. A liſt of their monarchs, 267, & ſeq. The names of their months, by whom given, 277, (C). Other kingdoms and tribes, ib. & ſeq. Manner of ſecuring their paſtures, 278, e, (D). Whether, and how long, ſubject to Egypt, Medes, &c. 279, & ſeq. Their ſucceſs againſt Antigonus, 280, a, & ſeq. Noble ſpeech to Demetrius, ib. & ſeq. Whether conquered by the Romans, 281, c. Tranſactions to Mohammed's time, 283, f, & ſeq. Hereſies after their converſion, 284, e, & ſeq.
Arabriga, a city in Luſitania, 297, a.
Araduæ, a city in Luſitania, 240, c.
Ararena, the province of, where, 492, d.
Araric, a famed Bathian prince, 492, d.
Arbogaſtes ſtirs up the Romans againſt the Franks, 557, f. Defeats them, 558, a, b.
Arborici, who, and where, 571, (H).
Arcadius's partiality to the Goths, 505, & ſeq.
Arceſilaus, king of Cyrene, 172, c.
—II. his reign, ib. d.
—III. ibid. e.
—IV. driven out, ibid. e, f. Flight and death, ibid. & ſeq.
Ardaburius drives the Hunns out of Illyricum, 478, b.
Ardaric, king, a great favourite of Attila, 466, e. Serves under him, 473, a. Revolts, after his death, 481, e, f.
Areacidæ, who, and where ſited, 81, b.
Arechis, ſecond duke of Benevento, 684, c. His large territories, ib. d. Death, 691, f.—Aſſumes the ſovereign power, 724, d. Peace with Charles, ib. e, f.
Areta teaches philoſophy at Cyrene, 175, ſub not.
Arga, a city in Arabia Felix, 233, e.
Arganthonius's long life and reign, [324], & ſeq.
Aridius's ſignal fidelity to Gundebald, 571, d, & ſeq.
Ariogeſes choſen king of the Quadi, 602, f.
Ariovald dethrones Adalwald, 689, a. His death, ib. e.
Arioviſtus defeated by Cæſar, 398, b, [436], c, d, (E).
Aripert, Ch. king of the Lombards, 692, e. Divides his kingdom, ib. f. Cruelty to Luitpert, 699, a, b. To Aſprang, and his family, ib. b, c. Donations to the church, ib. & ſeq. & (W). Defeated and drowned, 700, a, b.
Ariſtippus's writings, and merry character, 174, (F).
Ariſton ſent by Hannibal to Carthage, 87, d. Arreſted, and eſcapes, ib. d.
Arles, the ſiege of, raiſed, 576, e, f.
Armorica, Gallia, deſcribed, 322, a, b.
Armorican Britons, of what ſtanding, 454, c, d. Cruelty to the old inhabitants, ib. c, d. Submit to Clovis, 570, e, f.
Armua, river in Numidia, 112, a.
Arnagaſtus defeates the Hunns, 482, e, f.
Arnegſceles, defeated and ſlain by Attila, 469, a.
Arpi taken by the Romans, 49, f.
Arra, the metropolis of the Arraceni, 240, c.
Arraceni. See Saraceni, 227, b, c.
Arſenaria, where ſeated, 114, e.
Arſinoe, a city of Cyrenaica, 169, e.
Artabanes baſely forſaken by the Romans, 695, e. Brave fight with a gigantic Goth, 666, a. Death, ib. b.—Sent againſt Totila, 673, f, & ſeq. Ship-wreck, 674, d. Succeſs in Sicily, 675, b.
Artabrum promontorium, Finiſter, where ſited, 303, f.
Artaſiris ſent to defend Rome 668, d. Defeated, ib. e.
Artemidorus promoted at Rome, 523, c, d.
Arthur, king, ſucceeds Nazabeed, 448, & ſeq. His hiſtory much doubted, ibid. (B). His tomb at Glaſtenbury, ibid. Victories over the Saxons, 449, & ſeq. Death, 450, e.
Arvaracus, his viſion concerning the Hunns, 473, (G).
Arverni, who, 367, (B). Conteſt with the Ædui, ibid. c.
Arvernum, capital of the Arverni, 398, (O).
Aſcaric, antient king of the Franks, 550, e. When, 551, a. His ſad end, 554, e.
Aſcitæ, who, and where, 232, a.
Aſcurum, where ſited, 143, a.
Aſdrubal left to command in Spain, 9, a. His army, ib. b. Goes in purſuit of the Romans, 18, b, c. Succeſs againſt them, 20, c, d. Ill ſucceſs, 26, & ſeq. Defeated by Scipio, 27, e. Bravery againſt the Romans, 30, e, f. Ill ſucceſs in Spain, 38, & ſeq. Defeats the Carpeſii, 39, c. Forced to aſſiſt Hannibal, ib. d, e. Defeated in his march, 40, b, c. Sends word of it to Carthage, 41, f. Defeated again, 48, & ſeq. And again, 25, b, c. Goes into Luſitania, ibid. d.
—Calvus, ſhattered by a ſtorm, 44, c, d. Arrives at Sardinia, 45, d.
—the ſon of Hamilcar, defeats the Romans in Spain, 56, d. Extricates himſelf out of a ſnare, 58, e. Goes to aſſiſt Hannibal, 63, d. Croſſes the Pyrenees, and Gaul, 65, b. Repulſed before Placentia, ib. c. Marches towards Umbria, 66, b. Defeated by the conſuls, ib. & ſeq. Noble death, 67, b.

—the

—the ſon of Giſco, defeated by Scipio, 69, e, & ſeq. Retires to Gades, 70, d, e. Defeated at ſea, 71, e. Betrayed by Maſiniſſa, 72, b. c. Allies with Syphax, 75, a, b. Defeated, 77, e. Retires to Anda, 78, a. Cruelties there, 80, d, e.
—Hædus, ſent embaſſador to Rome, 84, a. Speech to the ſenate, ib. b, c. Severe reproof to Hannibal, ib. d. ——Defeated by Maſiniſſa, 96, e. Impeached by the ſenate, 97, a. Defends Carthage againſt the Romans, 100, & ſeq. Fortifies his camp, 102, a, b. Goes over to the Romans, 103, f. His wife's noble behaviour and death, ib. & ſeq.
—Guluſſa's nephew, accuſed and diſpatched, 101, d.—Inſtigates Syphax againſt Maſiniſſa. 123, e.
Aſemontium's noble defence againſt Attila, 469, d, e.
Aſena taken by the Carpeſii, 39, b.
Aſgardians, who, 489, b, c.
Aſia, its etymon, 178, e.
Aſotes marries Samuel's daughter, 634, d.
Aſpar's narrow eſcape out of Africa, 533, c.
Aſphaledonians, a tribe of Libyans, 120, e.
Aſphaltites, lake, diſcovered by Demetrius, 281.
Aſprand driven out by Aripert, 699, a. Declared king of the Lombards, 700, a. Dies ib. b.
Aſpurgia, where ſited, 489, b.
Aſpurgians, who, ib.
Aſtaboras, river, falls into the Nile, 189, b. Deſcribed, ib. (I).
Aſtapa taken by the Romans, 71, a.
Aſtapus, river, falls into the Nile, 189, b, (I).
Aſtorga deſtroyed by the Goths, 513, b, c.
Aſtratæ, iſlands, where, 190, b.
Aſtulphus, Ch. king of the Lombards, 710, a. Seizes on Ravenna, ib. b——d. Invades Rome 711, & ſeq. His new edicts, 712, a——d. Defeated by Pepin, ib. e, f. Beſieged in Pavia, ib. & ſeq. Submits to him, 714, paſſ. Reſtores his conqueſts, ib. & ſeq. Dies, 715, b, c.
Aſtures, who, and where ſited, 303, e, f. 304, (B).
Ataulphus founds a kingdom in Gaul, 492, e. Succeeds Alaric, 409, a. And invades Gaul, ib. Marries Placidia, ib. b. Murdered, ib. c.
Atec, antient king of the Franks, 550, e. Submits to Dioclefian, ib. f.
Athalaric, king of Italy 493, a. Succeeds Theodoric, 647. His letter to the ſenate, 648, paſſ. To the Gauls, &c. ib. e, & ſeq. Debauches and death, 650, c.
Athanagild, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, 492, e.
Athanaric defeated by the Hunns, 459, c. 502, d. His famed wall, ib. Retires into Caucalauda, ib. e. Wars with Valens, 501, paſſ. Defeated, ib. f. Peace with him, 502, b. Kindly received by Theodoſius, 503, c. Buried by him, ib. d.
Athens plundered by the Goths, 797, a. By Alaric, 505, d.
Atinius commands in Thurium, 54, b. Saved from the maſſacre, ib. d.
Atlantidæ conquered by the Egyptians, 149, b. Who, and where ſited, 177, c, d. Their cuſtoms, ib. & ſeq.
Atlantis of Plato diſcuſſed, 179, b—d.
Atlas, king, the inventor of aſtronomy, 152, d. Firſt king of Mauritania, 153, b. Overcome by Hercules, ib. c, d. The ſame with Antæus, ib. & (M). The fable of explained, 154, a, &c.
— a fabulous king of Spain, 320, d.
— mountains, where, 115, e. 139, d. Deſcribed, 146, a, b.
Attacobi, different from the Caledonians, 414, c. Invade the Romans, 435, c.
Attalus made emperor, and depoſed by Alaric, 508, e.
—king of the Marcomans, allies with Gallienus, 601, f.
Attanes goes over to Scipio, 70, c.
Attila's cruelty to the fugitive Hunns, 464, e. Falls foul on the Romans, 465, b——d. Upon Theodoſius II. ibid. & ſeq. His fratricide, 466, b. Peace with Theodoſius, ibid. c. Haughty anſwer to the Romans, ibid. Proud character, ibid. & ſeq. Affected plainneſs, 467, c——e. Troops of wives, ibid. e, f. Why called flagellum Dei, 468, b. Wars with the Romans, ibid. e. Horrid devaſtations, ibid. & ſeq. New peace, 469, b. c. Forgives the Roman conſpirators, 470, c. Falls foul on the weſtern empire, 471, & ſeq. Demands the princeſs Honoria, 472, c. Outwits Valentinian with a ſham peace, ibid. & ſeq. His vaſt army, 473, a, b. Defeats the Franks, ibid. c, d. Falls upon the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated at Orleans, 475, b, c. Beſieged in his camp, 477, a, b. Retires towards the Rhine, 478, b. Invades Italy, ibid. & ſeq. Succeſs and devaſtations there, 479, & ſeq. Revenge on the Roman pride, ibid. (M). Truce with Rome, 480, a, b. Enters Dauphiny, ibid. c. Driven from it, ibid. d. His death, ib. & ſeq. Pompous funeral, 481, b, c.
Attrebatii in Britain, where ſeated, 408, a.
Attuatici ſettle in Belgia, 406, d. Fifty-three thouſand ſold for ſlaves, 438, a, b.
Atzham, whether he turned Mohammedan, 220, b, c.
Avalitæ, where ſited, 190, a.
Avaricum taken by Cæſar, 399, e.
Audonius, king of the Lombards, his ſucceſs againſt the Gepidæ, 597, paſſ. 617, b, d.
Audus, mount, 111, c.
—promontory, where, 115, d.
—river, 111, f.
Auges, a famed Bathian prince, 492, d.
Auguſta Colonia, in Tarracon, 304, d.
—Gemina, 305, a.
Auguſtus prevented from invading Britain, 427, b. c. Conqueſt of Ethiopia, 216, & ſeq.
Avignon taken by Theodoric, 577, a.
Avitus proclaimed emperor by Theodoric, 512, b.
—biſhop, his letter againſt duels, 582, b.
Aulus's ſhameful defeat in Numidia, 130, d, e.
Aurelian's ſucceſs againſt the Goths, 497, & ſeq.
Aurelius Conaſus's wicked reign, 451, e.
Auric, a famed Bathian prince, 492, d.
Auſburgh, the capital of Suabia, [415].
Auſetani, where ſited, 10, f. Invaded by Scipio. ibid. & ſeq.
Auſones, where ſited, 489, c.
Authoris choſen king of the Lombards, 622, d, e. 681, c. Takes the name of Flaccus, ibid. d. Succeſs againſt the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Turns chriſtian, 682, c. d. His conqueſts, 683, d, & ſeq. Peace with Childebert, 684, a. Poiſoned, ibid. b.
Autolala, capital of the Autololes, 160, d, (B).
Automala, a fortreſs of Cyrenaica, 170, a.
Autun, an antient univerſity in Gaul, 383, c. Taken by Childebert, 587, f. Its temple and hot waters, 355, (R).
Auvergne yielded to Euric, 516.
Auximum taken by Beliſarius, 666, f. 661, & ſeq.
Auxume, metropolis of Ethiopia, 184, e. The ruins of, ib. & ſeq. The Abaſſine princes crowned at, 185, b.
Auzia, where ſituate, 115, b.
Ayleſford, the battle of, 444, d, e.
Azama, where ſituate, 109, e.

B

BABAI defeated by the Oſtrogoths, 519, f, & ſeq.
Bacchus worſhipped by the Mauritanians, 150, e. By the Arabs, 249, b.
Bacchus, Iacchus, comes into Spain, [321], e.
Bacenian foreſt in Germany, [414] a.
Badanatha, capital of the Thamydeni, 233, c.
Badeo, a city in Arabia Felix, 233, f.
Badicarini, heads of the ravaging Bulgarians, 623, e, f.
Badon, the battle of, when fought, 450, b, c.
Bætica, the province of, deſcribed, 299, c, &c. Its inhabitants, ibid. d, & ſeq. and notes. Roman colonies, 300, a, b. Cities, ibid. c. Sea-ports and bays, 301, c, d. Mountains, ſoil, &c. 302, & ſeq. Minerals, &c. 303, a, b.
Bætis, river, its two mouths, 301, (G). Its ſpring and courſe, 302, b. Divides Bætica into two, 299, d.
Bætula, the ſilver mines of, 65, b.
Bæturia. See above, Bætica, 299, d, & ſeq.
Bætus, a fabulous king of Spain, 319, b.
Bagaudæ defeated by Aſtorius, 543, f.
Bagendra, the high mountains of 185, d.
Bagrada, river, its ſpring, 163, e.
Bahrein province deſcribed, 239, c.
Balamir. See Valamir, 458, & ſeq.
Balchis, the ſuppoſed queen of Sheba, 268, c.
Baldwin's dreadful fate, 639, b.
Baleares iſlands deſcribed, 308, b——d. Ravaged by the Vandals, 531, d.

INDEX.

Baltæi, the princely tribe of, 487, e, 492, d, e.
Bamba, where ſited, 143, d.
Bambyſes, king, impriſoned by his ſubjects, 606, c.
Banjuræ, where ſeated, 140. A tribe of the Gætulians, 160, d.
Bantius bribed over to the Romans, 36, b, (O).
Barani, where ſeated, 294, f.
Barat-Anac, the ſuppoſed etymon of Britain, 402, b.
Barbarium promontorium in Luſitania, 298, e.
Barbation's ill-timed bravery, 668, d.
Barbeſul, a ſea-port in old Spain, 301, d, & ſeq.
Barca, where, and by whom built, 171, b—d. Betrayed to the Perſians, 173, b, (E).
Barcæi, who, and whence, 171, c, d. Their dreadful puniſhment, 173, b.
Bards, in Gaul, their office, &c. 364, d. Inferior to the druids, ibid. & ſeq. Why ſtyled paraſites, 365, a, b, (L).
Barguſii tampered with by the Romans, 8, d. Submit to Hannibal, 10, f, & ſeq.
Barrows, on Saliſbury plain, their uſe and deſcription, 341, & ſeq.
Baſa, the Hunn, liſts in the Roman ſervice, 464, a.
Baſilicus's treachery to Leo, 538, a, b. Defeated, ibid. c, f. Pardoned, 539, b, c.
Baſilius defeated by the Bulgarians, 633, e, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt them, 634, & ſeq. Cruelty to his priſoners, 635, e. Freſh conqueſts in Bulgaria, ibid. & ſeq. 636, b. Cruelty to them, ibid. c, d. Kindneſs to their king's family, ibid. f,& ſeq. Triumph over them, 637, b,c.
—— ynademus, falſly accuſed by Democaitas, 637, d, e.
Baſina's reception of Childeric, 564, (F). Runs away with, and married to him, 566, a, (H).
Baſtarnæ, who, and where ſited, [408], d, & ſeq. Settled in Thrace, 429, a.
Baſtitani, who, and where ſited, 296, d, (B).
Baſtuli, who and where ſited, 299, d, (B).
Bathanceſter, Bath, taken by the Saxons, 453, a.
Battus comes to Cyrenaica, 172, b, c. And cured of his ſtammering, ibid.
——II. and III. why ſurnamed the happy, ibid. d, e.
——IV. invites Demonax, ibid. f.
Bebamburgh, Bamborough, by whom built, 451, a.
Becca, the antient name of Mecca, 237, b.
Bedowens in Arabia, who, &c. 229, b, 244, d.
Begdeg made king of Weſtphalia, 489, e.
Belatucardus, Apollo ſo named in Britain, 406, b.
Belerium, a promontory in Danmonia, 407, d.
Belgæ ſettle in Gaul, [435], b, c. Why ſo named, ibid. & (C). Subdued by Cæſar, 398, c, d. [438], a.
——in Britain, where ſeated, 407, f.
Belgia, whether conquered by Pharamond, 559, d, e.
Beliſarius's ſucceſs againſt the Oſtrogoths, 652, & ſeq. and (Q). Anſwer to them, 654, a, b. Complaint to the emperor, 656, a, (R). Brave defence of Rome, 657, a, b. Defeat, ibid. Raiſes the ſiege, 658, b, c. Succeſs againſt the Goths, ibid. & ſeq. Freſh conqueſts, 660, e, & ſeq. Proclaimed emperor by the Goths, 663, b. e. Recalled, ibid. e, f. Sent againſt Totila, 668, paſſ. Diſſuades him from deſtroying Rome, 670, c, d. Retakes it, ibid. e, f. Recalled, 671, f. His conduct cenſured, 672, a.
Bellovaci, who, 367, (C). Ally with the Ædui, ibid.
Bene-mezac, where ſituate, 164, a.
Beneventum plundered by Hannibal, 23, d. Diſmantled by Totila, 666, e. Erected into a dukedom, 624, e, f. 683, f. Beſieged by Conſtans, 695, a, b. Relieved by Grimoald. ibid. c.——The dukes of, 683, & ſeq. 700, & ſeq. The extent of their dominions, 720, d, e. Government, ibid. f. Changed into a principality, 724, c, d. Given to Radelchiſus, 725, a.
Berea delivered up to Baſilius, 335, a.
Bercnice, a city in Cyrenaica, 169, e. 191, c, (A).
Bericus perſuades Claudius to invade Britain, 428, b.
Berig invades the Almerugians and Vandals, 487, c.
Bernica, a province in Northumberland, 457, a.
Berry taken by the Viſigoths, 515, c.
Beſſa ſent to command in Rome, 668, d. His fatal avarice, 669, e, f.
Beſtia, Calpurnius, bribed by Jugurtha, 129, f, & ſeq.
Beth-meon, a city in Arab-Petrea, 226, b.
Betus, Bœtus, antient king of Spain, 319, b.
Bigati, a coin, why ſo called, 36, (O).
Bithyas aſſiſts the Carthaginians, 101, b, c. 102, c.
Bithynia ravaged by the Goths, 495, d.
Bituriges, who, 367, c. Subject to the Ædui, ibid.
Black Foreſt, in Germany, [414], a, b.
Bladinus, king of the Bulgarians, 623, c.
Bladiſhablus ſaved by Gabriel, 633, d. Murders him, 636, a. Suſpected by Baſilius, ibid. b. Slain before Dyrrhachium, ibid. e.
Blæſus's ſucceſs againſt Tacfarinas, 158, e.
Blatoburgium, Bullneſs, its antiquities, 413, b.
Bleda ſucceeds Rouas, 464, c. Advantagious peace with Rome, ibid. d. New conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. See ſub Attila.
Blemmyes ſubdued by Probus, 216, e, & ſeq.
Bletiſa, a city in Luſitania, 297, e.
Bniſomenæ, who, and where ſited, 233, d.
Bo, made king of Riiſland, 489, d.
Boarez, queen, defeats Styrax, &c. 483, a.
Bocchar aſſiſts Maſiniſſa, 123, b.
Bocchus aſſiſts Jugurtha, 132, d, e. 134, b, c. Treachery to him, ibid. e. 156, b, c, (N), (O). Is rewarded for it, ibid. & 135, a. Aſſiſt Pompey, 137, c, d.
Bodyna taken by Baſilius, 635, b.
Boetius's conſulſhip and character, 577, e. Compliments Theodoric at Rome, 645, a. Put to death by him, ibid. Excellent character, ibid. & ſeq.
Bogud cuckolded by Cæſar, 156, (P). Signal ſervices to him, 157, a. Death, ibid. b.
Boii invite Hannibal, 14, a, b. Treachery to Scipio, 18, c. Settle in Italy, 391, d. Driven out of Bohemia by the Marcomans, 600, f.
Bolanus, Vect. governor of Britain, 430, f.
Bomilcar's arrival at Locri, 46, b. Treachery and death, 131, d.
Bona, in Numidia, where ſited, 110, b.
Bonduca defeated by Suetonius, 430, e.
Bonifacius undermined by Ætius, 532, b. Invites the Vandals into Afric, ibid. c. Beſieged by them in Hippo, 533, b. Returns into Italy, ibid. d.
Bonoſus's defeat and death, 434, b.
Boriſes ſent priſoner to Conſtantinople, 632, f. 633, c. His eſcape and death, ibid.—Delivers up Scopia to Baſilius, 635, c.
Boſtra, a city in Petræa, 227, e.
Bouſtrophedon, what, 383, (W). Whether uſed by the Gauls, ibid.
Brachata, Gallia, why ſo called, 322, a.
Braga plundered by Theodoric, 545, a.
Brancus's gratitude to Hannibal, 14, c, d.
Brannonium, Worceſter, metropolis of the Cornavii, 410, d.
Brecknock inhabited in the time of the Romans, 411, a.
Brennus's noble anſwer to the Romans, 370, b—d. (F). Invited into Italy, 391, d, e. Plunders and burns Rome, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and cut off, 392, b, c.—Fatal expedition into Greece, 373, b, c. 393, & ſeq. His end, 394, b.
Brigantes, who, and where ſited, 412, a. Defeated by Oſtorius, 430, b. By Didius, ibid. d. By Cerealis, ibid. f, & ſeq. By Lollius, 432, a.
Brigo, a fabulous king of Spain, 320, b.
Briſſello taken by the Lombards, 681, e.
Britain, Great, deſcribed, 401. Whence ſo called, ibid. & ſeq. Its ſituation, ſoil, &c. 402, e, f. Firſt inhabitants, 403, a, b. How divided, 407, c, & ſeq. Its three walls, 414, & ſeq. Various diviſions, 416, b—d. Pentarchy, ibid. e. Roman government, ibid. & ſeq. Military, 417, & ſeq. Fabulous hiſtory, 420, & ſeq. (A). Reduced by the Romans, 429, & ſeq. Governed by tribunes, 430, e, f. Quelled under ſeveral emperors, 431, & ſeq. Divided by Severus, 433, b. Submits to Aurelian, 434, a. Given to Carauſius, ibid. c. Reunited, ibid. d. Freſh diviſion under Conſtantine, 435, a. Secured againſt the Picts, 436, c. Invaded by them and the Scots, 437, a. Abandoned by the Romans, 437, & ſeq. Invaded by the Picts, 438, & ſeq.
Britons, their manners, &c. 404, & ſeq. Way of fighting. 405, d. Trade, ſhipping, &c. ibid & ſeq. Religion, 406, & ſeq. Government, 405, d. 407, b. Their fortified woods, called towns, 414, d, e. Incorporated into the Roman army, 420, b, c. Embaſſy to Cæſar, 421, c. Brave defence againſt him. 422, paſſ. Submit to him, ibid. & ſeq. Break the peace, peace, 423, c, d. Submit anew, ibid. f, & ſeq. Various defeats, 424, d, e. 425, c. Many of them ſubmit to him, 426, b, (F). Whether all were conquered by him, 427, a. Tribute to Auguſtus, ibid. d, e. Subdued by Claudius, 428, & ſeq. Defeated by Geta, ibid. e, f. By Suetonius, 433, paſſ. By Agricola, 431, a. Romanized, ibid. b. Allowed to plant vines, 434, b. Stripped of their youth by Maximus, 436, b. Repulſe the Scots and Picts, b, c. Build a ſtone wall, 438, a, b. Make and murder their kings, 439, a, b. Diſmal condition, and letter to Ætius, ibid. b, c. Horrid degeneracy, ibid. e. Deſtroyed by peſtilence, ibid. & ſeq. Invite the Saxons, 440, b, (T). Driven out by them, 444, b, c. Out of Kent, 445, b. Beaten by Ella, 446, & ſeq. Under Nazaleod, 447, d, & ſeq. Defeat the Saxons, 450, b, c. Grow more debauched, 451, b, c. Loſe ſeveral battles, 452, & ſeq. And three of their kings, ibid. Retire into Wales, 453, d, e. And Cornwall, ibid. f. And South Scotland, 454, a. Into Armorican Gaul, ibid. b, c. When, ibid. e, f. The ſad ſtate of thoſe in Wales, ibid. & ſeq.—Thoſe in Gaul defeated by Euric, 415, b.

INDEX.

Brittenberg caſtle built by the fugitive Britons, 434, c.

Bructerii, who, and where ſited, 407, c. A tribe of the Franks, 548. a. Their dreadful puniſhment, 554, e, f.

Brutii ſubmit to Hannibal, 34, c. Puniſhed by the Romans, 59, c, d. At Tarentum, 62. Deſert the Carthaginians, 76, f. Open their towns to the Romans, 80, b.

Brutium deſtroyed by the banditti, 61, e.

Brutus's fabulous conqueſt of Britain, 420, & ſeq. (A).

Budini, who, and where ſeated, 604, e, & ſeq.

Built, given to Paſcentius, 446, c.

Bulgaria Magna, where ſited, 623, a.

Bulgarians, their antient ſeat, extract, &c. 623, a, b. Defeated by Theodoric, 522, e, f. Come into Thrace, 623, c. Defeat Ariſtus, ibid. d, e. New invaſions, ibid. & ſeq. And defeats by the Romans, 624, a. Revenge, ibid. c, d. Their language, 625, a, (L). Defeat Juſtinian, ibid. b, c. And Copronymus, 626, a, b. Defeated, ibid. c—e. Peace with Leo, ibid. f. Defeat Conſtantine IV. 627, a, b. Freſh invaſions and conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Leo, 628, e, f, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt Romanus, 631, & ſeq. Subdued by the Roſſi, 632, e, f. Submit to Zimiſces, 633, b. Revolt, and ſet up four kings, ibid, b, c. Their war with Baſilius, ibid. & ſeq. Submit to him, 636, e, f. Revolt under Deleanus, 637, c. Submit to Michael, 638, e, f. Totally ſubdued by the Turks, 639, a—d.

Bullæum Silurum, where ſited, 410; f. 411, d.

Burgundi, who, and where ſited, [409], e, & ſeq. 494, b. Haraſſed by the Hunns, 463 c. Are baptized, and defeat them, ibid. d. Defeated by the Goths, 498, f, & ſeq. Their territories in Gaul, 516, c, d. Aſſiſt the ravaging Vandals, 529. e. War with the Franks, 571, b, &c. Defeated by Clovis, 572, d, e. Ally with him, 576, d, e. Defeated by Theodoric, ibid. & ſeq. Their origin, 581, a—c. Religion, kings, &c. ib. & ſeq. Various defeats in Gaul, 582, c—f. Found a kingdom there, 583, a, b. Their converſion and conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. Wars with the Franks, 585, & ſeq. Subdued by them, 587, f.

Burii, who, and where ſited, [409], b.

Buteliana, the palace of, burnt, 635, f, & ſeq.

Buzara, mount, in Numidia, 111, c.

Buzez, where ſituate, 168, b.

Byzacene yielded to the Vandals, 533, e.

C

CAABA of the Arabs, what, 264, a.

Cabbatra, mount, in Yaman, 235, e.

Cacanus ravages Italy, 686, d, e. & ſeq.

Cacus defeated in Spain, [322], a.

Cæſar's ſucceſs againſt Juba, 136, & ſeq. Swift conqueſts in Gaul, 397, & ſeq. & (M).——His temple built by the Lugdunenſes, 349, d.

Caer Vorran, its antiquities, 413, d, e.

Cæſian foreſt in Germany, [414]. b.

Cafres in Ethiopia, who, and where ſeated, 184, d. 190, a.

Calabria, its territories, &c. 721, b, (C).

Calaib, a prince of the Bani Maad, ſlain, 278, d, e.

Calaguris, the infamous colony of, 305, b.

Calamintha, where ſited, 144, b.

Calavius's friendſhip to Hannibal, 33, a, &c.

Caledonii, who, and where ſited, 414, b. Tranſplanted, 331, a.

Callimachus writings and character, 157, ſub not.

Calocyrus entices the Ruſſi into Bulgaria, 682, f, & ſeq.

Calpe, a ſea-port in Bœtica, 331, c, d.

Camalodunum, the firſt Roman colony in Britain, 409, e.

Cambray taken by Clodio, 560, f, & (D).

Cambria by whom ſo called, 421, (A).

Cambridge built on the ruins of Camboritum, 410, a.

Cambyſes's expedition into Egypt, 212, & ſeq.

Camden's notion of Stonehenge confuted, 341, a, b.

Camillus, Fur. ill ſucceſs againſt Tacfarinas, 158, b.

Campanians cut off by the Romans, 44, a.

Camulogena defeated by Cæſar, 400, a.

Camulus, one of the Gauliſh names of Mars, 454, c, (O).

Canaria iſland, why ſo called, 148, b.

Candace, the common name of the Ethiopian queens, 193, d.——Invaded by Petronius, 215, & ſeq. Peace with Auguſtus, 216, a, b.

Cannabaud ſlain by Aurelian, 498, a.

Cannæ taken by Hannibal, 28, d.——The battle of, ib. & ſeq.

Cantabri, who, and where ſituate, 303, d, e.

Cantabrian ſea and coaſts, 303, c——e.

Cantii, where ſeated, 408, c.

Cantons in Gaul, what, and whence, 325, & ſeq. & notes.

Canucius, where ſituate, 114, b.

Capraria iſland deſcribed, 148, b. 309, a.

Capſa razed by Marius, 133, e.

Capua ſurrendered to Hannibal, 32, f, & ſeq. Deſires his aſſiſtance, 47, c. Beſieged by the Roman conſuls, 56, f, & ſeq. Surrendered, 58, c.

Capuſa defeated and ſlain, 132, a.

Caracalla defeats the Alemani, 588, e, f, & ſeq.

Carbonaria Sylva, where, 561, ſub not.

Cardanes demands a tribute from Conſtantine IV. 527, b.

Carians come into Spain, [324], a.

Carlile, olim, where ſited, 413, a.

Carloman marries Deſiderius's daughter, 715, f. Dies, 716, a.

Carna, a city in Arabia Felix, 231, b.

Carneades's writings and character, 175, ſub not.

Carni, who, 396, (H). Subdued by Scaurus, ibid. a.

Carnati ſubdued by Cæſar, 400, c.

Carnutium, where ſituate, 411, (I).

Carpeſii revolt from the Carthaginians, 38, e, f. Subdued by Aſdrubal, 39, c.

Carpi, who, and where ſeated, 493, e. 494, f. Baffled and affronted by Menophilus, 606, f, & ſeq. Submit, and tranſplanted, 608, c.

Carteia, whether the ſame with Calpe, 301, d, & ſeq.

Cartena, where ſituate, 114, c. By whom founded, ib. d.

Cartenus, river in Numidia, 116, b.

Carthage, New, deſcribed, 59, e. Beſieged by Scipio, ibid. & ſeq.

———Old, beſieged, 100. Taken and deſtroyed, 103, & ſeq. Rebuilt, 105, c. By whom, ibid. & ſeq. Deſtroyed by the Saracens, 106. Taken by the Vandals, 533, e.

Carthagena deſtroyed by the Vandals, 531, d.

Carthaginians, their ſucceſs in Spain, 2, b, c. Anſwer to the Romans, 6, c. d. Succeſs againſt them, 17, & ſeq. Defeated in Spain, 20, c, d. Great joy at Hannibal's ſucceſs, 34, d, & ſeq. Treaty with king Philip, 42, & ſeq. Their embaſſadors ſent priſoners to Rome, 43, f, & ſeq. Second treaty with Philip, 44, d, e. Driven out of Sardinia, 45, & ſeq. Defeated in Spain, 46, paſſ. Before Illiturgi, 48, e, f. Before Munda, 49, a, b. In Sicily, 61, & ſeq. In Spain, 63, b. Exaſperate king Philip. 64, e, f. Defeated by the conſuls, 65, & ſeq. In Spain by Scipio, 68, e, f. Their decline there. 69, & ſeq. Sad ſtate, 73, e, f. Buy king Philip's help, 74, a. Their terror at Scipio's landing, 75, e, f, & ſeq. Deſerted in Italy, 76. f, & ſeq. Defeated by Scipio, 77, & ſeq. Sue for peace to him, 79 c. Their embaſſadors at Rome ſuſpected, 80, f. Treachery to the Romans, 81, a. Defeated by Scipio, 82, paſſ. Obtain a hard peace, 83, & ſeq. Send the firſt ſum to Rome, 85, c. Diſcover Hannibal's deſigns to the Romans, 87, e. Offer them, corn, corn, ſhips, &c. 89, e, d. Proſcribe Hannibal, 93, d. Fall out with Maſiniſſa, ibid. & ſeq. Abject appeal to the Romans, 94, & ſeq. Sue for peace to Maſiniſſa, 96, e. Betrayed by the Romans, 97, & ſeq. Forced to ſend three hundred hoſtages, ibid. & ſeq. To deliver up their arms, 98, b, c. To abandon the city, ibid. & ſeq. Make freſh efforts, 101, & ſeq. Defeated at ſea, 102, & ſeq. Overpowered and deſtroyed, 103, & ſeq.

INDEX.

Carthalo ſlain at Tarentum, 62.

Caſilinum beſieged by Hannibal, 36, f. Its dreadful famine, ibid. & ſeq. Surrender, 38, b, c. Retaken by Fabius, 47, f. Butchered by Marcellus, 48, a.

Caſius, mount, in Petræa, 227, d.

Caſſandria deſtroyed by the Hunns, 483, e.

Caſſibelan's treaſon, 421, (A).——Heads all the Britons againſt Cæſar, 425, b. Defeat, and defence againſt him, ibid. & ſeq. Peace with him, 426.

Caſſiodorus ſent embaſſador to Attila, 472, d.

Caſſir, the ruins of, 116, d.

Caſſiterides iſlands, why ſo called by the Greeks, 402, c. Where ſited, 308, a, b.

Caſtinus's ill ſucceſs againſt the Goths, 531, c, d.

Caſtra Alata, ſuppoſed to be Edinburgh, 413, f.

Caſtrum Altum deſcribed, 48, d.

Caſulo revolts from the Carthaginians, 48, e. Betrayed to Scipio, 71, a.

Catabani, who, and where ſited, 231, e.

Catalonia yielded to the Romans, 510, a, b.

Catamentales, an ally of Rome, 369, b.

Catigern's death and monument, 444, e.

Cato's irreconcileable hatred to the Carthaginians, 95, f, & ſeq. Unjuſt ſentence againſt them, 96, a, b. Promotes their utter deſtruction, ibid. f, & ſeq.

Catti, who, 548, a.

Cattieuchlani, where ſeated, 409, b.

Cattualdes choſen king of the Suevi, 541, d. Driven out, ibid. e.

Cavions and Chaibons, who, 598, c, d.

Ceaulin's ſucceſs againſt the Britons, 452, e, f. Defeated and driven out, 453, b, c.

Celtes, how far ſpread through Europe, 322, d, e. Embaſſy to Alexander, [327], a, b.

Celtiberians, deſperate defence againſt Scipio, 78, e. Their warlike fierceneſs, 304, c, d. Excellent weapons, 312, f, & ſeq. Their religion, 330, d.

Cenomagni, &c. ſubmit to Cæſar, 426, a, b, (T).

Cenſorinus ſent againſt Carthage, 97, c. Repulſed before it, 100, e. Sent embaſſador to Emeric, 543, e.

Centonius defeated, 22, d, e.

Cepio's treachery, to the Tholouſans, 396, b, c.

Cercina iſland, where ſited, 176, e, f.

Cerdic's arrival and ſucceſs in Britain, 447, c, d, & ſeq. Sends for more Saxons, 449, b. Defeats the Britons, ibid c. Founds the Weſt-Saxon kingdom, ibid. d, e.

Ceretrius ſettles in Propontis, 393, d.

Cerne, iſland, where, probably, ſited, 178, f.

Certillus put to death for his ambition, 367, b, c.

Cethegus overawes the Etruſcans, 76, e, f.

Ceuta, its ſituation, 139, c.

Chagan's ravages in Thrace, &c. 685, f, & ſeq. Outwitted by Grimoald, 696, c——e.

Chaiboni, who, and where ſeated, 411, d, e. Invade Gaul, 412, a, b.

Chalazar put to death by Totila, 671, e.

Chalce, where ſited, 143, e.

Chalcedon deſtroyed by the Goths, 495, b.

Chalons, the battle of, 475, & ſeq. Authors reconciled about it, ibid. (I).

Chamavi, who, and where, 548, a.

Charamnichis ſlain by Euin, 681, a.

Chararic, king of the Franks, 566, c. Refuſes to aid Clovis, ibid. d. Dethroned and murdered by him, 579, d, e.

Charcorychii mountains, where, 115, e.

Charford, the battle of, 449, e, & ſeq.

Charidemus, the promontory of, 301, c.

Chariots with two and four horſes, by whom invented, 36, (O).

Charlemagne falls out with Deſiderius, 716, & ſeq. Invited againſt him by the pope, 717, a, b. Succeſs againſt him in Italy, ibid. d, & ſeq. Grand reception at Rome, 718, b, c. Donations to the pope, ibid. f, & ſeq. Conqueſts in Italy, 719 & ſeq. Crowned king of the Lombards, 722, c. Second reception at Rome, ibid & ſeq. Form of government, 723, & ſeq.

Charlton, Dr.'s notion about Stonehenge confuted, 339, & ſeq.

Chauci, who, and were ſited, 407, b. 548, a.

Chaulaſii and Chaulotei, who, and where ſited, 161, c.

Celenophagi, who, and why ſo called, 183, f. Their food, manners, &c. 200, d.

Cherſoneſus made free, 608, b.——Cimbrica, whence ſo named, [405]. Deſcribed, 486, paſſ. Its firſt inhabitants, who, 488, a.

Chicheſter built by Ciſſa, 449, d.

Childebert's ſucceſs againſt the Burgundi, 587, d. Againſt the Lombards, 681, c. Defeated, 682, & ſeq.

Childeric, king of the Franks, 550, e. Taken priſoner by the Hunns, 473, c. Reſtored by Attila, 563, a. His reign and conqueſts, 564, a, b. Death, ibid. c. Tomb and character, ibid. c, d. Dethroning and reſtauration, ibid. & ſeq. & (F).

Chilperic made magiſter militiæ, 581, e. His conqueſts in Gaul, 583, & ſeq. Extract, 584, b. Death, ibid. c.

Chinalap Shellif, river in Numidia, 116, b.

Chindaſuinthus, Chintila, kings of the Viſigoths, 492, e.

Chloderic's parricide, 578, b, c. Puniſhment, ib. d.

Chlotildis's character, &c. 567, c, d. Married to Clovis, ibid. & ſeq. Strives to convert him, 568, e. 570, b. Her retirement and death, 580, e, f. Extract, 584, d. Revenge on Sigiſmond, 586, b—e.

Chnodomarius's defeat and death, 591, d—f.

Chreſtus enters Sermatia, 608, a.

Chryſaphus hires Edecon to murder Attila, 470, a. Forgiven, ibid. c.

Chuni, who, and where, 458, d.

Cicero's partial account of the Gauliſh religion, 347, b. (A).

Cimbrian women, their ſignal bravery, 375, b, [436], (F).

Cimbrians, their origin, names, &c. 490, e, f. Succeſs againſt the Romans, 486, & ſeq. Antiquity, [405], e, & ſeq. Extent, [406], a. Blended with the Saxons, ibid. b. Invade Italy, 435, e, & ſeq. Defeated, 436, a, b, (E), (F).

Cimbrica Cherſoneſus deſcribed, 486, paſſ. When and by whom inhabited, 487, a.

Cinetii, who, and where ſited, 175, b.

Cinype, the city of, 175, a. —— Diſtrict, ibid. b. —— River, 176, e.

Circenſian games, why exhibited by Totila, 673, d.

Cirta deſcribed, 108, d, & ſeq. When and by whom built, 109, c. Surrendered to Jugurtha, 129, d, e.

Ciſſa, ſecond king of the South-Saxons, 449, c.

Civiſmaro, the Gaul, ſlain in Spain, 49, b.

Claſſis razed by the Lombards, 703, a.

Claſſus, king of the Lombards, 617, a.

Claſtidium betrayed to Hannibal, 18, f.

Claudebald, the ſuppoſed elder brother of Meroüee, 562, d. Deprived of the crown by him, ibid.

Claudius's edict againſt the druids, &c. 348, b, (C). Expedition againſt Britain, 428, b, c. Succeſs there, 429, b, c. Honours decreed to him, ibid. b——d, (H). Succeſs againſt the Goths, 496, & ſeq. His colony and temple in Eſſex deſtroyed, 459, f. —— the conſul defeats Hannibal, 65, e, & ſeq. And Aſdrubal, 66, f, & ſeq. His ſignal bravery againſt him, 67, c, d. Throws his head into Hannibal's camp, ibid. f, & ſeq.

Clemantia. Kelmitz, a city of the Quadi, 602, d.

Cleodomir's baptiſm and recovery, 570, b.

Clephis, choſen king of the Lombards, 622, b. His cruelty and death ibid.

Clergy, Britiſh, their horrid degeneracy, 539, e, f. 432, b, c.

Clodio, king of the Franks, 550, c. Settles afreſh in Gaul, ibid. d. His character and reign, 559, f, & ſeq. Founds the French monarchy, 560, a. Why ſurnamed Long-hair, ibid. b. His conqueſts ibid. & ſeq. Death 562, b.

Clodioh's ſons fall out about the ſucceſſion, 473, c.

Clodomir's ſucceſs againſt Sigiſmund, 586, paſſ. Defeated and killed, 587, a, b.

Clodovecus. See Clovis, 550, & ſeq.

Clotildis. See Chlotildis, 568, & ſeq.

Clovis, king of the Franks, fixes his ſeat at Paris, 550, e, f. His birth, 566, b. Dominions and conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. Marries Chlotildis, 567, & ſeq. Defeats the Alemans, 568, e, f. His converſation, &c. 569, d—f.

d——f. When, 570, a. The firſt chriſtian king, ibid. d, e. Succeſs againſt the Burgundi, 571, & ſeq. 572, & ſeq. Falls out with Alaric, 573, & ſeq. Interview with him, 575, b, c. Defeats and kills him, ibid. & ſeq. Zeal for the catholics, 576, c. Conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. Peace with Theodoric, 577, b. c. Made conſul by Anaſtaſius. ibid. d, e. Treachery to Sigebert and his ſon, 578, b——d. Proclaimed king, ibid. e, f. Seizes on his dominions, 579, a—c. Dethrones and murders Chararic, &c. ibid. d, e. And other princes, ibid. & ſeq. His death and progeny, 580, d, e. Diviſion of his kingdom, ibid. e, f.

Cniva, a famed Bathian prince, 492, d. Succeſs and ravages in Thrace, 494, c—f.

Cænomani ſettled in Italy, 391, d,

Cohorts, Roman, their ſtations in Britain, 418, paſſ.

Coimbra taken by the Suevi, 514, c. 549, e. Plundered by them, 647, a.

Colcus, aſſiſts Scipio in Spain, 96, e, f.

Collipo, a city in Luſitania, 297, b.

Collops Magnus, its ruins, 109, e.—Parvus, 110, a.

Cologn, capital of the Ubii, [407], e. [415]. c. Taken by the Franks, 556, a. By Julian, ibid. c, d. By Clodio, 561, & ſeq. Deſtroyed by the Alemans, 591, a.

Colubraria iſland deſcribed, 308, f, & ſeq.

Comata Gallia, why ſo called, 322, a, b.

Comites Britanniarum, their office, 417. Extent of their power, 419, a, b.

Comius, made king of the Attrebates, 421, c. Impriſoned, 422, f.

Commachio given to the pope, 714, a.

Commentarienſes, gaolers, their office, 417, a.

Comneni, the family of, 289, a, (B). Butchered by Mohammed II. 293, e, & ſeq.

Comnenus, Alex. I. his reign at Trapezus, 290, & ſeq.—II. and III. 291, a, b, (E).—John his reign and imperial title, ibid. b, c.——Alex. II. his reign, ibid. d.——Baſilius I. and II. their reign, ibid. & ſeq.——Alex. III. murdered by his ſon, 292, c, e.——John II. his treaſon and reign, and death, ibid. & ſeq.—David, the laſt emperor of Trapezond, 293, b, c. Subdued and murdered by Mohammed, ibid. & ſeq.

Complutenſian polyglot, by whom publiſhed, 306, d, (H).

Complutum, Alcala de Henazes, where ſited, 306.

Compoſitus's revolt and puniſhment, 687, b, c, (T).

Compſa ſurrendered to Hannibal, 32, d.

Concolitanus taken priſoner, 392, e.

Conimbrica, a city in Luſitania, 297, a.

Conon's brave defence of Naples, 667, b. Reception from Totila, ibid. e, f.

Cononeus betrays Tarentum to Hannibal, 50, a—c.

Conovium, Conway, the old ruins of, 411, f.

Conſentia ſurrenders to Hannibal, 41, b. Revolts to the Romans, 50, d.

Conſtans, why he invaded Italy, 694, d——f. Repulſed before Benevento, 695, a——c. Defeated by Mitula, ibid. d. By Romuald, ibid. e, f. Enters Rome, ibid. & ſeq.

Conſtantina Numidia, where ſited, 108, c. Deſcribed, 109, d.

Conſtantine begins his empire in Britain, 434, d. Succeſs againſt the Goths, 499, paſſ. Againſt the Franks, 551, c, d. Severity to them, ibid. e, f, 555, b——d.
—— a ſoldier, choſen emperor in Britain, 436, e.
—— the ſon of king Arthur, 450, d. His wicked reign, 451, c. d.

Conſuls in Italy, their office, &c. 721, b, (B).

Conteſtani, who, and where ſited, 303, e.

Coral, whence ſo named, 230, (I).

Corduba, a city in Bœtica, 301, e.

Corfu waſted by Totila, 664, e.

Coritani, who, and where ſited, 410, a, b.

Cornavii, who, and where ſited, 410, c, d.

Cornicularii, in Britain, their office, 417, a.

Cornwall made part of the Weſt-Saxon kingdom, 449.

Coſſyrus taken by Servilius, 27, b.

Cotes mount, in Mauritania, 146, a. Promontory, where, 145, c. Port, 146, c.

Coviat caſtle, noble defence againſt the Goths, 513, d.

Counts in Italy, their origin, &c. 720, f.

Couridachus invites Attila againſt the Acatziri, 465, a.

Coway ſtakes, when ſo called, 408, c.

Craſſus's ſucceſs in Gaul, 399, a, &c.

Cratiſmandua's treachery to Caractacus, 430, c. Dethroned, ibid. d.

Crecanford, the battle of, 445, b.

Creca, Attila's firſt wife, deſcribed, 467, f, & ſeq.

Criſco ravages Pontus, 608, a.

Criſpinus, Quinct. diverted from the ſiege of Locri, 64, b. Defeat and narrow eſcape, ibid. d.

Criſpus's ſucceſs againſt the Franks, 555, d, e.

Croton ſurrendered to Hannibal, 41, b.—the citadel of, abandoned to the Locri, 46, f.

Crumus's reſentment and ſucceſs againſt Nicephorus, 627, c—f. Againſt Michael, 628, a—d. Defeated and killed, ibid. e, f.

Cumberland, the coaſts of, fortified by the Romans, 412, f.

Cumæ's brave defence againſt Hannibal, 44, b. Ravaged by him, 47, d. Beſieged by the Romans, 677, e. Surrendered, 679, b. Taken by the Lombards, 701, a. Sold to the pope, ibid. b.

Cumri, Cumbri, the name of the antient Britains, 402, a.

Cunamolgi, who, and why ſo called, 184, c. Where ſeated, 201, b, (A).

Cunemundus defeated and killed by Albion, [413], ſub. not. 597, d, e.

Cunipert ſeized on the Grimoald, 693, d. Reſtored, and made collegue to his father, 694, d. Driven out by Alachis, ibid. f. Reſtored by Aldo, 698, a, b. Defeats and kills Alachis, ibid. d.—His death, ibid. f.

Cunobeline's tribute to Auguſtus, 427, d. His coin, ib. (G).

Curio outwitted and killed by Juba, 136, a, b.

Cuſh, the land of, where, 181, & ſeq. 192, a—d, (P). 205, paſſ.

Cuſhites, who, 182, paſſ. 192, c, (P). 295, paſſ. Their kingdom in Arabia, 240, a, b.

Cutha ſlain, 453, a.

Cuthwolf's ſucceſs againſt the Britains, 452, e. His death, ibid. f.

Cutyrgurian Hunns, why ſo called, 456, b. Where ſited, ibid c Fall out with the Utyrgurians, 463, e, f. Defeated by Beliſarius, 414, a. By Germanus, ibid. c, d.

Cybele worſhipped by the Gauls, 359, b, c.

Cymenſhore, the battle of, 446, c.

Cyre, the famed fountain of, 170, b, (C).

Cyrenaica deſcribed, 169, & ſeq. Its ſoil, fruits, &c. 170, & ſeq. Various nations, 171, b, & ſeq. Invaded by Thimbrio, 173, d, e. Delivered up to Ptolemy. 174, a. Bequeathed to the Romans. ibid. c. Now under the Turks. ibid. d. Its learned men, ibid. & ſeq. (F).

Cyrene, metropolis of Cyrenaica, 169, e. Deſcribed, 170, a, b. By whom built, 172, b, c. Seized by Ariſton, 173, d.

Cyrenians, their cuſtoms, &c. 170, b. Government, &c. 173, & ſeq.

Cyrila ſent into Spain, 513, d.

D

DACIA deſcribed, 610, f, & ſeq. Made a Roman province, 613, e, f. Waſted by Attila 468, e, f. Subdued by the Goths, 495, c. Yielded to Theodoric III. 522, b.

—— New, where ſited, 614, c.

Dacians, their origin, 610. Character, cuſtoms, &c. 611, a, b. Kings, ibid. b, c. Irruptions, defeats, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Conqueſts, 612, a, b. Peace with Domitian, ibid. c, d. War againſt Trajan, 613, a—d. Subdued by him, ibid. d, e. Freſh revolts and ſubmiſſions, 614, a, b. Diſperſion, ibid. c, d.

Dagalaiphus ſent againſt the Alemans, 592, e, f.

Dalmatian women, their bravery, 374, b.

Dambea river falls into the Nile, 187, b.

Damnii, who, and where ſeated, 413, f.

Danes, their origin, 487, b.

Dania, Denmark, by whom firſt peopled, 487, a, b.

Daniel, father, his notion of the Arborici confuted, 571, (H).

Danmonii, in Britain, who, and where ſited, 407.

Danube, river, deſcribed, [414], c.

Daphne, iſland in Ethiopia, 190, b.

Darat, river, abounds with crocodiles, 161, c.

INDEX.

Darodt, river, where, 145, (E). Whether the ſame with Darat, 161, f.
Darræ, a tribe of Getulians, 160, d. In Arabia Felix, 161, d.
Dava, the antient name of Dacia, 611, a.
David choſen king of the Bulgarians, and dies, 633, c.
Days of the week in England, from whom named, 442, d, e.
Debris, the famed mountain of, 166, c.
Decebalus, king, his character. 611, e, f. Succeſs againſt the Romans, 612, paſſ. 613, b, c. Submiſſion and death, ib. d, e.
Decius killed by Tacfarinas, 158, c.
—the emperor, defeated and killed, 494, c—e.
Dejotarus rewarded by Pompey, 395, (G).
Deira, the province of, by whom founded, 451, a.
Deleanus choſen king of Bulgaria, 637, c, d. Treachery to Teichomer, ibid. f, & ſeq. Requited by Aluſianus, 638, e.
Denmark kings, whence called Skioldungar, 489, e.
Demetæ, who, and where ſited, 410, e, & ſeq.
Demetrius ſent admiral againſt Totila, 667, a. Defeated and inſulted by him, ib. c, d.
Democrates's noble death at Tarentum, 62, d.
Dengiſic, Attila's ſon, ſlain, 468, a.—Wars with the Romans, 482, d, e. Slain, ib. f.
Deoram, the battle of, 452, f
Deſiderius proclaimed king of the Lombards, 715, c, d. Falls out with the pope, ibid. e. Allies with Charles of France, ibid. & ſeq. Falls out with him, 716, a. Allies with Adrian, ibid. b. Falls out with, and invades him ibid. c——e. Invaded by Charlemagne, 717, b, & ſeq. Taken, and ſent priſoner into France, 719, d. Heard no more of, ib. & ſeq.
Devil's Scutt, a Gauliſh altar, deſcribed, 336, c.
Dhu-Jadan, king of Yaman, bigoted to judaiſm, 269, d, e.
Dhu'l Adhaar, why ſurnamed king of terrors, 268, b.
Dhu'l Karnaim, ſixteenth king of Yaman, 268, a.
Dhu Nowas, a jewiſh perſecutor of the chriſtians, and other recuſants, 285, c, d, (E). Dethroned by Eleſbaan, ibid.
Diana, her temple, and ſtrange high-prieſt, near Rome, 372, (G).
Diblatbaim, a city in Petrea. 226, b.
Didius, Au. ſucceſs againſt the Brigantes, 430, d.
Didymi mount, in Yaman, 235, f.
Die yielded to the Burgundi, 583, d.
Dimetia, whence ſo called, 411, d.
Dioclesian's ſucceſs againſt the Goths exaggerated, 498, d, e.
Diogenes's ſtout defence of Rome, 672, e, f. Of Circumcellæ, 673, e.
—the Carthaginian, defeated, 103, c. d.
Dionyſius ſent to treat with the Hunns, 464, b, c.
Diſparg caſtle, where ſited, 550, d.
Divitiacus's noble reſiſtance againſt the Romans, 369, b. Gets footing into Britian, 421, (B).
Diurmount,, where 145, (D).
Dobuni, in Britain, where ſited, 409, a, b. At war with their neighbours, ibid. c.
Dolabella's ſucceſs againſt Tacfarinas, 159, a.
Dolichenius, Apollo why ſo called, 356, d.
Droctuf's treachery and promotion, 681, c. And narrow eſcape, ib. e.
Drogo heads the Bulgarians into Mœſia, 623, f.
Druids, Gauliſh, whence they had their religion, 328, d, e. 361, a, b, (E). Corrupt it, 330, paſſ. Veneration, for oaks, 331, & ſeq. And the Miſleto, of it, 332, paſſ. & note. Governed by a grand druid, 333, b. Preſerve their religion in ſet ſongs, 334, a, b. Offer up human victims, ibid. c——e. Officiate in white garments, 335, c, (K). Threatened into Roman polytheiſm, 336, & ſeq. 341, e, & ſeq. Their overgrown power in Gaul, 348, b, (B). 361, c, d. How long it laſted, 349, a. 365, d, (M). Suppreſſed by the Romans, 348, & ſeq. 350, a, b. Take the name of Senani, ib. c. Whether they had oracles, 356, b, c. Their antiquity, doctrines &c. 360, & ſeq. Preſide at councils, elections, &c. 361, c, d. Hold celibacy, ib. e. Their three grand tenets, ib. & ſeq. Skill in phyſic, aſtronomy,&c. 362, paſſ. & notes. Held a general diſſolution by fire, 363, c, &c. Contempt for writing, 381, a, b, (Q). (S). Did not hold a tranſmigration, 390, c. (E).
Druids in Germany, their office, power, &c. [417], a, b. [422], b, c. Dreſs, ib d.—Arch or grand druid in Britain, 361, b. How choſen, ib. d.
Druideſſes believed to have had a prophetic ſpirit, 363, d. Three orders of them, 364, a, b. Their inhuman rites, &c. ibid d, & (I).
Druſus's ſucceſs in Gaul, 401, & ſeq.
Dubris portus, Dover, 408, f,
Ducas, John. See Vataces, 287, c, d.
Duels, the dernier reſort in Gaul, 371, paſſ. Reflections on that cuſtom, ibid. & ſeq. & (H). Brought thither by the Burgundi, 581, f. Laws made to enforce them, ib. & ſeq.
Dukes, in Italy, their riſe, 679, e, & ſeq. Their power, cropt by Autharis, 681, f. Privileges and ſucceſſion ſuppreſſed, 684, c. Their boundaries, 687, (S).
Duma, a city in Petrea, 226, b.
Dunaan's horrid perſecution of the chriſtians, 219, d.
Duncala, metropolis of the Nubians, 185, c.
Duras reſigns his crown to Decebalus, 611, e.
——city taken by Theodoric III. 521, d.
Durdus mount, where ſited, 115, e. 145, (D).
Durius river in Luſitania, 299, a.
Durnium, Dorceſter, 407, e.
Duro-Cornovinum, where ſituate, 409, a.
Durotriges in Britain, who, and where, 407, e.
Duus, and other rivers in Tangitania unknown, 145, a.
Dux Britanniarum, his office, 417, c—e.
Dwarfs, a region of, in Libya, 178, a, (H).
Dyrrachium taken by the Romans, 634, e. By Deleanus, 638, b.
Dyſæ, inferior deities of the Saxons, their office, 442, e. & ſeq.
Dyſpargum, where ſited, 549, b.

E

EASTER, whence ſo called, 442, c.
Ebora, a city in Luſitania, 298, b.
Eboracum, York, metropolis of the Brigantes, 412, b. Its court, &c. ibid. c, d. Whence ſtyled Legio Sexta, 419, b.
Eburodunum, Eburum, } cities of the Quadi, 602, d.
Ebuſa, the Saxon, comes to the Orcades, 443, e. Settles in Northumberland, 444, a.
Ebuſus, the iſland and city, 308, e. 309, a, b. Plundered by Scipio, 27, c.
Edecon ſent embaſſador to Theodoſius, 469, e, f. Diſcovers his treachery to Attila, 470, b.
Edeſco, Edeco, goes over to Scipio, 62, e, f.
Edinburgh's frith fortified, 414, a.
Edobic, general of the Franks, 558.
Egg formed by ſerpents, the mythology of, explained, 362, & ſeq. & notes
Egiga, king of the Viſigoths, 492, e.
Egypt, how become habitable, 194, b, c.
Elb, Albus, river in Germany, [415], a.
Eldol's inveteracy againſt Hengiſt, 446, e. & ſeq. & (A).
Elephant, the war of, 285, c. The æra of, when begun, 285, d.
Elephantine Peluſia, where, 213, a, (E). Its diſtance from Axuma, 217, c.
Elephantophagi, where, and why ſo called, 184, c.
Elephants, how ferried over the Rhoſne, 11, d, e. Remarks on that docile animal, ibid. & ſeq. ſub (F). How they copulate. 13, ſub not.
Eleric over-reaches Copronymus, 626, e. Driven out by his ſubjects, ib. f. Turns chriſtian, ib. & ſeq.
Eleſbaan ſubdues the Homerites. 219, c. Turns chriſtian, ib. & ſeq. His character, ib. (N).
Eleſbaan's converſion, 285, c, (E).
Eleuthera's walls broken with vinegar, 16, a.
Eleutherus ſent to quell the rebellious dukes, 687. b, c, (T). Takes the title of king, 688, b, c. Killed, ibid. d
Elfs ſacrificed to by the Saxons, 442, e.
Ella, and his three ſons, defeat the Britains, 446, c, d. Defeated, ibid. e. Inlarges his kingdom, 447, b, c. His death, 449, c.
——the ſon of Attila, made king of the Acatziri. 465, a, b.

INDEX.

Ellac ſucceeds Attila, 481, d. Oppoſed by his brothers, ib. e. Defeated and killed, ib. f.
Elaſa, a city in Petrea, 227, d.
Emerita Auguſta, a city in Luſitania, 298, a.
Emirs, Arab, their office, 244, d, e.
Emperors, their territories in Italy, 721, b.
Ems, Amiſia, river in Germany, [415], b.
England. See Britain, 400, & ſeq. Whence called Anglia and Saxony, 441, d, e.
Engliſh take ſome provinces from the Welſh, 454, a.
Engouleſme taken by the Franks, 576, d.
Engouſah, a city in Gætulia, 164, a.
Eoſter worſhipped by the Saxons, 442, e.
Epanterii, who, 73, a.
Epheſus, the temple of, plundered by the Goths, 495, b.
Epiphanius, biſhop, ſucceſsful embaſſy to Gundebald, 642, e. To Godogiſcles, ibid. & ſeq.
Eraric choſen king of the Oſtrogoths, 493, a. 664, f. Murdered, 665, b.
Eratoſthenes's writings and character, 175, ſub. not.
Erchenwin founds a fourth Saxon kingdom, 450, d.
Ermenegild, king of the Goths in Gaul, 492, e.
Ermeric invaded by the Hunns, 459, a. Kills himſelf, ibid. b.
—king of the Suevi in Spain, 530, f. Driven out by by the Vandals, 531, e. Wars with the Galicians, 543, d. Reſigns to his ſon Rechila, ib. e. His death, 531, a.
Erminage ſtreet, deſcribed, 420, a.
Ernac, and his Hunns, ſettle in Scythia Minor, 482, b.
Ernigius, king of the Viſigoths, 492, e.
Erythia iſland, where, 146, e, (E). 307, e, & ſeq.
Erythræus, antient king of Spain, [322], b.
Esk made co-partner with Hengiſt, 445, c. Succeeds him, 446, e. His death, 449, c.
Eſſex ſeized on by the Saxons, 445, d.
Eſus, Heſus, the ſupreme deity of the Gauls, 328, a, b. Whence that name, 329, (E). How worſhipped, 330, paſſ. & ſeq. When exchanged for Jupiter, 333, a. Worſhipped by the Saxons, 442, d.
Eteſian winds, not the cauſe of the Nile's overflow, 187, e.
Ethelbert raiſes civil wars among the Saxons, 451, b.
Ethiopia, how divided, 179, d.
—Propria, its extent, &c. 180, a. Names, ibid. b, c. (A). Why called Cuſh in ſcripture, 181, & ſeq. & (B), (C). Its various nations, 183, & ſeq. Cities, 184, & ſeq. Mountains, 185, d. Hot clime, 186, b. Seaſons, ibid. c, d. Soil, ibid. & ſeq. Beer, ibid. f, (D). Lakes, 190, a. Commerce, ib. b. Gold and other minerals, 191, b, c. Divided into forty-five kingdoms, 193, c. Its antiquity, kings, &c. 205, & ſeq. Damaged by a flood, 211. Tributary to Cambyſes, 213, c, d, (F). Penetrated by Ptolemy, 214, b, (G). By Auguſtus, 215, & ſeq. By Probus, 216, & ſeq. Its hiſtory to the Zagæan uſurpation, 221, paſſ.
Ethiopians, how ſited and divided, 179, d. Why black, 182, & ſeq. paſſ. From whom deſcended, 192, d. Whence, and where ſettled, ibid. & ſeq. Their antiquity, 193, b, c. Kingly government, ibid. & ſeq. Laws, 194, & ſeq. Kings, how choſen, 193, d, e. 195, a. Religion and deities, ib. & ſeq. Worſhip the ſun, 196, d. Their language, 197, b, c. Its affinity to the Hebrew, &c. ibid. c, d, and (Y). Changes, 198, a—c. Hieroglyphic letters, ibid. (Z), and 199, a, b. Cuſtoms, ibid. & ſeq. Weapons, 201, e, (C). Circumciſion, ibid. and (D). Way of fighting, 202, a, b. Way of preſerving the dead, ibid. & ſeq. Food, 203. Deify their kings, ibid. c, (H). Learning, ib. d, & ſeq. Character, 204, a, b, (I), (K). Women, ibid. c, d. Hiſtory, 205, & ſeq. Kings, whether deſcended from Solomon, 206, & ſeq. Conqueſt of Egypt, 210, d, e. Hiſtory to the expulſion of the ſhepherds, ibid. & ſeq. To the death of Sethon, 211, & ſeq. To Xerxes, 212, & ſeq. Serve under him, 213, d, (F). When converted, 216, c, d. How, and by whom, 217, & ſeq. Reject the Arian hereſy, 218, d, e, (K).
Etruria waſted by Hannibal, 21, b.
Etruſcan, the antient Language of Græcia magna, 9, (D).
Etruſcans, their treachery to the Romans, 64, c.
Eudocia, Comnena, her family and excellent character, 292, c, d.——Married to Hunneric, 334, e, f.
Eudoxia, forced to marry Maximus, 534, d. Carried priſoner by Genſeric, ibid. e. Sent back to Leo, ib. f.
Eugenius's intrigue with Honoria, puniſhed, 471, d, e.
Eulyſian region, the antient ſeat of the Hunns, 456, b.
Eumenes over-reached by Hannibal, 91, d, e.
Eupliuntas, the famed tower of, 175, a.
Euric, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, 492, a, 514, c. Ravages Luſitania, ibid. d, e. His conqueſts in Spain, ib. & ſeq. In Gaul, 515, paſſ. Vain attempt on Auvergne, ib. & ſeq. Enmity to the orthodox, ib. f, & ſeq. His territories, 516, c. Death, ibid. d. Character, ib. & ſeq.
Europe, whence that word, 178, e.
Eutaric's marriage and promotion, 647, b. Reception at Rome, ibid. c. Death, ibid. d.
Eutropius, undermined by Gainas, 506, e, & ſeq. Put to death, 507, a.
Eutychius, ſent to murder the pope, 705, c, d. Allies with Luitprand, 707, a. Driven out of Ravenna, 710, d.
Euvates, among the Gauls, their office, 365, b.
Executioners, not allowed among ſome Ethiopians, 194, d. Why in eſteem among the Germans, [422], b, c.
Exeter, Iſca Danmoniorum, 407, e.
Exhilaratus attempts the pope's life, 705, a. Aſſaſſinated, ibid.
Exiliſſa, where ſited, 142, d. Whether the ſame with Ceuta, ibid. e.
Ezion Geber, a famed port in Petrea, 227, c.

F

FABIUS, Q. declares war againſt Carthage, 8, d. Amuſes and tires Hannibal, 23, c. Supported by the ſenate, &c. 25, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt Hannibal, 62, b, c, Falæ and Falaricæ, weapon, deſcribed, 3, (A). Whence ſo called, ibid.
Falernum waſted by Hannibal, 23, e.
Fali, the bay of, where, 235, e.
Faſtida, king of the Gepidæ, invades the Goths, 595, f. Defeated, 596, b.
Feletheus killed by Odoacer, 616, f.
Feroaldus, firſt duke of Umbria, 620, d.
Feronia, the temple of, plundered by Hannibal, 58, a.
Ferrara beautified by Agilulf, 616, c, d.
Feſulæ, taken by the Romans, 661, a. 662, c.
Fez, the kingdom of, its extent, 193, c.
Fiefs, their origin, 681, f. Regulated by the Lombards, 682, b, c.
Filimer the great, ſettles near Palus Mæotis, 487, d. Reigns there, 492, d.
Fimbultyr, the ſuppoſed inventor of the Runic letters, 490, a.
Flaccus, Valerius, reſcued from the Quadi, 603, c.
Flamens, not a Gauliſh but Roman order, 365, c.
Flaminius's character, and fatal raſhneſs, 21, b—e. Defeated and ſlain, 22, b.
———T. Quin. ſent to undermine Hannibal, 91, e.
Flavius Dec. ſaves the Roman army, 62, a.
Flenſburgh, metropolis of the Angles, 441, b.
Florianus's ſucceſs againſt the Goths, 498, c.
Folkſtone, the battle of, 444, e, f.
Fonteius, Agrip. killed by the Iazyges, 605, d.
Forum Julii. See Friuli, 619, f, & ſeq.
Fortunatæ, beatæ inſulæ, where ſited, 147, a. Deſcribed, ibid. (H). Their number, 148, paſſ.
Foſs way, Roman, in Britain, deſcribed, 419, f, & ſeq.
Fountains worſhipped by the Gauls, 350, b, (F). 351, (G).
Franci ludi, why and by whom inſtituted, 554, f.
Franks, their origin and firſt ſettlements, 441, a. 547, f. Defeated by Attila, 443, c. Furious onſet againſt the Gepidæ, 476, a. When converted, 500, (A). Whence their name, 547, f. Their various tribes, 548, a. Why called Sicambrians, ibid. Some notions about them confuted, ibid. & ſeq. Their extent, 549, a, b. Motley character, ibid. e, f. Government, kings, &c. 550, b, c. Driven out of Gaul, ibid. c. Ravage it, 551, e. Suppreſſed by Aurelian, ibid. & ſeq. By Gallienus, 552, a, b. Serve under the Romans, ibid. c. Dreadful ravages in Italy, ibid. d. In Spain, ibid. & ſeq. Driven out of Gaul, 553, b, c. Settled near the Euxine, ibid. c. Ravage Sicily, Afric, Afric, &c. ibid. Treachery to Proculus, ibid. e. Defeated by Carausius, ibid. f. Settled in lower Germany, 554, b. Transplanted into Gaul, ibid. c. Defeated by Constantine, ibid. e. Their severe punishment, ibid. & seq. Peace with Constans, 555, e. f. New ravages, 556, a, b. Suppressed by Julian, ibid. c—e. By Theodosius, ibid. & seq. Cut off by Nannius, 557, d. Irruption into Gaul, 558, d—f. Their dress, 560, a, b. When settled in France, ibid. & seq. & note. Enmity to churches, 562, a, b. Conversion, 569, e, f. Strengthened by the Armorici, 570, f, & seq. Treaty with the Ostrogoths, 572, c, d. Inlarge their dominions, 576, & seq. Defeated by Theodoric, 577, b. Conquest of Burgundy, ibid. & seq. Horrid superstitions after their conversion, 634, d, (M). Treachery to the Goths and Romans, 655, d, e. 661, b—d. Great power in Gaul, 672, b—d. Conquests in Italy, ibid. e, & seq. Refuse to help the Ostrogoths, 677, b. Enter Italy, 678, f. Destroyed there, 679, e, f. Afresh, 681, a, b. By Autharis, 682, & seq. Dismal return, 683, c.

Frarton set up king of the Suevi, against Maldras, 545, d.

Frumarius made king of the Bucinobantes, 594, a.

Frumen Septem, Heptadelphi mount, where, 146, a.

Frederic, defeated, and killed by Egidius, 514, a.

Fretanleagh, the battle of, 435, a.

Friderie's treachery to Theodoric, 524, b.

Friga, Frea, [420], pass. and notes. Worshipped by the Saxons, 442, pass.

Frisii, where seated, [407], c. A tribe of the Franks, 548, a.

Fritigil, queen, her conversion, 602, a—f. Submission to the empire, ibid. b.

Friuli, Forum Julii, taken by the Lombards, 619, e. Erected into a dukedom, ibid. & seq. Ravaged by the Hunns, 686, d.——The dukes of, 701, b. The end of them, 724, b.

Frontinus Jul. success in Britain, 421, a.

Frumarius shares the Sueviſh kingdom with Remismund, 546, a. His ravages and death, ibid. b, c.

Frumentius's promotion in Ethiopia, 217, e, f. Converts the country, 218, a——d.

Fulard sent to confirm Pepin's donation, 714, b, c.

Fulofaudes, slain in Britain, 435, c.

Fulvius surprises Hanno's provisions, 53, e, f. Repulsed before Capua, 55, a, b. Blockades it, ibid. d. Apprises the senate of Hannibal's approach, 57, e.

——the prætor, defeated by Mago, 55, e, f. By Hannibal, 61, a, b.

Furtius driven out by the Quadi, 602, f.

Fuscus defeated by the Daci, 612, b, & f.

G.

GABINIUS, king of the Quadi, murdered, 603, f.

Gabra-menses keddus, an Ethiopian saint, 219, b, (L).

Gabriel, king of the Bulgarians, murdered, 635, e, & seq.

Gades, where situate, 301, b, (G). The city and temple of, 320, b, (D).——The isle of, 307, b. Described, ibid. c. Stripped by Mago, 72, e. Surrendered to Scipio, ibid, f.

Gæsatæ, who and where, 392, c. Defeated and cut off, ibid. & seq.

Gætulia, its boundaries, 159, & seq. Whence so called, ibid. & seq.——Part of, given to Juba, 163, a, b.—Seized on by Genseric, 533, f.

Gætulians, 159, & seq. Their cities and territories, 160, d. Origin, ibid. Government, &c. 162, a, b, (B), (C). Religion, ibid, d, e. Defeated before Casilinum, ibid. & seq. and 73, a. Serve under Jugurtha, 163, a. Go over to Cæsar, ibid. b. Subdued by Cossus, ibid. c.

Gainas stirs up the Goths in the East, 506, d, e. Treachery to Arcadius, ibid. & seq. Defeat and death, 507, b.

Gaiobomar, king of the Quadi, put to death, 603, b.

Gaisus, king of the Franks, 550, e. When, 551, a. His sad end, 554, e.

Galapa, where sited, 143, a.

Galatia Gallogræcia, where sited, 322, b, c. Given to the Gauls, ibid. and 394, d.

Galatians, whence so called, 322, b. Defeated by the Jews, ibid. c.

Gabus's success against Asdrubal, 38, f, & seq.

Galicia maintains its liberty against the Suevi, 531.

Gallagum, the Roman cause-way of, 412, e.

Galleci, where situate, 303, f. Why so called, 304, (A). & in fin. (B).

Galli, Cybele's Priests, who, and why so called, 359, b, (B), (C).

Gallia. See Gaul, 321, & seq.

Gallio's speech to the Britains, 437, e. Departs from them, 438, b.

Gallus buys off the Goths, 394, d, e.—Ætius's expedition into Arabia, 281, f, & seq.

Gandulf put to death by Agilulph, 685, c.

Garama, capital of the Garamantes, 165, c.

Garamantes, who, and where sited, 165, b, (B), (C). Their rudeness, ibid. c. Towns, trade, &c. ibid, & seq. Hunting, 166, b. Reduction, ibid. d, & seq.

Gargoras, antient king of Spain, [322], c.

Garibald's treachery to Gundebert, 692, c, d.—The son of Grimoald, dethroned, 697, c, d.

Garienis ostium, where, 410, a.

Gaseric usurps the Gothish throne, 645, a. His defeat and death, ibid. c, d.

Gastaldi in Italy, their dignity, 624, e, f.

Gaudentius carried prisoner by Genseric, 534, f.

Gavius's bravery and reward, 429, (H).

Gaul described, 321, & seq. Its extent, 322, & seq. Lessened, 325, b, c. Its soil, climate, &c. ibid. & seq. How become warmer, 326, a, b. How divided by the Romans, 401, & seq. and notes. Under Theodoric, 648, (N).

Gaulish church, its dismal state under the Visigoths, 517, pass.

——women, their bravery, 373, d. Signal instances of it, 374, f, & seq.

——slaves defeated, 397, c.

——prisoners dismissed by Hannibal, 20, e, f.

——christians persecuted, 403, b, c.

Gauls, their origin, 321, a. (note, by a mistake paged 241). Various names, &c. ibid. b. Settle in Spain [323], c, d, (A). Spread through Europe, 322, d, f, & seq. Their first coming thither, 324, & seq. Plain way of living, 325, & seq. & notes. Religion, 326, & seq. Misrepresented by antient authors, 327, sub notes (A), (B), (C). Worship one Deity, 328, a, b. Their ceremonies, 329, & seq. Groves, 331, & seq. Described, 332, b—d. Worship like that of the antient Hebrews, 333, b—f. Bloody sacrifices, 334, c—e. Funerals, ibid. f, & seq. Auguries and victims, 335, a—c. Superstitious cruelties, ibid. & seq. Altars described, 336, a—c. Aversion to temples, ibid. & seq. & (M). 346, e. Consecrated treasures, 336, & seq. Polytheism, how, and when introduced, 346, & seq. Temples, when first built, 347, a, b. Human sacrifices forbid by the Romans, 348, c. 350, b. Wretched superstitions, ibid. c, & (F). 351, pass. & (G). Temples described, ibid. & seq. Deities, 353, & seq. Inhuman rites, 354, pass. Ridiculous ones, 355, b, (Q). Goddesses, 359, & seq. Belief of a future state, 361, e, & seq. Mixed government, laws, &c. 366, pass. Grand council, 367, a, &c. & (A). Civil discords, ibid. b, c. Kings, how chosen, 368, a, b, (D). Their power, ibid. c, (E). Caressed by the Romans, 369, a—c. Their laws, ibid. d—f. Yearly councils, ibid. & seq. Excessive fondness for duels, 371, & seq. Their valour dreaded by the Romans, 374, a, b. Character drawn by Justin, ibid. c.—e. Martial discipline, 375, e, & seq. Superstition, 376, c, d. Way of training up their youth, ibid. a, (K). Weapons, 377, a, c—. 393, (C). See also p. 80, b, c. Language, the old Celtic, 377, c, d, & seq. Proofs of it, 378, a, b, & (L). Their speaking Greek, exploded 379, b, c. Universities, ibid. d, & (O). 383, c. Swoln style, 380, pass. Adopt the Greek characters, ibid. & seq. Contempt of writing, 381, a, b, (Q). Poetry, and fondness for it, 382, a, &c. & (T). Arts, eloquence, &c. 383, a—c. Commerce, ibid. & seq. Forbid the use of gold and silver, 384, a, b, (X). Hunting, &c. ibid. & seq. & (Y). Feast of Diana, 385, b. Fondness for banquets, ibid. & seq. & (Z). Described, 386, a—c, (A). Contempt of agriculture, ibid, & seq. Of trades, 387, a. Drunkenness, ibid. & seq. & (B). Idleness, 388, b, c. Ferocity, ibid. c, d. Hospitality, ibid. e, & seq. Fidelity, 389, c, & seq. Frugality, 390, a. Marriages, funerals &c. ibid. c, (E). Earliest expeditions into Italy, 391, & seq. seq. Cut off by Camillus, 392, b——d. Second expedition, expedition, ibid. & ſeq. Fatal one into Greece, 393, & ſeq. Why they demoliſhed temples, ibid. (E). Some ſettled in Galatia, ibid. & ſeq. Overſpread Aſia, 395, a b, (F). Subdued in part by Marcius, ibid. & ſeq. Signal victory over the Romans, 396, b, c. Defeated by them, ibid. d, e. Subdued by Cæſar, 398, & ſeq. How treated by the Romans, 400, e, & ſeq. Quite conquered by Aurelian, 403, d, e. Gained by Hannibal, 9, c. Obſtruct his croſſing the Rhoſne, 11, & ſeq. And the Alps, 15, a, b. Liſt in his ſervice, 16. d. Ally with, and aſſiſt him, 18, b, c. Reinforce Mago, 73, b, 74, b.

Gauſeric miraculouſly repulſed before Bazas, 464, a.

Gebra-meſkel's reign in Ethiopia, 221, a——c, (P).

Gelimer, laſt king of the Vandals in Afric, 527, d.

Gelon in Hannibal's intereſt, 41.

Gelonians, who, and whence, 604, e, & ſeq.

Gemella, Colonia, why ſo called, 300, b.

Genobald, antient king of the Franks, 550. b——e. Submits to Diocleſian. ibid. f.

Genſeric's cruelty to his daughter-in-law, 472, (F). Advantagious peace with Theodoſius, 466, b, c. Carries the Vandals into Africa, 527.

——II. ſucceeds Gonderic in Spain, 531. f. His character, ibid. & ſeq. Treaty with Bonifacius, 532, b. Conqueſt of Afric, ibid. & ſeq. Repulſed before Sicily, 533, e. Peace with Rome, ibid. d, e. Breaks it, ibid. f. Ravages Sicily, 534, b, c. Invited into Italy, ibid. e. Plunders Rome, ibid. f. Defeated by Ricimer, 535, b, c. Ravages, ibid. c. d. Deſpiſes the emperor's embaſſy, ibid. d, e. Surpriſes Majorianus's fleet, 536, c. Peace with him, and breaks it, ibid. d. Ravages Italy, &c. ibid. f. Peloponneſus and Greece, 537, b. Haughty anſwer to Leo, 538, c, f. New conqueſts and ravages, 539, c, d. Treaty with Rome, ibid. e. Death, 540, a.

Gentiſci ſubdued by Scaurus, 395, e.

Geofrey of Monmouth, his character, 420, (A).

Gepidæ, who, and where, [411], 494, b. 495, d, e. Submit to Attila, 466, b, d. Defeat his ſon, and regain their liberty, 481, f. Obtain a penſion from Rome, 482. Defeated by the Goths, 494, b. By Theodoric, 523, e. Settle in Thrace, 529, a. Defeated by Probus, ibid. b. Their other ſettlements, 595, e. Defeat the Burgundi, 596, b. War with the Hunns, ibid, c. Settled in Dacia, ibid. d. Defeated by Juſtinian, ibid. e. Defeated by the Lombards, ibid. & ſeq. Again, and again, 597, a——d. Subdued by them, ibid. e. The end of their reign, ibid. f. Signal hoſpitality, 389, (D). The ſame with Longobards, 615, & ſeq. Why called Gepidæ, 516, a. b.

German women, their ſignal bravery, 375, c, d.

——old, ſuppoſed propheteſſe, [417], a, (B).

——married, their conjugal fidelity and diligence, [430], b—d. (W). Hard laws, &c. Againſt them, ibid. & [432], b, c.

——poetry, its roughneſs, 380. (P), [427], a, b.

Germania, how divided, [407], (C). [408), a. [413], a, b. Its extent, [408], & ſeq. Its ſoil and produce, [41], paſſ. Foreſt, rivers, and antient towns, ibid. & ſeq.

——Prima. invaded by the Vandals, 529, d.

Germans, their extract, [324], b, (F). [404], paſſ. When firſt known to the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Their antient names and etymons, [405], c—e, (A). Several nations and territories. [407], & ſeq. Religion, [416], & ſeq. Cruel rites, [417], b, c. Had no temples, [418], a. Their deities, ibid. & ſeq. Theology excelled that of the Greeks, &c. [421], a, b. Yet mixed with horrid ſuperſtitions, ibid. & ſeq. & (I). Prieſts, [422], paſſ. Laws and government, ibid e, f. & ſeq. Councils, [423], a, (K). Kings, &c, ibid. b——d. Military diſcipline, ibid. e, & ſeq. & (L), (M). Cavalry, [424], d, & ſeq. & (N). Weapons, and their fondneſs for them, 425, paſſ. & (O). Valour, [426], b, c. Puniſhments, ibid. c, d. Arts and ſciences, ibid. & ſeq. & notes. Dreſs, [427], c, d, d, (R). Writing, [428], a, (T). Robuſtneſs, ibid. & ſeq. Fidelity, [429], a, b. Hoſpitality, ibid b, c. Money, ibid. d. Marriages, ibid. Promiſcuous commerce confuted, ibid. & ſeq Funerals, [430], & ſeq. Belief of a future ſtate, [431], paſſ. & notes. Unnatural cuſtoms, [432], a—c. Fondneſs for ſtrong liquors, ibid. c, d. Their antient hiſtory very dark, [433]. paſſ. Why invaded by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. By the Gauls, [434], & ſeq. Invade them, [435], c, d. Succeſs in Italy, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Marius, [436], a, b. Invited by the Sequani, ibid. c, d. Defeated, [437], paſſ. & notes. Maſſacred by Germanicus, [440], a, b, (Q). Other wars with the Romans, ibid. ad fin. cap. Subdued by Attila, [466], c.

Germanus ſent general into Italy, 674, a. Dies, ibid. b.

Gerontius betrays the ſtreights of Thermopylæ, 505, b. Allies with the Vandals, 530, c.

Gerræi, who, and where ſited, 321, b.

Gerunium taken by Hannibal, 25, b. (K).

Geryon, a fabulous king of Spain, 319, c, (C). His three ſons. ibid. & ſeq.

Geſaleich, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, 492, e.

Geſhem the famed mountain of, deſcribed, 185, f. A priſon for the Abaſſine princes, 186, a.

Geſſoriacum, Bolonia, the triumphal arch of, 429, b.

Geſuald's ſingular fidelity, 695, b, & d. Death, ibid. c.

Geſulians, their paſtoral life, 161, f.

Geta triumphs over the Britains, 428, e, f.

Getæ, Getes. See Goths, 485, e, & ſeq.

Gevaudan taken by the Viſigoths, 515, c.

Gezira, Jezeira, iſland, where, 146, e.

Ghaſſan, the kingdom of, by whom founded, 275, d. A liſt of its kings, ibid. e, & ſeq.

Ghir, river, in Gætulia, deſcribed, 164, b.

Giberic, a Bathian prince, 492, d.

Gilda. where ſited, 143, b.

Gildas's account of Britain, 420, (A).

Gindanes, who, and where ſeated, 175, b.

Girgiris mount, and its rivers, 165, c.

Giſco inſulted by Hannibal, 83, e, f. Fruitleſs embaſſy to Rome, 97, f.

Giſulphus, firſt duke of Friuli, 619, e.—Of Benevento, his reign and death, 700, c.

Gjudda, a port near Mecca, 238, a.

Glotæ Æſtuarium, fortified by Agricola, 414, a. Ruins of the Roman wall, 416, a.

Glouceſter taken by the Saxons, 452, f.

Godegiſelus leads his Vandals into Gaul, 527, d. Allies with Clovis, 571, b. Put to death by him, 572, b.

Godemar, king of the Burgundi, 586, e. Hires the Oſtrogoths, ibid. f. Succeſs againſt the Franks, 587, a. Peace with them, ibid. c, d. Driven out of his kingdom, ibid. d, f. Taken priſoner, 588, a, b.

Gogmagog, a fabulous prince of the Britiſh giants, 421, ſub not.

Goiam, the mountains of, 185, d. Famed rocks, 186, a.

Gold deſpiſed by the Ethiopians, 202, c. By the Gauls, 384, b, (X). By the antient Germans, [429], d.—The mines and traffick of, in Ethiopia, 215, (H).—the ſand of, in Luſitania, 299, b.

Gonderic, king of the Vandals in Spain, 530, f. Defeats the Suevi, 531, d. Defeated by Aſterius, ibid. e. His miſerable end, ibid. e, f.

Gondicarius defeated by the Hunns, 463, c.

Gontiana, where ſited, 143, d.

Gontran invaded by the Lombards, 680. c.

Gordas, king of the Hunns, turns chriſtian, 483, b. Murdered by his ſubjects, ibid c.

Gortyni outwitted by Hannibal, 91, b.

Gothiſh women fight in mens apparal, 498, b.

Goths ſeize Gothland from the Cimbri, 441, c. Defeated at Chalons, 476, & ſeq. The vaſt number of the ſlain, 477, c. Their hiſtory, 486, & ſeq. Origin, 486, b, 491, paſſ. The ſame with the Cimbri, ibid. e, & 487, & ſeq. Various ſettlements, ibid. paſſ. Countries and names, 488, a——d. Language, writings, &c. 489, paſſ. Come into Germany, 489, b. 491, paſſ. Allowed of polygamy, ibid. f, & ſeq. Why called Goths, 492, b. Their cuſtoms, kings, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Dreſs, 493, b. b. War with Caracalla, ibid. c. Ravage Mœſia, ibid. e. Driven out of Thrace, ibid. & ſeq. Freſh ravages, 494, paſſ. Repulſed by Æmilian, ibid. f. By Aurelian, 495, a. By Macrianus, ibid. b. Ravage Aſia, ibid. c, d. Repulſed by Odenatus, ibid. e, f. Invade the empire, 496, a—d. Defeated by Claudius, ibid. d. Deſtroyed by peſtilence, 497, b. Surrender to Claudius, ibid. d. Driven out of Pannonia, ibid. f, & ſeq. Out of Thrace, 498, a. Dacia, &c. ibid. b, c. Defeated by Diocleſian, ibid. d, e By Conſtantine, 499, b. Aſſiſt him againſt Licinius, ibid. c, d. An hundred thouſand of them deſtroyed, ibid. & ſeq. When and how converted, 500, a, (A). Serve under ſeveral emperors, ibid. b. c. Defeated by Valens, ibid.

ibid. e. 501, b—f. Obtain a peace, 502, a. Driven out, and ſubmit to the Hunns, ibid. d, e, & ſeq. Submit to Theodoſius, 503, paſſ. Ravage Greece, 505, paſſ. Italy, 507. e, f. Conqueſts in France, &c. See ſub Viſigoths, 509, & ſeq. & Oſtrogoths, 518, & ſeq.
Governors in Britain, their office, 417, paſſ.
Graccburis, the colony of, in Spain, 305, b.
Gracchus's ſucceſs againſt Carthage, 47, e. Sent to rebuild it, 105, e, d, & ſeq.
Graſulf ſeizes on the dutchy of Friuli, 688, e, f.
Gratian choſen emperor by the Britains, 436, d. Slain, ibid. e.—His ſucceſs againſt the Alemans, 594, c—e.
Gregory's treachery to Tato, &c. 688, d, e.
—II. pope, oppoſes Leo's edict, 702, & ſeq. Stirs up the Venetians, 703, c—f. Falls out with Leo, 704, a. Aſſiſted by Luitprand, ibid. b. Excommunicates the exarch, ibid. c, d. Conſpired againſt by Leo, 707, a—d. Submiſſion to Luitprand, 707, b—c. Embaſſy to Ch. Martel, ibid. f. & ſeq. Death, 708, b.
Greuthongi, who, 459, a. Defeated by Valens, 500, f.
Grimoald refuſed in Lombardy, 692, a. Made duke of Benevento, ibid. c. Seizes on the crown of Lombardy, 693, paſſ. Treachery to Partharit, ibid. f, & ſeq. Stratagem againſt the Franks, 694, c. Againſt the Romans, 695, & ſeq. Againſt the Hunns, 696. d, e. Corrects the Lombard laws, 697, a. His death and character, ibid. b, c.
—II. ſucceeds his father, and dies, 700, c.
Grove, Maſſilian, deſcribed by Lucan, 331, (F).
Groves in high requeſt among the patriarchs, 331, a, b. Among the Gauls, ibid. & ſeq. And Germans, [413], c, & ſeq.
Gualſtads in Italy, their office, 720, f.
Gudeok, king of the Lombards, 616, f. His death, 617, e.
Galuſſa vindicates his father before the Roman ſenate, 95, b. Inſulted at Carthage, 96, c. His ſhare of the ſucceſſion, 127, a. Death, ibid. b.
Gundamund, king of the Vandals in Afric, 527, d.
Gundebald defeated by Clovis, 571, b, c. Beſieged in Avignon, ibid. d. Succeſs againſt his brother, 572, a, b. Made magiſter militiæ, 581, e. His law in favour of duels, ibid. & ſeq. Fratricide, 584, c. Conqueſts and ravages, ibid. & ſeq. Death, 585, b.
Gundebert's treachery to his brother, 692, f, & ſeq. Killed by Grimoald, 693, c.
Gundemar, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, 492, e.
Gunderic ſettles in Galicia, 527, d.
Gundiac, king of the Burgundi, made magiſter militiæ, 581, d—e. His ſucceſs in Spain and Gaul, 583, paſſ.
Gundicarius, king of the Burgundi, 581, d. Defeated and killed, 583, b.
Guzula, where ſited, 160, b. Whether the antient Gætulia, ibid. c.
Gylvo, Gylphus, receives Woden, in Sweden, 489, e.
Gythiltis, iſland in Ethiopia, 190, b.

H

HABASHAH, why one of the names of Ethiopia, 181, (B).
Habis, antient king of Spain, [322], d.
Habrah, the famed ſpring of, in Numidia 611, d.
Hadramant, the province of, deſcribed, 231, d.
Hamſhire inhabited by the Jutes, 441, e.
Hamilcar Barca's hatred to Rome, 1, a, b. Inſpires his ſons with the ſame, 2, a, b, [325]. Ravages Olbia, &c. 61, d. Takes ſome of Scipio's ſhips, 77, f, & ſeq. Raiſes new troubles, 85, a. Killed, ibid. b. Defeated by Cethegus, 85, e.—Sannis heads the popular faction at Carthage, 96, b. Baniſhes forty ſenators, ibid. c.
Hamyar, the chief king of Yaman, 245, c. His reign and ſucceſſors, 267, d, & ſeq. The end of it, 271, e, f.
Hancetowns, whence ſo called, 549, d.
Hannibal beſieges Saguntum, 2, & ſeq. Whether he denied the Romans audience, ibid. & ſeq. Takes the place, 5, & ſeq. His motives for it, 7, & ſeq. Regulations in Spain, 8, f, & ſeq. His account left at Lacinium, 9, b, (D) Dream, 10, a, b, Speech to his army, ibid. e, f. Croſſes the Rhoſne, 11, b. Marches towards the Alps, 14, b, c. Difficulties in croſſing them, ibid. e, f, & ſeq. In his deſcent, 15, & ſeq. His army dwindled, 16, b, (G). Speech to them, 17, b, c. Defeats the Romans, ibid. f, & ſeq. Second victory, 19, & ſeq. March into Etruria, 21, a. Defeats Flaminius, 22, b. Waſtes Italy, ibid. e, & ſeq. Entrapped by his Italian guides, 23, d, & ſeq. Stratagem againſt Fabius, 24, e, f. Repulſed by him, 26, b. In great diſtreſs, 27, f, & ſeq. Speech to his army, 28, e, f. Victory at Cannæ, 30, & ſeq. His not marching to Rome juſtified, 31, f, & ſeq. Succeſs in Campania, 32, f, & ſeq. Enters Capua, 33, & ſeq, Treatment of the Roman priſoners, 34, b, c, (N). Repulſed before Naples and Nola, 35, e, & ſeq. Taken with the delights of Capua, 37, paſſ. Betrayed by the Barcan faction, ibid. f, & ſeq. Stratagem againſt the dictator, 41, d, e. Repulſed before Cumæ, 44, a, b. Bold anſwer to the Hirpini, &c. ibid. f. Repulſed before Nola, 45, a—. Raiſes new troubles in Sicily, 47, a. Repulſed before Puteoli, ibid. d. And Nola, ibid. e, f. Plunders Apulia, 48, b, c. Private treaty with the Tarentines, 51, paſſ. Enters Tarentum, 52, paſſ. Starves the citadel by ſtratagem, ibid. e, f. Freſh ſucceſs againſt the Romans, 54, & ſeq. Relieves Capua, 57, b, c. Stratagem againſt the conſuls defeated, ibid d. March to Rome, ibid. & ſeq. Ill ſucceſs, 59, a, b. Sundry engagements againſt Marcellus, 61, & ſeq. Defeats the banditti, 62, e. And the Romans, 64, b, c. Delays to to join Aſdrubal, 65, c. Defeated ſeveral times, ibid. & ſeq. Retires to Canuſium, 66, a. His behaviour on hearing of Aſdrubal's death, 68, c, d. Labours with peſtilence and famine, 73, b. Wounded by a ſcorpion, 74, e. Defeated by Sempronius, 76, f, & ſeq. Recalled to Carthage, 79, c. Maſſacres ſome Italians, and returns, 80, c, d. Lands in Afric, 81, b. Speech to Scipio, ibid. d, e. Defeated at Zama, 82, paſſ. Prevents an inſurrection, 83, e, f. Noble ſpeech to Hœdus, 84, e, f. Recalled, and choſen prætor, 85, f. Envied by the Romans, 86, c. Flies to Antiochus, ibid. & ſeq. Stirs him up againſt Rome, 87, b——d. Artful anſwer to Scipio, 88, b c. Noble ſpeech to Antiochus, ibid. d, e. Deſerted by him, ibid. & ſeq. Kind advice to him, 89, f, & ſeq. Rouſes him up at laſt, 90, d, e. Defeated by the Rhodians, ibid. & ſeq. Flies to Crete, 91, a. Stratagem to ſave his treaſure, ibid. b. Againſt Eumenes, ibid, c, d. Poiſons himſelf, ibid. & ſeq. Laſt words and character, 92, a, & ſeq.—Paſſer, head of the Maſiniſſan faction, 96, b.—the port of, 298, f.
Hanno's hatred to Hannibal, 4, e, f. 7, e, f. & ſeq. Left to command in Gaul, 11, a, b. Defeated by Scipio, 20, b, c. Sharp anſwer to Himilco, 35, a, b. To Mago, ibid. b, c. Obſtructs Hannibal's ſuccour, 37, f. Defeated by Sempronius, 44, c. By Marcellus, 47, e, f. Sent with proviſions to Capua, 53, e. Defeated and ſtripped of them, ibid. f. Defeated in Spain, 68, e. Taken priſoner, ibid. f.—In Sardinia, 45, e.—Defeated by Scipio, 76, a. By Maſiniſſa, ibid. c, d.—Head of the Roman faction, 96, b.
Harſicoras's embaſſy to Carthage, 42, a. Abandoned by his men, 45, d. Joins Aſdrubal's army, ibid. e. Defeated, and kills himſelf, ibid. f, & ſeq.
Hhaſanites, who, and where, 238, b, c.
Havilah, the father of the Gætulians, 161, c.
Hejaz, the province of, deſcribed, 236, a, b.
——kingdom, by whom founded, 245, c. Kings of, 277, a, &c.
Hejra, the æra of, 286, a, (F).
Hela, the goddeſs of hell, 443, a.
Helanus, lake, how worſhipped by the Gauls, 351, a, b.
Helmichild, ſadly over-reached by Roſamund, 621, a—c. His fatal end, and revenge on her, 622, a, b.
Helvetii defeated by Cæſar, 397, c—e. Settled among the Ædui, ibid.
Hengiſt, (and Horſa) who, and whence, 441, b. Help to defeat the Picts and Scots, 443, b. Settled in Lincolnſhire, ibid. c. Treachery to Vortigern, 445, c Defeated by Ambroſius, 446, c, d. His death, ibid. e. When he came into Britain, 490, d.
Heraclea ſubmits to Hannibal, 54, a. Taken by Theodoric, 520, b.
Heraclitus made governor of South-Britain, 433, b.

Heraclius recovers Tripoli from the Vandals, 538, c.
Hercules Diodas, when he flouriſhed, 121, d. Diſpoſſeſſes and kills Antæus, 153, & ſeq. The fables of, explained, 154, a, &c. The time in which he flouriſhed, ibid. d—f. Civilizes the Gætulians, 162, b. Worſhipped by the Gauls, 357, (T). His reign in Spain, 319, d. 320, b.
Hercynian foreſt deſcribed, [413], e, & ſeq.
Herdonea burnt by Hannibal, 61, b.
Herefordſhire formerly part of Wales, 410, e.
Hermanaric, king of the Goths, 492, d, 500, c. His great conqueſts, 502, c. Kills himſelf, ibid. d.
Hermigarius's defeat and death, 532, d.
Herminius mons in Luſitania, 299, a
Hermunduri, who, and where, [408], c.
Herna, Attalia's youngeſt ſon, 468, a. His character, &c. ibid. b.
Herodotus impoſed upon by the Scytho-Greeks, [427], (R).
Heroopolitan gulph, where, 224, e, (C).
Herpidani, who, and where ſeated, 140, d.
Herpis, where, 143, b.
Hertha, a famed goddeſs in Germany, [418], b, c, (C).
Herthus worſhipped by the Angles, 443, a.
Heruli, who, and whence, 598, b. Settle in Thrace, ibid. c. And Scandinavia, ibid. d. Why ſo called, ibid. e. Their religion, laws, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Sundry ravages and defeats, 599, a—d. Subdued by Ermeneric, ibid. And Attila, ibid. & ſeq. 466, b. 502, c. By the Lombards, 599, f, & ſeq. Diſperſed, 600, a. Regicide, ibid. b. Converſion, ibid. c. Sad character, ibid. d. Subdued by the Lombards, ibid. &c.
Heſperides, gardens, where, 170, c.
Heſperus, a fabulous king of Spain, 320, c.
Heſus. See Eſus, 328, & ſeq.
Hiarbas cotemporary with Dido, 138, a. A table of his ſucceſſors in Numidia, ibid. paſſ.
Hiempſal, the ſon of Micipſa, 127. d. Murdered by Jugurtha, 129, a—Made king of part of Numidia, 135, c.
Hiero invaded by the Carthaginians. 34, a, b. Suppoſed to have been diſpatched by Gelon, 41, c.
Hieronymus in the Carthaginian intereſt, 47. a. His character and death, ibid. b.
Hilarius the philoſopher put to death by the Goths, 505, e.
Hilbas's ſucceſs againſt the Franks, 577, b.
Hildebrand made duke of Ravenna, 703, b.
——king of the Lombards, depoſed. 709, a.
Hilperic aſſiſts the Goths in Spain, 512, e.
Himilco's taunting ſpeech to Hanno, 35, a. Sent into Spain, 39. e.
Hippi, promontory in Numidia, 111, d.
Hippo taken and burnt by the Vandals, 533, c, d.——Regius deſcribed, 110, b, c.
Hipylæ mountains in Bœtica, 302, b, c.
Hira, the kingdom of, founded, 272, c. Its duration, ibid. d. Series of kings, ibid. & ſeq. The end of it, 275, c.
Hirpini revolt from the Carthaginians, 44, c. Complain againſt Hannibal, ibid. f. Submit to the Romans, 62, b.
Hiſpal, a fabulous king of Spain, 320, a—the city of Seville, deſcribed, 300, d, & ſeq. By whom founded, ibid. (E.)
Hiſpan, a fabulous king of Spain, 320, b.
Hiſpania, whence that name, 295, a, b.
Hobal, the god of rain of the Arabs, 249, e. His ſtatue deſcribed, 250, a.
Hojr, king of Kenda, why called the eater, 278, a.
Holſtein, the antient ſeat of the Saxons, 441, a.
Homerites, who, and where, 232, b, c.
Honoria ſtirs up Attila againſt her brother, 471, c. Her lewd character and impriſonment, ibid. d, e.
Honorius's reſignation of Britain, 437, b. Aſſiſts it againſt the Picts, ibid. c. Falls out with Alaric, 508, & ſeq.
Honoſca razed by Scipio, 27, c.
Horeſti, who, and where, 414, a.
Hormidæ defeated in Dacia, 482, c.
Horſa, who, and whence, 442, & ſeq. Defeated and ſlain, 444, d. Where buried, ibid. e.
Hortarius ſues to Julian for peace, 592, a, b.
Hoſtius defeated in Sardinia, 45, c, d. Slain, ibid. f.
Hud, a pretended prophet of the Arabs, 242, b—d.
Hulmul, a prince of the Bathian family, 492, d.
Humbri. See Umbri, 323, d, (E).
Hungarians, whence deſcended, 485, d. Why ſo called, ibid. & ſeq. Hired againſt the Bulgarians, 629, d, e.
Hunila married to Bonoſus, 498, b.
Hunneric king of the Vandals in Afric, 527, d.
Hunnimund, king of the Oſtrogoths, 493, a. Submits to the Hunns, 518, c.
Hunns, whence, 456, a. Their tribes names, &c. ibid. b, c.—Scythian, their kings or chiefs, 458, a. Origin, names, &c. ibid. b—d. Croſs the Palus Mæotis, ibid. e, f. Subdue the Alans, 459, a. And Oſtrogoths, ibid. b, c. Viſigoths, &c. ibid. d, e. Their other conqueſts, ibid. f, & ſeq. Hired by Theodoſius, 460, a. Defeated in Thrace, ibid. b. Their horrid ravages, ibid. & ſeq, & a. In Thrace, Illyricum, 461, b, c. Aſſiſt Stilicho againſt Radagaiſus, ibid. c, d. Second irruption, 462, a. And defeat, ibid. b. Side with the uſurper John, ibid. c. Repulſed, ibid. d, e. When poſſeſſed of Pannonia, 463, a, b. Join Ætius againſt the Burgundi, ibid. c. 20000 cut off by them, ibid. c, d. Defeat the Goths before Narbonne, ibid. e. Plunder Auvergne, ibid. f, & ſeq. Defeated before Thoulouſe, 464, a. Make peace, ibid. d, e. New conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. Under Attila, 465, & ſeq. Ravage Illyricum, 478, b. Their proweſs ends with Attila's death, 481, d—f. Defeated by the Goths, 482, b, c. In Dacia by Anthemius, ibid. c. d. Freſh irruption into the empire, 483, d. Vaſt plunder, &c. ibid. e. Defeated, 484, paſſ. By Sigebert in Thuringia, ibid. f, & ſeq. Extent of their dominion in Charles the Great's reign, 485, a. Embaſſy to him, ibid. Totally reduced by him, ibid. c, d.
Hylogones, their ſite, food, &c. 184, d.
Hylophagi, their ſite, food, &c. 184, c. Prodigious activity, 200, e.

I

JABALAH, laſt king of Ghaſſan, turns chriſtian, 276, c, d.
Jacobite ſect riſe in Arabia, 252, c, d.
Jadis, the Arab tribe of, whence, 243, c. Deſtroyed, ibid. d.
Jafnah, firſt king of Ghaſſan, his conqueſt, 275, e. —— ſecond, ſets Hira on fire, 276, a.
Jamno, a port in Minorca, 308, c.
Jangacocani. See Angacocani, 140, d.
Iazyges, who, 604. Declare for Veſpaſian, 605. d. Ravage Mœſia, ibid. e. Defeated by Gailus, ibid. Join the Suevi againſt Rome, ibid. f, & ſeq. Embaſſy to Adrian, 606, b. Defeated by M. Aurelius, ibid. c.
Ibatzes's ſucceſs againſt the Romans, 636, c. Taken priſoner, 637, b.
Iberia, Spain, why ſo called, 294, c, d.
Iberians in Spain, who and where ſited, 294, d, 323, b.
Iberius, king of the Lombards, 614, e. 615, d.
Iberus, fabulous king of Spain, 319, a.
——river, divides Tarracon through, 303, d
Iceni, who and where, 409, f. Submit to Cæſar, 426, b, (F). Oppoſe Oſtorius, 430, b.
Icenian, Icening ſtreet, on Saliſbury plain, deſcribed, 342, (R).
Ichthyophagi, who and whence ſo called, 184, a. Their cuſtoms, &c. 199, d. Food, &c. 200, a—c.
Ida founds a ſecond Saxon kingdom. 450, e.
Idatius's account of the Vandals eruption, 530, c, d.
Idolatry, rooted up by the Goths in Greece, 505, e, f.
Idubeda, a fabulous king of Spain, 320, b. The mountains of, 307, (K).
Jews, in Arabia, converted by a miracle, 285, a, b.
Igilgil, where ſituate, 113, a.
Igillus, king of the Vandals, taken priſoner, 529, a.
Jiel. where ſituate, 107, e 113, b.
Ikenil ſtreet deſcribed, 420, a.
Ildebald, choſen king of the Oſtrogoths. 493, a, 644, b, c. Defeats the Romans, ibid. d. Murdered by Vilas, ibid. e.
Ildigeſal refuged among the Gepidæ, 597, c.
Ilergetæ ſubmit to Hannibal, 10, f. Treachery to Scipio forgiven, 26, c, d. New revolt. 71, f.
Ilitugi revolts to the Carthaginians, 46, e. Retaken and razed by Scipio, 71, a.

INDEX.

Illus's treachery to Zeno, 522, e.
Illyricum laid waſte by Attila, 467, e. 468, e, f.
Image worſhip, how firſt introduced, 247, b, (Q).
Imola rebuilt by Clephis, 622, b.
Indibilis aſſiſts Aſdrubal in Spain, 56, c. Gained by Scipio, 62, f. Rewarded by him, 63, c. Takes up arms againſt him, 71, f. Defeated, 72, a, b. Raiſes a new revolt, 73, c. Defeated and puniſhed, ibid. d.
Indutiomarus defeated by Cæſar, 399, c, d.
Ingauni, who, 73, a. Aſſiſted by Mago, ib.
Ingomer's baptiſm and death, 570, b.
Inſubria invaded by Hannibal, 16, b, c.
Inſulæ tres, where ſited, 146, d.
Intercata, the colony of, 305, c.
Jodaimab's victories and death, 272, f, & ſeq.
John's bravery againſt the Vandals, 528, f. Death, ibid. & ſeq.—Beliſarius's general's ſucceſs, 658, b. Beſieged in Rimini, 659, a. Relieved, ibid. b. Treachery to Beliſarius, 660, a, b. Oppoſes Totila's offers, 667, f. Releaſes the Roman ſenators, 671, b. Put to flight by Totila, ibid. c—e. Sent into Italy, 674, c. Defeated at ſea, ibid. f, & ſeq.
Joktan, and his ſons, where ſettled. 232, e, 265, a, b.
Jol in Numidia, the ſeat of Juba, 114, a. Why ſo called, ibid. b.
Jones, Inigo's ſcheme of Stone-henge exploded, 339, & ſeq.
Jornandes's fabulous account of the Hunns, 478, b, c.
Jotæ, who and where ſeated, 489, c.
Jotham, an old tribe of Arabs, 243, d.
Jou, Jovis, the Gauliſh name of Jupiter, 353, c, (L).
Jovinus ſent to quell the Britons, 435, d. Succeſs againſt the Alemans, 593, b, c.
Irem, the famed city and garden of, 242, a.
Irenæus, biſhop of Lions martyred, 403, b, c.
Iſacius defeated by Rotharis, 691, b. Quells Mauricius's rebelliou, ibid. c.
Iſarna, a Bathian prince, 492, d.
Iſca, Uſk, the Roman gariſon of, 411, b. The antiquities of, ibid, c.
Iſhmael ſettles in Arabia, 266, a. The propheſy fulfilled in his deſcendants, ibid. b, c.
Iſhmaelites, antient inhabitants of Arabia, 226, d. Their territories, 230, a.
Iſſer, river, in Numidia, 116, c.
Iſis, iſland, in Ethiopia, 190, b.
Iſurum Brigantum, where, 412, b.
Italy, peopled by the old Celtes, 323, d, (E). Ravaged by Attila, 478, & ſeq. Cleared of the Goths and Franks, 679, d, e. Put under a new government, ibid. & ſeq.
Itamas Portus, where ſited, 234, b.
Itius Portus, where ſited, 234, b.
Juba affronted by Cæſar, 135, d. Revenge, ibid. & ſeq. Succeſs againſt him, 136, & ſeq. Defeat and death, 136, b, (W), (X).—Obtains Mauritania, 157, b. Educated at Rome, ibid. (R) Learning and works, ibid. Worſhipped by the Ethiopians, 197, a.
Ivellus, river in Danmonia, 407, d.
Jugurtha's extract and education, 127, d. Character, ibid. & ſeq. Perfidy to Micipſa, 128, & ſeq. Bribes the Roman ſenate, 129, a, b. Cruel treachery to Adherbal, ibid. c—e. To Maſſiva, 130, e. Succeſs againſt the Romans, ibid d, e. Defeated, 131, a, b. Diſtracted ſtate, ibid. e, & ſeq. Beſieged in Thala, 132, b. Bribes the Mauritanians, 134. a, b. Betrayed to the Romans, 134, d, e. His end, ibid, & ſeq. and (S).
Jubones, who, and where, [407], d.
Julian's ſucceſs againſt the Franks, 556, paſſ. Againſt the Alemans, 591, & ſeq.
Junius, the dictator, outwitted by Hannibal, 41, c—e.
Junonia iſland deſcribed, 148, a.
Jupiter, when firſt worſhipped in Gaul, 349, d, & ſeq. and (D). How, ibid. & ſeq. That name not adopted there, 353, c. How worſhipped by the Garamantes 166, c. (F). By the Germans, [419], a, b. By the Arabs, 249, b.
Juſtin ſent againſt Totila, 674, b, c. Made governor of Ravenna, 675, e.
Juſtinian, why ſtyled Gepidicus, 597, f, & ſeq. Wars againſt the Oſtrogoths, 651, d, e. Betrayed by Theodebert, ibid. e, f, (P). Succeſs againſt him and them, 653, & ſeq.
Jutes, their origin, 440, & ſeq. Why called Giotæ, 441, d.
Juthungi ſettled in Thrace, 529, e. Defeated by Ætius, 543, c.
Jutland conquered by the Goths, 489, e.

K.

KABYLES, a tribe of Libyans, 121, c.
Kadeſk, the famed deſert of, 227, d.
Kaer-went, the ruins of, 411, a.—Lleion, whence ſo called, ibid. b.—Philycaſtel, the noble remains of, ibid. c.—Gourtigern conſumed by lightning, 445. Given to Paſcentius, 446, c.
Kail, a pretended prophet of the Arabs, 292, c.
Kais, his long and bloody war, 279, b.
Karak, whether the antient Petrea, 226, b.
Karioth, a city in Arabia Petrea, 226, b.
Kathan, the ſame with Joktan, 244, a. His poſterity, ibid. and (O). Reign, 267, b.
Keaulius's ſucceſs againſt Ethelbert, 451, b. 452, e, f.
Kedareni, Cedreni, antient inhabitants of Petrea, 226, d.
Kedem, Arabia, why ſo called, 222, & ſeq. 224, b. c.
Kenda, the tribe and kings of, 278, a, b.
Kent inhabited by the Jutes, 441, e. Seized on by Hengiſt, 443, d. Becomes a Saxon kingdom, ibid. & ſeq.
Keyzler's notion of Stonehenge exploded, 340, a, b—Koſs, a famed Arab orator, 258, a.
Khozaah The Arab tribe of, whence, 277, c. Poſſeſſors of Mecca, &c. ibid. d.
Kiz, the iſland of, where, 235. d.
Kolzum, Colzom in Arabia Petrea, 227, c.
Koreiſh, the tribe of, ſeize on Mecca, and the Cabaa, 277, d, e.
Koz, Kuſh, from whom ſo named, 205, c.

L

LABIENUS, left to command in Treves, 424, b.
Lacetani, maſſacred by Scipio, 26, d.
Lacinium, where ſituate, 9, (D).
Lactodorum, Bedford, 409, b.
Lacumales ſet upon the Maſſylian throne, 123, a. Submits to Maſiniſſa, ibid, d, e.
Lælius ſent to gain over Syphax, 71, c. Defeats Aſdrubal's fleet, ibid. e. Deſcent and ſucceſs in Afric, 73, & ſeq. Interview with Maſiniſſa, 74, a. Burns the Numidian camp, 77, e. Sent in purſuit of Syphax. 78, d, e. Bravery at the battle of Zama, 82, paſſ. Succeſs before Carthage, 103, c.
Læves and Ananes ſettle in Italy, 391, d.
Lævinus ſends a corps of banditti into Sicily, 59, d.
Lageolium, where ſituate, 412, d.
Lakes worſhipped by the Gauls, 350, b, (F). Superſtitious cuſtoms uſed to them, 351, a, b, (G).
Lakmians, their extract, kingdom, &c. 272, d, & ſeq.
Lamalmon, the famed mountain of, deſcribed, 185, d.
Lamiſcus, king of the Lombards, 615, d. Why ſo called, 616, e. Defeats the Bulgarians. ibid. f.
Langobriga, a city in Luſitania, 296, c.
Lantildis renounces Arianiſm, 570, a.
Lares in Numidia deſcribed, 109, d.
Lariſſa taken by Theodoric III. 520, b. 522, c. By the Bulgarians, 633, d.
Laſcaris founds an empire at Nice, 286, f, & ſeq.
——Theodore's reign and death, 28, c, e. f.
—— John, dethroned, 287, f, & ſeq. Murdered, 288, c.
Laſer, a gum, deſcribed, 170, e, & ſeq.
Lathon river, where, 170, c.
Latin tongue corrupted in Italy, 625, (L).
Lemigius, duke, murdered for extortion, 686, f, & ſeq.
Lens, the battle of, when fought, 560, f.
Lentinenſes defeated by Mallobaudes, 557, a, b.
Lentulus defeats the Spaniſh reguli, 73, c, d.
Leo, pope, ſent embaſſador to Attila, 480, a, b.
—Arcadius's general, defeated and killed, 506, e, f.
—the compiler of the Theodorician laws, his character, 517, e, (C).
—the emperor's great preparations againſt Genſeric. 537, & ſeq. Defeated at ſea by him, 538, e, f.
—Phocas's

—Phocas's ill ſucceſs againſt the Bulgarians, 630, e, f, & ſeq.
—Moroleon's noble defence of Adrianople, 631, d. Tortured to death, ib. e.
—Meliſſænus betrayed by Stephen, 633, e, f.
—Iſauricus cauſes great diſturbances by his edict, 702, c. Oppoſed by the pope, ib. d, 704, d, e. Preparations againſt him, 707, e, f.
Leogria, from whom ſo called, 421, (A).
Leonorius's defection from Brennus, 393, d. Settled in Galatia, 394, c, d, & ſeq.
Leontius's treaſon and defeat, 522, c, d.—Speech to the Franks, 561, & ſeq. ſub (P).
Lerida taken by the Suevi, 544, b.
Leta, king of the Lombards, 615, d. 616, f.
Letes, who, and where ſited, 554, b.
Leunigild, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, 492, e.
Leutharis heads the Franks into Italy, 678, f. His army deſtroyed, 679, d.
Lexovii ſubdued by Sabinus, 399, a.
Liberius ſent to relieve Syracuſe, 674, c, d.
Libertem heads the Bulgarians in Thrace, 623, c.
Libya, when firſt invaded, 154, & ſeq. Why ſo called, 178, c —Interior, unknown, 167, a, b.
Libyans, their territories, 119, a. How diſtinguiſhed, 120, c, d. When firſt incorporated with the Africans, 122, a, b. Civilized by Dido, 155, e, f. Their cuſtoms, &c. 177, paſſ. 213, (F).
—of Marmorica deſcribed, 167, & ſeq.
Licinianus ſent embaſſador to Euric, 515, e. f.
Licinius, Priſc. ſent into Britain, 431, d, (K).
Liguri aſſiſt Mago, 73, & ſeq. Turn to the Romans, 80, b.
Liguria ravaged by Burgundi, 584, f.
Lilybæum repulſes the Carthaginians, 20. a.
Limetanus ſtirs up the Romans againſt their corrupt ſenators, 130, f.
Limigantes, why ſo called, 609, b. War with the Romans, ib, & ſeq. Submit to Conſtantius, 610, a, b.
Lindum, Lincoln, metropolis of the Coritani, 410, b.
Lingones ſettle in Italy, 391, d.
Linva, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, 492, e.
Lions taken by the Burgundi, 584. d—f.
Lipari, iſland, ſeized by the Carthaginians, 19, d.
Lipe, Lupia, river in Germany, [415], b.
Liſbon taken by the Suevi, 545, e.
Litorius taken priſoner by the Goths, 510, e. Inſulted and put to death by Theodoric, ib. & ſeq.
Liviſa ſlain by Theodoric, 524, e.
Livius Caius betrayed by the Tarentines, 51, d—f. Eſcapes drunk into the citadel, 52, b.
—the conſul joined by his collegue, 66, d. e.
Lixus in Mauritania deſcribed, 141, d. Whether the ſame with Tingis, ib. e, f.
—river, 142, a. 144. e.
Locri ſurrendered to Hannibal, 41, b. Beſieged by Cluicius, 64, d. e. Taken by Scipio, 74.
Locuſts deſtroy Africa, 172, b. Infect it with a plague, ibid. c. The food of the Ethiopians, 200, f. How caught, 201, a. Why ſo unwholſome, ib. b, (Z).
Lodbrog, king, his requiem before his death, 420, (F).
Lokman, king of the Adites, 242, d, e.
—the famed Arab fabuliſt, an account of, 258, (T).
Lollius's ſucceſs in Britain, 432, a, (M).
Lombards, their origin, &c. 614, e, f. Whence called Longobards, 615, c. Their wars, with the Gepidæ, 596, & ſeq. Settle in Pannonia, 615, d. Their kings, character, dreſs. &c. ibid. e, f. Migrations, ibid. & ſeq. Defeat the Vandals, 616. b. Outwit the Aſſipiti, ibid. c, d. Succeſs in Gothland, ibid. d, e. Settle in Rugiland, ibid. f, & ſeq. Defeat the Heruli, 617, a. And Gepidæ, ibid. b———d. Settle in Pannonia, ibid. e, & ſeq. Enter Italy, 618, paſſ. Their ſucceſs and conqueſts, 619, & ſeq. Begin a kingdom there, 620, c. Split it into dukedoms. Why, 622, b The ill conſequence of it, ibid. c. The number of thoſe dukes, ibid d. Chuſe a new king, ibid. e, f. Their language, 625, (L). Break into Gaul, 680, c. Defeated by Ennius, ibid. d. Fall out with the Saxons, ibid. e. Chuſe Autharis their king, 681, d. Renounce Arianiſm, 684, d, e. 697, c. Succeſs againſt the Romans, 694, & ſeq. The end of their kingdom, 719, d. Character and government vindicated, ibid. e, f, & ſeq. The extent of their dominions, 720, c, d. Laws, ſee under Longobardian, 690, & ſeq.
Lombardy, how divided, 721, (C). Its three ſtates, 723, f.
Londinum, London, whether it belonged to the Cantii, 408, e, f. To the Trinobantes, 409, c. When founded, ib. d. Whence called Auguſta, ib. e. Entered and reſtored by Theodoſius, 435, d, e.
Londobris, iſland in Luſitania, 298, f.
Longinus defeated by Leontius, 522, c. Reception of Roſamond, 621, e, f. Firſt exarch of Ravenna, 679, e. His new government, ib. & ſeq. Defeated and recalled, 681, b.
Longobardi, who, and where, 409, d, e. 614, f. Different from the Lombards, 615, a. Whence called Vinili. ib. b. The reſt ſee under Lombards.
Longobardian laws, when and by whom compiled, 690, a, (U). Corrected by Grimoald, 697, a. By Hildebrand, 709, b. By Aſtulph, 712, b, c.
Lorgitæ, Ilorgitæ, who, 9, b, (C).
Lotophagi, who, and where ſited, 175, b. Why ſo called, 176, b. Their cuſtoms, &c. ib. & ſeq.
Lotus, the plant of, its uſe, &c. 176, b—d.
Loventium, Toway in Wales, 411, e.
Lowtaia, were ſituate, 107, c.
Lucani ſubmit to the Romans, 62, b. 69, d.
Luceria deſtroyed by Conſtans, 695, a.
Lud, king, the fabulous account of, 421, (A).
Ludim, whether the Ethiopians, 183, a. Why ſo like them, 193, b, c.
Luernius's famed ſumptuous feaſt, 387, (Z).
Lugdunenſes build a temple to Cæſar, 401, c, d.
Lugdunenſis, Gallia, ſeized on by the Burgundi, 583, d, e.
Luguvallum, Carliſle, why ſo called, 413, b. Its antiquities, ibid. c.
Luitbert, dethroned and murdered by Ragumbert, 699, a, b.
Luitprand ſpared by Aripert, 699, c. Conſpired againſt, 701, d, e. Raſh courage and generoſity, ibid. e, f. New body of laws, 702, a, b, (X). Invades Ravenna, ibid. d, & ſeq. Succeſs there, 704, e, f. Reconciled to the pope, 707, b, c. Reception of Zachary, 708, d, e. Death and character. ibid. & ſeq.
Lupicinus, ſent againſt the Picts and Scots, 435, b.
Lupus, Vib. ſucceſs in Britain, 433, b. (N). Biſhop of Troyes, forced to quit it, 478, d. Duke of Friuli, revolts, 696, b, c. Defeated and killed, ibid. d.
Luſitania, deſcribed, 295, e, & ſeq. Its cities, 296, & ſeq. Promontories, 298, e, & ſeq. Rivers, 299, a. Inhabited by the Celtiberi. [324], d, e.
Luſus, an antient king of Spain, [321], b.
Lutatius's inſolence to the Carthaginians, 1, a. His treaty with them examined, 6, e, f, & ſeq.——Defection from Brennus, 393, d.
Lybia, Lybiſſa, Hannibal buried at, 92, (R).
Lydia, over-run with Goths, 495, d.
Lygians, Logiones, who and where ſited, [409], b, c. Defeated by Probus, 528, e. Ally with the Suevi againſt the Romans, 542, a, b.

M

MACÆ, who and where ſited, 175, b. Their cuſtoms, &c. 176, a.
Macedon, plundered by the Hunns, 468, f.
Macrianus defeated by the Franks, 557, a, b. By Valentinian, 593, f, & ſeq. His death, 594, b, c.
Macrobians, why long-lived, 202, c. Their king's anſwer to Cambyſes's embaſſy, 212, c—e.
Madaura in Numidia, where ſited, 111, a.
Madian, a city in Arabia, 182, b. By whom founded 238, b, c.
Madrid, where ſited, 607, a, (I).
Mæatæ, who and where ſited, 414, b. Mæniceptæ

Menicepto, ſlain in Spain, 49, b.
Magas reigns 50 years in Cyrenaica, 174, a.
Magi, iſland in Ethiopia, 190, b.
Magilus conducts Hannibal over the Alps, 14, a, b.
Magiſter militum, his office, 417.
Magius, Dec. bold ſpeech againſt Hannibal, 33, c. Delivered up to him, ibid. d.
Magnifrid ſent againſt the Hunns, 485, c.
Magnum promontorium in Luſitania, 298, e.
Mago, ſent in purſuit of the Romans, 18, b. Carries the news of Hannibal's ſucceſs to Carthage, 34, d, & ſeq. Sent for reinforcements into Spain, 35, d, e. Countermanded from going to Hannibal, 41, f. Sent into Spain, 42, b. Defeats the conſuls, 55, a, b. Defends new Carthage againſt Scipio, 60, a. Sent to raiſe new forces, 63, d. Noble defence of Locri, 64, d. Defeated in Spain, 68, e, f. Afreſh, 69, f, & ſeq. Retires to Gades, 78, e. Sends for freſh forces, ibid. f. Sent into Italy, 72, d. Cruelties at Gades, ibid. e, f. Winters in the Balearics, ibid. & ſeq. Reinforces himſelf in Liguria, 73, a, b. His column near Lecinium, ibid. c. Speech to the Gauls and Ligurians, 74, b. Defeated in Inſubria, 79, f, & ſeq. Sails for Carthage, 80, a. Dies of his wounds, ibid. b.——Taken priſoner by the Romans, 45, e.—A city in Minorca, 308, c.
Magnclunus's wicked reign, 451, f.
Maherbal commands before Saguntum, 5, c. Ordered to ravage Italy, 17, d. Defeats the Romans, 22, d, e. Speech to Hannibal, 31, f.
Majoranus defeats the Viſigoths in Gaul, 513, e. Wars againſt the Vandals in Afric, 535, & ſeq. Peace with them, 536. c, d.
Majorca iſland deſcribed, 308, b, c.
Malaric, antient king of the Franks, 550, f, & ſeq.
Maldra, choſen king of the Suevi in Spain, 513, b. Ravages Luſitania, ibid. e. 545, d——f. His treachery and death, 546, a.
Malek, firſt king of Hira, 272, e.
Malethubalus, mount, where ſited, 115, e.
Mallobaudus, king of the Franks, 551, b. Succeſs againſt the Alemans, 557, a. Bravery and promotion under Gratian, ib. b. Death, ib. c.
Maltha ſurrendered to Sempronius, 20, a.
Malva, river of Tingitania, 144, c, d.
Mamſarus, mount, in Numidia, 111, c.
Manah worſhipped by the Arabs, 246, f. 248, b, c.
Mancinus defeated by Cartalo, 24, d. Repulſed before Carthage, 101, e.
Mancunium Manchester, 412, d.
Mandonius defeated by Scipio, 27, d, e. Goes over to him, 62. f. Defeated by him, 71, f. Defeat and puniſhment, 73, d.
Mandubracius made king of the Trinobantes, 426, a.
Manduria taken by Fabius, 62, b.
Manilius Nepos. See Nepos, 97, e, & ſeq.
Manlius reduces Sardinia, 45, c, &c.——Defeated in Gaul, 396, b, c.
Manſuetus, biſhop of Britany, 454, c.
Mantua, where ſited, 306, d. Taken by the Hunns, 479, b.
Maranitæ, who, and where ſited, 231, d.
Marcellinus's ſucceſs againſt Genſeric, 538, b. Aſſaſſinated in Sicily, 539, b.
Marcellus defeats Hannibal's deſigns, 35, f, & ſeq. Drives him from before Nola, 36, c, &c. Sent to ſecure it againſt him, 44, e, f. Drives him into Apulia. 45, b. Treachery to the Caſilinians, 48, a. Succeſs in Spain and Sicily, 61, a. Marches againſt Hannibal ib. c. Worſted in ſeveral encounters, ib. & ſeq. Defeated and killed, 64, b, c.—Succeſs in Britain fatal, 432, b, c.
Marcian's noble anſwer to Attila, 471, a. Taken priſoner in Afric. 533. c.
Marcius's ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, 71, b, c. Sent againſt them by ſea, 97, c. Beſieges their capital, 100, b.—Rex, ſucceſs in Gaul, 395, c, d.
Marcomani, who, and whence, [407], d, e. 600, e. Their character, cuſtoms, &c. 601, a. Peace with Auguſtus, ib. b. War with the Cheruſci. ib. c. Succeſs againſt the Romans, ib. d. Defeated by them, 602, a. Submit to them. ib. b, c.
Marcomir, king of the Franks, 550, b. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Romans, 557, f, & ſeq.
Mareb, a river, that falls into the Nile, deſcribed, 189, (I).
Mariani mountains in Bœtica, 302, b, c, (I). 307, (K).
Marius's ſucceſs againſt Jugurtha, 131, a, b. Supplants the brave Metellus, 132, e, &c. Defeats the Numidians, 133, & ſeq. 134, c, d. And the Gauls, 396, c, d.
Mark choſen emperor, and killed, 436, d.—Patriarch, depoſed by the Trapezontines, 289, (G).
Marmarica Libya deſcribed, 167, & ſeq. By whom inhabited, 168, d. And firſt peopled, 169, b. Diſtinct from Egypt, ib. c.
Maroboduus driven out of his kingdom, 601, c.—The city of his reſidence, 600, f.
Marobudum, by whom built, 600, e, f.
Maronea, taken by the Romans. 61, a.
Mars worſhipped by the Gauls, 347, b, c. With bloody ſacrifices, 354, paſſ. His other names, ib. c, (O). 355, a, (P). Reckoned an infernal deity, 358, a, (W). Worſhipped in Germany, [419], c. His ſuppoſed ſword found, 467, b.
Marſeilles yeilded to Theodoric, 573, d.——The famed univerſity of, 376, c——e. Founded by the Greeks, 381, c.
Marſi, who and where ſited, [407]. Gained over by Sylla, 396, d.
Martel, Ch. allies with the pope, 707, a, b.
Martinus killed before Rome, 657. c.
Martius defeats the Carthaginians in Spain, 56, e. f.
Maſiniſſa defeated by Syphax, 50, c. Aſſiſts the Carthaginians in Spain, 56, c. Sent to ravage Hiſpania Citerior, 63, d. Defeated by Scipio, 69, & ſeq. Abandons the Carthaginians, 70, c, d. Goes to conſult with Aſdrubal, ib. f, & ſeq. Interview with Scipio, 72, b, c. The reaſons of his defection, 75, d, e. Joins with Scipio, 76, b. Burns Syphax's camp, 77, e. Gallantry at the battle of Zama, 82, paſſ. Seizes on the Carthaginian territories, 85, b. 93, d, e. Diſputes them before the Roman ſenate, ib. & ſeq. Takes a vaſt number of Carthaginian cities, 94, & ſeq. Succours the Romans, 95, c. Defeats Aſdrubal, 96, e. Laſt maſſage to Æmilianus, 100, f. Recovers his kingdom, 123, paſſ. Defeated by Syphax, ib. e, f. Ravages the Carthaginians, 124, a. Narrow eſcape, ib. b, c. Freſh defeat, ib. d, e. Recovers Syphax's kingdom, 125, a.——c. Forces the Carthaginians into a peace, ib. d, e. Diſobliges the Romans, 126, a. His death, ib. b. Character, ib. & ſeq. Kingdom, how divided, 127, a. Genealogy, 138, paſſ.
Maſruk, the laſt Ethiopian king in Yaman, 271, e.
Maſſilians, their bloody ſacrifices, 325, a, b.
Maſſiva murdered by Jugurtha, 130, c.
Maſſyli and Maſæſyli, part of Numidia, 107, a. Of Mauritania, ib. e. Their ſite and extent, 108, a——c. 112, e, f. Government, 119, & ſeq. Cuſtoms, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Become a Roman province, 137, e.
Maſtanabal's ſucceſſion and death, 127, a, b.
Mataſuenta married to Germanus, 664, a.
Matronæ in Germany, who, [418], (C).
Mattiacum, capital of the Mattiaci, 407, d.
Mavia aſſiſts the Romans againſt the Goths, 284, a.
Maurèſii, where ſeated, 140, d.
Mauria, why ſo called, 140, b, c. Obſcure origin, 156, a, b.
Mauringa ſeized by the Lombards, 616, c, d.
Mauritania deſcribed, 107, & ſeq. 139, a. Why called Tingitania, ibid. b. Its extent, ibid. c, d. Whence called Mauruſia, 140, a. How divided, ibid. d. Its rivers, mountains, &c. 142, & ſeq. Natural rarities, 148, & ſeq. By whom firſt peopled, 149, a—d. Government, ibid. e, & ſeq. Religion, 150. & ſeq. Language, 151, a, b. Cuſtoms, ibid. c. Habit, 152, a. Arts, &c. ibid. c, d. Power, ibid. e, & ſeq. Riches, 153, a. Kings, ibid. & ſeq Conqueſt and diviſion, 159, c, d.
——Nova, whence ſo called. 135, a.
Mauritius's rebellion and death, 691, b—d.
Maximin, why in friendſhip with the Goths, 493, b.—Sent againſt them, 666, f, & ſeq. Defeated, 667, b, &c.
Maximus's revolt in Britain, 436, b, c.—Theodoſius's embaſſador to Attila, 470, paſſ. 472, b.
Mazdak's hereſy and puniſhment, 274, c, d.

Mecca where ſituate, 236, b. Deſcribed, ibid. b, c. How ſupplied with water, ibid. d, e. And proviſions, ibid. & ſeq. Its vaſt concourſe, &c. 237, a. Temple and ſharif, ibid. b. By whom built, ibid. d, e.
Medina, a city in Hejaz, 236, b. Deſcribed, 237, d, e.
Mediobriga, the lead-mine of, 299, b.
Mediocritus, Melitarchus, the firſt diſcoverer of the Britiſh iſlands, 402, c.
Mediolanum in Wales, where ſited, 411, f.
Mediomatrici, who, and where ſited, 408, a.
Megara taken by Æmilianus, 101, e.
Mela, Pompon. where born, 301, c. 313, f.
Melæ taken by the Romans, 61, a.
Melanchlenæ, a kind of canibals, 605, b.
Melanogætuli, who, and where, 163, d. Their tribes, cities, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Known to the Carthaginians, 164, f, (A). Way of fighting and travelling, 165, a.
Mellobaudes's ſucceſs againſt the Alemans, 594, d.
Memmius Cai. ſtirs up the Romans againſt Jugurtha, 129, f. & ſeq.
Memnon's wars with the Egyptians, 210, & ſeq. The ſame with Menes, 211, b.
Memphis. See Moph, 211, b,
Menapii ſubdued by Cæſar, 399, b. Who, ibid. (R).
Meneſteus. the port of, 301, c.
Meninx iſland deſcribed, 176, f.
Mentz, the inventreſs of printing, [416], b. Put to fire and ſword by the Hunns, &c. 474, a. By the Vandals, 529, d. By the Alemans, 583, c.
——Druſus's monument at. [416], b.
Menutia's iſland in Ethiopia, 190, b. Whether the preſent Madagaſcar, 191, b.
Mercury worſhipped by the Gauls, 347, b, c, 356, e, & ſeq. His names, 367, a, b, (T). Why reckoned an infernal deity, 358, a, (W). The god of riches, ib. c. Suppoſed tomb in Spain, ibid. d. Why ſtyled Auguſtus, ibid. (Y). His heaps or mounts, what, 359, a, (Z). How worſhipped, ibid. a, b. Why repreſented of no ſex, ibid. (Z). Why in the guiſe of Hercules, 382, e, & ſeq. & (V).
Merida taken by the Viſigoths, 513, b. By the Suevi, 543, f.
Meroe, iſland in Ethiopia, 190, b. Its ſite, ibid. c, (N). Diſtance from Syene, ibid. & ſeq. Towns, rivers, &c. in fin. (N). Prieſts in high power, 194, e. Obſerve the Moſaic law, 195, e, & ſeq.
——city, the reſidence of the Candaces, 191, a.
Meropius travels into India, 417, e.
Merouee outwitted by Ætius, 478, a. Careſſed by him at Rome, 561, a, b. Succeeds Clodio, 562, b. His noble ſervices to the Romans, ibid. c, d. Reign, character, and death, ibid. & ſeq. & (E).
Merovingian line, 562, f, & (E).
Meſembria taken by the Bulgarians, 628, b, c.
Meſeus ſent to aſſiſt the Tyrians in Spain, [325], d.
Metellus, Luc. ſent to judge Jugurtha, 130, f. His excellent character, ibid. & ſeq. Succeſs, 131, paſſ. Threatening meſſage to Bocchus, ibid. e, f, & ſeq.
Micipſa ſucceeds Maſiniſſa, 127, a. Jealous of Jugurtha, 128, a, b. Adopts him, ibid. c, d. His death, e.
Michael forced to turn monk, 632, b. Lays claim to the crown, ibid. d. Dies, ibid. e.
Midianites, antient inhabitants of Petrea, 226, d. Where ſeated, 227, a.
Migdol, a city on the Nile, 182, (C).
Milan taken and plundered by the Hunns, 479, c. By Theodoric, 524, a. By the Lombards, 620, c. By Beliſarius, 658, d. Beſieged by the Oſtrogoths, ibid. e. Taken, and put to the ſword, 660, b. Opens to Grimoald, 693, d.
Miltine. where ſituated, 113, (A).
Minorca iſland deſcribed, 308, b, c.
Minutius left to command againſt Hannibal, 25, c, d. Made general with Fabius, ibid. f, & ſeq. Defeated and killed, 30, f.
Miſelto, of the oak, ſacred among the Gauls, 330, ſub not. Its virtues, &c. 332, a, b, (H). 416, e, (A).
Mitula defeats the Romans, 695, d. Made duke of Spoletum, 696, b.
Mnemium promontory in Ethiopia, 190, a.
Mnevis, whether the ſame with Apis, 209, b, (B).
Moca, Mokca, a city in Petrea, 227, e. In Arabia Felix, 234, a. Yaman deſcribed, ibid. c.
Mœſia yielded to Theodoric III. 522, b.
Mohammed's tomb at Medina deſcribed, 237, e. His extract and birth, 285, d.
Moldavia part of antient Dacia, 611, a.
Molochath, where ſituate, 143, a.
Mona, Angleſey, by whom conquered, 411, f.
Mondars, their extract, kingdom, &c. 272, d, & ſeq.
Mondus, an iſland and port in Ethiopia, 190, a, b.
Monmouthſhire, formerly part of Wales, 410, e.
Montmorillon, the famed temple of, deſcribed, 352, (K).
Moon, how worſhipped by the Ethiopians. 197, a. By the Gauls, 352, (K). By the Saxons, 442, d.
Moors. See Mauritanians, 149, & ſeq.
Moph, Noph, Memphis, from whom ſo called, 216, b.
Moraw river in Germany, [415], e.
Moreſby, the antiquities of, 412, f.
Morini, who, 399, b, (R). 421, c. Subdued by Cæſar, 399, b. Attend him into Britain, 421 & ſeq.
Morocco, its extent, 139, c.
Mortagon aſſiſts Michael againſt the rebels, 629, a, b.
Moſes's pretended conqueſt of Ethiopia, 205, & ſeq.
—— one of the four Bulgarian kings, dies, 633, c.
Moſylon, promontory in Ethiopia, 190, a. Its port, ibid. b.
Mouſe, a, ſold for 200 denarii, 38, b.
Mozarabez, who, 310, (A).—Officium Mozarabicum in Spain, what, ibid. e, & (B).
Muab, the royal reſidence of Yaman, 235, b.
Mucaruna, turns nun, 584, c.
Mugaris, king of the Hunns, takes Boſporus, 483, c. Repulſed by John, ibid. d.
Mulucha, Mollochath river, a boundary of Numidia, 107, a, b.
Mummulus's ſucceſs againſt the Lombards, 680, d. 681, a.
Mundo raiſes a revolt in Pannonia, 643, b. Submits to Theodoric, ibid. c, d.
Mundus's ſucceſs againſt the Bulgarians, 624, b. Againſt the Oſtrogoths, 652, a, b, (Q). Defeated and killed 653, d.
Mundzuchus, king of the Hunns, 458, a.
Murcia, the goddeſs of cowards, 360, in fin. (C).
Murodunum, Caermarthen in Wales, 411.
Muſulanians, where ſeated, 158, a. Serve under Taſfarinas, ibid. b. Defeated, 159, a.
Muza, an emporium in Arabia Felix, 234, a, & e.
Muzalo, made guardian to young Laſcaris, 287, f. Aſſaſſinated, ibid. & ſeq.
Myronis, iſland in Ethiopia, 190, b.
Myſocuros, the port of, where, 146, d.

N

NAB, river in Germany, [415], a.
Nababurum, where ſituate, 115, c.
Nabathæans, inhabitants of Petrea, 225, a. 239, a. From whom ſo named, 226, c, d. Where ſeated, ibid. e. Way of living, 229, a.
Nabdalſa put to death, 131, d.
Nabuchadnezzar invades Spain, [324], b.
Najd, the province of, where ſited, 239, a.
Najran, an antient biſhoprick in Arabia, 252, d, f.
Naiſſus taken by Attila, 465, f. Deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. (C). Taken by the Oſtrogoths, 520, b.
Nannianus's ſucceſs againſt the Alemans, 594, d.
Naples taken by Beliſarius, 652, b, (Q). Its dreadful ſlaughter, ibid. in fin. not. Beſieged by Totila, 666, e. Taken and diſmantled, 667, d—f.—The exarchate of, 683, c, d. Its extent, 687, a, (S). Extent of its dukedom, 721, a. Dukes, why called conſuls, ibid. b, (B). Why called Sicily, 722, a.——Theodoric's ominous ſtatue ſet up at, 641, c, (M).
Naragara, in Numidia deſcribed, 110, e.
Narbonne, by whom built, 395, d. Taken by the Viſigoths, 509, a. By Theodoric II. 513, f.
Narce taken by Hannibal, 81, b.
Nariſi, who, and where, [407], d.
Nars worſhipped by the Arabs, 248, & ſeq.
Narſes's ſucceſs in Italy, 618, b, c. Invites the Lombards thither, ibid. d, e. Three generals of that name, ibid. f. Joins Beliſarius, 658, f. Falls out with him, 659, c, d. Takes Imola, ibid. e. Accuſed and recalled, 660, b, c. Sent back into Italy, 674, e, f. His huge mixed army, 675, c, d. Succeſs againſt Totila, ibid. e, f, & ſeq. His conqueſts in Italy, 677, c, & ſeq.

Nasamones, who, and where, 171, b. Their cuſtoms, &c. ibid. e, & ſeq. Ravages, 172, a, b. Why ſo called, 180, (A).
Naſberol'neam, a magnificent king of Yaman, 268, c.
Natapa, the reſidence of queen Candace, 185, a, b. Razed by Petronius, ibid. c, 216, a.
Naulobad, taken priſoner and promoted, 599, c.
Naxicæ Inſulæ, where, 112, c, d.
Nazaleod defeated and killed by the Saxons, 447, d, e. Uncertain who he was, ibid. & ſeq.
Neapolitans, unſhaken adherence to the pope, 705, a. Whether ſtill under the emperors, ibid, b, c.
Nebo, a city of Arabia Petrea, 226, b.
Neckar, a river in Germany, [415], a.
Nectaridus, count, ſlain in Britain, 415, c.
Nectiberes, where ſited, 140, d.
Negroes, whether deſcended from Adam, 178, b. The extent of their country, 167, a——c. The reſt ſee under Ethiopia.
Nemetes, who and where ſited, [408], a.
Nemrin, a city in Petrea, 226, b, c.
Nephthalite Hunns, where ſited, 456, c. Subdue the Perſians, ibid. & ſeq. Their character, 457, a, b. Repulſed before Edeſſa, 460, a.
Nepos, M. Manil. ſent againſt Carthage, 97. Beſieges it by land, 100. b.
Neptune, whence ſo named, 118, (C), 378, (E). Worſhipped in Mauritania, 150, d. The firſt king of it, 153, b, c.
Neptys, the meaning of that word, 150, d.
Nero commands in Spain, 58, d.—Buys a vaſt quantity of amber from the Æſtii, [411], b, c.
Nervii, who, 367, (C). Tribes ſubject to them, ibid. Subdued by Cæſar, 399, d.
Neuri, why ſaid to turn into wolves, [427], (R).
Newton, Sir Iſaac's, chronology of Atlas, &c 154, & ſeq. Of Ethiopia and Egypt, vindicated, 297, & ſeq.
Nice, the empire of, when and by whom founded, 286, b, c. Its monarchs, ibid. & ſeq. and 288, b—d.
Nicephorus's ſucceſs againſt the Bulgarians, 627, c, d. Defeated and killed by them, ibid. e, f.
Nicolas's ingratitude to Baſilius, 635, a, b.
Nicomedia taken by the Goths, 495, d.
Nicon goes over to Hannibal, 50, & ſeq. Defeats the Romans at ſea, 59, paſſ. Brave death at Tarentum, 62, d.
Nicopolis taken by the Goths, 497, e. By the Bulgarians, 632, e. Submits to Deleanus, 638, b. Plundered by the Oſtrogoths, 674, f.
Niger, river, a branch of the Nile, 178, a. 188, paſſ. 164, b. Why called Niger, ibid. c. Its courſe, &c. ibid. d, e.
Night-mare, whence ſo called, 442, e.
Nigris, river, where, 160, a.
Nigritæ, who and where, 177, e, & ſeq. The ſame with the Melanogætuli, 164. b. Their commerce, 165, a.
Nigritia, by whom peopled, 164. d, e. 166, b.
Nile deſcribed, 187, a—d Cauſes of its overflow, ibid. e, & ſeq. How divided, 188, paſſ. Capable of being ſtopped by the Abaſſine princes, ibid. d, e, (H). Its names, 189, a. River's courſe and cataracts, ibid. b, (I). Courſe turned by Memnon, 210, e. Etymon of Nile, ibid. (C).
Niſmes, Nemauſus, capital of the Volſcæ, 11, e.
Niſſava, river, in Numidia, 115, f.
Nivaria, iſland, why ſo called, 148, b.
Noah's pretended coming into Spain, 320, a.
Nobatæ, who, and where, 183, c. 217, a. Plunder the empire, ibid. Their religion, &c. ibid. b, (I).
Nocca, Neptune, worſhipped by the Saxons, 442, e.
Nola amuſes Hannibal, till ſuccoured by Marcellus, 35, e, & ſeq. Divided within, 47, e.
Nomades, Libyan. See Libyans, 119, & ſeq.
Nonnius, Phil. governor of Britain, 434, a.
Norba Prætoria, a city in Luſitania, 297, c.
Noricum, how divided, [408], b.
Northumberland, why ſo called, and Valentia, 413, d. Made a kingdom, 450, e. Its extent, 451, & ſeq.
Noti-cornu, promontory of Ethiopia, 190, a.
Noviodunum, Noyons, taken by Cæſar, 399, e.
Nubians, by whom converted, 217, d. Who, and where ſited, 229, c, d, (H).
Nuceria taken and burnt by Hannibal, 36, a, b.
Numantia, its excellent ſituation, 307, (K). Sad cataſtrophe, ibid. &c.
Numerarii in Britain, their office, 417, a.
Numidia, its boundaries, 107, a, b. Its cities, 109, & ſeq. Mountains, promontories, &c. 111, & ſeq. Natural rarities, 112, d, e. 116, c, d. By whom firſt peopled, ibid. f, & ſeq. How far ſubject to the Carthaginians, 117, c. When firſt founded, 121, d, & ſeq. Deſtroyed by peſtilence, 127, c. Made a Roman province, 137, c. Yielded to Genſeric, 593, e.
Numidians ſerve under Hannibal in Italy, 17, d. Bravery againſt the Romans, 18, a—d. Stratagem againſt them, 30, b, c. Defeated by Scipio, 77, & ſeq. 83, b. Aſſiſt the Carthaginians, 117, paſſ. Their government, ibid. & ſeq. Religion, 118, b. When firſt called Numidians, ibid. e. Their language, writing, &c. 119, a. Cuſtoms, ibid. & ſeq. Ride without bridles, 120, a. Arts and ſciences, ibid. & ſeq. Wars with the Carthaginians, 122, & ſeq. With the Romans, 130, & ſeq. Subdued, 137, b, c.
——Micatanian, ſeverely treated by the Carthaginians, 122, c, d.
——Nomonumidæ, who, 133, (P).
Nyza, a city in Arabia Felix, 233, e. A royal reſidence, 234, a.

O

OAKS, among the Gauls, the ſymbol of the Deity, 328, b, c. 329, & ſeq. In veneration with the antient patriarchs, 331, a, b, (G). One dedicated to an hundred deities, 350, b, (E). Sacred among the Germans, [416]. And in Britain, 406.
Obal, the ſon of Joktan, gives names to places in Ethiopia, 193, a, b.
Octa, the Saxon, comes into Britain, 443, e. Settles in Northumberland, 444, a.
Octar, king of the Hunns, wars with the Burgundi, 458, b.
Octavius ſeizes on the Carthaginian tranſports, 73, b.
Odin worſhipped by the Germans, [419], c. Their notion of him, ibid. & ſeq. & (D), (E), (F). Made a northern hero, 420, a, b.—king of the Aſgardians, 489, b.
Odoacer yields his conqueſts to the Goths, 516, b—d. Makes himſelf king of Italy, 523, b. Put to flight by Theodoric, ibid. e, f. Recovers part of it, 524, b, c. Defeated afreſh, ibid. d. Beſieged in Ravenna, ibid. & ſeq. Surrenders, and put to death, 525, b, c.
——a Saxon, defeated by Childeric, 564, c.
Odotheus, king of the Greuthongi, invades the empire, 504, b. Defeated and ſlain by Theodoſius, ibid. c, d.
Ognius, one of the names of Mercury, 357, (T). Lucan's merry deſcription of him explained, ibid.
Ohud, mount, where ſited, 237, d.
Oleaſtrum, the promontory of, whence ſo called, 145, b.
Olica, kingdom, watered by the Nile, 189, in fin. (I).
Olevico, an ally of the Romans, 369, b.
Olicana, where, and by whom rebuilt, 412, a.
Oliſippo, Liſbon, metropolis of Luſitania, 296, d.
——the port of, 298, f.
Olympius, the exarch, ſucceſs againſt the Saracens, 691, d. Death, ibid. e.
Oman, the province of, where, 233, a, b.
—— the city of, abandoned, 235, c, d.
Omanitæ, who, and where ſited, 233, a.
Ombros, iſland, why uninhabited, 148, a.
Ophiuſa, iſland, deſcribed, 308, e.
Ophiophagi, their ſite, food, &c. 184, d.
Opitergum taken by Rotharis, 691, a.
Opone, a port in Ethiopia, 190, a.
Orbitum taken by the Lombards, 686, d.
Orcades iſlands diſcovered, 414, a. Plundered by the Saxons, 443, e.
Ordeals uſed among the Gauls, 334, a.
Ordovices, who, and where ſited, 410, e, & ſeq. Their noble character, 411, e.
Oreſpodan hills, where, 307, (K).
Oreſtes ſent by Attila to Conſtantinople, 469, f. His marriage and iſſue, ibid. (D). Character and death, ib. When he left Attila's ſervice, 472, a.
Orgetorix raiſes a new war in Helvetia, 397, d. Defeated by Cæſar, ibid. e, f.
Oringis taken by the Romans, 69, a.
Orleans taken by Attila, 474, b—e. Saved by Ætius, 475, a—c. Taken by Childeric, 564, b.

Orocles's miſdemeanour and odd puniſhment, 611, c.
Oroſcopa beſieged by Maſiniſſa, 96, c.
Orus, Sicorus, a fabulous king of Spain, 320, d.
Oſarſiphus, Uſorthon, rebels againſt the Ethiopians, 210, e.
Oſiris overcomes Geryon, 319, d, & ſeq.
Oſtorius Scapula's forts in Britain, 410, c. The ruins of, extant, ibid. His ſucceſs againſt them, 430, a. Death, ibid. d.
Oſtriches, how caught by the Ethiopians, 200, f.
Oſtrogotha, a Bathian prince, 492, d. Defeats the Gepidæ, 494, a, b.
Oſtrogoths driven out by the Hunns, 459, b. Paſs the Danube, ibid. e. Settle in Pannonia, 482, a. 518, d. Whence ſo called, 487, e. Where ſeated, 492, d. Subject to the Hunns, ibid. f, & ſeq. Invade the empire, 504, a. Defeated by Theodoſius, ibid. b, &c. Their king, hiſtory, &c. 518, & ſeq. Ravage Illyricum, 519, b, c. Settle in Thrace, 523, d. Where ſettled by Clovis, 572, e, f. Seize upon Arles, 577, c. And Pannonia, ibid. d. Their government in Italy, 640, e, & ſeq. War againſt the Romans, 652, & ſeq. Invaded and plundered by the Franks, 661, b. Outwitted by Beliſarius, 663, b—f. Chuſe a new king, 664, b, c. War againſt Narſes, 674, & ſeq. Cruelty to the Romans, 677, d, e. Defeated by them, 678, b, c. Submit to them, ibid. d, e. Suffered to enjoy their liberty, 679, d, e.
Otacilius's ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, 46, a. Plunders in Africa, 56, a, b.
Otranto relieved by Beliſarius, 668, b, c. Taken by John, 671, b, c.
Otta, third king of Kent, 449, c.
Ottadini, who, and where ſeated, 413, d.
Ox, an, ſaid to have ſpoken at Rome, 10, c.
Oxyntas ſet up to ſucceed Jugurtha, 135, b.

P

PACATIANUS, the firſt vicar in Britain, 419, a.
Pactius and Vitius treat with the Romans, 62, b.
Palatuus, an antient king of Spain, [321], f.
Palentia, by whom built, [321, f. Deſtroyed by the Goths, 513, d.
Palermo taken by Beliſarius, 652, b.
Paleologus's treachery to J. Laſcaris, 288, e, f, & ſeq.
Paliuri lake, where, 170, c.
Palma, a city in Majorca, 308, c.
Pampelona taken by the Viſigoths, 514, d.
Pamphagi, their ſite, food, &c. 184, d.
Pan, worſhipped in Ethiopia, 197, a.
Pancratius, a lying mathematician, ſlain, 627, b.
Pannonia, erected into a county, 644, b, c.
Parætonium deſcribed, 167, d.
Paran, a city of Arabia Petræa, 226, b.—Deſert, 227, d.
Paraſite, its antient meaning, 365, b, (L).
Paris taken by Childeric, 514, b. Made the metropolis of the Franks, 577, f. And of the whole monarchy, 578, a.
Partharit, king of the Lombards, 692, f. Undermined by his brother, ibid, & ſeq. His flight to Chagan, 693, d. Driven thence, ibid. f. Narrow eſcape from Grimoald, 694, a, b. Recovers his crown, 697, c, d. Dies, ibid. f.
Paſcaſinus, biſhop, three years ſlavery under the Vandals, 534, c.
Paſcentius defeated by Ambroſius, 446, c.
Pathros, the land of, where, 181, d.
Patrician, in Italy, his office, 721, c.
Patrimonies of the church, an account of, 699, (W). That of Conſtantine exploded, 706, ſub not. Confiſcated by Leo, 707, e.
Pavia, taken and burnt by Attila, 479, c. Taken by Theodoric, 524, a. By Alboinus, 620, d. Made the metropolis of Lombardy, ibid. e.
Paul, count, killed by Childeric, 564, a.—His brave defence of Rome, 673, a. Kind treatment from Totila, ibid. b——Made exarch of Ravenna, 704, a. Oppoſes the worſhip of images, ibid. & ſeq.
Paulus Æmilius. See Æmilius, 28, & ſeq.—Diaconus, his writings and character, 709, (Z).
Pax, Julia, a city in Luſitania, 298, c, d.
Pays father's account of the Nile's courſe, 189, d, e, (F).
Pedretus, river, in Damnonia, 407, d.
Peninus, Jupiter, why ſo called, 353, d, (M).
Pentapolis, Cyrenaica, why ſo called, 169, e.—In Italy, ſubmits to Luitprand, 704, f. Given to the pope, 712, f, & ſeq.
Penula, M. Centen.'s raſhneſs and defeat, 55, c.
Pepin aſſiſts the pope againſt the Lombards, 711, e. & ſeq. Succeſs againſt Aſtulph, 712, e, f, & ſeq. Anſwer to Copronymus's embaſſadors, 713, e, f. Donations to the pope, 714, a, b. Confirmed and inlarged by Charlemagne, 718, f.
Peredeus's brave defence of Ravenna, 703, c—e. Death, ibid.
Perennis complained againſt, 432, c. His fatal end, ib. d.
Perſians help to form the Numidians, 117, e. Why called Numidæ, 118, a.
Perſic alphabet, 256, & ſeq.
Perſius's ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, 59, e.
Pertinax quells the mutineers in Britain, 432, d, e.
Perugia beſieged by Totila, 671, c. Taken, 672, b.
Peter ſucceeds his father Simeon, 632, b. Peace and alliance with Romanus, ibid. e, d.—Sent duke of Naples, 705, b, c.
Petilia's noble defence againſt Hannibal, 38, c. 40, f. Surrendered, 41, a. Diſarmed by him, 77, a.
Petilian women, ſignal bravery, 40, f.
Petilius Cerealis's ſucceſs in Britain, 430, f, & ſeq.
Petra, metropol. of Arabia Petrea, 225, a. Why ſo called, ibid. b. Its ſite and deſcription, ibid, b, c, (D).
Phamæas deſerts the Carthaginians, 101, a.
Phara, where ſited, 223, e. 226, b. One of the boundaries of Arabia, 223, e.—The promontory of, 227, c.
Pharamond, the time of his defeat and death, 550, c. Of his reign, 558, f, & ſeq. Where buried, 559, c, d. Whether he compiled the Salic laws, ib. e.
Pharuſii, from whom deſcended, 149, b, c, (K). A tribe of Gætulians, 161, b. Of Perſic extract, ibid. d.
Phenicians plunder Spain, [323].
Pheretima's reception at Salamis, 172, f Gets the government of Cyrenaica, 173, a. Her revenge on the Barcæ, ibid. b, c.
Phial, the holy, at Rheims, the fable of, 570, c.
Phileas's treachery and puniſhment, 50, e.
Philip's embaſſy to Carthage, 42, b. And treaty, ibid. c. His embaſſadors ſent priſoners to Rome, 43, & ſeq. His ſecond treaty, 44, d, e. Separate peace with Rome, 64, f. Aſſiſts the Carthaginians, 82, b, c.
Philippopolis, plundered and taken by the Hunns, 468, f. By the Goths, 494, c.
Philomenes betrays Tarentum to Hannibal, 50, f, & ſeq. —His treachery and diſmal end, 62, d.
Phocra, mount, where ſited, 145, (D).
Phœbi Promontorium, where, 145. b.
Phormio, the philoſopher, reproved by Hannibal, 87, a.
Phruræſus, mount, where, 115, e. By whom inhabited, 161, b.
Phrygia, ravaged by the Goths, 495, d. 506, e.
Phut, where firſt ſettled, 116, f, & ſeq. 149, paſſ.—River, 171, a.
Phutæi, their excellent uſe of the ſhield, 151, d.
Phylarchs, among the Gætulians, their office, 162, b, (C).
Picenum laid waſte by the Romans, 658, b.
Picts, who, and where ſited, 403, c. Whether the ſame with the Britons, ibid. d, & ſeq. Different from the Scots, 414, b, c. When firſt diſtinguiſhed in hiſtory, 435. b, (Q). Submit to Julian, ibid. c. Invade the Romans, ibid. d. Subdued by Theodoſius, ibid. e. By Conſtantine, 436. Repulſed by Honorius, 437, c—e. Freſh invaſion, 438, & ſeq. And repulſe, 439, d.
Pipa, whether married to Gallienus, 552, b.
Piſidia, ravaged by Tribigil, 506, e.
Pithom, a city in Arabia etrea, 226, b, c.
Pityuſæ, iſles, deſcribed, 308, e.
Placidia married to Ataulph, 509, a. Sent back by Wallia, ibid. e.
Planets, worſhipped by the Arabs, 246, b. Their ſeven temples to them, ibid. c. Names and worſhip, ibid. & ſeq.
Plantius's ſucceſs againſt the Britons, 428, c, & ſeq. Joined by Claudius, 429. a——c. Made governor, ibid. d Further conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq.
Plintha's ſhameful peace with the Hunns, 464, c.
Pliny's partial account of the Gauls, 362, d, & ſeq. & notes.
Pluto of the Gauls, who, 357, b, & ſeq.

Poets, in high esteem among the Arabs, 258, a, b.
Pole, over Apollo, what, 356, a, (S).
*Poli*gnac, the antient temple of, 356, b, c.
Pollentia, a city in Majorca, 308, c.
Poltron, whence that word, 360, in fin. (C).
Pomerania invaded by the Goths, 487, c, & seq.
Pomponius, Vejentan, defeated by Hanno, 50, d, e.
——— the Gaulish bard, his danger and vow, 365, (K).
Popes hatch the destruction of the Lombardic kingdom, 702, b. The beginning of their sovereignty, 705, d, & seq. & (Y). How confirmed, 710, b. Put in possession of Ravenna, &c. 714, c. Whether invested with the sovereignty of them, ibid. & seq.
Popilius made to pass under the yoke, 396, a.
Porta's arrival at Portsmouth, 447, c, d.
Portæ, Caucasia and Caspia, where, 456. a.
Portreve, Cinqueport, whence so called, 408, f.
Portugal, whence so called, 304 in fin. (B).
Portus Magnus Portsmouth, 407, f.
Post. and Ante-verta Diana, why so called, 358, a.
Postbumius's success against the Franks, 552, f.
Præpositi of Britain, their office, 417, d.
Prasum, promontory in Ethiopia, 190, a.
Prefects, Roman, their office and station in Britain, 418, pass.
Premis taken by Petronius, 185, b, c.
Priam, whether the first king of the Franks, 550, b—e.
Principius killed at Rome, 657, d.
Prion river, where, 235, f.
——city, where sited, ibid. f, & seq.
Prionotus, mount, in Yaman, 235, e.
Priscillianists first appear in Spain, 331, b.
Priscus, Julian's conjurer, put to death by the Goths, 505, e.
Probus's success against the Goths, 498, c, d. Against the Vandals, 528, d——f. Franks, 553, c, d. Quadi, 603, b, c. Permits vines to be planted in Gaul and Germany, [413], d.
Procopius's history defective, 572, & seq.
Procus, bishop's, sermon against the Hunns, 462, e.
Procularis yielded to Genseric, 533, e.
Promontorium Magnum, where, 115.
Proterus, the philosopher, put to death by the Goths, 505, e.
Prusias, king, betrays Hannibal to the Romans, 91, e.
Pseboa, lake, in Ethiopia, 190, a. Island, ibid. (M).
Psecha taken by Petronius, 185, b, c.
Psylli, who, and where sited, 171, b—d. Tragical end, ibid. e.
Ptolemais, Barce, a city in Cyrenaica, 169, e.
Ptolemy, the son of Juba, his pedigree, 157, (S).
Publius's ill success in Spain, 48, d, e.
Pudni, a city in Arabia Felix, 234, a.
Punic war, second, the causes of, 1, & seq. 6, e, f. end of, 84, pass.
Purple fish plentiful in Gætulia, 161, a.
Purpurariæ insulæ, where, 147, a. Whether the modern Madeiras, ibid. (G).
Pygmies, where seated, 183, c, d.
Pyrenean mountains, whence so called, 307, (K). Set on fire, [323], d, e.
Pythagoras's journey into Gaul, 357, (V). 361, (E).

Q

QUADI, who, and where sited, 408, d. 602, d. Their cities, ibid. War with Rome, ibid. e. Submit to Antoninus, ibid. Peace with Rome made and broken, ibid. f, & seq. New one with Commodus, 603, a, b. Ravage Illyricum, ibid. b, c. Defeated by Carus, ib. d. Fresh ravages, ibid. d, e. Peace with Constantius, ibid. e. New ravages and conquests, ibid. & seq. In Gaul, 604, b, c. Their end, ibid. d.
Quadrigati, a coin, why so called. 36, (O).
Quintianus. bishop, driven out by the Arians, 575, c.
Quintilian the orator where born, 313, f.
Quintilus's success against the Goths, 497, e.
Quintinus's unhappy expedition against the Franks, 557, d, e.
Quintius, D. slain by the Carthaginians, 59, e.
Quisa, where situate, 114, e.

R

RACHIS chosen king of the Lombards, 709, a. His new edict, ibid. b. Conquests, ibid. c. Turns monk, ibid. d, e. His statue at Barletta, ibid. (A). Dissuaded by the pope from resuming the crown, 715, d.
Radagaisus repulsed by Stilicho, 461, c, d.
Radwa mount, where, 238, b.
Rætia, how divided, [409], c.
Rætii, who, and where sited. ibid. c, d.
Ragaisus, when he reigned over the Franks, 551, a.
Ragilo slain by the Franks, 681, a.
Ragnacharius, king of the Franks, 566, c. Assists Clovis against the Romans, ibid. & seq. Betrayed and murdered by him, 579, f, & seq.
Raptum, a promontory of Ethiopia, 190, a.
Raspa ravages Asia, 495, b.
Ratisbon, by whom built, [416], a.
Ravenna besieged by Belisarius, 662, d, e. Taken, 663, d. Erected into an exarchate, 679, e. Plundered by Luitprand, 702, & seq. Reduced into a dukedom, 703, b. Retaken by Scholasticus, ibid. d, e. The end of its exarchate, 710, d. Duration, 711, a. Genv to the pope 714, b, c.
——bishops of, claimed the precedency of all bishops, 710, e, & seq.
Rauraci, who, and where seated, 408, a.
Rausimodes, king, defeated and killed, 608, d.
Reccard, king of the Visigoths, 492, e.
Reccensuinthus, king of the Visigoths, 492, e.
Rechiarius crowned at Merida, 544, a. His plunders, ibid. b Peace with Rome, ibid, c. Invades it, ibid. d. Turns christian, 546, e. Invades Carthagena. 512, Haughty answer to Theodoric, ibid. e. Defeated and put to death by him, 545. a.
Rechila made king of the Suevi, 543, e. His conquests, ibid. & seq. Death, 544, a.
Rechimir, king of the Visigoths, 492, e.
Rectores, in Italy, their office, 721, c.
Regem, river in Bohemia, [415]. a.
Regillianus's success against the Sarmatians, 607, d. Murdered, ibid e.
Regnares killed for his treachery to Narses, 679, b, c.
Regni, in Britain, where sited, 408, a, b.
Regnomer murdered by Clovis, 580, c.
Regnum, now Ringwood, 408, b.
Reguli in Gaul, their power. 368. a, b, (D).
Reidogothland. See Jutland, 489, e.
Rekem the same with Petra, and Joktheel, 225, a.
Remigius, bishop, converts the Franks, 569, d, e. His character, ibid. f.
Remismond ravages Lusitania, 513, e. 514, e. And Galicia, 545, f. Succeeds Maldra, 546, a. Peace with Theodoric, ibid. c, d. Broken, 547, a. Ravages Lusitania, ibid. c. Peace with Euric, ibid. d. Death, ib. e.
Requiarius. See Rechiarius, 544, & seq.
Retiarium taken by Attila, 465, f. Described, ibid. (C).
Renda heads the Scots into Britain, 404, b.
Rex, whence that word, 368, (D).
Rhegium's noble defence against Hannibal, 41, b.
Rhemi subdued by Cæsar, 400, c.
Rhine, river, used for trying the fidelity of wives, 334, a. (I). Its head and course, [414], d, e.
Rhing, the royal palace of the Hunns, plundered, 485, c.
Rhisophagi, where seated, 183, e. 184, c. Infested with lions, 200, d, e.
Rhodians settle in Spain, [323], c.
Ricared, king of the Visigoths, 492, e.
Richarius murdered by Clovis, 579, f, & seq.
Ricimer, king of the Franks, 551, b. Success against Genseric, 535.
Riisland conquered by the Goths, 489, d.
Rimini, Ariminum, where situate, 17, a. Taken by the Lombards, 622, b. By the Romans, 658, b. Besieged by the Ostrogoths, ibid. d. Relieved, 659, b.
Riotham, king of Bretagne, defeated by Euric, 454, d, 515, b.
Ripuarian Franks, who, and where seated, 568, d. Proclaim Clovis their king, 578, d, & seq. Their territories, 579, a. Character, laws, &c. ibid. b, c.
Roas, Rougas, king of the Hunns. defeated, and killed, 462, d, (B). Succeeded by Attila and Bleda, 464, b.
Rodric, king of the Visigoths, 492, e.
Rodoald defeats the Sclavonians, 692, c. Made duke of Benevento, ib. His death, ib. d.
——king of the Lombards, murdered, 692, e.
Rodolinda and her son seized on by Grimoald, 693, d.

Rodolphus defeated by the Lombards, 599, f, 617, a.
Rollin's partiality confuted, 99, a—c.
Romagna ſubmits to Luitprand, 704, f. Given to the pope, 714, b.
Romans, embaſſy to Hannibal, 3, & ſeq, To Carthage, 6, c. Declare war againſt it, ib. d, e. Frighted by omens, 10, c, d. 17, d, e. Defeated ibid. & ſeq. Their camp burnt, 18, d. New defeat, 21, & ſeq. At Cannæ, 30, & ſeq. By Mago, 55, paſſ. Defeat the Carthaginians, 60, & ſeq. 82, & ſeq. Peace with them, 83, & ſeq. Betray them to Maſiniſſa, 85, b. Jealous of Hannibal, ibid. e, f. Embaſſy againſt him, 86, c, d. Treachery to the Carthaginians, 93—95, paſſ. Send Cato to them, ib. f. & ſeq. Villainous behaviour towards them, 90, e. New war againſt them, 97, b, c. Perfidy to them expoſed, 99, & ſeq. Their government in Britain, 416, & ſeq. Officers, 417, paſſ. Stations, 418, a——d. Forces, ibid. e, f. Give names to the principal towns in Britain, 419, c, d. Their highways there, ibid. & ſeq. Exhauſt it of its men, 420, b, c. Forſake the iſland, 437, e. Driven out of part of Gaul, 509, & ſeq. 514, b. Out of Spain, ibid, & ſeq. Defeated in Afric, 533, c, d. In dread of the Vandals, 534, a, b. Driven out of Gaul, 570. Invaſion of Gaul, Germany, &c. ſee under thoſe reſpective articles.
Romanus ſent priſoner to Conſtantinople, 632, f, 633, c. Why unfit for the crown, ibid. &c.
——exarch of Rome, defeated by Agilulf, 685, a.
Rome taken by Beliſarius, 655, a, b. Beſieged by Vitiges, 656, e, & ſeq. Under the plague and famine, 657, e. Relieved, 658, a, b. Beſieged by Totila, 668, e, f. Its dreadful condition, 669, paſſ. Surrendered and plundered, ibid. & ſeq. Retaken and rebuilt by Beliſarius, 670, e, f. Betrayed to Totila, 672, f. And repaired, 673, c. Retaken by Narſes, 677, d. Diveſted of its privileges, 679, e. Reduced into an exarchate, 683, c. Its extent, ibid. &c. Ravaged by the Lombards, 685, b, c. Revolts from the emperor, 705, d, (Y). Beſieged by Luitprand, 707, b. The reſt ſee under Popes.
Romuald receives the Bulgarians into Benevento, 624, e, f. Defends it againſt Conſtans, 695, b, c. Defeats him, ib. e, f. Dies, 700, c.
——II. conqueſts on Naples, 701, a. Death, ib. b.
Romulea, Colonia, in Spain, where, 301, a.
Romulus ſent embaſſador to Attila, 472, a.
Romus, an antient king of Spain, [321], d.
Roſamond cauſes Alboinus to be murdered, 620, e, f, & ſeq. Her flight and puniſhment, 621, e, f, & ſeq.
Roſes, Cyrenean, their excellence, 171, a.
Roſicruſian notions, their origin, [418], (C).
Rotharic put to death by Aripert, 699, b.
Rotharis choſen king of the Lombards, 689, f. Gives the firſt laws to them, 690, a—c, (U). His conqueſts, 691, a, b. Death and character, ibid. e,——a traitor againſt Luitprand, murdered, 701, d, e.
Rowena, Hengiſt's daughter, whether married to Vortigern, 443, c, d.
Roxolana. See Riiſland, 489, d.
Roxolani, who, 604, e, & ſeq. Succeſs in Mœſia, 605, c. Cut off by M. Aponius, ibid. d. Become penſioners to Rome, 606, b.
Rubricatus, river in Numidia, 112, a. In Tarracon, 304, a.
Rufinus ſtirs up the Hunns, 460, paſſ. And the Viſigoths, 504, e, f. Undermines Stilicho, 505, paſſ.
Rugians, who, 664, e, f. Settled in Illyricum, 482, a. Submit to Attila, 466.
Runic character, what, and whence ſo called, [428], a, (T). Brought by Woden from Aſia, 489, f. Why condemned, 490, a.
Ruſadir, Ryzadir, where ſited, 142, e.
Ruſatus, where ſituate, 113, c.
Ruſciana taken by Totila, 671, d, e.
Ruſconium, where ſituate, 113, d.
Ruſſi, Roſſi, ſeize on Bulgaria, 632, f. Driven out of it, 633, a, b.
Ruſticana ſaved by Totila, 669, f.
Ruſucurium, where ſituate, 113, c.
Rutubis, the port of, where ſituate, 142, c, 146, d.
Rutupiæ, portus Rutupienſis, where ſituate, 408, d, e.

SABA, the diſtrict, towns, &c. of, 231, a 235, c. The metropolis of the Sabei, 230, e, f.——The famed reſervoir of, 272, a. Broken, and drowns the country, ibid. b, c.
Sabacon, ſo, his reign and retirement, 211, d, e.
Sabæi, who, and where ſited, 230, e, f. How governed, 245, b—d. Their religion, 246, a——c. Tenets, 247, a, b, (Q).
Sabatha, Sabota, metropolis of the Adramitæ, 231, c.
Sabiniana ala, whence ſo named, 414, f.
Sabinianus defeats the Oſtrogoths, 521, f, & ſeq.
Sabit, a ruined port in Ethiopia, 190, b.
Sabius ſtirs up the Capuans againſt the Romans, 33, e.
Saburrus's valour and defeat, 695, e, f.
Sacrum Promontorium, in Luſitania, 298, e.
Sagapola, mount, in Gætulia, 160, e.
Sagunti, the port of, where, 146, c.
Saguntines, their origin, 2, d. Noble defence, 3, a, b. Maſſacre, 5, & ſeq.
Saguntum, where ſited, 2, d. Siege and cataſtrophe of, 5, & ſeq.
Sahara, river in Gætulia, 160, e.
Sala, where ſited, 142, c.——River, 145, a.
Salabus, defeated by Geta, 159, b. Peace with him, ib. c.
Salacia, a city in Luſitania, 298, b.
Salah, a prophet of the Arabs, who, 242, e, f. His miracles and death, 243, a, b.
Salapia, taken by the Romans, 59, b.
Salathus, river, in Gætulia, 160, e.
Salca, Bæbius, baſely bribed by Jugurtha, 130, b.
Saldæ, where ſituate, 113, b.
Salera taken by Scipio, 76, d.
Salii, who, and whence, 548, a. Why ſo called, 549, d, e. Submit to Julian, 556, e.
Salmantica, Salamanca, a city in Luſitania, 297, e, f, & ſeq.
Salſum Flumen, in Numidia, 116, b.
Salt, houſes built with, in Libya, 177, e.
Saluſtius, legate of Britain, put to death, 431, e.
Samercand, by whom built, 268, d.
Sammnium plundered by Hannibal, 23, d. Taken by the Lombards, 683, e.
Samuel, choſen king of the Bulgarians, 633, c. His horrid ravages, ibid. d. Defeated by Baſilius, ibid. e, f. Freſh conqueſts, 634, b, c. Defeated by Uranus, ibid. d, e. By Baſilius, 635, c, d. Breaks his heart, ib. e.
Sanaa, metropolis of Yaman, 230, f. Deſcribed, 235, a, b.——The palace of it, ibid. c.
Sangiban, king, who, 476, c, (K).
Saphar, the frankincenſe of, 232, e.
Sapphoritæ, who, and where ſited, 232, d.
Sapur's cruelty to the Arabs, 273, b.
Saracenic alphabet, 257.
Saracens, who, and where ſited, 227, b. 233, b, c. Why ſo called, 240, c, d, (N), 241, b——d. Penſionary to the empire, 283, f, & ſeq.
Saragoſſa taken by the Viſigoths, 514, d.
Sardi ſend an embaſſy to Carthage, 42, a. Defeated by the Romans, 45, d, e.
Sardica, taken by the Bulgarians, 627, c.
Sardinia yielded to the Romans, 1, & ſeq. Taken by the Vandals, 536, d. Recovered by Marcellinus, 538, b, c. Retaken by Genſeric, 539, c.
Sarmatia, its extent, 604, e. Nations, ib. e, f.
Sarmatian giant killed by Conſtantine, 608, c.—Games, whence, 608, d.
Sarmatians ſettled in Illyricum, 482, a. Their names, character, &c. 605, a, b. Firſt irruptions, ib. b. c. Submit to Adrian, 606, a, b. Peace with M. Aurelius, ib. c, d. Where ſettled, ib. e. Defeated by Caracalla, ib. & ſeq. By Maximinus, 607, c, d. Peace with Probus, ib. e, f. Defeated by Carus, ib. & ſeq. By Conſtantine, 608 c, d. Defeat the Goths, ibid. e, f. Submit to Conſtantine, ib. & ſeq. Beaten by the Goths, 609, a. Repulſed and diſperſed by their ſlaves, ibid. b, c. Made free by Conſtantius, ibid. & ſeq. Reſtored to their country, 610, a, b. Freſh inroads and defeats, ibid. b, c. Subdued by the Hunns and Goths, ib. d.

INDEX.

Safus, the golden mines of 215, (H).
Sathagetes ſubmit to Attila, 466, c.
Satarni Promontorium, in Ethiopia, 190, a.
Sazern: rebuilt and fortified, 591, b.
Sazus, river; in Numidia; 116, a.
Saxa, worſhipped by the Arabs, 248, c.
Saxon ſhore, whence ſo called, 408, e, f.
Saxon, firſt ſouth kingdom, 445, & ſeq. Second, 447, & ſeq. Third, weſt, 449, d, & ſeq. Fourth, eaſt, 450, d. Fifth, ib. e. Sixth, Eaſt Angles, 452, d. Seventh, Mercia, 453, b.
Saxons invade the Romans, 435, c. Quelled by Stilicho, 436, c, d. Sail into Britain, 440, a, b, (T). Their origin and ſettlements, ib. & ſeq. Why called Saxons, 441, f, & ſeq. Their manners, &c. 442, b. Government, religion, &c. ib. c, d. Succeſs in Britain, 443, b, & ſeq. Driven out by Vortimer, 444, e, f. Treachery to the Britons, 445, c, d. Victories over them, 446, & ſeq. Leave Italy, and cut off by the Suevi, 680, e, f.
Scalabis, a city in Luſitania; 297, b.
Scandinavia, the antient ſeat of the Goths, 486, b. Deſcribed, ib. & ſeq. Whence ſo called, ib. c. By whom peopled, ib. e.
Scaldi, Scaldri, Gothic bards, why ſo called, 489, f.
Scaurus's ſucceſs and roads in Gaul, 396, a.
Scholaſticus driven out of Ravenna, 702, & ſeq. Recovers it, 703, e. Attempt againſt the pope fruſtrated, 704, a, b.
Scilly iſlands, their tin trade, 402, c. Diſcovered by the Greeks, 405, paſſ.
Scipio oppoſes Hannibal in Gaul, 13, a, b. Swift march after him, 16, & ſeq. Defeated by him, 17, & ſeq. ——Cneius defeats the Carthaginians in Spain, 20, c, d. Afreſh, 26, c, d. 48, e, f. Wounded, 49, a. Defeated and ſlain, 56, d. P. Corn. choſen proconſul in Spain, 58, e. Speech to his army, 59, f. Takes new Carthage, 60, b, c. The vaſt ſpoil of it, ib. d. Politeneſs to ſome female priſoners; ib. f, & ſeq. Beloved by the Spaniards, 62, e, f. Defeats Aſdrubal, 63, b, c. Retires to Tarraco; ib. e, f. Succeſs againſt Hanno, 68, e, f. Reported to be dead, 71, b. Treaty with Maſiniſſa, 72, c, d. Deſcent into Afric, 74, f, & ſeq. Succeſs there, 75, paſſ. Siege of Utica, 76, d. Raiſed, ib. e. Defeats the Carthaginians, 77, & ſeq. Terms of peace to them, 79, d——f. Moderation towards them, 81, a. Interview of Hannibal, ib. & ſeq. Defeats him, 82, e, f. Hard terms of peace, 83, c——e. Severity to the fugitives, 84, c, d. Goes to ſound Hannibal in Syria, 88, a. Oppoſes Cato's war, 106, e.——Æmilianus's ſucceſs before Carthage, 101, e, f, & ſeq. Takes the terrace, 103, b. And Byrſa, ib. d, e. Deſtroys the city, ib. & ſeq. His immenſe booty, 104, c. And library, ib. (S). Divides Maſiniſſa's kingdom, 127, a. —Lucius's ſucceſs againſt Oringis, 69, b.
Sclavi invade the empire, 674, e.
Scordiſci forbid the uſe of gold and ſilver, 384, a, b, (X).
Scots receive and aſſiſt the Picts, 403, c. Their origin, 404, b. Different from the Caledonians, 414, c. When firſt diſtinguiſhed in hiſtory, 435, b, (Q). Submit to Julian, ib. Invade the Romans, ib. c. Repulſed by Conſtantine, 436, e. By Honorius, 437, c—e. Freſh invaſions, 438, & ſeq. Retire into Ireland, 439, d. Repulſed by the Saxons, 443, b.
Scur, river, the battle at, 424, (D).
Scythia ſubmits to Attila, 466, c.
Scythians of Bede, who, 403.—Hunns, their bloody character and cuſtoms, 457, b, c. Government, &c, ib. e, f. The reſt ſee under Hunns.
Seba, by whom founded, 230, a.
Sebe, the head of the Nile, 187, a.
Sedeſi, who, and where ſited, [407], d.
Segobria, capital of the Celtiberi, 307, (K).
Segontiaci ſubmit to Cæſar, 426, b. Where ſited, ib. (F).
Seif ebn D'hu drives the Ethiopians out of Yaman, 271, e. The laſt of Hamyar's race, ib.
Segnæ, who, and where ſited, 413, f.
Sena taken priſoner, 528, c.
Senones, Sennones, who, and why ſo called, [410], a, (G). Ally with the Ædui, 367, (C). Invade the Cluſians, 370, a, b. Brave anſwer to the Romans, ib. &c.
Sempronius recalled againſt Hannibal, 17, a, b. Fatal raſhneſs, 18, c, f. Defeat, 19, b, c. Watches him at Luceria, 47, a. Surpriſed and ſlain, 54, e, f.
Seneca, where born, 313, f.
Sennani, druids, why ſo called, 360, (D).
Sennar watered by the Nile, 187, b. Whether different from Nubia; ib. (E).
Septa. See Ceuta, 139, c.
Sequani, who, 367, c. Subject to the Arverni, ib.
Serbetis Yſer, river, in Numidia, 116, a.
Servia taken by Baſilius, 635, a.
Servilius's ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, 27, b, c. Defeated and killed, 30, f.
Seſac's conqueſt of Ethiopia, 207, paſſ. Civilizes it, 208, & ſeq.
Soſoſtris's vaſt conqueſts, 194, a. Whether the ſame with Seſac, 207, d, e. 208, e, & ſeq.
Seſtiarium, the promontory of, 145, b.
Seth worſhipped by the Sabians, 248, in fin. not.
Sethon, who, and his wars, 211, e, & ſeq.
Severus repulſed before Atra, 283, d, e. His wall in Britain, when built, 415, b, c. Severe expedition againſt the Caledonians, 433, paſſ. Death, ib. e.
—Valentinian's general, ſent into Britain, 435, d.
—the ſenator, ſent to treat with Genſeric, 539, e. His amiable character, ib. Obtains the releaſe of the Roman priſoners, ib. & ſeq.
Seville taken by the Vandals, 531, d. By Rechila, 543, f.
—the church of, given to the Arians, 531, e.
Shaddad, prince of the antient Arabs, 241, e, & ſeq. 267, e.
Shamar, Yaraaſh, twenty-fourth king of Yaman, 268, d.
Shanater, Dhu, depoſed for his incontinence, 269, d.
Sheba, the queen of, a doubtful tradition of her, 195, b—d. Her country and religion, ib. & ſeq. The Abaſſines account of her, 206, & ſeq.
Shekhs, Arab, their office and power, 244, d, & ſeq.
Shewa, the mountains of, 185, d.
Shihr, its frankincenſe famed, 234, d.
Shoaib, the ſame with Jethro, 238, c.
Sicambri, who, 541, a. Ravaged by Cæſar, [438]. d, (M). Submit to Tiberius, 541, a, b. Why ſo ſoon extinct, ib. b, c. Some notions concerning them exploded, 548, a, b.
Sicanus, a fabulous king of Spain, 320, d.
Sicca Venerea, where ſited, 110, e.
Siceleus, a fabulous king of Spain, [321], a.
Sicily ſubdued by Genſeric, 539, d. Yielded to Odoacer, ib. Subdued by Totila, 674, c, d. Recovered by the Romans, 675, b.
—the thema of, 721, c. & ſeq.
Sicoris, river, in Spain, 320, d.
Siconulphus made duke of Salerno, 724, f, & ſeq.
Sido, king of the Suevi, aſſiſts Veſpaſian, 541, f.
Sidonius, a zealous orthodox biſhop, 515, e, f, & ſeq. His character of king Euric, 516, e, f. Retreat from Lions, 583, f.
Siga, where ſituate, 114, f.
Sigebert invaded by the Alemans, 568, d. Murdered by his ſon, 578, b, c.
Sigeric ſucceeds Ataulph in Gaul, 492, e. 509, c. Aſſaſſinated, ib. & 585, & ſeq.
Sigg made king of Franconia, 489, e.
Sigiſmund made a patrician, 581, e. Submiſſive letters to Anaſtaſius, 585, c—e. Murders his ſon Sigeric, ib. e, f. Retirement and penance, 586, a, b. Defeated by Chlotildis's three ſons, ib. c. His death, ib.
Sigtunum, in Sweden, built by Woden, 489, e.
Silingians, who, 509, e. 530, f.
Silphium, the famed plant, deſcribed, 170, d, & ſeq.
Silures, who, and where ſited, 410, e. Brave defence againſt the Romans, 430, paſſ. Subdued by Frontinus, 431, a.
Simeon's ſucceſs and ravages in Macedonia, 629, d, e. Defeated, ib. e, f. Treachery to Leo, ib. f, & ſeq. Peace with him, 630, a, b. Falls out with Alexander, ib. c. Takes Adrianople, ib. d, e. Defeats the Romans, ib. & ſeq. Cruelty to Leo, 631, d, e. Beſieges Conſtantinople, ib. e, f. Makes peace with Romanus, 632, a. Defeated by the Chiobati, ib. b. His death, ib.
Sin, the famed deſert of, 227, c.
Sinai, the mountain of, 227, d.
Sindia, where ſituate, 224, (E).
Singidunum taken by Attila, 465, f. Deſcribed, ib. & ſeq. ſub not.
Sirmium taken by Attila, 465. f. Deſcribed, 466, (L).

Siroco, the wind of, described, 29, in fin. not.
Sisaris, river in Numidia, 115, f.
Sisebatus, Sisenand, } kings of the Visigoths in Gaul, 492, e.
Sitifi, where situate, 115, a.
Sittiorum, Colonia Cirta, whence so called, 296.
Sittius, Pub's success in Numidia, 136, & seq. Death, ib. (U). Success against Juba, and reward, 137, d, e.
Sittones, who, and where, 486, d.
Skiold made king of Jutland, 489, e,
Sclavonians, their signal hospitality, 389, (D).
Sleswick, the antient seat of the Angles, 441, a.
Socrates island, where, 239, d.
Sohar, where sited, 235, e.
Soily, Henry de, erects a new monument to king Arthur, 449, sub not.
Soissons made metropolis of the French by Clovis, 567, b.
Solis, Mons, the promontory of, 145, c.
Sophonisba married to Syphax, 75, b. Her excellent character, 124, f.
Spain described. 294, a. Its limits, names, &c. ibid. & seq. How divided, 295, c, d. Its cities, colonies, &c. 296, & seq. How governed under the Romans, 311, & seq. Suffers a twenty-six years drought, [323], a, b. By what nations invaded, ibid. & seq. When and how subdued by the Carthaginians, [325], & seq. By the Romans, [326], & seq. Stripped of its immense riches, ibid. & seq. & (A). Abandoned by the Vandals. 530, a, b. Its dreadful state occasioned by it, ibid. d.
Spaniards begin to court the Romans, 58, e. Revolt under their reguli, 71, f. Defeated, 72, a, b. Take up arms, 73, c, d. Forced to make peace, 73, c, d. Their religion, 309, & seq. Government, 311, pass. Laws, 312, b—d. Valour and discipline, ibid. e, & seq. Why so hardly conquered, 313, a, d. Arts, sciences, &c. ibid. e, & seq. Antient language, 314, c——f. Why mixed with Hebrew, 315, a——c. When exchanged for the Latin, ibid. d——f. Their writing, 316, a——c. Odd way of computing time, ibid, c——e. Education of children, ibid. f, & seq. Riches and commerce, 317, b——d. Character, ibid. e, f. Fabulous history, 319, & seq.
Spanish bishops, their zeal for their flocks, 530, c.
—women, their hardiness, 302, d, e.
Spartacus defeated and slain, 397, b, c.
Spermatophagi, their site, food, &c 184, c.
Spoleto made capital of Umbria, 620, d. Taken by Belisarius, 670, e.
—the dukes of 696, b. 701, d. Extent of their territories, 721, a.
Sporades, islands in Ethiopia, 190, b.
Squirri, Scirri, who, 462, a. Defeated by the Romans, ib. b. Submit to Attila, 466, c. Regain their liberty, 482, a. Settled in Mœsia, &c. 518, d. Defeated by the Ostrogoths, 519, d.
Stæni, where sited, 395, d. Their desperate end, ib. &c.
Stars. fixed, why worshipped by the Arabs, 246, a, b. Their names, worship, &c. ib. d, &c.
Statorius sent to discipline the Numidian youth, 50, a—c.
Stembal, the son of Masinissa, 126, e.
Stephen, king of Hungary, his success in Bulgaria, 639, b.
——III. pope, his peace with the Lombards, 710, b, c. Invaded by Astulph, 711, pass. Goes to king Pepin, 712, a, b. Stirs him up against the Lombards, ib. & seq. Enriched by him, 714, & seq. Bribed off by Desiderius, 715, d, e.
Stilicho secures Britain against the Picts, &c. 436, c, (R). Success against the Hunns frustrated, 460, b. Marches against the Goths, 505, c. Recalled, ibid. d. Goes to succour Greece, ibid. & seq. Partiality to the Goths, 506, a, b.
Stoboreum, the promontory of, in Numidia, 111, d.
Stonehenge, by whom built, 338, c——e. Whence so called, 339, b. Not a heathen temple, ibid, & seq. Errors about it confuted. 340, pass. & (P). The fabric described, 341, & seq. New conjectures concerning it, 342, & seq. Its stones, whence brought, 343, f. Huge bulk and weight, 344, c, e. Disposition, &c. 345, & seq.
Stora, the gulf of, where, 109, e.
Strata, Julia and Marcella, by whom made, 420, a.
Stratzburgh, metropolis of the Trebocci, [415], a, (R). The battle of, 591.
Strompitza taken by Basilius, 635, e, f.
Struthophagi, &c. where sited, 183, e.
Stuf, the Saxon, arrives in Britain, 449, c.
Stukeley's noble description of Stonehenge, 338, & seq.
Stylita, the hermit, foretels the ill success of the Vandals, 537, c.
Styrax defeated, and sent prisoner, 483, a.
Suani defeat the Saxons, 680, e, f.
Suaquema, island, its torrid heat, 186, b.
Suartas sent king of the Heruli. 600, c.
Subur, river in Tingitania, 145, a. In Gætulia, 160, c.
Suecosii, who, and where sited, 140, d.
Suetonius, Paul, his success in Britain, 430, e.
Suevi, who, and where sited, [409]. d. And settled, 440, b—d, 441, a. Submit to Attila, 466, b. Defeated in Spain 512, c—f. Retire into Galicia, 513, b. Assist the Vandals, 529, c—e. Re-enter Spain, 430, b. Their territories there, ib. f, & seq. Various tribes, 540, c. Whence called Suevi, ib. c. d. Their government, ib. f, & seq. Submit to Augustus, 541, a. Part settle in Gaul, ib. b—d. Some in Friuli, ib. f. Defeat the Romans in Pannonia, 542, a, b. Defeated in Italy, ib. c. Divide Spain, ib. e. Defeated by Wallia, 543, a. Shut up in Biscay, ib. Defeated in Germany, ib. b. Ravage Galicia, ib. c, d. Submit to Theodoric, 545, a, b. War against each other, ib. d, &c. Kill the Romans on Easter day, 546, b. Turn christian, ib. e. Infected with Arianism, ib. Ravages Spain, 547, pass. Settle in Galicia, ib. d.
Suevus, river, whence so named, 540, d.
Suinthila, king of the Visigoths, 492, e.
Suiones, who, and where sited, 486, d.
Sun worshipped by the Mauritanians, 150, d. By the Gauls, 353, & seq. Germans. [418], & seq. Saxons, 442, d.—the fountain of, 169, a.
Sunieric sent against the Suevi, 513, e. 545, e, f. Ravages, 546, b.
Sunno, king of the Franks, 550, b. Ill success against the Romans, 557, f, & seq.
Suomarius sues Julian for peace, 592, a, b.
Sur, the famed desert of, 227, c.
Sussex seized by the Saxons, 445, d. 446, d.
Susurbulus made guardian of Bulgaria, 632, b, c.
Suthul, where situate, 110, f.
Syagrius, governor of Soissons, 566, d. Defeated by Clovis, 567, a. Beheaded by him, ib. b.
Sybi, who, and where sited, 489, c.
Syllæus's treachery to Æl. Gallus, 282, e. Punishment, ibid. f.
Syllanus left to awe the Spaniards, 59, e. Brings Masinissa over to the Romans, 70, e. Retires to Tarraco, ib. & seq.
Symmacchus confirmed pope by Theodoric, 643, e, f. Put to death by him. 645, & seq.
Syphax allies with Rome, 50, a. Flattering letter to the senate, 61, d. Gained by Scipio, 71, c. Brought off by Asdrubal, 75, a. Letter to Scipio, ib. b, c. Defeated, 77, & seq. Joins Asdrubal with fresh forces, 78, b, c. Taken prisoner, 79, c. Defeated by the Numidians, 122, e. Success against Masinissa, 123, & seq. Dethroned by him, 125, b. His end, ib c.
Syracuse plundered by the Franks, 553, d. Taken by Totila, 674, c, d.
Syrtica regio, described, 170, c. Its limits, 175, a, b. Nations, mountains, &c. 176, pass. Islands, ib. f, & seq. To whom subject, 177, a, b.

T

TABRACA, in Numidia, its ruins, &c. 110, c, d.
—island, where sited, 112, d.
Tacalhaimanout, a Coptic saint and apostle, 218, e, & seq. The etymon of his name, 219, a.
Tacatua, where situate, 110, a.
Tacaza, river, falls into the Nile, 187, b. Described, 189, (I).
Tacfarinas's plunders in Afric, 158, a, b. Defeated before Thala, ib. d. By Apronius, ib. e, f. His death, 159, a.
Tacitus's success against the Goths, 498, b, c.
Taei, Tavi Ostium, where, 413, f.
Tasia, and her daughters, turn nuns, 709, e.
Tagus, a fabulous king of Spain, 319, b.
—a river in Lusitania, 299, a. The golden sand of, ib. b.
Taifalæ, who, 498, e. Inroad into the empire, 499, d, e.

Talabrica, a city in Lusitania, 296, e.
Taluda, river, in Tingitania, 144, e.
Tamar, the mouth of, near Plymouth, 407, e.
Tamna, a city in Arabia Felix, 231, e. 239, a.
Tanfana, the temple of, what, [418], b, (C). Worshipped by the Saxons, 442, e.
Tangier See Tingis, 140, & seq.
—the famed cave of, 148, d.
Taran, the Gaulish Jupiter, why so called, 153, c.
Tarentines invite Hannibal, 48, b. Awed by Valerius, ib. c. Surrender to him, 51, & seq. Besiege the citadel, 54, a. Annoyed by the Carthaginians, 59, a. Their sad catastrophe, 62, d, e.
Tarentum taken by Fabius, 62, c. d. Retaken by Belisarius, 670, e. By Totila, 673, e.
Tarraco the metropolis of Tarracon, 303, b. Described, 305, d. Taken by the Visigoths, 514, f, & seq. Destroyed by the Franks, 552, e.
Tarracon, the province of, described, 303, c, & seq. Its different nations, ib. & notes.
—the city of, situation, 305, d, (F). Councils held at, 306. By whom built, [324], a.
Tartessus, where situate, 301, b, (G).
Tasm, an antient Arabic tribe, 242, b.
Tassilo, duke of Bavaria, revolts against the emperor, 485, d, e.
Tato and Caco murdered by Gregory, 688, d, e.
Tatus, king of the Lombards, his success against the Heruli, 617, a Death, ib. b.
Taurinum put to the sword by Hannibal, 16, c, d.
Taytæ, kings of Hira, 275, c.
Tectosagi, who, and where seated, [412] sub (I). Defeated by Sylla, 396.
Tehama, the province of, where sited, 238, e, & seq.
Teja, chosen king of the Ostrogoths, 493, a. 677, a. His character, ib. b. Cruelty to the Romans, ib. d, e. Goes to relieve Cumæ, ib. e, f. Defeated and slain, 678, b, c.
Teichomer chosen king of Bulgaria, 637, e, f. Stoned to death, 638, a.
Telesis chosen king of Bulgaria, 626, b.
Tencteri, who, and where sited, [407], d. Defeated by Cæsar, [438], b—d.
Testa, an antient king of Spain, [321], c.
Tetricus chosen king in Gaul, 403, d. Submits to Aurelian, ibid. e.
Tuetones, Germans, why so called, [406], c. [411], (M). Invade Italy, [435], d, e, & seq.
Tezaga taken by Manil. Nepos, 100, f.
Thabir, mount, where sited, 237, e.
Thaifa, a city in Hejaz, 237, e, & seq.
Thata, the dreadful fate of, 132, b, c.
Thambes, mount, in Numidia, 111, c.
Thamud, a tribe of antient Arabs, 242, e, & seq. Their impiety, 243, a, b.
Thamydeni, who, and where sited, 233, c.
Thanet, island, given to the Saxons, 440, c.
Thapsacus, a city in Arab. Desert. 230, a.
Tharamis worshipped by the Saxons, 242, d.
Thema, a city in Arab. Desert. 230, a.
Themata in Italy, what, 721, c, (C).
Theodatus's treachery to Amalasunta, 650, & seq. War against Justinian, 653, pass. Deposed, 654, c, d. Murdered, ib. e.
Theodemir, king of the Ostrogoths, 493, a. Serves under Attila, 518, d. Defeats the Suevi, &c. 519, e, f. Invades Illyricum, 520, b. His death, ib c.
Theodomir, king of the Franks, 550, b. The same with Pharamond, ib. & 551, b, c.
Theodoret's treachery to the Goths, 655, d, e. 661, b—d. Retires loaden with spoil, ib. &c.
Theodoric, king of the Visigoths in Gaul. 492, e. Subdues Italy, 493, a. Peace with Rome, 510, b. Repulsed before Narbonne, ib. c, d. Defeated by Ætius, ib. d, e. Defeats Litorius, ib. & seq. Peace with Rome. 511, f, & seq. His death, ib. b.
—II. his character, 511, f, & seq. Alliance with Rome, 512, a, b. Success against the Suevi in Spain ib. & seq. Ravages Lusitania, 513, b. Returns into Gaul, ib. c. His conquests there, ib. & seq. Murdered by his brother, 514, c.
—III. sent hostage to Leo, 519, c. Returns richly laden, ib. f. Defeats the Sarmatians, 520, a. Invades the empire, ib. d. Succeeds his father, ib. c. Caressed and deserted by Zeno, ib. d, e, &c. Ravages Thrace. &c. 521, b, c. Defeated, 522, a, b. Goes to Constantinople, ib. c, d. Retires, ib. e. Marches into Italy, 523, c, d. Conquests and victories there, 524, a, &c. Betrayed and shut up in Pavia, ib. c. Assisted by the Visigoths, ib. c, d. Reduces all Italy, ib. & seq. Treachery to Odoacer, 525, c. Proclaimed king of Italy, ib. & seq. Subdues Sicily, ib. e. His alliances, ib. & seq. Confirms the Roman laws, 526, a. And government, ib. b, c. His courts of judicature, ib. d, e. Protects the Alemans, 568, f. Letter to Clovis in their behalf, 569, a, b. Alliance with him, 571, a, b. Outwits him, 572, e, f, & seq. Interposes between him and Alaric, 573, e, f. Second letter to Clovis, 574, a—c. To Gundebald, ib. c. d. To the Heruli, ib. & seq. Opposes the Franks, 576, & seq Falls out with Sigismund, 585, & seq. Outwits the Franks, 587, d, e. His glorious reign, 639, & seq. Acknowledged by the emperor, 640, a—c. Vast territories, ib. d. e. Moderation, ib. & seq. With respect to the Romans, 641, a—d. To religion, ib. & seq. Justice. 642, b, c. Temperance, ib. c, d. Generosity to his captive subjects, ib. & seq. War with Anastasius, 643, a—c. Peace, ib. d. Entry into Rome, ib. f, & seq. Munificence there, 644, a, b. War with the Burgundi, ib. c. With Clovis, ib. d. Chosen guardian to Amalaric, ib. Restores him to his crown 645, a—c. Cruelty to Boetius and Symmachus, ib. & seq. Grief for it, 646, d. Death and offspring, 647, a, b.—Opposes Attila in Gaul, 474, c, d. His bravery at the battle of Chalons. 476, c, d. Death ib. e. Funeral. 477, c.—— Success against the Hunns, 485.——Basilicus's general treats with king Theodoric, 520, e, f. Forces Zeno to shameful articles, 521, a, b.
Theodorician laws, why so called, 517, c, d.
Theodorus, Calliopa, chosen exarch. 691, d.
Theodosius's success in Britain, 435, d, & seq.—Invaded and insulted by Attila, 465, & seq. Treachery to him, 470, a, b. To Constantius, ib. d, e. Receives the Goths into Thrace, 502, f. Blamed for it, 503, b, c.
Theodotus, king of Italy, 493, a.
Thophylact cut off by the Bulgarians, 635, f.
Thervingi. See Visigoths, 459, & seq. 504, a.
Thessalonica, taken by the Bulgarians, 634, b.
Thessaly, ravaged by the Goths. 496 f.
Thuedelinda takes Agilulf for her husband, 684, b. Converts him, ib. d.
Theudis. king of the Goths in Gaul, 492, e.
Theudiselus, king of the Goths in Gaul, 492, e.
Theutat, worshipped by the Saxons, 442, d. In Gaul. See under Mercury, 367, a, b (T). & seq.
Thirmida, its situation uncertain, 110, f.
Thoas the Ætolian's speech against Hannibal, 89, a, b.
Tholosan temple and treasure, by whom built, 355, c, (R). Plundered by Cæpio, 396, a, b. Described, 350, (F), 537, (M). Taken by the Visigoths 509.
Thor worshipped by the Saxons 442, d.
Thorismond's bravery at Chalons, 476, pass. Narrow escape, 477, b. Proclaimed king, ib. c. Returns to his kingdom, ib. e. f. 511, b. Defeats Attila, 480, c, d. Succeeds Theodoric in Gaul, 492, & seq 511, b. Wars with Rome, ib. d. Murdered, ib. e —King of the Ostrogoths, his short reign and death 518, d.
Thrace, wasted by Attila. 468, e, f.
Thrasamond, king of the Vandals in Afric, 427, d.
Thule, the peninsula of where, 598, d.
Thurians revolt from the Carthaginians, 50, d. Receive them afresh, 54, pass. Plundered by Hannibal, 77, a.
Thuringians oft confounded with the Tongrians, 566, (G). Where sited, 657, b.
Thymaterium, where sited, 142, b.
Tiberius, an error about him corrected, 348, (C).—an impostor proclaimed emperor, 707, d.
Tibur put to the sword by Attila, 668, a.
Ticinum, Pavia, fortified by Scipio, 17, c. The battle of, ib. & seq.
Tigre, the mountains of, 185, d.
Tin, fetched by the Phœnicians from Britain, 401, & seq. Discovered by the Greeks, 405.
Tingis, capital of Mauritania Tingitana, 139, a. When, and by whom built, 140, e, f. A gigantic corps dug up at, 141, a. Its other names, ib. b, c.

Tingitania. See Mauritania, 139, & ſeq. When reduced into a Roman province, 157, b.
Tipaſa, where ſited, 113, e.
Tirhakah, who, 211, f, & ſeq.
Tiſata, Hannibal's camp at, 44, & ſeq.
Tiſidium, where ſited, 131, (N).
Titus's ſucceſs in Britain, 429, e.
Tocoloſida, where ſited, 143, c.
Todaſius, choſen king of the Heruli, 600, b.
Togata, Gallia, whence ſo called, 322, a.
Togodunus, defeated by the Romans, 428, b—d. Killed, 429, a.
Toletum, Toledo, where ſited, 306, d, & ſeq.
Tongres taken by Attila, 473, d.
Tongrians, conquered by Clovis, 567, b.
Tor ſin's ſignal fidelity to Ildiſgus, 389, (D).
Torpedoes, their ſtrange effects, 189, (I).
Totila, choſen king of Italy, 493, a. 665, b. Defeats the Romans, 666, b—d. His other conqueſts, ib. e. & ſeq. His letter to the ſenate deſpiſed, 667, e, f. Purſues his conqueſts, 668, paſſ. Enters Rome, 669, d, e. Stern ſpeech to the ſenate, 670, a. Carries them priſoners, ib. d. Second attempt againſt Rome, abortive, ib. f, & ſeq. Takes it afreſh, 672, e, f. Repairs it, and the ſenate, 673, c—e. Conqueſts in Sicily, ib. & ſeq. Reduces it, 674, c, d. Plunders Greece, ib. & ſeq. Offers to the emperor rejected, 675, b. Subdues Sardinia and Corſica, ib. c, d. Marches againſt the Romans ib. f, & ſeq. Defeated and killed, 676, d, e. His character, ib. & ſeq.
Toulouſe metropolis of the Viſigoths, 560, b. The reſt ſee ſub Tholoſe Tournay, taken by Clodio, 560, f, & ſeq. & not.
Tours, Greg. de, his hiſtory defective, 572, & ſeq.
Tragicus lets Hannibal into Tarentum, 51, f.
Trajan's fruitleſs attempt againſt Arabia 232, f, & ſeq.
Tranſilvania part of antient Dacia, 611, a.
Trapezond, the city of, deſcribed, 288, e, (A). —The kingdom of, when and by whom founded, 288, & ſeq. Kings of, 289, & ſeq. Subdued by the Turks, 293, & ſeq.
Trapezontines, their religion, laws, &c. 289, & ſeq.
Trebia, the battle of, 19, & ſeq.
Treves taken by Attila, 474, e. Deſtroyed by the Franks, 558, e, f.
Treviri, who, and where ſeated, [497], e, f, (C). Subdued by Cæſar, 400, d. Raiſe a new war againſt the Romans, [438], d, e, & ſeq.
Tribelin aſſiſts Anaſtaſius, 625, c.
Tribigil raiſes new feuds in the eaſt, 506, d. His death, 507, c.
Tribocci, who, and where ſeated, [408], a.
Tribunes in Britain, their office and ſtations, 418.
Triers, capital of the Treviri, [407], f. By whom built, [415], e.
Trinobantes, who, and where ſited, 426, a. Submit to Cæſar. ib. &c
Triſanto, antient Southampton, 407, f.
Triſtis, where ſituate, 143, c.
Tritum, a promont. in Numidia, 111, d.
Troglodytes, who, and where ſited, 183, paſſ. Their country barren, 184, a, b. Way of living, 201, b, c, (B). Inhuman cuſtoms, ib d.
Troyes, forſaken, 478, d. Burnt by the Goths, 495, b.
Tubal's pretended peopling of Spain, 318, & ſeq. & (A).
Tubulus C Hoſt. ſaves the Salentines, 65, d. Sent to reinforce Fulvius, ib. & ſeq
Tubuſuptus, where ſituate, 115, c.
Tuſa's double treachery, 524, b.
Tugurt, metropol of Wad-Reag, 163, f.
Tuiſco, worſhipped by the Saxons, 442, d.
Tulga, king of the Viſigoths, 492, e.
Tunes, abandoned by Scipio, 78, f.
Tungri, who and where ſeated, [407], e.
Turdetani, ſeverely puniſhed by the Romans, 49, c. Go over to Scipio, 70, c. Settled in Luſitania, 296, b, c.
Turduli, whether the ſame with the Turdetani, 296, b, c. 299, (A).
Turvel, the ſuppoſed capital of the Turdetani, 300, d, (D).
Tuſca, river, whether the modern Zaine, 107, b. 122, b.
Tuſcany, recovered by the Oſtrogoths, 666, e, f.
Tyaout, an Algerine frontier, 107, c.
Tychæus aſſiſts Hannibal, 81, b. At the battle of Zama, 82, c.
Tyrants. Tyranis, whence that word, 368, (D).
Tzana, lake, croſſed by the Nile, 187, a, e, (F).
Tziim in ſcripture, what, 184, a, b.

V

VABAR, promont. where, 115, d.
Vacca, taken by the Romans, 131, a. Retaken by Jugurtha, ibid. b, c.
Vacuata, where ſituate, 140, d.
Vaga, in Numidia, deſcribed, 109, d.
Valachia, part of ancient Dacia, 611, a.
Valemir, king, a great favourite of Attila, 466, e. 518, d. Serves under him, 473, a, b. Defeats the Hunns, 482, b. 519, a. Slain by the Squiri, ibid. e.
Valens's ſucceſs againſt the Goths, 501, & ſeq. Peace with them, 502, a, b.——Fabius, his extortions in Gaul, 402, e, & ſeq. & (Y).
Valentia, the province of, in Spain, 303, & ſeq. City, 306, b. By whom built, ibid. c, & (G). See alſo [321], d, e. In North Britain, whence ſo called, 416, e, f. Governed by conſulars, 417, b. Made a 5th province, 435, e.
Valentine's revolt in Britain, cruſhed, 436, a.—I. Marches againſt the Quadi, 604, b. His ſudden death, ib. c.
Valentinian III. embaſſy to Attila, 471, & ſeq. Overreached by him, 472, & ſeq. Preparations againſt Genſeric, 534, paſſ Peace with him, ib. d, e.
Valentinian's ſucceſs againſt the Alemans, 593, paſſ.
Valerianus killed before Rome, 657, c.
Valerius's ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, 64, e. 69, c.
Valhala, Odin's paradiſe, deſcribed, [419], paſſ. & notes.
Valhall, among the Saxons, what, 442, e. & ſeq.
Vallona, a river in Tingitania, 144, e, (C).
Vandals, defeated by the Goths, 498, f, & ſeq. Driven out of Andaluſia, 509, f, & ſeq. Their origin, 527, a. Why ſo called, ibid. e. Character, religion, &c. ib. & ſeq. Alliances and conqueſts. 528, a. Repulſed by Aurelius, ib. c. Seize on Gaul, ib. b. Defeated by Probus, ib. & ſeq. Settled in Cambridgeſhire, 529, a. Others in Thrace, ib. b. Revolt and defeated, ibid. Invade Gaul, ib. c. Horrid ravages, ibid. d, e. Defeated by Conſtantine, ib. e, f. Enter Spain, 530, a. Divide it with the Alans and Suevi, ib & ſeq. Humbled by Wallia, 531, b, c. Freſh ravages, ib. d. In Afric, ib. e, f. Refuſe to return into Spain, 533, a. Repulſed before Hippo, ibid. b, c. Beat the Romans, ibid. c, d. Defeated in Campania, 535, f. Vain attempt on Alexandria, 537, c. Settled in Afric, 559, & ſeq.
Vandalufia, Andaluſia, whence ſo named, 531, a.
Vandelſburgh, in Cambridgeſhire, whence ſo named, 529, a.
Vangio and Fido reign over the Suevi, 541, e, f.
Vangiones, who, and where ſited, [408], a.
Vannius made king of the Suevi, 541, e. Baniſhed, ibid. f.
Varro's character and fatal raſhneſs, 28, & ſeq. Defeat and flight, 30, & ſeq. Ill advice to the Romans, 33, b, c.
Vaſſo, the famed temple of, in Gaul, 351, & ſeq.
Vates, among the Gauls, their office, 365, b.
Vataces, John Ducas, ſecond emperor of Nice, 287, c, d.
Ubii, who, and where ſited, [407], e. [415], c. Outwitted by Cæſar. 438, d, (M).
Velir, one of the ſons of Woden, 489, d.
Velpi, mountains in Cyrenaica, 170, c.
Venedi ſubdued by Hermanaric, 502, c.
Venedic bay, whence ſo called, 486, c.
Venedotia the antient name of South Wales, 454, a.
Veneti ſubdued. 399, a.
Venetians, their low beginning, 479, (L). Territories, trade, &c. 720, c, d.
Venice founded, 479, c. Taken by the Franks, 672, e.
Venta Belgarum, Wincheſter, 407, f. Silurum, Kaerwent, 411, a.
Venuſia taken by Hannibal, 23, d.
Verbicæ, where ſited, 140, d.
Vercingetorix defeated by Cæſar, 399, e. 340, a, b.
Vermina joins Hannibal in Afric, 81, b. Defeated, 83, b, c, f. Succeſs againſt Maſiniſſa, 124, d, e.
Verona, the Romans ſhameful attempt againſt, 665, paſſ. Taken by the Hunns, 479, b. By the French, 717, f.
Verſotina worſhipped by the Ethiopians, 197, a, b.
Verves, where ſited, 140, d.
Verulam, St. Albans, 409, b, c. Taken by Cæſar, 426, b, c.

INDEX.

Veſpaſian's ſucceſs in Britain, 429, e.
Veſuni, who, 160, (B).
Vetalla-beedh, Cimbrian iſlands, why ſo called, 484, e.
Veteræ, the Roman ſtation of, 412, d.
Vexalla, the eſtuary of, 407, d.
Uffa founds the ſeventh Saxon kingdom, 452, e. His ditch, 453, e.
Vibius, Ver. poiſons himſelf at Capua, 58.
Vicar of Britain, his office, 417, a, b. Enſigns, ibid. c. The firſt, 419, a Victims, human, offered by the Gauls, 329, a 353, & ſeq.
Victobales, who, 609, b.
Victumviæ taken by the Carthaginians, 20, e.
Vidimir, king of the Oſtrogoths under Attila, 418, d. Settled in Pannonia, ib. & ſeq. Invades the empire, 520, a. His death, ib. b.
Vienne yielded to the Burgundi, 583, d, e.
Vigilius obtains a peace from Attila, 469, b, c. Ordered to murder him, 470, a. Forgiven by him, ib. c.
Villius, P. ſent to Hannibal, 87, f. Undermines him, 88, d.
Viminacium taken by the Hunns, 465.
Vindebona, capital of Auſtria, [408], b.
Vindelici, who, and where ſited, [408], b.
Vindex's revolt, defeat, and death, 402, paſſ. & (X).
Vinmald procures Childeric's liberty, 563, b. And reſtoration, 564, d.
Viriatus's ſucceſs againſt the Romans, [327], b. Aſſinated by Servil. Cæpius, ib d.
Viroconium, capital of the Cornavii, 410, d.
Viſigoths permitted to ſettle in Thrace, 459, c, d. Invade Italy, 493, d. Found a kingdom in Gaul, ib. e. Where ſeated, 492, d. Settled in Thrace 504, a. Serve under Theodoſius, ib. e, f. Wars with the Romans, 509, & ſeq. In Spain, 510, & ſeq. Return to Gaul, 513, d. Defeated by the Romans, ib. & ſeq. Conqueſts in Gaul, 515, & ſeq. Profeſs Arianiſm, ib. f, & ſeq. The end of their kingdom in Gaul, 518, b.
Viſtula, river in Germany, [414], e, f.
Viſumar defeated by the Goths, 499, a.
Viſurgis, river in Franconia, [415], a.
Vitberic abandons his country to the Hunns, 459, b, 502, d. Retires into Podolia, 518, c.
Vithicabius murdered, 593, d.
Withmir, king of the Oſtrogoths, 502, d. Slain by the Hunns, 459, b, 518, c.
Vitiges, king of Italy, 493, a. His election, 654, c. Betrayed by Mataſuenta, ib. & ſeq. Wars with the Romans, 655, paſſ. Marches againſt Beliſarius, ib. f, & ſeq. Repulſed by him, 656, a, d. Ill ſucceſs before Rome, 658, a—c. Repulſed before Rimini, 659, a, b. Embaſſy to Coſrhoes, 660, e, f. Beſieged in Ravenna, 662, d, &c. Offers of peace rejected, 663, a, b. Carried off priſoner, ib. e, f. His death, 664, a.
Vitus defeated by the Suevi, 544, a.
Uldin, king of the Hunns, 458, a. Aſſiſts the Romans, 461, c. Defeats and kills Gainas, ib. e, f. Invades the Romans, ib. & ſeq. Defeated, 462, a, b.
Ulitheus defeated and killed, 658, b.
Ulprana taken by Theodoric, 520, b.
Ulus, a fabulous king of Spain, [321], b.
Umbri, Aborigines, of Italy, 323, d, e.
Umbria plundered by Hannibal, 22, e. Made a duchy by Alboinus, 620, d.
Unelli ſubdued, 399, a.
Unulf's fidelity to Partharit, 694, a, b.
Voliba, antient Falmouth, 407, d.
Volſcæ, who, and where ſited, 11, b, (E)—Tectoſagi ſubdued by Marcius, 395, d.
Volſcentes ſubmit to the Romans, 62, b.
Volſciani, their brave anſwer to Q. Fabius, 8, e.
Volubilitani, where ſited, 140, d.
Volubilis, where ſited, 143, b.
Voluſenus ſent into Britain, 121, c.
Vortigern conſents to invite the Saxons, 440, a, b. Heads them againſt the Picts and Scots, 443, b. Depoſed by his ſubjects, 444, c, d. Taken priſoner by the Saxons, 445, b, c. Retirement and death, ib. d, e.
Vortimer's bravery and ſucceſs againſt the Saxons, 444, d, & ſeq. Death and laſt command, 445, a, b. Where buried, ib.
Vortipora's wicked reign, 451, e.
Uraia ſent againſt Beliſarius, 661, a, &c. Againſt Thomas, 662, f. Refuſes the Gothiſh crown, 664, b. Murdered by Ildebald, ib. d.
Uranus defeats the Bulgarians, 633, c.
Urbinum and Urbiventum taken by Beliſarius, 659. d, e.
Urce, a part of the Baſtitani, 300, d.
Uſargatæ, mountains, deſcribed, 163, d—f.
Uſdrilas ſlain by the Oſtrogoths, 675, e.
Uſipii, who, and where ſeated, [407], c. Defeated by Cæſar, [438], c.
Uſtrigothus refuged among the Lombards, 597, c.
Uther, whether the ſame with Nazaleod, 447, & ſeq.
Utica ſurrendered to the Romans, 97, b. Deſtroyed by peſtilence, 127, c, d.
Uturgurian Hunns, whence ſo called, 456, b, c. Where ſited, ib. Fall foul on the Cuturgurians, 483, f, & ſeq.
Vulcan, in what ſenſe worſhipped by the antient Germans, [421], b, (H).
Vulcania, iſland, ſeized by the Carthaginians, 19, d.
Vulger, heads the Bulgarians into Mœſia, 623, f.
Vulturnus ravaged by Hannibal, 23, f Whence ſo called, 29, (L). Why worſhipped by the Etruſcans, ib.
Vulturnus, the wind of, why ſo called, 29, b, & not.
Uxellodunum taken by Cæſar, 400, d, e.

W

WACHO, his reign, wives, &c, 617, a, b.
Wad-reagh, the diſtrict of, 163, e. How ſupplied with water, 164, a.
Wadd worſhipped by the Arabs, 248, c.
Walamir, king of the Viſigoths, 493.
Waleka, the mountains of, 185, d.
Wales retains the pure antient Celtic, 377, e, f. The reaſon of it, 378, b Its antient inhabitants, 410, e, & ſeq. Whence ſo called, 453, e. Its ſix regions, ib. & ſeq. Diſmembered of ſome of its provinces, 454 a, b.
Wall's-end, Finis Walli, in Northumberland, 418, a.
Wallu, king of the Viſigoths, 492, e. Succeeds Sigeric, 509, d. Peace with the Romans, ibid. e. Wars with the Vandals in Spain, ib. & 531, b, c. Settles in Aquitain, 510, a. His death, ib. b.
Walterius, king of the Lombards, 617, b.
Wamba, king of the Viſigoths, 492, e.
Wanaſhreeſe, mountain in Numidia, 116, d.
Wandalar, king of the Oſtrogoths, 493, a. 518, d.
War, unjuſt, the æra of, 286, a, (F).
Warnecaut, duke, put to death, 685, e.
Warnefrid defeated and killed, 690, e, f.
Warni, who, 513, b.
Wanſdike, the battle of, 453, b.
Watling ſtreet, why ſo called, 419, f. Its extent, ib. & ſeq.
Wayel, ſixth king of the Arab, 267, e.
We, one of the ſons of Woden, 489, d.
Wegdegg made king of E. Saxony, 489, e.
Weicar made duke of Friuli, 606, f.
Weſtphalia inhabited by the Saxons, 441, a.
Weſtrogoths, Viſigoths, whence ſo called, 487, e. Where ſeated, 492, d.
Whallop caſtle, the antient ruins of, 412, e.
White Hunns. See Nephthalites, 456, & ſeq.
Widemir, king of the Viſigoths, 493, a.
Wight, iſle of, inhabited by the Jutes, 441, e. Put to the ſword by Cerdick, 450, a Given to his nephew, ib. b.
Winitar, king of the Viſigoths, 493, a.
Wiomand's fidelity to Childeric, 473, c.
Wiſimar, king, defeated and killed, 609, a.
Witgar the Saxon's arrival in Britain, 449, c.
Witizia, king of the Viſigoths, 492, e.
Witteric, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, 492, e.
Woden, king of the Goths. See part of his character under Odin, [419], & ſeq. His reign and conqueſts, 489, c, d. Settles and dies in Sweden, ib. e. His character, acts, &c. ib. & ſeq. When he reigned, 460, c, d. Worſhipped by the Saxons, 442, d.
Women propheteſſes in high repute in Gaul, 348, (B).
——old, eſteemed in Ethiopia, 201, d. In Germany, why, [417], a, (B).
Wulphilas, the apoſtle of the Goths, 500, (A). His Gothic character, 489, a, 490, b.
Wurglab, a city in Gætulia, 164, a

INDEX.

X

XAMOLXIS's reign in Thrace, &c. 487, e. Who he was, 611, b, c.
Xenophanes ſent from Philip to Hannibal, 42, c. His treaty with the Carthaginians, ibid. & ſeq. Seized by the Romans, 43, & ſeq.
Xerolibya. where ſited, 178, e.
Xibam, Shibam, a city in Arabia Felix, 231, c.
Xiphias Niceph. ſaves Baſilius from the Bulgarians, 635, d.

Y

YAFAR, eighth king of Yaman, 267, e.
Yaguth, an idol of the Arabs, 248, c, d.
Yamama, the province of, 239, b.——city, ib. Princeſs, ib. Fountain, ib.
Yaman, inhabited by Cuſhites, 205, b, c. Its extent, &c. 230, e, f. Deſcribed, 234, d. Its towns, ib. & ſeq. Soil, mountains, &c. 235, & ſeq. By whom founded, 245, c. The kings of, 267, & ſeq. End of their kingdom, 271, e, f. Seized by the Abaſſines, 285, d.
Yambo, Yanbo, a port in Arabia, 238, a, b.
Yarab ſucceeds Joktan in Arabia, 265, b, c. 267, b.
Yaſhab, the ſucceſſor of Yarab, 267, b.
Yatreb, the antient name of Medina, 237, d. Whence ſo called, ibid. e.
Yauk, worſhipped by the Arabs, 248, & ſeq. ſub (R).
Yſel, Iſala, a river in Germany, [415], b.
Yuſef introduces judaiſm in Yaman, 252, a. Perſecutes the recuſants, 269, d.

Z

ZAAB, the diſtrict of, where, 163, e.
Zachary, pope's embaſſy to Luitprand, 708. Influence over him, ib. e, f. Over Rachis, 709, d, e. Death, 710, a,
Zagreuſii, where ſited, 140, d.
Zaine, river, in Numidia, 112, b.
Zalacus, mount, where ſited, 115, e.
Zama, Hannibal's camp at, 81, c. The battle of, 82, & ſeq.—fountain, 112.
Zamar, the city of. where ſited, 112, d.
Zamaragdus's ſucceſs againſt the Lombards, 681, b.
Zamarga defeated by the Romans, 484, b, c. By Zandilchus, ibid. d. e.
Zangruf, duke of Verona, put to death, 685, e.
Zantichus's peace with the Romans, 606, d.
Zantzaz removes the mart to Theſſalonica, 629, c, d.
Zealand inhabited by the Saxons. 441, a.
Zelis, where ſituate, 141, c. Whether the Roman Arzilla, ibid. d.—river in Tangitania, 144, e.
Zemzem, the well of, at Mecca, 236, d. The Turks tradition of it. 237, c.
Zendero, iſland, ſaid to be governed by a dog, 194, (S).
Zengiza's promont. in Ethiopia, 190, a.
Zeno's treachery to Conſtantius, 470, d. To Theodoric, 520, d—f. Rejects his offers, ibid. d. Beſtows great honours upon him, 522, b, c. Treaty with Genſeric, 522, e.——a prieſt, his zeal for Cunipert, 698, c—e.
Zerah's prodigious army, 194, b. 210, d. Defeated by Aſa, ib.
Zerbi, iſland, where, 176, (F).
Zin, the famed deſert of, 227, d.
Ziſais, made king of Sarmatia, 609, f.
Zoa, by whom built, 172, d.
Zobair's inſignificant aqueduct, 236, d, e.
Zoe ſends a vaſt army againſt the Men. Bulgarians, 630, d, e.
Zohair, a wiſe prince of Kelab, 278, d.
Zohair II. murdered, 279, a.
Zotto, firſt duke of Benevento, 683, f. His death, 684, c.
Zuchabari, the ſpring of, in Syrtes, 176, e.
Zygritæ, who, and where ſited, 168, b.

AN INDEX

TO THE SEVEN VOLUMES.

N. B. To save the trouble and expence of a geographical table to this large and extensive work, we have marked all the articles, which relate to geography, in this general index, with an † on the margin; whereby the reader may have them in view under each letter, so as to answer the end of such a table.

A

AARON, the brother of Moses, married to Elizabeth, vol. i. 490. His genealogy and family, 492, b. Meets his brother on mount Horeb, ibid. Appears with him before Pharaoh, ibid. d. Consecrated with his sons, 513, c. His rod's miraculous budding, ibid. Idolatrous calf, 520, a. Vainly palliated by some writers, ibid. But condemned by Moses, 521, c. His apology for it, ibid. d. The death of two of his sons by fire from heaven, 523, d. Why excluded from entering the promised land, 532, b. His priestly dress and office transferred to his son, ibid. c. Dies immediately after, 523. The time of his death, ibid. d.

— a christian martyr in Devonshire, vi. 216, d.

— king of Bulgaria, murdered, vii. 633, c.

Ab-Beth-Din, among the Jews, his office, iv. 4, e.

† Aba, a city in Phocis, by whom founded, ii. 389, d.

† — a mountain in Armenia, iii. 694, b.

† Abacanum, a city in Sicily, described, iii. 92, (O).

Abaddir, Abaddires, at Carthage, worshipped, vi. 693, a, b.

† Abalitæ, where sited, vii. 183, e. 193, a, b.

† Abana, a river of Damascus, described, i. 362, a, & (C).

† Abantes, first inhabitants of Eubœa, iii. 250, a.

Abara, Habara, what, iv. 198, (G).

† Abarim, the mountains of, in Palestine, i. 537, c, & (B).

Abariman, prince of the fallen angels, among the Persians, i. 51, a.

Abarus's speech to Scipio, iv. 787.

Abas, king of Argos, ii. 353, f.

— of Hetruria, iv. 418, e.

— leader of the Abantes, killed, 250.

† Abassia, its limits, vii. 180, b. High mountains, 185, d.

Abb, the second month of the Jews, i. 611, (K).

Abdalominus made king of Sidon, iii. 337, (K).

Abdas consecrated bishop in Persia, iv. 339, d. His untimely zeal fatal to the christians, 340, a.

Abdastartus murdered by his nurse's sons, i. 415, b.

Abdelmelech, the Saracen, makes peace with Justinian, vi. 345, f, & seq.

Abdemonus, the Tyrian, expounds Solomon's riddles, i. 414, e.

† Abdera, by whom founded, iii. 786, c.

Abdon judges Israel eight years, i. 753, d.

Abdymon dethrones the king of Cyprus, iii. 179, c. Killed, ibid.

Abel, where probably born, i. 73, a. The import of that word, ibid. (N). Murdered by Cain, ibid. b. Variety of opinions about it, 74, (N). Whether married, ibid. How accepted by God, ibid. The etymon of his name, 253, (I).

Abel Mizraim, why so called by the Canaanites, 467, b.

Abelard accused of some erroneous opinions, i. 8.

Abelex's stratagem in favour of the Spanish hostages, iv. 607, f.

Abgarus I. founder of the kingdom of Edessa, iii. 847, a.

—— II. his conquests, ibid. b. Treacherous advice to Crassus, iv. 299, d, e.

—— III. his letter to Christ, ibid. c.

—— IV. treachery to the Romans, ibid. d.

—— V. allies with them, ibid. d, e.

—— VI. &c. ibid. & seq. Embassy to Trajan, v. 17, d. Reception of him, 18, d. Submission to Severus, 114.

Abias invades Abilene, iii. 850, c. Defeated by Izates, ibid. d.

Abiathar escapes Saul's massacre, i. 767, a. Flees to David, ibid. d. Made high-priest, 792, e. Deposed by Solomon, ibid.

Abibal, first king of Tyre mentioned in history, i. 413, c. Cotemporary with David, ibid.

Abiff, a jewish month, whence so called, i. 604, (E).

Abihu, one of the sons of Aaron, i. 490, a. Consecrated, 523. Why killed by fire from heaven, ibid.

Abijah foretels to Jeroboam the ruin of his family, i. 806.

Abijam, Abijah, king of Judah, i. 826, f. Defeats Jeroboam, 807, b.

Abimael, one of the sons of Joktan, where placed, i. 170, b.

Abimelech, king of Gerar, his good character, i. 344, b. Obligingness to Abraham, 345, a. Covenant with him, ibid. e.

—— II. his kindness and justice to Isaac, 346, a, b. Misrepresented by Josephus, ibid. (P). Covenant with Isaac renewed, 347, c, d.

—— the natural son of Gideon, i. 747, a. Murders all his sons but one, ibid. b. Proclaimed king at Shechem, ibid. c. Cruelty to the Shechemites, 749, c. Shameful death, ibid. d.

Abinadab, the ark placed at his house, i. 757, a.

Abiram, one of the mutineers against Moses, i. 529, a. His dreadful end, 530.

Abissares's submission to Alexander, iii. 393, b.

Ablavius's treachery to Sopater, vi. 274, sub not. Murdered by the soldiers, 275, a.

Ablavivus, king of the Thervingi, leads them towards Thrace, 380, d. Outwits and beats the Romans, 381, b, c. Put to death for treaſon, 530, a.
Abner proclaims Iſhboſheth king of Iſrael, i. 773, a. Defeated by Joab, ibid, c, d. Kills Azael, ibid. Revolts to David, 774, b. Killed by Joab, ibid c.
† Aborigines, whence ſo called, iv. 414, b, c. By whom civilized, ibid. & ſeq.
† Abouillana, the lake of, deſcribed, 325, b.
Abra and Aſba, their joint reign, vii. 218, d, e.
Abrádates's bravery and death, ii. 91, b, c. Buried by Cyrus, 49, (I).
Abraha's fabulous defeat by the Arabs, vii. 269, f, & ſeq. Mr. Sale's notion of it exploded, 271, a—c.
Abraham, the ſon of Terah, the tenth in deſcent from Shem, i. 421, e. Called out of Ur, 422, a. Goes into Canaan, ibid. b. Into Egypt, ibid, Returns to Bethel, ibid. & ſeq. Separates from Lot, 423, c. Reſcues him from Chedorlaomer, 424, b, c. Receives the name of Abraham, 426, b, (O). 153. (K). Circumciſed with all his males, 426, & ſeq. Promiſed a ſon and heir, 427, a. Entertains three angels, 428, a, b. Who promiſe a ſon to Sarah, 429, a. Intercedes for Sodom, ibid. b. Diſmiſſes Hagar and Iſhmael, 430, b. Covenant with Abimelech, ibid. Commanded to ſacrifice Iſaac, ibid. & ſeq. Buries Sarah in Macphelah, 432, b. Provides a wife for Iſaac, 433, a. Marries Keturah, 434, c. Iſſue by her, ibid. c. His death, ibid. d. Jewiſh and other fictions concerning him, 435, (E). Author of the Perſee religion, ii. 74, a. Whether he lived among them, ibid. b.
——— Halim, defeated by the Romans, vi. 599, d, e.
Abreas killed by the Malli, iii. 398, d.
† Abretana, part of the Myſian kingdom, ii. 323.
Abriman, the Perſic name for the devil, ii. 76, a. Why written inverted, ibid. b. His origin and war with God, 77. b. (B).
Abſalom, the ſon of David, murders Ammon, i. 781, e. Retires into Geſhur, ibid. f. Recalled, 782, d. His rebellion, 783, a, &c. Defeat and death, 786, a.
——— the pillar of, deſcribed, 592, d, (N).
——— the ſon of Hircan, iv. 96, c. Chuſes a retired life, 98, a. His death, iii. (V).
† Abſarus, a river in Colchis, iii. 833, c.
Abu Moſlem's opinion of God, &c. i. 8, b.
Abulites put to death for oppreſſion, iii. 405, b.
Abulpharagus, his works and character, iii. 629, (C).
Abundantius, the raiſer of Eutropius, vi. 435, a, b. Ungratefully requited and baniſhed, ibid. b, c.
Abydenians, their horrid deſpair, ii. 734, c.
† Abydos in Phrygia Minor, by whom built, ii. 304, d. 333, c. A mine of gold found at, 317, e. Taken by the Macedonians, 734, c Forſaken by Antiochus, iii. 560, c. Taken by the Turks, vi. 642, c.
——— the oracle of, in Egypt, vi. 305, e.
† Abydus, an ancient city of Thebais, i. 175, e.
† Abyla, where ſituate, vi. 865, (L).
† ——— mount, where, vii. 145, c, d.
† Aca, Aco, a famed port in Phœnice, vi. 659, e, (G).
Acacius, ſent againſt the Perſians, vi. 532. d. Forſook by the army, ibid.
Academia, by whom ſo called, ii. 436, f.
Acalide, the wife of Tros, her progeny, ii. 314, b.
Acamas, the ſon of Antenor, ii. 315, b.
† Acanthine, iſland, where, vii. 190, b.
Acaritzi, ſubdued by Attila, vii. 464, f.
† Acarnania, deſcribed, ii. 412, (D). 745, b.
Acarnanians, why anciently called Curetes, ii. 745, b. Join in the Achæan league, 652, e. Their character and bravery, ibid. & 704, a. War with Athens, 731, & ſeq. Friendſhip to the Macedonians, 745, c. Reject the alliance of the Romans, ibid. e. Subdued and become a province of Achaia, 746, b.
Acaſes, biſhop of Amida's excellent charity, iv. 341, f.
Acaſtus drives Jaſon out of Theſſaly, ii. 385, a.
† Accad, the city of, where ſituate, i. 124, (P).
Accaron, given to Jonathan, iii. 597, c.
Accia, Atia's ſingular care of her ſon Octavius, v. 194, c, d.
Accua, taken by young Fabius, iv. 722, b.
Acdeſtis, the ſon of Jupiter, by the rock Agdus, ii. 297, b. Tamed by Bacchus, ibid. c.
† Aceldama, or field of blood, i. 586, a. Where ſituate, iv. 236, b.
† Acerræ taken by Corn. Scipio, iv. 690, c. Abandoned and burnt, vii. 36, e.
† Aceſta, in Sicily. Vid. Segeſta, iii. 7, f.
Aceronia, drowned for Agrippina, v. 532, b.
† Achæans, ancient Grecians, ii. 344, c, & (C). Join with Aratus, 557, b. The league called by their name, 644, a. By whom formed, 644. Their laws, ibid. & ſeq. Conteſts with the Lacedemonians, ſupported by nus, 634, & ſeq. 645, & ſeq. Victory at Maſſene, 636. At Selaſia, 649, paſſ. War againſt the Ætolians, 650, & ſeq. Beg king Philip's aſſiſtance, 652. Invade Elis, 654, e. Betrayed by Apelles, 657. Invade Ætolia, 658. Sparta, 659. Make peace, 664, a. Go over to the Romans, 669, & ſeq. 673. Fall into new broils, 677, a—d. Send deputies to Rome, 678. Highly courted, 679, c, d. Reſtore the Lacedemonians, 681, & ſeq. Defeated by the Meſſenians, ibid. & ſeq. Betrayed by their Roman deputy, 684, d. Forced to reſtore the Spartans, 685, c. Courted by Perſes, 686. Aſſiſt the Romans againſt him, 687, d. Ill requited by them, 688, f. Proteſt againſt their cruelty, 689, & ſeq. War againſt them. 691, paſſ. War againſt the Lacedemonians, ibid. & ſeq. 695, b. Defeated by Metellus, ibid. e. By the Roman conſul, 697. Made tributary to Rome, 698, e, f.
Achæmenes, made governor of Egypt, i. 275, b. Slain, ibid. c. King of Perſia, ii. 82, a.
Achæus aſſiſts the Byzantines, iii. 145, b. Gained over by the Rhodians, ibid. d.
—— defeated by the Macedonians, 474.
—— regent of Syria, his valour and fidelity, 530, a, b. Forced to ſeize on the government, 535, c. Beſieged in Sardis, 539, d. Betrayed and beheaded, 640, & ſeq.
† Achaia, part of the ancient Greece, ii. 344, b. Whence ſo called, 414, a, b. Deſcribed, ibid. c. Conquered by the Achæans, ibid. & ſeq. Divided into twelve diſtricts, 416, c. One of the chief ſtates after the Achæan league, 641, a. Its extent, laws, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Duration, 642. Conqueſt, &c. 700, & ſeq. Taken from the Roman ſenate, v. 378, e, (G). Infranchiſed and plundered by Nero, 565, & ſeq. Plundered by the Huns, vii. 496, f.
Achan, ſtoned and burnt for ſacrilege, i. 557, c.
† Achelous, river, the fable of it, ii. 409, e, (O).
Acheus, the ſon of Xuthus, founder of Achaia propria, ii. 414, a.
Achillas drives out Cleopatra, iii. 673, a. Beſieges Cæſar in Alexandria, 675, d. Put to death, 676, c. Treachery to Pompey, v. 149, a. 150, & ſeq. Slain, 152, c.
Achilles, king of Phthia, ii. 385. Where born, 382, a 385, b. Made invulnerable, ibid. c. Exploits before Troy, 321, 385, & ſeq. Cruelty to Hector, 386, d. Requited, ibid. e. His tomb, 305, b.
Achilleus's revolt and defeat, vi. 192. a.
——— in Egypt, 209. Defeated, 213, b, c.
Achiſh, king of the Philiſtines, i. 355, a. Hoſpitality to David, ibid. Succeſs againſt the Iſraelites, 356, c Againſt Saul and his ſons, ibid. d.
Achme's forgery diſcovered to Herod, iv. 182, b, c, (I).
† Acholla, where ſituate, vi. 669.
† Achor, the valley of, whence ſo called, i. 557, c.
Achris, taken by Bazilius, vii. 636, b. Vaſt treaſures found in it, 637, a.
Achſaph joins Jabin againſt Iſrael, i. 332, e, f.
Achtroes, the king of, killed by a crocodile, i. 230, (I).
Acilius ſent againſt Antiochus, ii. 719. Defeats him, 723, c. Takes Heraclea, 721. Haughtineſs to the Ætolians, 722, & ſeq. Relieves Naupactus, 724, & ſeq. Takes Lamia, 726, a. Succeeded by Scipio, ibid. f.
—— Glabrio's ſucceſs againſt Antiochus, iv. 754, c. Sumptuous triumph, 755, c, d.
—— a proſcribed ſenator, ſaved by his wife, v. 226, c.
Acmon, the father of Uranus, ii. 257, & ſeq.
Acoris, king of Egypt, joins with the king of Cyprus againſt the Perſians, i. 276, e. Dies, 277, a.
† Acra, the fortreſs of, built to command the temple, iv. 51, d. Deſcribed, 62, b, (X). Beſieged by Judas Maccab. 69, a. Fortified by Bacchides, 76, c. Immured by Jonathan, 83, c. Surrendered, 86, b, Demoliſhed, ibid. c. When, ibid. (C).
† —— iſland, where ſited, vii. 116, c.
† Acradina, one of the four quarters of Syracuſe, iii. 4. b. c. Forced by Dionyſius, 46, d. Taken by the Carthaginians, 52, d. Delivered up to the Romans, 120, & ſeq. Taken by Himilco, vi. 763, f, & ſeq.
† Acre, St John de, its ruins deſcribed, i. 588, a, b.
† Acria, a ſea-port of Sparta, ii. 386, c.

Acris, taken and plundered, vi. 808, (Z).
† Acro-Corinth. Vid. Corinth, taken by Aratus, ii. 631, a.
† Acroe, when and by whom built, iii. 12, d. Deſcribed, 114, (S).
Acron, killed by Romulus, iv. 429.
† Acropolis, the citadel of Athens, ii. 125, 435. Stormed by the Perſians, 471, e.
Acrotatus's brave defence of Sparta, ii. 623. Succeeds Areus, 624, f. Slain, 625, c.
Actæi, at Athens, whence ſo called, ii. 438, a.
Actiac æra, how computed, iii. 691, a, b.
— games, whence, iv. 357, ſub not.
— anniverſary forbid by Caligula, 473, d, e.
Actian family, its original, iv. 356, (L).
Actiſanes drives Amoſis from the throne, i. 258, e. Unites Egypt with Ethiopia, 259, b, c.
† Actium, where ſited, iv. 289, b.
— the battle of, 291, & ſeq.
Actor, firſt king of Ægina, iii. 244, b.
Actors, on the ſtage, deſpiſed among the Romans, iv. 585, (S).
Actuarii, a tribe of the Franks, vii. 548, a.
† Ad, an old Arabian tribe, vii. 241, e.
Ada, queen of Caria's conduct towards Alexander, iii. 530, a.
Adad, Adar, chief deity of the Syrians, i. 272, a, (E).
Adah, the firſt wife of Eſau, i. See Judith.
Adalwald's peaceful reign, vii. 686, c. 688, a. Poiſoned, ibid. f, & ſeq.
Adam, where created, i. 48, c, d. Forbid the tree of knowledge, 59. Names the birds, beaſts, &c. ibid. Takes Eve, ibid. b. His fall, ibid. c——e. Objections to the literal ſenſe, 60, a—d. Confuted, ibid. e, f. By whom tempted, 61. His trial defended, 64. The ſad effects of his ſin, 65, a. On man, 66, a. Changes made on the earth, 66, d, & ſeq. Where he dwelt afterwards, 72, c, & (N). His death, 79. Opinions about his repentance, ibid. ſub not. And the place of his burial, 79, b.
Adam, an appellative of both ſexes, i. 44, (N). Rabbinical and Mohammedan dreams about the firſt man, ibid. & ſeq. Etymon of that name, 153. A better, vii. 197, (Y).
† — the city of, where Jordan's waters divided, 553, e, (Y).
Adar, the ſixth Jewiſh month, i. 611, (K).
Adarnaſſes, why excluded the ſucceſſion, iv. 337, c.
† Adda, Addis, where ſituate, vi. 666, (A).
— the bridge of, built by Claudius, 186, e.
Addo's treachery to Caius, v. 331, d. Puniſhed, 332, a.
† Aden, its ſituation and mart, vii. 234, e.
Adergumbades preſerves young Cavades, iv. 349, e. Put to death for it, 350, a.
Adherbal defeats the Romans, iv. 672. & ſeq. In Italy, 705, a—e.
— his deſcent, v. 6, a, b. Flees to Rome, ibid. f. Diveſted, 7, c. Defeated by Jugurtha, ibid. f. Murdered, 8, f. See alſo vii. 129.
— defeats the Romans at ſea, vi. 846, d, e.
† Adiabene, a province of ancient Aſſyria, i. 858, b, (D). Subdued by Trajan, vi. 18, f. Reduced by Severus, 110, c, d.
— the kings of, iii. 848, & ſeq. Embrace chriſtianity, 851.
† Adiabenia ſubdued by Tigranes, iii. 700, c.
† Adiba, fortified, iv. 83, c.
† Adis, taken by Attil. Regulus, iv. 664, a.
† Aditæ, their kings, government, &c. vii. 241, & ſeq.
Adjutrix legion's furious onſet, v. 610. b. Declares for Veſpaſian, 629, a.
Admetus killed before Troy, iii. 341, d.
— king of Epirus's kindneſs to Themiſtocles, 800, c, d.
Adonis, conjectures concerning that deity, i. 137, b, (N), (W).
Adonia, the meaning of that word, i. 484. (T).
Adonijah conſpires againſt David, i. 790. Pardoned by Solomon, 792. Put to death, ibid.
† Adonis, river, in Tingitania, vii. 145, a. Why it appears ſometimes bloody, i. 394, c, d.
— the Phœnician deity, who, 400, a, (S). His origin, 402. Worſhip, ibid. & ſeq.
Adonibezek's arrogance and cruelty, i. 333, d. Puniſhed, ibid. e.
Adonizedek beſieges Gibeon, i. 332, a. Miraculouſly cut off by Joſhua, ibid. b—d.
Adramelech, an Aſſyrian deity, how repreſented, i. 861, b.
† Adramitæ, who, and where ſited, vii 231, c.
† Adrana, river, its courſe, v. 372, (V).
† Adranum, a city in Sicily, iii. 8, e. Taken by the Romans, vi. 827, a.
Adranus, the tutelar god of Sicily, iii. 8, e.
† Adraſtia, whether the ſame with Parium, ii. 324, c.
Adraſtus, king of Argos, ii. 357. His kindneſs to Polynices and Tydeus, 358.
— the laſt king of Phrygia, 303, & ſeq.
† Adria, where ſited, vi. 30, a. Waſted by Hannibal, vii. 22, e.
Adrian, adopted by Trajan, vi. 9, d. & 25, e, f. Made quæſtor, 11, c. Obſequies to Sura, 13, a. Demoliſhes Trajan's bridge, 14. d. Pretorſhip and games, 17, b. Sent into Pannonia, ibid. & ſeq. Made Archon of Athens, 20, b. Governor of Syria, 25, a. Proclaimed at Antioch, ibid. b. Whether really adopted, ibid. f. & ſeq. Extract and education, 30, & ſeq. Talents of body and mind, 31, & ſeq. Mild government, 32, & ſeq. Letter to the ſenate, 33, b. Modeſt entry into Rome, ibid. f, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt the Scythians, 34, c, d. Progreſs through the empire, 35, & ſeq. Narrow eſcape in Spain, ibid. e. Return to Rome, Athens, &c. ibid. f, & ſeq. Goes into the eaſt, 36, & ſeq. Syria and Egypt, 37, a, b. Obſervations on thoſe countries, ibid. d, e. Unnatural Love to Antinous, 38, b, c. Severity againſt the Jews, ibid. & ſeq. Stay and generoſity at Athens, 42, c. Sickneſs, 43, c. Names Verus his ſucceſſor, ibid. e. Cruelties, 44, b. c. Adopts Antoninus, 45, a. Painful death, 45, c—e. 46, a. Verſes to his ſoul, ibid. (B). Year of his death, ibid. (C). Obſequies, buildings, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Huge Mauſoleum, 47, b. Character, laws, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Writings, 48, (D). Temple, 57, f. His wall in Britain, vii. 414, & ſeq. Expedition thither, 431, d, e, (K). Coins, ibid. e, (L).
— baniſhed for not relieving Syracuſe, 573.
— pope, why invaded by Deſiderius, vii. 716, paſſ. Hatred to the Lombards, 719, & ſeq.
† Adrianople blocked up by the Goths, vi. 381, e. The battle of, 383, & ſeq. Betrayed to the Bulgarians, 578, d. Taken by the Turks, 645, e. Made the capital of their empire, ibid. f.
† — a quarter of Athens ſo called, ii. 742, b.
† — in Thrace, built by Adrian, iii. 787, d.
† Adrumentum ſubmits to Cæſar, iv. 160, c. Deſcribed, vi. 668, d, e. Whence ſo called, ibid. f. Beſieged by the Carthaginians, ibid. & ſeq.
† — in Cyrenaica, deſcribed, vii. 168, b.
Advaſmanes, defeated by the Romans, vi. 533, e. Beſieged by the Scythians, 612, f. Preſerved by a ſtratagem, 613, a.
† Advatici, who, vi. 120, (Y). Defeated by Cæſar, ibid. c. vii. 398, d, (Q).
† Adulis Emporium, in Ethiopia, vii. 190, a.
Adultery, Moſes's laws againſt, i. 676, a. Placed by ſome Greek copies before that againſt murder, ibid. (G).
— ſtrangely puniſhed by Hippomenes, ii. 369, ſub not. How by the Athenians, 432, b. Forbid by the Julian law, v. 393, c, (K).
† Adyrmachidæ, their way of fighting, cuſtoms, vii. 168, b.
† Æa, a city in Colchis, iii. 833, b.
Æaces I. tyrant of Samos, iii. 190, c.
— II. treachery to the Ionians, 197, d, e.
Æacidas, king of Epirus, driven out, iii. 459, a. 862, f. Slain by the Macedonians, 461, a. 803, a.
Æacus, king of Ægina, one of the three judges of hell, ii. 387. ſub not. iii. 244, b.
Æbutius Elva made general of the horſe, iv. 483, b. Gallantry at the battle of Regillus, ibid. c.
Ædemon defeated by the Romans, vii. 159, a, b.
† Ædepſum, the hot waters of, iii. 249, b.
Ædes, king of Colchis, iii. 834.
Ædiles, plebeian, their office, iv. 492, e. Officiate as conſuls during the plague, 518, d. Choſen from the patricians, 583, b. Diſcharged from the care of public ſhews, v. 305, c, d.
† Ædui, who, and where ſited, v. 117, (T). vii. 367, (B). Treachery to Cæſar, ibid. d, e. Protected by him, 118, b. Treachery to him, 127, b. Revolt againſt the Romans, 409, e, f. Defeated, 410, a. Averſion to kingly government, vii. 367, b, c. Conteſt with the Arverni, ibid. & ſeq. Alliance with Cæſar, 368.

Æetes, king of Colchis, poſſeſſor of the golden fleece, ii. 383, & ſeq. & (G). His treatment of the Argonauts, 384, a. Fatal end, ibid. b, & (I).
† Ægates iſland deſcribed, iii. 16, e.
† Ægeum ſea deſcribed, iii. 202, (R). Iſlands in it, 203, & ſeq.
Ægeates, whence ſo called, iii. 271, d.
Ægeus, king of Athens, the father of Theſeus, ii. 364, a. Releaſed from Minos's tribute, ibid. & ſeq. Flings himſelf into the Ægean ſea, 365, f.
Ægialeus gives name to Peloponneſus, ii. 349, a.
Ægidius, the Gaul, marches againſt Ricimer, vi. 507, a, b. Succeſs againſt the Viſigoths, ibid. c, d. Murdered, ibid. f. Relieves Arles, vii. 513, f, & ſeq.——Seizes on Childeric's crown, 564, & ſeq.
Ægimarus, iſland, taken by Marcius, vii. 100, d.
† Ægina, iſland, deſcribed, ii. 705, (S). iii. 243, b. By whom ſubdued, 245, a. Taken from the Athenians, v. 307, c.
Ægineans war againſt Attica, ii. 458, b. Intercept the Delphic ſhip, 459, c. Subdued by the Athenians, 487, e, f. Expelled the iſland, 501. Infeſt the Athenians, 538, e, f. Infeſted by the Spartans, 583, & ſeq. Invaded by the Samians, iii. 189, c. Their revenge on them, 193, b.
† Ægis, metropolis of Macedonia, plundered by Pyrrhus, iii. 471, f.
Ægiſthus, the murderer of Agamemnon, killed by Oreſtes, ii. 357, c.
† Ægium, the Greeks rendezvous againſt Troy, ii. 319, a. The aſſembly of the Achæan ſtates, 677. Made the metropolis of Achaia, 416.
Ægypt and Ægyptians. Vid. Egypt, &c.
Ægyptus, king of Mycene. See Epytus.
† Ægyra, metropolis of Achaia Propr. ii. 350. Founded by Ægyrus, ibid. Ruined by an earthquake, v. 419, a.
Ælia Petina divorced by Claudius, v. 488, a.
—— Capitolina, Jeruſalem ſo named, vi. 416, e.
Ælian's writings and character, vi. 51, ſub not.
Ælianus Papyr. choſen conſul, vi. 88, e.
—— L. his revolt and defeat, 183.
—— Deſidr. governor of Britain, vii. a, (P).
Ælius, Pons, why ſo named, vii. 414, f. —— Pætus's ill ſucceſs againſt the Gauls, iv. 749, b.—— Serenian writings, &c. vi. 149, ſub not.
† Æmathia, Macedonia, why ſo called, iii. 253, a. Deſcribed, 256, a.
Æmilia, a veſtal, put to death, v. 4, c.
—— Muſa, her eſtate adjudged to the Æmilian family, 392, d, (H).
—— with two other veſtals, put to death, vi. 27, a.
Æmilianus proſcribed by the ſenate, vi. 108, f. Defeated and put to death, 109, b. Succeſs againſt the barbarians, 171, c.
—— Scipio. Vid. Scipio, vii. 101, & ſeq.
Æmilius, Paulus, defeats Perſes, ii. 687, d. Hannibal, vii 23, c. His death, 30, & ſeq.——Joins the Rhodian fleet, iii. 150, & ſeq.—Succeſs againſt Antiochus, 556, & ſeq. 559, d.
—— Scaurus. See Scaurus.
—— Mamercinus, expedition againſt the Volſci, iv. 505, e, f.
—— Lucius, makes peace with the Hetrurians, 509, e. Ill uſed by the ſenate, 510, a. Cited by the tribunes, 513, b.
—— Mamercus, choſen dictator, iv. 548, f. Reſigns his ſecond dictatorſhip, 549. Choſen a third time, 550, e. Succeſs againſt the Fidenates, ibid. & ſeq. Choſen conſul, 582, f.
—— Papus, choſen dictator, 613, f.
—— L choſen dictator, 617, e.
—— Barbat. reſtores the ſenate and prieſthood, 621, a. Defeats the Hetrurians, ibid. c. Sent againſt the Tarentines, 644, & ſeq. Againſt the Sabines, 646, c. Succeſs in Afric, 666, b &c. Shipwrecked, ibid. c.
—— Paulus, ſubdues Illyricum, 691, c, d. Tried and acquitted, ibid. e Falls out with his collegue, 709, & ſeq. Laſt meſſage to the great Fabius, 710, f. Death, 711, a, (M).
—— Paulus's ſucceſs againſt the Macedonians, 763, & ſeq. Death, 765, c.
—— Lepidus's unjuſt attempt againſt the Vacci, 785, d.
—— Mamercus, choſen a conſul, v. 85, b.
—— Paulus, bought off by Cæſar, 129, e. Condemned by the triumvirate, 223, e.
—— Lepidus, made Cæſar's collegue, 155, b.
Æmilius, Germanicus, his ſucceſs againſt the Germans, 314, & ſeq.
—— Paſcenſis reſtored by Otho, 604, f. Taken priſoner by Vitellius, 632, b, c.
—— his court of judicature, vii. 412, c.
† Æminium, a city in Luſitania, vii. 297, a.
† Æmona abandoned by Maximin, vi. 158, d. Whence ſited, ibid. e.
Æmonia, the daughter of Deucalion, ii. 381, a.
† —— the ancient name of Theſſaly, ibid.
Æneas ſaid to have betrayed Troy, ii. 321. Whether he retired into Italy, 322, c, & not.
Ænedeſimus, the brave governor of Argos, ſlain, ii. 671, d.
† Ænon, where ſituate, iv. 102, (L).
† Æoles, from whom deſcended, i. 168, (D).
† Æolian iſlands deſcribed, iii. 10, e.
† Æolians, their original, ii. 759. Government, 761. Religion, 762, d. Trade, &c. 763, d. Firſt inhabitants of Leſbos, iii. 105, d. Protected by Cæſar, v. 149, a.
† Æolis, part of Aſia Proper, ii. 288, d.
† —— in Aſia Minor, deſcribed, 758, d. Its twelve cities, ibid.
Æolus, firſt king of the Siculi, iii. 13, c.
—— king of the Hetruſci, iv. 418, e.
Æon and Protogonus, in Sanchoniatho, the Adam and Eve of Moſes, i. 86, c, & (N).
† Æpytæ, ſo called from Epytus king of Mycene, ii. 360, d.
Æonia, the mother of Auſonius, her extract, vi. 401, (L).
Æqui defeated by the Romans, iv. 489, a. Fall out with the Volſci, 503, c. Invade the Romans with fire and ſword, f. Suppreſſed by Furius, 507, b. By Quinctius, 516, c. 517, c. By Lucretius, 519, a. By Cornelius, 526, c. Made to paſs under the yoke, 527. Defeated by Sicinius, 531, e. By Valerius, 545, e. By Poſthumius, 550, b. Defeat the Romans, 553, c. Defeated by Æmilius, 560, e. By Camillus, 568, & ſeq. Subdued, 627, b.
† Ærenoſt, where ſited, vii. 10.
† Æria, Egypt, why ſo called by the Greeks, i. 174, d.
Æropas, king of Macedonia, iii. 273.
—— guardian of it, 284, d. His meſſage to Ageſilaus, ibid. e.
Æſacus, the ſon of Priam, ii. 317, f.
Æſchines's character of king Philip, iii. 295, d. Sent to the amphictyons court, 305, a.
Æſculapius of Egypt, more ancient than the Greek, i. 218, d.
—— practiſed phyſic at Pergamos, ii. 325, & ſeq.
—— worſhipped at Cos, iii. 212, d. His ſtatue brought to Rome, iv. 638, e. The ſtory of his birth, &c. ibid. & ſeq. & ſub not. His temple at Carthage, vi. 661, e. Burnt, 691, c.
† Æſis, river, a boundary of Gaul, iv. 408.
† Æſitæ, who, and where ſited, vii. 228, c.
Æſon, the father of Jaſon, ii. 383, b. His death, 384, d.
† Æſtii, who, and where ſited, vii. [410], c. Their amber trade, ibid. & ſeq. Conqueſt, [411]. c.
† Æſtrians, where ſituate, iii. 257, b.
Æternius's conſulſhip, iv. 532, a. Tribuneſhip, 545, c.
Æthiopia ſpreads a dreadful plague over the empire, vi. 171, b. Embaſſy to Conſtantine, 264, f.
Æthiopians pay tribute to the Perſians, ii. 69. Their king's noble anſwer to Cambyſes's embaſſadors, 97, b. See Ethiopia, &c.
Æthlius, the ſuppoſed founder of the Elean kingdom, ii. 407, b.
† Æthuſa, iſland, where ſituate, vi. 672, ſub not. 4.
Ætius marries Severus's daughter, vi. 108, c.
—— governor of Conſtantinople, his life attempted, 473, c. His riſe and character, 478, b, c. Sides with the uſurper John, 479, a, b Submits to Placidia, 480, a Succeſs againſt the Vandals, 489, a. Againſt Attila, 495, a, b. Repulſed at the battle of Chalons, 495, & ſeq. Undermined by Heraclius, 496, & ſeq. Murdered by Valentinian, 499, b. See alſo vol. vii. 471—478.
—— prevents Irene's marriage, 560, b. Defeated by the Saracens, 569, f, & ſeq.
† Ætna, the burning mount in Sicily, iii. 9.
† Ætolia, from whom named, ii. 409, c. Deſcribed. ibid. & ſeq Part of Grecia Prop. 344, b. One of the three Grecian ſtates after the Achæan league, 641. Its government, laws, &c. 703, & ſeq. Seized by Michael Angel. vi. 629, c, d.

Æolians, great robbers, ii. 409, d. 410, a. 650 c, d. Warlike and brutiſh, 702. Defeat the Spartans, 638, & ſeq. Maſſacred by them, 639. Wars againſt the Meſſenians, 650. Oppoſe the Achæans, 702. Ally with the Romans, 703. Invade Locris, 704, c. Defeated by Philip, ibid, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt him, 707, a. Forced to a peace, ibid, c. Declare for the Romans, 708, d, e. Defeated by Philip, ibid, e. Burn ſome Theſſalian towns, ibid. & ſeq. Oppoſe the confederate peace, 711, & ſeq. Declare for Antiochus, 712. Take Demetrias by ſtratagem, 513, c And Sparta by treachery, ibid. & ſeq. Driven out by Philopœmen, 714. Chuſe Antiochus their generaliſſimo, 715, f, & ſeq. Routed by the Romans, 720. Sue for peace, 722. Oppreſſed by the Roman ſenate, 725, c. Obtain a truce, 726, d. Invade king Philip, 727, b. Gallant defence of Ambracia, 728, & ſeq. Invaded by the Macedonians, 729, b. Make peace with Rome, ibid. & ſeq. Their various fates ſince, 731. Diſtreſſed by Antipater, iii. 451, c. Invade Theſſaly, 452, b. Defeated, ibid. c. Treachery to the Acarnanians, 460, paſſ. Puniſhed, 461, a. Invite Antiochus into Europe, iv. 751, b. Raiſe new troubles in Greece, 754, b. Obtain a peace, 755, d.

Æolus, the ſon of Endymion, ii. 407. Founds the Ætolian kingdom, ibid.

—— the ſon of Oxylus, where buried, 408.

Afranius defeated and killed, v. 50, e

—— forces Sertorius's camp, 92, f. Repulſed, ibid. & ſeq.

—— an indolent conſul, 111, c.

—— Pompey's general driven from the Pyrenees, 315, e, f. Repulſes Julius Cæſar, 136, a. Submits to him, ibid. e. Joins Cato at Utica, 157, b. Defeated and killed, 160, f.

—— the poet, his incendium acted before Nero, 544, f.

—— Quintilianus conſpires againſt Nero, 551, c.

Afer, Sept. Sever. put to death by Caracalla, vi. 124, d.

† Africa, whence ſo called, vii. 178, d. Whether ever joined to Europe, ibid. e. Plundered by the Romans, iv. 663, a, b. By their privateers, 675, c, d. By Scipio, 745, e. Subdued by Julius Cæſar, v. 160, f. Faithful to Vitellius, 622, c. Honoured by Adrian, vi. 36, c, d. Revolts againſt Maximin, 153. Under Celſus, 182, f. Deſtroyed by Maxentius, 241, c, d. Relieved by Conſtans, 280, a, b. Submits to Conſtantius, 285, e. Sadly harraſſed by the Moors, 349, a. Revolts to Arcadius, 438, f. Returns to Honorius, 440, e. Kept locked up by Heraclian, 461, d. 463, c. Over-run by the barbarians, 482, d, e, Seized by the Vandals, 514, a. Subdued by the Saracens, 544, c, d. 546, a. Plundered by Cn. Scipio, vii. 27, c, d. Ravaged by the Vandals, 532, e, f. 533, c, d. Yielded by the Romans to Genſeric, 539, e, f.

† —— Propria deſcribed, vi. 664, & ſeq. Made a Roman province, vii. 137, b, c.

African clergy, privileged by Conſtantine, vi. 251, d, f.

Africans, their wretched diſcipline, vi. 743, (H). Abandoned by the Carthaginians, 767, c, d. Revolt and march againſt them, 769, b, c. Diſperſed for want of a leader, ibid. d. Treachery to their allies, 811, b. Armed after the Roman manner, vii. 30. The Succeſs of it, 31, d. Blended with the Libyans, 122, a, b.

Africanus, cruelly uſed by Conſtantius, vi. 294, c.

Agabus foretels a grievous famine, iv. 263, a.

Agag, the firſt king of the Amalekites, i. 319, c. Taken and ſpared by Saul, 330, e. Put to death, ibid.

— that name common to all their kings, 319, e.

Agamemnon, king of Mycene, ii. 357. Choſen head of the Trojan expedition, 319, & ſeq. Murdered in his return, 357, c.

Agapenor, king of Arcadia, one of the Trojan chiefs, ii. 379, d.

† Agar, where ſituate, vi. 669, c.

Agareni. See Hagareni, vii. 226, d, & ſeq.

Agaſthenes, king of Elis, outed by Oxylus, ii. 408, c.

Agathias's hiſtory of Perſia, iv. 324, (B).

Agathoclea married to Philopater, iii. 646, c. Her ſad cataſtrophe, 647, b.

Agathocles, tyrant of Sicily, his extract, riſe, &c. iii. 79, & ſeq. Narrow eſcape, 81, a. Perjury and cruelties to the Syracuſans, ibid. & ſeq (Vid. & vol. vi. 788, & ſeq.) Proclaimed king, 82, a. Defeated, ibid. d. His ſucceſs in Africa, ibid. & ſeq. 83, & ſeq. Treachery to Ophellas, 86, a, b. Abandons Africa, ibid. & ſeq. Cruelty in Sicily, 87, b. Subdues part of Italy, ibid. e, f. Makes peace with Carthage, vi. 790. Plunders it, ibid. & ſeq. Retaliates their cruelties, 791, b, c. Treachery to the Meſſenians, ibid. Shut up in Syracuſe, 792, d, e. Sails into Afric, 793. Lands and burns his fleet, 794, c—e. Ravages the country, 796, e, f. Quells a mutiny, 803. Proclaimed king of Afric, 807, d. Returns into Sicily, 808, c, (Y). Succeſs there, ibid. b, c. Returns into Afric, 810, e, f. Speech to his army, ibid. (B). Defeated, 811, b. A dreadful uproar in his camp, ibid. e. Returns into Sicily, 812, b. Ratifies the peace with Carthage, 813, b. His death and character, iii. 88. vi. 813, d.

Agathocles, the ſon of Lyſimachus, his ſucceſs againſt Demetrius, iii. 440. Poiſoned by his father, 468, d.

† Agathyrna, a city in Sicily, iii. 8, d.

† Agathyrſian Scythians, deſcribed, ii. 278.

Agatzyrians ſubmit to Attila, vii. 466, c.

† Agdus, a famous rock, ii. 297, b.

Age, old, highly reverenced in Sparta, ii. 565, c.

Agelas's ſpeech to king Philip at Naupactus, ii. 663, c.

Agelmond made king of the Gepidæ, vi. 391, e.

Agenor, firſt king of Phœnice, i. 408, & ſeq.

Agentes at court reduced by Julian, vi. 325, e.

Agentor, a great warrior, ii. 315, d.

Agerinus ſent by Agrippina to Nero, v. 532, d. Seized and impriſoned, 533, a.

Ageſilaus, king of Sparta, his character, ii. 605, d. Succeeds Agis, 606, b. Sent againſt the Perſians, 607, e. Sudden fall upon them, 141, d. Commands by ſea and land, 142, e, 609. Affronts the Bœotians, 608. Recalled by the ephori, 143, 611. Sent againſt the confederate army, 612. Forces them to a peace, 613, & ſeq. Invades Bœotia, 615, e. Choſen dictator, 617, a. Invades Arcadia, ibid. Quells a conſpiracy in Sparta, ibid. e. Defeats Epaminondas, 619. Deſpiſed by Tachos, and helps to dethrone him, 620, paſſ. & not. His death and character, ibid.

—— the uncle of Agis, helps him to reform the Spartan luxury, 626, b. Choſen one of the ephori, 627. Outwits his nephew, ibid. paſſ.

Ageſipolis, king of Sparta, ſucceeds Pauſanias, ii. 612. Sent againſt the Argives, 613, a. Againſt the Mantineans, 614. Invades the Olynthians, ibid. f. His death, 615.

—— the ſon of Cleombrotus, choſen king of Sparta, 634, e.

Ageſiſtrata betrayed and murdered by Amphares, ii. 628, & ſeq.

Agidæ, the kings of Sparta, whence ſo called, ii. 398, b. 404, b. A liſt of them, 558.

Agilmund, firſt king of the Lombards, vii. 615, d. 616, b. Defeats the Vandals, ibid. c.

Agilo ſucceeds the brave Urſicinus, vi. 308, a. Sent againſt the Perſians, 314, c. Promoted by Julian, 324, f. Treachery to Procopius, 368, b.

Agiluf choſen king of the Lombards, vii. 684, b. Turns orthodox, ibid. d. Severity to the revolted dukes, ibid. e, f. Conqueſts on the Roman exarchate, 685, & ſeq. Truce with it, 686, b. Death and character, 687, c, & ſeq.

Aginacius, unjuſtly put to death, vi. 361.

Agis, his ſevere reign, ii. 403.

—— invades Attica, 507, & ſeq. 596, & ſeq. Offers peace to the Athenians, 512, a. Defeates the confederates at Mantinea, 515. 599, c. Reſentment againſt Alcibiades, 521, d. Repulſed before Athens, 527, c. 601, c. On a ſecond attempt, 528, a. Succeſsful in a third, 529, & ſeq. Invades Argos, 598, paſſ. Makes a truce with them, ibid. & ſeq. Invades Elis, 599, f. Concludes a peace, 600, a. His death, 605, e.

—— the ſon of Ageſilaus, ſent embaſſador to Philip, 621, c. Succeeds his father, ibid. His defeat and glorious death, 622, a.

—— the ſon of Eudamidas, reforms the Spartan luxury, 626, & ſeq. Forced into a ſanctuary, 627, a. Betrayed and murdered, 628, b.

—— depoſed by Cyneas, iv. 645, e.

Aglauros daughter of Cecrops, her fatal curioſity puniſhed, ii. 363, (F).

Agnan, St. the biſhop of, opens Orleans to Attila, vii. 474, e.

Agnes, St. the church of, built by Conſtantine, vi. 248, f.

Agnomen, among the Romans, what, iv. 444, (Z).

Agnonidas, Phocion's enemy, put to death, ii. 553, f.

† Agræi, who, and where, vii. 228, d (G).

† Agragas. Vid. Agrigentum river, iii. 5, e.

Agrarian law, by whom propoſed, iv. 504, b. Why oppoſed by the tribunes, ibid. c, d. Suſpended by the conſuls, 505, b. f.

b, f. Proves the cauſe of new broils, 506, 512, & ſeq. 517, e. 528, & ſeq. Revived by the military tribunes, 550. By M. P. Flaminius, 684, d, e. By Tiber. Gracchus, 789, & ſeq. Agreed to, 791.
—— new-modelled by Jul. Cæſar, v. 113. Oppoſed by the ſenate, ibid. c, d. Paſſed by the people, 114, a.
Agreſtis, Jul. begs to view the deſolations of Cremona, v. 629, b. His report of it miſconſtrued, ibid. c. Kills himſelf, ibid. d.
Agreus, in the Phœnician coſmogony, who, i. 87, e.
—— Italicus, inventor of hunting fiſhing, ibid.
Agricola, the mother of Julius, her ſingular care of him, v. 651, e, f. Killed, 652, b.
—— Cneius Jul. his extract, &c. v. 631, d, e. Sent into Britain, ibid. & ſeq. Serves under Cerealis, 652, c, d. Promoted by Veſpaſian, ibid. e, f. His ſwift ſucceſs there, 653, a—c. Singular modeſty, ibid. d. Wholeſome regulations, ibid. e, f. 659, e, f. Suppoſed to have paſſed into Scotland, 660, b. Debauches the Britons, 601, a. Skill in fortifying, ibid. b. Strict dicipline, ibid. c. Further conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. His conqueſts in Britain, vii. 431, a—c.
Agriculture improved by the ſons of Cain, i. 81, a, b. Inſtruments of invented by Noah, 85, (N).
—— unknown to the ancient Greeks, ii. 346, c. How encouraged by Numa, iv. 437, b.
Agrigentines, their ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, vi. 734, a, b. Their pheaces, what, ibid. c, (B). Humanity to the fugitive Selinuntines, 742, d. Preparations againſt Hannibal, 746, b, c. Reſolute defence againſt him, 747, paſſ. Become infatuated, ibid. d, e. And mutiny, ibid. f. Abandoned by their mercenaries, 748, d. Dreadful cataſtrophe, ibid. e, f. Take ſeveral cities in Sicily, 801, & ſeq: Ally with Carthage, 824, d, e. Beſieged by, and abandoned to, the Romans, 729, paſſ.
† Agrigentum, in Sicily, deſcribed, iii. 5, e. When and by whom founded, 12, a. Its famed buildings, 17, d. Beſieged by the Carthaginians, 41. Abandoned to them, 42, c. Betrayed to the Romans, 127, c. Beſieged and taken by them, iv. 655, & ſeq. Deſtroyed by Carthalo, vi. 843.
Agrippa's ſplendid reception in Judæa, iv. 147, b.
—— the ſon of Ariſtobulus, 152, ſub not.
—— his ſon Agrippa born, 198. Advanced by Caligula, 757, & ſeq. The reſt ſee under Herod Agrippa.
—— king of Alba, his reign, 421, e.
—— Menenius's victory over the Sabines, 479. Advice to the ſenate, 490, & ſeq. Speech to the revolted, 491, c. Death and public obſequies, 493, c.
—— M. Vipſan. accuſes Caſſius, v. 220, d. His vain geneology, ibid. (X). Reſcues Salvidienus in Gaul, 265, a. His ſucceſs there, 277, b, c. Commands the fleet againſt Pompey, 278, b, c. His ſucceſs againſt him, 279, paſſ. 280, d, e. Valour and reward, 281, a. Brave exploits in Greece, 289, d e. Commands Octavianus's fleet, 291, c, d. Adviſes him to reſign, 295, b, c. His noble buildings at Rome, 300, d. 310, d, e. Receives dying Auguſtus's ring, 303, c. Made governor of Syria, 304, a. Of Rome, 307, a. Marries Marcellus's widow, ibid. b. Succeſs againſt the Germans and Cantabrians, 309, & ſeq. Raiſed by Auguſtus, 311, b. His ſucceſs in the eaſt, 313, a 315, paſſ. Declines a triumphant entry into Rome, 316, a. 317, c. Sent with new honours into Pannonia, ibid. d. His death, character, and offspring, 318, a, b. 407, (F).
—— Poſthumus, the ſon of the former, 318, c. Adopted by Auguſtus, 332, c. Baniſhed by him, 334, d. His tender interview with him, 347, c, d. Murdered, 551, a.
—— Vibulenus put to death, 451, c.
—— the grandſon of Herod, impriſoned, 454, f. Releaſed by Caligula, 460, e, f. Made tetrarch by him, 461. Buries the dead emperor, 485, b. Perſuades Claudius to accept the empire, 490, paſſ Promoted by him, 492, f, & ſeq. By Nero, 519, e. Goes to ſalute Galba, 582, f.
—— declares for Veſpaſian, 621, a.
—— ſucceſs againſt the Dacians, 635, f.
—— the ſon of Felix, deſtroyed by mount Veſuvius, 659, e.
Agrippina, the daughter of Agrippa, married to Germanicus, v. 318, c. Accompanies him into Germany, 367, b. Sent away for ſafety, ibid. c, d. Signal courage at Treves, 377, c, d. Carries her huſband's aſhes to Rome, 400, c. Her mournful reception, 403, & ſeq. Careſulneſs of his two ſons, 418, c, d. Noble ſpeech to Tiberius, 427, e, & ſeq. Accuſed by him to the ſenate, 436, c, d. Baniſhed, 437, b. Her death, 448, c. Obſequies performed by Caligula, 460.
Agrippina, Vipſania, married to Aſin. Gallus, 355, c.
—— daughter of Germanicus, betrothed to Domitius, 435, b. Highly honoured by Caligula, 460, c, d. Debauched by Lepidus, and baniſhed, 475, e, (T). Recalled, 493, b. Murders her huſband, 503, d. Propoſed to Claudius, ibid. & (O). Married to him, 505, d. Aſſumes a deſpotic ſway, ibid. & ſeq. Cruelties, 507, & ſeq. Treachery to Stat. Taurus, 515, a. To Lepida, ibid. & ſeq. Poiſons her huſband, 516, c, d, (A). Helliſh policy againſt Britannicus, 517, paſſ. Cruelty and ambition, ibid. & ſeq. Harſhneſs to Nero, 520, d, e. Fawns on him, 521, b. Cabals againſt him, 523, e. Accuſed by Silana, and acquitted, 524, c. Unnatural proſtitution to her ſon, 533, d. Journey to Baiæ, 531, & ſeq. Eſcapes being drowned by Anicetus, 532, a, b. Hides her reſentment, ibid. c, d. Her laſt words and death, 533, d, e. Funeral, ibid.
† —— Colonia, Cologn, ancient metropolis of the Ubii, 366, a, (F).
† Agrippinæ Thermæ, when built, v. 300, d.
Ahab, king of Iſrael, his miraculous defeat of the Syrians, i. 383, c, d. And in the plain Aphek, 784, b. Generoſity to Benhadad, ibid. c, d. Marries Jeſabel, and grows an idolater, 809, a. Reproved for ſaving Benhadad, 811, a. Murders Naboth, 812, a. Fatal expedition againſt Ramoth, ibid. d, & ſeq. His death, 813, a. His ſeventy ſons killed, 819.
Abariman, Ahriman, the Perſic name of the devil, i. 31, d.
Aheſhuerus, al. Aſtyages, king of Media, ii. 20, e.
—— Artaxerxes. See Artaxerxes, ii. 130, a. & iv. 11, & ſeq.
Ahaz, king of Judah, invaded by the Philiſtines, i. 359, a. His wicked reign, 381, a. Invaded by Edom and Iſrael, 832, b. His idolatries and death, ibid. d.
Ahaziah ſucceeds Ahab in Iſrael, i. 813, c. His idolatry and death, ibid. d.
Ahenobarbus, Cai. Domit. his peaceful conſulſhip, v. 46, a. Character, 121, c, d. Narrow eſcape, ibid. e. Betrayed to Jul. Cæſar, 131, f, & ſeq. 133. Letter to Pompey, ibid. (G). Defends Marſeilles, 135, c, d. Blames Pompey's ambition, 142, b. Whimſical quarrel with Spinther, ibid. d. Slain in his flight, 146, b.
—— Brutus's admiral, defeats the triumvirs fleet, 248, c. Surrenders to Antony, 269, c, d. Forgiven by Octavius, 270, d. Retires to Athens, 286, a. Abandons Antony, 289, f. His death, 290, a.
Ahiman, one of the three ſons of Anak, defeated by Caleb, i. 334, a, (B).
Ahimelech put to death by Saul's orders, i. 767, a.
Ahitophel revolts to Abſalom, i. 783, d. His helliſh advice to him, 784, d. Hangs himſelf, 785, b.
Ahitub, the ſon of Phineas, ſuppoſed to have ſucceeded him, i. 756, b.
Ahl. Al Tahkith, a Mohammedan ſect, i. 8. Their opinion of the origin of things, ibid.
Aholibama, a curious artiſt of the tabernacle, i. 523, b.
Aholi-bamah. See Baſhemal.
Ahyrte, daughter of Seſoſtris, i. 254, c.
Ai, the king of, repulſes the Iſraelites, i. 331, a. Defeated and put to death, 558, a.
† Ajalon, the valley of, where the ſun ſtood ſtill, i. 558, c, (G).
Ajax ſhipwrecked, ii 321, f. His tomb, 305, b.
—— king of Salamis, iii. 176.
† Aidab, a port near Mecca, vii. 238, a.
Aio defeated and killed, vii. 692.
Ajon, king of the Lombards, vii. 615, d.
† Air, mount, where, vii. 237, d.
Air worſhipped by the Carthaginians, vi. 692, a.
† Aix, in Provence, by whom built, iv. 802, b.
† Al Arakh, where ſited, vii. 241, a.
Ala, wing, how compoſed among the Romans, v. 369, (N).
† Al-Bahriva, the eaſtern part of Delta, i. 176, c. Its most probable ſituation, ibid. d.
† Al Abba's region whence ſo called, vii. 238, a.
† Al Hegh'r, Hejr, Egra, where ſited, vii. 238, c.
Alackis's revolt and pardon, vii. 697, d—f. Treachery and puniſhment, 698, a—e.
Aladin's ſham paradiſe deſcribed, ii. 19, b & not. His family and empire, vi. 629, a.
† Alæſa, a city in Sicily, iii. 8, c.
Alala, the Macedonian huzza, ii. 269, e.
Alamundarus defeated by the Romans, iv. 340.
—— abortive threats againſt the Romans, vi 475, a. Commands

Commands the Saracens againſt them, 525, a. Repulſed in Syria, ibid. b, c.
Alani, where ſituate, iv. 319, c. v. 650, c. Irruption into Media, 320, f. Revolt againſt Adrian, vi. 41, e. Quelled under Antoninus, 58, a. Defeat Gordian, 162, c.
Alans, where ſituate, vi. 379, c. Ally with the Huns, ibid. d. Enter Gaul, 462, b Settle in Spain, ibid. d, e. Defeated by Vallia, 472. Submit to Gonderic, ibid. Settle along the Loire, 485, c. Defeated in Italy, 507, e. Submit to Attila, vii. 466, b. Invaded by him, 480, b, c. By Thoriſmond, ibid. d. Regain their liberty, 482, a. Where ſettled, ibid. Defeated by Vallia, 510, a. Aſſiſt the Vandals, 529, c—e. Enter Spain, 530, a, b. Their territories there, ibid. f, & ſeq.
Alaric, a Frank general under Theodoſius, vi. 424, a. Dreadful havock in Syria, 438, c,—e. Promoted by Arcadius, 445, c—e. Invades Rome, 447, f. His extract and character, 448, a, b. Second invaſion, 449, b, c Ravages Italy, ibid. d. Defeated. 450, c, d. Exorbitant demands on Honorius, 455, e, f. Supported by the barbarians, 458, a. Blocks up Rome, ibid. b. Raiſes the Siege on very hard terms, ibid. d Second Siege of Rome, 459, f, & ſeq. Moderate demands on Honorius, 460, e, f. on the city of Rome, 461, a, b. Proclaims Attalus thro' Italy, 462, a. Depoſes him, and confirms Honorius, 463, d, e. Treachery to him and Attalus, ibid. & ſeq. Takes Rome, 464, b, c. Dies, 465, b. Buried in the bottom of a river, ibid. c.
—— driven out by the Huns, vii. 492, e. Serves under the Romans, 504, e, f. Stirred up by Rufinus, 505, a. His dreadful ravages, ibid b—f. Spirited up by Stilicho, 505, a. Preferred by Arcadius, ibid. c. Choſen king of the Goths, 507, d. Irruption into Italy, ibid. & ſeq. Peace with Stilicho, 508, a. Corrupted by him, ibid. b, c. Enters Noricum, ibid. d. His death, 509, a. 575, f.
Alba, the kingdom of, by whom founded, ii. 222, c. iv. 421, b. Why called Longa, ibid. Where ſituate, ibid. (G). The kings of, 421, & ſeq.
—— demoliſhed by the Romans, 443, b.
—— the lake of, overflows, iv. 558, c. Cut into canals, ibid e.
Albona, a city in Albania, iii. 837, d.
Albania, the kingdom of, deſcribed, iii. 837, & ſeq. Why ſo called, vii. 421, (A).
Albian ſoldiers, whence ſo called, vi. 133, d. Revolt to Heliogabalus, ibid & ſeq. Murder the two Maximins, 159, c.
Albians, their ſimple manners, iii. 837, e, f. Government, &c. 838, & ſeq. Subdued by Trajan, vi. 18, c. Refuſe to come to Adrian, 37, b.
Albans, their conteſts with the Romans decided, iv. 440, & ſeq. Treachery puniſhed, 442, & ſeq.
Albanus, the river of, 837, d.
—— St. martyred in Great Britain, vi. 216, c.
Alba Dominica, married to Valens, vi. 366, e. Brought to bed of Valentinian, vi. 369, c.
Albanus proſcribed, v. 60, b. Treachery to the conſuls, 62, c.
Albanus Poſthumus, a friend to Maſſiva, v. 11, f. Ill ſucceſs in Numidia, 12, b. Baniſhment, ibid. e.
—— Lucius murdered by the Moors, 614, f, & ſeq.
—— Cladius oppoſes Caſſius, vi. 76, a. Conſulſhip, 79, b Succeſs in the North, 87, c. Againſt the Friſians, 90, a. Made governor of Britain, 92, d. His extract and character, 101, f, & ſeq. Hatred of monarchy, 102, b. Gluttony, ibid. c. Deſcribed by M. Aurelius, ibid. (L). Tampered by Severus, 105, c. Created Cæſar, 108, a. Aſſumes the purple, 111, e. Defeated, 112, b 113, e, f. His death, ibid. & ſeq.
—— ill ſucceſs againſt Jugurtha, vii. 130.
—— ſent embaſſador to Attila, 480, a.
Albion, the ancient name of Great Britain, vii. 401, a, b.
Albium Intemelium, plundered by Otho, v. 605, f.
Alboda, converted, vii. 569, f. Dies, 570, a.
Alboin's cruelty to Cunemundus, vii. 597, d, e. Marries his daughter, ibid f. Reigns in Italy, 615, d. Valour and reward, 617, c, d. Reign and conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. in Italy) death and character, 620, e, f.
Albuin's condemnation and puniſhment, v. 452, d. 453, b.
Alcea, a ſhrub in Egypt, deſcribed, i. 183.
Alcetas, king of Macedonia, iii. 273.
—— brother of Perdiccas, betrays Eumenes, 421, f. Proſcribed, 423, c. Joins himſelf to him, 424, a. Defeated ibid & ſeq. His death, 425, a.
—— firſt king of Epirus, driven out, 800, f.
Alcetas ſecond defeated by Caſſander, 803, c. Murdered, ibid. d. & 461, e.
Alcibiades, the rival of Nicias, his character, ii. 513, c. Leagues with the Argives, 514, c. Deſcent into Melos, 516, b. Accuſed of ſacrilege, 517 b. Retires to Sparta, ibid. In high eſteem there, 518, 600, c. Sent to invade Ionia, 521. Cabals againſt the Athenians, 522, a. Recalled, 524, a. Beats the confederates, 526. Takes Byzantium, 527, e. Stripped of his command, 528. His retirement and death, 522, paſſ. & (N).
—— invades Sicily, iii. 26, & ſeq. Recalled to Athens, 27, e.
Alcimalus ſettles democracy in Greece, iii. 327, c.
Alcimus promoted to the Jewiſh high prieſthood, iv. 69, e. Brings a war in Judea, 70, b. Perfidy to the Aſſideans, ibid. e. His dreadful end, 76, b.
—— his writings and character, vi. 316, (G).
Alcimus, king of Lydia, ii. 333.
Alcionius generouſly reproved by Pyrrhus, iii. 472, d.
Alectrio, a ſacred perſon among the Syrians, i. 375, d.
† Alemans, Alemanni, where ſeated, vi. 125, & ſeq. Firſt ravage the empire, ibid. Why ſo called, vii. 404, (A). Their origin, 588, c. Territories, government, &c. ibid. d, e. Wars, ibid. & ſeq. Ravaged by Maximin, 589, b. 590, c. Defeated in Gaul, ibid. c. By Claudius, ibid. d. By Aurelian, ibid. e. Break into Italy, 590, a. Defeated, ibid. b, c. Sixty thouſand cut off by Chlorus, ibid. d, e. Defeated by Julian, 591, b—e. 592, paſſ. Break into Gaul, ibid. & ſeq. Thrice defeated there, 593, paſſ. Peace with Valentinian, ibid. e, f. 594, b. Break it, ibid. c. Defeated by Gratian, ibid. d. Settled in Switzerland, ibid. e, f. In Alſace, 595, a. Defeated and diſperſed by Clovis, ibid. b, c.
Aleppo, taken by Hyrcan, iv. 92, a.
Aleria, taken by Scipio, vi. 833, d, (Q). By the Romans, iv. 660, b.
Aletes invades Corinth, ii. 394, c.
—— deified for diſcovering a ſilver mine, vii 65, (Q).
Aletus ſent to view the effects of a dreadful earthquake, v. 392, c.
Aleus's cruelty to his daughter, ii. 379, b.
Alexumenos ſent to aſſaſſinate Nabis, ii. 638, & ſeq. 713, & ſeq. Maſſacred by the Spartans, 714, e.
Alexander, the ſon of Priam. Vid. Paris, ii. 318, a.
—— king of Macedon, his noble revenge againſt the Perſians, ii. 106. f.
—— ſtratagem againſt their embaſſadors, iii. 274, & ſeq. Speech to the Athenians, 277, & ſeq. Warns them againſt Mardonius, 279, a. Generoſity to the Argives, ibid. d.
—— II. ſucceeds Amyntas II. 285, & ſeq. Outwits the Theſſalians, 286, a. His death, ibid. c.
—— the Great, born, iii. 291, a, & (C). Made regent dureing Philip's abſence, 299, & ſeq. Saves his life, 305. His encounter with Attalus, 310, c. Recalled to court, 311, a. Whether privy to his father's murder, 314, (P). His character, education, &c. 312, (N). 317, & ſeq. Declared general of Greece, ibid. c. Invades the Triballi, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Sudden return into Greece, 320, d. Takes and ſacks Thebes, 321, & ſeq. Viſits Diogenes, 323, a. Expedition into Aſia, ibid. & ſeq. Victory at the Granicus, 325. Comes to Epheſus, 327, d. Why he diſmiſſes his fleet, 328, a. Invades Caria, 330, a. Quells a conſpiracy, 331. His paſſage through the ladders, whether miraculous, ibid. (H). March through Phrygia, 332, c. Cuts the Gordian knot, 333, c, d. Enters Cilicia, ibid. f. Fights Darius at Iſſus, 335, & ſeq. His generoſity to his family, 336, (I). Invades Cœlo-ſyria, 337. Letter to Darius, 338. Moderation towards the Greek embaſſadors, 339. Cruelty to the Tyrians, 342. Anſwer to Darius, 343. Reſpect to the Jewiſh high-prieſt, ibid. & ſeq. Takes Gaza, 344. Journey, and new city, in Egypt, 345, & ſeq. Conſults the oracle there, 347. Settles the Egyptian government, 348, b, c. Paſſes the Euphrates and Tigris, 349. Victory at Guagamela, 350, & ſeq. March to Babylon, 353. To Suſa, 354. Deſtroys Perſepolis, 356, & ſeq Marches into Media, 357. Purſues Darius's aſſaſſins, 359. Vain attempt againſt luxury, 362. Conſpired againſt for it, 363. Severity to the conſpirators, 365. Cruelty to the Branchidæ, 368, (S). Ill ſucceſs againſt the Scythians, 371. Degenerates, 374, & ſeq. Kills Clytus, 375, & ſeq. Conſpired againſt, 380. Re-enters Sogdia, 382. Love to Roxana, 384, d. March towards Indus, 385, & ſeq. Cruelty to the Indians, 388, b, c. Paſſes the Indus and Hydaſpes, 390. Treatment of king Porus, 392.

Penetrates

Penetrates further into India, 393, & seq. Stops at the river Hypasis, 394. His strange vanity, 395, (E). Embarks his army, 397. In great danger from the Malli, 398 Sails down the Indus into the ocean, 401. Goes by land to Babylon, 402, & seq. Takes two wives, 405, b, c. Generosity to his army, ibid. & seq. Quells a mutiny on the Tigris, 406, & seq. Marches into Media, 407. To Babylon, 408, & seq. Threatened by ill omens, 409, & seq. & (N). His death, 411, & seq. & (O). Character. 412. Vast designs set aside, 418, b, c. Buried in Egypt, 421. Some account of him out of the Oriental writers, ii. 229, & seq. Visits the tomb of Achilles, 305, b. Outwitted by the Lampsacians, 324, & seq. His friendship to the Jews, iv. 28. & seq. Revenge on the Samaritans, 30, b. His tomb shut up with all the learned books, vi. 115, c. Visited by Caracalla, 126, e, f.

Alexander, the son of the former, iii. 413, a. Imprisoned by Cassander, 462, a. Murdered, ibid. b

——— the son of Polysperchon, his character, iii. 453, d. Favoured by Antigonus, 459, d, e. Made general of Peloponnesus, ibid f. Murdered, 460.

——— the son of Cassander, drives his brother out of Macedon, 473, b, c. Put to death by Demetrius, ibid. & 442, b. 465, e.

——— king of Epirus, allies with Philip, iii. 801, b. Wars with the Brutti, ibid. d. Deceived by an oracle, ibid. e, Defeated and killed, 802, a, b. His character, ibid. c, d.

——— the son of Pyrrhus, invades Macedon, iii. 473, a. 820, c, d. Driven out by Demetrius, ibid.

——— the son of Perseus, sent prisoner to Rome, iii. 499. Forced to a private life, 500, d.

——— a sham son of Perseus, invades Macedon, iii. 505, d, e.

——— prince of Syria, revolts against Antiochus, iii. 530. His tragical end, 533, e.

——— Balas, set up against Demetrius, iii. 594, a. Courts the Jews. 595, b. Vid. iv. 78. His letter to Jonathan, ibid. (Q). Great honours to that pontif, 79, c, d 80, d. Kills Demetrius, ibid. & seq. Marries Cleopatra, 596, b. Degenerates, ibid. & seq. Abandoned by Philometer, 598, c. Defeated and killed, ibid. & seq. His character, 599, (K), 600, & seq. Coin, 601, sub not.

——— Zebina, set up against Demetrius, iii. 611, & (S). His character, 612, b. Assisted by the Jews, iv. 93, b. Defeated by Physcon, 613, a. Death, ibid. Coin, 622, sub not.

——— the son of Physcon, set up against his elder brother, iii. 659, b. Kills his mother, 662, a. Defeated and killed, ibid. c.

——— the grandson of Physcon, murders Cleopatra, iii. 665, c. Banished for his cruelties, ibid. e, f. Bequeaths Egypt to the Romans, 666, a, b.

——— the Phrean, wars against the king of Macedon, iii. 285, f Murdered, 292, a.

——— the son of Eropas, conspires against Alexander the Great, iii. 331, a, (G).

——— king of Emessa, taken prisoner, iii. 848.

——— the son of Hyrcan, his education, iv. 94, (V). Why surnamed Jannæus, ibid. Imprisoned by Aristobulus, 96, c. Mounts the throne, 97, & seq. His fatricide, 98, a. Ill success against Ptolemais, ibid. b. Defeated by Lathyrus, ibid. & seq. By Theodotus, 99, a. His bloody revenge on the Gazeans, ibid. Affronted at the altar, ibid. d, (E, F). Cruel revenge for it, 100, a. Defeated by the Syrians, ibid. & seq. Cruelty to the rebels, his wars, conquests, ibid & seq. & (K). Vid. & iii. 616, f. 660, & seq. Why spared by Cleopatra, 661, e. His death, iv. 102, b, c. Last advice to his queen, ibid. & seq.

——— the son of Aristobulus, escapes out of Pompey's hands, iv. 112, & seq. Wastes Judæa, 113, c. Defeated by the Romans, ibid. d. Besieged by them, 114, a. Defeated by Gabinius, 115, b. By Cassius, 116, b. Beheaded by Pompey, ibid. & seq.

——— the brave son of Herod, married to Glaphira, iv. 143, b. Pleads his own cause before Augustus, 148, b. His desperate confession, 149. Condemned, and put to death, 151, b, c.

——— the pretended son of Mariamne, raises a party, iv. 191. Discovered by Augustus, ibid. d, e.

——— Tiberius, made governor of Judea, iv. 263, d.

——— king of Epirus, invades Italy, iv. 599, e. Allies with Rome, ibid f.

Alexander the Epicurean's opinion of the origin of things, i. 7.

——— pretor of Ætolia's speech to the Roman consuls, ii. 709, & seq.

——— the orator, made general of the Rhodians, v. 234, f. Defeated, 235, c.

——— the son of Cleopatra, made king of Armenia, v. 285, a.

——— the Roman emperor born, vi. 132, e. Adopted by Heliogabalus, 137, a. Hated and degraded by him, ibid. b. Saved by the soldiers, ibid. c, d. Proclaimed emperor, 138, a. His extract and excellent education, ibid b, c. Character, ibid. d, e. Respect for the christians, ibid. & seq. Reforms the state, 139, a. Marries Sulpitia Memmia, ibid. b. Mildness to Camillus, 139, f. Expedition into Germany, 140, b, c. Retires into Campania, 141, e. Treatment of Artaxerxes's embassadors, 142, a. Noble speech to the revolted legion, ibid. c, d. Admirable discipline, ibid. f, & seq. Various accounts of his Persian expedition, 143, & seq. Victory over them, 144, pass. Speech to the senate, ibid. b, c Triumph, ibid. f. Hastens against the Germans, 145, b Murdered there, 146, b. His excellent character, ibid. & seq. Public works, 148, a, b. Learning, ibid. c, d. Cotemporary authors, ibid. (Q).

——— bishop of Jerusalem, martyred, vi. 168, d.

——— bishop of Constantinople, his zeal and death, vi. 266, c ——— a cruel governor of Antioch, vi. 329, f.

——— the brother of Leo, made regent, vi. 577, a. His vile character, ibid. d, e, f. Death, 578.

Alexandra, queen of the Jews, gains over the Pharisees, iv. 103, a, b. Embassy to Tigranes, 104, & seq. (iii. 701, d.) Supplanted by Aristobulus, 105, b. Her death, ibid. d. Falsely confounded with Salome, ibid. (M).

——— daughter of Hyrcan, cabals against Herod, iv. 133. Resentment for the death of her sons, 134, d. Imprisoned, 135, c, d. Confined at Massada, 138, b. Base behaviour, to her excellent daughter, 139, & seq. Put to death, 140.

——— the temple of, at Amyclæ, ii. 397.

† Alexandria, the metropolis of the lower Egypt, i. 1-6. b, c. When and by whom built, iii. 368. Besieged by Antiochus, 577. Filled with Jews, iv. 30, pass. 35, b Courted by Cleopatra, 98, c. The massacre of, 269, a.

† ——— rebuilt by Adrian, vi. 37, e. Enriched by M. Aurelius, 79, d. Ruined by Caracalla, 127, d, e In a dreadful case under Macrianus, 179, a. Plundered by the Romans, 213, b, c. Laid under water, 328, b.

† ——— the museum of, described, vi, 37, f.

† ——— in Cilicia, by whom built, ii 341, c.

† ——— upon the Sinus Issicus, i. 361, a.

Alexandrians, their fidelity to Philometor, iii. 575, c. Opposed by Physcon, 655, & seq. Massacred, 657. Fifty thousand Jews murdered, iv. 269, a.

——— raise a tumult against Cæsar, v. 151, c, d. Base condescension to Caligula, 468, d, e. Flattery to Nero, 545, d. Ingratitude to Adrian, vi. 37, e, f Massacred for lampooning Caracalla, 127, c, d. Acknowledged Æmilianus, 181, a.

Alexandrian library described, iii 629. Destroyed by the Saracens, 630.

† Alexandrion, the fortress of, described, iv. 109, (Q).

Alexius, Salome's husband, releases the Jewish chiefs, iv. 148, a. Speech to the army, ibid. b.

Alexius the patriarch's base complaisance to Zoe, vi. 595, e.

——— Comnenus founds the empire of Trapezond, vi. 286, 288, & seq See Comnenus, &c.

Alexon defeats a piece of Roman treachery, vi. 845, c, f.

Alexus. See Alexander the Roman emperor, vi. 132, & seq.

Alfius Mar. defeated by the Romans, iv. 719.

Alford, father, confuted, vi. 227, e.

† Algæ, a city in Eubæa, described, iii. 249, e.

Algebra, known among the Egyptians, i. 218, a.

† Aliacmon, a river in Thessaly, ii. 382, a. In Macedon, iii. 260, c.

† Aliphera described, ii. 655, (G).

† Aliso, river, its course, v. 381, d, (P).

Alienus left prætor in Sicily, v 158, c. Brings succours to Cæsar, 159. Made proconsul of Sicily, 169, c.

Allies, the war of, v. 47, b. A general revolt of them, 58, f. Their success against the Romans, 49, & seq. Revolt to Cinna, 61, a, b.

† Alli

† Allobroges embaſſadors diſcover Catiline's conſpiracy, v. 106, c.
— oppreſſed by Valens, 609, e. Where ſituate, vii. 397, (L).
† Allon Baccuth, why ſo called, i. 448, b.
Almah, Jewiſh virgins, whence ſo called, i. 679, (P).
Almodad, the ſon of Joktan, uncertain where he ſettled, i. 170, a.
† Almopians, where ſituate, iii. 257, b.
† Alopeconneſus, where ſituate, iii. 788, a.
Alorus, the ſame with Adam, i. 91, a.
Alphabet, how inlarged by Claudius, v. 486, (N). Hebrew and Samaritan, i. 719, e.
Alpharag writes in defence of the Sadducees, iv. 167, f.
† Alpheus, the famed river, deſcribed, ii. 406, (F).
Alphinus's riſe and character, v. 331, c, (N).
Alpinus, Jul. put to death by Cæcina, v. 601, a.
† Alps, Apennine hills, whence ſo called, ii. 249, b. Auguſtus's monument upon, v. 300, a.
Altars, their ſtructure among the Scythians, ii. 272.
Altaræes, why ſettled in Crete, iii. 132, b, c.
Althea, the fable of, ii. 411, (C).
— the city of, taken by Hannibal, iv. 691, a.
Alticus, ſeverely puniſhed by Hannibal, vii. 49, d, e.
Amastus, undermined at Conſtantinople, vii. 638, b. Treachery to Deleanus, ibid. d. Submits to the emperor Michael, ibid. e, & ſeq.
Amazons's wars with the Scythians, &c. ii. 334. His tomb, 328, e.
Amathee, Priam's wife. Vid. Ariſba, ii. 317, f.
Amadocus, king of th Odryſæ, iii. 794, a.
Amalaric, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, vii. 492, e.
— in Spain, his territories reſtored, 645, a—c. 647, e.
Amalaſuntha married to Eutaric, vii. 647, a—c. Her excellent adminiſtration and character, ibid. & ſeq. Oppoſed by the Gothic lords, 649, e, & ſeq. Makes Theodotus her collegue, 650, e, & ſeq. Impriſoned by him, 651, b. Put to death, ibid. c.
Amalek, the ſon of Eſau, and father of the Amalekites, i. 317, c. One of the dukes of Edom, ibid. His genealogy according to the Arabians, 317, (A). The tribe of, vii. 243, e.
Amalekites, their deſcent, i. 317, e. Why ſevered from Eſau's line, 318. Their firſt ſettlement, ibid. Uſe of Circumciſion, 319, b. Their government, arts, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Fall foul on the Iſraelites, 320, a. Defeated by Joſhua, ibid b. By Saul, ibid. c—e. By David, 321, a. Burn Ziklah, and run away with the plunder, ibid. b. Defeated afreſh, ibid. c. Utterly deſtroyed by the Simeonites, ibid. e. Why laid under a perpetual anathema by Moſes, 512, b. 665, d. Whether the ſame with the Greek Shepherds, 280. The Arabians and Egyptians account of them, 317, a. 319, (F). Suppoſed to have fled into Afric. ibid.
Amali, the princely tribe of, vii. 487, e. 492, d. 647, b.
Amalric digged up and burnt for his falſe doctrine of God, i. 8.
Amalthea, one of Jupiter's nurſes, iii. 165, b.
Amandus's revolt in Gaul, vi. 207, e. Defeated, 258, d.
Amantius conſpires againſt Juſtin, vi. 523, a.
Amaſa, treacherouſly murdered by Joab, i. 787, c.
Amaſia a city in Pontus, deſcribed, iii. 720, d.
Amaſiah ſucceeds his father Joab, i. 824, e. Defeats the Edomites, 825, c. His idolatry, ibid d. Defeat and death, ibid. & ſeq.
Amaſis dethrones Apries, i. 270, a His ſtratagem to gain reſpect from the Egyptians, ibid. c, d. Magnificent portico at Sais, ibid. f. Other ſtately works, 271, a, b. Viſited by Solon, ibid. c, d. Marries a Greek, ibid. e, f. A miracle pretended on that occaſion, ibid. f. His donatives to Greece, 272, a, b. Subdues Cyprus, ibid. b. His latter days, why unhappy, ibid. d. Betrayed by Phanes, 273, b, c. Falls out with Polycrates, ibid. d. His letter to him, iii. 191. Breaks his alliance with him, and why, ibid. e. His death, ibid. His body dug up and burnt, 274, f.
Amaſis, Ammoſis, dethroned by his ſubjects for his oppreſſions, i. 258, d, e.
— his body abuſed by Cambyſes, ii. 96, d.
— ſtratagem againſt Barca, vii. 173, b, (E).
Amaſtris, murdered by her ſons, iii. 825, b.
— the city of, built by her, ibid.
Amatha, the palace of, burnt, iv. 189, a, (T).
Amathus, a city of Cyprus, iii. 173, d.
— taken by Janneus, iv 98, f. Deſtroyed by him, 100, b. Made one of the five courts of judicature, 114, b.
Amazons, mothers of the Sarmatians, ii, 266, c. Their Scythian name, 277. An account of thoſe female warriors, 278, ſub. not. Overcome by Hercules and Theſeus, 366, ſub not. Some further account of them, iii. 721, c, d.
Amathuſans, why they ſacrifice to Oneſilus, iii. 178, b.
Amber, plenty of in Pruſſia, vii. [410], & ſeq.
Ambiani ſubdued by Cæſar, v. 119, f.
Ambiganus ſends colonies into Italy, iv. 561.
Ambiorix over-reaches the Romans, v. 124, b. Defeated, 126, e. His account of his regal power, vii. 368, c.
† Ambracia, a city in Epirus, iii. 796, b. Taken by Philip, ii. 653, b. By the Romans, 727, f. 729, e.
† Ambracian gulph, where ſituate, v. 289, a.
Ambraciots drive away the Macedonians, ii. 549, c.
Ambrones defeated by Marius, v. 34, & ſeq.
Ambronian women, their valour, v. 35, e.
Ambroſe, St. his riſe and acquaintance with Probus, vi. 363, e. Highly eſteemed by Gratian, 391, b. Noble ſpeech to the uſurper Maximus, 400, c. To Theodoſius, 414, e, f. Sent to baptize Valentinian, 419, e. His panegyric on that prince, 420, e, f. Letter to Eugenius, 421, c. Condemns the Theſſalonican maſſacre, 427, d, e. Letters to queen Fritigil, 438, a. His death, 439, a.
Ambroſius, Aurel. ſucceeds Vortigern, vii. 445, e. Defeats the Saxons, 446, a. His progreſs through England, ibid. b, c. Victories over the Saxons, ibid. d, e.
Ambuſtus, Fab. his untimely complaiſance to his daughter, iv. 578, e. Choſen military tribune, 579, f. His ſucceſs againſt the Tyburtes, 591, d. Choſen dictator, 592, f.
Amenophis, ſuppoſed by ſome to be the ſame with Belus, i. 492. Conjectures about the time of his reigning, ibid. (B).
† America, how firſt peopled, &c. i. 104, b. Whether the Atlantis of Plato, 179, b, c.
Americans ſpeak of a flood, i. 95, e.
Amelius's writings and character, vi. 196, & ſeq. ſub not.
Amida, the god of the Japoneſe, i. 34, d.
† —— the city of, Deſtroyed by Sapor, iv. 334, d. Taken and preſerved by Cavades, 335, c. Surrendered to the Romans, 346. Fortified by Conſtantius, vi. 371, a. Beſieged by Sapor, 306. Its dreadful cataſtrophe, 307, b, c. Reſtored by the Niſibians, 348, d. Taken by the Perſians, 520, c, d. Reſtored to the Romans, ibid. e, f.
† Amiens new peopled by the Franks, vi. 203, b.
Aminadab, the father-in-law of Aaron, i. 490, a.
Aminander, king of Acarnania, joins with the Ætolians, ii. 708, a. Dethroned, 727, a. Reſtored, ibid. b. Intercedes for them, 729, d.
Aminias, a Rhodian chief, killed, iii. 142, b.
Amiſodarus, king of Lycia, ii. 339, c.
† Amiſus, a city in Pontus, deſcribed, iii. 720, c. Surrendered to Lucullus, 744, d. 747.
Amitta, the ſame with Jonah, i. 827, (A).
Amiternum taken by Servilius, iv. 636, d.
† Ammer, mount, where ſited, vii. 164, a.
† Ammianus Marcellinus, an account of his hiſtory, iv. 334, (I). Goes with Urſicinus to Rome, vi. 29, a, d. Into the eaſt, 306, f. Joins him at Mitylene, 307, e. His character of Julian, 335, & ſeq. A chaſm in his hiſtory, 378, e. His writings and character, 385, (K).
Ammihud, king of Geſhur, i. 391, c.
Ammon, the ſon of Lot, by his youngeſt daughter, i 292, e.
——— king of Judah's idolatry, 841, b. Death, ibid. c.
——— Jupiter, the temple and oracle of, iii. 347, d. Its pleaſant ſituation, vii. 168, (B). Dialogue with Alexander the Great, ibid.
Ammonites, their origin, i. 292, e. Where ſettled, ibid. Their religion, laws, &c. 293, b, c, Diſpoſſeſſed by Sihon the Amorite, 294, c. Recover it, till driven out by Jephtha, 295, b, c. Defeated by Saul, ibid. d, e. And David, 296, b. An account of that war, 297, b, c. Deſtroyed by David's forces, ibid, Defeated by Jehoſaphat, ibid. c. Brought under tribute to Uzziah, ibid. d. To Jotham, ibid. d. Subdued and carried captives by the Babylonians, 298, b, c. Obſtruct the rebuilding of the temple, ibid d. Subdued by Judas Maccabeus, ibid. e. Flouriſhed ſtill in the ſecond century after Chriſt, ibid. Now blended with the Arabians, ibid. &c. Excluded from the congregation till the tenth generation, 665, c. The reaſon of it, ibid. & 287, b. 293, c.
Ammonius, the ſcholar of Probus's doctrine of the eternity of the world, i. 5.
—— the governor of Antioch, his cruelties, iii. 596, c. Murdered by the Antiochians, 598, d.
—— writes againſt the Sadducees, iv. 167, e.
Amnon, the ſon of David's inceſt with Tamar, i. 780. Murdered by Abſalom, 781, d.
† Amorites, ancient inhabitants of Canaan, i. 323, c. Hedge the Danites in the mountains, 334, c. Reduced by them and the houſe of Joſeph, 335, a. Subdued and enſlaved by Solomon, 337, b.

Amorium, taken by the Saracens, vi. 545, c. Retaken, ibid. d. Why engraven on their ſhields, 569, e. Betrayed and razed, 570, a.
Amoſis, king of Dioſpolis, conjectures about the time of his reign, i. 231, (M). And his aboliſhing human ſacrifices at Heliopolis, 259, a. 231, (M).
Amphares, the murderer of Agis and family, ii. 628, & ſeq.
Amphæa ſurpriſed by the Lacedemonians, ii. 511, a.
† Amphaxis, the region of, deſcribed, iii. 256, c
Amphialus ſettles at Pergamus, iii. 800, a.
Amphiaraus, a famous ſoothſayer, drawn into the Theban war, ii. 358, b.
Amphicrates, wars againſt Ægina, iii. 189, c.
Amphyction, the ſon of Deucalion king of Athens, ii. 303.
Amphyctions, the general court of Greece, held at Delphos, ii. 388. Some inſtances of their high power, ibid. & ſeq. Declare for Alexander the Great, 549. Condemn the Locrians, iii. 306, d Chuſe Philip their general, ibid. e.
Amphylitus's prophecy to Piſiſtratus, ii. 450, e.
Amphymachus's lot after Alexander's death, iii. 423, e.
Amphion, the uſurper of the Theban throne, ii. 373, c.
Amphipolis taken from the Athenians, ii. 511, f. Rejects the Nicean peace, 512. Taken by king Philip, 542, e. Vid. & iii. 290, c.
Amphipolus of Syracuſe, his office, iii. 78, a.
Amphitryo conquers Cephalonia, iii. 242, b.
Amphitryon's wife deflowered by Jupiter, ii. 355, c. His fatal end, ibid. e. His temple at Rhamnus, 361, d.
† Ampliſſa, the metropolis of Ozolea Locria, ii. 312. By whom built, ibid. (E). Deſtroyed and rebuilt, 402, b. Beſieged by the Romans, 726.
† Ampſaga, river, where, vii. 108, a, b. Deſcribed, 111, e.
Amram, the father of Moſes, his extract, i. 477, b.
† Amſivari, a tribe of the Franks, vii. 548, a.
Amulius dethrones his brother, iv. 421, e. His cruelty to his offſpring, ibid. & ſeq. Murdered, 423, c.
† Amur, a river in Scythia, ii. 267, d.
Amurat's ſucceſs in Europe, vi. 645, e, f. Severity to his ſon, ibid. & ſeq. His death, 646, b.
—— II. repulſed before Conſtantinople, 648, a, b. Defeated over and over by John Huniades, ibid. c, d. Signal victory over him, ibid. e, f. Haughty demands on the emperor John, ibid. & ſeq. His death, 649, b.
† Amyclæ, the city of, deſcribed, ii. 397, a. Taken by the Meſſenians, 579, d.
Amyclas, king of Lacedemon, ii. 400, c.
Amyclean ſecurity, a proverb, whence, ii. 400, c.
Amycus, king of the Beybraces, defeated by Pollux, ii. 383, (H).
Amyntas invades Egypt, ii. 163, b. Cut off by the Perſians, ibid. & ſub not.
—— his reception of the Perſian embaſſadors, iii. 273. & ſeq. Zeal for the Perſians, 276, & ſeq. Cuts off the uſurper, 285, a. Subdues the Olynthians, ibid. b, c.
—— Alexander's governor, murdered, iii. 320, d.
—— his general, ſuſpected of treaſon, iii. 366, d. Cleared, ibid.
—— a Galatian prince abandons Brutus, v. 249, b. Follows Antony, 288. Leaves him in the lurch, 289, f. His death, 300, c.
Amynus and Magus, famed in thePhœnician records, i. 134, a.
Amyrtæus driven by the Perſians into the fens of Egypt, i. 276, a, b. Drives them out of the kingdom, ibid. Defeated by them, and dies, ibid. c.
Anac, Anax, the father of the Anakims, vi. 673, a, (A). Whence ſo called, ibid. See further in Anak.
Anacharſis put to death for bringing the Grecian worſhip into Scythia, ii. 272, (B). 285, b.
Anactes, or Dioſcuri, at Carthage, vi. 694, c. 695, a, (Z).
† Anacus, a river in Sicily, iii. 10, b.
Anak, one of the ſeven dukes of Edom, i. 312. The meaning of his finding the mules in the wood, 313, c, (O). The progenitor of the Anakims, 333, (L). His three ſons driven out by Caleb, 334, a.
Anakims invaded and cut off by the Iſraelites, i. 333, c. Their origin, ibid. (Z).
Anamelech, an Aſſyrian deity, how repreſented, i. 861, c.
† Anamim, who ſo called, i. 165, c. Where ſettled, ibid.
Ananael, an obſcure prieſt, made high-prieſt, iv. 132, b. Depoſed, 133.
† Anares, where ſettled in Italy, iv. 561, f.
Ananias, a Jewiſh time-ſerver, iii. 849, e, f.
—— a famed Jew of Alexandria, iv. 98, c. His advice to Cleopatra, ibid. e.
—— the ſon of Nebedeus, made high-prieſt, iv. 263, e. Murdered by the Zelots, 269.
Ananus, a proud Sadducee, made high-prieſt, iv. 266. Puts St. James to death, ibid. & (H). His fatal compliance to the Sicarii, 267, b. Made governor of Jeruſalem, 270, d. Heads the peaceable party there, 274, a, b. Betrayed by Giſchala, ibid. b, c. Put to death, ibid. & (A).
Anuphas I. and II. kings of Cappadocia, iii. 764.
† Anapis, a river in Sicily, iii. 5, b.
† Anas, river, in Luſitania, vii. 299, a.
Anaſtaſia, daughter to Conſtantius, vi. 226, e. Married to Baſſianus, 227, a. Murdered by the ſoldiers, 275, a.
—— daughter of Valens, vi. 285, d.
—— wife of Tiberius, created Auguſta, vi. 533, c. Inſulted by her ſon's miniſters, 547, c.
Anaſtaſius created emperor, vi. 517, c. His riſe, extract, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Excellent beginning, 518, paſſ. Inſulted on account of a new tax, 519, b. Narrowly eſcapes being maſſacred, ibid. e, f. Invaded by the Perſians, 520, c—e. Makes a long truce with them, 521, a. His long wall built, ibid. b, c. Perſecutes the orthodox, ibid. & ſeq. Treachery to Vitalianus, 522, b, c. Death and character, ibid. d, e. Confirms Theodoric king of Italy, vii. 525, e.
—— patriarch of Antioch, maſſacred by the Jews, vi 538, d.
—— Phocas's miniſter's conſpiracy and death, vi 538, e, f.
—— Artemius proclaimed emperor, vi. 550, c. His excellent character, ibid. Baniſhed, ibid. d, e. Reſumes his claim, 551, f, & ſeq. Put to death, 552, a.
Anathema, among the Jews, ſome inſtances of, i. 630, e.
Anatomy, early cultivated in Egypt, i. 219.
Anaxagoras, the Ionic philoſopher, his doctrine, i. 18, c, d. Reforms that ſect, 19, c. His notion of two eternal principles, 25, c. Of the origin of the world, 28, d.
—— Pericles's preceptor, accuſed of impiety, ii. 493, c. His philoſophy and baniſhment, ibid. (G).
Anaxander, king of Sparta, ii. 577, c.
Anaxarchus pounded to death, iii. 179, c.
—— the ſophiſt's flattering ſpeech to Alexander, 378, c.
Anaxidamas, king of Sparta, ii. 577.
Anaximander king of Sparta's character, ii. 583.
—— his origin of things, i. 18, d. Doctrine and writings, ibid. & (N).
Anaximenes's coſmogony, ii. 19.
—— ſaves Lampſacus, iii. 325, a.
† Anazarbum, a city in Cilicia Propria, ii, 341, b.
Ancæus, one of the pilots of the Argonauts, ii. 384, ſub not.
Ancharus's ſingular love for his country, ii. 302, & ſeq.
—— maſſacred by Marius, v. 64, d.
† Anchiale, in Cilicia Propria, by whom built, ii. 341.
Anchiſes ſaved from the flames of Troy, ii. 314, c.
Anchor, why borne by the Seleucidæ, iii. 510, a, (A).
† Ancona, the port of, built by Trajan, vi. 22. a.
† Ancyra, by whom built, ii. 302. Taken by Coſrhoes, iv. 366, f.
Ancyrean marble, deſcribed, v. 346, b. 348, b.
Ancus Mart. choſen king of Rome, iv. 444, d. His ſucceſs againſt the Latins, 445, b. Againſt the Sabines, ibid. & ſeq. His death, 446, c, d.
Andate, her temple in Britain, vii. 406, c.
† Anderchester, razed by the Saxons, vii. 447, a, b.
† Andes, mountains of Peru, their height, i. 102, (N). Whether the Sephar of Moſes, 169, e.
Andranodorus, ſon-in-law to Hiero, iii. 100, e. Debauches young Hieronymus, 101. Becomes head of a party, 102, f. Submits to the ſenate, 104, e, f. Undermines the republic, ibid & ſeq. Put to death, 106, b.
Andrew, called by Chriſt, iv. 199. Made an apoſtle, 201, (T).
Andrians, their anſwer to Themiſtocles, iii. 227, a.
Andriſcus ſet up for the ſon of Perſeus, iii. 501, b, c. Sent priſoner to Rome, ibid. e. Eſcapes into Thrace, 502, a. Invades Macedon, 503. Beats the Romans, 504, b. Defeated 505. Sent priſoner to Rome, ibid d.
—— refuſes to ſuccour the Carthaginians, vii. 101, b.
Androcles, king of Mycene, killed in a fray, ii. 507, c.
Androclus leads the Ionians to Epheſus, ii. 755, d.
Androeſtus invades the Romans, iv. 687, c. Kills himſelf 688, d.
Androgeus, the ſon of Minos, killed at Athens, ii. 364, 166, d.
Andromachus reſtored by the Rhodians, iii. 145, d.
—— noble anſwer to the Carthaginians, vi. 777, b.
—— his poem on theriac, v. 578, (T).
Andronicus forced to ſurrender Tyre, iii. 433, b.
—— Perſeus, put to death, 488, a.
—— the murderer of Onias, put to death, iii. 574, c, Vid. & iv. 48, & ſeq.

Aetronicus, a cruel governor of Samaria, 577, a.
—— excommunicated and degraded, vi. 466, a.
—— Ducas, betrayed by Samonas, 576, a. Flees to the Saracens, ibid. c. His death, ibid. d.
—— the son of Ducas, left under guardianship, 603, f. Treachery to Diog. Romanus, 605, d, e.
—— revolts against Alexius, 620, f. Declared his guardian, ibid. d. His horrid butcheries and impiety, ibid. & seq. Defeated by William king of Sicily, 622, b, c. His dreadful end, ibid. e. The rest see under Paleologus.
Aetronidas unjustly condemned, ii. 696.
† Andros, island, described, iii. 226. Subdued by the Athenians, 227, a, b.
† —— the metropolis of the island, besieged by Themistocles, 227, a. Its ruins described, ibid. d.
Aesiosthenes defeated by Nicostratus, ii. 672.
Aesis, a famed Egyptian priest, i. 13, b.
Aesitis put to death by Simplicius, vi. 361, c.
† Aesuvii, where seated, vii. 140, d.
Angels, the meaning of that word, i. 48. Their nature, 49. Almost universally acknowledged, ibid. & seq. Their several degrees, 50, a, b. The fallen angels, and their offence, ibid. & seq. Tutelar, believed by Jews and Gentiles, 59, d, e. Some absurd opinions confuted, 81, (N). Traditions concerning them among the Turks, Persians, &c. 83, & seq. Worshipped by the Arabs, 245, f, & seq.
† Angiers, seized on by Childeric, vii. 564, a, b.
Angles, Anglo-Saxons, their coming into England, vi. 400, d. Their origin, vii. 441, & seq. Settlement, ibid. b. Joined to the Saxons, ibid. c. Why called Angli, 442, a, b. Assist the Britons, 443, d. A tribe of the Suevi, 450, e.
† Angles, taken by the Romans, v. 536. vii. 430, e, & seq. Some brutish customs among them, ibid. f, & seq. Retaken by Agricola, 653, c.
Anglia, whence so called, vii. 441, b.
† Angrivarii dispossess the Bructerii, v. 370, (Q). Put them to fire and sword, 382, a, b. Where fixed, ibid. (T). Submit, and are pardoned, 385, a. Their gratitude, ibid. d, c.
Anicetus invades Pontus, iii. 760, f. Delivered up to the Romans, 761.
—— his contrivance for drowning Nero's mother, v. 531, a. Defeated, 532, b. Sent to dispatch her, 533, f. Murders her, 534, d, e.
—— revolts in Pontus, 635, f. Defeated, 636, a. His death, ibid. b.
Anicius triumphs over Illyricum, iii. 498, (E). iv. 764.
Animals, monstrous, mentioned by Berosus, i. 90, a. Worshipped by the Egyptians, 210, a, b, c, d.
Anio, the battle of, iv. 582, b. 588, b.
Anna, the daughter of Metinus, i. 415, e.
— the propheteſs, her testimony of Christ, iv. 163, b.
— the empress, instigated against Cantacusen, vi. 643, a, b. Deceived by his enemies, 644, a, b.
— Perenna worshipped at Carthage, vi. 692, b.
Annas deposed from the high priesthood, iv. 194, b. Sends Jesus to Caiaphas, 235, a. Two of his sons succeed in the dignity, 266, (H).
Annæus Serenus, a confident of Nero's amours, v. 521, a. His character, ibid. (R).
—— Cornut. banished by Nero, 567, d. His excellent character and writings, ibid. (S).
Annian family, vi. 60, & seq. Converted to christianity, 415, d.
Annibalianus made king of Pontus, vi. 226, e. Murdered by the soldiers, 275, a.
Annius's forged history, how discovered, iii. 522, (M).
—— king of Delos, iii. 231, d.
—— L. his embassy rejected by the senate, iv. 600, a.
—— success against Sertorius, v. 85.
Annonæ præfectus, his office, vi. 356, e.
Anointing, why used by the antients, vii. 19, (H).
Anquialum taken by the Goths, vii. 497, e.
† Ansuarii, Ansinarii, who, and why so called, vii. 549, c. d.
Antæus's kingdom, when began, vii. 121, d, & seq. His shield worshipped by the Moors, 150, e One of the first kings of Mauritania, 153, b. Overcome by Hercules, ibid. c, d. The rest see under Atlas, ibid. & seq.
Antalcides, the peace of, ii. 539, b. Dishonourable to the Greeks, 613, b, & not.
† Antandros, island, whence so called, iii. 226, d.
Antediluvian patriarchs, a chronological table of, i. 69, a. Their genealogy, 76.
—— kings of Chaldea, their history, 91.
—— world, the state and religion of, 107, d, e. The causes of their longevity, 105, a, b. 209, pass.
† Antemnæ, where sited, iv. 429, (Y). Taken by Romulus, 430, b.
Antenor's embassy into Greece, ii. 314, d. Lands with the Heneti, on the Adriatic shore, 315. His progeny, ibid.
Anthakash, the oriental name of Antiochus, iv. 372, (A).
Anthemius's rise, vi. 452, a. Excellent government, 466, a. 458. Extract and character, 459, a, b. Resigns to Pulcheria, 470. Beats the Huns, &c. 506, f. 608. Reception at Rome, ibid. e. Deposed by Ricimer, 511, c, d. See also vol. vii. 468, c, d. 537, pass.
† Anthropophagi, who, and where, vii. 184, d.
Antiates, defeated by Camillus, iv. 570, d. Submit to the Romans, 607, d.
Antigenes's lot after Alexander's death, iii. 423, e. Treachery to Eumenes, 430. Cruel punishment, ibid. f.
Antigone, buried alive for burying her brother, ii. 374, d.
—— daughter of Laomedon, a haughty princess, 317, b.
† Antigonia, razed by Seleucus, iii. 514, f.
Antigonus, deified by the Athenians, ii. 554, b. Chosen general of the Achæans, 631, 647. Abandons the Argives, 648. Beats the Lacedemonians, 632, 649. Takes Sparta, 650. Defeated and killed, 634, 650.
—— his lot after Alexander's death, iii 417, b. 423, f. Defeats Alcetas, 424, & seq. Outwitted and defeated by Eumenes, 425— 428. Treachery to him and his friends, 429, & seq. Marches into Babylon, 431, c. Seizes on Syria and Phœnice, 432, 433. Invaded by the confederates, 435, b, d. Takes the title of king, 437, b. His extract, &c. ibid. & seq. Ill success in Egypt, 438, & seq. And against the confederates, 440, & seq. Slain at Issus, 441, a.
—— the son of Demetrius, his filial piety, iii. 447. Singular gentleness, 466, c, d.
—— Gonatus, seizes Macedon, iii. 470, e, f. Defeats the Gauls, 471, e. Success against Pyrrhus, ibid. & seq. Deserted by his men, 473. Takes the citadel of Corinth, ibid. f. His death, 474.
—— Doson, regent of Macedon, iii. 475, b—d. Friendship to Aratus, 476, c. Success against Cleomenes, ibid. & seq. Kindness to the Spartans, 477, a. His death, ibid. d, e.
—— seizes on Judæa, iv. 35, a. His cruelties there, ibid. & seq.
—— Socho, made president of the Sanhedrim, iv. 36, c. His doctrine, death, &c. 40, e.
—— the son of Hyrcan, sent against Samaria, 94, a. Put to death, 96, & seq.
—— the son of Aristobulus, sent prisoner to Rome, 112, d. His petition to Cæsar rejected, 117, d. Invades Judea, 123. Defeated by Herod, ibid. c. His second invasion, 124. Besieged in the temple, ibid. & seq. Inthroned, 126, a. Cruelty to Hyrcan, &c. ibid. & seq. Over-reached, and driven from Massada, ibid. & seq. His charge against the Roman senate, 128, a. Defeated by Herod, 130. Besieged and taken, ibid. & seq. Put to death by M. Antony, 131, b, (E).
† Antiliban, mount, whence so called, i. 87, a.
Antillus stabbed in the capitol, iv. 806, e.
Antinous's death, an account of, vi. 38, b, c.
† Antioch, upon the Orontes, a famous city of the Mediterranean Seleucis, i. 361, a.
† —— the metropolis of Syria, iii. 509. By whom built, 414, e. Described, ibid. & seq. Burned by the Jews, 602. Besieged by the Parthians, iv. 306, c. Taken by Cosrhoes, 352, e. Declares for Cæsar, v. 148. Damaged by an Earthquake, vi. 21, c. By fire, 58, f. Rebuilt by Antoninus, 59, a. Punished for siding with Cassius, 79, c. Disfranchised and restored by Severus, 110, b. Plundered by Sapor, 174, b. Retaken by Valerian, ibid. d. Razed by Sapor, 176, f. Relieved from a famine by Constantine, 264, e. Depopulated by a fresh famine, 327, c. Raises a sedition, 408, b, c. Severely punished for it, ibid. & seq. Pardoned by Theodosius, 411, e, f. Gratitude to Eudocia, 485, a, b. Ruined by an earthquake, 506, a. Under Justin, 523, f. Destroyed by the Persians, 526. By an earthquake, 535, a. Taken by Burzas, 584. By the cruisadors, 615, e.
† —— the famous port of, built, 277, e, f.
† —— its stately portico, built by Rufinus, 472, e, f.
† —— the metropolis of Mygdonia, where sited, iii. 532, (R).
† Antiochene, whence so called, i. 361, a.
† Antiochia ad Taurum, a city in Comagene, i. 363, d.
Antiochians, impious mourning for Germanicus, v. 398, & seq.
Antiochis, her spurious progeny, iii. 592.

Antiochus, king of Meſſena's embaſſy to Sparta, ii. 570, & ſeq.
—— king of Syria, invited into Greece, ii. 713. Lands at Pteleum, 715, f. Speech to the Ætolians, 716, a. Adviſes with Hannibal, 717, f. Takes Eubæa, 718, b. Marriage and dotage, 719. Defeated at Thermopylæ, 723, & ſeq.
—— Soter, his ſucceſs in Cilicia, iii. 148, d. Retreat into Sardis, 150, e. Defeated at ſea and land, 151, b——e, Pretenſions to Macedon, 470. Succeeds his father in Syria, 522. Yields Greece to Antigonus, 523, a. Why ſurnamed Soter, ibid. c. His defeat and death, ibid. & ſeq. Coin, 620, (W).
—— Theos, whence ſo called, iii. 523, e. Ill ſucceſs in Egypt, 524, d, e. Makes peace with Ptolemy, 525, e. Poiſoned by his wife, ibid. & ſeq. His coin, 620, (W).
—— Hierax, wars with his brother, iii. 528, a. Expelled Syria, ibid. & ſeq. His death, 529, e.
—— the Great, ill ſucceſs in Egypt, iii. 531, c——f. 533. Succeſs againſt Ptolemy, 535, & ſeq. 537. Defeated by him, 539, b. Succeſs againſt Arſaces, 541, b. In Bactria, ibid. e. India, 542, b, c. Recovers Paleſtine, 544. Conqueſts in Aſia Minor, &c. ibid & ſeq. Anſwer to the Roman embaſſadors, 546. Wars againſt the Romans, 548, & ſeq. Invades Piſidia, 550, & ſeq. Conference with the Romans, 551, & ſeq. Marriage, 554, e. Defeated, ibid. & ſeq. 559, e, f. His ill conduct, 560. Sues to the Romans, 561. His gallant army, 563. Defeated at Magneſia, 564. Peace with Rome, 565, & ſeq. & (Q). Death, 567. Reign foretold by Daniel, 568, (R). Coin, 620, (W).
—— Epiphanes, ſent hoſtage to Rome, iii. 548. 565. Exchanged, 570. Mounts the Syrian throne, 571, f. Wars with Egypt, 573. Injuſtice to the Jews, 575, d. Conquers Egypt, ibid. & ſeq. Profanes and plunders the temple, 576, & ſeq. See alſo vol. iv. 50, & ſeq. His career ſtopped by the Romans 579. Wreaks his vengeance on the Jews, 580, & ſeq. His gambols at Daphne, 581, & ſeq. Repulſed at Elymais, 583. His miſerable end, ibid. & ſeq. Coin, 620, (W).
—— Eupator's reign, iii. 585, a. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Jews, 586, & ſeq. Treachery to them, 588, b. Death, 591, c, d. Coin, 621, not.
—— the ſon of Balas, ſet up by Tryphon, iii. 602, b, (L). Crowned at Antioch, 603, a. His Coin, 622, (W).
—— Sidetes, why ſo called, iii. 606, (O). Letter to Simeon the Maccabee, ibid. e. iv. 81, & ſeq. Treachery to him, 607, & ſeq. iv. 85, paſſ. Beats the Parthians, 608. Grants to the Jewiſh high-prieſt, iv. 84, a. Perfidy to him, ibid. b, c. Encourages Ptolemy againſt the Jews, 89, b. Invades Judæa, 90. Reception at Jeruſalem, ibid. & ſeq. His death, 92, a. iii. 609
—— Gryphus, iii. 612. Succeſs againſt Cyzicenus, 613, f. 614, e. Divides the kingdom with him, ibid. f, & ſeq. Reſentment againſt Hyrcan, iv. 93, b. His death, iii. 615, c. Coin, 622, not.
—— Cyzicen. iii. 615, b. Invades Judæa, iv. 94, a. Defeated and killed, iii. 615, e.
—— Euſebes, defeats Seleucus, iii. 615, d. Wars with Philip, ibid. f. Driven out, 616, & ſeq.
—— Dionyſius ſupplants his brother Philip, 616. Cut off by the Arabians, ibid. e.
—— Aſiaticus, ſent to Rome, 617, c. His adventure at Syracuſe, ibid. & ſeq. Reigns over part of Syria, 619, d. Stript of it by Pompey, ibid, & ſeq. His death, 620.
—— king of Comagene, reſtored by Pompey, iii. 853, b. Put to death, ibid. c.
—— II. his ſon, ibid. d.
—— III. aſſiſts Veſpaſian, ibid. e.
—— IV. ſerves under the Romans, ibid.
—— a Perſian, tutor to Theodoſius, iv. 338, c.
—— the valley of, ſeized by Jannæus, iv. 102, a.
Antipas, the ſon of Herod, by Cleopatra, iv. 152, ſub not. Made tetrarch of Galilee, 184, a. Supplants Archelaus, 186, & ſeq. The reſt ſee under Herod Antipas.
Antipater's character, iii 309, b. Conduct in Greece, 353. c, d. Succeſs againſt Agis, 354, a. Whether guilty of Alexander's death, 411, & ſeq. (O). His poſt after it, 417, a. Choſen protector to his ſon, 423, d. His extract &c. 448, a, b. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Greeks, 449, paſſ. Makes peace with them, 450. Wars with the Ætolians, 451. Choſen protector, 452, a. His death and ſucceſſor, 453, paſſ. & (B).
—— the ſon of Caſſander, his bloody parricide, iii. 465, a. Expulſion and death, ibid. & ſeq.
—— the ſon of Philip, choſen king of Macedon, 470, c.
Antipater, the father of Herod, his deſcent, iv. 104, (R). Character, 106, & ſeq. Carries Hyrcan into Arabia, ibid. 107, &c. Pleads his cauſe before Pompey, 109. Ingratiates himſelf with the Romans, 113, b. Services to Gabinius in Egypt, 114, d, e. To Cæſar there, 115, e, & ſeq. Amply rewarded, 117, c. Overawes the Jews, 118, b. His progeny, ibid. (H). Sends money to Caſſius, 121, c. Poiſoned, 121, & ſeq.
—— the favourite ſon of Herod, 147, e, (D). Cabals againſt his two brothers, ibid. & ſeq. Plots againſt his father, 151, d, & ſeq. How diſcovered, 152, d. Decoyed back to Jeruſalem, 179, b. Condemned for treaſon, 181, paſſ. Put to death, 183, & ſeq.
—— the ſon of Salome, his bitter ſpeech againſt Archelaus, 186, e.
—— the ſophiſt, his writings and character, vi. 120, (N).
†Antipatris built by Herod, iv. 148, c.
Antipathus, brother of Leoſthenes, defeated, ii. 551, b, c.
Antiphon's biting anſwer to Dionyſius, iii. 59, c.
†Antiſſa, a city in Leſbos, iii. 203, & ſeq.
Antiſtius, P. butchered by young Marius, v. 71, c.
—— Verus, marches againſt Baſſus, 170, b. Friendſhip to Brutus, 215, d, (T). Saved by his wife, 226, c. Succeſs in Cantabria, 299.
—— Labeo, his merry ſtratagem in the ſenate, 311, e.
—— the prætor, baniſhed for ſatyrizing Nero, 541, b —d.
—— Lucius, his timely advice rejected by Plautus, 542, (G).
Antonia married to Ahenobarbus, v. 294, b.
—— her ſiſter, married to Druſus, ibid. Her fidelity to him, 321, e, f. Why not at Germanicus's funeral, 403, (C). Her cruel death, 464, b.
—— timely information againſt Sejanus, 437.
—— daughter of Claudius, married to Cn. Pompeius, 487, c. 492, b. To Sylla, 499, c. Refuſes to marry Nero, 559, d. Put to death, ibid.
† —— the fortreſs of, taken by the Zelots, iv. 269. By the Romans, 283, b.
Antoninus Pius, his firſt conſulſhip, vi. 34. Adopted by Adrian, 45. Speech to the ſenate, 46, b. Why ſurnamed Pius, ibid. & 54. & ſeq. His extract, &c. 49, & ſeq. Time of his adoption, 54, b, c. Made high pontif, 55, a. Love for learned men, 56, a, b. Public buildings, ibid. & ſeq. Why eſteemed by all nations, 57, a, b. 56, & ſeq. Letters in favour of the chriſtians, 58, e. Death, 59. Obſequies, ibid. & ſeq.
† —— his wall in Britain, where, and when built, vii. 415, a. Why ſurnamed Britannicus, 432, a, (M).
—— the ſon of Petronius, put to death, 91, e.
Antonius ſtabs Sertorius, v. 96, e.
—— the conſul ſwayed by Cicero, 104. His partiality to Catiline, vi. 106, a——e.
—— the younger ſon of M. Antony, his character and fate, 204, b.
—— Julius, choſen conſul, 219, d. Put to death, 326, (H).
—— Caius, made governor of Macedon, 200, e. Ill ſucceſs againſt Brutus, 216. Taken priſoner, 217, a. Put to death for rebellion, 233, b, c.
—— Lucius, his death and character, 427, e.
Antony, Mark, acquitted of debauching the veſtals, v. 5, d. Suppreſſes the pirates, 34, a. Choſen conſul, 42, d. 43, c. Aſſaſſinated, 65. His character, 66, & ſeq.
—— the triumvir, defeated by the pirates, 95, b. Sent againſt Aretium, 133, a. Made Cæſar's general, 135. Delays coming to him, 139, b. Made governor of Italy, 153, a Defeats Dolabella, 154, c, d. Diſobliges Cæſar, 155, a, b. Flattery to him, 178, c, d. Preſerved by Brutus, 187, b. Artful ſpeech to the ſenate, 192, b. To the people in praiſe of Cæſar, 190, a, (G). Outwits the ſenate, 192, & ſeq. Contempt of Octavian, 196. Made governor of Gaul, 199, a. Artful ſpeech to his officers, ibid. & ſeq. Falls out with Octavian, 200, & ſeq. Marches againſt Brutus, 202, & ſeq. Proſcribed, 203, b. 209, b, c. Succeſs againſt the conſular troops, 205, & ſeq. Surprizes Lepidus, 210, c. Joins with Octavius, 221. Succeſs againſt Brutus, 222, paſſ. Interview with Octavius and Lepidus, ibid. f. Execrable reſolution, 223, c—e. Cruelties, Vid. ſub Triumvirate, 224, & ſeq. To Cicero, 229, b, c. March into Macedon, 232, d. To Amphipolis, 242, b. Succeſs againſt Brutus, 251, & ſeq. Funeral honours to him, 226, c. Behaviour to the Aſiatics, 258, & ſeq. 260, d, e Captivated by Cleopatra, 261, & ſeq. Shameful life with her, 268, paſſ. & (D). March into Italy, 269, c. Divides the empire with Octav. 270, b, c. Returns to Athens, and fines it, 273, & ſeq. Frighted by Omens from joining joining Octav. 275, d, (M). Interview with him, 277, e. Returns into Syria, 278. Shameful profuſion to Cleopatra, 283, f, & ſeq. Partiality to Herod, iv. 123, & ſeq. To the Jews, ibid d, e, & (O). Gets Herod choſen king of the Jews, 126. Baſe partiality to him, 134, f. March againſt Octav. v. 285. Behaviour at Samos, &c. ibid. d—f. His will in favour of Cleopatra produced, 280, e Accuſed for it, 287, b, c. Degraded, ibid. f. Recriminating letter to Octavius, 288, c, d. Narrowly eſcapes his ſnare, 290, d, e. Order of his fleet, 291, b, c, (L). Baſe flight after Cleopatra, 292, d, e. Defeated at ſea, ibid & ſeq Mad behaviour ſince, 293, d, e. Death and family, 294, b. Three of his deſcendants become emperors, ibid. c.

Antony, Primus, baniſhed for forgery, v. 540, e.
— Honoratus's noble ſpeech againſt Nymphidius, 584, c, d.
Antyllus, Antony's ſon, put to death, v. 274.
— Primus, declares for Veſpaſian, v. 621, f. Sends the Illyrians againſt Vitellius, 622. His ſucceſs in Italy, 623, b—d. Comes to Bedriacum, 625. His bravery againſt the Vitellians, ibid & ſeq. At Cremona, 626, & ſeq. Advances to Fano, 629, f. Paſſes the Apennines, 630, d. Saves the capitol, 633, a, (A). Drives the Vitellians into the city, ibid. & ſeq. Takes it, 634, a. His unmerciful plunder of it, 635, c, d. Envied by Mucianus, 639, b, c. Over-reached by him, 645, b—d. Retires to Veſpaſian, ibid. e.
Anubis, an Egyptian deity, i. 205, f. The ſon of Oſiris, by Nepthe, 243. The temple of, demoliſhed, v. 402, 2, (A).
Anulius's orders in favour of the chriſtians, vi. 251, c, e, f.
Anſius drives the Moors out of Pentapolis, vi. 467, c.
Anſus, the ſon of Neptune, ſettles in Bœotia, ii. 370, c.
† Antes, whether ancient Grecians, ii. 345, b. Admit Cadmus in Bœotia, 372. a. Their origin, ibid. (C).
† Antri, the mountains of, deſcribed, vii. 185, e.
† Aornus, a city of India, deſcribed, iii. 388, f. The rock of, taken by Alexander, 389, e.
† Apamea, by whom founded, iv. 299, f.
† Apamea, metropolis of Apamene in Syria, i. 361, a.
† — of Phrygia major, ii. 292, c. & not.
† — by whom built, iii. 515, a. Taken by Triarius, 173, e. By Coſrhoes, iv. 366. Plundered and burnt by him, vi. 532, d. 539, c. By the Scythians, 174, c.
Apaturian feſtival, whence, ii. 762, a, & not.
Apelles ſaid to have been born of a woman, v. 507, (Q).
— worſhipped by ſome Africans, vi. 709, (A).
Apelles's project of enſlaving the Achæans, ii. 654, & ſeq. Oppoſes Antigonus, 657, a. Forgiven by him, 659. Tyranny and death, 660, & ſeq.
† — where born, iii. 212, f.
Apellicon's noble library, iii. 738.
Aper murders Numerianus, vi. 205, b. Killed by Diocleſian, 270, d.
† Apheca, a city in Syria, i. 384, b.
— the battle of, ibid. c. The walls of, cruſh 27000 Syrians, ibid.
Aphreſiab's war with the Perſians, ii. 183. Subdues them, 180. Repulſed by Zalzer, 187, 190, & ſeq. By Ruſtan, 190, e. Driven out of his dominions, 197, b. Taken and put to death, ibid.
Aphobis, king of Egypt, his extract, i. 231. Suppoſed to be Joſeph's Pharaoh, ibid (L).
† Aphrodiſias, in Cilicia, whence ſo called, ii. 340, d.
Aphydas, king of Athens, ii. 368, d.
— of Arcadia, 379, a.
Apicata, divorced by Sejanus, v. 416, e. Her letter to Tiberius, 442, d Poiſons herſelf, ibid.
Apicius, a famed epicure, v. 415, (Q).
† Apiolæ taken by Tarquin, iv. 447.
Apion, made king of Cyrene, iii. 658, f. Bequeaths it to the Romans, 662.
Apis, how worſhipped at Memphis, i. 206, c. Why repreſented by a bull, ibid. f. His oracle how conſulted, 211, e. When his worſhip firſt began, 239, (D).
— killed by Cambyſes, ii. 98, b. Whether the ſame with Mnevis, vii. 209, b, c, (B).
— king of, 350, b. Split into two by chronologers, 352, d.
— king of Argos, a cruel tyrant, 352.
— the city and temple of, vii. 168, a, b.
† Apocalypſe, the houſe of, at Pathmos, iii. 212, b.
Apocryphal books trumped up by heretics, iv. 161, in fin. (C).
Apollas, an informer, burnt alive, vi. 325, c.
Apollinares, the two, baniſhed and murdered, vi. 291, f.
Apollinarians ſuppreſſed by Theodoſius, vi. 415, b. By Arcadius, 439.
Apollo, the ſon of Chronus, ſuppoſed the Phut of Moſes, i. 137, (R). Why ſet over the Muſes, 242, b. In great repute among the Phœnicians, 399, a.
—— worſhipped by the Scythians, ii. 272, b. Trojans, 309, d. By the Gauls, vii. 355, paſſ. Why ſurnamed Smynthian, 310, b. Grynæus, 755, a. Didymeus, 762, d. Branchides, ibid.
—— his temple and ſtatue at Delos, iii. 228, b, c. Offerings how performed, 229, d, e. Oracle, ibid. & ſeq.
—— temple of, plundered by Cæpio, v. 27, d, e. The ſacrilege puniſhed, 29, a.
—— dedicated by Caligula, 468, d.
—— at Babylon, plundered, iv. 321, c. At Carthage, plundered, vii. 103, e.
† Apollo promontory, where ſituate, vii. 115, d.
—— temple at Rome, burnt, vi. 328, b.
—— temple and golden ſtatue at Carthage, 663, d.
Apollocrates ſurrenders the citadel of Syracuſe, iii. 69, b. 72, b.
Apollodorus's famous bridge, vi. 14, c. Other grand works, 26, d. Mortified by Adrian, ibid. e. Baniſhed and put to death, ibid. & ſeq.
† Apollonia, where ſituate, ii. 325, b.
† —— in Macedon, iii. 225. Submits to Glaucias, 461, c. Taken by the Romans, iv. 685.
—— her embaſſadors inſulted by the Ædiles, 650, a, b.
† Apolloniatis, a province of Aſſyria, i. 858, b.
Apollonides's ſpeech to the Syracuſans, iii. 108.
Apollonius's bloody expedition againſt the Jews, iii. 580, iv. 51, c. Defeated and killed, iii. 597, paſſ. & (I). iv. 58, b. 80, c.
—— governor of Zenodotia's treachery to Craſſus, 296, b.
—— the Stoic's ſaucy behaviour to Antoninus, 54, a, b.
—— Dyſcoles's writings and character, 84, ſub not.
—— Cæſar's and Cicero's maſter, v. 90. Different from Molon, ibid. (H). His elogy of Cicero, ibid. in fin. not.
—— Saturn. taxed nine millions by Caligula, 472, b.
—— Tyanæus comes to Rome, 686, c. Stirs up Nerva againſt Domitian, ibid. d. His life, travels, &c. 691, & ſeq. Ordered to be ſeized, 696, a. His defence before Domitian, ibid. b, c. Diſappears, ibid. d. Foreſight of his death, ibid. e. Refuſes Nerva's invitation, ibid. f. His end uncertain, 697, a. Pretended miracles and character exploded, ibid. & ſeq. Honoured by ſeveral emperors, &c. 698, paſſ.
—— ſent embaſſador to Attila, vii. 471, a. His noble anſwer to him, ibid. b.
Apologues, among the Perſians, a ſpecimen of, ii. 199, & not.
Aponius's ſucceſs againſt the Romans, v. 50, b. Defeated by Sylla, 52, e, f.
—— one of Nero's informers ſad end, 576, e.
——— Saturn. declares for Veſpaſian, 622, & ſeq.
Apoſtates denied to make a will, vi. 395, f. 397, e. Diſfranchiſed, 418, c.
Apoſtles, the twelve choſen by Chriſt, iv. 208, (T). Their inſtructions and ſucceſs, 214, & ſeq. Forſake their maſter, 235, a, & (P). Doubts about his reſurrection, 244, & ſeq. Commiſſion from him, 246, & ſeq. Meeting at Jeruſalem, 249, a, (F). Receive the Holy Ghoſt, ibid. & ſeq. The miraculous effects of it proved, 250, (H). Their zeal, miracles, doctrine, &c. 251, & ſeq. & (I).
† —— church at Conſtantinople, deſcribed, vi. 268, b, c.
Appeals at Rome, how regulated, iv. 544, a.
† Appenine mountains deſcribed, 413, c, d.
Appian's writings and character, vi. 59, (E).
Appius Claud. ſent into Sicily, iii. 93, c. 95, b. Enters Meſſana, 96, b. Marches againſt Hippocrates, 109, a. Againſt Perſeus, 487. Sadly diſtreſſed, 488, f. Speech againſt Pyrrhus, 812, b.
—— conſulſhip, iv. 485, a. Jealous of Servilius, 487, b. Severity againſt debtors, ibid. & ſeq. Speech againſt the plebeians, 496, b. Againſt the Agrarian law, 504, f.
—— II. his ſon, ſee under Claudius, 514, & ſeq.
—— III. betrays the patricians, 533, c. 535, b, c. Choſen dictator, 534, a. His tyranny, ibid. & ſeq. Speech to the ſenate, 537, c. Outwits them, 538, a. Treachery to Sicinius, ibid. e, f. Britiſh attempt on Virginia, 539, & ſeq. Accuſed by Virginius, 544, b. Impriſoned, ibid. c, d.
—— Speech againſt the tribunes, 581, d. Choſen dictator, 586, f. Defeats the Hernici, 587, c.
—— Craſſus choſen conſul, 593, c. Cenſor, 620, a. Debaſes the ſenate and prieſthood, ibid. b, c. His noble works, ibid. d, & (X).
—— choſen conſul, 593, b. Prætor, ibid. e. Sarcaſm againſt Volumnius, 631, c. Retained by Fabius, 632, d, e.

Treachery

Treachery to the Camerinians, 649, b. Over-reaches the Carthaginians, a. Sails into Sicily, ibid. b.
—— Pulcher, choſen conſul, 723. Marches againſt Capua, 724, d. Wounded before it, 727, a. Surpriſed by Hannibal, 728, & ſeq.
—— Maximus killed by the revolted, vi. 24, b. Claudius. Vid. ſub Claudius, 828, & ſeq.
—— Sabinus defeated by the Daci, vii. 612, c.
Apries, the Pharaoh Hophra of ſcripture, i. 268, b. His league with Zedekiah, ibid. b. Treachery to him, ibid. c. Takes Sidon, ibid. d. Victory at ſea, ibid. Aſſiſts the Libyans againſt the Cyreneans, ibid. f. Ill ſucceſs againſt his rebellious ſubjects, 269, & ſeq. Strangled, 270, b.
Apronadius's ſix years reign in Babylon, i. 946, c.
Apronianus put to death by Severus, vi. 117, e.
Apronius's ſucceſsful ſeverity in Afric, v. 407, a. Defeated by the Friſians, 455, c.
Apſinas's writings and character, vi. 168, (X).
† Apſus, river in Macedon, deſcribed, iii. 260, c.
Apteras, king of Crete, iii. 165, c, & not.
Apuleia, Varil. tried for treaſon and adultery, v. 393, b, c. Her puniſhment, ibid. d, & (I).
Apuleius, L. Saturn. cabals for Marius, v. 33, d For Equitius, 34, b. Treachery to Nonnius, 40, d. Revives the Agrarian conteſt, ibid. f. His conſpiracy and death, 42, & ſeq.
—— a proſcribed ſenator, ſaved by his wife, v. 226, c. 227, b.
—— Sextus, choſen conſul, 343, e. A friend to Ovid, ibid. Swears allegiance to Tiberius, 354, b.
—— the philoſopher's writings and character, vi. 83, ſub not.
† Aqueduct, of Appius, deſcribed, iv. 629, (X).
—— of Agrippa, v. 310, d, e.
—— of Claudius, 513, c.
Apulians, ally with the Samnites, iv. 610, d. Defeated by Fabius, ibid. f, By Plautius, 617, b.
Aquila Pontius, his honours after his death, v. 208, b, c.
—— a lady, baniſhed for adultery, 426, e.
† Aquilaria in Tunis, where ſited, vi. 668, a.
† Aquileia beſieged by Maximin, vi. 158. Taken by Conſtantine, 245, f. Brave defence againſt Julian, 313, f. Taken and deſtroyed by Attila, 496, e, f. vii. 479, a, b.
Aquileian women, their ſignal bravery and reward, 159, b.
Aquilia, Sever. a veſtal, married to Heliogabalus, vi. 135, a.
Aquilian family joins intereſt with Tarquin, iv. 468, f. Surpriſed by Valerius, 469, a. Condemned, 470, b.
Aquilius's inhumanity to the Pergamenians, iii 785, a. Subdues them, ibid. e. His defeat and cruel death, 730, f, & ſeq.
—— Tuſcus, defeats the Hernici, iv. 503, d.
—— Florus, drives the Carthaginians out of Sicily, 660, a—e.
—— Manl. commands the Romans, v. 33, d. Ends the war with the Sicilian ſlaves, 39, f. Defeated by Sertorius, 88, a.
—— ſent to murder Severus, vi. 105, c. Sides with him, ibid. e.
Aquilonia, the rendezvous of the Samnites, iv. 636, b. Taken by the Romans, 637, d.
Aquinas, Corn. the murderer of Capito, v. 589, d.
Aquitani ſubdued by Craſſus, v 121, b. Declare for Vitellius, 602, d.
† Aquitania Secunda and Tertia given to Vallia, vi. 472, e, f. Where ſited, ibid. Invaded by the Vandals, 453, f.
† —— Gallia, deſcribed, vii. 321, & ſeq. Taken by Clovis, 576, d.
Aquiulphus revolts from Theodoric, vi. 503. His treaſon and death, vii. 545, b.
† Ar, Al-Rabbah, metropolis of Moab, i. 285, e.
† Arabriga, a city in Luſitania, 297, a.
† Araducta, a city in Luſitania, 296, e.
† Ara Palladis, iſland, vii. 190, b.
† Arabia, from whom ſo called, i. 131, a.
† —— Felix, unconquered by the Romans, v. 302, d.
† —— Petræa, invaded by Palma, vi. 16, a.
† —— Felix, invaded by Trajan, 22. By Severus, 110, c, d. Divided by Valens, 372, d. Subdued by the Saracens, 544. Whence called Endæmon, 22, c. Its other names and etymons, vii. 222, & ſeq. Why called Cuſh, 182, paſſ. Its extent and limits, 223, c, & ſeq. How divided, 224, b. Firſt inhabitants, ibid. c, d.
† —— Petræa deſcribed, ibid. e, & ſeq. Its nations, towns, &c. 226, & ſeq. Barrenneſs, 227, a, b. Remarkable places, ibid. c, d.
† —— Deſerta, its limits, tribes, &c 228, a, &c. Barrenneſs, 229, a, b. Why called Abaſene, ibid. c, d. Its towns &c. 230, a, b
† —— Felix, deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. Famed places, 233, e, & ſeq. How divided by the Orientals, 234, & ſeq. 240, d. Its plenty of gold, 263, a. From whom called Arabia, 265, b, c, (A). Whether conquered by Trajan, 282, f, & ſeq.
Arabic character, when and by whom introduced, 254, d, & ſeq. Various alphabets, 255—257.
† Arabs, Arabians, tributary to Perſia, ii. 69, a.
—— invaded by Antigonus, iii. 433, & ſeq.
—— defeated by the Jews, iv. 66, c.
† —— Nomades, who, ibid. (E). Invaded by Jannæus, 100, b. Defeated by Herod, 137, b, (I).
—— revolt againſt the Romans, v. 269, a. Some of the firſt inhabitants of Mauritania, vii. 149, a. The old and modern claſs of them, 241, d.
† —— modern, their extract, 244, a—c.
† —— Scenitæ, their kings, laws, &c. 245, b—d. Religion, ibid. & ſeq. Deities, 246—249. Idols, ibid c, & ſeq. Hold ſome Magian tenets, 250, f, & ſeq. Notion of a future ſtate, 251, c—e. Jewiſh and chriſtian notions held by them, ibid. & ſeq Biſhopricks among them, 252, e, & ſeq. Sects, 253, b. Language, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Writing, 254, d, & ſeq. Learning, Poetry, &c. 257, & ſeq. Way of numbering their days, months, and years, 260, a—c. Sciences, ibid. & ſeq. Arts, 261, c. Signal hoſpitality, ibid. & ſeq. Arid character, 262, & ſeq. Trade, 263, b, c. Circumciſion, ibid. d. Other cuſtoms, ibid. & ſeq. Hiſtory to the birth of Mohammed, 265, ad fin cap. A liſt of their monarchs, 267, & ſeq. Names of their months, by whom, 277, (C). Other kingdoms, tribes, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Whether ſubjects to the Medes, &c. 279, & ſeq. Wars againſt the Romans, 280, & ſeq. Whether ſubdued by the Romans, 281, c. Hereſies after their converſion, 284, e, & ſeq.
Arach, the modern name of Parthia, iv. 289.
† Arachoſia, a province of Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 29, b. Surrendered to Alexander, iii. 367.
† Arad, one of the kingdoms of Canaan, ſubdued by the Iſraelites, i. 330, b.
† Arad, a ſeries of their kings, 408, i. a. Their reigns, 421, a.
—— one of Canaan's ſons ſo called, 330, (W).
† —— Arad, or Aradus, not properly a city of Phœnice, i. 393, b. Whether the ſeat of the Arvaites, ibid. (P). Its ſituation, ibid. b. Ruins ſtill extant, 394, a.
† Aradia Conſtantina, where ſited, vi. 265, d.
† Aradus conquered by the Saracens, vi. 544, d.
Aram, the ſon of Shem, i. 162, e. Where ſettled, 163, d. His deſcent according to the Armenians, 167, c.
† —— the country of, ſo called by him, 360, a.
† Aram Naharaim, the ſame with Syria and Meſopotamia, i. 360, a.
Aramean language, a dialect of the Syriac, i. 377, d.
Aramites. See Syrians, i. 370, & ſeq.
† Ararat, the mount where the ark reſted, i. 108, d. Its ſituation, ibid. Traditions about it, 109, & ſeq. Tournefort's and others account of it, 112, d, (N). Migrations of Noah's ſons from it, 141, b, c.
Araric, a Bathian prince, vii 492, d.
Aratus, the brave deliverer of Greece, ii. 556. 642, a. Reſtores the Athenians, 557. The Sicyonians, 642. Takes Acrocorinth, 643, a, & (C). Oppoſes the Spartans, 644, c. Betrays Acrocorinth to the Macedonians, 651, par. 646 Defeated by the Ætolians, 651, d. Oppreſſed by Apelles, 655, & ſeq Cleared by Philip, 659, a. Choſen prætor of the Achæans, 662. Diſpleaſes Philip by his honeſt anſwer, 665. Poiſoned by his orders, ibid. His obſequies and character, ibid. & ſeq. In high favour with Ptolemy, iii. 636, c. Policy againſt the Macedonians, 473, & ſeq. Revenge on the treacherous Athenians, 474, e. Joins with Antigonus Doſon, 476.
—— his ſon, poiſoned by Philip, 666, a.
—— revolts to the Romans, vi. 523, e, & ſeq.
† Ararena, the province of, where ſited, vii. 240, c.
† Araxes, a river in Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 29, b.
† —— in Armenia, iii. 692, & ſeq. Whence ſo called, 696, e.
Arba, the father of the Anakims, i. 333, (Z).
† —— the city of. See Hebron, 317, b, & ſeq.
Arbaces, firſt king of Media, his reign, &c. ii. 12, d.
Arbal, king of Arad, i. 421, a.
† Arbela, the city and battle of, ii. 165, & ſeq. iii. 350, & ſeq.
—— banditti of, deſtroyed by Herod, iv. 128, d. The city of, taken by Trajan, vi. 20, d.

† Arbelitis,

†Arbelites, a province of Aſſyria, i. 858, b.
Arbianes, king of Media, his reign, &c. ii. 13, d.
Arbogaſtes ſent to aſſiſt Theodoſius, vi. 396, b. To inveſt Maximus, 413, b. To put Victor to death, ibid. e. Murders Valentinian, 419, f. Arrogance to him, 420, a, b. Succeſs againſt the Franks, 423, vii. 557, f, & ſeq. Defeated by Theodoſius, 424, paſſ. Kills himſelf, 425, b.
†Arbora, the bridge of, broken by Julian, vi. 331, d.
Arborcas, the father of Auſonius, his extract, vi. 401, (L).
†Arborici, who, vii. 571, (H).
†Arcadia, part of ancient Greece, ii, 344, b. Whence ſo named, 375, a. Its ſite, ſoil, &c. ibid. d, &c. Origin, &c. 378, b. Invaded by the Spartans, 616, & ſeq.
†—— a city in Crete, deſcribed, iii. 161, f.
—— the princeſs, born to Arcadius, vi. 447, e. Her character, buildings, &c. 455, a, b. Death, 488, e.
Arcadians, ancient Greeks, ii. 344, c. Famed for paſtorals, 375, b. For brave warriors, 376, b. Their religion, ibid. d. When and how civilized, ibid. & ſeq. Their government, 377, paſſ. Kings, 378, & ſeq. Reſentment againſt their king's perfidy, 380, a. Defeated by the Spartans, 618, e. By the Romans, 696, a.
— women, great warriors, 376, c.
Arcadius born, vi. 390. Proclaimed, 402, d. Choſen conſul, 406. Clemency to the Arians, 419, d. Has the eaſt aſſigned to him, 426, c. Under the care of Rufinus, 430, f. Proves a weak prince, 432, b. Marries Eudocia, ibid. f. Swayed by the villain Eutropius, 435, c. Againſt Stilicho, 436, a, b. Law againſt aſyla, 437, d. Journey to Ancyra, 438, b. Depoſes Eutropius, 443, d, e. Laws againſt idolatry, 444, e, f. Timorous complaiſance to Gainas, 445, c, d. Interview with him, ibid. f, & ſeq. Severity to the Goths, 446, d—f. Preſented with the head of Gainas, 447, d. His ſtatue and column reared, 449, f. His death, iſſue, &c. 454, f. Fabulous ſtory of his laſt will, 459, b—d.
Arcas, the ſuppoſed founder of the Arcadian kingdom, ii. 375, a.
— fourth king of it, 379, a.
Arceſilaus, king of Cyrene, vii. 182, b, c.
— II. his reign, ibid. d.
— III. killed, ibid. e.
— IV. flight and death, ibid. & ſeq.
Archagathus defeated and killed, iii. 86, d—f.
— ſucceſs in Afric, vi. 797, a. 808. Murdered, 812, c.
Archeanax, tyrant of Leſbos, iii. 106, c.
†Archelais, in Cappadocia, whence ſo called, iii, 762, c.
Archelaus, king of Sparta, ii 559, & ſeq.
—— of Macedon, iii. 283, b. His death and character, ibid. c.
—— of Egypt, defeated by Gabinius, 671, b. His gallant death, ibid. c.
—— ſucceſs in Aſia, 733, & ſeq. Treachery and defeat, 734, & ſeq. & (T).
—— his addreſs to pacify Herod, iv. 149, e, (L).
—— the ſon of Herod by Martac, 152, ſub not. Succeeds him, 184, a—c. Speech to the Jews, 185, a. Goes to Rome, 186, a. Oppoſed by his brother, ibid. And by the Jews, 190, b. c. Obtains part of the kingdom, ibid. e. His revenue, tyranny, and baniſhment, 192, a—c.
—— ſucceſsful embaſſy to Caſſius, v. 235, a. Depoſed and baniſhed, 336, d.
—— king of Cappadocia, tried and put to death at Rome, 390, d, (B, C)
—— general of Mithridates ſucceſs in Greece, ii. 736, b. Defends Athens, 737, & ſeq. Betrayed by two ſlaves, 739, a.
—— the philoſopher, his notion of the origin of things, i. 29, a.
Archias, founder of Syracuſe, iii. 11, e. Treachery to Ptolemy puniſhed, 653, e.
— the betrayer of Thebes, ii. 614, f.
Archidamia's noble ſpeech to the Spartans, ii. 623, a, b. Baſely murdered by Amphares, 628.
Archidamus made general of Peloponneſus, ii. 502, & ſeq. Waſtes Attica, 506. His lucky ſtratagem to ſave his ſubjects, 594, c. Invades Attica, 596, e. Takes Platea, ibid. His death, ibid. & ſeq.
— the ſon of Ageſilaus, invades Arcadia, ii. 618, d. Signal victory, ibid. Succeeds his father, 621. Dies in Italy, ibid. c.
— king of Sparta, 622.
— his character and reign, 625, a.
— defeated by Demetrius, iii. 442, a.
Archilo, where born, iii. 223, a.
—— commands the Dardanians, ii. 315, c.
Archimedes's curious ſhip, built for Hiero, iii. 99, d. Brave defence of Syracuſe, 111, f. Surpriſing machines, 112, & ſeq. Death and character, 122, & ſeq. Other wonderful engines, 123, & ſeq.
†Archipelago. Vid. Ægean ſea, iii. 202, (R).
Archiſynagogus, his office among the Jews, iv. 25, (Q).
Archon, a friend of the Macedonians, ii. 685, c. Declares for the Romans, ibid. e.
Archons at Athens, their office, ii. 417. When begun, 362. 369. Made decennial, ibid. e. Annual, ibid. f, & 418. Solon's laws concerning them, 433, b. How choſen, 420, e. 442, b. Their oath, ibid. c. Office, ibid. d. When aboliſhed, 413. A liſt of them, 418, & ſeq.
Archyles the Pythagorean's doctrine of two principles, i. 17, d.
Archylus's bravery rewarded by Dionyſius, vi. 758, c.
Ardaburius's ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, vi. 474, c, d. 475, c, d. Sent againſt John, 479, b, c. Shipwrecked, and taken by him, ibid. d. Outwits and takes him, ibid. e. Suſpected by Leo, 510, d, e. And put to death, ibid. f.
—— ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, iv. 340, & ſeq.
Ardaric, king, ſerves under Attila, vii. 466, e. 473, a. Revolts after his death, 481, e, f.
†Ardea beſieged by Tarquin, iv. 464, b. Retaken, 466, e. Becomes the cauſe of a civil war, 546, & ſeq.
Ardeſſer, king of Perſia, murdered, iv. 369, f.
Ardevan I. II. III. kings of Parthia, according to Oriental writers, iv. 372, (A).
Ardſhir, king of Perſia, his reign, according to Oriental writers, ii. 223——225. iv. 374, & ſeq.
†Arduba taken by Germanicus, v. 339, e.
Arduban women, their deſperate end, v. 340, a.
Ardyes, king of Lydia, ii. 333.
†Areacidæ, who, and where ſited, vii. 81, b.
Arechis aſſumes the ſovereign power, vii. 724, c—e. Peace with Charles, ibid. f.
†Areopagus, the high court of, at Athens, ii. 421, c. 430, c. 432, b. By whom founded, 441, c. Their power, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
Areta teaches philoſophy at Cyrene, vii. 175, not.
Aretas choſen king of Damaſcus, iii. 616. Defeats the Jews, ibid. f, & iv. 101. Invades Judea in favour of Hyrcan, 107, c. Defeated by Ariſtobulus, 108 b.
—— wars with Herod Antipas, 203, b.
Arethuſa, the fable of, 406, (F).
Areus oppoſed by his uncle, ii. 612. Driven out of Sparta, 624, d. His death, ibid. f. Letter to the Maccabees, ibid. ſub not.
†Arga, a city in Arabia Felix, vii. 233, e.
Argæus ſeizes the crown of Macedon, iii. 273. 285.
Argalus, king of Sparta, ii. 400, d.
†Argent river, its courſe, v. 210, (Q).
†Argentaria, where ſited, vi. 387, b.
—— the battle of, ibid.
Argiaſpis's reign and death, according to Oriental writers, ii. 219, & ſeq.
Argipæans, their character, ii. 269, a.
†Argis, why honoured by the Delians, iii. 229, f.
Argives, ancient Grecians, ii. 344. Their origin, 350, 352. Wars againſt Thebes, 350. 374. Abſent from the Peloponneſian war, 501. League with Athens, 514. Beat by the Spartans, 515. By the Athenians, ibid. & ſeq. By the Spartans, 572, d. 583 d. 585. 598. At Mantinea, 599. Conquer Macedonia, iii. 262, a.
Argive women, their bravery, 585, ſub not.
Argo, ſhip, where built, ii. 382.
Argon, king of Lydia, ii. 333.
Argonauts, their expedition into Colchis, ii. 383, & ſeq. iii. 834.
Argos, king of Argos, by whom begot, ii. 352.
†—— kingdom, part of ancient Greece, ii. 344, b. Its founder, 350. Situation, ſoil, &c. 351. Kings, 352. How divided, 354. And reunited, ibid. & ſeq. Conquered by the Heraclidæ, 359, & ſeq. Change of government, 350, & ſeq.
—— the city of, taken by the Spartans, ii. 631, d. By Philip, 636. 671. Given to Nabis, ibid. Treacherouſly entered by Pyrrhus, iii. 572. Doubly beſet, 818, & ſeq. Burnt by the Heruli, vi. 184, d.
†—— Hippium, in Apulia, by whom built, ii. 359, b, c.
†Aria, a province of Perſia, ii. 31, a.
Ariadne, daughter of Minos, married to Theſeus, ii. 365, d. carried off by Bacchus, ibid. e. Her rape and feſtival, iii. 220, & ſeq.
—— princeſs, married to Zeno, vi. 510, a. Suſpected of incontinence, &c 517, b, c. Married to Anaſtaſius, ibid. c. Inſulted in his company, 519, b.

Arians defeated by Alexander, iii. 361, e, f. By Erigyus, 367, d.
——— heretics, their flattery to Jovian, vi. 343, f. Repulsed, 344, a. Suppressed by Theodosius; 395, c. 396, a. Commit fresh outrages, 414, c. Driven from the cities, 419, d, e. Suppressed by Justin, 523, e, f.
Ariamnes I. and II. kings of Cappadocia, iii. 764, & seq.
Arianthes, king of Scythia, his huge copper, ii. 274, e.
Ariarethes I. king of Cappadocia, iii. 764.
—— II. crucified by Perdiccas, ibid. e.
—— III. recovers his kingdom, ibid. & seq.
—— IV. defeats Arsaces, 765, a.
—— V. allies with the Romans, ibid. b.
—— VI. his character, 592, & 565. Dethroned, 593. 565.
—— VII. poisoned by Mithridates, 766, e.
—— VIII. stabbed by the same hand, 726. 728.
—— IX. dethroned by the same, 767, a.
Arideus appointed Alexander's successor, iii. 415, b. Put to death by Olympias, 457.
†Arimathæa, where situate, iv. 242, (E).
†Ariminum surprised by Cæsar, v. 132, b, c. Taken by Fuscus, 629, d.
Arinthius's success in Germany, vi. 294, d. Bravery, 367, c. Sent against Sapor, 373, d.
Ariobarzanes defeated and killed, ii. 167, e.
——— put to death by Cassius, v. 232, f.
Ariogeses, chosen king of the Quadi, vii. 602, f. Defeated and imprisoned, 603, a.
Arion, the first tragedian, iii, 204, a.
Ariovald dethrones Adalwald, vii. 689, a. His death, ibid. e.
Ariovistus invades the Sequani, v. 118, b. Treachery to Cæsar, ibid. d. Defeated, ibid. e. See vol. vii. 398, b. [436], c, (E).
Aripert, chosen king of the Lombards, vii. 692. Cruelty to Luitbert, 699, a, b. To Asprang and his family, ibid. b, c. Great donatives to the church, ibid. & seq. & (W). Defeated and drowned, 700, a, b.
Arisba, Priam's wife, ii. 317.
† —— a city in Phrygia, 305, a.
† in Lesbos, iii. 203, d.
Aristagoras attempts to corrupt the Spartans, ii. 587, sub not.
—— rebellion against Darius, 108. His death, 110.
Aristarchus, king of Colchis, iii. 835.
Aristeas, where born, iii. 201, (O).
—— account of the Septuagint version considered, iv. 37, & seq & (O).
Aristenetus destroyed by lightning, vi. 304. His writings, &c. 94, (I).
Aristeus first peoples Ceos, iii. 216, e.
Aristides, general of the Persians, ii. & seq. His character, 466. Banishment, 467. Piety, 468. Moderation on being recalled, 470. Reconciled with Themistocles, 472. Success against the Persians, 475, f. Made chief commander, 478. Regulator of the tax, 479. His death, &c. 485, sub not.
——— the apologist for the christians, vi. 48, e.
——— the sophist, meets M. Aurelius, 79, d. His writings, &c. 83, sub not.
Aristion, tyrant of Athens, ii 736, & seq.
Aristippus, his writings and character, vii. 174, F).
Aristo, king of Sparta, ii. 582. His character, 583.
——— discovers a plot against Syracuse, iii. 206, a.
Aristobulus, a learned Jewish philosopher, iii. 654, c.
——— the son of Hyrcan, success against Cyzicenus, iv. 94, a Succeeds his father, 96, c. Parricide and fratricide, ibid. & seq. & (C). Dreadful end, 97, & seq. Why nicknamed Philellen, 98, (D).
——— the son of Janneus, 102, b. Joins with the Sadducees, 103, f. Sent into Syria, 104, c. Secures the crown, 105, b. Deposes his brother, 106, c. Defeated, 107. Besieged in the temple, ibid. e Bribes Pompey, 108. & seq. Leaves him in a huff, 109, e. Sent prisoner to Rome, 110, & seq. Escapes into Judea, 114. Taken prisoner, ibid. d. Released by Cæsar, 110, c. Poisoned ibid.
——— grandson of Hyrcan's title to the Jewish crown, iv. 126, (V) Made high priest, 133, c, & (B, C). Murdered, 134, c.
——— the son of Herod married to Berenice, 147, a. Accused by Salome, 147, & seq Put to death, 151, b, c.
——— the son of Agrippa deprived of his succession, 263, e.
——— promoted by Nero, v. 519, e.
Aristocles, an account of his writings, &c. 83, iv. in fin. not.
Aristocrates I. stoned for sacrilege, ii, 380, d.
——— II stoned for perfidy, 378, 380, & seq.
Aristodemus, chosen general of Sparta, ii. 612, a. Beats the confederates at Corinth, ibid. b.
——— rips open his own daughter, ii. 573, b. Chosen king of the Messenians, ibid. e. Beats the Spartans, 575, b. Kills himself, ibid. e.
——— speech to Antigonus, iii. 184, b.
Aristogiton's revenge against Hippias, ii 454, d.
——— why honoured at Athens, v. 214, e.
Aristomachus defeated at Corinth, ii. 359.
Aristomenes, chosen king of Messenia, ii. 577, d. Defeats the Spartans, 578, b, 579, pass. Taken prisoner, ibid. His wonderful escape, ibid. & seq. Death, 581, & not.
——— sent guardian of Egypt, iii. 543. 648. Put to death for his fidelity, 649, b.
——— I. king of Cappadocia, 767. Wars with Mithridates, ibid. & seq.
——— II. a friend to the Roman, 767, f. Put to death by Cassius, 768, a.
——— III. killed by M. Antony, 768, b.
Ariston, arrested by Hannibal at Carthage, vii. 87, d. Escapes, ibid. e.
Aristonica's prophecy against the Athenians, ii. 469.
Aristonicus seizes on Pergamos, iii. 782. Defeats Crassus, 783, d. Defeated by Perpena, 784, b. Sent prisoner to Rome, ibid.
Aristophanes's ancient cosmogony, i. 18, a.
——— cruelly used by by Catena, vi. 288, f. By Modestus, 305, a.
Aristotle's doctrine of the world's eternity, i. 3, & seq.
——— his character, ii. 230. According to the oriental writers, 235.
——— where born, iii. 256, c. And taught, 204, & seq.
——— whether conversant with the mosaic writings, 230, & (F). His books carried off by Scylla, 738, (X). Account of the Carthaginian government, vi. 674, pass. 680, & seq. & (M).
Arius, the last king of Mysia, killed, ii. 327, d.
——— Antonin. excellent character, vi. 52, a. Unjust death, 91.
——— the heretic banished, 260, e. Received by the council of Jerusalem, 265, e. His death, 266, c.
Ark of Noah, its size, figure, &c. i. 103, & seq. At what time built, 105, pass. & (N).
——— the monastery of, ibid. d. Armenian fables about it, 112.
——— of Moses, described, i. 655, pass. Whether one or two, ibid. d, e. Taken by the Philistines, 756, a. Sent back, 351, & seq. Brought to Jerusalem by David, 776, a—c.
Arkianus's five years reign in Babylon, i. 946, a.
† Arles besieged, vi. 466, a. By Constantius, ibid. c Surrendered, 467, Relieved by Ægidius, 507, a. vii 576, e.
——— the council of, See Council, 254, b.
Armais, brother to Sesostris, i. 255, b. Supposed the Danaus of the Greeks, 256, f
† Armenia, so named from Aram, i. 167, c.
† —— the lesser described, iii. 718, & seq. Kingdom, 69 Soil, 695, c. Origin and government, 693. Kin 718, & seq. 693, & seq.
† —— given to Cleopatra's son, 708. Recovered, 7 Becomes tributary to Rome, ibid. 713, & seq. Its v rious fates since, 717, & seq.
† —— subdued by the Romans, vi. 17. Allowed to ch a king, 33, d. Wars with Parthia, 63, d. Reduced the Romans, 65, a. Restored by Macrinus, 131, Taken by the Persians, 214, a † —— Major, wars in defence of christianity, 250, d. R volts, 276, a. The end of that kingdom, 487, b. Su dued by the Saracens, 547, c, d. Betrayed to the 548, d.
Armenian legions refuse to swear to Irene, vi. 558, a, & Severely punished, ibid. f.
† Armenians, their descent, i. 167, c. Ally with the Pa thians, v. 327, e. Invaded by them. 331, d. Pl before Nero, 519, f, & seq. Subdued by Corbulo, 5 e, f
Arminius's revolt in Germany, v. 340, c. Treachery Varus, ibid. & seq. Repulsed by Tiberius, 344, Falls out with Segestes, 372, c. Defeated, 373, & 375, c, d. Defeats the Romans, 376, c, d. Defeat and wounded, 384, b. Defeats the Marcomans, 391, c. His death, 403, a.
† Armorica Gallia described, vii 322, a, b.
Armorican Britons, of what standing, 454, c, d. Th cruelty to the old Gauls, ibid. & seq. Submit to Clo 570, e, f.
Armorici, Gauls, who, vi. 462, c. Short lived revolt, ib d. Subdued, v. 128. f.

† Arm

†Armosata, where situate, iii. 693; b.
Arnagiselus, defeated and killed, vi. 489.
Arno, the daughter of Æolus, ii. 370; a.
†Arnon, the brook of, described, i. 533; b. The supposed boundary of the Israelites, 596, (G).
Arouaris, in Plutarch, who, i. 88, (N).
Arphaxat, the third son of Shem, i. 127, a. The supposed father of the Chaldeans, ibid. Conjectures relating to him, 127, (E). One of the chiefs of the line of Shem; 162, a. Where settled, ibid. b.
†Arra, the metropolis of the Arraceni, vii. 240, c.
†Arraceni, the same with the Saraceni, vii. 227, b, c.
†Arrapachitis, a province of Assyria, i. 858, b.
Arria's heroic constancy and death, v. 495, d, e, (Z). Imitated by her daughter, 563, f.
Arrian, the writer of Trajan's history, vi. 18; d. His books lost, 19, b; c.
— surprises the Massages, 41; e. Order of battle, ibid. f. March round the Euxine, 42, a, b. Whether the same with the former, 50, sub not. His writings, &c. 164, (W).
Arruntius, Luc. disgraced, v. 355, d. His extract, &c. ibid. (K). Betrayed by Macro, 452, d. Bleeds himself to death, ibid. & seq.
Arsaces, the common name of the Parthian kings, iv. 292, a.
— first founder of the Parthian kingdom, iv. 291, e.
— II. his wars with Antiochus, 292, b. Founds the Bactrian kingdom, iii. 525, d, e.
— the son of Artabanus, made king of Armenia, iv. 315; a. Murdered, ibid. c.
— impiously summoned by Julian, vi. 329, e. 331; b. Abandoned by the Romans, 342, a. Murdered by Sapor, 372, e, f.
— yields his kingdom to the Persians, 487; b.
Arsacidæ, tributary to Persia, iv. 323, a. Embassy to Chosroes, 350, d.
Arsames brought bound to Alexander, iii. 373, d.
†Arsenarca, where sited, vii. 114, e.
Arses raised to the Persian throne by Bagoas, ii. 154, a. Murdered by him, ibid. b.
†Arsia, river, a boundary of Gaul, iv. 408.
Arsinoe, queen of Egypt, murdered, iii. 646, c.
— daughter of Auletes, set up by Ganymede, 676. Taken prisoner, and led in triumph by Cæsar, 679. v. 167, d. Put to death, ibid. (N).
† — a city in Cyprus, iii. 173, a.
† — in Cyrene, 662.
Artabanes, Darius's general against the Greeks, ii. 111. Defeated by the Athenians, 112. Dissuades Xerxes from a second attempt, ibid. & seq. Consents to his own disgrace, 115, & seq.
— led in triumph by M. Antony, iii. 682.
— embassy to Germanicus, v. 395, f.
— betrays the Persians, vi. 373, a, b.
— basely deserted by the Romans, vii. 665, e, f.
— kills a gigantic Goth in single combat, 666, a. His death, ibid. b.
Artabanus's treason and death, ii. 219, d, f.
— bold letter to Tiberius, iii. 710, d.
— king of Parthia, killed, iv. 293, c.
— of Media, invades Parthia, 314, d. Wars with Mithridates, 315, b, c. Driven out, ibid & seq. Restored and dies, 316, a, c.
— II. short reign, 319, c.
— III. outwitted by Caracalla, 322, b, c. vi. 127. Killed by Artaxerxes, iv. 322, e, f.
Artabasus sails towards the Nile, ii. 131, d—f. Beats the Egyptians, 132, a.
Artabazanes invaded by Antiochus, iii. 534, b.
Artabazes, first king of Pontus, iii. 724, a.
— king of Media's wars with the Parthians, 845, a.
Artabazus's fidelity to Darius, iii. 359, Rewarded by Alexander, 360, c.
†Artabrum Promontorium, Cape Finisterre, where sited, vii. 303, f.
†Artacene, a province of Assyria, i. 858, b.
Artæus, king of Media, i 939, a.
Artagera taken and razed by the Romans, iii. 709
Artaphernes sent against the Athenians, ii. 460, a.
Artaovasdes defeated by the Persians, iv. 312, & seq.
Artaxares's success against the Parthians, iv. 322, & seq. Extract, 324, a. Haughty embassy to Severus, 325, c. Defeated by him, ibid. e. His death, 326. See also vol. vi 139—144.
†Artaxata, metropolis of Armenia, iii. 692, d. Taken by Pharasmenes, 710, c. Razed by Corbulo, 715, a. By the Romans, iv. 321, b. By Priscus, vi. 69, f.
Artaxias, first king of Armenia, revolts against Antiochus, iii, 582, d; (Y). Defeated by him, 698; & seq. Taken prisoner, 699, c.
Artaxias II. driven out of Armenia, 708, e. Recovers it; 709, a. Strangled, ibid.
— III. crowned by Germanicus, 710.
Artaxerxes raised to the throne, ii. 129, d. The Ahasheurus of scripture, 130, a, & not. Defeated by the Egyptians; 131. Peace with the Greeks, 132. Injustice to the Athenian prisoners, 133, b. Answer to the Greek embassy; ibid. e. Death and character, 134, b.
— Mnemon succeeds Darius Nothus, 136; & seq. Defeats and kills his revolted brother, 139, b; c. Peace with the Spartans, 144. Conquers Cyprus, 145, & seq. Marches against the Cadusians; ibid. Ready to perish with famine, ibid. & seq. Saved by Tiribazus, 147; a. Invades Egypt, ibid. & seq. His great army and fleet; 148. Their broils and ill success, ibid. d. Second invasion, twelve years after, 149. Conspired against, ibid. & seq. His death and character, 150, c.
Artaxerxes III. Vid. Ochus, ii. 150.
Artaytes impaled for sacrilege, ii. 476, e.
Artemidorus gives Cæsar a list of his conspirators, v. 183; e. His writings and character, vi. 84, sub not.
— general of Syracuse, 860, e.
— promoted at Rome, vii. 523, c, d.
Artemisia's advice to Xerxes, and gallant behaviour, ii. 123, & seq. Surprises Rhodes, iii. 136, d.
Artemius the emperor. Vid. Anastasius, vi. 55, &c.
Artemon, the inventor of battering rams, iii. 200, b.
Arteus, Artius, Artiburnus, and Artincs, kings of Media, ii. 13, d.
Arthur, king, his fabulous history, vii. 448, & seq. & (B). His tomb at Glastenbury, ibid. Victories over the Saxons, 449, & seq. Death, 450, e.
Arts and sciences, their origin after the flood, i. 173, b, e. Unknown to the ancient Greeks, ii. 346, c. Discouraged by the Spartans, 564, a.
Arveris, the Egyptian Ozus, or Apollo, i. 241, d.
†Arverni, where situate, v. 118, (V). Spared by Cæsar, 127, d, e.
— who, vii. 367, (B). Contest against the Ædui, ibid. c.
†Arvernum, Clermont, their capitol, 398, (O).
Aruntius, one of the admirals at Actium, v. 291, & seq.
— Stella, promoted by Nero, 524, d.
†Aryeans, where sited, ii. 706, (X).
†Arzacene yielded to the Romans, vi. 215; a, b. Where situate, ibid. c.
Asa, king of Judah, his signal piety, i. 807; c. Victory over the Cushites, ibid. e. Alliance with Benhadad; 808, b. Death, ibid. c.
Asander, king of Bosporus, iii. 843, e. Starves himself; ibid. f. See vol. v. 153.
Asbestos stone, where digged, iii. 248.
†Ascalon, in Palestine, i. 340, b. Famed for its wines, &c. ibid. d. By whom founded, ii. 329, f. Taken by the Jews, iii. 597, c. Given to Salome, iv. 191, a.
†Ascania, in Lesser Phrygia, or Troas, i. 166, f. ii. 308; b.
†Ascanian islands described, iii. 203; b, & seq.
† — lake, so called from Askenaz, ii 308, b.
†Ascanius defeats the Hetruscans, iv. 420, & seq.
† — river and bay, whence so called, i. 166, e.
†Ascaric, ancient king of the Franks, vii. 550; e. When, 551, a. His sad end, 554, e.
Ascetic christians, when first instituted, iv. 173, d.
†Aschaganides, the dynasties of, iv. 372, a, (A).
†Ascitæ, who, and where sited, vii. 232, a.
Asclepiadæ, kings of Rhodes, iii. 134, c.
Asclepius, the son of Sydyc, worshipped in Egypt, i. 136, c; (P).
Asclepiodotus lands in Britain; and burns his ships, vi. 212, c; d. Success there, ibid. d, e.
Ascolus, bishop, baptizes Theodosius; vi. 393; d.
†Asculana taken by Sylla, v. 52, e.
Asculum revolts from the Romans; v. 49, a. Taken by Pompey, 52, e. The battle of, iii. 813, & not.
†Ascurum, where sited, vii. 143, a.
Asdrubal defeated in Sicily, iii. 78, b—e.
— by Metellus; iv. 669, a. Crucified, ibid. b.
— succeeds Mago at Carthage, vi. 728, a. Killed in Sardinia, ibid. b.
— sent into Sicily, 843; b. Defeated by Cæcilius, 844, b; c.
— the son of Hamilcar, goes with him into Spain, 865, c, d. Narrowly escapes, 866, (M). Succeeds his father there, 867, b, c, (N). His quick success, ibid. d. Raises up the Roman jealousy, ibid. & seq. Treaty with them, 868, a. Murdered by a Gaul, ibid. c. Left to command in Spain, vii. 9, a, b. Purſues the Romans, 18, b, c. Succeſs againſt them, 20, c, d. 30, e, f. Ill ſucceſs, 38, & ſeq Defeats the Carpeſii, 39, c. Forced to go to Hannibal's aſſiſtance, ibid. d, e. Defeated in his march, 40, b, c. Sends word of it to Carthage, 41, f. Defeated afreſh, 46, c. 48, & ſeq. 62, b, c. Conſults with the other generals, ibid. c. Goes into Luſitania, ibid. d.

Aſdrubal Calvus ſhattered by a ſtorm, 44, c, d. Arrives at Sardinia, 45, d.
—— the ſon of Hamilcar, his ſucceſs in Spain, 56, d. Eſcapes a ſnare, 58, e. Goes to aſſiſt Hannibal, 63, d. Croſſes the Pyrenees and Gaul, 65, b. Repulſed before Placentia, ibid. c. March towards Umbria, 66, b. Defeated by the conſuls, ibid. f, & ſeq. His noble death, 67, b.
—— the ſon of Giſco, defeated by Scipio, 69, e, & ſeq. Retires to Gades, 70, d, e. Defeated at ſea, 71, e. Betrayed by Maſiniſſa, 72, b, c. Allies with Syphax, 75, a, b. Defeated, 77, e Retires to Anda, 78. Horrid cruelties, 80, d, e.
—— Hædus, ſent embaſſador to Rome, 84, a. His ſpeech to the ſenate, ibid. b, c. Severe reproof to Hannibal, ibid. d.
—— defeated by Maſiniſſa, 96, e. Impeached, 97, a. Defends Carthage againſt the Romans, 100, & ſeq. Fortifies his camp, 102, a, b. Goes over to the Romans, 103. f. His wife's noble behaviour and death, ibid. & ſeq.
—— Guluſſa's nephew accuſed, and put to death, 101, d.
—— inſtigates Syphax againſt Maſiniſſa, vii 123.
Aſellio, Aul. Scmp. aſſaſſinated at Rome, v. 51, d.
Aſemontium's brave defence againſt Attila, vii. 469, d, e.
Aſina taken by the Carpeſii, vii. 39, b.
Aſenath, Joſeph's wife, bears him two ſons, i. 453, b.
† Aſgurdians, who, vii. 489, b, c.
† Aſhdod, Azotus, in Paleſtine, i. 341, a By whom built, ibid. Its ſituation, and temple of Dagon, ibid. &c.
Aſher, Jacob's ſecond ſon by Zilpa, i. 441. His father's prophecy of him verified, 464, & (N). His lot in the promiſed land, 569, b.
Aſhes, the dreadful puniſhment of, ii. 134, d, & not.
Aſhkenaz, one of Gomer's ſons, where ſeated, i 166, e.
Aſhmon, ſuppoſed the centre of the world, iv. 188, in fin. (R).
Aſhmoneans, the beginning of their reign, iv. 27, & ſeq. The end, 131, a, & (B). Duration, ibid. (D).
† Aſhtaroth, Kernaim, the reſidence of Og, i. 330, d.
† Aſſur, the ſon of Shem, i. 162, e. Where ſettled, 163, a. Cities founded by him, 126, c.
Aſſyaf, king of Egypt, his reign, i. 281, e.
Aſia, the daughter of Teucer, ii. 311, d.
† —— the fourth part of the world, whence ſo called, 290, c. vii. 178, e. How divided now, ibid. c. Conquered by the Scythians, 281, & ſeq.
† —— Proconſular, deſcribed, 289, & ſeq.
† —— Proper, deſcribed, 288, & ſeq.
† —— Minor, the ſtates of, 748. The flood of, i. 96, (N). Ravaged by the Scythians, vi. 175, a. 180, b—d. Submits to Macrianus, 179, a.
Aſiarchæ of Epheſus, their office, ii. 754, e.
Aſiatic dioceſe deſcribed, ii 290.
Aſiatics, their reception of M. Antony, v. 259, d, e. Heavily taxed by him, 260, paſſ.
Aſiaticus, Vitellius's baſe freedman, knighted, v. 614, f. His wealth and power, 619, c. Put to death, 639, c.
Aſinius Pollio goes over to Antony, v. 209, a, & f. Sent againſt Salvidienus, 264, f. Forſook by Plautus, 265, c. Perſuades Ahenobarbus to ſubmit to Antony, 269, d, (F). Generoſity to him, 285. Free anſwer to Auguſtus, 332, (Q). Death, 414, (N).
—— Quadratus's writings and character, vi. 168, (X).
† Aſopus, a river in Attica, ii. 361, d.
Aſpar's negotiation in favour of Jugurtha; v. 256, & ſeq.
—— ſent with Placidia into the weſt, 479, a—c. Succeſs againſt the rebel John, ibid. d—f. Taken priſoner, 482, d. Defeated by Attila, 489, c. Inthrones Leo, 504, d, e. Favourer of the Arians, ibid. e. Fatal jealouſy of Leo, 509, c. Created Cæſar by him, 510, e. Put to death, ibid. f.
—— narrow eſcape out of Afric, vii. 533, c.
Aſpaſia's character, ii. 493, (F). Impiety, 498, paſſ. & not. Acquitted, 499, a.
Aſpaſius's writings and character, vi. 149, ſub not.
Aſper conſpires againſt Nero, v. 551, c. His conſtancy and death, 556, d.
† Aſphaltite lake, whence ſo called, i. 576, b. Whence called Dead and Salt ſea, ibid. Whether owing to the ſubmerſion of Siddim, ibid. (L). Its waters change colour, 577, (M). Length and breadth, ibid.
Aſprenas ordered to aſſaſſinate Sempronius, v. 358, c, d. Killed, 489.
† Aſpurgians, who, and where, vii. 489, b.
Aſſa fœtida of Perſia deſcribed, ii. 39, e.
Aſſaceni invaded by Alexander, iii. 387, b.
Aſſes of Arabia, very docil and uſeful, ii 42, f.
Aſſos, king of Æolus and Myſia, the ſame, ii. 288, d.
† Aſſyria derived from Aſhur, i. 857, a.
† —— Proper, ibid.
† —— of the Greeks, ibid. (B). A land of plenty, ibid. & ſeq. Now a deſart, 858, a. Deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. The ſecond moſt ancient kingdom, 859, b. Not founded by Nimrod, ibid. c. Its antiquity, ibid. & ſeq. Reduced by Trajan, vi. 20, d, e.
Aſſyrian kingdom, when firſt founded, i. 126, c. Vid. & ii. 7, a Its chronology down to its fall, i. 862.
Aſſyrians, their religion, i. 862. Why they worſhipped fiſhes, ibid. & 875. And doves, 875, b, & (P). 863, a, & (I). Their antiquity, 859, b. Government, laws, &c. 860, & ſeq Table of their kings, according to Euſebius, &c. 861.
† Aſta, where ſited, v. 176, (U). Surrendered to Cæſar, ibid. b.
† Aſtacus in Bythynia, different from Nicomedia, iii. 822.
† Aſtapa, the ſiege and ſad cataſtrophe of, iv. 738, b. vii. 71, a.
Aſtarimus, king of Troy, murdered, i. 415.
Aſtarte, daughter of Uranus, i. 136. How named by the Greeks, 138, a. One of the Phœnician deities. 397, b, &c. (G). Why figured with horns, 398. Called Aphrodite, 399, a. Worſhipped firſt at Tyre, ibid. & ſeq. Her prieſts and prophets, 401, d. Rites, ibid. & ſeq. At Byblus, ibid. Her temple at Aphec, a ſink of lewdneſs, 402, a. That of Tyre, built by Hiram, ibid. b. Some freſh conjectures concerning her, vi. 684, (R).
Aſtartus recovers the Tyrian throne, i. 415, b.
Aſter, a famed archer, the ſtory of, iii. 291, ſub not.
Aſterius, his gigantic remains, 673, (A).
Aſtorga maſſacred by the Goths, vi. 505. vii. 513, b, c.
† Aſtratic iſlands, where, vii. 190, b.
Aſtrologers, a remarkable account of, ii. 222, ſub not.
—— their liberty reſtrained, v. 344, a. Baniſhed Rome, 388, b. Why perſecuted by Tiberius, 430, b. Expelled by Claudius, 512, f. By Vitellius, 615, e. Their odd edict againſt him, ibid.
Aſtronomy begun among the deſcendants of Seth, i. 81, a. Aſcribed to the Egyptians, 218, a, b.
Aſtulphus choſen king of the Lombards, vii. 710, a. Takes Ravenna, ibid. b. Invades Rome, 711, & ſeq. His new edicts, 712, paſſ. Defeated by Pepin, ibid. e, f. Beſieged in Pavia, 714, paſſ. Submits to him, ibid. & ſeq. Reſtores his conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. His death, 715, b, c.
† Aſtura, where ſited, v. 227, e, (C).
Aſtures, ſubdued by Auguſtus, v. 298, e. Deſperate end, 299, b. Cruel uſage from Lama, 303, b. Subdued afreſh, 306, d.
† —— who, and where ſited, vii. 303, e, f. 304, (B).
Aſtyages, whether ſucceeded by Cyaxares or Cyrus, ii. 25, ſub not. His dreams of his daughter, 82. Orders her child to be murdered, ibid. f. Cruelty to Harpagus for not doing it, 84, e. To the magi, for their wrong advice, 86, d. Defeat and impriſonment, ibid. &c.
Aſylas, king of Hetruria, iv. 418. e.
Atalanta's bravery, in killing the Calydonian boar, ii. 400, (B). Put to death, iii. 423, c.
Atamas, king of Cappadocia, iii. 764.
Atamirus, Jupiter, why ſo called, iii. 132, c.
Atargatis, the temple of, burnt, iii. 587, b. iv. 67, b, & (G). Plundered by Craſſus, 296, f.
Atarneus, why given to the Chians, iii. 210, b.
Ataulphus ſent for into Italy, vi. 458, a. Defeated, 460, a. Joins Alaric, ibid. b. Raiſed by Attalus, 461, d. Made king of the Goths, 465, c. Betrays Jovianus to Honorius, 467, e, f. Falls out with him, 468, e, & ſeq. Marries Placidia, 489. Forced to flee into Spain, 470, b. Stabbed to death, ibid. e. See alſo, vol. vii. 492, e. 500, paſſ † Atbel, a city of the Ammonites, i. 293, c.
Atec ſubmits to Maximian, vi. 208, d. An ancient king of the Franks, vi. 550, e, f.
† Ategna beſieged by Cæſar, v. 172, c. Its dreadful ex. ibid. d, e.
Atellanæ, firſt actors at Rome, iv. 585, (S).
Atellius adviſes againſt fighting the triumvirs, v. 244, a.
Athaliah's impious reign, i. 822, b.
Athanagil, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, vii. 492, c.

Athanaric's apology for aiding Procopius, vi. 369, d, e. Defeated by Valens, 371, b, c. Makes peace with him, ibid. d, e Invaded by the Hunns, 379, e, f. Retires into the rocks, 380, e. Refuges with Theodosius, 395, c. His death, ibid. d. See also vol. vii. 459, & seq. His famed wall, ibid. Declared Theodoric's successor, 647, e, f. His letter to the senate, &c. 648, pass. Debaucnes and death, 650, c.
Athaus, king of Scythia, outwits the Macedonians, ii. 28, & seq.
Athena, daughter of Chronus, queen of Attica, i. 138, a.
—— the Greek name of Minerva, ii. 361, e.
Athenæus, slain by the Arabians, iii. 433, & seq.
—— sent to persecute the Jews, iv. 52, d.
Athenæus's writings and character, vi. 95, sub not.
Athenodorus, one of Longinus's generals, beheaded, vi. 519, d, e.
Athenian citizens, how admitted, ii. 488, a. Vid. & 439, sub not.
Athenians, their government, kings, &c. ii. 362, & seq. Punished for Theseus's curse, 367, c. Governed by archons, 369, b. Dwindle into democracy, ibid. f. Their state under the archons, 416, & seq. Cylon's insurrection punished, 422, & seq. Driven out of Salamis, 423, b. Expiated by Epimenides, ibid. d. Recover Salamis, 425. Divided into three parties, 437, f. Resettled by Solon, 438, & seq. New changes, 439. Their magistrates, ibid. & seq Inferior courts, 443, & seq. Enslaved by Pisistratus, 447, & seq. Vain attempt against him, 449, & seq. Veneration for him, 454, b. Turned into detestation, 456, c. Their tribes augmented from four to ten, ibid d. Invaded by the Spartans, ibid. & seq. Beat the Bœotians, &c. 457. War against the Ægineans, 458, & seq. Assist the Ionians, 109, a. Treatment of Darius's heralds, 111 Distressed by him, 112. 460, & seq. Success against him, 462. Preparations against Xerxes, 119. 468. Defeat him at sea, 120, & seq. 124, & seq. 472, & seq. Forsake their city and country, 477. Assist the Egyptians, &c. 484, & seq. Beat the Ægineans and Corinthians, 447. Defeated in Egypt, 132, b. At Tanagra, 487, & seq. Defeat the Thebans, 488, & seq. Make and break peace with Persia, 143, & seq. 490, a. A true poll of their citizens, 492, c. War with the Samians, 493. 496. Double victory over the Corinthians, 497, a Fleet against the Greeks, 501. Visited with pestilence, 502. 507, d. Assist Leontidas, ibid. & seq. Defeated in Bœotia, 511, d. Peace with Sparta, 512, & seq. League with the Argives, 514. Defeated, 515. War against Perdiccas, 516, a. Their fleet destroyed in Sicily, 517—519, & seq. New war with Sparta, 521 Establish an oligarchy, 522, & seq. Opposed by the army, 525, & seq Beaten at sea, ibid. Defeat the Peloponnesians, ibid & seq. 526. 528. Ingratitude to their generals, ibid. & seq. Beaten by Lysander, 529, & seq. Under thirty tyrants, 530. Rescued by Thrasybulus, 531 Peace with Sparta, ibid. f. And Persia, 539. Success against the former, 540, pass. War against the Macedonians, 542, & seq. Assist the Phocians against the holy league, 543, c. Subdued by Philip, 548, & seq. Rejoicing at his death, 549. War against Macedon after Alexander's death, 550. Submissive peace with Antipater, 551, d. Ingratitude to Phocion, 553, c. Reduced by Cassander, 554, a. Abominable flattery to Antigonus, ibid. & seq. Ingratitude to Demetrius Phalereus, ibid. & seq. To the son of Antigonus, 555, & seq. To Aratus, 556. Restored by him, 557, c. Obtain a consular army against Philip, 733. Their tribes from whom named, 734, not. Subdued by Sylla, 741, b. By Cæsar, ibid. e. Honoured by Germanicus, 742, a. Their various fates since, ibid. &c.
—— invited into Sicily, iii. 24, & seq. Beaten by the Syracusans, 29, & seq. 31, b, c. At sea, 32, & seq. Ruined in Sicily, 34, & seq. Their prisoners cruelly treated, 36, e. Noble carriage towards Dion, 65, b, c. War with Rhodes, 135, & seq. With the Mitylenians, 206. Purify Delos, 230. Drive the Pelasgi out of Attica, 235. Ill success in Ægine, 244. Fall out with the Persians, 275, & seq. Answer to Alexander, 278. Outwitted by Philip, 290, d. Assist the Olynthians, 294, a. Send Phocion against Philip, 304, d. Defeated at Chæronea, 307. Rank flattery to Philip, 312, b To Alexander, 321, e. Treachery to Demetrius, 341, b. Punished, 342, a. Submit to Antipater, 453, d, e. Betrayed to Mithridates, 733, c.
—— high honours to Hyrcan, iv. 113, b, (Y).
—— raise statues to Brutus and Cassius, 214, & seq. Reception of M. Antony, 259, c. Amply rewarded, 260, d Flattery to Cleopatra, 286, a. Punished by Augustus, 307, c. Reception of Germanicus, 394, b, c, (L).
Athenians highly favoured by Adrian, vi. 42, d. Oppressed by Herodes, 70, d, e.
Athenion sent into Judæa, 640. His kindness to Joseph, 641, & seq. See also iv. 41, & seq.
—— general of Cleopatra, his treachery to Herod, iv. 136, d.
—— head of the rebel slaves, v. 32. Imprisoned by Salvius, ibid. f. Defeated, 39, c. Relieves Triocola, ibid. d. Success against the Romans, ibid. e. Killed in single combat, ibid. f.
† Athens, whence so called, ii. 361, e, & (C). Described, 125, e. 435, & seq. Various fates, 437, (K). Government after Solon, 438. Destroyed by Mardonius, 475, d. Rebuilt by Conon, 447. Fortified, 483, b. Twice attempted by the Peloponnesians, 527, & seq. Taken by the Spartans, 529, & seq. Garisoned by the Macedonians, 551. By Cassander, 554, a. Becomes one of the chief states after the Achæan league, 629. Its history from that time, 731, & seq. Attempted by Philip, 734, & seq. By Brutus, 736, f. Besieged by Sylla, 737, & seq. Blockaded and famished, 740. Taken and put to the sword, 741, b. Beautified by Adrian, vi. 42, d. How governed under him, ibid e. The walls of it rebuilt, 180, c. Burnt by the Heruli, 184, d. Resumes its old idolatry under Julian, 324, b. Plundered by the Goths, vii. 497, a. By Alaric, 505, d.
† —— New, built at Delos, 42, f.
† —— the aqueduct of, finished, 57, c.
† Athesis, river, its spring and course, iv. 413, b.
Athletæ first introduced at Rome, iv. 758, c.
† Athos, the mountain of, its height, i. 102, (N). The passage through, cut by Xerxes, ii. 116, & seq.
Athotes, king of Egypt, who, i. 218, e. 238, (B).
† —— palace at Memphis, ibid.
Athronges, a gigantic fellow, takes up the royalty, iv. 189, b. Defeated, ibid. c
Atian family, its antiquity, v. 194, (K).
Atima, infamy, a punishment at Athens, ii. 432, a.
Atimetus, the accuser of Agrippina, put to death, v. 424, a, d.
† Atintanes, what people they were, ii. 706, & (W).
† Atlantic islands. Vid Fortunate, v. 86, (Z). Conquered by the Egyptians, vii. 149, b.
† Atlantides, who, and where sited, vii. 177, c, d. Their customs, ibid. & seq.
† Atlantis of Plato, vii. 179, a, b.
Atlas, the son of Uranus, i 134, b. Murdered by Chronus, 135, b. Gives name to the Atlantii in Afric, ibid. (N).
—— the inventor of astronomy, &c. vii. 152, d. First king, of Mauritania, 158, b. Overcome by Hercules, ibid, c, d. The same with Antæus, ibid. & (M). The fable of, explained, 154, a, &c.
—— the nephew of Jupiter, whence so named, ii. 263, & (W). Reigned in Mauritania, 312, a, & note.
† —— mountains, where situate, vii. 115, e. 139, d. Described, 146, a, b.
Atomic system, its author, i. 19, c. Principles, 20, d, & seq. Raised by Epicurus, 21, a. Received by modern christians, and others, 22, a.
† Atra besieged by Trajan, vi. 24, e. Its situation, ibid. Holds out against Severus, 114, f, & seq. Against Artaxerxes, 139, e.
Atratinus chosen inter-rex, iv. 506, a.
Atrius, a revolted Roman, beheaded, iv. 738.
† Atropatene, part of Media, described, ii. 1, b. Whence so called, iii. 844, d. Its kings, ibid. & seq. By whom conquered, 845, a, b.
† Atropatia, where situate, iii. 534, (X).
† Attacoti different from the Caledonians, vii 414. c. Invade the Romans, 435, c.
Attalus, king of Pergamus, joins against the Achæans, ii. 666, d. 703, & seq. Forced to quit Opus, 667. Invaded by Philip, 669. Assists the Athenians against him, 733. The Attalian tribe founded in honour of him, 735, f The inventor of tapestry, 325, f.
—— defeats the Gauls, iii. 769, e. His other conquests, 771, a, b. Love of learning, and death, ibid. d, e.
—— II. sent to Rome, 771. His cowardice at Pergamos, ibid. e, f. Generosity at Rome, 777. Succeeds Eumenes, 778. Invaded by Prusias, ibid. Aided by the Romans, 779, b. Aids Nicomedes against his father, 780. His death and character, 781.
—— III. his cruelties, 781, & seq. Death, 782. Bequeaths his kingdom to the Romans, ibid. & (E). iv. 792.

Attalus's

Attalus's ſpeech to Philip, iii. 310, c. Ill treatment of Pauſanias, 313. Treaſonable views, 318. Put to death, ibid. d.
—— Claud. put to death by Heliogabalus, vi. 136, a.
—— ſent to, and promoted by Honorius, 459, f, & ſeq. Narrow eſcape from Alaric, 460, a. Made prefect of Rome, ibid. c. And emperor by Alaric, 463, c, d. Depoſed by him, ibid. e (Vid & vol. vii. 508, e). Reſtored and depoſed by the ſame, 464, a. Advice to the Goths, 467, d. Reſumes the purple, 469, e. Taken priſoner, 472, a. His moderate puniſhment, ibid. b.
—— king of the Marcomans, allies with Rome, vii. 601, f, & ſeq.
Attic coin deſcribed, ii. 362, a.
† Attica, whence ſo called, ii. 361, c. Part of Græcia Prop. 344. Deſcribed, 361, & ſeq. Government, kings, &c. 362, & ſeq. Religion, 363. Change of government, 369, b. Sacked by the Perſians, 475. Its pre-eminence at ſea, 479, b. Invaded by Xerxes, 121, & ſeq. Left to the mercy of the Perſians, 125, c. 470. Invaded by the Peloponneſians, 501, & ſeq. Ravaged by Philip, 733. 735. Betrayed into Mithridates's intereſt, 736, c. Enſlaved by Ariſtion, ibid. & ſeq. 740, d. One of the three chief ſtates after the Achæan league, ibid. & 629.
Attica fides, a proverb, 361, e.
Atticus's opinion of the origin of the univerſe, i. 30.
—— Curtius, accompanies Tiberius, v. 430, a, & (K).
—— Jul. boaſts himſelf the murderer of Otho, 595, b.
—— takes the odium of burning the capitol, 632, c, e.
—— Aulus, his bravery and death, 671, e.
—— finds a treaſure in his houſe, vi. 3, f. How bid to uſe it, iv.
—— biſhop of Conſtantinople, his kindneſs to the refuged chriſtians, 474, b.
Attila the Hunn's peace with Rome, vi. 487, d, e. Cruelty to the Hunniſh princes, ibid. f. Northern conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. In Thrace, 488, a, b. Proud demands on Theodoſius, ibid. c, d. Dreadful devaſtations, 489, b, c. Falls out with Valentinian, ibid & ſeq. Conſpired againſt, 420. Powerful army againſt him, 493, f. High demands on him, 494, b. Ravages in Gaul, ibid. e, f. Repulſed by Ætius, 495, b, c. Bravery at the battle of Chalons, ibid. e, f. Repaſſes the Rhine, 496, b, c. Cruelty to the Aquileians, ibid f. Odd retaliation for the Roman pictures, 497, b. Truce with Rome, ibid c. Defeated by the Viſigoths, and dies, ibid. & ſeq. (See alſo vol. vii. 464—481).
Attilius's ſucceſs againſt the Samnites, iv. 634, e, & ſeq.
—— Regulus, ſubdues the Salentines, 649, d.
—— A. Collatin. entangled in Sicily, 660, f. His ſucceſs there, 661, c.
—— Marc. Reg. triumphs over the Carthaginians, 660, & ſeq. Succeſs in Africa, ibid & ſeq. Deſtroys the ſerpent at Bagrada, 663, e, f. Conqueſts in Afric, 664, & ſeq. Offers peace to the Carthaginians, ibid. d, e. Taken priſoner, 665, e. Cruelly uſed by them, 666, a. Sent by them to Rome, 669, d. His noble ſpeech to the ſenate, ibid & ſeq. Obſtinate return to Carthage, 670, b, c. Tortured to death, ibid. d, (G).
—— Catalinus's ſucceſs in Sicily, 667, c.
—— Regulus, killed by the Gauls, 688, a.
—— Batus, his extravagant courſe, v. 393, a.
—— freeman, his amphitheatre kills twenty thouſand Romans, 431. His baniſhment, ibid. d.
—— Verus, his valour and death, 625, f.
Attis, how begot and preſerved, ii. 297, c.
—— his fatal wedding, ibid. c.
—— daughter of Cranaus, 363, c.
Attius Tullus's reception of Coriolanus, iv. 498, c, d. Invades Rome with him, 499, & ſeq. Treachery to him, 502, c. Killed by the Romans, 503.
—— Patera's writings and character, vi. 273, ſub not.
Attræus's bloody revenge, ii. 356, b. Killed by Egyptus, ibid. e.
† Attrebatii, where ſited, vii. 408, a.
Attrog, a fruit worn by the Jews on the feaſt of tabernacles, iv. 99, (E).
† Aturia, a province of Aſſyria, i. 858, b.
Atyadæ, a race of Lydian kings, ii. 330, b.
Atys, the ſon of Cotis, 330, a. 332, b. Killed by a wild boar, 335, e.
—— king of the Gauls, defeated and killed, iv. 682, c.
Atzhan, whether he embraced moſlemiſm, vii. 220, paſſ.
† Avari, who, vi. 531, e. Deprived of their penſion, ibid. By Tiberius, 533, f. Invade the Romans, 535, e. Defeated, 536, a. Stirred up by Coſrhoes againſt Heraclius, 541, c.
Avaricum taken by Cæſar, v. 126, vii. 399, e.
Auctorati, what, and whence ſo called, iv. 805, ſub not.
† Audus, mount, in Numidia, vii. 111, c.
† —— river, ibid. f.
† —— promontory, where, 115, d.
† Aventinc, mount, burnt, v. 451, e. Why ſo called, iv. 421. Yielded to the plebeians, 529.
Averroes ſuſpected of holding the eternity of matter, i. 4, b.
Aufaniæ matres, who, [418], (C).
Aufidus conſpires againſt Sertorius, v. 96, b. His miſerable end, 97, c.
Auge, princeſs of Arcadia, put to death, ii. 379, c.
Auges, a Bathian prince, vii. 492, d.
Augeus, king of Elis, his ſtable cleanſed by Hercules, ii. 406, a. That fable explained, 407. His expulſion and death, 408.
Augurs, whence ſo named, iv. 428, (S). Their office, ibid. & 436, b. Forbid to aſſiſt at funerals, v. 375, (E).
Auguries, how firſt introduced at the inſtallation of kings, iv. 426, b. How performed, 428, (S).
Auguſt, the month of, whence ſo named, v. 294, f. 317, b, c. 348, c.
—— a new name given to Octavian, 296, f.
† Auguſta Vagienorum, where, iv. 408.
† —— Taurinorum, now Turin, ibid.
† —— Prætoria, capital of the Salaſians, 409, a.
† —— Vindelicorum, Auſburgh, where, v. 313, (E).
† Auguſtal, the ſtreet of Daphne, whence ſo called, vi. 262, c.
† Auguſtammica, part of Lower Egypt, i. 176, b.
† Auguſtidunum, capital of the Ædui, v. 409, f. Rebuilt by Conſtantius, vi. 211, e.
Auguſtus's friendſhip to Herod, iv. 126, d. Victory at Actium, 137. Accepts Herod's friendſhip, 138. Reception in Judæa, 139, a. Diſpleaſed with Herod, 150, d, e. Decree for taxing the world, 159, a, & (Y). Appealed to by Archelaus, 186, e. Divides the Jewiſh kingdom, 190, e. The reſt ſee in Octavius.
—— the ſon of Oreſtes, why called Auguſtulus, vi. 512, e. Proclaimed emperor, ibid. f. Depoſed and maintained by Odoacer, 513, e, f.
—— temple rebuilt by Adrian, vi. 35, a.
Avicenna ſuſpected of holding the eternity of the world, i. 4, b.
Avignon taken by Theodoric, vii. 577, a.
Avitus conſecrated at Edeſſa, vi. 133. 428, ſub. not. Peace with the Goths, 484, e.
—— made general of the Romans, 501, d. Proclaimed emperor, 502, a, b. Depoſed, 503, f. His death, 504, a. See vol. vii. 512, b.
Aulea, a famed kind of Pergamean tapeſtry, ii. 325, f.
Aulis, in Bœotia, the Greeks ſworn at, ii. 371, a.
Aulus ſhamefully defeated in Numidia, vii. 130, d, e.
—— Gel. a diſciple of Favorinus, vi. 49, ſub not. Character of Epictetus, 50, ſub not.
—— of Calviſius, 50, ſub not. His writings, 85, ſub not.
—— Pompon. revolts in Gaul, 207, c.
Aurelian's ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, iv. 328, a. Severity at Palmyra, 329, a.
—— proclaimed emperor, vi. 185, f. His riſe and character, 188, a, b. Succeſs in the north, ibid. & ſeq. See vol. vii. 497, & ſeq. Inlarges the Roman walls, 189, b. Succeſs againſt Zenobia, 190, & ſeq. Receives embaſſies from the eaſt, 19, e. Succeſs in Egypt, 192, b, c. His triumph at Rome, ibid. d—f. Kindneſs to Zenobia, 193, a, b. Reforms the ſtate, ibid. & ſeq. His bread-crowns to the people, ibid. & ſeq. Succeſs in Gaul, &c. 194, e, f. Aſſaſſinated, 195. Funeral honours, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
—— family, an account of, 15, a.
—— prieſts, by whom created, 63, a.
—— the hiſtorian, his writings, 197, ſub not.
Aurelius, Marc. his character of Antoninus, vi. 55, d. Created Cæſar, 576. Conſul, ibid. e, f. Succeeds Antoninus, 58, a, b. 59, c. His extract, learning, names, &c 60, & ſeq. Takes L. Verus for his collegue, 61, f. Generoſity to the diſtreſſed Romans, 63, c. Mild government, 64, paſſ. Triumphs over Parthia, 65, e. Styled Pater patriæ, ibid. & ſeq. Wiſe orders during the plague and famine, 66, b—d. German war, 68, paſſ. Succeſs againſt the barbarians, 69. Delivered by the prayers of the chriſtians, 71, & ſeq. Stay in Germany, 68, f 73, paſſ. Two letters concerning Cains, 74, (F). 75, c, d. Speech againſt him, 76, b. Concern for his death, 77, a. Kindneſs to his children, ibid. c. Letter to Fauſtina about them, ibid & ſeq. March into Egypt, 78, b. Shameful mourning for Fauſtina, ibid e.

Visit to Athens, 79, d. Great skill in philosophy, 80. Success against the Germans, ibid. c. Sudden death, funeral, &c. ibid. & seq. Meditations, 81, b, c.
Aurelian, Victor, his books imperfect, vi. 19, c.
— Verus, his history lost, ibid.
— Titus Fulv. See Antoninus, 34, & seq.
— Nemesianus, &c. conspires against Caracalla, 128, e.
— Philip, his writings and character, 149, sub not.
— Cotta, his success in Sicily, iv. 667, & seq. Against Lilybæum, 674, e.
— Penicula, whipped and degraded, 68, b.
Aureolus forced to assume the purple, vi. 179, e. His rise and success, ibid. & seq. Defeated in Italy, 184, & seq. Killed 186, d.
— the bridge built to his memory, ibid.
Aurite, the first race that reigned in Egypt, i. 92, d, & (N).
Aurum Coronarium, what, vi. 54, e, f.
Auruntii, driven out of Campania, iv. 414, d. Their origin, 415, b. Defeated by the Romans, 487, d.
†Ausetani, where sited, vii. 10, f. Invaded by Scipio, ibid.
†Ausones, their origin, iv. 415, d. vii. 489. Conquered by the Romans, iv. 604, a 619.
Ausonius's character and writings, vi. 391, c, d. 401, (L).
Auspices, whence so called, iv. 428, (S).
Austin, St. judgment of Vespasian's miracles, v. 646, e. Censure of Porphyry, vi. 222, & seq. Panegyric on the Roman consuls, 406, d. Zeal for church asyla, 422, f. Sermon on the deliverance of Constantinople, 437, e, f. Character of Olympius, 457, d. Apology for the destruction of Rome, 465, a.
†Ausurians, who, vi. 467, c. Waste Pentapolis, ibid.
Autaritus, betrayed by the Numidians, vi. 859, c. Defeated, 860. Seized by Hamilcar, 862, e, f.
Autesion, king of Thebes, runs mad, ii. 375, b.
Autharis chosen king of the Lombards, vii. 516, b. 681, d. Success against the Romans, ibid. & seq. Conversion, 682, c, d. Conquests, 683, d, & seq. Death, 684, b.
Autocliton, what, ii. 375. The second order of Athenian citizens, 438, a.
†Autolala, metropolis of the Autololes, a tribe of the Getulians, vii. 160, d, (B).
Autolycus, the famed statue of, iii. 748, (O).
†Automelæ, where situate, vi. 805, (R).
Autonomi subdued by Alexander, iii. 794, a, b.
Autronius, sworn enemy to Cicero, v. 116, (S).
Auun relieved by Constantius, vi. 241, b. By Julian, 297, d. Taken by Childebert, vii. 587, f. Its temple and hot baths, 355, (R).
Auvergne taken by Euric, vi. 510, c. vii. 516, b.
Auxesis's statue erected by the Epidaurii, iii. 244, (I).
†Auxume, metropolis of Ethiopia, vii. 184, e. Its ruins, ibid. & seq.
— Abassine princes crowned at, 185, b.
†Auzakes, in Afric, by whom built, i. 415, d.
†Auzia, where sited, vii. 115, b.
Auzan sultan's generosity to Romalius, vi 605, c—f. Treaty with Cutlumoses, 606, e, f.
Axes, born by the lictors, iv. 426, b. Set aside by Poplicola, 473, a. By whom resumed, 482, b.
Axiers, among the Phœnicians, what, vi. 694, (Y).
Axiothea kills herself, and all her daughters, iii. 182, e.
†Axius, a river in Macedonia, iii. 260, d.
†Axones, who, and where sited, ii. 435, a.
Aylesford, the battle of, vii. 444, d, e.
Azabel, killed by Abner, i. 773, d.
†Azama, where situate, vii. 109, e.
Azan, king of Arcadia, ii. 379.
†Azania the portion of Azan, ibid.
Azariah succeeds Amasiah, i. 827, a. His piety and success, 829, a. Smitten with leprosy, why, ibid. d. His death, ibid. e.
†Azazene, where sited, vi. 474. Abandoned to the Romans, ibid. d.
Azchmic, king of Tyre, i. 418, d. Spared by Alexander, 420, c.
Azer king of the Asiatics, the same as Terah, i. 132.
Azizus, king of Emesa, turns Jew, iii. 848, d.
†Azotus taken by Azarhaddon, i. 266, e. Retaken by Psammitichus, ibid. Taken by Judas Maccabeus, iv. 68, d. Given to Salome, 191, a.
Azurmi, princess of Persia, raised to the throne, iv. 403, b. Murdered, ibid d.
Azyla. See Churches, vi. 422, & seq.

B

BAAL, one of the Phœnician deities, i. 397, b. Its numerous priests, &c. 401, b.
Baal Shalasus, worshipped at Sidon, 397, d. Many deities of that name, ibid. (B), (D). Sometimes a Goddess, 398, a. Conjectures concerning that deity, vi 694, pass. & (R). Sometimes meant the true God, 688, & seq.
— berith, its etymon, i. 747, (I).
— Peor and Phegor, the god of the Moabites, 285, e, (E). Several opinions concerning him, 286, a, b, (F).
— Zephon, unknown to ancient geographers, i. 503, (O).
— Zebub, how worshipped by the Philistines, 343, b. Why so called, ibid.
— made king of Tyre, 417, c.
Baalis, the last king of Ammon, i. 298, a. Receives the fleeing Jews, ibid. b. Advice against Ishmael, ibid. Carried prisoner into Babylon, ibid. c.
Baana, one of the murderers of Ishbosheth, i. 774, d. Put to death by David, ibid. e.
— head of the returning Jews, iv. 4, b.
Baasha succeeds Jeroboam, i. 808, c. His death, ibid d.
Baau, the first woman according to the Phœnicians, i. 46, d, (N).
Babai defeated by the Ostrogoths, vii. 519, f, & seq.
Babas, the sons of, put to death, iv. 141, a, & (Q).
†Babel, by whom built, i. 123, b, (P). Its etymon, 143, c. 153, (I). When begun, 129, b. 142, d. The design of that work, 143, a, b. Opinions concerning it, ibid. & seq. Its description, 144, a, b, (N). Traditions about them, 123, b, (P). Why called the tower of Nimrod, 147, (N).
Babia, one of the Syrian deities, i. 371, d. Children call Babyas from her, ibid. (D).
Babilus's bloody advice to Nero, v. 550, e.
Babylas forces the emperor to do penance, vi 160, b, c. Martyred under Decius, 167, d.
†Babylon, how, and by whom built, i. 143, (H). Whether by Semiramis, 878, b. The fable of its speedy building, 146, a, (M).
† — the kingdom of, whence so called, i. 905, e. Its proper boundaries, 906, a. Extent, situation, &c. ibid. & seq. Rivers, canals, &c. 907, d, e. Natural and artificial rarities, 910, b, c. Antiquity, government, &c. 911, a, b. Princes, &c. 912, b, c. Laws, 913, a—c. Kingdom, when founded, 937, d. Metropolis described, 957, & seq. Temple of Belus, 960. Two famed palaces, 961, a. Hanging gardens, ibid. b. Canals, lakes, &c. ibid. d, e. Ruins, 146, a, (M).
— the fall of, according to Herodotus and others, 970, pass. & seq. According to Daniel, 971, c, d, & seq.
† — when, and by whom taken, ii. 21, & seq. 93, & seq. 166, d. A further description of its ruins, iii. 517, b, (H).
†Babylonia conquered by Mithridates, iv. 292, d. By Trajan, 320, a. vi. 20, e. Entered by him, 21, a. Taken by Cassius, 65, c. By Severus, 146, b.
Babylonian antediluvian history, i. 90, a, b.
Babylonians ascribed the order, &c. of the world to their Belus, i. 15, a. Their religion and deities, 916, b, c. 925, e, f. First authors of human sacrifices, 926, b. Their customs, 927, a. Sale of their virgins, ibid. b. Prostitution of their women, ibid. c. Burials, 928, c. Character, ibid. Dress, 929, a. Arts, 932. Sciences, &c. ibid. & seq. Trade, commerce, &c. 933, a—d. 934, a—c. Chronology, 934, pass. Might and riches, ibid. & (X). Table of kings from Ptolemy and Eusebius, 935. Of the successors of Nimrod, 937. Babylonians and Assyrians, two branches of one empire, 940, d. The former in subjection to the latter, 941, e, f. Revolt from the Persians, ii. 104, & seq. Streightly besieged by Darius, ibid. Bloody expedient to stop all useless mouths, 105, Surrender, 106, To Alexander, 166, d. iii. 353, a Forced to abandon their city, 434, & seq. Freed by Demetrius, 591, e.
Bacchidæ, kings of Corinth, whence so named, ii. 392, d. Seize on the government, ibid. & seq.
Bacchides defeated by Judas Maccab. iv. 59, e. Sent to invade Judea, 70, b. 74, b. Success against Judas, 75, a. Cruelties to the Jews, ibid. c, d. 76, pass. Returns to Antioch, ibid. d, (O). Defeated by Jonathan, 77, b, c. Makes peace, ibid. d, e.
Bacchus worshipped in Egypt, i. 207, e. His obscene rites, ibid.
— worshipped by the Phrygians, iii. 300, a. Why supposed the grandson of Cadmus, 372, (D). How worshipped at Elis, 406, a, & not.
— defeats the Titans, iii. 164, not. Worshipped at Naxus, 220, b.
— its famous temple there, 222, a. At Andros, 226, d, e. Worshipped by the Mauritanians, vii. 150, e.

† Bactra beſieged and taken by Ninus, i. 876, c. By a pretended ſtratagem of Semiramis, 877, a. Taken by Alexander, iii. 369, b.
†Bactria, a province of Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 30, b.
†—— the kingdom of, iii. 845, & ſeq. When and by whom founded, 525, b, c. Invaded by Alexander, 369, & ſeq. By the Scythians, 846.
Bactrians, their character and brutiſh cuſtoms, iii. 846, a, b. Ally with Adrian, vi. 37, b. Embaſſy to Antoninus, 56, f.
Bacurius ſerves under Valens, vi. 370, f. Under Theodoſius, 424, a. His gallant character, ibid. b—d.
†Badanatha, capital of the Thamydeni, vii. 233, c.
†Badeo, a city in Arab. Felix, vii. 233, f.
Badezor, Bazor, king of Tyre, i. 415, e.
Badon, the battle of, vii. 450, b. When, ibid c.
Bæbius, baſely corrupted by Jugurtha, v. 11, c, d.
—— Marcellus, put to death by Severus, vi. 117, e, f.
†Bætica, province, deſcribed, vii. 299, c, & ſeq. Its Roman colonies, 300, a, b. Cities, ibid. & ſeq. Bays and ſea-ports, 301, c, d. Mountains, ſoil, &c. 302, & ſeq. Minerals, &c. 303, a, b.
Bætilæ of the heathen, their origin, vi. 693, a, (X). Worſhipped by the Phœnicians, i. 136, (N).
†Bætis, river, in Bætica, vii. 299, d. Its two mouths, 301, (G). Its ſpring and courſe, 302, b.
†Bæula, the ſilver mines of, vii. 65, b.
†Bæturia. See Bætica, vii. 299, d.
Bagaudæ defeated by Maximin, vi. 207, e, f. vii. 543, f Give a paſſage to Sarus, 454, d.
†Bagdad, where ſituate, iii. 518, in fin. not.
Bagoas, general of Ochus, ii. 153. Strives to ſave the Egyptian temples, ibid. & ſeq. Redeems their records, 154. Poiſons Ochus, ibid. His other treaſons and puniſhment, ibid. & ſeq.
—— revenge on Orſines, iii. 405, ſub not.
† Bagrada, a river, deſcribed, vi. 671, b, c.
Bahaman, king of Perſia, according to oriental writers, ii. 223, a. Vid. Ardſhir, ibid.
Baharam, king of Perſia, according to oriental writers, iv. 378. Flays Manes alive, ibid. b.
—— II. his reign and character, 379, a.
—— III. his obſcure reign, ibid. b.
—— IV. ſhot to death, 382, b.
—— V. his education, 382, & ſeq. Magnanimity, 384. Succeſs againſt the Turks, ibid. c—e. Travels into India, ibid & ſeq. Feats and conqueſts, 385. Death uncertain, ibid. e.
—— Tchoubin, his advice to Hermouz, 397. Succeſs againſt the Turks, ibid c. Rebels, ibid. e. His character. 398, Death, 399, b.
† Bahrein province deſcribed, vii. 239, c.
† Baiæ, the famed bridge of, built by Caligula, v. 470, & ſeq.
Bajazet's ſwift conqueſts, vi. 646. Arrogance to the Greek emperors, ibid. c, d. Defeats one hundred and thirty thouſand chriſtians, ibid. e, f. Defeated by Tamerlan, 647, d. His death, ibid. e.
Bail, when firſt taken in capital caſes, iv. 521, f.
Baithus, an Epicurean Jew, iv. 40, e.
Balaam, who, i. 287, (G). Sent to curſe Iſrael, ibid. a, b. Whether his aſs truly ſpoke, 286, (I). Bleſſes inſtead of curſing, ibid. c, d. His death, 289, c. 538, a. Some obſcurities in his prophecies explained, 534, (Y). The place of his birth, iv. 160, (B).
Balak, king of Moab, ſends for Balaam, i. 287, a.
Balamir. See Valamir, vii. 458, & ſeq.
Balas, firſt, ſecond, third kings of Parthia, according to oriental writers, iv. 388.
—— Alexander. Vid. ſub Alexander Balus, iii. 594, & ſeq.
Balaſch, king of Perſia, according to oriental writers, iv. 388.
Balator, king of Tyre, i. 417, b.
† Balbec, the wonder of Syria, deſcribed, i. 363, d. Its temple, 364, a, b. Palace, 366, b. By whom built, ibid. (M).
Balbilius made governor of Egypt, v. 524, d. His writings and character, 578, (T).
Balbus ſent to ſuccour Rome, v. 73, c.
—— the hiſtorian, his character, &c. 155, (E).
—— Corn. triumphs over the Garamantes, 310, e.
—— Læl. a ſenator, degraded, 453, c.
Balbinus, Dec. made Caracalla's collegue, vi. 125, d.
—— Dec. Cæſar, choſen emperor, 156, e, f. His extract, &c. 157, b, c. Wounded in an uproar, 158, c. Great joy at Maximin's death, 160, a, c. Jealouſy of Maximus, ibid. & ſeq. Killed by the prætorian guards, 161, a, b.
† Balch made the ſeat of the Perſian empire, ii. 197, d. 201, b. Taken by the king of Touran, 219, c.
Baldwin ſaves Edeſſa, vi. 615, f. Diſappears, 616, b.
—— crowned emperor, 628. His defeat and diſmal end, ibid. d, e. vii, 639, b, c.
—— II. crowned Latin emperor, vi. 630, e, f. Driven out of Conſtantinople, 631, f. 633, d.
Balearic iſlands, ſubdued, iv. 801, e.
—— ſlingers, very dexterous, vi. 792, (F).
†—— iſlands deſcribed, vii. 308, paſſ. Ravaged by the Vandals, 531, d.
Baleazer, the ſon of Hiram, king of Tyre, i. 415, a.
Baliſta's ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, vi. 177, b. Goes over to Macrianus, 178, f. Takes the purple, 180, f. Murdered, 182, c.
Baliſtæ of Archimedes, deſcribed, iii. 112, ſub not. vi. 646, a.
† Balkis, queen of Sheba, who, and where ſited, i. 170, d.
Ballonymus, how created king of Sidon, i. 412, d.
† Balm of Gilead, a plantation of, near Aſphaltites lake, iii. 434, d.
—— the plant of, deſcribed, iv. 135, (F).
Balthi, the princely tribe of, vii. 487, e. 492, d, e.
† Bambyce, Hierapolis in Syria, i. 361, b.
† Bamoth Arnon, a ſtation of the Iſraelites, i. 533, b.
† Banaſa, where ſited, vii. 143, d.
Banditi of Paleſtine, deſtroyed by Herod, iv. 118, & ſeq. 128. Their obſtinacy, 129, a, (Y).
† Banjuræ, a tribe of Getulians, where ſited, vii. 140. 160, d.
Bankers at Rome, their office, iv. 592, c.
Barahanes kills Siroes, and mounts the throne, vi. 542, e, f.
Barak defeats Siſerah, i. 336, b. 743, b.
Barames dethrones Hormiſdas, vi. 535, b, c.
† Barami, where ſited, vii. 494, f.
Barat anac, the ſuppoſed etymon of Britain, vii. 402, b.
Barbara Waſta, the Supreme Being, at Malabar, i. 33, d.
† Barbarium Promontorium, in Luſitania, vii. 298, e.
Barbas's treachery to Theoctiſtus vi. 571, b. Tyranny under Michael, 572, a, b. Murdered, ibid. e, f.
Barbatio, a bitter enemy to Gallus, vi 293, b, d.
Barbers, ſuppreſſed by Julian, vi. 325, e.
Barca, king of Tyre, i. 415, c, & ſeq. Goes with Dido into Afric, ibid. & vi. 719, e, f.
† —— the city of, where, and by whom built, vii. 171, b, d. Betrayed to the Perſians, 173, b, (E). Its fate and puniſhment, ibid. c.
† Barcæi, who, and whence, vii. 171, c, d.
Barcan family, or Barchinæ, at Carthage, vi. 707, (L). 84[illegible] (C).
Barcokebas, a falſe Meſſiah, ſtirs up the Jews, iv. 39, a. Defeated and taken, 40, a.
Bardanes's unſucceſsful war againſt Gotarzes, iv. 316, & ſeq.
—— revolt and puniſhment, vi. 561, b.
Bardas defeated by the Saracens, vi. 580, f.
—— Phocas's revolt and baniſhment, 585, & ſeq. Proclaimed emperor, 590, b. Treachery to Sclerus, ibid. d, Death, 591, a.
—— Sclerus's ſucceſs againſt the Roſſi, 587, d. Revolt, 58[illegible] a, b. Outwitted by Manuel, 589, a. Defeats Phocas ibid. b. Defeated and impriſoned, ibid. & ſeq. Submits to Baſilius, 591, b.
Bardiæans, Marius's troops, why ſo called, v. 64, c, (R Their butcheries, &c. at Rome, ibid. d. All cut off Cinna, ibid. &c.
Bards, in Gaul, their office inferior to the druids, vii. 36 d, e, & ſeq.
Bargus, the infamous betrayer of Timaſius, vi. 436, d, Put to death, 437, c.
Baris, worſhipped by the Armenians, iii. 697, d.
†—— the city of, by whom built, iv. 96, a, (Y).
† Barrady, Chryſorrhoas, a river in Syria, i. 361, e.
† Barrows, or burying-places, on Saliſbury plain, vii. 3[illegible] & ſeq.
Barſina married to Alexander, iii. 405, c. Her iſſue him, 413. Murdered by Polyſperchon, 462, e.
Bartholomew called by Chriſt, and made an apoſtle, iv. [illegible] (T).
Baruch, Jeremiah's ſcribe, i. 847, b.
Barzaentes murders Darius, iii. 359, e. Put to death Alexander, 362, a.
Barzanes, by whom conquered, iii. 696, d.

Barzaphernes's treachery to Phaſael, iv. 125.
Bas, king of Bithynia, iii. 828, c.
† Baſcama, where ſituate, iii. 604, (N).
† Baſcan, the hill of, i. 330, c. Conquered by Moſes, ibid. d.
Baſemah, Eſau's ſecond wife, her extract, i. 441, (X).
Baſic the Hunn liſts in the Roman ſervice, vii. 464, a.
Baſil, St. with Julian at Athens, vi. 322. Refuſes his invitation to court, ibid. d. Studies under Proereſes, 333, not. Strives in vain to convert Valens, 372, b, c.
† — the epiſcopal ſee of, iii. 762, b.
Baſileus, the ſecond magiſtrate of Athens, ii. 417, c. His office, 452, e.
† Baſilica Pauli, by whom built, v. 129, e. Rebuilt, 413.
Baſilicæ, or Baſilius's laws ſo called, vi. 574, c. Of Leo, 577, c, d.
† Baſilics at Rome, deſcribed, v. 413, (L).
Baſilides's prediction of Veſpaſian's grandeur, v. 637, (C). Appears to him at Alexandria, vi. 646, c, d.
† Baſilipotamos, or royal river. See Eurotas, ii. 395, & ſeq.
Baſiliſcus made admiral of Leo's fleet, vi. 509, a. Treachery and defeat, ibid. d—f. (See alſo vol. vi. 538, & ſeq.) Proclaimed, 513, b. His extortions and hereſy, 514, d, e. Reſigns, 515, a. Dies, ibid. b.
— created Cæſar, and depoſed, 515, b. Made biſhop of Cyzicus, ibid. c.
— Tiberius, declared emperor, 551, e. Put to death, ibid.
Baſilia, who, ii. 442, e.
Baſilitzas, an infamous tool of Alexander, vi. 577, e.
Baſilius ſent to treat with Alaric, vi. 458, d.
— created Cæſar, 572. His extract, &c. ibid. &c. Kills the emperor, ibid. f. Makes his two ſons Cæſars, 573, a. Defeats the Manichees, ibid. b. The Saracens, ibid. c. Builds a vaſt number of churches, ibid. e. Dies, 574, b. Inſtructions to his ſons, ibid c, — an impoſtor's treaſon and death, 580, a, b. An extortioning eunuch poiſons the emperor, 587, c—e. Defeated, 588, d—f.
— the ſon of Romanus, made Zemiſces's collegue, 585. Defeated by Sclerus, 588, & ſeq. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Bulgarians, 589, f, & ſeq. Defeats Phocas, 590, & ſeq. Cruelty to the Bulgarians, 591, & ſeq. Wars againſt the Saracens, 593, a. Death. ibid. b.
Baſina's reception of Childeric, vii. 564, (F). Runs away with, and married to him, 566, a, (H).
Baſſi, the family of, converted, vi. 415, d.
Baſſus Cæcil. revolts againſt Cæſar, v. 159, & ſeq. Joins Caſſius in Syria, 318, a.
— Cæl. a lyric poet, deſtroyed by mount Veſuvius, 578, v. (T).
— Pompon. put to death by Heliogabalus, vi. 136, e.
Baſtards, &c. excluded from the congregation of God, i. 665.
† Baſtarnæ, who, and where ſited, vii. [408], & ſeq. Invited into Macedon, iii. 479, f. Fall out with the Thracians, 483, a, b. Settled in Thrace, vi. 201, d. Tranſplanted, 215, d. One hundred thouſand ſettled in Thrace, vii. 429, a.
† Batavia cleared of the Franks, vi. 211, c.
† Batavian iſlands deſcribed, v. 381, (L).
— cohorts ſent into Britain, 616, d, e. Diſmiſſed, 617, b, c.
Batavians ſurpriſed by the Germans, 383. Revolt againſt the Romans, 639, & ſeq. Defeated, 641, q. And left in ſtatu quo, 644, e. Bravery againſt the Caledonians, 670, c, f.
† Batavy, iſland, where ſited, v. 639, e. Ravaged by the Friſians, 640, b.
Batelaim, among the Jews, what, iv. 26, (Q).
Bath-col of the Jews, what, iv. 229, (E).
† Bath, in Somerſetſhire, why called Aquæ Calidæ, vii. 407.
† Bathanceſter Bath, taken by the Saxons, vii. 453, a.
† Bathmæ, the fair of, kept for Indian goods, vi 289, c.
Bathſheba, the wife of Uriah, married to David, i. 779, b—c.
Batia, the daughter of Teucer. See Aſia, ii. 311, d.
Battes, the two revolt againſt the Romans, v. 335, b, c. 336, a. One ſubmits, and murders the other, 337, & ſeq.
Battus, the third king of the Cyreneans, i. 268, f.
— cured of his ſtammering, ii. 383, (F). vii. 172, b.
— III. why ſurnamed the happy, ibid d, e.
— IV. invites Demonax, ibid. f.
† Bauli, the villa of, deſcribed, v. 531, (E).
Bazab, king of Perſia. Vid. Zab, ii. 187, d.
† Bazrah, Bozrah, Bozor, a city of Edom, i. 309, c.
Bean, the children of, who, iv. 63, (Z). Defeated, ibid. c.
Beans, how uſed in voting, ii. 440, b.
— a wonderful kind ſprung out of a lake, iii. 820, d.
Bear, king of Sodom, defeated, i. 327, b.
† Beauvois peopled by the Franks, vi. 213, b.
† Bebamburg, Bamborough, by whom built, vii. 451, a.
† Bebrices, their origin, i i. 827, paſſ.
Beda's account of the Roman wall in Britain, vi. 118, f.
† Bedriacum, where ſituate, v. 609, c. The battle of, ibid. f.
Beelſamen, in the Phœnician, what, i. 87, a. Meant of the ſun, 397, b.
† Beer, a famed ſtation of the Iſraelites, i. 533.
† Beerſheba, the wall and city of, whence ſo called, i. 430, (A).
Beetle, why worſhipped by the Egyptians, i. 210, e.
Begdeg made king of Weſtphalia, vii. 489, e.
Beggars ſuppreſſed by Gratian, vi. 399, d.
Beheading, not uſed in Judea before the captivity, i. 673, c.
Beiſar, king of Egypt, built the city of Meſer, i. 280, a.
Bela, the ſon of Beor, king of the Horites, i. 312, a.
† — a city in the valley of Siddim, 327, b.
Belatucardus Apollo, ſo called in Britain, vii. 406, b.
† Belerium, promontory, in Danmonia, vii. 407, d.
Beleſis ſtirs up Arbaces to rebel, i. 885, & ſeq. His hiſtory, 938, a, b.
† Belgæ, who, v. 119, d—f, (X). Settle in Gaul, 128, e. vii. [435], b, c, (C). Subdued by Cæſar, [438], a.
† — in Britain, where ſituate, vii. 407, f.
† Belgia, where conquered by Pharamond, vii. 559, d, e.
Belibus, king of Babylon's reign, i. 946, c.
Beliſarius defeated by the Perſians, iv. 347, b. Before Niſibis, 353, d. by the Perſians, vi. 523, d, e. Fortifies their frontiers, 524, c. Forced to abandon them, ibid. d. Defeats the Perſians, 525, c. Quells a revolt at Conſtantinople, 526, b. Sent into Afric, ibid. c, d. Recalled againſt the Perſians, 527, d, e. Drives out the Hunns, 529, d. Succeſs in Italy, vii. 652, & ſeq Haughty anſwer to the Oſtrogoths, 654, a, b. Complaint to the emperor, 656, a, (R). Defence of Rome, 657, a, b. Raiſes the ſiege of it, 658, b, c. Freſh ſucceſs, ibid. & ſeq. Conqueſts, 660, c, d. Proclaimed emperor by the Goths, 663, c, d. Recalled, ibid. & ſeq. Sent back againſt Totila, 668, & ſeq. Diſſuades him from deſtroying Rome, 670, c, d. Retakes and rebuilds it, ibid. e, f. Recalled, 671, f. His conduct cenſured, 672, a. Vid. & vol. vi. 629, e, f. Cleared and reſtored, ibid. 630, a.
Bellerophon, why ſo called, ii. 393, c. Falſely accuſed, 354. Subdues the Solymi, 394. Succeeds Jobates in Lycia, ibid. His fatal end, ibid. Whence ſaid to kill the Chimæra, 337, b. 594, (N).
† Bellona, the temple of, at Comana, iii. 762, & ſeq.
† Bellovaci ſubdued by Cæſar, v. 119, f. 128, d. Their extract, and alliance with the Ædui, vii. 367, (C).
Bellovеſus ſettles in Piedmont, iv. 561, e. vii. 391, c, (A).
Belſhazzar of Daniel, probably Evilmerodach, i. 965, f, & not. Nabonadius, 971, f. His viſion interpreted by Daniel, ibid.
— Daniel, ſentiments of the learned about him, ii. 23, (C).
Belus, the chief god of the Babylonians, i. 15, a.
— the ſon of Neptune, reigns in Egypt, 408, a.
† — the ſame with Pul, his temple at Babylon, 916, b, c. His tower deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. Said to have been the inventor of aſtronomy, 917, c.
— king of Lydia, ii. 333, a.
† — the temple of, ſeized by Antiochus, iii. 567, c.
† — a river, whoſe ſand gave the firſt hint for making of glaſs, i. 582.
Belzebub, Satan, &c. prince of the fallen angels, i. 51, a.
Benaiah ſucceeds Joab as general, i. 792.
Ben-hadad, firſt king of Damaſcus, bribed by Aſa, to war againſt Baaſha, i. 383, a. Conqueſts, ibid.
— II. marches againſt the king of Iſrael, 383, b, c, (D). Defeated, ibid. d, e. His army cruſhed under the wall of Aphec, ibid. & (G). Spared by Ahab, 384, c, d. Wars with him and Jehoſhaphat, 385, a, b. Vain attempt to ſeize Eliſha, 387, a. Repulſed before Samaria, ibid. b, c. Murdered by Hazael, 388, a. Worſhipped by the Syrians under the name of Adad, Ader, &c. 372, a,
— III. thrice defeated by Jehoahaz, 389, a. Becomes tributary to the kings of Iſrael, ibid. &c.
— the common name of the Syrian kings, 389, (B).
Beneventum plundered by Hannibal, vii. 23, d. 666, e.
† — the highway of, made by Trajan, vi. 19, f.
— firſt duke of, vii. 683, e, f.
— relieved by Grimoald, 695, a—c. The dukes of, 700, & ſeq. Territories, 720, d, e. Made a principality, 724, c, d. Given to Rodelchiſus, 725, a,
Benjamin, the ſon of Jacob, born, i. 448, e. Sent into Egypt, 454. Careſſed by Joſeph, ibid. & ſeq. Jacob's bleſſing bleſſing to him, how verified, 465, b, (S). His lot in the promiſed land, 569, a.

Benjamites, or tribe of Benjamin, defeat that of Judah, i. 741, b, c. Defeated, with the loſs of twenty-five thouſand men, ibid. c, d. The whole tribe deſtroyed, except five hundred men, ibid. & ſeq. How reſtored, 742, c.
Benignus, Orphid. defeated and killed, v. 610, c. His burial, ibid. f.
Benoth, a deity, worſhipped under both ſexes, i. 919, a—c. The ſame with the Aſcalonian Derceto, 920, b.
† Beracha, the vale of, where and whence ſo called, i. 574, b, (S). See alſo 291, 297, 315.
Berean chriſtians juſt reproof to Julian, vi. 330, b, c.
Berenice's intrigues at the Egyptian court, iii. 468, e.
—— princeſs of Lydia aſſaſſinates Demetrius, 524, d.
—— daughter of Ptolemy, married to Antiochus, 525, e.
—— of Auletes, ſet upon the throne, 667, e. Murders her huſband, ibid. f. Put to death, 671, e.
—— daughter of Salome, married to Ariſtobulus, iv. 147, a. Her offſpring, 152, ſub not.
—— of Herod Agrippa, born, 199, a. Married to the king of Chalcis, 262, d. Her incontinence, 265, (E). Pity to the perſecuted Jews, 269, b. Diſcarded by Titus, ibid. d.
—— coma made a conſtellation, iii. 639, e.
† —— a city in Cyrenaica, vii. 169, e.
Bericus ſtirs up Claudius to invade Britain, v. 496, d. vii. 428, b.
Berig invades the Almerugians, &c. vii. 487, c.
† Bernica, a province in Northumberland, vii. 457, a.
Beroſus's account of the Chaldæan and Babylonian coſmogony, i. 14, c. Collection of Babyloniſh antiquities, 90. His character, writings, &c. iii. 523, f.
Berothai, in Syria, plundered by David, i. 382, b.
Berry taken by the Viſigoths, vii. 515, c.
Beryllus, Nero's Greek ſecretary, v. 519, a.
† Berytus, an ancient city of Phœnice, i. 394, b. Deſcribed, ibid. (T).
—— whether in the iſle of Cyprus, iii. 174, c.
—— ruined by an earthquake, vi. 278, f.
† Beſbicus, iſland, ſeparated from the continent, iii. 202, a.
† Beſſi, a people of Thrace, iii. 790, a. Subdued by the Romans, ibid. b, c.
Beſſus's treachery to Darius, ii. 168, e, & ſeq. Invades Bactria, 169. His treaſon, iii. 359 361. Delivered up to Alexander, ibid. & ſeq. His puniſhment and death, 373, e, f, (T).
—— Fulvius, his poems, v. 656, (D).
Beſtia, L. Calpurn. his ſordid character, v. 9, b. Bought off by Jugurtha, ibid. & ſeq. Shameful peace with him, 10, b. Tried and baniſhed, 12, e.
† Beth-abara, where ſited, i. 553, (Y). Whence ſo called, iv. 198, (G).
† Bethagil, a village, where no uncircumciſed lived above three days, i. 584, (T).
† Bethany, where ſituate, iv. 224, d.
† Bethel Shechem, a city in Canaan, i. 324, a. Cut off by Joſhua, 331, b. Seized by the houſe of Joſeph, 334, a, b. Whence ſo called, 440, c. Fortified by the Syrians, iv. 76, c.
† Bethesda, the pool of, deſcribed, iv. 106, (R).
† Bethlehem, the waters of, wiſhed for by David, i. 775, b.
—— Chriſt born at, iv. 159, a. The children of, maſſacred, 179. The prophecy of it explained, ibid. (G).
† Bethmeon, a city of Arabia Petræa, vii. 226, b.
† Bethoron, where ſited, iv. 58, (Q). Fortified by Bacchides, 76, c.
† Bethphage, where ſituate, iv. 227, e.
† Bethſan, iii. 604, (M).
† Bethſeam, a city in Canaan, i. 324. Taken by the Scythians, ii. 17, 280.
Bethſhemeſhites ſmitten for looking into the ark, i. 757, a.
Bethuel, whether the father of Rebecca, or her brother, i. 431, (D). 433, (M).
† Bethzura deſcribed, iv. 60, (S).
—— the battle of, examined, ibid. (T). Fortified by Judas, 62, b. Where ſituate, ibid. (Y). Taken by Bacchides, 76, c. By Simon, 82, b.
† Bætica reduced by the Huns, vi. 488, d. Deſcribed, vii. 299, & ſeq.
Betis's brave defence of Goza, ii. 162, c. 344, b. Cruelly murdered by Alexander, ibid.
Betylus, the ſon of Uranus, i. 134, b, (H).
Beza's notion of the Herodians confuted, iv. 169, a.
Bezaleel, the famous artificer of the tabernacle, i. 523, b.
† Bezancon beſieged by the Gauls, v. 573, b. Relieved by the Romans, ibid. c.
† Bezek taken by the Iſraelites, i. 333, d, e.
† Bezetha, by whom built, iv. 261.
Bezoar, Perſic, deſcribed, ii. 45, b.
Bias obtains part of Argos, ii. 354, c. Brings Iphiclus' oxen out of Theſſaly, 382, (D).
† Biblos ſurrendered to Alexander, ii. 161, e.
Bibulus's ſons murdered in Egypt. iii. 672, f.
—— his ſtrange defence, iv. 306, & ſeq.
—— the conſul, v. 113, a. Oppoſes the Agrarian law, ibid. e, & ſeq.
—— Pompey's admiral's cruelty to Cæſar's ſeamen, 138, d.
—— Caius's law againſt luxury, rejected, 411, b, c.
Bigati, a coin, why ſo called, vii. 36, (O).
Bilhah, Leah's maid, given to Jacob, i. 441, d.
Bilimer defeated by Ricimer, vi. 511, b, c.
Bindos's treaſon and cruelty to Coſrhoes, iv. 361, b, c—f. Impriſoned by Varamus, 363, b. Heads the nobles againſt him, ibid. d.
Bion, where born, iii. 201, & ſeq. & (O).
Birds, whence uſed in auguries, iv. 428, (S).
Births, how celebrated in Thrace, iii. 788, c.
—— two ſtrange ones under Theodoſius, vi. 416, b.
† Biſaltæ, where ſituate, iii. 457, a.
Biſhops, their immunities under Conſtantius, vi. 277, e, f.
— orthodox, reſtored, 278, a. How to be tried, 294, b. Why recalled by Julian, 325, f. Privileged by Theodoſius, 396, a.
Biſſextile year, whence ſo called, v. 171, ſub not.
Biſtones in Thrace, ſubdued by the Romans, iii. 790.
Bithias aſſiſts the Carthaginians, vii. 111, & ſeq.
† Bithynia deſcribed, iii. 822, & ſeq. Its origin, government, &c. 827, & ſeq. Invaded by Mithridates, 829. Reduced into a Roman province, 832. Adorned and reſtored by Adrian, vi. 36. Declares for Caſſius, 76, a. Ravaged by the Scythians, 180, a. Submits to Licinius, 252, f.
—— ravaged by the Goths, vii. 495, d.
Bithynian embaſſy, a proverb, whence, iii. 780, f.
Bithynians, their origin, iii. 827, c. Kings, &c. 828. Set up Nicomedes againſt Pruſias, 781. Oppreſſed by Cilo, v. 514, c.
Bitultis's whimſical embaſſy to Domitian, iv. 809, f. Betrayed by him, 810, c, d. Led in triumph, ibid. e.
Bituriges ſubdued by Cæſar, v. 128.
Bizaras's Perſian hiſtory animadverted, iv. 323, (A).
Blacks, their origin, i. 120, (N). Not the progeny of Ham, 119. Their blackneſs accounted for, 47, c, d.
Blæſi, the two, put to death, v. 451, c.
Blæſus, Jun. general in Pannonia, v. 359, b. Brave ſpeech to the mutineers 360, c. Inſulted by them, ibid. & ſeq.
—— ſent into Afric, 408, c. Succeſs againſt Tacfarinas, 414, c. Styled imperator, ibid. d, (M). His death, 441.
—— Jun. declares for Vitellius, 599, e. Furniſhes him with proper equipage, 615, a. Hated by him for it, ibid. b.
† Blatobulgium, the antiquities of, vii. 413, b.
Bleda ſucceeds Rouas, vii. 464, c. Advantageous peace with Rome, ibid. d. Freſh conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. The reſt ſee under Attila.
† Blemmyes, where ſituated, vi. 201, c. Defeated by Probus, ibid. Pliny's fabulous account of them, ibid. d. War with the Moors, 209, c. Inroads into Egypt, 213, c, f. Embaſſy to Conſtantine, 264, f.
† Bletiſa, a city in Luſitania, vii. 297, e.
† Bnizomenæ, who, and where ſited, vii. 233, d.
Bo, king of Riiſland, vii. 489, d.
Boadicea ill uſed by the Romans, v. 537, b. Heads the Britons againſt them, 538, a. Succeſs againſt them, ibid. c, d. Speech to her army, 439, b, c. Defeat and death, d, e.
Boanas defeated by the Saracens, vi. 543, c, d.
Boanerges, whence derived, iv. 208. Their furious zeal reproved by Chriſt, 222, b.
Boar, Erymanthian, brought alive by Hercules, ii. 356, not.
—— Caledonian, hunted, 410.
Boarex, queen, defeats Styrax, vii. 483, a.
Boat, a dreadful puniſhment among the Perſians, ii. 61, d.
Bocchus allies with Jugurtha, v. 20, e. Defeated, 23, & ſeq. Makes peace with the Romans, 24, d, & ſeq. Anſwer to Sylla, 25, f. Double treachery, 26, d, 1. Gratitude to Sylla, 45, f. (See & vol. vii. 132, & ſeq.).
—— aſſiſts the two Pompeys in Spain, vii 173, b.
Bochoris, king of Egypt, ſurnamed the wiſe, i. 263, c.
Boethus a ſtoic's doctrine of the world's eternity, i. 8, c.
† Bœtica, the battle of, iv. 737, c. The province of, inlarged by Otho, v. 602, f.
Bœotarchi, the chief magiſtrates of Bœotia, ii 743, a.

† Bœotia

† Bætia, part of Grecia Prop. ii. 344, b. Two of that name, 370, a. By whom founded, ibid. b, c. Famed for dunces, ibid. e. Since called Thebes, 171. Its kings, &c. vid. ſub. Thebes, 372, & ſeq. Plundered by the Athenians, 488, & ſeq. By the Spartans, 540, (M).
Bætian war, ii. 615, & ſeq.
Bætians expelled by the Theſſalians, ii. 370, b. Their feats before Troy, ibid. Refuſe the Nicean peace, 512, f. Invite Philip into Greece, 546, f. Join the Athenians againſt him, 548, b. Form a republic, 742. Their government, ibid. & ſeq. Diſpleaſe the Romans, 743, & ſeq. Subdued by Flaminius, 744, & ſeq.
—— forced to build Heraclea, iii. 823, a, b.
Boetius's conſulſhip and character, vii. 577, e. 645, d—f. Put to death by Theodoric, ibid. & ſeq.
† Bog, river in Scythia, ii. 268, c.
† Bogaſi, the two ſtraits of, iii. 186, e.
Bogud's war with Juba, v. 165, c. Gains Cæſar the victory of Munda, 173, f. Cuckolded by him, vii. 156, & ſeq.
—— king of Mauritania, accompanies Antony, v. 288, b. Slain at Methona, 289.
† Bohemia, where, and whence ſo called, iv. 561, e.
Bohemond's ſucceſs againſt Alexius, vi. 610, f. Narrow eſcape, 615, d. Made prince of Antioch, ibid. & ſeq. Wars with Alexius, ibid. c. Raiſes new forces in Italy, ibid, d, e. Makes peace with him, 617, a. His death, ibid.
Boii invade Rome, iv. 588, f. Defeated by Domitius, 643, e. By Val. Falto, 681. Revolt, 694, f, 749, e. Defeated by Merula, 753, b. Subdued by Sc. Naſica, 754. Settle in Gaul, v. 118, a. Driven out of it by the Marcomani, 313, (E). vii. 600, e. Invite Hannibal, vii. 14. a, b. Treachery to Scipio, 18, c.
Bojocalus's brave ſpeech to Avitus, v. 529, a, b.
Bojorix's challenge and defeat, v. 37. Death, 38, d.
† Bojohemia, Bohemia, where ſituate, v. 313, (E).
Bolanus, Vett. ſent into Britain, v. 612, c.
† Boliſſus, Homer's houſe ſhewn at, iii. 108, d.
Bomilcar choſen general againſt Agathocles, iii. 84, c. His treachery, ibid. f. See alſo vol. vi. 796, & ſeq. Sent into Sicily, 114, c. Returns with a larger fleet, 119, b. Forced back, ibid. c.
—— aſſaſſinates Maſſiva, v. 11, f. Made Jugurtha's general, and defeated, 15, a. Betrays him to Metellus, 16, d. Diſcovered, 18, d, e. Put to death, 19, a.
—— fatal ambition and treachery, vi. 797, & ſeq. Aſſumes the ſovereignty at Carthage, 806, & ſeq. Defeated and crucified, 807.
† Bona, in Numidia, where ſited, vii. 110, b.
† Bona fides, the temple of, at Rome, iv. 436.
Bonduca defeated by Suetonius, vii. 430, e.
Bonifacius, count, repulſes Ataulphus from Marſeilles, vi. 469, a. Highly rewarded by Placidia, 480, d. Undermined by Ætius, ibid. e, f. Succeſs againſt Sinex, 481. a. Invites the barbarians into Afric, ibid. c, d. Returns into Italy, 482, b, c. Sent againſt Ætius, and killed, ibid. d, e. See vol. vii. 532, & ſeq.
—— made king of Theſſaly, 628, a.
† Bononia taken by Octavian, v. 204, e. Relieved by Nero, 514, e.
† —— in Illyricum, where ſited, vi. 257, a.
Bonoſus's riſe, revolt, and death, vi. 202, b. vii. 434, b—e. Sent againſt the revolted Jews, vi. 538, d.
Bosks, an hundred and twenty thouſand burnt at Conſtantinople, vi. 515, c.
Borani revolt in Gaul, vi. 171, c. Succeſs againſt the Romans, 174, c.
† Boryſthenes, Nieper, river in Scythia, ii. 268, & (D).
Bos in lingua, a proverb, ii. 362, b.
Boſporans revolt from Mithridates, iii. 843. Butchered by Juſtinian, 549, d, e.
† Boſporus, the kingdom of, iii. 840, & ſeq. Government, &c 841, & ſeq. Given to Pharnaces, 843, b, c.
† Boſſora taken and burnt by Judas, iv. 64, b.
Boſtar joined to Hanno againſt the Romans, vi. 837, c. Defeated before Adda, 838, a—c. His miſerable end, iv. 670, e, vi. 842, b, (W).
Boterus, king of Bythinia, iii. 828, c.
† Botrys, in Phœnice, built by Ithobal, i. 415, d.
† Bovianum taken from the Samnites, iv, 621, d.
Bous, Bovs, Euſebius's miſtake about that word, iii. 363, a.
† Bozrah, Bozar, a city of Edom, i. 309, c.
† Brachata Gallia, vii. 322, a.
Brachmanes of India, who, i. 32, e. Their opinion of the creation, ibid. Put to death by Alexander, iii. 400, d, (H).
Brachyllas aſſaſſinated by the Romans, iii. 744, a.
† Braga plundered by Theodoric, vii. 545, a.
Brama, a ſecondary god among the Bramins, i. 33, b.
Bramins. See above, Brachmanes, i. 32, & ſeq.
† Bramma, a deity of the Malabarians, i. 33, d.
Branas's revolt, vi. 611, d, e. 623, c. Defeated and killed, ibid. e.
Branchidæ, the oracle of, ii. 762, & (P).
—— the prieſts of, maſſacred by Alexander, 763, a. iii. 368, (S).
Braſen gate at Rome, why ſo called, iv. 681, (H).
Braſidas ſent to aſſiſt Megara, ii. 511. And Macedon, ibid. f. & iii. 281, c. His ſucceſs and moderation, ii. 511, & ſeq. iii. 281, & ſeq. In Attica, ii. 597, a. Killed, ibid. 512, d. iii. 383. His character, ii. 597, c.
Braſs, the invention of, aſcribed to Cadmus, ii. 372.
—— Corinthian, deſcribed, 699, b. & not.
† Bratys, mount in Phœnice, why ſo called, i. 87, a.
Breaſtplate of the high-prieſt deſcribed, i. 637, b, c, (X).
† Brecknock inhabited in the time of the Romans, vii. 411, a.
Brennus, general of the Celtes, anſwer to the Roman embaſſadors, iv. 562, d, e. vii. 370, paſſ. Defeats them, iv. 563, b. Enters and ſacks Rome, ibid. & ſeq. Totally defeated by Camillus, 566, paſſ. vii. 392, paſſ.
† Bretania Armorica, three different colonies ſent into, vi. 400, e.
† Bretagne, whence ſo called, vi. 508, a.
Bribery become neceſſary at Rome, v. 113, b. Vainly oppoſed by Cato, 124, d. Prevented by Auguſtus, 311, f. A new law againſt it, 322, a, b. Puniſhed by Valentinian, vi. 355, c.
Brides, Solon's laws concerning, ii. 431, c.
Bridges, a long cauſeway made with, by Domitius, v. 376, a, f.
Brienne, John de, made guardian to Baldwin, vi. 630, f. Defeats Azem and Ducas, 631, a, b. His death, ibid. c.
† Brigantes, in Britain, who, v. 510, a. Subdued, ibid. b. vii. 412, a. 430, b, & ſeq. 432.
† Brigians, whether the ſame with Phrygians, ii. 295, b.
Brinio's mockery of Caligula's expedition, v. 474, d. Heads the Friſians againſt the Romans, 640, b.
† Britain, its etymon, ii 248, (H). The iſles of, inhabited by the Gomerians, 246, b. 248, (H). Invaded by Cæſar, v. 122, & ſeq. By Claudius, 496, & ſeq. (C). Greatly Oppreſſed by publicans, 653, d, e. Eaſed by Agricola, ibid. e, f. How diſcovered to be an iſland, 667, c, e. Totally conquered by Agricola, 672, c. Viſited by Adrian, vi. 35, a. The walls of, built by him, ibid. c. Reduced by Conſtantius, 212, f. How divided by Conſtantine, 270, f. Invaded by the Picts, 353, b. Defended by Stilicho, 441, b, c. Abandoned by the Romans, 514, a. Deſcribed, vii. 401. Whence ſo called, ibid. & ſeq. Its ſituation, &c. 402. Firſt inhabitants, 403, a, b. How divided, 407, c. & ſeq. Its walls, 414, & ſeq. New diviſion, 416, b—d. Pentarchy, ibid. e, f. Roman government, ibid. & ſeq. Military, 417, & ſeq. Fabulous, hiſtory, 420, & ſeq. & (A). Reduced by the Romans, 429, & ſeq. Governed by tribunes, 430, e, f. Quelled under ſeveral emperors, 431, & ſeq. Divided by Severus, 433, b. Submits to Aurelian, 434, a. Given to Carauſius, ibid. c. Reunited, ibid. d. Freſh diviſion under Conſtantine, 435, a. Secured againſt the Picts, 436, c. Invaded by them, and the Scots, 437, a. Abandoned by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Invaded by the Picts, 438, & ſeq.
Britannicus born, v. 487, c. Ill uſed by Agrippina and Nero, 508, a—e. Hated by him, 522. Poiſoned, ibid. & ſeq. Honoured by Titus, 657, a.
† Britenburgh caſtle, built by the fugitive Britons, vii. 444, c.
Britons different from the Celtes and Gomerians, ii. 248, (H). Brave oppoſition againſt Cæſar, v. 122, & ſeq. Peace with him, 123, a. Submit to him, ibid. f. Whether conquered by him, 124, (E). Defeated by Oſtorius, 409, & ſeq. General revolt, 537, &c. Encouraged by ſome prodigies, 538, b. Eighty thouſand killed by Paulinus, 539, paſſ. Subdued by Agricola, 653, & ſeq. Debauched by the Roman luxury, 662, a. Totally ſubdued, 672, b, c. Puniſhed for their human ſacrifices, vi 27, a. Settle in Vennes, 508, a. Their manners, &c. vii. 404, & ſeq. Way of fighting, ibid. d. Trade, ſhipping, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Government, 405, d. 407, b. Religion, 406. Called their fortified woods, towns, 414, d, e. Incorporated into the Roman army, 420, b, c. Embaſſy to Cæſar, 421, c. Noble defence againſt him, him, 422, paſſ. Submit to him, ibid. & ſeq. Break the peace, 423, b, c. Freſh ſubmiſſion, ibid. f, & ſeq. Defeated, 424, d, e. 425, c. Many ſubmit afreſh, 426, b, (F). Whether conquered by him, 427, a. Pay tribute to Auguſtus, ibid. & ſeq. Subdued by Claudius, 428, & ſeq. Defeated by Geta, Suetonius, &c. ibid. & ſeq. 430, paſſ. By Agricola, 431, a. Romanized by him, ibid. b. Allowed to plant vines, 434, b. Bereaved of their youth, 436, b. Repulſe the Picts and Scots, 437, b, c. Build a ſtone wall, 438, a, b. Make and murder their kings, 439, a, b. Diſmal ſtate, and letter to Ætius, ibid. b, c. Degeneracy, ibid. e. Deſtroyed by peſtilence, ibid. & ſeq. Invite the Saxons, 440, b, (T). Driven out by them, 444, b, c. Out of Kent, 445, b. Worſted by Ella, 446, paſſ. Under Nazaleod, 447, d, & ſeq. Defeat the Saxons, 450, b. c. Grow more debauched, 451, b, c. Loſe ſeveral battles, 452, e. And three kings, ibid. & ſeq. Retire into Wales, 453, e. And Cornwal, ibid. f. And ſouth Scotland, 454. And Bretany, ibid. b, c. The wretched ſtate of thoſe in Wales, ibid. & ſeq.

† —— in Gaul, defeated by Euric, vii. 515, b.

Britons follow Maximus into Gaul, vi. 400, d. Settle in Bretagne, ibid. e, f.

† Bruchium, the famed library of, burnt, iii. 629, d. The ſiege of, vi. 182, a. Deſtroyed by Zenobia, 187, c.

† Bructeri, where ſited, v. 370, (Q). A tribe of the Franks, vii. 548, a. Subdued by Tiberius, 333, e. By Germanicus, 370, a, b. Defeated in Germany, vi. 8, e. By Conſtantine, 234, b. Invaded by Eugenius, 423, c, d. Their dreadful puniſhment, vii. 554, e, f.

† Brunduſium taken by Cæſar, v. 133, & ſeq. Declares for Octavius, 195, & ſeq. Beſieged by Antony, 270, a.

† Brutii, where ſited, iv. 412, f. Subdued by the Romans, 647, e. (See vol. vii. 34, & ſeq). Maſſacred by Hannibal, 745, a.

Brutus, not the firſt who peopled Britain, ii. 248, (H). His fabulous conqueſt of it, vii. 420, & ſeq. (A).

—— Luc. Jun. counterfeits madneſs, iv. 460, c. 463, d, e. Preſents the Delphic oracle, ibid. & ſeq. Pulls off the maſk, 464, f. Advice to the Romans, 465, & ſeq. Conſulſhip, 466, c. Severity to his two ſons, 469, d, e. Speech againſt his collegue, 471, a. Death and character, 472, b, (Z).

—— head of the revolted legions, his anſwer to the ſenate, 491, c, d. Tribuneſhip, 492, a. Speech to the conſuls, 494, a.

—— D. Jun. choſen conſul, 608, c. Defeats the Samnites, 621, e.

—— Scæva triumphs over the Hetrurians, 638, b. 640, b. Defeats the Luſitanians, 786, a.

—— the prætor, affronted by Sylla's ſoldiers, v. 54, e. Defeated by Pompey, 70, d.

—— Jun. butchers all Sylla's friends, 71, b, c. Taken and beheaded, 74, c.

—— his ſon ſurrenders to Cæſar, 146, c, (Z).

—— M. Jun. made proconſul of Gaul, 169, c. His extract, 179, b, (A). Conſpiracy againſt Cæſar, ibid. c. Great preſence of mind under it, 181, e, f. Stabs him, 184, e. His behaviour after it, 189, & ſeq. Speech to the people, 190, a. Withdraws to Antium, 192, b. Supplanted by Antony, 201, e. Promoted by the ſenate, 204, b. Proſcribed, 220, & ſeq. Receives the proſcribed citizens, 226, e. Sends for Caſſius, 232, e. Paſſes into Aſia, 233, c. Mildneſs to the revolters, ibid. e. Coin, ibid. f Succeſs in Lycia, 236, c, d. Againſt Xanthus, 237, & ſeq. Inſtances of his invincible meekneſs, 238, & ſeq. Falls out with Caſſius, 239, d, e. Viſited by a ſpectre, 240. d, e. Returns into Europe, 241, a. Adviſes fighting againſt the triumvirs, 243, d. Counſel to Caſſius, 244, c. Letter to Atticus, ibid. e. Succeſs againſt the triumvirs, 245, b, c. Funeral honours to Caſſius, 246, e. Forced to fight by his ſoldiers, 248, & ſeq. & (O). His ſeverity to the captives vindicated, ibid. & ſeq. Second apparition, and threatening prodigies, 250, e, f. Speech to his army, 251, a. Defeat and bravery, ibid & ſeq. Diſtreſs, 252, f. Death, 253, d, e, (Q). Character, 254, a, (R, S, T, & U), 255, (W, X). His ſtabbing of Cæſar vindicated, ibid. & ſeq. & (Y). Funeral honours, 256, c.

—— Decim. Albin. one of Cæſar's conſpirators, 180, b. Perſuades him to go to the ſenate, 183, c, d. Goes into Gaul, 187, e. Nominated Octavius's heir by Cæſar, 189, f. Supplanted by Antony, 199, a, b. Beſieged by him in Mutina, 202, e. Succeſsful ſally againſt him, 206, f. Mortifying anſwer to Octavius, 207, b, c. Honoured by the ſenate, 208, c. Retires into the eaſt, 214, & ſeq. His powerful army, 215, & ſeq. Made proconſul, 215, e. Letters to Cicero, &c. 217. Made general of Greece, 220, a. Driven out by Antony, 221, d, e. Betrayed by Camillus, 222, a. Murdered, ibid b, c. Character, ibid. & ſeq.

Bryennius recalled, vi. 601, f. Falls out with Opſaras, 602, a. His Eyes put out by him, ibid.

Bryges, in Thrace, deſtroy part of Darius's army, ii. 111, d. Defeat the Perſians, iii. 275, f.

Bubaris, how reconciled to the Macedonians, iii. 275, d.

Bubaſtis, or Egyptian Diana, i. 241, (A).

Bucephalus taken and reſtored by the Mardi, 360, e.

† —— a city built by Alexander, 393, a.

Buchanan's account of the Roman wall in Britain, vi. 113, f.

† Budini, who, and where ſited, vii. 604, e, & ſeq.

† Budocus, a river in Eubœa, 247, e.

† Bulgaria, part of Thrace, vi. 255, a. Why ſo called, 546, e.

Bulgarians defeat Ariſius, vi. 520, a. Invade the empire with an hundred thouſand men, 546, e. Succeſs againſt Juſtinian, 547, a, b. Ravage quite to Conſtantinople, 550, b. Aſſiſt Anaſtaſius, 551, f. Irruptions into the eaſt, 555, & ſeq. Cut off, 556, a. Defeated by Conſtantine, 559, b, c. Succeſs againſt Nicephorus, 562, b. Againſt Michael, ibid. e, f. Againſt Conſtantine, 579, & ſeq. Defeated, 591, & ſeq. Submit to Baſilius, 592, b, c. Revolt, and defeat the Latins, 628, e. Defeated by Andronicus, III. 641, c. Make peace with him, ibid. d. Defeated by Theodoric, vii. 512, e, f. Their origin, &c. 623, a, b. Wars, conqueſts, &c. 624, & ſeq. Subdued by the Ruſſi, 632, e, f. Revolt under four kings, 633, b, c. Revolt from Baſilius, 636, & ſeq. Set up Deleanus, 637, c. Submit to Michael, 638, e, f. Subdued by the Turks, 639, c, d.

Bull, how worſhipped by the Egyptians, i. 206, e.

—— the blood of, a ſure poiſon, ii. 303, e.

Bulla, a Sabine ornament, what, iv. 432, (F).

† Bullæum Silurum, where ſited, vii. 410, f. 411, d.

† Burgundi, where ſited, vii. 494, f. Haraſſed by the Hunns, 463, c. Are baptized, and overcome them, ibid. d. Defeated by the Goths, 498, f, & ſeq. Their territories in Gaul, 516, c, d. Aſſiſt the ravaging Vandals, 529, e. War with the Franks, 571, b, c. Defeated by Clovis, 572, d, e. Ally with him, 576, d, e. Defeated by Theodoric, ibid. & ſeq. Their origin, vi. 356, e. vii. 581, a—c. Religion, kings, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Various revolts and defeats in Gaul, vi. 171, & ſeq. vii. 582, c—f. Their kingdom how founded there, 583, a, b. (vi. 468). Converſion and conqueſts, vii. 583, c, & ſeq. Wars with the Franks, 585, & ſeq. Subdued by them, 587, f.

—— tranſplanted into Cambridgeſhire, vi. 201, a. Twenty thouſand killed by the Hunns, 483. Settle in Savoy, 485, c. Seize on part of Gaul, 504, a, b.

† Burii, who, and where ſeated, vii. 409, b.

Burnet, Dr. his theory of the earth, i. 36, d. Account of the change of the air, &c. After the fall, 66, d, e. Theory after the flood, 99, f. Account of the changes it cauſed, 106, b.

Burning, a puniſhment among the Jews before Moſes, i. 673, b. & 451, (R).

Burrhus, Afr. advanced by Agrippina, v. 509, a. Promotes Nero's election, 517, d. Made his military governor, 518. Blamed for his remiſſneſs to him, 520, f. 523, d. Acquitted of treaſon, 524, d. His advice about Agrippina, 533, f. Condeſcenſion to Nero, 534, & ſeq. His death, 541, e. Whether natural, ibid. f.

—— Antiſtius, betrayed to death by Cleander, vi. 89, e, f.

Burſavolis put to the ſword by Cæſar, v. 172, e.

Buſan ſurrendered to Sapor, vi. 307, a.

Buſiris's cruelty to ſtrangers; the riſe of his fable, i. 211, f.

—— the founder of Thebes, 247, d.

† —— the city of, deſtroyed by Dioclesian, vi. 213, d.

Butes burns himſelf and the city of Ejon, ii. 482, e.

—— king of the Siculi, iii. 13, c.

—— the ſon of Boreas, ſettles in Naxus, 220, c.

† Buthrotum, taken by Guiſcard, vi. 609, f.

† Buzara, mount, in Numidia, vii. 411, c.

Buzes defeated by the Romans, vi. 524, d. Abandons Syria to the Perſians, 526, e.

† Byblus, by whom founded, i. 135, b. Said to have been the firſt city founded in Phœnice, 394, a. Two of that name, ibid.

† Byrſa, the citadel of Carthage, deſcribed, vi. 661, e. Whence ſo called, 662, e, f. Taken, iv. 777, & ſeq.

Byſſus, ſuperfine linen of Egypt, i. 183, b.

† Byzacene

† Byzacene yielded to the Vandals, vii. 533, e.
Byzantines fined by the Athenians, ii. 525, e Confederate againſt them, 542, e. Beſieged by Philip, 547. Relieved by Phocion, ibid. War with the Rhodians, iii. 144, & ſeq. Forced to a peace, 145, f.
† Byzantium betrayed to the Athenians, ii. 527, d. Made a Roman province, 650, d. Holds out againſt Severus, vi. 105, b. Gariſoned by Niger, 108, e, f. Beſieged by Severus, 109, a. Its ſtrength deſcribed, 110, & ſeq. Surrendered and burnt, 111, b, c. Rebuilt and called Antonina, ibid. c, d. Put to the ſword by Gallienus, 181, c, d. Taken by Maximin, 252, c. Beautified by Conſtantine, 263. The reſt ſee under Conſtantinople, ibid. & ſeq.
Byzas, Biſus, the ſuppoſed founder of Byzantium, iii. 787, a, b.
† Byzatium, deſcribed, vi. 668, & ſeq. Whence called Libyphœnice, 673, a, (B).
Byzurge Mihir, the wiſe tutor to Hormouz, iv, 395, a. His character, ibid. (L). Put to death for being a chriſtian, 396, in fin. not.

C.

CABADES invades Armenia, vi. 520, b, d. Succeſs againſt the Romans, ibid. e. Twenty years truce, 521, a. Embaſſy to Juſtin, 523, c. Wars with him, 524, c—e. Death, 525, e.
Cabala or oral tradition of Jews exploded, i. 597, b. A ſecond kind maintained by ſome moderns, ibid.
† Cabetra, a city in Cappadocia, iii. 762, c.
† Cabira, a city in Pontus, iii. 721, a. Surrendered to the Romans, 746.
Cabiri, who, ii. 300, b, iii. 238, (E). Their worſhip at Carthage, vi. 694, a, b.
† Caboul, a famed city of Perſia, ii. 29, (F).
Caligula's horrid ravages in Italy, vii. 686, d—f.
† Caccabe, Carthage whence ſo called, vi. 658, b, c.
† Cadeſh Barneah, the fifteenth encampment of the Iſraelites, i. 527, e.
† Shur, the names of two deſarts, 429, c, (U).
† Cadmea, the citadel of Thebes, ii. 372, a.
— Victoria, a proverb, ibid. (E).
Cadmeis, one of the old names of Bœotia, iii. 370, c.
Cadmus, the ſon of Agenor, i. 408, b. Lands in Thrace, 409, a. Goes into Bœotia, and founds his kingdom there, ibid. & ii. 370, a. The fable of him, ibid. & not. Introduces learning into Greece, ibid. Retires into Illyria, ibid &c.
Cadmus, Lord of Cos, his fidelity to Gelon, iii. 16. (O).
— arrival at Samothrace, 240.
— expedition to Carthage, vi. 658, b, c.
Cadufians, a barbarous people, ii. 2, a. Revolt from the Medes, 13, c. Invaded by the Perſians, 146, f. Betrayed by a ſtratagem, 147, a.
Cæcilianus Mag. falſely accuſed of treaſon, v. 409, b.
— ſent to, and promoted by Honorius, vi. 53, d.
Cæcilius, biſhop, highly honoured by Conſtantine, vi. 251, d—f.
— the conſul's ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, 844, & ſeq.
Cæcina's cowardice in Germany, v. 364, & ſeq. Severity to the mutineers, 368, c, d. Defeats the Marſi, 372. Ill ſucceſs againſt Arminius, 376, paſſ. Narrow eſcape, 377, paſſ.
— Severus's motion againſt wives following the camp, oppoſed, v. 409, c, (G).
— Alienus ſent againſt Otho, 599, e, f. Dreadful havock in Helvetia, 600, & ſeq. Succeſs in Italy, 606, b, c. Defeated before Placentia, ibid. e, f. At Caſtores, 607, b—d. Defeats Otho, 610, d. Sent againſt Veſpaſian, 623, f. Declares for him, 624, b. Clapped in irons, ibid. e, f. Releaſed, 627, c. Conſpires againſt Veſpaſian, 654, e. His death, ibid. f.
Cæcus, conſul, whence ſurnamed Caldus, v. 46, c.
— mount, all on fire, 431, e, & ſeq.
Cæpio, Q. Serv. ſucceſs in Gaul, v. 27, d. Fatal avarice, ibid. e, f. And rupture with Mallius, 28, c. Puniſhment, 29, b, (I).
— heads the diſcontented knights, 47, f. Defeated and killed, 50, a.
— Faun. his conſpiracy and death, 305, a, b.
Cæſarion the philoſopher, tortured to death, vi. 375, d.
Cæſarea Cæſarea, its antiquities, vii. 413, d, e.
Cæſar, Jul. ſtudies oratory at Rhodes, iii. 740. Compounds with Auletes, 666, e. Lands in Egypt, 673, e, f. Arbitrates between Ptolemy and his ſiſter, 674, c, d. Beſieged in Alexandria, 675. Burns Ptolemy's ſhips 676, a. Defeats Ganymede, 677, a, b. Swims for his life, ibid. c, d Victory at Canopus, 678. On the Nile, ibid. e. Settles the crown on Cleopatra, ibid. & ſeq. Defeats Pharnaces, 759, & ſeq. Releaſes Ariſtobulus, iv. 116, c. Aſſiſted by the Jews in Egypt, ibid. & ſeq. Gratitude to them, 117, c. 120, paſſ. When born, v. 43, d. Choſen conſul, 48, f. Defeated by Vettius, 50, c. Marries Cornelia, 68, f. Oppoſes Sylla, 82, a, b. Orat on againſt Dolabella, 90, b, (F). Adventure with the pirates, ibid c, d. Saves Bithynia, 95, c. Manilian law, 102, b. Profuſe popularity, 103, & ſeq. Oration in favour of Catiline, &c. 107, b, c. Depoſed and reſtored, 108, b, c. Accuſed of joining with Catiline, 109, b. Choſen pontifex max. ibid. e. Divorces Pompeia, 110, c. Unmeaſurable ambition, 112, paſſ. Politic maſter-piece, ibid. d, e. Second conſulſhip, 113, a. Quinquennial generalſhip, 114, d. Succeſs againſt the Gauls, &c. 117, & ſeq. Germans, 118, d. Belgæ, 119, d. Nervii, 120, paſſ. Swift expedition againſt the Germans, 122, b, c. Into Britain, ibid. & ſeq Confirmed by the Trebonian law, 123, b, c. His ſucceſs in Britain, whether real, 124, (E). And in Gaul, 126—129. (See alſo vol. vii. 397, & ſeq.) Total of his Gauliſh conqueſts, v. 129, a, b. Hot conteſts with Pompey, ibid. & ſeq. Letters to the ſenate, 130, & ſeq. Deprived of his government, 131, b, c. Paſſes the Rubicon, 132, c, d, (F). Takes ſeveral cities, 133, a, b. Summons the ſenate, 134, c. Viſit to Cicero, ibid. & (H). Forces the Treaſury, 135, paſſ. Goes into Spain, ibid. & ſeq. Returns, 137, b. Choſen dictator, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Offers of peace, 138, e. Gets to ſea in a boat, 139, c, (N). Joins M. Antony, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Pompey, 140, & ſeq. Retires into Macedon, 141, & ſeq. Speech to his army at Pharſalia, 143, c, d, (Q). Defeats and purſues Pompey, 145, & ſeq & (W). 148, & ſeq. Hears of his death, 150, e. Orders his head to be interred, 151, a. Paſſion for Cleopatra, ibid. e. Ends the Egyptian war, 152, b, c. Highly honoured at Rome, ibid. & ſeq. Swift victory over Pharnaces, 153, d. Univerſal clemency at Rome, 154, paſſ. Quells the tenth legion, 158, & ſeq. Succeſs in Africa, 158, & ſeq. Againſt Pompey's party, 160, e, f. Behaviour at Utica, 164 e, (L). Succeſs in Numidia, 165, b, c. Pompous arrival at Rome, ibid. f, & ſeq. Speech to the ſenate, 166, b. His four triumphs deſcribed, 167, paſſ. Their immenſe value, 168, a, b. His regulations and cenſus, ibid. c, d, (Q). Sumtuary laws, 169, a. Reformation of the calendar, 170, & ſeq. (R). Succeſs in Spain, 171, & ſeq. Againſt the Pompeii, 173, & ſeq. The Luſitanians, 175. Ends the Spaniſh war, 176, e, f. His triumph and new titles, 177, paſſ. Ambition, 178, 179, paſſ. Conſpired againſt, ibid. & ſeq. Vaſt projects, 180, f. Threatened by prodigies, 181, b. Stabbed in the ſenate, 184, b, c. His character 185, a, b. Laſt will publicly read, 189, e, f. Funeral obſequies, 191, & ſeq. Temple reared to his memory, 192, b. By the Lugdunenſes, vii. 349, c.
—— Sextus's friendſhip to Herod, iv. 119, & ſeq. Murdered by Baſſus, 120, c, vi. 159, & ſeq.
† Cæſarea by whom built, iv. 141, (R). Deſcribed, 142, (S). Finiſhed, 148, c Taken by Coſrhoes II. 366, b. Rebuilt by Adrian, vi. 36, c. Its terrible fate under Sapor, 177, a. Taken by Firmus, 359, b. Razed by Baſilius, 573, d.
† —— Philippi, 95, a. † Germanica, v 461, f.
Cæſarion, the ſon of Cæſar by Cleopatra, iii. 683, b. Made king of Egypt by M. Antony, ibid. & ſeq. Put to death by Octavian, 691, a.
Cæſarius ſent to judge the Antiochans, vi. 409. His ſeverity to them, ibid. f. Softened, 410, d, e. 411, b. Choſen conſul, 438, b.
† Cæſian foreſt, where, and whence ſo called, v. 369, (O).
Cæſo Fab. outwits the tribunes, iv. 506, a. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Veientes, ibid b, c Betrayed by his men, 507, a. Choſen conſul, 508, f. Proconſul, 509, d.
—— Quinctius. Vid. Quinctius, 520, & ſeq.
Cæſonia ſuſpected of turning Caligula's Brain, v. 463, b. Made prieſteſs to him, 468, d. Married to him, 477, b, (W). Murdered by Chæreas, 481, & ſeq.
Cæſonius Max. baniſhed by Nero, v. 557, d.
† Cæthius's mount, where ſituate, v. 313, (E).
† Caffa, metropolis of Little Tartary, iii. 841.
Caii at Rome, who, v. 194, a, b.
Cain, when probably born, i 72, e. The import of his name, 73, (N) His offering, why rejected, ibid a, (N). Fratricide, ibid. b. Puniſhment, 74, a. Builds a city, city, 75, a. Traditions about him, 76, (N). Deſcent, 76, & ſeq. Wicked poſterity, 77, b. Their inventions and improvements, 81, a, b. Their pedigree, according to Sanchoniatho, compared, 89, b, c.

† Cain, the city, built by him, 86, (N).
Cainan, one of Seth's deſcendants, i. 78, a.
† Cainon, the Athenian court, its office, &c. ii. 444, c.
Caiphas, Caiaphas, made high-prieſt, iv. 194, b. (Y). Prophetic ſentence againſt Chriſt, 227, b. Condemns him to death, 235, b.
Caius ſent to oppoſe the Parthians, iii. 709, c. Wounded, ibid. e. Dies, 710, a.
—— made judge of Archelaus's title, iv. 186, e. Contempt of the Jewiſh religion, 192, a.
—— Caligula perſecutes the Jews, 258, & ſeq. Friendſhip to Agrippa, ibid. & ſeq. The reſt ſee under Caligula, v. 294, & ſeq.
—— Cæſar, born to Agrippa, v. 308, c. d. Adopted by Auguſtus, 312, c. Follows him to Aquileia, 323, a. New honours, 324, d, e. 326, b, c. Sent againſt the Armenians, 327, & ſeq. Interview with Tiberius, 328, c, d. With Phrahates, ibid. & ſeq. Makes peace with him, 329, a. Choſen conſul, 330, a, (M). Expedition into Armenia, 331, d. Death, 332, c, (Q).
—— Gracchus acquitted, 419, a, (W).
—— Comin. a lampooner, pardoned, 422, d.
† Calabria, its territories, &c. vii. 721, b, c, (C).
† Calacine, a province of Aſſyria, i. 858, b.
† Calah, city, where ſituate, 126, b.
† Calamintha, where ſited, vii. 144, b.
Calanus burns himſelf alive, iii. 405, a.
Calaſirian, the name of the Egyptian ſoldiery, i. 200, e.
Calaxais, a king of the Scythians, ii. 386, ſub not.
† Calcedon, a city of Bithynia, iii. 822, d. Why called the city of the blind, ibid Taken by the Perſians, iv. 366, d. By the Scythians, vi. 174, 180, d. By the Romans, 369, a. Diſmantled, ibid. d.
Caleb, one of Moſes's twelve ſpies, i. 526, a—c. Takes and burns Jeruſalem, 738, c.
† Caledonians, who, and where ſeated, vii. 414. Tranſplanted, 431, a. Invaded by Agrippa, v. 666, c. & ſeq. Brave defence, 668. Routed, 671, paſſ Deſperate ſtate, 672, a. Recover their liberty, ibid d. Defeated by the Romans, vi. 87, d, e. Peace with Severus, 118, d.
Calf, golden, made by Aaron, i. 520, b, (B).
Caligula, his extract, v. 294, c. Early policy and riſe, 438, & ſeq. Marriage to Claudia, 449, b. Whether named Tiberius's ſucceſſor, 454, & ſeq. Saved by Macro, 455, b. Reception at Rome, 459, a. When and where born, ibid. (H). Whence ſurnamed Caligula, ibid. &c. Declared emperor, 460, a. Mild and pious beginning, 461, paſſ. Speech to the ſenate, ibid. d, e. Sadly altered after his illneſs, ibid. & ſeq. Strange titles, 463, b c. Cruelty to Tiberius, ibid. d, e. To Antonia, 464, b, c. To all, ibid. d, e. Grief for his inceſtuous ſiſter, 466, & ſeq. Marriages and divorces, 467, b, c. Aſſumes divine honours, ibid. & ſeq. Signal impiety, 468, paſſ. Ridiculed by a Gaul, ibid. (M). Inhuman wiſh, 469, c. Mad reſpect to his horſe, ibid. d, e. Biting ſpeech to the ſenate, ibid. & ſeq. Stupendous bridge, 470, e. Horrid extortions, 471, & ſeq. Depoſes two conſuls, 473, c, d. Mock invaſion of Gaul, 474, paſſ. Boaſting letter to the ſenate, 475, a. Cruelty to the Gauls, ibid. c. Turns broker, 476, a, b. Extravagance and luxury, ibid. (V). Defeats the Germans, 477, d, e. Splendid ſhews at Lyons, 478, b, c. Cruelty to Ptolemy, ibid. d. Mock expedition againſt Britain, ibid & ſeq. Horrid butcheries at Rome, 479, paſſ. Cruelty to Proculus, &c. 480, b. Fickleneſs, ibid. & ſeq. & (B). Affronts to Chæreas, 487. Conſpired againſt, ibid. & ſeq. Fondneſs for dancing, &c. 483, (G). Aſſaſſinated, 484, d, (H). Burial and diſhonours, 485, a, b.
Calippus's murder of Dion puniſhed, iii. 73, b, c.
—— the cycle of, what, iv. 71, (K).
Caliſthenes's ſpeech againſt adoring Alexander, iii. 378, & ſeq. His character, 380, (Y). Death, 381, d.
—— burnt, iv. 60, b.
Caliſto deflowered by Jupiter, ii. 378, & ſeq. The fable of her, ibid. (F).
Calixenus ſtarved to death at Athens, ii. 529, a.
Callias, Callas, branded for his cowardice, ii. 464.
—— the Athenian, ſlain before Potidea, 497.
—— ſucceſs againſt Polyſperchon, iii, 457, & ſeq.
—— tyrant of Eubœa, wars with the Athenians, 251, d.
† —— a river in Eubœa, 247, e.
Callicrates's ſucceſs againſt the Athenians, ii. 601, & ſeq. Slain, 602.
—— the Achæan deputy's treachery, 684, c, Choſen prætor, 685, b, A ſlave to the Romans, ibid. &c. Informs againſt all his rivals, 688, c. Deteſted by all his countrymen, 689. Prevents the Achæans ſuccouring Egypt, iii. 579, (W).
Callicrates's his writings and character, vi. 197, ſub not Callimachus killed at Marathon, ii. 462, f.
—— favoured by Ptol. Philadelphus, iii. 699, b. His poems ſtill extant, ibid. His writings and character, vii. 175, ſub not.
—— a famed engineer, 705, e. 747, d. Put to death, ibid. f.
Callines's ſpeech to Alexander, iii. 407, a,
Callinicus, Sutor, his writings and character, vi. 60, ſub not.
—— of Heliopolis, his invention of ſea fire, 546, b.
—— patriarch of Conſtantinople, cauſes Juſtinian to be depoſed, 547, & ſeq. His puniſhment, 549, c.
† Callipolis, the metropolis of Naxus, iii. 219, f.
† —— the ſtreights of, in Thrace, 788, a.
Callirrhoe, the wife of Tros, her offspring, ii. 314.
Calliſtratus, the Athenian general, his character, ii. 540.
—— his writings and character, vi. 149, ſub not.
† Callycadnus promontory, where ſited, iii. 657, (Q).
Calocerus proclaimed emperor in Cyprus, vi 266, b.
† Calpe, a ſea port in Bætica, vii. 301, c, d. And colony, 302, a.
Calpurnius Flamma's noble exploit, iv. 661, a. Rewarded, ibid. b.
—— Piſo killed by the Luſitanians, 767, a.
—— ill ſucceſs in Afric, 774, e. Defeats the rebels in Sicily, 796, b. Why ſurnamed Frugi, ibid. (W).
—— Piſo, killed in Gaul, v. 19, d.
—— his account of Carus's death, vi. 204, e, f.
† Calvary, mount, iv. 249.
Calviſia, Pliny's generoſity to, vi. 29, ſub not.
Calviſius, C. defeated, v. 276, d. Diſgraced, 278, c. Accuſation againſt Antony, 287, b, c.
—— Taurus, his writings and character, vi. 60, ſub not.
—— Flavius, ſides with Caſſius, 76, a. Baniſhed, 77, e.
† Calydon, the city and foreſt of, in Ætolia, ii. 410, c.
Cambletes, king of Lydia, ii. 332, d.
† Cambray, taken by Clodio, vii. 560, f, (D).
† Cambria, by whom ſo called, vii. 421, (A).
† Cambridge built on the ruins of Camboritum, vii. 410, a.
Cambyſes married to Mandane, ii. 82, e.
—— the ſon of Cyrus, ſucceeds him, 92, c. The Ahaſuerus of ſcripture, ibid. Conquers Egypt, 96. Expedition into Ethiopia, 97, a. Kills the Egyptian Apis, 98. Inſtances of his cruelty and madneſs, ibid. & ſeq. His death, as foretold by the oracle, 100, c.
Camden's cenſure of Stonehenge confuted, vii. 341, a, b.
Cameræ, a kind of ſhips built by the Romans, v. 381, (K).
† Camerinæ, a city in Sicily, iii. 5, c, d By whom built, 12, b. Deſtroyed, 15, c. Abandoned, 46, b.
Camillus, Fur. triumphs over Tacfarinas, v. 393, d.
—— plots againſt Claudius, 495, a. Aſſaſſinated, ibid b
† Camirus, a city of Rhodes, deſcribed, iii. 129, c.
† Campania, over-run by the confederates, v. 50, b. Ruined by an earthquake, 544, d.
Campanians, their treachery to the Entellines, iii. 48, b. Aſſiſt Hannibal, vi. 742, & ſeq. Diſcharged and diſpleaſed, 744, f, & ſeq. Left to guard Sicily, 755, a, b —— knights, honoured by the Romans, iv. 602, & ſeq.
† Campona, where ſituate, vi. 257, a.
Camps, how formed among the Macedonians, iii. 269, c
Camulus, one of the Gauliſh names of Mars, vii. 354, c (O).
† Cana in Galilee, the marriage of, iv. 199, b, (H).
Canaan, the fourth ſon of Ham, i. 121, b, (C). His birth, crime, curſe, &c. 119, & ſeq.
† —— the land of, its extent, &c. 566, (A). Its fertility, &c. 706.
† Canaanites, their extract, i. 322. Seven chief nations ibid b, c. Country, 323, a, b. Its diviſion, ibid b, c. Religion till Abraham, 325, b. Idolatry and human ſacrifices ſince, ibid. c, d, (I). Government, 326, c. By whom peopled, ibid. c, (K). Excurſions into Egypt, &c. ibid. d, e. Join the Amalekites againſt the Iſraelites, 330, a. Subdued by Joſhua, 333. Which they fled from him, ibid. & ſeq. The remainder invaded by the twelve tribes, 334, a, b. Their defence and fate ibid. & ſeq. Reduced under David, 336. Into a ſtate of ſlavery by Solomon, 337, paſſ. Whether blended with the Jews, ibid. c, (O). The coaſters remained independent under the name of Phœnicians, 338, a. Retire to Carthage, vi. 658, b.

† C

† Canal ſtill extant, cut from the Euphrates to the Tigris, i. 57, b.
† Canaria, iſland, why ſo called, vii. 148, b.
Candaces's ſucceſs againſt the Romans, v. 302, d.
Candaules dethroned for his folly, ii. 333, b.
Candax and his ſubjects ſettle in Scythia minor, vi. 496, b.
† Candia, by whom built, vi. 566, d.
Candidi, candidates, whence ſo called, iv. 549, e. A law paſſed againſt, ibid.
Candidianus put to death by Maximin, vi. 240, c, d. 253, e.
—— command in the weſt, 479, b, c.
Candidius's writings and character, vi. 517, (U).
Candleſtick of the ſanctuary, deſcribed, i. 658, a. Whether it burnt all night, ibid. (Z). How fed, ibid. (A).
† Cangi, in Britain, ſubdued, v. 510, a.
Caninus put to death by Caligula, v. 465, b. His admirable intrepidity, ibid. d.
Cannabaud ſlain by Aurelian, vii. 498.
† Cannæ, taken by Hannibal, vii. 28, d. The battle of, ibid. & ſeq.
Canopus, an Egyptian deity, how repreſented, i. 206, a.
† Cantabri, who, and where ſited, vii. 303, paſſ. Overcome by Auguſtus, v. 298, e. Their deſperate end, 299, b—d. Severely puniſhed by Lama, 303, a, b. Totally deſtroyed by, 309, & ſeq.
† Cantabrian ſea, where, vii. 303, d.
Cantacuſenus, a wicked tool of Andronicus III. vi. 638, & ſeq. 642, d Made guardian to young John, 643. Undermined by John the patriarch, ibid. b. Proſcribed, ibid. c. Aſſumes the purple, ibid. d. Marches towards Conſtantinople, ibid. e, f. Over-reached, 644. a, b. Enters that metropolis, ibid. e, f. Crowned, 645, a. Reſigns, and turns monk, ibid. c.
† Canthele, where ſited, vi. 667.
† Cantii, where ſited, vii. 408, c.
Cantons, what, and whence, vii. 355, & ſeq. & not.
† Canucius, where ſeated, vii. 114, b.
† Capernaum, often frequented by Chriſt, iv. 199, & ſeq. Where ſited, 205, (P).
† Caphtor, where ſituate, i. 166, a.
† Caphtorim, from whom deſcended, i. 165. The progenitors of the Philiſtines, 338, b.
Capito's flattery to Tiberius, v. 413, a. His character, writings, &c. ibid. & (K). Death, 414, c.
—— Titin. his writings and character, vi. 29, ſub not.
—— Ignatius put to death by Commodus, 88, d.
† Capitol, where ſited, iv. 430, b. Whence ſo called, 463, b, (N). Deſcribed, ibid. c, (O), (P), (Q). Seized by the Sabines, 524, b. Beſieged by the Gauls, 564, c. Famiſhed, 566. Relieved, ibid. & ſeq. Re-fortified, 596, c. Seized by the conſpirators, v. 42, f. Deſtroyed, 632, b. Rebuilt, 647, e. Forſaken, and left to ruin, vi. 415, e, f.
Capitoline games exhibited, vi. 16, b.
Capitolinus, Jupiter, the temple of, built by Tarquin, iv. 452. Conſecrated, 477, d.
—— the hiſtorian's account of Antoninus, vi. 55, & ſeq. Writings and character, 220, C).
Caponius, governor of Judæa, iv. 192, c.
† Cappadocia, in Aſia minor, i. 166, a.
—— the kingdom of, deſcribed, iii. 761, & ſeq. Its origin, government, &c. 762, & ſeq. Kings, 764, & ſeq. Subdued by Tigranes, 700, c. Invaded by Mithridates, 728. Made a Roman province, 768, e. Waſted by Coſrhoes, iv. 366, b.
† Capraria, iſland, where ſituate, vii. 148, b. 309, a.
† Caprea, iſland, deſcribed, v. 432, c, (H).
† Capros, a river in Aſſyria, i. 859, a, (I). iii. 533, (T).
† Capſa, where ſituate, vi 670, c. Razed, vii. 133, c.
† Capua, ſurrendered to Hannibal, vii. 32, f. Begs his aſſiſtance, 47, c. Surrendered to the conſuls, 56, f. 58, c.
Capuans give themſelves up to Rome, iv. 596, b. Reduced by them, 602. Friendſhip to their routed army, 613, a. Conſpirators kill themſelves, 615, b. The reſt ſubmit, 617, c. To Hannibal, 714, e. Kill the Roman garriſon, ibid. d. Beſieged by the Romans, 726, f. Surrender, 729, d. Severely uſed, ibid. e.
Caracalla born to Severus, vi. 104, f. Created Cæſar, 111, f. Collegue, 114, c. Triumphs over the Jews, 116, b. Attempts his father's life, 119, d. And crown, f. Succeeds him, 121, a. Attempts Geta's life, 122, b——d. Cruel reign, ibid. & ſeq. Fratricide, ibid. f. Stratagem to gain the ſoldiery, 123, a—c. Speech to the ſenate, ibid d. Maſſacre of Geta's friends, ibid. & ſeq. Horrid butcheries, 124, & ſeq. Extortions, 125, a. Falſe coin, ibid. Cruelties in Gaul, ibid. e. Whence called Caracalla, ibid. e, f. Succeſs in Germany, 126, a, b. At Pergamos, ibid. d. Changes his habit, &c. Every-where, ibid. e. Mimics Alexander the great, ibid. f. Goes to Antioch, 127, a. Treachery to the Armenians, ibid. b. Maſſacre at Alexandria, ibid c, d. Cruelty to the Parthians, ibid. e, f. Takes the title of Parthicus, 128, b. Conſpired againſt, ibid. d, e. Stabbed, ibid. f. Funeral honours, 130, c, d. Deified, 131, a. Defeat of the Alemans, vii 588, & ſeq.
Caractacus's bravery againſt the Romans, v. 510, paſſ. Defeat, 511, a. Noble ſpeech to Claudius, ibid. c. Juſt reflections on the Romans, ibid. e.
Caraites. See Karaites, iv. 174.
† Caramania. See Cilicia, ii. 340, & ſeq.
Caranus conquers Macedon, iii. 262, a. Firſt king of it, 271.
Carbani, their office, iii. 222, b, c.
Carbo, Papyr. See Papyrius, v. 1, & ſeq.
† Carbonaria Sylva, where, vii. 561. ſub not.
† Carchemiſh, a famed city in Meſopotamia, i. 949, a. Taken by Nabopalaſſar, 950, a.
† Cardia, in Cherſoneſus, where ſituate, iii. 788, a.
† Cardiſtan, a province of Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 35, b.
† Cardu mountains, where ſome relics of Noah's ark are ſaid to have been ſeen, i. 109, c.
Carducni, ſubdued by Trajan, vi. 21, b.
Carfuleius ſharp engagement with Antony, v. 205, paſſ. Killed at the battle of Mutina, 207. His burial, 208, b.
† Caria, part of Aſia proper, ii. 288. Where ſited, 289, (C). Invaded by the Romans, iii. 141, & ſeq. Taken from the Rhodians, 156, b.
† Carians, whence ſo called, iii. 187, d. Firſt inhabitants of Samos, 188. Dreadful revenge on Phanes, ii. 96, b.
Carina deſeated by Metel. Pius, v. 71, b. Beheaded, 74, c.
Carinus created Cæſar, vi. 204, c. His lewd character, ibid. &c. Defeated and killed, 206, f, & ſeq.
† Carliſle, old, where ſited, vii. 413, a.
† Carmania, a province of Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 28, b.
† Carmel, mount, its ſituation and fertility, i. 571, a. Frequented by Elias and Pythagoras, ibid. By devout Chriſtians, ibid. (X). Famed for its melons, &c. 582.
† —— the town of, 571, (T).
Carmelite monks, ſo called from M. Carmel, i. 571, a, & not.
† Carmentalis, the gate of, why ſo called, iv. 430, a. And ſince Scelerata, 511, b, (O).
† Carnion, where ſituate, iv. 67, b. Taken and burnt by the Maccabees, ibid. c. & iii. 587, b.
Carnus, a ſoothſayer, killed by the Heraclidæ, ii. 359.
† Carpaſia, in Cyprus, by whom built, i. 416, c. Taken by Demetrius, iii. 183.
† Carpathus's iſland deſcribed, iii. 213.
† Carpi, where ſited, vii. 493, e. 494, f. Ravage Mœſia, vi. 160, c. Defeated, 166, d. 169, d. Revolt, 171, c. Tranſplanted into Pannonia, 212, a. Baffled and repulſed by Menophilus, vii. 606, f, & ſeq. Freſh ravages, 607, c, d.
† Carpis, where ſituate, vi. 666, d, e. Carpeſii revolt, vii. 38, e. Submit to Aſdrubal, 39, c.
† Carræ, the famed battle of, iv. 305.
† —— retaken from the Perſians, 162, b——d.
† Carſ, a city in Armenia, deſcribed, iii. 693, (B).
† Carteia, whether the ſame with Calpe, vii. 301, d, & ſeq.
† Cartena, where ſited, vii. 114, c. By whom built, ibid. d.
† Cartenus, river, in Numidia, vii. 116, b,
† Carthage, founded by Dido, i 415, e. vi. 657, & ſeq. 659, b, c. Its various names and etymons, ibid. & ſeq. Deſcribed, 661, & ſeq. Its extent, 663, c, d. Ruins, ibid. e. Diviſion, 665, a. Situation, ibid. b. Government, 674, & ſeq. Senate, 675, & ſeq & (G). Centumvirate & quinquevirate, 676, & ſeq. Other magiſtrates, &c. 678, & ſeq. Laws, 679, & ſeq. Their defects, 680, & ſeq. Antient ſtate very powerful, 723, & ſeq. Burnt by Maxentius, vi. 241, c, d. Submits to Arcadius, 428, f. Taken by Sigiſvult, 481, a. By Genſeric, 484, f, & ſeq. By Machæus, 725, c——f. Threatened by the mercenaries, 861, d, e. Relieved by Hannibal, 862, c.
† —— beſieged and taken, vii. 100, & ſeq. Deſtroyed, 103, & ſeq. Rebuilt, 105, c. By whom, ibid. & ſeq. Deſtroyed by the Saracens, 106. Taken by the Vandals, 533, e.
† —— its ſquare reſtored by Antoninus, vi. 59, a.
† —— new, deſcribed, vii. 59, e. Taken by Scipio, iv. 731, b. vii. 59, & ſeq.
† Carthagena ſeized by the Alans, vi. 463, a. By the Hunns, 488, d. By the Suevians, 503, a. By whom built, 867, c, d. Deſtroyed by the Vandals, vii. 531, d.

† Carthaginians, their origin, vi. 658, b, c. Various names, 661, b. Populouſneſs, 663, b. Extenſive, 664, a, (I). Antient Canaanites, 673, & ſeq. Sacrifice noble children to Saturn, 679, a, b. Forbid to learn Greek, ibid. c. Their religion and deities, 681, & ſeq. Portable temples, 683, c. Language, 697, & ſeq. Writings and coins, 703, & ſeq. Arts and ſciences, 704, & ſeq. Cuſtoms, 705. Hoſpitality, ibid, e, f. Character, 706, & ſeq. Genealogy of their noble families, 707. Commerce and military diſcipline, 708, a, &c. Learned men, ibid. & ſeq. Expert artiſts, ibid. (M). Writers, 709, paſſ. Trade and navigation, 710, & ſeq. Chronology, 712, & ſeq. Wars with the Etruſcans, &c. 724. Sicilians, ibid. f, & ſeq. (Vid. & iii. 15, & ſeq.) Firſt treaty with Rome, 727, paſſ. 774, b. 779, a. Vid. & iv. 594, d, e. Preſents to the capitol, 598, b, c. Tributary to the Africans, vi. 728, c. Ill ſucceſs in Sicily, ibid. f, & ſeq. League with Xerxes, 729, a, b. Firſt footing in Spain, ibid. b, c. Expedition againſt Sicily, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Gelon, 732, f, & ſeq. (iii. 17, & ſeq.) Sue for peace, 735, a. Shake off the African tribute, 736. Quarrel with the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. (iv. 652, & ſeq.) Succour the Egeſtines, 738, a. Barbarity to the Selinuntines, 741, & ſeq. How repulſed before Himera, 743, paſſ. Take Agrigentum, 746, & ſeq. Way of encamping, ibid. (N). Deſtroyed by a grievous plague, 753, & ſeq. Ravaged by Dionyſius, 756, a——c. 759, a. Defeated at ſea, ibid. d. A plague in their army, 765, a, b. Deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated, 766, b. 768, c, d. Ill ſucceſs in Sicily, 770, a, & ſeq. Under a new peſtilence, 773, b, c. Peace with Dionyſius II. 774, c, d. Undermined by the Syracuſans, ibid. & ſeq. & (F). Baffled by Timoleon, 775, & ſeq. Let into Syracuſe, 779, e. Freſh preparations againſt Sicily, 782, a——c. Defeated by Timoleon, 783, & ſeq. Their terrible loſs, 784, & ſeq. Peace with him, 786, c, d. Dread of Alexander, 788, b, c. War with Agathocles, 789, & ſeq. Invaded by him, 795, & ſeq. Ravaged and defeated by him, 797. Their horrid ſuperſtition, 798, d—f & 811, c. Camp ſet on fire, ibid. d. End of the Sicilian war, 812, d—f, & ſeq. Renewed, 813, & ſeq. Defenſive treaty with Rome, 814, & ſeq. Drive Pyrrhus out of Italy, 816, paſſ. War with the Romans, 819, & ſeq. Their reaſons, 821, & ſeq. Driven out of Sicily, Sardinia, &c 832, & ſeq. Sea preparations againſt the Romans, 835, c, d. Totally defeated, 836, paſſ. Anew, 838, a, b. Saved by Xantippus, 839, & ſeq. Ingratitude to him, 840, f. Fall into freſh diſaſters, 842, & ſeq. Defeated by Lutatius, 850, b, c. Peace with him, ibid. & ſeq. War with the mercenaries, 851, & ſeq. Cauſes of that war, ibid. e, & ſeq. 855, c, d. Preparations againſt them, ibid. & ſeq. Succeſs in Spain, vii. 2, b, c. Anſwer to the Romans, 6, b, c. Succeſs againſt them, 17, & ſeq. 19, & ſeq. Defeated in Spain, 20, c, d. Great joy at Hannibal's ſucceſs, 34, d, & ſeq. Treaty with king Philip, 42, & ſeq. Their embaſſadors ſent priſoners to Rome, 43, e, f, & ſeq. Second treaty with him, 44, d, e. Driven out of Sardinia, 45, & ſeq. Defeated in Spain, 46, paſſ. Before Illiturgi, 48, e, f. Before Munda, 49, a, b. In Sicily, 61, & ſeq. In Spain, 63, b, Exaſperate king Philip, 64, e, f. Defeated by the conſuls, 65, & ſeq. In Spain by Scipio, 68, e, f. Their decline there, 69, & ſeq. Bad ſtate, 73, e, f. Buy king Philip's aſſiſtance, 74, a. Their terror at Scipio's landing, 75, e, f, & ſeq. Deſerted in Italy, 76, f, & ſeq. Defeated by Scipio, 77, & ſeq. Sue for peace to him, 79, c. Their embaſſadors ſuſpected at Rome, 80, f. Treachery to the Romans, 81, a. Defeated by Scipio, 82, paſſ. Sue for peace, 83, b. Obtain a hard one, ibid. d, & ſeq. Send the firſt ſum to Rome, 85, c. Diſcover Hannibal's deſigns to the Romans, 87, e. Offer them corn and ſhips, 89, c, d. Proſcribe Hannibal, 93, d. Fall out with Maſiniſſa, ibid. & ſeq. Abject, appeal to the Romans, 94, & ſeq. Sue for peace to Maſiniſſa, 96, e. Betrayed by the Romans, 97, & ſeq. Forced to ſend three hundred hoſtages, ibid. & ſeq. And to deliver up their arms, 98, b, c. To abandon the city, ibid. & ſeq. Make ſome freſh efforts, 101, & ſeq. Defeated at ſea, 102, & ſeq. Overcome and deſtroyed, 103, & ſeq.

Carthalo ſent admiral againſt the Romans, iv. 673, f. Recalled for indiſcretion, 675, a. Repulſed by the ſenate, 684, b. See vi. 847, b——e.

——crucified for diſobeying his father, vi. 795, d——f.

——ſucceſs againſt the Romans, 847, b, c. Recalled for his indiſcretion, ibid. e.

——ſlain at Tarentum, vii. 62.

† Carthea, a city in Coos, deſcribed, iii. 216, f.

Cartiſmandua's treachery to Caractacus, v. 511, a. To her own huſband, 512, c, d.

Carts, why worſhipped by the Phrygians, ii. 301, d.

Carvilius, Spur. ſubdues the Sardinians, iv. 683, d.

——Ruga, forced to divorce his barren wife, ibid. e.

Carus proclaimed emperor, vi. 203, e. His riſe and character, 204, a, b. Succeſs in Sarmatia, ibid. c, d. againſt the Perſians, ibid. d, e. Death, ibid. f. Funeral honours, 205, c.

† Cariſtians worſhip Briareus, iii. 248.

Caſca, one of the conſpirators againſt Cæſar, v. 180, b. 183, a. Gives him the firſt ſtab, 184, b.

† Caſilinum taken by Hamilcar, iv. 716, & ſeq. Retaken by Fabius, 722, a. vii. 47, f. Beſieged by Hannibal, vii. 35, f. & ſeq. Its dreadful famine and ſurrender, 38, b, c. Put to fire and ſword by Marcellus, 48, a.

† Coſiotis, part of lower Egypt, i. 176, b. And of Seleucia, in Syria, 361, a.

† Caſiphia, where ſited, iv. 12, a, & (V).

† Caſis iſland deſcribed, iii. 213.

† Caſluhim, who, and where ſettled, i. 165.

† Caſpian ſea deſcribed, ii. 4, & ſeq. & not.

†——ſtreights, where ſited, 3, e.

† Caſpis taken by Judas Maccabæus, iv. 66, c.

Caſſander oppoſed by Polyſperchon, ii. 553. Subdues the Athenians, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Demetrius, 555, e.

—— whether he poiſoned Alexander, iii. 411, & ſeq. & (O). His poſt after his death, 423, f. Leagues againſt Antigonus, 432, a. 463. Murders Roxana, and her ſon, 435, c. 462, a. Invades Peloponneſus, 462, b. His death, 464. Hatred to Alexander, ibid. c.

—— the ſon of Antipater, why he did not ſucceed him, 453, (B). Attempt againſt Polyſperchon, 459, a, b. Outwits Antigonus, ibid. f. Wars with the Ætolians, 460, & ſeq. Ill ſucceſs in Aſia, 461, c, d.

† Caſſandra, by whom built, iii. 458, f.

† Caſſandria, Potidea, why ſo called, 257, a.

—— deſtroyed by the Hunns, vi. 526, e. vii. 483, e.

† Caſſian mountains divide Scythia from Seres, ii. 767, f.

Caſſianus killed by the cruiſadors, vi. 615, f.

Caſſibelan's treaſon, vii. 421, (A). Heads all the Britons againſt Cæſar, 425, b. Defeated, ibid. c. Defence againſt him, ibid. & ſeq. Makes peace with him, 426, d.

Caſſiodorus publiſhes the Hiſtoria tripartita, vi. 491, (S).

—— ſent embaſſador to Attila, vii. 472, d.

† Caſſiope, a city in Epirus, 796, a.

† Caſſir, the ruins of, vii. 116, d.

† Caſſiterides, iſlands, where ſituate, vii. 146, (E). 308, a. Why ſo called by the Greeks, 402, c.

Caſſius's ſucceſs againſt the Rhodians, iii. 158, & ſeq. Againſt Mithridates, 730, & ſeq.

—— ſucceſs againſt Alexander, iv. 116, a, b, (D). Seizes on Syria, 121. Defeated by M. Antony, 133, paſſ.

—— gives Craſſus the ſlip in Parthia, 303, a—f. Defeats the Parthians, 306, c, d. And Vologeſes, 321, b. Reduces the Sabines, 479, d. Choſen magiſter equitum, 482, a.

—— Spur. defeats the Hernici, 503, d. Condemned to death for his ambition, ibid. & 505, c.

—— ſent to fetch Jugurtha, v. 11, a.

—— Longinus, left to command in Spain, 137, a.

—— Scæva's valiant defence rewarded, 140, c, d. Submits to Cæſar, 148, f. Conſpires againſt him, 179, a, b. Stabs him in the ſenate, 184, d. Sharp anſwer to Antony, 189, b. Made governor of Syria, 194, a. Supplanted by Dolabella, 200, d. Sent by the ſenate againſt him, 204, b. Retires into the eaſt, 214, b, c. Joins Brutus at Athens, ibid. e. Goes into Syria, 215, c. Succeſs in Aſia, 217, & ſeq. In Syria, 218, a, b. Takes Laodicea, 219, d. Confirmed governor of Syria, 220, a. Proſcribed, 221, a. Recalled from Egypt, 232, e. Meets Brutus at Smyrna, 233, f. Generoſity to him, 234, b, c. Anſwer to the Rhodians, ibid. e, &c. Succeſs againſt them, 235, d, e. In Aſia, 236, & ſeq. Reconciled to Brutus, 239, d, e. Epicurean notion about ſpirits, 240, f, (I). Paſſes into Europe, 241, b. Speech and largeſs to the army, ibid. c, d. Againſt fighting the triumvirs, 243, d, (K). Laſt words to Meſſala, 244, b. To Brutus, ibid. c. Defeated by Antony, 245, e, f. His death, 246, c, d. Character, ibid. & ſeq. Why an enemy to Cæſar, 247, a, (M).

—— Parmenſ. oppoſes the triumvirs in Aſia, 258, c. His character and writings, ibid. (A).

—— Chæreas's bravery againſt the mutineers, 365, a. Conſpires againſt Caligula, 481, & ſeq. Singular intrepidity, 483, & ſeq. Murders him, 484, d, (H). Conceals himſelf, 489, b. Put to death by Claudius, 491, d. (T).

—— Longinus,

— Longinus, choſen conſul, 437, d. Marries Druſilla ibid. (N). Baniſhed by Nero, 550, & ſeq.
— Dion's judgment about Adrian's adoption, vi. 25, f.
— Avidius, ſucceſs againſt the Parthians, 74, b, c. 65, c. Barbarity to the Seleucians, ibid. d. Succeſs in Egypt, 70, a. Revolt and character, 73, & ſeq. Cruel ſeverity, 74, a, b. Reforms the army in Syria, ibid. c, d, (F). Hatred of monarchy, 75, a, b. His character drawn by Verus, ibid. b, c. Aſſumes the purple, ibid. f. Proſcribed, 76, b, c. His death, ibid. d, e.
† — Jupiter, the temple of, iii. 796, a.
† — mount, whence ſo called, i. 87, a.
Caſtinus's ſucceſs and raſhneſs in Spain, vi. 475, d, e. Stirs up John to revolt, 478, a. Baniſhed, 480, a. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Goths, vii. 531, c, d.
Caſtor and Pollux, their fabulous original, ii. 401, (L). Arm for the recovery of their ſiſter, 367, b. Bring her out of Aphidne, 402, b. Their other exploits and death, ibid. (O). Their temple conſecrated at Rome, iv. 505, f.
† Caſtra Alata, ſuppoſed Edenburgh, vii. 413, f.
Caſtration forbid by Nerva, vi. 5, a.
† Caſtrum altum deſcribed, vii. 48, d.
Caſtulo revolts from the Carthaginians, vii. 48, e. Betrayed to Scipio, 71, a.
† Catabani, who, and where ſited, vii. 231, e.
† Catada, a river, deſcribed, vi. 671, d.
Cataians hired by the Greeks, vi. 636, a. Ravage their dominions, ibid. b. Invite the Turks to them, ibid. c, d.
† Catana, in Sicily, deſcribed, iii. 3, b. How deſtroyed, ibid c. Taken by the Athenians, 27, d. By Dionyſius, 43, c. Delivered up to the Romans, 654, e.
† Catanius Apollo, his temple at Daſtacum, iii. 763, d.
† Cathei defeated by Alexander, iii. 393, c, d, & ſeq.
† Catans, who, and where ſited, v. 639, d. Invaded by Domitian, 667, e, f.
Catapultæ, deſcribed, vi. 750, (O). 757, (H).
Cathim, the laſt Amalekitiſh king in Egypt, i. 281.
Catigern ſlain, vii. 444, e His monument, ibid.
Catiline, L. S. a tool of Sylla's, his cruelties, v. 75, f. His impiety, 76, c, (T). Vile character, 102, d. Conſpiracy, ibid. & ſeq. The names of his aſſociates, 104, a. Accuſed by Cicero, 105. Retires to Fæſulæ, ibid. & ſeq. Proſcribed, 106, b. Defeated and killed, 109, b.
Cato's pleaſant ſpeech in favour of the Achæans, ii. 690, c. Drives the Ætolians out of Oeta, 720, c. Sent againſt his will to take Cyprus, iii. 185, c. Speech in favour of the Rhodians, 158, & ſeq. Sent queſtor into Sardinia, iv. 750, b Againſt the repeal of the Oppian law, 751, & ſeq. Succeſs in Spain, 752, c. Frugality, ibid. b—e. Serves as legionary tribune, 754, a. A ſecret enemy to Scipio, Afric. 756, & ſeq. Plays the rigid cenſor, 759, a. His true character, ibid. b, c. Partiality againſt the Carthaginians, 766, & ſeq. Irreconcileable hatred againſt them, vii. 95, f, & ſeq. His death, iv. 774, a.
— Portius, expounds the Sibyline oracles, iii. 669, b.
— M. Port. dies in Numidia, a.
— C. Port. ill ſucceſs in Macedon, 4, a. Baniſhed, ibid. b.
— L. Port. choſen conſul, 51, b. Killed by Marius, 52, b.
— Uticenſis, his noble ſpeech againſt Sylla, v. 76, e. Againſt Cæſar and his accomplices, 107, d, (N). Impriſoned, 113, c. Speech againſt the Agrarian law, ibid. & ſeq. Sent into Cyprus, 116, c, d. Wounded at the comitia, 121, e. Impriſoned, 123, b. Expedient againſt Pompey, 126, b. Sent proprætor of Sicily, 141, f. Forced out of it, 134, b. Goes into Afric. Saves Cicero, 155, e. Heads Pompey's party, 156, b. Through the African deſerts, ibid. c, d, (T). His demeanour at Utica, ibid. & ſeq. Reſigns the command to Scipio, 157, a. Severely repents of it, 160, b. Speech to the ſenate, 161, b. Care of his friends, 162, a, b, Prepares for death, 163, paſſ. & (K). Stabs himſelf. 164, b. His effigy carried in Cæſar's triumph, 167, f.
— his ſon a debauched youth, 165, a. Death, ibid. & 252, e.
— Portius, a baſe ſenator, the betrayer of Sabinus, 433.
Cats, why had in veneration in Egypt, i. 208, & ſeq. 210, c. 221, b
† Catti, who, and where ſited, v. 372, (T). Defeated by Druſus, 319, d By Germanicus, 372, b, c.
† Cattiuchlani, who, and where ſited, vii. 409, b.
Catualda driven from his kingdom, v. 396, e. vii. 541, d.
Catulla's treachery to the Jews, puniſhed, iv. 291, a, (G).
Catulus Q. Lut. his conſulſhip and character, v. 33, e, (K) Succeſs againſt the Cimbri, 38, c, d. Triumph and temple, ibid. & ſeq.
— choſen conſul, 83, e. Falls out with his collegue, 84, c. Artful ſpeech againſt Pompey, 100, f. Strenouſneſs againſt the Manilian law, 101, f. Bold accuſation of Cæſar, 103, e.
Cavalry not uſed in Perſia till after Cyrus, ii. 88, (G).
Cavades, king of Perſia, ſubdues Euthalites, iv. 343, c. Depoſed, ibid. d. His puniſhment, 344, b. Releaſed by his queen, ibid. e, & ſeq. Wars with the Romans, 345, paſſ. Behaviour to the Amidians, ibid. c. Invaded by the Hunns, ibid. & ſeq. Peace with Rome, 346, b. Succeſs againſt them, 347. Death, 348, b.
† Caucaſus, mount, in Scythia, ii. 267, d. Called by the Arabians, Raf, i. 102, (N). Its height, ibid.
Caudex Appius, why ſo called, iv. 654, c.
† Caudine forks, the Romans entrapped in, iv. 611, e.
† Cayſter, a river in Phrygia, ii. 294, (O). 329, c.
Cayu Marras, ſaid to have been the ſon of Shem, i. 126, b.
† Cea, Ceos, iſland, deſcribed, iii, 216. A barbarous cuſtom in it, ibid. f.
Ceaulin's ſucceſs againſt the Britons, vii. 452, e, f. Driven out, ibid. e.
Ceballinus diſcovers a plot againſt Alexander, 364, paſſ.
† Cecropia, Athens, antiently ſo called, ii. 361, e. 737. Taken the Romans, 741, c.
† Cecropes, the firſt order of Athenian citizens, ii. 438, a.
Cecrops introduces religion into Greece, ii 348, b. 362, & ſeq. The fable of his naming Athens, 361, (C). The founder of that monarchy, 362, b His reign, &c. ibid.
— biſhop of Carthage, killed by an earthqnake, vi. 304, d.
† Cedars of Libanus deſcribed, i. 362, b, &c.
† Cednus, river in Cilicia, ii. 341, e.
† Celene, where ſituate, ii. 292, c.
Celeres, Roman guards, why ſo called, iv. 427, c. Diſmiſſed by Numa, 436, a.
— prieſts ſo called, their office, ibid. e.
Celers, A. R. a tribune, put to death, iv. 264, b.
— Publ. the murderer of Silanus, acquitted by Nero, v. 526, b.
— one of the monarch's architects, 548, c. His projected canal, ibid. d, e.
— Verien. his bloody orders againſt the Mœſians, 175, d.
† Celetæ, a people of Thrace, iii. 795, a.
Celibacy, how puniſhed by the Spartans, ii. 561. Condemned by Octavius, v. 337, e.
Celſus, Junius's death, v. 446, b.
— Mar. repulſed at a revolt againſt Galba, 594, c. Saved by Otho, 596, e. Raiſed by him, 601, e. Sent againſt Vitellius, v. 605, e. Succeſs againſt Cæcina, 607, c, d. Wholſome advice to Otho, 608, c, d. 609, e.
Celſus, L. Publ. whether put to death, vi. 34, c.
— his writings and character, 81, (H).
— Cornel. declared emperor, 182, f. His death, ibid. & ſeq.
† Celtes. See Gomerians, ii. 241, & ſeq. Sue to Alexander, iii. 310, f. Anſwer to him, 320, a. Settle in Italy, iv. 561, d. Raiſe a drunken uproar in Aſdrubal's camp, vi. 835, a. Defeated in Spain, 866, (M). How far ſpread through Europe, vii. 322, d, e.
† Celtiberia, Spain antiently ſo called, ii. 243, in fin. (B). 244, not. 246. c. Deſcribed, vii. 303, d.
† Celtiberians, their treachery to Scipio, iv. 708, e. 725, b. vii. 78, e. Defeated by Fulvius, 753, b. 760, a. Their ſignal bravery, v. 45, a. Outwitted by Didius, ibid. b. Their religion, vii. 330, d. Where ſeated, 303, e.
† Celtic Gauls, defeated by Cæſar, v. 127, c.
† Cenchrea, one of the two ports of Corinth, ii, 391, a.
Cenſors, firſt created, iv. 544, a. Confined to eight months, 549. Suſpended, 576, c. Revived, 577, d. When firſt choſen out of the plebeians, 592, e. Reſtored by Decius, vi. 169, e. Its nature, &c. ibid. f, & ſeq.
— at Carthage, 678, & ſeq.
Cenſorinus beheaded, v. 74, c.
— his writings and character, iv. 164, (W).
— beſieged, and taken priſoner, 485, c. Sent againſt Carthage, vii. 97, c. Repulſed before it, 100, e.
— ſent embaſſador to Emeric, 543, e.
Cenſus, how regulated by Servius, iv. 457, b. Taken at Rome. Vid. ſub Rome, 598, & ſeq.
Centaurs, the fable of, whence, ii. 382, c, & not. Luſtful attempt, ibid. Killed by Hercules, 256, ſub not.
Centonius defeated, vii. 22, d, e.

† Centum

† Centum portæ, by whom built, vi. 13, c.
† —— columnæ, Roman building burnt, 166, e.
† —— viri, when firſt inſtituted, iv. 684, c.
† —— at Carthage, vi. 676, & ſeq.
Centuries, how regulated by Servius, iv. 457, b.
Centurion, in Judæa, his ſingular humility, iv. 210, a.
† Centuripe, taken by the Romans, vi. 827. A city in Sicily, iii. 9, a.
† Cephalonia. Vid. Samos, iii. 186. Deſcribed, 242, a. Taken by the Athenians, ii. 501, e. By the Romans, 677, e. Given to the Athenians, vi. 42, d.
† Cephiſus, river, in Phocis, ii. 387, f. The bridge over, built by Adrian, vi. 35, f, & ſeq.
† Cephren. Cephrenes, &c. king of Egypt, i. 262, b. His pyramids there, i. 84, & 262, b.
† Ceraſtis, Cyprus, why ſo called of old, iii. 177, & ſeq.
† Ceraſus in Pontus, why ſo called, iii. 721.
† Ceraunian mountains in Epirus, 798, a.
† Ceraunus, where ſited, iii. 214, a.
Cerberus fetched out of hell by Hercules, ii. 365, not. 396, not.
† Cercina, iſland, where ſited, v. 60, b. vii. 176, f.
Cerdiak's ſucceſs in Britain, vii. 447, c, d. Sends for more Saxons, 449. Defeats the Britons, ibid. c. Founds the Weſt Saxon kingdom, d, e.
Cercalis's expedition againſt the Samaritans, iv. 272, b, c. Againſt the Idumeans, 277.
—— Petilius, defeated by the Britains, v. 538, c.
—— endeavours to ſave the capitol, 633, a, b. Succeſs againſt the revolted Germans, 643, c, &c. Bravery againſt the Treverians, 644, a. Narrow eſcape and revenge, ibid. & ſeq. Vainly tampered by Domitian, 663, f.
—— Civicus put to death, 674, e.
Ceremonial law inſtituted, i. 516, a. Whether any borrowed from Egypt, ibid. (Y). Its diſtinctions, ibid. d, e, (Y). & (Z).
Ceremony, whence that word derived, iv. 563, d.
Ceres civilizes the Athenians, ii. 419, not. 731, not.
—— her feaſts and myſteries, 731. Why and how performed, ibid. & ſeq.
—— her worſhip at Carthage, vi. 679, b. 689, c. Temple plundered, 764, a.
—— ſtatue in Arcadia burnt, ii. 380, b.
Cerethites, the Egyptian name of the Philiſtines, i. 343, (G).
† Cerinthus in Eubœa, by whom built, iii. 249, d.
Certus, a ſenator, indicted by Pliny, vi. 4, c. Dies of grief, ibid. d.
Ceſtius Gallus numbers the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, iv. 268, b. Defeated by the Zelots, 269, & ſeq.
—— Maced. burns Peruſia, v. 267, a.
Cethegus's ſucceſs againſt the Gauls, iv. 750, f.
—— a ſenator, put to death, vi. 357, b.
—— conſpiracy and death, v. 104—107.
Cetheroupa, the firſt women after the flood according to the Indians, i. 107, c.
† Cetii, a people mentioned by Homer, i. 168, f.
† Ceuta, its ſituation, vii. 139, c.
Chabdanus's revenge on Leo, vi. 581, a, b. Defeated, 582, f.
Chabrias, the Athenian, his character, ii. 540, b. Succeſs againſt the Spartans, ibid. c, d. Slain, ibid. f.
—— ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, iii. 180.
—— killed in the ſocial war, 135, b, c.
† Chadaca, metropolis of Albania, 837, d.
Chagan, king of the Avari, invades the Romans, vi. 534. Breaks truce with them, 535. Deſtroyed by a peſtilence, ibid. Cruelty to his priſoners, 536, a. Peace with Heraclius, ibid. b. Kindneſs to Juſtinian, 548, f. Bought off by Tiberius, ibid. &c.
Chaiſes, poſt, by whom invented, vi. 26, b.
† Chalcaſpides, whence ſo called, ii. 653, d.
† Chalce, where ſited, vii. 143, c.
Chalcedon deſtroyed by the Goths, vii. 495, b.
† Chalcedon. See Calcedon, 822.
† Chalcidene, the kingdom of, deſcribed, iii. 834. Vid. vol. i. 361, b.
Chalcidians come into Sicily, iii. 11, d.
† Chalcidica, where ſituate, iii. 256, d.
Chalcidius's account of the ſtar at Chriſt's birth, iv. 162, not.
† Chalcis, the capitol of Chalcidine, i. 361, b.
—— taken by Antigonus, ii. 780. Ruined by Centho, 734.
—— capital of Eubœa, iii. 246, b. Deſcribed, 248, f. Plundered by Coſrhoes, vi. 527, b.
—— the kingdom of, united to the empire, v. 681, f.
Chalcodon ſubdues the Thebans, iii. 250, d.
† Chaldea, whence ſo named, i. 905, e. Its diviſion, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Product, &c. 906—908.
—— the antediluvian kings, of, 90, d. 905, e.
Chaldean coſmogony, according to Diodorus, i. 14, b. Beroſius, ibid. c.
—— account of the flood, 91, d.
Chaldeans, famed for owning one deity, i. 15, b. By whom founded, 127, a. Their language Syriac, 377, d. Chaldees, or Babylonian prieſts, i. 913. Authors of the Sabean religion, ibid. Their learning not from Egypt, 929, b, &c. Their inſtitutions, 930, e. Coſmogony, 931, a. Aſtrology, ibid. b, c. Condemned, 932, a. Great valour, 967, e. Subdued by Cyrus, ibid. f.
—— character, when, and by whom brought into Judea, iv. 146.
—— paraphraſe, why firſt brought into uſe, 26, a.
† Chalonitis, where ſited, iii. 534, (W). A province of Aſſyria, i. 858, b.
† Chalons, the famed battle of, vi. 495, d—f. Number of the ſlain, 496, b. Authors reconciled about it, vii. 475, & ſeq.
† Chalybon and Chalybonitis in Syria, i. 361, a.
† Chamavi, who, vii. 548, a. Defeated, vi. 239, d. By Julian, 304, a. Invaded by Eugenius, 423, c, d.
† Chaonia, a province in Epirus, deſcribed, iii. 795, f.
Chaos, abſurd opinions about it confuted, i. 10, c, d. 30, & ſeq.
† Caphenatha, part of Jeruſalem, why ſo called, iv. 83, c.
† Characa, where ſited, iv. 67, (F). Taken by the Jews, ibid. a.
Chararic, king of the Franks, vii. 566, c, d. Dethroned and murdered by Clovis, 579, e.
† Characene, deſcribed, iii. 852, & ſeq. By whom founded, 853.
† Charcorychii, mountains, where, vii. 115, e.
Chares's expedition againſt Chios, ii. 542. Repulſed by the Byzantines, 547, c. His noble death and character, 542, & ſeq.
—— the maker of Coloſſus, iii. 130, (C). Mad expedition againſt Perſia, 135, e.
Charidemus, put to death, iii. 332.
† Charidemus, the promontory of, where, vii. 301, c.
Charilaus, king of Sparta, his birth, ii. 558. Defeated by the Tegean women, 380, 560, a. His reign and character, 559, & ſeq.
Charilus, the Samian, his character, iii. 195, not.
Chariots, armed, when firſt introduced, iv. 308, d, e, vi. 783, (B). Vid. vol. ii. 64, (I). 93, e.
† Chariſtus, a river in Colchis, iii. 833, c.
Charlemagne falls out with Deſiderius, vii. 716, & ſeq. Invited againſt him by the pope, 717, a, b. Succeſs in Italy, ibid. d, & ſeq. Grand reception at Rome, 718, b. Large donatives to the pope, ibid. f, & ſeq. Conqueſts, 719, & ſeq. Crowned king of the Lombards, 722. Second reception at Rome, ibid. & ſeq. Form of Government, 723, & ſeq.
Charms, &c. ſeverely puniſhed, vi. 375, paſſ.
† Charon, lake, Meris, why ſo called, i. 196, b.
Charonites, Antony's magiſtrates, why ſo called, v. 193.
† Charybdis, the famed rock of, iii. 2, c.
Chaſleu, a Jewiſh month, i. 611, (K).
† Chaſmena, when, and by whom built, iii. 12, b.
† Chauci, where ſited, v. 334, (R). 396, (H). Subdued by Tiberius, ibid. b. By Druſus, 219, d, e. By Corbulo, 501, b. By the Romans, vi. 63, d. See vol. vii. [407], b, c.
† Chazari, who, vi. 541, d. Forty thouſand men join Heraclius, ibid.
Chedorlaomer's wars, i. 294. Pillages Sodom, &c. 327, c.
Cheiromocrates, architect of the temple at Epheſus, ii. 754, d.
† Chel, of Solomon's temple, what, iv. 45, (Γ).
Chelcias, a famed Jew of Alexandria, iv. 98, c.
Chelonis, her filial and conjugal piety, ii. 627, b, &c.
† Chemia, Egypt, why ſo called, i. 174, e.
Chemnis. Vide Cheops, i. 261, & ſeq.
Chemoſh, Baalpeor, idol of the Moabites, i. 285, e, 286, b. Whence ſo called, ibid. (N).
Cheops, king of Egypt, i. 261, f. Forbids all ſacrifices, ibid. His tyranny, ibid. &c. † Stately pyramids, 184, b. 120, (G). Proſtitution of his daughter, 185, b. 252, a. By which ſhe alſo built a pyramid, ibid.
Chereas defeated and killed by the Jews, iv. 63, e.
† Cherethites and Pelethites, who, i. 778, (C).
Cherries, whence called ceraſa, iii. 721, f.
Cherſis, king of Salamis, iii. 177, b.
† Cherſon, the ruins of, iii. 841, a.
† Cherſoneſus,

† Chersonesus invaded by Demetrius, iii. 441.
† —— Thracian, described, 787, & seq. Kings of, 795.
† —— Taurica, described, 840, & seq. Bequeathed by Agrippa, v. 318, d.
Christians butchered by Justinian, vi. 549, d. Submit to Philippicus, ibid d.
Cherubim placed in paradise, i. 64, c, d. Of gold, over the mercy-seat, 654. Their form, &c. ibid. d. (V). Whence so called, ibid.
† Cherusci subdued by Drusus, v. 319, d, e. Stirred up by Arminius, 374, b, c. Defeated by Germanicus, ibid & seq. 384, b, c. Oppressed by Italicus, 501, b. Defeated by Constantine, vi. 239, d.
Chesnuts eaten for want of corn, vi. 463, c.
Chian slaves, signal faithfulness, iii. 211, c.
† Chians, their government, kings, &c. iii. 109, & seq. Fidelity to the Ionians, 197, e. Subdued by the Persians, 210. Revolt, and are reduced, ibid. c, d. Join in the common confederacy, ibid. & seq. Subject to the Athenians, 211, a, b. Their various fates since, ibid. & seq.
Chichester built by Cissa, vii. 449, d.
Childebert's success against the Burgundi, vii. 587, d——f.
Childeric taken prisoner by Attila, vi. 494, e, vii. 473, c. Restored, 563, a. His reign and conquests, 564, a, b. Death, ibid. c. Tomb and character, ibid. d. Dethroneing and restauration, ibid. & seq. & (F). King of the Franks, 550, e.
Chilperic made magister militiæ, vii. 581, e. His conquests in Gaul, 583, & seq. Extract, 584, b. Death, ibid. c.
Children, how educated among the Jews, i. 678, & seq. Solon's laws concerning them, ii. 334, a.
—— at Rome, slaves to their parents, iv. 434, b.
—— poor, how provided for by Constantine, vi. 255, a. Four eaten by their mothers, 462, e.
† Chiminar, in Persia, by whom adorned, ii. 224, c.
Chilo, Vett. put to death by Galba, v. 583, d.
—— L. Fab. doomed to death by Caracalla, vi. 124, b. Rescued and spared, ibid. c, d.
—— accused of witchcraft, 356, e.
Chilon stabs Marcellus and himself, v. 166, c.
† Chimæra, mountain in Lycia, ii. 338, a. The fable of, explained, 337, b. 394, (N). The hot baths of, iii. 796, b.
† Chinaalph, river, in Numidia, vii. 116, b.
Chindasuinthus, king of the Visigoths, vii. 492, e.
Chintila, king of the Visigoths, 492, e.
† Chinese, a sect of philosophers among them, i. 24, a. Their notion of a god, &c. ibid. & 34, a——d.
—— historians, mention the flood, 96, a. Whether their language be the primitive, 151, d.
Chinzirus, king of Babylon, i. 945, b.
† Chios, kingdom, by whom founded, ii. 369. Revolts from Athens, 521, a. Confederates against it, 542, e.
† —— island, described, iii. 107, e, f. Famed for its wines, &c. 108. By whom peopled, 109, a.
† —— the city of, described, 109, c. Destroyed by the Persians, 110. Taken by the Turks, vi. 611.
Chilperic's parricide, vii. 578, b, c. Punished, ibid d.
Chlothildis's character, vii. 567, c, d. Married to Clovis, ibid & seq. Strives to convert him, 568, e. 570, b. Her retirement and death, 580, e, f. Extract, 584, d. Revenge on Sigismond, 586, b——e.
† Choaspes, whether the same with the Euleas, ii. 59, (E).
† Choas in Phrygia. See Colossus, iii. 293, c.
Christians subdued by Alexander, iii. 386, b.
† Chomer, capital of Bactria, ii. 246, sub not.
Choniax stops the overflowing of the Tigris, iii. 852, f.
† Chorsa, a city in Armenia, iii. 693, d, (B).
Chus, an Idumæan deity, whence so named, iv. 140, (O).
Chusphoes. See Cosrhoes, iv. 346, & seq.
Cinocephalæ, what, ii. 429, c.
Cinyris, the supposed Pharaoh at the Exod. i. 432.
† Christ, Jesus, his birth foretold, iv. 155, & seq. 157, a. (R, S, T). Born at Bethlehem, 159, a, (V, 329, d, L). Year of his birth, computed, ibid. (Z). Manifested to the magi, 160, & seq. Presented at the temple, 163. Not of the Essenian sect, 173, b, c. Conveyed into Egypt, 179, & seq. Whence called a Nazarite, 190, a, (H). Stay at Jerusalem, 193, d. First entrance into his ministry, 197, b. Baptism, 198, b. First miracle, 199, b. Answer to his mother explained, ibid. (H). Fresh miracles, 200, & seq. Sublime discourse to Nicodemus, 201, & seq Miraculous cures in Galilee, 204, & seq. Vindicates his doing them on the sabbath, 206, 207, & (S). Chuses his twelve apostles, 208, c, d, (T). Sermon on the mount, 209, c. Raises the widow's son, 210, b. Absolves the sinful woman, 211, a Condemns infidelity, ibid. (A). Why he spake in parables, 212, b. Other miracles, 213, & seq. Why he ordered them to be concealed, 214, (G). Multiplies the loaves, 215, b. Walks on the sea, ibid. d, e. Reproves the Pharisees, 217, b, c. Goes to Tyre and Sidon, ibid. & seq. The Jews opinion concerning him, 218, d. Foretels his own death, 219. Transfigured, ibid. & seq. Acquits the adultress, 223, e. Raises Lazarus, 226. Circumstances of the miracle examined, ibid. (Y). Entry into Jerusalem, 227, & seq. Foretel its ruin with tears, 228, & seq. (B, C). Silences the Sadducees, &c. 231, & seq. Washes his disciples feet, 232, d. Describes the last day, 233, b. Celebrates the passover, ibid. & seq. & (L). Agony in the garden, 234, & (O). Condemned by the sanhedrim, 235, pass. Brought before Pilate, 236, b. Herod, 237. Scourged, 238. Crucified, 239, (v. 449). The hour when, ibid. (Y). His promise to the penitent thief, 240, b, (B). Last prayer, 241, a. Expires, 242, a. Why pierced in the side, ibid. b. And buried apart, ibid d. His tomb sealed and guarded, 243, b, (F). His resurrection, ibid & seq. Appears to his disciples, 245, pass. & (B). Commission to them, ibid. & seq. Taken up into heaven, 248, & seq. & (D). Testimony of profane authors concerning him, ibid. (E).
Christians, primitive, their admirable lives, iv. 252, & seq. Persecuted in Judæa, 253, e. Leave Jerusalem before its siege, 270, (O). Persecuted by Nero, 549, & seq. Confounded with the Jews by Tacitus, ibid. (D). By Domitian, 675, f. Tolerated by Nerva, vi. 3, d. Persecuted by Trajan, 27, b, c. By the Jews, 39, b. Parted and delivered from them, 41, a, b. Persecuted by Adrian, 48, d. Favoured by Antoninus 58, e. Their prayers obtain a miraculous victory, 71, & seq Favoured by M. Aurelius, 72, c, d. Why favoured by Alexander, 158, f. Grievously persecuted by Decius, 168, & seq. By Gallus, 171, b. By Valerian, 173, e, f. By Diocletian, 216, pass. By Maximin, 250, c, d. Constantine's edicts in their favour, 248, a. 250, e. Forbid to turn Jews, 302, c. Joy at Julian's death, 335, a. Encouraged by Jovian, 345, f, & seq. Massacred by Geronicus, 466, a. By the Alexandrian Jews, 471, b. Barbarity to Hypatia, ibid. d, e. Persecuted in Persia, 474, b. Restored, 475, d, e. Massacred by the Jews, 538, d. 539, e. By the Mohammedans, 551, d, e. By the Saracens, 557, a.
—— women, exempted from stage-plays, 393, d.
Chronology of the patriarchs, according to the Hebrew, i. 70. Septuagint, ibid. Samaritan pentateuch, 71.
—— from the creation to the flood, stated, 69. From thence to Abraham's departure, 110, a, b.
—— of the Egyptians, 93, & seq. & (I).
—— from the time of Alexander the Great, 228, & seq.
—— of the Jews, 733, & seq.
Chrysanthus refuses Julian's invitation, vi. 326, b, c. Made pontiff, ibid. c. His writings, &c. 339, not.
Chrysaphus's treachery to Attila forgiven, vi. 490, b, c, vii. 470, a——c.
Chrysargyrum, falsly ascribed to Constantine, vi. 269, c. What tax it was, ibid. Abolished by Anastasius, 518, a——c. Various sorts of it, ibid. d, e.
Chryse, the wife of Dardanus, her dowry, ii. 312, a.
Chrysippus put to death for treason, iii. 634, a.
—— witty sarcasm on Cæsar's triumph, v. 177, b.
Chryser, the same with Vulcan, &c. i. 88, a. Inventor of iron weapons, &c. ibid. First sailor, according to Sanchoniatho, ibid. Worshipped, ibid. &c.
† Chrysorrhoas, a river in Lydia, ii. 329, e. In Syria, iii. 361, e.
Chrysostom, saint, his narrow escape, vi. 375, e, f. Excellent homilies to the Antiochians, 408, e. Dreadful account of their trial and punishment, ibid. & seq. Intercedes for them, 410, c. Piety to the prisoners, 411, b. Joyful speech on their being pardoned, 412, b. Panegyric on Eudoxia, 433, a. Banished by her, ibid. & 437, c. Letters to Pentadia, ibid. d. Zeal for the church's asyla, 443, f, & seq. Saves three considerable lives, 445, e. Intrepidity against the Arians, 446, a, b. Banishment, 451, c. Manuscripts burnt, 558, e.
Chrysotelia, a new tax raised by Anastasius, vi 519, b.
† Chuni, who, vii. 458, d.
Churches, when first made asyla, vi. 422, f. Suppressed by Eutropius, 437, d. Restored, ibid e. Respected by Alaric, 464, d. By the Goths, ibid. e. By Honorius, 470, b. Inlarged fifty paces round, 473, b.
Chymical books, in Egypt, burnt by Diocletian, vi. 213, d.
Chyniladan, supposed the Nebuchadnezzar of Scripture, i. 897,

897, a, (Q). 947, b. Calls in all his Aſſyrian ſubjects againſt the Medes, 898; a. Defeats them, and deſtroys their capital, ibid. b, c. His 120 days banquet, ibid. See alſo under Nebuchadonoſor.
Ciacconius's deſcription of Trajan's column, vi. 26, d, e.
Ciaxares, his character and exploits, ii. 16; c. Driven out by the Scythians, ibid. & ſeq. Treachery to them; 17. War with the Lydians; 18. Reſumes the ſiege of Nineveh, ibid. & ſeq. Other conqueſts with the king of Babylon, 19; 20.
—— II. wars with Nerigliſſar, 21. The Darius of Daniel, ibid. f. Deſtroys Babylon, ibid. & ſeq. Divides the empire into 120 provinces, 22, c.
Cicero's injuſtice to Archimedes, iii. 122, d, e. Diſcovers his tomb, 124; b. Letter to Lentulus; 696; e. Succeſs againſt the Parthians, iv. 306, d. Character of Opimius, v. 12, f. Birth, 28, a. Firſt campaign, 52, a. Retires to Athens, 82, d. Speech in favour of Pompey, 102, a. Judgment of Jul. Cæſar, 103, b. Conſulſhip, 104, c. Unravels Catiline's plot, ibid. & ſeq. Accuſes him, 105, & ſeq. Styled father of his country, 106, f. 108, a. Partiality to Cæſar; 109, c. Speech againſt Clodius, ibid. & ſeq. (O). Fatal ſatires againſt the triumvirs, 114, c, (S). Outwitted by Cæſar, 115, a. By Clodius, ibid. e, f. Leaves Rome, 106, b. Reſtored, 119, b, c. Bravery in Cilicia, 128, a. Guards the Italian coaſts, 131, f. Rejects Cæſar's propoſal, 134, b, (H). Goes over to Pompey, 136, c, (K). Repents of it, ibid. c, (L). Forgiven by Cæſar, 154; b. Intercedes for Marcellus, 166; d. Ill-timed jeſt on Cæſar's calendar, 171, a. And conſulſhip of Caninius, 177, a. Speech on Cæſar's death, 188, e. Joins with Octavian, 196, b, (M). Severely reproved by Brutus, 201; d. Bitter ſpeech againſt Antony, 203, a, b. Narrow eſcape from Ventidius, 205, a. Untimely zeal againſt Antony, 209, c. Vanity mortified, 211, b, c. By Octavian, 213, b. His character of Dec. Brutus, 222, b, c. Condemned by the triumvirs, 223, e, f. His flight, 227; e. Perplexities, 228, & ſeq. Death, 229, b, (E). Character, ibid. & ſeq. Wrong character, of the Gauliſh religion, vii. 347, b, (A).
Cicero, his ſon, returns to Rome, 273, e.
—— Q. bravery againſt the Gauls, 124, c. In Cilicia, 128, b. Forgiven by Cæſar, 154, c.
—— Tullius, the ſon of Cicero. See Tullius, 215, & ſeq.
† Cicones, a people of Thrace, iii. 720.
Cidaris, a Perſian diadem, deſcribed, ii. 58; c.
† Cilicia, whence ſo called, ii. 339. Deſcribed, 340; & ſeq. Government, and various fates; 341, & ſeq. Kings, 342, & ſeq. Invaded by Alexander, 157, & ſeq. By Demetrius, iii. 441, d, e Made a Roman province, v. 650, d.
Cilician treachery and cruelty, a proverb, ii. 342, & not.
Cilix, the pretended founder of Cilicia, i. 409, b.
† Cimbri. Vid. Cimmerians, i. 166, & ſeq. Their origin, names, and territories, vii. [405], e, & ſeq. 490, e, f. Ill ſucceſs in Italy, [435], e, & ſeq.
—— women, their ſignal valour, 375, b, 436, (F).
† —— cherſoneſus deſcribed, vii. 486, paſſ. When and by whom inhabited, 487, a.
† Ciminian foreſt penetrated by the Romans, iv. 622.
† Cimmerians, the deſcendants of Gomer, i. 166. The ſame with the Gauls of Aſia Minor, ibid. Their invaſion of it, ii. 303, d. Take Sardis, 334, a. Their character, 840, b. A colony of them in Italy, ibid. e.
† —— where ſeated in Europe, vi. 4, e. Invade Italy, ibid. Defeat the Romans, 28, c. March towards Rome, 34, c. Inject a panic through Italy, 37. Totaly defeated, 38, paſſ.
—— women, their deſperate valour, vi. 38, c, d, vii. 375, b.
† Cimolis, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 219. Its earth, ibid.
Cimon, admiral of Athens, ii 482, c. His character, ibid. & ſeq. Conqueſts in Cyprus, 132, d. 482, & ſeq. In Cherſoneſus, &c. 483, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt the Perſians, 132. Aids the Lacedemonians, 484, 494. Tried for treaſon, 486, & ſeq. Baniſhed into Cyprus, 140, f. 487, b. Repulſed by the Athenian general, 488, a. Made admiral of Perſia, 148, a. Recalled, 489, d. Deſcent into Cyprus, ibid. f. Death and character, 490, b, & not. Carries Theſeus's bones to Athens, iii. 232, d.
Cinadon's conſpiracy diſcovered, ii. 607, & ſeq.
Cincian law, what, v. 500, c, & (L).
† Cinetii, who, and where ſited, vii. 175, b.
Cingetorix taken priſoner, vii. 426, c.
Cinna, L. Corn. choſen conſul, v. 56 His ſad character, ibid. c. Falſhood to Sylla, &c. 60, e, & ſeq Heads the allies, 61, a, b. Treachery to Pompey, 63, a. Enters Rome, 64, b. Seizes on the conſulſhip, 66, c. Oppoſes Sylla's return, 67. Third conſulſhip and tyranny, ibid. & ſeq. Allies with Cæſar, 68, f. Marches againſt Sylla, 69, a. Stabbed to death, ibid b.
—— Cæſar's brother-in-law, joins with his murderers, 186, f. Lays down his dignities, 187, a.
—— another, miſtaken for him, torn in pieces, 192, a, (H).
—— Cornel. conſpires againſt Auguſtus, 332; & ſeq. Pardoned by him; 333; b.
† Cinype, diſtrict and city, vii. 175, a, b.
† —— river, 176, e.
Cinyras; firſt king of Cyprus; iii. 175, e. His vaſt wealth, 176; a.
Cipus, M. general, ſent againſt the Boii, iv. 681, d. The fable of his two horns, ibid. (H).
† Circaſſian Tartary, part of Scythia, ii. 267, c.
Circæi revolt from the Romans; iv. 574, c.
† Circæus; a river in Eubœa, iii. 247, e.
† Circenſian games inſtituted by Auguſtus, iv. 313; e. Why exhibited by Totila, vii 673, d.
Circumciſion, very antient in Egypt, i. 112. By whom firſt introduced, 427, (R). Why diſcontinued in the deſert, 545. a. Renewed after the paſſage of Jordan, 555, c, d. How performed; 690; f, & ſeq. (A). Superſtitious additions of the Jews, 691; (I). Uſed in Ethiopia, vii. 201, e, (D).
Circumvallation-lines, when introduced; iv. 556, c.
† Circus, Roman, built by Tarquin, iv. 448, a, (E).
† Cirenceſter taken by the Saxons, vii. 452, f.
† Cirta deſcribed, vii. 108, d, & ſeq. When and by whom built; 109, c. Surrendered to Jugurtha, 129, d, e.
† Ciſalpine Gaul deſcribed, iv. 408.
† Ciſſa, river in Colchis, iii. 833.
——ſecond king of the Saxons, vii. 449, c.
Ciſſidas, the Gaul, aſſiſts the Spartans, ii. 618.
Citherea given to the Lacedemonians, v, 307, c.
† Citherean mount deſcribed, ii. 358, d.
Cities of Refuge. See Refuge,
—— how dedicated by the Hetrurians; iv. 424, b, (L).
† Citium in Cyprus, whence ſo called, i. 168, f. By whom built, ibid. & iii. 173, d.
Citizens, Solon's laws about them, ii, 433, c, f. Few at Athens, 427, d. How admitted, 488, a.
—— of Sparta; their number; &c. 561; c. Of Rome, their privileges, iv. 576, (Q).
† City, the great, razed by Agathocles, iii. 84, b.
† Cius, in Bithynia, by whom built, iii. 822, a.
Civic crown, on whom beſtowed; iv. 573, f.
Civis Maro, the Gaul, ſlain in Spain, vii. 49, b.
Clælia's ſurpriſing flight acroſs the Tiber; iv. 476, c, f.
Claſſes, how regulated by Servius, iv. 456, paſſ.
Claſſicus heads the revolted Gauls, v. 642. Succeſs againſt the Romans, ibid. c, d. Total defeat, 644, b, c.
—— accuſed of extortion, vi. 10, e. Kills himſelf, ibid.
† Claſtidium betrayed to Hannibal, iv. 700, c, vii. 18, f,
Claudebald. See Clodebald.
Claudia fined by the Ædiles, iv. 675, f.
—— the veſtal, ſaves her father, 781.
—— a miracle related of her, v. 331, c, 356; (L).
—— Pulchra, accuſed of treaſon, 427, e.
—— married to Caligula, 449, b.
—— daughter of Claudius, diſowned by him, 488, a.
Claudian family, its origin, &c. v. 356, (L).
Claudian's poem againſt Eutropius, vi. 435, f, & ſeq. & (N). On Honorius's marriage; 441, a. On Stilicho's exploits, ibid. b, c. On Manlius's conſulſhip, ibid. e. Other writings, and character, 476, (R).
Claudius's ſpeech to the Mamertines, iii. 93, d, & ſeq. Takes Meſſana, 94, e. Beſieged in it, 95, b. See alſo iv. 652, & ſeq. Ravages Syracuſe, 654, d.
—— Appius, comes over to the Romans, iv. 477, & ſeq. Choſen conſul, 485, a.
—— his ſon, oppoſes Valero, 514, e. Affronted by the tribunes, 515, d, e. Betrayed by his troops, 516, d. Severity to them, ibid. e. Cited by the tribunes, 517, b. Kills himſelf, ibid. c.
—— Caius, choſen conſul, 522, b. Noble ſpeech againſt the tribunes, 523. Oppoſes his nephew's tyranny, 533, & ſeq.
—— the helliſh tool of Appius, 540. Stratagem againſt Virginia, ibid. & ſeq. Put to death, 444, f.
—— Marcellus, diveſted of his dictatorſhip, 606, f
—— Pulcher, his attempt on Drepanum, 672, f. Defeated, 673. Depoſed and tried, ibid d, e.
—— Glycias, choſen dictator in deriſion, 673, d. Shamefu peace with Corſica, 682, d. His puniſhment, ibid e, f.
—— M. Marcel. choſen conſul, 689, b, c. Kills the Gaul king in ſingle combat, 690, b, c. Sent againſt Hannibal, 713 De 713. Defends Nola, 716, c—e. Abdicates his second conſulſhip, 718, b, d. Defeats Hannibal, 719. Third conſulſhip, 720, d. Succeſs in Sicily, 722, d. In Apulia, 730, c, d. Second defeat of Hannibal, ibid. d, f. Defeated by him, 732, e. Defeats him, 733, b. Surpriſed and killed, 735, a.

— Pulcher, triumphs over the Salaſſi, in ſpite of the ſenate, 780, e. Exhibits games, v. 43, d.
— Appius, betrays the Janiculum, 63, c. A brave young patrician killed, 73, b.
— the emperor, his extract, v. 294, c. 321, c. Why neglected at firſt, 406, (E). Choſen conſul by Caligula, 461, d. Deſpiſed by him, 463, f. Affronted by him in Gaul, 476, d. His character, pedigree, &c. 485, & ſeq. Why univerſally deſpiſed, 486, paſſ. His learning and writings, 487, & ſeq. Proclaimed by the ſoldiers, ſenate, &c. 489, & ſeq. His new haven at Oſtia, 494, a, (X). Cowardice, 492, d, e. 494, d. (Y). Succeſsful expedition againſt Britain, 496, & ſeq. Triumph, 497, paſſ. & (D). Wholeſome laws, 498, b—e. Appriſed of his wife's lewdneſs, 502, e, f. Reſolves to marry another, 505, c, (O). Marries Agrippina, 506, c. Inlarges the city, 507, c. Kindneſs to Caractacus, 511, e. Aqueduct, canal, and ſea-fight, 513, c, d. Omens before his death, 515, (Y). Poiſoned, 516, c, d. His character vindicated againſt Seneca, 517, a, b. Funeral honours, ibid. d, e. Apotheoſis, 519, e. His edict againſt the Druids, vii. 348, b, (C). Colony and temple in Eſſex, ibid. (L). Deſtroyed, 409, f. Expedition into Britain, 429. Succeſs there, 429, b. c. Honours done to him for it, ibid. d.
Claudius Civilis revolts in Batavia, v. 639, d, e. Joined by the Caninefates, &c. 640, c, d. Diſſimulation to Veſpaſian, ibid. e. Reſolves to ſhake off the Roman yoke, 641. Surpriſes their camp, ibid. & 643, f. Totally defeated, 644, a—c. Submits to Cerealis, and is forgiven, ibid. e.
— inlarges Alexander's muſeum, vi. 37, f.
— Maximus, his writings and character, 60, ſub not.
— Pompeianus marries L. Verus's widow, 68, e. Plots againſt Commodus, 87, f. Refuſes the empire from Pertinax, 95, b. From Julianus, 106, b.
— the emperor's cautious letter to Regillianus, 175, f. Funeral of Gallienus, 185, e. Proclaimed emperor, 186, a. His extract and riſe, ibid. b, c. Succeſs againſt Aureolus, ibid. d. Againſt the Germans, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Letters on his ſignal victory, 187, a, b. Death and character, ibid. d, e.
— Appius, ſent into Sicily, 822, d. Meſſage to Hiero, 825, a, b. Stratagem to get to land, ibid. c, d, (F). Succeſs, 826, d, e. Defeat at ſea, 846, d, e.
Claudius, Caius, ſent into Sicily, vi. 822, d, e. Gains over the Mamertines, 823, paſſ. Strengthens Meſſana, 824. Treachery to Hanno, ibid. c.
— the conſul defeats Hannibal, vii 65, e. Removes his collegue, 66, a. Defeats Aſdrubal, ibid. f, & ſeq. Signal bravery againſt him, 67, c. Throws his head into Hannibal's camp, ibid. f, & ſeq.
Clavi, among the Romans, what, iv. 449, (G).
† Clazomene, by whom founded, ii. 369, d. The ſtate of, 752.
Clazomenians driven out of Abdera, iii. 786, d.
Cleander choſen prime miniſter, vi. 89. His wicked adminiſtration, ibid. & ſeq. Put to death with all his family, 91, b, c.
Cleanneſs, Moſes's law for it, i. 688, c.
Clearchus tyrant of Heraclea's parricide and death, iii. 825, b.
— riſe and character, 403, b.
Clematius put to death for his continence, vi. 290, a.
Cleo, a famous robber, ii. 293, c, (M).
Cleobulina, princeſs of Rhodes, her great learning, iii. 134, a.
Cleobulus, one of the ſeven wiſe men, iii. 133, & ſeq.
— king of Sparta's contempt of Meandrus's riches, 197, b. Succeſs againſt the Achæans, 475, & ſeq. Defeated by Antig. Doſon, 476, f. Kind reception from Euergetes, 642. Ill treated by Philopator, 643. His ſad cataſtrophe, 644, a, b.
Cleodomir's baptiſm and recovery, vii. 570, b.
Cleombrotus invades Bœotia, ii. 615, & ſeq. Slain, 616.
— II. depoſes and ſucceeds Leonidas, 627, a. Baniſhed, ibid. e.
Cleomenes, king of Sparta, invades Athens, ii. 446, e.
— wars with the Argives, 583. Interview with Ariſtagoras, 587, not. Runs mad, 584. Kills himſelf, ibid. & ſeq. & 459, b.
— the ſon of Leonidas, reſtores the Spartan glory, 629, & ſeq. Kills the ephori, 630, a. Invades Achaia, 631. Taxes Argos, &c. ibid. b, c. Defeated by Antigonus, ibid. d. His ſad end, ibid. f.
— deſcent into Attica, 506, b.
Cleomenic war, the cauſes of, ii. 630, & ſeq. 645. The ſucceſs of, ibid. & ſeq.
Cleomeſtra, daughter of Tros, ii. 314, b.
Cleon, the orator, ſent to Sphacteria, ii. 509. Deſcent into Thrace, 512. Defeated and killed, ibid. & 597, c.
Cleopatra, the common name of the Egyptian princeſſes, iii. 665, a.
— put to death by Antigonus, iii. 436, a.
— married to Ptolemy, 550, e. Wife of Demetrius, marries Sidetes, 606, c. Shares Syria with Zebina, 611. Murders her own ſon, 612, a. Her death and character, 613, c, d.
— wife of Phyſcon, invites Demetrius againſt him, 610, & ſeq.
— daughter of Phyſcon, marries Cyzicenus, 613, & ſeq. Murdered by her ſiſter, 614, e. Her coin, 622, (W).
— wife of Philometor, left regent, 654, d. Cruelly uſed by Phyſcon, 655, & ſeq. Divorced, 656, e. Takes refuge in Syria, 657, & ſeq.
— the wife of Phyſcon, left regent, 658, f. Her ambition and partiality, ibid & ſeq. Treachery to Lathyrus, 659. Drives him out of Phœnice, 661, b. Murdered by her ſon, 662. Falſely confounded with the former, 664, (I).
— daughter of Lathyrus, ſucceeds him, 664, & ſeq. Marries Alexander II. 665, e. Aſſaſſinated by him, ibid. d.
— daughter of Auletes, married to her brother, 672, Driven out by her miniſters, 673, b. Privately carried to Cæſar, reinthroned by him, 678, & ſeq. Goes to Mark Antony at Tarſus, 679. Her magnificence and profuſeneſs, 680. Cruelty and avarice, 681, & ſeq. Takes the name of Iſis, 683, c. Fatal council to M. Antony, 684, d, e. Treachery to him, 685, & ſeq. Surpriſed by Proculeius, 688, c—e. Buries M. Antony, 689. Outwits Octavian, ibid. & ſeq. Kills herſelf, 690. Her character and funeral, ibid. & ſeq. (See alſo vol. v. 151, & ſeq.)
— joins with the Triumvirs, 232, e. Shipwrecked, 236, b. Summoned by Antony, 621. Her learning, wit, &c. ibid. c, d. Captivates him, 284, b, c. Goes with him into Europe, 285, & ſeq. Treachery to him, 290, d. At Actium, 292, d. Carried in triumph in effigy, 294, f.
— the wife of Antiochus Pius, put to death by Tigranes, 701, c.
— mother of Lathyrus, oppoſes him in Judea, iv. 98, c. Friendſhip to the Jews, ibid. & ſeq. Careſſes to Herod, 126, c. Intrigues againſt him, 133, & ſeq. Reception in Judea, 135, e. Her character, ibid. & ſeq. Helliſh plot againſt Herod, 136, c, d.
— one of Herod's wives, 152, ſub not. Supplants Archelaus, 186.
— Selene married to Juba, v. 167, e. 294, b.
— her daughter made queen of Libya, 285.
Cleophes, queen of India, ſubdued by Alexander, iii. 387, & ſeq.
Cleophon aſſaſſinated at Athens, ii. 529, a.
Clephis choſen king, and murdered, vii. 622, b.
Clergy, their immunities under Conſtantine, vi. 248, c, d. 151, paſſ. Under Conſtantius, 277, b. 279, a. 302, e. Renewed by Jovian, 344, b, c. Curtailed by Valentinian, 357, e. Inlarged by Gratian, 382, c, d. By Honorius, 439, c. By Marcian, 501, d, e.
— Britiſh, their horrid degeneracy, vii. 439, f. 452, b, c.
Clients, at Rome, what, iv. 426, a.
Clinias, king of Sicyon, killed, ii. 643, (B).
Clitander put to death for oppreſſion, iii. 403, & ſeq.
Clitomachus's writings and character, vi. 709, e, f.
Clitor, king of Arcadia, ii. 379.
Clodebald, the ſuppoſed elder brother of Meroue, vii. 562, d. Deprived by him of the crown, ibid.
Clodia, married to Octavian, v. 224, (A). Divorced, 263, e.
Clodio, king of the Franks, vii. 550, c. Settles afreſh in Gaul, ibid. d. His character and reign, 559, & ſeq. Founds the French monarchy, 560, a. Why ſurnamed Long-haired, ibid. b. His conqueſts and death, ibid. & ſeq.
Clodius, Pub. his revenge againſt the king of Cyprus, iii.

184, & ſeq. Unjuſt decree againſt that kingdom, 666, f. Raiſes a mutiny againſt Lucullus, 706, b—f. Lewdneſs and ſacrilege, v. 109, & ſeq. Courted by Pompey, 111. Choſen tribune, 114, c. Cabals againſt Cicero, ibid & ſeq. Baniſhes him, 116, b, c. Oppoſes his recal, 118, & ſeq. How killed by Milo, 125, & ſeq.
Clodomir's ſucceſs againſt Sigiſmond, vii. 586, paſſ. Defeated and killed, 587, a, b.
Clondicus, who, iii. 489, f. Outwitted by Perſeus, ibid. & ſeq.
Clothildis. See Chlothildis, vii. 567, & ſeq.
Clovis, Clodovecus, king of the Franks, vii. 550, e. Fixes his ſeat at Paris, ibid. f. His birth, 566, b. Dominions and conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. Stratagems to gain Chlothildis, 567, & ſeq. Defeats the Alemans, 568, e, f. His converſion and baptiſm, 569, d—f. When, 570, a. The firſt chriſtian king, ibid. d, e. Wars with the Burgundi, 571, & ſeq. Defeats them, 572, & ſeq. Falls out with Alaric, 575, & ſeq. Interview with him, 575, b, c. Defeats and kills him, ibid. & ſeq. Zeal for the catholics, 576, c. Conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. Peace with Theodoric, 577, b, c. Made conſul by Anaſtaſius, ibid. d, e. Treachery to Sigebert, and his ſon, 578, b—d. Proclaimed king, ibid. e, f. Seizes on their dominions, 579, a—c. Dethrones and murders Chararic, and his ſon, ibid. d, e. And ſome other princes, ibid. & ſeq. His death and progeny, 580, d, e. Diviſion of his kingdoms, ibid. e, f.
—— ſucceſs againſt Theodoric, v. 521, d.
Cluentius defeated and killed by Sylla, v. 52, d.
Cluilius, king of Alba, outwitted by Tullus, iv. 439. His ſudden death, ibid. d, e.
† Clupea, taken and evacuated by the Romans, iv. 662, f.
Clypei, at Rome, what, 401, (Z). 666, d. Where ſited, vi. 667, b. 837, a.
† Clypſedra, the foundation of, at Athens, v. 274, (L).
Cliſthenes, head of the Acmonian faction, baniſhed, ii. 456, d.
Clytemneſtra, her fabulous birth, 401. Agamemnon's wife, 357, c. Killed by Oreſtes, ibid.
Clytus, killed by Alexander, iii. 375, & ſeq. & (W).
Cneii, at Rome, who, v. 199, b.
Cneius, Pompey's ſon, hindered from killing Cicero, v. 155, e. Joins Cato at Utica, 157, b.
Cneph, the Architect of the world, according to the Egyptians, i. 13, d. How repreſented, ibid.
Cnidians, infranchiſed by Cæſar, v. 149, a.
† Cnidus, whether in Cyprus or no, iii. 174, c.
Cniva, a Bathian prince, vii. 492, d. Succeſs and ravages in Thrace, 494, c—f. The murderer of Decius, ibid. e.
Cnius, a Gauliſh ſlave defeated and killed, v. 97, e.
† Coa's ſtuffs deſcribed, iii. 212, e.
Coans, their government, kings, wars, &c. iii. 213, a.
Cocab, the Cavades of the Perſians, his treaſon, reign, and death, iv. 388, & ſeq.
Cocalus, king of Sicily, murders Minos, iii. 13, b.
† Cocas, the famed mountain of, iii 839, c.
Cocceius, Nerva, accompanies Tiberius, v. 430, a. Starves himſelf to death, 448, e.
Code of Juſtinian, vi. 484, b. 530, paſſ. Of Theodoſius, ibid. Gives way to a ſecond, 530, f.
† Codropolis, where ſituate, v. 270, c, (H).
Codrus ſacrifices his life for his country, ii. 368, & ſeq.
—— funeral of Pompey the great, v 150, (B).
† Cœlo-Syria, the ſame with Syria Cava, i. 361, c. Reduced by Alexander, iii. 337, & ſeq.
† Cœlius, mount, whence ſo called, iv. 430.
† Cœnacula, at Rome, deſcribed, iv. 437, e.
† Cœnina, where ſituate, iv. 429, (X).
—— taken by Romulus, ibid. c.
† Cœnomanes ſettle in Italy, iv. 561, f. vii. 391, d.
Cœnus, king of Macedon, iii. 273, a.
—— wounded at Guagamela, 350, & ſeq. Made commander of Bactria, 382, d. Defeats the rebels there, 383. Speech in behalf of the ſoldiers, 394, & ſeq. His death, 396, in fin. (F).
Coes, why made king of Leſbos, iii. 106, f. And ſtoned, ibid.
Cognomen, among the Romans, what, iv. 444, (Z).
Coborts, their diviſion and office, v. 298, b. How regulated by Adrian, vi. 47, c. Their different ſtations in Britain, vii. 418, paſſ.
† Coimbra, taken and plundered by the Suevi, vii, 514, e. 546, c. 547, a.
Coin, firſt invented by the Lydians, ii. 531, b. And of iron by the Spartans, 565, c. Where firſt made, iii. 244.
—— of Macedon, 267. Of Syria, 620, & ſeq. (W). When firſt coined at Rome, iv. 457, c. How ordered, v. 355, (I). Falſe coiners ſeverely puniſhed, vi. 194, d.
Colæus's fortunate voyage to Theſſaly, iii. 189, b.
† Colchi, whether the Caſluhim of Moſes, i. 344, (K). Tributary to Perſia, ii. 69, a.
Colchian war begun, iv. 352, & ſeq. Ended, 356, d.
† Colchis, an Egyptian colony, i. 256. Part of Scythia, ii. 267, e. Deſcribed, iii. 832. Its origin, kings, &c. 833. Gold mines, 834, c—e. Subdued by Mithridates, ibid. f. Submits to Trajan, vi. 18, c.
† Collatia, taken by Tarquin, iv. 447, e.
Collatinus, whence ſo called, iv. 447, e. Defeated, 448, b.
—— choſen conſul, 466. Partiality to the conſpirators, 479, f. 481, (X). Depoſed, ibid. c.
† Collipo, a city in Luſitania, vii. 297, b.
† Collops magnus, its ruins, vii. 109, e.
† —— parvus, ditto, 110, a.
† Colonia, the ſtrongeſt city in Armenia, 693, c.
—— whence called Agrippina, v. 508, b. Declares for Vitellius, v. 599, a. Taken by the Franks, vi. 296, c. Retrieved by Julian, 297, e.
† —— Cologn, the metropolis of the Ubii, vii. [407], e.
—— taken by the Franks, 556, a. By Julian, ibid. c. By Clodio, 561, & ſeq. Deſtroyed by the Alemans, 591, † Colophon, by whom founded, ii. 369, d. The ſtate of, 753, b. Deſcribed, iii 569, a.
† Coloſſe, a city in Phrygia, ii. 293, c. Coloſſus of Rhodes deſcribed, iii. 130, & ſeq. Overturned, 131, b. Its weight, ibid. c. Deſtroyed by the Saracens, 544, d, e.
Colour of white and black men, how accounted for, i. 47, d, e.
† Colpas, a river in Bithynia, iii. 827, b.
Colpias, a wind, and his wife Bau, the parents of the firſt men, i. 47, d, e, (N).
† Colpitis, Phœnice, whence ſo named, i 391, d, (A).
† Colubraria, iſland, deſcribed, vii. 309, a.
† Columns of Hermes, in Egypt, i. 222, d.
† Comana, a city in Pontus, iii. 721, a. In Cappadocia, 762.
Combabus, the founder of the prieſts of the Syrian goddeſs; his ſtory, i. 374, d, &c.
Combats, ſingle, an ancient way of deciding, ii. 360, b.
Comes domeſticorum, his office, vi. 171, b.
Comet, the traject of one ſuppoſed to have cauſed the flood, i. 101, a, (N).
—— two large ones, at the birth of Mithridates, iii. 727, a, (P).
—— one in Nero's reign, v. 535, f. Under Theodoſius, vi. 416, b.
—— under Conſtantine, 155, f. Under Ducas, 603.
† Comintum, taken by the Romans, iv. 637, d.
Cominus, defeats the Volſci, iv. 492, f. Generoſity to Cai. Marcel. 493, b.
—— Pontius, ſwims down the Tiber to the capitol, 564, e. f.
Comites, their office, vi. 271, e. 272, a.
—— Britanniarum, ditto, vii. 417, a. Extenſive power, 419, a, b.
Comitium, whence ſo called, 432, (E).
Comius, made king of the Atrebates, vii. 421, c. Impriſoned, 422, f.
† Comagene, part of Syria, i. 360, d. The kingdom of, deſcribed, iii. 853, & ſeq. Subdued by the Romans, ibid. f. Reſtored to Antiochus, v. 461, e, f.
Commandments. See Decalogue, i. 514, & ſeq.
Commentarienſis, a goaler, his office, vii. 417, a.
Commentiolus's ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, vi. 535, a, b. Put to death by Phocas, 536, e. 538, c. See alſo vol. iv. 360, c 364, a.
Commerce, the origin of, after the flood, i. 173, e, f.
† Commodiana Colonia, Rome, whence ſo called, vi. 92, f.
Commodianus's writings and character, vi. 275, ſub not.
Commodus, L. Ver. See under Verus, vi. 44, & ſeq.
—— the emperor born, 62, c. Created Cæſar, 65, e. Takes the manly robe, 76, c. Tribuneſhip, 78, b. Legitimacy doubtful, ibid. d. & 85, b. Conſulſhip, 79, c. Marries Criſpina, 80, a. His character and bloody reign, 85. & ſeq. Herculean fates, 86, b, c. Rapines, ibid. & ſeq. Peace with the Marcomani, &c. 87, a. Triumph, ibid. Takes the name of Pius, ibid. b. Britannicus, ibid. d. Eſcapes being murdered. 88, a. His cruel proſecutions, ibid. & ſeq. Retires to Laurentum, 90, d. Aſſaulted in his palace, 91, b, c. New butchery, ibid. & ſeq. Mad exploits, 92, d, e. Changes the names of the months, ibid. e. Conſpired againſt, 93, b. Strangled, Strangled, ibid. f. Burial, 94, a, b. His good deeds, ibid Catamites ſold to Pertinax, 97, paſſ. Letter to Albinus in Britain, 102, (K). Deified by Severus, 113, e.

Comneni, their reſidence at Trapeſus, iii. 722, b. Their family, vii. 289, a, (B). Emperors of Trapezond, 290, & ſeq. Butchered by Mohammed II. 293, b——d.
Comnenus, Iſaac, choſen emperor, vi. 601, f. Defeats Stratonicus, 602, paſſ. Crowned, 603, a. Reſigns, ibid. c, d.
—— Alexius's ſucceſs againſt Ruſetius, 601, a, b. Stratagem againſt Bryennius, ibid. & ſeq. Againſt Baſilacius, 608, a. Crowned emperor, ibid. & ſeq. Doth penance, 609, c. Peace with the Turks, ibid. d. Defeated by Guiſcard, 610, paſſ. By the Scythians, 611, e. Signal victory over them, 612, a, &c. Peace with them, 613, a, b. Jealouſy of the cruiſadors, 614, c, d. Treachery to them, 616, b. Succeſs againſt the Turks, ibid. c. Quarrel with Bohemond, ibid. d. Peace with them, 617, a, b. Death and character, ibid. & ſeq.
—— John, his ſon, proclaimed, ibid. d. His ſingular character, ibid. e. Victory and peace with the Turks, ibid f. Succeſs againſt ſundry barbarians, 618. Reduces ſome provinces, ibid. b, c. Impious attempt upon Antioch, ibid. d, e. Death and character, ibid. & ſeq.
—— Alexius II. See Alexius, 620, e
Companies, Roman, erected by Numa, iv. 437, c.
Compitales Dii, who, 455, c.
Compoſitus's revolt and death, vii. 687, b, c, (T).
† —— Compſa ſurrenders to Hannibal, vii 32, d.
† Comum taken by the Romans, 690, d. The place of Pliny's birth, vi. 29, not. His benefactions to it, ibid.
Conacorix betrays Heraclea to the Romans, iii. 747, b.
† Concord, the temple of, why, and where built, iv. 582, c. A monument of Opimius's cruelty, 809, c. Repaired by Tiberius, v. 324, b.
Concoſitanus invades Rome, iv. 687, c, &c. Taken priſoner, 688, d.
Concubines ſuppreſſed by Conſtantine, vi 256, e.
Conſidius repulſes Cæſar from Adrumetum, v. 158, d.
—— Proculus put to death, 446, d.
Confuſion of tongues. Vid Tongues, i. 144, paſſ.
Congiaria, among the Romans, what, iv. 446, b.
† Conimbrica, a city in Luſitania, vii 297, a.
Conon ſucceeds Alcibiades, ii 528, b His ſucceſs againſt the Spartans, 143, d. 528, d. Engages Perſia on the ſide of the Athenians, 536, b. 559, b. Rebuilds Athens, ibid f, & 537, a Defeated by Lyſander, 602, d. Accuſed before Artaxerxes, 144. Condemned, ibid. c.
—— the Samian, his character, 195.
—— the inventor of Berenices coma, 639, f.
—— Meriodoc, comes into Britany, vi. 400, f.
—— biſhop, his bravery againſt the Romans, 519, c. Slain, ibid, d.
Cononius, the betrayer of Tarentum, vii. 53, a——c.
† Conovium, Conway, the antient ruins of, vii. 411, f.
Conſtans I. the ſon of Conſtantine, born, vi. 235, c. Made Cæſar, 259, e. 264, d. His ſhare of the empire, 266, a. Proclaimed, 274, a. Styled Auguſtus 275, a. Defeats and kills his brother, 276, c, d. Marches againſt the Franks, ibid. e, f. And Scots, 277, b. His zeal for orthodoxy. 278, a. Murdered, 280, b. His character vindicated, ibid. & ſeq.
Conſtans II. the ſon of the Britiſh Conſtantine, made Cæſar, 455, c. Conquers Spain, ibid. d. Driven out of it, 462, e. Choſen conſul, 469, c. Married to Placidia, 472, b, c.
—— III. the grandſon of Heraclius, crowned, 544, c. Great diſaſters during his reign, ibid. d, e. Promotes Monetheliſm, ibid. e. Defeated at ſea, ibid. f. Wars againſt the Sclavi, ibid. & ſeq. Peace with the Saracens, 545, a. Fratricide, ibid. b. Diſmal condition ſince, ibid. c, d. Extortions and death, ibid. d, e.
—— why he invaded Italy, vii. 694, d——f. Repulſed before Benevento, 695, a——d. Other defeats, ibid. d——f. Enters Rome, ibid. & ſeq.
Conſtantia, the daughter of Conſtantius, vi. 226, e. Married to Licinius, 227, a. 250, e.
—— the daughter of Conſtantine, born, 235, c. When converted, 244, c.
—— daughter of Conſtantius, born, 314, a. Her narrow eſcape, 362, a.
Conſtantianus's riſe and death, vi. 352, e.
Conſtantina, the widow of Annibalianus, vi. 266, a. Married to Gallus, 283, b. Inſtigates him by her pride and cruelty, 289, d, e. 291, e. Dies in her way to Italy, 292, d, e.
—— the widow of Mauritius, racked and executed, 535, & ſeq.
—— the city of, converted, 265, c.
† —— Numidia, where ſited, vii. 108, c. Deſcribed, 109, d.
Conſtantine, the family of, vi. 186, b. 226, e, f.
—— the emperor, when and where born, 226, e. 227, b——e. Speech on Dioclefian's abdication, 218, a. Cenſure of Porphyry, 224, ſub not. Excellent character, 230, b——d. Why hated by Galerius, 231, a——e. Outwits him, 232, b. Joins his father in Gaul, ibid. c, d. Proclaimed emperor, ibid. & ſeq. Severity to the Franks, 233, f. Bridge over the Rhine, 234, b, c. Allies with Maximian, 235, b. Betrayed by him, 237, e, f. Forced to put him to death, 238, & ſeq. Whence ſurnamed Maximus, 239, d, e. 245. Marches againſt Maxentius, 242, d, e. 245. Miraculous converſion, 243, b, c, &c. Inſtructed in the chriſtian religion, 244, b, c. Succeſs againſt Maxentius, 245, d, e. Singular dream and victory, 246, b——e. Mildneſs to the Maxentians, 247, a, b. Triumphal arch and honours, ibid. & ſeq. Stops the perſecution, 248, a. Cycle called indiction, 249, c. Whence intitled Francicus, 250, f, & ſeq. Reſcript in favour of the clergy, 251, & Againſt ſchiſmatics, 252, a. Defeats Licinius, 254, c—e. Makes peace with him, ibid. & ſeq. His laws in Greece, 255, a. 256, paſſ. Succeſs againſt the Sarmatians, 257, a. Againſt Licinius, ibid. & ſeq. Grants him a new peace in Aſia. 258, & ſeq. Defeats and puts him to death, 259, a, b. Edict in favour of the chriſtians, ibid. f. Againſt idolatry, 260, b - d. Heretics, ibid. e. At Nicomedia, ibid. & ſeq. Inſulted at Rome, 261, b. Severity to Criſpus and others, ibid. d, e. Fatal to his whole family, 262, a. Bridge over the Danube, ibid. c. Favours the Arians, ibid. e. Largeſſes to Conſtantinople, ibid. & ſeq. Defeats the Goths, &c. 262, 264, b, e. Generoſity to Antioch, &c. ibid. c, d. e. Tranſlation of the holy Scriptures, 265, c. Partiality to the Arians, ibid. & ſeq. Diviſion of the empire, 266, a, b. Wars with the Perſians, ibid & ſeq. Laſt ſickneſs, 267, a. By whom baptized, ibid. b. Death, ibid. d. Laſt will put into bad hands, ibid e. Stately mauſoleum, 268, b, c. And high encomiums, ibid. & ſeq. Vindicated, 269, & ſeq. Wholeſome regulations, 270, & ſeq. Writings, 272, (F). The end of his family, 275, a.
Conſtantine II. born, 235, c. Created Cæſar, 255, e. Share of the empire, 266, a. Proclaimed, 273, & ſeq. Title of Auguſtus, 275, a. Invades Conſtans, 276, c. Defeated and killed, ibid. d, & ſeq.
—— III. choſen emperor in Britain, 454, b. Succeſs in Gaul, ibid. & ſeq. In Spain, 455, c, d. Repulſed out of Italy, 465, c, d. Beſieged in Arles, 466, e. Surrenders, and beheaded, 467, a, b.
Conſtantine IV. the ſon of Heraclius, made Cæſar, 540, a. Meets his father's triumph, 542, b, c. Crowned and poiſoned, 544, b, c.
—— V. the ſon of Conſtans, proclaimed, 545, e. Why ſurnamed Pogonatus, ibid. f. Jealous of his two brothers, ibid. & ſeq. Makes peace with Mahuvias, 546, c, d. With the Bulgarians, ibid. e. Calls a council, ibid. Dies ibid. f.
—— VI. Copronymus, born, 551, e. Why ſo called, ibid. f. Proclaimed, 552, a. Marries Irene, 554, b. Depoſed, ibid d, e. His revenge, ibid. e, f. Succeſs againſt the Saracens, ibid. & ſeq. Stopped by public calamities, 555, b, c. Invaded by the Bulgarians, ibid. c, d. Perſecutes image-worſhippers and friers, ibid. &c. Outwitted by the Bulgarian king, 556, a——c. His death, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
—— VII. the ſon of Leo by Irene, made his collegue, 556, c. Crowned 557, b. Conſpired againſt, ibid. c. Confined by his mother, ibid & ſeq. Reſtored, and depoſes her, 558, c. Cruelty to Nicephorus, and his friends, ibid. e. To the mutinous Armenians, ibid. f. Divorces Mary to marry Theodota, 559, a. Noble anſwer to Cordanes, ibid. b. Flight and death, ibid. & ſeq.
—— VIII. the ſon of Michael, his Cæſarſhip and death: 573, e.
—— IX. the ſon of Leo, born, 575. Kept under by Romanus, 577, a, b. 579, & ſeq. Reſumes his power, 580 Severity to him and his family, ibid. f. Death, 581, f.
—— X.

—— X. the brother of Basilius, made his collegue, 585, b. Sole emperor after his death, 593. His wicked reign, ibid. & seq. Death, 594, b.
—— XI. Monomachus, marries Zoe, 597, f. Crowned, 598, a. Success against the Saracens, ibid. b. Against the Turks, 600, pass. Death, 601, a.
—— XII. Ducas, chosen emperor, 603, c. His fatal avarice and death, ibid. & seq.
—— XIII. Paleologus. See Paleologus, 649, & seq.
—— Atilius's general, cut off in Afric, 461, d.
—— the son of Andronicus, his narrow escape, 576, b. Timely warned by Leo, ibid. e. His treason and death, 578, b.
—— Leo's high chamberlain, 576, e, f. Swears the Romans before the holy cross, 578. Poisoned by Romanus, 581, d. His character, ibid. & seq.
—— the son of Andronic. Paleol. sent against his rebellious grandson, 639, d. Kept prisoner by him, ibid. e, f.
—— the son of king Arthur, vii. 450, d. His wicked reign, 451, c, d.
† Constantine's square burnt, 519.
† Constantinople, when begun, vi. 262, d. Dedicated, ibid. e. Why built by Constantine, ibid. & seq. How adorned, 263, b—d. Consecrated, ibid. e. Governed, ibid. f. & 305. Beautified by Constantius, 315, e, f. By Julian, 327, b. In danger from the Goths, 433, d, e. Threatened with a fiery sky, 437, e. Shattered by an earthquake, 447, e. The great church of it, burnt, 451. In a tumult, for want of corn, 463, a, b. Surrounded with new walls, 469, c. Burnt by a three days fire, 482, f. Damaged by an earthquake, 489, b. By a six days fire, 508. The city and library burnt, 515. In a tumult through various factions, 525, f. Thirty thousand persons killed in it, 526, b, c. Laid waste by pestilence and the Hunns, 529, pass. Besieged by the Saracens, 546, b. Surprised by Justinian, 549, a. Taken by Theodosius, 550, e. Noble defence against the Saracens, 551, b, c. Damaged by an earthquake, 554, c. Taken and plundered, ibid. e, f. Both seas of it frozen, 555, e. Damaged by a great fire, 558, b. And earthquake, ibid. c. Plundered and ravaged, 608, e, f. Besieged by Alexius, 626, e, f. Set on fire, 626, d. Besieged by the Latins, 627, b, e. Taken and plundered, ibid. e, f. Retaken by the Greeks, 633, d, e. Rebuilt, 634, a, b. Besieged by Bajazet, 646, f, & seq. Relieved, 647, c, d. Blockaded by Mohammed II. 649, & seq. Besieged, 650, d. Taken, and put to the sword, 653, d. Made the capital of the Turkish empire, ibid. f, & seq.
Constantius Chlorus made Cæsar by Maximian, vi. 209, e, f. His share of the empire, 210, a, b. Success in Gaul, 211. Buildings and works there, ibid. e, f. Sails into Britain, 212, b, c. Up the Thames, ibid. e. Success against the Alemans, 215, d. Declares emperor, 218, d. His extract, 224, a. Rise and character, 225, a—c. Generous way of raising money, ibid e, f. Protects the christians, 226, b, c. Discards the apposlates, ibid. d, e. New share of the empire, 231, c. Success against the Britons, 232, d. Death and obsequies, ibid. & seq. The first wearer of a diadem, 279, a —— the son of Constantine, 235, c. 267, a. His share of the empire, 266, a. Marries his uncle's daughter, ibid. e. Made executor to his father, 267, d. Performs his obsequies, 268, b, c. Proclaimed, 274, a Whether the murderer of his relations, ibid. b, c. Wars with the Armenians, 276, a—c. Yields Constantine's share to Constans, ibid. e, f. Triumphs over the Persians, 277, c. Marches against Maxentius, 282, b—d. Artful speech to his army, ibid. & seq. Success, 283, e Pity and clemency to the Maxentians, 285, b. Enters Italy, ibid. & seq. Affection for Eusebia, 286, c. Success against Magnentius, 287, e, f. Clemency to the revolted, 288, b. Contradicted by other authors, ibid. c, &c. Hates the orthodox, 289, b. Success against the Alemans, 290, c, &c. Enters Italy, ibid. e, f. Design against Gallus frustrated, 291, b—d. Puts him to death, 292, b—d. His abominable pride, ibid, f. Success against the Germans, 294, c, d. Directions to Julian, when made Cæsar, 297, a. Success in Rhætia, ibid. & seq. Grand entry into Rome, 293, a. Takes the honour of Julian's, victories, 301, e, f. Answer to Sapor's haughty letter, 302, f, & seq. Success and cruelties in Sarmatia, 303, 305. Marches against Sapor, 308, c, d, Policy and menaces against Julian, 310, & seq. Stirs up the Germans against him, 313, e, f. Marries Faustina, 314, a. His death, baptism. &c. ibid & seq. Library at Constantinople, 315, c.
—— Julius, the son of Chlorus, his death, 186, f.
—— the brother of Constantine, 266, e. Made a patrician, 271, f, & seq. Murdered by the soldiers, 275, a.
—— Theodosius's general, his character and success against Constantine, 466, b, c. Succeeds him, ibid d. Chosen consul, 469, c. Baffles Atulphius, 470, b. Raised to the purple, 473, d. His death, ibid. e.
—— the Gaul, crucified by Attila, vii. 466, a.
Consulars, among the Romans, their office, vi. 271, b, c.
Consulate shortened to three months, vi. 10, b.
Consuls, when first chosen at Rome, iv. 466, c. Their office, dress, &c. ibid. (S). Oath against the Tarquins, 468, a. Suppressed by the decemvirs, 535, & seq. Restored, 543, f. 561, & seq When first chosen from the plebeians, 582, e.
—— in Italy, their office, &c. 721, b, (B).
Consulships, reckoning by, abolished, vi. 526, d. Restored by Justin II. ibid. e.
Contracts, how made among the Scythians, ii. 273.
Cooks, at Rome, reduced by Julian, vi. 325, e.
Coon, the son of Antenor, killed, ii. 315, b.
Coos confederates against Athens, ii. 542, e.
† Copais, the spring-head of the Asopus, ii. 361, d. Described, 317, d. 744, (G).
Coptic letters, whether the modern be the same with the old Egyptian, i. 224, (M). The Coptic alphabet, 225. Tongue, how compounded, 226. Different from all other known ones, ibid. b, c.
† Coptos, an ancient city of Thebais, i. 175, e. The residence of the ancient Egyptians, ibid. Destroyed, vi. 213.
† Corax, a river in Colchis, iii. 833, c.
Corban, the offerings of living creatures, why so called, i. 624, (A).
Corbulo sent to quiet Armenia, iii. 713, c, d. His severe discipline, ibid. & seq. Success against Tiridates, 714, & seq. Interview with him, 716, d, e.
Corbulo Domitius, his success against Vologeses, iv. 318, & seq.
† Corcyra island described, iii. 240, & seq. Invaded by the Corinthians, ii. 496, c. The dreadful sedition of, 506, & seq. 509, & seq.
† —— the metropolis of the island, iii. 240, d. Betrayed to the Romans, iv. 685, f. Taken by Manuel, vi 619, e.
† Corcyreans, a colony of Corinth, ii. 495. War with the Epidamnians, ibid. & seq. Treachery to the Spartans, &c. ibid. e. Their government, navigation, &c iii. 240, d. Treachery to the Greeks, ibid. f. Protected by the Samians, 190, b. War with the Corinthians, 280, a.
† Corduba, a city in antient Spain, vii. 301, a.
† Corfinium made the capital of the Marsi, v. 49, a. Of the Peligni, 133, a. Surrendered to Cæsar, ibid. b, (G).
† Corinth, the kingdom of, part of antient Greece, ii. 344, b. Described, 390, a. When, and by whom founded, 392. Subdued by the Heraclidæ, ibid. d. The whole duration of it, 393.
† —— the city of, by whom built, 390, c. Why so called, ibid. And Heliopolis, ibid d. Described, 391, a, b. Its situation, opulence, and buildings, ibid. & seq. Besieged by Agesilaus, 612, f. Surprised by Aratus, 623. Accedes to the Achæan league, ibid. & seq. Taken and burnt by the Romans, 698, & seq. Burnt by the Heruli, vi. 184, d. Damaged by an earthquake, 523, f. In great joy at Timoleon's victory, 785, c, d.
† —— the citadel of, taken by Gonatus, iii. 473, f. By Aratus, 474, b. See also Acrocorinth.
Corinthian order, whence, ii. 361, c.
—— metal, what, 699, b, & not.
† Corinthians given to traffick, ii. 391, a. 392, b. Their character, antiquity, and government, ibid. & seq. Kings, 393, & seq. Subdued by the Dores, 394, d. Invade Corcyra, 496, c. Engage them at sea, 497. Their politic treatment of their prisoners, 506, & seq. Reject the Nicean peace, 512, f. Joins with the Achæans, 643, & seq. Affront the Roman deputies, 695, a. Subdued and sold for slaves, 698, & seq.
—— restore liberty to Syracuse, iii 77, c, d. War with the Samians, why, 190, b. With the Corcyreans, 280. Their noble defence of Syracuse, vi. 775, a—d And of its citadel, 779, c, d. Take Acradina, ibid. f.
Corinthus, whose son he was, ii. 390, d, & not.
Coriolanus's bravery, iv. 492. Defeats the Antiates, 493. Falls out with the tribunes, 494, d. Speech to the Curiæ, 495, b. Condemned to death, ibid. d, & seq. His noble defence, 497, b. Banished, ibid. & seq. Goes to the Volsci, 498, & seq. Stratagem and revenge, 499, pass. Answer to the deputies, 500, pass. To the priests, ibid f. To

To his mother, 502; b. Accuſed by Attius, ibid. e. His death, ibid. & ſeq.
Corioli defeated by the Romans, iv. 493, a.
† Coritani, who, and where ſited, vii. 410, a, b.
Coritus, king of Samothrace, ii 319, a; & not.
— his offspring, iv. 418, d.
† Cornavii, who, and where ſited, vii. 410, c; d.
Cornelia refuſes Phyſcon's offers; iii. 652.
— a poiſoner, put to death, iv. 605, a.
— the mother of Gracchus, incites him to ſedition; 789, d. Her two letters to Caius, 800, (X).
— Julia Paula, married to Heliogabalus; vi. 135, a. Her excellent character, ibid. b.
Cornelius Cethegus cabals againſt Marcellus, iii. 126, b. Subdues the reſt of Sicily, 127, b.
— a centurion, converted by St. Peter, iv. 267, & ſeq.
— Malugin. defeats the Æqui, 526.
— Arvina, choſen conſul; 595, f. Hemmed in by the Samnites, 596, f. Defeats them, 597, e. Second conſulſhip, 635; c. Kills thirty thouſand Samnites, 626, a.
— Barbatus, choſen dictator, 626, b.
— Scipio. See under Scipio, 629, & ſeq.
— Lentulus triumphs over the Luſitanians, 647, a. Over the Gauls, 682, b.
— Aſina, his ſucceſs in Sicily, 666. Triumph, 667, e.
— prætor of Sardinia, dies of the plague, 683, d.
— Tiber. Coruncian. a plebeian, choſen conſul, 646. And pontifex maximus, 668. Degrades thirteen lewd ſenators, ibid. e.
Cornicularii, in Britain, their office, vii 417, a.
† Corniculum taken by Tarquin, iv. 447, e.
† Cornwall, made part of the Weſt-Saxon kingdom, vii. 449, e
† Coromæa plundered by the Romans, ii. 720, f. 744, f, & (H).
Corvinas Silicius ſtands alone in Brutus's defence, v. 221, a. Aſſaſſinated by Octavian, ibid. b.
Correctors, at Rome their office, vi. 271, b, c.
† Corſica conquered by the Romans, iv. 660, b. Revolts 682, d. Reduced by Varus, ibid. e. Made a Roman province, 684; f.
— when invaded by the Carthaginians, vi. 731; a, b. Deſcribed, ibid. c. Reduced by Scipio, 833, & ſeq.
† Cortona, and other leucumonies, make truce with Rome, iv. 623; a.
† Cortuoſa taken and demoliſhed, iv, 569.
Corvilius's ſucceſs againſt Samnium, iv. 636, & ſeq.
— Maxim. quite ſubdues it, 647, e, f.
Corvus, a warlike engine, by whom invented, iv. 658, b. Deſcribed, ibid. &c. See alſo vi. 831, (M). Whether different from the manus ferreæ, ibid. (N).
† Corybantes, whence ſprung, ii. 297, d, & (W). Among the Phœnicians, who, vi. 694, b.
Corybas, the ſon of Cybele by Jaſius, 297, d, (W). Goes into Phrygia, iii. 240, a.
Corycus, the naval fight of, iii. 555, c, d.
† Cos, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 272, d. Taken by Nicander, 105, e. Subdued by Mithridates, 213, b. By the Romans, ibid. c, d.
† — metropolis, deſcribed, 212, d. Overthrown, 213. vi. 19, a. Repaired by Antoninus, ibid. b.
† Coſentia ſurrenders to Hannibal, vii. 41, b. Revolts to the Romans, 50, d.
Coſſi, prince of Albania, killed by Pompey, iii. 838, d, e.
Coſmi in Crete, their office, iii. 170, b.
Cosmogony of the Phœnicians, Egyptians, &c. See under their reſpective names, i.
Coſroes, king of Parthia, his ſucceſs in Armenia, iv. 319. Driven out by Trajan, ibid. & ſeq. Recalled by the Parthians, 320.
— a great favourer of the Caraites, iv. 176, (L).
— invaded by Trajan, vi. 16, e, f. Submits, 17, b. Gives him the ſlip, 21, a. His golden throne ſeized by him, ibid. b. Recalled by Adrian, 33, d.
— invades Syria, 526, e, f. Deſtroys Antioch, ibid. f. Makes peace with Juſtinian, 527, b. Treachery to him, ibid. c. Repulſed by Beliſarius, ibid. e, f. Before Edeſſa, 528, a. Truce with Rome, ibid. f. Sues for peace, 529, c. Renews the war, 532, b, c. New truce made and broken, ibid. f, & ſeq. Defeated, and breaks his heart, 533, a, b.
— the ſon of Hormiſdas, forced to depoſe him, 535, c. Driven from the kingdom, ibid. d. Reſtored by Mauritius, ibid. e. Wars againſt Phocas, 536, c. Devaſtations in Syria, 538, b, c. In Cappadocia, &c. 539, d. In Egypt, Paleſtine, &c. ibid. e. Blaſphemous anſwer to Heraclius, 540, a. Defeated by him, ibid. & ſeq. Bloody revenge on the chriſtians, 541, c. Depoſed and murdered; 542, a, b.
† Coſſa, why forſaken by its inhabitants, vi. 477; not.
Coſſeans, why ſubdued by Alexander, iii. 408.
Coſſus, Cornel. kills Tolumnius; iv 548, f. Choſen conſul; 550, c. General of horſe; ibid. e. Conſul, 554, c. Dictator, 571. Defeats the Volſci; ibid. d.
— his ſingular ſecrecy; vi. 449, a.
† Coſſyra, iſland deſcribed, vi. 671, (E).
† Coſſyrus taken by Servilius, vii. 27, b.
Coſtobares put to death by Herod; iv. 140; d.
† Cotes, promontory, where, vii. 145, c.
† — port, 146, c.
† Cothon, one of the three parts of Carthage, vi. 662. Its etymon, ibid. & ſeq.
Cotta's ill ſucceſs againſt Mithridates, iii. 740, & ſeq. (v. 95; c, d). Againſt Heraclea, 746. Returns to Rome, 747; c; d. Succeſsful conſulate, v. 1, a. Pleads for Dolabella; 90, b, Law in favour of the tribunes, 92, b. Made prætor of Sardinia, 131; f. Driven out by the Caralitani; 134, b. Propoſes making Cæſar king, 181.
— Meſſalinus's trial, 443, e, (S). Pardoned by Tiberius; 444, a, (T).
† Cotta, mount, in Mauritania, vii. 146, a.
† Cottius, the kingdom of, where ſituate, iv. 408, a.
— M. Jal. advanced by Claudius, v. 497, c.
Cotys, ſecond king of Lydia, ii. 332; b.
— I. king of the Odryſæ, aſſaſſinated, iii. 792, b.
— II. joins the Perſians againſt Macedon, 485.
— III. allies with the Romans, 793; a.
— IV. made king by Brutus, ibid b.
— V. murdered by his brother, ibid. d, e.
— king of the Sapæi; 794, f. Murdered, 795, a.
— king of Thrace, made king of Arabia, v. 464, d.
† Coviat caſtle, its noble defence againſt the Goths, vii. 513, d.
Council of Arles; vi 254, a, b. Of Nice, 260; e. Of Tyre; 265, e. Of Jeruſalem, ibid. f. Of Sardica, 277; e. Second of Arles, 289, b. Of Milan, 294, b. Of Conſtantinople, 395, f. Of Epheſus, 482; c. Of Chalcedon, 498; a. Of Conſtantinople, 546, e. Second of Nice, 560, e. 570, e, f. Of Clermont, decrees the holy war; 613; f. Of Lyons, 635, e, f. Of Florence, unites the Greek and Latin churches, 649; a, b.
Counts, whence derived, vi. 172, b. Of Afric, their origin, v. 474.
— in Italy, their origin, &c. vii. 720, f.
Couſin germans forbid to intermarry, vi. 404, c, d. That law when put into the code, ibid e.
† Coway ſtakes, whence ſo called, vii. 408, c.
Cowardice, how puniſhed by the Athenians, ii. 433, c,
Cozbi, a Midianitiſh princeſs, killed by Phineas, i. 303, b.
Cranaus, king of Athens, dethroned, ii. 363, c.
Craſſus defeated and killed in Pergamos, iii. 782, d, e.
— ſucceeds Gabinius in Judea, iv. 115. Plunders the temple, ibid c, d. Sent into Syria, 294, c. His motely character, ibid. & ſeq. Invades Parthia, 296; b Extortions and ſacrilege in Syria; 296; & ſeq. Anſwer to the Parthian embaſſadors, 297, b. c. March through Meſopotamia, 298, f. Betrayed by Abgarus, 299, d, c. Becomes infatuated, 300. Defeated by the Parthians, 302; & ſeq. Retires into Carrhæ, 303. Betrayed to Surenas; ibid. & ſeq. His death, 305.
Craſſus's ſon accompanies him into Parthia, 296, e. Defeated and killed, 301, & ſeq.
— Licinius impeaches Papyr. Carbo, v. 1, & ſeq. A ſevere judge, 4, d. See the reſt under Licinius, 46, & ſeq.
— Pub. Marc. murdered, 65, a.
— M. defeats the Samnites, and ſaves Rome, 74; b, c.
— Licin. ſent againſt the Spartans, 97, f. Kills twenty-two thouſand rebels, 98, b, c. Defeats and kills Spartacus, and forty thouſand rebels; ibid. d, e. Falls out with Pompey, ibid. & ſeq. Diſbands his army, 99, b. His profuſe popularity, ibid. c, &c. Favours Catiline's conſpiracy, 104, a. Strives to clear himſelf, 105, (M). Accuſed by L. Tarquin, 106, f. His immenſe riches, 111, b. Security for Cæſar, 112, a. Reconciled to Pompey; ibid. d, e. Choſen conſul with him, 121, e. Paſſes into Aſia, 123, c. Defeated and killed, 125, b.
— the ſon of the triumvir, his friendſhip to Cicero, 115, b, c. Succeſs againſt the Veneti, &c. 120, d, (Z). Slain in Aſia, 125, b.
— Frugi put to death by Meſſalina, 499, b.
— his conſpiracy againſt Nerva, vi. 4, f. Baniſhed, 5, a.

— againſt

—— againſt Trajan, 16, c. Baniſhed, and put to death, 91, e.
Craſtinus's bravery at Pharſalia, v. 144, d. Honourable funeral, 146, a.
Craterus, protector after Alexander's death, iii. 417. Sent againſt Eumenes, 421. Defeated and killed, 422.
—— aſſiſts Antipater, 450. His death, 451.
—— treaſon againſt Archelaus, 284. Defeats the Maſſagetes, 382, c. And other rebels, 385, c. Made governor of Andaca, 386, d.
—— defeated in Crete, vi. 566, e, f. Crucified, 567, a.
Crates's kind reception of Cantacuſen, vi. 644, c. Falls out with him, 645, b.
Crateſiclea queen of Sparta's ſignal love to her country, ii. 629, f. 631, f, & ſeq.
Crateſipolis, her conduct and bravery, iii. 460, a.
Cratippus's interview with routed Pompey, v. 148, b.
Cratiſmandua's treachery to Caractacus, vii. 430, c. Dethroned, ibid. d.
Creation, the true notion of, i. 2, b. Moſes's account of, explained, 41, c—e. Of man, 44, a. The time and ſeaſon, 48, a, b. Whether complete in ſix days, ibid. &c.
† Crecanford, the battle of, vii. 445, b.
Creditors, their power on their debtors clipped, iv. 608. Hard laws againſt, revived, 641, & ſeq.
† Cremona, given to the diſbanded Romans, v. 262, d. Set on fire by Primus, 627, a. Surrendered to him, ibid. c, d. Plundered and burnt, ibid. e. When founded, ibid. (W). Rebuilt, 628, a.
—— the battle of, 625, & ſeq.
Creon, prince of Thebes, his cruelty to his niece, ii. 374, d. The ſame with Glaucus, 398, b, & (L).
—— the firſt annual archon at Athens, 418.
Cres, one of the Curetes, iii. 164, not. King of Crete, 165, a.
Creſphontes, made king of Mycene, ii. 360. Murdered by his nobles, ibid. &c.
Cret, the ſon of Jupiter, from whom Crete, ii. 263.
—— Cretan hiſtorian's account of him, iii. 263.
—— laws and polity, 596.
† Cretan ſea, the iſles of, 214, & ſeq.
† Cretans, whence, iii. 162, & ſeq. Their colonies, 164, a. Government, kings, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Come into Sicily, 126, c. 166, d. Their laws, 167, & ſeq. Degeneracy, 168. Reduced into a commonwealth, 170, b, c. Their civil war, ibid. d, e. Enſlaved by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
† Crete iſland, deſcribed, iii. 159, & ſeq. By whom firſt inhabited, ibid. The kings of, 164, & ſeq. & (K). Subdued by the Romans, 170, & ſeq. Whence called Candia, vi. 566, d. Recovered by the Romans, 582.
Cretes, king of Crete, iii. 164, d.
Creteus, king of Crete, 169, b. Killed, ibid.
Criaſus, king of Argos, ii. 353, a.
Criminals executed out of Jeruſalem, iv. 239, (X). How buried, 242, d. A terrible ſight of them exhibited at Berytus, 261, in fin. (U).
—— at Rome inliſted, 615, e. Condemned to the mines, vi. 261, a. Releaſed at the feaſt of Eaſter, 395, b. Condemned to death, reſpited for thirty days, 396, d, e.
Criſpina married to Commodus, vi. 80, a. Baniſhed and murdered, 88, a.
Criſpinilla, one of Nero's bauds, v. 589, d. Her plot to famiſh Rome, ibid.
Criſpinus, Ruf. turned out by Agrippina, v. 508, e. Put to death by Nero, 561, d.
—— a centurion, murders Capito, 589, d. Put to death, 599, d.
—— Varius, the innocent cauſe of a ſedition, 603, b. And of his own death, ibid. c.
Criſpinus, Tullius, made prætor of the guards, vi. 100, f. Sent to aſſaſſinate Severus, 106, f. Cut in pieces, ibid. b.
—— noble defence of Aquileia, 158.
—— Quinct. diverted from beſieging Locri, vii. 64, b. Defeat and eſcape, ibid. d.
Criſpus, Marc. joins Caſſius in Syria, v. 218.
—— the father of Claudia, vi. 186, b.
—— the ſon of Conſtantine, born, 230, e. Made Cæſar, 255, e. His character, 256, a. Defeats the Franks, ibid. e. And Licinius at ſea, 258, c, d. Falſely accuſed by Fauſta, 261, b. Put to death, c.
Critias, one of the thirty tyrants of Athens, ii. 530, c. His treachery to Theramenes, ibid. To Alcibiades, 532, (N).
Critolaus inflames the Achæans againſt Rome, ii. 693, & ſeq. Declares war againſt it, 695, b. Defeated and killed, ibid.
† Croboſi, a people of Thrace, iii. 794.
Crocodiles deſcribed, i. 181, c, d. Where found, ibid. Why worſhipped by the Egyptians, 209, (N). 210, b, f. How taken, 181, b.
—— of India lead Alexander into a wild notion about the Nile, iii. 396, (F).
—— a large one miſtaken for a monſtrous ſerpent, iv. 663, f. Firſt fought on the Roman Circus, v. 327, d.
Cræſus, king of Lydia's conqueſts and wealth, ii. 335. Interview with Solon, ibid. d. & notes. Allied with the king of Babylon, 90, 336. Commands his army againſt Cyrus, ibid. & ſeq. Taken priſoner at Sardis, 91, & ſeq. Reſtored, 92, b. 336, & ſeq.
—— his ambiguous threats to the Lampſacenians, iii. 789, c. His treaſure found and carried off by Heraclius, vi. 542, f.
Crones's writings and character, vi 83, ſub not.
Cronus ſuppoſed the ſame with Ham, i. 121, a. 134, (H).
—— ſon of Uranus, dethrones his father, 135, a. Founds Byblus, ibid. b.
— the younger, ſacrifices his only ſon, 138, a, b. Conſecrated to the planet Saturn, ibid. Circumciſed with his auxiliaries, ibid. b.
—— Baal, likely the Baal-berith of Berytus, 397, b.
Croſs of Chriſt, carried off by Coſrhoes, iv. 366. Reſtored by his ſon, 369, d. See alſo vi. 539, e. 542, b. Brought to Jeruſalem, ibid. e.
—— ſeveral kinds of croſſes uſed by the Jews, 726.
Croſſes, two rich ones preſented by Coſrhoes, iv. 364, d, (D).
† Croton, ſurrendered to Hannibal, vii. 41, b. The citadel of, abandoned to the Locri, 46, f, & ſeq.
Crotoniates enter into the Achæan League, ii. 642, a.
Crown, firſt uſed by Nimrod, i. 123, (O). Formerly not peculiar to princes, 669, (T). A mark of diſtinction in eaſtern courts, ibid. (V).
Crucifixion, not a Jewiſh puniſhment, i. 674, D. Forbid by Conſtantine, vi. 255, a. An account of that puniſhment, 726, (F). Inflicted at Carthage on the nobleſt perſons, ibid. ad fin.
Crumus's ſucceſs and indignities to Nicephorus, vi. 562, b, c, Defeated by Leo, 563, e, f.
Cruſade, or holy-war, the beginning of, vi. 613, & ſeq.
† Cruſtominium, where ſituate, iv. 429, (Y).
Cryptia, a barbarous Spartan cuſtom, ii. 567, & not.
Cteſias of Cnidos, his character, i. 857, a, b, &c, Aſſyrian hiſtory, a fable, ibid. An abridgement of it, 871, e, & ſeq. See alſo ii. 238, not.
† Cteſiphon, where ſituate, iv. 289, b. Taken by Trajan, 320, a. Deſtroyed by Caſſius, 321, b. See vi. 21, a 65, c. By Severus, 114, b. Its dreadful fate, ibid. c. Cloſely beſieged by Odenatus, 178, c, d. By Carus, 204, e.
Cuma, the Sibyl, her tomb iii. 7, c. Her books brought to Tarquin, iv. 462, d.
† Cumæ, by whom built, iv. 606. Damaged by an earthquake, v. 659, c Noble defence againſt Hannibal, vii 44, b. Ravaged by him, 47, d. Beſieged by the Romans, 677, e. Surrendered, 679, b. Retaken by the Lombards, 701, a. Sold to the pope, ibid. b.
Cumanus, Ventid. ſent governor of Judea, iv. 263, e. Sent to Rome, 264, a Baniſhed, ibid. b.
† Cumberland, the coaſt of, fortified by the Romans, vii. 412, f.
Cumei, noted for their ſtupidity, v. 178, (Z).
Cumulatus's treachery to Brutus, v. 251, c.
† Cunaxa, the famed battle of, ii. 139, a.
Cuneglatus's wicked reign, vii. 451, f.
Cunipert dethroned by Alachis, vii. 697, e, f. Reſtored, 698, b. Defeats and kills him, ibid. d, e. Dies ibid. f.
—— ſeized on by Grimoald, vii. 693, d. Made collegue with his father, 697, d. Driven out by Alachis, ibid. f. Defeats and kills him, 698, a —e. Dies, ibid. f.
Cunobeline, tributary to Auguſtus, vii. 427, d. His coin, ibid. (G).
† Cupid, the famed ſtatue of, at Parium, ii. 324, c.
Curatores vicorum, their office, v. 324, b, c.
† Curdeſtan, the ſame as Aſhur and Aſſyria, i. 163, a.
† Cures, antient metropolis of the Sabini, iv. 411, b.
Curetes, their office among the Celtes, ii. 251, c, & not. Pluronians called Curetes, 410, d. Antient Cretans, iii. 162, e. Their origin, 163, c. The ſame with the Abantes, 250, b. Why called Curetes, ibid not.
Curiæ firſt appointed by Romulus, iv. 462, b, c. Their privileges, 427, e.
Curiatii killed by Horatius, iv. 440.
Curiatius's dramatic works, v. 656, (D).
Curio, Caius, his noble ſpeech to the comitia, v. 89.
—— Scribon a young ſpendthrift, choſen tribune, 129, b. Bought

Bought over by Cæſar, ibid & ſeq. Speeches to the comitia and ſenate, 130, a, b. Withdraws to Cæſar's camp, 131, b. Sent into Sicily, 134, b. Defeated and killed, 156, a.
— outwitted and killed by Juba, 136, a, b, (T).
Curiones, their office, iv. 436, b.
Curioſi, at court, who, vi. 325, e. Reduced, ibid. f.
Curius, one of Catiline's accomplices, betrayed, v. 104, b.
Curtius attacks the Perſians, iv. 358, c.
— Metius, head of the Sabines, 431, e.
— Lacus, why ſo called, 432, (D).
— M. leaps into the gulph, 586, e.
— M. Dentat. ends the Samnian war, 640, e, f. Noble triumph over Pyrrhus, 646, f.
— Rufus, advanced by Claudius, v. 501, c. Whether the ſame with Quintus the hiſtorian, ibid. (M).
† Curubis, where ſituate, vi. 667, b, c.
Curule chairs, how and on whom beſtowed, v. 400, (X).
Curules ædiles, their office, iv. 583.
† Cuſh, wrongly ſuppoſed the land of the Coſſeans, i. 56, b.
— Ham's eldeſt ſon, where fixed, 164, b, c.
— the father of Nimrod, whether a king, 124, a, (R).
— what land it means in ſcripture, vii. 181, & ſeq. & (B), (C).
† Cuſham-riſhataim defeated by the Iſraelites, i. 742, d.
† Cuſhites defeated by the king of Judah, i. 807, e. Their extract, vii. 182, paſſ 192, c, (P). 205, paſſ. Their kingdom in Arabia, 240, a, b.
† Cuſlubim, the progenitors of the Philiſtines, i. 338, b. Whether the ſame with the Colchi, 344, (R).
Cutha ſlain, vii. 453, a.
† Cutheans, the new Samaritans, why ſo called, i. 135, c.
Cuthwolfe's ſucceſs againſt the Britons, vii. 452, e. Death, ibid f.
Cutlumoſes's ill ſucceſs againſt the Arabians, vi. 599, b. Revolt againſt Tangrolipix, 606, d. Makes peace with his ſon Azan, ibid. e. Wars againſt the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
† Cutyrgurian Hunns, why ſo called, vii. 456, b, c. Fall out with the Uturgurians, 483, e, f. Defeated by Beliſarius, &c 484, a—d.
Cyadas, the famous painter, where born, iii. 217, c.
† Cyane, the fountain of, its ſpring, iii. 9, b.
† Cyaneas, a river in Colchis, iii. 833, c.
† Cybele, the chief deity of the Phrygians, ii. 297, a How worſhipped 299. Different genealogies, ibid. & ſeq. Worſhipped by the Trojans, 309, c. Her temple burnt at Sardis, 109, d.
— the ſtatue of, carried to the temple of Eleogabalus, vi. 136, e.
— temple of, enriched by Julian, 327, b. Worſhipped by the Gauls, vii. 359, b.
Cybernicus, king of Lycia, ii. 338, & ſeq.
† Cyclades iſlands, whence ſo called, iii. a. Deſcribed, 216, & ſeq. Invaded by Demetrius, iv. 691, b.
† — the province of, what, v. 650, d.
† Cycle, a new one introduced in Judea, iv. 61, (K).
Cyclopes, the fable of, iii. 9, (E). Who they were, 10, e.
Cycnus, king of Colone in Troas, ii. 307, e.
Cycreus, Cychreus, firſt king of Salamis, iii. 245, b.
Cydon reigns in Crete, deſcribed, iii. 160, c. 5, & note.
† Cydonia, a city in Crete, deſcribed, iii. 160, c. By whom founded, 193, a.
† Cyllene, a mount in Arcadia, ii. 379, a, & not.
Cylon's inſurrection at Athens, ii. 422, & ſeq.
† Cyme, Cuma, metropolis of Æolis, ii. 759, a.
† Cymenſhore, the battle of, vii 446, c.
Cyname put to death by Perdiccas, 421, a.
Cyneas's excellent character, iii. 805, d. Advice to Pyrrhus, ibid. & ſeq. Sent to Tarentum, 806, c. Juſt judgment of the Romans, 809, not. Sent embaſſador to Rome, 811. Ill ſucceſs there, 812, a, b. Second embaſſy, 814.
Cynegirus, the Athenian, his ſignal bravery, ii. 462, f.
Cynegus ordered to ſuppreſs idolatry, vi. 404, a, b. His death and character, ibid. c, d.
Cynics, whence ſo called, ii. 437, b.
— philoſopher, his ſpeech to Commodus, vi. 88, f. Burnt alive for it, 89, a.
† Cynocephalus, a large kind of ape in Egypt, i. 181.
Cynomolgi, why ſo called, vii 184, c.
Cynorta, king of Lacedemon, ii. 400, d.
Cynoſarges, at Athens, their office, ii. 437.
† Cynoſureans, a colony of the Argives, ii 404, c.
† Cynthus, a mountain in Delos, deſcribed, iii. 331, c.
Cyprian women, proſtitute themſelves for a dowry, vi. 720.
— Jews, two hundred and fifty thouſand revolt, vi. 23, d. All deſtroyed, ibid. f.
— embaſſadors, over-reached by the Philæni, 737, c, d.
Cypriots oppreſſed by the Perſians, iii. 177. Make peace with them, 179, a. Subdued by Evagoras, 180. Invaded by Ochus, 181, & ſeq. By Ptolemy, 182, c, d. By Demetrius, ibid. & ſeq. Subdued, 183, f. Reſtored by Ptolemy, 184, c. Enſlaved by the Romans, ibid. d. Aſſiſt Alexander againſt the Tyrians, 340, & ſeq.
Cypris, the wife of Antipater, her progeny, iv. 118, (H).
† Cyprius vicus, whence ſo called, iv. 459, (R). Why called Sceleratus, ibid. e.
† Cypron built by Herod, iv. 148, c.
† Cyprus, the ſeat of the Kettim, according to Joſephus, i. 168, f. Firſt compared by Amoſis, 272. The iſland, deſcribed, iii. 172. How divided, 175. Its ſoil, government, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Kings and petty kingdoms, 176. Taken by Cyrus, ibid. d. By Ptolemy, 435, d. By Antiochus, 579. Sold by Archias to Demetrius, 653, e. Given to a baſtard of Lathyrus, 666, d. Seized by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. v. 116, d. Given by Cæſar to young Ptolemy, ibid. & ſeq.
† — the mines of, given to Herod, iv. 148, (F).
† — the caſtle of taken by the Zelots, 269, e.
Cypſellus, kills the tyrant of Mycene, ii. 388, a.
— a Lapitha, becomes king of Corinth, 392, & ſeq. & not.
Cyrbes, what, ii. 435.
† Cyre, the fountain of, vii, 170, b, (C).
† Cyrenaica deſcribed, vii. 169, & ſeq. Its ſoil, fruits, &c. 170, & ſeq. Various nations, 171, b, &c. Tranſactions and wars, 172, & ſeq. Invaded by Thymbrio, 173, d. Delivered up to Ptolemy, 174, a. Bequeathed to Rome, ibid. b, c. Under the Turks, ibid. d.
Cyrene raviſhed by Jupiter, ii. 383, (F).
† — the fountain of, ibid.
† — the kingdom of, by whom founded, iii 215, c. Deſcribed, 662, c, d. Yielded to Phyſcon, 651. Revolts from him, 652, & ſeq. Given to Apion, 658, f.
† — a colony of the Greeks, i. 268, f. Drive out the Lydians, ibid. Defeat the Egyptians, 269.
— Jews, whence, iv. 31, (D). Relieved by Auguſtus, 141, d, (G).
† — metropolis of Cyrenaica, vii. 169, e. Deſcribed, 170, a, b. By whom built, 172, b, c. Seized by Ariſton, 173, d.
† Cyrenians, their cuſtoms, &c. vii. 170, b.
Cyrenius ſent to tax the Jews, iv. 292, c. See alſo Quirinus, v. 336, d.
Cyriades aſſumes the purple in the eaſt, vi. 174, b—e.
Cyril, St. falls out with Oreſtes, vi. 471, b, c.
Cyrillus Statius, his writings and character, vi. 222, a.
Cyrnus, the Greek name of Corſica, vi. 731, b, c.
† Cyropolis taken by Alexander, iii. 367, c.
† Cyrrha, the ſea-port of Delphos, ii. 389, d. Its famed arſenal, 427, c. Invaded by the Phocians, 388, & ſeq.
Cyrrheans, their attempt on Delphos puniſhed, ii. 426, & ſeq.
† Cyrrheſtica, a province of Syria, i. 361, a.
† Cyrrha, the metropolis of it, ibid. b.
Cyrus ſubdues the Chaldæans, i. 967, e, f. Defeats Nerigliſſar, 968, a. And Nabonadius, 970, d, e. Takes Babylon, ibid.
— his exploits under his grandfather, ii. 21, & ſeq. Fabulous birth and deeds, 82. Brought up by the kings herdſman, 83. Diſcovered, and ſent to his parents, 85. Stratagem againſt the Perſians, ibid. & ſeq. Conquers the Medes, 86. Impriſons his grandfather, ibid. & ſeq. Killed by the Scythian queen, 87, b. The more authentic account of him out of Xenophon, 87, & ſeq. Aſſiſts Cyaxares againſt the king of Babylon, 88, d. Kills him, ibid. & ſeq. Wars againſt Crœſus, 91. Takes him in Sardis, 92. Behaviour towards him, ibid. (K). Takes Babylon by ſtratagem, 93. Aſcends the throne, 94. Favours the Jews, ibid. b, c. Death, 95. Edict in favour of the Jews, iv. 3. Confirmed by Darius, 9, e.

——— the ſon of Dar. Nothus, his cruel government in Aſia Minor, ii. 136. Conſpires againſt his brother, 137. Sentenced to death, ibid. Raiſes a revolt, ibid. & ſeq. His fleet and army, 138, c. Prophecies concerning him, 208, not.
——— his riſe and character, vi. 486, c, d.
——— biſhop of Conſtantinople, ſaves Egypt by a tribute, 543, d, e.
† —— camp abandoned to Alexander, iii. 334, a.
† —— tomb, deſcribed, 404, b.
† —— a river of Armenia, 694, a. Of Albania, 837, d.
† Cytherea, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 242, f. Whether in Cyprus, 174. Taken by the Athenians, ii. 510, d.
Cytherean, mount, in Phocis, iii. 387.
† Cythnus iſland deſcribed, iii. 217.
† Cyzicæus disfranchiſed, v. 424, a, (B).
† Cyzicum, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 201, & ſeq & (Q).
† —— city of Myſia, ii. 323, b.
——— beſieged by Mithridates, iii. 741, & ſeq. Relieved by Lucullus, 742, & ſeq. Plundered by the Heruli, vi. 184, paſſ. Taken by Procopius, 367. Part of, overturned by earthquake, 506, c.
Cyzicus, king of Myſia, killed by the Argonauts, ii. 323, b, &c.

D.

† DACI, where ſituate, v. 10, c, (F). Defeated by the Romans, ibid. d. Subdued by Tiberius, 320, e.
† Dacia ſeized by the Goths, vi. 183, a. Rejoined to the empire, 209, a. Waſted by Attila, vii. 468, e, f. Subdued by the Goths, 495, c. Yielded to Theodoric III. 522, b. Deſcribed, 610, f, & ſeq. Made a Roman province, 613, e, f.
† —— New, by whom founded, vi. 195, a. Part of, yielded to Theodoric, 516, a. Where ſited, vii. 614, c.
† Dacians. See Getæ, ii. 268, a. Their revolt ſuppreſſed by Mucianus, v. 635, e, f. Character, 676, f. Where ſited, 677, a. Invade the Romans, ibid. e, f. Force them to make peace, 678, e, f. War with Trajan, vi. 11, d. Ravaged by him, 12, & ſeq. Subdued, 15, b, c. By M. Aurelius, 66, f. By Decius, 169, d. Ravaged by the Quadi, &c. ibid. & ſeq: Their origin, vii. 610, e, & ſeq. Cuſtoms, &c. 611, a, b. Wars, victories, and defeats, 612, a, b. Peace with Domitian, ibid. c, d. Subdued by Trajan, 613, a——d. Submiſſion and diſperſion, 614, a——d.
† Dactyli, why ſo called, ii. 297, d.
† Dadaſtana, where ſituate, vi. 345, d.
Daduchim, their dignity, ii. 464, not.
Dædalus's treachery to Minos, iii. 167, b.
Dæmons, two kinds of, i. 82, (N).
Dagalaiphas promotes Valentinian's election, vi 346, c. Noble anſwer to him, 348, c. Succeſs againſt the Germans, 350, c. Treachery, 351, a. Remiſſneſs to the Alemans, vii. 292, e, f. 295, a.
Dagobert's embaſſy to Heraclius, vi 542, f.
Dagon, Siton, the ſon of Uranus, i. 135, b. Worſhipped in Canaan, ibid. (N). At Azotus, 343, a. Learned conjectures about him, ibid. (H). His temple burnt by Jonathan, iii. 597, b, iv. 8.
Dabarians, a ſect of philoſophers among the Turks, i. 4, a.
† Dalmanutha, where ſituate, iv. 218, (M).
† Dalmatia ſubdued by Cotta, v. 1, b. Revolts, 335, b. Reduced, 337, c, d. Anew, 339, & ſeq. Deſtroyed by the Quadi, vi. 388, c. By the Goths, 433, d, e. Made a new empire, 507, b.
Dalmatius, the ſon of Conſtantius, vi. 226, e. His Death, ibid.
—— his ſon, born, ibid. f. Created Cæſar, 266, a. Murdered by the ſoldiers, 275, a.
Daluka, a famed queen of Egypt, and great magician, i. 281, d.
Damagetus, king of Rhodes, iii. 133, a.
Damaratus depoſed by his collegue, ii. 583, paſſ. Retires into Perſia, 584.
† Damaſcus, metropolis of Syria, i. 361, d. By whom built, 163, e. A republic in David's time, 371, c. Its origin, ibid. Famous Altar, 377, c. Chronology, kings, &c. 380.
—— when founded by Rezin, 381, b. The end of that kingdom, according to the prophets, 390, b.
† —— the city, betrayed to Parmenio, ii 160, & ſeq. Taken by Coſrhoes, iii. 366, c. By the Saracens, vi 543, d.
Damaſichton, king of Thebes, ii. 375, c.
Damatetis, a Rhodian magiſtrate, killed, iii. 143, b.
Damatrius ſuſpends the Ætolians reſolutions, ii. 707, & ſeq. Sent to engage Nabis, 712. Beſieged and taken at Heraclea, 721.
† Damea, river, falls into the Nile, vii. 187, b.
Damianus defeated and killed, vi. 566, d.
Damias, who, iii. 244, not.
Damides's ſtratagem againſt Polyſperchon, iii. 456, b.
† Damii, who, and where ſited, vii 413, f.
Damocles's ſurpriſing chaſtity, ii. 555, d.
—— made ſenſible of a tyrant's happineſs, iii. 82, (A).
Damophilus's cruelty to his ſlaves, iv. 794, f. His puniſhment, 795, c.
—— his writings and character, vi. 83, ſub not.
Dan, the ſon of Jacob, born, i. 441, d. Jacob's prophecy to him and his tribe, 463, b. How verified, ibid. (L). Why likened to a viper, 464, a, b. His lot in the promiſed land, 569, a.
† —— the city of, i. 740, c. The idol ſet up there, ibid.
Danae debauched by Jupiter, ii. 554, e.
Danaus, his ſeverity againſt his daughter, ii. 354, c.
Dances uſed by the Phrygians in their worſhip, 300.
Dandalo, Henry's ſignal bravery, vi. 626, a.
† Dandera, Tentyra, a city in Egypt, i. 197, a.
† —— the ſtately temple of, ibid. & ſeq.
Daniel, ſent captive into Babylon, i. 848, a. Interprets Nabuchadnezzar's dream, 950, e, &c. Raiſed by him, 951, c, d. Expounds Belſhazzar's viſion, 971, d. His writings depreciated by the Jews, 732, e, (O). Promoted under Cyaxares, ii. 22, d. Delivered from the lions, ibid. e, f. Sundry of his propheſies fulfilled, iii. 526, (O). 527, (P) 568, (R). 570, f. 571, f. 582, paſſ. 584, (B). A further account of them, iv. 8, (N). Shewn to Alexander the Great, 29, a. A ſignal one explained, 53, ſub not. His weeks, how computed 153, (P).
† Danes, their origin, vii. 487, b.
† Dania, Denmark, by whom firſt peopled, vii. 487, a, b.
† Danmonii, in Britain, who, and where, vii. 407.
† Danube ſeparates the Celtes from the Scythians, ii. 226, 228.
† —— the famous bridge over, vi. 14, b, c. See vol. vii. [414], c.
† Daphne's temple at Rome burnt, vi. 327, b.
† —— an infamous ſuburb of Antioch, 67, c. Heavily taxed by Proculus, 403, b.
Daphneus's ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, vi. 747, & ſeq. (Vid. & iii. 44, d. Put to death, 45, e.)
† Daphnine iſland in Ethiopia, vii. 190, b.
Daphnomelus's deſperate attempt on Ibatzes, vi. 592, d——f.
Dara, princeſs of Perſia, married to a rich Jew, iv. 406, a.
Darab I. prince of Perſia, according to oriental writers, expoſed in a wooden ark, ii. 225. Owned by his mother, 226. His reign and wars, 227.
—— II. his wars with the king of Macedon, 228, & ſeq. Murdered by his own ſubjects, 229, & ſeq.
† Daras, where ſited, vi. 521, d.
† —— a city, proof againſt Coſrhoes, 352, b. Reduced, 357, c. Reſtored to the Romans, 364, b. Retaken by Coſrhoes, 366, b. (See vi. 532, d.).
† Dardana, built by Dardanus, ii. 312.
† Dardanels, why ſo called, ii. 305, b, (B).
† Dardania. (Vid. Troas, ii. 288, & ſeq.
Dardanians invade Macedon, ii 667, b. Expelled by the Baſtarnæ, iii. 483, c.
Dardanus, who, ii. 305, b. Marries Teucer's daughter, 311. His deſcent and reign, 312, a. iii. 239, f. Founds the Trojan kingdom, ibid & ſeq. See alſo iv. 418, d, e.
—— Prefect of Gaul, his motley character, vi. 468, a, (O).
Daric, an antient gold coin, ii 62, e.
Darius, the Mede, moſt likely Nerigliſſar, king of Babylon, i. 968, b——e. And not Nabonadius, 971, f. See before Cyaxares II. 21, & ſeq. Various ſentiments about him, 23, (C). 93, e.
—— one of Cambyſes's guards, his revenge on Syloſon, iii. 196, c, &c. Defeats the confederates, 197, e.
—— of the Perſian nobles, choſen king, ii. 103, c His revenue, 104. Takes Babylon, 105. Unſucceſsful expedi-

expedition againſt Scythia, ibid. & ſeq. Fleet and conqueſts in India, 107, b. Firſt attempt againſt Greece unfortunate, 111, c. Second attempt, ibid e. Numerous army, 112. Defeated by the Athenians, ibid. f. His loſs at ſea and land, 113. Deſign againſt Greece and Egypt, 114. His death and character, ibid. & ſeq.
—— the ſon of Xerxes, unjuſtly murdered, 119.
—— Nothus, mounts the throne, 134, d. His ſevere and uneaſy reign, ibid. Loſs of Egypt, ibid. & ſeq. Too much ſwayed by his queen, 135, a. His death, and laſt words to his ſon, 136, f.
—— Codomanus, raiſed to the throne, 154, c. His extract, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Invaded by the Greeks, 155. Defeated at Granicus, ibid. & ſeq. Loſes ſeveral provinces, 156, & ſeq. And his beſt general Memnon, ibid. Goes to ſuccour Cilicia, 158. Defeated near Iſſus, 159, & ſeq. Haughty letter to Alexander, 161, d. Offers for the ranſom of his family, 162, b. New army, 163, d. New offers of Peace rejected, 164. Defeated near Arbela, 165, & ſeq. Flees into Armenia, 166, c. Into Media, 168. Seized by his treacherous generals, ibid. & ſeq. Dying meſſage to Alexander, 170, c. Death, character, and burial, ibid. d, e. See alſo vol. iii. 335, & ſeq. An inſtance of his ſignal goodneſs, 353, in fin. not. His treaſure at Suſa, 354, b, c, (P).
—— the ſon of Pharnaces, made king of Boſporus, 760, c.
—— king of Acrobatene, 844, f.
Darkneſs, during three days in Egypt, i. 498, f. g. At Chriſt's crucifixion, iv. 240, c. Over the Roman empire, vi. 426, b. A dreadful one under Conſtantine IV. 555, b.
† Darodt, river, where, vii. 145, (E).
† Darræ, a tribe of Getulians, vii. 160, d.
† Daſcara, the heretic Manes's retreat, iv. 377, c.
† Daſcylus, a city in Bithynia, iii. 822, a.
† Daſſaretæ, where ſituate, iii. 255, a.
Datames, king of Cappadocia, iii. 764.
Dates, Perſian, their ſyrup preferable to honey, ii. 40, d.
Dathan's conſpiracy againſt Moſes, &c. i. 529, b. Dreadful puniſhment, 530, b.
† Dathema, where ſited, iv. 63, e. Relieved by Judas Maccabeus, 64, c.
Datis, general of Darius, his expedition againſt Greece, ii. 111, & ſeq. Shameful defeat, 112, e.
—— high reſpect for Diana's temple, 228, f. Defeated by Miltiades, 276.
Daughters, Roman, puniſhable by their parents, v. 371, f.
David, ſent to play before king Saul, i. 763, c. Kills Goliah, 764, b, c. Friendſhip with Jonathan, ibid. &c. Flees to the land of Nod, 766, a, b. To Gath, ibid c. To Adullam, ibid. d. Generoſity to Saul, 768, a—c. 769, c. Anointed by Samuel, 763, c. Covenant with Jonathan, 767, b, c. Marries Saul's ſecond daughter, 765, b Grief at the news of Saul's death, 772, c. Anointed king over Judah at Hebron, 773. Marries the daughter of Tolmai, ibid. & ſeq. Puts to death the murderers of Iſhboſheth, 774, d. Reigns over the twelve tribes, ibid. e. Takes Jeruſalem, and makes Sion his reſidence, 775. Removes the ark thither, 776, c. Defeats Hadadezer, 382, a, b. Brings Syria under tribute, ibid. & ſeq. Four victories over the Philiſtines. 356, 775. Narrow eſcape from a gigantic Philiſtine, 775, b. Brings them under tribute, 382, a, b. Allies with the king of Tyre, 775. Forbid to build the temple, 777, b. His œconomy, policy, ibid. & ſeq. Kindneſs to Jonathan's ſons, 778. Revenge on the Ammonites, ibid. c, d. Adultery and murder, 779, b, c. Puniſhment pronounced by Nathan, 780, a, &c. Ill-timed tenderneſs to the rebellious Abſalom, 786, & ſeq. Forgiveneſs to Shimei, ibid. e. A freſh revolt againſt him, 787, c. Numbers the people, 788. Puniſhed with a peſtilence, 789. Cauſes Solomon to be proclaimed, 790. His laſt inſtructions to him, 791, e. Death, 792. Vaſt riches, burial, &c. ibid b, &c.
—— in what ſenſe Chriſt is called his ſon, iv. 232, a, (N).
—— the laſt emperor of Trapezond, vii. 293, b—d.
Daulian womens unnatural repaſt, ii. 389, not.
† Daulis, a city in Phocis, ii. 389, d.
† Daunia, where ſituate, iv. 412, d.
Daunus, king of Apulia, ſuccours Diomedes, ii. 369, b.
Days of the week, from whom named in England, vii. 442, d, e.
Deacons, the firſt ſeven choſen by the apoſtles, iv. 253, c.
† Dead-ſea, whence ſo called, i. 576, b, (L). Its various names, ii. 266, a. Meaſured by Demetrius, iii. 434, d.
Debir, king of Eglon, joins againſt the Gibeonites, i. 332, a. Defeated by Joſhua, ibid. b, c.
† —— the city of, retaken by the Canaanites, 534, a.
Deborah's ſucceſs againſt Jabin, king of Canaan, i. 336, b. 743, a.
Debtors at Rome, cruel laws againſt, iv. 487, (G). Mitigated, 486, e. Eluded by Appius, 487, d.
Debts, the payment of, regulated, iv. 592, b. 608, c. 642, & ſeq.
Decalogue, delivered, i. 515, a. Explained, ibid. (X).
† Decapolis, whence ſo called, iv. 217, (L).
Decebalus, made king of the Dacians, v. 677, b. Proud anſwer to Domitian, 678, a. Outwits him, ibid. b, c. Forced to a ſhameful peace, ibid. e, f.
—— ill ſucceſs againſt the Romans, vi. 11, d. 12, a, b. Revolt and treachery, 13, d, e. Subdued, and kills himſelf, 15. His vaſt treaſures diſcovered, ibid. c, d. See vol. vii. 611, & ſeq.
Decemvirs, firſt inſtituted, iv. 505, a, &c. A new ſet choſen, 533, e. Speech to the people, 534. A third ſet of them, 535, d. Their tyranny, ibid. & ſeq. Abandoned by the army, 540, & ſeq. Depoſed by the ſenate, 543, e. Trial and puniſhment, 545, c, d.
—— their number augmented, v. 79, a.
Decentius created Cæſar, vi. 281, b, c. Defeated by the Franks, 282, d. Choſen conſul, 285, c. Foiled before Treves, ibid. f Hangs himſelf, 288, a.
—— ſent to fetch Julian's forces, 308, f. His fatal imprudence, 309, c, d.
Decianus C. Plaut. baniſhed, v. 45, c.
—— Catus's extortions in Britain, 537, f. Cowardly flight, 538, d.
Deciarchæ, at Samos, their office, iii. 200, e.
Decimus ſucceeds Ulpianus, v. 139, e.
Decius's anſwer to Pyrrhus, iii. 812. Killed, 813.
—— reſcued by Philopator, 646.
—— ſpeech againſt Coriolanus, iv. 496, a. Accuſation againſt him, 497, e.
—— L. Mus, noble exploits againſt the Samnites, 597, paſſ. Conſulſhip, 599, e. Expedition againſt the Latins, 600. Devotes himſelf to the manes, ibid. & ſeq. The ceremony of it deſcribed, 602, a. His death, ibid. c.
—— ſucceſs in Hetruria, 624, e, f. Made pontifex, 628, a. Succeſs in Apulia, 630, c. In Samnium, ibid. & ſeq. In Hetruria, 632, b, & f. Devotes himſelf to death, 633, c.
—— Trec. ſucceeds the brave Caſſinus, vi. 132, c. Put to death by Heliogabalus, 136, a.
—— the emperor, ſent governor of Mœſia, 167, b. Forced to accept the empire, ibid. c. Acknowledged, 168, a. A grievous perſecutor of the chriſtians, ibid. b—d His death and character, ibid. d.
—— his ſon defeats the Goths, 168, & ſeq. Cut off by them, 169, c. When ſurnamed Auguſtus, ibid. d. Bravery and death, 170, b.
—— treachery to the Rhegians, 817, & ſeq. 820, c, d. Puniſhment, 821, paſſ.
—— killed by Tacfarinas, vii. 158, c.
Decuriæ appointed by Romulus, iv. 426, b, c.
Dedalus poliſhes the ancient Greeks, ii. 348, b.
† Dedan, where ſeated, i. 164, d.
† — the city of, in Edom, 309, b.
Dedication of the temple by Judas Maccab. iv. 61, d. The feaſt of, 62, a, & (W).
Dehoc, ſixth king of Perſia, his cruel reign, &c. ii. 179.
Deianira debauched by Achilles, ii. 385, c.
—— daughter of Oeneus, married to Hercules, 410, c. Fatal jealouſy and death, 411, & (K).
Deidanica, queen of Epirus, whether murdered, iii. 821, a, b.
Dejoces, the founder of Ecbatan, ii. 2, a, 14, & not. His reign, 10. Policy to get the kingdom, 14. Tyranny, ibid. & ſeq. Forbids his ſubjects to approach him, 15, b.
Deiotarus I. made king of Armenia minor, iii. 718, f. Fidelity to the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
—— II. his reign and ſucceſſors, 719, c—e.
—— accompanies Pompey in his flight, v. 147, c. Forgiven

Forgiven by Cæſar, 153, c. Joins Brutus, 233, c. And Antony, 288, b. Abandons him, 289, f.
† Deira, the province of, by whom founded, vii. 451, a.
Delaſſenus, Conſt. ſent into baniſhment, vi. 595, f.
Deleanus, chief of the revolted Bulgarians, vi. 596, e. Treachery to Teichomerus, 597, a. His reward, ibid. b, c. vii. 637, & ſeq.
† Delians, their government, kings, &c iii. 231, d, e. Conquered by the Athenians, ibid. e, f.
Delias & Deliaſti, what, iii. 230, e.
Delilah, Samſon's miſtreſs, i. 349, b. Treachery to him, ibid. c.
Delium, the battle of, ii. 511.
Dellius, Q ſent to Cleopatra, v. 261, b. His character, ibid, (C).
—— narrowly eſcapes her reſentment, ibid. & ſeq. ii. 511.
† Delos, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 203, a. 227. Why ſo called, ibid. & ſeq. Its temples, 228. Reverenced, 229, a, b. Purified, 230, b, c.
—— temple plundered by Archelaus, ii. 736.
—— treaſure ſeized by Pericles, 505, not.
—— metropolis of the iſland deſcribed, iii. 231, b.
† Delphi, Delphos, the city of, deſcribed, ii. 388, a. Its immenſe riches, 389, c.
—— the oracle of, how diſcovered, ibid. b.
—— temple, deſcribed, ibid. c.
—— beſieged by the Cyrrheans, 426. Defended by all the Greeks, ibid. &c. Plundered by Xerxes, 123, a, b. By Sylla, 738, a.
Delphic oracle corrupted by king Philip, iii. 307, a.
—— anſwer to the two Tarquins, iv. 464, a.
Delphidius's writings and character, vi. 316, (G).
Delphinas defeated by Baſilius, vi. 591, e, f.
† Delphinium, a criminal court at Athens, ii. 444, a.
† Delta, part of lower Egypt, i. 176, a. Formerly a bay of the ſea, ibid. b. How divided by the Arabs, ibid. The moſt fruitful part of Egypt, 166, a.
Deluge, the changes it cauſed on the earth, i. 110, c—e.
Demades's ſpeech to Philip, iii. 321, & ſeq. Succeſsleſs embaſſy to Antipater, 450, f. His character, 452, e. Severe puniſhment, 453, c. See alſo ii. 552, & ſeq.
Demarata, the ambitious daughter of Hiero, iii. 100, c, d. Aſpires to the throne, 104, & ſeq. Put to death, 106, e.
Demaratus the baniſhed king of Sparta's gallant behaviour, ii. 120, c. & 459, c, —— ſharp anſwer to Philip, iii, 311.
—— valour againſt the Carthaginians, vi 782, & ſeq.
Demarchi of Athens, their office, ii. 443.
Demaretia, a Sicilian coin, whence ſo called, iii. 18, b.
† Demetæ, who, and where ſited, vii. 410, e, & ſeq.
† Demetria, by whom built, iii. 447, b.
† Demetrias, in Theſſaly, iii 382, b. Taken by Diocles, 713.
Demetrius Phalereus, the kind governor of Athens, ii. 554, a, b. Ungratefully put to death, ibid. & ſeq.
—— Poliorcetes invades Athens, 554, a. Deified there, ibid. & ſeq. Initiated in the myſteries of Ceres, 555, d. Repulſed by the Athenians, ibid & ſeq. Generoſity to them, 556, c. Attempt againſt Sparta. 625. His preſent to the Rhodians, 131, a.
—— prætor of Achaia's attempt againſt Sparta, 692, b.
—— inveſts Rhodes, iii. 138, & ſeq. Invents the helepolis, 140, a. Forced to raiſe the ſiege, 143, e. Inſtances of his clemency, 144, paſſ. Invades Cyprus, 182, & ſeq. Takes Salamis, 183, & ſeq. Loſes it, 184.
—— the ſon of Antigonus, left governor of Syria, 432, d, e. Defeated by Ptolemy, 433, a. Gallantry to him, ibid e. Sent againſt Petra, 434, c. Meaſures the lake Aſphaltes, ibid. d. Marches into Babylon, ibid. & ſeq: Recovers Sicily, 435, d. His conqueſts in Cyprus, 436, & ſeq. Saluted king by his father, 437, b. Ill ſucceſs againſt Rhodes, 439, a. Degeneracy, ibid. & 467, c. Defeated at Iſſus, 441, a, b. Becomes king of Macedon, 442, c. 466. Prepares for the conqueſt of Aſia, 443, a. Driven out of Macedon, ibid. & ſeq. Ill ſucceſs againſt Lyſimachus, &c. 444, a, b. Againſt Pyrrhus, ibid. & 466. Retires to Caſſandria, 467. Surrenders himſelf to Seleucus, 445, & ſeq. His laſt letter to his ſon, 446, d. Death, ibid. e, f, & ſeq. Wives and offspring, 447, d, e. Coin, 622, (W).
Demetrius, king of Cyrene, ii. 447, e.
—— the ſon of Gonatus, his early valour, 437, b. Troubleſome reign, 474, c, d. 475, b.
—— the ſon of Philip, 478, d. Pleads for his father before the Roman ſenate, 479. Envied by his baſtard brother, ibid. & ſeq. Suſpected by his father, 481. Put to death, ibid.
—— prince of Macedon, marries Apame, 524, c. Murdered by her daughter, ibid. d.
—— the ſon of Antiochus, ſent to Rome, 510, e.
—— the ſon of Seleucus, ſues to the Roman ſenate, 585, & ſeq. Repulſed, 586, c, d. Second ſuit, 589. Eſcapes into Syria, 590. Letters to the ſenate, 592, b, c. Courts the friendſhip of the Jews, 595, a, b. Defeated and killed, ibid. & ſeq. See alſo iv. 70—79.
—— Nicator, repulſed by the ſenate, 593, e. Dethroned by Alex. Balas, 594, & ſeq. Allies with Philometor, 598, b, c. Reſtored, ibid & ſeq. Degenerates, ibid. & ſeq. Saved by the Jews, 602, c, d. His treachery to them, ibid. e. Taken, and kept priſoner in Parthia, 605, & ſeq. 608, b. Reſtored, 610, d. Invaded by Zebina, 611, & ſeq. His death, ibid. Coin, 622, (W).
—— Eucheres, crowned at Damaſcus, 615, f. Defeated and killed, 616, b.
—— Phalereus, his character and office, 630, e, f. Perſuades Ptol. Soter to build a library, 631, a. His great integrity, 633, (Promotes the ſeptuagint verſion, iv. 37, & ſeq. & (O)). His death, iii. 633, e.
—— king of Bactria, his character, &c. 846, d, e.
—— Nicanor, a friend to the Jews, iv. 81, c, (V). Perfidy to them, ibid e. Dethroned by Antiochus, ibid. & ſeq.
—— the Pharian, betrays Corcyra to the Romans, 685, f. Made regent of Illyricum, 686, c. Revolts, 691, a. Defeated, ibid. e.
—— a philoſopher, with Cato, at Utica, v. 162, c.
—— a ſervant of Caſſius, brings the news of his death to the triumvirs, 247, c.
—— a cynic, mortified by Veſpaſian, 648, b.
—— Alex. a diſciple of Favorinus, vi. 49, ſub not. Beloved by Adrian, 50, ibid.
—— Cythras tortured for idolatry, 305, a.
† Demiat, Damietta, in Egypt, i, 166, a.
Demigods, ſaid to have reigned in Egypt before the flood, i. 93. A table of them, ibid.
Demochares defeated and drowned, v. 276, c—f.
Democrates's brave death at Tarentum, vii. 62, d.
Democritus, the ſuppoſed author of the atomic ſyſtem, i. 19, & ſeq. And of fatal neceſſity, 21. Said to have had his principles from a Babyloniſh pillar, 222, d. Where born, iii. 786, d.
Demoi, at Athens, their office, ii. 437, b.
Demon, or genius, of Carthage, worſhipped there, vi. 693, d.
Demonax, a cynic philoſopher, his excellent character, vi. 82, ſub not. Noble anſwer to the Athenians, ibid. To M. Aurelius, ibid.
Demoniacs healed by Chriſt, iv. 204, f. What they were, ibid. (O).
Demoſthenes choſen admiral of Athens, ii. 507, f, & ſeq. Defeated at Delium, 511. Taken by the Syracuſans, 519. Put to death, 520. His character, ibid. See alſo iii. 29—36.
—— cowardly flight at Cheronea, 548, d. Delivered up to Alexander, 549, e, f. Fined and impriſoned for bribery 550, c. Poiſons himſelf, 551, e His character and writings, ibid. &c. See alſo iii. 292, & ſeq.
† Demus, the temple of, what, iv. 113, (Z).
† Denaba, the ſuppoſed city of Job, where ſited, i. 482, c.
Dengeſic, the ſon of Attila, ſlain, vii. 468. a.
—— wars with the Romans, 482, d—f.
Denmark, kings, why called Skioldungar, vii 489, e.
† Denſeletæ, a people of Thrace, ii. 789, & ſeq.
Dentatus Sicinius's ſpeech for the Agrarian law, iv. 530, a. Bravery againſt the Æqui, 531, & ſeq. Friendſhip to Romulus, 532, c. Betrayed by Appius, 538, e. Murdered, 539, a.
—— the tribune's project for repeopling the Volſci, 559, f, & ſeq.
Derceto, the goddeſs of the Philiſtines, i. 343, c. Alſo an Aſſyrian deity, 861. Whether the ſame with Dagon, ibid.

Dercyllidas's ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, ii. 140, & ſeq. 607, c, d. Noble ſpeech to Pyrrhus, 622, d.
Deſcartes, his hypotheſis, i. 35, d.
Deſiderius created Cæſar by his brother, vi. 281, b. Murdered by him, 287, e. Said to have ſubmitted to Conſtantius, 288, a.
—— king of the Lombards, vii. 715, c, d. Falls out with the pope, ibid. e. Allies with Charles of France, ibid. & ſeq. Falls out with him, 716, a. Falls out with, and invades Adrian, ibid. c——e. Invaded by Charlemagne, 717, b——e. Sent priſoner into France, 719, d. Heard no more of, ibid. & ſeq.
Deucalion, king of Phthia, i. 95, (N). ii. 381. Saved from the flood on Parnaſſus, 387, e.
—— king of Crete, iii. 169, a.
Devil, the tempter of Eve, i. 61, a. Why in the ſhape of a ſerpent, ibid. b——d.
Devils, whether they really poſſeſſed men, iv. 205, (O).
—— ſcutt, a Gauliſh altar, deſcribed, vii. 336, c.
Devoting, the cuſtom of, in Spain, &c. v. 88, d, (D).
† Denſona, the treacherous fight of, vi. 356, a, b.
Dexippus's victory over the Heruli, vi. 184, d.
—— writings and character, 197, not.
—— brave defence of Agrigentum, 146, b, &c. Juſtly cenſured, 147, e, f.
† Dhafar, a ſea port in the Arabian coaſts, i. 169, f.
Dhalka, Zalka, queen of Egypt, i. 280, e.
† Dia, a city in Eubœa, by whom built, iii. 249, d.
Diacrii, one of the three contending parties at Athens, ii. 427, e.
Diad of Pythagoras, what, i. 25, d.
Diadem firſt worn by Aurelian, vi. 196, b.
Diadumenus created Cæſar, vi. 128, c. 130, b——e. Why ſurnamed Antoninus, ibid. f. His mild character, 131, f, & ſeq. Pretended letter to his father, 132, (P). b. Choſen collegue, 133, a. His flight and death, 134, a——c.
Diadus, Achæan prætor, raiſes new troubles in Achaia, ii. 691, & ſeq. Inflames them againſt Rome, 693, & ſeq. His edict to the Achæan cities, 696, a. Cruelties, ibid. & ſeq. Raſh confidence, 697. Defeat, ibid. & ſeq. Deſperate end, 698, b.
Diagoras I. king of Rhodes, iii. 133, b. Head of the Diagoridæ, ibid.
—— II. his reign and progeny, 134, b. Dies of joy, ibid. c.
—— the firſt atheiſt, where born, 218, f.
—— tyrant of Eretria, 251, e.
Dial of Ahaz, what, i. 832, ſub not.
—— the firſt at Rome, iv. 637, (Z).
Diana, how worſhipped at Bubaſtis, i. 208, a. By the Lydians, ii. 330, f.
—— at Syracuſe, iii. 116, (W).
—— at Icaria, 211, f, & ſeq.
—— Perſica, worſhipped in Cappadocia, 763, e.
—— at Carthage, vi. 686, paſſ.
—— her ſtatue taken and reſtored by Philadelphus, iii. 637, b, c.
—— Triclaria the feaſt and inhuman ſacrifice of, ii. 763, b.
—— her medal, iii. 212, a,
—— temple built by Servius, 458, b.
—— adjudged to the Meſſenians, v. 426, e.
—— at Epheſus, deſcribed, ii. 754, & ſeq. Statue, 755, Plundered by the Scythians, vi. 180, d.
—— a ſtrange one near Rome, vii. 372, (G).
Diaphanes invades Meſſenia, ii. 677, a. Recalled, ibid.
Diaſia, a feaſt of the Athenians, ii. 423, b.
† Diblathaim, a city of Arabia Petrea, vii. 226, b.
† Dibo, a city of Arabia Petrea, vii. 226, b.
Dictators at Rome, when firſt choſen, iv. 481, e. Their power and office, 482, (E). Aboliſhed by Mark Antony, v. 193, c.
† Dicte, a mountain in Crete, deſcribed, iii. 162, b.
Dictys, prince of Seriphus, brings up Perſeus as his own, ii. 354. Raiſed to the throne by him, 355, a.
— Cretenſis, an account of iii. 169, c.
† Dictynna, the temple of, by whom built, 193, b.
Didius, T. his ſucceſs againſt the Scordiſci, v. 4, b. Conſulſhip, 44, d. Butcheries in Spain, ibid & ſeq. Defeated, 87, b.
—— Caius, ſent by Cæſar into Spain, 171, c, Defeats Pompey's fleet, 149 Puts him to death, 175, b. Slain by the Luſitanians, 176, c, d.
—— Au. ſucceſs againſt the Brigantes, vii. 430, d.
Dido. See Eliza, vi. 658, & ſeq.
Didymus driven out of Spain, vi. 455, c, d. Put to death, ibid. d, e.
† Die, in Dauphine, ſubject to the Burgundi, vi. 504, b.
Diegylis, kingof the Odryſſæ, iii. 792, & ſeq.
Diet among ths Jews, very plain, i. 695.
Digeſta of Juſtinian, when and by whom compiled, vi. 530, e.
† Diklah, the ſon of Joktan, where ſeated, i. 170, a.
† Dimas, the ſon Dardanus, his colonies in Aſia, ii. 313, a.
† Dimelia, whence ſo called, vii. 411, d.
Dinah born, i. 442. Raviſhed by Shechem, 447, a, Cruelly revenged, ibid. d.
Dinarchus put to death, iii. 455, c.
Dinocrates, the Sicilian, defeated, iii. 87.
—— Macedonian, defeated by the Rhodians, 148, b, c.
—— head of the Meſſenian rebels, 681, d. Beats the Achæans, ibid. f. Kills himſelf, 683, b.
Dinomades's treachery to Hieronymus, iii. 103, d. Choſen magiſtrate, 105, b.
† Diocæſarea, where ſituate, iii. 762, c. Burnt by Gallus, vi. 286, b.
Dioclea, the mother of Diocleſian, vi. 206, a.
Diocles's barbarity againſt the Athenian priſoners. iii. 35, d. Cauſes Hermocrates to be baniſhed, 40, b.
—— put to death by Valentinian, vi. 353, f.
—— noble defence of Himera and Syracuſe, 743, & ſeq.
Diocleſian proclaimed, vi. 205, c. His extract, riſe, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Kills Aper, 206, d. Succeſs againſt Carinus, 207, a. In Gaul, ibid. b. Againſt the Perſians, ibid. f. In Germany, 208, e. Againſt the Sarmatians, &c. 209, a. Interview with Maximian, ibid. b. Fatal diviſion of the empire, 210, a——c. Goes into Thrace, 211, f. Succeſs and cruelties in Egypt, 213, b, c. Allies with the Nubians, ibid. e. Contempt of Galerius, 214, c. Caſtles on the Perſian frontiers, 215, c. Cauſes a famine by his avarice, ibid. f. & ſeq. Perſecutes the chriſtians, 216, b——d. His terrors from that time, ibid. e, f. Cruelties to Antioch, &c. 217, b. Triumphs with his three Collegues, ibid. c. Long illneſs, ibid. c, d. Reſigns to Galerius, ibid. e, f. Speech to the people upon it, 218, b. Retired life, ibid. c, d. Palace at Spalatho, ibid. &c. Death, 219, a. 250, e. Character, ibid. b, c. Baths and other buildings, ibid. d——f. Cruelty and vanity, 220, a, b. His hiſtory very imperfect, ibid. c. The firſt wearer of pearls, 269, a. His ſucceſs againſt the Goths exaggerated, vii. 498, d, e.
—— æra, what, 266, f.
Diodatus. See Tryphon.
Diodorus's doctrine of indiviſible bodies, i. 20, a.
—— Siculus, how far preferable to Plutarch, iii. 435, (D).
—— a Syrian, facilitates Demetrius's eſcape, 589, f.
—— put to death by Valentinian, vi. 354, a.
—— biſhop of Tarſus, his confutation of Porphyry 223, ſub not.
Diogenes, Apoll. his notion of the air being endued with reaſon, i. 19, d.
—— treachery to the Macedonians, iii. 475, d.
—— ſurlineſs to Alexander, 323, a.
—— Sadducee put to death, iv. 103, e.
—— Laertius, his writings and character, vi. 121, ſub not.
—— governor of Bithynia, put todeah, 374.
—— Anaſtaſius's general, cloſely beſieged in Iſauria, 519, c. Relieved by crook-back John, ibid. d.
—— Romanus, raiſed to the empire, 604, paſſ. Succeſs againſt the Turks, ibid. e, f. Defeated and taken by them, 605, c, d. Kindly uſed and releaſed by the ſultan, ibid. e, f. Defeated by Andronicus, 606, a. His miſerable end, ibid. b.
—— noble defence of Rome, vii. 672, e, f. Of Circumcellæ, 673, e.
Diogenet's writings and character, vi. 51, ſub not.
Diomedes's writings and character, vi. 478, ſub not.
Diomedon unjuſtly put to death, ii. 528, & ſeq. Speech to the Athenians, ibid.
Dion, his character, &c. iii. 63. Brave ſpeech to Dionyſius, 62, (C). Falſely accuſed to his ſon, 64, d, e. Baniſhed, ibid. f. Returns to Syracuſe, 66. Seizes on it, 67. Defeats Dionyſius, ibid. & ſeq. Noble anſwer to him, 68, b. Forced to flee to the Leontini, 69, & ſeq. Recalled, 70, d. Speech to his ſoldiers, 71, a.

71, a. Relieves the city, ibid. d e. Takes the citadel, 72. Why he put Heraclides to death, ibid. a, & e. Baſely murdered by Calipus, 73, a, b.
—— the philoſopher aſſaſſinated by Pompey, 668, b.
—— Caſſius's account of Arrian, vi. 49, ſub. not. Life of Antoninus loſt; 55, c. Made governor of Smyrna, 132, a. Conſulſhip and honours under Alexander, 140, c, d. Retirement, ibid. His account of the then Roman legions, ibid. e, f. His other writings, 149, ſub not.
Dionyſian feſtival, what, v. 174, b, (T).
Dionyſius I. the tyrant of Syracuſe, iii. 43, & ſeq. Choſen their generaliſſimo, 44, f. Obtains a guard, 45, b. Declares himſelf king, ibid. e. Makes peace with Imilcar, 46. Diſarms the Syracuſans, 47, & ſeq. Wars againſt Carthage, 48, & ſeq. His army and fleet, 49. Takes Motya, 50, b. Defeated at ſea, 51, & ſeq. Beſieged in Syracuſe, 52, b, c. Defeats the Carthaginians, 54 & ſeq. And Rhegians, 55, f. Succeſs in Italy, 56,, & ſeq. Takes Rhegium, 58. Barbarity to Phyto, ibid d, e. Affectation of Poetry, ibid. & ſeq. Ill ſucceſs at the Olympic games, 59, d, e. Againſt the Carthaginians, 60. Makes peace with them, ibid. c. His death and character, ibid. & ſeq. Offspring, 61, & ſeq. See alſo vol. vi. 750, & ſeq.
—— II. ſucceeds his father, 63, a——c. Sends three times for Plato, ibid. & ſeq. Treatment of him, 64. Gives a looſe to all vices, 66. a. Defeated by Dion, 67, b, c. Forced to flee into Italy, 69, b. Recovers Syracuſe after ten years abſence, 73, e. Surrenders himſelf to Timoleon, 76, a. Keeps a ſchool at Corinth, ibid. c. See alſo vol. vi. 774, & ſeq.
—— tyrant of Heraclea, iii. 824. His death and character, 825, a.
—— of Halicarnaſſus, his opinion of the Aborigines, iv. 414. A famed geographer, v. 328, a. When he flouriſhed, 458, ſub not.
—— the firſt created count, vi. 272, a.
† Diopetes's oracle at Sparta, ii. 606, a, & not.
Diophanes's brave attempt againſt Seleucus, iii. 557, (L). 771, e, f.
† Dioſcorias, a city in Colchis, iii. 833, a.
Dioſcorides, where born, ii. 341, c.
—— Murdered by Achillas, iii. 675, e.
Dioſcorinthus, the month of, explained, iv. 65, (C).
Dioſcuri, Cabiri, their extract, &c. i. 134, a. Build the firſt complete ſhip, ibid. &c. The firſt ſailors after the flood, 136. Build the firſt temple, ibid. (K). Subſtituted to Bacchus, iii. 375. 377, b, c. Their worſhip at Carthage, v. 694, d, c.
† Dioſpolis, a city in leſſer Thebais, i. 175, e.
—— burnt by Gallus, vi 286, b.
Dis, or Pluto, a prince of Celtic race, ii. 257, c. 263, a, & not.
Diſciples, ſeventy, appointed by Chriſt, iv. 222, & (R). Their office and joyful return, 224, c.
Diſperſion of mankind after the flood, i. 156, f. The time of it, 157, b, c. A double one ſuppoſed by ſome, ibid. The number of mankind at that time, 158, b, c.
Diſtagerda, the Roman priſoners and ſtandards of, releaſed by Heraclius, vi. 541, e, f.
Diverſions uſed among the Jews, i. 695, a.
Divinations various kinds of, uſed by the Jews, i. 693, e. (P). Among the Celtes, ii. 252, c.
Divitiacus gets footing in Britain, 421, (B). Reſiſtance againſt the Romans, vii. 369, b.
Divorce permitted to the Jews, i. 682, a. Unknown to the patriarchs, ibid. In what caſes allowed, ibid. b, c. The form of the bill, &c, 683, b. Whether women might divorce huſbands, ibid. (X).
—— become frequent among the Romans, iv. 683, e.
† Dividurum, now Metz, plundered by Vitellius, v. 600, b.
Dobbius, the murderer of Ataulphus, vi. 407, e.
† Dobuni, where ſited, vii. 409, a, b. Wars, ibid c.
† —— in Britain where ſited, vii. 409, a, b. At war with their neighbours, ibid. c.
Dodecatheon, one of Octavius's feaſts, why ſo called, v. 288, c, & (S).
Dodanim, the ſon of Javan, where ſeated, i. 169, a.
—— the firſt peoplers of Epirus, iii. 798, b.
† Dodona, the city of, deſcribed, ii. 796, c. The temple, grove, and oracle, ibid. (K). The temple plundered and burnt, ii. 653, c.
Dodwell's ſentiment of Adrian's adoption confuted, vi. 26, a, b. 46, (C).
Doeas, a Celtic prince, ii. 257, b. Places that bear his name, ibid.
Doeg, an Edomite, put to death the prieſt of Najoth, i. 767, paſs.
Dogs, why worſhipped by the Egyptians, i. 208, e. 210, b. Why hated by the Romans, iv. 565, i. Eaten by the Carthaginians, vi. 705.
Dolabella, Cornel. triumphs over the Luſitanians, v. 45, b. Choſen conſul, 78, b. Accuſed and acquitted, 90, b. Made Cæſar's admiral, 135, b. Raiſes a tumult in favour of debtors, 154, c, d. Supplants Caſſius, 200, c, d Cruel treachery to Trebonius, 203, e, f. Proſcribed, 204, b. Ill ſucceſs againſt Caſſius, 218, e, f. Defeated at ſea, 219, c. His death, ibid. d.
—— rank flattery to Tiberius, 410,
—— Pub. ſucceſs in Afric, 421, b, c. Turns informer, 432, b.
—— Cornel, confined at Aquitanium, 605, a Accuſed of treaſon, 615, e. Maſſacred by Vitellius, ibid. f.
Dolichenus, Apollo, why ſo called, vii. 356, d.
† Dolonci, who, and whence, iii 788, & ſeq.
† Dolopes, where ſeated, ii. 381, d. Reduced by Perſeus, iii. 483, e.
Dolphins, a battle between them and crocodiles, v. 578, (T).
Domeſtics forbid to inform againſt their maſters, vi. 439, c.
Domitia Longina married to Domitian, v. 663, c.
—— to Piſcus, vi. 537, f.
Domitian, the ſon of Veſpaſian, vi. 636, e. His narrow eſcape out of the capitol, 632, c, (Z). Saluted Cæſar, 635, a. Firſt indices of his debauchery, ibid. d. Takes the prætorſhip upon him, 645, a. Firſt appearance in the ſenate, ibid. c. Suſpected of poiſoning his brother, 662, c. Proclaimed emperor, ibid. f. His private character, ibid. & ſeq. Gallic expedition diverted, 663, e, f. Studies poetry, &c. 664, a, b. Public buildings, 665, a, b. Repairs the libraries, ibid. b, e. Diverſion in catching of flies, ibid. c. Wholeſome laws, ibid. d, e. Cruelty to Sabinus, ibid. e, f. Sham triumph over the Cattans, 667, e, f Treachery to Agricola, 673, a—d. Sham victories in Sarmatia, 674, a, b. Cruelties, ibid. c, d. Univerſal jealouſy, 675, a——c. Extortions and rapines, ibid. d——f. Aſſumes divine honours, 676, c——d. Loſes his armies in ſeveral provinces, 677, c. Marches againſt the Dacians, ibid. e. Treachery to the Quadi, &c. 678, d. Shameful flight, ibid. e. And peace with the Dacians, ibid. f. Mock triumph at Rome, 679, a. Butcheries there, ibid. & ſeq. Naval and land ſhews, ibid. f. Ghaſtly entertainment to the ſenators, &c. 681, b, c. Edict againſt the growth of vines, ibid, d. Of what duration, ibid. e. Expedition againſt the Sarmatians, 684, a. Horrid cruelties, ibid. & ſeq, Jealouſy of Nerva, vi. 2, c. Death, ibid. e.
—— prefect of the eaſt, ill conduct and miſerable end, 291, b——e.
Domitilla, the mother and ſiſter of Domitian, v. 636, e.
Domitius, Cn. Calvinus's ſucceſs againſt the Senones, iv. 643, d, —— againſt the Gauls, 803, & ſeq. Treachery to the Avernian king, 810, c, d.
—— L. butchered by young Marius, v. 71, c.
—— Cn. Ahenobarb. defeated and killed, 80, d, e.
—— Luc. defeated in Luſitania, 87, c.
Domitius, Ahenobarbus. Vid. ſub Ahenobarbus, v. 121, & ſeq.
—— Calvinus defeated by the Pharnaces, 153, b.
—— Aub. Corn. choſen conſul, 186, c. Approves of Cæſar's murder, ibid. d, e.
—— treachery to Caius, 332, (P).
—— Lucius's death and character, 427, a, b.
—— Afer, the accuſer of Claudia, 427, e. Of Q. Varus, 432, b. Cnei. betrothed to Agrippina, 435, b. His ſad character, ibid. (L).
—— Corbulo kills Afer, and ſucceeds him, 469, (N). His politic eſcape, 472, (P) Made conſul, 473. His ſucceſs againſt the Chauci, 501, b. Stopped by Claudius, ibid. d. His long canal in Flanders, ibid. &c.
—— Corbulo, his excellent character, 567, a, b. Put to death by Nero, ibid. c.
—— the ſon of Agrippina, marries Octavia, 506, f. Adopted by Claudius, 507, d, (R). Takes the name of Nero, 508, a. The reſt ſee under Nero, 645, & ſeq.

† Don, Tanais, river, ii. 266. e.
Donades, an Athenian priſoner, his bold ſpeech to Philip, ii. 548, e.
Donatiſts ſuppreſſed by Conſtantine, vi. 252, a, b. By the council of Arles, 254, b. In Africa, 278, b. Court the revolted Firmus, 359, c. Suppreſſed by Gratian, 379, b. 389, b. Favoured by Honorius, 460, d.
Donatus, his writings and character, vi. 316, & ſeq. ſub not.
† Donet, or Little Tanais, river, ii. 268, c.
† Dorians, where ſeated, ii. 413, b. Invade Peloponneſus, ibid. & ſeq. Their original, 759, e. Government, 761. Settlements in Aſia, ibid. & ſeq. Religion, 762, d. Settle in Rhodes, iii. 132, e. In Crete, 163, d.
Dorias, the ſolemnity of, iii. 230, e.
† Doric dialect and order, ii. 762, d, (G).
— faction in Sicily, 505, c.
Doridas, king of Corinth, invaded by the Dores, ii. 394, c.
Dorieus I. king of Rhodes, iii. 133, a. — II. his victories, 134, c.
Dorilaus defeated by Sylla, iii. 734.
Dorimachus, an infamous Ætolian robber, ii. 650, c. invades Epirus, 693, c. Theſſaly, 657, e.
† Doris part of ancient Greece, ii, 344, b. Its ſituation, names, &c. 413, b. Chief cities, 759, a. Invaded by the Phocians, 595, a.
† — the metropolis of the Dorians, by whom built, 413.
— Antipater's mother, conſpires againſt Herod, iv. 152, d. Baniſhed, 153, b.
Dorotheus, one of the compilers of the pandects, vi. 530, e.
Doryphorus poiſoned by Nero, v. 544, b, c.
Doryſſus, king of Sparta, ii. 404.
Doſitheus's ſucceſs againſt the Syrians, iv. 67, a. In Idumea, 68, b. The betrayer of Hyrcan, 137, (K).
Dove ſent out of the ark by Noah, i. 106. Why choſen, ibid. (N). Why worſhipped by the Aſſyrian, 875, (P).
Doxaretas's preſents and ſubmiſſion to Alexander, iii. 390, b.
Drachm of gold, its value, iv. 5, (I).
Draco, archon of Athens, his bloody laws, ii. 419. Abrogated by Solon, 429, f.
† Dracontia, iſland, vi. 672, ſub not. (B).
† Dracunon, a city in Icaria, iii. 211, f.
† Drangiana, a province of Perſia deſcribed, ii. 29, a.
† Drepane, a city in Bithynia, iii. 822.
Drepanius Pacat.'s panegyric on Theodoſius, vi. 415, c.
† Drepanum, a city in Sicily, iii. 7, c. The ſiege of, iv. 675, e. Raiſed, 676, e. Reſumed, 677. Whence called Helenopolis, vi. 262, b. Relieved by Carthalo, 843, c. Beſieged by Fabius, 849, 2.
Dreſs, laws concerning that of the Jews, i. 688, b. How regulated by Lycurgus, ii. 562, f.
† Drilli, a fierce northern people, vi. 41, a.
Droſtuf's treachery and promotion, vii. 681, c. Narrow eſcape, ibid. e.
Drogo heads the Bulgarians into Mœſia, vii. 623, f.
Druids held the diſſolution of the world by fire and water, i. 31, c. Encourage the Gauls to revolt, vi. 641, f.
— Gauliſh, whence they had their religion, vii. 328, d, e, & ſeq. Veneration for oaks, 331, & ſeq. For the miſſelto of it, 332, paſſ. & not Under a grand druid, 334, a, b. Offer up human victims, ibid. c—e. Officiate in white, 335, c, (K). Threatened into polytheiſm, and forced to it, 336, & ſeq. 341, & ſeq. Their overgrown power in Gaul, 348, b, (B). 361, a, b. How long it laſted, 349, a. Suppreſſed by the Romans, 348, & ſeq. 350, a, b. Take the name of Senani, ibid. c. Whether they had any oracles, 356, b, c. Their antiquity, doctrines, &c. 360, & ſeq. Preſides at councils, elections, &c. 361, c, d. Celibacy, ibid. e. Three grand doctrines, ibid. & ſeq. Skill in phyſic, aſtronomy, &c. 362, paſſ. & notes. Believed a general diſſolution by fire, &c. 363, &c. Contempt of writing, 381, a, b, (Q). Did not believe tranſmigration, 390. c, (E).
— in Germany, their power, doctrines, &c. [417], a, b.
— in Britain, whence ſo called, 406. b, c. Their office, power, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Arch or grand druid reſided in Britain, vii. 361, b, c. How choſen, ibid. d.
Druideſſes, in Gaul. believed inſpired, 363, d. Three orders of them, 364, a, b. Inhuman auguries, ibid. d, & (I).
Drums, how uſed by the Parthians, iv. 290, d.
Drunkenneſs abhorred by the Scythians, ii. 277. By the Lacedemonians, 562, d.
† Druria river, whence it ſprings, iv. 413, d.
† Druſian weapons, whence ſo called, 418, (T).
† Druſiana foſſa, by whom made, vi. 319, f. Deſcribed. 382, (Q).
Druſilla, daughter of Herod Agrippa, iv. 262, d. Married to Azizus, 265, a. To Feliz, ibid. b.
— married to L. Caſſius, v. 437, (N). 446, c. Privileged by Caligula, 460, e, d. Her death, and inceſt with him, 466, d, c. Apotheoſis, ibid. & ſeq.
— the pretended daughter of Caligula, born, 477, b, (W). Preſented by him to the gods, ibid, c. d.
Druſus, M. ends the war with the Scordiſci, v. 5, e. The innocent cauſe of the ſocial war, 47, b. His noble ſcheme to quell the publick diſcontent, ibid. & ſeq. Stabbed to death, 48, d. His character, ibid. e. 47, d.
— the father of Livia, kills himſelf, 257, d.
— her ſon's bravery againſt the Germans, 314, a. In Gaul, 319, a—d. Choſen conſul, 320, d. Subdues the Germans, ibid. e. Stopped by prodigies and death, ibid. f. Funeral honours, 321, paſſ. Altar deſtroyed, 381, c, (M).
— Germanicus. See under Germanicus, 321, & ſeq.
— the ſon of Tiberius, advanced by Auguſtus, 340, b. Made queſtor, 344, b. Inſulted by the revolted legions, 362, & ſeq. Puniſhes them. 364, a. Second conſulſhip, 372, a. Succeſs in Illyricum, 391, d. In Germany, 396, b, c. Meets the aſhes of Germanicus, 403, c. Returns to Illyricum, 404, b. Behaviour to Piſo, ibid. c, d. Third conſulſhip, 408, a. Government during Tiberius's abſence, 409. Tribuneſhip, 412, b. Juſt complaints againſt Sejanus, 416, c, (R) Poiſoned by him, 417, a. His funeral, 418. Character, offſpring, &c. ibid. b. (T, V).
— nephew of Germanicus, choaked with a pear, 448, a.
— ſon of Germanicus, takes the toga, 416. Recommended to the ſenate, 417, c, d. Made governor of Rome, 424, a. Supplanted by Sejanus, 430, & ſeq. Accuſed to the ſenate, 436, paſſ. Impriſoned, 437, a, b. His ſingular precaution, 440, b, c. Cruel death, 447, e, & ſeq.
† Dryopes, where ſeated, ii. 412, & (F).
Drypetis married to Hepheſtion, iii. 405, a. Murdered by Roxana, 418, d.
† Dryphis, the temple of, in Eubœa, iii. 247, e,
Duætius driven out by the Syracuſans, iii. 13, & ſeq.
† Dubris, Dover, port, vii. 408, e, f.
Ducas, John, ſets his nephew upon the throne, v. i. 605 f. Governs him, 606, a, b. Taken priſoner, ibid. c, d. Inveteracy againſt Voloniates, 609, a.
— ſucceſs againſt the Turks, 611, f. Makes peace with Tzachas, 612, b. Defeats him, ibid. d.
— Murtzuphius's treachery to Alexius, 626, f. Proclaimed emperor, 627, a, b. Wars with the Latin emperor, 629, & ſeq.
— Vataces, ſucceeds Laſcaris, 630, b. Succeſs a gainſt the Latins, ibid. c. Allies with Azem, ibid. d. Ravages Thrace, 631, e. Dies, ibid. f.
— his account of the taking of Conſtantinople, 652, & ſeq.
Duces, their office, vi. 271, e.
Duels, among the Gauls, the dernier reſort, vii. 371, paſſ. Reflections on them, ibid. & ſeq. Brought thither by the Burgundi, 581, f. Edict to inforce the uſe of them, 582, a—c.
Duilius, Caius, commands the Roman army, iv. 657. The fleet, 658. Defeats the Carthaginians, ibid. e, f. His triumph, 659.
— his columna roſtrata, explained, vi. 660, (D).
— the conſul repulſed, before Myttiſtratum, 830, b. Forced to command the fleet, ibid. c. Defeats the Carthaginians, 831, c, d.
Dukes in Lombardy, their riſe vii. 697, e, & ſeq. Their power curtailed, 681, f. Succeſſion ſupreſſed, 684, c, d.
† Dulichium, the iſland of ii. 408, (M). One of the Echinades, iii. 241.
† Duma, a city of Arabia Petræa, vii. 226, b, c.
Dumnorix's treachery to the Romans, v. 117, e. Defeated and killed, 123, e.
† Duncala, metropolis of Nubia, vii. 185, c.
† Dunbavad. a remarkable mountain in Perſia, ii. 221.
† Dura, where ſituate, iii. 533, (V).

Duras

Duras resigns his crown to Decebalus, vii. 611, e.
—— resigns the Dacian crown, v. 677, b.
† —— the city, overturned by an earthquake, vi. 277, d; Taken by the Ostrogoths, 515, e. Abandoned by them, ibid. f. See vol. vii. 521, d.
Duration, an essential distinction between God and his creatures, i. 5, 6.
† Durdus mount, whence sited, vii. 115, e, 145, (D).
† Durius, river, in Lusitania, vii. 299, a.
† Durnium, Dorchester, vii. 407, e.
† Durocorvinum, where situate, vii. 409, a.
† Durotriges, who and where seated, vii. 407, e.
Duumviri, their office, iv. 462, e, (M).
—— navales, 621, b.
† Duus, and other rivers in Tangitania, unknown, vii. 145, a.
Dux Britannorum, his office, vii. 417, c—e.
† Dwarfs, their fights on the Roman stage, described, iv. 805, not. The region of, in Libya, vii. 178, a, ‡(H).
† Dwina, river, in Scythia, ii. 268.
Dymnus conspires against Alexander, iii. 364, a. Dies, ibid d.
Dynames's treachery to Sylvanus, vi. 294, f. To Malaricus, 295, b, c.
Dynamis forced to marry Scribonius, v. 315, b. And Polemon, ibid. d.
Dynasties of Egypt, i. 92, d. Tables of them, 228, & seq
—— the third and fourth of the Persians discussed, iv. 371, & seq.
† Dyrrhachium, whether the same with Epidamnus, iii. 254, in fin. (G). Revolts, vi. 596, f. Taken by Guiscard, 609, f, & seq. Abandoned by his son, 611, c, d. Opens her gates to young Alexius, 625, e. Taken by the Romans, vii. 634, e. By the Bulgarians, 638, b.
Dysæ, inferior goddesses of the Saxons, their office, vii. 442, e, & seq. & (X).
† Dysspargum, where situate, vii. 549, b.
Dyscoles. See Apollonius, vi 84, not.

E

EAGLE, a golden, set up by Herod, pulled down, iv. 182, e.
Eagles, Roman, a sanctuary, iv. 135, (D). By whom first borne, 424, b.
Earth and water, demanded in token of subjection, ii. 65, a, & not.
Earthquakes in Greece suspend the Peloponnesian war, ii. 507, f.
—— a dreadful one in Judea, iv. 137, a, (H). At Christ's crucifixion, 242, a.
—— twelve cities destroyed by another, v. 392.
—— in Asia, vi 14, e. In Galatia, 19, f. At Antioch, 21, c, d. In Gallienus's time, 180, b. A dreadful one under Constans, 276, f. Another in Pontus, Campania, &c. 277, c, d.
—— destroys an hundred and fifty cities, 304, c. Under Julian, 328, a. Under Valens, 366, b, c. 371, a. Under Theodosius 426, b. In the East, under Arcadius, 437, e. Under Theodosius II. 489, a, b. At Antioch, 506. At Cyzicus, ibid. c. At Neocæsarea, &c. 520, b. At Antioch, &c. 523, f. Under Justinian, 529, c. At Antioch, 534, f, & seq. Constantinople, 554, c. Dreadful ones under Constantine IV. 555, b. Under Michael Balbus, 567, a Under Romanus II. 595, b. 596, c Under Ducas, 603, e.
Easter, Jewish. See Passover, i. 500, a, & seq.
—— Christian, settled by Gratian, vi. 397, a. Criminals released at the solemnity, 408, a. Whence so called, vii. 442, e.
Eating regulated by Lycurgus, ii 562, a.
† Ebal, mount, i. 573. The Curses and blessings set upon it and Garizzim, 540, c.
† Eber, who, i. 118, a, b, (N). From whom descended, 162, e. Where settled, 163, c. The etymon of that name, 128, (K). Whether concerned in the building of Babel, 129, (M). Hebrews believed to derive their name from him, ibid. & seq. & (L).
† Ebesus, a Carthaginian colony, where situate, vii. 729, e, f.
Eblis, prince of the fallen angels, among the Turks, i. 51. a.
† Ebora, a city in Lusitania, vii. 298, b.
† Eboracum; York, the metropolis of the Brigantes, vii. 412, b. Its court, ibid. c, d. Whence styled Legio, VIta, 419, b.
† Eburodunum, Brin, † Eburum, Olmuz } cities of the Quadi, vii 602, d.
† Ebusus, island and city, vii. 309, a.
† Ecbatan, the metropolis of Persia, described, ii. 2, a. By whome built, ibid. not. Not razed by Nebuchodonosor, 16, a.
† Ecclesia, the grand court of Athens, its power, &c. iii. 439, a. &c.
Ecclesiastics, their immunities. See Clergy, vi. 243, & seq,
† Ecdipon, where situate, iv. 125, (R).
Echemus assists the Athenians against the Heraclidæ, ii. 379, c.
Echmis, king of Arcadia, ii. 380.
Echinades island described, iii. 241.
Eclectus doomed to death by Commodus, vi. 88, b. 93, b. Conspires against him, ibid. e. Dies in defence of Pertinax, 99, a.
Eclipses, first foretold by Thales, i. 218, d. ii. 18, c.
—— of the moon, scares the Macedonians, 163, e. How interpreted by the soothsayers, 164, a.
—— foretold by Sulpit. Gallus, iii. 492, b. Throws the Gauls into a panic, 776. Dreadful to the Sicilians, vi. 739, & seq.
Ecphantas, the Syracusan, his principles of a vacuum, &c. i. 20, a.
† Ecron razed by Judas Maccabeus, iii. 587, c.
Ectice's treachery and punishment, vi. 466, f.
Edecon, sent embassador to Constantinople, vii 469, e, f. Discovers Theodosius's treachery to Attila, 470, b.
Edemon's revolt in Mauritania, v. 478, d.
† Eden, its situation, i. 53, b, c. Extravagant notions about it, whence, 54, a. A local paradise, ibid. c. Ill placed in Syria and Armenia, 55. And Chaldea, 56, b—d, e, f. A new scheme proposed, 57, a. b. The Mosaic account of it imperfect, ibid. c, d.
† Edenburgh's frith fortified, vii. 414, a.
† Edessa, the kingdom of, described, iii. 847, & seq. Made a Roman province, 848.
† —— metropolis of that kingdom, 847, a. Taken by † Sapores, iv, 327, b. Besieged by Cosrhoes II. 366, b. (See also vi. 539, c.). Burnt by the Romans, vi. 24, b. Taken by Cassius, 65, c. Made a Roman colony, 127, b. Sells a dear passage to the Persians, 178, b. Forgiven by Constantius, 316, a. Narrow escape from the Saracens, 596, d, e.
Edessans, their singular prayer against Alaric, vi. 449, e.
Edictum perpetuum, when first published, vi. 37, c.
Edobic, general of the Franks, vii. 558.
† Edom, whence so called, i. 388, a. By whom first inhabited, ibid. b. Described, ibid. & seq. Transferred into Judea, 316, e.
† Edomites, whence so called, i. 305. Their country, cities, &c. 308, b—d. 309, b, c. Government, &c. 310, c—e. Arts and sciences, 311, d, e. Religion, ibid. Grant a passage to the Israelites, 313, c. 314, a—c. Their trade, navigation, &c. ibid. c. Defeated by David, ibid. d. Massacred by Joab six successive months, ibid. & seq. Retire to Azotus and the Persian gulf, 315, a. Subjection to Judah till the reign of Jehoshaphat, ibid. c, &c. Make themselves a king, 316, a. Defeated by Amaziah, ibid. b. War with the Moabites, ibid. c. Subdued by the Babylonians, ibid. d. Revenge on the Jews, ibid. Whence called Nabatæans, ibid. e. Oppressed by the Jews, 317, b. Fall under the Seleucidæ, ibid. War with the Maccabees, ibid. c, d. Subdued by Hyrcan, and forced to be circumcised, ibid. & seq. When admitted into the congregation, 665.
† Edoni, a people of Thrace, iii. 790, f. Their kings, 791.
† Edonia, where sited, iii. 257, b.
† Edri, the residence of the king of Bashan, i. 330, d.
Eetion killed by Achillis, ii. 342, & seq.
† Ege, taken by Pyrrhus, iii. 816.
Egeria the nymph's fabulous intercourse with Numa, iv. 435, a.
Egerius Collatinus, why so called, iv. 446, d. See Collatinus, 447, & seq.
† Egesta, Segesta, a city in Sicily, iii. 7, f.
† Egestines invite the Athenians to them, iii. 25, & seq. And the Carthaginians, 37, & seq. Massacred by Agathocles, Agathocles, 87, a. Invite the Carthaginians againſt the Selinuntes, vi. 737, f. Their bravery againſt the Syracuſans, 759, a, b.

Egg, in the Egyptian coſmogony, the ſymbol of the world, i. 13, d. Worſhipped by the Phœnicians, 17, a. Image of the world among the Chaldeans, Chineſe, &c. ibid. Firſt egg laid in the boſom of Erebus, 18, a. Serpentine egg among the Gauls; explained, vii. 362, e, & ſeq. & notes.
Eglon, king of Moab, ſtabbed by Ehud, i. 290, a; b. 742, e.
Egregori, watching angels; i. 82; (N). Their love to the daughters of men; ibid.
† Egypt, whence named Chemia; i. 174, b. Its other names, ibid. c. Origin, ſituation, &c. ibid, & ſeq. Diviſion, 175, & ſeq. Climate, ſoil, &c. 176, d. Fertility from the Nile, 179, f. Different appearance in two ſeaſons, 180, b, c. Its animals, 181, b, c. Chief cities, 175, & ſeq. Vegetables, 182, e, f. Artificial rarities, 183, d, e. Ruins near the cataracts, 196, & ſeq. At Dandera, 197, b. Divided into twelve kingdoms, 265, & ſeq. Unitedunder Pſammiticus, ibid. f. Becomes a Perſian province, 279, a. Submits to Alexander, ibid. b. Invaded by Coſrhoes, iv. 366, d. How becomes habitable, vii. 194, b, c.
Egyptians, their extract, i. 198, a. Warlike genius, 201, c. Their government, kings, &c. 198, & ſeq. Honours paid to their dead ones, 199, e—g. Political diviſion of their kingdom, 200, a—c. Reverence to their prieſts, ibid. c. Their military men, ibid. e, f. Skill in horſemanſhip, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Huſbandmen and ſhepherds, 201. Courts of juſtice, 202, b—d. Remarkable laws, ibid. e—g. Religion, 203, g, & ſeq. Affirmed the firſt rearers of altars, &c. 204, a. Worſhip animals and vegetables, ibid. e, f. The former maintained, fed, and buried, at a vaſt charge, 208, e—g. 209, c—e. Reaſons alledged for their worſhip, 210, a, b The origin of it, ibid. & ſeq. Human ſacrifices, 211, f, & ſeq. Temples, 212, d. Education, ibid. e, f. Diſlike of muſic, wreſtling, &c. 213, a. Diet, ibid. b. Averſion to ſwine's fleſh, ibid. c. Entertainments, ibid. d—f. Circumciſion, ibid. & ſeq. Dreſs, 214. Womens employ, ibid. Belief of the immortality of the ſoul, ibid. d. Funerals, embalming, &c. ibid. f, & ſeq. Sepulchres, 216, & ſeq. Early wiſdom and learning, 217, d. Geometry, aſtronomy, &c. invented and cultivated by them, 218, a—d. Natural philoſophy, 219. Phyſic, 220, a. Magic, ibid, c, d. Painting, carving, &c. 221, e, f. Method of preſerving learning, 222, c. Literary monuments, ibid. d—f. Hieroglyphics, &c. 223, & ſeq. 224, & ſeq. Three different ways of writing, 225. Three ſorts of characters explained, ibid. & ſeq & (L), (M). Trade, navigation, and averſion to the ſea, 226, & ſeq. Their chronology, 227, & ſeq. Dynaſties, 228, & ſeq. Kings, 231, & ſeq. Their theology according to Euſebius, 13, & ſeq, The cauſe of their averſion to the Jews, 473, d. Famine under Joſeph, 459, & ſeq. Reduced by the Perſians, 274, & ſeq. To the loweſt ſlavery, 275, e, f. Their fabulous hiſtory, 241, b, & ſeq. Table of their gods, demi-gods, before the flood, 92, 93, & ſeq. Plagues under Moſes, 499, & ſeq. Firſt-born ſlain, 501, c. Drowned in the Red ſea, 502, & ſeq. When to be received into the Iſraelitiſh congregation, 665. The ſtate of it under the Ptolemies, iii. 623, & ſeq. A liſt of them, ibid. Why diſſaffected to the Perſians, 345, c.
Egyptian aſtronomers, their flattery to Alexander, 350, a.
Ehud, ſecond judge of Iſrael, ſtabs Eglon, i. 289, d, e. 742, e. Whether the action is juſtifiable, 209, (R).
† Ekron, Accaron, a city of Paleſtine, 341, c. The worſhip of Baalzebub there, ibid.
Elah, king of Iſrael, murdered by Zimri, i. 358, b. 808, d.
† —— the valley of, where David ſlew Goliah, 574, b.
† Elam, one of the chiefs of the line of Shem, i. 163, e, f. The father of the Perſians, ii. 26, & ſeq. & (A).
† —— the kingdom of, where ſituate, i. 952, c, (G), ii 20, (A). 57, a. 81, c. Subdued by Nebuchadnezar, ibid.
† Elatea, taken by Philip, ii 548, a. iii. 36, c.
† Elath, a ſea port on the Arabic gulph, i. 310, a. Taken by David, ibid b. By Hazael, 389, (D). By Azariah, ibid. Retaken and colonied by Rezin, 389, c.
Elbis, the devil; according to the Mohammedans, i. 46, b.
† Elbo, iſland, how formed, i. 264, d.
Elbæſus, Sanchoniatho's hiſtory dedicated to, i. 410.
Eldad and Medad propheſy in Moſes's camp, i. 525; (H).
—— a ſpurious book quoted by Hermes, ibid.
Eldod's inveteracy againſt Hengiſt, vii. 446, & ſeq. & (A).
† Elea, where ſituate, iii. 551, (I).
Eleans league with the Athenians, ii. 514, & not. Invaded by the Spartans, 598, & ſeq. Make peace with them, 600, a. Join with Antiochus, 718, d.
Eleatic ſect, an account of, i. 6, c
Eleatus ſettles in Phocis, ii. 379, a. The founder of Elatea, 389, c.
Eleazar, the ſon of Aaron, i. 490, d. Makes the cenſers of Korah into a covering for the altar, 530, c. Inſtalled by Moſes into his father's dignity, 532, c.
—— reproves Izates's hypocriſy, iii. 849.
—— made high-prieſt, iv. 36, a, b. Sends the ſeventy interpreters to Ptolemy, 38, not.
—— a venerable Jew, martyred, 54, a, b. A ſurly Phariſee's affront to Hyrcan, 95, b, (W).
—— a fooliſh prieſt betrays the ſacred treaſury, 115, d.
—— the ſon of Annas, made high-prieſt, 194, b. Carried off by the ſicarii, 267, b. Murdered by the Zelots, 269.
—— head of the Zelots, defeats the Romans, 269, e. Made governor of Idumea, 270, d.
—— a worthy prieſt oppoſes the Zelots, 278, b. Surpriſed by Giſchala, 280, a, b, His deſperate end at Maſſada, 290, b.
—— a gigantic Jew, ſent to Rome, v. 462, c.
Electra, the mother of Dardanus, ii 312, & ſeq, & (I).
Elements, all reverenced by the Perſians, ii. 74, e. Laws and method for preſerving them pure, ibid. &c.
† Elephantis, where ſited, vii. 213, a, (E). 217, c.
† Elephantophagi, who, and where ſited, vii. 184, c.
Elephants rout the Romans, iii. 309, e, f. A remedy found againſt it, 813, a. 815, c, d. When firſt led in triumph at Rome, iv. 646, f. One hundred and four follow that of Metellus, 669, a. Baited to death afterwards, ibid. b. Taught to walk upon the rope, v. 281, c. Long dreaded by the Romans, vi. 844, a. Brought at firſt with Indian leaders, ibid. c, (Y). When firſt uſed by the Carthaginians, 856, (G). How forced over the Rhoſne, vii. 11, d, e. Remarks on that docil animal, ibid. (F).
Elephenor kills his grandfather, iii. 250, d, Baniſhed, ibid. d. Killed before Troy, 351, a.
Eleric's ſtratagem to find out his treacherous ſubjects, vi. 556, b. Turns chriſtian, and abdicates, ibid. f.
Eleſbaan ſubdues the Homerites, vii. 219, c. Turns chriſtian, ibid. & ſeq. His character, ibid. (N).
Eleus, king of Elis, ii. 407, d.
Eleuſians murdered by the thirty tyrants, ii. 531, b.
† Eleuſina damaged by the overflow of the Cephiſus, vi. 35, f.
—— the high prieſt of, his magical tricks with Julian, 323, a.
† Eleuſis, a ſea-port of Attica, ii. 361, b, (A). The rites of Ceres performed there, 732, not.
† Eleuthera, a city in Crete, deſcribed, iii. 161. Taken by Metellus, 171. Her walls broken with vinegar, vii. 16, a.
Eleutherus ſent exarch into Italy, vii. 687, b, c, (T). His treaſon and death, 688, b—d.
Elfs ſacrificed to by the Saxons, vii. 442, e.
Eli, high-prieſt and judge of Iſrael, i. 754, c. Shameful remiſſneſs to his ſons, ibid. d. Threatened by a prophet from God, 755, paſſ. His unhappy end, 756, b.
Eli, Eli, &c. pſ. xxii. in what ſenſe to be underſtood, iv 241, (D). In what language, ibid.
Eliakim. See Jehoiakim, i. 848, b, c.
Elias, the Boſporan king, defeats and kills Juſtinian, vi. 549, f.
Eliaſhib, an unworthy Jewiſh prieſt, iv. 24, a. His death, 26, c.
Elijah, the prophet, many particulars relating to him, i. 809, (D). Meeting with Ahab, 810, b. Zeal againſt Baal, ibid. &c, † Elim, one of the Iſraelitiſh encampments, i. 508, f.
† Elis, the kingdom of, part of ancient Greece, ii. 344, b. Whence ſo named, 405, b. Its ſituation, extent, &c ibid. c, d. By whom founded, 407, b. Its kings, &c ibid. & ſeq. Ruined by war and peſtilence, 409, a.

† —— metro-

—— metropolis of that kingdom, 405, c. See alſo vol. i. 168, a.
Eliſa, the eighth ſon of Japhet, i. 118, b.
—— Dido, her huſband murdered by Pygmalion, i. 415, & ſeq. Flees into Afric, 416, & ſeq. The time of her coming to Carthage, 658, & ſeq. Whether ſhe founded it, ibid. Worſhipped there, 692, b, c. Her flight from Tyre, 719, e. Touching at Cyprus, 720, d, e. Settling in Afric, 721, paſſ. Death, 722, c—e. Character, 723, paſſ. Whether cotemporary with Æneas, ibid. d, e.
Eliſabeth, the wife of Aaron, i. 490.
—— the mother of John the baptiſt, her pregnancy, iv. 154.
† Eliſha, the eldeſt ſon of Javan, where ſettled, i. 168.
—— the prophet, cures Naaman of his leproſy, 385, & ſeq. Perſecuted by Benhadad, 387. Foretells his death, and Hazael's treaſon, 387, d.
Elium, in the Phœnician hiſtory, the ſame with Lamech, i. 88, b. Why that name given to Noah, 89, (N).
Ella defeats the Britons, vii 446, c, d. Defeated, ibid. e. Inlarges his kingdom, 447, b, c. His death, 449, c.
—— Attila's ſon, made king of the Acatziri, 465, a.
Ellebichus ſent to judge the Antiochians, vi. 409. His ſeverity ſoftened, ibid & ſeq.
† Ellopia, in Eubœa, by whom built, iii. 249, e.
† Elon, not a plain, but an oak, i. 424, (G).
—— one of the judges of Iſrael, 753, d.
Elpidius preſerves Symmachus's writings, vi. 428, not.
Elul, the twelfth month of the Jewiſh year, i. 611, (K),
—— the faſt of, in memory of the ill report of the ten ſpies, 527, a.
Elulæus, king of Tyre, takes Gath, i. 416, d. Defends Tyre againſt the Aſſyrians, ibid. e. Diſperſes their fleet, ibid. & ſeq.
† Elyma, Elymais, where placed, i. 416, f. Whence ſo called, ii. 314. d.
† —— a city of Macedon, iii. 255, a.
† —— the kingdom of, 852.
† —— metropolis of, ibid
† —— the temple of, plundered, ibid. c.
Elymas aſſiſts Agathocles, vi 800, b. Turns tail, and is defeated by him, ibid. c, d.
Elymean kings, unknown by name, iii. 852, d, e.
† Emathia, from whom ſo called, ii. 316, f.
† Emerita Auguſta, by whom built, v. 299, e. New-colonied by Otho, 602, e. Deſcribed, vii. 298, b.
† Emeriti, veterans, why ſo called, v. 366, (G).
† Emeſſa, the kingdom of, deſcribed, iii. 848. The cathedral of, built by Conſtantius, vi 316, b.
† Emeſſans kill young Quietus, vi. 180, e. Put to the ſword, ibid. f. Surrendered to Aurelian, 190, d, e.
Emilianus, Scipio, paſſes mount Olympus, iii 491, e.
Emilius, Paul. ſucceſs againſt Perſeus, iii. 490, & ſeq. 492. Speech to him, 495, e. Treatment to him, 496, & ſeq. New-models the Macedonian government, ibid. & ſeq. Triumphs, 499.
† Emins, the powerful deſcendants of Ham, i. 286, c. Why called Moabites, ibid d. Driven out by them, ibid.
† Emmaus, whence ſo called, iv. 189, (T). Where ſituate, 194, (A). Fortified by the Syrians, 76, c. Whence called Nicopolis, 290, (E).
Empedocles believed the word to be compounded of minute particles, i. 20, a. His two maſſers, 29, a. Phyſiology explained, ibid. &c. Turns the ſtream of two rivers, iii. 7, a. His famed ſaying of the Agrigentines, vi. 749, c.
Emperor, the import of that title changed, v. 295, a. In Italy, their territories, vii 721, b.
Emporia's fidelity to her huſband, v. 654, paſſ. Put to death, ibid. d.
† Emporium taken by Hannibal, vi. 741, a.
† Empulum taken by the Romans, iv. 591, c.
En Soph, of the Jews, i. 25, b.
Enceladus's avarice raiſes a revolt in Gaul, v. 312, f. Buys his pardon, 313, d.
† Encilla taken by Dionyſius, vi. 773, d. By Timoleon, 781, d.
Enchelæ chuſe Cadmus their general, ii. 372, b.
Encratite Manichees, whence ſo called, vi. 397, a.
Endortes, a Celtic general, taken and crucified, vi. 866, (M).
Endymion, king of Elis, the fable of, ii. 407, b, (H).
† England. See Britain, vii. 409, & ſeq. Whence called Anglia and Saxony, 441, d, e.
† Engliſh take ſome provinces from the Welſh, vii. 454, a.
† Engouleſme taken by the Franks, vii. 576, d.
† Engyumæ, city in Sicily, iii. 9, c. Spared by Marcellus, 124, c.
† Enna, the city of, iii. 9, a. Taken by Dionyſius, 48, c. Attempted, 114, e. Taken by Sicilian ſlaves, iv. 795, b. By the Agrigentines, vi. 802, (P). By Hamilcar, 832, c. Betrayed to the Romans, 833, d.
Ennius, the poet, his writings, &c. iv. 680, d. Inſtructs Cato in Sardinia, 750, b.
—— Lucius, his frivolous trial, v. 412, b.
Enon, the ſuppoſed ſon of Job, i. 481, a.
Enoch tranſlated into heaven, i. 78, b, (N). Various opinions concerning him, ibid. & ſeq.
—— the ſpurious book of, 79, a. Some fragments of it, 80, (N).
Enos, the ſon of Seth, when born, i. 77.
† Entella ſurpriſed by the Campanians, iii. 48, b.
† Eordians, where ſeated, iii. 255, a.
Eoric ſettles upon the Loyre, vi. 485, c.
Eoſter worſhipped by the Saxons, vii, 442, e.
Epaminondas defeats the Spartans in Bithynia, ii. 616, b—e. Invades Laconia, 617, d. Rebuilds Meſſene, ibid. f. Breaks into Peloponneſus, 618. Fruſtrated in his attempt againſt Sparta, 619, c. Againſt Mantinea, ibid. e. Slain, ibid. f.
—— guardian to Philip, iii. 287, c. His character, 288, † Epantcrii, who, vii. 73, a.
Epaphroditus ſent to watch Cleopatra, iii. 689, & ſeq.
—— Sylla, why ſo called, v. 80, (W).
Epeus, the pretended contriver of the Trojan horſe, ii. 497, c.
Epheſian letters, a proverb, ii 756, a, & not.
Epheſians, their pride, iii. 317, d.
† Epheſus, a city of Lydia, ii. 289, c. Metropolis of Ionia, by whom built, 369. Opens its gates to Alexander, 156. Greatly enriched by him, ibid. d. The antient and modern ſtate of it, 753, & ſeq. Tyrants of it, 755, e. How devoted to Diana, ibid. f. Ruined by Sylla, 766, & ſeq.
—— taken by Antiochus, iii. 545, a.
—— the temple of, the only one that eſcaped the Perſian fury, ii. 117, e. Spared by Demetrius, iii. 441. Plundered by the Goths, 495, b.
Ephetæ, the court of, why inſtituted, ii. 368. Their power, &c. 421, c. 430, c.
Ephialtes, head of the Athenian party, ii. 485. His character, ibid. & ſeq. Aſſaſſinated, 487, b.
† Ephira, by whom built, ii. 321, f. The old name of Corinth, 390, &c.
Ephod of the jewiſh high-prieſt deſcribed, i. 637, a—f.
Ephori of Sparta, by whom inſtituted, ii. 574, a, & not. Their office, ibid. &c. Become tyrants 626, d. 630, (V). Murdered, ibid. & 634, d. How like the Carthaginian quinquevirs, vi. 677, a—c, (H).
Ephorus's writings and character, vi. 185, (Y). 739, (E).
Ephraim born, i. 453, b. Preſented to and bleſt by Jacob, 460, d,
† —— the tribe of, their lot in the promiſed land, 560, b.
† —— the wood of, 576, a.
Ephraimites defeated by Jephtha, i. 753, a, b.
† Ephron, the Hittite, his generous behaviour to Abraham, i. 329, a, b.
—— taken by Judas Maccabeus, iv. 67, d,
† Ephtotilis, who, and where ſited, vi. 402, c. Beſiege Edeſſa, ibid.
Epicene, ſiſter and concubine of Cimon, ii. 406. 490, ſub not. Her brave ſpeech to Pericles, 495, c.
Epicharis forwards the conſpiracy againſt Nero, v. 551, e, f. Impriſoned, 552, a. Her ſignal conſtancy on the rack, 553, c. Death, ibid. d.
† Epicnemidia, part of antient Greece, ii. 344, b. Whence ſo called, 412, a.
Epictetus, the famed philoſopher, his character, &c. vi 50, ſub not.
† —— part of Phrygia Minor, ii. 304, c.
Epicurus's atomic ſyſtem, &c. conſidered, i. 20, & ſeq. Notion of the gods, 21, e.
Epicydes plots againſt Syracuſe, iii. 195, d. Choſen praetor, 197. Cables with the Leontines, 109, b. Commands in Syracuſe, 114, a. Retires to Agrigentum, 119, d. Defeated, 125, a.
† Epidamnians, a colony of Corinth, ii. 495, d, &c.
† Epidamnus

† Epidamnus, in Macedon, deſcribed; iii. 254, (C). Taken by the Corcyreans, 280, a, b.
† Epidaurians, firſt peoplers of Ægina, iii. 243, d. Subdue it, 244, & not. Submit to Glaucias, 461, c.
† Epidaurus, a famed ſea-port in Lacedemon; ii. 396, d. Invaded by the Athenians, 515, d.
† — the temple of, plundered by Sylla, 738, c.
Epigenes envied by Hermias, iii. 530, & ſeq. Murdered by him, 532, d.
Epigeus, Autochthon, Uranus, i. 88, e. The heavens named from him, 89, c.
Epigoni, whence ſo called, ii. 375. The war of, ibid. & ſeq iii 406.
Epimenides expiates the Athenians, &c. ii. 423, e.
† Epiphania, a city in Cilicia Propria, ii. 341, b
† Epipolæ, the hill of, deſcribed; iii. 4, e. Surpriſed by the Athenians, 28, c. Taken by the Romans; 117, b. Fortified by Dionyſius; vi. 754, b.
† Epirots, join with Antiochus, ii. 718. Subdued by the Romans, 746, paſſ. Sold for ſlaves, ibid. & ſeq. Their character; iii. 793, b. Defeated at Argos, 818. Surrender, 819, f. Their commonwealth; 821, c, d.
† Epirus, the kingdom of, deſcribed, ii. 746, c. Subdued and plundered by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Its various fates ſince, 747, a, b. By whom peopled, iii. 795, & ſeq. 798, b, c. Its government, ibid. e, f. Plundered by the Gauls, vi. 435, e. Seized by Michael Angelo, 629, e.
Epiſtates, their office at Athens, ii. 439, c.
† Epiſtropus, king of Lyrneſſus in Cilicia, ii. 343, a.
Epitus I. king of Arcadia, killed by a viper, ii. 379, b.
— II. ſtruck blind for his preſumption, 380, a.
Epizelus, a ſurpriſing ſtory of him, ii. 463, a.
Eponymus, firſt archon of Athens; why ſo called, ii. 442, d.
Epopeus, king of Sicyon, ii. 350. Raviſhes Antiope, 372, e. Dies of his wounds, 473, a.
Epoptai, at Athens, what, ii 732, not.
† Epordia, when built, iv. 409, b.
† Eporedian, Ivrean ſlaves, whence ſo called, v. 299, f.
Epulones, their firſt inſtitution, iv. 751, c.
Equeſtrian order forbid the arena, v. 344, a.
Equiſco taken priſoner by the Goths, vi. 383, e. Eſcapes and is ſlain, 384, b.
Equitius, why ſet aſide from the empire, vi. 346, b. Extortions in Illyricum, 350, d. Moderation to the Quadi, 361, d, e. Purſued by them, 362, b, c.
— choſen tribune by force and murdered, v. 42, b. 43, c.
Er, Judah's ſon, cut off for his wickedneſs, i. 450, c.
— the name of the Pamphylian Zoroaſter, ii. 205, b.
† Era fortified by the Meſſenians, ii. 579. Betrayed to the Lacedemonians, 580.
Eraric, king of Italy, vii. 493, a. 664, e, f. Murdered, 665, b.
Eraſiſtratus's ſtratagem in favour of young Antiochus, iii. 519, & ſeq.
Eraſtides, king of Rhodes, iii. 134, a.
Eratoſthenes's liſt of Theban kings conſidered, i. 239, d, e.
— made keeper of the Alexandrian library, iii. 640, c, (G). His writings and character, vii. 175, ſub not.
Erato, the nymph, mother of king Azan, ii. 379, a.
† Erbeſſa made a Roman magazine, iv. 655, e. Delivered up to the Carthaginians, 656, a.
† Erchenwin founds a fourth Saxon kingdom, vii. 450, d.
Erdewirath, the ſtory of, iv. 375, (B).
Erebus, in Ariſtophanes, what, i. 18, a.
† Erech, a city in Chaldæa, i 123, (P).
Erechtheus, king of Athens, ii, 363, d. Founder of the rites of Ceres, 731, ſub not.
† Eretrea taken and deſtroyed by the Perſians, ii. 112, a. 460, c.
† Eretrean priſoners ſent to people Ciſſia, ii. 113, c.
— betray the Athenians, 525, b.
† Eretria, a city in Eubœa, deſcribed, iii. 248, c.
— the New, taken by the Romans, ibid. e. 147, e. By Philip, 251, f.
† — taken from the Athenians, v. 307.
† Eretrian pillar, 248, d.
Erichthonius, king of Troas, ii 313, b.
— of Athens, 363, c. The fable of his birth, ibid. (F).
Erionnes, a copier of Macrobius, vi. 477, ſub not.
† Erigon, river, in Theſſaly, ii. 382, a.
† — in Macedon, 260, d.
† Erithra, by whom founded, ii. 369, d. Deſcribed; 752, d.
† Erix, in Sicily, deſcribed; iii. 7, d 89, c. Surpriſed by the Romans, iv. 674, d. Retaken by Hamilcar, 676, d. Taken by Dionyſius, vi. 773, d. By Pyrrhus; 815, e. Razed by Hamilcar, 832. Taken by Barcas; 849, c.
Ermenegild, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, vii. 492, e.
Ermenric invaded by the Hunns, vi. 379, d. Kills himſelf, ibid. See vol. vii. 459, a, b.
Ermeric, king of the Suevians in Spain; vi. 463, a. His vain attempt on Galicia, ibid. b. Driven out by Gonderic, 473, b, c. His treaty with the Galicians; 484, a. See vol. vii. 530, & ſeq.
Erna, and his Hunns, ſettle in Scythia Minor; vi. 496, d.
Errius Potitius diſcovers a conſpiracy, iv. 660, b.
† Erycina, Venus, rebuilt by Tiberius, v. 426, f.
Erylus, king of Byblus, i. 410, d,
Eryſichthon, the ſon of Cecrops, his death; ii. 363, b.
† Erythia iſland, where ſited, vii. 146, e, (E).
Eryxias, the laſt archon of Athens, ii. 369, f.
Eſarhaddon, ſucceeds Sennacherib in Aſſyria, i. 895, b. Unites Babylon to it, ibid. c. Reduces Iſrael and Syria, 896, a. And Judah with Manaſſeh, ibid. Egypt and Ethiopia, ibid. & ſeq. His death, 896, b. Styled the great Aſnaper, ibid. (M).
Eſau born to Iſaac, i. 305, Sells his birthright, ibid. d. Whence called Edom, ibid. e. In what his birthright conſiſted, 306, (C). Supplanted by his brother, ibid. a, b. Removes to mount Seir, ibid. Aſſiſts with Jacob at his father's funeral, 308, a. His character, 307, (H). Deſcendants dukes of Edom, 437, (R).
† Eſcadia, where ſituate, iv. 781, (T).
† Eſdraelon; Segion, the plain of, i. 574, b,
Eſdras, the apocryphal book of, iv. 20, (E).
† Eſerna made the magazine of the allies, v. 52, c.
† Eſiongeber, a ſea-port in Edom, i. 310, a.
Eſk, partner with Hengiſt, vii. 445, c. Succeeds him, 446, e. His death, 449, c.
† Eſkihiſſar. See Laodicea, ii, 292, d.
† Eſquilinian hill added to Rome, iv. 455, a.
— a tribe, added to the other three, ibid. b.
† Eſſa taken by Janneus, iv. 102, a.
Eſſenians, why favoured by Herod, iv. 132, in fin. not. Oppoſe his oath of fidelity, 144, a, b. A famous ſect among the Jews, 169. Why not mentioned by the evangeliſts, 170, a, b. Etymon of their name, ibid. (A). Their riſe, ibid. c, d. Auſtere life, ibid. & ſeq. Faith and peculiar tenets, 171, & ſeq. Degeneracy and end, 173, e, f.
† Eſſex, &c. ſeized on by the Saxons, vii. 445, d.
Eſtates, laws againſt diſſipating them, ii. 432, e.
Eſther married to Ahaſhuerus, iv. 11, c.
† Eſtiolis, part of antient Greece, ii. 344.
Eſus, Heſus, the ſupreme deity with the Gauls, vii. 328, a, b. Whence that name, 329, (E). How worſhipped, 330, & ſeq. When exchanged for Jupiter, 333, a, b. Worſhipped by the Saxons, 442, d.
Eteocles, king of Crete, iii. 169, e.
Eteocles, king of Thebes, his injuſtice to his brother, ii. 368. The cauſe of a bloody war, ibid. & ſeq. 373, & ſeq. Kills him, and is killed by him, 374, d.
† Ethan, the ſecond encampment of the Iſraelites, i. 503, b. Suppoſed the Butec of Herodotus, ibid. (O).
Ethbaal. See Itobal, i. 415, & ſeq.
† Eteſian winds, whence ſo called, v. 151, b, (D).
† Ethelbert raiſes civil wars among the Saxons, vii. 451, b.
† Ethiopia, how divided, vii. 197, d.
† — Propria, its extent, 180, a. Names ibid. b, c, (A). Why called Cuſh in Scripture, 181, & ſeq. & (B, C). Its various nations, 182, & ſeq. Cities, 184, & ſeq. Mountains, 185, d. Hot clime, 186, b. Seaſon, ibid. c, d. Soil, &c. ibid. e. Beer, ibid. f, (D). Lakes, &c. 190, a. Promontories and commerce, ibid. & ſeq. Gold, and other minerals, 191, b, c. Divided into forty-five kingdoms, 193, e. Its antiquity, kings, &c. 205, & ſeq. Subdued by Seſac, 207, & ſeq. By Cambyſes, 213, d, (F). Penetrated by Ptolemy, 214, b, (G). By Auguſtus, 215, & ſeq. By Probus, 216, & ſeq. The Zagean uſurpation, 221, & ſeq.
† Ethiopians, how ſeated and divided, 197, d. Why black, 182, & ſeq. From whom deſcended, 192, d. Whence, and where ſettled, ibid. & ſeq. Their antiquity, quity, 193, b, c. Kingly government, ibid. & ſeq. Laws, 194, & ſeq. Kings, how choſen, 193, d, e. 195, a. Their religion, deities, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Worſhip of the ſun, &c. 196, d. Language, 197, b. c. Its affinity to the Hebrew, &c. ibid. e, (Y). Its changes, 198, a——c. Hieroglyphics, ibid. (Z). Alphabets, 199, a, b. Cuſtoms, ibid. & ſeq. Weapons, 201, e, (C). Way of fighting, 202, a, b. Of preſerving their dead, ibid. & ſeq. Food, 203, b. Deify their kings, ibid. c, (H). Character, ibid. d, e, & ſeq. Kings, whether deſcended from Solomon, 206, & ſeq. Conquer Egypt, 210, d. Hiſtory to the expulſion of the ſhepherds, ibid. & ſeq. To the death of Sethon, 211, & ſeq. To Xerxes, 212, & ſeq. Serve under him, 213, d, (F). When converted, 216, c, & ſeq. Reject Arianiſm, 218, d, e.

Ethnarchy, what, iv. 190, e.

† Etra, where ſituate, iv. 487, c.

† Etruria, part of Italia Propria, iv. 410, d. Deſcribed, ibid. See the reſt under Hetruria, 405, & ſeq.

† Etruſcan, the antient language of Magna Græcia, vii. 9, (D).

† Etruſcans their treachery to the Romans, vii. 64, c. See Hetrurians, iv. 430, & ſeq.

Etruſcilla, Heren. the wife of Decius, vi. 168, b.

—— his daughter married to Gallus, 170, e.

† Etruſcus, king of Etruria, iv 418, e.

—— the ſon of Decius, 163, b. His death, 173, d.

Evagoras I. king of Cyprus, invaded by the Perſians, ii. 145. Forced to yield, 146. His attachment to them, iii. 178, & ſeq. Baniſhed, 179.

—— II. his noble character, 179, d, e. Subdues the whole iſland, 180, b, c. Invaded by the Perſians, ibid. & ſeq. Forced to a peace, 181, c. Murdered, ibid. d.

—— III. driven out by his uncle, 181, f. Put to death, 182, b.

—— king of Rhodes, iii 133, b.

Evagrius's account of the Juſtinian war, iv. 357, (Z). Vain apology for Conſtantine IV. 261, e

Evander, a cowardly Cretan, his unlucky advice to Perſeus, iii. 487. Hated by the Macedonians, 493, d. Put to death by Perſeus, 494.

—— introduces letters into Italy, iv. 414, & ſeq.

Evaſius burnt alive. vi. 360, f.

Eubia, a Colchite beauty, married to Antiochus, ii. 719, b.

† Eubœa, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 245, & ſeq. By whom firſt inhabited, 249, f. Its government, 250, & ſeq. Invaded by Philip, 299, b.

—— invaded by the Athenians, ii. 457, e. 492, a. By the Perſians, 460, c. Revolt, 525. Joined to Bœotia by an iſthmus, 526, c. Taken by the Spartans, 601, d. By Antiochus, 718.

Eubœans great mariners, iii. 250, e. Their tyrants, 251, c. By whom ſubdued, 252, b, c.

Eububezes ſucceeds Mohammed, vi. 543, b. His conqueſts and death, ibid.

Eucherius, the ſon of Stilicho, born, vi. 431, e. Vain threats againſt chriſtianity, 456, e, f. Put to death, 457, a.

Euclidas defeated at Selaſia, ii. 649, b.

Eucolpius's writings and character, vi. 148, (Q).

Eucratides I. his character and death, iii. 846, e.

—— II. murders his father, ibid.

Eudamas's ſucceſs againſt Antiochus, iii. 150. Defeats the Syrian fleet, 151.

Eudamidas's ill ſucceſs in Thrace, ii. 614. Succeeds Agis, 622, a.

Eudemus, agent of Sejanus with Livia, v. 416, d. His puniſhment, 417, a.

Eudocia's extract and character, vi. 473, e, f. Marriage to Theodoſius, ibid. & ſeq. Excellent poems, 474, a, (Q). Declared Auguſta, 479, b. Journey and largeſs to Jeruſalem, 483, a, b. Retires thither, ibid. f, & ſeq. Her death, buildings, &c. 486, b——d.

—— Eudoxia's daughter, carried priſoner, 501, c. Married to Hunneric, ibid, d. & 507. vii. 534, e, f.

—— the wife of Heraclius, crowned, 539, b. Delivery and death, ibid. d.

—— widow of Ducas, made regent, 603. Invaded by the Turks, 604, b. Forced to marry, ibid. c, d. Depoſed and confined, 605, f, & ſeq.

Eudoxia, the wife of Arcadius, her extract, &c. vi. 432, f. Her imperious and wicked ſway, 445, b, c. Aſſumes manly titles, 447, e. Baniſhes St. Chryſoſtom, 451, c. Dies in childbed, ibid.

—— Licinia, bethrothed to Valentinian III. 479, c. Married to him, 483. Forced to marry Maximus, 502, e. Hatches his death, ibid. & ſeq. Carried off captive, 501, c. Sent back to Leo, ibid. d. 507, c. See alſo vol. vii. 534, d——f.

Eudoxius, the Arian biſhop, ſwears Valens to Arianiſm, vi. 370, b. His death, 371, f.

Eve, by whom tempted, i. 61, a. The time of her death uncertain, 80.

Euelthon's treatment of Pheretima, iii 177, b.

Euenus, king of Lyrneſſus in Cilicia, ii. 343, a.

† —— river of Ætolis, 409, & ſeq.

—— the Apollonian ſhepherd's ſtory 255, (D).

Euephnus's treachery, the cauſe of the Meſſenian war, ii. 570, c.

† Euergetæ, whence ſo called, iii. 367, a, b. Favoured by Alexander, ibid.

Eugenius proclaimed emperor, vi. 216, f. Killed at Antioch, 217, a.

—— created emperor by Arbogaſtes, 421, a. His proud embaſſy to Theodoſius, 422, b, c. Succeſs againſt the Franks, 423, c, d. Reſtores paganiſm, ibid. d, e, Defeated, 424, paſſ. Put to death, 425, a.

—— the father of Themiſtius's writings and character, 429, not.

—— defeats the Scenitæ in Syria, 520, a.

Evi, prince of Midian, i. 303, a.

Evilmerodach, ſucceeds his father, i 964, d. Governs during his delirium, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by the Medes, 965, a——c. Impriſoned by him for it, ibid. d. Kindneſs to Jehoiachim, ibid. Murdered by Nerigliſſar, ibid. e. Probably the Belſhazzar of Daniel, 966, a, b. See alſo ii. 21, 24, & ſeq.

Eulæus, regent of Egypt, iii. 573. Corrupts the young king, 576, b.

† Eulyſian region, the antient ſeat of the Hunns, vii. 456, b.

Eumelus's war with his two brothers, iii. 842, b, c. His character and death, ibid. f.

Eumenes I. ſucceeds in Pergamus, iii. 769.

—— II. wars with Antiochus, 556, & ſeq. 770, & ſeq. His valour at Magneſia, 564, 772. Oppoſed by the Rhodians, ibid. & 151. Wars with Pruſias, ibid & 772. Makes peace with him, 773, & ſeq. Defeated by Hannibal's ſtratagem, ibid. f. Invaded by Pharnaces, ibid. & ſeq. Makes peace with him, 774, b. Aſſiſts Antiochus, 571, f. 774, d. Speech to the Roman ſenate, ibid. e. Wounded by Perſeus's aſſaſſins, 484, & ſeq. 775, a. Allies with Rome againſt him, ibid. e. Repulſed from Caſſandria, 488. Accuſed to the ſenate, 776, & ſeq. His death, 778, b. 494.

—— Alexander's ſecretary, his moderation towards Hepheſtion 407, c. 408, a, b. Declares for Arideus, 415, e. 419. His ſignal fidelity, 420, a, b. Sent againſt Ptolemy, 421. Defeats Neoptolemus, 422, a. Proſcribed, 423, d. His defeat and bravery, 424, & ſeq. Loyalty, 425, & ſeq. Repulſes Antigonus, 427, b. Marches to Perſepolis, ibid. e. Speech to his officers, 428, (C). Defeats Antigonus, 428, & ſeq. Betrayed to him, and put to death, 422.

—— aſſiſts Scipio againſt the Syrians, iv. 755, c. Stabbed for his friendſhip to Rome, 761.

Eumenius's flattery to Conſtantius, vi. 212, f. Panegyric on Conſtantine, 238, c. Other writings, &c, 272, (F).

Eumolpidæ, Ceres's rites in their family, ii. 733, not.

Eumolpus, the ſuppoſed inſtitutor of Ceres's rites, ii. 733, not.

Eunapius's writings and character, vi. 272, (F). 338, ſub not. 430, not.

Eunomia, a great oratreſs, vi. 272, (T).

Eunomians ſuppreſſed by Gratian, vi. 389, a. By Theodoſius, 396, a.

Eunonus, king of Sparta, killed, ii. 404, d, e.

Eunuchs of all nations excluded the Lords congregation, i. 665, & ſeq

——— by whom firſt made, ii. 7, & (I). 62, b. Suppreſſed by Domitian, v. 666, b.

——— the number of, regulated by Aurelian, vi. 194, b. Privileged by Conſtantius, 285, c. Excluded from being patricians, 488, f.

Eunus choſen chief of the revolted ſlaves, iv. 794, d. Proclaimed king, 795, d. Succeſs againſt the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated, 796, c, d. His death, ibid. e.

Evocation among the Romans, what, iv. 489, (K).

Exodius ſent to kill Meſſalina, v. 504, d, e. Put to death by Caracalla, vi. 122, b.
Exphaes invaded by the Spartans, ii. 571, & ſeq. His death, 573, d.
Euphemia married to Anthemius, vi. 493, e.
Euphemius's ſacrilege, vi. 567. Treaſon, ibid. c. Death, ibid. d.
Euphraſius killed by an earthquake, vi. 523, f.
† Euphrates, river, i. 55, d. Its courſe, 909, c, d. The ancient way of navigating it, 910, a, b, iii. 694, a.
† Euphrateſiana, the kingdom of, whence ſo named, v. 650, b.
Euphroſyna forced out of a monaſtery by Balbus, vi. 576, d. Sent back by his ſon, ibid. f.
Euratus, the Achæan, his ſpeech to the Roman ſenate, ii. 689, c.
Euric murders his brother, and mounts the Gothiſh throne, vi. 508, b. Seizes ſome provinces in Gaul, 510, e. Makes peace with them, 512, c. See alſo vii. 492, a. Ravages Luſitania, 514, c——e. Conqueſts in Spain, ibid. & ſeq. In Gaul, 515, paſſ. Vain attempt on Auvergne, ibid. d, e. Enmity to the orthodox, ibid. f. His territories, 516, c. Death and character, ibid. & ſeq.
† Euripus. See Negropont, ii. 370, d. The ſtreights of, deſcribed, iii. 246, not. The iſles of, 252, c, d.
Europa, ſtolen by Jupiter, i. 408, b. Carried into Crete, ibid. & iii. 163, e. 166, a.
† Europus a city in Macedon, iii. 256, a.
Eurotas, founder of Lacedæmon, ii. 395.
† —— a famed river there, ibid. b, c.
Eurybiades ſurpriſes the Perſian fleet, ii. 123, c. 589, b.
Eurycrates, firſt and ſecond, kings of Sparta, ii. 576, e. 582, d.
Eurydice's precaution againſt Olympias, iii. 456, & ſeq. Put to death, 457, b, c.
—— ſpeech to the Athenian general, 286, d, e.
Eurylcon, the ſon of Æneas. See Aſcanius, iv. 420, c.
Eurylochus betrays Demetrias to the Ætolians, ii. 715, d.
Eurymedon, ſent into Sicily, ii. 510, & ſeq. Slain at Syracuſe, 519, d. See alſo iii. 29, 32.
Eurypylus, king of Myſia, ii. 327, c.
Euryſaces, king of Salamis, iii. 245, c.
Euryſthenes and Procles, joint kings of Sparta, ii. 398, a.
Euryſtheus's hatred to Hercules, ii. 355, & ſeq.
Eurythus robbed by Hercules, ii. 400, e.
—— a blind Spartan's brave death, 589, not.
Eurytionidæ and Eurypontidæ, whence ſo called, ii. 404.
Euſebia married to Conſtantius, vi. 286, b, c. Friendſhip to Julian and the Arians, ibid. d, e, & 296. Unnatural jealouſy of Helena, 297, b. Journey to Rome, 298, c. Barrenneſs and death, 287, c.
Euſebius of Cæſarea's obſervations on the Phœnician coſmogony, i. 12, a. On the Egyptian, 13, d, e. Partiality againſt the pagans, 12, b.
—— account of the Thundering legion, vi. 72, c, d. Account of Conſtantine's converſion vindicated, 244, b, c. Speech on the holy ſepulchre, 265, e. Book on Eaſter, ibid. Character of Conſtantine, 270, a. His writings, &c. 272, (F).
—— biſhop of Nicomedia, baniſhed, vi. 260, e. Recalled, 262, e. Impoſes on Conſtantine, 265, e, f. His hypocriſy, 261, c. Education of young Julian, 320, b.
—— Conſtantius's high chamberlain, quells a mutiny in Gaul, 290, d. Undermines Gallus, 293, b——d. Cruelty to all his friends, ibid. & ſeq. Treachery to Urſinus, 306, b, c, 307, f. Deputation to Julian, 324, d. Put to death, 325, b.
—— a profeſſor of eloquence, ſucceeds Proereſes, 338, not.
—— brother-in-law to Conſtantine, fined and baniſhed, 374, e.
—— the author of Gainas's war, his poem loſt, 478, not.
Euſtathius baniſhed by Conſtantine, vi. 265, f.
—— his writings and character, 517, (U).
—— biſhop, his learned comment upon Homer, 620, d.
Eutaric's marriage and promotion, vii. 647, b. Reception at Rome, ibid. c. Death, ibid. d.
† Euthalites, whence ſo called, iv. 342, b. Defeat the Perſians, ibid. & ſeq. Who they were, 343, (P).
Euthorius ſent to diſculpate Julian, vi. 298, f.
Euthria, taken by the Greeks, burns herſelf, ii. 317, d.
Euthymius abſolves the emperor for marrying a fourth wife, vi. 575, d, e.

Eutropia, the wife of Maximian, vi. 207.
—— daughter to Conſtantius, 226, e. Whether a chriſtian, 244, e.
—— the ſiſter of Conſtantine, murdered, 281, d, e.
Eutropius's abridgment imperfect, vi. 19. Character of Conſtantius, 226, b, c. Writings and character, 386, not.
—— ſent to conſult the hermit John, 422, c. Great ſway with Arcadius, 432, f. Envied by Rufinus, 433, b, c. Succeeds him, 434, f. His extract and ſad character, 335, a. Hatred to Stilicho, ibid. & ſeq. Treachery to Abundantius, 436, b, c. To Timaſius, ibid. & ſeq. To Barbus, 437, d. Stirs up Gildo to revolt, 438, c. His griping conſulſhip, 441, b. Diſallowed by Honorius, ibid. d, e. Undermined by Gainas, 442, & ſeq. Degraded and depoſed, 443, d. Baniſhed, 444, b, c. Beheaded, ibid, d, e. See alſo vol. vii. 536, & ſeq.
Eutychians ſuppreſſed by Marcian, vi. 501, e. Raiſe a tumult at Alexandria, 504, e. And a maſſacre at Conſtantinople, 521, f.
Eutychianus, a buffoon, made conſul, vi. 136, f.
Euvates among the Gauls, their office, vii. 365, b.
† Euxine ſea, ſaid to be ſo called from Aſkenas, i. 166, f. ii. 309, a. How formed, iii. 239, d, e. Deſcribed by Arrian, vi. 41, f, & ſeq. Frozen twenty days, 448, f.
Euzoius, an Arrian biſhop, baptizes Conſtantius, vi. 314, f.
Exarchs, their riſe and office, vii. 679, e, f. Number, names, and duration, 680, a, b.
Exauctoration, among the Romans, what, v. 359, (Q).
Excommunication, a dreadful puniſhment among the Jews, i. 674. Tranſmitted to the chriſtians, 675, a. Yet not in a damning ſenſe, ibid. &c. Three kinds of it among the Jews, 674, (E).
Exerciſes in Sparta, how regulated, ii. 564, & ſeq.
Exhilaratus, duke of Naples, murdered, vi. 553, b. vii. 705, a.
Exiles, Roman, put to death by Caligula, v. 472, in fin. (P).
† Exiliſſa, where ſited, vii. 142, d. Whether the ſame with Ceuta, ibid. e.
Exipodras put to death by his father, iii. 755, b.
Exodares reſigns his crown to Trajan, vi. 16, e, f.
Expiation day, among the Jews, the only faſt of divine appointment, i. 617, c. Why ordained, 618. How ſtrictly kept, ibid. d, &c. Other expiations performed by them, 621, a.
—— among other nations, ii 424, not.
† Ezion Geber, a famed port in Petrea, vii. 227, e.
Ezra ſent into Judea, iv. 11, d, (T). His commiſſion in favour of the Jews, 12, a, b. Reforms the church and ſtate, ibid. & ſeq. And Jewiſh canon, 13, & ſeq. Whether the inventor of Hebrew points, 14, (Z). His inſertions to the Hebrew text, 15, paſſ. & (A). Character and writings, 18, & ſeq. Reads the law to the people, 22, & ſeq. Whether the founder of the Caraite ſect, 174, & ſeq. & (H).

F.

FABIA bethrothed to M. Aurelius, vi. 62, b. Suſpected of poiſoning Verus, 68, a.
—— Oreſtilla married to Gordianus, 156, b. Eudocia. See Eudocia, 473, e, & ſeq.
Fabian martyred at Rome, vi. 168, d.
Fabiani, Lupercalian prieſts, why ſo called, iv. 422, (H).
Fabii, why ſo eſteemed by the Romans, iv. 508, e. Their valour, 509, & ſeq. Sad caſtrophe, 511, b, c. Treachery to the Celtes, 562, e. Defeated by them, 563, b.
Fabilius's writings and character, vi. 165, ſub not.
Fabius mounts the breach at Jeruſalem, iv. 111, d.
—— Quinct. defeats the Volſci, 505, e. Wholeſome advice to the ſenate, 517, e. Succeſs againſt the Arpi, 723.
—— Q. Rull. choſen maſter of the horſe, 608, e. Condemned by the dictator, ibid. e. Pardoned, 609, f. Succeſs againſt the Samnites, 610.
—— Q. Maximus, why ſo called, 627, c. Choſen dictator, 617, f. Defeats the Samnites, 618, b, c. Before Sora, ibid. f. And the Hetrurians, 624, b. Opens a way through the Ciminian foreſt, 622, c, d. Defeats the Umbrians, 623, e. The Hetrurians, 624, b. Umbrians and Samnites, 625, a—d. Reforms the ſtate, 627, c. Defeats the Marſi, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Hetrurians, 632, & ſeq. Gauls, 633, & ſeq. Oppoſes poſes his ſon's election, 638; a. His death and character, 642, d, e.

—— Maxim. Verrucoſ. his character, 683; f. Choſen prodictator, 705. Why ſurnamed Cunctator; 706, b. Succeſs againſt Hannibal; ibid. Outwitted by him, ibid. & ſeq. Recalled, 707. See vol. vii. 8; 23, 44; & 62. Speech to the Senate; ibid. d, e. Defeats the Carthagians; 708. Wholeſome advice to the ſenate, 712, f. Waſtes the Capuans, 719, f Succeſs in Campania, 721; & ſeq. Merry judgement of the Tarentine pictures, 723, & ſeq.
Fabius Pictor, why ſo called; iv. 627, b.
—— Gurges. See Gurges, 638, & ſeq.
—— Q. ſucceſs in Spain, v. 135, e, f.
—— Maxim. takes Munda, 174; c. 176, d.
—— choſen conſul, 319, d. Diſgraced by Auguſtus, 347; c. Kills himſelf, ibid. d.
—— Ruſticus, his writings and character, 578; (T).
—— betrayed by the Thracians, iii. 749, a, (P).
—— Hiſpanus, baniſhed for extortion, vi. 10, f.
—— Marcel. hiſtory loſt, 19, c. Conſul beſieges Drepanum, 848, b.
Fables, why mixed with antient hiſtory, ii. 343, not.
Fabricius ſent embaſſador to Pyrrhus. iii. 811, b. His intrepid gallantry there; ibid. e; f. Sent againſt him, 813, e. Generous letter to him, 814, a, b.
—— ſucceſs againſt the confederates, iv. 643; (B).
—— Veiento, baniſhed for his ſatire againſt the ſenate, vi. 541, e.
Fabulous and heroic times, a general review of, ii. 343, paſſ.
Faction, blue, at Conſtantinople, beaten by the green, vi. 520, b Fadilla, Antoninus's daughter, vi. 53, a. Bethrothed to Maximus, 152, a —— Julia, married to Fabilius, 165, ſub not.
Fadus Caſpius, ſent governor of Judea, iv. 262, & ſeq. Quells an inſurrection there, 263, c, d.
† Fæſulæ, the colony of, conſpires againſt Caligula, v. 104, f.
† Fair, the promontory of, where ſited, iv. 594, f.
Falæ and Falarica, a weapon deſcribed, vii. 3, (A).
Falco, Q. Coſ. bold ſpeech to Pertinax, vi. 95; & ſeq. Named to the empire, 98, b. Retires, ibid. c.
† Faleria ſurrendered to Camillus, iv. 560; d.
† Faliſci fall on the Romans before Veii, iv. 557. Defeated, 558; e. Their ſpeech to the ſenate, 563, c, d. Ally with Rome, 598, b. Defeated by Brutus, 638, b. Subdued by Cerco, 679, b, c.
Falling-ſickneſs, the Romans bloody remedy againſt, iv. 804, (Z).
† Famagoſta in Cyprus, how built, iii. 173, c, (M).
Famine, averted by the death of ſeven of Saul's ſons, i. 788, b.
† Fanegoria, a city in Pontus, iii. 721, a.
Fannia's gratitude to Marius, v. 58, c, d.
Faramond, whether he had any ſway over the Franks, vi. 472. His extract, ibid. &c.
† Fargana, where ſituate, iv. 392.
Faro de Meſſina, iii. 2; a.
Faſces, why worn reverſe at funerals, v. 403, c, (B).
Faſtida, king of the Gepidæ, vii. 494; b.
Faventius raiſes a revolt in Vitellius's fleet, v. 630, a, b.
Faunuus, a fabulous king of Latium, iv. 419; a. His reception of Evander, ibid & 414.
—— Caius, ſaves the Roman camp, 781, c.
—— C. Strabo, choſen conſul, 802, c. Oppoſes Graechus, ibid. & ſeq.
Favonius's ſevere taunt to Pompey, v. 132, c. 142, b. Goes with him in his flight, 147, paſſ. Anſwer to Brutus, 180, e. Merry interpoſition between him and Caſſius, 239, e, f. Juſt invectives againſt Octavius 253, b, (Z).
Favor, the pauntomime taunt at Veſpaſian's funeral, v. 655, e.
Favorinus's pleaſantry to Adrian, vi. 31, b. His writings and character, 49, ſub not. Sarcaſm againſt the Athenians, ibid.
Fauſta and Fauſtus, Sylla's twins, why ſo called, v. 80, (W).
Fauſta, the wife of Conſtantine, born, vi. 207, d. Married, 235, b. Her iſſue by him, ibid. c. Fidelity to him, 238, e. Delivered of a ſon, 255, d. Treachery to Criſpus, 261, e. Death, ibid. d, e Fauſtina, Annia, married to Antoninus Pius, vi. 53, a. 55, a. Her avarice checked by him, ibid. e. Death and lewd character, 57, c.
—— daughter to Antoninus; married to M. Aurelius, 53; a. 57, b. Whether acceſſary to Caſſius's treaſon, 75, f, & ſeq. Her two letters to the emperor about it, 76; (G). Death and undeſerved honours, 78, d, e.
—— Annia; put to death by Commodus, 91, e.
—— married to Heliogabalus, 135. a. Murdered by him, ibid.
—— widow of Conſtantius, comes to Procopius; 367, f.
Fauſtinian ſociety of women founded by M. Aurelius, vi. 78, f.
† Fauſtinopolis, whence ſo called; iii. 762; c. vi. 79, a.
Fauſtinus executed for a jeſt, vi. 364; c.
Fauſtulus educates Remus and Romulus, iv. 422, (F).
Fauſtus, Cornel mounts the breach at Jeruſalem, iv. 111, d.
Feaſts, now celebrated among the Jews, i. 691, & ſeq.
—— of Aſia, kept at Philadelphia, ii. 328.
—— at public meals, appointed by Solon, 442. How regulated, ibid.
February. why counted unlucky at Rome, iv. 437, f.
Feciales, at Rome; their office, iv; 436; b, c. How they ratified treaties, 441, (S). And declared war; 445; (A).
Feliciſſimus, his revolt and death; vi. 194, d, e.
Felix driven out of Jeruſalen, iv. 122; e. Made procurator of Judea, 264; b. His ſaid character, ibid & (B). Murders the good high-prieſt, ibid. & ſeq. Anſwer to St. Paul, 275, b.
Felix, great ſway with Claudius, v. 488, b. Who he was ibid. (O).
——Sextilius, defeats the revolted Treverians; 643;
—— a faithleſs tool of young Gordian, vi. 162; (V).
—— a famed rhetorician, 478, not.
—— murdered by the ſoldiers, 481; e.
Fencing-maſters, when firſt introduced, v. 29; d.
Feneſtella, the poet, when he flouriſhed, v. 458, ſub not.
Fenius Ruſus conſpires againſt Nero, v. 551, & ſeq. His treachery and cruelty to his aſſociates, 553, & ſeq. Accuſed by Scævinus; 556, a. His unmanly death, ibid. d.
Feramors, the ſon of Ruſtan, killed by Ardſhir, ii. 223, e.
Feretrius, Jupiter whence ſo called, iv. 429, d. His temple rebuilt by Ancus; 446; c.
Feridon, king of Perſia. See Pheridon, ii. 181.
Ferok Hormouz put to death, iv. 403, c.
Feronia, the goddeſs; whence ſo called, iv. 443; (W).
† —— the temple of, where, ibid. d. Plundered by Hannibal, 728, e. vii. 58, a.
Feſceni, their rude plays, iv. 584; f.
Feſtivals appointed by Romulus, iv. 427, e, f.
Feſtus, Port. ſent governor of Judea, iv. 265. Severity to the turbulent Jews, 266, a.
—— Pompon. writings and character, vi. 317; ſub not. Made proconſul of Aſia, 374, f. Cruelty there, 375, c, d.
† Fez, the extent of, vii. 139; c.
† Fidena beſieged by the Romans, iv. 479, e. Taken by Curtius, 481. Q. Sp. Priſcus, 549, b.
† —— the amphitheatre of, kills and hurts fifty thouſand people, v. 431, c.
† Fidenates, their origin, iv. 415, c. Conquered by Romulus, 433, c. Treachery to the Romans, 442, d, e. Subdued and puniſhed, 443. Defeated by Ancus, 445, e. Severely uſed by Tarquin, 448; b. Freſh revolt and defeat, ibid. e, f, & ſeq.
Filii Auguſtorum, who, vi. 237; b.
Fiefs, their origin, vii. 681, f, & ſeq.
Filimer the Great ſettles near Palus Mæot. vii. 487, d. His reign there, 492, d.
Fimbria diſcarded by Flaccus, iii. 735, c. His revenge and cruelties, ibid. d, (V). Succeſs againſt Mithridates, 736; a, b. Kills himſelf, 738, b. See alſo v. 67, & ſeq.
Fines how regulated by the Romans, iv. 532, c. 550, b.
Fire, in what ſenſe worſhipped by the old Perſees, ii. 71, d. How fed and perſerved, 73, a. The ceremony of praying to it, 78, c.
—— when and how diſcovered after the Babyloniſh captivity, iv. 23; (M). Worſhipped by the Carthaginians, vi. 692, a.
—— ſhips, invented by the Rhodians, iii. 559, d, e.
Firmicus's writings and character, vi 318, ſub not.
Firmilianus put to death, vi. 253, d.
Firmius Catus's treachery to Libo, v. 386, d, e. Baniſhed, 422, f.
—— his revolt in Egypt, vi. 192, b. Executed, ibid. c.
Firmus's revolt in Morea, vi. 358, & ſeq. Submiſſion and pardon, pardon, 359, & seq. Revolt and flight, 360, c—e. Betrayed 301, a. Hangs himself, ibid. b.

Ezra I. II. &c. kings of Persia, according to oriental writers, iv. 372, & seq.
First-born, why to be consecrated to God, i. 502, c. How redeemed, ibid. d. Not restrained to the eldest, 525, b. Whether Christ was subject to that law, ibid (F).
— of the beasts, how consecrated or redeemed, ibid. e, & seq. & (G).
— of Egypt, killed, 501.
First-fruits to be offered to God, i. 625, a. The laws concerning, and the ceremonies of offering them, ibid. & seq. Traditions out of the Talmud, 625, (C). The extent of those offerings, 626, pass. At the dedication of cities, iv. 424, b.
Fish, a strange kind of, caught, vi. 510, c.
Flaccus's cruelty to the Alexandrian Jews, iv. 258, d. Punished, ibid. e.
— Valerius's law in favour of debtors, v. 67, c. Sent to succeed Sylla, ibid. d. Killed by Fimbria, 68, b.
— Sylla's friend, chosen inter-rex, 77, e, f.
— M. Lænius's friendship to Cicero, 116, (S).
— Minutius surrenders to Cæsar, 172, d.
— Visclar, the betrayer of Libo, 386, e, f. Put to death, 445, c.
— Pomponius betrays Rhescuporis, 396, d, e, (Q).
— Verrius the grammarian, his writings, &c. 458. not.
— Herdonius succueds Virginius in Gaul, 513, b. Opposed by the German troops, 590, b. His cowardice, 598. Murdered, 641, d, e.
Flacilla, the wife of Theodosius, her extract and character, vi. 390, d, e. Death, 406, e, f.
Flamines, priests, whence so called, iv. 436, b, (L).
Flaminius Quinct. sent against the Spartan tyrant, ii. 636, & seq. Brings over the Acheans, 669. Vain attempt on Corinth, 671, a. Shameful alliance with Nabis, 672. And peace with Macedon, 673. Causes the universal freedom of Greece to be proclaimed, ibid. &c. Withdraws his garisons, 674. Speech to the Acheans about Zacynthus, 677. Affronted at the Ætolians, 709, c, Makes peace with Philip, 710. Speech to the Ætolian assembly, 713. Exploded by the Ætolian deputy, 717, a, b. Pleasant speech to general assembly, ibid. c, d. Rebukes the consul at Neopactus, 724. Raises the siege of it, 725, b. Subdues the Bœotians, 743, & seq.
— the tribune's father silences him at the rostrum, iv. 684, e.
— Nepos's unsuccessful expedition against the Insubres, 688, & seq. Retrieved by his brave tribune, 689, c.
— C. sent against Hannibal, 702, c, (K). His rash character, vii. 21, pass. Death, 22, b. Threatened by ill omens, ii. 703, & seq. Defeated and killed, 705, a.
— Quinct. succeeds in Macedon, 750, d. Secures the Freedom of Greece, 752, f. Succes in Gaul, 753, pass.
Flavia Titiana's character, vi. 96, c. Divorced by Pertinax, ibid.
Flavian family, the origin and rise of, v. 636, c, d.
— colony, by whom founded, 655, e.
Flavianus, bishop, sent to intercede for the Antiochians, vi. 411, c. Excellent speech to Theodosius, ibid. d, e. Succeeds in his suit, ibid. & seq.
— dies in defence of the Alps, 234, e, f.
Flavius Nepos, a turbulent tribune, v. 111.
— deposed by Cæsar, 178, d.
— the brother of Arminius, his sharp contest with him, 382, & seq.
— Subrius conspires against Nero, 551, d. Discouraged by the coward Senius, 553, f.
— Sabinus made governor of Rome, 596, f.
— Scævinus conspires against Nero, 551, c. Betrayed by his servant, 552, e. Noble confession, 553, b. Brave speech at his trial, 556, a, b. Intrepid death, ibid. c.
— Vespasian. See Vespasian, v. 476, & seq.
Flax, of Egypt, exceeding fine, i. 183, a.
Fleece, the golden, what, ii. 383, (G), 385, (K).
Fleet, the first Roman, unsuccessful, iv. 623, b. Polybius's account of it confuted, 653, (E). A new one built, 657, b. Another by private persons, 675, d.
† Flensburgh, metropolis of the Angles. vii. 441, b.
Flesh, whether permitted before the flood, i. 112, b, c.
— human, sold publickly during the famine, vi. 463, c.
Flint, said to have been cut by a razor, iv. 450, d.
Flood, the profane account of it, i. 86, a. From the Phœnicians, Chaldeans, 91, d. From the Greeks, 95, (N). Why Phœnician historians suppress it, 88, (N). Short history of it, 95, d, & seq. Whether topical, 96, b. Reasons for its having been general, 97, a—c. Conjectures how it came, ibid. & seq. Burnet's theory of it, 99, f, & seq. Whiston's, 101, a, & seq. The most rational account of it, 102, c, d. The height of the waters, 106, a. Its beginning and end, ibid. &c. Persian and Indian traditions of it, 107, a, b, &c.
— account of some particular floods, 96, & (N).
† Florentia, Florence, plundered by Sylla, v. 76. Relieved by Stilicho, vi 452, & seq.
Florentius, an enemy to Julian, vi. 309, a. 323, d. Runs away from him, 311. Consulship and flight, 313, d. Narrow escape from death, 325, c.
— another put to death by Julian, ibid.
— the betrayer of Procopius, 368, b, c. Put to death, ibid d.
Florianus, the brother of Tacitus, 198, f. Repulsed from the consulship, 199, b. Assumes the purple, and murdered, ibid. e, f.
— success against the Goths, vii. 498, c.
Florus, Gessius, governor of Judea, his sad character, iv. 267, d. His rapines and cruelties complained against, 268, b. Horrid butcheries, 269, a. Brutishness to Berenice, ibid. b, — Julius, stirs up a revolt in Gaul, v. 409, d, e. Defeated and killed, ibid. f.
— Luc. his writings and character, vi. 52, sub not. Verses to and from Adrian, ibid.
— the son of Evasius, burnt alive, 360, f.
— the consul's success in Italy, 833, pass.
Flutes, a martial instrument of the Greeks, ii. 403, c.
Fohi, first king of China. i 116. Whether Noah, ibid. (N).
† Folkstone, the battle of, vii. 444, e, f.
Follis the tax of, unjustly fathered upon Constantine, vi. 269, d, e.
Fonteius murdered by the Asculans, v. 49, b.
— Capito, chosen consul, 344, d.
— murdered in Germany, 589, d, e.
† Formio, river, a boundary of ancient Gaul;
Fornication, how punished among the Jews, i. 676, a.
† Fortunate islands described, v. 86, (Z). Where sited, vii. 147, a, (H). Their number, 148.
Fortunatianus's writings and character, vi. 165, sub not.
† Fortune, the temple of, at Elis, ii. 405, d.
— several erected to her by Servius, iv. 453, f. One by Sempronius, 740, f.
† —Valiant, the temple of, v. 389, f.
† Forum Vibii, where situate, iv. 408, f. Beautified by Tarquin, 449, & seq.
† Fossway, In Britain, described, vii. 419, & seq.
† Fountains, &c. worshipped by the Gauls, vii. 250, b, (F). 351, (G).
† Fourtissar, river, mistaken for the Granicus, ii. 325, not.
† Franci ludi, why, and by whom instituted, vii. 554, f.
Francici, the festival of, whence, vi. 234, c.
† Franks, who, vi. 173, b. Defeated by Aurelian, ibid. c. Ravage Italy, 175, a. Invade Spain, 183, a. Go into Africa, ibid. b. Transplanted by Constantius, 211, c. 213, b, c. Defeated by Constantine, 234, a Outwitted and cut in pieces, 250, f. By Crispus, 256, e. Submit to Constans, 277, b. Defeated by Julian, 304, a. b. By Theodosius, 353, f. By Maximus, 413. Ravage Gaul, 468, c. Permitted to settle in it, ibid. d. Embrace the catholic faith, ibid. Allowed to settle in Tongria, 472, d. Defeated by Attila, 494, e. Waste Germany, 499. Settle along the Rhine, 508, a. Their origin and first settlement, vii. 441, a. 447, f. Furious onset on the Gepidæ, 476, a. When converted, 500, (A). Why called Franks, 547, f. And Sicambrians, 548, e. Opinions about them confuted, ibid. pass. Settle at Mentz, ibid. f. Their extent, 549, a, b. Motley character, ibid. e, f. Government, kings, &c. 550, a—c. Driven out of Gaul, ibid. d. Ravage it, 551, e, & seq. Hired by Gallienus, 552, a—c. Horrid ravages in Italy, ibid. d. Spain, ibid. & seq. Driven out of Gaul, 553, b, c. Ravage Africa, &c. ibid. d. Defeated by Carausius, ibid. & seq. Settle in Low-Germany, 554, b.

554, b. Tranſplanted into Gaul, ibid. c. Defeat and puniſhment by Conſtantine, ibid & ſeq. Peace with Conſtans, 555, e, f. New ravages, 556, a, b. Suppreſſed by Julian, ibid. c——e. By Theodoſius, ibid. & ſeq. Cut in pieces by Nonnius, 557, d. Irruption into Gaul, 558, d——f. Dreſs, 560, a, b. Settlement in France, ibid. & ſeq. The time when, 561, ſub not. Enmity to the churches, 562, a, b. Converſion, 569, e, f. Strengthened by the Armorici, 570, f, & ſeq. Treaty with the Oſtrogoths, 572, c, d. Inlarge their dominions, 576, & ſeq. Defeated by Theodoric, 577, b. Subdue the Burgundi, 587, & ſeq. Their horrid Superſtition long after their converſion, 365, d.

Fraomarius made king of the Bucinobantes, vi. 358, a vii. 594, a.

† Fratres, Septem, Heptadelphi mount; where, vii. 146, a.

Fravitus's fidelity to the Romans, vi. 447, b, c. Conſulſhip 448, e. Repulſes the Hunns, 449, a.

Frea worſhipped by the Saxons, vii. 442, d.

Frederic the Viſigoth ſlain, vi. 507 vii. 514, (A).

—— Barbaroſſa betrayed by Iſaac Angelus, 623, f. Invades him, 624, a, b. Anſwer to his embaſſador, ibid. c.

—— treachery to Theodoric, vii. 524 b.

Freedom, how beſtowed on Roman ſlaves. iv. 470, (U).

Freemen at Rome inliſted, v. 51, a.

Freedmen of Claudius, their great ſway, v. 515, b, c.

† Fregelæ, colonied by the Romans, iv. 605, a. Seized by the Samnites, 615, a. Revolts, and is razed, 800, a, b.

French aſſiſt Alexius III. vi. 625, & ſeq. Take Conſtantinople, 627, d, e.

† Fretan Leagh, the battle of, vii. 453, a.

† Fretani, where ſeated, iv. 412, a.

Friday ordered to be kept holy, vi. 256, f.

—— Good, criminals releaſed on 405, d.

Friga, Fria, &c. who, vii. [420], paſſ. & notes. Worſhipped by the Saxons, 442, d.

Frigerid defeats the Romans, vi. 382, c.

† Frigidum, the river and battle of, 423, f, & ſeq.

† Friſii, a tribe of Franks, vii. 548, a. Subdued by Druſus, v. 319, d, e. Where ſited, 374, (C). Recover their liberty, 434, c, (K). Seize on ſome Roman lands, 528, d. Driven out, ibid. f.

Fritigern leads the Goths into Thrace, vi. 380, d. Falls foul on the Romans, 381, b, c. Defeated by Sebaſtian, 383, b, c. Amuſes Valens, ibid. d, e.

Fritigil converted to chriſtianity, vi. 438, a. vii. 602, a. Submits to the empire, ibid. b.

† Friuli erected into a dukedom, vii. 619, e, f. Dukes of, 701, b. The end of them, 724, b.

Frontinus, Jul. convenes the ſenate for Veſpaſian, v. 644, f. Reſigns his office, 645, a.

—— treatiſe on aqueducts, vi. 10, b. His writings and character, 27, (A). Succeſs in Britain, vii. 431, a.

Fronto's bold ſpeech againſt Nerva, vi 5, a. Conſulſhip 10, b. Writings and character, 60, ſub not.

—— Saturn. his bravery in Syria, 64, b, c.

Froſt, a long and terrible one in the Eaſt, vi. 555, e.

Frumentarii, their office, vi. 219. Suppreſſed, ibid. c.

† Fucinus, the lake of, drained by Claudius, v. 513, & ſeq.

Fuſſetius, made king of Alba, iv. 439, & ſeq. Submits to the Romans, 442, a. Treachery to them, ibid. e. Severe puniſhment, 443, b.

Fulgentius Planciades, an ignorant trifler, vi. 478, not.

Fullofaudes killed in Britain, vi. 353, c. vii. 435, c.

Fulſinius Trio turns evidence againſt Libo, v. 387, a.

Fulvia diſcovers Catiline's conſpiracy, v. 104, b.

—— cruel revenge on Cicero, 229, c, d.

—— the wife of Antony's unbounded ambition, 262, b. Oppoſes Octavian, ibid. & ſeq. Heads an army againſt him, 264, c. Driven from Prænеſte, 267, b. Her death, 269, c, d.

Fulvius, L. Corvus, triumphs over the Samnites, iv. 610, f. Made general of the horſe, 617, e. Second triumph, 626, f.

—— Petinus's ſucceſs in Umbria, 628, c, d.

Fulvius Centuman. defeats the Samnites, &c. iv. 629, d. Sails againſt the Illyrians, 685, e. Proconſulſhip there, 686, e. Ends the war, ibid. d, e. Reception of, 712. Capuan nobles, 723, b. Beſieges Capua, 726, e, f, & ſeq. Goes to the relief of Rome, 727, & ſeq Surpriſes Hanno's proviſions, vii. 53, e, f. Blockades Capua, 55, & ſeq. Severity to the Capuans, 729, d. Defeated by Hannibal, 730, d.

—— Flaccus, triumphs over the Volſinii, 651. Entangled in Gaul, 682, b. Choſen conſul, 732. Great ſway in Greece, 756, a. Inveighs againſt Scipio, 798. Againſt the patricians, 799, e. Sent to relieve Maſſilia, ibid. & ſeq. Exaſperates the Gracchian faction, 806, d. Seizes mount Aventine, 807, a—a. Killed 808, a.

—— L. Nobilis, triumphs over Ætolia, 758, b. Exhibits games, ibid c. Ill ſucceſs in Spain, 767, c.

—— young Fulvius, why impriſoned, 807. Put to death, 809, b.

—— Marc. ſucceſs in Spain, v. 33, b.

† Fundi invaded by the Romans, iv. 605, c.

Funeral ceremonies uſed by the Jews, i. 696, a.

—— among the Scythians, ii. 272, 277.

—— How regulated by Solon, at Lacedæmon.

—— to the ſlain at Athens, 501, & ſeq.

—— How regulated by Lycurgus, 565, & ſeq.

—— how performed by the Thracians, iii. 788, d.

—— verſes on ſuch occaſions, 217, b.

—— orations, the firſt inſtance of, at Rome, iv. 472, d.

Furca of the Romans, vi. 726, (F).

Furian law, what, v. 338, (X).

Furius mounts the breach at Jeruſalem, iv. 111, d.

—— Spur. ſucceſs againſt the Equi, 507, d. Defeated by them, 518, a.

—— L. defeated by the Volſci, 575, d.

—— Pacilus recalled from Sicily, 668, e, f.

—— Purpur. defeats the Gauls, 749, & ſeq.

—— Camillus's conſulſhip, why erazed, v. 443, (R).

—— Celſus's ſucceſs in Mauritania. vi. 140, c.

Furnilla, Mart. divorced by Titus, v. 657, c.

Furtius dethroned for his fidelity, vi. 63, b.

Fuſcus, Corn. penetrates into Umbria, v. 629, d. Choſen prætor, 635, d. His character, 677, f. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Dacians, 678, a. Slain, ibid. b. His ſtately monument. 679, a.

—— put to death by Adrian, vi 44, b. His dreadful wiſh on him, ibid. c.

G

† GABALA, by whom built, iv. 141, (R).

Gabalis, count, his notion of the ſin of Ham, i. 120, (N).

Gabaſes invites Coſrhoes againſt Juſtinian, iv. 353, c.

† Gabene ſeized by Eumenes, iii. 429, a. By Antiochus, ibid. & ſeq.

† Gabini war againſt Tarquin the proud, iv. 461, & ſeq.

Gabinian law againſt pirates, v. 100 & ſeq.

Gabinius's extortions in Syria, iii. 670, b, c. Reſtores the Egyptian king, 671, paſſ. Baniſhed, 672, d. See alſo iv. 113, & ſeq. Treachery to Ariſtobulus, iv. 108, a. To Mithridates, 294, a.

—— conſpires with Catiline, v. 104, a. Seized, 106, c. Put to death, 107, e.—Cæſar's general cut off by the Illyrians, 139, e.

—— Secund. ſucceſs againſt the Chauci, 493, c, &c.

—— king of the Quadi, treacherouſly murdered, vi. 361, e, f. vii. 603, f.

Gabriel, the angel, ſent to Zechariah, iv. 153, a. To the virgin Mary, ibid & ſeq.

† Gad, Jacob's ſon by Zilpah, i. 441, d. His bleſſing how verified, 464, a, b, (M). His lot in the promiſed land, 569, c.

—— the prophet ſent to David, 789, a.

† Gadara taken by Janneus, iv. 98, f. Made one of the five Jewiſh courts, 114, b. Diſmantled from Judea, 130, f. Taken by the Romans, 277, c.

† Gades, its ſituation, vii. 301, b, (G). Temple and port, when firſt founded, vi. 730, a, b. Stripped by Mago, vii. 72, e. Surrendered to Scipio, ibid. e, f.

Gadir, the Punic name of Cades, its etymon, vi. 730, a.

† Gadroſi ſubdued by Alexander, iii. 402, d.

† Gæſatæ, whence ſo called, iv. 687. Ally with the Gauls, ibid. b. Fight naked, 688, Defeated, ibid. & 690, vii. 392, c——e.

† Gætulia, its boundaries, vii. 159, & ſeq. Whence ſo called, 161, d.

—— part of, given to Juba, 163, a, b. Seized on by Genſeric, 533, f.

† Gætulians, who and where ſited, v. 20, d. vii 159, & ſeq. Their cities, territories, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Origin, 161, c. Government, manners, &c. 162, a, b, (B), (C). Defeated before Caſilinum, 37, a. 162, a, & ſeq. Serve under Jugurtha 163, a. Go over to Cæſar, ibid. c. Subdued by C. Coſſus, ibid. c. See alſo vol. v. 334, d.

Gaiabomarus murdered by Caracalla, v. 126, c.

† Gaiſa,

† Gaeta, the port of, built by Antoninus, v. 56, c.
Gainas, a Gauliſh general, vi. 424, a. Aſſaſſinates Ruſinus, 434, d. Stirs up a revolt againſt Eutropius, 442, & ſeq. Marches againſt Conſtantinople, 445, c. Arrogant demands granted, ibid. d, e. In favour of the Arians, refuſed, 446, a. His deſign on that city defeated, ibid. paſſ. Driven out of Thrace, 447, a, b. His death, ibid. d, e. See alſo vol. vii. 506, & ſeq.
Gaiſo, the murderer of Conſtans, vi. 280, d.
Gaiſus, antient king of the Franks, vii. 550, e. When, 551, a. His diſmal end, 554, e.
† Galapa, where ſited, vii. 143, a.
† Galata iſland, 672, note 7.
† Galatia, whence ſo called, iii. 522. Invaded by Phraartes, 725. Becomes a Roman province, v. 300, c. Where ſituated, vii. 322, b, c.
† Galatians, or Gauls of Aſia minor, deſcended from Gomer, i. 166, d. Thence called Gomerians, ibid. & ii. 245, & ſeq. 295, d. Their origin, &c. iv. 755, e. Invaded by the Romans, ibid. f. Make peace with them, 756, a. Defeated by the Jews, vii. 322, b.
Galatius defeated and killed, iv. 682, c.
Galba Sulpit. horrid cruelty to the Luſitanians, iv. 769, b. Succeſs againſt the Gauls, v. 120, e. Killed by Cæſar's 10th legion, 157, c.
— Serv. Sulpit. choſen conſul, 446, b, (X). Highly valued by Claudius, 492, (U), 497, (B). Defeats the Catti, 493. Encourages a revolt in Spain, 507, b, c. His ſpeech againſt Nero, ibid. & ſeq. Saluted emperor, 571, b. Proſcribed, 572, c, d. In a dangerous caſe, 574, a, b. His progenitors, 580. Adoption by Livia, ibid. c, (U). Severity in Spain, 581, e, f. Saluted emperor afreſh, 582, c. By embaſſadors in his way to Rome, 583, paſſ. Severities in that capital, paſſ. Swayed by three griping miniſters, ibid. & ſeq. Inſtances of his own parſimony, 588, paſſ. Reſumes Nero's profuſeneſs, ibid. d, e. Hated by the ſoldiers, ibid. & ſeq. Severity to falſe informers, 589, a. Appoints Piſo his ſucceſſor, 590. Speech to him on that occaſion, 591, & ſeq. Conſpired againſt by Otho, 592, f, & ſeq. Warned by the augurs, 593, d, e. Strives in vain to quell the revolt, 594, & ſeq. Forſaken by his guard, 595, e. Murdered, ibid. f. His head carried in triumph, 596, c, d. Buried, 597, d. His character, ibid. & ſeq.
— Caius, brother of the former, put to death, 451, c.
Galbus's ſucceſs againſt Aſdrubal, vii. 38, f, & ſeq.
† Galeagrea, the tower of, deſcribed, iii. 116, (U). Surpriſed by the Romans, 117, a.
Galen, born at Pergamos, ii. 325, f. Great ſkill in phyſic, vi. 69, a. His and his ſon's writings, 120, & ſeq. not.
Galera, Annia, married to Antoninus, vi. 53, a.
— Valeria, married to Galerius, 209, f.
— the daughter of Diocleſian, a chriſtian, 206, c. Baniſhed, 218, f.
Galerius, Max. choſen Cæſar, vi. 209, e. Adopted by Diocleſian, ibid. f. His ſhare of the empire, 210, a. Mean extract and character, ibid. c—e. Works in Pannonia, 211, a. Defeated by Narſes, 214, a, b. Retrieves his honour, ibid. c, d. Behaviour to the Perſians, ibid. e, f. Suſpected by Diocleſian, 215, c. Exaſperates him againſt the chriſtians, 216, b—e. Forces him and Maximian to reſign, 217, d—f. Proclaimed, 218, d. Tyranny over Diocleſian, 230, e, f. Shares the empire with Conſtantius, 231, c. Hatred and treachery to Conſtantine, ibid. & ſeq. Repulſed from Rome, 235, d, e. His dreadful ſickneſs, 239, b, c. Edict in favour of the chriſtians, 240, a, b. Death, ibid. c.
Galerus's ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, iv. 330, & ſeq.
Galeſis's uſurpation and defeat, vii. 645, a—d.
Galgalus's noble ſpeech to the Caledonians, v. 668, & ſeq.
† Galicia ſeized by the Vandals, vi. 462, f. Ravaged by the Goths, 505, b, c.
Galileans maſſacred by Pilate, iv. 217, a.
† Galilee, the ſea of, i. 577, f.
† — the country of, invaded by Antiochus, iii. 537. By Demetrius, 603, c, d. By Timotheus, iv. 64, a. Reduced by Herod, 128, c. Revolts to Antigonus, 129, e. Its converſion foretold, 204, f. Subdued by the Romans, 271, & ſeq. Defence againſt the Suevi, vii. 531, a.
Galla married to Jul. Conſtant. vi. 266, d.
— to Theodoſius, 407, d.
— Placida, born, 407, d. Dies in childbed, 420.
— the wife of Dardanius, 468, (O).
† Gallagum, the Roman cauſeway of, vii. 412, e.
Gallicanus's raſhneſs, and the dreadful effects of it, vi. 158, a, b.
Gallienus created Cæſar, vi. 172, f. His father's collegue, 173, a. Succeſs againſt the Germans, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Treachery to his father, 174, f. Succeſs againſt Ingenuus, 175, b. Cruelty to the Mœſians, ibid. & ſeq. Commits his eaſtern forces to Odenatus, 178, b. Compounds with Aureolus, 179. Marches againſt Poſthumius, 181, b, c. Cruelty to the Byzantines, ibid. c. Mock triumph, ibid. d. Gratitude to Odenatus, 182, b. Succeſs in Gaul, 184, d, e. His death, 185. Relations murdered, ibid. c. Abhorred character, ibid. Deified, ibid. d, e.
Galli, the eunuch prieſts of the Syrian goddeſs, i. 374, c. How firſt introduced, ibid. & ſeq. Ceremonies at their funeral, 376, e, f. Their female attire, &c. ibid. c. Among the Gauls, vii. 359, b, c, (B), (C).
Gallies, a fight of, in the Circus, v. 327, d.
Gallio's flattery puniſhed by Tiberius, v. 443, d.
— merry jeſt on Claudius's apotheoſis, 515, e.
— ſpeech to the Britons, vii. 437, e. Departure from them, 438, b.
Gallus, the firſt governor of Egypt, iii. 690, f.
— Sulpit. ſent to hear the complaints againſt Eumenes, 778, b.
— Qu. Luperc. a friend to Octavian, v. 212, f, & ſeq.
— Cornel. baniſhed, 300, a, b. Kills himſelf, ibid. c.
— Ætius's expedition into Arabia, 301, c. Betrayed by Syllæus, ibid. & ſeq. Forced back into Egypt, 302, b, c. Second expedition, 316, f, & ſeq. See alſo vol. vii. 281, f, & ſeq.
— Aſinius's ſpeech to Tiberius, 355, b. Extract, &c. ibid. (I).
— Caninus reproved by Tiberius, 445, d, (U).
— Aſinius's treaſon and puniſhment, 498.
— A Did. ill ſucceſs in Britain, 512, & ſeq.
— Glycius impeached by Quinctian, 553, c.
— Ceſtius defeated by the Jews, 566, b.
— Rubr. gets the Othonians pardon, 613, e.
— Herenn. defeated by the Barbarian cohorts, 640, e.
— his ſucceſs againſt the Goths, vi. 169, b. Treachery to Decius, 170. Proclaimed emperor, ibid. e. His extract, riſe, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Shameful peace with the Goths, 171, a. Perſecution of the chriſtians, ibid. b. Revels at Rome, ibid. c. Killed by his men, ibid. d.
— the ſon of Jul. Conſtant, 226, f.
— of young Conſtantius, born, 266, d. How preſerved from maſſacre, 275, b.
— created Cæſar, 283, b. Succeſs againſt the Perſians, ibid. c, d. Choſen conſul at Conſtantinople, 285, c. Succeſs againſt the Jews, 286, b. The Iſaurians, 289, c. His ſuſpicious and cruel temper, ibid. & ſeq. Cauſes a revolt at Antioch, 290, f, & ſeq. Cruelty to Mentius, &c. 291, d, e. Trepanned by Conſtantius, 292, c, d. Put to death, 293, & ſeq. His zeal for chriſtianity, 320, & ſeq.
† — a river of that name, ii. 297. 299.
† Gamala, taken by the Romans, iv. 272, & ſeq.
Gamaliel's advice to the Sanhedrin, iv. 252, f, (K).
Games of no kinds among the Jews, i. 694, a, (Q). Of hazard, eſteemed a kind of theft, ibid. b.
— inſtituted by Herod, iv. 141, b. At Rome, introduced by Tarquin, 448, a, (E). How performed, 561, a. The greateſt, 583, b. Of hazard, forbid there, v. 3, e. Encouraged by Caligula, 472, a, b.
— ſecular, exhibited, 312, c, d. Under Domitian, 679, c.
† Gamroon, in Perſia, its deadly heats, ii. 36, not.
† Gangaridæ, where ſituate, iii. 396, in fin. (E).
Ganymedes, the ſon of Tros, abuſed by Tantalus, ii. 313, & ſeq.
— ſupplants Achillas, iii. 676. Diſtreſſes Cæſar in Alexandria, ibid. e, f.
† Garamantes, where ſituate, v. 310, e. 421, c. Subdued by the Romans, ibid. Trade with the Carthaginians, vi. 711. Why ſo called, vii. 180, (A). Their hiſtory, 165, & ſeq.
† Garba, iſland, where ſituate, vi. 170, f.
† Gardens, hanging, of Babylon, deſcribed, i. 961, & ſeq.
Gargilius Mart.'s writings and character, vi. 149. ſub not.

Garibald dethroned, vii. 697, c, d.
† Garizzim, the temple of, by whom built, iv. 29, b. An aſylum, for renegado Jews, 30, a. Deſtroyed by Hyrcan, 92, b, (O).
Garſiaveſh, prince of the Turks, aſſaſſinates that of Perſia, ii. 193, e. Put to death by Ruſtan, ibid. f.
† Gaſcony invaded by the Vandals, vi. 453, f.
Gaſſendi revives the atomic ſyſtem, i 22.
† Gath, a famed city of Paleſtine, i. 341.
Gauda's treachery to Metellus, v. 18, a.
—— a German propheteſs viſits Domitius, 673, f.
Gavius Max. twenty years captain of the guard, vi. 55, f. Monumental inſcription on Antoninus, 57, b.
Gaugamela, the battle of, ii. 165, & ſeq. Taken by Trajan, vi. 2, d.
† Gaul, deſcribed, iv. 408. Ciſpadana, whence ſo called, 410, b. Tranſpadana deſcribed, ibid. c. How divided, 561, c. Made a Roman province, v. 129, a. Its diſtricts, vi. 270, e, f. Ruined by the Franks, 283, 250, b. Vandals, 443, & ſeq. By Attila, 494, e, f. Split into ſeveral kingdoms, 514, a.
—— antient, deſcribed, vii. 321, & ſeq. Its extent, 322, & ſeq. Leſſened, 325, b, c. Its climate, ſoil, &c. ibid. & ſeq. How become warmer, 326, a, b.
Gauliſh church, its diſmal ſtate under the Viſigoths, vii. 517, paſſ.
† Gaulona taken by Alex Janneus, iv. 102, a.
† Gaulonia beſieged by the banditti, vii. 61, e.
Gaulonites, the ſect of, iv. 169. Inſurrection, 192, & ſeq. The reſt ſee under Zelots, 193, & ſeq.
† Gauls, from whom deſcended, i. 166. ii. 241, & ſeq. Sent to aid the Lacedæmonians, 618, c. Firſt invaſion of Macedon, iii. 470, a. Second, ibid. d. Third, 471, a. Rifle the royal tombs, ibid. f. Defeated by Gonatus, 472, f. Settled in Aſia minor, 522. Treachery to Hierax, 528, e. Scared at a lunar eclipſe, 770. Their avarice and ſacrilege, 816, c.
—— their firſt invaſion of Italy, iv. 561, & ſeq. Sack-age of Rome, 563, f. Defeated by Camillus, 564, c, d. At their aſſault on the capitol, 565, d. Freſh defeat, 566, & ſeq. Second irruption, 581, & ſeq. Defeated, 582, 588, b—d. By Sulpicius, 589, e. Enter Latium, 593, a. Defeated by Popilius, ibid. b—d. By Valerius, ibid. f. Join with the Hetrurians, 632, a. Defeated by Fabius, 633, & ſeq. Plot againſt Hamilcar defeated. 676, Freſh invaſion, 686, & ſeq. Repulſed by Æmilius, 687, d, e. Defeated, 688, c, d. By Marcellus, 690, b, c. Aſſiſt Hannibal over the Alps, 695, d, e. Treachery to the Romans, 696, f. Renew their hoſtilities, 749, c. Thirty thouſand of them cut off, 750, a. The ſame number by Cethegus, ibid. f. Eleven thouſand by Sempronius, 753.
—— defeat the conſular army, v. 28, f. Defeated by Pompey, 70, d. Declare for Sylla, 71, a. Raiſe a new revolt, 126, & ſeq. Defeated, 127, a. Fight ſeparately, and ſubdued, 128, d, e. 129, a. Undergo a cenſus, 298, d. Rear an altar to Auguſtus, 319, b. Greatly oppreſſed by Caligula, 475, b, c. Revolt againſt Nero, 569, & ſeq. Defeated, 573, b, c. Declare for Vitellius, 599, & ſeq. Revolt from Veſpaſian, 641, & ſeq. Agree upon a peace, 643, b, c.
—— viſited by Adrian, vi. 35, b. Declare for Severus, 105, c. Reduced by Aurelian, 192, d. 194, e. Sacrificed to Hamilcar's jealouſy, 830, b, c. Obſtruct Hannibal's croſſing the Rhoſne, vii. 9, c. 11, & ſeq. And the Alps, 15, a, b. Liſt in his ſervice, 16, d, 18, b, c. Their priſoners diſmiſſed by him, 20, e, f. Reinforce Mago, 73, b. Anſwer to him, 74, b.
—— antient, their origin, vii. 321. Various names, ibid. b, (A). Spread through Europe, 392, d—f. Way of living, 325, & ſeq. & notes. Religion, 326, & ſeq. Miſrepreſented by ancient authors, 327, ſub notes, (A), (B), (C). Worſhip one deity, 328, a, b. Their ceremonies, &c. 329, & ſeq. Groves, 331, & ſeq. Deſcribed, 332, b—d. Their worſhip like that of the ancient Hebrews, 333, b—f. Bloody ſacrifices, 334, c—e. Funeral victims, ibid. f. Auguries, 335, a—c. Other cruel ſuperſtitions, ibid. & ſeq. Altars, deſcribed, 336, a—c. Averſion to temples, ibid. & ſeq. & (M). 346, e. Conſecrated treaſures, ibid. & ſeq. Polytheiſm, when introduced, ibid. paſſ. Temples, when firſt built, 347, a, b. Human ſacrifices forbid by the Romans, 348, c. 350, b. Run into numberleſs ſuperſtitions, ibid. & ſeq. & (F). 351, paſſ. & (G). Some of their temples deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. Male deities, 353, & ſeq. Barbarous rites to them, 354, paſſ. Senſeleſs ones, 355, b, (Q). Female deities, 359, & ſeq. Believed a future life, 361, e, & ſeq. Their mixt government, laws, &c. 366, paſſ. Grand council, ibid. f, & ſeq. & (A). Fatal diſcords, 367, b, c. Kings, how choſen, 368, a, b. (D). Their limited power, ibid. c, (E). Their laws, councils, &c. 369, & ſeq. Fondneſs for duels, 371, & ſeq. For liberty, 372, & ſeq. Valour dreaded, 374, paſſ. Diſcipline, 375, & ſeq. Language, 377, & ſeq. Univerſities, 379, paſſ. & (N), (O). Contempt of writing, 381, a, b. Fond of poetry, 382, a, & c, (T). Arts, ibid. & ſeq. Trade, 383, & ſeq. Feaſtings, 385, & ſeq. Deſcribed, 386, a—c, (A). Contempt for trades, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Drunkenneſs, 387, & ſeq. (B). Idleneſs, 383, b, c. Ferocity, ibid. d. Hoſpitality, ibid. & ſeq. Frugality and fidelity, 389, & ſeq. Earlieſt expeditions, 391. Into Greece, 393, & ſeq. & (E). Overſpread Aſia, 395, a, b, (F). Conqueſt by the Romans, ibid. ad fin. cap.
† Gaurs, Gabres. See Perſes, ii. 69, & ſeq.
Gaus revolts to the Egyptians, and ſlain, i. 276, f.
Gautier defeated by the Hungarians, vi. 614, a, b.
† Gaza, metropolis of Media, deſcribed, ii. 1. Taken and put to the ſword by Alexander, ibid. c. iii. 344, & ſeq. By Antigonus, 432, b. By Antiochus, 543, d, e.
† —— in Bactria, taken by Alexander, 371.
† —— metropolis of Atropatene, 844.
—— deſtroyed by Alexander Jamnæus, iv. 99, b—d. Diſmembered from Judea, 190, f.
† —— the temple of, deſtroyed, vi. 404, c.
† —— the famed church, built by Eudoxia, 433, a.
Ge, ſiſter and wife to Uranus, i. 89, & 135, a.
Geberic's ſucceſs againſt the Sarmatians, vi. 265, b.
Gedaliah, the Jewiſh deputy, murdered by Iſhmael, i. 851, b.
† Gedroſin, a province of Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 28, a.
Geeſe ſave the capitol, iv. 565, c. Honoured by the Romans, ibid. f.
Gehaſi, the ſervant of Eliſha, ſmitten with leproſy, i. 386, c. 817, c, & (O).
† Gela, a city in Sicily, iii. 5, d. By whom built, 11, f. Enſlaved by Gelon, 15, a. Taken by the Carthaginians, 45, & ſeq. vi. 750, & ſeq.
† —— the river of, iii. 5.
Gelean women, their bravery, iii. 45, f. vi. 750, c, d.
Gelimer, laſt king of the Vandals in Afric, vii. 527, d.
Gellias burns himſelf in Minerva's temple, iii. 41, d. His character, ibid. (X).
Gellius's ill ſucceſs in Arabia, iv. 142.
—— Poplicola defeated by the ſlaves, v. 97, d. &c. Choſen conſul, 99, d.
—— 2. treacherouſly murdered by Octavian, 232, b.
—— his treaſon pardoned, vi. 132, a.
—— the Agrigentine, his immenſe wealth and profuſion, 349, (M). His ſtratagem and fatal end, ibid. b.
Gelon becomes tyrant of Syracuſe, iii. 15, b, &c. Defeats the Carthaginians, 17, b, c. Moderation towards them, 18, a, b. Towards his ſubjects, ibid. c, d. Made king, ibid. e, f. See alſo vol. vi. 728, f. Vaſt donatives, 736, a, b, (D). His tomb demoliſhed by Hamilco, 764, b. His ſtatue how preſerved, iii. 18, e, & not. Death and character, &c. 20, paſſ.
—— the ſon of Hiero, his treachery to his father, 100, a, b.
† Gelonian Scythians deſcribed, ii 238, 278.
† —— in Europe, their extract, &c. vii. 604, e, & ſeq.
Geminii, their conſulſhip, v. 435, b. Whether Chriſt ſuffered under it, ibid. (M).
Geminius in ſearch after Marius, v. 56, c. Brings him bound to Miturnæ, 58, b.
—— ſent to reclaim M. Antony, 287, c. Forced to flee Cleopatra's reſentment, ibid, d, e.
—— Livius's impious flattery to, 467, a.
—— twin of Commodus, born, vi. 62, c.
† Gemoniæ ſcalæ, what, iv. 682, (I).
Genealogy of the antediluvians, i. 76. Of Jeſus Chriſt. iv. 155, (M).
Generation, the ſcripture meaning of that word, iv. 253. not.
Generides, general of Rhetia, his character, &c. vi. 460, d.
† Geneſaret, Genezareth, the lake of, i. 577, b. Why called the ſea of Tiberius, iv. 194, d.
Geneſis, when written by Moſes, i. 484, (R).

† Gen

†Geneva, the lake of, described; ii. 249, a.
Genialis made prætor of the guards, vi. 100, f. Shuts himself up with Julianus, 105, f.
Genii, their nature and office; according to the orientals, i. 51, b, c.
Genius. Vid. Demon, vi. 693, d.
Genobald, king of the ancient Franks, vii. 550, b. Submits to Maximian, vi. 208, d. vii. 550, f.
Genoese, settled at Constantinople, vi. 634, b, c. Removed to Galata, ibid. d. Seize on several islands, 645, b, c.
Genseric's advantageous peace with the Romans, vi. 466, b, c.
—— carries his Vandals into Afric, 527, d.
—— succeeds Gonderic in Spain, 531, f. His character, ibid. & seq. Treaty with Bonifacius, 532, b. Conquers Afric, ibid. e, f. Repulsed before Sicily, 533, d. Peace with the Romans, ibid. d, e. Breaks it, ibid. e, f. Ravages Sicily, 534, b, c. Invited into Italy by Eudoxia, ibid. e. Plunders Rome, ibid. f. Defeated by Ricimer, 535, b, c. Ravages Italy, ibid. d. e. Slights the emperor's embassy, ibid. e, f. Surprises Majorianus's fleet, 536, c. Makes peace with him, and breaks it, ibid. d. Ravages Italy, &c. ibid. & seq. And Greece, 537, b. Haughty answer to Leo, ibid. c. Defeats his fleet, 538, e, f. New conquests and ravages, 539, c, d. Treaty with the Romans, ibid. e. Death, 543, a. See also vol. vii. 481, & seq. Succeeded by Huneric, 515.
Gentiles, when their conversion first began, iv. 256, & seq.
†Gentisci subdued by the Romans, v. 3, f.
Gentius, king of Illyria, ill treated by the Romans, iii. 485, d. Outwitted by Perseus, 489, c, d. Sent prisoner to Rome, 498, a, (E). See also iv. 760, d. 763, b †Genua, metropolis of Liguria, iv. 409, e.
Genuadius's writings and character, vi. 316, (G).
Genubath, king of Edom, i. 315, b.
Genus and Genea, i. 86, c.
Genutius, Cn. summons the consuls, iv. 351, d. His sudden death, ibid. c.
—the consul, joins the plebeian interest, 533, pass. Chosen decemvir, 534, a.
—— the tribune, killed by the Hetrurians, 558, f.
—— a plebeian, chosen consul, 583, e. Slain, 586, e.
†Geography, the first rise of it, i. 256, b.
Geomari, at Samos, their office, iii. 189, a, d. Murdered, ibid.
Geometry first found out by the Egyptians, i. 217, e.
George, the Arian bishop, where born, ii. 341, b. Succeeds Athanasius, vi 298, e.
†Georgia, a province of Scythia, ii. 267, c. Why so called, iii. 837, a, b. Described, 839, d. The rest see under Iberia, 835.
Georgian women, famed for their beauty, iii. 837, e. 839, d, e.
Georgias defeated by Judas Maccabeus, iv. 58, & seq. In Idumea, 63, b By Dositheus, 68, b.
†Georgici, Athenian farmers so called, ii 438, a.
†Gepidæ revolt against Probus, vi 201, d. The same with the Lombards and Franks, 391, e, f. Kill each other in the dark, 495, d. Join with the Avari, 535, e. Their origin, vii. 411, & seq. 494, b. Submit to Attila, 466, c. Regain their liberty, 481, f. Obtain a pension from Rome, 482. Defeated by the Goths, 494, b. By Theodoric, 523, e. Settled in Thrace, 529, a. Defeated by Probus, ibid. b. Their settlements, 595. Defeat the Burgundi, ibid. & seq. Defeated by Claudius, 596, b. Their wars with the Huns, ibid. c. Settled in Dacia, ibid. d. Defeated by Justinian, ibid. e. Fall out with the Lombards, ibid. & seq. Defeated by them, 597, a, b. Subdued, ibid. d, e. The end of their kingdom, ibid. f.
†Gerar, once the metropolis of the Philistines, i. 341, c.
†—— the valley of, where Isaac sojourned, i. 574, a.
†Gerastus, a promontory in Eubœa, iii. 247, a, d.
†—a city in the same island, 248, a.
†Gerasites in Canaan, where situated, i. 323, c.
†Gergasites of Canaan, where situate, iv. 212, (D). Probably fled into Afric, i. 335, a, (D).
†Gerizim mount, i. 540, c. 573, a.
†Germa destroyed by an earthquake, vi. 371, a.
German women, their signal bravery, vii. 375, c, d.
—— old, why supposed propheteſſes, [417], a, (B).
German women, married, their fidelity, diligence, &c. 430, b, d, &(W). Some hard laws against them, ibid. &[432],b.
—— poetry, its roughness, 380, (P). [427]. a, b.
—— legions revolt; v. 364; & seq. Quelled and punished, 367, d—f.
Germani, an ambiguous word, punned upon; v. 230, e.
†Germania, how divided; vii. [407], & seq. Its extent, ibid. & seq. Described, 409; &c. Its nations, forests, rivers, towns, &c. ibid. & seq. Soil and produce, [413], pass.
†—— Prima; invaded by the Vandals; vii. 529, d.
†Germanicia, a city of Comagene, i. 361, a.
†Germanicopolis, the capital of Isauria; vi. 370; d. When made a bishop's see, ibid. e.
Germanicus, Drus. his descent, v. 294. Adopted by Tiberius, 332, c. Success against the Pannonians, 335, d. In Dalmatia, 337, b. Over-reached at Rhetium, 338, & seq. Triumphs over the Dalmatians, 339, b. c. 340, b. Consulship, 344, d. Recommended to the senate, 345, b. Promoted by Tiberius, 358, d. (N). Insulted by the German legions, 365, pass. Quells them, 366, b. And a-fresh revolt, 367, e. 368, c, d. Refuses the empire, 365, e, f. 369, a. Severe expedition against the Marsi, ibid & seq. Against the Catti, 372, & seq. And the confederate Germans, 374, & seq. Piety to the slain Romans, 375, b, c. Ill success against Arminius, 377, pass. Retires to the Rhine, 378, a, b. New expedition into Germany, 381. & seq. Speech to his army, 383, d, e. Gains two complete victories, 384, & seq. His monumental inscription, 385, b. Danger at sea, ibid. d, e. Recalled by Tiberius, 386, a, b. His reception and triumph, 389, & seq. The eastern provinces given to him, 391, b. Sets out towards them, 394. Insulted by Piso, 395, pass. Goes into Egypt, 396, b. Taken ill at Antioch, 397, b. His last words, ibid. & seq. Death and obsequies, 398, & seq. Posterity, ibid. (S). Character, ibid. & seq. (V). Funeral honours, 401, a, b. (Y, Z). 403, b, c, (B).
—— the squadron of, why so called, 401, b.
Germans, ancient, when first mentioned by Roman authors, iv. 690, e. And known to them, vii. [404], e, & seq. Their extract, vii. 324, b, (F). [404], pass. Antient names and etymons, [405], c—e, (A). Several nations, where sited, [407], & seq. Religion, [416], & seq. Cruel rites, [417], b, c. Had no temples, [418], a. Their deities, ibid. b, & seq. Horrid superstitions, [421], & seq. Priests, [422], pass. Laws, government, &c. ibid. & seq. Councils, [423], a, (K). Kings, ibid. b—d. Military discipline, ibid. & seq. & (L, M). Cavalry, &c. [424], & seq. & (N). Weapons, [425], pass. & (O). Arts, sciences, &c. ibid. & seq. & notes. Dress, [427], c, d, (R). Writing, [428], a, (T). Strength, &c. ibid. & seq. Fidelity, [429], a, b. Money, ibid. c. Marriages, ibid. e. Promiscuous promise confuted, ibid. & seq. Funerals, [430]. Notions of a future state, [431], pass. & notes. Unnatural customs, [432], a——c. Drunkenness, ibid. c——e. Ancient history, why dark, [433], pass. Invaded by the Romans, ibid. d, & seq. Wars with them, ibid. & seq. Repulsed by Agrippa, v. 309, e. By Lollius, 313, c. By Drusus, 319, e, f. Massacred by Germanicus, 374, & seq. By the Gauls, [434], & seq. 364, & seq. Revolt from the Romans, 641, e, f. War against M. Aurelius, vi. 66, pass. With fresh vigour, ibid. f, & seq. Against Alex. Severus, 145, b. Against Valerian, 173, b, c. Against Aurelian, 188, c. Against Probus, 199, & seq. Constantius, 194, d. Julian, 301. Valentinian, 350, & seq.
Germanus forced to head the mutinous Romans, vi. 534, d. Totally defeats the Persians, ibid e. Defeated by Narses, 537, c. His death, ibid.
†Germany invaded by Cæsar, v. 122, b, c. Visited by Adrian, vi. 35, b. Ravaged by Maximin, 152, d, e.
Gerontius cruelly treated by Constantius, vi. 288, d.
—— betrays the streights of Thermopylæ, 433.
—— sent to guard the Pyrenees, 455, c——e. Sets up Maximus in Spain, 462, b. Success against Constantine, 465, d. Desperate end, 466, c, d.
Geroſtratus, king of Arad, submits to Alexander, i. 421, a.
†Gerræi, who, and where sited, vii. 231, b.
Gershon, a chief branch of the Levites, i 633, b.
Geryon's oxen fetched by Hercules, ii. 356, not.

† Geshur,

†Geſhur, the kingdom of, more ancient than that of Damaſcus, 380. Whether Abraham reigned in it, ibid. (B). Their petty princes, 381, & (L). Allied to David, ibid. b, c. Tranſplanted by the Syrians, ibid. c.
†Geſhurites unite with Amalek againſt the Iſraelites, i. 321, a. Who they were, ibid. (L).
Geſuald's noble fidelity and death, vii. 695, b, c.
†Geſſoriacum, Bologne, the triumphal arch of, vii. 429, b.
Geta's ſucceſs in Mauritania, v. 493, d, (W).
—— ſent to ſeize on Silius, 505, a. Turned out by Agrippina, 508, e.
—— Severus, the father of Alexander, vi. 104, b.
—— the ſon of Severus, by Julia, ibid. f. Choſen Cæſar, 114. Tribune, 118, b. Styled Britannicus, ibid. d. Succeeds with his brother to the empire, 121, a. His lovely character, ibid & ſeq. Murdered by Caracalla, 122, b——f. Declared a traitor, 123, b, c. Deified, ibid. d, e.
—— triumphs over the Britons, vii. 428, f.
†Getæ, where ſited, ii. 268, a. Defeated by Alexander, iii. 319, d, e. Different from the Dacians, v. 677, a. Their terrible inroads, vi. 522, c. The reſt ſee ſub Goths, vii. 486, & ſeq.
†Gether, one of Aram's ſons, prince of Bactria, i. 163, e. Where ſeated, ibid.
†Gethſemane, the vale of, i. 587, a. Whence ſo called, iv. 234, (N).
Getulicus Lentul. accuſed, v. 449, e. Noble letter to Tiberius, ibid f. Put to death, 475, d.
†Gevaudan taken by the Viſigoths, vii. 515, c.
†Gezer, in Canaan, put to the ſword by Pharaoh, i. 337, a. Given in dowry to Solomon, ibid. & 793, d.
†Gezerites, who, i. 321, (I). Ally with Amalek againſt the Jews, ibid. a.
†Gezira, Jezira, iſland, where, vii. 146, e.
†Ghaſſan, the kingdom of, by whom founded, vii. 275, d. Liſt of its kings, ibid. e, & ſeq.
Ghoſt, Holy, the ſin againſt, what, and why unpardonable, iv. 211, a.
—— miraculous deſcent on the apoſtles, 249, & ſeq. The Truth of the fact, 250, (H).
Giamaſp made regent of Perſia, iv. 389, e. Reſigns to Cobad, 390, a.
—— a famed Perſian aſtrologer, ii. 221, f. Foretels the coming of the Meſſiah, 222, not.
Giants, probably Cain's race, i. 82, c. Abſurd opinions about them, ibid, (N). Their origin, ibid. The probability of them, 84, paſſ. & (N). Continued until the flood, ibid. Their war with Jupiter, ii. 261, & ſeq.
†Gibbeath, their inhoſpitality and puniſhment, i. 740, d, &c.
†Gibbethon beſieged by the Iſraelites, i. 358.
†Gibel, mount. See Ætna, iii. 9, d.
†Gibeon, a city of the Hivites, make a league with Joſhua, i. 351, d——f. Made a kind of ſlaves, 332, a. Beſieged by the confederate Canaanites, 558. Relieved by Joſhua, ibid. & ſeq. Its ſituation, iv. 269, (N).
†—— the valley of, i. 575, b.
†Gibeonites, their revenge on Saul, i. 788, b. Thoſe who returned from the captivity, iv. 5, b.
Gideon ſaluted ſaviour of Iſrael, 743. The miracle of his fleece, ibid. & ſeq. Why ſurnamed Jerubaal, 744. Miraculous victory with his three hundred men, ibid. d, &c. Severity to Succoth and Penuel, ibid. & ſeq. Makes an ephod of the golden plunder, 746, b, c. Refuſes to reign over the Iſraelites, ibid. d. His death, e.
Gigantomachia, at Athens, what, v. 288, (R),
†Gihon, river, ſuppoſed the ſame with the Ganges, i. 56, a.
†Gilboah, mount, i. 573, a.
Gilda's account of Britain, vii. 420, (A).
Gildo revolts from Honorius, vi. 438, c. His riſe and character, ibid. d——f. Defeated and taken, 440, b, c. Hangs himſelf, d.
Gilead, the monument reared by Jacob, i. 444, d.
†—— mount, 553.
†—— where ſited, 143, b.
Gileadite Jews oppreſſed by the Syrians, iv 64, a, b. Relieved by Judas, 67, b, c. Subdued by Janneus, 100, b.
Gileadites removed into Judea, 67, c.
†Gindanes, who, and where ſited, vii. 175, b.
†Giſchala, the city of, taken by the Romans, iv. 273, f.
—— John de, outwits Veſpaſian, ibid. Treachery to Ananus, 274, c, d, (Z). Deſperate defence againſt the oppoſite parties, 278, b, (H). Againſt Simon, 288, a. Plunders the temple, 283, d. Horrid hypocriſy, 284, a, b. Taken priſoner, 288, f. Puniſhment, 289, c.
Giſco, the ſon of Hamilcar, baniſhed, and left to ſtarve, vi. 736. Recalled into Sicily, 785, e. Made governor of Lilybæum, 851, e. Sent to treat with the mercenaries, 853. Clapped in irons by them, 855. His miſerable end, 860, e, f.
Giſulph, firſt duke of Friuli, vii. 619, e.
—— of Benevento, his reign and death, 700, c.
†Gjudda, a ſea port near Mecca, vii. 238, a.
Glabrio ſent againſt Mithridates, iii. 750, c, d.
—— the conſul, forced to fight a huge lion, v. 680, e. Baniſhed and murdered by Domitian, ibid. f.
—— refuſes the empire, vi. 95.
Gladiators, when firſt introduced at Rome, iv. 804, (Z). Their manner of fighting, &c. ibid. &c. Reward, 580, ſub not. Their ſeveral claſſes, ibid. &c.
—— ſent out of Rome, v. 333, f. By whom maintained in the army, 361, (X). Their number ſtinted by Tiberius, 371, e. Reſtrained by M. Aurelius, vi. 80, a. Forbid by Conſtantine, 261, a. By Honorius, 451, b.
Glaphyra obtains Cappadocia for her ſon, iii. 768, b.
—— married to Alexander, iv. 147, a. Sent back to her father, 151, d. Illegally married to Archelaus, 192, a.
†Glaſs, the firſt and beſt made with Tyrian ſand, i. 394, d.
—— made at Schiras in Perſia, iii. 34, not.
†Glauce, the fountain of, whence ſo called, ii. 393, c.
Glaucia, a creature of Marius, v. 40. Conſpires with Apuleius, 42. Put to death, 43, b.
Glaucias, king of Illyricum, defeated, iii. 320, b, c.
—— makes peace with Caſſander, 460. Murders Roxana and her ſon, 462, a.
Glaucus, king of Corinth, ii. 393, b.
Glauſæ invaded by Alexander, iii. 393, b.
†Gloceſter taken by the Saxons, vii. 452, f.
Glycerius takes the purple on him, vi. 511. Depoſed, and made archbiſhop, 512, b, c. Reception of Nepos in his flight, ibid. d.
Glyco ſuſpected of poiſoning the two conſuls, v. 208, (P).
Gnephactus, king of Egygt, i. 263, a. Leaves a monumental curſe on luxury, ibid.
Gneſios, among the Athenians, what, ii. 437, d.
Gnoſſians aſſiſt the beſieged Rhodians, iii. 139, f. Subdue part of Crete, 170, d.
Gnoſſis, Ariadne, why ſo called, iii. 160.
†Gnoſſus, Jupiter's tomb ſhewn at, ii. 263, b. The ancient metropolis of Crete, iii. 160, b.
Goats, why worſhipped by the Egyptians, i. 211, b. Why painted on the Macedonian ſtandards, iii. 271, c, d.
God, the creator of matter and form, i. 2, a. A free agent, 5, a. The world not involuntarily created by him, ibid. & ſeq. The ſole principle of matter and motion, 11, c. How free from the imputation of evil, 29, d, e. The hundred and twentieth year of his forbearance, 82, b. Not the hardener of the heart, 494, (D).
Godegiſelus leads his Vandals into Gaul, vii. 527, d. Allies with Clovis, 571, b. Treachery to Gundebald, ibid. c, d. Put to death by him, 572, b.
Godemar, king of the Burgundi, vii. 586, e. Hires the Oſtrogoths, ibid. f. Succeſs againſt the Franks, 587, a. Peace with them, ibid. b, c. Driven out, ibid. d——f. Taken priſoner, 568, a, b.
Godfrey's hoſtile march againſt Conſtantinople, vi. 614, d, e. Treaty with Alexius, ibid. e, f.
Gods, Egyptian, reigning before the flood, i. 94, d, e.
—— tutelar, how evocated at a ſiege, iv. 777, b.
Gog and Magog, probably the ſame, i. 167, e. A fabulous prince of Britiſh Gaul, vii. 421, ſub not.
†Gogarene derives its name from Gog, ibid.
†Gold firſt coined by the Lydians, ii. 331, b.
—— ſand of the river Hermus, 294: d.
—— mines ſeized by the Thaſians, 493, & ſeq.
—— by Philip, 290, f. Deſpiſed by the Ethiopians, vii. 202, c. By the ancient Gauls, 384, b, (X). By the Germans, 429, d.
—— the ſand of, in Luſitania, 229, b.

Golden fleece. See Fleece, ii. 383, (G). 385, (K).
Golgi, a town in Cyprus, iii. 174, b.
† Golgotha, mount, described, iv. 239, (X).
Goliah, the gigantic Philistine champion, described, i. 353, (N). Killed by David, 354, a—d.
—— his son, another giant, killed by Jonathan, 357, b, c.
Gomer, Japhet's eldest son, the father of the Gomerians, ii. 243, a. Whether he came into Europe, 241. Whether the father of the Phrygians, 295, d. Their language described, 253. Still preserved by the Welsh, ibid. & seq. Its affinity to the Hebrew, ibid. sub not. Their descent, ibid. c.
Gomerians, called by the Greeks Galatians, the Gauls of Asia Minor, i. 166, b, c. Called also Celtes, &c. Other names, ii. 241, & seq. & (B). & 245. Different from the Scythians, 243, & seq. Their migrations into Europe, 244, & seq. 246. Extent of their territories there, ibid. & seq. The names of their rivers, cities, &c. of Celtic extract, 249, c, Their government, laws, religion, &c. 250, & seq. Military discipline, language, &c. 253, & seq. Diet, 254, d. Why confounded with the Scythians, 256, note. Their kings, 258, & seq. Kingdom dismembered, 265.
Gondric, king of the Vandals, invades Gaul, vi. 453, d. And Spain, 462, f. Driven out of Biscay, 473, b, c. His kingdom in Spain, vii. 530, f. Defeats the Suevi, 531, d. Defeated by Asterius, ibid. e. His miserable end, ibid. e, f.
Gondiac defeated by Ægidius, vi. 507, a.
Gondibal supports Glycerius's usurpation, vi. 511, e.
Gondicarius, king of the Burgundi in Gaul, vi. 468, d. Defeated by the Hunns, 483, vii. 463, c.
Gondomarus makes peace with Constantius, vi 298, b, c.
Gorgilas defeated by the Saracens, vi. 581, c.
Gad Goddess, the sacrifice of, v. 109, e, (O).
Gober, what, i. 104, (N).
Gordes, king of the Huns, converted, vii. 483, b. And murdered by his subjects, ibid. c.
† Gordiæan mountains in Armenia, iii. 695, b.
Gordian knot, the origin of, iii. 333, b, c. Cut by Alexander, ibid. d, e.
Gordianus, Alexander's counsellor, vi. 138. d. Proclaimed emperor in Afric, 153, c. Enters Carthage, ibid. d. Letters to the senate and consuls, ibid, e, f. Acknowledged by them, 154, a—c, (S). Defeated. 155, c. Kills himself, ibid. d. His extortions, &c. ibid. & seq. Poems and success in Afric, 156, b, c.
—— his son and collegue, defeated and killed, 154, & seq.
—— his grandson, chosen Cæsar, 157, d. Quells an uproar in Rome, 158, d. Chosen sole emperor, 161, b. His character, ibid. c. Magnificent games, ibid. e. Marries Sabina, ibid. f. Submissive answer to his father, 162, (V). Success against Sapor, ibid. b, c. In Syria, d. Letter to the senate, 163, a, b. Deposed by Philip, ibid. f. And Murdered, 164, a. His stately tomb and epitaph, ibid. b, c.
† Gordium, a city of Phrygia, ii. 293, b. By whom built, 302, c.
Gordius I ii. 296, c. 302. How raised to the throne, 301, b. Ties the Gordian knot, ibid. d.
—— II. 302, c.
—— III. invaded by the Cimmerians, ibid.
Gorgo, queen of Sparta, her character, ii. 587, not.
Gorgophone married to Oebalus, king of Sparta, ii. 400, d.
Gorgopus, the Spartan, defeated and killed, ii. 558, d.
† Gorgus, a river of Assyria, i. 859, a, (I).
—— king of Salamis, expelled by his brother, iii. 177, c. Recalled, 178, b.
† Gortyna, in Crete, iii. 160, d. Its ruins described, ibid. & seq.
† —— its temple, by whom built, 161, a.
† Gortynians subdue part of Crete, iii. 170, d.
† Gorza, where situate, vi. 858, (E).
† Goshem, in Egypt, its situation, &c. i. 457, d, (A).
Gotarzes resigns his sceptre to Bardanes, iv. 316, c——e. Mounts the Parthian throne, 317, b. Wars with Mithridates, ibid. & seq. His death, 318, b.
Gotfredus's account of post-chaises, vi. 26.
† Goths invade the Roman territories, vi. 160, d. Repulsed by Gordian. 163, c. Make new inroads, 169, b. Defeated by Decius, ibid. & seq. Defeat him, 170, c, d. Sad Defeat by Aurelian, 173, f. Driven out of Asia, 183, b, c. Ravage it afresh, 184, b, c. Three hundred thousand of them killed or taken, 187, b. Make peace with him, 188, c. With Probus, 201, b. Defeat the Burgundi, 209, c. Defeated by Constantine, 257, a. 262, d, e. An hundred thousand cut off by him, 264, b. Embrace christianity, ibid. c. Assist Procopius, 269, a, b. Defeated by Valens, ibid. d—f. 371, b. Obtain a peace, ibid. c—e. Driven out by the Hunns, 379, c, d. Two hundred thousand settle in Thrace, ibid. f. Some encamp about Adrianople, 380, f. Successful revolt, 381, & seq. Plunder the suburbs of Constantinople, 382. Repulsed before Adrianople, 387. Cruelties in Thrace, &c. 388, a. Cut off in Asia, ibid. c, d. By Theodosius, 392, & seq. Make and break peace with Rome, 393, & seq. Defeated afresh by him, 396, b. Settled in Thrace and Mœsia, 397, b, c. Transplanted thither from Pannonia, 480, c, d. Settled in Spain, 481, d, e. In Aquitain, ibid. & seq. Defeated before Narbonne, 483, c. By Ætius, 484, b. How divided and settled, 496, b, c. Treachery to the Spanish cities, 505, b, c. Ravage Lusitania, 510, c. Strive to revenge Asper's death, 511, a. Make war against both empires, ibid. e. Seize on Gothland, vii. 441, c. Defeated at Chalons, 476, & seq. Number of the slain, 477, c. Their origin, 486, b. 491, pass. The same with the Cimbri, ibid. e. & 487, & seq. Sundry settlements, ibid. pass. Names and countries, 488, a——d. Language and writing, 489, f. Coming into Germany, 491, pass. Allow polygamy, ibid. f, & seq. Why called Goths, 492, b. Their customs, kings, &c. ibid. & seq. Dress, 493, b. Wars with Caracalla, ibid. c. Become pensionary to Rome, ibid. d. Ravage Mœsia, ibid. & seq. Driven out of Thrace, 495, a, b. Ravage Asia, ibid. c, d. Invade the empire, ibid. a——d. Defeated, ibid. e. By pestilence, 497, b. Surrender to Claudius, ibid. d. Driven out of Pannonia, ibid. f. And Thrace, 498, a. Dacia, &c. ibid. b, c. Various defeats, vi. 257, & seq. vii. 298, & seq. An hundred thousand of them destroyed, 499, e, f. When and how converted, 500, a, (A). Serve under the Romans, ibid. pass. Defeated by Valens, 501, & seq. By the Hunns, 502, pass. Settle in Thrace, ibid. & seq. Submit to Theodosius, 503, pass. Ravage Greece, 505, pass. Italy, 507, e, f. Their conquests in France. See sub Visigoths, 509, & seq. And Italy, sub Ostrogoths, 518, & seq.
Gothish women, fight in mens apparel, vii. 498.
Government, at first patriarchal, i. 171, b. Changed, ibid.
Gracchian law, what, iv. 801, d. Repealed, 809. Revived, v. 40. f. 43, e.
Gracchus, Tib. his noble speech in favour of the two Scipios, iv. 757, a. 758, a. Marries Cornelia, ibid. b. 788, & seq.
Gracchus, his son, raises a dreadful sedition, 789, & seq. Revives the Licinian law, ibid. & seq. Submits it to the senate, 790, f. Passes it in spite of them, 791, & seq. Killed, 793.
—— Cai. chosen questor, 799. His popularity becomes dangerous, ibid & seq. His character, 801, a, (Y). Laws and public works, ibid. & seq. Outwitted by the senate, 803. Affronts the tribunes, 804, & seq. Mad speech to the senate, 806, c. Retires to mount Aventine, 807, c. His flight and death, 808, c, d.
—— success against the Carthaginians, vii. 47, e. Sent to rebuild their city, 105, c, d.
Gradual psalms, why so called, iv. 16, (C.
† Graicoi, Graii, ancient Greeks, ii. 344, not.
Gramen or grass crown, why given to Scipio, iv. 773, f.
† Grampius, mount, the battle of, v. 667, & seq.
† Granicus, river in Mysia, ii. 325, c.
—— the battle of, iii 325, & seq.
Granius accompanies Marius in his flight, v. 56, & seq. Parted from him, 57, e. Rejoins him, 59, b.
—— strangled by Sylla, 840, a.
—— Martian. accused, 450, d. Kills himself, 451, a.
Grata, the daughter of Valentinian, vi. 352, f. Turns nun, 420.
Gratedius, stoned to death by the soldiers, v. 54, c.
Gratian, the father of Valentinian, his rise, merit, &c. vi. 346, c, d. Retirement, ibid. e.
—— the son, born, 346, f. Chosen consul, 350, d. Emperor, 352, d. Goes with Valentinian into Germany, 354, d. His famous bridge, 355, e. Left to awe the Germans, 362, f. Divides the empire with his brother, 377, pass. Injustice to Theodosius, 378, pass. Remits his his father's dues, 379, a. Some of his laws, ibid. b, c. In favour of the clergy, 382, c, d. Courage and ſucceſs againſt the Germans, 386, & ſeq. Haſtens to ſave Conſtantinople, 388, d. Recals the orthodox, 389, a. Laws againſt heretics, ibid. b, c. Divides the empire with Theodoſius, ibid. e, f. Goes into Gaul, 391, b. Into Illyricum, 393, b. Makes peace with the Goths, ibid. c. Succeſs againſt the Barbarians, 396, c. Some excellent laws of his, ibid d. 397, d, e. Marches againſt Maximus, 398, c. Abandoned by his troops, ibid. d, e. Put to death, ibid e, f. Interred at Milan, 399, c. His excellent character, ibid. c, d. Refuſes the title of pont. max. ibid &c.

—— the ſon of Theodoſius, 390, f.

Gratus defeats the ſeditious Jews, iv. 189.

—— Valer. made governor of Judea, 194.

† Grecia Magna, deſcribed, iv. 412.

Grecinus's excellent character, v. 466, (K). Put to death by Caligula, ibid.

† Greece, antient deſcribed, ii, 344, & ſeq. Its various names, ibid. Contended for by the gods, 390, d, & not. Engaged in the Peloponneſan war, 501. Shattered with dreadful earthquakes, 507, & ſeq. Quieted by the Nicean peace, 512. Under new diſaſters 513. Divided between ariſtocracy and oligarchy, 541, b, Its various ſtates after the Achæan league, ibid. & ſeq. Invaded by Philip, ibid. & iii. 306, & ſeq. Throws off the Macedonian yoke, 549. After Alexander's death, 550, & ſeq. Subdued by the Romans, ibid. ii. 747, & ſeq. Made a Roman province, v. 650, d.

—— the democracy of, reſtored, iii. 325, e.

† —— the iſlands of, deſcribed, 240, & ſeq. Forced to ſubmit to Antipater, 358, c, d. 450, e. Proclaimed free at the Iſthmian games, iv. 751, b. Over run by the Caſtobochi, vi. 69, b. Under a grievous peſtilence, 180, b. Ravaged by the Goths, ibid. c. Damaged by an earthquake, 328, e.

Greek philoſophers have their learning from Egypt, i. 12, (N). Their account of the flood, 95, (N). Settle in Egypt, 266, a.

—— hiſtorians, their partiality againſt the Scythians, ii. 273, b.

—— tongue, affirmed to be the language of the gods, 296, f. Forbid by the Carthaginians, vi. 679, (K). 773, f.

—— letters, when brought into Italy, iv. 414, & ſeq. & (G).

—— mercenaries, how uſed by Alexander, iii. 360, & ſeq. Revolt after his death, 419, a. Maſſacred, ibid. & 449, & ſeq.

† Greeks, the firſt foreigners allowed to dwell in Egypt, i. 266, a. Their lands near Bubaſtis, ibid. Growth in the time of Amaſis, 271, d. Pride in ſlighting foreign records, 863, f, g. Who were the moſt antient among them, ii. 344. & ſeq. Their rude beginning, 345, & ſeq. Antient government, 346, & ſeq. Religion, 348, a. Antiquity, ibid. c. Various ſtates, ibid. & ſeq. After the Achean league, 629, & ſeq. Expedition againſt Troy, 318. Fleet, &c. 319. Firſt eight years war, 320, & ſeq. Infected with peſtilence, 321, d. Burn Troy, ibid. d. Various fates of their chiefs, ibid. & ſeq.

—— their brave defence againſt Xerxes, ii. 118—128. Defeat at Thermopylæ, 121, & ſeq. Fleet, 123, c. Victory over the Perſians, 124, d. 126, d. By ſea and land on the ſame day, ibid. & ſeq. Peace with Artaxerxes, 132, & ſeq. Aſſiſt Cyrus, 138. Advance into Perſia, ibid. Noble retreat after his death, 139, f. Invade Perſia, 155. Chuſe Alexander their general, ibid. Battle of Granicus, ibid. & ſeq.

Greeks, their firſt coming into Sicily, iii. 11, d, e. Invade Africa, 83. Make peace with Carthage, 86, & ſeq. War with Perſia, 275, & ſeq. Arm againſt Philip, 306, & ſeq. Defeated at Chæronea, 307. Revolt from Alexander, 118, c. 120. Their treachery to the Parthians, iv. 293, b. Deſcent into Latium, 593, Retire, 594. Flattery to M. Antony, v. 259, paſſ. To Nero, 564, e, f. Infranchiſed by him, 566, a, b. Plundered and famiſhed by him, ibid. & ſeq.

—— horrid flattery to Adrian, vi. 38, d. High encomiums on Conſtantine, 268, e. Invade the eaſtern empire, 433, d. Allowed a church at Conſtantinople, 446, b. Maſſacred and burnt in it, ibid. e, f. Ravage Italy, 448, paſſ. Take and deſtroy Rome, 464, c—e. Ravage Gaul, 467, d. Invite the Bulgarians againſt Rome, 628, e. Submit to the pope, 625, a. Shake him off, ibid c.

Greeks that came to ſee our Saviour, who, iv. 229, D.

—— of Aſia, their hiſtory, ii. 748, & ſeq.

Gregory's writings and character, vi. 274, not.

—— biſhop of Antioch, quells the mutinous Romans, 534, e, f.

—— I. pope, his flattering letter to Phocas, 536, f.

—— prefect of Afric, defeated, 554, d.

—— II. ſtirs up the Venetians, 552, d, e. Attempted by Leo, ibid e. Letter to the Lombards, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Whether he aſſumed the ſupreme power, 553, d. See alſo vol. vii. p. 702—708.

—— Michael's general, defeated and killed, 565, e, f.

† Greuthongi, who, vii. 459, a. Defeated by Valens, 500, f. Treachery to Tato, 688, d, e. vi. 371, b, c. Invaded by the Huns, 379, d. Defeated by Theodoſius, 417.

Grimoald defeats Conſtans II. vi. 545.

—— refuged in Lombardy, vii. 692, a.

—— made Duke of Benevento, ibid. c. His conqueſts, ibid. d, & ſeq. Seizes on Lombardy, 693, paſſ. Treachery to Partharit, ibid. f, & ſeq. Stratagem againſt the Franks, 694, c. Drives out the Romans, 695, & ſeq. New conqueſts, 696, b. Stratagem againſt the Huns, ibid. d, e. Corrects the Lombard laws, 697, a. His death and character, ibid. b, c.

—— II. ſucceeds his father, and dies, 700, c.

Grotius Hugo's notion about the ſtanding of the ſun confuted, i. 559, n. Account of the Lombards, vi. 391, e, f.

† Grottos, near Oſynt, in Egypt, deſcribed, i. 196, f.

—— reſorted to by the Romans in ſummer, v. 430, (B).

† Groves, ſacred among the Scythians, ii. 272. Among the antient patriarchs, vii. 331, a, b. Among the Gauls, ibid. & ſeq. And Germans, [413], & ſeq. That of Marſeilles deſcribed by Lucan, 331, (F)

† Guaguamela, the battle of, iii. 350, & ſeq.

Guardians, Solon's laws concerning, ii. 432, f.

Gubaſes invites the Romans againſt Coſrhoes, iv. 355, e. Aſſaſſinated, 356, d. See alſo vi. 527—529.

Guiſcard, Robert, his extract, &c. vi. 609, e. Succeſs againſt Alex. Comnenus, ibid. & ſeq. Againſt the emperor Henry, 611, a. His death, ibid. c.

—— his ſon relinquiſhes all his conqueſts, ibid. d.

† Gulph, Perſian, deſcribed, ii. 37, (P).

—— a dreadful one opened in the Roman forum, iv. 586.

Guluſſa's extract, v. 6, a. Begs the Numidian crown of the Romans, 11, e, f.

—— treachery and cruelty to the Carthaginians, iv. 769, b. 780, d. Vindicates his father to the Roman ſenate, vii. 95, b. Inſulted at Carthage, 96, c. His ſhare of the Numidian kingdom, 127, a. Death, ibid. b.

Gundabunus revolts to the Romans, iv. 368, e. Helps to dethrone Coſrhoes, 369, a.

Gundamond, king of the Vandals in Afric, vii. 527, d.

Gundebald defeated by Clovis, vii. 571, b, c. Beſieged in Avignon, ibid. d. Succeſs againſt his brother, 572, a, b. Made magiſter militiæ, 581, e. His law in favour of duels, ibid. & ſeq. Fratricide, 584, c. Conqueſts and ravages, ibid. & ſeq. Death, 585, b.

Gundebert's treachery to his brother, vii. 692, f. Death, 693, c.

Gundemar, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, vii. 492, e.

Gunderic ſettles in Galicia, vii. 527, d.

Gundiac, king of the Burgundi, made magiſter militiæ, vii. 581, d, e. His ſucceſs in Spain and Gaul, 583, paſſ.

Gurgenes, Gyrgenes, turns chriſtian, iii. 835. Invaded by the Perſians, vi. 523, d.

Gurges, Quin. Fab.'s gallantry at Ptolemy's court, iii. 634, c, d. (vi. 647, d.) Builds a temple to Venus, iv. 634, b. Defeated by the Samnites, 638. Reſcued by his father, ibid. d. Regulates the public revenue, 650, c. Killed before Volſinii, ibid. & ſeq.

Guſanaſtades's advice to the Perſian council, iv. 344, b. Declared a rebel, 345, f. Put to death, 346, a.

Guſtaph, prince of Perſia, according to the Orientals, his fabulous reign, ii. 203, & ſeq. Whether the ſame with Hyſtaſpes, 221, c, d.

† Guzula, where ſited, vii. 160, b.

Gyants. See Giants, i. 82, & ſeq.

† Gyarus iſland, why uninhabited, iii. 227, c.

Gyges's treaſon againſt Candaules, ii. 333.

Gylippus, the Spartan, relieves Syracuſe, ii. 518. His ſucceſs in Sicily, 600, d. Takes the Athenian generals priſoners, 520. Whether chargeable with their death, ibid. ſub not. Baniſhed for theft, 604. His character, ibid. not. See alſo iii. 29, & ſeq.

Gylphus, Gylvo, receives Woden in Sweden, vii. 489, e.

† Gymn

† Gymnic games inſtituted by Alexander, iii. 342, a.
Gymnoſophiſts burnt themſelves when weary of life, v. 309, a.
† Gyrlone, metropolis of the kingdom of Oreſtes, iii. 255, a.
Gythians ſubdued by the Lacedæmonians, ii. 396, b.
† Gythitis, iſland in Ethiopia, vii. 199, b.
† Gythium, the ſea-port of, by whom built, ii. 396, d, (D). Taken and burnt by the Athenians, 489, c. By Nabis, 637, f. By the Romans, iv. 752.

H.

† HABRAH, the ſpring of, in Numidia, vii. 116, d.
Hadad, the Horite, defeats the Midianites, i. 300, e. 312, c.
—— king of Edom, flees from David into Egypt, i. 314. Marries Pharaoh's ſiſter, ibid. Proves a thorn in Solomon's ſide, 315. Probably ſettled in Syria, ibid. e.
Hadadezer, or Hadarezer, the firſt king of Zobah in Syria, i. 382, a. Defeated by David, ibid. c. Aſſiſts Hanun againſt him, ibid. b. Defeated, ibid. c. And becomes tributary to him, ibid. d.
Hadar, king of the Horites, i. 312, c.
† Hadbramaut, a province of Arabia Felix, why ſo called, i. 170, a.
† Hadoram, one of Joktan's ſons, where ſettled, i. 170, a.
† Hadrumentum. See Adrumentum, vi. 668, e.
† Hæmus, mount, where ſituate, vi. 169, b.
Hagar, forced to flee from Sarah, i. 425, d. Returns and ſubmits, 426, a. Brings forth Iſhmael, ibid. &c. Sent away with him, 430, b.
† Hagareni, where ſituate, vii. 226, d, e. Why ſo called, 240, d. Brave oppoſition againſt Trajan, 282, b—e.
† Hagerim, Malcuth, what is meant by, iv. 92, (P).
Haggai, the prophet, reproves the Jews, iv. 9, e. One of Ezra's aſſiſtants, 13, (Y).
† Hajathelites, who, iv. 386, e. Repulſed by Coſrhoes, 391, f.
† Haik, the ſon of Togarmah, gives his name to ancient Armenia, i. 167, c.
Hail-ſtones deſtroy the confederate Canaanites, i. 564, a, b. Remarks on that miraculous tranſaction, ibid. & ſeq. & not. One of the Egyptian plagues, 497, & ſeq.
Hali murdered by Mahuvias, vi. 545.
† Halicarnaſſus, capital of Caria, ii. 759, a. Why excluded the Dorian confederacy, 762. Taken by Alexander, 156, & ſeq. iii. 328, & ſeq. Demoliſhed, 330, b.
Halieus, in the Phœnician coſmogony, who, i. 87, c. The firſt hunter and fiſher, ibid.
Hallal, among the Jews, a ſet of euchariſtical pſalms, iv. 334, (M).
Halolus, Claudius's taſter, poiſons him, v. 516, c. His Crimes and extortions, 587, e. Screened by Vibius from puniſhment, ibid. f.
† Haloneſus, one of the Cyclades, iii. 283. Taken from the pirates by Philip, 302, b, c. By the Peparethians, ibid. d, e.
Haly, a private friend to the chriſtians, vi. 652, b—d.
† Halycus, a river in Sicily, iii. 10, a.
† Halys, river, deſcribed, iii. 567, in fin. (Q). Divides Pontus from Paphlagonia, 722. Runs through Cappadocia into the Euxine, 762, c.
† Ham, the youngeſt ſon of Noah, i. 118, c, (N). Why and how far curſed in his poſterity, 119, a, & b, (N). Crimes laid to his charge, 120, & not. Held the inventor of magic, ibid. And of idolatry, ibid. His iſſue more numerous than his brethrens, 121, a. The true reaſon of Noah's diſcarding him, ibid. Whether the ſame with Chronus, ibid. Or with Menes, ibid. (B). Where he firſt ſettled and reigned, 164, a. His deſcendants, where ſettled, ibid.
† Hamadan, an opulent city in Parthia, ii. 31, & ſeq.
Haman called an Agagite, or Amalekite, i. 321, e.
† Hamath, the kingdom of, from whom ſo called, i. 370, f. Chronology of its kings, 380.
† —— the Great, where ſited, 390, (H). The uncertainty about its kings, &c. ibid. &c. Subject afterwards to Damaſcus, 391. And laſtly to Aſſyria, ibid.
† Hamathites tranſplanted by the Aſſyrians, i. 391, d.
Hamilcar ſerves under Xerxes, ii. 116, e.
—— his fleet and army, iii. 16, c. Defeated and killed, 17.
—— ſent into Sicily, 78, b. Taken priſoner at Syracuſe, and killed, 85.
—— beſieges Segeſta, iv. 659, a. Repulſes the Romans at Lipara, 661, c. Defeated before Heraclea, 662, c. Sent for to command at home, 663, d. His cruel death at Rome, 670, e.
Hamilcar worſhipped at Carthage, vi. 692, c, d. His effigy and name upon their coin, 704, c, d. Succeeds his father, 728, a. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Sardinians, ibid. b.
—— the father of Hanno, repulſed by Scipio, iv. 743, b.
—— the ſon of Hanno, his expedition againſt Sicily, vi. 732, a, b. Over-reached by Gelon, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and killed, 733, paſſ. Deified, ibid. e.
—— ſent againſt Timoleon, 782, b. Defeated, 783, & ſeq. Betrays the Syracuſans, 790, d. His death, ibid. f.
—— Rhodanus, ſent to ſound Alexander's deſigns, 788, f. His method of ſending notice of them to Carthage, ibid & ſeq. Ungratefully put to death, 789, f.
—— the ſon of Giſco, ſhipwrecked, 791, d. Defeats Agathocles, ibid. & ſeq. Recalled from Sicily, 799, a, b. Raiſes the ſiege of Syracuſe, ibid. e, f. Defeated by them, 801, c. His diſmal end, ibid. d. Head ſent to Agathocles, ibid. & ſeq. Throws Carthage into deſpair, 802, d, e.
—— the ſucceſſor of Hanno, outwits the Romans, 830, b—e. Defeats them, 832, b, c. Defends Lipara, 834. Defeated by the Romans, 835, e. His offers of peace rejected, 836, e. Recalled, 837, c. His miſerable end, 842, b, (W).
—— cruelty to the Mauritanians, 843, e. Brave defence of Lilybæum, 845, b, c. Prevents the revolt of the mercenaries, ibid. & ſeq.
—— Barcas, ſucceſs againſt the Romans, iv. 675, a, b. Sends proviſions to Lilybæum, 676, a. Defeated, 678. Sues for peace, ibid. & ſeq. Forms two ſchemes againſt Rome, 680, f. His character, and manner of encamping, vi. 848, paſſ. Makes peace with the Romans, 850, & ſeq. His invincible hatred againſt them, 858. Reſigns at the Libyan war, 853, paſſ. Sent general againſt them, 868, b. Bold paſſage of the Macra, ibid. c, d. Defeats the Libyans, 859, a—c. 860, a, b. Severity to the bloody mercenaries, 861, c, d. Incloſes them on all ſides, 862, d—f. Puts them to death, ibid. & ſeq. Beſieges the reſt in Tunes, 863. Concludes the Libyan war, ibid. & ſeq. Reduces the Numidians, 865, c. Expedition and ſucceſs in Spain, 866, paſſ. (See alſo vol. iv. 684, & ſeq.) Death, 867, a, b. Inſpires his ſons with hatred againſt the Romans, vii. 2, b.
Hamilco ſent into Sicily, iii. 113, f. To the relief of Syracuſe, 118, d. Dies of the plague, ibid. & ſeq.
—— commands in Lilybæum, iv. 671.
† Hamman lef, a hot water, deſcribed, vi. 671, (D).
† Hammon, Jupiter, the temple of, 347, d, e.
Hamor, king of Shechem, intercedes for his ſon to Jacob, i. 322, c.
† Hamſhire inhabited by the Jutes, vii. 441, e.
Hamyar, the chief king of Yaman, vii. 245, c. His reign and ſucceſſors, 267, d, & ſeq. The end of it, 271, e, f.
Hanani, the prophet, reproves king Aſa, i. 808, b.
—— made governor of Jeruſalem, iv. 12, b.
† Hance-towns, whence ſo called, vii. 549, d.
Hannah, the mother of the ſeven martyred Maccabees. See Solomena, 546, iv. (I).
Hannibal ſent into Sicily, iii. 37, & ſeq. His army and fleet, 38, a. Takes and burns Selinus, ibid. e, f. And Himera, 39. His ſecond army, 40, d. Invades Sicily, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by the Rhodians at ſea, 151. Takes refuge with Antiochus, 547. Sends Ariſto to Carthage, 549. Outwitted by the Romans, 551, c. His advice to Antiochus, 553, a. Untimely rejected, ibid. b. Forms the plan of Artaxa, 962. Stratagem againſt the Pergamenians, 772. Poiſons himſelf, 773, c, (B). His judgment of Pyrrhus, 818, (P). Tomb at Libyſſa, 825. (See alſo vol. iv. 735, & ſeq. vol. vi. 706, (K). His writings and character, ibid. 709).
—— commands in Agrigentum, iv. 655, c. Steals out in the night, 656, c. Defeated at ſea, 657, f. 658, f. Degraded, 659, c. Defeated and crucified, 661, e.
—— a Rhodian's bold attempt through the Roman fleet, iv. 671, e, f. Taken priſoner, 672, c.
—— ſaves Meſſana from the Syracuſans, vi. 819, a, b.

Brave

Brave defence of Agrigentum, 829, c, d. Repulſed by the conſular army, ibid e, f. Abandons the place, ibid. & ſeq.
Hannibal ſent to coaſt about Sicily, 830, a. Deſtroys the Roman fleet, ibid. e, f. Defeated by them, 831, a—c. His puniſhment, 832, a—d.
—— His ſon, ſent to ſecure the Gauls, 845, e, f. Brings new ſupplies to Lilybæum, 846. Sent to aſſiſt Hamilcar, 861, d. Crucified by the mercenaries, 863, b.
—— the child of Hamilcar, taken by him into Spain, 865, c, d. Sent thither afreſh, when grown up, 868. Becomes the darling of the army, ibid. & ſeq. His ſucceſs and conqueſts, 869. Beſieges Saguntum, 870. vol. vii. 2, & ſeq. Whether he denied audience to the Romans, 3, & ſeq. Takes the place, 5, & ſeq. His motives for it, 7, & ſeq. Regulations in Spain, 8, f, & ſeq. His journal left at Lacinium, 9, b, (D). Odd dream, 10, a, b. Speech to his army, ibid. e, f. Croſſes the Rhoſne, 11, b. Marches towards the Alps, 14, b, c. Difficulties in croſſing them, ibid. f, & ſeq. And in his deſcent, 15, & ſeq. His army greatly dwindled, 16, b, (G). Speech to them, 17, b, c. Defeats the Romans, ibid. f, & ſeq. Second victory, 19, & ſeq. March into Etruria, 21, a. Defeats Flaminius, 22, b. Waſtes Italy, ibid. e, & ſeq. Entrapped by his Italian guides, 23, d, & ſeq. Stratagem againſt Fabius, 24, e, f. Repulſed by him, 26, b, c. In great diſtreſs, 27, f, & ſeq. Speech to his army, 28, f Signal victory at Cannæ, 30, & ſeq. His not marching to Rome juſtified, 31, f, & ſeq. Succeſs in Campania, 32, f, & ſeq. Enters Capua, 33, & ſeq. Treatment of the Roman priſoners, 34, b, c, (N). Repulſed before Naples and Nola, 35, e, & ſeq. Captivated by the delights of Capua, 37, paſſ. Betrayed by the Barcan faction, ibid. f, & ſeq. Stratagem againſt the Roman dictator, 41, d, e. Repulſed before Cumæ, 44, a, b. Haughty anſwer to the Hirpini, &c. ibid. f, & ſeq. Repulſed before Nola, 45, a, b. Raiſes commotions in Sicily, 47, a. Repulſed before Puteoli, ibid & ſeq. Plunders Apulia, 48, b, c. Private treaty with the Tarentines, 51, paſſ. Enters their city, 52, paſſ. Stratagem to famiſh the citadel, ibid. e, f. Freſh ſucceſſes againſt the Romans, 54, & ſeq. Goes to the relief of Capua, 57, b, c. Stratagem againſt the conſuls defeated, ibid. d. Marches towards Rome, ibid. e. Ill ſucceſs, 59, a, b. Engages Marcellus ſeveral times, 61, & ſeq. Defeats the banditti, 62, e. The Romans, 64, b, c. Delays joining Aſdrubal, 65, c. Sundry defeats, ibid. & ſeq. Retires to Canuſium, 66, a. Behaviour at hearing of Aſdrubal's death, 68, c, d. Waſted by peſtilence and famine, 73, b. Wounded by a ſcorpion, 74, e. Defeated by Sempronius, 76, f, & ſeq. Recalled to Carthage, 79, c. Maſſacres ſome Italians, 80, c, d. Lands in Afric, 81, b. Speech to Scipio, 81, d. Defeat at Zama, 82, paſſ. Noble ſpeech to Hœdus, 84, e, f. Recalled, and choſen prætor, 85, f, & ſeq. Envied by the Romans, 86, c. Reception from Antiochus, ibid. & ſeq. Noble ſpeech to him, 87, b, d. 88, d, e. Artful anſwer to Scipio, ibid. b, c Advice to Antiochus, ibid. f, & ſeq. Rouſes him up, 90, d, e. Defeated by the Rhodians, ibid. & ſeq. Flight into Crete, &c. 91, a, b. Stratagem to ſave his treaſure, ibid. b. Againſt Eumenes, ibid. b—d. Poiſons himſelf, ibid. & ſeq. Laſt words and character, 92, a, & ſeq.
——— Paſſer, head of the Maſiniſſan faction, vii. 96.
† —— the port of, where, 298, f.
† —— tower, where ſituate, vi. 670, a.
Hanno's deſign of enſlaving Carthage fruſtrated, vi. 679, e, & ſeq. 787, a. His dreadful end, ibid. b, c. Unmeaſurable arrogance, 707, a. Writings and navigation, 709, c, d. Tames the firſt lion, ibid. f, & 710, (N).
—— ſent againſt Sicily, 773, f. Undermined by Suniates, ibid. & ſeq. Sent againſt Agathocles, 796. Defeated and killed, 797, c, d.
—— ſucceſs againſt Æſcrion, 810, a. Sent to ſuccour Sicily, 823, & ſeq. Over-reached by the Roman conſul, 824, b, c. Crucified, ibid. c, d.
—— defeated at ſea, iv. 662, c. Ventures an interview with the conſuls, ibid. e. Father and ſon repulſed by the Romans, 666, d.
—— the Carthaginian admiral, defeated, iv. 678, a. Haughty anſwer to the Roman ſenate, 682, b.
—— the ſon of Bomilcar, ſent to ſurpriſe the Romans, 695, a. Taken priſoner by them, 704, a.
Hanno, the ſon of Hannibal, ſent in his ſtead, 824, d. His ſucceſs, ibid. & ſeq. Outwitted by Appius, 825, b, c. Suſpected by Hiero, 826, b, c. (Maſſacres all the Italians in his army, iv. 654, a. Commands the Carthaginian fleet, 655. Defeated by the Romans, 656. Sent to relieve Agrigentum, vi. 829, b, c. Defeated, ibid. e, f. Fined and degraded, 830. Killed in defending Olbia, 834, (R). See alſo vol. iv. 660, b.
—— ſpeech to the Carthaginians, iv. 715, b. Hatred to Hannibal, vii 7, e, f. Left to command in Gaul, 11, a, b. Defeated by Cn. Scipio, 20, b, c. Sharp anſwer to Himilco, 35, a, b. And to Mago, ibid. c. Obſtructs Hannibal's ſuccours, 37, f. Defeated by Sempronius, 44. (See vol. iv. 719, a, &c.) By Marcellus, 47, e, f. Sent to throw freſh proviſions into Capua, 53, e. Defeated and ſtripped of them, ibid. f. Defeated in Spain, 68, e. Taken priſoner, ibid. f.
—— defeated by Scipio, 76, a. By Maſiniſſa, ibid. c, d. Head of the Roman faction, 96, b.
†Hanun, king of Ammon, his ill treatment of David's ambaſſadors, i. 296, a, b. Routed by him, 297, a. Beſieged in his capital, and ſlain, ibid.
Haran, the ſon of Terah, dies in Ur, i. 132. Various opinions about his death, ibid. (Y).
†—— a city of Meſopotamia, 133, b.
Hardouin's pedigree of Herod confuted, iv. 104, (K). And his notion of the Herodians, 168, f.
Hare biſhop's metrical edition of the Hebrew pſalms examined, iv. 16, & ſeq. ſub not.
†Hareth, the foreſt of, whither David retired, i. 576, a, & (G).
Hariobandus ſubmits to Julian, vi. 305, a
Harmatius betrays Baſiliſcus, vi. 514, e. Promoted by Zeno, 515, a. Murdered by him, ibid. b.
Harmoclus's bravery againſt the Perſians, ii. 476, a.
Harmodius, why honoured by the Athenians, v. 214, e, & ſeq.
Harmonia, princeſs of Samothrace, ii. 312, a. Married to Cadmus, 313.
—— where born, iii. 239, f.
Harpagus bravely oppoſed by the Xanthians, ii. 338, & ſeq. Takes Phocæa, 749.
—— commanded to kill young Cyrus, 83. Severely puniſhed by Aſtyages, 84. His bloody revenge againſt him, 85, & ſeq.
Harpalus, Alexander's treaſurer, why favoured, iii. 368, b. His treachery and puniſhment, 407, a, b.
Harpocrates, the ſon of Iſis and Oſiris, how repreſented, i. 205, f.
Harpocration's writings and character, vi. 84, ſub not.
Harpyes, a fabulous kind of birds, ii. 383, (H).
Harpſicoras's embaſſy to Carthage, vii. 42, a. Abandoned by his men, 45, d. Defeated, and kills himſelf, ibid. e, f.
Haſſideans, at Aſdanim, repair to Mattathias, iv. 55, d. Their ſect, ibid. (M). Murdered by Bacchides, 70, e. Whether the ſame with the Eſſenians, 170, d.
Haſtati, among the Romans, whence ſo called, iv. 600, (T).
Hatcrius, Qu. diſgraced by Tiberius, v. 355, d. His death, 431, (E).
—— Agrippa. oppoſes the whipping of players, 380, b.
†Havilah, where ſituate, i. 164, d. Two places, and two perſons, of that name, 170, f.
—— the ſon of Cuſh, the father of the Gætulians, vii. 161, c.
Haumar, the Saracen, his conqueſts in Arabia, vi. 543, b, c. Succeſs againſt Heraclius, ibid. c, d. Begins a temple at Jeruſalem, 544, c. Subdues Afric, ibid. d, & ſeq. Perſecutes the chriſtians, 551, d.
Hawks, worſhipped by the Egyptians, i. 208, f. 209, e. Why, 210, e.
Hazael ſent by Benhadad to Eliſha, i. 387, d. Foretold that he ſhould prove a cruel tyrant, ibid. e. Murders the king, and mounts the throne, 388, a. Succeſs againſt the kings of Iſrael and Judah, ibid. b—d, & (Y). Treachery to Jehoaſh, ibid. d. Takes and plunders Jeruſalem, ibid. e. Seizes on Elath, 389. Dies, and is deified, ibid. His and Benhadad's ſtatues carried about, ibid. (A).
Hazazel, or Scape-goat, its etymon, i. 618, (T). The ceremony of an expiation day, 619, (V).
†Hazor, taken and burnt by the Iſraelites, i. 333, b. Rebuilt by Jabin II. and made his capital, 335, b.
†Hebdomon, the chriſtian emperors crowned at, vi. 348, c.
Hebrew character exchanged for the Chaldee, iv. 14, b.
† Hebrews,

†Hebrews, whether derived from Eber, i. 128; b. 129; a. Their language, whether ſo named from him, ibid. b. Whether the moſt ancient, 152, e, & ſeq. And the mother of the reſt, 154, a—c. Its purity, ſimplicity, &c. 718, a; b. Characters, 719, & ſeq.
†Hebron, the capitol of the Edomites, who ſettled in Judea, i. 317, b. Taken and razed by Judas Maccab. ibid. (See vol. iv. 64, f.) Whence ſo called, 424, (G). Its antiquity, ibid. Why called Kirjath Arba, ibid. Retaken by the Canaanites, 334, a.
†Hebrus, a river in Thrace, iii. 787, e.
Hecataeus, an account of, iii. 235, (C). Inſtructed by a Jewiſh prieſt, iv. 35, (M).
Hecatomphonia, what, ii. 579, f.
†Hecatompylos, metropolis of Parthia, ii. 31, c. 32, (I). The ſame with Hiſpahan, ibid. Where ſituate, iv. 289, a.
†—— Thebes, why ſo called, i. 175, c, & (A).
Hector, the ſon of Priam, killed, ii. 318.
Hecuba, Priam's wife, ii. 317, & ſeq.
Hegeſandrides takes Eubœa, ii. 601, d.
Hegeſianax's ſpeech to the Roman commiſſaries, iii. 548, e.
Hegeſiſtratus's ſpeech to Leutychides, iii. 198, e.
†Hejaz, the province of, deſcribed, vii. 236, a, b.
†—— kingdom, founded, 245.
Hefer, red, the ceremony of burning of it, i. 621, d. The aſhes of it, why purifying to the unclean, and defiling to the clean, 622, (L). Jewiſh traditions about it, ibid.
Heireſſes, Moſes's law concerning them, i. 538, a, b. Solon's on the ſame, ii. 431, a.
Hela, the goddeſs of hell, vii. 443, a.
†Helanus's lake, the worſhip of, vii. 351, a, b.
Helen, the fatal Grecian beauty, her fabulous birth, ii. 401, (L). Whoſe daughter ſhe was, 366, e. Stolen by Theſeus, ibid. & ſeq. Married to Menelaus, 318, b. Stolen by Paris, ibid. e. Cauſes the Trojan war, ibid. &c. Whether detained in Egypt, 320.
†Helena, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 216.
—— queen of Adiabene, embraces Judaiſm, 849, a, b. Journey to, and piety at Jeruſalem, 851, b. Turns chriſtian, ibid. c.
—— the mother of Conſtantine, divorced, vi. 226, e. Her birth and extract, 227, f. Really married to Conſtantius, 229, & ſeq. Whether a native of Britain, 230, a. Converted by her ſon, 244, e. Finds the croſs of Chriſt, 262, b. Her death and character, ibid. c.
—— the wife of Julian, rendered childleſs by Euſebia, 287, b. Her death, &c. 312, b.
—— the daughter of Conſtantine, 235, b.
†Helenopolis, whence ſo called, vi. 262, b, c.
Helenus, the ſon of Priam. ii. 318. Retires into Macedonia, 322, c.
—— the ſon of Deucalion, the ſuppoſed father of the Hellenes, 759, c.
—— fruitleſs attempt to ſuccour his father, iii. 818, b. Taken priſoner, 819, f. Releaſed by Antigonus, ibid. & ſeq.
Helepolis, a warlike machine, deſcribed, iii. 140, a. 742, (B). Whence ſo called, iv. 285, (W).
Heliades ſettles at Rhodes, iii. 131, & ſeq. Admits Phorbas, 132, b.
†Heliæan court at Athens, ii. 444, d. & ſeq.
Helicaon, ſon-in-law to Priam, ii. 315, c.
†Helice, metropol. of Achaia Propria, ii. 416, c.
Helico, bought by the Alexandrians againſt the Jews, v. 703, d.
Helicon foretels an eclipſe, iii. 65, ſub not.
†—— a mountain in Phocis, ii. 387, e. In Bœotia, 371.
Heliocrates's moderation to Stilicho, vi. 457. Narrow eſcape, ibid.
Heliodorus ſent to ſeize the treaſure of the Jewiſh temple, iv. 46, b. His miraculous puniſhment, ibid. c.
Heliogabalus's extract, vi. 132, & ſeq. Declared emperor, 133, b. Valour and ſucceſs, ibid. f, & ſeq. Acknowledged by the ſenate, 134. e. His vile character, ibid. & ſeq. Horrid butcheries, 136, paſſ. Appoints the worſhip of his horſe, ibid. d, e. Whence ſurnamed Comazon, ibid. f. Adopts young Alexius, 137, a. Plots his death, ibid. b—d. Murdered by the ſoldiery, ibid. e, f.
†Heliopolis, now Balbec in Cœleſyria, deſcribed, i. 361, c.
—— a name given to ſeveral Greek cities, ii. 390, & ſeq.
Helots, alias Helotes, enſlaved by the Lacedemonians, ii. 396, b. Their grievous puniſhment, 397, b, & (E). Miſerable ſlavery, 567, & not, Revolt, 594, d. Butchered by Nabis, 637, a.
Helius, king of Colchis, iii. 834.
—— the murderer of Silanus, v. 518, c. Tool of Nero's cruelties, 566, 568, a.
Heloris ſaves Rhegium, iii. 56, a. Defeated by Dionyſius, 57, b.
†Hella, an ancient city, i. 147, a.
†Hellas, Elis, whence ſo called, ii. 405, b.
†Hellenes, ancient Grecians, ii. 344, e.
†Helleſpont, what, iii. 305, (B).
†Helleſpontiac, part of Phrygia minor, ii. 304, c.
Helpidius, put to death by Phocas, vi. 538, a—f.
—— Revolt and defeat, 557.
†Helvetii, who, v. 5, (D). Invaded by the Cimbri, ibid. c. Repulſed by J. Cæſar, 117, a, b. Defeated, 118, a. Ravaged by Cæcina, v. 600, & ſeq. Pardoned by Vitellius, 601, a.
†Helvidius Priſcus, baniſhed by Veſpaſian, v. 650, e, & ſeq. Put to death, 651, a.
—— his ſon, put to death by Domitian, 684, e.
Helvius, the father of Pertinax, vi. 96, e.
†Helum, a river in Scythia, ii. 267.
Hemeric's cruelty to his wife, vi. 494, c. Stirs up Attila againſt her father, ibid. d.
Hemeſtris, Xerxes's queen, inſtances of her cruelty, ii. 128, & ſeq.
Henda educates young Baharam, iv. 383, d.
†Heneti chuſe Antenor their head, ii. 315, a.
Hengiſt and Horſa, who and whence, vii. 441, b. Help to defeat the Picts and Scots, 443, b. Settle in Lincolnſhire, ibid. c. Treachery to Vortigern, 445, c. Defeated by Ambroſius, 446, c, d. Death, ibid. e. When came into Britain, 490, d.
Henna, Alcanna, an Egyptian ſhrub, deſcribed, i. 183, c.
Henry ſucceeds Baldwin, vi. 629, e. Wars againſt the Greek emperors, ibid. c, d. His death, ibid. f.
†Hepheſtias, metropolis of Lemnos, iii. 234, a.
Hepheſtion's writings and character, vi. 84, ſub not.
—— Alexander's general, wounded at Guagamela, iii. 351, f. Made general of the horſe, 367, a. Sent towards Indus, 386, a. Rewarded by Alexander, 405. Reproved for his treatment of Eumenes, 407. His death and obſequies, ibid. & ſeq.
†Heptanomis, or the middle Egypt, i. 175, e, f. Whence ſo called, ibid. Its extent, &c. 176, a.
†Heptapylos, Thebes, why ſo called, ii. 371, b.
†Heptaſtadium, by whom built, iii. 627, b.
Heraclea Herod's daughter's ſpeech to her murderers, iii. 106, f, & ſeq.
—— a republic in Bithynia, deſcribed, iii. 823, a, b. See below Heracleans.
†—— a city in Sicily, deſcribed, iii. 6, b, c. Why called Minoa, ibid. &c. Capital of the Lyncefti, 257, b.
†—— in Pontus, betrayed to Mithridates, 744. Taken by the Romans, 747, a. Burnt, ibid. c.
†—— in Crete, deſcribed, 161, d.
†—— taken by the Romans, iv. 762, d. By Maximin, vi. 252, c. Burnt by the Perſians, 532, d. By Michael, 566, b. Submits to Hannibal, vii. 54, a. Taken by Theodoric, 520, b.
Heracleans, their bravery, iii. 823, b, c. Generoſity to Lamachus, ibid. e. Their government, tyrants, &c. 824. Recover their liberty, 825, d. Ally with Rome, ibid. f. Maſſacred by Adioterix, 826, a, b. Subdued by the Romans, ibid. d.
Heracleanus defeats the Romans in Afric, vi. 461, d. 462, a. His conſulſhip erazed for his revolt, 468, a. His great fleet, ibid. b. Defeat and death, ibid. c.
Heraclidæ, a race of Lydian kings, ii. 330, a. Deſcended from Hercules, ibid. e. Invade Peloponneſus, 359, c. Plagued by Apollo, ibid. e. Subdue the Corinthians, 392. And the whole peninſula, ibid. & ſeq. See alſo pag. 759, & ſeq.
Heraclides, his principle of indiviſible bodies, i. 20, a.
—— his character, iii. 68, c. Cabals againſt Dion, ibid. & ſeq. Defeats Dionyſius at ſea, 69, a.
—— baniſhed for oppreſſion, 591, e. Plots againſt the king of Syria, 593, & ſeq. His ſpeech to the Roman ſenate, 594, b.
Heraclitus's notion of the world's creation, i. 22, b. His principles of the univerſe, ibid. c. Why ſurnamed the Obſcure, ibid. Held fire the firſt principle of all things, ibid. b.

Heraclitus Cimæus, tyrant of Heraclea, 825. Impriſoned, ibid.
—— made governor of South Britain, vii. 433, b.
Heraclius's treachery to Ætius, vi. 498, e, & ſeq. His death, 500.
—— the Edeſſan, his ſucceſs in Libya, 509, b. Forced to retire, ibid. e, f. Conſpires againſt Phocas, 538, c, d.
—— his ſon declared emperor, 538, f. Puts him to death, 539, b. Crowned, ibid. c, d. Marries his brother's daughter, ibid. f. Succeſs againſt Coſrhoes, 540, & ſeq. Releaſes fifty thouſand Perſian priſoners, 541, b. Gains freſh victories, ibid. & ſeq. Returns in triumph, 542, b. Thankful journey to Jeruſalem, ibid. d, e. Receives embaſſies from all parts, ibid. f. Turns Monothelite, 543, a. Invaded by the Saracens, ibid. c. Retires to Conſtantinople, ibid. d, e. Perſecutes the orthodox, and neglects the Mohammedans, 544, a, b. His death, ibid. c.
—— the brother of Conſtantine III. diſfigured by him, 545, f, & ſeq.
—— brother of Tiberius, defeats the Saracens in Syria, 548, c. In Cilicia, ibid. f. Put to death by Juſtinian, 549, b.
—— recovers Tripoly from the Vandals, vii. 538, c.
Heracon put to death for oppreſſion, iii. 404, a.
†Herbeſſus taken by the Agrigentines, vi. 802, a. Its origin, ibid. (P).
†Herculanum, deſtroyed by an earthquake, v. 659, b. c.
Hercules, anciently repreſented in no form, i. 400, a. No images in his temples, ibid. His antiquity according to the Egyptians, ibid. (R). The chief god of the Tyrians, ibid. a Why called Melcartus, ibid. (P). A great navigator, and firſt fetcher of lead from the Britiſh iſles, ibid. The caſual inventor of ſhell purple, ibid. Highly honoured by the Phœnicians and Tyrians, 402. How worſhipped, ibid. b.
—— how many of that name, ii. 355, (H).
—— the ſon of Jupiter by Alcmena, ibid. c. Kills a lion when a child, ibid. d. His twelve labours, ibid. & ſeq. & (I). Loſes his boy Hylas in the Argonautic expedition, 383, & (H). His revenge upon the Oechalian king, 400. And upon Hippocoon, king of Sparta, 401, a. Leaves his kingdom in truſt to Tyndareus, ibid. &c. Kills the ſon of Actor, and dethrones Augeas, 408. Kills Laomedon, and four of his ſons, 317, c. His laſt exploits and death, 401, & (K). Kills Antæus, vii. 153, & ſeq. The fables of, explained, 154, a, &c. The time in which he flouriſhed, ibid. d, f. 162, b. Confounded with Mercury in Gaul, 357, b, (Γ). His coming into Spain, 319, d, & ſeq.
—— the print of his foot on a ſtone, ii. 269, b.
—— his cave near Heraclea, iii. 825, c.
—— whether and when he paſſed the Alps, iv. 409. His arrival in Italy, 415, a.
†—— his temple at Rome, deſtroyed by lightning, v. 288, (R). Burnt, 548, a.
—— his worſhip at Carthage, vi. 690, a, b. Forty-five heroes of that name, ibid. b, (W). When that title ceaſed to be aſſumed, 220.
—— the ſon of Alexander, murdered by Polyſperchon, iii. 413, a 462, e.
—— Diodas, when he flouriſhed, vii. 121, d.
†Hercynian foreſt deſcribed, v. 335, (T). 372, (T).
†Herdonea, burnt by Hannibal, vii. 61, b.
Herdonius's noble ſpeech againſt Tarquin, iv. 460, d. Unjuſtly put to death, ibid. f.
—— a Sabine's bold attempt on Rome, 524. Slain, 425, b.
†Herean games, deſcribed, ii. 705, not. At Samos, iii. 187, f.
Herebus, worſhipped at Carthage, vi. 691, d.
Herenas, a politic Samnite, iv. 611. His oppoſite anſwers to his ſon, 612, a.
Herenianus, the ſon of Odenatus, vi. 183, d. His reign, 189, d. Death, 192, e.
Herennius ſent in purſuit of Cicero, v. 228, f. Puts him to death, 229, b.
—— Senecio, the accuſer of Maſſa, 683, d, e.
—— Philo, his writings and character, vi. 51, ſub not.
—— Modeſtinus, writings, &c. 149, ſub not. Hereticks ſuppreſſed by Gratian, vi. 379, b. 391, c, By Theodoſius, 395, b, c. 404, e. 415, a—c. 418, c. By Arcadius, 435, c, d. By Honorius, 454, e. By Leo, 511, a.
Hermæ of Athens, defaced in one night, ii. 517, b.
Hermaic books, now extant, containing ſome of the old Egyptian and Hermetic doctrines, i. 14, a. A further account of them; 218, e.
Hermanaric, king of the Goths, vii. 492, d. 500, c. His great conqueſts, 502, c. Kills himſelf, ibid. d.
Hermaphrodites mentioned by Plato, i. 45, c.
Hermes Triſmegiſtus, ſecretary to Chronus, i. 135, a. The firſt inſcriber on columns, 222, d. His pillars in Egypt, ibid.
—— Mercury, Thoth, &c. ſuppoſed the ſame perſon, 242, c. His inventions, ibid. Why called Hermes, ibid. Author of thirty thouſand books, ibid. d —— a great philoſopher and counſellor to Saturn, ii. 260, b. Mercury, why called by that name, 265, d.
Hermias, a Syrian firſt miniſter, his brutiſh character, iii. 530, e, f. Treacherous advice to Antiochus, 531, paſſ. Treachery to Epigenes, 532. Tragical end, 534, & ſeq.
Hermigarius's defeat and death, vii. 532, d.
† Herminius mons, in Luſitania, vii. 299, a.
Hermione, the wife of Cadmus, her extract, ii. 371, & ſeq.
Hermippus's writings and character, vi. 51, ſub not.
Hermits leave their cells to intercede for the Antiochians, vi. 410, c, d. 413, b, c.
Hermocrates's ſucceſsful ſtratagem againſt the Athenians, iii. 33, & ſeq. His moderation towards their priſoners, 35, e.
—— the ſophiſt's advice to Pauſanias, 313, d. 314, not.
—— his writings and character, vi. 121, ſub not.
Hermodica, the wife queen of Midas, ii. 302, b.
Hermogenes aſſerts the ſelf-exiſtence and production of matter, i. 29, d.
—— put to death by Domitian, v. 685, f, & ſeq.
—— the ſophiſt, his excellent character, vi. 83. 149, ſub not.
Hermogenianus's writings and character, vi. 274, ſub not.
Hermolaus, why he conſpired againſt Alexander, iii. 380, b. His ſpeech to the army, 381, a, b. Death, ibid. d.
† Hermon mount, remarkable for its dews, i. 571, a.
† Hermonthis, an ancient city of Thebais, i. 175, e.
† Hermotybians, the name of a kind of ſoldiers in Egypt, i. 200, b.
† Hermunduri, who, and where ſited, vii. [408] c.
Herna, Atilla's ſon, his character, vii. 468, a, b.
† Hernici, ally with Tarquin the proud, iv. 461, a. Defeated by the Romans, 503, d. Ally with them, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated, 518. Defeat them, 586, f. Defeated, 587, c. By T. Ambuſtus, 588. Made ſlaves at Rome, 625, d. Subdued by Marcius, ibid. e, f. Their fate how determined, 626, c.
Herod, when born, iv. 104, (K). His pedigree, ibid. paſſ. Made governor of Galilee, 118, b. His ſucceſs againſt the banditti, ibid. & ſeq. Inſolence to the Sanhedrin, 119, b, c. Government of Cœle-ſyria, 121, d. Politic revenge on Malichus, 122. Quells his faction, ibid. & ſeq. Contracted to Mariamne, 123, a. Defeats Antigonus, ibid. b. Favoured by M. Antony, ibid. & ſeq. Made tetratch by him, 124, b. Eſcapes Pacorus's trap, 125. Ill ſucceſs in Arabia, ibid. & ſeq. Better luck at Rome, 126, d. Made king of Judea, ibid. & ſeq. Relieves his family at Maſſada, 127. Amneſty to the Antigonians, 128, a. Engines to deſtroy the banditti, ibid. c. Aſſiſts M. Antony at Samoſata, 129, c. Defeats Antigonus, 130, a. Marries Mariamne, ibid. b. Takes Jeruſalem, ibid. & ſeq. Begins his reign with cruel exactions, ibid. & ſeq. Decoys Hyrcan into Judea, 132, & ſeq. Murders Ariſtobulus, 134. Abſolved by Antony, ibid. f. Bloody orders concerning Mariamne, ibid. &c. Noble reception of Cleopatra, ibid. & ſeq. Betrayed by her, 136, c. Defeats the Arabians, 137, b. Treachery to Hyrcan, ibid. d, & (K). Bold ſpeech to Auguſtus, 138. Grand reception of him in Judea, 139, paſſ. Puts Mariamne to death, ibid. & ſeq. His remorſe turned into cruel madneſs, 140. Profane buildings, games, &c. diſpleaſe the Jews, 141, b. Generoſity to them during the famine, 142. His palace deſcribed, ibid. c. Sends his ſons to Auguſtus, 143, a. Rebuilds the temple of Jeruſalem, 144, & ſeq. Goes to fetch his ſons home, 146. Marries them, 147, a. Accuſes them before Cæſar, 148. Plunders David's tomb, 149, a. His horrid butcheries, ibid. & ſeq. Accuſed to Cæſar, 150, c. Gets his two ſons condemned, 151. His wives, and offſpring by them, ibid.

ibid. e, (N). Falls out with Pheroras, 152, & ſeq. Diſcovers Antipater's conſpiracy, ibid. & ſeq. His dread at the arrival of the eaſtern magi, 162, a. Diſtracted condition at the birth of Chriſt, 178, c, d. Over-reaches Antipater, 179, a. Murders the children of Bethlehem, ibid. & (G). Readineſs to aſſiſt Caſſius, v. 218, d. Sends a thouſand men to Auguſtus, 301, d. Grand reception of Agrippa, 315, b. Follows him to the Boſphorus, ibid. c. Arreſts Antipater, iv. 181, a. Pleads againſt him, ibid. b. Finds new proofs of his treaſon, 182. His ſickneſs and teſtament, ibid. d. Affronted by the Jews, ibid. & ſeq. Speech to them at Jericho, 183. Dreadful diſeaſe, ibid. (M). Bloody orders againſt the Jews, ibid. d. Death and character, 184, a, & (N). Pompous funeral, ibid. d. Laſt will canvaſſed by the ſenate, ibid. & ſeq.

Herod Antipas, his ſhare of the Jewiſh kingdom, iv. 190, f. Cities built by him, 194, d. Veneration for John the Baptiſt, 203, a. Impriſons him at Macheron, ibid. b, c. Beheads him, ibid. e, f. Contempt of Chriſt, 237, c. Wars with Aretas, 255, a. Comes to Jeruſalem, ibid. Diſobliges Vitellius, ibid. & ſeq. Affronts Agrippa, 258, b. Accuſed and baniſhed, 259, a, b, & (Q).

——— Agrippa advanced by Caligula, iv. 257, & ſeq. His various fortunes before it, 258, & ſeq. Affronted at Alexandria, ibid. c, d. Supplants Antipas, 259, a, b. Intercedes for the Jews, ibid. & ſeq. His letter to Caligula, 260, (R). Advancement under Claudius, 161, a. Attachment to the Jewiſh religion, ibid. b. Generoſity, ibid. c, & (U). High credit, ibid. d. Perſecutes the chriſtians, 262, a, b. His dreadful end, ibid. c, & (X). Indignities offered to his memory, 263, a, & (Y).

——— brother of Agrippa, made king of Chalcis, 261, a. And ſuperintendant of the temple, 263, e. His death, ibid. d.

——— the ſon of Agrippa, deprived of his kingdom, iv. 262. Succeeds his father, 263, d. Intereſt at the Roman court, 264, (A). Hears Paul's defence before Feſtus, 266, c. Affronts the Jews at Jeruſalem, ibid. d. Becomes odious to them, 267, c. Driven out of the city, 268. His palace burnt by the Zelots, 269, d. Joins forces with Ceſtius, 270, b. With Veſpaſian, 271, a. Accompanies him to Rome, 277. Careſſed by him, 291, b. His death, ibid. d.

——— the ſon of Ariſtobulus, and grandſon of Herod the great, 152, ſub not.

——— king of Batanea, accompanies Caligula into Gaul, v. 479.

Herodes Atticus, a diſciple of Favorinus, vi. 49, ſub not. Generoſity to Polemon, 51, ſub not. Conſulſhip and high character, 57, d. Ill language to M. Aurelius, 70, c, d.

——— the ſon of Odenatus, killed with his father, 183, d.

Herodian's writings and character, vi. 164, (W). Account of the Perſian war, iv. 326, (G).

Herodian line, its ſhort duration, iv. 291, d.

Herodians, a real ſect in Chriſt's time, iv. 168, a, b. Their tenets confuted by Chriſt, 231, a——c.

Herodias, grand-daughter of Herod the Great, iv. 152, ſub not. Inceſtuous marriage with Antipas, 203, b. Reſentment againſt the Baptiſt, ibid. & ſeq.

——— the wife of Antipas's untimely ambition, 258, & ſeq. Goes with him into exile, 259, b.

†Herodion, by whom built, iv. 142, e. Deſcribed, ibid. (T). Taken by the Romans, 289.

Heroſtrates raiſes the Macedonians in favour of Brutus, v. 215, c.

†Herpidani, who, and where ſited, vii. 140, d.

†Herpis, where ſituate, vii. 143, b.

Herrius defeated and killed, v. 50.

Herſa ſeized by Mundon, vi. 521.

Herſe, the daughter of Cecrops, puniſhed for her curioſity, ii. 363, (F).

Herſilia, whether married to Romulus, iv. 429, (W). Speech to the Sabine king, 431, d.

Hertha, Earth, how worſhipped by the Germans, vii. [418], b. By the Saxons, 443, a.

†Heruli, their vaſt depredations in Aſia, vi. 184, a, b. Defeated, ibid. d. Settle in Thrace, 521, e, f. Submit to Attila, vii. 466, b. To Hermanaric, 502, c. Their origin and ſettlements, 598, & ſeq. Ravages and defeats, 599, & ſeq. Diſperſion, 600, a. Regicides, ibid. b. Converſion, ibid. c. Sad character, and reduction by the Lombards, ibid. d.

Heſiod, his coſmogony examined, i. 28.

Heſione taken by Hercules, ii 317, b. The ſuppoſed cauſe of the Trojan war, 318.

Heſperian apples fetched away by Hercules, ii. 356, ſub not.

Heſperus, the ſon of Auſonius, his riſe, &c. vi. 401, ſub not.

†Heſtia, in Eubœa, taken by the Athenians, ii. 492, a.

Heſus. See Eſus, vii. 328, & ſeq.

Heteriæ, at Rome, what, vi. 27, c.

†Hetruria deſcribed, iv. 410. Waſted by Hannibal, vii. 21, b.

†Hetrurians ſubmit to Romulus, iv. 430, b. War againſt Tarquin, 448, a. Submiſſion and preſents to him, 449, a, b, (G). Defeated by Servius, 454, d. 455, B. Abandon Tarquin, 472, c. Invade the Romans, 507, c. Defeated, 508, paſſ. By Æmilius, 509, e. Cut off the Fabii, 510, & ſeq. & (O). Defeated by Horatius, 511, d. By Camillus, 568, & ſeq. Repulſe Fab. Ambuſtus, 590, e. Defeated by M. Rutilius, ibid. & ſeq. By Fabius, 621, & ſeq. 624, b. 627, paſſ. Over-run by Valer. Corvus, 629, a. By Fulv. Centumanus, ibid. & ſeq. By Volumnius, 631, e. Join with the Gauls, 632, & ſeq. Invaded by the Senones, 643, b. Defeated by the Romans, ibid. e. Revolt from them, v. 51, a. Defeated, ibid. b.

†Hetruſci, their original, iv. 415, d. Conqueſts, ibid. e. Government, hiſtory, &c. 417, & ſeq. Defeated by Hiero, iii. 21, b.

Hexameters, by whom invented, iv. 680, d.

†Hexapylum deſcribed, iii. 115, ſub not. Taken, 117, b.

Hezekiah king of Judah's ſucceſs againſt the Philiſtines, i. 359, b. Cauſes the temple to be opened and purified, 833, d. Celebrates a ſolemn paſſover, ibid. e. Miraculouſly recovered, 837, & ſeq. His vanity puniſhed, 839. His death, ibid. c.

——— a chief of the Paleſtine robbers, put to death, iv. 118, d.

Hezion, the ſecond king of Damaſcus, the ſame with Rezin, i. 382, e. In friendſhip with the kings of Judah, ibid.

Hiarbas, cotemporary with Dido, vii. 138. His ſucceſſors in Numidia, ibid. & ſeq.

Hiarbas joins the Marian faction, v. 80, c. Taken priſoner, ibid. e.

Hiel, the Bethelite, rebuilds Jericho, i. 555, b.

Hiempſal murdered by Jugurtha, vii. 127, d. 129, a.

——— made king of part of Numidia, 135, c.

——— his deſcent, v. 6, a, b. Murdered by Jugurtha, ibid. e.

——— treacherous reception of young Marius, 59, e. Outwitted by him, ibid. & ſeq.

†Hiera, iſland, how increaſed, iii. 215, e, f. Taken by Agrippa, v. 279, b.

†Hieracon, iſland, in the Arabian gulph, i. 170, a.

†——— a town on the river Lar, ibid.

†Hierapolis, Magog, a city of Cyrrheſtica in Syria, i. 361, b. Famous for the temple of the Syrian goddeſs, 372, c. The temple, &c. deſcribed, 373, a, &c. Its ſacred lake, oracle, riches, prieſts, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Their tradition about the flood, 95, e, & 96, (N).

†——— in Phrygia, deſcribed, ii. 293.

†Hierapytna, a city in Crete, deſcribed, iii. 161, c.

Hierax, prime miniſter to Phyſcon, his character, iii. 656, & ſeq.

Hiero, king of Syracuſe, iii. 20, c. His death, ibid. f. Character, 22.

——— general of Syracuſe, his character, 91, a, b. Diſcards his auxiliaries, 92, b. Defeats the Mamertines, 93, d. Outwitted by Hannibal, ibid. & ſeq. Treaty with Carthage, 94, f. Defeated by the Romans, 96, b. Allies with them, 97. His wiſe government, ibid. & ſeq. Generoſity to the Romans, &c. 98, & ſeq. Death, 100, d, e. See alſo vol. iv. 654, & ſeq. & vol. vi. 824, & ſeq. By whom diſpatched, vii. 34, a, b. 41, c.

Hierocles, Heliogabalus's beaſtly huſband, vi. 135, c. Killed, 137, e.

Hieroglyphical figures of Egypt, by whom invented, i. 223, e. Their uſe, ibid. c.

Hieromname, wife of Aſſaracus, king of Troy, ii. 314, b.

Hieronymus ſucceeds Hiero, iii. 100, e, f. His wicked reign, 101, & ſeq. Breaks with the Romans, 102, c. Allies with Carthage, ibid. e, & ſeq. Aſſaſſinated, 103, d, e. See vol. iv. 720. & vol. vii. 47, a, b.

Hierophontes

Hierophontes, the prieſts of Ceres, why ſo called, ii. 733, ſub not.
High-places forbidden to the Jews by God, i. 693, b. 662, (H). Abominations committed on them, ibid. c. d.
High-prieſt. See Prieſt and Prieſthood, i. 633, & ſeq.
Hilarius, biſhop, baniſhed, vi. 298, c.
—— a magician, burnt, 375, a.
—— the philoſopher, put to death by the Goths, vii. 505, e.
Hilderic, king of the Hunns, born, vi. 501, d.
Hillel, the famed Jewiſh doctor, whether the Pollio of Joſephus, iv. 132, in fin not. When he flouriſhed, 164, d.
Hillernus taken priſoner, iv. 753, b.
Hilperic aſſiſts the Franks in Spain, vii. 512, e.
†Himera, in Sicily, deſcribed, iii. 8, c. When and by whom built, 12, b. Beſieged by Hamilcar, 17, a. Relieved by Gelon, ibid. c. Taken by the Romans, iv. 666, f. Noble defence againſt the Carthaginians, vi. 732, c—e. Taken, 744, d, e. Razed, 745, a.
†—— a river in Sicily, 8, (G). 10, a. 102, note.
†Himerans bravery againſt Hannibal, vi. 743, paſſ. Cruelly butchered by him, 744.
Himerus's character and writings, vi. 339, not.
—— Leo's general, defeated, 576, f.
Himilco's inſulting ſpeech to the brave Hanno, iv. 715, a, b. Sent into Spain, ibid. d. (See vol. vii. 39, e.) Preparations againſt Dionyſius, vi. 756, & ſeq. Sinks the Syracuſan ſhips, 757, a, (G). Repulſed by them, 758, e. Takes and razes Meſſana, 760. Inveſts Syracuſe, 763, & ſeq. Builds three forts againſt it, 764, a, b. Defeated at ſea, ibid. c, d. Reduced by a grievous peſtilence, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated, 766, c, d. Buys his flight, and retires, 768, e, f.
—— ſucceſs againſt Eumachus, vi. 810, b, c.
—— journal, vi. 709.
Hind, white, how uſed by Sertorius, v. 89, a, b.
†Hinnon, the vale of, near the walls of Jeruſalem, i. 574, a. Superſtitious cruelties practiſed there, 522, (N).
Hippacra revolts to the mercenaries, vi. 861, c, d.
Hippadatelontes, ſecond rank of Athenians, ii. 429, & ſeq.
†Hippagrela beſieged by the Romans, iv. 774, f.
†Hippana taken by the Romans, vi. 833, a.
Hipparchus, the ſon of Piſiſtratus, ii. 451, & ſeq. His reign and character, 453. Slain, ibid. & ſeq.
†—— where born, iii. 256, c.
Hipparinus ſeizes on Syracuſe, iii. 773, d, e. 774.
Hippaſus held fire to be the firſt principle, i. 22, b.
† Hippi the promontory of, in Numidia, vii. 111, d.
Hippias, the ſon of Piſiſtratus, ii. 451, f. Whether the eldeſt, 452, a. His cruel reign, 454, & ſeq. Expelled, 455, & ſeq. Retires to Sigæum, 458. Cabals with the Perſians, ibid. His dream and death, 463, c, & not. Goes over to Darius, iii. 275, d.
—— Perſeus's general, oppoſes the Romans, 487, f. Surrenders to them, 493, f.
† Hippo, in Africa, deſcribed, vi. 667, e. Taken by Sigiſvult, 481, a. Taken and deſtroyed by the barbarians, 482, a, b. Reſtored, 772.
Hippo, the ſhips of deſtroyed by the Romans, iv. 675, d. Taken and burnt by the Vandals, vii, 533, c, d.
† —— Regius, deſcribed, vii. 110, b, c.
† Hippobolon, Hippim, the ancient name of Argos, ii. 750, f.
Hippocentaur, caught and brought to Adrian, vi. 49, ſub not.
Hippoclus, king of Chios, murdered, iii. 109, a.
Hippocoon, king of Sparta, killed by Hercules, ii. 400.
Hippocrates held fire to be the deity, i. 22, e. His writings, by whom brought to light, iv. 328, b. Where born, iii. 212, f, (T).
—— the father of Piſiſtratus, ii. 452, (O).
—— tyrant of Gela, iii. 15, a. Treachery to the Zancleans, 198, b.
—— the Syracuſan, diſſuades that king from allying with Carthage, 102, c. Forms a plot againſt the republicans, 105. Choſen prætor, 107, f. Cabals againſt the Romans, 108. Choſen general of the Leontines, 109, d. His ſtratagem againſt the Syracuſans, 110, b. Enters the city, 111. Defeated by Marcellus, 114, b. Dies of the plague, 118, a.
† Hippodamus builds Rhodes, iii. 130, (B).
† Hippodrome at Conſtantinople, burnt by the mob, vi. 519.
Hipſokas, Kleres, whence ſo called, ii. 362, note.
Hippolyte, queen of the Amazons, her conteſt with Theſeus, ii. 279, note. Married to him, 366, note.
Hippolytus, the ſon of Theſeus, his chaſtity fatal, ii. 367, note.
Hippomedes, archon of Athens, reduced, ii. 369, e. His cruelty, ibid, (N).
Hippon, tyrant of Meſſana, put to death, iii. 79, c.
† —— the city diſmembered from Judea, iv. 190, f.
† Hipponacra, taken by Agathocles, vi. 808, a.
† Hipponitis, the lake of, deſcribed, vi. 670, e, & ſeq.
† Hippopodes, why ſo called, 268, (E).
Hippoſtratus, made general of Media, iii. 431, b.
† Hippotamus, or river-horſe, common in upper Egypt, i. 181, d, e.
Hippothous, king of Arcadia, ii. 379, e.
† Hira, where ſituate, iv. 382, e.
—— the kingdom of, founded, vii. 272, c, d. Series of kings, ibid. & ſeq. The end of it, 275, c.
Hiram, king of Tyre, alliance with David, i. 413, d. Furniſhes him with cedars, &c. ibid. Solomon's letter to him, ibid. e. 414, a. His embaſſy and treaty with him, 794, b. Furniſhes him with wood, artiſts, &c. ibid. b—e. Improvements at Tyre, ibid, e, f. Said to have given his idolatrous daughter to him, 415, a. His death, ibid.
—— one of the four jewiſh prieſtly claſſes, iv. 5, a.
† Hirpini, who, iv. 412, a. Reduced by the Romans, 719, a, b. Revolt from the Carthaginians, vii. 44, c. Complain againſt Hannibal, ibid. f. Submit to the Romans, 62, b.
Hirtius, choſen conſul, v. 202, f. Succeſs in Gaul, 204, e. Againſt Antony, 205. & ſeq. Killed, 209. Whether by Octavius, 208, (P).
—— diſgraced by Tiberius, 355, d.
Hirtuleius defeats the Romans, 87, c. Defeated and wounded, 92, c.
† Hiſpal, Seville, colonied by Otho, v. 602, e. Recovered by Cæſar, 175, & ſeq. Deſcribed, vii. 300, d, & ſeq.
Hiſtiæus's treachery to the Chians, iii. 210, d, e. Partiality for Darius, 274, b, c.
Hiſtory, profane, why ſo corrupt with reſpect to Aſſyria, i. 862, b.
Hiſtrio, ſtage-player, whence ſo called, iv. 584, f.
† Hit, Is, a city near Babylon, i. 144, c, & (I).
† Hittites, the deſcendants of Ham, i. 322, a. Dwelt about Hebron, 323, c. Generoſity to Abraham, 329, a. Why ſuffered to remain among the Jews, 335, a. Enſlaved by Solomon, 337, b. Settle in Afric, vi. 703, b, (H).
† Hivites, ancient Canaanites, i. 393. Why left to dwell among the Iſraelites, 335, a. Enſlaved by Solomon, 527, b.
Hobab, the ſon of Jethro, guides the Iſraelites through the wilderneſs, i. 202, b.
Hobbes's abſurd notion of nature confuted, i. 9, b, c.
† Hæmus, mount, in Macedon, iii. 257, e.
† —— in Thrace, 787.
Hog, a carved one, ſet over Jeruſalem's gates, vi. 41, a.
Hoham, king of Hebron, one of the allies againſt the Gibeonites, i. 332, a. Cut off by Joſhua, ibid. b, c.
Holophernes, Nabuchodonoſor's general, his vaſt army and conqueſts, i. 899, paſſ. Marches againſt the Jews, 900, b, c. Killed by Judith, 901, c.
—— his pretenſions on Cappadocia, iii. 592, d. Supported by Demetrius, 593, b.
Holſtein's account of Porphyry, vi. 222, ſub not.
† —— the ancient ſeat of the Saxons, vii. 441, a.
Homajom Name, a Perſian book ſo called, iv. 392, e.
Homay al Khamani, a Perſian queen, according to oriental writers, ii. 225, c. Leaves the crown to her ſon Darab, 226. Her ſtately palace at Iſtachr. ibid.
Homer, where born, iii. 108, d. His poems, why ſo valued by Alexander, 307, c.
—— his writings found by Lycurgus, ii. 559. Burnt at Conſtantinople, vi. 515, c.
—— a Jewiſh meaſure of about five pints, i. 509.
† Homerites, who, and where ſited, vii. 232, b.
Hon, a chief of the houſe of Reuben, in Korah's rebellion, i. 259, a. Deſtroyed, 530, b.
Honoratus defeats Gallus's cruelty, vi. 290, & ſeq. Made firſt perfect of Conſtantinople, 305.
Honoria, taken with her mother at Conſtantinople, vi. 475, f.
—— ſiſter

Honoria, ſiſter of Valentinian, her incontinence and treaſon, 482, f, & ſeq. Demanded in marriage by Attila, 494, b. Stirs him againſt her brother, vii. 471, c. Her lewd character and impriſonment, ibid. d, e.
Honorius, whether the father of Theodoſius, vi. 390, b. —— the ſon of Theodoſius, born, 405, b. Choſen conſul, 407, a. Declared Auguſtus, 423, b. Proclaimed emperor of the weſt, 425, d. 426, e. Under the guardianſhip of Stilicho, 430, f. Comes very young to the empire, 428, f. Stripped of Afric, 428, f. Recovers it, 439, & ſeq. Laws againſt falſe informers, 440, e. Marries Maria, 441, a. Demoliſhes the heathen temples, 444, f. Retires to Ravenna, 449, d, e. Triumphant entry into Rome, 451, a, b. Fixes at Ravenna, 452, a. Marries Thermantia, 456, e. Laws againſt heretics, 457, e. Invaded by Alaric, 459, f. His troops intercepted, and cut off, 460, a. Rejects Alaric's freſh propoſals, ibid. f, & ſeq. His to Attalus rejected, 461, d, e. Supported by Theodoſius, ibid. f. By Heraclian, 462, a. Agrees with Alaric, 463, e. Falls out with him, ibid. & ſeq. Breach of Faith to Conſtantine, 467, b. Irreconcileable to Ataulphus, 470, a, b. Confirms the church's aſyla, ibid. c. Enters Rome in triumph, 472, c. Makes Conſtantius his collegue, 473, d. Attempts the recovery of Spain, 475, d. Falls out with Placidia, ibid. e, f. His death, 476, a.
—— reſignation of Britain, 437, b. Aſſiſts it againſt the Picts, ibid. c. Falls out with Alaric, 508, & ſeq.
† Honoſca, taken and razed by Scipio, vii. 27, c.
† Hony of Pontus, its excellent qualities, iii. 722, f. Of Hybla famed, 3, f.
Hophni and Phinehas, their vile character and puniſhment, i. 755, b, & ſeq.
† Hor, mount, in Edom, where Aaron died, i. 310, b,
Horace writes his Carmen Seculare, v. 312, d. His death, 323, e.
Horatii, their bloody fight againſt the Curiatii, iv. 440. & ſeq.
Horatius, the only ſurviving conqueror of the Curiatii, iv. 441. Kills his weeping ſiſter, 442. His puniſhment, ibid. c, d.
— Cocles, his valour and reward, 474, c. Victory over the Hetrurians, 511, d.
— Publius, choſen decemvir, 534.
— Barbatus's noble ſpeech againſt the decemvirs, 542, d. Choſen umpire between the ſenate and malecontents, 543. Choſen military tribune, and conſul, ibid. f. Defeats the Sabines, 545, a.
† Horeb, mount, deſcribed, 511, a.
† Horeſtians, who and where ſituated, v. 672, b. vii. 414, a.
† Horites, ancient Canaanites, i. 308, b. Their government, &c. 310, c. Kings, 312, a. Dwindled into ſmall principalities, ibid. e. Driven from Seir by the ſons of Eſau, 313, a.
† Hormah, Arad defeated at, by the Iſraelites, i. 531, c.
Hormiſdas king of Perſia's ſhort reign, iv. 328, & ſeq.
— II. crowns his ſon before he is born, 331, c, & (G).
— III. his character, 359, a, (B). Defeated by the Romans, 360, b, c. Fatal treatment of Varamus, ibid. e, f. Impriſonment, 361, c. Speech to the Perſian ſtates, ibid. e. Ill treatment and death. ibid. f.
— IV. Vid. Iſdigertes II. 370.
— a revolted prince, directs the Romans, 335, c, e. Forfeits his ſucceſſion, 337, c — a chriſtian nobleman, perſecuted, 340, b.
— ſumptuous preſents to Aurelian, vi. 191, f. Revolts againſt Varanes, 209, c.
— Sapor's brother, made general of Julian's horſe, 329, c. Narrow eſcape, 332, b. Made governor of Helleſpont, 367, d.
— ſucceſſor of Coſrhoes, defeated by the Romans, 533, d, e. Sues for peace, and breaks it, 534, b. Defeated by Philippicus, 534, & ſeq. Dethroned and impriſoned, 535, a, b. His [illegible], yet miſerable end, ibid. c.
— the laſt king of the Perſians, 542, f.
† Hormouz, the Hormiſdas of the oriental writers, iv. 377, b. His reign and character, ibid. c, d. Why a patron to the heretic Manes, ibid. e.
— II. his reign and character, 379, d, e.
— III. dethroned by his brother, 386, & ſeq.
— IV. by whom brought up, 395, a. Degenerates, ibid. & ſeq. Invaded by the Turks, 396. Ingratitude to Baharam, 397, d, e. Depoſed and ſtrangled, 398, a, b.
Hormus, Veſpaſian's freedman, knighted, v. 645, a.
† Horonaim, a city of Moab, i. 285, c.
Horſa, the brother of Hengiſt, vii. 442, & ſeq. Slain, 444, d. Where buried, ibid. e.
Horſe, general of, when firſt created at Rome, iv. 482, a, (F).
Horſe's head, why ſtamped on the Carthaginian coin, vi. 721, e.
Horſes, eſteemed among the Scythians, ii. 272, f. —— a fine breed of them in Argolis, 350. And in Theſſaly, 382, d.
Hortarius ſues Julian for peace, vi. 304. b.
Hortatus, M. his petition to Tiberius rejected, v. 388, f.
Hortenſia's noble ſpeech to the triumvirs, v. 231, b.
Hortenſius, Q. choſen to quell the plebeians, iv. 642, b. —— a famed orator, v. 90. Choſen conſul, 99, e. —— his ſon made Cæſar's admiral, 135, b. Goes over to Brutus, 216, a, b. Put to death by Antony, 257, d.
Hoſhea ſucceeds Peka in Iſrael, i. 830, d. Succeſs againſt Ahaz, 831. Troubleſome reign, 833, a.
Hoſidius, Cai. ſaved by his ſon, v. 226, a.
Hoſtilia, Severa, the ſuppoſed wife of Gallus, vi. 170, f.
Hoſtilianus, the ſon of Decius, vi. 168. Declared Cæſar by Gallus, 170, e. His death, 171, b.
Hoſtilius, A. Manc- ill ſucceſs againſt Perſes, iv. 762, c. — C. Manc. defeated by the Numantines, 784, e. Delivered up to them, 785, d, e.
Hoſtus's ſignal bravery, iv. 429, (R).
Hozannah, what is meant by, iv. 228, a.
Hud, of the Mohammedans, ſuppoſed the ſame with Eber, i. 130, a, b.
Hugh, prince, ſent priſoner to Conſtantinople, vi. 614, a—d. Succeſs againſt the Turks, 615, e. Shameful return into France, 616, b.
† Hul, the grandſon of Shem, where ſeated, i. 163, e.
Hulmul, a Bathian prince, vii. 492, d.
Humar's ill ſucceſs in Thrace, vi. 551, c. Before Conſtantinople, ibid. d.
† Humbri. See Umbri, vii. 323, d, (E).
Hunda, married to Bonoſus, vi. 202, e. Favoured by Probus, ibid. f.
Huneric makes peace with Zeno, vi. 515, f.
† Hungarians, whence deſcended, vii. 485, d. Why ſo called, ibid. & ſeq.
Hunneric, king of the African Vandals, vii. 527, d.
Hunniades, John, ſignal victories over the Turks, vi. 648, c—e. Defeated at Varna, ibid. e.
Hunnimond, king of the Oſtrogoths, vii. 493, a. Submits to the Romans, 518, c.
† Hunns, their firſt ſally, vi. 379, c. Ally with the Alans againſt the Goths, ibid. c, d. Incurſions into the eaſtern empire, 433, c. Ravage Thrace, &c. 451, d, e. (See alſo vol. iii. 846, f.). Cut off by the Romans, 459. Invited by the uſurper John, 478, b. 479, a. Diſmiſſed by him, 480, a. Aſſiſt the Romans againſt the Goths, 483, paſſ. Re-enter Thrace, 487, b, c. Defeated before Orleans, 495. The end of their kingdom, 497, f. Defeated in Dacia, 508, e. Dreadful inroads into Illyricum, 526, d, e. About Conſtantinople, 529, d. Put to flight by old Beliſarius, ibid. e. By John Comagene, 618, a, b. Whence they came, vii. 456, a. Their tribes names, &c. ibid. b, c. Their kings or chiefs, 458, a. Extract, &c. ibid. c, d. Croſs the Palus Mæotis, ibid. e, f. Subdue the Alans and Goths, 459, paſſ. Hired by Theodoſius, 460, a. Horrid devaſtations, ibid. & ſeq. & (A). In Thrace, Illyricum, &c. 461, b, c. Aſſiſt Stilicho againſt Rhadagaiſus, ibid. & ſeq. Second irruption into Thrace, 462, a. Defeat, ibid. b. When poſſeſſed of Pannonia, 463, a, b. Dreadful ſlaughter of the Burgundi, ibid. c, d. Defeated by them, ibid. Defeat the Goths at Narbonne, ibid. e, f. Defeated at Tholouſe, 464, a. Receive tribute from the Romans, ibid. b. Advantageous peace with them, ibid. b, c. New conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. Under Attila, 464, & ſeq. Their power ends with him, 481, d—f. Defeated by the Goths, 482, b, c. In Dacia, ibid. c, d. Freſh irruption into the empire, 483, d. Vaſt plunder, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and ſtripped, 484, paſſ. By Sigebert, ibid. f, & ſeq. The extent of their dominions in Charles the Great's time, 485, a. Embaſſy to him, ibid. b. Totally reduced by him, ibid. c, d.
Hunting, in great eſteem after the flood, i. 112, c. Among the Perſians made part of a noble education, ibid. &c.
Hur, prince of Midian, i. 303, a.

Hur aſcends with Moſes and Aaron up the mount, 511, c. Helps to ſupport Moſes's hands, 512, a. Some conjectures concerning his family, ibid.
Huſhai, his fidelity to David, i. 783. Diſappoints Abſalom's deſigns, ibid. e. & 784, c, d.
Huſham, the Temnite, king of the Horites, i. 312, c.
Huſhang, king of Perſia, according to oriental writers, ii. 176, c.
†Huz, the ſon of Nachor, peoples the land of Huz, i. 431, (D).
†Hyampolis, the battle of, ii. 386, c.
†Hyanthes, whether ancient Greeks, ii. 345, b. Expelled Bœotia by Cadmus, 372, a.
Hyanthidas, king of Corinth, invaded by the Dores, ii. 394, c.
†Hyanthis, one of the ancient names of Bœotia, ii. 370, c.
†Hybla, in Sicily, deſcribed, iii. 3, f. Several cities of that name, ibid. & ſeq.
†Hyblea Megara, by whom founded, iii, 11, f.
Hybreas's bold ſpeech to Antony, v. 260, c, (B).
Hycetas, tyrant of Syracuſe, iii. 88, d, e.
Hyeſos, king of the ſhepherds in Egypt, i. 247, b, & ſeq.
†Hydaſpes, paſſed by Alexander, iii. 390, & ſeq. Repaſſed, 395, b.
Hydra, killed by Hercules, ii. 356, note.
†Hydraotes, river, paſſed by Alexander, iii. 393, c. Repaſſed, 396, a.
Hydroparaſtatæ, a ſet of Manichees ſo called, vi. 397, a.
†Hydruſia, iſland. See Tenos, iii. 225, d. And Andros, 226, e.
Hyle, the ſame with matter, i. 31, b.
†Hylinus ſettles in Thermoſcira, ii. 279, note.
†Hylophagi, who, vii. 184, c. Their great activity, 200, e.
Hyllus, the ſon of Hercules, killed, ii. 356, b.
Hymetius, tried for treaſon, vi. 358, b. Baniſhed, ibid. c.
†Hypatha, metropolis of Theſſaly, ii. 382, b. The general aſſembly of the Ætolians, 722, c. 726, d.
Hypatia, her excellent character, vi. 471, d. Murdered by the chriſtians, ibid. e.
Hypatius, fined and baniſhed, vi. 374, e.
—— Anaſtaſius's general, defeated by the Perſians, 520, d, e. Taken priſoner by Vitalianus, 522, a. Releaſed, ibid. b. Forced to revolt, 526, a. Defeated, and put to death, ibid. c.
†Hyperborean ſea. Vid. Dead-ſea, ii. 266, a.
†Hyperboreans were men-eaters, ii. 269, a.
Hyperechius baſely given up by his troops, ii. 367, c.
Hyperion, the Titan, a great aſtronomer, iii. 163, a.
Hypermneſtra, daughter of Danaus, ſaves her huſband, ii. 353, d.
†Hyphaſis, river, the boundary of Alexander's conqueſts, iii. 394, & ſeq. & (E).
†Hyppius, a river in Bithynia, iii. 827, d.
Hypſæus, C. Plaut. reduces the Privernians, iv. 599, a.
Hypſuratus, in the Phœnician hiſtory, who, i. 89, a.
Hyrcan, the ſon of Joſeph, a worthy youth, iv. 42, d. His profuſeneſs in Egypt, 45, (V). Perſecuted by his brethren, and kills himſelf, ibid.
—— the ſon of Simeon, why ſo named, 88, (H). His reception at Jeruſalem, 89, b. Beſieged by Antiochus, 90, b. Makes peace with him, ibid. d. Rifles David's tomb, 91, b. Takes Aleppo, 92, a. Invades Syria, ibid. And Samaria, &c. ibid. Sends preſents to the Romans, 92, c, & (Q). Beſieges Samaria, 94, a. His high character, ibid. c. Prophetic ſpirit, ibid & (U). Falls out with the Phariſees, 95, b. & (W). His death, ibid. & (X). See alſo vol. iii. 608, & ſeq.
—— the ſon of Janneus, made high-prieſt, 103, b. Abandoned by his ſubjects, 105, e, & ſeq. Depoſed, 106, b, c. The time when, ibid. (N). Pleads his cauſe before Pompey, 109, b, c. Reſtored, 112, a. Honoured by the Athenians, 113, b. Reinſtated by Gabinius, 114, b. Confirmed by Cæſar, 117, c. Allies with him, 118, a. His partiality to Herod, 119, b, c. Fatal cowardice, 122. Carried to Barzapharnes, 125, b. Both his ears cut off, 126, b, & (T). Carried off priſoner by the Parthians, ibid. c. Highly honoured there, 132, b, c. Decoyed into Judea, ibid. & ſeq. Beheaded by Herod, 137, d.
†Hyrcania, a province of Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 30, d. Abounds with wild beaſts, 43, d. Sends an embaſſy to Antoninus, vi. 56, f. Invaded by Alexander, iii. 360, b, c.
Hyſiſtus, who, i. 88, c. 89, a.
Hyſtaſpes introduces learning into Egypt, ii. 62, e.
Hyſtiæus's treachery to the Scythians, ii. 106, c. Puniſhed by Darius, 107, (T). Crucified, 111, a.

I

I, The letter, wrongly uſed by the interpreters of ſcripture, inſtead of Y, i. 55, (N).
Jabal, ſuppoſed the Apollo of the heathens, i. 77, a.
†Jabeſh, beſieged by the Ammonites, i. 295, d. 759, c. Relieved by Saul, ibid. Put to the ſword by the other tribes, 742, a.
†Jabin, king of Hazor, defeated by Joſhua, 332, e. 333, a.
—— II. rebuilds Hazor, 335, b. Enſlaves the Iſraelites, 336, a. Defeated by Deborah and Barac, ibid. b, c. Slain, ibid. & (R). & 743, a.
Jacob born, i. 437, a. Why ſo called, ibid. (R). Buys his brother's birth-right, 438, a. Sent to Padan-Aram, 440. Marries Leah and Rachel, 441, a. His children by Leah, ibid. & ſeq. His ſtratagem of the ſpeckled ſheep, 442, c, d. Ill uſed by Laban, 443, a. Steals away from him, ibid. b, &c. Overtaken by him, 444, a. Interview and covenant with him, ibid. & ſeq. Preſents to Eſau, 445, a, b. Wreſtling with an angel, in what ſenſe, ibid. b, c, & (D). Greeting with Eſau, 446, b, c. Buys a field at Shechem, 447, a. His ſons cruel treachery there, ibid. d. Goes to Bethel, 448, a, b. Benjamin born by Rachel, 448, e. Grief for Reuben's inceſt, ibid. d. Goes to Iſaac and buries him, ibid. & ſeq. Grief for the loſs of Joſeph, 449, e. Sends his ſons into Egypt for corn, 453, d. Sends them a ſecond time with Benjamin, 455, paſſ. What preſents he ſent with them, ibid. (Y). Goes down into Egypt, 457, paſſ. Introduced to Pharaoh, 458. A liſt of his family, 459, a, (B). Requeſt to Joſeph before his death, 460, b. Bleſſes his two ſons, ibid. & ſeq. His prophetic bleſſing to his twelve ſons, 461, & ſeq. Death, 466, a. Pompous funeral, 467, a—c. Writings aſcribed to him by the Jews, ibid. (V).
†—— his well, where ſituate 588, d. Deſcribed as it is at preſent, ibid.
†—— ford, 466, a.
†—— ſtony pillar worſhipped by the Canaanites, vi. 693, b.
—— his prophecy of the ſceptre not departing from Judah explained, iv. 25, b. 256, b. & ſeq. & (O).
Jaddua's fidelity to Darius, iv. 28, b, c. Highly reverenced by Alexander the Great, ibid. & ſeq. His death, 30, d.
†Jadis, the tribe of, whence, vii. 243, c, d. Deſtroyed, ibid. d, Jael, the wife of Heber, kills Siſera with a tent nail, i. 336.
—— defeats the Canaanites, 743, b.
Jair, the ſeventh judge of Iſrael, his twenty years reign, i. 750, b.
†Ialiſſus, an ancient city of Rhodes, iii. 129, d.
Iamblichus's anſwer to a paſſage in Porphyry about Chæremon, i. 13. Cotemporary with Euſebius, 14. Refuſes Julian's invitation, vi. 386, d. His writings and character, 84, ſub not. Three of that name, 273, ſub not.
—— I. king of Emeſſa, iii. 848, b.
—— II. reſtored by Octavius, ibid. d.
—— king of Arabia, racked to death by Antony, v. 290, a.
Jambres. See below, Jannes.
†Jambrians, who, iv. 75, (M). Puniſhed by Jonathan, ibid. e, f.
James, the Greater, made an apoſtle, iv. 208, (T).
—— the ſon of Zebedee, beheaded by Agrippa, 262, a, (W).
—— the Leſs, choſen apoſtle, 208, (T). Why ſtyled the Lord's brother, ibid. Why made biſhop of Jeruſalem, 256, a, & (N).
—— the ſon of Judas Galilæus, crucified, 263, d.
—— of Edeſſa, inventor of the ſeven Syriac vowel points, i. 378. Reſtores that tongue to its ancient purity, 379, a. The firſt that wrote a grammar in Syriac, ibid.
—— biſhop, ſaves Niſibis by his prayers, vi. 279, b.
†Jamnia,

†Jamnia, where ſited, iv. 64, e, & (B). Burnt by Judas Macab. ibid. c. Given to Salome, 191, a.
Jancyrus, king of Scythia, his anſwer and preſents to Darius, ii. 283. Defeats him, 284, & ſeq.
†Janiculum, the hill of, where ſited, iv. 446, a. Made a citadel to Rome, ibid. Taken by Porſenna, 474, b. Seized by the Hetrurians, 511, c Blocked up by Marius, v. 62, f.
Janigenæ, or deſcendants of Janus, iv. 418.
Jannæus. See Alexander, iv. 98, & ſeq.
Jannes and Jambres, who reſiſted Moſes, conjectures about them, i. 480, (P). Mentioned by Pliny, 494, (E). Celebrated in the Jewiſh books for great magicians, ibid.
Januarius, why not choſen emperor, vi. 346, b.
January, whence called Amazonius, vi. 92, e, f. Appointed for the Roman elections, iv. 767, e.
†Janus, king of the Aborigines, ii. 261, b. Whether the Noah of Moſes, iv. 417, & ſeq. Worſhipped by the Hetruſcans, 418, c. His temple built by Numa, 436, e. Shut up the firſt time, 683. At the birth of Chriſt, v. 160. How often between, ibid. (A). See alſo 329, d, (K). Under Nero, 564, c. And Veſpaſian, 649, e. Opened by Gordian, vi. 162, c.
†Japoneſe, their doctrine about the origin of the univerſe, i. 8, a. Some acknowledge the creation of the world, 34, d.
†Japhet, the eldeſt ſon of Noah, i. 117, d, & (N). The import of his name, ibid. His poſterity, ibid. & ſeq. The Perſians give him eleven ſons, 118, not.
†Japhia, king of Lachiſh, allies againſt the Gibeonites, i. 332, a Defeated by Joſhua, ibid. & ſeq.
Japhians put to the ſword, iv. 272, b.
Japidians revolt from the Romans, iv. 798, c. Quelled by Sempronius, 799, b.
Iarbas's embaſſy to Dido, vi. 722, b, c.
Jared, a deſcendant of Seth, i. 78, a.
†Jaſar plundered and burnt by the Jews, i. 298, e.
Jaſher, or The upright, the book of, i. 551, c—e.
Jaſius the huſband of Cybele, ii. 297, (W).
— prince of Samothrace, his deities, 312, b.
Jaſon ſent to fetch the golden fleece, ii. 383, e. Aſſiſted by Medea, 384, a, b. Baniſhed by Pelias's ſon, 385, a. Goes to Corinth, 393, a. Marries Glauce, ibid. c.
— prince of Theſſaly, aſſiſts the Thebans, 616.
— where born, iii. 239, f. Marries Cybele, 240, a.
— al. Jeſus, buys the Jewiſh high-prieſthood, 572, e, f. Supplanted by his brother, 573, & ſeq. Drives him out, 576, c. vol. iv. 47, e. Erects a gymnaſium at Jeruſalem, ibid. e. Raiſes a new rebellion, 50, a, b. His tragical end, ibid. (B).
Jaſon, his hiſtory of Greece, vi. 51, ſub not.
†Jaſar, Jazar, a city of Ammon, burnt by the Jews, i. 298, e, iv. 63, d.
Jatkanites aſſiſt Alex. Angelus, vi. 629, a, b. Defeated and killed by Laſcaris, ibid. c, d.
†Javan, where ſettled, i. 168, d. The firſt peopler of Greece, ii. 345, (E).
†Iaxartes, a river in Scythia, ii. 267, d.
†Iazyges, who, v. 623, b. Taken into Veſpaſian's pay, ibid. Join the Suevians againſt Domitian, 674, a Invaded by Decebalus, vi. 13. Join in the German war, 66, b, c. Twice defeated, 69, c, d. Join againſt the Romans, 73, b. Defeated, ibid. c, d. See alſo vol. vii. 604, & ſeq.
†Iberia. See Spain, ii. 244, (E).
†— another in Scythia, 266, d.
†— the kingdom of, deſcribed, iii. 835. Its origin and government, ibid. & ſeq. Invaded by Pompey, 836, b, c. By the Perſians, 837.
†Iberians ſubmit to Scipio, iv. 708, e.
— to Trajan, vi 18, d. Refuſe to come to Adrian, 37, b. Their cruelty to the Himerians, 744, d, e. In Spain, who, and whence, vii. 323, b.
Iberus, a fabulous king of Spain, vii. 320, a.
†— river, divides Tarracon through, 303, d.
Ibis, a bird, frequenting only the Nile, i. 182, b. Deſtroys the flying ſerpents, ibid. Two kinds of it deſcribed, ibid. c. Why worſhipped by the Egyptians, 210, b, c.
Iberus heads the Lombards into Germany, vi. 391, d, e. One of their kings, vii. 614, e. 615, d.
†Ibrions, who, and where ſited, vi. 495, b.
Ibzan, tenth judge of Iſrael, i. 753.
†Icaria, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 211, e. Whence ſo called, ibid. f.
Icarus's ſevere proconſulſhip, vi. 403, c. Cruelty to the poor, ibid. d.
†Iceland, iſland, diſcovered by Agricola, v. 672, c.
†Iceni, in Britain, who, v. 509, e. Where ſited, vii. 409. Defeated by the Romans, v. 509, f, & ſeq. Revolt, 537, & ſeq.
— ſubmit to Cæſar, vii. 426, b, (F). Oppoſe Oſtorius, 430, b.
†Icenian, Icening, ſtreet, on Saliſbury plain, deſcribed, vii. 342, (R).
Icetus's inhumanity to Dion's family, iii. 73, d. Tyrant of the Leontines, ibid. & ſeq. Attempt againſt Syracuſe, 74, a. Defeated by Timoleon, 75, a—d. Beſieges the citadel, 76. Depoſed by Timoleon, 77, e. Put to death with his whole family, 79, b. See alſo vol. vi. 774, & ſeq.
— defeats Mæmon, vi. 813, d. Defeated by the Carthaginians, ibid. & ſeq.
— a favourite of Galba, executed, v. 586, c. 597, b.
Ichneumon, or Egyptian rat, deſcribed, i. 181, f. Deſtroys the crocodile's eggs, ibid.
†Ichthyophagi, who, and where ſeated, i. 165, d. Why ſo called, ii. 176, e. vii. 184, b. 199, d.
Icilian-law, what, iv. 533, f.
Icilians oppoſe the election of conſuls, 554, d.
Icilius, Spur. renews the conteſt of the Agrarian law, iv. 506, f. Bold puſh againſt the ſenate, 529, a. Noble defence of Virginia, 540, c. Choſen head of the malecontents, 543, d.
†Iconium taken by the Turks, vi. 605, a.
Iconoclaſts, who, vi. 553, a. Raiſe a revolt in the empire, ibid. The reſt ſee under Images, 552, & ſeq.
†Icoſium delivered up to Theodoſius, vi. 260, a.
†Icus, iſland, deſcribed, iii 233.
†Ida founds a Saxon kingdom, vii. 450, e.
†— mount, in Crete, deſcribed, ii. 297. 305, b, 307, c. iii. 165, f, & ſeq.
†Idæi, Dactyli, inhabit mount Idä, iii. 162, d.
Idæus, the ſon of Dardanus, ii. 313, a.
†Idataviſtus, the plain of, where, v. 383, (W). The battle of, 384, a, b.
Idatius's writings and character, vi. 501, (T). Account of the Vandals irruption, vii. 530, c, d.
— biſhop, taken priſoner, 506, c.
Idmon, the Argonaut, killed by a boar, ii. 384, (H).
Idolatry firſt introduced, i. 86, (N). To men, 88, (N). By whom introduced, 130, a. Opinions about its riſe and progreſs, 851, e. What was probably its origin, 852, d. Its ſteps and progreſs, 913, e, f.
— forbid by the chriſtian emperors, vi. 277, a. 298, d—f. By Theodoſius, 403, d, e. 417, e, f. By Arcadius, 444, e, f. Whether revived during the ſiege of Rome, 458, c, d. Through the whole empire, 483, d. Rooted up by the Goths in Greece, vii. 505, e, f.
Idomeneus goes to the Trojan war, iii. 169, c. Forced into Calabria, ibid. & not. Adored by the Cretans, ibid.
†Idumea mentioned by Pliny, Strabo, &c. i. 316, e. The lot of Simeon and Judah, ibid.
†— New, deſcribed, iv. 62, (Y). Conquered by Hyrcan, 92, b.
†Idumeans, the Edomites of Judea, i. 316, e. Incorporated with the Jews, 317, c. Their name, when loſt, ibid. (Y). The Jews, why called by that name, 568, a, (E). Forced to be circumciſed, 92, c, (P). Invited to Jeruſalem, 274, d. Returned home, 275, b. Betrayed to Simon, 276, d.
Jealouſy, the waters of, appointed by God, i. 676, c. How adminiſtered, ibid. & ſeq.
†Jebus, a city in Canaan, i. 324, a. Since called Jeruſalem, 323, e.
†Jebuſites, where ſituate, i. 323, c. Defend it againſt the Benjamites. 334. Why ſuffered to live with the Iſraelites, 335, a. Defend Sion againſt David, 336, a. Who the lame and blind in it were, ibid. (L). Subdued, 337, a. Enſlaved by Solomon, ibid. b.
Jedaiah, one of the four ſacerdotal claſſes, iv. 5, a.
Jehoahaz, king of Iſrael, reduced by the Syrians, i. 388. His ſhort reign, 846, a. Carried captive into Egypt, ibid. b.
Jehhaſh, king of Judah, buys off Hazael, i. 388, d. Plundered by the Syrians, ibid. e.
— the ſon of Jehoahaz's ſucceſs againſt Benhadad, i. 389, a.
Jehoiachin's wicked reign, i. 848. Captivity, ibid. d.

Jehoiada places Joash on the throne, i. 822, d. Puts Athalia to death, 823, b. His death. ibid.
Jehoiakim's wicked reign, i. 846, b——d. His tyrannies and bloodshed. 847. d. Unhappy death, 848. d.
Jehoram, king of Judah, invaded by the Philistines, i. 358, c. Falls into idolatry, 814, d. Punished, 815, c. His death, ibid. d.
—— king of Israel, seduced into idolatry by Jezebel, i. 814, d. Fatal expedition against Ramoth, 818, b. 818, b, c. Wounded, and dies, ibid. & seq.
Jehoshaphat brings the Philistines under tribute, i. 358, b, c. His piety and success, 809. Reproved by Jehu, 813, b. Miraculous success against Ammon, &c. 814, b. His death, ibid.
† —— the valley of, where, 574, (Q). Why supposed the place of the general judgment, 574, a, (R).
Jehovah, the ineffable name of God, why never pronounced by the Jews, i. 484, (T). Various notions about it, ibid. & seq.
† Jehovah-Nissi, the name of an altar, erected by Moses, i 512.
Jehu kills the kings of Israel and Judah, i. 818, c, & seq. Jezebel, and Ahaz's seventy sons, 819, f. And forty princes of Judah, 820, a Destroys Baal's priests, temple, and worship, ibid. & seq. Ill success against Hazael, 388.
—— the prophet, reproves Baasha's idolatry, 808, d.
† Jemphorina, a city in Thrace, iii 787, c.
Jephthah, the fugitive son of Gilead, i. 750. Heads Israel against Ammon, ibid. His rash vow, ibid. c. How executed on his daughter, 751, b, & not.
† Jerah, Joktan's son, where settled, i. 170, a.
Jeremiah denounces God's judgments against the rebellious Jews, i. 846, b. Foretells the Babylonish captivity, 847, a. His prophecy burnt by the king, ibid. Imprisoned, 850, b. Well used by the Babylonish king, ibid. d.
—— his lamentations, on what occasion composed, i. 845, d. The only piece of that kind in holy writ, ibid.
† Jericho, why so called, i. 324, a. 556, c. Taken miraculously by the Israelites, 330, e. 556, b. Put under an anathema, ibid & seq. By whom rebuilt, ibid. (C). Taken by Bacchides, iv. 76, c. Made one of the five courts of Palestine, 144.
† —— the palace of, burnt, iv. 188. Rebuilt, 192, a.
† —— the balsam of, famous, i. 580.
† —— the roses of, said to be somewhat miraculous, 583, c.
Jeroboam, made king by the ten tribes, i. 805, b. His Idolatry, ibid, c. Defeated by Ahijah, 807, b. His death, ibid.
—— II. king of Israel, 827, a. Takes Damascus, &c. ibid. His glorious reign, ibid. b. Death, ibid. c.
Jerom, St. his account of the Gothish cruelties, vi. 388, a, b.
† Jerusalem, said by the Arabians to have been built by twelve kings, in honour of Melchizedek, i. 328, (Q). When built, 258, f. Sacked by Hazael, 388, d, e. Taken by David, and made his metropolis, 775, a. Taken by Nebuchadnezzar, 848, c. A second time, ibid. & seq. A third time, and destroyed, 849, f. Described according to the sacred historians, i. append. after pag. 796, xv. & seq.
—— taken by the Persians, according to oriental writers, ii. 202, b. Rebuilt and repeopled, iv. 22, b, c. Taken by Ptolemy, 30, e, & (C). By Antiochus, 50, c. Burnt and razed by Apollonius, 51, c, d. Rebuilt by Judas Maccab. 61, b. Fortified, 83, c. Dismantled by Antiochus, 91, a. Besieged by Pompey 110. Taken, 111, d. How oft on the same day, ibid. (T). Made one of the five courts, 114, b. Rebuilt by Antipater, 118, a, &c. 120, b, c. Taken by Herod, 130, & seq. Its destruction foretold by Christ, 228, & seq. & (B), (C). Inlarged by Agrippa, 261, c. The number of its inhabitants taken by Cestius, 268, c. Forsaken by multitudes of Jews, 270, d, e, (O). Torn by three factions, 278, a, b. Besieged by Titus, 279, & seq. Its first wall entered, 280, e. Second taken, 281, a. Under pestilence and famine, ibid &c. Circumwalled, ibid. d, e, (N). Famished, 282, b, & (O). Taken and destroyed, 283. & seq. 286, & seq. Visited by Adrian, vi. 33, e. And profaned by him, 39, a. Razed, ibid e, f. How rebuilt and altered, vi. 41, a, b. Plundered by the Isaurians, 451, f. Taken by the Persians, 539, e. Hard fate of the Christians taken in it, ibid, & seq. Taken by Haumar, 543, f.
†Jerusalem, the high city taken by the Romans, iv. 287, a. The number of Jewish prisoners made in it, ibid. b, c. Prodigies forerunning its ruin, 288, c.
†—— the great church of, built by Constantine, vi. 262, c.
Jesburun, why that name given to the Jews, i. 666, e.
Jesua, the high-priest, returns from Babylon, iv. 4, b. His genealogy, ibid. (D). Death, 11, b.
—— al. Jesus, killed by his brother, 27, b.
Jesus, the son of Sirach, when he flourished, iv. 51, (F). An account of his writings, ibid. & 91, (N).
—— Christ, the world's Redeemer. See Christ, 157, & seq.
—— the son of Damneus made high-priest, 226, e. Goes over to Titus, 264, b. The son of Gamaliel put in his place, 267, b. Their fatal enmity against each other, ibid. Opposes the Zelots, 274, b. Put to death by them, ibid. d.
—— the son of Ananus, a dreadful prophet against Jerusalem, 267, f. His sufferings and death, 268, a. 280, c.
Jethro, who, i. 301, a. Gives his daughter to Moses, ibid. b——d. Comes to him after the Exod, ibid. & seq. His wholsome advice to him, 303, a. His descendants called Kenites. See Kenites, ibid. & seq.
Jeud, son to Chronus the younger, i. 83, b.
Jewish government, how altered by Pompey, iv. 112, a. By Gabinius, 114, b, & (A). Restored by Cæsar, 117, e, & (F), —— writers, wretched chronologers, iv. 44, (R).
†—— camp, the battle of, 117, b.
—— rites, extirpated at Rome, v. 402, a, (A).
Jews, not so called till after the captivity, i. 421, (A). Their doctrine about the creation, 48, d, &c. How long they dwelt in Egypt, 425, (K). The religion, manners, &c. of their forefathers, impartially considered, 469, & seq. Their great increase in Egypt, 473, a, b, & (B). Oppression, and the cause of it, ibid. & seq. Their bondage, when begun, 474. The reason of it, 475, (E). Obliged to drown their male issue, 477, a, b. Their slavery hardened, 493, b, c. Celebrate the first passover, 499, d. Depart out of Egypt, 501. Their number calculated, ibid, & note. First encampment at Succoth, 502, a. Their first-born, how and why consecrated, ibid. c, d. Order of their march, 503, b. Arrival at Etham, ibid. & seq. Guided by the miraculous pillar, 504, a. Overtaken by the Egyptians, ibid. d, e. Pass the Red-sea, 505, &c. That transaction impartially examined, 506, & seq. & (P). Murmur for want of water, 508, d, e. And for want of food, 509, a. Gather the manna and quails, ibid. & seq. Supplied with water from the miraculous rock, 511. Whether the rock accompanied them, ibid. (T). Defeat the Amalekites, 111, c. Come to Sinai, 512, & seq. Receive the ten commandments from thence, 514, & seq. Whether their ceremonies were borrowed from the Egyptians, 516, pass. & (Y). Ratify the covenant with God, 518. Set up the golden calf, 520, & seq. Punished for it, 521, pass. Offerings made by them, ibid. & seq. 523, c. Rebellion and punishment at Taberah, 524, b. A fresh supply of quails, 525, & seq. A new murmur and punishment, 526, a. Send spies to view the promised land, ibid. b, c. Murmur at the ill report which they brought, ibid. & seq. Defeated by the Amalekites, 527, c, d. God's care of the new generation, 528, a, (L). Conspire against Moses, 529, d. Punished, 530, b, c. Their idolatries, 531, pass. Repulsed by king Arad, ibid. & seq. New murmurs, 532. Punished by fiery serpents, ibid. & seq. Forbid to hurt Ammon and Moab, 533, b. Seize on the land of Sihon, 534. And Bashan, ibid. & seq. Debauched by the women to idolatry, 535. Punished, ibid. & seq. Success against the five kings of Midian, 536, & seq. Offer part of the spoils to God, 539, a. The limits of the promised land appointed, ibid. & seq. A form of confession appointed for them, 540, b. Renew their covenant with God, 541, a, b. Why they discontinued circumcision, 545, a. Their excellent manner of encamping, ibid. & seq. Standards, &c. 547, & seq. Manner of decamping, 549, b, c. Of engaging the enemy, 550, d. The state of their host, at their entering the promised land, 551, b.
—— cross the Jordan, 553, & seq. Renew the circumcision, 554, & seq. And passover, 555, a. The manner of their taking of Jericho, 556, a. Why repulsed at Ai, 557, a, b. Defeat the confederate Canaanites, 558, 558; a. Remarks on the miraculous tranſactions of that day, ibid. & ſeq. And on the rain of ſtones, 564; & ſeq. Finiſh the conqueſt of the land, 568, a. Deſcription of it, ibid. & ſeq. Their government a theocracy; 594, a. Their laws againſt idolatry, 597, e. For the worſhip of the true God, 598, c. Poſitive and negative concerning their grand feſtivals, faſts, &c. 600, & ſeq. Concerning vows, 630, & ſeq. The prieſts, levites, &c. 632, & ſeq. Cities of refuge, 647, & ſeq. Judges and courts, 669, & ſeq. Againſt murder, 675, & ſeq. Againſt adultery, &c. 676, & ſeq. Againſt theft, 683, c. Againſt falſe witneſs, &c. coveting others property, 686, & ſeq. Their cuſtoms, arts, and trade, 690; & ſeq. Their wars, alliances, &c. 701, & ſeq. Agriculture, 705, & ſeq. Trades, manufactures, and dreſs, 707, & ſeq. Poetry, 709; & ſeq. Muſic, 714, a, & (O). Language, 717. Writing, 727; a. Education, ibid. & ſeq. Meaſure of time, 729; d, e. Contempt of foreign languages, 730, c, d. Synagogues, ibid. & ſeq. Schools, 731, a. Prophets, ibid. & ſeq. Chronology, 733, & ſeq. Table of their judges, 737. Kings before Jeroboam's revolt, ibid. Judges from Joſhua to Saul, 738, & ſeq. Idolatry in Canaan, 739; a, b. Midianitiſh bondage, 743, b. Delivered by Gideon, ibid. & ſeq. New idolatries and ſlavery, 747; & ſeq. Delivered by Jephtha, 751, b. Forty years ſlavery under the Philiſtines, 754, a. Loſe the victory and the ark, 756. Inſiſt upon having a king, 758, a, & ſeq. Diviſion of the two kingdoms, 773, a. Reigns of their kings, ibid. & ſeq. Their city and they carried into captivity, 850, c, & ſeq.

Jews reſtored by Cyrus, ii. 94. His decree in their favour, ibid. (L), & vol. iv. 2, & ſeq. Why they always ſided with the beſt bidder, iii. 611. Perſecution under Philopator, 644, d. Miraculous deliverance, 645, d.

— their return from the captivity, iv. 1, & ſeq. Their number, 2, b. Change of condition, ibid. d; e. 4; b, c. Renew their feaſts, 5, d, e. Blamed for rejecting the Samaritans, 7, (M). And for their ſtrange marriages, 12, & ſeq. Oppreſſed by their rulers, 21, & ſeq. Reformed by Ezra, 23, b, c. Degenerate, 24, paſſ. Fidelity to the Perſians, 28, b. Favoured by Alexander, 29. Their fatal ſuperſtition about the ſabbath, 30, f. Flee to Alexandria, 35, b. Their different opinions of the ſeptuagint verſion, 38, a. Attachment to the Egyptians, 43, paſſ. & (P). Apoſtacy under Jaſon, 47, f. Threatened by dire prodigies, 49, e. Maſſacred by Antiochus, 50, c. By Apollonius, 51, c. Freſh perſecution, 52, & ſeq. Forbid the ſacred books, 53, d. Butchered in ſundry places, 66, c, d. Idolatrous ſuperſtition puniſhed, 68, c, &c. In high credit in Egypt, 79, d. Build a temple there, ibid. & ſeq. & (T). Their ſuperſtition fatal to Jeruſalem, 111, b. Horridly butchered there, ibid. & ſeq. Highly favoured by Julius Cæſar, 118, 120. Complaints againſt Herod rejected, 123, c. And puniſhed, 124, b. Conſpire againſt him, 141, c. Frivolous anſwers to the chriſtians, 157; (S). 159, (Z). Cauſes of their infidelity and ruin, 163; & ſeq. Their various ſects, 164; & ſeq. Falſe notions about the Meſſiah confuted, 181, ſub not. Mutiny againſt Archelaus, 185, c—e. Take up arms againſt Sabinus, 187, & ſeq. Two thouſand of them crucified, 190, a. Send an embaſſy to Rome, ibid. b, c. Deceived by a pſeudo Alexander, 191, b. Revolt under Judas Galileus, 192, d. Expelled Rome, 195, b. Petition Pilate againſt the Roman ſtandards and ſhields, ibid. & ſeq. Their infatuation at the coming of Chriſt, 196, e, f. The cauſe of their rejection and ruin, 197, a, b, & (E). Incredulity accounted for, 200; (I). Offended at Chriſt's ſpiritual doctrine, 215, & ſeq. Had ſtill the power of life and death in his time, 235, (R). 257, a, & (O). Perſecuted at Alexandria, 258, d. Raiſe new troubles, 263, & ſeq. Deluded by falſe prophets, 264, c. Break out into open rebellion, 268, & ſeq. Maſſacred every-where, 269, & ſeq. Fit themſelves for a ſtout defence, 270, c, d. Divided into two factions, 273, & (X). Cruelly butchered, 281, e, & ſeq. Famiſhed, 282, a, b, (O). 283, (P). Set fire to the temple galleries, 283, & ſeq. Maſſacred by the Romans, 286, a, b. Their ſtrict faſt for Jeruſalem, ibid. c. Sum total of their ſlain in the war, 287, & ſeq.

— their gratitude to Cæſar, v. 292, b, (I). Favoured by Agrippa, 315, e. Why baniſhed by Tiberius, 402, a, (A). Refuſe to worſhip Caligula, 468, & ſeq. Perſecution and embaſſy from Alexandria, 699, & ſeq. Commit horrid cruelties under Trajan, vi. 23. a, c, d. Revolt againſt Adrian, 38. Dreadful puniſhment, 39; & ſeq. Whether excluded Judea, 40, c, d. Join with Caſſius, 76, a. Subdued by Caracalla, 116; b. Forbid to moleſt chriſtian converts, 255; c. New revolt and puniſhment, 286, b. Forbid to buy chriſtian ſlaves, 404, f. Privileged by Arcadius, 439, c. Maſſacre the chriſtians at Alexandria, 471; b. Expelled by St. Cyril, ibid. c Maſſacre them again at Antioch, 538, d. Forbid come within three miles of Jeruſalem, 532, e.

Jews in Arabia, converted by a miracle, vii. 285; a, b.

— in Spain, their apoſtacy, iv. 32; a; (G).

Jezdegerd defeated by the Arabs, i. 405, b.

Jezebel, the impious wife of Ahab, i. 809, a. Her idolatries, ibid. Murder of Naboth, 812, a. Dreadful end, 819.

Jezid, the ſon of caliph Abdammelech, his title to the Perſian crown, iv. 406, a.

† Jezreel, the plain of, in Paleſtine, i. 575, a.

† Igilgili, where ſituate, vii. 113, a.

Igillus, king of the Vandals, taken priſoner, vii. 529, a.

Ignatius, St. martyred, vi. 19, d.

— patriarch, depoſed and impriſoned for his great zeal, vi. 552, a, b.

Ignobiles, at Rome, why ſo called, v. 46; (M).

Ignomen betrays Firmus to the Romans, vi. 361, a, b.

† Jibel-Had-Deffah, a ſalt mountain, deſcribed, vi. 671, d.

Jin, or Genii, among the Turks, what, i. 51, b.

† Jie Abarim, the thirty-eighth encampment of the Iſraelites, i. 553, a.

† Jiel, where ſituate, vii. 107; c. 113; b.

Ildebald, choſen king of the Oſtrogoths, vii. 664, b. Defeats the Romans, ibid. c, d. Murdered, ibid. e.

† Ilergetæ ſubmit to Hannibal, vii. 10, f. Treachery to Scipio forgiven, 26, c, d. New revolt, 71, f.

† Ilienſes fined by Agrippa, v. 315; e. Forgiven at Herod's ſuit, ibid. f. Immunified by Nero, 514.

† Ikenild, ſtreet, deſcribed, vii. 420, a.

† Ilium, in Phrygia. See Troy, ii. 305, & ſeq.

† Illiturgi revolts to the Carthaginians, vii. 46, c. Retaken and razed by Scipio, 71, a. iv. 738, a.

Illus's revolt, vi. 514, d. Death, 516, b, f. vii. 522, c.

† Illyria ſubdued by Cadmus, ii. 372, b. Invaded by the Romans, iii. 487, d; 488, f.

† Illyrians go over to the Lynceſti, iii. 282, d. Subdued by Philip, 290, a, b. 298, b, The cauſe of their war, iv. 685, b, &c. Reduced, 691, f. By Sempronius, 760, c. By Emilius, 763, b. By Anicius, 764, & ſeq.

— troops, declare for Veſpaſian, v. 621, d. Their untimely march into Italy, 622, e, f.

† Illyricum, the diſtrict of, with its provinces, vi. 270. Ravaged by the Quadi, 361; & ſeq. By the Goths, 388, c. How divided, 389, e, f. Ravaged by the Huns, 451, d, The frontiers of, fortified, 468, a. The weſtern part yielded to Theodoſius, 483; e. Its extent, ibid. f. Repeopled by barbarian nations, 498, b. Ravaged by the Hunns, 526. vii. 467, e. 468, e, f.

Ilus, the ſon of Tros, builds Ilium, ii. 310. Subdues Tantalus, 313, d. Saves the Palladium from the flames, ibid. e.

Images deſtroyed at Conſtantinople, vi. 552, c. By Leo, 553, b, c. By Conſtantine IV. 555; d, e. By Leo III. 557, a, b. By Leo X. 563; e, f. Allowed by the ſecond council of Nice, 570.

† Imaus, mount, parts the two Scythias, ii. 267, b.

† Imbrian feſtivals deſcribed, iii. 236, e.

† Imbros, iſland, deſcribed and ſubdued, iii. 336, d—f.

Imilcar ſent with Hannibal into Sicily, iii. 40, & ſeq. iv. 745, b. Becomes ſole commander, 747; a. Defeated by the Syracuſans, ibid. c, d. Intercepts their proviſions in a lucky hour, 748, c, d. Horrid butchery of the Agrigentines, 749, paſſ. Takes Gela, 752, paſſ. Makes peace with Syracuſe, ibid. f. & iii. 46.

— ſent general againſt Demetrius, 50. Takes Eryx and Motya, ibid. f. And Meſſana, 51. Beſieges Syracuſe, 52; & ſeq. Defeated by ſea and land, 54. Kills himſelf, 55.

Immer, one of the four ſacerdotal claſſes, iii. 5, a.

Imperator, the import of that title, v. 50, d, (O).

Inachus, founder of the Argolic kingdom, ii. 351, & ſeq.

† — metropolis of Argos, ibid. b.

† — river, ibid. a.

Inarus choſen king of Egypt, i. 275, b. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, ibid. e, f. Againſt Memphis, ibid. & ſeq. Dreadful end, 276, a. See alſo vol. ii. 131—133.

Incenſe, how offered by the Jews, i. 629. The altar of, where ſeated, ibid. (N). The time and reaſon of that offering, ibid. The altar deſcribed, 656, c. 657, a, b.
Inceſtuous marriages, a law againſt, vi. 294, b.
Incitatus, Caligula's horſe, made high-prieſt, v. 468, d. Extravagant honours paid to it, 469, d, e.
Incubi, dæmons, whence that notion, i. 82, (N).
Indathyrſus, king of Scythia. See Madyes and Jancyrus, ii. 283, & ſeq.
† India conquered by Darius, ii. 107, c. Whether any part conquered by Trajan, vi. 22, f. Embaſſies to Antoninus, 56, f. Traded with the Carthaginians, 844, (Y).
Indians, their traditions about the flood, i. 107, a, b.
—— defeated by Alexander, iii. 387. Treacherouſly uſed by him, 388, b.
Indigilis defeats the Romans, iv. 725, c, d. Defeated by Scipio, 738, d. By the proconſul, 739, f. Aſſiſts Aſdrubal in Spain, vii. 56, c. Gained by Scipio, 62, f. 63, c. Takes up arms againſt him, 71, f. Defeated, 72, a, b. Puniſhed for a new revolt, 73, c, d.
Indiction, at Rome, what, vi. 249, b. When and by whom begun, ibid. & ſeq.
Indus's ſucceſs againſt Florus, v. 409, e, f.
† —— river, paſſed by Alexander, iii. 390, a.
Indutiomarus defeated and killed, v. 124, c.
Informers proſecuted by Nerva, vi. 3, c. 10, a. By Macrinus, 130, f. 131, f. Whence called Quadruplatores, ibid. Encouraged by Maximin, 149, a. Diſcouraged by Diocleſian, 214, b. By Conſtantine, 247, c. Revived by Conſtantius, 288, d, e. Suppreſſed by Theodoſius, 394, b. By Gratian, 397, d. By Anaſtatius, 515, d, e.
† Ingauni defeated by the Romans, iv. 758, f. Reduced, 759, f.
—— who, vii. 73, a. Aſſiſted by Mago, ibid.
Ingenuus proclaimed emperor in Pannonia, vi. 175, b. Defeated by Gallienus, ibid.
Ingomer's baptiſm and death, vii. 570, b.
Ingratitude puniſhed by the Perſians, ii. 66, a.
Inguiomerus goes over to the Perſians, v. 374, c. Defeated by the Romans, 377, c. Narrowly eſcapes them, 384, Bravery on a ſecond fight, ibid. f.
Innocence, the ſtate of. See Adam, i. 48, & ſeq.
Innocent, pope, ſent to treat with Alaric, vi. 460, d.
Ino, one of the daughters of Cadmus, ii. 372. Her cruelty and fate, 391, (G).
† Inopus, a river in Delos, iii. 231, b.
† Inſulæ, tres, where, vii. 146, d.
Inſcription on the Egyptian pyramids, i. 184, e. A famed one on the temple of Neith at Sais, 204, d. One ſtill extant to Iſis at Capua, ibid.
Inſtitutes of Juſtinian, vi. 530, e.
† Inſubres frighten the Romans away, iv. 688, f. Defeated by them, 689, d, e. Subdued, 690. Made a Roman province, ibid. e. Revolt, 694, c.
Intaphernes, one of the ſeven Perſian conſpirators, ii. 103, & ſeq. Put to death by Darius, 404, b.
† Intelene, the province of, yielded to the Romans, vi. 215, a. Where ſited, ibid. c.
Interamna confiſcated by Sylla, v. 76, d.
Interceſſio, among the Romans, what, iv. 492, c.
Intereſt of money ſettled at Rome, iv. 590, b. Lowered, 595, c. Aboliſhed, 599, a.
Io, the daughter of Inachus, whether raviſhed by the Phœnicians, ii. 318, c. Why ſurnamed Phoronis, 352, c.
Joab, David's general, i. 773, b. Defeats and kills Abner, 774, a, b. Set over all Iſrael for his bravery, 775, a. Succeſs againſt the Ammonites, 779, a, & ſeq. Gets Abſalom recalled by a ſtratagem, 782, a. Treacherouſly murders Amaſa, 787, e. Kills Abſalom, 789, a. David's advice concerning him, 791, d. Put to death by Solomon, 792, d.
Joaſh preſerved from Athaliah's bloody hands, i. 822, d. Crowned, 823, a. Zeal and piety, ibid. c, d. Defection, 824, c. Death, ibid. & ſeq.
Joaz, king of Iſrael, i. 825, f. Defeats Amaſiah, 826, b.
Joazar made high-prieſt, iv. 182, c. Depoſed by Archelaus, 191, f. By Cyreneus, 192, (W). Vid. & vol. v. 337, a.
Job, divers opinions about him, &c. i. 312. Conjectures concerning his extract, reign, &c. 482, a——d. Lived before the exod, ibid. & ſeq.
—— the book of, by whom writ, 483, b, c. Cleared from the ſlander of a modern critic, ibid. e. Particulars added to his hiſtory, ibid. e, f.
† Jobab, the twelfth ſon of Joktan, where ſettled, i. 171, a.
Jobab, the ſon of Zerah, by ſome taken for patient Job, 312, a. 482, a.
—— king of Madian, defeated by the Iſraelites, 332, e.
Jobates king of Lycia's behaviour to Bellerephon, ii. 339, c. 353, c.
Jocabed, the mother of Moſes, i. 477, b. Conceals him for three months, 478, a. Brings him up for Pharaon's daughter, ibid. c, d.
Jocaſta, the unhappy mother and wife of Oedipus, ii. 373, & ſeq.
Johanan, the high-prieſt, kills his brother, iv. 27, b. His death, 28, b.
John the baptiſt, his birth foretold, iv. 154, a. Fulfilled, 158, b, (V). Brought up among the Eſſenians, 173, b. His life, preaching, and teſtimony of Chriſt, 198, a, b, & (F). Impriſoned by Herod, 703. Beheaded, ibid. & ſeq. Joſephus's character of him, 204, a, b.
—— the beloved Evangeliſt, takes the Virgin Mary to his home, 240, d. Outruns Peter to the ſepulchre, 244, b. Baniſhed into Pathmos, v. 688, d. Writes his apocalypſe there, ibid. &c.
—— the Maccabee, killed by the Jambrians, iv. 75.
—— the ſon of Simon, made general, 86, c. Defeats the Syrians, 88, c. Why ſurnamed Hyrcan, ibid. & 91. The reſt ſee under Hyrcan, ibid. & ſeq.
—— a pious hermit, his anſwer to Theodoſius, vi. 422, c, d.
—— Arcadius's ſecretary, delivered up to Gainas, 445, d. Eſcapes to Conſtantinople, ibid. e, f.
—— ſecretary to Honorius, ſent to treat with Alaric, 458, d. Aſſumes the purple, 478, a. Taken and beheaded, 479, d——f.
—— a deacon, put to death, 486, b.
—— two hiſtorians of that name, 492, ſub not.
—— Baſilius's admiral, his bravery and death, 509, a—e.
—— Zeno's general, his ſucceſs againſt Leontius, 516, c.
—— the Scythian, and the crook-backed, their bravery againſt the Iſaurians, 519, a, d. Againſt the Saracens, 548, b, c.
—— the deacon, made admiral, 553, d. Killed for his ſeverity, ibid. e.
—— Zimiſces. See Zimiſces, 553, & ſeq.
—— Comagen. 617, & ſeq.
—— bravery againſt the Vandals, vii. 528, f. Death, ibid. & ſeq.
—— Beliſarius's general, ſucceſs againſt the Oſtrogoths, 658, b. Beſieged and relieved at Rimini, 659, a, b. Treachery, 660, a, b. Releaſes the Roman ſenators, 671, b. Defeated by Totila, ibid. c, e. Sent into Italy, 674. Defeats the Gothiſh fleet, ibid. f, & ſeq.
Joiakim, high-prieſt of the Jews, iv. 11, b.
† Joktan, the ſon of Eber, i. 130, e. Thirteen ſons given him by Moſes, and thirty by the Arabians, 131, a. His deſcendants, where ſettled, 169, d. vii. 232, e.
† Joktheel, in Edom, whence ſo called, i. 316, c.
† Jol, in Numidia, the ſeat of Juba, vii. 114, a, b.
Iole, princeſs of Oebalia, ſtolen by Hercules, ii. 401, (K). Given to his ſon Hylas, ibid.
Jolipianus's revolt and death, vi. 167, a.
Ion, the ſon of Xuthus, the ſuppoſed father of the Iones, ii. 345. Succeeds Selinus in Ægialea, 414, d. His death, ibid. f.
—— treachery to Perſeus, iii. 495, c. Where born, 108, note.
Jonadab's wicked advice to Ammon, i. 781, a. The father of the Rechabites, 820, &(T).
Jonah's whale deſcribed, iv. 212, (C.)
Jonathan's intimate friendſhip with David, i. 764, c. Signal victory over the Philiſtines, 762, a, (& 359, b). Saved by the army, ibid. d. Oath of friendſhip with David, 767, d. Death, ibid. & ſeq. & 366, d.
—— the brother of David, kills a ſon of Goliah, 357, c.
—— the brother of Judas Maccabeus, ſucceeds him, iii. 591, & ſeq. iv. 75, d. Defeated at Tekoah, 76, b. Defeats a conſpiracy, 77, a. Beats and makes peace with Bacchides, ibid. c, d. Made high-prieſt, 78, c. & (R). Sides with Alexander, 79, b. His reception at Ptolemais, ibid. & ſeq. Defeats Apollonius, 80, & ſeq. Beſieges Acra, 81. In high favour with Nicator, ibid. c, (D). Joins with Antiochus, ibid. e, & ſeq. Repulſes the Demetrians, 82. Courted by the kings of Syria, iii. 595, b, c. His victories, 597, & ſeq. Betrayed by Tryphon, iv. 83. Murdered, 84. His ſepulchre deſcribed, ibid. (Z).
—— the ſon of Abſalom, takes Joppa, 85.
—— a Sadducee, ſets Hyrcan againſt the Phariſees, 95, (W).

Jonathan, the ſon of Ananus, made high-prieſt, 254, c. Refuſes a ſecond pontificate, 261, b. Ill uſed by Felix, 264, & ſeq.
— a Jewiſh impoſtor, his puniſhment, 291, a, (G).
Jones, the moſt ancient name of the Greeks, ii. 345, b.
Jones, Inigo, his notion about Stonehenge confuted, vii. 339, & ſeq.
† Jonia, part of Aſia Proper, ii. 288, & ſeq. Deſcribed, 748. Its various fates, ibid. ad fin.
† — Panionium, what, 761, e, & not.
† Jonian confederacy, ii. 369. 761, & ſeq.
† — faction in Sicily, 507, c. Gulph deſcribed, iii. 240, (P).
† Jonians, their origin, ii. 345. 369. 759. Follow Nilæus in queſt of new ſettlements, 369, d. Drive the Carians, &c. out of Epheſus, 755, d. Their government, 761. Cantons, cities, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Seize on all the Carian women, ibid. d. Their religion, trade, &c. 762, & ſeq. Degeneracy, 763, d. Driven out of Achaia, 414, & ſeq. Retire into Attica, 415, b. Treachery to the Scythians, 285, a. Revolt from the Perſians, 107. Succoured by the Athenians, 109, a. Deſtroyed by the Perſians, ibid. & ſeq. Invaded by Cyrus, 763. Settle in Abdera, 764, d. Courted by Themiſtocles, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Shake off the Perſian yoke, 128, b. 765, & ſeq Their various fates ſince, 766, ad fin. Settle in Samos, iii, 188, e. Treachery to the Chians, 210, c. Submit to Cæſar, v. 149, a.
Ionic ſect. an account of, i. 18, a.
† Joppa deſtroyed by Judas, iv. 66, b. Taken by Simon, 83, b. Deſcribed, 85, b, c. Taken by the Romans, 272, c. By Antigonus, 432, b. Retaken by Jonathan, 597, b.
Joram, ſon of Hamath, ſent with preſents to David, i. 390, d.
— king of Iſrael, confederates with Ahaziah, i. 388, a, b. Ill ſucceſs againſt Syria, ibid.
† Jordan, river, its ſource, i. 577, (S) 578, a. Courſe, ibid. Why ſo called, ibid. (T). Thought to have a ſubterranean communication with the Nile, ibid. (X). Deſcribed, ibid. d, & ſeq. How croſſed by the Iſraelites, 553, c, &c. Two monuments of that miraculous paſſage, 554, b.
† Jorham founds the kingdom of Hejaz, i. 131. Where ſited, ibid. b.
† Joria, the region of, where ſited, iii. 257, b.
Jornandes confounds the Dacians and Goths, v. 677, b. His account of the Dacian war, ibid. & ſeq.
—his fabulous account of the Hunns, vii. 458, b, c.
Joſeph born to Jacob, i. 442, Why his darling, 448, e, & not. Hated by his brethren, 449, a. His two dreams, ibid. b, &c. Sold into Egypt, 450, a. Impriſoned for his continence, ibid. c, d. Interprets the butler's and baker's dreams, 453. And thoſe of Pharaoh, ibid. & ſeq. Raiſed by him, 452. Marries Potiphera's daughter, ibid. & ſeq. Rough behaviour to his ten brethren, 454, & ſeq. Stratagem on his brother Benjamin, 456. Sends for his father, 457, a, & ſeq. Buys all the lands of Egypt for Pharaoh, 459. Settles one fifth part on him, 460. b, c. Preſents his two ſons to dying Jacob, ibid. & ſeq. Receives his bleſſing from him, 465, a, b. Sumptuous funeral of him, 467, a—c. Kindneſs to his brethren after it, ibid. c, d. Laſt prophetic ſpeech to them, ibid. & ſeq. His death, ibid. e. Rabbinic additions to his hiſtory, ibid. (W). His bones carried out of Egypt, 502, d.
— a noble Jewiſh youth, ſaves his nation, iii. 640. Farms the revenue of Cœleſyria, 641, iv. 41, & ſeq. His ſucceſs in Egypt, 42, a. Progeny, ibid. c.
— the Maccabee left governor of Jeruſalem, 64, a. Defeated by Georgias, ibid: d.
— the third ſon of Antipater, 118, (H). Left with the care of Herod's family, 125, e. Beſieged in Maſſada, 127, b. Defeated and killed, 129, e.
— Herod's uncle's fatal indiſcretion, 135, a. Put to death, ibid, d.
— the ſpouſe of the virgin Mary, his genealogy, 155, a, & (Q). Death, 193, (X).
— of Arimathea, buries the body of Chriſt, 242, c.
— the ſon of Cami made high-prieſt, 263, c.
— his treachery to Nicephorus, vi. 582, a. Baniſhed
— refuſes to ſubmit to the pope, 635, a. Baniſhed, 583, b. ibid. b.
Joſephus, the Jewiſh hiſtorian, cenſured for differing from the book of the Maccabees, iv. 88, (G), 89, (I). Another error of his corrected, 93, (R). His teſtimony of Chriſt diſcuſſed, 248, (E). Releaſes ſome Jewiſh prieſts at Rome, 265, in fin. (F). Made governor of Galilee, 270, c. His brave defence of Jotapa, 271, b. Surrender, ibid. c, & (R). Speech to Veſpaſian, ibid. d. Promotion, 278, a, (F). Sent with offers of Peace to the Jews, 280, c. Speech to the beſieged, 281, c. Wounded by them, 283. Suſpected by the Romans, ibid. (R). Beloved by Titus, ibid. & ſeq.
Joſephus Ben-gorion, made governor of Jeruſalem, iv. 270, d.
— a fabulous one trumped up by the Jews againſt the hiſtorian, 292, b.
Joſhua, one of thoſe who ſearched the land of Canaan, i. 526, a. His good report of it, ibid. c. Deputed to fight againſt Amalek, 511, c, d. Defeats them, 512, a. Solemnly appointed Moſes's ſucceſſor, 537, d. How far inferior to him and other prophets, ibid. (C). Enters Canaan in the ninety-third year of his age, 551, b, c. Sends two ſpies to Jericho, ibid. d. Proclaims his paſſage over Jordan, 553. Encouraged by the divine appearance, 555, a. His miraculous taking of Jericho, ibid. & ſeq. Prophetic anathema on the rebuilder of it, 556, a, b. Puniſhes Achan's ſacrilege, ibid. c, (E). Cauſes the ſun to ſtand ſtill, 558. Some authors notion of that tranſaction examined, 559, & ſeq. Defeates the confederate Canaanites, 332, f. Conquers and divides the land by lot, 560, & ſeq. His death, 378, a.
Joſiah, king of Judah, miraculouſly foretold, i. 841, e. His good reign, ibid. & ſeq. And total reformation, 842, b—d. Repairs the temple, 843, b. The book of the law found in his reign, ibid. c. Keeps a grand paſſover, 844, c, d. Mortally wounded, 845, b. Dies at Jeruſalem, ibid. c.
† Jotapa taken by the Romans, iv. 271, e, (Q).
† Jotham, an old tribe of Arabs, vii. 243, d.
Jotham, the only ſon of Gideon, that eſcapes the maſſacre, i. 747. His excellent apologue againſt Abimelech, ibid. c, d. The ancienteſt piece of that kind, ibid. not. Flees to Beer, 749.
— ſucceeds Azariah in Judah, i. 830, a. Dies after a glorious reign, ibid. c.
Jou, Jovis, the Gauliſh name of Jupiter, vii. 353, c, (L).
† Jougous, mountain, its poiſonous weed, iii. 251, d.
† Joviani, who, vi. 347, a.
Jovianus ſent into Pannonia, vi. 313, d. Proclaimed 340, a. His excellent character, ibid. b, c. Zeal for chriſtianity, 341, a, b. Diſadvantageous peace with Perſia juſtified, ibid. & ſeq. Faithfulneſs vindicated, 342, d, e. Repaſſes the Tigris, ibid. f. Edict in favour of chriſtianity, 343, & ſeq. Of orthodoxy, 344, d, e. Death, 345, d. Whether natural or violent, ibid. e, f.
Jovinus ſent into Pannonia, vi. 313, d. Into Gaul, 345, b, c. Succeſs and bravery there, 351, a—c. Signal piety, ibid. e, f. Different from the conſul of that name, 352, a. Sent into Britain, 353, b. (vol. vii. 435, d. 533, b, c). Againſt the Alemans, 354. Takes the purple, 367, a. His extract and character, ibid. e. Falls out with Ataulphus, ibid. & ſeq. Put to death, ibid. & ſeq. 349, f, & ſeq.
Jovius made prime miniſter to Honorius, vi. 460, b, c. Interview with Alaric, ibid. e. Swears perpetual war againſt him, ibid. & ſeq. Sent to treat with Attalus, 461, e. Treachery to Honorius, ibid. & ſeq.
Iphicles, the philoſopher, informs againſt Probus, vi. 363, b, c.
Iphicrates, the Athenian, his character, ii. 537, b Succeeds Thraſybulus againſt Rhodes, 538. Commands the auxiliaries againſt Egypt, 147, e. Falſely accuſed by the Perſian general, 148, f. 541, a. Acquitted, ibid b. Raiſes the ſiege of Corinth, 613, a.
— his friendſhip to Perdiccas, iii. 286, d.
Iphidamus, the ſon of Antenor, killed, ii. 315, b.
Iphigenia, the fable of, probably from Jephtha's ſacrifice, i. 731, (O). Worſhipped by the Taurian Scythians, ii. 278, a.
Iphimedia carried off by the Naxians, iii. 220, d.
Iphitus, prince of Oebalia, killed by Hercules, ii. 400, e.
— king of Elis, reſtores the Olympic games, 409, b.
Irege, king of Perſia, according to oriental writers, ii. 181, c. Murdered by his two brothers, 182, b.
† Irem, the famed garden and city of, vii. 242, a.
Irene converted, and married to Conſtantius, vi. 554, b. Diſgraced for her devotion to images, 557, a. Takes the reins during her ſon's minority, ibid. c. Allies with with Charles of France, ibid. d. Breaks off, and marries her ſon to Maria, ibid. e, f. Stripped of her power, 558, b. Reſtored, ibid. d. Undermines her ſon, 559, a—c. Cauſes him to be murdered, ibid. d. Enters Conſtantinople in triumph, ibid. e. Her popularity, ibid. f, & ſeq Courted by Charles the great, 560, a, b. Depoſed and confined, ibid c, d. Her death, ibid. e.

— encourages Alexius to regain the empire, 625, b—d.
Irenæus pleads Antipater's cauſe before the ſenate, iv. 186, & ſeq.
— biſhop martyred, vii. 403, c.
Irens, in Sparta, their office, ii. 563, d.
† Iris, a river in Pontus, deſcribed, iii. 720, d. 722, e.
Iron, king of Tyre, i 417, e.
Iron, the melting of, where firſt found out, iii. 162, b.
Iſaac born, i. 429, d. Why ſo called, 427, (Q). Mocked by Iſhmael, 430, a.
— his age, when offered up by Abraham, 431, b. Marries Rebecca, 433, d. His two ſons by her, 437, a. Goes to Gerar, 438, b. Covenant with the people, ibid. d. Over-reached by Jacob, 439, b. Bleſſes Eſau, 440, a. His death and burial, 448, d.
— Comnenus ſeizes upon Cyprus, vi 622, a. His cruelties there, ibid. b. Defeats Angelus's fleet, 623, c.
— Angelus's narrow eſcape, 622. Proclaimed emperor, ibid. d. Severity to Andronicus, ibid. e, f. Succeſs in Sicily, 623, a. Vain attempt on Cyprus, ibid. c. Treachery to Barbaroſſa, ibid. f, & ſeq. Forced to ſubmit to him, 624, b—d. Defeated by the Scythians, ibid e. Loſes his eyes and liberty, ibid. & ſeq. Releaſed, 626, b, c. His death, ibid e.
Iſaſienſes protect Firmus, vi. 366, e.
Iſagoras, head of the Athenian faction, ii. 466, d Aſſiſted by the Spartans, ibid. & ſeq.
Iſaiah, the prophet, heartens the king of Judah, i. 831, a. His prophecy of a virgin's conceiving, ibid. Turns back the ſhadow to confirm Hezekiah, 838, e. That tranſaction diſcuſſed. ibid. (T). His prophecies concerning Chriſt, explained, iv. 157, a, & notes.
† Iſanthus, a king of the Crobyzi, iii. 794, b.
Iſarna, a Bathian prince, vii. 492, d.
† Iſaure taken by Servitius, v. 95, a. Where ſituate, ibid. (I).
† Iſaurians, their deſperate defence, iii. 420, c. Revolt and bravery, vi. 182, e, & ſeq. Reduced by Probus, 201, b. By Gallus, 289, c. Stripped of their plunder, and forced to ſubmit, 370, c, d. Ravage ſeveral provinces, 451, e, f. Baniſhed out of Conſtantinople, 518, e. New revolt, ibid. f. Defeated, 519, a. Maintain a ſix years war, ibid. d Forſake their country, ibid e, f.
† Iſca, Uſk, a Roman gariſon, vii. 411, b. The antiquities, of, ibid. c.
Iſdigerd I. king of Perſia, according to oriental writers, iv. 382. Why ſurnamed the wicked, ibid. Sends his child to Arabia, ibid e. Killed by a ſea horſe, ibid. f.
— II. his excellent character, 383, & ſeq. Expedition againſt the Greeks, 386, b Iſdigertes, Iſdegertes, the Iſdigerd of the oriental writers, iv. 403. His character, 338, b. Made guardian of Theodoſius, ibid. c, (N). A favourite of the chriſtians, 339. His genealogy according to oriental writers, 403. Invaded by Omar, 404. Defeated and killed, 405, b—e.
— the laſt king of the Perſians, ibid. & ſeq. & (M).
Iſdegeſtes, king of Perſia, perſecutes the chriſtians, vi. 442, b. Whether left guardian of Arcadius's children, 459, c, d.
Iſhbibenoth, the ſon of Goliah, very near killing David, i. 357, b.
Iſhboſheth proclaimed king of Iſrael, i. 773, a. Barbarouſly murdered, 774.
Iſhmael born, i. 426. Why ſo called, ibid. (L). The prophecy of his deſcendants verified in the Arabs, ibid. (M). Sent away with his mother, 430, a, b.
— the murderer of Gedaliah and his Chaldeans, 851, b.
— made high-prieſt, iv. 194, b.
— the ſucceſſor of Ananias, 265. Depoſed for his zeal, 226, d.
— outwitted by Manuel, vi. 568, d. Fury againſt Theophilus, 569, e.
† Iſhmaelites, who, and where ſited, vii. 226, d.
Iſidorus, Caius Cæcil. his immenſe wealth, v. 325, f, & ſeq.
— raiſes a revolt in Egypt, vi. 69, f.
— the ſuppoſed forger of Conſtantine's grant, 248, d, e.
† Iſis of the Egyptians, the ſame with the moon, i. 13, c. And Oſiris, the chief deities of Egypt, 204, a. How repreſented, 205, d. Her feſtival ſolemnity celebrated, 207, a. Why called the goddeſs of health, 218, e. The ſuppoſed daughter of Mercury, 241, d. Her hiſtory, ibid. & ſeq.
† — ſtately temple at Buſiris, 245, d. Its ruins deſcribed, ibid. (C).
† Iſland, ſacred, or holy, how formed, iv. 470, d.
† Iſmenus, river, in Bœotia, ii. 370, e.
Iſocrates's orations to Nicocles, iii. 181, e.
† Iſpahan, a city in Perſia, iv. 289, c.
Iſpara, a deity among the Malabarians, i. 33, d.
Iſpar. Ha, the firſt principle among them, ibid. c.
Iſpendyar defeats the king of Touran, ii. 219, b. Takes and kills him by an odd ſtratagem, 220, c. Killed in ſingle combat by Ruſtan, 221, a.
Iſraelites. See Jews, i. 421, & ſeq.
— blended with the Jews, iv. 2, e. 4, (F).
Iſraelitiſh kingdom ended, i. 835.
† Iſſa, or Antiſſa, a city in Leſbos, iii. 203, & ſeq. Beſieged by the Illyrians, iv. 685. Taken by the Romans, 686, a.
† Iſſachar, born of Leah, i. 442, a. Jacob's prophetic bleſſing to him, 463, b, & (K).
† Iſſer, river, in Numidia, vii. 116, c.
† Iſſus, a city in Cilicia Proper, ii. 351, c.
† — the gulph of, ibid.
† — the battle of, iii. 335, & ſeq. 440, & ſeq.
— won by Severus, vi. 109, e.
† Iſtachr, in Perſia, the ſame with Chilminar, ii. 226, c.
† Iſter, the ancient name of the Danube, ii. 266, 268.
Iſthmian games, their origin, &c. ii. 329, (G).
† Iſtiæotis, part of Theſſaly, ii. 381, a.
† Iſtria conquered by the Romans, iv. 690, e.
† Iſtrians ſubdued, iv. 360, c.
† Iſurum Brigantum, where ſited, vii. 412, b.
† Itabyr, mount, deſcribed, iv. 272, (W).
† Itaca, the ancient name of Utica, whence, vi. 665, d.
† — iſland, deſcribed, iii. 241, f.
Italian allies, their repreſentation to the ſenate, v. 47, d. Somewhat cooled by the Julian law, 51, b. Made into a new tribe, ibid. f. Careſſed by Sulpicius, 53, c.
Italicus, made king of the Cheruſci, v. 501, a.
— king of Suevia, declares for Veſpaſian, 623, b.
— Silius, the poet, his writings and character, 693, ſub not.
† Italy, whence ſo called, iv. 407, b. Deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. Its diviſion, 408.
— Propria, its territories, iv. 410, & ſeq. Chief rivers, 413, b. Mountains, ibid. c, d. Ancient inhabitants, 414, & ſeq. Whence called Italy, 417. Viſited with the plague, 561, & ſeq. Invaded by the Gauls, ibid. & ſeq. Second invaſion, 581. The reſt ſee ſub Gauls.
— divided into two republics, v. 48, f, & ſeq. Into regions by Auguſtus, 328. And in the map. Greatly oppreſſed by the army, 614, d. Relieved by Vitellius, 616, d, e. Divided between him and Veſpaſian, 629, d.
— invaded by the Marcomani, vi. 68. Ruined by Dioclesian, 210, a. Ravaged by the Goths, 449, b, c. Freed from them, 451, a. Invaded by Rhadagaiſus, 452, b, c. Subdued by Odoacer, 514, a, b. By Theodoric, 516, e, f. By the Lombards, 532, paſſ Peopled by the Celtes, vii. 323, d, (E). Ravaged by Attila, 478, & ſeq.
— the diſtrict of, its provinces, 270, & ſeq.
† Ithamas Portus, where ſited, vii. 234, b.
† Ithobal, ſon of the chief prieſt of Aſtarte, ſeizes on the Tyrian kingdom, i 415, c. Called Ethbaal in ſcripture, ibid. Gives his daughter Jezebel to Ahab, ibid d.
— II. king of Tyre, 416. Slain by Nebuchadnezzar, 417, a, b.
† Ithome, built and fortified, ii. 572. Taken by the Spartans, 576, a Seized by the Helotes, 595, e.
† Itius Portus, where, vii. 424, (C).
† Iturea given to Herod, iv. 143, b, & (W).
† Itureans, why ſo called, iv. 97, (B). Forced to circumciſe, ibid. a. Where ſited, vii. 229, a.
Iturius, the accuſer of Agrippina, baniſhed, v. 524, a—d.
Juba comes to Cato at Utica, v. 157, a. Affronted and defeated by Cæſar, 163, e. (vii. 135, & ſeq.) Killed, ibid vii. 137, b, & (W), (X). Hath Mauritania given to him, 157, b.
— invaded by Bogud. 165, c.
— the young ſon of Juba, led in triumph, 167, e. His education education and learning, ibid. & (O). Marries young Cleopatra, 294. b.

Jubilee year of the Jews, i. 614, a. Why ſo called, ibid. & (O). When begun, 615. When firſt celebrated in Canaan, ibid. b, c. Whether on the forty-ninth or fiftieth year, 616, b, c. Why and how celebrated, 617, b, c.
† Jubones hurt by ſubterranean fires, v. 529, d. Their mad way of extinguiſhing them, ibid. e.
† Jucatan, the province of, whence ſo called, i. 169, e.
† Judæa, whence ſo called, i. 567. Seized on by Antigonus, iii. 432. By Ptolemy, ibid. f. Recovered by the former, 433, e, f. By the latter, 440, d. By Antiochus, 537, f. By Philopator, 538, e, f. By Antiochus, 543, d, e. How it came to continue under Seleucus, 571, c, d. Waſted by Antiochus, 580, & ſeq.
— its forlorn ſtate after the captivity, iv. i. & ſeq. Made a province of Syria, 27, a. Under the government of high-prieſts, ibid. & ſeq. Alternately oppreſſed by Syria and Egypt, 30, 35, a, b. Polluted and deſerted, 53, & ſeq Reſtored by Judas Maccabeus, 58, & ſeq Invaded by Lyſias, 63, b. By Bacchides, 70, b. Freed by Jonathan, 83, c. Subdued by Pompey. 111. & ſeq. Deeply taxed by Caſſius, 121, b. Viſited by peſtilence and famine, 142. Laid waſte by ſeveral factions, 188, & ſeq. Made a Roman province, 262, d. Infeſted with ſicarii, 264. Filled with ſlaughter, &c. 268, ad fin cap. See alſo vol. v. 218, c. 336, & ſeq.
Judah born of Leah, i. 441, c. Perſuades his brethren to ſell Joſeph, 449, d. His ſons by a Canaanitiſh woman, 450. Outwitted by his daughter-in-law, 452, b, c. Jacob's prophetic bleſſing to him explained, ibid. & (G).
† — his lot in the promiſed land, 569.
— the tribe of, ordered to begin the war with the Canaanites, 738, d. Defeated by that of Benjamin, 741, Defeats it with great loſs, ibid. &c.
† — the wilderneſs of, 575.
Judaïcius's ſucceſs againſt the Romans, v. 50, b. Bravery and death at Aſculum, 51, c.
Judas Maccabeus ſucceeds his father, iv. 57, & ſeq. Defeats the Syrians, 58, a, b. 59, c—e. And Lyſias, 60, & (T). Reſtores the divine worſhip, 61, paſſ. Defeats the Idumeans, 63, b, c. Vaſt ſucceſs in Gilead, 64, b, c. And Idumea, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Makes peace with Syria, 65, c. Defeats Timotheus, 66, & ſeq. Returns victorious, 68, a, (H). Offers ſacrifices for the ſlain Jews, ibid. d, (I). Forces Antiochus to a peace, 69, c. Defeats Alcimus, 71, a. Eſcapes Nicator's treachery, 72, c, d. Defeats and kills him, 73, d, e. Allies with Rome, ibid. & ſeq. How ſtyled high-prieſt by the Romans, 71, (L). Defeated and killed, ibid. & ſeq.
— the brave ſon of Simon ſent againſt Cendebeus, 88, b.
— an Eſſenian prophet, foretels Antigonus's death, 97, (C).
— Galileus, head of the Gaulonitiſh faction, 169. Raiſes an inſurrection, 202, & ſeq.
— a doctor, raiſes a revolt againſt Herod, 182, e. Burnt alive, 183, c.
— The ſon of Hezechias, raiſes a new ſedition, 188, c. Suppoſed the Theudas mentioned by St. Luke, ibid. d, & (S).
— al. Jude, choſen an apoſtle, 208, (T).
— Iſcariot, one of the twelve apoſtles, 208, (T). Why ſo called, ibid. in fin. not. Why choſen into the college, 216, (I). His avarice reproved, 277, d. His reſentment at it, ibid. e, & 232, b, (I). Sells his maſter, 233. Betrays him, 234, b. His remorſe and kind of death, 236, a, (S).
† Ivelius, a river, in Danmonia, vii. 407, d.
Judges and courts of judicature among the Jews, i. 670, a. Qualities required in them, ibid. Held at the gates of the cities, ibid. b. Laws relating to them, 669, b. Rabbinic traditions concerning them, 671, (Y).
— Conſtantine's laws concerning them, vi. 256, d, e.
Judgment, the city of, deſcribed by Chriſt, iv. 233, b.
Judith, Eſau's firſt wife, why alſo called Adah, i. 441, (X).
— frees her country by murdering Holophernes, 901, c What credit may be given to her hiſtory, ibid. (Y).
Jugæus, king of Babylon, i. 945, c.
Jugurtha's arrival at Scipio's camp, iv. 786, a. His deſcent, v. 6, a. Seizes on the Numidian crown, ibid. e. Bribes the Roman ſenate, 7, b. Treachery and cruelty to Adherbal, ibid. & ſeq. 8, f. Summoned to Rome, 11, a, b. Eſcapes by bribery, ibid. & ſeq. Bidding farewel to that city, 12, a. Over-reaches Albinus, 12, b. And Aulus, 13, b. Makes the Romans paſs under the yoke, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Metellus, 14, f. By Marius, 16, a. Outwitted by Metellus, ibid. e, f. Defeated, 20, b, c. 24, b, c. Gives Sylla a free paſſage, 25, e. Betrayed by Bocchus, 26, & ſeq. Sent in chains to Rome, 27, b. His dominions, how divided, 28, a, b. Led in triumph, 30, b. His ſad end, ibid. d. See alſo vol. vii. 127—134.
† Jubones, who, and where ſited, vii. [407], d.
Julia, married to Pompey, v. 114, a. Her death and funeral honours, 124, a.
— Antony's mother's brave ſpeech to him, 226, c, d.
— Octavius's daughter betrothed to Antyllus, 277, f. Intrigues with Antony's ſon, 294, b. Her incontinence, 324, e, f. 326, c. Baniſhed into an iſland, ibid. d, e. Removed to the continent, 333, d. Her ſad end, 358, a, (M).
— the true daughter of the former, baniſhed for the ſame crimes, 326, paſſ. Her death, 335, b.
— ſiſter to Brutus, her death and funeral honours, 414, d.
— the wife of Nero, betrays him to Sejanus, 340, & ſeq. Married to R. Blandus, 449, b. Put to death, 496, c.
— daughter of Germanicus, married to Vinicius, 437, (N). 446, c. Honoured by Caligula, 460, c, d. The ſame with Livilla, ibid. (I). Baniſhed for her lewdneſs, 475, e, (T). Re-called and re-baniſhed, 493, b. Put to death, 496, c.
— Septimius Severus's wife, her lewd character, vi. 104, f. Studies philoſophy, ibid. & ſeq. Prevents her ſon's reconciliation, 122, d, e. Wounded at Geta's murder, f. In favour with Caracalla, ibid. & ſeq. 128, d. Starves herſelf to death, 130, c.
— Mamea, the mother of Alexander, 137, b. 138, a. Suppoſed to have been a chriſtian, ibid. b. Her excellent education of her ſon, ibid. c High ſway and titles, ibid. e, f. Murdered in Germany, 145, f. Deified by the ſenate, 146, a.
Julian the apoſtate, his judgment of M. Aurelius, vi. 78, d, e. 81, a, b. Of Porphyry, 223, & ſeq. ſub not. His birth, 226, f. Partiality againſt Conſtantine refuted, 266, d. 269, a, & ſeq. Saved by Euſebia, 293, e, f. Declared Cæſar, 296, e Succeſs in Gaul, 297, & ſeq. Noble defence at Sens, 298, d, e. Succeſs againſt the barbarians, 300, c, d. 301, c. Againſt the Franks, 302, c. And Allemans, 305, a. Stripped of his beſt forces, 308, & ſeq. Proclaimed emperor, 309, e, f. Accepts the empire after having uſed ſome witcheries, 310, a—c. Generoſity to Conſtantius's friends, ibid. d, e. How raiſed to the empire, ibid. & ſeq. Submiſſive deputation to Conſtantius, 311, b—d. Succeſs in Germany, 312, a, b. Impoſes on the chriſtians, ibid. c, d. Swears his army to him, 313, a. Letters to Athens, ibid. b, c. Marches againſt Conſtantius, ibid. d. Seizes Illyricum, ibid. e. Funeral obſequies of Conſtantius, 314, e, f. His extract, education, and character, 319, & ſeq. Abode in Ionia, 320, c. Singular hypocriſy, ibid. d, e. Studies magic, 321. Abode at Athens, ibid. & ſeq. Cæſarſhip, and behaviour in Gaul, 322, e, f. Writings, ibid. & ſeq. Frugality, 323, b, c. Reduction of taxes, ibid. e, f. Apoſtatizes, 324, a, b. Public entry into Conſtantinople, ibid. d, e. Severe proſecutions, 325, paſſ. Reforms the court, ibid. e, f. Which he fills with philoſophers, magicians, &c. 326, a, b. And women, ibid. c, d. His meanneſs to the ſenate, ibid. & ſeq. Partial juſtice at Antioch, 327, a—f. Horrid cruelties and witchcrafts, 328, a, b. Purſued by famine, ibid. c. His idolatry, &c. lampooned by the Antiochians, ibid. d, e. Writes his Miſopogon againſt them, ibid. & ſeq. Renews the Perſian war, 329, b, c. (See alſo vol iv 335, & ſeq.) Deluded by oracles, ibid. d. Sharply reproved for his apoſtaſy at Beræa, 330, b, c. His helliſh ſuperſtition at Carrhæ, ibid. & ſeq. Ill treatment of Arſaces, 331, b, c. Succeſs in Perſia, ibid. & ſeq. Paſſes the Tigris, 333, a. Betrayed by Perſian guides, ibid. c, d. Burns his fleet, and retreats, ibid. d, e. In great diſtreſs, ibid. f. Surpriſed by the Perſian army, 334, a. Wounded, ibid. c. Laſt ſpeech, ibid. e, f. Death, 335, a. Buried at Tarſus, ibid. b. Removed to Conſtantinople, ibid. c. His motley character, ibid. & ſeq. Hatred to the chriſtians, 337, a, b. Vain attempt to rebuild the temple of Jeruſalem, ibid. c. Writings, ibid. (H, I). Laws againſt chriſtians repealed, 346, b.

Julian the ſon of Conſtantine beſieged, 446, e. Beheaded, 467, b.
—— a friend of Conſtantius unjuſtly condemned, 327, e.
Julian law, what, v. 51, b.
Julianus Claudius's treachery to Vitellius, v. 630, b. Scourged, and put to death by Lucius, 632, e.
—— Tertius, broke for defection, 644, f. Reſtored, 645, d.
—— Antonius, an account of his writings, 707, ſub not.
—— Salvius, publiſhes his perpetual edict, vi. 37.
—— his grandſon, put to death by Commodus, 88, e, d.
—— captain of the guards, put to death, 91, a—e.
—— Did. Sever. buys the empire of the ſoldiery, 99, e, f. His riſe and pedigree, 100, a—c. Character, names, &c. ibid. e, f. Acknowledged by the ſenate, 101, paſſ. Curſed and pelted by the people, ibid. d, e. Oppoſed by two powerful rivals, 105, & ſeq. Cruelty and deſpair, ibid. & ſeq. Forſaken and proſcribed, 106, b, c. His death, &c. ibid. d, e.
—— M. Aurel. proclaims himſelf emperor, 209, d. Stabs himſelf, 211.
—— Ruſticus, a caſt-off candidate for the empire, 352, b.
—— made prince of Apſites, 18, c.
—— Paulus, his writings and character, 59, ſub not.
—— Didius, made proconſul of Afric, vi. 92, c.
—— Solin. Polyhiſtor, his writings and character, 121, ſub not.
—— Titianus, his writings, &c. ibid.
—— Martialis, conſpires againſt Caracalla, 128, e. Stabs him, and is killed, ibid. f.
—— governor of Aſia, deſtroys the Goths there, 388.
—— choſen decemvir and dictator, iv. 592.
† Julius, by whom built, iv. 195, a.
† Juliopolis. See Tarſus, ii. 341, a.
† Julis, the famous ruins of, ii. 217, e. Its worthies, ibid. & (U).
Julius Sext. ſpeech to the Achæans, ii. 693, e. Outwitted by Critolaus, 694, b.
—— Cæſar. Vid. Cæſar, v. 43, & ſeq.
—— Marinus, put to death, 445, c.
Julus Aſcanius why ſo called, iv. 420, (G).
—— his ſon's conteſt with Sylvius, 421, c.
June, the month of, changed, v. 560, e.
Junia draws Brutus into a conſpiracy, v. 179, d.
—— the ſiſter of Silanus baniſhed, 506, a.
Junius M. put to death by Tarquin, iv. 460, b.
—— Pera, choſen dictator againſt Hannibal, 713, e.
—— Brutus ſettles a colony in Spain, 184, c.
—— Silanus, ſaved by a ſlave, v. 226, f. Returns to Rome, 273, e.
—— Priſcus, put to death, 472, c.
—— Palmatus's ſucceſs in Armenia, vi. 140, c.
Juno, Jupiter's queen, ii. 262, a. How worſhipped at Argos, 705, note.
† —— her famed temple at Samos, iii. 187, c. Worſhipped at Carthage, vi. 686, paſſ.
† Junonia, iſland, deſcribed, vii. 148.
Jupiter, or Ammon, one of the Egyptian deities, i. 205, e. Principally worſhipped at Thebes, 207, c. By the Celtes, ii. 251, c. His birth concealed by his mother, 260. His other names, 261, & notes. Dethrones his father, ibid. Wars with his uncle Titan, ibid. & ſeq. Divides his empire, 262, & ſeq. Deflowers his niece Maia, 263. Has Mercury by her, ibid. His death and ſepulchre, ibid. & ſeq. Challenged by the Scythians as their progenitor, 283, e. His ſtatue and temple at Cyzicum, 324, a.
Jupiter, one of the Titans, iii. 163. Where brought up, ibid. e. By whom nurſed, 165, b, & (K).
—— his ſtatue ſet up in Solomon's temple, iv. 52, d. In that of the Samaritans, ibid. c.
—— Imperator, his ſtatue brought from Præneſte, 576, e.
—— temple at Rome burnt, v. 548, a. Worſhipped at Carthage, vi. 687, a. Why ſo named, ibid. (T). When that title ceaſed, 220, b. When firſt worſhipped in Gaul, vii. 349, d, & ſeq. & (D). That name not adopted there, 353, c. How worſhipped, ibid. & ſeq. In Germany, [419], a, b. By the Garamantes, 166, c, (F). By the Arabs, 249, b.
Juſta, the daughter of Valentinian, turns nun, vi. 352, 420, f.
Juſtin Martyr's account of the Septuagint verſion, iv. 38, ſub note. His ſarcaſm, on the heathen idolatry, vi. 38, e. Preſents his apology to Antoninus, 58, e.
—— the abridger of Trogus, his character, 59, (E). Different from the martyr, ibid
—— the emperor proclaimed, 522, e. His riſe and character, ibid. & ſeq. Conſpired againſt, 523, a. Rejects Cabades's propoſals, ibid. c, d. His edict against the Arians, ibid. e. Death, &c. 524, a. Piety to the deſtroyed cities, ibid. f.
—— nephew of Juſtinian proclaimed, 531, d. Incenſed againſt the Avari, ibid. e. Cruelty to Juſtin, ibid. f. Protects the Perſarmenians, 532. Runs mad, ibid. e. His death and character, 533, b.
Juſtina's great ſway over Valentinian II. vi. 403, a. Favours the Arians, ibid. b. Perſecutes the orthodox, 406, d, e. Her death, 414, c.
—— the wife of Valentinian, vi. 346, f. Her iſſue, 352, e. Goes with him into Illyricum, 362, f.
Juſtinian choſen conſul, vi. 523, b. Copartner with Juſtin, 524, a. Succeeds him, ibid. c. Propoſals of peace rejected by the Perſians, 525, c, Stratagem againſt them, ibid. d, e. Peace with them, ibid. f. Inſulted at Conſtantinople, 526, a. Fatal jealouſy of Beliſarius, ibid. e. Freſh peace with Perſia, 527, b. Truce, ibid. f. Wars with the Oſtrogoths, vii. 651, & ſeq. 653, & ſeq. Conſpired againſt, 530, a. His death and character, ibid. b. Code, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
—— the kinſman of Juſtin, his ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, 533, b. Diſgraced, ibid. c.
—— II. choſen emperor, vi. 546, f. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Bulgarians, 547, a. Breaks the peace with the Saracens, ibid. b. Defeated by them, ibid. c. Bloody revenge on the Sclavi, ibid d. His maſſacre of the Conſtantinopolitans prevented, ibid, e. Depoſed, 548, a. Defeated and baniſhed, ibid. b. Flees to Chazari, ibid. e, To the Bulgarians, ibid. f. An inſtance of his unforgiving temper, 549, a. Reſtored to his crown, ibid. b. Cruelties and ingratitude, ibid. c. Defeated by the Bulgarians, ibid. d. Horrid butcheries, ibid. e. Taken priſoner, and beheaded, ibid. f.
Juſtinian code, compiled and publiſhed, vi. 484, b, c.
Juſtinianus's brave defence of Conſtantinople, vi. 650, f. Death, 653, a.
† Juthongi, revolt, vi. 201, d. Invade Rhætia, 303, d. Settle in Thrace, 529, a. Defeated by Ætius, vi. 481. e. vii. 543.
† Jutes, their origin, vii. 440, & ſeq. Why called Giotæ, 441, d.
† Jutland, conquered by the Goths, vii. 489, c.
Juvenal, the ſatiriſt, an account of, v. 692, ſub not.
Juvenales, games inſtituted by Nero, v. 535, c.
Juvencus's writings and character, vi. 275, ſub not.
Juventius, ſent againſt Andriſcus, iii. 504, a. Defeated and killed, ibid. b, c.
—— Thalma, defeated, iv. 774, c.
Izates, prince of Adiabene, preferred before his brother, iii. 849. Is circumciſed, 850. Invaded by Abias, ibid. d. By the Vologeſes, ibid. e. His deliverance and death, ibid. f. Character, 851, a, b Tomb at Jeruſalem, ibid. c. Friendſhip to Artabanus, iv. 316, b, c.
Ized, the ſon of Mahuvias, waſtes Phrygia, vi. 545, b. Ravages Sardinia, ibid. c.
—— Mualbis revolts in Perſia, 552, b.
Izeth repulſed before Conſtantinople, vi. 551, c. d.

K

KABUZ, king of Egypt, whether the Pharoah of Moſes, i. 281, b.
† Kadeſh, in the wilderneſs of Zin, i. 531, b, vii. 227, d.
† Kadmonites, where ſeated, i. 324, (E).
† Kaer Went, the famed ruins of, vii. 411, b.
† —— Leion, ibid.
—— Philocaſtel, ibid, c.
† —— Gourtigern, conſumed by lightning, 445, d.
† Kaianites, the dynaſty of, in Perſia, ii. 274.
Kalendar, when rectified in Perſia, ii. 178, a. At Rome by Numa, iv. 437, d. By Cæſar, how, v. 170, & ſeq. & (R).
Kaob, a ſmith, ſeizes on the Perſian throne, ii. 180, & ſeq.
Kaphoreth, mercy-ſeat, whence that word, i. 654, (T).
Karaites, who, and whence ſo called, iv. 173, & ſeq. & (F, G). When ſeparated from the reſt, 175, & ſeq. & (I), (K). Why hated by the Jews, 177, & ſeq. (L, O).
† Karak, whether the antient Petra, vii. 226, b.
† Karioth, a city in Arabia Petrea, vii. 226, b.
† Kaſhan, a city in Parthia, iv. 289, c.

Kerban, the ſame with Joktan, vii. 244, a. His reign and progeny, ibid (O), & 267, b.
Kiaxlir's ſucceſs againſt Ethelbert, vii. 451, b. 452, e, f.
† Kidareni, antient inhabitants of Petrea, vii. 226, d. 229, a, b.
Kigenes's reception at Conſtantinople, vi. 600, b.
Kiteli, the firſt introducer of magic, i 280.
† Kinites deſcended from Jethro, i. 302, a. Join the Iſraelites, ibid. a. Why ſpared by Saul, ibid. c.
— another tribe of them, 324, (E).
† Kent inhabited by the Jutes, vii. 441, e. Seized on by Hengiſt, 443, d. Becomes a Saxon kingdom, ibid. & ſeq.
Kiakaus, king of Perſia, whether the Nimrod of Moſes, ii. 191, & ſeq.
Kiakobald ſaid to have converſed with Samuel, ii. 190, & ſeq.
Kiomar, king of Perſia, ii. 175.
† Kiobaab, the Arab tribe of, whence, vii. 277, c.
† Kibroth-Hataava, whence ſo called, i. 526, a.
Kibt, Kut, founds a monarchy in Egypt, i. 479.
† Kilan, a fruitful province of Perſia, ii. 31, (I).
Kingdoms, their eſtabliſhment, i. 171, b. Small at firſt, ibid. c, d.
Kings, their beginning tyrannical, i. 667, b. Their power, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Attire, 668, a.
† Kinnereth, the ſea of, deſcribed, i. 577, b.
† Kir-haraſheth, capital of Moab, i. 292, a.
† Kittim, where ſeated, i 168, f. iv. 417, b—e.
Kiun, conjectures on that idol, vi. 682, (P).
Kiuelinga, worſhipped by the Malabarians, i. 33, d.
† Kiz, iſland, where, vii. 235, d.
Knights, Roman, when firſt inſtituted, iv. 432. Four hundred degraded, 668, c. Made judges to private cauſes, 802. Puniſhed for extortion, v. 45, c. Conteſt againſt the ſenate, 47, e. Stripped of their juriſdiction, 51, e. One thouſand ſix hundred proſcribed by Scylla, 75, e. Butchered by Catiline, ibid. f, & ſeq. Total of them, 82. Courted by Cæſar, 114, b. Two thouſand proſcribed by the Triumvirs, 225, c. Petition againſt marriage, 337, e. Their power revived by Claudius, 515. Forbid the gladiatorial trade, 615. Why hated by Domitian, 681, paſſ. When firſt uſed for ſecretaries, vi. 47, d.
Kohath, head of a claſs of Levites, i. 663, b.
† Kolzum, a city of Arabia Petrea, vii. 227, c.
Korah, head of a claſs of Levites, i. 529, a. His conſpiracy and dreadful end, ibid. & ſeq. & (M).
† Koreſh, the Arab tribe of, ſeize on the Cabaa, vii. 277, d.
† Koſs, Cuſh, from whom ſo named, vii. 205, c.
— a famed Arab orator, 258.
† Krim, Crim, the peninſula of, iii. 841, b.
† Kuareſm, the province of, where, &c. ii. 197, b.
† Kur, a river of Georgia, iii. 839, d.

L

LABAN's reception of Jacob, i. 440, e. Cheats and oppreſſes him, ibid. & ſeq. Purſues him in his flight, 444, &c. Strife and parting with him, ibid. & ſeq.
Labaris, buried in Arſinoe's Labyrinth, i. 230, (K).
Labarum, Conſtantine's ſtandard, how carried, vi. 242, e, f.
Labdacus, king of Thebes, ii. 372, & ſeq.
Labeo's treachery to Metellus, iv. 768, b.
Labienus commands the Parthians, iv 307, c. Conqueſts in Syria, ibid d. Defeat and death, 308, a, b.
— ſucceſs in Belgium, v. 119, & ſeq. Againſt the Gauls, 126, e. 127, b. Againſt the Belgæ, 128, e. Goes over to Pompey, ibid. & ſeq. & (M). Joins Cato at Utica, 157, b. Succeſs againſt Cæſar, 159, d. Defeated by him, 160, e. Stirs up the Spaniards againſt him, 171, c. Defeated and ſlain, ibid. f, & ſeq.
— his ſon fights under the Parthians, 269, a, (E). Succeſs againſt Antony, ibid. b.
Labocſoarchod, falſly ſuppoſed the laſt king of Babylon, i. 968, f. His cruelty againſt Gobrias, &c. 968, a. Murdered after a nine months reign, ibid. & ſeq. Whether the Belſhazzar of Daniel, ii. 24, (C). His tyranny and death, 89, & ſeq.
Labotas's wars againſt the Argives, ii. 404, c.
Labynetus. See Nabonadius, i. 969, & ſeq.
† Labyrinth of Egypt deſcribed, i. 193, a—f. The remains of it, 194, c, d.
Lacedæmon, the ſon of Eurotas, ii. 395, a, b, (A).
† Lacedæmonia, whence ſo called, ii. 395, & ſeq. Why called Hecatompolis, 396, (B). Deſcribed, ibid, & ſeq. Its government, duration, &c. 388, & ſeq. Kings, 400, & ſeq. Why ſtiled Agidæ and Proclidæ, 404, b. The reſt ſee under Laconia, 344, & ſeq.
† Lacedæmonians, war againſt the Athenians, ii. 501, & ſeq. Truce, 508, paſſ. 512, a. Peace broken, 513, paſſ. Beaten by ſea and land, 526. Reduce the Athenians, 529, & ſeq. Make peace with them, 539, a, &c. Subdue the Thebans, &c. b, c. Renew the war, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated at Naxus, 540, d. At Leucades, ibid. f. Their kings from Lycurgus to the Achæan league, 558. War with the Meſſenians, 570, & ſeq. Argives, 572, d. Defeated, 575, b. 578, a. Enſlave the Meſſenians, 582, a. Defeated at Thermopylæ, 588. Preparations againſt the Perſians, 119, & ſeq. 589, & ſeq. Defeat them by ſea and land, 136, & ſeq. 590, paſſ. And the Athenians, 602. Decree againſt them, 603, a. War with Perſia, 607. Make a general peace, 144. Exult upon it, 614, & ſeq. Defeated by the Thebans, 616, d. Defeat the Arcadians, 618, e. And Thebans, 619. Suffered to alienate their lands, 625, d. Reſtored to their old government, 629, & ſeq. Defeated at Selaſia, 632, & ſeq. Subdued by the Macedonians, 634. Chuſe two new kings, ibid. e. Defeated by the Achæans, 636, a. Enſlaved by Nabis, ibid. & ſeq. Plundered by the Ætolians, 639, d. Go over to them, 652, e. Break peace with the Achæans, 664, a. Join with the Romans, ibid. &c. Withdraw from the Achæan league, 678, paſſ. Reduced by Philopœmen, 679. Reſtored to their laws, 681, c. Complain againſt the Achæans, 691. Reimburſed by the Roman ſenate, 699.
— ſpeech to the Athenians, iii. 278, c, d. Join with the Macedonians, 281. Againſt the Olynthians, 285, b. Succour the Carthaginians, iv. 664, f. Rewarded by Auguſtus, v. 307, c.
† Lacetani, cut in pieces by Scipio, vii. 26, d.
Laches finiſhes the Coloſſus, iii. 130, (C).
† Lacinium, where ſited, vii. 9, (D).
Laco, a favourite of Galba, v. 584, a, b. 585, f. His character, 586, b—d. Promotes Piſo's intereſt, 590, & ſeq. Put to death by Otho, 597, b.
† Lacobriga, where ſited, v. 87, a. Beſieged by Metellus, ibid. & ſeq.
† Laconia, part of ancient Greece, ii. 344, b. Ancient name of Lacedæmon, 395. Its ſite, extent, &c. 397. Government, ibid. & ſeq. Invaded by the Athenians, 489, a. Divided by Lycurgus, 561. Plundered by Conon, &c. 143. By the Helotes, 594.
† Laconic, gulph, and its iſles, iii. 242, e.
— ſtyle, what, ii. 564, b.
† Lactodorum, ancient Bedford, vii. 409, b.
Lacumaces ſet on the Maſſilian throne, vii. 121, a. Submits to Maſiniſſa, ibid. d, e.
† Lade, the iſles of, iii. 212, c.
† — the ſea fight of, 210, c.
Ladice, a pretended miracle on her wedding, i. 271.
Ladies, Roman, whence their privileges, iv 559, c. A number of them turn poiſoners, 604, & ſeq. Others ſave their huſbands, v. 226, & ſeq.
— one thouſand four hundred ſeverely taxed by the triumvirs, 231, paſſ.
† Ladoga, the lake of, deſcribed, ii. 268.
Lælius ſent to ravage Afric, iv. 739, d. Defeats Syphax, 743, c. Brings him priſoner to Rome, 744, e. Defeats Aſdrubal, vii. 71, & ſeq. Interview with Maſiniſſa, 74, a. Burns the Numidian camp, 77, e. Bravery at the battle of Zama, 82, paſſ. Succeſs before Carthage, 103, c.
Lætus conſpires againſt Commodus, vi. 93, b, c. Raiſes Pertinax to the throne, 95, b, c. Revolts againſt him, 98, b—d. Put to death, 105, e.
— Severus's general reduces Meſopotamia, 111, c. Treachery to the emperor, 113, e. Death, ibid. & ſeq.
— the adviſer of Geta's murder put to death, 124, e.
† Læves, where ſettled in Italy, vi. 561, f. vii. 391, d.
Lævinus, admiral, againſt the Macedonians, iv. 719. Saves Tarentum, 721, e. Surprizes their camp, 722, e. Succeſs againſt the Carthaginians, 735, f. Againſt the Macedonians, 749, c.
Lævius's ill ſucceſs againſt the Epirots, iii. 809, b—e. Anſwer to Pyrrhus's letter, 808, e.
Lageion, the order of, whence, iii 625, a.
† Lagerium, where ſituate, vii. 412, b.
Lagides, the ſurname of the Ptolemies, iii. 625, a.
Lagodus driven out of Spain, vi. 455, d.

Lagus,

Lagus, his extract, iii. 624, e. Whether the father of Ptolemy, ibid.
Lais, an extravagant Corinthian harlot, ii. 391, c.
† Laiſh, city, deſtroyed by the Danites, i. 740, b.
Laius, the father of Oedipus, ii. 373, & ſeq.
—— king of Elis, his reign, 408, & ſeq.
Lakes, worſhipped by the Gauls, vii. 350, b, (F), 351, a, b, (G).
Lamachus ſent into Sicily, iii. 26, b. Killed before Syracuſe, 28, d.
—— governor of Heraclea, betrays it to Mithridates, 744, a, (F).
† Lamalmon, the famed mountain of, deſcribed, vii. 185, d.
Lamb, paſchal, how and why inſtituted, i. 604, paſſ. & (R).
—— daily ſacrifice ceaſed, iv. 284, d.
Lambs, the computation by, uncertain, iv. 268, b, (K).
Lamech, the fifth in deſcent from Cain, i. 77, a.
—— father of Noah, 78, a.
† Lamia beſieged by the Macedonians, ii. 721, f. Surrendered to the Romans, 722.
—— Ælius's death and character, v. 484, f. The cauſe of it, 674, e.
—— the concubine of Demetrius, iii. 447, e.
—— the ſtory of, vi. 806, (T).
Lamiſcus, king of the Lombards, vii. 615, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt the Bulgarians, 616, f.
Lampeto, queen of the Amazons, ii. 279, ſub not.
Lampo's cruelty to the Jews, v. 699, b. Turns evidence againſt them, 702.
Lampridius's account of the Perſian war, iv. 826, (C). His character, &c. vi. 220, (C).
—— an enemy to Sylvanus puniſhed, 294, & ſeq.
Lampſacians outwit Alexander, ii. 324, & ſeq.
† Lampſacum in Myſia, by whom built, ii. 324, d.
—— taken from the Athenians, 529, c.
† Land of promiſe, deſcribed, i. 567, & ſeq. Its ſite and boundaries, 568, b, c. Divided among the Iſraelites, 569, a, &c. Its natural and artificial rarities, ibid. ad 588. Why ſo altered for the worſe, 680, & ſeq.
Lands, how divided by Lycurgus, ii. 561, b.
Language, how confounded at Babel, i. 155, a—c. The number and confuſion of them, 558, b—e. See alſo Speech, i. 149—152, paſſ.
Langarus's kindneſs to Alexander, iii. 230, b.
Langians, taken and maſſacred, iv. 782, d.
† Langobriga, a city in Luſitania, vii. 296, e.
† Langres, revolt from, v. 598, & ſeq. New colonied by the Franks, vi. 212, b.
Laodamus's ill ſucceſs againſt the Epigoni, ii. 275, a.
Laodice, married to Perſeus, iii. 484, b.
—— the wife of Antiochus, poiſons him, 525, e, & ſeq.
—— of Mithridates, her lewdneſs puniſhed, 727, c.
—— of Orophernes, her cruelty puniſhed, 776, d.
† Laodicea, in Seleucia, where ſited, i. 361, a,
† —— the capital of Laodicene, ibid. d.
† —— in Media, deſcribed, ii, d. In Phrygia, 292. famed for its wood, ibid. e. Deſtroyed, 293, & not.
† —— by whom built, iii. 515, a. Declares for Niger, vi. 109, c. Plundered, ibid. e. Taken by Alexius, 616, e. By his ſon, 617, f.
Laodiceans, receive Dolabella, v. 218, f. Beſieged by Caſſius, 219, a. Betrayed by Quintius, ibid. d. How uſed by the conqueror, ibid. & ſeq.
† Laodicene, a province in Syria, i. 361, d, &c.
Laomedon, the ſon of Ilus, ii. 315, f. Builds the citadel of Troy, 317. His reign, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
† Laons, river, in Macedon, iii. 260, c.
† Lapathus, a city in Crete, deſcribed, iii. 173, b.
† Lapithæ, where ſituate, ii. 381, c.
† Lapytæ, one of the four parts of Cyprus, iii. 175, a.
† Lares in Numidia, deſcribed, vii. 109, d.
† Lariſſa, a city in Theſſaly, ii. 382, a.
—— reſtored to Zeno, vi. 516, a. Taken by Theodoric, vii, 520, b. 522, c. By the Bulgarians, 633, d.
† Lariſſo, a river in Arcadia, ii. 706, (Y).
Lartius, T. choſen dictator, iv. 482. Numbers the people, ibid. c. Defeats the Latins, ibid. & ſeq. Mild uſage of them, 484, paſſ.
Laſcaris, Theod. ſides with the uſurper Angelus, vi. 626, c. Erects the Nicean empire, 628, a, b. Succeſs againſt the Turks, 629, c, d. Death, 630, a. See alſo vol. vii. 286, f.
—— the ſon of Vataces, defeats the Bulgarians, vi. 631, f, & ſeq. His death, 632, c.
—— John, his hard fate, 634, d. vii. 287, f, & ſeq.
Laſer, a ſhrub, deſcribed, iii. 663, (H). Its gum deſcribed, vii. 170, & ſeq.
Laſthenes, his character, iii. 596, (H). Cruelties, 601.
—— Inthrones young Nicator, iv. 81, (U).
† Lateran, the Baſilica of, why ſo called, v. 551, c.
—— palace given to the pope, vi. 248, d.
Lateranus, Paul. reſtored by Nero, v. 520, d.
—— Plaut. conſpires againſt him, 551, c. 552, c.
Laterenſis, M. Jun. brave death and reward, v. 210, & ſeq.
† Lathon, river, where, vii. 170, c.
† Latialis, Jupiter, the temple of, 461, a.
Latiaris's treachery and puniſhment, v. 433, b—d.
Laticlavium, at Rome, what, 449, (G).
Latins, invaded by Tullus, iv. 444, a, b. By Ancus, 445, b, c. By Tarquin, 447. Outwitted, 460, e, f. Engage againſt the Romans, 479, & ſeq. 481, & ſeq. Defeated, 483, & ſeq. By Camillus, 568. By Quinctius, 578, c. Join the Campanians, 599, c. Defeated, 602, & ſeq. Their puniſhment, 603, e.
Latinus invites the Trojans, iv. 419, b. Killed, ibid. e.
—— the ſon of Telephus, king of Myſia, iii. 327, d.
† Latium, old and new, deſcribed, iv. 411, c, d. Its old inhabitants, 414, a, b. Subdued by the Romans, 602, & ſeq.
† Latomiæ, the priſon of, iii. 4, f, & ſeq.
Latona, where delivered, iii. 227, f. 231, c.
—— the oracle of, in Egypt, i. 211, e.
† Latopolis, ancient city of Thebais, i. 175, e.
Latos, a fiſh of the Nile, deſcribed, i. 182, d.
Laver of the Jewiſh tabernacle deſcribed, i. 662, & ſeq.
Lavinia delivered in a wood, iv. 421, b.
Lavinium, Æneas's camp ſo called, iv. 419, c. Given to Lavinia, 421, b.
Laurence's ſurpriſing conſtancy parallelled, iv. 246, (C).
Laurendians puniſhed by Perdiccas, iii. 420, c.
† Lauriacum, metropolis of Noricum Ripenſe, v. 314, in fin not.
Lauron, taken and burnt by Sertorius, v. 91, & ſeq.
Law, the ſacred volume of, how kept, i. 656, a. Found in Joſiah's reign, 843, c.
—— ſacred, what, iv. 623, f.
Laws, how enacted at Athens, ii. 440, d.
—— the body of, received at Rome, iv. 534, paſſ.
—— three forced by the ſoldiers on the ſenate, 598. Others by the plebeians, 603, c.
Law-ſuits, how carried on at Athens, ii. 443, & ſeq. Diſcouraged by Lycurgus, 565, c. How managed in Macedon, iii. 265, & ſeq.
Lawyers, ſuppreſſed by Valentinian, vi. 345, b.
Lazarus ſups with Chriſt, iv. 244, d. Raiſed from the dead, 226, d, & (Y).
† Lazi inhabit Colchis, iv. 352, c. Invite Coſrhoes, 353, b. The Romans, 355, c. Enſlaved by both, 356, d. Submit to Antoninus, vi. 56, f. Revolt to the Perſians, 527, c. To the Romans, 528, b, c. Abandoned by them, 529, a. Treachery to Heraclius, 541, a—d.
† Lazica, its ſituation, government, &c. vi. 507, c, d.
Leæna the Athenian courteſan's amazing conſtancy, ii. 454, & ſeq.
Leah, given to Jacob, i. 440, c. Her offſpring by him, 441, a—c.
Leander, Nicanor, his writings and character, vi. 51, ſub not.
† Lebanon, the famed foreſt of, i. 576, a.
† Lebedos, by whom founded, ii. 369, d. The ancient ſtate of it, 753.
† Lecheum, one of Corinth's ſea-ports, ii. 391, a.
Lectiſternium, appointed at Rome, iv. 558, a. How performed, 584, e.
Lectorius, C. ſpeech to the plebeians, iv. 515, d.
Lecumo's treachery to his guardian, iv. 562, b.
Leda, her fabulous offſpring, ii. 401, (L).
† Legion, the great plain of, i. 575, a.
—— whence ſo called, iv. 430, (A).
—— Roman, how compoſed, v. 365, (E).
Legions Roman, the ſtate of, vi. 140, e, f.
† Lehabim, who, and where, i. 165, d.
† Leleges, whether ancient Greeks, ii. 345.
Lemigius, murdered for extortion, vii. 686, f.
Lemnian men ſacrifice to Juno, iii. 135, c, d. Murdered by their wives, ibid.
—— women turn Amazons, ii. 358, c.
† Lemnos, iſle, inhabited by Amazons, ii. 383, (H). How taken by the Athenians, 466, in fin. (U). Deſcribed, iii. 233, & ſeq.
—— the

Lemnos, the labyrinth of, 235, a.
—— the ancient inhabitants, ibid. b. Government, 236. Plundered by the Heruli, vi. 184, c. Taken by the Saracens, 575, f.
† Lena, river, in Scythia, ii. 267.
† Lens the battle of, when fought, vii. 560, f.
Lex, marriages forbid during, vi. 394, a. And executing of criminals, 416, a, b.
† Lexobii defeated in Gaul, vi. 386, & seq. Submit to Gratian, 387, b.
Lentuli accompany Pompey in his flight, v. 147, c.
Lentulus, Corn. chosen dictator, iv. 615, d. Defeats the Samnites, ibid & seq. Commands in Spain, 738, f. Opposes the Carthaginian peace, 748, a. Defeats the Capuan slaves, v. 97, d, &c. Chosen censor, 99, d.
— Sura, chosen consul, 97, f. In Catiline's conspiracy, 104, a. Seized, 107, d. Put to death, ibid. e.
— Lucius's fatal piety to Pompey, 150, d.
— Publ. friendship to Brutus, 217, e, f.
— Cæcius goes into Pannonia, 262: c, Insulted, 263, d. Falsely accused, 422, a. Acquitted, ibid. b. His death, 427, a.
Leo, king of Sparta, ii. 582, c.
— a cruel collegue of Maximin, vi. 357, a, b. His death, 358.
—Eutropius's tool, defeated and killed, 442, f, & seq.
—pope, sent embassador to Attila, 497, c. His character of Martian, 504, c. See vol. vii. 480.
—— I. proclaimed emperor, 504, c. Peace with the Ostrogoths, 506, e, f. Embassy to Marcellinus, 507. To Genseric, ibid. Vast fleet against him, 508, f. Betrayed by Basiliscus, 509, & seq. Promotion of Zeno, 510, a, b. Flattery and cruelty to Asper, ibid. f. Dies, 512, a.
—— II. sent against the Saracens, 550, d. Success against Theodosius, ibid. f, & seq. Proclaimed emperor, 551, a. Edict against images, 552, b. Deserted by the Romans, 553, b, c. Dies, 554.
—— III. proclaimed, vi. 555, c. 556, c. Promotes his uncle, ibid. e. Severity against saint and image-worshippers, 557, a. Death, ibid. b.
—— IV. success against the Saracens, 562, e. Proclaimed, 563, b. Cruelty to Michael and his family, ibid. d. Victory over the Bulgarians, ibid. e, f. Zeal against image-worship, 564, a. Murdered at the altar, ibid. c. &c.
— the son of Michael made Cæsar, 573, a. Outwitted by a monk, ibid. e. Released by means of a parrot, ibid. f. His excellent character, 574, & seq. Causes a schism in the church, 575, pass. Invaded by the Saracens, ibid. f, & seq. His death, character, and writings, 577, a, b.
—Zeno's general's treason and death, 578, & seq.
— bishop, his golden machine melted, 571, e, f.
—Arcadius's general, defeated and killed, vii. 506, e, f.
—The compiler of the Theodorician laws, 417, e, (C).
—emperor, defeated by Genseric, 537, & seq.
—Phocas, defeated by the Bulgarians, 630, & seq.
—Moroleon's noble defence of Adrianople, 631, d. Tortured to death, ibid. e.
—— Melissænus betrayed by Stephen, 633, e, f.
Leon, king of Lydia, ii. 333, b.
—— surprises Acradina, iii. 76, e. Noble defence of Syracuse, vi. 779, pass.
† — a city in Sicily, described, iii. 115, sub not.
Leonatus rescues Alexander from the Malli, iii 398, d. His post after his death, 417, a. Succours Antipater, 449, e. Killed, ibid. f.
Leonidas's expedition against Xerxes, ii. 586, & seq. Noble answer to him, 120, d. Gallant death, 121, 588. His body abused by Xerxes, 122.
—— II. inlets luxury into Sparta, 625, d. Deposed, 627, a. Restored, ibid. e.
—— Alexander's tutor, iii. 317, b. Commands the turbulent cohort, 366, f.
Leonnorius settled in Galatia, vii. 393, & seq.
Leontia, crowned empress, vi. 536, b Her character, 137, a.
Leontidas, branded by Xerxes, ii. 122, in fin not.
—— head of the Ionian faction, 597, c.
Leontifera, an Heraclean ship so named, iii. 823.
Leontines come into Sicily, iii. 11, e. Oppressed by the Syracusans, 24, e. Peace with them, 25, c. Broken, 109, d.
† Leontini, a city in Sicily, described, iii. 3, d. Taken by the Romans, 109, e.
† — the lake of, described, iii. 3, e.
† Leontium reduced by Timoleon, vi. 781, e, f.
Leontius's treachery to the Achæans, ii. 657, & seq. To Aratus, 658, & seq. Forgiven, 659, c. Raises a tumult at Corinth, 660.
—— bishops indiscreet zeal against Eusebia, vi. 386, e, f.
—— the Chalcidian revolts from Zeno, 516, b. Defeated, ibid. c. Besieged three years in Palmyra, ibid. f. Dies, ibid. & seq.
Leontius, a patrician, imprisoned by Justinian, 547, f. Deposes him, 548, a, b. Proclaimed, ibid. & seq. Success against the Saracens, 548, b. Deposed, defaced, and imprisoned, ibid. c. Put to death, 549, b.
—— treason and defeat, vii. 522, c, d.
—— speech to the Franks, 561, & seq. sub (P).
† Leopards, the mountains of, in Judea, i. 121, d.
Leosthenes defeats Antipater, ii. 551, & seq. Killed before Lamia, ibid.
—— zeal for democracy, iii. 449, a, b. Success and death, ibid. c, d.
Leotychides I. chosen king of Sparta, ii. 459. Ends the Persian war, 126, 475.
—— II. crowned, 584. Victory at Mycale, 591, Dies in exile, 594, a.
—— the son of Agis, excluded, 605, d.
† Lephrium, the famed grove of, ii. 340, c.
Lepida Æmilia, banished, v. 407, b, c.
—— Domitia, her character, 515, & seq. Put to death by Agrippina, 516, b.
—— the wife of Cassius condemned, 560, a.
Lepidus, made guardian to Ptolemy Epiphanes, iii. 542, f, (B).
—— M. Æmil. chosen first consul, v. 83, c, d. Falls out with his collegue, 84, b. Twice defeated, ibid. & seq. Dies in Sardinia, 85, b, —— Jun. Brut. chosen consul, 185, b. Sent against the conspirators, 187, d. Allies with M. Antony, 193, f. His character, 209, d. Outwitted by him, 210, b. Proscribed, 211, e. Interview with him and Octavian, 221, & seq. Joined in the triumvirate, 224, & seq. Arbitrary triumph, 230, d. Consulate, 232, c. Sent into Afric, 270, c. Indolence there, 275, e. Lands at Lilybæum, 278. Jealous of Octavian, 280, & seq. Deposed by him, 281, f, (P).
—— Quint. Æmil. forces himself into the consulate, 306, & seq. & (M). Refuses the proconsulship of Afric, 408.
—— Manius's death and character, 448, & seq.
—— debauches Caligula's sister, 485, a, (T). Put to death, ibid.
† Lepontii, where seated, iv. 408, e, f.
Leprosy, defiling among the Jews, i. 688. Various kinds of it, ibid. (G). How, and by whom cured, 689, pass.
Leptines, admiral of Dionysius, iii. 50, a. Sinks five Carthaginian ships, ibid. f. Defeated by Mago, 51. Fatal generosity, 56. Death and character, ibid. & seq. Commands the Sicilian fleet, vi. 756, d. Inroads against Entella, 758, c. Success against Mago, 759, d. Defeated by him, 762, b, c. Slain at Cronion, 767.
—— tyrant of Leontium, submits to Timoleon, vi. 781, d.
—— of Engya, deposed by Timoleon, iii. 77, e.
† Leptis, besieged by the Esturians, vi. 349, c. Treachery to the Tripolitans punished, ibid. f, & seq.
† —— greater and lesser, described, vi. 669, b, c.
† Lerida, taken by the Suevi, vi. 489, e. vii. 544, b.
† Leros, island, described, iii. 212.
† Lesbians, their extent, iii. 205. Government, kings, &c. ibid & seq. Subdued by the Mitylenians, 206, a. Persians, ibid. e, f. Polycrates, 291, b. Treachery to the Ionians, 297, e. Various fates, ibid. & seq.
† Lesbos island described, iii. 203, b. Its first inhabitants, 205. Famed wines, 204, pass. Subject to the Trojans, ii. 309, b. Revolts from the Athenians, 505, a.
Lesbus, first king of Lesbos, iii. 205, c.
Leta, king of the Lombards, vii. 615, d. 616, f.
† Letes, who and where sited, vii. 544, b.
Letters, the first inventors of, i. 720. (T).
—— Coptic, whether the ancient Egyptian, 224, (M).
† Leucada, peninsula, described, ii. 746, a. Betrayed to the Romans, ibid. b.
Leucanor, king of Bosphorus, killed, iii. 843, a.
† Leucas, island, described, v. 241. 289, c. Taken by Agrippa, ibid. d.
—— capital of Acarnania, ii. 745. Taken by Leucas, ibid.
† Leuci, mountain in Crete, described, iii. 162, c.
Leucippus, author of the atomic system, i. 19, a.
—— king of Rhodes, iii. 105.
Leucon I. and II. kings of Bosphorus, iii. 841, d, e.
Leucopetra, the battle of, ii 697, c.
† Leucophris. See Tenedos, ii. 307.
† Leuctra, a city in Lacedemon, ii. 397, b. The battle of, 616, d.
Levi, born to Jacob, i. 441, c. His horrid slaughter of the Shechemites, 447, pass. His father's curse, how fulfilled, 462, a, (F).

Levi, the ſons of, obtain the prieſthood for their zeal, 521, & ſeq. Why they had no inheritance, 537, a. Their number upon entering into Canaan, 536, c.
—— the evangeliſt, why called Matthew, iv. 206; (Q). Vindicated againſt Porphyry, &c. ibid, Made an apoſtle, 208, (T).
Levirate, among the Jews, what, i. 678; d; (N).
Levites, how provided for, i. 627, b, c. Their three chief branches, 633. Conſecration, dreſs, &c. 644, a, b, c. Revenue and privileges, 645; & ſeq. White garments, iv. 267, c.
Leunigil, king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, vii. 492, e.
Leutharis heads the Franks into Italy, vii. 678, f. His army deſtroyed, 679, d.
† Lexovii, ſubdued by Cæſar, v. 121, b. vii 399, a.
† Liba, where ſituate, iii. 503, (S).
Libanius's account of the ſurpriſing conſtancy of ſome chriſtian martyrs, iv. 246; (C). His writings and character, ibid & ſeq. Account of the turbulent Franks, vi. 276, f. Of Julian in Germany, 298, a, b. Elegy on Nicomedia, 304, d. Silenced by Conſtantius; 321, b. Speech in favour of Antioch, 330, a. Character of Julian, 335, & ſeq. Speech to Valens; 372, c. Partial apology for Theodorus, 374, d. Narrow eſcape, 375. Invectives againſt Theodoſius, 403, e, f.
† Libanus, mount, why ſo called, i. 87, a. Its cedars, &c. 362, & ſeq.
Libellers, Arcadius's law againſt, vi 453, c.
Liberalia, the feſtival of, v. 174, (T).
Liberius pope's reproof to Euſebia, vi. 286, e. Baniſhment, 294, b.
—— ſent to relieve Syracuſe, vii. 674, c, d.
Libertem heads the Bulgarians in Thrace, vii. 623, e.
Liberti, made citizens at Rome. iv. 457, d, e. Reduced into four tribes, 691, b.
† Liberty, the chapel of, at Rome, iv. When built, 676, a.
† Libicii, where ſited, iv. 408, f.
Libitina, the goddeſs, her temple, iv. 455.
Libna revolts from Jehoram, i. 815, c.
Libo, C. Petilius's ſucceſs in Samnium, iv. 619, e.
—— Luc. Scribon. ſent to the triumvirs, v. 271, d. His extract, 386, d. Tried for high treaſon, ibid. & ſeq. Kills himſelf, 387, paſſ. Condemned, ibid. f.
—— death in Syria, vi. 65, b. His widow married to Severus's freedman, ibid. e.
Library of the capitol, deſtroyed by lightning, vi. 90, b.
† Libya, when firſt invaded, vii. 154, & ſeq. Why ſo called, 178, c. Deſtroyed by an earthquake, vi. 328, e.
† Libyans, their territories, vii. 119, a. How diſtinguiſhed, 120, c, d. When firſt incorporated with the Africans, 122, a, b. Civilized by Dido, 155, e, f. Their cuſtoms, &c. 177, paſſ. 213, f. Two hundred thouſand maſſacred by the Jews, vi 23, d, e. Their odd way of trading with the Carthaginians, 711, e, f. War with them, 851, & ſeq. Impriſon their general, 855, a. March againſt Utica, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated, 858, a, b. 860, c. Cruelty to the Carthaginians, ibid. e, f. Dreadful condition, 862, d—f. Diſmal end, 863, a, b.
† —— of Marmorica, deſcribed, vii. 167, & ſeq.
† Libyſſa, in Bithynia, deſcribed, iii. 826, e.
Lice, the plague of, in Egypt, i. 496, e. Why out of the power of their magicians, ibid. & ſeq.
Liches, a Spartan, carries off Oreſtes's bones, ii. 380, (M).
Licinia's pathetic ſpeech to Gracchus, iv. 807, b. Deprived of her dowry, 809, c.
Licinianus Perpenna's revolt quelled, vi. 171.
—— the ſon of Licinius, choſen Cæſar, 255, e.
—— ſent embaſſador to Euric, vii. 515, e, f.
Licinius Calvus, choſen military tribune, iv. 557, b.
—— Stolo's bold attempt againſt the patricians, 548, & ſeq. Speech to the plebeians, 580, a. Oppoſes the dictator, ibid. c, d. Choſen conſul, 584, d.
—— P. Craſſus, ſent againſt the Macedonians, 761, d. Defeated, ibid. e. Defeats them, 762, a.
—— L. Lucul. defeats the Sicilian ſlaves, v. 39, c, d. Baniſhed for extortion, ibid. e.
—— Sextus, murdered by Marius, 66, c.
—— Mucianus, his writings, 656, (D).
—— Ligurius, Q. ſaved by his faithful wife, 226, b. His death, ibid. c.
—— marries Conſtantine's ſiſter, vi. 218; f. 250, e. Choſen emperor, 236, c. His extract, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Choſen conſul, 238, c. Preſent at Galerius's death, 240, b, c. Marches againſt Maximin, ibid. d. & 252, c. Joins Conſtantine at Milan, 250, e. His viſion and prayer, ibid. d. Complete victory, ibid. & ſeq. Reception in Bithynia, ibid. Edict in favour of the chriſtians, 253, a. Severity to Galerius's family, ibid. e, f. Firſt war with Conſtantine, 254, & ſeq. Defeat, 255 & ſeq. Second war, 257, c, d. Totally defeated, ibid. e; f. Superſtitious ſpeech to his army, 258, a, b. Defeated at ſea, ibid. c, d. New peace broken, ibid. & ſeq. Defeat and death; 259, a; b.
Licinius, Conſtantine's nephew; put to death; 261; d.
—— Priſcus, ſent to Britain; vii. 431, d; (K)
Lictors; firſt choſen by Romulus, iv. 426, b, (Q).
Lights, the feaſt of, among the Jews, iv. 62, (W).
Ligaras's ſtratagem at the ſiege of Sardis, iii. 539, (Y).
† Liguria, deſcribed,, iv. 409, & ſeq. Made a Roman province, 690, d. Plundered by Attila, vi. 497, a. Ravaged by the Burgundi, vii. 584, f.
† Ligurians, Ligures, their origin; iv. 416, a: Defeated by the Romans; 681, d. 682, b. By Thermus, 753, c—e. Subdued by Flaminius; 756, b. By Sempronius, 760, paſſ.
—— Comati, ſubdued by the Romans, v. 316, c.
† Ligyes, who and whence; iv. 416, b.
† Lilea, a city in Doris; ii. 413, c.
Lilith; the Jews tradition concerning her; i. 72, (N).
† Lilybeum, the cape of in Sicily, iii. 1.
† —— the city of deſcribed, 7, b. 89, c. The poetic well of, ibid. d. The long ſiege of, iv. 669, c, d. Turned into a blockade, 672, e. Brave defence againſt Dionyſius; vi. 773, d. Againſt Phyrrhus, 815, & ſeq. Againſt the Romans; 845; a, b. Againſt the Carthaginians, vii. 20, a.
† Limigantes, among the Sarmatians; who, vi. 215, c. Driven out of Sarmatia, 303. Treachery to Conſtantius, 305, c. Cut off, ibid. d. See alſo vol. vii 609, & 610.
† Lindia, Minerva, her temple, iii. 129, (B).
† Lindum, Lincoln, metropolis of the Coritani, 410, b.
† Lindus, an antient city of Rhodes deſcribed, 129, c.
Lingones, made free of Rome, v. 602, f.
Linteata legio, what and whence, iv. 636, c.
Lions firſt fought in the Circus, v. 46, d. Forbid to be hunted for ſhews, vi. 470, c.
† Lions the city of, See Lyons, v. 210.
† Lipara, in Tuſcany, by whom built, ii. 370, a. Its ſituation, vi. 760, (K). Taken by Himilco, 760, b. By the Romans, 668, b.
Lipari, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 10, c. Seized by the Carthaginians, vii 19, d.
Liparites's ſucceſs againſt the Turks, vi. 599, d. Taken priſoner, ibid. e. Honourably diſmiſſed, ibid. & ſeq.
† Lippe, Lupia river in Germany, vii. [415], b.
† Liſbon, taken by the Suevi, vi. 505, c, d. Betrayed by Remiſmond, 510. See vol. vii. 545, e.
† Liſians, who and where ſited, vi. 495, b.
Litorius's ſucceſs againſt the Goths, vi. 483, c, d. 484, c. Defeated and killed, ibid. d. His character, ibid. & ſeq. See alſo vol. vii. 510, & ſeq, Lityerſes, king, his ſtrange character, ii. 303, a.
Livia married to Octavian, v. 275, e (N). Suſpected of the death of Marcellus, 304, f. Of Lucius, 330, e. of Caius, 332, f. For the baniſhment of Agrippa, 334, e. of poiſoning Octavian, 347, c, d. Her new names, honours, &c. 348, a. Proſtituted to Sejanus, 416, d, e. Incenſed againſt Agrippina, 418, c, d. Her death and character, 435, b, c.
—— the portico of, why ſo called, 316, b. The temple of, dedicated, 324, b.
Livian family, an account of, 356, (L).
Livilla, the daughter of Druſus, v. 301, c.
—— the wife, brought to-bed of two ſons, 401, b. Her death, 442, b, —— ſiſter of Caligula. See Julia, 460, (I).
Liviſa, ſlain by Theodoric, vii. 524, e.
Livius defeats Antiochus, iii. 555, d. Succeſs in the Helleſpont, 556, b, c. Succeeded by Æmilius, ibid. d.
—— Andronicus turns ſatires into regular plays, iv. 585, a. His extract, works, &c. 680, c, d.
—— Salinator reduces Illyricum, 691, c, d. Tried and condemned, ibid. e. Revenge on the tribes, ibid. f. Choſen conſul againſt Aſdrubal, 736, a.
—— Druſus, ſet to undermine Gracchus, 803, & ſeq.
—— Caius, betrayed by the Tarentines, vii. 51, d. Eſcapes drunk into the citadel, 62, b.
† Lixus in Mauritania deſcribed, vii. 141, d. The ſame with Tingis, ibid. e, f.
†—— the river of 142, a. 144, e.
† Locha, taken by Scipio, iv. 741, a.
Locharis ſeizes the ſovereignty of Athens, ii. 556, a. Depoſed by Demetrius, ibid. c.
† Lochore, the frith of, v. 667, a. The battle of, ibid. &c

Lachman, a Perſian philoſopher's character and writings, ii. 198, & ſeq. The ſame with Eſop, 199, & not.
—— king of the Adites, vii. 242, d, e.
—— the famed Arab fabuliſt, 258, (T).
Locri, Locrians, accuſed of ſacrilege, iii. 205.
† —— city relieved by Hannibal, iv. 735, e. Taken by Scipio, 739, e. Surrendered to Hannibal, vii. 41. Beſieged by Cluſius, 64, d, e. Taken by Scipio, 74.
† Locris, part of antient Greece, ii. 344, b. How divided, 412, a. Plundered by the Athenians, 489, a. Invaded by the Phocians, 610, e.
Locuſta poiſons Claudius, v. 516, c. Executed, 586, f.
Locuſts, the plague of, in Egypt, i. 498, e, f. Pernicious in Perſia, &c. ii. 47, e. How deſtroyed, ibid. & not. Deſtroy Africa, vii. 172, b. The food of the Ethiopians, 200, f. How caught, 201, a. Why ſo unwholeſome, ibid. b, (Z).
Lodbrog, king, his requiem before his death, vii. 420, (F).
Lollia, Paulina, married to Regulus, v. 328, a. To Caligula, 467, c. Her great beauty, ibid. & (L). Propoſed Claudius, 505, d, (O). Put to death by Agrippina, 507, a.
Lollius, a Samnite, revolts from the Romans, iv. 648, f.
—— M. refuſes the conſulſhip, v. 306, e. Defeated by the Germans, 613, b. Commands under Caius, 328, a. His diſgrace and death, 329, b.
—— Urbic. his ſucceſs in Britain, vi. 57, e. Works, ibid. & vii. 432, a, (M).
—— Spurius, proclaimed in Gaul, 183, f. His riſe, death, &c. 184, a.
Lombards, their origin, &c. vii. 614, e, f. Why ſo called, 615, c. Wars with the Gepidæ, 596, & ſeq. Settle in Pannonia, 615, d. Their character, kings, &c. ibid. e, f. Succeſs againſt the Vandals, 616, b. In Gothland, ibid. d, e. Againſt the Heruli, 617, a. Gepidæ, ibid. b—d. Settlement in Pannonia, ibid. e. Succeſs and conqueſts, 619, & ſeq. Begin a kingdom, 620, c. Split it into dukedoms, 621. Why, 622, b. Chuſe a new king, ibid. e, f. Their language, 625, (L). Break into Gaul, 689, c. Defeated by Ennius, ibid. d. Fall out with the Saxons, ibid. e. Chuſe Autharis their king, 681, d. Renounce Arianiſm, 684, d, e. 697, c. Succeſs againe the Romans, 694, & ſeq. The end of their kingdom, 719. Their character, &c. vindicated, ibid. e, f. Extent of their dominions, 720, c, d. Laws, ſee under Longobardian, 690, & ſeq. Their firſt invaſion of Germany, vi. 391; d, e. Kingdom in Italy, 532, a. Defeat of the Romans, 545, c, d. Oppoſe the Iconoclaſts, 552, f, & ſeq.
† Londobris, an iſland in Luſitania, vii. 298, f.
† London, abandoned to the Britons, v. 538, d, e. Delivered by Conſtantius, vi. 212, f. Whether it belonged to the Cantii, vii. 408, e, f. To the Trinobantes, 409, c. When founded, ibid. d. Why called Auguſta, ibid. e. Reſtored by Theodoſius, 435, d, e.
Longinus, Caſſ. ſent governor into Judea, iv. 263, b. Defeated in Gaul, v. 19, d. Choſen conſul, 46, a.
—— the tribune murdered, 494, d.
—— over-reached by Decebalus, vi. 13, f. Poiſons himſelf, 14, a.
—— the philoſopher, his writings and character, 196, (Z). And of the Moſaic books, 197, ſub not.
—— the brother of Zeno, defeated, 516, b. Excluded the ſucceſſion, 517. Raiſes new commotions, 518, e. Stripped and baniſhed, ibid. &c.
—— Saloninus's revolt, and dread puniſhment, 518, e, & ſeq.
—— defeated by Leontius, vii. 522. c. Reception of Roſamund, 679, e. New government, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and recalled, 681, b.
† Longobardi, who, and where, vii. 409, d, e. 614, f. Different from the Lombards,, 615, a. Why called Vinili, ibid. b. The reſt ſee under Lombards.
Longobardian laws, when and by whow compiled, vii. 690, a, (U). Corrected by Grimoald, 697, a. By Hildebrand, 709, b. By Aſtulph, 712, b, c.
† Lopaduſa, iſland, deſcribed, vi. 672, ſub not. 3.
† Lorgitæ, Ilergitæ, who, and where, vii. 9, b, (C).
† Lorium, the palace of, by whom built, vi. 56, c.
Lot, his extract, and adoption by Abraham, i. 282, c. Parts from him, ibid. e. Reſcued by him from the Canaanites, ibid. f, & ſeq. Leaves Sodom, 283. His wife's crime, and puniſhment, ibid. & 284, (N). Inceſt with his two daughters, ibid. & ſeq.
† Lotophagi, who, and where ſited, vii. 175, b. Why ſo called, 176, b. Their cuſtoms, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
† Lotus, the plant of, plentiful in Egypt, i. 183, b. Deſcribed, ibid. & vii. 176, b, d.
† Loventium, Toway in Wales, vii. 411, e.
† Louvain, where ſituate, vii. 107, c.
Lua, the goddeſs, whence ſo called, iv. 457, b, (I).
Lucan, the poet, conſpires againſt Nero, v. 551, d. Informs againſt his own mother, &c. 553, b. His death and laſt words, 556, & ſeq. & (N).
† Lucania, deſcribed, iv. 410, e. Laid waſte by the Romans, iii. 808, d.
Lucanians, hired againſt the Thurians, iii. 56, e. Overreached by the Samnites, iv. 607, f. Defeated by the Romans, 643, e, f. Totally ſubdued, 647, e. vii. 62, b. 69, d.
Lucas, baniſhed by Conſtantine, vi. 265, f.
Lucceius, L. Hir. v. 113, a, (R). Excluded the conſulſhip, ibid. b.
—— the tribune's propoſal, in favour of Pompey, 124, ſeq. 126, c.
Luceres, whence ſo called, iv. 432, a.
† Luceria, taken by the Romans, iv. 616. Retaken and colonied, 619. Deſtroyed by Conſtans, vii. 695, a.
Lucian's ſhameful exaggeration of a Roman victory, iv. 64, e. Character and writings, 81, & ſeq. ſub not. Over-reached by Alexander, 82, ſub not.
Lucianus's noble defence of Niſibis, vi. 279, b, c.
—— count, miſrepreſented to Arcadius, 432, d, e. Put to death, ibid. e.
Lucilius's brave expedient to ſave Brutus, v. 252, a, b. Rewarded, ibid. d.
—— a centurion murdered, 362, a.
—— Capito condemned, 449, c.
Lucilla, born to M. Aurelius, vi. 58, a. Married to L. Verus, 62, b. 65, b, c. Suſpected of poiſoning him, 68, a. Married to Cl. Pompeian. ibid. e, f.
—— ſiſter of Commodus, raviſhed and murdered by him, 86, c.
—— plots againſt Commodus, 87, e, f. Baniſhed, and put to death, 88, a.
Lucillianus ſent embaſſador to Sapor, vi. 303, a. Taken priſoner by Julian, 313, e. Commands his fleet, 331, d. Made general of Illyricum, 343, a. Murdered in Gaul, 345, b.
Lucina, Juno, why ſo called, iv. 455, b.
Lucius. Cæcil. defeated and killed, iv. 643, b.
—— Caius, killed for incontinence, v. 32, f.
—— Domitius, choſen to ſucceed Cæſar, 131, d.
—— Cæſar, choſen to intercede for the Romans, 162, b, c. Pardoned by Julius Cæſar, 164, e.
—— Pinarius, one of Julius Cæſar's heirs, 189, e.
—— Cæſar, condemned by the triumvirs, 223, e, f. Saved by his ſiſter, 226, c, d. Pardoned by Antony, 260, d.
—— the ſon of Agrippa, adopted by Auguſtus, 312, c. Bold demand of him, 324, d. Aſſumes the toga, 326, d. Dies at Marſeilles, 330, e.
—— brother of Vitellius, defamed by Otho, 605, a. Sumptuous banquet to him, 619, d. Sent againſt Veſpaſian, 630, b. Succeſs againſt him, 632, e. Surrenders, 635, b. His death and character, ibid. d, e.
—— Quietus, extract and bravery, vi. 19, d. Made governor of Paleſtine, ibidem, f. 24, c. Defeats the Jews, ibid. a. Depoſed by Adrian, 33, d. Put to death, 34, c.
Lucomonies in Etruria, what, iv. 417, & ſeq.
Lucretia, raviſhed by Tarquin, iv. 464. Her death, ibid. f.
Lucretius, created interrex, iv. 446, c. Conſul, 472, e.
—— ſucceſs againſt the Volſci, 519, a. Speech againſt Q. Cæſo, 520, f.
Lucullea, games ſo called, iii. 743, b.
Lucullian coin, ii 738.
Lucullus, general in Greece, ii. 738, paſſ.
—— ſent by Sylla into Egypt, iii. 664, b. Haughty meſſage to Tigranes, 701, f. March into Armenia, 702, b, c. Succeſs, 703. Againſt Mithridates, 705, c. Forſaken and recalled, 706, b, c. Treachery to Fimbria, 736, b. To Mithridates, 740. Succeſs againſt him, 741, & ſeq. Diſtreſſes him, 743, 745. Subdues Pontus, 746. Takes Amiſus, 747. Sinope, 748, c, (O). Forſook by his army, 750. Returns to Rome, 751, c. See vol. v. 95, & ſeq.
—— Licinius's cruelty to the Turduli, iv. 768, f, & ſeq.
—— Salluſt, put to death by Domitian, v. 674, f.
Lud, the ſon of Shem, where ſettled, i. 162, & ſeq. Whether the father of the Lydians, ii. 328, & ſeq.
—— a fabulous Britiſh king, vii. 421, a.
† Ludim people part of Abyſſinia, i. 165, c.
—— whether the Ethiopians, vii. 183, a. Why ſo like them, 193, b, c.
Luernius's famed ſumptuous feaſt, vii. 387, (Z).
Lugdunenſes rear a temple to Cæſar, vii. 401, c, d. An altar to Auguſtus, v. 319, b.
† Lugdunenſis Gallia, ſeized by the Burgundi, vii. 583, d, e.

† Luguvallum,

† Luguvallum, Carlile, why ſo called, vii. 413, b. Its antiquities, ibid. c.
† Lubith, a city of Moab, i. 285, c.
Luitbert, dethroned and murdered, vii. 699, a, b.
Luitprand, ſpared by Aripert, vii. 699, c. Conſpired againſt, 701, d, e. Raſh courage and generoſity, ibid. e, f. New body of laws, 702, a, b, (X). Invades Ravenna, ibid. d, & ſeq. Succeſs, 704; e, f. (vi. 552, d, e.). Reconciled to the pope, vii. 707, b, c. Reception of him, 708, d. e. Death and character, ibid. & ſeq.
Lupa, alias Laurentia, why ſo called, iv. 422, b. Nurſes Remus, &c. ibid.
Lupercalia, the feſtival of, iv. 422, (H). Deſcribed, v. 17. 178, d, (Y).
Lupercus's writings and character, vi. 185, (Y).
Lupicinus, ſent againſt the Scots, vi 308, e, f. Arreſted by Julian, 311, a, b. Sent againſt Procopius, 367, d—f. —— cauſes the Goths to revolt, 381, a, b. Defeated by them, ibid. c, d.
Lupus's ill ſucceſs againſt the Caledonians, vi. 114, d. 117, & ſeq. vii. 433, b, (N).—biſhop of Troyes, forced to abandon it, vii. 478, d —duke of Friuli, revolts, 696, b, c. Defeated and killed, ibid. d.
Luſcus, burnt alive, vi. 293, e.
† Luſitania deſcribed, vi. 295, e, & ſeq. Its cities, 296, & ſeq. Promontories, &c. 298, e. Rivers, 299. Inhabited by the Celtiberi, [324], d, e. Seized by the Alans, vi. 463, a. By the Suevi, 505, c, d.
Luſitanians, defeated by the Romans, iv. 758, e. By Sempronius, 760, b. Defeat Mummius, 767, e. Treacherouſly uſed by Cæpio, 783, & ſeq. Conquered, 784, b. By Brutus, 786, a. Make Sertorius their general, v. 86, & ſeq. Form a republic, 87, d. Civilized by him, 88, paſſ. Over-reached by Cæſar, 176, b. Subdued by Cariſcus, 299, e.
† Luſtrum, at Rome, what, iv. 457, b, c.
Luſus, an ancient king of Spain, vii. [321], b.
Lutatius, Catul. ſucceſs in Sicily, iv. 677, & ſeq. Peace with Carthage, 678, & ſeq. See alſo vol. vi. 849, & ſeq. vii. 1, & ſeq.
—— Cerco's ſucceſs in Hetruria, iv. 619, b, c.
—— defection from Brennus, vii. 393, d.
Luterius, defeated by Cæſar, v. 128, f.
—— a poet, condemned to death, 410, & ſeq.
Lutian youths puniſhed by Scipio, iv. 787, e.
Luxury, retrenched at Rome, v. 3, a. 12, c. 338, b, c.
Luz. See Bethel, i. 324, a. The meaning of that word, ii. 328, b.
Lybia, Lybiſſa, Hannibal buried at, vii. 92, (R).
† Lycæan Jupiter, and games, ii. 738, e.
† Lycæum, at Athens, what, ii. 436, e.
Lycaon, the fable of, ii. 376, & not.
—— II. king of Arcadia, 378. His numerous iſſue, ibid. & ſeq.
Lycaonia, made a Roman province, v. 300, c. Freed from the Perſians, vi. 177, b. How divided by Valens, 372, d.
Lycaſtes, king of Crete, iii. 166, d.
† Lychnides, a city, and lake in Macedon, iii. 225, b, &c. 260, e
Lychnites, a Parian marble ſo called, iii. 222.
† Lychus, a city in Crete, deſcribed, iii. 161, c.
† Lycia, deſcribed, ii. 337.
† Lycians ſide with the Trojans. ii. 319, e. Their origin, government, &c. 338, & ſeq. By whom ſubdued, 339. Why ſo called, iii. 166, c. Complaint againſt the Rhodians redreſſed, 152, c—e. Their freedom reſtored, 156, b. Invaded by Brutus, v. 236, c, d. Diſfranchiſed by Claudius, 496, b, (A). By Veſpaſian, 650, d. Degraded by Rufinus, vi. 422, a. Reſtored by Arcadius, ibid. b.
Lycomedes, king of Scyros, kills Theſeus, iii. 232.
Lycophron wars with Philip, 292, b, c.
† Lycopolites, a nome in Egypt, ſo called, i. 211, a.
Lycortas Achæan prætor's ſpeech to the ſtates, ii. 680, a. Revenges Philopæmen's death, 682, & ſeq.
† Lycoſura, by whom built, ii. 378.
Lycurgus, infant prince of Nemea, killed by a ſerpent, ii. 358, c.
—— king of Arcadia, 379, e.
—— the Spartan law-giver, refuſes the crown, 399. Recalled from exile, ibid. New-models the government, ibid. & 557, & ſeq. His laws, ibid. & ſeq. Approved by the Delphic oracle, 560, b. Why not written, 566, f. His death, honours, &c. 568, paſſ.
—— a private man, choſen king of Sparta, 634, e. Defeats the Macedonians, 635, b. The laſt king of Sparta, ibid. e.
Lycurgus invades Meſſenia, 657, e.
† Lycus, the ſon of Pandion, king of Athens, ii. 338, c.
—— the court of, 444, d.
† —— the river of, different from the Marſyas, 294, c.
† —— river in Aſſyria, i. 859, a, (I). In Armenia, iii. 694, a. Deſcribed, 553, (T).
† Lydia, deſcribed, ii. 288; & ſeq. 328, a. Part of Asia Proper, ibid. &c. Its origin, 329, d. Government, ſoil, &c. 330, & ſeq. Revolt againſt Crœſus, ibid & not. Laws, cuſtoms, &c. 331. Kings, 332, & ſeq. Subdued by the Perſians, 337. Over-run with Goths, vii. 495, d.
Lydians, firſt called Mæones, 163, d.
Lydus, the ſon of Atys, i. 163, d. King of Lydia, ii 328, a. 332, c.
Lyerſus, father of Antenor, ii. 314, d.
† Lygians, Logiones, who and where, vii. [409], b, c. Defeated by Probus, 528, e. Ally with the Suevi, 542, a, b.
Lynceus, made king of Argos, ii. 353, c, e.
—— why famed for his keen eyes, 402, c.
† —— a mount in Arcadia, 381. Pillar ſet upon it, ibid.
† Lynceſtbi, who and where, iii. 257, b. Invaded by the Macedonians, 282, c.
† Lyons, in Gaul, by whom founded, v. 210, (R). When burnt, 560, (R). Declares for Vitellius, 600, c. Deſtroyed by Severus, vi. 113, f. Taken by the Vandals, 453, f. By the Burgundi, 504, b. Retaken by Majoranus, 505, e. By the Burgundi, 510, d. vii. 583, d—f.
Lyſander Spartan admiral's character, ii. 600, f. Victories, 528, c. Sets up thirty tyrants over Athens, 530, a. 603. Attempts the ſovereignty of Greece, 601, paſſ. Defeats Conon, 529. 602. Diſmantles Athens, 603, b. Outwitted by Pharnabazus, 604, & ſeq. Goes into Aſia, 607, & ſeq. Raiſes freſh troubles, 609. Sent againſt the Phocians, 611, a. Killed, ibid. c.
—— Spartan ephorus's offers rejected, 622.
Lyſia, viſited by Adrian, vi. 36.
Lyſias ſent againſt the Jews, iii. 582, e. Defeated, 583, b. Seizes on Syria, 585, b. Defeated by Judas, 586, f. A freſh, 587, e. Aſſaſſinates Octavius, 588, & ſeq. Put to death, 591, c. See alſo vol. iv. 58, & ſeq.
Lyſicles, defeated by Philip, iii. 307, d. Put to death, ibid e.
† Lyſimachia, by whom built, iii. 488. Overturned, ibid. d. Rebuilt, 545, e.
Lyſimachus, tutor to Alexander, iii. 315, b. Poſt after his death, 417, b. Defends it againſt Seuthes, 419, d. Gains Thrace, 435, b. Succeſs againſt Antigonus, 439, & ſeq. Againſt Demetrius, 442, a, b. Seizes on Macedon, 468, d. Poiſons his eldeſt ſon, ibid. e, f. Defeated and killed by Seleucus, 469, a.
—— governor of Jeruſalem, iv. 48, d. Extortions on the people, 49, b. Maſſacred, ibid. c.
—— the brother of Apollodorus murders him, 99, b.
Lyzandra, married to Agathocles, iii. 468, d. Perſecuted by Arſinoe, ibid. e.
Lyzanias, king of Chalcis, aſſiſts the Aſmoneans, iii. 854, c. Put to death, ibid. d.

M.

MAAKAH, the wife of king Rehoboam, i. 806, e. —daughter of Tolmai, married to David, 773, a.
Maaziah, Ahaz's ſon killed, i. 831, c.
† Macæ, who and where, vii. 175, b. Their cuſtoms, &c. 176, a.
Macaon's ſtrange prophecy and death, v. 464, d.
Macareus ſettles in Leſbos, iii. 105, c. His reign, &c. ibid. e, f.
Maccabees, their victories over the Syrians, iii. 581, b. 583, a. 586, & ſeq. Why ſo called, iv. 57, (P). Their wars, ibid. & ſeq.
—— the firſt and ſecond book of, 43, (Q). 57, (P).
Macedo, who, i. 243, d. ii. 253, (A).
† Macedonia, denoted by the land of Chettim, i. 168, f. Why ſo called, ii. 253, a, (A). Deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. Its ſoil, richneſs, &c. 260, & ſeq. Antiquity, laws, &c. 162, & ſeq. Invaded by the Athenians, 267, a, By the Illyrians, 291, c. Subdued by the Romans, 493, f, & ſeq. Its new diviſion and government, 496, & ſeq. Various changes ſince, 500, & ſeq. See alſo vol. iv. 761, & ſeq. Reduced by Andriſcus, 774, b. Retaken by Metellus, 775, a. Taken from the ſenate, v, 378, e, (G). Plundered by the Hunns, vii. 468, f.
—— empire, how divided after Alexander's death, iii. 315, 417—423.
Macedonians, originally Argives, iii. 262. Their laws, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Religion, 264, & ſeq. Ignorance of ſea affairs, 265, d. Months, 266. Coin, 267, a. Language, diſcipline, &c ibid. & ſeq. Encamping, fighting, 268, & ſeq.

ſeq. Kings, 271, & ſeq. Dependent on Perſia, 275. Faithfulneſs to them, 276, & ſeq. Defeated by the Lynceſthi, 282, e. Rewarded by Alexander, 405, paſſ. Mutiny, 406. Frighted at an eclipſe, 492, b, c. Invade Perſia, ii. 15, & ſeq. 159, & ſeq. Gain an immenſe booty, 60. & ſeq. War with Athens, 542, & ſeq, Divided into two factions, 553.
Maccabæus a hermit's noble ſpeech to the Antiochian judges, vi. 410, e.
— orthodox biſhop of Conſtantinople, depoſed, 521, f.
Macer's extortions and revolt in Afric, v. 589, c. Death, ibid. d.
— Marcus's ſucceſs againſt Vitellius, 607. Defeated and degraded, 609, a. Faithfulneſs to him, 622, c.
Macharidas defeated and killed, ii. 635, & ſeq.
Machpelah, purchaſed by Abraham, i. 432. Abraham buried at, 434. And Iſaac, 448, d.
† Macocana, where ſited, vi. 670, b.
† Macra, river, the boundary of Etruria, iv. 410, d.
Macrian legion, by whom raiſed, v. 589, c.
Macrianus defeated by the Franks, vii. 557, a. b. By Valentinian, 593, f. His death, 594. b, c.
Macheus, great conqueſts, vi. 724, e, (E). Baniſhment, 725, b. Beſieges Carthage, ibid. c. Severity to his ſon, 726, a. Puniſhed, 727, a.
— a magician, enemy to the chriſtians, vi. 173, e. Treachery to Valerian, 174, d. Riſe and character, 178, e. Proclaimed emperor, ibid. f. Succeſs againſt the Goths, 180, c. Defeated and killed, ibid. e.
— king of Germany ſubmits to Julian, vi. 305, a Narrow eſcape, 157, f. Peace with Valentinian, 362, d, e.
Macrinus aims at the empire, vi. c—e. Murders Caracalla, ibid. f. Choſen emperor, 129, b. His extract, &c. 130. Acknowledged by the ſenate, ibid. f. Ill ſucceſs in Parthia, 131. c—e. Wholſome laws, ibid. e, f. Conſpired againſt, ibid. f. Cowardice and flight, 133, & ſeq. Death, 134, a—d.
— Varus's ſucceſs againſt the Germans, 140, a.
Macro ſeizes Sejanus, v. 439, d. Guards the empire, 446. Treachery to Scaurus, 449. To Aruntius, 452, d, e. Murdered with his family by Caligula, 466, a, b.
Macrobians, why long-lived, vii. 202, c. Their king's anſwer to Cambyſes, 212, c—e.
Macrobius's writings and character, vi. 477, ſub not.
Macron's treachery to the king of Egypt, iii. 575, (S).
† Madai plants Media, i. 163, b, c. The father of the Medes, ii. 1, a, b. not. Of the Macedonians, ibid. (G).
† Madain, capital of Perſia, iv. 392, c. Beautified, 393, f.
† Madaura in Numidia, where ſited, vii 111, a.
† Madiba, taken by Hyrcan, iv. 92, a.
† Madian, in Arabia, vii. 182, b. By whom founded, 238, b, c.
† Madrid, where ſited, vii. 607, a, (I).
Madyes king of Scythia's conqueſts in Aſia, ii. 281, & ſeq.
Mæandrus's generoſity to the Samians, iii. 195, b, & ſeq. Invaded by Syloſon, 196, & ſeq. Retires to Sparta, 197, b. Forced to ſhelter at Samos, ibid. c, d.
† Mæatæ, in Britain, where ſeated, vi. 118, b. Revolt, 119, e. Put to the ſword, ibid, f. Peace with Caracalla, 122, b. See vol. vii. 414, b.
Mænicepto, ſlain in Spain, vii. 409, b.
Mænius, Spur. raiſes troubles at Rome, iv. 505, & ſeq. Attempts the ſovereignty, 547, f. His accuſation and death, 548.
Mæſia conſpires againſt Macrinus, vi. 132, d. Her character and iſſue, ibid. d, e. Bravery, 133, paſſ. Made a ſenatreſs, 136, c. Care for young Alexius, 137, & ſeq.
† Mæſia, how divided, vi. 254, f. Put to fire and ſword, 175, c, d.
Magas's fifty years reign in Cyrenaica, vii. 174, a.
† Magdala, where ſituate, iv. 218, (M).
Magdalen, Mary, converted by Chriſt, iv. 224, d, (U). Profeſſion blamed, 227, d. Preſent at the crucifixion. 240, c. Brings news of his reſurrection, 244, b, c.
Magee, Magi, of Perſia, their phyſiology, i. 31, c, d. Notions of the gods, and the world, 32, b. Enemies to idolatry, ii. 71, c. Care of the elements, 75. Sect deſtroyed, 102, d. Religion, how old, 206, & ſeq.
— perſecute the chriſtians, iv. 332, c. Put a trick upon the king, 339, b. Decimated for it, ibid. c. Cruelty to the chriſtians, 340, b.
† — an iſland in Ethiopia, vii. 190, b.
— from the eaſt, come to Chriſt at Bethlehem, iv. 160, & ſeq. Preſents to him, 162, (D).
Magic, when and how invented, i. 120, (N). Eſteemed in Egypt, 220, c. Its founders according to Pliny, 494, (E).
Magicians of Egypt mimic ſome of Moſes's miracles, i. 494, (E). The vaſt diſparity between them, ibid. & 495.
Magilus conducts Hannibal over the Alps, vii. 14, a, b.
Magiſter militum, his office, vii. 417
Magiſtrates, how choſen by Tiberius, v. 358, & ſeq. & (O).
Magius's bold deſign againſt Hannibal, iv. 714. Bold ſpeech againſt him, vii. 33, c. Delivered up to him, ibid. d.
Magnentius conſpires againſt Conſtans, vi. 280, f. Murders his friends, 281, a, b. Cruelties at Rome, 282, a, b. Deputies to Conſtantius, ibid. b, c. Succeſs againſt him, 283, e. Bold meſſage to him, ibid. f. Bloody witcheries, 284, a, b. Defeated, ibid & ſeq. Retires to Italy, 285, a, b. Beat out of it, ibid. e, f. Treachery to Gallus, 286. Abandoned by his troops, 287, c. Deſpair and death, ibid. e.
† Magneſia, part of ancient Greece, ii. 344, b. Of Theſſaly, 381, b.
† — a city of Lydia, ii. 329, b.
† — the battle of, iii. 564, & ſeq.
† Magnum promontorium, in Luſitania, vii. 298, e.
Magnus conſpires againſt Maximin, vi. 152, b. Put to death, ibid. c.
— condemned to rebuild a church he had burnt, vi. 346, d.
Mago's genealogy, vi. 708. Writings, 709, paſſ. Succeeds Machæus, 737, f. Made admiral, 759, c. Defeats the Syracuſans, 762. Defeated by Dionyſius, 769, & ſeq. Peace with him, 770, a—e. Returns to Carthage, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and killed, 771, c, d.
— his ſon ſucceeds him, 772, a. Defeats the Syracuſans, ibid. b, c. Peace with them, ibid. d. Ill ſucceſs againſt them, 779, paſſ. Outwitted by Timoleon, 780, a, b. Baſeneſs to Icetas, ibid. d, e. Deſperate end, ibid. f.
Mago aſſiſts the Romans, vi. 815. Succeſs againſt Pyrrhus, 816, b—d. Sent in purſuit of the Romans, vii. 18, b. Goes to Carthage with Hannibal's ſucceſs, 34, d, & ſeq. Sent for reinforcements into Spain, 35. Countermanded from aiding Hannibal, 41, f. Sent into Spain, 42, b. Defeats the two conſuls, 55, a, b. Defends new Carthage, 60, a. Raiſes new forces, 63, d. Noble defence of Locri, 64, d. Defeated in Spain, 68, e, f. Afreſh, 69, f. Retires to Gades, 70, e. Sends for freſh ſuccours, ibid. & ſeq. Sent into Italy, 72, d. Cruelties at Gades, ibid. e, f. Winters in the Baleares, ibid. & ſeq. Reinforces himſelf in Liguria, 73, a, b. His column near Lacinium, ibid. c. Speech to the Gauls, &c. 74, b. Defeated, 79, f, & ſeq. Sails for Carthage, 80, a. Dies of his wounds, ibid. b.
† — a city in Minorca, 308, c.
Magoclunus's wicked reign, vii. 451, f.
Magog, the ſecond ſon of Japhet, where ſettled, i. 167, d. Miſtakes of ſome authors rectified, ibid. & 168, b, &c. The father of the Scythians, ii 241, & ſeq.
† — a city of Cyrrheſtica in Syria, i. 361, b.
Magus, who, i. 88, b. And Amynus in the Phœnician records, i. 134, a.
Mahalah, married to Eſau, i 307, b. 441, a. Why called Bethſhemah by Moſes, ibid. (X).
Mahaffrid, laſt princeſs of Perſia, married to Jezid, iv. 406, a.
Mahaleel, a deſcendant of Seth, i. 78, a.
† Mahanaim, Jacob's viſion at, i. 444, e.
Maherbal commands before Saguntum, vii. 5, c. Ravages Italy, 17, d. Defeats the Romans, 22, d, e. Speech to Hannibal, 31, f.
† Mahmoud-ker, a famed Perſian river, ii. 45, & ſeq.
Mahuvias deſtroys and ſells the Rhodian coloſſus, vi. 544, e. his fleet burnt, ibid. Succeſs againſt the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
Maia, the daughter of Atlas, deflowered by Jupiter, ii. 263.
Majeſty, the law of, revived by Tiberius, v. 378, & ſeq. Becomes very dangerous, 386, d, e. 393, b. Revived by Caligula, 469, d, & ſeq. Aboliſhed by Titus, 659, a. Repealed afreſh, vi. 3, d. 10, a. 34, e. 423, a.
Maimonides notion about the ſun ſtanding ſtill, confuted, i. 559, b.
Majoranus proclaimed emperor, vi. 504, e. Succeſs againſt the Vandals, 505, d. In Gaul, ibid. e. Defeated at ſea, 506, b. Depoſed and put to death, ibid. d, e.
— ſucceſs againſt the Goths, vii. 513, e. In Afric, 535, & ſeq.
† Majorca, iſland, deſcribed, vii. 308, b, c.
† Majuma, the port of Gaza, why ſo called, i. 339, c.
Malabarca, among the Jews, his office, iv. 79, (S).
Malachi, one of Ezra's aſſiſtants, iv. 13, (Y). His prophecies, character, &c. 25, (P).
Malaric, king of the Franks, vii. 550, & ſeq.
Maldra's ravages in Spain, vii. 513, b. 545, d. Treachery and death, 546, a † Malea, promontory of Lacedæmonia, ii. 396, e.
Malek, firſt king of Hira, vii. 272, e.
† Malethubalus, mount, where ſituate, vii. 115, e.
Malichus conſpires againſt Antipater, iv. 121, d, (L). Poiſons him, 122, a. Aſſaſſinated by Herod, ibid. & ſeq.
— king of Arabia's ingratitude to Herod, 125, & ſeq.
† Malli confederate againſt Alexander, iii. 393, c. Defeated, ibid. & ſeq. & 397, & ſeq.
Mallobaudes's ſucceſs againſt the Germans, vi. 387, a, b.
— againſt the Alemans, vii. 551, b. 557, a. Bravery and promotion, ibid. b. Death, ibid. c.

Malta, ſurrendered to Sempronius, vii. 20, a.
Malteſe language allied to the Punic, vi. 698, f, & ſeq.
† Malva, river of Tingitania, vii. 144, c, d.
† Malum, a city in Cyprus, iii. 173, d.
† Mamertini, who, and where, iii. 88, b. Treachery to the Meſſenians, ibid. c. Defeated by Pyrrhus, 90, e. By Hiero, 92, c. See alſo vol. vi. 817, & ſeq. Forced to invite the Romans, 819, a, b.
Mamertinus, one of the Chalcedonian judges, vi. 324, f. Conſulſhip and reception from Julian, 326, d, e.
Mamilius marries Tarquin's daughter, iv. 460, d. Bravery at the battle of Regillus, 483. Death, 484, a.
† Mamſarus, mount, in Numidia, vii. 111, c.
Man, how created, i. 44, a—c, & (N). Their happy ſtate at firſt, 53, a, &c.
Man, Maneus, firſt king of the Celtes, ii. 258, a.
† Manaſſeh born, i. 453, b. Preſented to Jacob, 460, d, e. His lot in the promiſed land, 569, b.
—— king, his wicked reign, i. 839, c. Murders, &c. 840, a, b. Captivity, ibid. c. Reſtored, ibid. & ſeq. Repentance and death, 841, a, b.
—— a Jewiſh apoſtate, iv. 26, b, (S),
Mandaces, king of Media's long reign, ii. 13, a.
Mandanius defeated, iv. 738, c. Sent priſoner to Acidinus, 739, f.
Mandonius defeated by Scipio, vii. 27, d, e. Goes over to him, 62, f. Defeated, 71. Afreſh, and puniſhed, 73, d.
Mandrakes found by Reuben, what, i 441, (Y).
Maneros, Egyptian traditions about him, i. 213, e.
Manes, the ſon of Jupiter by Tellus, ii. 320, b. Firſt king of Lydia, 332.
—— the arch-heretic, when he flouriſhed, iv. 328, b, (E). Other particulars of him, 377, d, e. His true name, writings, &c. 378, (C).
Manichees ſuppreſſed by Gratian, vi. 389, a. Three ſects of them condemned to death, 397, a.
Manilian law paſſed in favour of Pompey, v. 101, paſſ.
Manilius, one of Catiline's conſpirators, v. 102, & ſeq. Proſcribed, 106, b.
—— Nepos. See Nepos. vii. 97, e.
Manis, king of Phrygia, ii. 301, b.
Manius's deſperate advice to Fulvia, v. 264, b. Bitter ſpeech againſt Octavian, ibid. d. Put to death, 271, a.
Mankind incorrigible, i. 85. b. Deſtroyed by the flood, ibid. & ſeq. Firſt migrations about Ararat, 141, & ſeq.
Manlius, T. intercedes for the Jews, iv. 65, d.
—— Cn. ſucceſs againſt the Hetrurians, 507, & ſeq. Againſt the Vejentes, 513, b, c. Driven from the forum, ibid, e, f.
—— A. ſent to Athens to compile the laws, iv. 532. Made decemvir, 534, a.
—— ſaves the capitol, 565, d. Envies Camillus's glory, 571, a, b. Impriſoned by the dictator, 572, c. Releaſed by the ſenate, ibid. f. Tried before the Comitia, 573. His puniſhment, 574, b.
—— his brother choſen military tribune, ibid. e. Outwitted by the Volſci, 577, c, (P). Choſen dictator, 581, b.
—— Imperioſus choſen dictator, 585.
—— Titus, his pious ſtratagem in favour of his father, iv. 586, b. Promotion, ibid. e. Why called Torquatus, 588, a, b. Choſen dictator, 591, f. Defeats the Faliſci, 592, a. Second dictatorſhip, 594, b. Conſulſhip, 595, c. Succeſs againſt the Latins, 600. Severity to his brave ſon, 601. Defeats the Latins, 602. March againſt the Hetrurians, 628, c. Killed by a fall, ibid. f.
—— his ſon kills Metius in ſingle combat, 601, a. Put to death, ibid.
—— L. prætor in Gaul, 693. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Boii, 694.
—— Atilius, ſtratagem againſt the Carthaginians, vi. 835, (S). Defeats their fleet, 836, paſſ. Returns to Rome, 837, c.
Manna rained down on the Iſraelites, i. 509, & ſeq. Deſcribed, ibid. & notes.
—— Perſian, deſcribed, ii. 39, b.
Manſuetus unfortunately killed by his ſon, v. 626, a. A ſcene of horror enſues, ibid. & ſeq.
† Mantinea, the infamous temple and oracle of, vi. 38, d. e.
Mantineans league with the Athenians, ii. 514. & not. Expelled their city, ibid. & ſeq. Rebuild it, 617.
† Mantua, where ſited, vii. 306, d. Taken by the Hunns, 479. Given to the diſbanded veterans, v. 262, e.
Manuel, defeated in Egypt, vi. 543. His bravery ſaves Theophilus, 568. Flees to the Saracens, 569, a. Reſtored to great honours, ibid. d, e. Retires, 571.
—— the emperor proclaimed, 618, f. Treachery to the cruiſadors, 619, a, b. Wars againſt the king of Sicily, ibid. d, e. Diſtreſſed by the Turks, 620, a. Peace with them, ibid. b, c. Death, ibid. d.
—— the ſon of Michael Paleologus, killed, 638, c.
—— the ſon of John, defeated by Bajazet, 646, c—f. Reſigns to his nephew, 647. Begs aſſiſtance of chriſtian princes, ibid. c, d. Reſtored, ibid. e. Dies, ibid. f.
Manumiſſion, how performed at Rome, iv. 470, (D).
† Maracanda, by whom built, iii. 845, d. Beſieged by the Scythians, 371, f. Relieved by Alexander, 373, c.
† Marah, the bitter waters of, ſweetened, i. 508.
Maran-atta, higheſt excommunication, i. 674, a.
† Maranitæ, who and where ſited, vii. 231, d.
Maraſas, defeated and killed, vi. 534, f.
Maratæ, Cupris, the robbers of, put to the ſword, vi. 371, e, f.
Marathas, biſhop, in veneration among the Perſians, iv. 338. Heals the Perſian prince, 339, d.
Marathon, king of Sicyon, ii. 350, c.
—— the famed battle of, deſcribed, 462, & ſeq.
† Marble of Synada, famed, ii, 293, d.
Marc, St. biſhop of Jeruſalem, vi. 41, a.
Marcelli, patrons of the Sicilians, iii. 126, e.
Marcellianus, made duke, vi. 361, e. Treachery, ibid. e, f.
Marcellinus, ſucceſs againſt the Neapolitans, vi. 291, d. Loſt at the battle of Marſa, 285, a. Sent into Gaul, 297, a. Leaves Julian in the lurch, 298, e. Accuſed and ſtripped, ibid. & ſeq.
—— brother of Maximus, defeated and drowned, 413, b.
—— raiſes a new empire in Dalmatia, 507, b. Joins with Arthemius, 508, c—e. Sent to invade Sardinia, 509, a, b. Succeſs againſt Genſeric, vii. 538. Aſſaſſinated, vi. 509, e. vii. 539, b.
Marcellus's conqueſts in Sicily, iii. 107, f, & ſeq. Beſieges Syracuſe, 111, c, d. New-invented machine, 112, a. Other conqueſts, &c. 113, & ſeq. Singular clemency, 117, & ſeq. Plague in his army, 118, e. Takes Syracuſe, 121, & ſeq. Clemency to it, ibid. & ſeq. Other conqueſs, &c. 124, & ſeq. Unjuſtly accuſed, 126, b, c. Cleared, ibid. d. How far to blame, ibid. & not.
—— ſucceſs againſt Hannibal, vii. 35, f, & ſeq. 44, f. Drives him into Apulia, 45, b. Treachery to the Caſilinians, 48, a. Succeſs in Spain and Sicily, 61, a, &c. Worſted, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and killed, 64, b, c.
—— the ſon of Claudius's ſignal bravery, iv. 735, b.
—— oppoſes Cæſar's deſigns, v. 128, c. Makes Pompey protector, 130, c. Pardoned, 166, c. Stabbed by Chilon, ib. e.
—— Octavia's ſon marries Pompey's daughter, 273, b. Adopted by Auguſtus, 301, a. Falls out with Agrippa, 303, c. 304, a. Dies ſuddenly, ibid. e, f.
—— Granius tried and acquitted of treaſon, 379, d, e.
—— Eprius, ſhamefully acquitted by Nero, 526, b, c.
—— condemned for treaſon, 654, e. Kills himſelf, ibid. f.
—— the falſe accuſer of Thraſea, 564, e, f.
—— Cornel. put to death by Galba, 583, d.
—— puts Sereniamus to death, vi. 368, f. Takes the imperial dignity, 369, a. Tortured to death, ibid. b.
—— revolts, and ſtabs himſelf, vi, 530, a.
—— fatal ſucceſs in Britain, 432, b, c.
Marcia the wife of Regulus's bloody revenge on the Carthaginians, iv. 670, e.
—— a favourite of Commodus, vi. 88, a. Befriends the chriſtians, ibid. b. Doomed to death, 93, b, c. Poiſons Commodus, ibid. e. Put to death, 105, e.
† —— the grove of, at Minturnæ, v. 59, a.
Marcian's revolt and puniſhment, vi. 515, d, e.
Marciana's excellent character, vi. 9, c.
† Marcianopolis, where ſited, vi. 370, c.
Marcianus's ſucceſs againſt the Heruli, vi. 184, f. The ſuppoſed murderer of Gallienus, 185, paſſ.
—— general of Theodoſius, taken priſoner, vi. 482, e. Marries his ſiſter, 492, a, b. Choſen emperor, 493, a. b. Why ſet free by Genſeric, ibid. d. Noble anſwer to Attila, 494, a. Convenes the council of Chalcedon, 498, a. Laws in favour of the church, 501. Takes Avitus his colleague, 502, b. His death and excellent character, 534, b, c.
Marcionites, their belief of two principles, i. 31.
Marcius, Caius. See Coriolanus, iv. 492, & ſeq.
—— C. burns the Carthaginians camp, 726, b.
—— M. Philipp. ſucceſs in Macedonia, 762, e. Cruel terms to the Carthaginians, 770, & ſeq. Diſtreſſed by Aſdrubal, 773, a, b. See alſo vol. vii. 71, 97, & 100.
—— Q. Rex, ſucceſs in Gaul, v. 3, b. vii. 395, c, d.
† Marcomani, where ſeated, v. 334, (S). Revolt againſt the Romans, ibid. f. & ſeq. Defeated by the Cheruſci, 391, c. Put Domitian to a ſhameful flight, 778, d, e. Subdued by Trajan, vi. 21, b. War with M. Aurelius, 66, b, c. Enter Italy, 68, & ſeq. Miraculouſly defeated, 71, & ſeq. Treachery puniſhed, 73, & ſeq. Peace with Commodus, 87, a, b. Their extract and antient ſeat, vii. [407], d, e. 600, e. Character, cuſtoms, &c. 601. Peace with Auguſtus, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and ſubdued, 602, b, c.
Marcomir, king of the Franks. vii. 550, b. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Romans, 557, f, & ſeq. Treachery to Stilicho, vi. 433, f. The ſuppoſed father of Pharamond, 434, a.
Marcus Cato's ſon dies at Philippi, v. 252, c.

Mireus, a freeman of Marius tortured to death, 76, b.
— declared Cæsar, vi. 513, b.
Mardi subdued by Alexander, iii. 360.
Mardonius's unsuccessful expedition against Greece, ii. 111, b. Commands Xerxes's army, 124, & seq. Message to the Athenians rejected, 474, & seq. Defeated and killed, 126, c. 475. See also vol. iii. 275, & seq.
Merodac Empad, the Merodac-baladan of scripture, i. 945, c. Embassy to Hezekiah, ibid.
† Mareb, river that falls into the Nile, described, vii. 189, (I).
† Mareotis, part of lower Egypt, i. 176, b.
Mares milk, how forced down by the Scythians, ii. 276, e.
† Marcssa, where situate, iv. 93, (S).
† Marga, where situate, vi. 257, a.
† Margiana, in Persia, described, ii. 30, c. Its prodigious vines, grapes, &c. ibid. & (H).
Maria, the celebrated sister of Theodosius, vi. 390, c.
— daughter of Stilicho, born, 421, e. Married to Honorius, 441, a. Her death, 456, a. Rich tomb discovered, ibid. f.
Mariamne, the wife of Herod, her extract, iv, 123, a. Character, 127. Marriage, 130, b, & (Z). Alienated from him, 135, a. Sent to Massada, 138, b. Aversion to Herod, ibid. & seq. Accused of treason, 139. Heroic behaviour at her death, ibid. & seq.
— daughter of Simon, married to Herod, 142. Accused of treason, 153, b.
— daughter of Agrippa, 262, d. Her incontinency, 265, (E).
Marian faction revived in Afric, v. 80, b. In Spain, &c. ibid. c.
† Mariandyni, their origin, &c. iii. 827, d, e.
† Mariani, mountains in Bœtica, vii. 302, b, c, (I) 307, (K).
Marina daughter of Arcadius born, vi. 449, f. Her life, &c. 445, a, b.
Marines, a legion of, formed by Nero, v. 585, d. Massacred by Galba, ibid. e. Join with Otho against him, 594, d. Unshod by Vespasian, 647, c.
Marius's revolt and defeat, vi. 167, b.
— kills himself, 294, c. A pleader put to death, 357, b.
Marion, prince of Tyrus, joins with Antigonus, iv. 123, b, (N).
Marius, put to death by Lucullus, iii. 743, d.
— Caius his character, v. 2, d. Tribuneship ibid. d, e. Pretorship, 3, c. Ingratitude to Metellus, 14, & seq. Treachery, 17. Consulship, 19. c. Insolence to the Patricians, ibid. e, & seq. Cruelty to the Numidians, 21, e, f. Dreadful slaughter of them, 23, & seq. Proconsulship in Afric, 24, f. Rancour against Sylla, 27, e. Proconsulship of Numidia, 28, a. Splendid triumph, 30, a. Strict discipline, 32, f. Third consulship, 33, a. Fourth how managed, ibid. e. Noble canal in Provence, 34, d. Success against the Teutones, 35, & seq. Fifth consulship, 37, c, d. Cruelty to the Cimbri, ibid. e, & seq. Triumph and temple, 38, & seq. Plots to enslave his country, 40, b, c. Law against the senate, ibid. f. Treachery to Metellus, 41, b, c. To the senate, 42, pass. Upholds the rebels, 43, a, b. Retires into Pontus, 44, b. Insolence to Mithridates, ibid. & seq. Returns to Rome, 45, e. Mortified by Sylla, ibid. & seq. Defeated by the Marsi, 50, f. Opposes Sylla, 53, b. Chosen general against Mithridates 54. b. Forced out of Rome, 55, b. Proscribed, ibid. c. Dangerous flight, 56, & seq. Seized, 58, b. Released by the Minturnenses, ibid. d. Embarks for Aenaria, ibid. & seq. Repulsed by Sextilius, 59, b, c. Proud answer to him, ibid. d. Lands at Cercina, 60, a. Recalled by Cinna, 61, b. Joins with him, ibid. c, d. Success against the consuls, 62, pass. Repulsed at the Janiculum, 63, c. Cruelties and butcheries in Rome, 64, & seq. Seventh consulship, 66, c. Madness and death, ibid. & seq.
Marius, his son's dangerous escape, 56, & seq. Goes into Numidia, 59, e. Rejoins his father, 60. Imitates his cruelty, 66, & seq. Chosen consul, 67, a. Butchers Sylla's friends, 72, b, c. Defeated by him, ibid. d, e. His death, 75, a.
— Ignatius killed, 52, b.
— Sextus executed, 447, a.
— Maximus, his history, lost, vi. 19, c. Writings, &c. 149, sub not.
— Aurel. proclaimed in Gaul, 184, a. Murdered, ibid. b.
Mark, the evangelist, whether the founder of the Therapeutes, iv. 173, c.
— a christian bishop, surprising martyrdom, 246, (C).
— made emperor, and killed, vi. 454, a. vii. 436, d.
— patriarch, deposed by the Trapezuntines, 289, (C).
Marlia's success against Perseus, iii. 485, f. 487, e. Gets into the vale of Tempe, 488. Ill luck in Macedon, ibid. d, e.
† Marmarians, their site, and desperate defence, iii. 330, c.
† Marmarica Lybia, described, vii. 167, & seq. By whom inhabited, 168, d, & seq. Distinct from Egypt, 169, e.
† Marmora, the sea of, described, iii. 201, (P).
Marna, Marnash, idol worshipped in Gaza, i. 343, a.
† Maro builds Maronea in Thrace, i. 243, c.
Marobodius, driven out of his kingdom, vii. 601, c.
† Marobudum, by whom built, vii. 600, e, f.
Maronites, settled in Libanus, vi. 546, c. Defeated by Justinian, 547, a. Plundered by Onomastus, iii. 49, b.
† Marpesus, mount, famed for marble, iii. 222, e, f.
Marriage, whether obligatory by the Mosaic law, i. 677, (L). Consanguinity, how far excluded from it, 678, a. Incestuous, punished with death, ibid. & seq. Other laws concerning it, 679, c. 680, a, b. How celebrated, 675, pass. 680, c, d. Talmudic precepts about it, 681, (S).
— how regulated by Lycurgus, ii. 561, pass. How performed among the Romans, iv. 424, (W). Laws concerning them, 434, a. 437, b. New oaths appointed about them, 683, c. Promoted by Augustus, v. 312, a, &c. 337, e, & seq. Of nieces, &c. made capital, vi. 276, b, c. And between Jews and Christians, 415, b, c.
† Marrucini, where sited, iv. 411, f. Defeated by Sylla, v. 50, d, e.
Mars, his festival at Papremis, i. 208, c, d.
— how worshipped by the Scythians, ii. 272. Why so called, vi. 817, (I). How worshipped by the Gauls, vii. 347, b, c. Bloody, sacrifices, 354, pass. His other names, ibid. c, (O), 355, a, (P). Reckoned an infernal deity, 358, a, (W). Worshipped in Germany, [419], c.
— his supposed sword found, 467, b.
— temple built by Augustus, iv. 313, f.
— pretended appearance to the Roman army, 643, f, (B).
† Marseilles, besieged by Jul. Cæsar, v. 135, d. Surrendered 137, a. Besieged by Constantine, vi. 237, f. When founded, 713, (A). Maximian's tomb there, 239, f. Yielded to Theodoric, vii. 573, d.
† — the famed university of, 376, c—e. Founded by the Greeks, 381, c.
† Marsi, their antient territories, iv. 481. Origin, v. 35, c. Erected into a republic, 49, a. Invaded by Rutilius, ibid. c. Defeated by Pompey, 51, b. Defeat Cato, 52, b. Butchered by Germanicus, 369, & seq. By Cæcina, 373, a, (X). Gained over by Sylla, vii. 396, d.
Marsian war, whence so called, v. 47, b.
Marsyas, king of Lydia, ii. 332, e.
— a famed musician, 294, b, (P).
— famed christian martyr, iv. 247, sub not.
† — a river in Phrygia, ii. 294, b, (P).
Martace, one of Herod's wives, iv. 151, sub not. Goes to Rome with her son, 186, a.
Martha's worldly care blamed by Christ, iv. 224, d.
— a famed conjuress, v. 35, a.
Marthesia, queen of the Amazons, ii. 279, not.
Martialis, Corn. repulsed by Vitellius, v. 631, d, e. Taken prisoner, 632, c.
— the famed epigrammatist, 692, sub not.
Martinia, married to Heraclius, vi. 539, f. Poisons the Constantines, 544, b. Her punishment, ibid. c.
Martinianus, created Cæsar, vi. 258, e. Sent against Constantine, ibid. f. Put to death, 259, d.
— sent against the Persians, 532, c, d.
Martinus's brave opposition of Catena, vi. 288, d, e. Kills himself, ibid.
— his house burnt by the Eutychians, 522, a.
— killed before Rome, vii. 657, c.
Martyrdom of the first christians, an instance of the divine wisdom, iv. 246, (C).
† Martyropolis, taken by the Persians, iv. 360, c. Restored to the Romans, 363, e. Where situate, vi. 525, d. Besieged and forsaken, ibid. d, e. Betrayed and retaken, 535.
† Martyrs, the æra of, vi. 206.
Marulus, made governor of Judea, iv. 257, b.
— Why deposed by Julius Cæsar, v. 178, d, e.
Mary, the mother of Christ, her lineage, iv. 154, b. 155, (Q). Visit to Elizabeth, 158, a. Deliveted at Bethlehem, 159, a, b. Maintained by her son, 193, (X). Present at his crucifixion by her son, 240, c.
— Magdalen. See sub Magdalen, 224, & seq.
— a christian queen of Persia. See Schirrim, 399, e.
— princess, put to death by Andronicus, vi. 621.
Masceezel, defeated by Theodosius, vi. 359, e, f. Singular character, 439, e. Miraculous succes against his revolted brother, ibid. & seq. Treacherously murdered by Stilicho, 440, e, f.
† Mash, Aram's fourth son, where settled, i. 163, f.
Masinissa's success against the Massylians, iv. 723, d. Against the Romans, 725, c, d. Allies with them, 737, e. 738, d, e. Betrays the Carthaginians, 741, d. Success against Syphax, 743, c. Marries Sophonisba, ibid. d. Forced to poison her, 744, b. His reward, ibid. e, f. 748, c. Wars with Carthage, 769, d. Valour and victories, 780, a. Defeated by Syphax, vii. 50, c. Assists the Carthaginians in Spain, 56, c. Sent to ravage Hispania Citerior, 63, d. Defeated by Scipio, 69, & seq. Abandons the Carthaginians, nians, 70, c, d. Conſults with Aſdrubal, ibid. f, & ſeq: Interview with Scipio, 72, b, c. Reaſons of his defection, 75, d, e. Joins with him, 76, b. Burns Syphax's camp, 77, e. Gallantry at the battle of Zama, 82, paſſ. Seizes on the Carthaginian territories, 85, b. 93, d, e. Diſputes them before the Roman ſenate, ibid. & ſeq. Takes a number of their cities, 94, & ſeq. Succours the Romans, 95, c. Defeats Aſdrubal, 96, e. Laſt meſſage to Æmilianus, 100, f. Recovers his kingdom, 123, paſſ. Defeats Syphax, ibid. e, f. Ravages the Carthaginians, 124, a. Narrow eſcape, ibid. e, d. Freſh defeat, ibid. & ſeq. Recovers Syphax's kingdom, 125, a—c. Forces Carthage to make peace, ibid. d, e. Diſobliges the Romans, 126, a. His death and character, ibid. & ſeq Kingdom, how divided, 127, a. Genealogy, 138, paſſ.

† Maſis, mount, whether the ark reſted on it, i. 110, 111. Deſcribed, ibid.

Maſiſtes Xerxes's brother put to death, ii. 128, & ſeq.

Maſiſtius famed general of Perſia, ii. 125, d.

† Maſius, mount, in Armenia, iii. 695.

Maſor, Egypt, why ſo called, i. 174, b.

Maſruk, the laſt Ethiopian king in Yaman, vii. 271, e.

Maſſa, Bebius, one of Domitian's informers, v. 674, d. Condemned for extortion, 683, d, e.

† Maſſada, beſieged by Antigonus, iv. 127. Taken by the zealots, 269. By the Romans, 289, & ſeq. The Jews deſperate end there, 290, b.

Maſſaga, taken by Alexander, iii. 387, b, &c.

† Maſſagetæ, Scythians deſcribed, ii. 280, a.

—— defeated by Craterus, iii. 382. Invite the Romans, vi. 525, e. When firſt called Turks, 531, e Where ſituate, ibid. & ſeq Defeated by Ottoman, 635, f. Ravage Helleſpont, 636, a.

† Maſſah, where Moſes ſmote the miraculous rock, i. 511.

Maſſala's ſpeech in favour of Herod, iv. 126, e.

Maſſana, ſurpriſed, iii. 88, b.

Maſſilians, illuſory anſwer to Cæſar, v. 135, c. Bloody ſacrifices, vii. 325, a, b.

Maſſiva, begs the Numidian crown, v. 11, e. Murdered by Jugurtha, ibid. f, & vii. 130, c.

Maſſyli and Maſæſyli, part of Numidia, vii. 107, a. Of Mauritania, ibid. e. Their ſite, extent, &c. 108, a—c. 112, e, f. Government, &c. 119, & ſeq. Become a Roman province, 137, e.

Maſtanabal's ſucceſſion and death, vii. 127, a, b.

Maſtich of Chios famed, iii. 108, b.

*Maſtiff*s of Adranum, why famed, iii. 8, e, & ſeq.

Mataſuenta married to Germanus, vii. 664, a.

Maternus, a famed philoſopher, put to death, v. 674, f.

—— revolt and death, vi. 90, b, c.

Matheas, Macheas, king of Scythia, ii. 286.

Mathos, a ring-leader of the Lybian war, vi. 858. Beſieges Hippona, 859, c. Takes Hannibal and other priſoners, 863, b. Crucifies them, ibid. & ſeq. His diſmal end, 864, paſſ.

† Matronæ, in Germany, who, vii. [418], (C).

Matronalia, the feſtival of, at Rome, iv. 432, a, (G).

Mattaniah. See Zedechiah.

Mattathia's noble zeal for his religion, iv. 54, & ſeq. Decree for ſelf defence on the ſabbath, 55, c, d. Reſtores the temple-worſhip, ibid. e. Dying advice to his ſons, 56, & (O).

—— a high-prieſt depoſed, 183, c.

Matthew, St. called by Chriſt, iv. 206, b. His readineſs juſtified, ibid. (Q).

—— the ſon of Cantacuſen aſſumes the purple, vi. 645, d. Defeated, and reſigns it, ibid. e.

Matthias defiled on expiation eve, iv. 153, (O).

—— a tumultuous doctor, burnt alive, 182, & ſeq. A diſciple of Chriſt, choſen apoſtle, 249, b, (G). A Jew made high-prieſt, 261, b. Lets Simon into the city, 277, a. Put to death, 283, b.

† Mattiacum, capital of the Mattiaci, vii. 407, d.

† Mattium, metropolis of the Catti, v. 373, (W). Burnt by the Romans, ibid. a.

Matuta, goddeſs, who, iv. 578, b.

Mavia ſends ſuccours to the Romans, vi. 387, f. Againſt the Goths, vii. 284, a.

† Maureſii, where ſeated, vii. 140, d.

† Mauri, who and why ſo called, vii. 140, b, c. Obſcure origin, 156, a, b.

Mauringa, ſeized by the Lombards, vii. 616, c, d.

† Mauritania, deſcribed, vii. 707, & ſeq. Why called Tingitania, ibid. b. Its extent, ibid. c. Whence called Mauruſia, 140, a. How divided, ibid, d. Its rivers, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Mountains, 142, & ſeq. Natural rarities, 148, & ſeq. Firſt inhabitants, 149, a—d. Government, ibid. & ſeq. Religion, 150, & ſeq. Language, 151, a, b. Cuſtoms, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Habit, 152, a. Arts, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Riches, 153, a, b. Kings, ibid. & ſeq Conqueſts and diviſion, 159, c, d. Delivered by Sertorius, v. 86, c: Subdued by Geta, 493, d. Declares for Vitellius, 614, f. Secured to the Romans, vi. 485, a.

—— nova, whence ſo called, vii. 135, a.

Mauritius's friendſhip to Coſrhoes, iv. 363, & ſeq. Requited by him, 365, paſſ. Sent againſt the Perſians, v. 533, c. Extract and character, ibid. e, f. Succeſs againſt them, ibid. & ſeq. Crowned Cæſar and emperor, ibid. & ſeq. Kindneſs to young Coſrhoes, 535, d. Delivered from the Avari, ibid. e, f. Inſulted by his ſoldiers, 536, a. put to death with five of his children, ibid. d.

—— a wicked tool of Gordian, vi. 161, d, e. Baniſhed, ib. f.

—— biſhop, crowns Julian, 510, c.

† Mauſoleum, of Doris, deſcribed, ii. 759, a.

Mauſolus, king of Caria, oppreſſes the Rhodians, iii. 136, b.

Maxentius's extract, &c. vi. 207, d. Rejected from being Cæſar, 218, b. 230, e, f Proclaims himſelf emperor, 231, c, & ſeq. Depoſed by Maximian, 235, f. Protected by the ſoldiers, 236, a. Succeſs and cruelties in Afric, 241, a—d. At Rome, ibid. & ſeq. Witchcraft and butcheries, 242, a, b. Breaks with Conſtantine, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by him, 245, d, e. Stratagem againſt him, 240, a, b. Falls upon himſelf, ibid. d, e. His defeat and death, ibid. e. Carried to Rome, ibid. & ſeq. The firſt raiſer of the follis tax, 269, e.

Maxima, the wife of Chilo, accuſed of magic, vi. 356, e.

Maximian choſen partner with Diocleſian, vi. 207, b. Riſe and character, ibid. c, d. Succeſs in Gaul, ibid. & ſeq In Germany, 208, a. Defeated in Britain, ibid. f. Succeſs in Africa, 211, a. Againſt the Moors, 213, f, & ſeq. Reſigns the empire, 217, e, f. Reſumes it, 233, f. Defeats Severus, 234, f. And Maxentius, ibid. & ſeq. And Conſtantine, 237, d, e. Taken priſoner, 238, a. Ingratitude and death, ibid. f, & ſeq.

Maximin, choſen Cæſar, vi. 218, b. Preferred to Maxentius, 230, c. Extract, &c. ibid. f. Share of the government, 233, c. Conſulſhip, 234, d. Made filius Auguſtorum, 237, b. Agrees with Licinius, 240, c. Cruelty to Valeria, ibid. e, f. To Diocleſian, 241, a. Joins with Maxentius, 242, e. Enmity to chriſtians, 248, a, b. 250, b. Brings ſad calamities on the empire, ibid. c, d. Marches againſt Licinius, 252, c. Defeat and flight, ibid. e, f. Poiſons himſelf, 253, b. Dreadful end, ibid. d. Followed with that of his friends, &c. ibid. & ſeq.

—— brother-in-law to Valentin. his riſe and cruelties at Rome, 356, d, e. Promotion, 357, c. 358, c. Bloody prefectſhip, ibid. d. Enmity to the Quadi, 361, e. Put to death, 377, f.

Maximinus condemned to death, vi. 88.

—— a Gothiſh general, revolts in Gaul, 145, d. Murders Alexander, 146, a. Declared emperor, 150, & ſeq. His extract, ſtrength, and gigantic ſtature, 152, a—d. Devouring ſtomach, ibid. d. Riſe and horrid cruelties, ibid. & ſeq. Waſtes Germany, 152, d. March into the north, ibid. & ſeq. Proſcribed, 154, a. Mad behaviour, ibid. & ſeq. March into Italy, 158, d, e. Aſſaſſinated, 159, c, d. his head brought to Rome, 160, b.

—— his ſon declared Cæſar, 150. His character, 151. Made collegue, 152, a. Proſcribed, 154. And aſſaſſinated, 159, c.

Maximus, Pupien. Vid. Pupien, vi. 156, & ſeq.

—— Julian's magic maſter, vi. 321, b. Careſſed at court, 326, b. His character and arrogance, ibid. c, d. Writings, 339, ſub not. Put to death for his witcheries, 348, d. 375, a.

—— the father of Euclid, different from the magician, 375, a.

—— general in Britain's revolt, 397, f. Extract, &c. 398, a, b. Croſſes into Gaul, ibid. c. Defeats and kills Gratian, ibid. & ſeq. A ſcurvy pun turned into a prophecy by his tools, 399, e. Acknowledges Theodoſius's collegue, 402, a, b. Invades Valentinian, 412, c, d. Defeated and put to death, 413, a—d.

—— made emperor in Spain, 462, a, b.

—— Petronius undermines Ætius, 499, a. Murders Valentinian, ibid. d, e. Mounts the throne, 500, b, c. Marries his widow, ibid. e, f. Murdered, 501, a.

† Maxula, where ſituate, vi, 666, d. Deſcribed, ibid. &c.

† Mazaca, metropolis of Cappadocia, iii. 762, a.

—— taken priſoner, vi. 360, f. Death, ibid.

Mazaces ſurrenders to Alexander, iii. 345.

Mazdek, a Manichee impoſtor in Perſia, 369, c. Put to death, 390, d. See vol. vii. 274, c, d.

† Mazices, who, vi. 360, b. Submit to Theodoſius, ibid. Defeated by him, ibid. c.

† Mazichi, where ſituate, vi. 452, b. Ravage Egypt, ibid. &c.

† Meander, a river in Phrygia, ii. 294, a. 328, b.

Mebarſanes, king of Adiabene, driven out, iii 851, f. Treachery to Trajan, vi. 18, e, f.

Mebodes, made truſtee of Cavades's teſtament, iv. 338, b. Defeats the Romans, 360.

Mæcenas reconciles the triumvirs, v. 27, b. His character and pedigree, ibid. (G). Diverts Auguſtus from reſigning, 295, c. A ſketch of his politics, ibid. d, e. Cuckolded by Auguſtus.

gustus, 312, b. Death and character, 323, c—e. Works, ibid. & seq.

†Mecca, where situate, vii. 236, b. Described, ibid. c. How supplied with water, &c. ibid & seq. Its vast concourse, 237, a. Temple and Sharif, ibid. b. By whom built, ibid. d, e. Seized by Mohammed, vi. 543, a.

Medad, a camp-prophet of the Jews, i. 525, (H).

†Medea, princess of Colchis, whether carried off by the Greeks, ii. 318, c.

— daughter of Aetes, procures Jason the Golden Fleece, 384, (G). Cruelty to her brother, ibid. & seq. Banished to Corinth, 385, a. Sad effects of her jealousy there, 393, b.

†— city taken by the Saracens, vi. 550, b.

†Medes, why called Madai in Scripture, i. 168, b. Shake off the Assyrian yoke, 895, b. Their origin, ii. 6, c. Government, &c. ibid. & seq. Kings, 7, b. Religion, laws, &c. ibid. & seq. Chronology, 9, & seq. Subdued by Pul, 10. Fall into anarchy, ibid. & seq. Their kings from Dejoces, 11. History, 12, & seq. Revolt from the Persians, 136, b. Reduced, ibid.

†Media described. ii. 1, & seq. Invaded by the Scythians, ibid. d. See Medes above. Subdued by Cassius, vi. 56, c.

†— Atropatia, see Atropatene, ii. 844, & seq.

†Medina taken by Mohammed, vi 543, a. Where sited, vii. 236, b. Described, 237, d, e.

†Mediobriga, the lead-mine of, vii. 299, b.

Mediocritus, Melitarchus, the first discoverer of the British isles, vii. 402.

†Mediolanum in Wales, where sited, vii. 411, f.

†— in Italy, taken by the Romans, iv. 690, d.

†Mediomatrici, who, and where sited; vii. 408, a.

†Mediterranean, how called by the Jews, i. 576, a.

Medon, the son of Codrus, first Archon of Athens, ii. 269, b.

Medontidæ of Athens, why so called, ii. 369, b. Their office, &c. ibid. c.

Medo-Persic Empire, conjectures about it out of oriental writers, ii. 188; & seq.

†Medulia, taken by Tullus, iv. 444, b. by Ancus, 445, b.

Medus; the supposed father of the Medes, i. 1, not.

Megabyzus revolts from Artaxerxes, ii. 133, b. His bravery ill repaid, ibid. c. Message to Amyntas, iii. 247.

Megacles's severity against Cylon's confederates; ii. 423, a. His party condemned for it, 427, d. Joins with Pisistratus, 449, & seq. Discomfited, 450.

†Megalia taken by the Romans, iv. 775, e.

Megallis, a bloody mistress to her slaves, iv, 794, f. Her cruel death, 795, d.

†Megalopolis, built by the Arcadians, ii. 617. Taken and ruined by Cleomenes, 647, e.

†Megalopolitans sent to beg Antiochus's aid, ii. 646, b. Besieged by Polysperchon, iii. 455, & seq.

Megapentes king of Tyrin, exchanges it for Argos; ii. 355, c. A bastard-son of Menelaus king of Sparta, 403.

†Megara, part of ancient Greece, ii. 344, b. Join'd to Attica by Theseus, 366, c. Revolts, 491. Besieged by the Athenians, 510, & seq. Relieved by the Spartans, 511. Fortified by Phocion, 547. Taken by the Romans, 696. and razed, iii. 118, f.

†— one of the three parts of Carthage, vi. 662, d, e. Taken by Æmilianus, vii. 101, e.

Megareans, outwitted by the Athenians, ii. 425, c. Revolt from them, 491. Join in the Peloponnesian war, 501. Reject the Nicean peace, 512. Defeated, 547, f. Subdued by the Romans, 696.

Megaric philosophers held the world eternal, i. 6, d.

Megas; put to death by his brother, iii. 643.

Megasthenes's character and writings, iii. 522, a, (M).

Megastus, the Spartan soothsayer's tomb, ii. 589, in fin not.

Meherdates set up against Gotarzes, iv. 317, c. Betrayed by Abgarus, ibid. d. Defeated, 318, a.

Mejellus, Luc. Posth. success in Sicily, vi. 829, & seq.

†Mejerda river, stops up the Carthaginian harbour, vi. 663, e.

Mela, Pompon. where born, vii. 301, c. 313, f.

Melambolus, Egypt, why so called by the Greeks, i. 174, d.

Melampus obtains part of Argos, ii. 354, c.

Melanchrus, tyrant of Lesbos, iii. 136, c.

Melanthus, chosen king of Athens, ii. 368.

†Melanchenoe, a kind of canibals, vii. 605, b.

†Melano-Gætuli, who and where sited, vii. 163, d. Their tribes, cities, &c. ibid. & seq. Known to the Carthaginians, 164, f, (A). Their way of fighting, travelling, &c. 165, a.

†Melas, Meles river in Ionia, ii. 751, a.

— in Cappadocia, iii. 762, c.

Melchiades, bishop of Rome, esteemed by Constantine, vi. 248, c.

Melchizedec, who, i. 327, c. Blesses Abraham, 328, a. Opinions about him, 327, (P).

Meleager's hunting the famed Calydonian boar, ii. 410, b, & not. The fable of his birth and death, 411, (C).

Meleager declares for Arideus, iii. 415, b. Supplanted by Perdiccas, 416, c.

— brother of Ceraunus chosen king of Macedon, 470, e.

Melenus, confined for his great wealth, vi. 591, c, d.

†Melians, who and whence, iii. 218, d. Cruelly used by the Athenians, ibid. e.

Melicartus, Hercules, son to Demaroon, i. 157, a. His temple at Gadez, ibid. (T).

— a Phœnician deity, 397, b.

Melissa, one of Jupiter's nurses, iii. 165, b.

Melisseus introduces worship in Crete, iii. 165, b.

† Melita, the island of, taken and plundered by the Romans, iv. 662, a. 693, f.

†Melitene, become an opulent city, vi. 18, d.

— the legion of, why called thundering, 72, b, c.

Melitus, the false accuser of Socrates, ii. 533, a.

Mella, An. put to death by Nero, v. 561, c, d.

Mellobaudes's success against the Alemans, vii, 594, d.

†Melos island described, iii. 218. Taken by the Athenians, ibid. d. ii 516, b. Subdued by the Romans, iii. 218, f.

Meltas, king of Argos, deposed, ii. 360, c.

Memnia, married to Alexander, vi. 139, b.

Memmius, Q. friendship to the Jews, iv. 65, d.

— Caius accuses Jugurtha, v. 8, f. His speech to the Comitia, 19, f, & seq. Murdered by Equitius, 42, d, e.

— a centurion's bravery, against the mutineers, 366, c.

Memnon's unsuccessful expedition, ii. 316, b. Brave exploits, ibid. d, e. Vocal statue, ibid. f. Described, v. 310, f.

— defeated by Alexander, iii. 325. Defends Halicarnassus, 328, d, & seq.

— wars with the Egyptians, vii. 210; & seq. The same with Menes, 211, b.

— the Rhodian, invades Lesbos, iii. 207, c.

†Memphis, Moph, metropol. of middle Egypt, i. 176, a. By whom built, ibid. See vol. vii. 216, b. Taken by Cambyses, ii 96, c. His cruelty to her priests and citizens, 98, a. Taken by Alexander, 163, b.

Memrumus, in the Phœnician cosmogony, who, i. 87.

Men, whether any before Adam, i. 47, b, &c.

Menahem murders the king of Israel, i. 828, c. Cruel tyranny, ibid. Invaded by Pul, ibid. e, f. Death, 129, a.

— an Essenian foretells Herod's rise, iv. 132, sub not.

— head of the zealots massacred; 269, d.

Menalcidas, why accused to the Romans, ii. 691. Breaks the truce with Achaia, 692, d. Kills himself, ibid. e.

Menalipe, the famed Amazon's contest with Hercules, ii. 279, sub not.

Menander king of Bactria's conquests; iii. 846.

†Menapii; who, and where, v. 121; b, vii. 399, (R). Subdued by Cæsar; ibid. b.

Menas sets Pompey against the triumvirs, v. 271, d. His advice rejected, 272, e, f. Goes over to Octavian, 276, b. Defeated by Pompey, ibid. d—f. Returns to him, 278, c. Treachery to him, 280, f.

†Mendes's labyrinth in Egypt, i. 259, d.

Menelaus, marries the fair Helen, ii. 318, f. Embassy after her, 319; f. Whether he left her in Egypt, 320.

— succeeds to the Spartan crown, 402. Defeated by Demetrius, iii. 183, b. Taken prisoner at Salamis, 184, a.

— the Jew buys the high-priesthood, 573. Apostatizes, 574, a. Causes Onias to be murdered, ibid. c. Other black crimes, 575, c. See also, vol. iv. 48, & seq. Robs the temple, ibid. e. Hellish politics, 49, c, d. Promotes a peace with Syria, 65, e. Cruel death, 69, e.

— a famed archer, killed by Romulus, vi. 284, f.

Meneceus sacrifices his life for his country, ii. 374, c.

Menenius defeated by the Hetrurians, iv. 511, c.

— the son of Agrippa condemned by the tribunes, 512; c. His death, ibid. d.

Menes, the supposed Ist king of Egypt, i. 238, (N). Whether the son of Noah, 246, a. (A) Diverts the Nile's course, &c. ibid. a, &c. Introduces luxury, ibid. & 247. His death, 238, (N).

Menesarchus, tyrant of Eubœa, wars with the Thebans, iii. 251, c.

†Menestheus, the port of, vii. 301, c.

Menidas, wounded at Guagemela, iii. 350, a.

Menetho's history, whence extracted, i. 81, (N). Egyptian chronology, 92, d. Why discredited by several writers, 236, d. Egyptian dynasties examined, ibid. &c.

Menevis, a bull worshipped in Egypt, i. 206, a.

†Meninx island described, vii. 170, f.

Menippus's speech to the Romans, iii. 548, c.

Menithillus facilitates Demetrius's escape, iii. 590, a.

— speech to the Roman senate, 651, c.

Menius, a plebeian, chosen consul, iv. 603, d. Makes the first Rostrum, ibid. f. Chosen dictator, 615, b. Tried and acquitted, ibid. d. Rechosen, 619.

Menocrates defeated by Menas, v. 276, c His death, ibid. d.

Menes, the husband of Samiramis, i. 876, a.
Menophilus's defence of Aquileia, vi. 158, f, & seq.
Mento, C. Julius's fatal quarrel with his collegue, iv. 549, & seq.
Mentor, the Rhodian commands the Greeks in Egypt, i. 278, Goes over to the king of Persia, ibid & seq. Betrays Sidon to him, 411, c. Amply rewarded by Ochus, ii. 153.
†Mentz, the inventress of printing, vii [416]. Put to fire and sword by the Hunns, 474, a. By the Vandals, 529, d. By the Alemans, 583, c.
† —— Drusus's monument at, [416], b.
†Menutia island in Ethiopia, vii. 190, b. Whether the present Madagascar, 191, b.
Meon, whether the name of an idol, i. 286, (F).
—— the father of Cybele, ii. 297, a, (W), 328, b.
†Meonia, the antient name of Lydia, ii. 289, (B), 328, b.
Mephibosheth kindly treated by David, i. 278, & seq.
Merari, one of the three chief branches of Levites, i. 633, b.
Merbal king of Tyre, i. 417, e.
Mercenaries revolt against the Carthaginians, vi. 851, & seq. Odd mixture and arrogance, 853, pass. 855, a, b. The rest see under Libyans.
—— in Sicily, revolt and cruelties, 864, b, c.
Mercidinus mensis, what, v. 171, sub not.
Mercidonius dies, what, iv. 438, a, & (O).
Mercury, the son of Jupiter by Maia, ii. 263. Where born, 379, (H). Why so called, 255, & not. Why worshiped by the Celtes, ibid. His other names, ibid. Succeeds his father, 264. Polishes the Celtes, ibid. &c. Worshipped by the Carthaginians, vi. 689, d, (V). By the Gauls, vii. 347, b, c. 356, e, & seq. His Gaulish names, 367, a, b, (T). Why reckoned an infernal deity, 358, a, (W). The god of riches, ibid. c. Supposed tomb in Spain, ibid. d. Why styled Augustus, ibid. (Y). His heaps or mounds, what, 359, a, (Z). Why represented of no sex, ibid. a, b, (Z). Why in the guise of Hercules, 382, e, & seq. & (V).
—— his temple consecrated at Rome, iv. 488, a.
Mercy-Seat, or oracle of the Jews, described, i. 654, a, & seq.
Meribah, the station where Moses smote the miraculous rock, i. 511, & 532, b.
†Merida, Emerita, Augusta, by whom built, v. 299, e. New-colonied by Otho, 692, e. Taken by Rechila, vi. 484, f. Taken and ravaged by the Goths, 510. By the Visigoths, vii. 513, b. By the Suevi, 545, f.
Meriones king of Crete, iii. 196, d. Adored by the Cretans, ibid.
Mermeroes defeated, iv. 347, c. Outwitted by the Martyropolitans, ibid. f. Sent to relieve Petra, 355, & seq. Death and character, 356, c, & (Y). See also vol. vi. 524—528.
Mermnades, a race of Lydian kings, ii. 330, a.
Merobaudes kills Macrinus, vi. 362, f. Proclaims young Valentinian, 377, c, d. Commands under Gratian, 398, d. Put to death by Maximus, 400, a.
Merodach, a Babylonian deity, i. 925, a.
Meroe, daughter of Cyrus, married to Cambyses, ii. 98. Killed by him, ibid. & seq.
—— persuades Porus to submit to Alexander, iii. 392, e.
† —— an island in Ethiopia, vii. 190, b. Its site, ibid. c, (N). Described, ibid. & seq. Priests in high power, 194, e, Observe the Mosaic law, 195, e, & seq.
† —— the city of, the seat of the Candaces, vii. 191, a.
Merone outwitted by Ætius, vii. 478, a. Caressed at Rome, 561, a, b. Succeeds Clodio, 562, b. His noble services to the Romans, ibid. c, d. Reign, character and death, ibid. & seq. & (E). His line, ibid.
†Meronea, taken by the Macedonians, iii. 147, a.
Meropius travels into India, vii. 417, e.
Merula, Corn. success against the Gauls, iv. 753, b. Chosen consul, v. 61, a. Resigns to Cinna, 64, a. His death, 66, b.
Mesades king of the Odryssæ, iii. 792, a.
†Mesembria taken by the Bulgarians, vii. 628, b, c.
Meser divides Egypt among his three sons, i. 280.
Mesens sent to assist the Tyrians in Spain, [325], d.
Mesessimorchadus king of Babylon, i. 946, e.
†Mesha and Sephar of Moses, where sited, i. 169, d.
† —— the mount of, various opinions about, ibid. e.
†Meshech, where seated, i. 169, b.
†Mesian Forest, taken by Ancus, iv. 446, b.
†Mesopotamia conquered by Tigranes, iii. 701, b. By Mithridates, iv. 292, d. Plundered by Cosrhoes, 366, b. Subdued by Trajan, vi. 18, f. Put under tribute, 21, b, c. Reduced by Lætus, &c. 111, e. Revolts, 139, e. Ravaged by the Persians, 141, f. Recovered by Gordian, ib. d. Invaded by the Persians, 276, a, b. 296, c. Put to fire and sword by the Saracens, 513, a. By Cosrhoes, 527, b.
†Mesr, Egypt so called by the Orientals, i. 174, b.
Messala, Valer. escapes from the triumvirs, v. 226, e. His account of Cassius's last words, 244, b, (L).
Messala, L. Corvin. lands in Sicily, 278. Flagrant flattery to Tiberius, 348, d. Well raised by Nero, 526, c.
—— Vipsanus commands the 7th legion, 624.
—— proscribes Julianus, vi. 106, c.
—— Silius put to death by Heliogabalus, 136, e.
Messalina married to Claudius, v. 487, c. Great sway over him, 488, b. 493, b. Cruelty and incontinency, 494, c. Murders, &c. 499, & seq. Marriage to Silius, 502, c, d. Accusation and distress, 503, pass. Death, 504, & seq.
—— Statilia married to Nero, 559, e.
Messalinus, M. Valer. sent into Dalmatia, v. 335, b. Motion against Piso opposed, 406, d, e.
—— Catul. one of Domitian's informers, 674, c. His death, ibid. d.
†Messana, Messina, a city in Sicily, described, iii. 2, d. Why so called, 3, a. Razed by the Carthaginians, 51, b, c. Rebuilt by Dionysius, 55, e. Attacked by the Carthaginians, 92, & seq. Relieved by the Romans, 94, b. Besieged by Hanno, 95, a. Invested by Octavian, v. 280, b. Seized and plundered by Plennius, 281, b—d. Invested by Himilco, vi. 760, b, c. Taken and razed, 761, a, b. By Timoleon, 780, c. Massacres the Corinthians, 817, c, d. Invites the Romans, 822, b, c. Receives them, 824, b, c. Besieged by Hanno, 825, a, b. Taken by the Romans, 826, d, e.
† —— the straits of, described, iii. 2, a.
†Messene besieged by Demetrius, iii. 441, f.
Messengers of good news, their extortions restrained, vi. 366, b.
†Messenia, Mycene, part of ancient Greece, ii. 344, b. The kingdom of, formed by Acrisius, 354, d. 355, d. The kings of, ibid. e & seq. Challenged by the Heraclidæ, 356, b. Taken by them, 360. Regal dignity abolished, ibid. e. Invaded by the Lacedæmonians, 570, & seq. Subdued, 577, & seq. Recovered under Aristomenes, 578. Betrayed by Aristocrates, ibid. & seq. Inslaved by the Lacedæmonians, 581, a.
Messenian War, the cause of it, ii. 570, Second war, 577, & seq.
†Messenia, Mycene, a city in Argos, ii. 351, b. Founded by Perseus, 355.
†Messenians driven out of Peloponnesus, ii. 595, b. Rebel against the Acheans, 681. Rou them, ibid. & seq. Poison Philopemen, 683, a. Punished by his successor, ibid. &c.
Messian Family, an account of, vi. 168, b.
Messianus's embassy and entry into Toulouse, vi. 500, d.
†Mestella, a city in Iberia, iii. 835, c.
†Mestrei, the second race that governed Egypt, i. 92, d, (N).
Metellus rescues the Palladium from the flames, iii. 309, f. iv. 680, & seq. His noble triumph over Asdrubal, and success in Spain, 780, d.
—— Roman general's services to the Acheans, ii. 692. To the Spartans, 693. His deputies affronted by the Acheans, 694, d. Defeats them, 695. Takes Thebes, &c. 696, d. Offers of peace rejected, ibid. & seq. Goes into Macedonia, 697, c.
—— Q. Cæcil. conquers Macedon, 761, & seq. Success and noble behaviour in Spain, 780, & seq. Resentment against his successor, 782, a. Assassinated by Labeo, 798, a. His character of Scipio Africanus, 799, a. Cruelty to the Balearians, 801, e.
—— L. Cæcil. chosen consul, v. 1, a. Second consulship, 3, d.
—— Caius Cæcil. success in Macedon, 5, a. Character, 13, f. March into Numidia, 14, pass. Success against Jugurtha, ibid. f. Proconsulship, 15, d. Siege of Zama, 16, a. Supplanted by Marius, ibid. & seq. 18, a, & seq. Success in Numidia, 20, b, c. Triumph at Rome, 21, b, c. Ensnared by Marius, 41, d. Banished, ibid. e. Biting farewell to Rome, ibid. f. Recalled 43, f, 45, b. Noble speech to Sylla, 76, a. Ill success against Sertorius, 87, & seq. Defeats Hirtuleius, 92. c. and Perpenna, 93, e. Forced into Gaul, ibid. et seq.
—— Quint. Cæcil. chosen consul, v. 44, d. Strict discipline, ibid. et seq. Sent to defend Rome, 62, d. Retires into Afric, 68, e. Chosen consul, 99, e. Opposes Pompey, 111, d. Seized by the Tribune, ibid. e.
—— Pius success against the consuls, 71, c. 72, b.
—— Scipio recalls Cicero, 119. Allies with Pompey, 127, f. Commands the centre at Pharsalia, 143, e. Passes into Afric, 155, c. Success against J. Cæsar, 159, pass. Rejects Cato's advice, 160, a. Defeated and killed, ibid. e —— Luc. sent to judge Jugurtha, vii. 130, f. Excellent character, ibid. & seq. Success, 131, pass. Threatning message to Bocchus, ibid. f, & seq.
†Methheg Ammia, Gath, so called, why, i. 357.
Methodius's learned confutation of Porphyry, vi. 224, sub not.

etbona, razed by Philip, iii. 291, c. Taken by Agrippa, v. 289, d.
Methuſelah, the grandfather of Noah, i. 78, a.
† Methymna, a city in Leſbos, deſcribed, iii. 204, a.
Metius, Car. one of Domitian's informers, v. 674, paſſ.
—— Caſſius's ſon put to death, vi. 77, a.
—— F. Nichomach. ſpeech to Tacitus on his election, vi. 198, d.
Metoicoi, at Athens, what, ii. 438, b.
Metrodorus's principles of indiviſible bodies, i. 20, a. Where born, iii. 108, & not.
—— ambaſſador to Tigranes, 700, d. His death, ibid. e.
Metrophanes ravages Eubœa, iii. 733, c.
Metropolis, ſurrendered to Cæſar, v. 142, a.
Mettinus, king of Tyre, father of Pygmalion, &c. i. 415, e.
Mezentius's dreadful puniſhment revived, vi. 131, f.
Mezizius proclaimed at Syracuſe, vi. 545. Put to death, ibid.
Micah, robbed of his Teraphim, i. 739, c, d. The phophet, 839, (W).
Micaiah's prophecy againſt Ahab fulfilled, i. 812, e, & ſeq.
Mice, bred in ſholes in the Nile's mud, i. 198, b.
Michal's Saul's ſecond daughter, married to David, i. 765, b. Stratagem to ſave him, ibid. & ſeq. Given to another, 769, a. Reſtored to him, 774. Deſpiſes David's piety, 776, c.
Michael choſen emperor, vi. 562, d, e. Defeated by the Bulgarians, ibid. e, f. Reſigns to Leo, e. 563, paſſ. Impriſoned by him, ibid. d.
—— Traulus forces Leo to aſſume the empire, 563, b. His treaſon and condemnation, 564, b. Mounts the throne by murder, ibid. c, d. Cruelty to Theodoſia and her ſon, ibid. e. Horrid hereſies, ibid. d, e, & ſeq. Defeat, 565, b. Wicked and calamitous reign, 567, a, b. Death, ibid. d.
—— the ſon of Theophilus made colleague, vi. 569, d. Becomes a ſecond Nero, 571, c, d. Defeated by the Saracens, ibid. f. Expedition into Crete, 572, c. Murder'd by Baſilius, ibid. f. Funeral honours, 574, e.
—— a Paphlagonian raiſed to the empire, 595, e, f. Leaves the government to his brother John, 596, a—c. Reſigns and dies, 597, b, c.
—— Calaphates raiſed to the empire, 597, d. Cruelties and depoſition, ibid. d, e.
—— Stratonicus choſen emperor, 601, c. Inability, ibid. d. Conſpired againſt, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and reſigns, 602, d—f.
—— Ducas ſet up by his uncle, 605, f, & ſeq. Fatal indolence, 606, b. Why nicknamed Parapanaces, 607, b, c. Forced to reſign, ibid. d, e. Flees to Robert Guiſcard, 909, e, f.
—— Paleologus defeated by the Turks, 635, f. By the Catalans, 636, e, f. Dies for the loſs of his ſon, 638, c, d.
—— forced to turn Monk, vii. 632, b. Lays claim to the crown, ibid. e. Dies, ibid. & ſeq.
† Michmaſh, where ſited, iv. 77, (P).
Micipſa educates Jugurtha, v. 6, a, b. Books of Agriculture brought to Rome, iv. 778, (S). Succeeds Maſiniſſa, vii. 127, a. Jealouſy of Jugurtha, 128, a, b. Adopts him, ibid. c, d. Dies, ibid. e.
† Micri Canini iſland deſcribed, iii. 215, f.
Micythus, regent of Rhegium, retires into Greece, iii. 21, e.
Midas, king of Phrygia, ii, 301, b.
—— the ſon of Gordius, ibid. & not. Riches, &c. 302.
—— IId. 303, b.
—— IIId. ibid. d.
—— IVth. ibid. e.
Midian, the fourth ſon of Abraham by Keturah, i. 299, a.
† Midianites, deſcended from him, i. 299, a. Confounded with the Iſhmaelites, ibid. Their country, Arabia Petrea deſcribed, ibid. c. Early uſe of writing, 300, a. Wars, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Sell Joſeph to Potiphar, 301, a. Debauch the Iſraelites, 303. Puniſhed, ibid. & ſeq. New wars againſt them, 304, a, b. Defeated by Gideon, ibid. & ſeq. Downfal foretold, 305, a, b. When blended with the Arabians, ibid. & ſeq. See vol. vii. 226, & ſeq.
† Migdol, a tower in Hebrew, i. 503, (O). A city on the Nile, 182, (C).
† Migdonia conquered by Tigranes, iii. 701, b.
† Milan declares for Vitellius, v. 601. Seized by Aureolus, vi. 179, f. Taken by Conſtantine, 245, f. Why the metropolis of Italy, 271, b. Taken by Attila, 437, a. vii. 479, c. By Theodoric, 524, a. By the Lombards, 620, c, By Beliſarius, 658, d. Taken and put to the ſword by the Oſtrogoths, 660, b. Opens to Grimoald, 693, d.
Milcah, the wife of Nahor, i. 431, c.
Milefian fables, what, iv. 305, e.
† Mileſians, their ſtate and character, ii. 757. How cultivated by the Parians, ibid. e. Tranſplanted by the Perſians, ibid. & ſeq.
† Miletum, by whom founded, ii. 369. Taken by the Perſians, 110, d. By Alexander, 156, e. The ſtate of it deſcribed, 756, & ſeq. The tyrants of, 758, a.
—— tragedy of, 757, b.
—— the temple of, to Caligula, begun, v. 468, d.
Miletus, chief of the Ionian confederacy, turns pirate, ii. 749.
† Milias, part of Lycia, ſo called, ii. 337.
Milichus diſcovers a conſpiracy againſt Nero, v. 552, & ſeq. His reward, 557, d.
Milinus, king of Crete, iii. 165, b.
Military treaſure at Rome, what, v. 380, e, (I).
Militiæ magiſtri, their office and number, vi. 271, b—d.
Millo, that proclaimed Abimelech, who, i. 747, (K).
Milo ſurrenders Tarentum, iii. 820, a. Puniſhed for his double parricide, 821, a. See alſo vol. iv. 747, & ſeq.
—— forwards Cicero's recall, v. 119, b. Bloody encounter with Clodius, 125. Baniſhment, 126, d.
Miltiades defeats the Perſians, ii. 112, e. 460, & ſeq. His ſpeech to Callimachus, 461, & ſeq. Unfortunate expedition againſt Paros, 464, & ſeq. See alſo vol. iii. 223, & ſeq. Death and extract, 465, & not.
—— choſen king of the Dolonci, iii. 789, a, b. Reſcued by the Lampſacians, ibid. c. Death, ibid. d.
—— IId, ſeizes on the throne, ibid. d, e.
† Miltine, where ſituate, vii. 113, (A).
Mina, its value, ii. 429, a.
—— of ſilver, iv. 5, (I). Of Gold, 115, (C).
Minacius, Mag. his faithfulneſs to the Romans, v. 49, d.
Minchah, the offering of, among the Jews, its various kinds, i. 624, a.
Mindarus defeated and killed, ii. 526. 601.
Minerva, how celebrated at Sais, i. 208, b, c. By the Trojans, ii. 309, c. Her temple burnt at Aſſeſſus, 334. Her temple at Stymphalus, 376, a. At Tegea, 379. Of braſs, built by Caſtor and Pollux, 402, c. At Agrigentum, why burnt, vi. 749, b.
Minerva's target, a large diſh, ſo called, v. 619, e.
Minervina married to Conſtantine, vi. 230, e.
Minervius's writings and character, vi. 316, (G).
Mines, king of Lyrneſſus in Cilicia, ii. 343, a.
Minio's haughty ſpeech to the Roman ambaſſadors, iii. 551, a, b.
† Minnith, a conſiderable city of the Ammonites, i. 293, c.
† Minoa, by whom built, iii. 12, c.
† Minoas, iſland, where, ii. 506, d. Taken by the Athenians, ibid.
† Minorca iſland deſcribed, vii. 308, b, c.
Minos king of Crete, his bloody tribute on the Athenians, ii. 364, & ſeq. Gives laws to his iſland, iii. 163. Whoſe ſon he was, ibid. f. His reign, 166, b. Fleet, wars, &c. ibid. &c. Cruelty to the Athenians, 167, a. War with Cocalus, ibid. c. Murdered, ibid. d. His laws, ibid. & ſeq. Vid. & pag. 12, & ſeq.
Minotaur deſcribed, iii. 167, b.
Mint, when ſaid to have been firſt erected, i. 131, (V).
Minturnienſes's high regard to diſtreſſed Marius, v. 58, & ſeq,
Minutianus's writings and character, vi. 168, (X).
Minutius's ſpeech in favour of Coriolanus, iv. 495, a, & e. 496, f. His ſpeech to him, 500, a, b.
—— L. ſurpriſed by the Æqui, 526. Degraded by Cincinnatus, 527, f.
—— L. M. ſuperintendant of the proviſions, 547, f. Diſcovers Mælius's conſpiracy, 548, b.
—— Tib. Augur. choſen conſul, 626, c. Slain by the Samnites, ibid. e.
—— Rufus choſen general of horſe, 705, e. Accuſes the dictator, 706, & ſeq. Diſobeys him, 707, d. Made equal to him, ibid. & ſeq. Submits to him, 708, c. Killed by the Carthaginians, 711, b. See alſo vol. vii. 25—30.
Miriam, Moſes's ſiſter, whether one of the Hebrew midwives, 477, (K). Sent to fetch a nurſe for him, 478, e. Smitten with leproſy for ill language, 526, a. Cured, ibid. b. Her death, 532, a. Sepulchre, ibid. (Q). Character and office, ibid. &c.
—— a Jewiſh lady, eats her own child, iv. 282, b.
Miſleto of the oak, ſacred among the Gauls, vii. 330, ſub not. Its virtues, &c. 332, a, b, (H). [416], e, (A).
Miſitheus, chief miniſter to young Gordian, vi. 161, f. Letter againſt his wicked miniſtry, 162, a, (T). Signal merit, ibid. & ſeq. Honoured by the ſenate, 163, b. Death, ibid. c.

Misor, in the Phœnician records, the Mizraim of Egypt, i. 134, a, (D).
Missio, among the Romans, what, v. 359, (Q).
† Missna, where situate, vi. 667, a.
Mithras, the Parthian name of the sun, iv. 291, b.
Mithradates, Astyages's herdsman, ordered to murder young Cyrus, ii. 83. Brings him up, ibid. Confesses it, 84. Punished for it, ibid. & seq.
Mithridates I. 3d king of Pontus, iii. 724, b. Goes over to Alexander, 330, b.
—— IId, wars with Antigonus, ibid. & seq.
—— IIId, his reign, 725, a.
—— IVth, invaded by the Galatians, ibid. b.
—— Vth, wars with the Sinopians, ibid. c.
—— VIth, a firm ally to the Romans, 726, d. Murdered, ibid. e.
—— VIIth, his glorious reign and conquests, 727, & seq. Treachery, 728, c, d. Invades Bithynia, 729. Defeats the Romans, 730. Cruelty to them, 731, & seq. Defeated by the Rhodians, 157, c. 733, a. Ominous prodigies against him, ibid. (S). Defeated by Sylla, 734. By Fimbria, 736, a, b. Peace with Sylla, 737, & seq. Cruelty to his son, 739, a. New war, ibid. & seq. Ill-success before Cyzicum, 741, & seq. & (G). Defeats the Romans, 745, a. Forsook by his army, ibid. & seq. Murders all his wives, &c. 746, b. Renews the war against Rome, 748. Defeated, 749, c. Letter to Arsaces, 748, (K). Beats the Romans, 749, & seq. Besieged by Pompey, 751, e, f. Defeated again, 752. Flees into Scythia, 753. Appears afresh, 754. Forsook by his army, 755. Betrayed by his son, ibid. & seq. Kills himself, 756. His character, ibid. & seq. Funeral, 757, d, e.
—— Iberus crowned king of Armenia, 710, c. Invaded by Artabanus, ibid. d. Sent prisoner to Rome, ibid. e. Restored, ibid. & seq. Betrayed by Pullio, 711, e, Murdered, 712, a.
—— IId king of Armenia, joins with that of Pontus, 726, c,
—— king of Parthia, takes Demetrius prisoner, 605.
—— king of Pergamus's great service to Julius Cæsar, 676, a. 678, b, c. Made king of Bosporus, 843, d. Killed, ibid. e. See also vol. v. 153.
—— Ist and IId kings of Iberia, 836, e, & seq.
—— king of Atropatene, 844.
—— of Comagene, made so by the Romans, 853, d.
—— rescued by Antipater, iv 217, b, & (E).
—— Ist king of Parthia's vast conquests, 292, c, d. Excellent character, ibid. e, f.
—— IId, murders his father, 293, e. Driven out, ibid. f. Put to death, 294, b.
—— king of Iberia, wars against the Parthians, 315, b. Restored by Claudius, v. 478, d.
—— put to death by Galba, 585, b, e.
Mithridatic War, ii. 736, & seq. iii. 727, & seq. Renewed, 739, & seq. Its duration, 756, in fin. not.
Mithrobarzanes restored to his father's crown, iii 699, d.
Mitre of the Jewish high-priest described, i. 640, a, & (B).
Mitula defeats the Romans, vii. 695, d. Made duke of Spoleta, 696, b, † Mitylene, metropolis of Lesbos, iii. 204, b. Its worthies, ibid. The seat of learning, ibid. c. Taken by Memnon, 107, c.
† Mitylenians invaded by the Athenians, ii. 505. Succoured by the Peloponnesans, 506. iii. 106. In high favour with Alexander, 107, d. Compassion for Pompey, v. 148, a.
† Mizpah, where, iv. 59, a. A place of worship to the Jews, ibid. & (R).
Mizraim, the beginning of his reign, i. 123, a. The second son of Ham, 165, a. Why of the dual number, 174, b. The scripture-name for Egypt, ibid.
† Mnemium, promontory in Ethiopia, vii 190, a.
Mnemosyne, whence so called, iii. 163, b.
Mnester, a comedian, debauched by Messalina, v. 504, b, (N). Put to death, ibid.
—— Agrippina's freedman, stabs himself at her funeral, 534, e.
Mnestheus undermines Theseus at Athens, ii. 367, a. Ascends the throne, ibid. c. Death after the Trojan war, 321.
—— admiral of the Rhodians, v. 234, e, f.
—— conspiracy and cruel death, vi. 195, b—d.
Mnevis, whether the same with Apis, vii. 209, b. (B).
Moab, the father of the Moabites, born, i. 284, a, b.
† Moabites, their origin, i. 284, c. Where settled, i. 285, a, b. Their religion, customs and government, ibid. & seq. Drive out the Emims, and driven by the Ammonites, 287, a. Why not admitted to intermarry with the Israelites, 289, b. Subdue them during eighteen years, ibid. d. Defeated by Ehud, 290, b, c. Hospitality to David, ibid. e. Confederacy against him punished, ibid. d. Rebel against Ahaziah, 291, a. Defeated, ibid. b. Defeated by Jehoshaphat, 292, c, d. Cruelty to the Edomites, ibid. & seq. Subdued by Nebuchadnezzar, ibid. Made tributary to Alexander Janneus, iv. 100, b.
Moawias sells the Colossus, iii. 131, c.
† Moca, Moka, a city in Arabia Petrea, vii. 227, e. In Arabia Felix, 234, a. In Yaman, described, ibid. e.
Modares goes over to the Romans, vi. His character, ibid. & seq.
Moderatus, one of Faustina's gallants, raised, vi. 78, d.
Modestus's cruelties in Palestine, vi. 305, e, f. To the orthodox, 372, a.
Modicratus's writings and character, v. 656, (D).
† Moedi plunder the Delphic oracle, iii. 749, d.
Moeris king of Egypt, made the famed lake of that name, i. 249. His two pyramids, 185, a. 249. Other particulars of him, ibid. & (C).
† —— the famed lake of, described, 195, c. Its two pyramids in the midst, 196, a. The fishery of it, 295, f. Why called the lake of Charon, 196, b.
† Mœsia described, v. 342, (A). Yielded to Theodoric, vii. 522, b.
† Mœsians subdued by Crassus, v. 299, f. Declare for Vitellius, 621, e. 622, a.
† Mogli, the ancient name of Muscovy, whence, ii. 243, 266.
Mohammed defeated in Persia, iv. 370, d. His successors subdue it, 371, a, b.
—— the impostor, spreads his doctrine, vi. 643. His death and successor, ibid. b.
—— tomb at Medina, vii. 237, e. His birth and extract, 285, d.
—— general of the Saracens, his success against Justinian, vi. 547, b, c. Recovers Armenia, 548, e.
—— invites the Turks to his assistance, 598, f. His death, 599, f.
—— the son of Bajazet defeats his four brothers, 647, f.
—— the son of Amurath, butchers all his brothers, 649, b, c. Shuts up the mouth of the Bosporus, ibid. e. Besieges Constantinople, 654, & seq. His fleet forced by the Genoese, 651, c, d. Impotent rage against them, ibid. d, e. Vast causeway and bridge, ibid. e, f. Cruelty to the Constantinopolitans, 652, & seq.
Mohammedan divines, their wretched philosophy, i. 22, a. And theology, ibid. & 48, d.
Molae, the primary particles of the earth, i. 27, b.
† Moldavia, part of ancient Dacia, vii. 611, a.
Molech, Moloch, a deity of the Ammonites, i. 293, d. Described, ibid. & 294, b, (B). Opinions about it, ibid. (C) & (G). The same with Chronos, vi. 682, (P).
Molo, a prince of Syria, revolts from Antiochus, iii. 530, e, f. Success against him, 531. Defeated, 533. Kills himself, ibid. e. His body crucified, 534, a.
† Molochath, where situate, vii. 143, a.
Molon, not the same with Apollonius, v. 60, (H).
Molouch-Al-Thoraif, the third Persian dynasty, why so called, iv. 371, b.
† Molossi, ancient inhabitants of Greece, ii. 344, b.
† Molossis, a province of Epirus, described, iii. 796, c. Famed for its mastiffs, 798, b. Subdued by Pyrrhus, ibid. e.
Molossus king of Epirus, brought up by Helenus, iii. 799, e, f.
† Mona, Anglesey, by whom conquered, vii. Some antiquities of, 411, f.
Monad of Pythagoras, what meant by, i. 25, d, e.
Monarchical government, how introduced, i. 171, d.
Monarchs, how honoured by the Medes, ii. 7. By the Scythians, 271.
† Monastery of the ark on the Cardu mountains, i. 112, d.
Monaxes's house burnt at Constantinople, vi. 463, b.
Monaxius chosen consul with Plintha, vi. 473, a.
† Mondars, their extract, kingdoms, &c. vii. 272, d, & seq.
† Mondus, an island and port in Ethiopia, vii, 190, a, b.
Moneses goes over to Mark Antony, iv. 310, b.
—— general of Parthia sent into Armenia, 318, c—e.
Moneta, money, whence so called, iv. 595, e.
—— silver, when first coined at Rome, 649, a. When first alloy'd with Copper, 714, a.
—— despised by the Spartans, ii 565, c.
—— the temple of Juno Moneta built at Rome, iv. 595, e.
Monima put to death, iii. 746, b, (L).
Monks confined to their deserts, vi. 418, a. Suppressed by Constantine IVth, 555, d, e.
† Monmouthshire, formerly part of Wales, vii. 410, e.
Monobasus I. king of Adrabene, iii. 849, a.

Monobasus IId. made regent, ibid. c, d. Mounts the throne, 851.
Monomachus ſent to poiſon Cantacuſen, vi. 644, d.
Monothelites, their doctrine, vi. 543, a, Condemned, 546, e, f. Revived by Philippicus, 550, d.
Montanus, Trul. one of Meſſalina's gallants, put to death, v. 504, c.
—— Jul. his chaſtiſing of Nero, 525, c. Forced to kill himſelf, ibid. d.
—— Alpinus ſent into Germany with the news of Vitellius's death, 628, b.
Months, Jewiſh, their names, how ancient, i. 617. (K). Roman, how corrected by Numa, iv. 437, d, e. Their names, whence, 438, (O). How changed by Commodus, vi. 92, e.
Mantius's noble ſpeech to Gallus, vi. 291, d. Miſerable death, ibid. e.
Mont Morillon, the Gauliſh temple of, deſcribed, vii. 352, (K).
Moon, when created, i. 53, b. How worſhipped by the Egyptians, 207, d. By the Ethiopians, vii. 197, a. By the Gauls, 352, (K). By the Saxons, 442, d.
—— the temple of, at Rome, burnt, v. 548, a.
Moons, new, how obſerved by the Jews, i. 610, a. How fixed, ibid. (I). Laws concerning that feſtival, 610, & ſeq.
Moors, ſee Mauritanians, vii. 149, & ſeq. Defeated by the Romans, vi. 58, b. Driven out of Spain, 70, a. Defeated and tranſplanted, 213, f, & ſeq.
† Moph, Noph; ſee Memphis, vii. 216, b.
† Mopſucrene, where ſited, vi. 314, d. The place where Conſtantine died, ibid. e.
† Mopſueſtia, preſerved by Antoninus, vi. 57, b. Fortified by the Saracens, 548, d.
Mopſueſtians murder Seleucus, iii. 615, d. Puniſhed by Euſebes, ibid. e.
† Mopſueta, a city in Cilicia Propr. ii. 341, b.
Mopſus, who, vi. 691, e. Worſhipped at Carthage, ibid.
† Moraw river in Germany, vii. [415], e.
Mordecai, one of the heads of the returning Jews, iv. 4, b. Who, ibid (E). Heſter's uncle, his genealogy, &c. 11, e.
More majorum, the puniſhment of, what, v. 576, b.
† Morea, where, and why ſo called, ii. 701, b.
† Moreb, the land of, where, i. 424, a. Why ſo called, ibid. (G).
† Morena, part of Myſia, ii. 323, b.
† Moreſby, the famed antiquities of, vii. 412, f.
Mortgages, how made among the ancient Athenians, ii. 429, b, & ſeq.
† Morgantia; ſee Morgentium, iii. 3, c.
Morgantines, their treachery to the ſlaves, v. 32, c.
† Morgetæ, who, iii. 3, c.
† Moriah, the famed mount of, where ſited, i. 431, a. Why ſo called, ibid. (C).
† Morimena, Jupiter's temple at, iii. 763, d.
† Morini in Gaul, who, v. 121, b. vii. 399, b, (R). 421, c. Subdued by Cæſar, 399, b. Attend him into Britain, 421.
Morinus's judgment of the Karaites, iv. 175, (K).
† Morocco, its extent, vii. 139, c.
† Morpeſſus, where, iii. 222. Famed for its marble, ibid.
Mortagon relieves Conſtantinople, vi. 565, e. Defeated, ibid. f. Aſſiſts Michael againſt the rebels, vii. 629, a, b.
Moſaic account of the creation, i. 35, a, b. Explained, 41, d, e.
—— laws, whether copied by Ariſtotle, iii. 330, (F).
† Moſchic mountains in Armenia, deſcribed, iii. 695, b.
† Moſchiti, who and where ſited, i. 167, e. Whether the Muſcovites deſcended from them, ibid.
Moſchus, author of the atomic ſyſtem, who, i. 19, e. Thought by ſome to be Moſes, 20.
Muſcovites, deſcended from Magog, ii. 243, & ſeq. Have ſainted Conſtantine the Great, 268, e.
Moſes born, i. 153, (H). 477, c. Concealed three months, 478, a. Brought up by Pharaoh's daughter, ibid. & ſeq. His univerſal learning, 479, a, (N). His forty years in Egypt, how ſpent, ibid. paſſ. & (O). Forced to flee into Midian, 480, paſſ. Lives forty years with Jethro, 481. Suppoſed to have writ the book of Job there, ibid. & ſeq. Viſion of the deity in the buſh, 484, a. Returns into Egypt, ibid. & ſeq. Bid to bring Iſrael out of Egypt, 487, & ſeq. Excuſes himſelf from it, 489, b. Obeys and ſets out, ibid. & ſeq. 490, & ſeq. Why ſmitten by an angel in the inn, ibid. c, (A). His ſon circumciſed by Zipporah, 492. Joins Aaron at Horeb, ibid. & ſeq. Meſſage to Pharaoh rejected, 493. Turns his rod into a ſerpent, 494, c. The waters into blood, 496, a. Brings mulittudes of frogs, ibid. c. Of lice, ibid. d, e. Of flies, 497, a. A murrain on the cattle, ibid. d. Hail and thunder, ibid. e. Miſchief done by them, 498, a—c. Locuſts, ibid. e, f. A three days darkneſs in all the land, ibid. & ſeq. How long time all theſe took him up, 499, (H). Inſtitutes the paſſover, ibid. c—e. Prepares the people for their departure, ibid. & ſeq. The death of the Egyptian firſt-born, 501. Ordered to depart, ibid. & ſeq. Encamps at Succoth, 502, a. Conſecrates the firſt born there, ibid. & ſeq. Removes to Ethan, 503, b. To Pihahiroth, 504. Overtaken by Pharaoh, ibid. & ſeq. Divides the Red ſea, 505. The deed whether miraculous, ibid. & (P). Song after the croſſing it, 508, b, c. Brings manna for their food, 509, & ſeq. Waters out of the rock, 511. Whether this done in two ſeveral places, ibid. (T). Defeats the Amalekites, ibid. & ſeq. Appoints judges under him, 512. Encamps at the foot of Mount Sinai, ibid. & ſeq. Goes up to it, 513. Receives the decalogue, 514, a. And the ceremonial law, 516, b. Ratifies the covenant, 518, c, d. Takes ſeventy elders with him up the mount, 519, a. Stays there forty days, ibid. & ſeq. Given over for loſt, 520, a. Comes down again, 521, a. Breaks the two tables, and deſtroys the golden calf, ibid. & ſeq. Returns up to the mount, 522, b, &c. and ſtays another forty days, 523, a. Comes down with a radiant face, ibid. Exacts a general offering for the tabernacle, ibid. c. Appoints the grand council of ſeventy, 724, c. The manner of their election, ibid. (G). Heals Miriam's leproſy, 526, a. Sends twelve ſpies to view the promiſed land, ibid. c—e. Quells a rebellion raiſed on their ill report of it, ibid. & ſeq. Who are defeated by the Amalekites, 527, & ſeq. Condemns the ſabbath breaker, 528, d. And Korah, Dathan, &c. to a dreadful end, 529, & ſeq. Stays a ſecond plague againſt the rebellious, 530, d. Smites the rock a ſecond time, 532, a. Why excluded from entering into Canaan, ibid. & ſeq. Sets up the brazen ſerpent againſt the fiery ones, 533. Conſigns all the Midianites to deſtruction, 536, b. The occaſion of it, ibid. & ſeq. & (A). Divides the land by lot, and takes a view of it on mount Nebo, 537, a. Inveſts Joſhua his ſucceſſor, ibid. & ſeq. Speech to the Iſraelites, 539, d. Second, ibid. e, & ſeq. Appoints a form for bringing the firſt fruits to God, 540, b. And bleſſing and curſes to be ſet up on Ebal and Garizzim, ibid. e, & ſeq. Confirms the covenant of Horeb, 541, b. His prophetic ſong, 542, a. And laſt bleſſing to the tribes, ibid. & ſeq. Dies on mount Nebo, 543, b. Burial, character, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Rabinnic and Mohammedic dreams and additions to his life, writings, &c. 544, & ſeq. & notes. His fabled conqueſt of Æthiopia, vii. 205, & ſeq.
—— one of the four Bulgarian kings, his death, 633, c.
Moſolam, a noted Jewiſh markſman, the ſtory of, iv. 35, in fin not.
Moſoles's riſe and puniſhment, vi. 558, e, f.
† Moſylon, a promontory in Ethiopia, vii. 190, a. Its port, ibid. b.
Mot, what in the Phœnician coſmogony, i. 12.
Mother, a title given to the chief goddeſſes, iii. 9, c, & (H).
Motion of matter eternal, repugnant, i. 10, a.
† Motya deſcribed, iii. 49, e. Taken by Dionyſius, 50, b. Its ſituation, vi. 756, b—d. Stout defence, 757, c, d. Plundered, 758, b, c. Retaken by the Carthaginians, 759.
† Mount, ſacred, why ſo called, iv. 492, c.
—— the law of, what, 537, f. Of offence, where ſituate, i. 586, c.
Mountains, their greateſt height, i. 102, (N).
Mourning, how regulated by Moſes, i. 696, b, (R). By Lycurgus, ii. 561, a.
Mouſe, one ſold for 390 denarii, vii. 38, b.
† Mozarabes, who, vii. 310, (A). Officium Mozarabicum, in Spain, what, ibid. e, (B).
† Muah, the royal reſidence of Yaman, vii. 235, b.
Mucia, the feſtival of, whence ſo called, v. 45, d.—The lewd wife of Pompey divorced, 111. d, (P).
Mucianus ſent governor of Syria, v. 566, b. Declares there for Otho, 602, d. 620, b. Allies with Veſpaſian, ibid. c. Marches againſt Vitellius, 621, c, d. Untimely jealous of Primus, 633, (A). Entry into Rome, 639, a. Motley character, ibid. b—d. Treachery to Primus, 645, a, b. Pleads in favour of informers, ibid. e.
Mucius Cordus's unparallelled bravery, iv. 475, paſſ. Whence ſtiled Scævola, ibid. e. Outwits Porſenna, ibid. & ſeq. Choſen conſul, 786, f. (V), Mugaris, king of the Hunns, takes Boſphorus, vii. 483, c. Repulſed by John, ibid. e.
† Mulotilum, where ſituate, iii. 787.
† Mulucha, Mollochat, river, boundary of Numidia, vii 107.
†—— the caſtle of, deſcribed, v. 22, a. Taken by Marius, ibid. b.
Mummies, of Egypt, deſcribed, i. 215, (I). Of Perſia, ii. 39, f.

Mummius, the conſul, ſent againſt the Achæans, ii. 696, & ſeq. Blockades Corinth, 697, c. Defeats the Achæans, ibid. & ſeq. Takes and plunders Corinth, 698, c. His ill taſte of architecture, ibid. e, & ſeq. Triumph at Rome, 700, e. Ill ſucceſs in Luſitania, iv. 767, e, f. Repulſed by the rebels, v. 98, a.
† Munda, where ſituate, v. 72, f, (S). Beſieged, 174, c. Taken, 176, d.
—— the battle of, 173, paſſ.
Mundo's revolt in Pannonia, vii. 643, b. Submits to Theodoric, ibid. b, c.
Mundon, the Goth, invades the Romans, vi. 521, a.
Mündus's treachery to Paulina puniſhed, v. 402, a, (A).
—— quells a riot at Conſtantinople, vi. 526, c.
—— ſucceſs againſt the Bulgarians, vii 624, b. Againſt the Oſtrogoths, 652, a, b, (Q). Defeated and killed, 653, d.
Mundzuchus, king of the Hunns, vii. 458, a.
† Munichia, a ſea-port in Attica, ii. 437, c. A prophecy about it fulfilled, 423, d. Gariſoned by the Macedons, 551, d. Taken by Dem. Poliorcetes, 554. Gariſoned by him, 556, f. Sold back to the Athenians, 557, d. Repaired by Adrian, 742, b.
Munichian month, why changed, ii. 554, f.
Municianus, An. conſpires againſt Caligula, v. 482, e. Againſt Claudius, 494, & ſeq. Kills himſelf, 495, e.
Muraena, left prætor of Aſia, iii. 738, e. Defeated by Mithridates, 739, d. His ſon more ſucceſsful againſt him, 740, e, (G). Noble ſpeech to Auguſtus, v. 305. Conſpires againſt him, 306, a. Put to death, ibid. b, c.
Mural crown, on whom beſtowed, iv. 439, (R). Who firſt obtained it, 573, f.
Murcia, the goddeſs of cowards, vii. 360, in fin. (C).
Murcus Stat. ſent againſt Baſſus, v. 170, b. Joins Caſſius in Syria, 218, a. Defeats Dolabella's fleet, 219, c. The triumvir's fleet, 248, c. Forſakes his colleague, 267, b. And Pompey, 271, d. Murdered, ibid. e.
Murder, wilful, no place of refuge for, i. 647, d. Moſes's law againſt it, ibid. &c. God's abhorrence of it, 675. How puniſhed, ibid. & ſeq. By whom cogniſable at Athens, ii. 442, a.
† Murgantium, in Sicily, deſcribed, iii. 3, c. Surrendered to Himilco, 114, e. Taken from the Samnites, iv. 630.
† Murodunum, Caermarthen in Wales, vii. 411.
† Murſa, a city in New Pannonia, vi. 211, a. Where ſituate, 284, b.
—— the battle of, fatal to the empire, ibid. & ſeq.
† Murſia, ruined by the Quadi, vi. 388, c.
Muſa, princeſs of Bithynia, deprived of her ſucceſſion, iii. 832, b.
—— Antonius recovers dying Auguſtus, v. 303, e.
Muſæum, of Alexandria, deſcribed, iii. 630, b, c.
† —— Taken and gariſoned by Demetrius, ii. 556, f. Reſold to the Athenians by Diogenes, 557, c.
Muſic diſapproved of by the Egyptians, i. 213, a. In high requeſt among the Jews, i. 714, paſſ. & (O). Improved by David and his band, ibid. & ſeq. Introduced into Perſia, ii. 177, d. Admired by the Spartans, 564. Concerts of, at Rome, v. 3, e. Uſed in Gaul at their banquets, vii. 385, b, (Z), & ſeq.
Muſical inſtruments, the firſt inventor of, i. 81, a, b.
Muſicanus's ſubmiſſion and preſents to Alexander, iii. 400, a. Revolt, and crucifixion, ibid. d, (H).
Muſtai of Athens, what, ii. 732, ſub not.
Muſtapha ſtrangled by Amurath, vi. 648, a, b.
† Muſulanians, who, and whence, vi. 666, c, (B). Where ſited, vii. 158, a. Serve under Tacfarinas, ibid. b. Defeated, 159, a.
Muth, the ſon of Chronus, the ſame with Pluto, i. 138, b.
Mutilation firſt puniſhed at Rome, v. 36, e, & ſeq.
† Mutina attempted by the Boii, iv. 694, d. Relieved by Attilius, ibid. e. The ſiege of, v. 202. Raiſed, 207.
—— taken by Conſtantine, vi. 245, f.
—— the battle of, v. 206, e. When fought, 207, (O).
Mutines's valour maintains the Carthaginians in Sicily, iii. 124, & ſeq. Envied by Hanno, &c. 125. Ravages the iſland, ibid. f. Betrays Agrigentum to the Romans, 127. Rewarded for it, 128, b.
† Muza, an emporium in Arabia Felix, vii. 134, a.
Muzalo made guardian to young Laſcaris, 287, f. Aſſaſſinated, ibid. & ſeq.
† Mycaberna taken by Philip, iii. 294.
† Mycale, the battle of, ii. 475, f.
† Mycena, and Mycenians; ſee Meſſena and Meſſenians, ii. 344, & ſeq.
Mycerinus, the ſon of Cheops king of Egypt, i. 262, c. Erects three grand pyramids, 184, b. Burial of his daughter, ibid. Vain attempt to bely the oracle, ibid. f, & 263, a.
† Myconians, why ſubject to baldneſs, iii. 225, b.
† Myconus iſland deſcribed, ibid.
† Mygdonia, province of Macedon, iii. 253. Where ſited, 256, c.
† Myla, a city in Sicily, deſcribed, iii. 92, & (N).
Myles, the ſon of Eurotas, ii 395, b.
Myllos, an indecent ſtatue in Ceres's temple, ii. 732, ſub not.
† Myra, a city of Lycia, ii. 337.
† Myrmidons, where ſeated, ii. 381, d. Why ſo called, ibid. & not. iii. 243, c, d.
Myronides defeats the Corinthians, ii. 487, d. Valour againſt the Thebans, 488, & ſeq.
† Myronis iſland in Ethiopia, vii. 190, b.
Myrratum Vinum in requeſt at Rome, iv. 239, (Z).
Myrſilus tyrant of Leſbos, iii. 106, c.
† Myrtea in Bithynia, by whom founded, iii. 822, a.
† Myſia deſcribed, ii. 288, & ſeq. Part of Aſia Propria, ibid. & 323, & ſeq. Its ſoil, antiquities, &c. 326. Conquered by Crœſus, ibid. f.
Myſians ſide with the Trojans, ii. 319, e. Their character, 326, c. Subdued, ibid. f.
† Myſias, a river in Phrygia, ii. 294, d.
† Myſocuros, the port of, where, vii. 146, d.
Myſticus, Nic. excommunicates the emperor, vi. 575, c. Depoſed, ibid. d.
† Myttiſtratum, taken and deſtroyed by Collatinus, vi. 833, b, c.
† Myus, where, and by whom founded, ii. 369, d.

N

NAAMAH, the daughter of Cain, inventreſs of ſpinning, &c. i. 77, a.
Naaman cured of his leproſy by Eliſha, i. 385. Renounces idolatry, 386, b, c. His hoſpital at Damaſcus for lepers, ibid. (M).
† Naar-Malcha; ſee below, Nahar-Malcha, i. 57, a.
† Naar-Sares, a river of Babylon, i. 909, a, b.
† Nab, a river in Germany, vii. [415], a.
† Nababurum, where ſituate, vii. 115, c.
Nabades defends Niſibis, iv. 353, d. Defeats the Romans, 354, b.
Nabal's churliſh behaviour to David, i. 768, e. Death, 769, a.
† —— a city in Tunis, vi. 667, d.
Nabarzanes's treachery to Darius, ii. 168, f.
† Nabathea, where ſituate, v. 395, (N).
† Nabathean Arabs, invaded by Antigonus, iii. 433, & ſeq. Peace with his ſon, 434, c. Fall foul on his collector of the bitumen, ibid. f.
† Nabatheans, inhabitants of Arabia Petrea, vii. 225, a. 239, a. Whence ſo named, 226, c, d. Where ſited, ibid. e. Way of living, 229, a, &c.
Nabis tyrant of Sparta's cruelty to them, ii. 636, & ſeq. To the Argives, 671, f. Treachery to Philip, 672, a. Defeated by the Achæans, 675, & ſeq. Harraſſed by them, 677, & ſeq. Defeated afreſh, 676. Aſſaſſinated by the Ætolians, 638, & ſeq. 714.
Nabocolaſſar, the Nebuchadnezzar of Scripture, i. 948, e. Subjects Aſſyria to Babylon, ibid. & ſeq. Deſtroys Niniveh, 950, a. Other conqueſts, ibid. d. Takes Jeruſalem and Jehoiakim priſoner, ibid. & ſeq. His dream of the image explained by Daniel, 951, b, c. Leads the Jews captives, 952. Beſieges Jeruſalem, 953, b, c. Defeats Pharaoh-Ophra, ibid. d. Cruelty to Zedechiah, and his ſons, 954, a, b. Carries the reſt into captivity, ibid. & ſeq. His vaſt image ſet up, 955. Takes Tyre after a thirteen years ſiege, ibid. & ſeq. Compleats the ruin of Judea, 956, a, b. Brings Egypt, &c. under tribute, ibid. & ſeq. Imbelliſhes Babylon, 957, a, & ſeq. His dream of the tree interpreted, 962, e, & ſeq. His pride and metamorphoſis, 963, c—e. Recovery, ibid. & ſeq. Death, 964, a. Prophecy, ibid. b, c.
Nabonadius, the murderer of Laboroſoarchod, i. 969, b. Reduces the ſceptre to the Aſſyrians, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Cyrus, 970, b, c. How uſed by him, ibid. & ſeq. Whether the Belſhazzar of Daniel, or Darius the Mede, 971, f, & ſeq. See alſo vol. ii. 90—93.
Nabonaſſar, probably the Ninyas of prophane hiſtory, i. 942, & ſeq. His Æra, 935, b. Firſt Babyloniſh king in Ptolemy's canon, 940, c.
Nabopalaſſar wreſts the kingdom from the Aſſyrians, i. 947. Transfers it to Babylon, ibid. &c. The Beleſis of Ctefias, and Nanybrus of Damaſcen, ibid. f.
Nabuchadnezar; ſee Nabocolaſſar, i. 948, & ſeq. Alliance with the king of Media, ii. 18, d. Joint conqueſts with him, him, 19, & seq. Of Palestine and Jerusalem, 20. & seq. Invasion of Spain, vii. [324], b.

Nebuchodonosor al Chyniladan invades Media, ii. 15. Builds Niniveh, 16, a.
Nachor, Abraham's brother, i. 431, c. His issue, ibid. d.
Nachorugan flayed alive, iv. 356, c.
— defeated in Lazica, vi. 529, b, c.
†Nachs-rustan mountain near Persepolis, ii. 55. Tombs, and other antiquities of it, ibid. & not.
Nadab, the son of Aaron, i. 490, a. Consecrated by him, 523, c. Killed by fire from heaven, ibid. d, &c.
— king of Israel, besieges Gibbeton, i. 358, b.
Nadius, 2d king of Babylon, probably the Ctesian Ninyas, i. 945, b.
Neniæ, by whom invented, iii. 217, b.
Nevius, the augur's contest with Tarquin, iv. 450, c.
— the poet, his writings, &c. 680, d.
†Nagidus, a Samian colony in Cilicia Aspera, ii. 340, d.
†Nahar-malcha, or Basilicos Potamos, i. 57, a. Whether the same with Ceuta, an artificial branch of the Euphrates, 908, a, b. By whom dug, ibid. c. Its course, ibid. d. See also vol. vi. 20, f, & 114, a.
Nahash king of the Ammonites, i. 295, c. Routed and dispersed by Saul, ibid. c. Kindness to David, ibid.
Nabor, inventions ascribed to him, i. 131, (W).
Nahum prophesies in Hezechia's reign, i. 839, (W).
†Naid, the province of, where sited, vii. 239, a.
Nails, why, and how used chronologically at Rome, iv. 585, b. The ceremony of driving them, ibid. c.
†Naim, where situate, iv. 210, (W).
†Nairam, an ancient bishopric of Arabia, vii. 252, d—f.
†Naissus, taken by Attila, 465, f. Described, ibid. & seq. & (C). Taken by the Ostrogoths, 520, b.
Nakraus, Bakraus, the first antidiluvian king in Egypt, i. 279, c, d.
Nanea, the same with Diana, iii. 609, (R). Her temple attempted by Sidetes, ibid. c, d.
Names, the similitude of, a deceitful guide, i. 56, pass.
— various, of the Romans, explained, iv. 474, (Z).
Nana impregnated by a pomegranate, ii. 297, c.
Nanachus king of Phrygia, ii. 300, & seq.
Nannianus's success against the Lentienses, vi. 387, a, b.
— against the Alemans, vii. 594, d.
Nanius's defeat and flight, vi. 355, f.
Naybons, his history, i. 938, a, b, & seq.
Naudbenghian, by whom built, iv. 378, d.
†Naphthali, Jacob's 2d son by Bilhah, i. 441. Jacob's prophecy to his tribe explained, 464, c. How verify'd, ibid. (O). Their lot in the promised land, 569, c. Carried captive into Assyria, 830, b, c.
†Naphtuim, who, and where situate, i. 165, d.
Napis king of Scythia, ii. 281.
†Naples taken by Belisarius, vii. 652, b, (Q). Its dreadful slaughter, ibid. in fin. not. Besieged by Totila, 666, e. Taken and dismantled, 667, d—f.
† — the exarchate of, 683, c, d. Its extent, 687, a, (S). Extent of its dukedom, 721, a.
— dukes, why called consuls, ibid. b, (B). Why called Sicily, 722, a.
— Theodoric's ominous statue set up at, 641, a, (M).
†Naragara in Numidia described, vii. 110.
Narbal king of Arad, i. 421, a.
Narbonne, by whom founded, v. 3, b. vii. 395, d. Burnt, vi. 58, f. Restored by Antoninus, 59, a. Taken by Ataulphus, 469, a. Relieved by Litorius, 483, c. Betrayed to the Visigoths, 507, a. vii. 509, a. Taken by Theodoric, 513, f.
†Narbonensis, Gaul, ravaged by the Cimbri, v. 13. a, 15, d. Forced to declare for Vitellius, 602, d.
†Narce taken by Hannibal, vii. 81, b.
Narcissus, a favourite of Claudius, v. 488, & seq.
— a tool of Messalina, 494, c, d. Affronted by the Gallish army, 496, d. Betrays Messalina, 502, & seq. Murders her, 505, d. Imprisoned by Agrippina, 517, f. Kills himself, ibid. & seq.
— executed, 586.
— a wrestler in favour with Commodus, vi. 87, e. Strangles him, 93, f. Condemned to the wild beasts, 113, f.
†Narisci, who, and where sited, vii. [407]. Revolt from the Romans, vi. 63, c. Peace with them, ibid. d.
Nars worshipped by the Arabs, vii. 248, & seq.
Narses sent to compliment Probus, iv. 329, c. Mounts the Persian throne, 330. Success against Galerius, ibid, d, e. Ill success and death, 331, a, b.
— Sapor's ambassador to Constans, 333, & seq.
— Persian general's success against the Romans, 340, d.
— Roman general's success against the Persians, 354, b.
— sent to assist Cosrhoes, 364, a. Ill requited by him, 365, a.
Narses defeats the Romans, vi. 214, a. Defeated by them, ibid. c, d. Sues for peace, ibid. e, f. Obtains it, 215, a, b. Sent with a proud message to Constantius, 302. Pardoned by Maximus, 400, c.
— defeated by the Romans, 474, c, d. Success against them, 525, e. Revolts to them, ibid. e, f. Spirits up Cosrhoes against Phocas, 537, b, c. Defeats Leontius, &c. Burnt alive by Phocas, ibid. &c.
— success in Italy, vii. 618, b, c. Invites the Lombards thither, ibid. d, e.
— three generals of that name, ibid. f.—Joins Belisarius, 658, f. Falls out with him, 569, c, d. Takes Imola, ibid. e. Accused and recalled, 660, b, c. Sent back into Italy, 674, e, f. His huge mixt army, 675, c, d. Success against Totila, ibid. & seq. Conquests in Italy, 677, c, & seq.
Narsi, Narses, I. II. and IIId king of Parthia, according to the orientals, iv. 372, (A).
— Ist king of Persia defeated and dies, 379, b, c.
— prince of Persia, left regent by his wandering brother, 384, e, f.
Narsica, the tutelar deity of Vulsinium, v. 415, (P).
Narteas, the temple of, iii. 186. e.
†Nasamoneans, who, v. 675, f. Cut off by Flaccus, 676, a. Whether totally or no, ibid. b.
Nasamones, where sited, vii. 171, b. Customs, &c. ibid. & seq. 172, a, b. Why so called, 180, (A).
Nasherohneam, a magnificent king of Yaman, vii. 268, e.
Nasica, Scipio Corn. his character, v. 9, b.
Nasidius defeated by Agrippa, 289, d.
Natalis confesses a conspiracy against Nero, v. 552, e, & seq. Pardoned, 557, d.
Nathan sent to reprove king David, i. 780, a, & seq.
Nathanael called by Christ, iv. 169, b.
Natta Pinarius, a tool of Sejanus, v. 423, a.
†Nattapa, metropol. of Æthiopia, v. 302, f. Destroyed by Petronius, ibid. &c. Residence of queen Candace, vii. 185, a, b. Razed, ibid. c, & 216, a.
†Naucratis, a colony of Grecians in Egypt, i. 227, b.
Naudar, king of Persia, see Nudar, ii. 185.
Navigation, the first account of, after the flood, i. 136.
Naulobad, heads the Heruli, vi. 184. Surrenders to Gallienus, ibid. e.
— taken prisoner and promoted, vii. 599, c.
†Naupactus, where, and why so called, ii. 359, d. Taken by the Athenians, 489, c. Given to the Messenians, 595, b.
— the peace of, 664, a.
Nauplius, king of Eubœa, wrecks the Grecian fleet, iii. 247, c. His death, ibid. d.
†Nauportum, plundered, v. 361, a. Where situate, ibid. (I).
Nauruz, a Persian festival, by whom instituted, ii. 178, b.
†Naxians, who, and whence, iii. 220, d. Government, ibid. & seq. Treachery to the Persians, 221, d.
†Naxicæ insulæ, where sited, vii. 112, c, d.
†Naxos island, described, iii. 219. Its excellent wines, 220, b. Taken by Dionysius, 48, d. By the Thessalians, 220, e. By the Carians, ibid. f. Invaded by Aristagoras, 221, b. Subdued by the Persians, ibid. d. By the Athenians, ibid. e.
Naxus, the son of Palamon, king of Naxos, iii. 220, f.
† — metropolis of Naxos, 221, a. Taken and destroyed, by the Persians, ii. 111, f.
Nazaleod, defeated and killed by the Saxons, vii. 447, d, e. Uncertain who he was, ibid. & seq.
Nazar, defeats the Saracen's fleet, vi. 573, d.
Nazarite, Christ, why so called, iv. 180, a. That prophecy explained, ibid. (H). The true sense of the word, 181 sub not.
Nazarites, who, i. 631, e. Why they abstained from wine, 632, a. Women free to the same vow, ibid. & seq.
Nazarius's writings, &c. vi. 272, (F). Character of Julian, 310, e, f.
Nazianzen's character of Julian, vi. 210, e, f. 335, & seq. Just suspicion of his hypocrisy, 322. Dreadful account of the Gothish invasion, 392, a, b. Made bishop of Constantinople, 395, a. Letter to Ellebichus, 409, b.
†Nazianzum, a city in Cappadocia, iii. 762, b.
†Neapaphus, in Cyprus, described, iii. 174, a.
†Neapolis, one of the four quarters of Syracuse, iii. 4, b—d.
— when first added to it, 5, b.
† — a city in Thrace, 786, c.
† — in Italy, by whom built, iv. 606, a. Plundered by Calpurnius, 774, f.
† — of Shechem, whence so called, v. 655, e.
† — an ancient emporium of the Carthaginians, vi. 667, d. Where sited, ibid.
Neapolitans, their unshaken fidelity to the pope, vii. 705, a. Whether still under the emperors, ibid. b, c.

Nearchus,

Nearchus, admiral of Alexander, iii. 397, b. Sails down the Indus, 401, & seq. & (I). Rejoins him, 404, b.
Nebo, an idol of the Babylonians, i. 286, b. 924, a. The Chemosh, &c. of the Moabites, ibid.
†—— mount where Moses viewed the promised land, i. 537, c. and died, 443, c.
†—— a city of Arabia Petrea, vii. 226, b.
Nebridus refuses to swear to Julian, vi. 313, b. Marries Salvina, 390, e.
Nebuchadnezzar, see before Nabocalassar, i. 948, e.
Nebuzaradan, puts the Ammonites to fire and sword, i. 298, c.
——— one of the Nebuchadnezzar's generals, takes Jerusalem, i. 954, a, b. Cruelties committed by him, ib. c, d.
†Neckar river in Germany, 415, a.
Nectanebes, king of Egypt, i. 277, b. Defends it against the Persians, and dies, ibid. &c.
Nectanebus, king of Egypt, i. 277, f. Rebelled against, 278, a. Invaded by the Persians, flees into Ethiopia, 279. The last king of Egypt, ibid.
Nectaridus, Count, killed in Britain, vi. 353, e. vii. 415, c.
Nectarius, bp. burnt in the House by the Arians, vi 414, c.
†Nectiberes, where situate, vii. 140, d.
Necus, king of Egypt, succeeds Psamniticus, i. 267, a. The Pharaoh Necho of scripture, ibid. Attempts a canal from the Nile to the Red-sea, ibid. b. Defeats king Josiah, ibid. c, d. Takes Carchemish, ibid. e. Imposes a tribute on Judea, ibid & seq. Defeated and dies, 268, f.
Nego, an Assyrian or Babylonian deity, i. 925, a.
†Negra, where situate, v. 302, b.
†Negroes, whether descended from Adam, vii. 178, b. The extent of their country, 167, a—c. The rest see under Æthiopia.
†Negropont, Eubœa, why so called, 246, d.
†Nebardea, or river of knowledge, where, &c. i. 908, d.
Nehemiah, why his account differs from Ezra, iv. 4, d. Succeeds him, 18, a. His character, 21, a. Repairs the city and temple, ibid. b, (I). 23, d. Generosity at Jerusalem, ibid. & seq. Reforms the Jewish abuses, 24, & seq. His death, 26, b.
†—— the well of, in Judea, i. 586, b.
†Neleus river in Eubœa, iii. 247, e.
†Nemea, a city in Argos, ii. 351, b.
†—— river in Peloponnesus, 672, sub not.
Nemean games, by whom instituted, ii. 251, c. 356, sub not.
Nemesis, worshipped by the Mysians, ii. 326, e. Her statue at Rhamnus, 361, e, (B).
†Nemetes, who, and where sited, vii. [401], a.
†Nemrim, a city in Arabia Petrea, vii. 226, b, c.
†Neocæsarea, a city in Pontus, iii. 721, b. Ruined by an earthquake, vi. 277, c.
†Neocastrum, a Turkish fort at the mouth of the Bhosporus, vi. 649, d.
Neolaus, his tragical end, iii. 533, e.
Neomenia; see Moon.
Neoptolemus, Ist king of Epirus, iii. 801, a.
—— IId, set up against Pyrrhus, 804, b, c. Put to death, ib. e.
—— a flattering poet to Philip, 310, (L).
—— the son of Amyntas, killed, 329, c.
—— governor of Armenia, defeated, 421, f, & seq. Killed, 422, c.
Nephe, Nephthys, Finis Victoriæ, Venus so called, i. 241, d.
†Nephele, mountains in Thessaly, inhabited by Centaurs, ii. 381, c.
Nephereus king of Egypt, i. 276, d.
Nepherotes, the last of the Mendesian race in Egypt, i. 277, b.
Nephilim, how interpreted, i. 82, (N).
†Nephiris, where situate, vi. 667, e.
†Nephthalite Hunns, where sited, vii. 456, c. Subdue the Persians, ibid. & seq. Their character, 457, a, b. Repulsed before Edessa, 460, a.
Nephthis, among the Egyptians, what, i. 161, d.
Nepos, Licin. his decree about fees, vi. 13, b.
—— deposition and flight, 512, b—d.
—— M. Manil. sent against Carthage, vii. 97. Besieges it by sea and land, 100, b.
Nepotianus's revolt, vi. 281, d. Betrayed and killed, ibid. e.
—— sent against Remismond, 506.
Neptune, or Posidon, the son of Pontus, i. 137, a. Why worshipped at Tenos, iii. 266, a, b. One of the Carthaginian deities, vi. 687, a, b. Why so called, vii. 118, (C). 378, (E). Worshipped in Mauritania, 150, d. The first king of it, 153, b, c.
†—— his famed temple at Corinth, ii. 391, & seq. at Sparta, in form of a grotto, 396, (C). at Athens, 435, b.
Neptys, the meaning of, vii. 150, d.
†Nequinium, a city in Umbria, described, iv. b. 28, c. Betrayed to the Romans, ibid. d.
Neratius, Prisc. a famed lawyer, in favour with Trajan, vi. 25.
Nereus, the father of Pontus, supposed to be Japhet, i. 137, (S).
Nergal, a Persian deity, i. 861, b. and Assyrian, 925, a.
Nerigliſſar, Nerigliſſoroor, kills the king of Babylon, i. 965, e. and mounts the throne, 966, c. Invites all nations against the Medes and Persians, 967, b, c. Defeated and slain, 968, a, b. Probably Darius the Mede, ibid. b—e. See also vol. ii. 88, 89.
†Neritus, mount, where situate, iii. 241, f.
Nero, Claud. over-reached by Asdrubal, iv. 729, & seq. Chosen consul against Hannibal, 536, a. Success against him and Asdrubal, ibid. c—f. Chosen consul against Carthage, 745.
—— T. opposes the conspirators sentence, v. 107, b. Why that name was assumed by the Claudian family, 356 (L).
—— the son of Germanicus made questor, v. 407, e. Marries Julia, 408, a. Recommended to the senate, 417, c, d. Betrayed by Sejanus, 430, & seq. Accused by Tiberius, 436, pass. Banishment and death, 437, d.
—— the emperor born, v. 464, c. Takes the toga, &c. 508, d, e. Marries Octavia, v. 514, d. First orations, ibid. & seq. Proclaimed, 517, d. First Speech to the senate, 519, a, b. Modesty and moderation, ibid. & seq. Shakes off his mother's sway, 521. Poisons Britannicus, 522. Affected clemency, 524, & seq. Real debauchery, 525, & seq. Falls out with Poppæ, 526, f. Triumphs over the Armenians, 529, e, f. Hatches his mother's death, 530, & seq. Perpetrates it, 534. Letter to the senate upon it, 535. Grand entry into Rome, ibid. f, & seq. Inward remorse, 536, a. Follows music, plays, &c. ibid. & seq. Treacherous answer to Seneca, 542, c, d. Murders Sylla and Plautus, ibid. & seq. and Octavia, 143, pass. Marries Poppæ, ibid. b. Profuse shews, 544, & seq. Turns stage-singer, 545, b. Drops his Grecian expedition, ibid. et seq. Horrid obscenities, 546, c, d. Behaviour at the burning of Rome, ibid. et seq. His golden palace described, 548, pass. et (N). Horrid extortions, 550, et seq. Threatened by dire prodigies, ibid. e, (P). Conspired against, 551, et seq. Condemns the conspirators, 553, et seq. Cruelty to their families, 557, c, d. Resumes his harp, &c. 558, et seq. Puts many worthies to death, 562, et seq. Crowns Tiridates, 564, c. Mad journey to the Olympic games, ibid. e, f. Buys 18000 prizes, 565, b, c. Infatuated by the Delphic oracle, ibid. e, f. Strips Apollo's temple, 566, a. Vain attempt upon the Corinthian isthmus, ibid. c—e. Fetched back to Rome, 568, b. Shipwrecked, ibid. e. Pompous entry into Naples, Rome, &c. described, ibid. d, e. Resumes his plays, &c. ibid. et seq. Method of preserving his voice, 569, a. A new conspirary, ibid. b—f. His shameful unconcern, 571, d—f. Mad resentment against Vindex, ibid. et seq. against Galba, 572, b, c. Drops his desperate designs, ibid. d. Assumes the fasces, ibid. e. Bloody intention, ibid. f. Incenses the people, 574. Desperate condition, ibid. & seq. Retires from Rome, 575, c. Distress and despair, ibid. & seq. Condemned by the senate, 576, a. Base cowardice and death, ibid b—d. The day, ibid. f. Funeral, &c. 577, a, b. Buys a vast quantity of amber from the Estii, vii. [411], b, c. Several Pseudo-Neroes after him, 577, c—d. Strange notions about him, ibid. e, f. Cotemporary writers, 578, (T). Obsequies performed by Vitellius, 619, f.
—— an impostor in Asia betrayed by the Parthians, 680.
†Neronia, New Artaxata, where, and why so called, iii. 692, f.
†Nertobrigia, where, 780, b. The siege of, raised by Metellus, ibid. c.
Nerva, Licin. bribed against the slaves, v. 31, e. Defeated by Salvius, 326.
—— M. Cocceius starves himself to death, 448.
—— chosen consul, 478, c, (Y). Amply rewarded by Nero, 557, d.
—— Vespasian's colleague, 694, d. His life saved by an astrologer, 674, c. Chosen consul, 680, d. Banished to Tarentum, 686. Stirred up by Apol. Tyaneus, ibid. d, & 695, & seq.
—— Coccei, the beginning of his reign, vi. 1. Extract, ibid. & seq. Excellent character, a, b, c. Jealous of Domitian, ibid. e, f. Happy reign, 3, b. Generosity, ibid. & seq. Lenity, 4, a, 5, a. Adopts Trajan, ibid. c, d. Dies, ibid. & seq.
†Nervii, who, and where, v. 119, f. Bravery against Cæsar, 120, a. Defeated, ibid. e. Tribes subject to them, vii. 367, (C). Subdued by Cæsar, 399, d.
Nessus the Centaur killed, ii. 401, (K).
Nestor's writings and character, vi. 121, sub not.
—— Julian put to death by Heliogabalus, 136, a.
Nestorians driven out of Mycena, ii. 360. Settle in Athens, ibid.

Neſtorius condemned by a council, vi. 482, c.
Nethinims, who, and why ſo called, i. 650, e. Their low office, ibid. d.
Nevers, count, aſſiſts Manuel, vi. 646, d. Taken priſoner, ibid. e, f.
Nevila, ſent into Pannonia, vi. 313, c, d. Guards Sucidava, ibid. e. Made one of the Chalcedonian judges, 324. b. Conſulſhip and reception from Julian, 326, d, e.
† Neuri, where ſeated, ii. 268, a. Deſcribed, 278. Why ſaid to turn into wolves, vii. [427], (R).
New-year's gifts at Rome, by whom introduced, v. 467, d.
Nexi, among the Romans, what, iv. 484, (G).
† Nicæa, built by Alexander, iii. 393, a. Taken by Triarius, 744, a.
† —— in Bithynia, by whom built, 826, f. Deſcribed, 827, a, b.
—— rebuilt by Adrian, vi. 36, c. Fined for abuſing Hipparchus, 64, d.
—— the battle of, 109, b.
Nicagoras's writings and character, vi. 168, (X).
Nicander, king of Sparta's reign, ii. 570, e. Wars againſt the Meſſenians, ibid. & ſeq.
—— deputy of Ætolia to Philip, 710, a. Careſſed by him, 723. Invades Acarnania, 728, b.
—— king of Cos, iii. 105, e.
Nicanor, Caſſander's general over the Athenians, ii. 553, & ſeq. His lot after Alexander's death, iii. 423, f. Defeated by Seleucus, 433, c. Rejects Polyſperchon's edict, 455, a. Defeated by Clytus, 456, c. Defeats him, ibid. d. Slain by Caſſander, ibid. &c.
—— fatal expedition againſt the Jews, iv. 58, & ſeq. 60, b. Second, 71, b. Peace with Maccabeus, ibid. d. Treachery to him, 72, b, c. Cruelty to the Jews, ibid. & ſeq. Blaſphemous ſpeech, 73, c. Defeat and death, ibid. d, e.
—— Titus's general wounded before Jeruſalem, iv. 280, c.
Nicaria, vid. Icaria, iii. 211, e.
† Nice, utterly deſtroyed by an earthquake, vi. 328, a. Taken by Procopius, 367, a. Overturned by a ſecond earthquake, 371, a. Delivered up to Sclerus, 588. Taken by the chriſtians, 615. Erected into an empire, 628, b. By whom, vii. 286, b, c. Its monarchs, ibid. & ſeq. 288, b—d. Taken by the Turks, 642, b, c.
Nicea, Flavia, her monument of Pierius, v. 663.
Nicephoras's account of Helena confuted, vi. 228, & ſeq.
Nicephorus rebels againſt his brother, vi. 556, e. Baniſhed, ibid. f. Severely uſed by Conſtantine IIId. 558, e.
—— the brother of Conſtantine baniſhed and murdered, 559, d.
—— a patrician depoſes Irene, 560, b, c. Declared emperor, ibid. d. His cruelties, 561, b. Defeated by the Saracens, ibid. c, d. Slain, 562, c. His character, ibid. & ſeq.
—— Phocas's ſucceſs in Crete, 582, c. Sent for to court, ibid. & ſeq. Forced to take the purple, 583, b, c. Excommunicated and reſtored, ibid. e. Succeſs againſt the Saracens, ibid. & ſeq. Murdered, 584, d. His character, ibid. & ſeq.
—— Uranus's ſucceſs againſt the Bulgarians, 591, e, f.
—— Comnenus's eyes put out for his virtue, 593, d, e.
—— Outwitted by Theodora, 602.
—— Baſilianus taken priſoner by the Turks, 605, b, c.
—— Boloniates uſurps and reſigns the empire, 607, & ſeq.
—— ſucceſs againſt the Bulgarians, vii. 627, c, d. Defeated and killed by them, ibid. e, f.
Nicetas conſpires againſt Phocas, vi. 538, c, & ſeq. Murdered by Nicephorus, 561, b.
Nicholaus the Syracuſan's brave ſpeech in favour of the Athenian priſoners, iii. 35, & ſeq.
—— officer to Ptolemy, his ſignal fidelity, 537, c. Made his generaliſſimo, 538, b. Defeated by Nearchus, ibid. d, e.
Nicias, Athenian general's conteſt with Cleon, ii. 509, c. Takes Citherea, 510, f. Gives name to the Nicean peace, 512. Oppoſes the deſcent into Sicily, 516. Sent thither againſt his will, ibid. Ill ſucceſs at Syracuſe, 518, & ſeq. Forced to ſurrender to Gylippus, 519. Put to death by the Syracuſans, 520. Sent into Sicily, iii. 26, a, b. Surpriſes Olympicum, 27, f. And Epipola, 28, c. Driven out by Gylippus, 29, e. Defeated at ſea, 30, b, c. Frighted by a lunar eclipſe, 31, e. Second defeat, 32, & ſeq. Outwitted by Hermocrates, 33, & ſeq. In great diſtreſs, 34, & ſeq. Surrenders to Gylippus, 35, b. Condemned to death, 36.
—— Perſeus's general condemned to death, 488, b, c.
—— Pyrrhus's phyſician's treacherous offer, 814, a. Rejected by the Romans, ibid. b. His puniſhment, 816, a.
—— a wit, his untimely pleaſantry, 124.
Nicknames, common among the Romans, v. 362, b, (Y).
Nicocles, tyrant of Sicyon, driven out, ii. 648, (B).—Iſt king of Cyprus dethroned, iii. 179, e.—IId, his reign, 181, d. —king of Paphos and his family kill themſelves, 182, d, e.
Nicocrates king of Salamis, his noble library, iii. 178.
Nicocreon, Iſt king of Salamis, iii. 177, a. IId, his cruelty, 179, c.
Nicodemus, Ariſtobulus's ambaſſador to Pompey, iv. 209, e.
—— a Jewiſh ruler comes to Chriſt by night, 201, a. The ſubſtance of his doctrine to him, ibid. (K). Pleads for him againſt the Phariſees, 223, b. Embalms his body, 243.
Nicodromus the Athenian invades Ægina, ii. 459, e.
Nicolas, the deacon, whether the author of the Nicolaitan ſect, iv. 253, (L).
—— ingratitude to Baſilius, vii. 635, a, b.
Nicomachus's arithmetic, vi. 273, ſub not. Writings, &c. 197, ſub not.
Nicomedes the Spartan, defeated at Tanagra, ii. 595, a.
—— prince of Bithynia eſcapes his father's treachery, iii. 779, & ſeq. Takes up arms againſt him, 780, & ſeq. Puts him to death, 781, b. Calls in the Gauls, iii. 522, 828. Gives them part of Aſia Minor, ibid. Builds Nicomedia, 829.
—— IId, his obſcure reign, 831.
—— IIId, allies with Mithridates, 727, 831. Driven out of Cappadocia, ibid. Wars againſt Pontus, 729, 831. Reduced to a private life, ibid. f. Reſtored and dies, ibid. &c.
—— lampooned for his familiarity with J. Cæſar, 831, & ſeq. & (T). The laſt Bithynian king, 832, a, b. See alſo vol. v. 31, 82.
† Nicomedia, metropol. of Bithynia, iii. 822, 829. Made Conſtantine's reſidence, ibid. Where ſituate, 827, a. Repaired by Adrian, vi. 36, c. Plundered by the Scythians, 180, a. Beautified by Dioclesian, 219, d, e. Deſtroyed by an earthquake, 304, c. Rebuilt by Julian, 327, b. Taken by the Turks, 642, c. By the Goths, vii. 495, d.
—— the famed palace of, burnt, vi. 216, d.
Nicon goes over to Hannibal, vii. 50, & ſeq. Defeats the Romans at ſea, 59, paſſ. Noble death at Tarentum, 62, d.
Nicopolis, Sylla's generous courtezan, v. 23, a.
† —— a city in Armenia Minor, by whom built, iii. 718, d.
—— in Thrace, by whom founded, 787, d.
—— why ſo called, v. 289, c. The colony of, by whom founded, 655, e.
—— in Dacia, by whom built, vi. 15, e.
—— taken by the Goths, vii. 497, e. By the Bulgarians, 632, e. Submits to Deleanus, 635, b. Plundered by the Oſtrogoths, 674, f.
Nicoſtratus, baſtard of Menelaus king of Sparta, ii. 403, a.
—— Achæan prætor, defeats the Macedonians, 672, c.
† Nieper river; ſee Boryſthenes, ii. 268, & not.
† Nieſter; ſee Tyras, ibid. c.
Niger, a Jewiſh captain's defeat and narrow eſcape, iv. 271, a, b. Succeſs in Dalmatia, vi. 87, c.
—— Peſcennius made governor of Syria, 87, e. Succeſs againſt Maternus, 90, c. Excellent character, 101, f, & ſeq. Riſe and ſtrict diſcipline, 103, paſſ. Revolt in Syria, 105, paſſ. Prepares againſt Severus, 108, & ſeq. Proſcribed by the ſenate, ibid. e, f. Defeated, 109, b. Defeated and put to death, ibid. d, f. His black ſtatue deſcribed, 110, b, (M).
† —— river, vii. 178, a. 108. Paſs, 164, b. Why ſo called, ibid. c. Its courſe, &c. ibid. e, f.
Night Mare, whence ſo called, vii. 442, e.
Nigrinus, Domit. put to death, vi. 34, c. Brave defence of Aquileia, 313. Executed for a jeſt, 364, c.
† Nigris river, where, vii. 160, a.
† Nigritæ, who and where ſited, vii. 177, e, & ſeq. The ſame with the Melanogetuli, 164, b. Their commerce, 165, a.
† Nigritia, by whom peopled, 104, d, e. 166, b.
† Nile, its ſources unknown to the ancients, i. 177. Their number and courſe, ibid. e, f. How high its ſwells, ibid. & ſeq. The ſolemnity of cutting the canal of Bulac, 178, a. The ſacrifice of a girl aboliſhed by the Turks, ibid. & ſeq. The manner of conveying its water into their lands, 179, c, d. Its fecundity, ibid. & ſeq. Of animals, 180, a. How they ſecure themſelves from its inundation, ibid. d, e. The cauſes of it, ibid. e, f. Of birds peculiar to it, 182, a, b. Fiſh, ibid. c, d. Whence called Nile, 261, f. A further deſcription of it, vii. 187, a, d. Cauſes of its overflow, ibid. & ſeq. How divided, 188. Paſs capable of being ſtopped by the Abaſſine princes, ibid, d, e, (H). Its various names, 189, a. Rivers, courſe and cataract, ibid. b, (I). Courſe turned by Memnon, 210, e. Etymon of Nile, ibid. (C).

Nileus, the ſon of Codrus, withdraws from the Athenians, ii. 369, c. Cities built by him, ibid. d.
Nilometers deſcribed, i. 178, d, e.
Nilus, king of Egypt, i. 261. Renders the Nile ſerviceable, ibid. f.
Nimrod, the ſixth ſon of Cuſh, i. 122, a. Why ſo called, ibid. c, d, (I). Why ſo ill thought of, ibid. (K). Thought the firſt king after the flood, ibid. & (O). Whether the founder of Babylon, &c. 122, b, 124, a. Whether the ſame with Belus, ibid. b. Various traditions about his death, ibid. c. (W). Makes Babel the ſeat of his empire, 165, a. Suppoſed the firſt tyrant, 172, e.
† Niniveh built, i. 874, e. Where ſited, 126, (B). Deſtroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, 950, a. In what year of Jehoiakim's reign, 494, (N). See alſo vol. ii. 16. & 19.
Ninos, Niniveh taken by Meherdates, iv. 317, e. By Trajan, vi. 20, d.
Ninus's ſtory a copy of that of Seſoſtris, i. 872, (Y). Takes Babylon, 873, a. His conqueſt, ibid. & ſeq. Return, 874, b. Builds Niniveh, ibid. c. Preparations againſt the Bactrians, 875, 176. Smitten with and marries Semiramis, 877, b, c. Takes Bactria, ibid. e.
—— king of Lydia, ii. 333, a.
Ninyas, cauſes his mother to be aſſaſſinated, i. 882, e, (H). ſucceeds her, 883, a. His character, 884, & ſeq.
† Niphaltes mount in Armenia, iii. 695, b.
† Niſa, the plains of, deſcribed, ii. 3, e.
† Niſchabour, by whom built, iv. 378. Why ſo called, 379 a.
† Niſea, where, ii. 423. Taken from the Athenians, ibid. Retaken and fortified, 506.
† Niſibis, the province of, where, iv. 316, b. Taken by Tigranes, iii. 701. By Lucullus, 705, f. 747, f. Why given to Izates, iv. 316, b. Taken by Trajan, 319, e. Reſtored to Sapor, 336, c. Invaded by the Romans, 340, f. Declares for Varamus, 360, f. Submits to Coſrhoes, 363, e.
† Niſmes, the antiquities of, by whom built, vi. 35, d. The birth-place of Anton. Pius, 49. Metropol of the Volſcæ, vii. 11, (E).
Niſroch, the chief deity of the Aſſyrians, i. 861, b.
† Niſſa, the place of Conſtantine's birth, where, vi. 227, c, d.
† Niſſava river in Numidia, vii. 115, f.
† Niſyra iſland, how parted from that of Cos, iii. 213, d.
Nitocris, the beautiful queen of Memphis builds its third pyramid, i. 230, (H). Succeeds her brother, 249. Revenge for her brother's death, ibid. b, c. An Ethiopian by birth, 247, a.
—— Mother to Nabonadius king of Babylon, i. 969, d. Fortifies her metropolis, ibid. c. Works and monuments, 970, a. Suppoſed a Mede by birth, 967. Has the glory of her ſon's reign, ibid. d, f.
† Nivaria iſland, where, and why ſo called, vii. 148, d.
Noachidæ, the policy of, i. 171, e.
Noah, the import of that name, i. 85, (N). Preaches repentance, 84, b. The ſon of Lamech, 85, a. Directed to build the ark, ibid. & 105, b, (N). Comes into it, 105. Comes out of it, 114, & ſeq. Precepts given him by God, ibid. & ſeq. Covenant with him, 115, c. The inventor of agriculture, 85, (N) Where firſt ſettled, 115, d. Not the Chineſe Fohi, ibid. e, f. Acknowledged by the Turks, 85, (N). His poſterity, 117. Their firſt migrations, 141, c, e. Divides the earth between them, 157, a. Worſhipped by the Armenians, iii. 697, e. Remains of his ark at Cœron, 849, b. Whether he came into Italy, v. 416, e, f. His pretended coming into Spain, vii, 320, a.
† Nabatæ, who and where, vii. 183, c. 217, a. Plunder the empire, ibid. Their religion, &c, ibid. b, & (I).
Nobiles among the Romans, who, v. 46, (M). Auguſtus's law in their favour, 317, a.
Nobiliſſimus, when firſt given, vi. 272, b.
Nobility, their arrogance ſuppreſt by Conſtantine, vi. 255, e.
Nocca, Neptune, worſhipped by the Saxons, vii. 442, e.
† Nod, the land of, where ſituate, i. 75, a.
† Nola, where, iv. 619. Taken by the Samnites, ibid. Beſieged by Hannibal, 719, c. Taken by the allies, v. 50, b. Retaken by Sylla, 52, b. Reduced by him, 82, d. Amuſes Hannibal till ſuccoured by Marcellus, vii. 35, e, & ſeq. Divided within, 47, e.
Nomade, Scythians, ii. 278, & ſeq. Libyans, ſee Libyans. vii. 119, & ſeq.
Nomen, among the Romans, what, iv. 444, (Z).
Nomentum, the battle of, iv. 549, b.
Nomes, in Egypt, their origin and number, i. 176, c, d.
† Nomothetæ, at Athens, their office, ii. 443, d.
Nomophylaces, their office, ibid. b.
Nonnichras's deſperate end, vi. 466, d.
Nonnius Marcellinus writings and character, vi. 317, ſub not.
—— Phil. governor of Britain, vii. 434, a. Stabbed by Apuleius, v. 40, d.
Nonnius, Octavian's officer inſulted by the veterans, 263, b. Drowned, ibid. d.
Nooman brings up the young prince of Perſia, iv. 382, e. Builds him two wonderful caſtles, 383, b. Turns chriſtian and hermit, ibid. c.
† Norba prætoria, a city in Luſitania, vii. 297, c. The ſad cataſtrophe of, v. 75, c.
Norbanus C. Jun. marches againſt Sylla, v. 69, c, d. Defeated by him, 70, a. By Metellus, 72, c. His eſcape and death, ibid. d.
—— Octavian's general ſent to guard the Macedonian paſſes, 241, d. Driven off by Brutus, 242, b, c.
—— Caius choſen conſul, 372, a. Aſſaſſinated, 489, a.
Norici, ſubdued by the Romans, v. 314, b, c. Defeated by Ælius, 481, e.
† Noricum, the kingdom of, deſcribed, v. 314, ſub not.
† Northumberland, why ſo called, and Valentia, vii. 413. Made a kingdom, 450, e. Its extent, 451, & ſeq.
Nothos, among the Athenians, what, ii. 437, d.
† Noticornu, a promontory of Ethiopia, vii. 190, a.
Notitia imperii, when and by whom written, vi, 502, ſub not.
Novellæ, the conſtitutions of Juſtinian ſo called, vi. 531, a, b.
† Novempopulania, the ancient name of Antioch, vi. 472, f.
Novenciles Dii, whence ſo called, iv. 602, (U).
Novi, among the Romans, who, v. 46, (M),
† Noviodunum, Noyons, v. 119, e. Taken by Cæſar, 126, f. vii. 399, e. Plundered by the Ædui, v. 127, b.
Nouſchirvan, prince of Perſia, why ſo called, iv. 300. His excellent reign, ibid. & ſeq. Generoſity, 391. Diviſion of Perſia, ibid. c. Conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. Extent of his empire, 322, d, e. Defeats his rebellious ſon, 393, d. Defeated by the Armenians, 394, b. His laſt inſtructions, ibid. c, d. Character, ibid. (H).
Nouſchizad, prince of Perſia, brought up a chriſtian, iv. 392, f. Revolts againſt his father, 393, a. Defeated and killed, ibid. d.
† Nubians, who and where ſited, vii. 229, c, d, (H). By whom converted, 217, d. Ally with the Romans, vi. 213, e. Repulſed by Marcian, 498, b.
† Nubium, a city in Iberia, iii. 835, c.
† Nuceria taken by Fabius, iv. 624, e. Revolts, v. 36, b. Taken by Hannibal and burnt, vii. 36, a, b.
Nudar king of Perſia, according to oriental writers, ii. 185, & ſeq. Put to death by Apheresia, 186.
Numa Pompilius, choſen king of the Romans, iv. 435. His religion, 436. Paſs laws, 437. Death, 438, b. Obſequies, ibid. c. Books, ibid. (P).
† Numantia, where, 787, a. Beſieged and deſtroyed, 788, c. See alſo vol. vii. 307, (K).
Numantine war, the cauſe of, iv. 782, c. Succeſs, ibid. & ſeq. Peace, 785, a. Broken, ibid. & ſeq.
Numantines, their deſperate end, iv. 787, vii. 307, (K).
Numbers, held by Pythagoras the principles of all things, i. 26, c, d.
Numenes, writings and character, iv. 82, ſub not.
Numerarii, in Britain, their office, vii. 417, a.
Numerianus's ſtratagem in favour of Severus, vii. 112, b.
—— the ſon of Carus created Cæſar, 204, c. Proclaimed emperor, 225, b. Killed by Aper, ibid. c. His character, and funeral obſequies, ibid. d, e.
Numerius Fab. triumphs over the Salentines, iv. 649.
† Numidia, its boundaries, vii. 107, a, b. Cities, 109, & ſeq. Mountains, promontories, &c. 111. Natural rarities, 112, d, e. 116, c, d. Firſt inhabitants, ibid. f. How far under the Carthaginians, 117, c. When firſt founded, 121, d, & ſeq. Deſtroyed by peſtilence, 127, c. Made a Roman province, 137, c. Yielded to Genſeric, 593, e. How divided by them, v. 28, a, b. Given to Hiempſal, 80, e. Taken away by Cæſar, 65, b, c. Reduced and kept by the Romans, 331, d. vi. 487.
Numidians, their ſite, government, &c. vii. 117, & ſeq. Religion, 118, b. When firſt called Numidians, ibid. e. Their language, writings, &c. 119, a. Cuſtoms, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Ride without bridles, 120, a. Arts and ſciences, ibid. & ſeq. Wars with the Carthagnians, 122, & ſeq. With the Romans, 130, & ſeq. Ravage Carthage, iv. 664, b. Repulſed by the Gauls, 695, c. How they cut through the Alpine rocks, 697, e. Over-reach the Ligurians, 753, f. Abandon the Romans, v. 50, c. Revolt to Agathocles, vi. 804, b. Some of their tribes ſubdued by Archagathus, 108. d, (Z). Break out againſt the Carthaginians, 838. c, d. Cruelly puniſhed by Hamilcar, 843, c. Subdued by the Romans, vii. 137. b, c.—Mitacatanian ſeverely uſed by the Carthaginians, vii. 122. c, d.
† —— Nomonumidæ, who and where, 133. (P).
Numitor dethroned by his brother, iv. 421, e. Diſcovers his two grandſons, 422, d. Reinthroned by them, 423, b.

Numitorius's brave defence of Virginia, iv. 540. Chosen military tribune, 543.
Numonius Vala, his death, v. 341, d.
Nuni, well treated by Sapor, vi. 306, a.
Nycimus, king of Arcadia, ii. 379, e.
Nymphidius raised by Nero, v. 558, a. Treachery to him, 574, f, & seq. Assumes the empire against Galba, 583, & seq. Slain by the soldiers, 584, e, f.
Nymphius's stratagem against the Samnites, iv. 607, c.
Nysius surprises Syracuse, iii. 70, b. Puts all to the sword, ibid. c, d.
†Nysa, a city in Cappadocia, iii. 762, b. Taken by Alexander, 390, (D).
†Nyza, a city in Arabia Felix, vii. 233, e. A royal residence, 234, a.

O

OAKS, sacred among the Scythians, ii. 272, & seq.—Among the Gauls, vii. 328, b, c. The Symbols of the deity, 329 & seq. In vogue among the ancient Patriarchs, 331, a, b, (G). One dedicated to an hundred deities, 350, b, (E). Sacred among the Germans [416]. Pass. and Britains, 406.
Oannes, a fabled Monster, said to have taught Letters, &c. i. 90, a, b, 929, & seq.
†Oasis, two cities of the name in Lybia, i. 175, f.—Inhabited by the Samians, iii. 189, a.—Its dismal situations, &c. vi. 437, a.
Oaths of fidelity exacted by Herod, iv. 144, a. Opposed by the Jews, ibid. b. How forbid by the Essenians, 172, a. (C). Military, how taken by the Romans, iv. 489, (K).
Obadiah, governor of Ahab's house, i. 810. Meeting with Elisha, ibid. & seq.
Obal gives name to some parts of Ethiopia, vii. 193, a, b.
Obed-edom make keeper of the sacred ark, i. 776, b.
Obedas king of Arabia invaded by Janneus, iv. 100, b. Protects the free-booters of Judea, 150, b, (K). Poisoned by Sylleus, ibid. (L).
Obelisk brought from Egypt by Caligula, v. 476, (V). Another, vi. 299, d. A third set up at Constantinople, 418.
Obodas sends 1000 Nabatheans to Augustus, v. 301, d. See also Valens, iv. 343, a.
†Obolla, a city towards Basra, i. 170, b.
†Oboth Ebada, where, i. 533, a.
†Obrima river in Phrygia, ii. 294, d.
Obsidional crown, to whom given by the Romans, iv. 579, f.
†Oby river in Scythia, ii. 267, d.
Occia, president of the vestals, succeeded by Pollio's daughter, v. 402, b.
Ocean, thought by some the original of all things, i. 17, d.
†Ocela, Ocelis, the port of Saana in Yaman, i. 170, a.
Ocellus's eternity of the world exploded, i. 3, b—d.
Ochus subdues all Phœnice to Persia, i. 411, & seq. Cruelty to the Sidonians, ibid. e, f. 1st, changes his name for Darius, ii. 134, d. See Darius Nothus.—2d, the son of Artax. Mnemon ascends the throne, 150, b. Cruelties, 151. Loses several provinces, 152. Invades Egypt in person, ibid. & seq. Returns triumphant, 153. Kills the god Apis, 154. Plunders the Egyptian temples, ibid. e. Murdered by Bagoas, ibid. &c.—Invades Cyprus, iii. 181, f, & seq. Makes peace with it. 182.—Expedition against the Jews, iv. 28, a. Death, ibid. b.
†— a river in Bactria, iii. 845, e.
Ocnus, king of Hetruria, iv. 418, e.
Ocrisia, the mother of Servius, who, iv. 453, c, d.
Oda the Saxon comes into Britain, vii. 443, e. Settles in Northumberland, 444, a.
Odacius M. Cras. success in Sicily, vi. 826, & seq,
Odar, king of the Hunns, wars with the Burgundi, 458, b.
Odavia, married to M. Antony, iii. 681. Supplanted by Cleopatra, 682, b, c. Divorced and turned out, 684, b. vid. & v. 277, b. Reconciles him to her brother, ibid. c. Sent back to Rome, 278, a. To Antony, 284. Repulsed by him, ibid. c, d. Moderation towards him, ibid. e. Divorcement, 286, b. Piety to his children, ibid. & 294, b. Death and character, 302, c, d.—Daughter of Claudius, born, v. 487, c. Married to Domitius, 506, f. To Nero, 514, d. Divorced and banished, 543, b, c. Murdered, ibid. &c. Her character, ibid. (H).
Odavianus gives his sister to M. Antony, iii. 681. Marches against him, 684. Defeats him at sea, ibid. e, f. Invades Egypt, 685, f, & seq. Takes Cleopatra prisoner, 688, d. Behaviour to her, 689, & seq. Outwitted by her, 690. Returns to Rome, 691, a. The rest see under Augustus iv. 126, & seq. and Octavius, v. 189, e.
Odavius opposes Metellus in Crete, iii. 171. Driven out of the island, 172, b.
— chosen Roman admiral, 490, f. Brings Perseus prisoner to the consul, 495, c. Sent to be guardian to young Eupator, 586, d. Murdered by Lysias, 588, & seq.
Octavius comes to Crassus's assistance, iv. 304, a. Killed, 305, a.
— Roman admiral invests Samothrace, 763. Takes Perses prisoner, 764, c. Triumphs, 765, b. Assassinated in Syria, ibid. f.
— M. Cæcina, opposes the Sempronian law, 791, pass.
— chosen consul, v. 56, c. His excellent character, ibid. d. Retaliation on Cinna, 60, f. Assassinated by Censorinus, 64, d—c.—Appointed Cæsar's heir, v. 189, e. His Extract, &c. 194, & seq. and (K). In high favour with him, 195, a. Takes his three names, ibid. e, (L). Visit to Cicero, 196, b. Speech to M. Antony, 197, b, c. Complaint against him, 198, b, c. Outwitted by him, 199, a. Second interview with him, 200, b, c. Enters Rome, 201, b. New honours from the senate, 202, & seq. Joins with the consul, 204, d, e. Ill success against Antony, 205, d, e. Bravery at Mutinæ, 206, f. Interview with Brutus, 207, b, c. With Pansa, ibid. e, f. Mortified by the senate, 208, c, 211, b, c. Reconciled to Antony, ibid. d. Outwits the senate, ibid. & seq. Enters Rome, 213. Age at his instalment, ibid. e, f. Adoption confirm'd, 220, d. Outwits the senate, 221, d. Interview with Antony and Lepidus, 222, f, & seq. Their execrable resolution, 223, c, & seq. Cruelties, 224. Treachery to Gellius, 232, a, b. March into Macedon, ibid. d. Joins Antony, 242, e. Cowardice at Philippi, 245, b—d. Success against Brutus, 251, & seq. Ill Treatment of his corps, 156, c. Barbarity to the republican prisoners, 257, & seq. Passes into Italy, 259, b. Difficulties at Rome, 262, b. Larges to his Veterans, 263, c, d. Divorce of Clodia, ibid. e. Siege of Perusia, 265. Cruelty to the magistrates, 266, f. Triumphant entry at Rome, 268, a, b. Reconciled to Antony, 270, b. To Pompey, 272, & seq. Passes into Gaul, 273, e. Falls out with Pompey, 275, b, c. Marries T. Nero's Wife, ibid. e. (N). Ill success at sea, 276, & seq. Reconcil'd to Antony, 277, & seq. Ill-tim'd expedition against Pompey, 278, b—d. Defeated by him, 279, c, d. Success and cowardice, 280, & seq. Depose Lepidus, 281, e, f. Insulted by the Soldiers, 282, b, c. Reception at Rome, ibid. e. Popularity, ibid. & seq. Chosen tribune for life, 283, b. Accuses Antony to the senate, 285, b. Wars against Cleopatra, 287, b, c. Reproachful Letter to Antony, 288, b, c. Order of his fleet, 291, b, c. Stupid superstition, ibid (W). Victory at Actium, 292, & seq. Settles Asia Minor, &c. 294, d. Treble triumph at Rome, ibid. f. & seq. Takes the imperial title. 295, a. Gets the supreme authority, 296, d. and surname of Augustus, ibid. f. His strength, policy, &c. 298. pass. success in Spain, ibid. & seq. Becomes absolute, 301, b. His will and dying behaviour, 303, b—d. Unexpected recovery, ibid. & seq. New powers, &c. 304, c. Rejects the dictatorship, 305, b. c. New regulations, ibid. & seq. 309, e, f. Passes into Sicily, 306, e. Into Greece, 307, b. Success against Phaartes, ibid. & seq. & (C). Comes to Samos, 308, e, f. Reforms the state, 311. Past cowardice, ibid. a—e. Rejects the title of Lord, 312, d. 332, c. Shameful expedition into Gaul, 313, & seq. Styled Pont. Max. 316, a. New laws at Rome, ibid. & seq. Corrects the Calendar, 317. Obsequies to Agrippa, 318, b. Worshipped by the Gauls, 319, b. New laws, 321, f, & seq. Popularity, 322, c, d. 3d, decennial power, ibid. e. Severity to Julia, 326, & seq. 333, c. Exhibits magnificent shews, &c. 327, c, d. Letter to Caius on his birth-day, 330, d. Conspired against, 332, & seq. Clemency to the conspirators, 333, b. Speech to the married and unmarried, 337, e, f. Grief at Varus's defeat, 341, f. Threatened by prodigies, 324, (Z), Letter to the senate, 345, b. Fourth decennial renewed, ibid. c, d. 347, e. Other prodigies preceding his death, 345, f. Taken ill at Naples, 346, d, e. Dies at Nola, ibid. f, & seq. Letter to Tiberius, 347, (E). Legacies and writings, 348, b, c. Funeral honours, ibid. & seq. Apotheosis, 349. Character, ibid. & seq. Stately buildings, 351, sub not. Writings, &c. 353, sub not. Character of Claudius, 486, b, (I). Laws enforced by him, 493, c.
— Roman general seizes on the Carthaginian transports, vii. 73, b.
October month, why called Domitian, v. 676, d.
Octomasades, king of Scythia, ii. 286.
Odenatus Palmyrensis, his embassy to the Persians, vi. 177, c. Extract and character, ibid. d, e. Noble resentment against them, ibid. & seq. Takes the royal title, 178, a. Promoted by Gallienus, ibid. b. Penetrates into Persia, ibid. c. Success there, ibid. d, e. Siege of Emessa, 182, b. Success against the Persians, 183, b, iv. 327, d. Drives the Goths out of Asia, vi. 183, c. His death, ibid. d.

Odin,

Odin, worſhipped by the ancient Germans, vii. [419] c. Their notion of him, ibid. & ſeq. & (D, E, F). Made a northern hero [420], a, b.—King of the Aſgardians, 489, b.
Odoacer's extract and character, vi. 513, c, d. Defeated by Childeric, 510, d. Puts Oreſtes to death, ibid. e. Kindneſs to his ſon, ibid. f. Defeated by Theodoric, 516, e, f. Yields his conqueſts to the Goths, vii. 516, b—d. Makes himſelf king of Italy, vi. 514, a, vii. 523, b. Recovers part of his conqueſts from Theodoric, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated afreſh by him, 524, d. Beſieged in Ravenna, ibid. & ſeq. Surrenders and is put to death, 525, b, c.—A Saxon defeated by Childeric, 564, c.
†Odomantes, a people of Thrace, where and who, iii. 790.
Odotheus, king of the Greuthongi invades the empire, vii. 504, b. Defeated and ſlain by Theodoſius, ibid. & ſeq.
†Odryſæ, a people of Thrace, where ſited, iii. 791. Their kings, ibid. & ſeq. Country made a Roman province, 793, f. Their revolt and defeat, v. 409, d.
†Oebalia, an antient name of Lacedæmon, ii. 396, (B). Deſcribed, 400, d.
Oebalus the Spartan, ſets up 100 tripods at Ithome, ii. 575, d.
Oedipus, why expoſed when born, ii. 374. His parricide, inceſt and diſtraction, ibid. & ſeq.
†Oenanda, where ſituate, v. 237, (G).
†Oenians, who, and whence, ii. 268, a, (E).
†Oenotri, where, and whence ſo called, iv. 416, e.
†——whether the ſame with the Aborigines, iv. 414, c. Their origin, 416, d.
Oenotrius's arrival in Italy, iv. 416, e.
†Oeſuna, a city of Thrace, where, iii. 786, c.
†Oeta, the ſtraits of, deſcribed, ii. 379, a.
Oſella inveſts and takes Præneſte, v. 71, f. 75, a.
Offerings, peace, laws concerning them, i. 623, c, d.—Meat and drink, ibid. e. Cleanſing, ibid. f, & ſeq.—Firſt fruits, 625, a, b, & ſeq.—Firſt cake, 626, a.—Incenſe, 629, a.—Burnt-offerings, where placed, 660, e. Deſcribed, 661, & ſeq.
Offilius Calvus's, juſt opinion of the routed Romans, iv. 613, c. Bold ſpeech to Octavianus, v. 282, c. Privately murdered, ibid. d.
Og, king of Baſhan reckoned the king of the Amorites, i. 330, c. The laſt king of Rephaim, 324, (E), 330, c. Allies with king Sihon againſt Iſrael, ibid. Defeated and killed, ibid. d. Jewiſh fables about him, ibid. (X).
Ogulnian laws made in favour of the plebeians, iv. 628, a—d.
Ogulnii. Quint. & Cnæus ſtirred up in favour of the plebeians, iv. 627, f.
Ogyges's flood, i. 96, (N).
†Ogygia, an ancient name of Bœotia, ii. 370, c.
†Ohud mount, where ſited, vii. 237, d.
Oibaſus killed by the Athenians, ii. 467, e.
†Olaæus, a city in Leſbos, by whom built, iii. 105, e.
†Olbia, where ſited, iii. 822, c. Not the ſame with Nicomedia, ibid. Taken by the Romans, iv. 660, c. vi. 834, b, c.
Olbianus's ſucceſs againſt Thomas, vi. 565, e, f, & ſeq.
†Olbiopolitan Scythians, their ſite, agriculture, &c. ii. 276, b.
Olbus, the temple and prieſthood of, iii. 176, f.
†Olcades, where ſituate, iv. 691, a. Invaded by Hannibal, ibid. b. Subdued by him, vi. 869, c, d.
Oleanus's extortions raiſe a revolt in Friſia, v. 234, (K).
†Oleares iſlands deſcribed, iii. 219.
†Oleaſtrum, the promontory of, where, vii. 145, b.
†Olenus in Achaia prop. by whom founded, ii. 414, c.
†Olicana, where, and by whom rebuilt, vii. 412, a.
†Oliſippo, Liſbon, metrop. of Luſitania, vii. 296, d.——The port of, 298, f.
†Olivet mount, why called the mount of the three lights, i. 572, d. Famed on many accounts, ibid. a. Deſcribed, 573, a. Held in veneration by Chriſtians, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
Oloaritus, one of Agrippina's aſſaſſines, v. 543, d.
Olophernes I. king of Cappadocia, iii. 764—II. al. Orophernes dethrones Ariarethes 7th, 592, 565, a. Slain, ibid. d.
Olthaces, king of Colchis, iii. 835, a.
Olybrius raiſed by Gratian, vi. 389, c. By Theodoſius, 425, & ſeq.——Marries Placidia, vi. 507. Proclaimed emperor, 511, c. His death, ibid. d.
†Olympia, a city of Elis, deſcribed, 406, b. Beſieged by the Perſians, and ſpared, vi. 370, a, b.
Olympiads, the computation of, ii. 406, b.
Olympian temples at Athens, ii. 436, b.
Olympias, Philip's queen, her character, iii. 300, a, b. Divorce, ibid c. Meſſage to Alexander, 348, a. 358, d. Retires into Epirus, 425, d. Her pride and cruelty, 453, (B). Recalled by Polyſperchon, ibid. & ſeq. Cruel behaviour at her return, 457. Paſſ. ſhuts herſelf up in Pydna, ibid. & ſeq. Beſieged by Caſſander, 458, b, c. Put to death, ibid. d.——Queen of Acarnania's alliance with Demetrius, 475, a.
† ——the caſtle of, deſcribed, iii. 5, b.
Olympic games, by whom inſtituted, ii. 254, c. 428, not. Reſtored, 406, b. Deſcribed, ibid. & (E). Forbid to the women, ibid. (F). Exhibited by Sylla, v. 80, c.
Olympics, inſtituted by king Philip, iii. 222, d.
Olympiodorus's account of the ſiege of Rome, vi. 458, b. His other writings, &c. 476, (R).
Olympius Jupiter's famous temple and ſtatue at Elis, ii. 436, b. At Agrigentum, iii. 6, b.
—— ſtatue ſent for by Caligula, v. 468, (M).
—— temple at Athens finiſhed, vi. 42, d.
—— firſt king of Myſia, ii. 327, a.
—— Mnemeſianus's writings and character, vi. 205, (B).
—— a philoſopher heads the heathens againſt the chriſtians, 416, f. Retires out of Egypt, 417.
—— diſcovers Stilicho's treaſon, 456, a, b. Made prime Miniſter, 457, e. His zeal againſt heretics, ibid. d, e. Diſgraced, 460, c.
—— the Exarch's ſucceſs againſt the Saracens, vii. 691, d. Death, ibid. e.
†Olympus mount, its height, i. 102, (N). Deſcribed, iii. 249, (H).
† —— mountain in Theſſaly, ii. 381, c. Where ſituate, 325, d. The place of Jupiter's reſidence, 262, b.
† —— a city in Lycia, ii. 337.
†Olynthus, the republic of, oppreſſed by the Spartans, ii. 614, d. Subdued by Polybiades, 615, b.
Olynthians, ſubdued by Philip, ii. 546, c.
†Oman, the province of, where, vii. 235, a, b.
† —— the city of abandoned, ibid. c, d.
†Omanitæ, who and where ſited, vii. 233, a.
Omar deſtroys the Alexandrian library, iii. 630, a.
—— Calif reduces Perſia, iv. 404, & ſeq.
†Ombros iſland, why uninhabited, vii. 148, a.
Omoroca, in the Chaldee coſmogony, who, i. 14, e. The governeſs of living creatures, ibid. & not.
Omphale, queen of Lydia, ii. 332.
Omri, choſen king of Iſrael, i. 808, d.
Omulus's ſurly anſwer to Antoninus, vi. 53, & ſeq.
Onan, Judah's ſon by a Canaanitiſh wife, i. 450, c. His ſin and death, ibid. d.
Onaſimus's writings and character, vi. 168, (X), 203, (A).
†Onega, the lake of, deſcribed, ii. 268, e.
Oneſicritus his character as an author, iii. 395, in fin. not. Made captain of a galley by Alexander, 397, b.
Oneſilus king of Salamis, ii. 177, c. Revolts from the Perſians, ibid. d, e. Slain, 178, b.
Onias the Macabee, Areus's letter to, ii. 624, f, & not.
—— the worthy Jewiſh pontif, falls out with Simon, iii. 569. Oppoſes Heliodorus, ibid. & ſeq. Depoſed by Antiochus, 572, e. Murdered in Egypt by Andronicus, 574, d. See alſo vol. iv. 45—49, & notes.
—— a ſordid high-prieſt endangers the Jewiſh nation, iii. 640, c, d. iv. 41, & ſeq.
—— a pontif deprived of the ſucceſſion, iv. 69, e. Retires into Egypt, ibid. f. In high eſteem there, 79, e. Builds a Jewiſh temple, ibid & T. See alſo iii. 654, c.
—— a pious Jew murdered, iv. 107, & ſeq.
†Onion, where, iv. 116. The Jews of great ſervice to Cæſar, ibid. & ſeq.
Onomaſtus conſpires in favour of Otho, v. 593, a.
Onoulus, the murderer of Baſiliſcus, vi. 515, b.
Opheltas gained over by Agathocles, vi. 840, e. The ſad ſtate of his army, 805, a, b. Betrayed and murdered by him, 806, b, (U).
Ophialtes, head of an Athenian faction, ii. 485, a.
Ophiogenes, who, ii. 324, c.
†Ophiophagi, their ſite, food, &c. vii. 148, a.
†Ophir, one of Jocktan's ſons, where ſettled, i. Conjectures concerning that land, ibid. & ſeq.
†Ophiuſa iſland deſcribed, vii. 308, e.
—— Tenos iſland, why ſo called, iii. 225, d.
Opima ſpolia, whence ſo called, iv. 430, a, (Z). The ſecond carried in triumph, 548, f. Third, 690, e.
Opimius Q. Nepos, ſucceſs in Tranſalpine Gaul, iv. 767, a.
—— L. choſen conſul againſt Gracchus, 806, b. Seizes the capitol, ibid. e. Beſieges the revolters, 807. Cruelty to the Gracchian faction, 808, & ſeq. To young Fulvius, 809, a. Tried and acquitted, 810, & ſeq.
Opimius Luc. baſely bought by Jugurtha, v. 7, b. Cruel baniſhment, 12, e, f.
—— a Roman champion kills a Cimbrian in ſingle combat, 37, b.
Opis, why honoured by the Delians, iii. 229, a.
† Opitergum taken by the Rotharis, vii. 691, a.

Opimia made in Perſia, ii. 39, c.
Opius Q. ſent againſt Mithridates, iii. 730, c. Delivered up to him in chains, 731, b.
Oplitai, Athenian ſoldiers, why ſo called, ii. 438, a.
† Opoes, a city in Locris Opuntia, 412, a.
† Opone, a port in Ethiopia, yii. 190, a.
Oppian law, what, iv. 751, e, f. Repealed, 752, a.
Oppius Spur. a plebeian, choſen decemvir, iv. 535, c. His trial and death, 544, e.
—— admired poems, &c. vi. 129, (O). Statue, epitaph, &c. ibid & ſeq.
—— defeated by the Boii, iv. 749, b.
Ops, the feſtival of, by whom inſtituted, iv. 443, e, (X).
Opſius M. one of the betrayers of Sabinus, v. 433, c.
Opſatianus's writings, baniſhment, &c. vi. 274, ſub not.
Optatus made a patrician, vi. 272, a Murdered by the ſoldiers, 275, a.
—— a Donatiſt biſhop impriſoned for treaſon, vi. 440, d. Death, ibid. e.
Optilo, the murderer of Valentinian, vi. 499, f.
† Ora, where ſited, iii. 388, d. Taken by Alexander, ibid.
Oracles of Egypt, an account of, i. 211, a.
—— famed among the Greeks, ii. 347, a. How conſulted, ibid. & (F). Deceitful, ibid.
† Orbelia, the region of, where, iii. 257, b.
† Orbelus mount in Thrace, iii. 787, d.
† Orbitum taken by the Lombards, vii. 686, d.
† Orcades iſlands diſcovered, vii. 414, a. Plundered by the Saxons, 443, e.
Orchanes invades the Greeks, vi. 639, c, d. Takes Nice by an odd ſtratagem, 642, b, c.
† Orchemus rebuilt Alexandria, iii. 321, d.
† Orchomenos, the city of, deſcribed, ii. 693, & (C).
Orcian law, what, iv. 759, f.
Orcini Liberti, why ſo called, iv. 470, in fin. (U).
Orcini, Antony's creatures, why ſo called, v. 192.
Ordeals uſed in Gaul, vii. 334, a.
† Ordoves in Britain, who, v. 510, c. Bravery againſt the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
† Ordovices, who, and where, v. 652, f. Cut a Roman ſtation in pieces, ibid. & ſeq. Their valour and noble character, vii. 410, & ſeq.
Oreb, prince of Midian, defeated by Gideon, i. 304, d. 745, e.
† Oreos in Eubœa deſcribed, iii. 249, b. Taken by the Rhodians, 147, e. By the Athenians, 249, c. By Philip, 299, b.
† Oreſpodan hills, where, vii. 307, (K).
Oreſtes's unhappy reign, ii. 357, d. Succeeds to the Spartan crown, 403, b. Accuſed of parricide, ibid. d. Dies in Arcadia, 380, a. 403, b. His bones ſtrangely diſcovered, 380, (M).
—— Aurelius choſen conſul, v. 33, b. Death, ibid. d.
—— Aufidius's conſulſhip, &c. 97, f.
—— inſulted by the Alexandrian monks, vi. 471, c, d. Raiſed by Nepos, 512, c. Revolts againſt him, ibid. c, d. His extract, &c. ibid. e, f. Governs as guardian to his ſon, 513, a. Diſobliges the barbarians, ibid. c, d. Put to death, ibid. e.
—— ſent by Attila to Conſtantinople, vii. 469, f. His marriage, iſſue, &c. ibid. (D). Character and death, ibid. &c. When he left Attila's ſervice, 472, a.
† Oreſtidæ, who and where ſited, ii. 706, (Z).
† Oreum, metrop. of Eubœa, betrayed to the Romans, ii. 667, c.
Orfitus conſpires againſt Domitian, v. 686, c. Baniſhed and dies, ibid. d.
—— governor of Rome under Antoninus, vi. 55, f.
—— one of Fauſtina's gallants promoted, 78, d.
Orgetorix raiſes a new war in Helvetia, vi. 397, d. Defeats Cæſar, ibid. e, f.
Oribaſus's writings and character, vi. 338, ſub not.
† Oricum, a city in Epirus, iii. 795, f.
† Orient, the diſtrict of its ſeveral provinces, &c. vi. 270, c, d.
Oriental writers account of Perſia, ii. 172. To the end of the ſection, an apology for them, 334, not.
Origen favours the dogm of the Platoniſts, i. 4, e. His writings againſt Celſus, vi. 81, (H). Great credit with the empreſs mother, 138, b, c. Letters to Philip and Severa, 166, c.
Origo, one of the ancient names of Carthage, vi. 721, f, and of Dido, 722, a.
Oriſſo puts Hamilcar to flight, 866, (M). Defeated by his ſon, 867, (N).
Oriſtilla Livia raviſhed from Piſo, v. 467, c.
† Oritæ, who, iii. 402, c. Subdued by Alexander, ibid.
Orithria princeſs of Athens, ſtolen by Boreas, ii. 363, d.
† Orkney iſlands diſcovered and taken by Agricola, v. 672, b.
† Orleans, by whom built, vi. 194. e. Beſieged by Attila, 494, f. Relieved by Ætius, 496, b. See alſo vii. 474, & ſeq. Taken by Childeric, 564, b.
Ormozd Hormizda, the good principle held by the Magi, i. 31, d.
† Ormus river in Phrygia, ii. 294, d.
† —— city, by whom built, iv. 379, e. Where removed, ibid. f.
Ornytion, the ſon of Siſyphus, king of Corinth, ii. 393, b.
Oroandes's treachery to Perſeus, iii. 495, b.
† Orobia, a city in Eubœa drowned, iii. 249, f.
† Orobii, ancient Ligurians, where, iv. 410, b, c.
Orobius reſcues Delos from Mithridates, iii. 733, c.
Oroſtes's miſdemeanor and odd puniſhment, vii. 611, c.
Orodes, king of Parthia, murders his father, iv. 293, e. Driven out, ibid. f. Cruelty to his brother, 294, b. Invaded by Craſſus, 295, & ſeq. Embaſſy to him, 297, b. Defeats the Romans, 302, & ſeq. Makes peace with Armenia, 305, f. Ingratitude to Surena, 306, b. Ill ſucceſs in Syria, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Ventidius, 308, f. Exceſſive grief, 309, a, b. Takes Phraates into partnerſhip, 310, a. Murdered by him, ibid. b.
—— II. murdered, iv. 314, c.
—— the ſon of Artabanes defeated, 315, d.
Oroeſes king of Albania defeated by Pompey, iii. 838, e, f.
Oroetes kills the tyrant Polycrates, iii. 193, d, & ſeq.
† —— the kingdom of, deſcribed, 255, (E).
—— king of Macedon, iii. 284.
† Orogomenes river in Bactria, iii. 845, e.
Oromaſdes, one of the Perſic names of God, ii. 76. Whom they held ſelf-exiſtent, ibid. &c.
Oroaes king of Armenia, depoſed by Germanicus, iii. 710, b.
Orontes's treachery to Tiribazus, iii. 181, b, c.
† —— a river in Syria, i. 361, c. Fables about it, ibid.
Orontobates made governor of Media, iii. 431, b.
Oropus the Eretrian's generoſity to the Athenians, ii. 460, d.
† Oroſanges, who and where, iii. 199.
Oroſcopa beſieged by Maſiniſſa, iv. 769, d. vii. 96, c.
Oroſius's anochroniſm about a great earthquake, v. 392, (G). Miſtake about the firſt treaty between Rome and Carthage rectified, vi. 774, a, b.
Orpheus introduces worſhip among the Greeks, i. 15, e. His tenets, &c. 16, & ſeq. Doctrine of the mundan egg, 17, a. Poliſhes the Greeks, ii. 348, b. Goes with the Argonautic expedition, 384, (I).
Orphitus Pactius, defeated and puniſhed, iii. 714, b.
Orſaces, Parthian general's ſucceſs againſt Syria, iv. 306, c. Defeated and killed, ibid. e.
Orſines put to death for cruelty, iii. 404, (M).
Ortara, queen of the Amazons, ii. 279, ſub not.
Orthodox favoured by Conſtantine, vi. 248, d, e. 251, paſſ. Reſtored by Jovian, 344, d, e. Perſecuted by Valens, 370, b, &c. Burnt alive, 382, a. Reſtored by Gratian, 389, a. By Theodoſius, 393, e, f. Perſecuted by Anaſtaſius, 521, f, & ſeq. Reſtored by Juſtin, 523, b. Perſecuted by the Perſians, 541, c.
† Ortona, taken from the Æqui, iv. 528, f.
† Ortygia, Delos, who ſo called, iii. 227.
† —— one of the four quarters of Syracuſe, iv. b, c. Taken by the Romans, 121, b, c.
Orus, an Egyptian deity, i. 241, b. His hiſtory, ibid. Oft confounded with Apollo, 246. Their laſt demi-gods, 245, d.
—— Sicorus, an ancient Spaniſh king, vii. 320, d.
Oſarſiphus, Uſorthon rebels againſt the Ethiopians, vii. 210, e.
† Oſca, where ſituate, v. 88, b.
† Oſci, their origin, iv. 415, c.
Oſcenes among the Romans, what, iv. 428, (S).
Oſcus made admiral of Otho's fleet, v. 604, f.
Oſias, bp. made Conſtantine's almoner, vi. 244, d. His letter to him, 252, a.
Oſiris of the Egyptians, the ſame as the ſun, i. 13, c. With Iſis, their two chief deities, 204, a. How repreſented, 205, c, d. Said to be the ſon and daughter of Rhea, 241, b. Their hiſtory, ibid. &c.
—— defeats Geryon, vii. 319, d, & ſeq.
† Oſrhoene, where ſited, vi. 22, d. Subdued by Trajan, ibid. e. By Severus, 110, c. By Caracalla, 127, b.
† Oſrhoes's defeat and narrow eſcape, vi. 63, e, & ſeq.

†Oſſa mountain in Theſſaly, inhabited by Centaurs, ii. 381, c.
†Oſſa, the port of, by whom built, iv. 446, b——The haven of, where, v. 494, (X).
—— taken and plundered by Marius, 62, f.——The tower of, ibid. & ſeq.
†Oſtia Rheni, or Rhine mouths, how many, v. 382, (Q).
Oſtorius, Scapula's ſucceſs againſt the Britons, v. 509, d, (D). & ſeq. Triumph, 511, e. Ill ſucceſs and death, 541, c. See alſo vii. 430, a—d.——Ruins of his forts there ſtill extant, 410, c.
Oſtraciſm at Athens, what, and how performed, ii. 467, c, & not.
Oſtriches, how caught by the Ethiopians, vii. 200, f.
Oſtrogotha, a Bathian prince, vii. 492, d. Defeats the Gepidæ, 494, a, b.
†Oſtrogoths, who, vi. 397, d. Where ſettled by Marcian, 499, b. Driven out of Illyricum, 506, e, f. By the Hunns, vii. 459, b. Paſs the Danube, ibid. e. Settle in Pannonia, 482, a. 518, d. Whence ſo called, 487, e. Where ſeated, 492, d. Subject to the Hunns, ibid. f, & ſeq. Invade the empire, 504, a. Defeated by Theodoſius, ibid. & ſeq. Their kings hiſtory, &c. 518. Ravage Illyricum, 519, b, c. Settle in Thrace, 523, d. Where ſettled by Clovis, 572, e, f. Seize upon Arles, 577, c. And Pannonia, ibid. d. Their government in Italy, 640, & ſeq. War againſt the Romans, 652, & ſeq. Invaded by the Franks, 661, b. Outwitted by Beliſarius, 663, b—f. Chuſe a new king, 664 b, c. War againſt Narſes, 674, & ſeq. Cruelty to the Romans, 677, d, e. Defeated by them, 678, b, c. Submit to them, ibid. d, e. Suffered to enjoy their liberty, 679, d, e.
Oſtrovi heads the Goths againſt Leo, 511, a.
Oſymanduas Imandes buried in one of Herodotus's pyramids, i. 185.
Oſymandyas, king of Egypt, who, i. 247, d. Reduces the rebellious Bactrians, ibid. & ſeq. His prodigious army, 248, a. Magnificent tomb, ſtatue, &c. ibid. &c.
Otacilius's election oppoſed, iv. 720, c. Sent into Sicily, ibid. e.——Succeſs againſt the Carthaginians, vii. 46, a. Plunders in Afric, 56, a, b.
Otanes diſcovers the ſham Smerdis, by means of his daughter, ii. 101. Declares for a republican government, 103, a.—Sent to relieve Samos, iii. 196, e. Cruelty to the Samians, 197, a, b. Repeoples that iſland, ibid.
Othniel takes Kirjath-ſepher, i. 783, f. Marries Caleb's daughter, ibid. & ſeq. Choſen the firſt judge, 742, d. Defeats Cuſhan-riſhataim, ibid.
Otho's regulations approved by Cicero, v. 104, e.
—— the emperor becomes a favourite of Claudius, 465, & ſeq. To Nero, 520, e. Debauches him, 525, b, c. Marries Poppea, 527, b, (C). Upright government in Luſitania, ibid. & ſeq. Aſſiſts Galba, 572, c. Goes with him to Rome, 582, e. Set aſide from the ſucceſſion, 590, e, f. Conſpires againſt him, 592, c, & ſeq. Saluted emperor by the camp, 594, a. 595, c. Acknowledged by the ſenate, 597, c. Conſpired againſt by Vitellius, 598, b, &c. His diſſimulation to him, 601, e, &c. Meſſages to and from him, 602, b, c. Drops the hated name of Nero, ibid. f, & ſeq. Quells the mutinous ſoldiers, 603, c, d. Marches againſt Valens, 604, f, & ſeq. Takes many nobles with him, 605, a. Succeſs in Gaul, ibid. f, & ſeq. Againſt Cecina, 607, & ſeq. Secures himſelf at Broxellum, 608, f, & ſeq. Raſh orders to engage him, 609, d, e. Total defeat, 610, d, e. Prevented from killing himſelf, 611, c, d. Speech before his death, ibid. f, & ſeq. Calm and obliging behaviour, 612, c. Conſolatory letters to his friends, ibid. d, e. Stabs himſelf, ibid. f, & ſeq. Haſty funeral, 613, a, b. Character, ibid. c.
Othoman invades the Greek empire, vi. 635, d. 639, c, d. His death, 641, e.
Othryades, the only ſurviving champion of Sparta, ii. 572, & not.
†Othrys mountain in Theſſaly, ii. 381, c.
†Otranto, where, vii. 668, b. Relieved by Beliſarius, ibid. c. Taken by John, 671, b, c.
Otreus king of Phrygia, ii. 303, a.
Otta, third king of Kent, vii. 449, c.
†Ottadini, who and where ſeated, vii. 413, d.
Ovation among the Romans, what, iv. 499, (D).
Ovens chicken hatched in Egypt, i. 201, (B).
Ovid writes his Ars amandi, v. 327, e, (I). His fevere baniſhment, 342, & ſeq. (B). Death, 344, in fin not. & 393, d.
Ovidius's faithfulneſs to Cæſonius, v. 557, (O).
Ovinius Canid. bold attempt on the empire, vi. 139, f. How uſed by the emperor, 140, a, b. Death, ibid. c.
Owl perches twice over Agrippa's head, iv. 262, in fin. (X).
Ox, why ſtamped on the Athenian coin, ii. 362, a. 363, c.
Ox, one ſaid to have ſpoke at Rome, vi. 10, c.
Oxathres ſaves Darius's life, iii. 336, (I). Put to death, 405, b.
—— the ſon of Dionyſius's parricide and death, iii. 825, b.
Oxen, a famous breed of in Theſſaly, ii. 382, c.
Oxicanus ſubmits to Alexander, iii. 400, c, (H).
†Oxius, river in Bactria, iii. 845. How paſſed by Alexander, 369.
Oxyartes king of Bactria, iii. 846, b. Defeats Ninus, i. 876, d. Defeated, ibid. e. Surrenders to Alexander, 384, d. Prevails on others to do ſo, 385, a. Rewarded for it, ibid & ſeq. His lot after that monarch's death, 399, d.
Oxydracæ, who, iii. 393, c. Defeated by Alexander, ibid. & ſeq.
Oxylus, they three-ey'd general of the Heraclidæ, ii. 359, Whence he was, 408, paſſ. His ſucceſs, 359, & ſeq. Made king of Elis, 360, b. 408, & ſeq.
Oxyntas releaſed by Apponius, v. 50, c. Set up to ſucceed Jugurtha, vii. 135, b.
Oxynthes king of Athens, ii. 368, d.
Oxyrinchus, Caſhove, a famed fiſh of the Nile, i. 182, d.
†Ozogardene, Trajan's tribunal at, vi. 21, b.
†Ozolea, part of ancient Greece, ii. 411. Deſcribed, ibid. & (D).
†Ozoleans, whence ſo called, ii. 441. Blended with the Locrians, 412, a. Send a colony into Italy, ibid. b.

P.

PABEC, the foſter-father of Artaxarxes, iv. 324, a.
Pacarius Decim. put to death, v. 606, b.
Pacatianus, the firſt Roman vicar in Britain, vii. 419, a.
Paches, the Athenian, takes Mitylene, ii. 506, c.
†Pachynum, the cape of, in Sicily, iii. 1.
Pacorus ſides with Antigonus againſt Herod, iv. 124, c. Defeated, ibid. d. Treachery to Phaſael, 125, b, c.
—— the ſon of Orodes fortifies Cteſiphon, 289, b. Allies with Armenia, 305. Sent againſt Syria, 306, b, c. Conqueſts, 307, d, e. Driven out, 308, b. Outwitted by Ventidius, ibid. d. Defeated and killed, ibid. e, f. His Character, 309.——Firſt king of Parthia's alliance with Rome, 393, c, d.——IId. his reign, 319, d. Comes to Baſſus's relief, v. 170, e. Succeſs in Syria, 269, b.—King of Media invaded by the Alans, 650, a.——Joins with the Dacians, vi. 11, d.
Pactius and Vitius treat with the Romans, vii. 62, b.
†Pactolus, river in Lydia, ii. 329, c.
Pactyas delivered up to the Perſians, iii. 210, a, b.
Pacurianus's ſingular friendſhip for the Comneni, vi. 608, d. 610, c. Defeated by the Scythians, 611, d, e.
†Padua, by whom built, ii. 315, b.
Pæanius's Greek verſion of Ammianus, vi. 386, ſub not.
Pætus driven out of Armenia, iii. 315, d, & ſeq.—P. Autron. conſpires with Catiline, v. 102, e, f.
—— Cæcina's cowardly death, 495, d, e.—Thraſea bravely leaves the flaviſh ſenate, 535, d. Generoſity to Antiſtius, 541, d. Falſely accuſed, 562, e. Condemned, 563, c. Signal conſtancy in death, ibid. d, e.——Treachery to Antiochus, 650, a, b.
Paganalia inſtituted by Servius, iv. 455, d.
Paganiſm ſuppreſſed by Gratian, vi. 396, e, f. Whence ſo called, 403, f. Suppreſt by Theodoſius, ibid. & ſeq. Reſtored by Eugenius, 423, e. Laws againſt it repealed, 460, d Revived, 471, e, f.
Pagans at Alexandria maſſacre the chriſtians, vi. 416, d—f. Laws made againſt them, 471, e, f.
Pagi, appointed by Numa, iv. 436, b. Regulated by Servius, 455, d.
Painting, when firſt brought to Rome, iv. 627, d.
†Palatine Mount, Rome built upon it, iv. 424, b.
Palatuus, an ancient king of Spain, vii. [321], f.
†Palæna, a city in Macedon, iii. 256, d.
†Palæpaphos, a city in Cyprus, iii. 173, e.
Palæpolitans invade the Romans, iv. 606, a. Surrender to them, 607, paſſ.
†Paleas, where and why called Cæſarea, iv. 195, a.
Palemon, the fable of, ii. 391, (G).
†Palentia, by whom built, vii. [321], f. Deſtroyed by the Goths, 513, d.
Paleologus's timely zeal for A. Comnenus, vi. 608. Noble defence of Dyrrachium, 610, a. —— Michael's ſucceſs againſt the Servii, 619, & ſeq. Goes over to the Turks, 631, a. Recalled, ibid. c. and declared guardian, 632, e. Proclaimed emperor, ibid. f. Vain attempt on Pera, 633, a. Grand entry into Conſtantinople, ibid. d—f. Cruelty to the young emperor, 634, d. Defeated by the Bulgarians, ibid. e. Forced to ſubmit to the Pope, ibid. f. Cruelty to the recuſants, 635, a. Excommunicated for the Sicilian maſſacre.

massacre, ibid. Death, ibid. b —Andronicus shakes off the Pope's supremacy, 655, b. Cruelty to his brother Constantine, &c. ibid. c. Defeated by them, 636, f. & seq. Fatal fondness for a worthless grandson, 638, pass. Makes him his Collegue, 639, b. Falls out with him, ibid. d. e. Peace with him, 640, pass. Surprised and deposed by him, 641; a—c Retires and dies, 642, d.—His grandson's wretched character, 638, c. Publick submission, ibid. e, f. Escape, 639, a. Gets half of the empire, ibid. b. Stratagem against his uncle, ibid. e, f. Treachery to his grandfather, 640, a, b. Seizes on several provinces, ibid. c—e. Takes Constantinople, 641, a. Deposes his grandfather, ibid. b, c. Success against the Bulgarians, ibid. d. Defeated and wounded, ibid. & seq. His death and character, 642, e, f, & seq. —John the son of Andronicus, 643, a. Severity to his two sons, 645, f. & seq. Imprisoned, 646, a. Restored, ibid. b. Dies, ibid. c.—Andronicus the son of John, his treason and punishment, 645, f, & seq. Escape and revenge, 646, a. Obtains Selymbria for a retreat, ibid.——John his son's treaty with Bajazet, 646, f. Crowned, 647, b, c. Banished, ibid. d, e.——The son of Manuel crowned, 648, a. Goes to the council of Florence, 649, a. Dies, ibid. b——Constantine his embassy to Mohammed IId, 649, c. Reunites the Greek and Latin churches, 650, a, b. Invaded by Mohammed, ibid. b, c. Offers of peace and tribute rejected, 651, f, & seq. Noble and pious defenc, 652, d——f. Death, 653.——Philes begs to head the army against the Turks, 637, d. Surprises and defeats them, ibid. e, f. Cuts them all off, 638, pass.——Treachery to Lascaris, vii. 288, e; f, & seq.

† Palermo al Panorus, metropolis of Sicily, iii. 8, b.

Pales, the festival of, what, iv. 425, b. (N).

† Palestine invaded by the Scythians, ii. 17, a, 281. By Nebuchadnezzar, 19, & seq. A new division of it, vi. 572, d. Infected with grashhoppers, 453, b, c By the Bulgarians, 550, a, b. Subdued by the Saracens, 543, f. The rest, see under Judea, Canaan, &c.

Palfurnius, taken and put to death, vi. 201, b.

Palici, twin Gods worshipped by the Siculi, iii. 13. not. At Carthage, vi. 695, b.

† Palicon, the city of, where, and whence so called, iii. 13, c. The temple of, ibid. (L).

† Paliuri, the lake of, where, vii. 170, c.

Palladium of Troy, what, ii. 309, c. Brought to Rome by Æneas, ibid. d. Various accounts about it, 310, 312, not. How found at Troy, iii. 737, not. Worshipped in Latium, iv. 420, a. Saved from the flames by Metellus, 680, a.

Palladius's writings and character, vi. 273, sub. not.——Treachery to Valentinian, 349, d, e. Hangs himself, 358, e.——Incredible, 700 miles journey in three days, 474, d.

—— the son of Maximus, chosen Cæsar, vi. 500, e. Marries Eudoxia's daughter, ibid. e.

† Palantium, by whom built, iv. 419, a. Why made a free city, vi. 56, c.

Pallas, one of Herod's wives, iv. 152, not.

— an informer against Sejanus, v. 437, e.

— great favourite of Claudius, 488, & seq. Persuades him to marry Agrippina, 505, d, (O). Honoured by the slavish senate, 512, f, & seq. Acquitted of treason, 524, d. His death, 544, b, c.

—— The palace of, burnt, vi. 92, b.

Palma chosen consul, vi. 9, a. Success in Arabia, 16, a. Put to death by Adrian, 34, c.

† —— a city in Majorca, vii. 308, c.——In Italy, by whom built, iv. 808.

† Palmyra, the metropolis of Palmyrene, i. 361, a, b. Its name and site, &c. 367, a, b. Great court, temple, &c. described, ibid. c. Other famed ruins, 368, e——g. Great piazza, &c. 369, a, &c. Sepulchres, 370, pass. Besieged by Aurelian, vi. 190, e——f. Surrendered, 191, d. Revolts, and is put to the sword, 192, a.

Palmyreans defeated by Aurelian, iv. 329, a. Outwit M. Antony's troops, v. 260, e.

† Palmyrene, province in Syria, i. 361, c.

† Palumbinum, where, iv. 637, e. Taken by Corvilius, ibid.

† Palus Mæotis described, iii. 841.

Pamyles, the nurse of Osiris, i. 241, c.

† Pampelona taken by the Visigoths, vii. 514, d.

† Pamphagi, their site, food, &c. vii. 184, d.

Pamphila's history in 336 books, v. 578, T.

Pamphilus put to death, vi. 537, f.

† Pamphylea, where, vi. Visited by Adrian, ibid.

Pan worshipped at Mendez in Egypt, i. 207, c, d. By the Arcadians, ii. 375, b. His temple at Tegea, ibid. & seq. Why worshipped by the Athenians, 460, f. & seq. In Ethiopia, vii. 197, a.

Panathenea, by whom instituted, ii. 366, b.

Panætolium, what, ii. 701.

Pancratis, ravished by the Naxians, iii. 220, d.

Pancratius, a lying astrologer slain, vi. 558, d. vii. 627, b.

† Pandatavia, where situate, v. 437, b.

Pandecti of Justinian, vi. 530.

Pandion, first king of Athens, ii. 363, c. IId expell'd the kingdom, ibid. e.

Pandroses, the daughter of Cecrops, the fable of, ii. 363, (F).

† Panellenion, the temple of, at Athens, vi. 42, d.

† Pangeas, Mount in Macedonia, iii. 257, c.——The mines of, 261, a. Mount in Thrace, 787, d.

† Pannonia described, v. 317, e. (F). Subdued by Agrippa, ibid. & seq. Ravaged by Tiberius, 318, f. 320, a. Revolts, 335, b. Reduced, 337, d. Afresh, 339, & seq. Erected into a country, vii. 644, b. c.

† ——Secunda, why so called, vi. 211, a. Invaded by the Sarmatians, 299, e.

Pannonian legions, v. 359, & seq. Quelled by an eclipse, 363, e, f. Declare for Vespasian, 621, e.

Panormitan coins, some account of, vi. 703, b, (H).

† Panormus, where, iv. 667, b. Taken by the Romans, ibid. & vi. 843, d, (X).

† Panoti, who and why so called, ii. 268, (E).

Pansa, Caj. Vib. chosen consul, v. 202, f. Ill success against Anthony, 205, pass. Last advice to Octavianus, 207, d, e. Death, 208, a, (P). Burnt, ibid. b.

† Pantabibla, whether the same with Lippara, i. 91, b, & (N).

† Pantalia, the city of, described, iii. 787, c.

Panthea's noble death and burial, ii. 92, (I).

Pantheon at Athens, ii. 436, c. At Rome, when and by whom built, v. 300, c. Struck with lightning and destroyed, 305, a. vi. 19, f. Rebuilt by Adrian, 46, d. & seq.

† Panticapium, where and by whom built, iii. 841, b.

† Panyasus river in Macedon described, iii. 260, b.

† Paphia, one of the four parts of Cyprus, iii. 175, a.

† Paphlagonia submits to Alexander, iii. 333, f. Invaded by Mithridates, 727.

† Paphlagonians, their origin, &c. i. 167, a

Paphus, his extract, iii. 175, f.

Papian, Popean law enacted, v. 338, b. Mitigated by Tiberius, 407, d. Repealed, vi. 256, d.

Papias's success against Lepidus, v. 279, a. Defeated by Agrippa, ibid. b, c.

Papinian, a prime minister, his character, vi. 177, b, c. Discharged by Caracalla, 122, b. His noble answer to him, 124, a. Put to death for it, ibid. b.

—— chosen emperor in Pannonia, 167, a. His death, ibid. &c.

Papinius kills himself, v. 453, c.

—— the tribune conspires against Caligula, 482, b.

Pappus's writings and character, vi. 430, not.

—— kills Herod's brother, iv. 129, e. Slain, 130, a.

Papyrius, Manl. chosen Rex Sacrorum, iv. 468, a.

Papyrius, L. Mugilan. chosen consul, iv. 546, e. Censor, 547, b. Interrex, 551, e. Murdered with other nobles by the Gauls, 564, e.

—— Crassus chosen dictator, 604, d. Triumphs over the Samnites, 610, d.

—— Cursor chosen dictator, 608, c. Severity to Fabius, ibid. e, f. Pardons him, 609, a. second consulship, 613. Defeats the Samnites, 616. In Apulia, ibid. f. His character, 617, a. second dictatorship, 623, d. Triumph over the Samnites, 624, d. His death, ibid. e.

—— the son of Cursor sent against the Samnites, 636, d. Stratagem against them, ibid. & seq. Total defeat of them, 647, e, f.

—— Carbo, trial and death, v. 1, & seq.

—— Cneius, defeated by the Cimbri, 5. b.

—— Carbo, joins with Cinna and Marius, 62, c. Chosen consul by the faction, 67, c. Raises an Army against Sylla, 69, c. His judgement of him, 70, e. Marches against Pompey, ibid. e. Tyrannical consulship 71, b. Defeated by Sylla, 72, c. Flight into Africa, ibid. e. proscribed by Sylla, 76, b. Put to death by Pompey, 77, c.

—— his brother murdered, 71, c.

Papyrus, Byblus, an Egyptian reed, described, i. 182, f. Its various uses, &c. 183, pass. The exportation of it forbid, ii. 325, e.

Parabasis

Parables, by whom first used, i. 748, (L). Falsely challenged by the Greeks, ibid. Why so frequently used by Christ, iv. 212, b
Paradise, more kinds of, than one, i. 58, a, b. Some conjectures about that of Eden, iii. 695, a, (E).
†Parætonium described, vii. 167, d.
Parali, one of the three contending factions at Athens, ii. 427, e.
†Paran, a city in Arab. Petrea, vii. 226, b.——Deserta, 227, d.
Parasang, whence derived, ii. 191, d.
Parasitr, the ancient meaning of it, vii. 365, b, (L).
†Paraxis, the region of, where situate, iii. 256, d.
Parcutee, the first woman in the Bramin's physiology, i. 33, b.
Parents, Solon's laws relating to them, ii. 432, e.
†Parian marble, described, iii. 222, d, e.
Parians, quell and civilize the Milesians, ii. 756, e.
Paris, the son of Priam, ii. 318, a. Entices Helen away, ibid. e. Their arrival into Greece, i. 259, e.
—— sues for Valen's protection, vi. 370, e. 373, b, c. Put to death, 376, d—f.
† —— the city of, where first sited, vi. 302, e. Taken by Childeric, 508, a. Made metropolis by Clovis, 521, e. See also vol. vii. 514, b. Becomes the capital of the Franks, 577, d, and of the whole monarchy, 578, a.
Parisades, I and II. kings of Bosphorus, iii. 841.
—— III. resigns his kingdom to Mithridates, 843.
†Parium, a city in Mysia, described, ii. 324, c.
Parmenides's opinion of the origin of things, i. 7, b.
Parmenio's character, iii. 209, c, d. Seizes on Darius's treasure, 336, a, b. 338, & seq. Surrounded by the Persians at Guagamela, 350, e. Succoured by Alexander, ibid. & 352, (O). Accused by his son, 365, a. Put to death, 366, b.
†Parnassus mount of Phocis, ii. 387, e.
†Paropamisus, a province of Persia, described, ii. 30, a, iii. 368, & not..
† —— the mountain of, 345, f.
†Pares island described, iii. 222, & seq. Its first inhabitants, who, 223, b. Attempted by Miltiades, ibid. & seq. See also ii. 464, d. The Jews of, redressed by J. Cæsar, v. 120, d, (K).
† —— the city of, described, 222, d Besieged by the Athenians, 223, & seq. Subdued, 224, c.
Parricide, no law at Rome against it, iv. 434, b. When first punished there, v. 36, e, Laws against, revived by Constantine, vi. 256, b.
†Parsis, a province of Persia, described, ii. 33, a.
Parsodes, king of the Cadusians, revolts against the Medes, ii, 13, e.
Parsondas, his history, i. 938, c, d, & seq.
Partanus, king of Egypt, i. 270, b.
Parthamisiris, made king of Armenia, vi. 16, f, & seq. Letter to Trajan, 17, e, f. Submission and speech to him, ibid. & seq. Deposition and death, 18, c.
Parthamasphates, made king of Parthia, vi. 24, c. Driven out, 25, a.
Partharit king of the Lombards, vii. 692, f. Undermined by his brother, ibid. & seq. His flight to Chagan, 693, d. Driven away, ibid. & seq. Narrow escape from Grimoald, 694, a, b. Recovers his crown, 697, c, d, dies, ibid. f.
Partheniæ, of Sparta, why so called, ii. 577, a. Forced to retire into Italy, ibid. c.
†Parthenion, of Sparta, described, 423, not. 436, a.
Parthenius conspires against Domitian, v. 689, & seq. Helps to murder him, 690, e.—Killed by the mutineers, vi. 5, c.
†Parthia, a province of Persia, described, ii. 31, b.—— The kingdom of, when and by whom founded, iii. 525, b.—The country described, iv. 289, pass. How divided, ibid. e. Wasted by the Scythians, 293, b, c. Its kings, 291, & seq. Subdued by Trajan, 320, a. The end of its monarchy, 322, & seq.
Parthians, whether originally Celtes or Scythians, ii. 31, b, c, 256, b, c, iv. 289, & seq. Their customs, &c. 290. Excellent archery, ibid. & (A). Religion, 291, a. Government, kings, &c. ibid. & seq. Invade Judea in favour of Antigonus, 124, & seq. Plunder Herod's palace, 126, pass. Set Antigonus on the throne, ibid. & seq. Invaded by Crassus, 295, & seq Defeat him, 301, & seq. Defeated by Cassius, 306, e. Driven out of Syria, 308, & seq. Subdued by the Persians, 322, e, f. Their history according to oriental writers, 372, (A). Defeat Antony's troops, v. 269, a. Amused by Octavianus, 294, e. Famed embassy to him, 334, a. Invaded by Trajan, vi. 16, f, & seq. Subdued, 17, & seq. 20, & seq. Continue faithful to him, 24, c, d. Revolt, 25, a. Recal Cosrhoes, 33, e. Great regard for Antoninus, 56, f. War against the Romans, 63, & seq. Defeated, 64, c. 65, b, c. Invade Mesopotamia, 113, f. War against Macrinus, 131, b, c. Subdued by the Persians, 139, d, e.
†Parvaim, the gold of, whether that of Ophir, i. 170.
†Paryadræ mountains in Armenia, iii. 695, b
Parysatis's great sway with Darius Nothus, ii. 135, a. Instances of her cruelty, 137, d. 140, b.
†Pasargada, the Persian kings crowned at, ii. 58, b. Cyrus's tomb at, 95, b.
Paseasius, bp's three year's slavery under the Vandals, vii. 534, c.
Pascentius defeated by Ambrose, vii. 446, c.
Pashur, one of the four priestly classes, iv. 5, a.
Pasiphae, the incontinent wife of Minos, iii. 167, b.
Pasiphilus, surprises Messana, vi. 791, a.
Pasiphus's surprising constancy on the rack, 374, f.
Passaron, the grand council of, at Epirus, iii. 822, c.
Passover, its first institution, i. 500, a. The manner of it, ibid. b, c. Laws relating to it, 602, a, & seq. Penalties on the neglect of it, 604, a, (P). Etymon of its name, ibid. (R). Unleavened bread eaten during it, 500, c.
Pastor, cruelly used by Caligula, v. 465, a.
Pastors of Egypt. See Shepherds, i. 247, & seq.
Pataci, seamens tutelar gods in Phœnice, i. 400, a, (T).
Pataici, at Carthage, what, vi. 695, a.
†Patara, a city in Lesbos, ii. 337. Where situate, v. 233, (H).
Patareans, their invincible love of liberty, v. 338, a. Overcome by Brutus's mildness, ibid. e.
Pater Patratus, among the Albans, what, iv. 441, (S).
Paternus defeats the Germans, vi. 80, c.——Tarruncius put to death by Commodus, 88, c.
†Patros, wrongly taken for the Pelusium of Thebais, i. 165, e. Where sited, vii. 181, d.
†Patrusium, where seated, i. 165, d.
†Patmos island described, iii. 212, a.
Patibulum, whether the same with Crux, vi. 726, (F).
†Patra, where, v. 289, d. Taken by Agrippa, ibid.
Patriarchs, Antedeluvian. See Antedeluvian, i.
Patrician, in Italy, his office, vii. 721, c.
Patricians, the order of, instituted by Romulus, iv. 426, d. Cruelty causes many revolts, 485, pass. 489, c Overpowered by the plebeians, 497, f. By the Decemvirs, 535, & seq. 579, & seq. By Gracchus, 790, & seq. Their dignity, vi. 271, f, & seq.
Patricius, burnt for magic, vi. 375, a.
—— the son of Aspar marries Leo's daughter, 510, d. Narrowly escapes death, ibid. f. Defeated by the Persians, 520, d, e.
Patrimonies, of the church, an account of, vii. 699, (W). That of Constantine exploded, 706, sub not. Confiscated by Leo, 707, e.
Patrobius, put to death by Galba, v. 586, f.
Patrocles forced to abandon Babylon, iii. 435, a. Defeated and killed by the Bithynians, 522, c.
Patrons of Athens, their office, ii. 428, c. At Rome, D°. iv. 427, a. 617, (W).
†Pattala, where, iii. 401, a. Submits to Alexander, ibid. b.
†Patzinacæ, who, and where, vi. 600. Defeated by the Romans, ibid. b.
†Pavia, taken and burnt by Attila, vi. 497, a. vii. 479, c. Taken by Theodoric, 524, a. By Alboinus, 623. Made metropolis of Lombardy, ibid, e.
†Pavium destroyed by an earthquake, vi. 566, b.
Paul, St. his conversion, iv. 254, pass. Pleads his cause before Felix, 265, b. Before Festus, 266, a. Defence before Agrippa, ibid. &c.
—— count, killed by Childeric, vii. 564, a.
—— brave defence of Rome, 673, a. Kind treatment from Totila, ibid. b.
—— made exarch of Ravenna, 704, a. Opposes the worship of images, ibid. & seq.
—— church of, at Rome, by whom built, vi. 407, e, f.
Paulicians, admitted two self-existent Gods, i. 31, a.
Paulina, Seneca's wife, resolves to die with him, v. 555, b. Repents her bargain, ibid. c.——Death and obscure funeral, vi. 38, f.
Paulinian family converted to christianity, vi. 415, d.

Paulinus Suetonius's ſucceſs in Mauritania, v. 493, e, f. In Britain, 536, & ſeq. Signal victory there, 539, c, d. Undermined by Claſſicanus, 446, b. Recalled, ibid c, d. Defeats Cæcina, 607, d. Degraded, Ibid, e, f. Juſt advice to Otho, 608, a b, 609, d, e. Defeat and flight, 610, c. Poor defence before Vitellius, 615, d. His character, writings &c. 655, & ſeq. ſub (D).
— Pompeius's work, in Germany, 528, c.
— Biſhop, baniſhed by Conſtantius, vi. 289, b, c.
— Eudocia's favourite, why put to death, 485, e, f, & ſeq.
Paulus, of Tyre, favoured by Adrian, vi. 51, ſub not. Made counſellor to Papianus, 117, c. To Alexander, 138, paſſ.
— Jul. recalled and promoted, 139.
— the founder of Eremetic, life, 169, a.
— biſhop of Conſtantinople baniſhed, 266, d.
— Catena, a bloody informer, 218, d, e, Cruelties in Paleſtine, ibid, f, & 305, e, f. Burned alive, 325, a.
— Count, governor in Gaul, 507.
— Exarch of Ravenna, excommunicated, 352, e. Murder, 553, a.
— Æmilius. See Æmilius, vii. 28, & ſeq.
— Diaconus, his writings and character, vii. 709. (Z).
Pauſanias, the Spartan's untimely haughtineſs, ii. 479, h. Peace with Athens, 531. Made general againſt Xerxes, 589. Defeats the Perſians, 590. Rewarded with the tenth of their ſpoil, 126, f. His great moderation, ibid. & 591. Marches againſt the Phocians, 611, b. Degenerates, 562. Starved to death, 593.
— King of Macedon, iii, 284, f
— the murderer of king Philip, his motive, 313, & ſeq.
— the hiſtorian criticized, vi. 83, & ſeq. ſub not.
— the ſophiſt, an account of, ibid.
Pauſiris reigns in Egypt by the conſent of the Perſians, i. 276, c.
Pauſiſtratus invades Caria, iii. 147, f, & ſeq. Sent againſt Antiochus, 149, c. Periſhes through Polyxenidas's treachery, ibid. & ſeq, † Pax Julia, a city in Luſitania, vii. 298, c, d.
Pay, when firſt allowed to the Roman ſoldiers, iv. 555, e.
Pays, father, his account of the Nile's courſe, vii. 129, d, e, (F).
Peace, the fam'd temple of, at Rome, burnt, v. 649, e. vi. 92, a, b.
Pecunia, whence ſo called, iv. 457, d.
Pedanius Secund. murdered by a ſlave, v. 540, f.
Pedarii, young ſenators, whence ſo called, iv. 496, b.
Pediæi, one of the three Athenian factions, ii. 427, e.
Pedo, ſent againſt the Cheruſci, v. 374, d. His writings, character, &c, ibid. & (B).
† Pedretus, river in Danmonia, vii. 407, d.
† Pegaſa, a ſea-port of Theſſaly, ii. 382, b.
† —— the gulf of, ibid.
Pegaſus, lent by Minerva to Bellerophon, ii. 394, b, & not.
Peirerius's ſyſtem of the ſun's ſtanding ſtill, exploded, i. 560, a & ſeq.
Pekah, king of Iſrael's league with the Syrians, i. 389. Vain attempt on Jeruſalem, ibid. &c.
Pekahia ſucceeds his father in Iſrael, i. 829, a. Murdered, 830, d.
Pelago, ſent to murder Plautus, v. 545, a.
† Pelagonia, where ſituate iii. 257, b.
† Pelaſgia, one of the antient names of Peloponneſus, ii. 345, a. Of Theſſaly, 381, a.
† Pelaſgians, ancient Greeks, ii. 344, c. Settle in Crete, iii. 163, d. Firſt inhabiters of Lesbos, 105, b. Why driven out of Attica, 235, b. Settle at Lemnos, ibid. c. Murder the. Athenian breed, ibid & ſeq. Their extract, iv. 414, d.
Pelaſgias and Pelia, the Etymon of, iii. 796, not.
† Pelaſgiotis, part of ancient Greece, ii. 344, by, and of Theſſaly, 381, a.
† Pelaſgus, the father of the Pelaſgians, who, ii. 143, c. Civilizes the Greeks, 345, paſſ. Why ſirnamed Autochton, 375, a.
— firſt king of Arcadia, 378.
Peleg, whether the ſame with Pelaſgus, ii. 345, a. & not See alſo, i. 169, d. Remained with his poſterity in Chaldea, ibid. d.
† Peletbittes Peluthiles, who, i. 778. (C).
Pelias ſends Jaſon for the golden fleece, ii. 383. His treachery, 384, paſſ. Death, ibid. & ſeq.
Pelicans deſcribed, ii. 44, b.
† Peligni, their extract and territories, iv. 411, f. Invaded by the Latins, 598, c. Defeated by Severus, v. 50, d.
† Pelion, mountain in Theſſaly, ii. 381, c. Its height, iii. 259, (H).
† Pella, a city in Macedon, iii. 356, a. Its vaſt ſtud of horſes, 261, a. Taken by the Romans, 493. By Alexander Janneus, iv. 101, e. Demoliſhed, 102, a. Taken by Æmilius, 763, d.
Pella Lucius condemned for extortion, v. 239, f.
Peloponneſian war, its cauſes, ii. 429, & ſeq. Nations engaged in it, 501, a. Early incurſions into Attica, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated before Pylus, 508, d. Peace, 512, f. Broken, 513, & ſeq. Diſappointed by the Perſians, 524, d. Victorious at ſea, 525, b. Defeated at Samos, ibid. d. By ſea and land, 526, paſſ. The war concluded by the peace of Antalcidas, 538, & ſeq.
Peloponneſians bring their fleet againſt Xerxes, ii. 123, c, d. To Salamis, 172, a. Their flight ſtopt by Themiſtocles, 424, 472, & ſeq.
† Peloponneſus, part of ancient Greece, ii. 344, b. Invaded by the Heraclidæ, 359, & ſeq.—The iſthmus of ſhut up, vi. 180. a. Ravaged by Genſeric, 508, e.
Pelops comes into Peloponneſus, ii. 407. King of Piſa, ibid.
— the ſon of Tantalus ſubdued by Ilus, 315, d.
† Pelorum a cape in Sicily, deſcribed, iii. 1, c.
Peltaſtæ in Macedon, their office, ii. 268, b.
† Peluſium, by whom firſt founded, i. 344, (L). One of the keys of Egypt, ii. 96, a. Taken by Cambyſes, ibid. By Antiochus, iii. 575, c. 578, e. Surrendered to Alexander, 345, d. Taken by Cæſar, iv. 117, a.
Pemenes put to death, vi. 296, b.
Peneleus killed before Troy, ii. 375, b.
† Peneus, the famed river, deſcribed, ii. 381, d. iii. 259, (H).
† Peniel, the place where Jacob wreſtled, its ſite, i. 455, b.
Peninus, Jupiter, why ſo called, vii. 353, d, (M).
Pentacontalitra, a Sicilian coin, why ſo named, vi. 735, e, (C).
Pentacoſiomedimni, made the firſt order at Athens, ii. 429, f.
Pentaaia, wife of Timaſus, forced into a Church for refuge, vi. 437, c.
† Pentapolis one of the fineſt regions in Canaan, i. 323 b.
† — Cyrenaica, why ſo called, vii. 169, e.
† — in Italy, ſubmits to Luitprand, 704, f. Given to the pope, 712, f. & ſeq.
Pentapolitans oppoſe the Iconoclaſts, 553, a. How and when became ſubject to the pope, ibid. c. & 254, a. 556, d.
Pentecoſt, the feaſt of, why inſtituted, i. 606, a. How and when kept; ibid. & ſeq. & (W). (X).
Pentheſilea, queen of the Amazons, ii. 279, not.
Pentheus, torn in pieces by his mother, ii. 372, c.
Penthilus, king of Mycenia, ii. 357, f.
Penuel, put to the ſword by Gideon, i. 345, b—e.
Penula; M. Cent's raſhneſs and defeat, vii. 55, c.
† Peparethus iſland, deſcribed, iii. 233, a. Famed for its wines, ibid. b.
Pepin preſents Ravenna to the pope, vi. 556, d. Aſſiſts him againſt the Lombards, vii. 711, e. & ſeq. Succeſs againſt Aſtulph, 712, e, f, & ſeq. Anſwer to Copronymus's ambaſſadors, 713, e, f. Donations to the pope, 714, a, b. Confirmed and enlarged by Charlemagne, 718, f.
Peponilla, vid. Emponia, v. 654, paſſ.
† Peræa, the Greek name of the country of Baſhan, i. 137, (Q). Where ſitted, ibid. & 568, c.
Percennius's revolt in Hungary, v. 359, b. Speech to his accomplices, ibid. & ſeq. Put to death, 364, a.
† Percole, a city in Phrygia Minor, ii. 304, d.
Perdicas 1ſt, 4th king of Macedon, iii. 272.—IId, Son of Alexander, his reign, 279, & ſeq. Wars with Athens, 280. Joins Braſidas againſt the Lynceſthei, 282, c. Death and character, 283, c, d. — III, Set on the throne by Pelopidas, 287, a.
— Alexander's general, his advice after his death, 415, a. Character, ibid. & ſeq. Treachery to Meleager, 416. Great ſway, ibid. & ſeq. Subdues Cappadocia, 420, a, b. Marries Nicæca, ibid. e. Wars with Ptolemy, 421, d, e. Murdered by his men, 423, paſſ.
— a traitor to Eumenes hanged, 424, a, b.
† Perea recovered by the Rhodians, iii. 147, f.
Peredeus's noble defence of Ravenna, vii. 703, c. — e. Death, ibid.
Perennis Commodus's favourite put to death, vi. 88, c. His character and crime, 89, a, b. ——— Complained againſt, vii. 432, c. Fatal end, ibid. d.
† Perga, where ſited, iii. 566, b, (P). Delivered up to the Romans, ibid.
Pergamenian library given to Cleopatra, v. 287, b.
† Pergamos, a city in Myſia, deſcribed, ii. 289. c, 355, e. Laid waſte by the Bithynians, 778. Bequeathed to the Romans, 782. Becomes a Roman province, 784, & ſeq.
† — city diſfranchiſed by Macrinus, vi. 132. a. Taken by the the Saracens, 551, b. A juſt puniſhment for their horrid witcheries, ibid. c.

— king; rather the improver than inventor of parchment; i. 727, a.
Peri, a kind of fairies among the orientals, i. 51, c.
Periander's revenge on the Corcyreans, iii. 190, a, b.
Pericles, the ſon of Xantippus, head of an Athenian faction, ii. 485, a. His character, ibid. & ſeq. Outwits the Lacedemonians at Megara, 491, b. Reduces Eubæa, 492, a. Severe ordinance againſt the Athenians of half blood, ibid. & ſeq. Attachment to Aſpaſia, 493, & not. Reduces the Samians, 494, & ſeq. Funeral oration for the ſlain, 495, b. Gets Thucydides to be baniſhed, 497, paſſ. Accuſed of divers crimes, 498, paſſ. Acquitted, ibid. & ſeq. His conduct at the opening of the Peloponneſan war, 501, c. His family viſited with the plague, 503, & ſeq. Dies himſelf of it, 504, e. His character, ibid. & ſeq. & not. His ſon unjuſtly put to death, 528, & ſeq.
Perillus preſents his brazen bull to Phalaris, iii. 128, e.
† Perinthus, Perynthus, by whom founded, iii. 787, c. Beſieged by Philip, 299, & ſeq. 304, f. Relieved by Phocion, 305, b. The battle of, won by Niger, vi. 108, e.
Periſcus, a famous engineer at Byzantium, vi. 111. a. Saved from the maſſacre, ibid.
† Perizites, ancient Canaanites, i. 323, d. Why ſo called, ibid. (D). Invaded by Simeon and Judah, 333, d. Some ſpared to live among them, 335, a. Inſlaved by Solomon, 337, b.
Perjury made capital by Moſes, i. 684, d.
Peronia, the betrayer of Conſtantina, vi. 537, f.
Peroſes, king of Perſia's fatal expedition againſt the Hunns, iv. 342, b. Perfidy to them, ibid. & (O). Death, ibid. e.
Perozes defeated by the Romans, vi. 524, e.
Perpenna, a ſoldier, choſen conſul, iv. 797, f. Defeated by the allies, v. 49, e. Forced out of Sicily, 77, a. Paſſes into Spain, 91, a. Joins Sertorius in Luſitania, ibid. b. Repulſed by Pompey, 92, e. Defeated by Metellus, 93, e. Treachery to Sertorius, 95, & ſeq. Defeated and taken, 97, b. Put to death by Pompey, ibid. c.
† Perſamenians, who, 524, e. Defeated by the Romans, ibid. f. Submit to Juſtin II. 532, a, b.
† Perſepolis, capital of Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 34, & not. The ruins of, 48, & ſeq. Various conjectures about them, 52, & ſeq. D. Siculus's account of that city, ibid. and of its being deſtroyed by Alexander, ibid. & not. Other noble antiquities of it, 53, & ſeq. Why alſo called Elymais, 55, & (V). How taken and burnt, 168, b, c.
Perſes, who, ii. 69. No idolaters, ibid. & ſeq. Falſely accuſed by the Turks, 70, (B). Their religion diſplayed, 72, & ſeq. Its origin, whence, 74, b. 206, & ſeq. Veneration for the elements, ibid. & ſeq. Temples, 76. Account of the creation, 77, d. Prieſts, 78, a. Initiating of children, ibid. & ſeq. Marriages, 79, paſſ. Funerals, 80, paſſ.
Perſes ſucceeds Philip in Macedon, ii. 685. Courts the Greeks againſt the Romans, ibid. d. His letter to the Achæans, 686, a. Rejected, ibid. d. Defeated by the Romans, 687, d. Treachery to Eumenes, iv. 761, b. Puniſhed by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Defeat, 763, c, d. Taken priſoner, 764, c. Led in triumph, ibid. & ſeq. Miſerable end, 765.
Perſeus, the ſon of Jupiter by Danae, ii. 354, e. Fetches the famed Gorgon, and ſaves Andromeda, ibid. & ſeq. Kills his father-in-law, 355, b. Exchanges Argos for Tyrin, ibid. c.
— the natural ſon of Philip, cabals againſt his brother, iii. 478, & ſeq. 481, c, d. Diſinherited, 482. Mounts the throne by force, ibid. f, & ſeq. His character, &c. 483, b, c. Falls out with the Romans, ibid. d, e. Goes to Delphos, ibid. f. Undermined by Eumenes, 414. Accuſed to the Romans, 485. Succeſs againſt them, ibid. & ſeq. Puſillanimity, 487, & ſeq. Mad actions, 488, a, b. Covetouſneſs, 489. Defeat, 492, & ſeq. Miſerable flight, 493. Refuge in Samothrace, 494. Surrenders to Octavius, 495, b. How treated by the conſul, ibid. & ſeq. Vindicated againſt the Roman writers, 497, & (D). Miſerable end, 499. Character and progeny, ibid. & ſeq.
— His high regard for his maſter Antigonus, iv. 567, d, e. Writings, character, and death, 578, (T).
† Perſia, the kingdom of, deſcribed, ii. 26, & ſeq. Its climate, 35. Seaſons, 36. Rivers, 37, b. Produce, 38, & ſeq. Fruits, grain, &c. 40. Mines, 41. Poiſonous plants, 44, & ſeq. Government, 57. Kings how reſpected, ibid. & 66, & ſeq. Palaces deſcribed, 58, 59, & ſeq. Education of children, 60, & ſeq. Divided into 20 ſatrapies, 103. Exempt from all taxes, ibid. f. Its kings according to oriental writers, 173, & ſeq. When, by whom brought under the Medes, 5, d, & (F).—The continuation of its hiſtory, iv. 322, & ſeq. Viſited with a ſix years drought, 387. Subdued by the Caliphs, 405, & ſeq.
Perſian religion vindicated from idolatry, ii. 69, & ſeq.
— ambaſſadors, how treated by the Macedonians, iii. 274, & ſeq.
† Perſians, their manners, cuſtoms, &c. ii. 60, d. Puniſhments, 61. Polygamy and inceſt, ibid. & ſeq. Coins, arts, &c. 62, & ſeq. Military diſcipline, 63. Severity, ibid. (H). Chariots, weapons, marching, &c. 64, c. Muſter-rolls, ibid. a—e. Laws, ſchools, &c. 65, & ſeq. Slaviſhneſs to their kings, 66, & ſeq. Secrecy, 67, a. Preſents, ibid. b. Their wives and revenues, 68, paſſ. Wars with the Greeks, 120, & ſeq. Defeat at Salamis, 123, & ſeq. 472, & ſeq. By land under Mardonius, 125, & ſeq. Camp forced by the Greeks, 126, b. Army deſtroyed, ibid. & ſeq. End of the Grecian war, 127, &c. Oppreſs the Cypriots, iii. 176, & ſeq. Peace with them, 179, a. Defeat the Grecian fleet, 197, e. The occaſion of that war, 275, & ſeq. Put to flight by Leutychides, 198, e, f. Worſhip Alexander, 379, c, & (X). Subdue the Parthians, iv. 322, & ſeq. The ſequel of their hiſtory, 323, & ſeq. End of their monarchy, 370, & ſeq. Hiſtory according to oriental writers, 371, & ſeq. End of their monarchy according to them, 405, & ſeq. & (N). Threaten the Roman territories, 160, d. Defeated by Baliſta, 177, b, c. Invade them afreſh, 275, & ſeq. Defeated by them, 278, d, e Before Niſibis, 279, b—d. Renew the war, 474, paſſ Defeated by Ardaburius, ibid. & ſeq. Invade them afreſh, 486, e, f. Peace renewed, 487. and war, 523, c. Outwitted before Martyropolis, ibid. d, e. Conclude a peace, ibid. e, f. 4000 defeat 30,000 Romans, 527, & ſeq. Defeated by the Lazi, 528, d, e. Invade Lazica, 529, a. Defeated, ibid. c. Ravaged by Juſtinian, 533, b. by Mauritius, ibid. & ſeq. by Heraclius, 534, c, d. by Germanus, &c. ibid. & ſeq. by Heraclius, 540, & ſeq. End of their kingdom, 542, f, & ſeq. Courtſhip to the Romans, 568, d. Help to form the Numidians, vii. 117, e. Why called Numidæ, 118, a.
— modern, their tradition about the origin of the world, i. 32, c, d. About the flood, 107, a, b.
Perſic alphabet, vii. 256, & ſeq.
† Perſtalba rebuilt and called Pannopolis, vi. 586. e.
Pertinax's ſucceſs in Pannonia, vi. 69. d. Promoted by M. Aurelius, ibid. e. Succeſs in Illyricum, 78, c, d. in Britain, 89, f. Narrow eſcape, 90. Succeeds Dionyſius at Rome, 91, d. Made proconſul of Afric, ibid. f. Governor of Rome, 92, d. Obſequies of Commodus, 94, a. Proclaimed emperor, 95, paſſ. Speech to the Senate, 96, b, c. Riſe and extract, ibid. e, f. Excellent character and government, 97, & ſeq. Diſobliges Lætus and the army, 98. b, c. Signal intrepidity, e, f. Death, 99, 2. Funeral honours, ibid. &c. Pompous apotheoſis by Severus, 108, 2.
—Hecatus put to death for his biting ſarcaſm againſt Caracalla, 124, d, e.
† Peru, not the true name of that country, i. 170, e, f.
† Perugia taken by Totila, vii. 671, & ſeq.
† Peruſia beſieged by Octavius, 265, b. Its noble defence, 266, a—c. Surrendered and burnt, ibid. & ſeq.
† Peruſians 300, put to death by Octavius, 266, f.
Perynthians, beſieged by King Philip, ii. 546, d.
Peſſinus, whence ſo called, ii. 315, e, f.
Peſſuthnes aſſiſts the Samians, iii. 199, e, f.
Petaliſm at Syracuſe, what, iii. 24, a, b.
Petavia deſtroyed by the Quadi, vi. 388, &c.
Peter the apoſtle, called, iv. 199, a. 205, b, Sirnamed Cephas, ibid. & 208. (T). Walks on the ſea, 215, d. His noble confeſſion, 216. c. 218, d. Why blamed for his modeſt refuſal, 232. (K). for his zeal, 235, a. Denies his Lord, ibid. d. Haſtens to his Sepulchre, 244, b. His commiſſion and martyrdom, 345, f. Firſt ſermon, and 3000 converts, 250, b. 2d, and 5000 converted, 251, & ſeq. Speech to the Sanhedrim, 252. b, 2d defence, ibid. d, e. Miraculouſly delivered from priſon, 262, b. Prophecy againſt the Jews, 272, a, & (S) — tortured by Honorius, vi. 456, d.

Peter, a frier ſtirs up the Mob againſt Hypatia, 471, d.
— made duke of Naples 353, b.
— order'd over the Danube, 536, put to death by Phocas. ibid. e.
— the hermit, ſtirs up chriſtians to the holy war, 613, d, e. Marches at the head of them, 614, a. His ill conduct, ibid. c. and defeat, 615, a.
— earl of Auxerre crowned emperor, 629, f. Put to death by Theodorus, 630, a.
— ſucceeds his father Simeon, vii. 632, a, b. Peace and alliance with Romanus, ibid. c, d.
— ſent duke of Naples, 705, b, c.
† Petilia, by whom built, iii. 169, b. Noble defence againſt Hannibal, iv. 717, e, vii. 38, c, 40, f. Surrendered, 41, a. Diſarmed, 77, a.
Petilian women, ſignal bravery, 40, f.
Petilius's inveteracy againſt the two Scipios, iv. 756, & ſeq. Killed by the Ligurians, 760, e. Takes flying Pompey on board, v. 147, b. (A).
— Cerealis's ſucceſs in Britain, vii. 430, f. & ſeq.
Petinus put to death by Galba, v. 586, f.
† Petor, where ſituate, iv. 160, b.
† Petra, a city of Edom, i. 309, c. Placed under the Amalekites by Joſephus, 319, a, & (D).
† — metrop. of Paleſtina tertia, vi. 372, c.
† — of Arabia Petrea, vii. 225, a. Why ſo called, ibid. b. Deſcribed, ibid, b, c, (D).
— plundered by Antigonus, iii. 434, a. Beſieged by the Romans, iv. 355, c.
Petræ, two Roman knights put to death, v. 500, (C).
Petreius's ſignal bravery and reward, v. 37, c. Defeats Catiline, &c. 108. Commands in Hither-Spain, 135, e. Submits to Cæſar, 136, e. Goes over to Pompey, 157, b. Gratitude to Cæſar, 159, e, f. Death, 160, f.
Petronius ſent to perſecute the Jews, iv. 259, c—C. Succeſs againſt Candace, v. 302, d, & ſeq.—P. Succeeds Vitellius, in Syria, 473, b.
— Caius, his lewd character, 561, d, e. Prudent government, 562, a.
— Turpilianus put to death by Galba, 585, c. Encourages Nerva to aſſume the purple, vi. 2, e. Killed by the mutineers, 5, c.
— Mamercus, put to death by Commodus, 91, e. Extortions at Conſtantinople, 366, e.
Peuceſta's lot after Alexander's death, iii. 423, e. Outwitted by Eumenes, 427, & ſeq. Treachery to him, 430, a. Puniſhed, 451, b.
Peutinger's itinerary, vi. 478, ſub not.
Phædra's incontinency, iii. 169, a.
— one of Herod's wives, iv. 152, ſub not.
Phædrus the fabuliſt, when he flouriſh'd, v. 458, ſub not.
Phagrus, a noted fiſh peculiar to the Nile, i. 182, d.
Phalangius, a bloody governor of Bœtica, vi. 357, b.
Phalanx, Macedonian, how diſpoſed, iii. 269, c. By whom invented, 389, a, (B). Revived by Severus, vi. 142, b. The bravery and reward of ſix of them, ibid, b, c.
Phalaris, tyrant of Agrigentum, iii. 128, d. His brazen bull, 42, & (Y). Death, 128, e.
Palerum of Athens deſcribed, ii. 437, c.
Phalis king of Sidon, when he flouriſh'd, i. 410, b. Styled moſt illuſtrious by Homer, ibid. &c.
Phameas brought over to the Romans, iv. 774, e. and deſerts the Carthaginians, vii. 101, a.
† Phanagora, metropolis of Boſphorus, iii. 840, b.
Phanagorium betrayed by Caſtor, iii. 755, d, e.
Phanes of Halicarnaſſus revolts from the king of Egypt, i. 272, b. ii. 95, d. His children murdered before his face, 96, b.
Phannias, an obſcure prieſt, made pontiff by the zealots, iv. 274, a, (Y).
† Phara, where ſited, vii. 223, e. 226, b. One of the boundaries of Arabia, 223, e.
† The promontory of, 227, c.
Pharaimanes, king of Choraſmene, iii. 381, f. Embaſſy to Alexander, ibid. &c.
Pharamond, the time of his defeat and death, vii. 550. c. Of his reign, 558, f, & ſeq. Where buried, 559, d. Whether author of the Salic law, ibid. e.
Pharaoh, its etymon, i. 280, f. Common title to the Egytian kings, 423, b. Who firſt took it, 280, f.
— Pharoha the lame, king of Egypt, 281, e. Refuſes to deliver up the refuged Jews, ibid. f. Hanged for it by Nebuchadnezzar, ibid.
— his two dreams interpreted by Joſeph, 452, d, e. Cruel orders to the Hebrew midwives, 475. Cruelty to the Jews, 474—477. In what ſenſe his heart was hardened by God, 494, (D). Diſmiſſes the Iſraelites 501, e. Purſues them and periſhes in the red ſea, 507, b, c.
Pharaſmenes, king of Iberia, recovers Armenia, iii. 710. Supplants his brother, 711, a, b. His cruelty to him, 712, a. vid. & 136, & ſeq.
— king of Albania, favoured by the Romans, 839, b. Ravages Armenia, vi. 41, e. Comes to Rome, 43, a. Kind reception by Adrian, ibid. b. Great reſpect for Antoninus, 56, f.
Pharez and Zara born to Judah by Thamar, i. 452, a. A ſtrange birth, ibid. & not.
Pharizates married to Alexander, iii. 405.
Phariſees, their riſe, iv. 94, d, & 164, d. Enmity to Hyrcan, 95, b. & (W). Cauſe a revolt againſt Alex. Janeus, 100, c. Inſolent anſwers to him, ibid. c. Impudent behaviour to his queen, 103, & ſeq. Cruelty to the Sadducees, ibid. & ſeq. Requited by Ariſtobulus, 105, & ſeq. Their peculiar Tenets, 164, & ſeq. Cauſe of their infidelity, ibid. paſſ. Reproved by the Baptiſt, 198, c. by Chriſt, much more, 217, b, c. Two falſe notions of theirs confuted, 223, b, & (S). Put to ſilence by Chriſt, 231, The reſt, ſee Jews.
† Pharmacuſa iſland deſcribed, iii. 212, b.
Pharnaces 1ſt, king of Pontus, wars with Eumenes, iii. 725. & ſeq. Peace with him, 726, b.
— II. revolts againſt his father, 755, & ſeq. Made king of Boſphorus, 757. Recovers part of Pontus, 758, c, d. Defeats the Romans, ibid. f. Defeated by J. Cæſar, 759, & ſeq. Slain, 760, b. ſee vol. v. 153.
— king of Cappadocia, 763, & ſeq.
† Pharnus king of Media, conquered by Nimus, ii. 12, a. Crucified with his wife and children, ibid.
† Pharos iſland taken by the Romans, iv. 691, d.
† — city razed by them, ibid. e.
† — the famous tower of, deſcribed, iii. 266, & ſeq. & (A).
† Pharpar and Abana, ſtreams of the Chryſorrheas, that water Damaſcus, i. 362, a.
† Pharſalia, the plains of, where ſituate, ii. 381, d. Deſcribed, v. 142, c. The battle of, 143, & ſeq.
† — Pharuſii, from whom deſcended, vii. 149, b, c, (K). A tribe of Gætulians, 161, b. Of Perſian extract, ibid. d.
Phaſael, Herod's brother, iv. 118, b, (H). Made governor of Jeruſalem, 121, e. and tetrarch, by M. Antony, 124, a. Betrayed by Pacorus, 125, e. kills himſelf, 126, e.
— the ſon of Herod by Pallas, 152, not.
† Phaſaelis, the fortreſs of, built by Herod, iv. 148, c. Bequeathed to Salome, 191, a.
† Phaſellis, a city in Lycia, ii. 337.
† Phaſelus, the tower of, deſcribed, iii. 627, (A).
† Phaſis, a city in Colchis, iii, 833, b.
† — a river in Armenia, 694, a. 833, c. Miſtakes of the learned about its ſource, i. 55. d, e. Arrian's obſervations on it, vi. 42, a.
Pheaſants, whence brought, iii. 833, c.
Phelles, Helles, kills his brother Aſtarimus, i. 415, b. Murdered by Ithobal, ibid. c.
† Phenaus lake in Arcadia, ii. 376, a.
Pheneas the Ætolian deputy's conference with Æcilius, ii. 722, d. with Flaminius, 724, f. with Fulvius, 729. peace with the Roman ſenate, 730.
Pherecides of Siros, maſter of Pythagoras, i. 25, c. Notion of the world's origin, ibid. c, d.
— firſt proſe-writer, where born, 224, & ſeq. His doctrines, ibid. & (X). Other works, i. 18, (N).
Pherenice, princeſs of Rhodes, carries her ſon to the Olympic games, iii. 134, d.
Pheretima, driven into Cyprus, iii. 177, a. Reception at Salamis, vii, 172, f. Gets the government of Cyrenaica, 173, a. Her revenge on the Barcæ, ibid. b, c.
Pheron, Seſooſis, ſucceeds Seſoſtris, i. 258, b. Struck blind, ibid. c. Recovers his ſight, and rears two obeliſks, ibid. d.
Pherocunes ſent againſt Varamus, iv. 361, a. Murdered, ibid.
Pheroras, Herod's 4th brother, iv. 118, (H). Made tetrarch, 143, (W). Accuſed by Alexander, 149. Joins with him againſt Herod, 151, & ſeq. Leaves the court, 152, a, b. Refuſes to return to his ſick brother, ibid. e. His death diſcovers the whole plot, ibid. & ſeq.
Phial, holy, at Rheims. the fable of, vii. 570, c.
† Phiala. the lake of. the true ſource of Jordan, i. 577, c, & (S). Deſcribed, 578, a.
Phicol chief captain of Abimelech, i. 345, Probably his prime miniſter, 347, (Q).

Phidemon's fidèlity to Trajan, vi. 25, c, d.
Phidias, the Athenian ſtatuary, condemned, ii. 498, a.
Phidippedes's viſion of the God Pan, ii. 460, f.
Phiditia, at Carthage, what, vi. 680, (M),
Phidon, the firſt coiner of money, iii. 244, a.
† Philadelphia, anciently the metropolis of the Ammonites, i. 293, b.
† — a city in Lydia, ii. 328, f. Beſieged by the Turks, vi. 636, a.
Philadelphian works, why ſo called, iii. 693, a.
Philaeni, worſhipped at Carthage, vi. 692, e. Why, 737, c.
Philænorum Aræ, their diſtance from Hercules's pillars, vi. 664, (I).
Philæus king of Salamis, yields that iſland to the Athenians, iii. 245, d.
Philammon murders Arſinoe, iii. 646. c. Aſſaſſinated by her women, 647, d.
Philanthropenus's ſucceſs againſt the Turks, vi. 635. c. Revolt, ibid. d. Puniſhment, ibid. e.
Philarchus, a bitter enemy to the Jews, killed, iv. 60, a,
Philip of Macedon's wars with the Athenians, ii. 542, & ſeq. Corrupts the Greeks with his gold, 544, b. Seizes the ſtreights of Thermopylæ, 545. Subdues the Olympians, 546. Puts an end to the Phocian war, 557, a. Driven away by Phocion, ibid, c, d. Invades Phocis, 551. Defeats the confederates at Cheronea, ibid. & ſeq. Where brought up, iii. 287, c. Comes into Macedon, ibid. & ſeq. Signal policy, 288, & (A). Defeats Argeus, 289. a. Peace with Athens, ibid, b, c. Conqueſts, 290, & ſeq. Loſes an eye, 291, c, & (D), His ſucceſs in Theſſaly, 292, & ſeq. Againſt the Olynthians, 293. & ſeq. Peace with Athens, 294, & ſeq. Ends the ſacred war, 295, & ſeq. Invades Thrace, 297, & ſeq. & (F), and Eubæa, 299. Propontis, ibid. & ſeq. Letter to the Athenians, 300, & ſeq. Repulſed by Phocion, 305. Defeats the Treballi, ibid. e. Choſen general by the Amphictyons, 306, b, c. Defeats the confederates, 307. Peace with Athens, 308, b. Armament againſt Xerxes, ibid. & ſeq. Marries Cleopatra. 310, b. Murdered, 314. b. His character, ibid. & ſeq.
— the ſon of Antigonus his moderation to the revolted Spartans, ii. 634, b. Beaten out by Lycurgus, 635, c. Aſſiſts the Achæans, 653, a. Defeats the Eleans, ibid. & ſeq.. Takes Pſophis, and gives it to the Achæans, 654. Ravages Elis, ibid. & ſeq. Kindneſs to the Achæans, 655. Beſieges Paleis, 657. Invades Ætolia, ibid. & ſeq. Takes Thermæ, 658. Invites Lacedemon, 659, e. Appeaſes a Sedition at Corinth, 660. Truce with Ætolia, 661, b. Takes Thebes and Phthiotis, 662, d. Peace of Naupactus, 664, a. Deſigns againſt the Grecian liberty, ibid. ſeq. Invades Epirus, 665, a. Defeated by the Romans, ibid. Poiſons the noble Aratus, ibid. & ſeq. Defeats the Ætolians afreſh, 666, e. Defeated before Elis, ibid. & ſeq. New peace with Ætolia, &c. 669. Breaks it, ibid. d. Forſook by the Achæans, 670, f. Invades them, 671. Takes Argos, and gives it to Nabis, ibid. d. Forced to peace with Rome, 673. Siege of Lamia, 722. Harraſſes Ætolia, 723. Recovers ſome important places, 724. Ravages Attica, 725, & ſeq. Fatal fury againſt the Athenians, 725, a—d. Forced to defend Macedon, ibid. & ſeq.
— regent of Athamania joins with Antivelius, ii. 718, d. His pretenſions to Macedon, ibid. & (N). Taken by the Romans, 719.
— Caſſander's general, ſucceſs in Ætolia, iii. 461, a.
— the ſon of Demetrius IId, left an infant, iii. 745, b. Proſpers under his uncle Doſon, ibid. & ſeq. Mounts the Macedonian throne, 477. c. Treachery to the two Arati, ibid. & ſeq. Overpowered by the Romans, 478, & ſeq. Family broils, 480, c. Cruelty to his ſon, 481, d. Runs mad, 482, paſſ. Death, ibid. f.
— the ſuppoſed ſon of Perſeus, vid. Andriſcus, 501.
— another, pretender to the Macedonian crown, defeated, 506, a, b.
— regent of Syria, 585. paſſ. Defeated and killed by Lyſias, 588, b.
— the ſon of Grypus, defeats the Mopſueſtians, 615, e. and Eucheres, 616, a. Invaded by Euſebes, &c. ibid. e, f.
— the Acarnanian's faithfulneſs to Alexander, 334, d. His lot after his death, 423, e.
— a Phrygian and cruel governor of Judea, 577, a, iv. 51. Murders a thouſand Jews on the Sabbath, 53, c. Deſtroys the ſacred books, ibid. d.
— the ſon of Herod by Mariamne, 151, (N).
— by Cleopatra made tetrarch, 184, a. His ſhare of the Jewiſh kingdom, 190, f. Death and character, 253, paſſ.
— the apoſtle called by Chriſt, 199, a; 208, (T). Preacher at Samaria, 254, b.
— the murderer of Gordian, makes peace with Sapor, 227, b.
— king of Macedon, allies with Hannibal, 719. b. Invades Sicily, 722, c. Surprized and driven out, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Flaminius, 752, d. Condemned by the Roman commiſſaries, 758, d.
— Pompey's freedman's piety to his dead maſter, v. 150, c, (B).
— Julius's treachery to Miſitheus, vi. 163; c. Succeeds him as captain of the guards, ibid. c. Treachery to Gordian, ibid. e, f. His extract, &c. 165, a. Whether the firſt chriſtian emperor, ibid. b, c. Acknowledged by the ſenate, d, e. Makes peace with Sapor, 166, a. Submiſſion to the biſhop of Antioch, ibid, b, c. Succeſs againſt the Carpi, ibid. d. Edict againſt the Catamites, ibid. & ſeq. March againſt Decius, 167, c. Defeat and death, ibid. d. Zeal for chriſtianity, ibid. & ſeq.
— his ſon choſen collegue, 165, e. Conſul, 166, e. Killed by the Pretorian guards, 167, d. His ſingular gravity and religion, e, f.
— Flavius, an Arian conſul, 278, a.
— emperor of Germany's treaty to enthrone Alexius IIId. 625, c, d.
— of Sida, his voluminous writings loſt, 492, ſub not.
— Embaſſy to Carthage, vii. 42, b. Treaty, ibid. c. Ambaſſadors ſent priſoners to Rome, 43, & ſeq. 2d treaty, 44, d, e. Separate peace with Rome, 64, f. Aſſiſts the Carthaginians, 82, b, c.
† Philippi, by whom built, iii. 257. Its ſituation, &c. v. 242, c.
— the firſt battle of, 245, & ſeq. Second, 251, & ſeq.
Philippicus's ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, iv. 359, & ſeq. vi. 534, c. Put to flight by Cardariga, ibid. d. Recalled, ibid. Repulſed by the army, ibid. d, e. Reconciled and victorious, ibid. & ſeq. Baniſhed by Tiberius, 548, d. Proclaimed emperor, 549, e. Marches to Conſtantinople, ibid. f. & ſeq. Favours the Monothelites, 550, a, Blinded and depoſed, ibid. c.
Philipion put to death by his father, iv. 116.
† Philippopolis in Thrace, by whom built, iii. 787. d. Taken by the Goths, 196, c. 100,000 Romans put to the ſword in it, ibid. c Plundered and taken by the Hunns, vii. 468, f. by the Goths, 494, c.
Philippus, L. Marc. choſen conſul, v. 46, b. Oppoſes Druſus's ſcheme, ibid. f. Sent into priſon, 48, a.
— Lucius's motion in favour of Pompey, 89, e.
— L. Mar. marries the mother of Octavian, 194, d. Why ſirnamed Thurinus, ibid.
Philiſtides, tyrant of Oreus, iii. 252, a. Made ſo by Philip, 299, not.
† Philiſtines, their extract and antient territories, 338, b. c. Seize on Paleſtine, ibid. d, (B). Their country deſcribed, 339, a. Names, cities, &c. ibid & ſeq. Preſent Ruins, 340, (C): Government, kings, &c. 341. & ſeq. Enmity to the Iſraelites, 342, b. Religion, idols, &c. 343, a, & ſeq. Drive out the Avim, 344, a. Obligingneſs to Abraham, 345, & ſeq. to Iſaac, 346, & ſeq. Invaded by Simeon and Judah, 347, e. Defeated by Shamgar, ibid. & ſeq. Plundered by Zebah and Zalmunah, 348. Oppreſs the Iſraelites, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Jephtha, 349, & ſeq. Seize on the ſacred ark, and plagued with it, 350, & ſeq. Send it back with proper expiatories, 351, & ſeq. & not. Defeated by the Jews, 352, b, c. by Jonathan and Saul, 353, & ſeq. by David, 355, a. Jealouſy of him, 356, b. War againſt him, 356. Defeated ſeven times by him, 357, & ſeq. apply themſelves to trade, 358, a, & (B). Haraſſed by Nadab king of Iſrael, 358, b. Tributary to Jehoſhaphat, 358, c. Retaliate on Jehoram and his family, ibid. & ſeq. Subdued by the Aſſyrians, 348, paſſ. & (G). 200 of them killed for their foreſkins, 355, a. War with Judas Maccabeus, iv. 116.
Philiſtus the hiſtorian, his character, iii. 64, b. Treachery to Dion, ibid, d, e. Defeated at ſea, 69, a. Kills himſelf, ibid. See alſo, vol. vi. 755, (F).
Philla married to Craterus, iv. 451, c.
Philo the Jew's account of the Septuagint verſion, iv. 38, a, b, & not. Of the Eſſenian ſect, 169, & ſeq. Why he differs from Joſephus, 171, (B). His account of the Alexandrian perſecution, v. 669, & ſeq. Suppoſed to have exagerated it 701, f. His character, 702, f. Succeſsleſs embaſſy to Caligula, ibid. & ſeq.
— ſtirs up the Luſitanians againſt Cæſar, 176, a.
— A. Publ. Succeſs againſt the Palepolitans, iv. 606, d. Conſulſhip, 613, f.

Philobaſilei at Athens, their office, ii. 443.
Philologus, whether the betrayer of Cicero, v.
Philocles ſent to ravage Attica, ii. 734, & ſeq.
——betrays young Demetrius, iii. 481; c. put to death, 482, b.
Philomel, the fable of, ii. 389; not.
Philomenes betrays Tarentum to Hannibal, vii. 50, f. & ſeq. Treachery and diſmal end, 62, d.
Philomedes's affront to Poſthumius, iv. 644, d. 229, a, (D).
Philopœmen, general of the Achæans, his character, ii. 667. Valour at the battle of Sellaſia, 649, a—c. Defeats the Spartans at Mantinea, 635, & ſeq. Kills Machanidas, 669, a. Noble ſpeech to the Achæan ſtates, 674, f. & ſeq. Defeated at ſea by Nabis, 675, b. Beats him at land, ibid, d. Harraſſes the Spartans, ibid. & ſeq. Defeats Nabis. 679 Inſtances of his generoſity, ibid. c. Brings the Spartans in to the Achæan league, 639, 676. Choſen prætor of Achaia, 677. Wars againſt the Lacedemonians, 678, & ſeq. Subjects them to the Achæan laws, 679. Marches againſt the rebellious Meſſenians, 681. Taken priſoner by them, 682. Poiſoned, ibid. & ſeq. His murderers ſacrificed at his tomb, 683, b—d. Other funeral honours. ibid. & not.
Philoſophers baniſhed Athens, ii. 555, a. Recalled, ibid. b. Expelled Rome, v. 648, b. 651, b. 686. e. Careſſed by Julian, vi. 362 b, c, Philoſtorgius's writings and charcter, 491, (S).
Philoſtratus's fabulous account of Apollonius Tyanæus, v. 693, & ſeq of Babylon, 694, c. d. and of the Parthian kingdom, ibid. e. Exploded, 697, & ſeq.
——his writings and character, vi. 121, ſub not.
Philotærus, firſt king of Pergamos, iii. 529, (K). Buys the body of Seleucus, 521, d. Seizes the caſtle of Pergamus, 769, c.
Philotas ſuſpected of treaſon, iii. 364, c, d. Tortured and put to death, 365. His character, ibid. & ſeq.
——account of Antony's extravagance, v. 268, (D). His ſophiſtry rewarded, ibid. in fin. not.
Philoxenus's lot after Alexander's death, iii. 423, e.
Phineas, the grandſon of Aaron, i. 490, a. Zeal rewarded, 536, a.
——the ſon of Eli, ſlain, 755, b.
Phineus the blind ſouth-ſayer, infeſted with harpyes, ii. 383, (H). Rid of them by Hercules, ibid.
Phiton plots againſt Perdicas, iii. 419, b.
Phlegon's eclipſe quoted by the fathers, iv. 343, (C). His account of it, v. 449. of a dreadful earthquake, v. 392, (G). of two ſtrange births, vi. 26, e. His writings, character, &c. 49, & ſub not. Story of an apparition, ibid.
Phliaſians oppreſſed by the Lacedemonians, ii. 614, d. Reduced by Ageſilaus, 615, b.
Phlox in the Phœnician hiſtory, who, i. 87, a.
† Phoca, by whom founded, 369, d.
Phocas, the murderer of Mauritius, iv. 365, e. Declared and crowned emperor, vi. 536, b. Cruelty to that prince, ibid. c. and to his friends, ibid. d. Image ſent to Rome, ibid. f. Character, 537, a. Calamities of his reign, ibid. b. Treachery to Narſes, ibid. d. Horrid butcheries, ibid. & ſeq. 538, c. Inſulted and conſpired againſt, ibid. f. Butchered by Heraclius, 539, a, b.
† Phocea, metropolis of Ionia, deſcribed, ii. 748. Taken by Harpagus, 749, a. by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
Phocian games, why inſtituted, ii. 749, not.
Phocian wars, its cauſes, &c. ii. 543, & ſeq.
——deſpair, a proverb whence, 386, e.
Phocians diſcomfit the Theſſalians, ii, 386, & ſeq. Condemned by the Amphictyon court for ſacrilege, 388, & ſeq. Invade Locris, 600, c. War with Philip, iii. 292, & ſeq. with Carthaginians, vi. 731, b, c.
Phocion, Athenian general, his character, ii. 545, e, f. Relieves Byzantium, 547, d. Careſſed by Alexander, 549, & ſeq. Antipater, 551, & ſeq. Put to death by the Athenians, 553, e. Funeral honours, ib. & ſeq.
† Phocis, part of antient Greece, ii. 344, b. Deſcribed, 387, c. Invaded by Philip, iii. 295, & ſeq.
† Phocra mount, where ſited, vii. 145, (D).
Phocrites made chief magiſtrate of Heraclea, ii. 825, d.
Phocus, the ſon of Ornytion, father of the Phocians, ii. 387, e.—The ſon of Æacus king of Phocis, ib.
Phœbe, Julia's band, kills herſelf, v. 327, a.
† Pœbbi promontory, where, vii. 145, b.
Phœbidas takes Thebes, ii. 614, e. Killed, 615, e.
Phœbus, why fabled in love with Rhodes, iii. 129, b. 131, e & ſeq.
——brutiſhneſs to Veſpaſian, how requited, v. 648, c.
Phœdra's inceſtuous love to Hippolytus puniſhed, ii. 367, (M).
† Phœnice whence ſo called, i. 391. Where ſited, 392, a; Diviſion, cities, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Soil, &c. 394, c. Natural and artificial rarities, ibid. & ſeq.
Phœnicians their origin, i. 369, c. Government, 397, a. Religion, ib. & ſeq. Ceremonies, 401, b—d. Circumciſion, 403. Arts and ſciences, ib. & ſeq. Trade and navigation, 404, & ſeq. Shipping, 406, a, b. Series of kings, 407. From the fabulous times, 408, & ſeq. Shake off the Perſian yoke, 410, f. Betrayed by Mentor and Tennes, 411, c, d. Subdued by Ochus, 412. Origin of the world, 11, d, e. Tends to atheiſm, 12, a. Whence brought, ib. & ſeq. Antediluvian hiſtory, 86, d. From Sanchoniatho, 133, b. Bp Cumberland's comment upon it, ib. (C). Invaded by Alexander, ii. 161, e. Conquered by Tigranes, iii. 17, c. Plundered by Coſrhoes, iv. 366, b.
Phœnicopteri, Flamingos, bird of Egypt, i. 182, a.
Phœnix, the ſon of Agenor, and his ſuppoſed ſucceſſor in Phœnice, i. 410. The pretended inventor of ſcarlet, ib. b.
——the famed fabulous bird, ſome accounts of, i. 211, b, c. One ſeen in Egypt, iii. 643, a. v. 450, (Z). The ancients opinion of this creature, ib.
Phonaſcus, a new employ given by Nero, what, v. 569, b.
Phorbas king of Argos, ii. 353 b.
——why admitted into Rhodes, iii. 132, b.
Phormio the philoſopher, reproved by Hannibal, vii. 87, a.
Phoroneus king of Argos, ii. 352, c.
† Phoronium, a city of Argos, ib.
Phos, in the Phœnician hiſtory, who, i. 87, a.
Photinus's advice about Pompey's reception, v. 194, d, e. Stratagem againſt Cæſar, 151, b, c. Raiſes new troubles, 152, b. Slain, ib. c.
Phraartes defeated by Sidetes, iii. 608, c, d. Deſtroys all the Syrians, ib. f, & ſeq.
Phraatices murders his father, iv. 314, b. Baniſhed, ib. c.
Phrahates king of Parthia, defeats the Mardi, iv. 292, c.
——IId, defeated by Antiochus, 292, & ſeq. by the Scythians, 293, b. His death, ib.
——IIId, wars with Tigranes, 293, e. Murdered by his ſons, ib.
——IVth, his bloody reign, 310, a, b. Defeats the king of Media, 313, a. Dethroned, ib. b. Peace with Octavian, ib. e, f. Poiſoned, 314, b.
——meſſage to Auguſtus, v. 304, a. Submits to his conditions, 417, d. His motive for it, ib. c. Submiſſion to him, ib. 328, d.
Phraartes king of Media, ii. 15, b. Whether he ſubdued the Perſians, ib. & (P). His reign and conqueſts, ib. & ſeq. Defeated by Nebuchadonozor, 16, a.
† Phraræſus mount, where ſited, vii. 115, e. By whom inhabited, 161, b.
Phreatum, an Athenian court, its office, ii. 444, b.
Phridun, king of Perſia according to oriental writers, ii. 181. His ſingular character, 182, c.
Phronima, princeſs of Crete, how ſaved from death, iii. 170, a.
† Phrygia part of Aſia proper, ii. 288, & ſeq. Deſcribed, 291, & ſeq. Whether Æneas reigned in it, 322, not.
† —— Minor, vid. Troas, 228, & ſeq. Beautified by Adrian, vi. 36, a. Deſtroy'd by famine, 372, b, c. Ravaged by the Goths, vii. 495, d. 506, e.
Phrygians, their origin, character, &c. ii. 295, paſſ. Government, trade, &c. 296. Religion, 297. Kings, 300. Invaded by the Cymmerians, 303, c. Subdued by the Lydians, ib. & ſeq. Side with the Trojans, 319, e. Why ſubmit to Midas, iii. 333, c.
Phrynicus, the Athenian, betrayed by Alcibiades, ii. 522, a. Promoter of oligarchy, ib. & ſeq. Stabbed to death, 524, f. His Writings and character, vi. 83, ſub not. 94, (I).
Phrynon, baſely killed by Pittacus, ii. 422, b iii. 166, d.
† Phryx, a river in Phrygia, ii. 294, d.
Phtha, among the Egyptians, the ſame as Vulcan, i. 13, d.
† Phthia, part of antient Greece, 344, b.
† Phthiotis, part of Theſſaly, ii. 381. Drowned in Deucalion's flood, ib.
† Phunon, one of the encampments of the Iſraelites, i. 533, a.
† Phut, who and where firſt ſettled, vii. 116, f, & ſeq. 149, paſſ.
† ——river, where, 171.
Phutei, their excellent uſe of the ſhield, vii. 151, d.
Phya, a baſe woman ſet up to repreſent Minerva, ii. 450, a.
† Phylace, a city in Macedonia, iii. 256, b.
Phylarchi at Athens, their office, ii. 443, c. Among the Gætulians, vii. 162, b, (C).
Phyleus the ſon of Augeas, baniſhed for ſiding with Hercules, ii. 407, d. Reſtored by him, ib. & ſeq. Retires into Dulichium, 408, b.

Phyllis's piety to the Flavian family, v. 691, b.
Phyſic, owing probably to the Egyptians, i. 218, d, e.
Phyſicians, in Egypt, could cure one diſeaſe only, i. 218. Provided for by the public, 219, b. Their method, &c. ibid. b, c.
— fees from the poor regulated at Rome, vi. 354, b.
Phyto defends Rhegium againſt Dionyſius, iii. 58, b. Barbarouſly murder'd by him, ibid. d, e.
Pia & Pialia, the games of, deſcribed, vi. 57.
† Picentes, who, iv. 649. Conquered by Corn. Sophas, ibid.
† Picentium, its territorſes deſcribed, iv. 412, c.
† Picenum, the country of, iv. 211, e. Submits to Cæſar, v. 133, a. Laid waſte by the Romans, vii. 658, b.
Pico de Adam, why ſo named by the Turks, i. 45, a.
† Picts, who and where ſited, vi. 232, c. Defeated by Conſtantius, ibid. d. Join with the Scots, 308, e. Invade North Britain, 400. Their origin and old ſite, vii. 403, c. Whether the ſame with the Britons, ibid. & ſeq. Differ from the Scots, 414, b., c. When firſt diſtinguiſh'd in hiſtory, 435, b, (Q). Submit to Julian, ibid. c. Invade the Romans, ibid. d. Subdued by Theodoſius, ibid. e. By Conſtantine, 436. Repulſed by Honorius, 437, c—e. French invaſion 438, & ſeq. and Repulſe, 439, d.
Picus, a fabulous king of Latium, iv. 418, f.
Pieius, king of Epirus, iii. 790, f.
† Pieres, a people of Thrace, iii. 791.
† Piereus river, in Achaia prop. ii. 294, d.
† Pieria, the region of, deſcribed, iii. 256, b. It mines, 261, a.
† — part of Seleucis, i. 361, a.
† Pierian hill, deſcribed, 251, d.
† Pietas Euſebia, the dioceſe of, by whom founded, vi. 286, c.
† Pihahiroth, Avitas Heroum; where ſited, i. 503, (O).
Pilate, Pontius, governor of Judea, iv. 194. His character, ibid. (Z.) Exaſperates the Jews, ibid. & ſeq. Reproved by Tiberius, 196, b. Attempt on the temple treaſure, ibid. & ſeq. Tries and condemns Chriſt, 237, & ſeq. (W). Severity to the Samaritans, 254, d. Depoſition and Baniſhment, ibid. e.
— His acts, the validity of, diſcuſſed, ibid. (M) His account of Chriſt's crucifixion, v. 452, a.
Pileus, at Rome, what, and to whom given, iv. 805, ſub not.
Pillars, one of ſtone and one brick, rear'd by the ſons of Seth, i. 81. Joſephus's miſtake about them, ibid. (N).
— from which Menetho extracted his hiſtory, ibid. Others ſacred to fire and wind, 87.
— of Hermes in Egypt, 222, d. Their uſe, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
— of cloud and fire that followed the Iſraelites, 504, a, b.
† Pimplia hill deſcribed, iii. 251, d. Its poiſonous fountain, ibid.
Pinacles, at Rome, what, v. 181, (B).
Pinaria, a veſtal burnt alive, iv. 452, c.
Pinarius, ſaves Enna from being betrayed, iii. 114, e.
Pindarus, tyrant of Epheſus, ii. 755.
† Pindeniſſimum, taken by Cicero, v. 128, b.
† Pindus, the famed mount of, iii. 798.
† — river, boundary of Phocis, ii. 387.
Pins, why conſecrated by the Argives, iii. 244, in fin. not.
Pipa, whether married to Gallienus, vii. 552, b.
Piram, king of Jarmuth joins the confederates againſt the Gibeonites, i. 332, a. Miraculouſly cut off, ibid. & ſeq.
Pirithous, king of the Lapithæ, ii. 381, e. Delivered from the centaur by Hercules, 382.
— the conſtant companion of Theſeus, 366, & ſeq.
† Piſa, a city in Elis, by whom founded, ii. 406, c. Why deſtroyed by the Eleans, 307, a.
Piſander, promotes oligarchy at Athens, ii. 522, & ſeq. Goes over to the enemy, 525, c.
† Piſarum, deſtroyed by an earthquake, v. 228, (R).
Piſchadian, dynaſty of Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 173, b.
Piſgah mount, an encampment of the Iſraelites, where i. 533, b.
† Piſidia become a Roman province, v. 300, c. Ravaged by Tribigil, vii. 506. e.
† Piſiſtratus's expedition againſt Salamis, ii. 425, b. His popularity reproved by Solon, 446, d. Stratagem to obtain a guard, 447. Vainly oppoſed by Solon, ibid. & ſeq. His letter to, and anſwer from him, 448. Uſurps the ſupreme power, ibid. & ſeq. His reign, 449, & ſeq. Death and character. 451. & not.
Piſo comes over to Sylla, v. 70, a. Forced to divorce his beloved Annia, 82, b.
— Calpurn, ſpeech againſt Pompey, 100, e.
— Cn. Calp. conſpires with Catiline, 102, f. Made guardian of Cæſar's will, 189, c. Speech to the ſenate, ibid. d, e.
— Luc. Calpur. ſucceſs in Thrace, 320, b. Noble ſpeech in the ſenate, 388. Trial and death, 420, e, (Y).
— Cnæus's noble queſtion to Tiberius, 379, e. Signal pride, 391, b, (D). towards the Athenians, 394, d. to Germanicus, 395, paſſ. 397, a. Suſpected of poiſoning him, ibid. & ſeq. Letter to Tiberius, 400, b. Defeated by Sentius, ibid. d. Arrival at Rome, 404, c, d. Arraigned by Vitellius, ibid. & ſeq.
— Lucius killed in Spain, 427, d.
— the governor of Rome dies, 445, d, (V.)
— Caius, head of the conſpiracy againſt Nero, 551, d. His character, ibid. b. Put to death, 554, a.
— Licinianus, adopted by Galba, 590, e, f. His behaviour on that occaſion, 592, b. Speech to the cohorts in favour of the emperor, 594, b, c. Murdered by Otho, 596, b, c. Buried by his wife, 597, c.
— ſent againſt Valens, vi. 179, c. Takes the imperial title, ibid. Murdered, ibid. e. His extract and divine honours, ibid. & ſeq.
† Piſon river, whether the ſame with Piſitigris, i. 55, a.
Piſſamina, the mother of Lætus, her extraordinary charity, 399, b. during the ſiege of Rome, 458, e.
† Pithecuſæ, cities, where, and whence ſo called, vi. 809, (A). Taken by Eumachus, ibid. b.
Pitholaus left guardian of young Commodus, vi. 69, a.
Pithon choſen protector of Macedon, iii. 423, b. Put to death by Antiochus, 431, a.
— his attempt againſt Eumenes, 426, d.
† — a city in Arabia Petrea, vii. 226, b, c.
Pitolaus, a chief of the Roman faction in Judea, iv. 113, d. Goes over to Ariſtobulus, 114, c. Put to death, 116, b.
Pittacus, where born, iii. 204, b.
— king of Leſbos, his character, 106, c. His laws and writings, ibid.
Pitteus king of Troezon, gives his daughter to OEgeus, ii. 364.
† Pityus, metropol. of Colchis, iii. 832.
† Pityuſæ iſlands deſcribed, vii. 308, e.
Pius, Metellus's ſon, whence ſo ſirnamed, v. 43, f.
† Placentia put to the ſword, iv. 749, e.
— the garriſon of, ſallies againſt the Vitellians, v. 606, c, d. Beſieged by Cecina, ibid. e. Drive him off, ibid. f.
— the large amphitheatre of, burnt, 606, f.
Placidia, the mother of Valentine IId, born, vi. 391, a. Conſents to Serena's death, 458, e. Carried captive by Alaric, 465, b. Married to Ataulphus, 469, d, (P). Ill uſed by Sigeric, 471, a. Sent back to Honorius 472, a. Married to Conſtantius, ibid. b, c. Retires to Theodoſius, 475, e. Reſtored to her titles, &c. 479, b, c. Returns with her ſon into the weſt, ibid. d. Declared regent, 480. Inſtigated by Felix againſt Bonifacius, ibid. e, f. Invites him into Italy, 482, b. Reconciled to him, ibid. e, f. Carried captive by Genſeric, 501, c. See alſo, vol. vii. 509, a—e.
— daughter of Eudoxia, married to Olybrius, vi. 507, c.
Placidus's ſucceſs in Judea, iv. 277, c.
— Jul. the diſcoverer of Vitellius, v. 634, c.
Placilla, Theodoſius's wife. See Flacilla, vi. 390, e.
Plætorius, Mart. put to death for his compaſſion, v. 76, c.
Plagues of Egypt, i. 496, & ſeq. How long they took in bringing on, 499, (H). A grievous one at Athens deſcribed, ii. 502, not. Another brought into Italy, vi. 66, a. Under Gratian, 382, d. Under Conſtantine IV. 555, b.
Plancina's extract, pride, &c. v. 391, c, (E). Lewd popularity, 395, b. Abandons her huſband, 405, e. Pardoned by Tiberius, 406, b, c. Her death, 448, d.
Plancus, Munatius's friendſhip to J. Cæſar and Antony, v. 209, a. Wary behaviour to the latter, ibid. f. Goes over to him, 210, e. His triumph, 230, e. Conſulate, 232, c. Sent to relieve Lucius, 265, c. Leaves him in the lurch, ibid. d. Forced off by Octavian, 267. Treachery to Antony, 286, d, e. Wretched character, ibid. (Q). Conſulſhip, 289, a. Made purveyor to Rome, 305, paſſ.
Plane-tree in Crete deſcribed, iii. 161, b.
Planets, how they came firſt to be worſhip'd, i. 730, (L). The planetary diviſion of the week, whence, ibid. Why worſhip'd by the Arabs, vii. 246, b. Their ſeven temples to them. ibid. c. Names, rites, &c. ibid. & ſeq.

Planattion,

Plantation, the order of the first, i. 161, b, c. That of the earth, 162, a, b.
† Platea, where situate, ii. 500, c. Betrayed to the Thebans, ibid. & Burnt by the Lacedemonians, 504. Razed, 506, e. 396, e. Rebuilt by Alexander, iii. 321, d.
Plateans, why attach'd to the Athenians, ii. 461, & not: Bravery against the Peloponnesans, 404, d. Reduced, ibid. e.
Plato's doctrine about God and the world, i. 3, & seq. Misunderstood by his followers, 4, b, c. His own notion on that head, 27, c. & seq. System of ideas, 8. Two principles, 25, c. Finite and infinite, 26. Whence he had his philosophy, 222. Hindered from pleading for Socrates, ii. 535. His account of his death, 536. in fin. not. Invited into Sicily by Dionysius, iii. 63, sub not. Punished for his free speech; ibid. Comes thither a second time, ibid. Polishes his son, 64, c, d. a third time, 65, Goes back into Greece, 66.
Platonism, how early received into the church, i. 4, e, & seq.
Plautianus seizes Pescennius's children, vi. 106. Brings them to him, 108, d. His character, wealth and sway, 115, d—f. Consulship, 116, a. Vast dowry to his daughter, ibid, b—c. Becomes obnoxious to the emperor, ibid; d. Accused of treason, ibid e. Put to death, f.
Plautilla, Nerva's mother's descent, vi, 2. a.
— daughter of Plautianus, married to Caracalla, 116, a. Becomes hateful to him, ibid. d, e. Banished into Liparis, 117, a. Put to death, 122, b.
Plautius, L. Venno, made consul, iv. 605, b. Success against the Privernates, ibid. c, d. Obtains their pardon, ibid. e.
— M. Sylva's wholesome laws, v. 51, d.
— Firm. dissuades Otho from killing himself, 611, d.
— put to death by Caracalla, vi. 122, b.
— sent into Britain, v. 496, d, e. Success there, 497, b, c. Obtains an ovation for it, 501, c. Success against the Britons, vii. 428, c. & seq. Joined by Claudius, 429, a—c. Made governor, ibid. d. His further conquests, ibid. & seq.
— Rubellius's high descent and merit, 535, f. Sent into Asia, 536. Assassinated there, 542, & seq. & (G).
Players, Stage, their licentiousness suppressed, v. 380, c, d. Expelled the empire, 419, b, c. Driven out of Italy, 527, e. Recalled, 535, f. Forbid by Trajan, vi. 10, a. Recalled, 12, d. Regulated by Valentinian, 357, d.
Pleaders, Lawyers, their extortions complained of to the senate, v. 500, c, & seq: Truncated, 401, a. Deprived of their fees, vi. 13, b.
Plebeians, the order of, instituted by Romulus, iv. 126, d. Raise a tumult against the Patricians, 485, & seq. How quelled, 486, e. Inraged by Appius, 487, & seq. By the senate, 489. Revolt, ibid. & seq. Resume the claim of the Agrarian law, 529, & seq. Dispersed by the Patricians, 530, d. Three of their order chosen decemvirs, 535, d. Fall out with the Patricians. 554. Redressed by the senate, 555, e. Raised to the military tribuneship, 557, & seq. Shake off the Patrician yoke, 578, & seq. Procure new laws in their own favour, 627, & seq. Raise new tumults, 642, b. Raised to the consulate, 761, b. To the censorship, 797, b. Triumph over the Patricians, 530, d, e. Treachery to Antony, 286.
Plennius delivers up Messana to Lepidus, v. 281, c, d.
Pleuratus king of Illyrium, leagues with Rome against Ætolia, ii. 728, f.
† Pleurion, a city of Ætolia, ii. 410, d.
Pleurones, why called Curetes, ibid.
Plenthia's revolt and rise, vi. 475, a. Shameful peace with the Hunns, vii. 464, c.
Pliny held the eternity, &c. of the world, i. 8, d.
— his account of the Essenians, iv. 170, b.
— destroyed by mount Vesuvius, v. 659, d, e.
— his judgment of Domitian's poems, 664, d.
— junior, his character of Virginius, v. 574, a. Pleads for the Bithynians against Massa, 683, p. His intrepidity when accused by him, ibid. f. Pleads in favour of Helvidius, 685, a. Generosity to Artemidorus, 686, b. Panegyric on Trajan, vi. 11, a, b. Speech against lawyers fees, 13, b. Sent governor into Pontus, ibid. c. His writings and character, 29, sub not. Character of Suetonius, 51, sub not. Partial account of the Gauls, vii. 362, d, & seq. & not.
Plistarchus king of Sparta's short reign, ii. 594, a.
† Plistia taken by the Samnites, iv. 618, c.
Plistoanax succeeds Plistarchus, ii. 594, a. Sent to invade Attica, 595. Betrayed by his tutor, 491, pass. Banished, ibid. e. Recalled by means of the oracle, 597, e. His death, 599, e.
Plotina Trajan's wife's excellent character, vi. 9, c. Raises Adrian to the empire, 25, e, f. Obsequies of her husband, 35, c. Death and funeral honours, 36, d.
† Plotinopolis, a city in Thrace, iii. 787, d.
Plotinus goes voluntier to the Persian war, vi. 163, c. His writings and character, 196, & seq. sub not.
Plotius, C. an inhuman usurer, iv. 641, e. Condemned to death, 642, a.
— condemned by the triumvirs, v. 223, f.
— Primus, promoted by the soldiery, 596, f.
Plutarch's opinion of the world's origin, i 29, & seq. Why prejudiced against Cassius, v. 247, (N). Cotemporary with Favorinus, vi, 42, sub not. His works and character, 50, sub not.
Plutarchus tyrant of Eubæa, expelled, iii. 251. e, f.
Pluto, see Dis. ii. 257, &c. of the Gauls, who, vii. 357, b. & seq.
Plutonium of Herapolis described, ii. 293, (L).
† Po river, boundary of Liguria, iv. 409, d. Described, 411, a. Whence called Bondicus, 410, a. 416, b. Its head, 413, a. Golden sand, 780, d.
Podarces, the son of Laomedon. See Priam, ii. 317, d.
Poeon, the son of Endymion settles in Pæonia, ii. 407, b.
Poetry, Hebrew, its metre, &c. very uncertain, i. 710, d, & seq.
— Lyric not invented by Orpheus, 713, a. How used among the Celtes, ii. 253, b, 254. b, c.
Poets old pagan, the depravedness of their theology, i, 15, d. and cosmogony, ibid. & seq.
— in high esteem among the Arabs, vii. 238, a, b.
Points, Hebrew, when introduced, i. 724, c, d, & seq. An account of them, 725, (B). See also vol. iv. 14, (Z).
Pole over Apollo's statue, what, vii. 356, a, (S).
Polemarchus at Athens the 3d magistrate, ii. 417, c. His office, 442, f.
— in Bæotia, 743, b.
Polemocratia put herself under Brutus's protection, v. 216, b.
Polemon made king of Pontus, iii. 760, d.
— IId, turns Jew, ibid. e. Exchanges his kingdom, 844, b. Marries Berenice, iv. 265, e. See also vol. v. 315, b—d. 464, d.
— Remmius, a master of rhetoric under Nero, v. 578, (T).
— an arrogant sophist under Adrian, vi. 51, sub not. Buries himself alive, ibid. His ill-manners to Antoninus, how requited, 53, d.
† Polemonium, a city in Pontus, iii. 721, c.
† Polignac, the Gothish temple of, described, vii. 356, b, c.
† Politorium, taken by Ancus, iv. 445, b. Where sited, ibid. (B).
Pollenius put to death for subornation, vi. 117, f.
Pollentia's constancy and death, v. 560, pass.
† — city, by whom built, iv. 801, e. The famous battle of, vi. 450, b.
† — in Majorca, vii. 308. c.
Pollentius, an extraordinary youth slain, vi. 384, b.
Pollio's policy to gain Herod's favour, iv. 131, a.
— Asinius, a friend of Cæsar and Antony, v. e, 209, a—f. Goes over to the latter, 210, e. Sent against Salvidienus, 264, f. Forsook by Plancus, 265, c. Retires to Ahenobarbus, 267, b. Persuades him to submit to Antony, 286, d. Frank answer to Augustus, 332, (Q). Death, 414, c.
— Vedius, a cruel upstart's death, 316, b.
— Annius impeached by Senecio, 553, e.
— Asinius murdered by the Moors, 615, a.
— F. Anver promoted by Vespasian, 661, d.
— Trebellius's history, sadly curtailed, vi. 178, d—f. His writings and character, 220, c.
Pollux, his fabulous origin, ii. 401, (L). One of the Argonauts, 383, (H). Kills Amicus, ibid. Recovers his sister out of Aphidne, 402. His other exploits, ibid. & not.
— Jul. his writings, &c. vi. 94, (I).
Poltron, whence that significant word, 360, in fin. (C).
Polyærnius's speech to the Syracusans, iii. 104, c. d.
Polyænus's writings, &c. vi. 83, sub not.
Polybius the historian, sent deputy to the Roman consul, ii. 686, f. Kept prisoner, 690, a. Lists under Scipio, ibid. f. Present at the siege of Corinth, 668. Vindicates the great Philopæmen, 700, a. In great esteem with the Romans, ibid. d. Advice to young Demetrius, iii. 589. & seq. & (E). Accompanies Scipio Æmil. iv. 775. b. Great sway with Claudius, v. 488, b.

Polycletus's deſpicable expedition into Britain, v. 546, c. Put to death by Galba, 586, f.
Polycrates enſlaves the Samians, iii. 190, c, d. Allies with Ægypt, ibid. f. Subdues his neighbours, 191, a. The odd adventure of his ſeal, ibid. d. Sends a fleet to Cambyſes, ib. f. Outwits the Lacedemonians, 192, e. Outwitted by Oroetes, 193, e, f. Crucified, 194, a. His character, ibid. &c.
— prime miniſter of Epiphanes, his character, 649, c.
Polydamas ſent to kill Parmenio, iii. 366, b.
Polydectes, king of Seriphus, iii. 218, a.
Polydorus the ſon of Cadmus, king of Thebes, ii. 372, c.
— king of Sparta, invades Meſſenia, 571, & ſeq. Defeats the Argives, 572, c, d. The Meſſenians, 576, a. His character and death, ibid. c, d.
Polygamy, allowed by the Jews, i. 678, d. Diſtinguiſh the firſt from the other wives, ibid. (M). The latter not mentioned in the ſacred text as wives, ibid. &c.
— allowed by the Perſians, ii. 61. by the Scythians, 276, e.
Polymeſtor, king of Arcadia, defeats the Lacedemonians, ii. 38, c.
— king of the Thracian Cherſoneſus, iii. 795, b. Murders Polydor, ib.
Polynices, prince of Thebes, comes to the Argolic court, ii. 358. His war with his brother, ibid. & ſeq. Kills, and killed by him, 374, d. Buried by his ſiſter, ib.
Polyſphercon, head of the Macedonian faction, ii. 553, a. Cabals againſt Caſſander, ibid. &c.
— governor of Alexander's ſons, iii. 425, b. Left with the care of Macedon, &c. 452, d. Appointed Antipater's ſucceſſor, 453, paſſ. & (B). Character and wrong meaſures, 454, a. Firſt edict confuſes all Greece, ibid. f. Cruelty to the Peloponneſans, 455, e. Defeated by Callas, 457, & ſeq. Flees into Greece, 459, a. Murders Hercules and his Mother, 462.
Polyxenidas's treachery to the Rhodians, iii. 149, & ſeq.
— defeated by the Romans, 555, c, d.
— 2d defeat, 559, d.
Polyzelus, prince of Syracuſe, envied by his brother, iii. 20, d. Reconciled to him, 21.
† Pomerania invaded by the Gauls, vii. 487, c, & ſeq.
Pompedius diverted from invading Rome, v, 48, e, f. Outwits Cœpio, 49, f. Defeated and killed, 53, d.
Pompeia, Cæſar's wife's incontinence, v. 109, d, e.
— Macrina baniſhed, 446, e. Her family put to death, ibid. & ſeq.
Pompeii, the two ſons of Pompey, their ſucceſs in Spain, v. 171, b.
† — the city of, where, 52, d. Taken by Sylla, ibid. Overturned by an earthquake, 544. Rebuilt and ſwallowed up by another, 699, b, c.
† Pompeiopolis Soli, where, and why ſo called, v. 101, d. Relieved by Baliſta, vi. 177, b.
Pompeius, Cn. defeated by the Allies, v. 49, c. Whence called Strabo, 51, b. Victory over the Marſi, ibid. e. Severity to Aſculum, 52, f. Triumph over it, 53, a. Subdues the Veſtini, ibid. Succeſs againſt the Allies, 60, c. Treachery to Rufus, ibid. d. Outwits the ſenate, 60, c. Goes over to the conſuls, 62, a, 63, a. Killed by lightning, ibid. d.
— Rufus aſſaulted by Sulpicius, 53, f. Depoſed, 54, a. Seizes the Collinum gate, 54, & ſeq. Undermined by Pomp. Strabo, 60, c. Murdered, ibid. d.
— Geminus put to death by Tiberius, 446, a, b.
— Cn. Magn. put to death by Meſſalina, 499, b.
— Propinq. put to death, 599, c.
— defeated by the Getæ, vi. 522, c. Put to death for treaſon, 526, b, c.
Pompey the Great oppoſes Metellus in Crete, iii. 117. Haughty anſwer to Aſiaticus, ibid. e, f. Seizes on Syria, 619. Pontus, 750. Defeats Mithridates, 751, & ſeq. Purſues him into Scythia, 753. Subdues Pontus, 758, a. Generoſity at his triumph, ibid. b, c. Friendſhip to Auletes, 668, b Sent into Armenia, 706, b, c. Re-inthrones Tigranes, 707. Succeeds Lucullus in Expedition againſt Iberia, 836, b, c. againſt Albania, 838, c. Invited by Ariſtobulus, iv. 108 a. Arbitrates between the two brothers, 109. Partiality for Hyrcan, ibid. & ſeq. Beſieges Jeruſalem, 110, d. Takes it, 111, c. Enters into the moſt holy place, 112, b. Returns to Rome. ibid. & ſeq. His birth and extract, v. 28, a. Firſt campaign, 63, a. Saves his father's life, ibid. b. Firſt ſucceſs againſt the conſuls, 70, d, e. Saluted emperor by Sylla, ibid. f. Succeſs againſt the conſuls, 72, paſſ. In Italy, 77, a. Cruelty to Carbo, ibid. b, c Succeſs in Afric, 80, c, d. Why ſirnamed the Great, ibid. & ſeq. Triumph, 81, e. Oppoſes Sylla, 83, d. Defeats Lepidus, 84, f. and Brutus, 85, a. Made governor of Luſitania, 89. d. Paſſes thither 91, a. Foiled by Sertorius, ibid. d, & ſeq. Defeated and wounded, 92, d, &c afreſh, 93, d. Doleful letter to the ſenate, 94. a. Ends the Spaniſh war, 97, c, d. Defeats the rebels, 98, d, e. Conſulſhip, ibid. f. Reconciled to Craſſus, 99, a, b. Extenſive power at ſea, 100, & ſeq. Swift ſucceſs againſt the pyrates, 101, c. Power by ſea and land, ibid. & ſeq. Groſs diſſimulation, 102, b. Sumptuous triumph, 110, e. Generoſity to his captives, 111. Wrong politics, ibid. & ſeq. Reconciled to Cæſar, 112, & ſeq. Ingratitude to Cicero, 115. Deſpiſed by Clodius, 118, f. 2d conſulſhip, 121, & ſeq. Sumptuous theatre and ſhows, 123, c, d. New troubles at Rome, 124, f, & ſeq. Choſen ſole conſul, 126, c. Takes Metellus his colleague, 127, f. Promotes Cæſar's enemies, 129, b. Betrayed by Curio, ib. & ſeq. High conteſt with Cæſar, 130, paſſ. Choſen general, 131, c. Upbraided by his party, 132, d, e. Quits the city, 133, a. Illuſory anſwer to Domitius, ibid. (G). Eſcape out of Brunduſium, ibid. c, &c. Raiſes a vaſt army, 137. and navy, ibid. & ſeq. Aſſembles the ſenate at Theſſalonica, 138, a. Goes to Dyrrachium, 139, a. Beſieged in his own camp, 140, c. Forces and defeats Cæſar, ibid. & ſeq. Forced to fight him, 142, & paſſ. Speech to his army, ibid. f. Defeat and ſhameful behaviour, 145, & ſeq. & (W). Imbarks, 147, b, c. Doleful meeting with Cornelia, ibid. & ſeq. Flight, 148. Arrival in Egypt, ibid. & ſeq. Baſely murdered there, 149, a.
— his tomb repaired by Adrian, vi. 37, c.
— theatre burnt and rebuilt, v. 414, a. vi. 166, e.
— Cneius ſucceſs in Spain, v. 172, paſſ. Defeated by Cæſar, 173, & ſeq. Flight and death, 174, & ſeq.
— Sextus's flight into Celtiberia, 175, c. Oppoſes the triumvirs, 258, c. Shameful indolence, 267, b. Comes over to Antony, 270, a. Interview with Octavian, 271, d. Treaty with him, 272, paſſ. Generous anſwer to Menas, f, & ſeq. Returns into Sicily, 273, e. Elated with his ſucceſs, 278, d. Total defeat at ſea, 280, d, e. Quits Sicily, 281, c. His laſt efforts defeated, 283, c. His death, ibid. e.
— Quinct. ill ſucceſs and conduct in Spain, iv. 781, e, & ſeq.
Pompilia, Numa's daughter, her offſpring, iv. 438, c, (Q).
Pompilius Numa. See Numa, iv. 435, & ſeq.
Pomponia Græcina turns chriſtian, v. 526, a. Tried and acquitted, ib. b.
Pomponius Matho triumphs over the Sardinians, iv. 684, c. Made prætor of that iſland, ibid. f.—Stratagem to ſave himſelf, v. 227, b.
— Secundus impriſoned, 441, d, e. Choſen conſul, 481, a. Aſſembles the ſenate, 489. c. Reſpected by Claudius, 491, c. Succeſs and triumph over the Catti, 508, b. Poems, ibid. c.
— Flaccus's death, 448, f, & ſeq.
— Labeo's death, 449, c.
— Vegetanus defeated by Hanno, vii. 50, d, e.
— the Gauliſh bard, his danger and vow, 365, (K).
— Mela. See Mela, 301, c. 313, f.
Pompoſianus, Met. baniſhed into Corſica, v. 674, c. Put to death by Domitian, ib. d.
† Pomptin, the territory of, iv. 569, d. Seized by the Patricians, ib. e. Invaded by the Antiates, ib. f.
Pompus, king of Arcadia, opens a trade into that country, ii. 380
Ponticus Valer, a cheating lawyer, baniſhed, v. 540, f.
Pontiff of Alexandria, who, vi. 37, f.
Pontifex Maximus among the Romans, his office, iv. 436, d, (M). Forbid to aſſiſt at funerals, v. 375, (E). That title aſſumed by the Roman Emperors, 316, a. Firſt rejected by Gratian, ibid. b.
Pontifices at Rome, their office, iv. 436, d. Augmented by Sylla, v. 79, a.
† Pontine Lake, where and whence ſo called, iv. 486, f, (H).
— Marſhes, Trajan's cauſeway over, vi. 16, d.
Pontius Pilate. See Pilate, iv. 194, & ſeq.
— the Samnite general's ſtratagem againſt the Romans, 611, c, d. Forces them into a ſhameful peace, 612. Reproves their known faithleſſneſs, 614, d, e. Defeated, 615, f. Forced to paſs under the yoke, 616. Led in triumph and beheaded, 640, e, paſſ.
— Herennius defeated, 638.
— Flagellanus degraded, v. 453, b.

† —

† — Pontus, the kingdom of, why ſo called, iii. 720, a. v. 315, d. Deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. Ravaged by the Scythians, vi. 175, a.
† Polemaicus, where and whence ſo called, iii. 721, a, b.
† — Cappadocius deſcribed, iii. 721, f, & ſeq. Its famed honey, 722, f. Origin and government, 723, paſſ. Kings, 724, & ſeq. Reduced by Lucullus, 746. Made a Roman province, 748. Its various changes ſince, 760, & ſeq.
† Pools of Solomon deſcribed, i. 590, b, c.
Popes, their power how founded, vi. 533, d—f. By whom granted, 556, d, e. Hatch the downfal of the Lombardic kingdom, vii. 702, b. The beginning of their Sovereignty, 705, d, & ſeq. (Y). How confirmed, 710, b. Put in poſſeſſion of Ravenna, &c. 714, c. Whether made ſovereigns over them, ibid. & ſeq.
Popilius's ſpeech to Antiochus, iii. 580, a, b.
— Lænas ravages the Falciſci, iv. 590. Choſen conſul, 593, a. Wounded by the Gauls, ibid. b.
— ſeverity to the Steliates, 761, a. Condemned by the ſenate, ibid. b.
— made to paſs under the yoke, v. 19, e. vii. 396, a.
— ingratitude to Cicero, v. 228, f.
Poplicola. See Valerius, iv. 468, & ſeq.
Poppea's friendſh p to the Jews, iv. 265, in fin. (F), 266, d. Joſephus's flattering character of her, ibid. (G).
— Sabina put to death by Meſſalina, v. 500, b, c. Her daughter captivates Nero, 526, & ſeq. Lewd character, 527, a, b. Supplants Agrippina, 530, & ſeq. Married to Nero, 543, b. Treachery to Octavia, ibid. Honours on the birth of her daughter, 544, d, e Death and pompous funeral, 559, c, d. Statues reared afreſh by Otho, 604, f.
Porphiry's notion of Daniel's weeks confuted, iv. 8, (N), vi. 224, ſub not. His writings and character, vi. 196, & ſeq. ſub not. Extract, travels, &c. 222, ſub not. Death and works, 223, & ſeq. ſub not. Why an enemy to the chriſtians, ibid.
Porſena's attempt in favour of Tarquin, iv. 474, b. Outwitted by M. Scævola, 475, paſſ. Diſcards the Tarquins, 476, e. Kindneſs to the Romans, 477, a.
Porſena's Goods, whence that proverb, ibid. b.
† Porthmos, a ſea-port in Eubœa, iii. 299, a. Taken by Philip, ibid. b.
Porta arrived at Portſmouth, vii. 447.
— a city-gate, whence ſo called, iv. 424, c.
† Portæ Caucaſia & Caſpia, where, vii. 456.
Portia's ſurpriſing courage and conſtancy, v. 182, b, (C). Dread for Brutus, ibid. e, f. Doleful parting from him, 214, c, d, & (S). Death, 257, b.
Portian Law, what, and by whom obtained, iv. 751, d.
Port-Reve cinque-port, whence ſo called, vii. 408, f.
† Portucal, Portugal, whence ſo called, vii. 304, in fin. (B). The reſt, ſee under Luſitania, vii. 295, & ſeq.
† Portus Herculis, whether the ſame with Monœci, iv. 409, d.
† —Lunæ, a city in Liguria, ibid. f.
Portus Magnus, Portſmouth ſo called, vii. 407, f.
Porus, king of Babylon, i. 945, c.
— in India oppoſes Alexander, iii. 390, & ſeq. Loſes his ſon, 391, f. Defeated, 392. How honoured by the conqueror, ibid. f.
— another of that name abandons his kingdom to Alexander, 393, c.
— embaſſy to Auguſtus, v. 308, e.
Poſidon, Neptune, the ſon of Pontus, i. 137, a.
Poſſides's great ſway with Claudius, v. 488, b, (O).
Poſt & ante Verta, Diana, why ſo called, vii. 358, a.
Poſtdiluvian Patriarchs, a table of their years down to Abraham, i. 110, d. Of the ſame, according to the Hebrew computation, 111. According to the Septuagint and Samaritan, ibid. & ſeq.
Poſthumius defeats the Sabines, iv. 447, e, f. Honoured with the firſt ovation, 479, c, (D).
— Aul. choſen dictator, 433. Defeats the Latins, ibid. & ſeq. & (M). the Volſci, 517. Choſen decemvir, 504, a.
— P. ſlain by his exaſperated army, 553, f, & ſeq.
— Spur. choſen conſul, 611, b. Shameful expedition againſt the Samnites, ibid. & ſeq. Forced to paſs under the yoke, 613, a. Delivered up to the Samnites, 614, c, d. Releaſed by Pontius, ibid. f.
— Megillus choſen conſul, 626. Defeats the Samnites, ibid. e. Succeſsful diverſion in Hetruria, &c. 633, b. againſt Samnium, 635, a. and Hetruria, 636, a. Affronted by the Tarentines, 644, paſſ.
— L. a haughty conſul, 638, f. Succeſs in Hetruria, 639, & ſeq. Mortified by the ſenate, 640, a.
— A. choſen conſul and prieſt, 677, b.
— Albinus's ſucceſs in Illyricum, 685, & ſeq. Recalled, 686. Killed by the Boii, 718, c.
— Albin poiſoned by his wife, 767, a.
— Q. put to death by Antony, v. 290, a.
— ſucceſs againſt the Gauls, vi. 173, d. Proclaimed emperor there, 176, b—d.
— ſucceſs againſt the Germans, ibid. &c. Excellent government, &c. ibid. e, f. Beloved of the Gauls, 181, b. Repulſes Gallienus, ibid. c. Killed by his Soldiers, 183, f.
— ſucceſs againſt the Franks, vii. 552, f.
† Potidea in Macedon, by whom founded, iii. 257, a. Declares againſt the Perſians, 277. Surrenders to the Athenians, 280, c, d. Taken by Philip, 290, d. Revolts from the Athenians, ii. 497, c. Reduced by famine, 504. Taken by Timotheus, 541, a.
Potinus's treachery to Cleopatra, iii. 673, paſſ. to J. Cæſar, 675, c. Put to death, 676, c.
Potiphar, Joſeph ſold to, i. 450, a. Over-reached by his wife, ibid. & ſeq. Sends him into priſon, 450, c.
Potipherah, prieſt of On, gives his daughter to Joſeph, i. 453, b.
† Potitii, who, iv. 620, b. Puniſhed by Hercules, ibid. c.
† Potter's Field, Campo Santo, the extraordinary nature of its earth, i. 586, d, (C). Foretold to be the burying-place of Strangers, iv. 236, a.
Pourous, the firſt man according to the Bramins, i 33, b.
† Praaſpa where, iv. 311, a. Beſieged by Antony, ibid.
Præ-adamites, their doctrine, i. 47. Confuted, ibid. & ſeq.
Præfecti Prætorio, their office, vi. 270, b. Province, ibid. & ſeq. By whom founded, 271, d.
Præfectus vigilum at Rome, his office, v. 238, a, — Caſtrorum, what, 361, (V).
— Prætorii, 362, c, (B).
— Ærarii Militaris, 380, (I).
— in Britain, their office and ſtations, vii. 418, paſſ.
† Præneſte taken by T. Quinctius, iv. 576, e. Invaded by Sylla, v. 71, f. Surrendered 75, a. Totally ruined, ibid. b, c.
— the oracle of, ominous to Domitian, 689, a.
Præneſtines waſte the Roman territories, iv. 444, (Z).
Præpoſiti in Britain, their office, vii. 417, d.
Præpotes at Rome, what, iv. 428, (S).
Prætextata Toga at Rome, what, iv. 432, (F).
Prætextatus made prefect of Achaia, vi. 327, a. Riſe and excellent character, 405, d—f. Oration in the capitol, 406, a. Funeral honours, ibid b.
Prætorian Guards diſcarded by Severus, 106, f. & ſeq. A new ſet choſen, 108. Their tyranny, 246, d. Diſbandment by Conſtantine, 247, a.
Prætorium among the Romans, what, v. 362, c, (B).
Prætors Achæan, their office, ii. 644, c.
— at Rome, when firſt choſen, iv. 583, a. Their office, ibid. (R). Taken from among the Plebeians, 604, a, Their number augmented by Cæſar, v. 178, a.
— at Carthage, their office, vi. 678, a.
— Peregrini at Rome, when firſt created, iv. 677, c. Their office, ibid.
Prætus king of Argos, ii. 354. His behaviour towards Bellerophon, ibid. &c.
† Praſum, promontory in Æthiopia, 190, a.
Praſutagus, highly injured by the Romans, v. 537, b, c. Cauſes a revolt, ibid. & ſeq.
Praxagoras's writings and character, vi. 272, (F).
Praxo diſcovers Perſeus's treachery, iii. 485, a.
Preconneſian marbled famed, iii. 201, b.
* Preconneſus iſland deſcribed, iii. 201. b.— Whether the ſame with Elaphonneſus, ibid (Q).
† Premnis, taken by Petronius, v. 302, f. vii. 185, b, c.
† Prepeſinthus iſland deſcribed, iii, 219.
Preſenteius's ſucceſs againſt the Romans, v, 49, e.
Priam king of Troas, whence ſo called, ii. 317, e. His reign, power, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Progeny 318. Whether the firſt king of the Franks, vii. 550, b—e.
Priapatius, 3d king of Parthia, iv. 292, c.
† Priaps, Phalli, vaſt columns in the temple of Hierapolis, i. 372, c, d. An old ceremony performed by them, 375, f, g.
Priapus worſhipped at Lampſacus, ii. 324, d.
† Priene, by whom founded, ii. 369, d. Where ſituate, 756, a.
Prieſt, High, head of the Jewiſh church, i. 633, a. Final judge of all controverſies, ibid. & ſeq. Laws relating to to his office, &c. 634. paſſ. Conſecration, &c. 635. & ſeq.

— become prefects of Judea, iv. 27, a. Fall into a civil war with the lower claſs, 265, & ſeq. & (F).
Prieſt. od among the Jews given to the firſt-born, i. 632, c. afterwards to the Tribe of Levi, ibid. &c.
— High, given to the family of Aaron, 633, b. Become venal under the Roman power, iv. 48, & ſeq. 194, b, Prieſtly Garments, i. 636, & ſeq. 643, c, d. Where kept after the captivity, iv. 96, b.
Prieſts among the Jews, their conſecration, i. 641, d. Office, 642, b. Dreſs 643, c, d. Subordinate to the High Prieſt. 641. d.— Thoſe who returned from Babylon, iv. 5, a, b. Admirable conſtancy amidſt their ſlaughter in the temple, 111, d, e. Oppreſſed by the depoſed Pontiffs, 265, & (F). Sent to Rome, ibid. in fin. not.
— Roman, how choſen and ordained, iv. 427, & ſeq. Fruitleſs embaſſy to Coriolanus, 500, f.
— of Jupiter, not ſuffered to leave Rome, v. 412, & ſeq.
Primus Anton. Vid. Antoninus, v. 621, & ſeq.
Principes, among the Romans, whence ſo called, 600. (T).
— Juventutis See Youth, v. 524, (G).
Principius killed at Rome, vii 657, d.
† Prion, a city, where ſituated, ibid. f, & ſeq. Whence ſo called, vi. 638, (I).
†— river, where, vii. 235, f.
Prionotus mount in Yaman, vii. 235, e.
Priſca. the wife of Diocleſian, a Chriſtian, vi. 206, c.
Priſcianus, accuſed of treaſon, vi. 56, d. Kills himſelf. ibid. e
Priſcil·ianiſts, their firſt appearance in Spain, vii. 331, b.
Priſcus's ſucceſs againſt the Parthians, iv. 321, b.
— Tarquil expelled the ſenate houſe, v. 515, b.
— Julius's great ſway with Vitellius, 619, b, c. Sent to guard the Appenine paſſes, 629, e.
— Marius condemn'd for extortion, vi. 10, d.
— Statius's ſucceſs in Syria, 64, & ſeq.
— Philip's brother made governor of Syria, 166, c. His extortions cauſe a revolt, 167, a. Proclaims himſelf emperor, ibid. c. Proſcrib'd, ibid. & ſeq.
— a conjuring philoſopher in favour with Julian, 326, c. His writings, &c. 340, ſub not. Killed by the Goths, ibid. & vii. 505. e.
— The hiſtorian aſſiſted by Euphemius, vi. 492, ſub not.
— Mauritius's general repulſed by the army, 534, d. Deſtroys 30000 Avari, 536, a. Conſpires againſt Phocas 538, c, d.
Priſoners, of war, when firſt expoſed to ſale, iv. 433, d.
Priſons, in the Roman camp, how order'd, v. 568, (W).
Privateers, when firſt allowed by the Romans, iv. 675, c. Shipwreck'd, 676, b.
† Privernium, taken by the Romans, iv. 590, Revolts from them, 605, b. Retaken, ibid, c. Made a municipal city, ibid. f.
Proba, the wife of Probus, her excellent character, vi 364, a.
— opens the Gates of Rome to the Goths, 464, b.
Probinus, choſen conſul by Theodoſius, vi. 425, f, & ſeq.
Probus Bab. baniſhed for extortion, vi. 10, f.
— marries Severus's daughter, 108, c.
— the emperor's ſucceſs againſt the Sarmatians, &c. 173, f. Defeated in Ægypt, 187, c. Proclaim'd 199, f. His extract and character, 200, a, b. Succeſs againſt the Gauls, ibid c. The Germans, ibid. d. in Thrace, 201, b. Egypt, ibid. c. Triumph at Rome, ibid. e. Succeſs againſt the revolters, 102, paſſ. His works, 203. Murdered by the ſoldiers, ibid. c. Epitaph and character, ibid. & ſeq.
— governor of Illyricum, a rank coward, 362. b. Extortions diſcovered to the emperor, 363, c. His character, extract, &c ibid. d, c. Death, ibid. & ſeq Succeſs againſt the Goths, vii. 498, c, d. Againſt the Vandals, 528, d—f. Againſt the Franks, 553, c, d. The Quadi, 603, b, c. Permits Vines to be planted in Gaul, &c. [413] d.
Proceſſion, a long Egyptian one mention'd by Clement Alexander, i. 242, d, e.
Procheiron what, and by whom writ, vi. 577, b, c.
Procles and Euryſthenes, partners in the Spartan kingdom, ii. 308, a.
Proclidæ, ſo called from him, ibid. A liſt of them, 558.
Proclus, a champion for the world's eternity, i, 4.
— oppoſes the adoption of Coſrhoes, vi. 523, c.
† Proconſularis, yielded to Genſeric. vii. 533, e.
Proconſuls, why and firſt created, iv. 509, d. (N). Their number and office, vi. 271, a.
Procopius defeats the immortal troop, iv. 341, d.
— his hiſtory defective, vii, 572, & ſeq.
Proceſia, the feſtival of Ceres, ii. 731, note.
607, e, f. Raſh advice to Otho, 608, c, d. Defeat and ſhameful flight, 610, d. Mean defence to Vitellius, 615, a.
— the Aſtrologer foretels the day of Domitian's death, 689, b. Rewarded by Nerva, ibid. c.
— His writings and character, vi. 84, ſub not.
— riſe and revolt in Gaul, 202, b. Defeat and death, ibid. d, e.
— Depoſed for extortion, 403, b.
— the ſon of Totianus put to death for extortion, 421, d—f.
— bp. ſermon againſt the Hunns, vii. 462, e.
Prodictators, why choſen by the Romans, iv. 705, e, f.
Proedrei, at Athens, their office, ii. 439, c.
Proereſes, a chriſtian ſophiſt, his writings and character, vi. 338, ſub not.
Profuturus, defeated by the Gauls in Thrace, vi. 381, c. His writings and character, 476, (R).
Progne, the fable of. ii. 389, not.
Proletarii, who. iv. 646, c. Inrolled in the army, ibid. d.
Prometheus's flood in Ægypt, i. 96, (N).
— a Titan the firſt ſtriker of fire, ii. 163, b.
† Promontorium magnum, where, vii. 115.
Promotus's ſucceſs againſt the Geuthongi, vi. 407. b. Sent againſt Maximus, 412, f. Saves Theodoſius from the Barbarians, 419, a, b. His death, ibid. c, d.
† Pronectus, a city in Bithynia iii, 822, d.
Propedius, accuſed and acquitted, v. 481, e. & ſeq.
Property, laws againſt coveting another man's, i. 686, c.
Prophet, the import of that name, i. 731, (M). A liſt of them from Abraham to Malachi, 732. b. Of the Propheteſſes, ibid. (O). How God revealed himſelf to them, 733, a. Their food, dreſs, and manner of living, 731, c, d. Number, 732, a.
— among the Scythians deſcrib'd, ii. 271, & not.
† Propontis deſcribed, iii. 201, (P). Invaded by Philip, 299, & ſeq.
Proſecutions, how regulated by Solon's laws, ii. 433, f.
Proſelytes, ſeveral ſorts among the Jews, i. 664, c. Regulations concerning them, 665, b. &c.
Proſerpine, princes of Epirus, guarded by Cerberus, ii. 367, b. Where raviſhed. iii 9, b. Worſhipped at Carthage, vi. 679, b, c, 689, c. Her temple plunder'd by Hamilco, 764, a.
Proſper, an extortionate Succeſſor of Urſinus, vi. 292, c. 296, c.
Proſtitutes, at Rome, laws againſt, v, 401, c. Encouraged by Caligula, 471, e. Forced to pay a tax, vi. 518, b. Baniſhed by Theophylus, 570, e.
Protagoras I. king of Cyprus, iii. 179, b.
— an uſurper of it, 181, f. Makes peace with Perſia, 182, b.
Proterus, an orthodox bp. murdered by the Eutychians, vi. 404, e.
Proterus the philoſopher put to death by the Goths, vii. 505, e.
Proteſilaus killed by Hector, ii, 320, e. His tomb, 305, (C). Rifled by Artayctes, 476, e.
Proteus, Cetes, king of Egypt, i. 259, d, e. The fable of, whence, ibid. e.
† — temple erected at Memphis, 260, a. Various opinions about him, 259, (K).
Protogenes, a famed painter, protected by Demetrius, iii. 144, b. His Maſter-piece deſcribed, ibid. (E).
— a tool of Caligula's cruelty, v. 430, a, b.
Protogonus and Eon, the Adam and Eve of Sanchoniatho, i. 86, c, & (N). Their iſſue, ibid. c.
Protopaſchites ſuppreſſed. vi. 469. c.
Provinces, Roman, divided into imperial and ſenatorial, v. 297, b. How governed, ibid. e. Regulated by Adrian, vi. 48, b, e.
Prudentius's character of Maxentius, vi. 242, b.
† Pruſa, a city in Bithynia, deſcribed, iii. 825, d, e. Taken by Triarius, 743, e. By the Scythians, vi. 174, c. By Orchanes, 639. c, d.
Pruſias, king of Bithynia, aſſiſts the Rhodians, iii. 145, b. Joins with them in the Peace, ibid. f. Rejects Antiochus's offers, 558, c, d. Defeats the Pergamenian fleet, 772, & ſeq. Makes peace with Eumenes, 773. Invades Pergamos, 778, d, e. Treachery to Attalus, ibid. f. & ſeq. Forced to a peace by the Romans, 776, b, c. Treachery to his ſon: ibid. & ſeq. To Hannibal, 830. Mean behaviour at Rome, ibid. d—f. Taken by Triarius, 744, a. Depoſed by his ſon, 780. Aſſaſſinated, 781. His character. 831, a, b.—Betrays Hannibal to the Romans, vii. 91, e.
Prytanes, chief magiſtrate at Corinth, ii. 392, f. at Athens their office, 437, d. A new ſett of them, 523, a. Of Rhodes their office, iii. 153, b. (F).
Prytanæum, the court of its power, &c. ii. 444, b. Abo-

Prytanis king of Sparta wars with the Argives, ii. 404, c.
— King of Bosporus killed by his brother, iii. 142, d.
Psalm xxii, in what sense repeated by Christ on the cross, iv. 241, a, (D). Its true lection vindicated, ibid.
Psalms, how collected by Ezra, iv. 15, & seq. Their meter, elegancy, &c. proved against bishop Hare, ibid. 16, 17, & (D).
Psammenitus, the son of Amasis King of Egypt, i. 272 f. Defeated by Cambyses, ibid. Loses his kingdom, 273, b, c. His captivity and death, ibid. & seq. See also vol. ii. 96, c — d.
Psammis, king of Egypt, dies in an expedition against the Ethiopians, i. 268, a. b.
Psammitichus, I. king of one of the 12 toparchies of Egypt, i. 265, c. Falls out with the rest, and reduces the whole country, ibid. c. d. His extract, 260, a. Buildings, vast army, &c. ibid. b. c. Opens the Egyptian ports to strangers, ibid. e. Takes Azotus after a 29 years siege, ibid. d. Invites the Scythians in vast numbers, ibid. e. f. Expedient to find out the primitive language, 151 (V). Dies 266, f.
Psammitichus, second king of Egypt, i. 276, c. An inhuman prince, ibid. d.
Psammuthis, king of Egypt, i. 277. b.
† Pseboa, Lake in Ethiopia, vii. 190, a.
† — Island described, ibid. (M).
† Pselcha, Psecha. Where situate, v. 302, c. Taken by Petronius, ibid. e. vii. 185, b. c.
Psephium at Athens. What, ii. 498, b.
Psilii, a kind of snake doctors, v. 156 (F).
† Psillis, a river in Bithynia, iii. 827, b.
† Psophis described, ii. 653. Besieged, ibid. Taken, 454.
† Psyche's intrigue with young Cato, merrily punned, v. 165, a.
† Psyllii, who and where sited, vii. 171, b—d. Their tragical end, ibid. e.
† Pterium, a city in Cappadocia, iii. 762, c.
† Ptolemais, St. John de Acra, the ruins of, described, 588, a.
† Ptolemais described, iii. 663, a. Betrayed to Antiochus, 636, c. Besieged by Alex. Janneus, 660, a. Taken by Cleopatra, ibid. c.
† Ptolemais, Barce, a city in Cyrenaica, vii. 162, e.
Ptolemeus king of Thebes, ii. 375, c.
— king of Egypt leagues with the Acheans, 375, c.
— Chennus's writings and character, vi. 51, sub not.
— the astrologer, his writings, &c. 60, sub not.
Ptolemies of Egypt, a list of them, iii. 633, & seq.
Ptolemy Soter, his extract, iii. 624, & seq. Miraculous cure, 625, b. Sent to seize Bessus, 369, & seq. Defeats the Aspii, 386, d. His advice after Alexander's death, 417. Post and government, 418, a. 423, c. 625, c. Flourishing kingdom, 421, b. 626, a, b. Invaded by Perdiccas, 422, e. Allies with Seleucus, 432, a. Takes Syria from Antigonus, ibid. & seq. Beaten out of it, 433. Succours the Rhodians, 141. Whence surnamed Soter, 143, f. 625, c, d. Defeated by Demetrius, 436, & seq. Takes the title of King, 437, b, Allies with Antigonus, 439, & seq. Invades Judea, &c. 440, d. Makes his son colleague, 626, c. Builds the tower of Pharos, ibid. & seq. Procures the Sinopian Serapis, 627, & ibid. Founds the Alexandrian library, 629, & seq. and museum, 630. His death and character, 631, c, d. Subdues the Jews, iv. 30. Kindness to them, 31, a, b. 35, a. Issue, 622, b.
Ptolemy Ceraunus disinherited, iii. 626, d, e. 632, c. Persecuted by Lysimachus, 468, e, f. Treachery to Seleucus, 469, b. 521, c, 632, d. Seizes the Macedonian crown, 521, c, 632, e. Treachery to Arsinoe, 469, f. 632, & seq. Slain by the Gauls, 470, a, b. 633, a.
— Philadelphus Succeeds his father, 633. Enmity to Demetrius Phaler. ibid. e. Marries his sister Arsinoe, ibid. & seq. Embassy to Rome, 634. Invites Magas, 635. Improves the Egyptian commerce, &c. ibid. & seq. Kindness to the Sicyonians, 636, e. Love to Arsinoe, 637, e. Death and character, ibid. & seq. Works, 639, & seq. Friendship to the Jews, iv. 37, b. Procures a version of the bible, ibid. & seq. & (O). Embassy to Rome, 647.
— Euergetes, whence so called, 527, b. 639, c. His conquests, ibid. d, e. Sacrifices to the God of Israel, 640, a. Improves his father's library, ibid. b. Kindness to Joseph the Jew, 641, pass. His conquests, 642, b, c. Assists Cleomenes, ibid. c, d. His death and character, ibid. e, f.
— Philopator, why so called, iii. 643, a. Cruel character, ibid. b, c. Peace with Antiochus, 644, e. Persecutes the Jews, ibid. & seq. Takes them into favour, 645, d, e. Receives a Roman embassy, ibid. & seq. Murders his wife, 646, c. Attempt on the Jewish temple punished, iv. 42, & seq. His death, &c. ibid. & seq.
— Epiphanes born, 646, b. Succeeds his father, 647, & seq. Invaded by Philip and Antiochus, 542, & seq. Protected by the Romans, ibid. & seq. 648, d. Degenerates into a tyrant, 647, b. Allies with Rome and the Achæans, ibid. e, f. Poisoned, 650, a.
— Philometor succeeds his father, 650, b. Invaded by Antiochus, ibid. c. & 575. Taken by him, 576, a. Restored to his crown, 578, d. 650, c. Divides his kingdom with Physcon, ibid. d, & 579, a. Goes to Rome, 580, e. 650, f, & seq. Speech to the senate, 651, b, c. Opposed by Physcon, ibid. d, e. Rejects the Roman decree in his favour, 652, e. Defeats him, 653, d. Marches into Judea, 597, & seq. Allies with Demetrius, 598, b, c. Re-inthrones him, ibid. e, f. Falls out with him, 563, e. His death and character, 599, & seq. 653, & seq. Favour to the Jews, 654, c. and to their High Priest, iv. 80, & seq.
— Physcon disputes the crown with his brother, 577, b. 650, pass. Divides it with him, ibid, Outs him, ibid. & seq. Goes to Rome, 577. b. 551. Attempt on Cyprus, 652, d. Repulsed by the Cyrenians, ibid. e, f, 653, b. Defeated and caressed by Philometor, ibid. d. Cruelty to his son and widow, 654, d, e. to the Jews and Egyptians, ibid. & seq. Aukward reception of the Roman ambassadors, 656, b, c. Driven out for his cruelties, 657, c. Returns, 601, a. Sets up Zebina against Demetrius, 611, a, b. Defeates him, 613, a. 658, b. His death, learning, &c. ibid. & seq.
— Lathyrus, why so called, 658, f, & seq. Dethroned by his mother, 659. Defeats the Jewish king, 660. A bloody action of his, ibid. f. Driven out of Judea, 661, a. (iv. 98, b.) Restored to his kingdom, 662, b, c. Takes Thebes, 663, c. His death, 664, c.
— Auletes, an effeminate prince, 666, d, e. Driven out of his kingdom, 667, a, b. Interview with Cato, ibid. c, d. Retires into the Ephesan asylum, 669, c. Bargains with Gabinius, 670, c, d. Restored to his crown, 671, d. His cruelties, ibid. seq. Death, 672, e. See also vol. v. 151, e, & seq.
— his son drives his sister from the crown, 673, & seq. Stirs up the Alexandrians against Cæsar, 675. Treachery to him, 677, & seq. Defeated, 678, c, d. Drowned, ibid. e.
— the son of Pyrrhus left regent at Epirus, 806, e. Subdues the Thessalonians, 816, d. Killed, 817.
— the son of Alexander, his short reign, 820, e.
— prince of Chalcis, 854, a. Puts his son to death, ibid. c.
— the son of Seleucus killed at Issus, iii. 335, e.
— the son of Lathyrus, his wealth and sordidness, 184, e, f. Stript of Cyprus by the Romans, 185. Kills himself, ibid. f.
— a natural son of Amyntas, 285, f. His treasons, 286, b — f.
— general of Antigonus, his treachery, 462, b. Poisoned by the king of Egypt, 440, d.
— Macron sent against Judas Maccabeus, iv. 58, e. Turned out by Lysias, 63.
— the treacherous son in law of Simon, 88, pass. His perfidy and parricide, ibid. & seq. Ill success against Hyrcan, 19. b, c, & (I).
Ptolemy Menneus's kindness to Aristobulus's family, 116, d.
— king of Cyprus deposed by Clodius, v. 116, c, d.
— the son of Cleopatra made king of Phœnice, 285, a.
— king of Mauritania complimented by Tiberius, 421, c. Massacred by Caligula, 478, c, d. His descent, ibid. (Z).
— a friend to Otho incenses him against Caligula, 592, f.
— the son of Juba, his pedigree, vii. 157, (S).
† Ptychia island, where situate, 241, b.
Publicans, when first created at Rome, iv. 579, d. Suppressed by Nero, v. 528, a, b.
Publicola, Gellius, one of the commanders at Actium, v. 291, & seq.
— chosen consul, 478, c.
Publipol defeated by Pompey, v. 98, e.
Publius, a plebeian chosen prætor, iv. 604, a. Triumphs over Palepolis, 607, e.
— Philo. See Philo, 613.
— a young slave cruelly used by Papirius, 608, b.

Publius

Publius Malleolus's parricide, and punishment, v. 36, e.
— a famed Syrian pantomime, 168, (P).
— Mark an astrologer put to death, 388, b.
— ill success in Spain, vii. 48, d, e.
† Pucetia described, iv. 412. Whence so called, 416, e.
Pudens at thirteen years of age wins the prize of poetry, vi. 16, b.
† Pudui, a city in Arabia Felix, vii. 244, a.
Pul, Phul, and by the Septuagint Phua, i. 888, (W). supposed founder of the Assyrian monarchy, ibid. a. Who, ibid. & not. Receives 1000 talents from the king of Israel, 889, a. See vol. ii. 9, b.
Pulcheria, daughter of Theodosius, born, vi. 390, f. Her death and character, 406, e, f.
— daughter of Arcadius, her character, 455, a. Takes the administration upon her, 470, c. Her signal piety, ibid. Marries her son to Eudocia, 473, a. Her death and character, 493, e, f.
— sister of Theodosius, her stratagem to make him read what he signed, 490, e. Resigns after his death, 492, a. Marries Marcianus, ibid. & seq. Her death, donations, &c. 496, d.
Pulcio Titus attacked by Cæsar, v. 141, b.
Pulio, a German of extraordinary strength, v. 337, b.
Pullio's treachery to Mithridates and Iberus, iii. 711.
Pullus, Jun. chosen consul, iv. 972. Sails to the siege of Lilybæum, 670, & seq. Suffers a dreadful shipwreck, 674, c. His death, ibid. d.
Pulvilius, Horatius, chosen consul, iv. 474, a. Consecrates the capitol, 477, c.
Pumice-Stones cast up by the sea, iii. 215, f. 216, a.
Punic war, the first, the causes of, iv. 652, & seq. Ended, 683. 2d, 692, & seq. Concluded, 747, & seq. 3d, proclaimed, 770, & seq. See also vii. 1, & seq. 6, e, f. End of it, 84, pass.
— tongue allied to the Hebrew, vi. 697, & seq. pass. Its numbers of the same nature, 700.
Punishments among the Jews before the captivity, i. 672, & seq.
— among the Persians, ii. 61, d. 134, not.
— among the Macedonians, iii. 266, a.
— how regulated by Solon, ii. 433, d.
Pur in the Phœnician history, who, i. 87, a.
Purim or Lots, the Jewish feast of, i. 611, a.
Purali, the last rank of Athenian citizens, ii. 438, a.
Purple of Elis famed, ii. 405, (B).
— fish, plentiful in Gætulia, vii. 161, a.
— why worn by the Macedonian nobles, iii. 264, b.
† Purpurariæ Insulæ, where, vii. 147, a. Whether the modern Madeiras, ibid. (G).
† Puteoli regulated by Sylla, v. 84, a. Damaged by an earthquake, 659, c.
— the monstrous bridge of, 473, & seq.
— the games of, instituted, vi. 57, d.
Putienus chosen emperor by the senate, vi. 156, e, f. His mean extract and rise, ibid. Excellent character, 157, a, b. March against the Maximins, ibid. f, & seq. Swift return to Rome, 159, c. Fills it with joy, ibid. f, & seq. Insulted by the Pretorian guards 160, f, & seq. Murdered by them, 161, b.
† Pydna, a city in Macedon, iii. 256. Subdued by Archelaus, 284, a, b. by Philip, 290, d. Besieged by Cassander, 478.
— the battle of, ii. 687, d.
Pygmalion king of Tyre's murder of Sichæus, i. 415, f. Said to have built Carpasia in Cyprus, 416, c. Presents to Hercules's temple at Gades, ibid. d. See also vol. iii. 145, f, & seq. vi. 719, e. Over-reached by Dido, vi. 720, b, c.
† Pygmies, were sited, vii. 183, c, d.
Pylades, the faithful friend of Orestes, ii. 357, e.
— bold speech to Augustus, v. 312, f.
— a famed gladiator, vi. 12, d.
† Pylaicum, the grand council of Greece, ii. 711.
† Pylæ Ciliciæ described, ii. 340, b.
† Pylos, three cities of that name, ii. 706, (V).
† Pylus, the promontory of, ii. 538. Fortified by the Athenians, ibid. c. Taken by the Lacedemonians, 527, d.
Pyrachmes, king of Eubæa, slain by Hercules, iii. 250, e.
Pyramidal figure, why used in monuments, i. 186, e.
† Pyramids of Egypt, about 20 in number, described, 183, c. Whence so named, ibid. f. By whom built, 184. a, & seq.
— others long since ruined, 185, a. When built, ibid. e. Why, ibid. f.
— three of the most famed described, 184, b. 186. & seq. Dimensions of the first, ibid. c, d, & seq. Its in and outside, 187, a—e.
2d Pyramid described, 190, c, & seq. Priests lodging near it, ibid. f.
3d and 4th Pyramids, ibid. & seq. How built, 191, f. Ancient inscriptions on them, 184, e.
† Pyramus river in Cilicia, ii. 341, d.
Pyrates swarmed in Ancient Greece, ii. 346, b. & alibi pass.
— take J. Cæsar prisoner, v, 9, b. Crucified by him, ibid. d. Cause a famine in Rome, 92, b. Defeated by Servilius, 95, e. Whence called Phaselli, ibid. (I). Defeat M. Anthony, ibid. & seq. Supported by Mithridates, 100, b. Their strength and horrid cruelties, ibid. c, d.
† Pyrene, the famed fountain of, at Corinth, ii. 391, c.
Pyreneans submit to Scipio, iv. 708, e.
† — mountains, where, and why so called, vii. 307, (K). Set all on fire, [323] d, e.
† Pyreum, one of the havens of the Athens, ii. 361, b. 476. Improved by Themistocles, 478. Demolished by Lysander, 530. Garisoned by Demet. Poliorcetes, 556, f. Sold to the Athenians, 557, c. Rebuilt by Adrian, 742.
† Pyrrha, a city in Lesbos, overturned, iii. 233, e.
† Pyrrhea, an ancient name of Thessaly, ii. 387.
Pyrrhic dance, what, iii. 168, a.
Pyrrhus, the son of Achilles, ii. 381, c.
— Ist king of Epirus, his extract, iii. 799. Killed before Troy, ibid. b, c. His prophetic farewel to Italy, ibid. d, e.
— IId, his descent, iii. 803, f. Brought up by Glaucias, 464, b. 804, a, b. Allies with Demetrius, ibid. c, & 443, b. with Ptolemy, ibid. e, f. Drives Demetrius out of Macedon, 467, d. Made king of it, 468, b. Outed by Lysimachus, ibid. c. Recovers it from Gonatus, 471, d. Succours the Tarentines, 805. His projects wittily checked by Cyneas, ibid e, f, & seq. Sails for Italy, 806, e. His wives and children, ibid. (L). Reforms the Tarentines, 807, d, e. Outwitted by Aristarchus, 808, b, c. Haughty letter to the Roman consul, ibid. d. Defeats him, 809, & seq. Forced back from Rome, 810, e. Receives an embassy from thence, 811. His offers rejected by the senate, 812. Message to Decius, ibid. e. Defeated by Sulpitius, 813. In danger of poison, 814. Invited into Italy, 88, & seq. Oppresses the Sicilians, 89. Defeated at sea, 90, e, 814. Cruel revenge on the Locrians, ibid. Sacrilege and punishment, ibid. & seq. Defeated by Curius, 815, c, d. Returns to Epirus, ibid. & seq. Seizes on Macedon, 816. Unsuccessful attempt on Greece, ibid. d, e. against Argos, ibid. & seq. Defeats the Spartans, 817. Enters Argos, ibid. e. Killed by a woman, 818, d. His character, ibid. & seq. See also vol. ii. 622,—624.
— general of Ætolia defeated by Philip, ii. 666, d. and vol. vi. 814, a—c.
—IIId, murdered, iii. 820, e.
— the worthless patriarch of Constantinople, vi. 544, c. Flees into Afric, ibid. &c. Betrays Antioch, 615, f.
Pythagoras's doctrine of two self-existent principles, viz. God and Matter, i. 25, c. His dyad and monad, what, ibid. d. Why he abstained from beans, 26, a. His theology, whence borrowed, 26, & seq. 222, e. How he was admitted to the knowledge of it, 223, a, b. A further account of him, &c. iii. 194, (O). His doctrine held by the Essenians, iv. 171, e. His journey into Gaul, vii. 375, (V), 381, (8).
— tyrant of Ephesus, ii. 755, e.
— Nero's catamite and husband, v. 546, c.
Pythagoreans, their reasons why God should be called Tetractys, i. 26, b, c.
Pythia's admirable constancy, v. 543, (I).
Pythian games in honour of Apollo, ii. 382, b, & not.
† Pythion, a city in Thessaly, ii. 832.
Pythius, a Lydian immensely rich, ii. 331, e.
Python sent to reduce Musicianus, iii. 400. His lot after Alexander's death, 423, e. Slain by Ptolemy, 433.
— a serpent killed by Apollo, ii. 382, b, & not.
Pythoness, the woman who delivered the oracle at Delphos, ii. 347, (F).
— their frequent cheats and evasions, 359, d.
† Pytus taken by the Borani, vi. 174, c. —

Q.

† Quaderna taken by Maximus, vi. 412, e.
† Quadi, who, and where sited, v. 396, (O). vii. 408, d. 602, d. Their cities, &c. ibid. Wars with Rome, ibid.

ib. e. Submit to Antoninus, ib. & ſeq. (vi. 56, f.) New peace with Commodus, 603, a, b. Ravage Illyricum, ibid. b, c. Defeated by Carus, ibid. d. Freſh ravages, ibid. d, e. Peace with Conſtantius, ibid. e, f. New ravages and conqueſts, ibid. & ſeq. in Gaul, 604, b, c. Invaded by Domitian, v. 678, d. Put him to a ſhameful flight, ibid. e. Revolt againſt M. Aurelius, vi. 66, b, c. Driven out of Pannonia, 69, c, d. Overreach the Romans, 71, a, b. Deſtroyed by a miraculous fire, ibid. & ſeq. Sue for peace, 73, a. Break it, ibid. b. Defeated and puniſhed, ibid. c, d. By Probus, 173, f. By Regilianus, 175, b. Invade Pannonia, 296, c. 303, b. and Illyricum, 361, d, e. Defeat the Romans, 362, b, c. Waſte their country, 388, a, b. Their end, vii. 604, d.

Quadratus Numidius governor of Syria, iii. 711, d. Meſſage to Vologeſes, 730, d. iv. 264, a. Severity to the Jews, ib. (A).

— Seius's arraignment, v. 444, b.

— apology for the chriſtians, vi. 48, e.

Quadrigati, a coin ſo called, whence, vii. 36, (O).

Quadriremes firſt invented by the Carthaginians, vi. 710, a, b.

Quadruplatores, informers, why ſo called, vi. 131, f.

Quails ſent to the Iſraelites, falſely ſuppoſed locuſts, i. 509, (Q).

† Quarantana, the ſuppoſed mount where the devil tempted our Saviour, i. 583, a.

Quartinus choſen emperor, vi. 152, c. Betrayed and murdered, ibid. d.

Queſtors at Rome, their office, iv. 473, a. New diſputes about it, 552. Their number augmented by Cæſar, v. 178, a. and power inlarged, 322. At Carthage, their office, &c. vi. 678, b, c.

— Provincials inſtituted, iv. 650, d. Their limits, ib. e.

Quietus, the ſon of Macrianus, choſen tribune, 178, a. Left in Syria, 180, e. Killed by the Emeſians, ib. f.

Quince-tree, whence brought, iii. 160, d.

Quinchanus conſpires againſt Nero, v. 551, & ſeq. Informs againſt his accomplices, 553, b, c, & ſeq.

Quinctilia, an actreſs, her ſignal bravery, v. 482, b.

Quinctilian reproved by Tiberius, v. 445, d.

— wounds Commodus, vi. 88, a.

Quinctiliani, Lupercalian prieſts, whence ſo called, iv. 422, in fin not.

Quinctius, Tit. Flam. See Flaminius, ii. 669, & ſeq.

— Luc. ravages Caryſtia, iii. 147, e.

— T. his wiſe meaſures againſt Volero, iv. 514, & ſeq. Appeaſes the Plebeians, 516, a. Succeſs againſt the Æqui, ibid. c. againſt the Volſci, &c. 517, e. Made proconſul, 518, b. Dictator, 576, d. Subdues the Preneſtines, ib. e.

— Cincinnatus's defence of his ſon, 520, e. Retires to his farm, 521, f. Choſen conſul, 525, c. Admirable policy, ib. & ſeq. Choſen dictator, 527, a. Defeats the Æqui, ib. d, e. Abdicates, 528, a. Timely advice to the ſenate, ib. f. Succeſs againſt the Volſci, ib. & ſeq. Choſen inter-rex, 546, f. Conſul, ib. Dictator, 548.

— the ſon of Lucius defeated by the Volſci, 549, f.

— Pennus choſen dictator, 587, e. Severity to the Tarquinenſes, 591, d. Forced to head the revolters, 598, d.

— Cæſo's bold oppoſition againſt the Plebeians, 520, b. Trial, ib. d, e. Baniſhes himſelf, 521, e, f. Recalled, 528, a.

— Criſpinus choſen conſul, 734, d. Surprized and wounded, 735, b. Death, ib. f.

— Lælius choſen conſul, 753, e.

— a ſenator degraded, 759.

— defeated by Lucullus, v. 72, d.

— an officer of Dolabella betrays Laodicea, 219, c.

— D. ſlain by the Carthaginians, vii. 59, c.

† Quinda, where, iii. 441, d. The treaſure of, plunder'd, ib.

Quinquatrus, the feſtival of, v. 531, b.

† Quinquegentiani, who, and whence ſo called, vi. 209, c. Over-run Afric, ib. & ſeq. Defeated by Maximian, 211, b.

Quinqueremes, a fleet of, built by the Romans, iv. 677, b. By whom invented, vi. 755, a.

Quinquevirate at Carthage, what, vi. 676.

Quintili, the two brothers, their conſulſhip and high merit, vi. 58, c. Put to death by Commodus, 88, d.

Quintilian the orator, where born, vii. 313, f.

Quintilius Varus put to death, v. 257, d.

Quintilius Plantianus put to death by Severus, vi. 117, e.

— Marcellus, one of Alexander's counſellors, 138, e.

Quintillus, the brother of Claudius, proclaimed emperor, v. 187, f. His death, ib.

— ſucceſs againſt the Goths, vii. 487, e.

— Quintinus's unhappy expedition againſt the Franks, vii. 557, d, e. See alſo vol. vi. 413, d, e.

Quintus Lutat. See Catulus, v. 33, e, (K).

— Pedius, one of Cæſar's heirs, 189, e.

— Cicero's brother. Vid. ſub. Cicero, 124, & ſeq.

— Veranius made governor of Cappadocia, 395, c.

— Severus governor of Comagene, 395, d, e. Saves himſelf by informing, 444, b, c.

— Curtius's anachroniſm about the Tyrian embaſſy rectified, vi. 787, d.

Quirinalis, Clodius, accuſed, v. 525, e. Kills himſelf, ibid.

Quirinus, Romulus, why ſo called, iv. 434, e.

— the temple of, built by Papirius, 637, & (Z).

— Publius choſen governor to Caius, v. 329, c. Good offices to Tiberius. ib. & 330, e. Sent governor of Judea, 336, b. Interceeds in vain for Libo, 387, d. Sues the divorced Lepida for adultery, 407, b, c. His death and public funeral, 410, c, d. Character, ibid. & ſeq.

Quirites, whence ſo called, iv. 411, b, 431, (C).

† Quiſa, where ſituate, vii. 114, e.

R

† Raamah, Rhegma, where ſituate, i. 164, d.

† Rabbah, metropolis of the Ammonites, i. 293, a. Og's large bed kept at, ib. b. Taken and deſtroyed by Joab, 292, c. Whence called ſince Philadelphia, 293, c. Taken by Antiochus, iii. 538, a.

Rabbirus, Auletes's uſurer, iii. 670, & ſeq. Requited by him, 672, a. Proſecuted by the ſenate, ib. b.

Rabſhakeh. See below Raſhakeh.

Rabuleius's crafty ſpeech to the Roman conſul, iv. 504, d.

Rachel, Laban's daughter, given to Jacob, i. 440, e. 441, a. Brought to bed of Joſeph, 442, b. Steals her father's gods, 443, & (R). Dies in labour of Benjamin, 448, c. Buried at Ephrath, ib. e. Her pretended miraculous tomb, 582, d.

Rachis choſen king of the Lombards, vii. 709, a. His new edict, b. Conqueſts, ib. c. Turns monk, ib. d, e. His ſtatue at Barletta, ib. (A). Diverted from reſuming the crown, 715, d.

Racius, Conſtans, condemned for affronting Plautianus, vi. 116, c, d.

Rack, one of the Babyloniſh and Aſſyrian deities, i. 294, e.

Radaguiſus, king of the Hunns, invades the Romans, vi. 447, f, & ſeq.

— IId formidable invaſion, 452, b—d. Defeat before Florence, ib. & ſeq. Taken and put to death, 453, b.

— repulſed by Stilicho, vii. 461, c, d.

† Radiva mount, where, vii. 238, b.

† Rætia, how divided, vii. [409] c.

† Rætii, who, and where ſited, [409], c, d.

† Ragaba, where, iv. 102, b. Beſieged by Alex. Janneus, ib.

Ragaiſus, when he reigned over the Franks, vii. 551, a.

† Rages, a city of Media, ii. 2. d.

Ragilo ſlain by the Franks, vii. 681, a.

Raguacharius king of the Franks, vii. 566, c. Aſſiſts Clovis againſt the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Betrayed and murdered by him, 579, f.

Raguel, the ſame as Jethro, i. 301, (F).

† Rahab of ſcripture ſuppoſed the Deltha of Egypt, i. 176, c.

— the harlot ſpared at the ſiege of Jericho, i. 330. Her reception of the ſpies, 544, a. Rather a hoſteſs than harlot, ib. (X). Preſerved from the common ſlaughter, 556, a. Married to Salmon, ib. &c.

Rain, whether any on the primitive earth, i. 111, b, c.

— of ſtones which fell on the Canaanites examined, 564, b, c, & ſeq.

Rainbow, whether any before the Flood, i. 111, e.

Ram-battering deſcribed, vi. 750, (O).

Ram-Berſius's ſucceſs againſt Nouſchizad, iv. 393, c, d.

† Rameſes, Moſes's dwelling-place in Egypt, i. 502, a. Its diſtance from Canaan, ib. b.

Ramizſus ravages Paleſtine, vi. 539, e

Rammius diſcloſes Perſeus's treachery to the Romans, iii. 485, a, b.
Rapax Legion, its furious onſet againſt the Adjutrix, v. 610, b, c. Defeated by Pompey, 625, d.
Rape, how puniſhed at Athens, ii. 432, b.
† Raphia, where ſited, iv. 550, (G). The battle of, 538, d. Taken by Alex. Janneus, iv. 99, b.
† Raphon, where ſituated, iv. 67, b.
† Raptum, a promontory in Ethiopia, vii. 190, a.
Raſhakeh, the Aſſyrian general's boaſting ſpeech to Hezechiah, i. 893, a.
Raſpah ravages Aſia, vii 495, b.
† Ratiſbon, where, and by whom built, vii. [416] a.
Raven, why ſent out of the ark by Noah, i. 106, & (N).
† Ravenna beſieged by Beliſarius, vii. 662, d, e. Taken, 663, d. Erected into an exarchate, 679, e. Plundered by Luitprand, 707, & ſeq. Reduced into a dukedom, 703, b. Retaken by Scholaſticus, ibid. d, e. The end of its exarchate, 710, d. Duration, 711, a. Given to the pope, 714, b, c.
— biſhops of, claimed the precedence of all others, 710, e, & ſeq.
† Rauraci, who, and where ſeated, vii. 408, a.
† Rauracum, where ſituate, vi. 290, d.
— the battle of, ibid.
Rauſimedes, defeated and killed, vi. 257, a, b. vii. 608, d.
† Rauwolf's account of the ruins of Babylon, i. 146, (M).
Raymond ſucceeds Gualtier in the cruiſade, vi. 615, a.
Razaſtes, a Perſian general, defeated and killed, vi. 541. e, f.
Razis, ſignal zeal for his religion, iv. 72, f. Deſperate death, 73, a.
Reanus put to death by Heliogabulus, vi. 136, a.
Reaſon, how far bound to yield to revelation, iv. 202, (M).
Rebak, king or prince of Midian, i. 303, a.
Rebaptizers ſuppreſſed by Gratian, vi. 391, c. By Theodoſius IId. 469, f.
Rebecca, born to Bethuel by Milkah, i. 431, d. Married to Iſaac, 433, d. Barren 19 years, 436, a. Delivered of Eſau and Jacob, 437, a. Favours the youngeſt, ibid. &c. Obtains the elder's bleſſing, 439, a.
Rebilus, Canin. kills himſelf, v. 525, f.
Reccard, king of the Viſigoths, vii. 492, e.
Recenſuinthus, king of the Viſigoths, vii. 492, e.
Rechabites, who, and by whom founded, i. 820, (T). Some wild notions about them confuted, ib. How far bound to his rule, 821. Benj. of Tudela's fabulous account of them, ib.
Rechiarius crowned at Merida, vii. 544, a. His plunders, ibid. b. Peace with Rome, ibid. c. Invades it, ibid. d. Turns chriſtian, 546, e. Invades Carthagena, 512. Haughty anſwer to Theodoric, ibid. e. Defeated and put to death by him, 545, a.
Rechila, made king of the Suevi, vii. 543, e. Conqueſts, ib & ſeq. Death, 544, a.
Rechilus's ſucceſs in Spain, vi. 488, f. Death, 489, e.
Rechimir, king of the Viſigoths, 492, e.
Rectores, among the Romans, their office, vi. 271, b.
— in Italy, vii. 721, c.
† Red Sea, or Arabian Gulph, i. 308, (I). Why called in Hebrew Yam Suph. ibid. and Erithrean, ibid.
Rediculus, a deity, why ſo called, iv. 728, (Q).
Reelajah, one of the heads of the Jewiſh return, iv. 4, b.
† Refuge, cities of, among the Jews, i. 647, c. Their deſign, 648, a. Laws relating to them, ibid. c, d. The tabernacle and temple places alſo of Refuge, 649, d, & ſeq.
† Regem, river in Bohemia, vii. [415] a.
Regeneration preached by Chriſt to Nicodemus, iv. 201, b, c, (K).
Regillianus's ſucceſs againſt the Sarmatians, vi. 175, b. Proclaimed emperor, ib. e. His extract and riſe, ib. f, & ſeq. Murdered, 176, a. See alſo vol. vii. 607, d, e.
Regillus put to death by Commodus, vi. 91, d.
† Regium, an imperial palace near Conſtantinople, vii. 437, f, & ſeq.
† Regilus, the battle of, iv. 483, paſſ.
Regnares, killed for his treachery to Narſes, vii. 679, b, c.
† Regni, in Britain, where ſited, vii 408, a, b.
Regnomer, murdered by Clovis, vii 580, c.
† Regnum, now Ringwood, vii. 408, b.
Reguli, in Gaul, their limited power, vii. 368, a, b, (D).
Regulus, P. M. appointed to try Sejanus, v. 439, d. Condemns him, 440, & ſeq.
— Roſcius, his one days conſulſhip, 628, d.
— Marc. the accuſer of Jun. Ruſticus, 685, d, e.
— Attilius's ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, vi. 835, & ſeq. Ravages Afric, 837, a. b. Kills a monſtrous ſerpent, ib. d. Defeats the Carthaginians, 838, b, c. High demands upon them, ibid. f, & ſeq Defeated by Xantippus, 839, d, e. Taken priſoner, 840, b. Cruel treatment, ib. c, d. Diſmal end, 841, & ſeq. His widow's bloody revenge, 842, b, c, & (W).
Reboboam ſucceeds Solomon, i. 804, d. His folly cauſes the ten tribes to revolt, 805, a. His death, 806, d.
† Rehoboth, the city of, where cited, i. 126, (B).
Rehum one of the heads of the Jewiſh return, iv. 4, b.
† Reidogoth'and. See Jutland, vii. 489, e.
Rekem, king of Midian, i. 303, a.
† — city, the ſame with Petra and Jokteel, vii. 225, a.
Relics, the oldeſt conſecration of them to be found in hiſtory, i. 138, (Y).
Religious concerns committed to the Areopagi, ii. 441, f.
— war, the firſt waged by the chriſtians, vi. 250, c, d.
† Reman ſurrendered to Sapor, vi. 307, a.
Remigius, his extortions under Valentinian, vi. 349, b, c. Strangles himſelf, 358, d, e.
— bp. converts the Franks, vii. 569, d, e. His character, ib f.
Remiſmund, ravages Luſitania, vi. 506, & ſeq. vii. 513, e, 514, e, and Galicia, 545. Succeeds Malera, 546. a. Peace with Theodoric, ib. c, d. Broken, 547. a. Ravages Luſitania, ib. c. Peace with Euric, ib. d. Death, ibid e.
Remora, a ſhell-fiſh which ſtop'd Caligula's Galley, v. 480, (A).
Remphan, one of the Jewiſh idols in the wilderneſs, i. 531, b. Some conjectures concerning it, vi. 682, & ſeq. & (P).
† Remuria, the burying place of Remus, iv. 424, (K).
Remus, taken up by Fauſtulus, iv. 422, b. Falls out with his brother, 423, c. Killed, 424, a, (K).
† Rephaim, or vale of giants, where, &c. i. 574, a.
— one of the ten nations of Canaan, 322, (N).
— a gigantic race that reigned there, 324, e. Whether the Gephyreci who followed Cadmus into Greece, ib.
† Rephidim, the place where Moſes ſmote the miraculous rock, i. 511, a.
† Repta, where, iv. 150, (K). The receptacle of the Jewiſh banditti, ibid.
Requiarius. See Rectiarius, vi. 489, & ſeq. vii. 544, & ſeq.
† Reſem city, where ſituate, i. 126, (B).
Reſmagas's interview with Adrian, vi. 37, a.
Reſtio, ſaved by his generous ſlave, v. 226, f, & ſeq.
Reſurrection, the ſtate of, deſcribed by Chriſt, iv. 231, & ſeq.
Retiarii. net-flingers, how they fought, ii. 422. (D).
† Retiarium, taken by Attila, vi. 488, b. vii. 465, f. Deſcribed, ibid. (C).
† Retimo, a city in Crete, deſcribed, iii. 161, d.
Reu, the ſuppoſed author of ſundry inventions, i. 131.
Reuben, Jacob's firſt-born, i. 441, b. What mandrakes he found, ib (Y). His inceſt, 448, e. Saves Joſeph from being murdered, 449, c, &c. His lot in the promiſed land, 569, c.
Reuda, heads the Scots into Britain, vii. 404, b.
Revenge, at Rome, how regulated, iv. 650, c, d.
Reverendus, a vile miniſter of Gordian diſcarded, vi. 162, (U).
Rex, whence that word, vii. 368, (D).
— Sacrorum, at Rome, his office, iv. 465, c, (R).
Rezin, laſt king of Syria, i. 389, b. League with Pekah againſt Ahaz, ibid. Vain attempt on Jeruſalem, ib. & ſeq. His colony at Elath, ib. Plunders Judea, 390, a. Defeated and killed, ib. & ſeq.
Rezon, firſt king of Damaſcus, revolts from Hadadezer, i. 382, b. Founds a kingdom there, ib. e.
† Rhabbothim, Phenice, why ſo called, i. 391, d.
† Rha, Wolga, river in Scythia, ii. 267.
Rhadamanthus, whoſe ſon, iii. 163, f. His colonies, 164, a. Gives laws to the Cretans, 165, b.
Rhadamiſtus, king of Iberia, iii. 836.
— the ſon of Pharaſmenes cunningly ſent into Armenia, 711, b, c. Treachery to his uncle, ib. & ſeq. Seizes on his throne, 712, b, c. Outed, ib. Put to death by his father, 714, c.
† Rhæti, who and where ſeated, v. 313, (E). Dreadful irruption into Italy, ib. & ſeq. Defeated by Druſus, 314, a.

† Rhæ-

Rhætia, deſcribed, v. 314, ſub not. Ravaged by the Franks, vi. 175. a, b. Peace with Conſtantius, 298, b, c. Invaded by the Suevi, 289, e.
† Rhætinum. the dreadful ſiege of, v. 338.
† Rhamanitis, where ſituate, v. 302, b.
† Rhamnus. a city in Attica, ii. 361, e, & (B).
Rhamſinitus. See below Remphis.
Rhaſcipolis, joins Brutus and Caſſius, v. 241, b. Conducts them to Philippi, 242, b. Forſakes Brutus, 249, b. Defeated and killed, 320, b.
Rhea, the daughter of Uranus, i. 136. Siſter and wife to Saturn, ii. 260, b.—A Titaneſs, iii. 163, a.
— Silvia, made a veſtal, iv. 421, e. Her crime and puniſhment, 422, a.
† Rhebus, Rhebecus and Rhebanus, a river of Paphlagonia, i. 167, a.
† Rhegians, defeated by Dionyſius, iii. 55, e, f. Contemptuous anſwer to him, 57, d, & not. Murdered by the Campanians, iv. 648, c. Outwit the Carthaginians, vi. 776, & ſeq.
† Rhegium, beſieged by Dionyſius, iii. 55, & ſeq. 57, e. Famiſhed into a ſurrender, 58, c. Battered by Mago, vi. 815, a. Seized by Decius, 820, e, f. Noble defence againſt Hannibal, vii. 41, b.
Rheims, the ſtates of, convoke thoſe of Gaul, v. 643, a. Reſolve upon a peace, ibid. b.
Rhemetalces defeated, v. 320, b. Beſieged by the Odryſians, 409. c. Reſtored by Caligula, 464, d.
† Rhemi, ſubdued by Cæſar, v. 119, d, 128, d, vii. 400.
Rhemphis, Rhamſininhus, king of Egypt, i. 260, a. Builds the weſtern portico of Vulcan's temple, ibid. b. His treaſury plundered by the architect's ſons, ibid. c—e. Said to have gone down into hell, 261, e.
† Rhenea, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 231, & ſeq. The burying place of the Delians, 232.
Rheob, the firſt ſole king of Zobah, i. 382, a.
Rheſcuporis, over-reached by Tiberius, v. 396, c, (P). His death, ibid. d.
† Rhetia, ravaged by the Franks, vi. 175, a, b. Peace with Conſtantius, 298, b, c. Invaded by the Suevi, 299, e.
Rhetianus, conſpires againſt Caracalla, vi. 128, e.
† Rhetium, a city in Aſia, taken by ſome fugitives, ii. 501.
Rhetra, Lycurgus's laws, why ſo called, ii. 567, a. Approved by the Delphic oracle, 568, c. How enforced on the Lacedemonians, ib. & ſeq.
† Rhetum, a city in Phrygia Minor, ii. 305, b.
† Rhine, river, uſed for trying the fidelity of wives, vii. 334, a, (I). Its head and courſe, [414], d, e. Three mouths, ibid. & vol. v. 382, (Q). Fortified by Valentinian, 351, e, 355, a.
† Rhing, the royal palace of the Hunns, where, vii. 485. Plundered, ib.
† Rhinocolura, in Egypt, where and by whom built, i. 259, c.
† Rhiſophagi, who and where ſeated, vii. 183, e, 184, c. Inveſted with lions, 200, d, e.
Rhodagune, given to Nicator, iv. 292, e.
Rhodanes, bp. baniſhed, vi. 298, c.
Rhodanus, burnt alive for extortion, vi. 355, c.
† Rhodes iſland deſcribed, iii. 139, & ſeq. Whence ſo called, ibid. (Z). By whom peopled, 131, e. Taken and plundered by Caſſius, v. 235, d, e. Made a Roman province, 650, d.
† — the city of, by whom built, iii. 129, d, & not. Deſcribed, 330, a, & (B), 331, d. Taken by Artemiſia, 136, d. In danger of being drowned, 137, d, e. Beſieged by Demetrius, 138, & ſeq. The ſiege of raiſed, 143, e. Damaged by an earthquake, 146, a. Beſieged by Mithridates, 157, c. Taken and plunder'd by Caſſius, 158, & ſeq. See alſo vol. v. 235, d, e. Made a Roman province, 650, d. Overturned and rebuilt by Antoninus, vi. 59, a. Conquered by the Saracens, 554, d Plundered, 561, e.
— the knights of, ſettle in Maltha, 131, d.
— the Coloſſus of, its firſt ſhake, vi. 37, c. See alſo Coloſſus, iii. 131, & ſeq.
— writers, an account of, iii. 133, d.
Rhodians, outwit the Grecian ſtates, iii. 131, b, 146, a, b. Expert mariners, 132, f, & ſeq. Their government, kings, &c. 133, & ſeq. Become a commonwealth, 134, f. Join in the ſocial war, 135, b. Peace with Athens, 136, a. Oppreſſed by the Carians, ibid b. Subdued by Artemiſia, ib. c, d. Recover their freedom, 137, b, c. Surrender to Alexander, ibid. d. War with Antigonus, 138, & ſeq. Peace with him, 143, e. Gratitude to Ptolemy, ib. War with the Byzantines, 144, & ſeq. Peace with them, 145, f. War with Philip of Macedon, 146, & ſeq. Defeat in Caria 148, b. Meſſage to Antiochus, ib. d. e. Defeat at ſea, 149, & ſeq. Send Eudamedus with a new fleet, 150, c. Defeat that of Syria, 151. Rewarded by the Romans, 152, b. Complained againſt by the Lycians, ib. c. Join the Romans againſt Perſeus, 153, c. Haughty embaſſy to the ſenate, 154, a, b. Humbled by them, ib. & ſeq. Admitted to a freſh alliance, 156, d. Invaded by Mithridates, 157, c. Defeated at ſea by Caſſius, 158, c. Subdued by him, ib. & ſeq. Ally with Perſeus, 484, b. Haughty meſſage to Antiochus, 544. f. Signal ſervices to Cæſar, 676, & ſeq. Confederacy againſt the Athenians, ii. 542. Aſſiſt them againſt Philip, 699, 733. Repulſe Pompey's friends, v. 148, c. Embaſſy to Caſſius, 234, d, e. Twofold defeat at ſea, 235, c, d. In high favour with Anthony, 260, d. Diſfranchiſed by Claudius, 497, c. Reſtored by Nero, 514, e. Settled in Spain, vii. [323.]
Rhodobartes, 2d king of Pontus, iii. 724, a.
† Rodope, a mountain in Thrace, iii. 787, d.
Rodoptis, miſtreſs to Charaxus, the pretended builder of one of the Egyptian pyramids, i. 184, b. The occaſion of that ſtory, 185, b.
† Rhoſſi, a people on the Rhoſs, or Araxes, i. 167, e.
Rhymetalces defeats the two Batos, v. 336, c.
Richared king of the Viſigoths, vii. 492, e.
Richarius murdered by Clovis, vii. 579, f. & ſeq.
Riches deſpiſed by the Scythians, ii, 272, b
Richomeres, ſent againſt the Goths, vi. 381, e. Arrival at Valen's camp, 383, c. Vain efforts to make him ſtay for Gratian, 387, f. Succeſs againſt the Saracens, 402, c. Conſulſhip, extract, &c. 403, a, b.
Recimer's ſucceſs againſt Genſeric, vi. 503, d. Riſe and character, ib. e, f. Depoſes Avita, ib. f. & ſeq. Cauſes Marjoranus to revolt, 404, e. & ſeq. Treachery to him, 406, d, e. Raiſes Severus to the throne, ib. e. Abſolute ſway during the inter-regnum, 508, a, b. Marries Anthemius's daughter, ib. e. Revolts and beſieges him in Rome, 511, b. Puts him to death, ib. c. Dies. ib. d. See alſo vol. vii. 551, 535, & ſeq.
Ricomer promoted by Theodoſius, vi. 392.
† Riiſland, where, vii. 489, d.
† Rimini Ariminium. where ſituate, vii. 17, a. Taken by the Lombards, 622, b. by the Romans, 658, b. Beſieged by the Oſtrogoths, ib. d. Relieved, 659, b.
Rimmon, an idol of the Syrians, i. 371, e.
Why ſo called, ib. (D).
Rings, whether worn at Rome by any but Roman knights iv. 715, (P). Three buſhels of them ſent by Hannibal to Carthage. ib. a.
Riotham, one of the kings of Britain, vi. 400, f.
—king of Bretagne defeated by Euric, 510, c. vii. 454, d 515, b † Riphæan mountains, where, ii. 226, & not. Uninhabited, 268, (B).
——people mentioned by Pliny, i. 167, a.
† Riphat, Riphath, one of Gomer's ſons, where ſeated, 167, a. ii. 266, (B).
† Ripuarian Franks, who, and where ſited, vii. 568, d. Proclaim Clovis their king, 578, d. Their territories, 579, a. Character, laws, &c ib. b. c.
† Riverines, who and where ſited, vi. 495, b.
† Rivers that watered Eden, i. 55—57, paſſ.
—— worſhipped by the Carthaginians, vi. 691, & ſeq. by the Gauls and Germans, vii. 334, a. 350, (F), 351, (G), 416, & ſeq.
Ryan king of Egypt when Joſeph was ſold there, i. 280, f.
Rizpha, one of Saul's concubines, piety to him and her ſons, i. 788, b.
Roas, Rougas king of the Hunns, defeated and killed, vii. 462, d, (B). Succeeded by Attila and Bleda, 464, b.
Robbers ſwarmed in antient Greece, ii. 346, b.
Robert crowned Latin Emperor, vi. 630, a, b. Defeated by John Ducas, ibid. c. His death, and the occaſion of it, ib. e, f.
† Robur, the fortreſs of, where, and by whom built, vi. 361, d.
† Rochetaillé, the caſtle of, by whom built, vi. 468, (O).
Rod of Moſes, ſtories of the Rabbies concerning it, i. 489, (Q). Turned into a ſerpent, &c. 494, c.
Roderic king of the Viſigoths, vii. 492, e.
Rodoald defeats the Sclavonians, vii. 692, c. Made duke of Benevento, ibid. Dies, ib. d.
— king of the Lombards murdered, 692, e.

Rodolinda and her ſon, ſeized by Grimoald vii. 693, d.
Rodolphus defeated by the Lombards, vii. 599, f. 617, a.
Roger king of Sicily, wars with Manuel, 619. Peace with him, ib. d.
† Roma Rome, whence ſo called, iv. 424, (L).
† Romania, Romagna, where, whence ſo called, vi. 452, a. Submits to Luitprand, vii. 704, f. Given to the pope, 714, b.
‡ Roman Fortune the temple of, built, vi, 36, c. Deſtroyed ib. d.
—— ſenate's partiality to Herod, iv. 126. The reſt ſee under Senate and Romans.
—— empire viſited with peſtilence, iv. 321. c, d. When, and by whom firſt inſtituted, 427, b. Inlarged by Tarquin, 447, d, e. Decree againſt Tarquin the proud, 466. Reſtored by the conſuls, 468, c. Conteſt with the Tribunes, 493, &c. Its beginning, v. 297, c. Extent, revenue, &c. ib. e. Strength, 298, a, b.
—— legions, their mutiny and outrages in Gaul, 641, & ſeq. Swear allegiance to the Gauls, 642, c, d. Their diſmal end, ib. d, e.
— ſlaves redeemed by the Achæans, ii. 674, b—f, & ſeq.
Romans, their origin, government, kings, &c. iv. 429, & ſeq. Firſt alliance with the Jews, 73, & ſeq. Style Hyrcan king, 92. (Q). Friendſhip to the Jewiſh nation, ib. & ſeq. Defeated by the Parthians, 303. Wars with the Latins, 444, & ſeq. Gratitude to Porſena, 477, a. b. Alliance with Carthage, 594, & ſeq. Hemmed in by the Samnites, 611, a. Forced to paſs under the yoke, 612. Retaliate the ſame to them, 616, e. Firſt war with Carthage, 652, & ſeq. New-built fleet, 657, b. Shipwreck 666, e. Peace with Carthage, 678, d. War with Illyricum, 685, & ſeq. New treaty with Carthage, 686, e. Superſtitious butchery, ib. f. Vaſt army againſt Gaul, 687. b. Complaint againſt Hannibal rejected, 692, d. Cauſes a new war, ib. & ſeq. Defeat their fleet, 693, d. Surprized by them, 695, b. and defeated, 699 Maſſacred by the Gauls ib. & ſeq. Defeated by Hannibal, 701. at Thraſymenus, 704, & ſeq. in Apula, 710, & ſeq. Surrender on hard terms, 712. c. Why not redeemed by the ſenate, 714, b. (O). War againſt Perſes 761. Injuſtice to Demetrius, 765, & ſeq. Letter to him, 766, a, b. Ill ſucceſs in Spain, 767. Third war with Carthage, 770. Demand its demolition, 771, & ſeq. Ill ſucceſs againſt it, 773. & ſeq. Cauſe it to be deſtroyed, 779. Ill-luck in Spain, 774, 780. & ſeq. Treachery to Viriathus, 783. Defeated by the Numantines, 784, f. Treachery to them, 785. c, & ſeq. Diſturbed by the Gracchian faction, 791, & ſeq. Invaded by the Cimbri. v. 5, & ſeq. 80000 killed by them, 28, e, f. War againſt Jugurtha, 6, & ſeq. Defeat in Luſitania, 29, a. Terrified at the ſecond approach of the Cimbri, 37, a. Defeated by the allies, 49, c—e. by the Marſi. 50, & ſeq. paſſ. Degenerate under Auguſtus, 297, e. under Nero, 535, paſſ. Forbid to follow the Gothic dreſs, vi. 439, b. Famine and diſtreſs in Spain, 462, e, f. Submit to the Barbarians, 463, a, b. Panic before Niſibis, 475, a, b. in Italy revolt from Leo, 553, b. Submit to the pope as a temporal prince, ib. c. Treaty with Carthage diſcuſſed, 614, & ſeq. How early acquainted with ſailing, 823, (G). Loſs of their fleet, 843, a. & ſeq. Famine and peſtilence in Sicily, 845, c, d. Haraſſed before Lilybeum. 847, & ſeq. Treachery to the Carthaginians, 854. & ſeq. Embaſſy to Hannibal, vii. 3, & ſeq. to Carthage, b. c. Frighted by omens, 10, c, d, 17, d, e. Their camp burnt, 18, d. New defeat, 21. & ſeq. at Cannæ, 30, & ſeq. by Mago, 55, paſſ. Succeſs againſt him, 60, & ſeq, 82, & ſeq. Peace with the Carthaginians, 83, & ſeq. Betray them to Maſiniſſa, 85, b. Jealouſy againſt Hannibal. ib. e, f, 86, c. d. Treachery to them, 93—95. Send Cato to them, ib. & ſeq. New war againſt them, 97, b, c. Perfidy expoſed, 99, & ſeq. Government in Britain, 416, & ſeq. Offices, 417, paſſ. Stations, 418, a—d. Give names to the principal towns 419, c, d. High ways made there, ib. & ſeq. Exhauſt it of its prime youth, 420, b, c. Forſake it, 437, e. Driven out of part of Gaul, 509, & ſeq, 514, b. out of Spain, ib. & ſeq. Defeated in Afric, 533, c, d. In dread of the Vandals, 534, a, b. Driven out of Gaul, 570. Invaſion of Gaul, Germany, &c. ſee under theſe names.
—— called into Sicily, iii. 93, a. Succeſs there, 96, & ſeq. Treaty with Hiero, 98, c, 100, a. Embaſſy ill received at Syracuſe, 102, b, c. War againſt Philip, 147, d. Alliance with Rhodes and Pergamus, ib. e, f. Peace with the Macedonians, 148, b. 149. b. Join againſt Antiochus, 148, & ſeq. Gratitude to Eumenes, &c. 152, b. Anſwer to the Rhodian ambaſſadors, 154, b—f. 155, b, c. Freſh alliance with them, 156, d. War againſt Crete, 170, & ſeq. Conqueſt of it, 171, & ſeq. Take Cyprus by treachery, 184, d. Protect young Ptolemy, 542. f. and the free cities of Aſia, 545. Firſt embaſſy to Antiochus, ib. & ſeq. — 2d, 551, a. Succeſs againſt him, 554, & ſeq. at Magneſia, 564, & ſeq. Peace with him, 565, & ſeq. The treaty at length, 566, (Q). Degeneracy from that time, 567, b, c. Partiality to Phyſchon, 652, a, b. 653, a, b. Embaſſy to him, 656, a, b. Take poſſeſſion of Cyprus, 666. War with Mithridates, 730, & ſeq. 150,000 maſſacred by his order, 731. Cruel revenge, 734, & ſeq. Defeated by him, 749, e Joy at his death, 757, a, b.
—invited into Greece by the Ætolians, ii. 666, c. Peace with the Acheans, 669, c. Alliance with them, ib & ſeq. Sent commiſſaries into Greece in favour of the Lacedæmonians, 679, & ſeq. Inſincerity to the Achæans, 683, & ſeq. Tyranny over them, 685, b. 687, & ſeq. Affront their deputies, 693, b. 694, b. Ally with the Ætolians, 703, b. Surpriſed at Tanagra, 714, c. Send forces againſt Antiochus, 719, d. Diſtruſt the Ætolians, 720, & ſeq. Truce with them, 726. c. Peace 730. Freſh oppoſition, ib. & ſeq. Admitted to the myſteries of Ceres, 732. Reduction of the Athenians, 741, & ſeq. of the Bœotians, 743, & ſeq. of the Acarnanians, 745, & ſeq. of Epirus, 746, & ſeq.
Romanus's ſucceſs againſt the Perſians, iv. 360, d, e.
—poiſoned by Nero, v. 544, b, c.
—extortions in Afric, vi. 349, a, b, & ſeq. Gains over Palladius, ib. d, e. Arreſted by Theodoſius, 358, e. 359, d.
—defeats the Scenitæ in Paleſtine, 520, a. Put to death by Phocas, 538, a.
—Zoe's, General his treaſon, 579, a, b. Cruelty to Leo, ib. Aſſumes the purple, ib. c. Allies with the Bulgarians, ib. e. Outwitted and dethroned, 580, a, b. Baniſhment and death, ib. d, e.
—the ſon of Conſtans crowned. 580, f. Poiſons his father, 581, d, e. Reign and character, 581, a, b. Succeſs againſt the Saracens, ib. d. Death, ib. e.
—IId. forced to marry Conſtantine's daughter, 594, a, b. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Saracens, ib. & ſeq. Works of piety, 595, b. Death, ib. c, d.
—Diogenes. See under Diogenes, 604, & ſeq.
—ſent priſoner to Conſtantinople, vii. 632, f. 633, c. Why unfit for the crown, ib. &c.
—exarch of Rome defeated by Agilulf 685, a.
† Rome, the capital of Latium, 411, c. How, and by whom built, 424, b, c, (L). When, 425, a, b. (M). Deſcribed, ib. c, (O). How peopled, 429, a. Inlarged by Romulus, 430, b. by Tullus, 443, c. by Ancus, 446, a. by Servius, 455, a. Viſited with peſtilence, 463. Formed into a republic, 466, & ſeq. The time of it according to the Newtonian chronology, 467 (T). Plagued with inteſtine broils, 480, & ſeq. 485, & ſeq. With famine, 493, d. Invaded by Coriolanus, 499, & ſeq. By a freſh peſtilence, 518, 532, & ſeq. Aſſaulted by the Volſci, ib. e. Falls under the decemvirs, 535, & ſeq. Plague and famine, 550, c. 554, c. Forſaken at the approach of the Gauls, 563, d. Ruined by them, ib. & ſeq. Saved by Camillus, 566. Rebuilt, 567, & ſeq. New famine and peſtilence, 574, b. 583, e. An earthquake in the forum, 586, d. A new cenſus taken, 598, c. In general mourning, 613, d. A freſh cenſus, 617, c. Severe plague, 638, b—d. Freſh cenſus, 641, d. 647, b. Embaſſy to the king of Egypt, ib. c. Severity to the Campanians, 648. Extent of its territories taken, 649, e. A freſh peſtilence, 651, a. New cenſus, 668, d. Fleet built, ib. f. Inhabitants diminiſhed, 565, 675. Overflowed and burnt, 679, f. In dread of Hannibal, 705. Streets when firſt paved, 760, f. A new cenſus, 765, c. 807, c. In an uproar from the Gracchi, ib. paſſ.
— Its hiſtory from the Gracchian faction, v. 1, & ſeq. A new cenſus, 3, e. Conſternation from the Gauls, 29 a, b. Purified, and how, 43, c. Blocked up by Cinna, 62, a. Freſh famine, 63, e. Invaded by the Samnites, 63, & ſeq. Saved by Craſſus, 64, b, c. Opens her gates to Sylla, 72, a. Made a ſhamble by him, 75, & ſeq. Inſlaved, 77, & ſeq. Reſtored by his abdication, 83, a. In danger from Lepidus, 84, & ſeq. from a freſh famine, 92, b. A new cenſus, 99, d. again, 129, d.

129. d. In a civil war, 131, & ſeq. Deep and ſad conſternation, 132, d, e. Abandoned 133. Confuſion at Cæſar's death, 185, & ſeq. and a new civil war, 201, & ſeq. Under the triumphirate, 220, & ſeq. 260, & ſeq. In flames and confuſion, 224, & ſeq. and ſlaughter, 225, & ſeq. Split into two factions, 263. f. A freſh famine, 271, b, c. Inriched by Auguſtus, 294 f. A freſh cenſus, 296. c, (Y). Joy at Auguſtus's recovery, 303, f. Depopulated by plague and famine, 305, a. as appeared by the next cenſus, 323, b. Deſtroyed by fire, 324. Divided into wards, ib. c. Under a new famine, 333, f. The next cenſus attended with prodigies, 345. In deep mourning for Germanicus, 399. A new famine, 470, e. Want of horſes to grind corn, 476, b. A freſh one under Claudius, 494. a. The city inlarged by him, 507, c. Degenerates under Nero, 535, c, d, 544, e, f. Burnt, 546, & ſeq. Whether by him, 547, d, e. Rebuilt in a new form, 549, & ſeq. A grievous plague, 560, f. and famine, 574, d. Affronts Nero, ib. & ſeq. Joy at his death, 576, d, e. Damaged by an earthquake at Galba's entry, 585, d. Dread at Vitellius's approach, 601, d. From a miſtaken ſedition, 603. Prodigies and famine, 604, d, e. Dreadful caſe after Vitellius's death, 635, c, d. Beautified by Veſpaſian, 647, e, A new cenſus, 651, b. Burnt, 660, d. Repaired by Titus, ib. &c. A grievous peſtilence, ib. e, f. Diſmal ſtate under Domitian, 684, & ſeq.

—— Suffers by fire, water and famine, vi. 58, f. Under two emperors, 62, f, & ſeq. Laid under water, 63, b, c, and other great calamities, 66, b. A three years peſtilence, 90, d. Fire and famine, ib. e, f. Celebrates her Millenium, 166, e. Walls repaired by Decius, 169, c. New peſtilence, 180, b. Maxentius's tyranny, 241, d—f. Why diſliked by Conſtantine, 263, a. In deep mourning for him, 268, d. A new famine, 406, c. A freſh one cauſed by Gildo, 438, a. Greatly ſtreightned by Alaric, 458, a, b. Relieved at a vaſt Charge, ib. d. e. Blocked up afreſh, 460, a. Submits to him, 461, b. A grievous famine, 462, f, 463, c. Taken and burnt by the Goths, 464, c, e. Plundered by Genſeric, 501, b, c. Beſieged by Ricimer, 511, b. Cover'd with the cinders of Veſuvius, ib. d. Submits to Odoacer, 513, f, & ſeq.

—— Taken by Beliſarius, vii. 655, a, b. Beſieged by Vitiges, 656, e, & ſeq. Under a plague and famine, 657, e. Relieved, 658, a, b. Beſieged by Totila, 668, e, f. Its dreadful condition, 669. Surrender'd and plunder'd, ib. & ſeq. Retaken and rebuilt by Beliſarius, 670, e, f. Betrayed to Totila, 672, f. and repaired, 673, c. Retaken by Narſes, 677, d, e. Stript of its privileges, 679, e. Reduced into an exarchate, 683, c. The extent of it, ib. &c. Ravaged by the Lombards, 683, b, c. Revolts from the emperor, 705, d, (Y). Beſieged by Luitprand, 707. Subject to the pope. See ſub Pope, vii. 705. & ſeq.

Romilius's treachery to Sicinius, iv. 531, b—d. Revenged 532, b, c. Propoſes introducing of Solon's laws, ib, e. Choſen Decemvir, 534, a.

Romuald, I. receives the Bulgarians into benevento, vii. 624, e, f. Defends it againſt Conſtans, 695, b, c. Defeats him, ib. e. f. Dies, 700, c.

—— II. conqueſts in Naples, 701. a. Death, ib. b.

Romula, the mother of Galerius, vi. 210, c. Inſtigates him againſt the chriſtians, ib. d.

† Romulea Colonia, in Spain, where, vii. 301, a.

— Put to the ſword, iv. 630, f.

† Romulianum, where, and by whom ſo called, vi. 210, d.

Romulus, by whom brought up, iv. 422, b. Re-inthrones his father, 423, c Builds Rome, 424, c, (L.) His palace deſcribed, 425, c, (O). Choſen king, 426, a. His conqueſts, &c. 429. & ſeq. Wounded by the Sabines, 430, e. Triumphs. 433, & ſeq. Laws 424, a. Death and Apotheoſis. 434, & ſeq.

—— augural ſtaff preſerved, 567, f.

—— the ſon of Maxentius, choſen conſul, vi. 237, a.

—— ſent embaſſador to Attila, vii. 472. a.

Remus, prince of Troy, one of the founders of Rome, ii. 316, f.

— an antient king of Spain, vii. 321, d.

Ronzerius revolts againſt the Greeks, vi. 636, a, b. Put to death by Michael, ib. e.

Roſamond, cauſes Alboinus to be murder'd, vii. 620, e, f. & ſeq. Her flight and puniſhment, 621, e, f. & ſeq.

Roſcillius and his brother's treachery to Cæſar, v. 140, d, (P).

Roſcius, a companion of Sylla's debauches, v. 83, e.

Roſes, Cyrenean, their excellence, vii. 171, a.

Roſicrucian notions, their origin, vii. [418], (C.

† Roſſi, invade the Romans, vi. 580, b. Defeated by Bardas, 585, c. By Zeminiſces, 586, c, d. By Monamachus, 598, b.

† Roſtan, among the Perſians, what, iv. 305. See below Ruſtan, ii. 190, & ſeq.

Roſtral crown at Rome, what, v. 281, b.

† Roſtrata, Columna of Duilius, deſcrib'd, iv. 659, F.

† Roſtratæ naves, whence ſo called, iv. 831, (O).

Roſtrum, whence ſo called, iv. 603.

Rotrudis, taught Greek by Elizeus, vi. 557, d.

Rotharic, put to death by Aripert, vii. 699, b.

Rotharis, choſen king of the Lombards, vii. 689, f. Gives the firſt laws to them, 690, a—c, & (V). His conqueſts, 791, a, b. Death and character, ib. e.

—— a traitor againſt Luitprand murdered, 701, d, e.

Rouas's deſigns againſt the Boiſi, vi. 487, c. Proud meſſage to the Romans, ib. Death ib. d.

Rougas, killed by lightning, vi. 480, c.

Rouille's father, partiality expoſed, v. 222, c. 458, in fin. not.

Rowena, Hengiſt's daughter, whether married to Vortigern, vii. 443, c, d.

Roxana, put to a cruel death by Paryſatis, ii. 137, d.

—— taken priſoner by Alexander, iii. 384. Captivates him, ib. Her cruelty, 418. Impriſon'd by Caſſander, 461, f. Murder'd by him, 462, a.

—— Herod's daughter by Phædra, iv. 152, not.

† Roxolana, Ryſland, ſee Riiſland, vii. 409, d.

† Roxolani, who and where ſeated, vii. 604, e, & ſeq. Succeſs in Mæſia, 605, c. Cut off by M. Aponius, ib. d. Become penſioners to Rome, 606, b. Defeated by the Romans, v. 603, a.

Ruaidus's juſt cenſure of Suetonius, vi. 52, ſub not.

† Rubricatus river in Numidia, vii. 112, a.

—— in Tarracon, 304, a.

Rubrius accuſed of treaſon, v. 349, b.

Rucata, betray'd by the Donatiſts, vi. 359, c.

Ruſilla, Annia's forgery and puniſhment, v. 409, a, b.

Ruſinus, ſent embaſſador to Coſrhoes, iv. 349, a.

— Cornel, a ſenator degraded, 647, a.

— Cæcil, another degraded for dancing, v. 665, e.

— eſcapes Conſtantius's ſnare, vi. 290, c, d.

— treachery to Commodus, 419, d. To Talianus, &c. 421, d. Made guardian to Arcadius, 423. His riſe and character, 431, a. Avarice and ambition, 432, a, b. Cruelty to Lucianus, ibid, d, e. Sets the empire on fire, 433, c, d. Sues to be colleague, 434, c. Murdered by Guinas, ibid. Indignities ſhewed to his corps, ib. e.

—— Stirs up the Hunns, vii. 460, paſſ. & Viſigoths, 504, e, f. Undermines Stilicho, 505, paſſ.

Ruſus Annius, ſent governor into Judea, iv. 194, a.

— Vibulus, ſent by Cæſar to Pompey, v. 138, e.

— Trebell. made governor of Thrace, 396, d.

— Tinnius's ſucceſs againſt the Jews, vi. 39, c. Razes Jeruſalem, ib. e, f.

—— Vetius put to death by Commodus, 88, d.

—— Voluſius ſent into Afric, 241, c.

—— revolts againſt Philippicus, 550, c.

† Rugians, who and where ſited. vii. 664, e, f. Settled in Illyricum, 482, a. Submit to Attila, 466.

Rugula the Hunn aſſiſts OEtius, vi. 482, f. Killed by Lightning, 487, c.

† Rumeſtan, vid. Greeks, iv. 385, d.

Rumitalces, bravery at Nice, vi. 367. a, b.

Runſius, P. Cornelius, degraded, v. 22, f.

Runic character, what, and why ſo called, vii. [428], a. (T). Brought by Woden from Aſia, 489, f. Why condemned, 490, a.

Rupilius Publ. quells the Sicilian Rebels, iv. 796, d, e. His Code of Sicilian laws, 797, a.

Ruritius, ſent into Afric, vi. 349, d. Put to death, 350, a.

† Ruſadir, Ryſadir, where ſituate, vii. 142, e.

† Ruſatus, where ſituate, vii. 113, c.

Ruſbeck's whimſical notion of the Atlantis, v. 86, (Z).

† Ruſciana, where ſited, vii. 671, d. Taken by Totila, ib. d.

† Ruſconium, where ſituate, vii. 113, d.

Ruſelius's revolt, vii. 606, d. Taken priſoner, ib. Sent in chains to Conſtantinople, 607, b.

† Ruſpina, where ſituate, vi. 669. b.

† Ruſſians, Ruſſi, from whom deſcended, i. 17, e. Subdued by Mithridates, iii. 733, d. Seize on Bulgaria vii. 632, f. Driven out of it, 633, b.

Ruſtan and his father re-inthrone the right line of Perſia, ii. 190, & ſeq. Made generaliſſimo, 191. His noble exploits, ib. & ſeq. againſt the Turks, 196, e. Kills the Prince of Perſia in ſingle combat, 221, a. Betrayed by his brother, 223, f. Murdered, 224. Remarks on his romantic hiſtory, ibid. ſub not.
Ruſticana, ſaved by Totila, vii. 669, f.
Ruſticus's mild advice to the ſenate, v. 436, d.
— Junius put to death by Domitian, 674, f, 684, e.
— Aurulenus inſulted by the Veſpaſians, 633, b.
— Jun, in high eſteem with M. Aurelius, vi. 61, e.
† Ruſucurium, where ſituate, vii. 113, c.
Rutius, whence deſcended, iv. 415, b.
Rutilius's ſucceſs againſt Jugurtha, v. 14, & ſeq. Supplanted by Scaurus, 19, e, (H).
— Rufus raiſes an army againſt the Gauls, 29, e. Unjuſtly baniſhed, 46, b.
— Ruf Petil, the betrayer of Sabinus, 433, c.
— P. Lupus, choſen conſul, 28, f. Defeated and killed, 49, e.
— Trebellius put to death, 450, d, & ſeq.
— Fenius promoted by Nero, 424, d. Made his Pretorian captain, 541.
— Muſonius a ſtoic knight inſulted by the Veſpaſians, 633, (B).
— Petil. choſen conſul, 666, b.
— his riſe, writings and character, vi. 476, (R). Itinerary ib. & ſeq.
Rutilus Corn. defeats the Volſci, iv. 555, b.
— C. M. a Plebeian choſen dictator, 590. Cenſor, 592. Sent to quell a mutiny, 598.
† Rutubis, the port of, where ſited, vii. 142, c, 146, d.
† Rutuli, war againſt Latinus, iv. 419, c. Defeat the Trojans, 420, a. Invaded by Tarquin, 464, b. Make peace with the Roman conſuls, 466, e.
† Rutupiæ, Portus Rutupienſis, where ſituate, vii. 408, d, e.
Ruza, a fabulous chief of the Samaritans, iv. 33.

S.

† SABA Mareb, the antient metropolis of Arabia Felix, i. 164, e. By whom built, ib.
— metropolis of the Sabæi, 170, c, vii. 230, e, f.
— the famed reſervoir of, 272, a. Broken and drowns the country, ib. b, c.
† — the diſtrict of, and its towns, &c. vii. 231, a. 235, e.
† Sabæan nations, their extent, cities, &c. i. 170. Origin, ſite, &c. vii. 230, e, f. Government, 245, b—d. Religion, 246, a—c. Peculiar tenets, 247, a, b, (Q).
Sabbaco, Sabbacon, drives Ayſis out of Egypt, i. 263, f. Whether the So of ſcripture, ib. His piety, wiſdom, reign and retirement, ib. c. d. See alſo vol. vii. 211, d, e.
Sabajarus, Valens, why ſo nicknamed, vi. 367, b.
Sabaras, the Perſian, ravages Aſia, vi. 540, d.
† Sabatha Sabota, metropolis of the Adramitæ, vii. 231, c.
Sabbath, Jewiſh laws, poſitive and negative concerning it, i. 600, c, (M). Why and when inſtituted, ib. &c.
Sabbatians ſuppreſſed, vi. 469, c.
Sabbatic year, laws concerning it, i. 612, a. When it was to begin, ib. (L).
Sabian religion, by whom founded, i. 913, e. Its ſteps and progreſs, ib. & ſeq.
Sabina Julia, Titus's daughter, v. 662, e.
— married to Adrian, vi. 11, b. 30, e. Ill uſed by him, 33, a. Her character, ib. b. Death, 35, b.
† Sabines, Sabini, who and where ſited, iv. 411, b. Whence ſo called, 416, d. Invade Romulus, 430, & ſeq. Incorporate with the Romans, 431, d, e. Defeated by Tarquin, 451, & ſeq.
— Subdued, 461, c. 477, e, f. 478, c, d. 479, c.
— women, the rape of, 429, b. Mediate a peace with their parents, 431, a—d. Privileges granted to them, 432, b. (F).
Sabiniana Ala, whence ſo called, vii. 414, f.
Sabinianus's revolt, in Afric, vi. 161, e. Defeat, ib. f.
— ſucceeds Urſinicus in the Eaſt, 306, b. Treachery to him, 307, d, e.
— ſucceſs againſt the Oſtrogoths, 515, f. Defeated by Pitza, 521, a, b. vii. 521, f. & ſeq.
Sabinus, ſent to ſeize Herod's treaſure, iv. 186, b. Beſieged by the ſeditious Jews, 187. Sets fire to the temple, 188, a. Sneaks out of Judea, 189, f.
— Sent againſt the robbers about Rome, v. 283, a.
— Pop. ſucceſs in Thrace, 427, d, e. Death and character, 451, b.
— Titius accuſed of treaſon, 433, b. Death, ib. d, e, (I).
— Cornel. plots againſt Caligula, 482, c. 484, d. Pardoned by Claudius 490, d. Kills himſelf, 492, a.
Sabinus Obultronius put to death by Galba, v. 583.
— Flavius ſucceeds Macer in the government of Rome, 609, b. Cowardice and indolence there, 630, & ſeq. Whether thro' envy, ib. (Y). Beſieged in the capitol, 131, d. Taken priſoner, 132, b. Murdered, ib. c. His character, ib. d.
— Publ. great ſway with Vitellius, 619, b. c. Clapt in irons by him, 628, b, c.
— Julius heads the revolted Gauls, 642, a. Proclaims himſelf, Cæſar. ib. b. Defeat and eſcape, ib. c. Nine years concealment, and adventures, 654, a—c. Diſcovery and execution, ib. d, e.
— Flavius choſen Domitian's collegue, 665, c. Put to death by him, ib. e, f. Character and pretended crime, 686, d.
— Fabius recalled from his government, vi. 132. c. Choſen one of Alexander's council, 138, d. Killed by the mob, 154, b.
† Sabit, a ruined Port in Ethiopia, vii, 190, b.
Sabius ſtirs up the Romans againſt the Capuans, vii. 33, e.
† Sabtah, where ſited, i. 164, d.
† Sabtecha, where ſited, i. 164, f.
Saburrus's valour and defeat, vii. 695, e, f.
Sabus king of Arabia Felix invaded by Gallus, v. 301, & ſeq.
Sabylinthus, a faithful guardian of Epirus, iii. 800, e.
Sacca, the feſtival of, among the Babylonians, what, i, 928.
† Seccæ, who, and whence ſprang, ii. 13, paſſ. 256. Poſſeſs Armenia, ib. & ſeq. Since called Titans, 257, & (A). Wars with the Medes, 13, f. Heroic queen, ib. & ſeq.
Sacophori, Manichees, why ſo called, vi. 397, a.
Saculo, a ſnarling buffoon, put to death, v. 250, b.
Sacerdos Graſidus baniſhed, v. 453.
Sacred Cohort at Carthage, what, vi. 797, (L).
Sacrifice, the daily, Moſes's law concerning it, i. 623, b, c. When it ceaſed, iv, 284, d, (T).
— Human, offered by the Egyptians, 211, f.
— among the Scythians, how performed, ii. 272. The reſt ſee ſub Victims.
Sacrificing Children to devils, whence, i. 131. (W).
— Living Creatures, how performed by the Jews, 628, (M).
Sacrovirs revolt in Gaul, v. 409. Defeat and deſperate end, 410, a.
† Sacrum Promontorium in Luſitania, vii. 298, e.
Sad's conqueſt of Perſia, iv. 304, & ſeq.
Sad-dar, or ſymbol of the old Perſic faith, ſtill extant, ii. 74. a. Compendium of the Zendevaſta, 216, c.
Saddoc, the father of the Sadducees, his doctrine, iv. 36, c.
Saddocus king of Thrace's friendſhip to the Athenians, ii. 504, b.
Sadducees, their riſe, iv. 36, c. Why favoured by Alex. Janeus, 95, & ſeq. Perſecuted by the Phariſees, 103, & ſeq. Peculiar tenets, 166, & ſeq. The cauſe of their infidelity, ib. Their character, 167, d. Downfal, ib. e. Confuted by Chriſt, 231, d, (G).
Sadyates king of Lydia, ii. 334, a.
Saes the Perſian, his treachery to Heraclius, vi. 540, b. Flayed alive, ib. c.
† Sagapola, a mount in Gætulia, vii. 160, e.
Sagillus, king of Scythia, ii. 281.
† Sagunti, the port of, where, vii. 146, c.
† Saguntines their origin, vii. 2, d. Threatned by the Carthaginians, vi. 868, & ſeq. Implore the Romans protection, 870, b, c. Beſieged, ib. f, & ſeq. Noble defence, vii. 3, a, b, &c. Sad cataſtrophe, 5, & ſeq.
† Saguntum, where ſituate, vii. 2, d. Siege and maſſacre, e. f, 5, & ſeq. Vid. iv. 692, b. Rebuilt by Hannibal, 708, f.
† Sahara river in Gætulia, vii. 160, e.
† Sais, an antient city of lower Egypt, i. 176, c.
— defeated by the Romans, iv. 367, d.
† Sala, where ſituate, vii. 142, c.
† — river deſcribed, 145, a.
† Salabes defeated by Geta, v. 493, d. vii. 159, b. Peace with him, ib. c.
† Salacia, a city in Luſitania, vii. 298, b.
Saladin bribes Iſaac againſt Barbaroſſa, vi. 623, f.
† Salab,

† Salah, the ſon of Arphaxad, i. 128, a, b. Conjectures about him, ibid. & (I). Where ſettled, 163, b. One of the chiefs at the diſperſion, ib.
— a prophet of the Arabs, who, vii. 242, e, f. His miracles and death, 243, a, b.
Salamba, an Aſſyrian goddeſs, the ſame with Aſtarte, i. 923, c.
† Salaminiæ, one of the four parts of Cyprus, iii. 175, a.
† Salamis, the Kingdom of, by whom founded, iii. 136, e. Kings of, ib. & ſeq. The end of, 182, e.
† — iſland taken by the Megareans, ii. 423, b. Retaken by Solon, 425, & ſeq. Deſcribed, iii. 245, a, b. Yielded to the Athenians, ib. d. By whom ſubdued, 146, a.
† Salamis, the City of, by whom built, iii. 173, c. 176, b. Beſieged by the Perſians, 180, f. By Demetrius, 183. Retaken by Ptolemy, 184, c. Burnt by the Jews, vi. 23, e.
— the famed naval fight of, ii. 123, & ſeq. 472, & ſeq.
† Salapia, where ſituate, iv. 730, c. Taken by the Romans, ib. & vii. 59, b.
† Salaſci, Salaſſi, who and where ſited, iv. 408, e, f. Defeated, ib. d. Subdued by Varro, v. 299, f.
† Salathus, a river in Getulia, vii. 160, e.
Salatis, the firſt king of Egypt, ſet up by the Shepherds, i. 247, b.
Salca Bæbius, baſely bribed by Jugurtha, vii. 130, b.
† Saldæ, where ſituate, vii. 113, b.
† Salem, Solyma, and Jeruſalem, by whom founded i. 328, (Q).
— a place near Shechem in Canaan, 446, d.
† Salentines, who, iv. 625. Subdued by Volumnius, ib. d, e. by Attillius, 649, d.
† Salera, where, vii. 76. Taken by Scipio, ib. d.
† Salernum in Italy, ſaid to have been founded by Shem, i. 126, (Z).
† Salices, the battle of, vi. 381, f, & ſeq.
Salia, Flavius, an orthodox conſul, vi. 278, a. Sudden death, 374.
Salian Hymn, what, v. 400, (W).
Salii among the Romans, their office, iii. 560, (M). iv. 436, b, c.
† — who, and where ſited, vi. 303, e, f. Subdued by Julian, 304, a, b. See alſo vol. vii. 548, & ſeq. 556, e.
Salinator ſent to guard the Pyrenees, v. 85, d. Murdered by Calpurnius, ib. e.
Saluſtius Criſpus, his extract, v. 354, (G). Privy to Agrippa's murder, ib. a. Over-reaches the ſham Agrippa, 389, e.
— legate of Britain put to death, vii. 431, c.
† Salmantica, Salamanca, a city in Luſitania, 297, e, f. & ſeq.
Salome queen of the Jews, iv. 98, a. Sets Jannæus on the throne, ib.
— Herod's ſiſter, her character, 113, (H). Hatred to Mariamne, 135, c. Helliſh plots againſt her, 139, c, d. Divorces her own Huſband, 140, & (P). Cabals againſt Herod's ſons, 147, b—d, 148, & (H). Accuſed by Alexander, ib c, d. Raiſes new Accuſations, 150, d. Releaſes the Jewiſh chiefs, 114, b. Betrays Archelaus, 186, c. Death and laſt will, 194, a.
— the daughter of Herod by Elpis, 132, ſub not.
— the dancer begs the baptiſts head, 203, e.
† Salona, where ſituate, v. 1, (B). 33, b, (W). Beſieged by Batto, ib. a.
† Salone, taken by Thedoſius, vi. 479, d.
Salonicus's birth celebrated by Virgil, iv. 127, (X).
— Put to death by Poſthumius, vi. 176, c.
Salonius a ſtrict commander, hated by his ſoldiers, iv. 598, f.
— Aſinius's death, v. 414, c.
† Salpinates, who, iv. 561, b. Take up arms againſt the Romans, ib. b.
† Salſum flumen in Numidia, vii. 116, b.
† Salt, the famed valley of, where, i. 310, b. 574, a.
— of Jupiter Ammon, a royal preſent, iii. 147. e.
— houſes built with it in Lybia, vii. 177, e.
Salvianus, Calp. an informer baniſhed, v. 424, d.
— character of the northern nations, vi. 485, d.
Salvidienus comes to Octavian's aſſiſtance, v. 264. Harraſſed by Lucius, ib. & ſeq. Betrayed by Antony, 271, a. His death and extract, ib. & ſeq. & (I).
— writings and character, vi. 203, (A).
Salvius choſen king of the ſlaves, v. 32, a. Treachery to Athenio, ib. f. Cowardly flight out of his capitol, 39, d.
— Coccianus, put to death by Domitian. 674, f.
Salus, the temple of decreed by the ſenate, v. 558, c.
Saluſt the hiſtorian degraded, v. 129, c. Sent againſt the 10th legion, 157, c. Reſtored by Cæſar, 165, b. and promoted, 169, c.
— Secundus, Agricola's ſuppoſed ſucceſſor in Britain, 673, c.
— a great favourite of Julian, vi. 223, e. Made prefect in Gaul, ib. f. Narrow eſcape, 334, d.
— Secundus different from the former, 324, e. Made prefect in the eaſt, ib. Saves the philoſoper Maximus from the mob, 339, ſub not. Refuſes the empire, 346, b, c. Promotes Valentinian's election, ib. c. Reſigns through old age, 370, b.
— the ſtately palace of, burnt, 464, d.
Saluſtius legate of Britain put to death, vii. 431, c.
† Salyes, who, and where, iv. 802, a. Subdued by the Romans, ib.
† Samachonite lake, whence ſo called, i. 577, c. Deſcribed, ibid.
Samachus, Conſtantine the Great's fool, vi. 269, c.
† Samaria, by whom built, i, 808, f. Why called Sebaſte, 588, c. (iv. 114, a. 141, R). Its ruins, 588, c, & ſeq. Beſieged by Benhadad, 383, b, c. Relieved by Ahab, ib. d, & ſeq. Miraculouſly delivered from famine and the Syrians, 387, b. & ſeq. Taken by Shalmaneſer, 835, a, b. Taken by Hyrcan, iii. 614, f, iv. 94, a. Demoliſhed, ib. b. Rebuilt by Gabinius, 114, a. by Herod, 141, d, & (R).
Samaritan Pentateuch, an account of, iv. 33, & ſeq. (K). (L).
— alphabet deſcribed, i. 719, c. Whether it was the antient Hebrew, 720, a, b. Whether the ſame with the Phœnician, vi. 701, & ſeq.
† Samaritans, their origin, iv. 6, (L). Fall out with the Jews, 7, a. Obſtruct the building of the temple, 8, a. ii. 94, c. 102, f. Pay tribute to it, 10, & ſeq. Petition to Alexander rejected, 28. See vol. iii. 334. 338. Baniſhed Samaria, 30, b. Build Schechem, 31, b. Their religion, ib. & ſeq. & (E). Corrupt the Pentateuch, 33, c, d, (I). Claim the Septuagint verſion, 38, b. Ravage Judea, 42, e. Impious policy, 52. Invaded by Judas Maccabeus 64, f. Subdued by Hyrcan, 92, b, (O), 93, et ſeq. Pollute the Jewiſh temple, 193. Converted to Chriſtianity, 254. Deceived by an impoſtor, ib. d. Fall out with the Jews, 264, a. Caſt at Rome, ib. b. Defeated by Cerealis, 272, c.
Samarius, the bloody butcher of Trebonius, v. 203, f.
† Samat, or Great City, taken and razed, 795, d, e.
Sambuca, a warlike engine, deſcribed, iii. 112, b.
Sambus, ſubmits to Alexander, iii. 400, c, et (H).
† Same, the metropolis of Cephalonia, iii. 242, a.
Samea's noble ſpeech to Herod, iv. 119, (I), 144, b.
† Samega taken by Hyrcan, iv. 92, b.
† Samercand, by whom built, vii. 268, d.
Samian War, the grounds of, ii. 493, et not.
— Worthies enumerated, iii. 195, ſub not.
— Exiles aſſiſted by the Spartans, 192. Their ſucceſs, ib. & ſeq.
— Earthen-ware famed, 188, d.
† Samians great navigators, iii. 187, c. Worſhippers of Juno ib. et ſeq. Firſt builders of tranſport ſhips, 188. Their government, laws, &c. ib. & ſeq. Plant a colony in Egypt, 189, a. War with the Egyptians, ib. c. and Megareans, ib. d. Inſlaved by the Syloſon, ib. f. by Æaces, 190, b. By Polycrates, ib. c. by Meandrus, 195, a. by Syloſon IId, 196, & ſeq. Abandon their country, 197, d. Inſlaved by Æaces, ib. & ſeq. Treachery to the Ionians, 197, e. Subjected to the Perſians, 198, d. Revolt to the Greeks, ib. f. Ally with Athens 199, a. Revolt, ib. b. Subdued by Pericles, ib. d. Their various changes ſince, 200, & ſeq.
Samlah king of the Horites, i. 312, c. In whoſe time Eſau peopled part of that country, ib. &c.
Sammonicus's writings and noble library, and death, vi. 129. (O).
† Samnites, who, and where ſited, iv. 412, a. Ally with Rome, 591, e. Defeated by Val. Corvus, 596, c. by Coſſus, 597. Invaded by the Campanians, 599, b. Haughty anſwer to the Romans, 606, e. Outwitted at Paleopolis, 607, c. Defeated by Fabius, 608, d. by Craſſus, 610. by Fabius, ib. e. Force the Romans to a ſhameful peace, 612, & ſeq. Defeated by Lentulus, 615, e. by Papyrius, 616, b, c. In Apulia, ib. d. twice more by Fabius, 618. Loſe 30,000 Men, 619, e. Defeated by other conſuls, 620, & ſeq. Ally with Rome, 627, a. Driven out of their country, 630, f. Slaughtered by Fabius, 633, &

ſeq

ſeq. Oath given to their army, 636, b. Totally defeated 637. New alliance, 640, e. Defeated by Fabricius, 643, f. Quite aboliſhed, 647, e.
— defeated by Sylla, v. 52, d, e. Brought over by Marius, 62, e. March to Rome, 72, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt Sylla, 73, paſſ. Defeated by Craſſus, 74, c. Their miſerable end, ib. d, e.
† Samnium, where ſituate, iv. 412, a. Entered by Julius, Cæſar, v. 49, c. Plundered by Hannibal, vii. 23, d. Taken by the Lombards, 683, e.
Samona's riſe and treachery, to Leo, vi. 576, a—d. Diſgraced, ib. f.
† Samos iſland, deſcribed, iii. 186, & ſeq.
† — metropolis of the iſland, deſcribed, 186, f, & ſeq. by whom built, 187, a. Its rarities, &c. ib. b. Taken by Pericles, 200, b, c. Subdued by the Athenians, ii. 494, a. Revolts ib. c. Retaken and deſtroyed, 495, b. Made free by Auguſtus, v. 399, a. Diſfranchiſed by Veſpaſian, 650, d.
† Samoſata, a chief city in Comagene, i. 360, d. Whence called Samothracia, iii, 186. Taken by Heraclius, vi. 541, b.
† Samothrace, where, iii. 237, d. Deſcribed, 238, a.
† Samothrace, the gods of, dreaded by all nations, 239, b.
——the deluge of, ibid. c. Government, &c. 240, a.
† Samſirenus, founder of the Emeſan kingdom, iii, 848.
——II. His reign, ibid.
Samſon's birth and proweſs foretold by an angel, i, 754, c. Marriage at Timnath, 348. Riddle, and dire Revenge on the Philiſtines, ibid, & ſeq. Betrayed to them by the Jews, 349, a. Carries of the gates of Gaza, ibid. b. Betrayed by Dalilah, ibid. c. &c. His ſlavery and death, 350, a. See alſo, 755, & ſeq.
Samuel, the prophet, born and dedicated, i, 755, d, e. Denounces God's judgments againſt Eli, 756, a. Obtains a ſignal Victory over the Philiſtines, 757, c, d. Diſſuades the people from having a king, 757, paſſ. Anoints Saul, 759, a. Juſtifies his paſt conduct before him, ibid. f, & ſeq. His view in it, 760, a, b. Falls out with Saul, 761, b. Anoints David in his ſtead, 763, c. His death, 768. Apparition, 771, paſſ. Diſcuſſed, ibid. & (P).
—— choſen king of the Bulgarians, vii, 633, c. Horrid ravages, ibid. d. Defeated by the Romans, vi. 591, e, f. vii. 633, e, f. Freſh conqueſts, 634, b, c. Defeated by Uranius, ibid. d, e. By Baſilius, 635, c, d. Breaks his heart, ibid. e. See alſo vi. 597, a.
Sana, Sa, the ſuppoſed founder of Sais, i. 280, c.
† Sanan, the metropolis of Yaman, i. 170, a. Called by the Jews Uzzah, ibid. vii. 230, f. Deſcribed, 235, a, b.
—— the palace of, ibid. c.
Sanballat, why called the Horonite, iv. 21, (G). His ſpight againſt the Jews, ibid. & ſeq. Encourages their renigadoes 26, b. Whether two of that Name, ibid. (R).
Sanchoniatho, his origin of the World, i. 11, d, e. Idolatrous line of Cain, 86, b. Production of the firſt pair, 86, e. Pedigree compared with that of Moſes, 89, b, c. & ſeq. Hiſtory continued, 133, b. Biſhop Cumberlane's amendment of it conſidered, 139, b. His account of the Flood; ſee Deluge.
Sanctuaries at Rome, their number leſſened, v. 412, c.
Sandabad queen of Perſia's unlawful amour with her ſon-in law, ii. 192, & ſeq.
Sandarion left governour at Palmyra, vi. 191, d. Murdered, 192, a.
Sandrocolus drives the Macedonians out of India, iii. 513, f.
† Sangarius river in Phrygia, ii, 294, d.
† —— in Bythinia, iii. 827, b.
† Sangata, where, iii, 393. Razed by Alexander, ibid. & ſeq.
Sangiban, king, who, vii. 476, c, (K).
Sanhedrin, Jewiſh, whether the council of 70 continued, i. 525, (H). No mention of it till the Maccabees, ibid. Their various conſults againſt Chriſt, iv, 223, a. 225, b. 227, a. 233, c. Unjuſt ſentence againſt him, 235, c, d. Horrid hypocriſy, ibid. (R), 236, a. Inveteracy againſt him, 237, & ſeq. Revile him on the croſs, 240, b. Obduracy, 242. Suppreſs the truth of his reſurrection, 244; and the propagation of the goſpel, 252, b.
Santabarinus's treachery to Leo, vi. 573, e, f. Puniſhed, 574, d.
† Santorin iſland; ſee Thera, iii. 214, & ſeq.
Saon poliſhes the Samothracians, iii, 329, e.
Saoſduchinus king of Aſſyria, whether the Nebuchadonozor of Judith, i. 897, a. (N).
Saouk murdered, iv. 389, b.
† Sapeans, firſt inhabiters of Lemnos, iii, 235, a.
† ——in Thrace, their kings, &c. 794, paſſ.
Saph, the ſon of Goliah, ſlain by Sibbecai, i, 357, b.
† Saphar, deſcribed, vii, 232, e. The frankincenſe of, ibid.
Sappho, where born, iii, 204.
† Sapporitæ, who, and where ſited, vii, 232, d.
Sapor, Sapores king of Perſia's ſucceſs againſt the Romans, iv. 326, & ſeq. Shamefully repulſed by Gordian, ib. & vi. 161, & ſeq. Defeated, 163, e. Ravages the empire, 174, a, b. Ill-treatment of Valerian, ibid. e, f. New conqueſts, 176, f, & ſeq. Death, iv. 327, e, f, (D) 328, b.
—IId. his character, iv. 332, paſſ. Perſecutes the chriſtians, ibid. c. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Romans, 333, paſſ. Letter to Conſtans, ibid. f. Succeſs againſt him, 334, c. Againſt Julian, 335, & ſeq. Haughty meſſage to Odenatus, vi. 177, d, e. Defeated by him, ibid. & ſeq. Embaſſy to Conſtantine, 264, f. Repulſe before Niſibis, 277, f. Defeated by Conſtantius, 278, c—e. before Niſibis, 279, d, e. High demands on Conſtantius, 302, e, f. Renews the war againſt him, 306, & ſeq. Cruelty to the Amidans, 307, c, d. Takes ſeveral cities, 308, b. Frighted back by ill omens, 314, c, d. Firſt offers of peace rejected, 329, d, e. Second, 333, b. Sudden fall on Julian's army, 334, a. Peace with Jovian, 341, f & ſeq. Treachery to Arſaces, 372, e, f. Invades Armenia, 373, c. Defeated by Valens, 374, a. Death and long reign, 404, f. See alſo vol. iv. 326, & ſeq.
——IIId, his wicked reign, 328, a.
——Roman general ſent to ſurprize the hereticks, 395, c.
Sapping, when firſt brought into uſe, iv. 445, d.
† Sapteſyte, the rich mines of, iii. 78, b—e.
Saphur's cruelty to the Arabs, v. 273. b.
Sarablagas's ill-ſucceſs againſt Heraclius, iv. 368, a.
Sarac the laſt king of Aſſyria, i. 902, a. Invaded by Nabopalaſſar, &c. ib. Burns himſelf and his palace, ib. b. whether the Sardanapalus of prophane hiſtory, ib. &c.
Saracenic Alphabet, vii. 257, paſſ.
† Saracens, whence ſo called, i. 165, a. Their extract, ibid. b. Who, and where ſited, vii, 227, b. 233, b. Origin of the Name, 240, c, d, (N), 241, b—d. Penſionary to the empire, 283, f, & ſeq. Burn the Alexandrian library, iii, 629, & ſeq. 100,000 of them cut off by the Romans, iv. 340, f. Invade Perſia, 370, c. Whether ſubdued by Trajan, vi. 22, e. Invade Meſopotamia, 289, c. Go over to the Perſians, 329, e. Repulſed by the Goths, 387, f, & ſeq. Waſte Egypt, Syria, &c. 467, c. Deſperate panic under Alamundarus, 475, a. Repulſed by Marcian, 498, b. Join with Mohammed, 543, b. Succeſs againſt the Romans, ib. c—e. Swift conqueſts, ib. e, f. Peace with Conſtans, 545, e. Cruel ravages in Afric, 546, a. in Sicily, ib. Repulſed before Conſtantinople, ib. b. Peace with Conſtantine IIId. ib. c, d. Defeated in Syria, 548, d. Repulſed before Antaradus, ib. Driven out of Armenia, ib. d, e. Freſh invaſion, 550, b. Defeated at ſea, 555, a. by Leo, 557, a. Perſecute the chriſtians, ib. b. Repulſed by Irene, ib. d. Bought off by the Perſians, ib. e, & ſeq. Repulſed in Cilicia, 549, b. Succeſs againſt Irene. ib. d, e. againſt Nicephorus, 561, & ſeq. Defeated by Leo, 562, e, f. Settle in Crete, 566, b, c. Signal victory there, ib. & ſeq. Seize on Sicily, 567, c, d. Defeated by Petrona, 572, a. by Baſilius, 573, c, d. New conqueſts on the Romans, 575, e, f. Defeated by Heraclius, 576, b—f, 581, a. in the eaſt, 582, c, d, 584, a, b, 585, b.
† Saragoſſa, by whom built, v. 299, e. Plundered by the Suevi, vi. 489, e. Taken by the Viſigoths, vii, 514, d.
Sarah paſſes for Abraham's ſiſter, i, 422, e. Taken and reſtored by the king of Egypt, 423, a. by Abimelech, 345, a, b A ſon promiſed to her, 429, a. Severity to Hagar, 430, paſſ. Firſt called Sarah, 427, a, (P). Death and burial, 431, c, &c.
† Saramael, conjectures concerning that place, iv. 85, in fin. (A).
Sarames put to death by Varamus, iv, 360, e.
Sarbanazas defeated by Heraclius, iv, 367, c.
Sarbaratas murders the king of Perſia, iv, 369, f. Mounts the throne, 370, a. Murdered, ib. b.
Sarbarazes repulſed before Chalcedon, vi, 541, f. & ſeq. Revolts to Heraclius, ib. & ſeq. Put to Death by Coſrhoes, 542, a.
Sarbarus's ſtratagem to ſave his own life, iv, 368, d.
† Sarcinates, who, and where, iv, 649, d. Conquered by the Romans, ib.

Sardanapalus's character, i. 885, a. Reign, ib. & seq. Success against the revolted Medes and Babylonians, 886, a—d. Surprized and routed by them, ib. e. Besieged in Nineveh, 887, a. Destroys himself, and his riches, ib. c. Pillar erected to him, ib. (V). Probably the same with Sarac, 902, b.
Sardi send an embassy to Carthage, vii. 42, a. Defeated by the Romans, 45, d, e.
† Sardians, to sell, whence the proverb, iv. 433.
† Sardica taken by Crumus, vi, 562, a. by the Bulgarians, vii, 514, d.
† Sardinia conquered by the Romans, iv. 660, c. Seized by the Carthaginians, 681, d. Recovered, 682, a, 683, c. Made a Roman province, 684, f. Regained from the Carthaginians, 720, b. Taken by Genseric, vi. 507, a. Reduced by Marcellinus, 509, e. by Scipio, 834, b, c. Yielded to the Romans, 864, & seq. vii. 1, & seq. Taken by the Vandals, 536, d. by Marcellinus, 538, b, c. by Genseric, 539.
† Sardis, a city of Lydia, ii. 328, d. Taken and spared by Cyrus, 92, b. Taken and burnt by the Ionians, 109, c. Surrenders to Alexander, 156, d. Taken by the Cimmerians, 334, a.
Sari, a measure of time in Berosus, i. 90, a. (F).
† Sarmatia, its extent, site, &c. vii. 604, e. Various nations, ib. e, f. Submits to Trajan, vi. 18, d. See Sauromatia, ii. 266, & seq.
Sarmatian Giant killed by Constantine, vii. 608, c.
— Games, whence, vi. 257, vii. 608, d.
† Sarmatians, from whom descended, ii. 266, 268, 277, d. & not. Quelled by Domitian, v. 684, a. Defeated by Adrian, vi. 36, b. War against M. Aurelius, 66, b. Defeated, ib. f. by Gordian, 163, c. by Constantine, 257, a. Ingratitude to him, 264, b, c. Severely punished, ib. d. Driven out by their own slaves, 265, a, b. Settled by Constantine, ib. c. Restored and infranchised, 303, c, d. Defeated in Mœsia, 362, c. Sue for peace, 363, a. Cruelties in the Roman territories, 388, a, b. Cut off by Theodosius, 405, e. Settled in Illyricum, vii. 482, a. Their names, character, &c. 605. a, b. First irruptions, ib. b, c. Submit to Adrian, 506, a, b. Peace with M. Aurelius, ib. c, d. New settled, ib. e. Defeated by Caracalla, ib. & seq. by Maximus, 607, c, d. Peace with Probus, ib. e, f. Defeated by Carus, ib. & seq. by Constantine, 608, c, d. Defeat the Goths, ib. e, f. Submit to Constantine, ib. & seq. Beat by the Goths, 609, a. Restored to their country, 610, a, b. Fresh inroads and defeats, ib. b, c. Subdued by the Hunns and Goths, ib. d.
Sarnabazas sent against Heraclius, vi. 540, e. Defeated by him, 541, e.
† Saron, Saronas, the northern part of the Legionic plain, i. 575, a.
† — the gulph of, described, iii. 243, (G).
Sarpedon, Ist and IId kings of Crete, iii. 166, c. Driven from it, ii. 338, b. Settled in Lycia, ib.
Sartamas the Persian governor of Egypt, i. 276, a.
Sarus sent against the Goths, vi 452, d. against Constantine, 454, d. Disobliges Alaric, 453, f. Noble defence and death, 467, e.
Sasales king of the Odrysæ, iii. 793.
Sason, the father of Artaxerxes, iv. 324, a.
† Sason, an island of Greece, where, iii. 240, b.
† Sasanian Dynasty, a list of, according to oriental writers, iv. 373. The end of it. 405, & seq.
† Sasus the golden mines of, vii. 215, (H).
Sasychis king of Egypt, a second Legislator, i. 249, b.
† Sathagetes, who, vii. 466, c. Submit to Attila, ib.
Satibarzanes murders Darius, iii. 359, e. Revolts from Alexander, 361, c. Killed by Erigus, 367, d.
† Saticula, where, and taken by the Romans, iv. 617, & seq.
Satirical Libels, forbid by Octavius. v. 344, e, & seq.
† Satricum burnt by the Latins, iv. 578, b. Taken by Valerius, 595, d.
Saturatius, lays the Sclavi under tribute, vi. 557, e. Conspires against Irene, 559, e, Dies of grief, ib. e, f.
— made collegue with Nicephorus, 561, c. Narrow escape 562, c. Retirement and death, ib. d, e.
Saturn first king of the Celtes, ii. 259, c. His other names, ib. d. Marries his sister Rhea, 260. Taken prisoner and released by Jupiter, ib. c. Dethroned by him, 261, b. Civilizes the Cretans, iii. 168, a.
— the chief deity at Carthage, vi. 681, d, e. Whence the the fable of his devouring his Children, 682, a, (O). The same with Moloch, ib. c, (P).
— the festival of, by whom instituted, iv. 443, e, (X).
— temple, the treasury at Rome, v. 135, a.
— in human worship at Carthage, vi. 679, a. and by other nations, 684, a, b, (Q).
† Saturni Promontorium in Ethiopia, vii. 190, a.
† Saturnia, Italy, who so called, iv. 407, b.
† Saturnine Hill; see Capitol, iv. 430, b.
Saturninus Pompon. his writings and character, vi. 29, sub not.
Saturninus pleads for the sons of Herod, iv. 151, b.
— chosen consul, v. 308 d. Governor of Syria, 331, c. (O). Commands under Tiberius, 333, d. Sent against the Marcomani, 335, b. Speech to the senate, 489, e.
Satyrus, first king of Bosphorus, iii. 841, f. Tribute to Demosthenes, 842, a.
— IId, killed ib. b—e.
— tyrant of Heraclea, 824, d.
— request to king Philip, 294.
† Saverne, where situate, vi. 300, e. Rebuilt by Julian, ib. Fortified, vii. 591, b.
Saul anointed king of Israel, i. 758, d. Received with universal applause, 759, b. Success against the Ammonites, ib. e. against the Philistines, 353, b, c. Tortured by an evil spirit, 764, d. Ingratitude to David, ib. & seq. Cruelty to Abimelech and the other priests, 767, a. to the whole city of Nob, ib. &c. Consults the witch of Endor, 771, a, b. Displeases Samuel, 761, b. Conjectures about his crime, ib. (C). Rejected by God, 762. Defeated and killed by the Philistines, 356, d. His body mangled and hung up, 772.
— Saulinus, king of Scythia, ii. 285.
— the apostle converted; see Paul, iv. 253, & seq.
— a Gothish general under Theodosius, vi. 424, a.
— a pagan one under Honorius, 450, c.
Saurid, believed by the Copts to have built the Pyramids before the flood, i. 184, d.
† Sauromatia, Sarmatia described, ii 266, 268, pass.
Sauromates's embassy to Trajan, vi, 13, d. Driven from Iberia, 373, a. Restored to half of it, ib. e.
† Savus river in Numidia, vii 116, a.
† Sawa worshipped by the Arabs, vii. 248, c.
— a city in Parthia, iv. 289, c.
Saxa defeated and killed, v. 269, a.
† Saxon Shore, where, and whence so called, vii. 408, e, f.
† Saxon, first south kingdom, vii. 445, et seq.
— second, 447, et seq.
— third, west, 449, d, et seq.
† Saxon, fourth, east, vii. 450, d.
— fifth, ibid. e.
— sixth, East-Angles, 452, d.
— seventh, Mercia, 453, b.
† Saxons, their origin and settlements, vii. 440, & seq. Why so called, 441, f, & seq. Their manners, &c. 442, b. Government, religion, &c. ibid. c, d. Sail to Britain, 440, a, b, (T). Success there, 443, b. & seq. Driven out by Vortimer, 444, e, f. Treachery to the Britons, 445, c, d. Victories over them, 446, & seq. Invade the Romans, 435. c. Quelled by Stilicho, 436, c, d. Leave Italy, and cut off by the Suevi. 680, f. Repulsed by Theodosius, vi, 353, f, by Severus, 355, e, f. Settle at Nantes, &c. 508.
Scæva Memor, a dramatic poet's writings and character, v. 693, sub not.
— Mucius; see Mucius, v. 45, & seq.
† Scalabis, a city in Lusitania, vii, 297, b.
Scaldi, Scaldri, Gothic bards, why so called, vii, 489, e, f.
Scamander, the father of Teucer, 311, not.
† — river of Troas, 306, f.
† Scandea, the temple of Venus at described, iii, 242, f.
† Scandeloro, a city in Cilicia, ii. 340, d.
† Scandinavia, the original seat of the Lombards, vi, 391, d
— of the Goths, vii, 486, b. Described ibid. & seq. Whence so called, ib. c. By whom peopled, ib. e.
† Scapteſylæ, the rich mines of, iii, 786, e.
Scaptius procures and unjust sentence against Ardea, iv. 436, e.
Scapula defends Corduba against J. Cæsar, v. 175, a. His death, ib. e.
† Scardian mountains in Macedon, iii. 257, e.
Scarlet, a fine dye of, among the Persians, vi. 191, f.
— coat of arms, the Roman signal of battle, v. 244, e.
Scaurus gained by Aristobulus, iv. 108, b. Letter to Aretas, ib. Made governor of Syria, 112, a.

— Æmilius choſen conſul, v. 3, d. Succeſs in Gaul, ibid. f. againſt Jugurtha, 8, b. Corrupted by him. ibid. e. Goes with Beſtia againſt him, 9, e. Severity againſt his bribed accomplices, 12, e, — the noble conſul wounded by the mobb, 29, c. Severity to his own ſon, 37, b.
— M. Aurel. choſen conſul, 15, d. Taken priſoner by the Gauls, 28, c. His brave advice to them, 29, e. Stabbed by Bojorix, 30, a.
— Mamercus diſcarded by Tiberius, 355, c.
— Æmilius kills himſelf, 449, c, d.
— a grammarian under Adrian, vi. 52, in fin. not.
— general in Gaul, his ſucceſs, and roads there, vii. 396, a.
Scendelaidas, king of Illyricum, accedes to the Achæan league, ii. 652. Repriſals on the Macedonians, 663, not.
Scenes, painted, when firſt introduced, v. 43, d.
† Scenitæ Arabs, who, vi. 519, f. Defeated, ibid. & ſeq. See alſo ſub Arabs.
Sceptre, when wholly departed from Judah, 256, & ſeq. & (O).
Scevinus Fl. the conſpirator. See Flavius v. 551, & ſeq.
Schabour, the Sapor of oriental writers, iv. 375, b.
— Iſt king of Parthia, according to the ſame, 372, (A).
— Iſt king of Perſia born, 375, b. His reign, 376, & ſeq. Death, 378, b.
— IId. why cruel to the Arabs, 380, b, c. Wars with Conſtantius, ibid. & ſeq. Againſt the Delemites, 381, c, d.
— IIId. allies with Theodoſius, 382, b.
Sherkeiar's bloody rebellion, iv. 401, c, d. Aſſaſſinated, 402, b, c.
† Schirvan, a province of Perſia, deſcribed, ii. 36, b.
Schiſmaticks, ſuppreſſed by Conſtantine, vi. 252, b.
Schirin, a chriſtian queen of Perſia, iv. 399, & ſeq.
— Stratagem to come at her husband, 404, c.
Schirouſch, king of Perſia, vid. Khobad, iv. 400, & ſeq.
Scipio Cornel. choſen general of horſe, iv. 558, f. Triumvir, 562. Succeſs againſt the Hetrurians, 629, c, d. Commands the Roman fleet, 657. Taken by the Carthaginians, ibid. e.
— L. Cornel. ſent conſul againſt the Ætolians, ii. 726, b. Againſt Antiochus, iii. 555, f. Comes to Troy, 360. Defeats Antiochus, 564, & ſeq. Peace with him, 565, & ſeq. Comands the Roman fleet, 66c, a. Takes Corſica and Sardinia, ibid. b, c. Outwitted by Hannibal in Gaul, 695, & ſeq. Returns into Italy, 698. Wounded and defeated by the Carthaginians, 699. Paſſes the Trebia, 700, c. Retires to Placentia, 702, a. Sent Proconſul into Spain, ibid. c. Joins his brother there, 708, f. Defeats the Carthaginians, 715. Their farther ſucceſs there, ibid. & 722, e. 723. Defeated and killed, 725, & ſeq.
— Sent conſul into Aſia, 754, f, & ſeq. Defeats the Syrians, 755, c. Tried, 757. His few effects confiſcated, ibid. f. Reduced to poverty, 758, a. Enriched, ibid. b. Degraded by the cenſor, 759, a.
Scipio, the ſons of Corn. Scipio, choſen Ædiles, 723. The reſt ſee under Scipio Africanus, I. & II. under the two next articles.
— Africanus, the eldeſt ſent proconſul into Spain, iv. 730. Takes and plunders new Carthage, 732. His ſignal continence, &c. ibid. (D). Drives the Carthaginians out of Spain, 734. Victory at Bœtica, 737, d. Alliance with Syphax, ibid. & ſeq. With Maſiniſſa, 738, e. Recalled, ibid. f. Choſen conſul, 738, a. Embarks for Afric, 740, c. Succeſs and ſevere Diſcipline, 741, a, b. Proconſulſhip lengthened during the war, 742, b. Burns the enemy's camp, ibid. d, e. Amuſed by the Carthaginians, 744, d, e. Ravages their country, 745, paſſ. Interview with Hannibal, 746, b. Succeſs againſt him, ibid. & ſeq. Propoſes him Peace on the hardeſt terms, 747. Which are accepted, ibid. & ſeq. Triumphs, and is ſirnamed Africanus, 748, e, f. Diſobliges the Plebeians, 753, & ſeq. Serves under his brother, 755, a. Proſecuted, 756, & ſeq. Dies, 757, b. See alſo, vol. vii. 13, & ſeq. iii. 555, & ſeq.
— Æmilianus, or younger Africanus's noble ſpeech to the Romans, 768. Gallantry in Spain, 769, a. Saves the Roman army, 773. Vaſt ſucceſs in Afric, 774, d. Choſen conſul, 775, b. Succeſs againſt the Carthaginians, 776, & ſeq. Takes and utterly razes Carthage, 777, & ſeq. Triumphs over it, 779. Succeſs and cruelty to the Numantines, 786. & ſeq. Sweet retirement with Lælius, 797, Murdered, 798, e. Character, ibid. & ſeq. See alſo vol. vii. 101, & ſeq. Immenſe booty at Carthage, 104. Library, ibid. (S). Divides Maſiniſſa's kingdom, 127, a. Speech to Antiochus's ambaſſadors iii. 565, d.
— Cn. Sent againſt Aſdrubal, iv. 698. b. Succeſs in Spain, 704, a. 708, e.
— proconſul's ſon's noble Speech to his cowardly Romans, 712, c.
— Naſica's ſucceſs in Luſitania, 753. Triumph over the Boii, 754, d. Affronted by the Carthaginians, 768, b. Fury againſt Gracchus, 793, c, d. Succeſs in Macedon, iii. 503. Character, v. 9, b. Death, iv. 804.
— Hiſpalis, dies of an apoplexy, 760, c.
— L Corn. choſen conſul, v. 69, e. Surpriſed and releaſed by Sylla, 70, b, c. Deſerted by his army, ibid. e. Proſcribed, 76, b.
— general of the Pompeii kills himſelf, 165, d.
— P. Corn. conſulſhip, 312, f.
— over-reached by Hamilcar, vi. 830, f. Succeſs in Corſica, &c. 833. & ſeq. & (Q).
— Lucius's Succeſs againſt Oringis, vii. 69, b.
Sciron, an infamous robber killed by Theſeus, ii. 364 (H).
† Sclavi, who, vi. 535. Join with the Avari, ibid. e. againſt Heraclius, 541, c. Defeated by Conſtans, 544, f, & ſeq. Forſake Juſtinian, 547, b, c. Cruelly puniſhed for it, ibid. d. Invade the empire, vii. 674, e.
† Sclavonia, where and whence ſo called, vi. 545, a.
Sclopitus, ſettled in Thermoſciria, ii, 279, not.
Scopus, the Ætolian, ravages Macedon, ii. 653, b.
— ſignal ſervices to Egypt, iii. 543, a, b. (C). Taken priſoner, ibid. Treaſonable attempt againſt Ptolemy, 546, f. Puniſhed, 547, a.
† Scordiſci, who, v. 3. f. Defeat the Romans, 4, a. Defeated by Metellus, 5, a. Repaſs the Danube, ibid. e. Defeated by Minutius, 10, c. Forbad the uſe of gold and ſilver, vii. 384, a, b, (X).
† Scots, who, ſee Caledonians, v. 660, & ſeq. Unconquered by the Romans, 302, d. Invaded by Agricola, 660, b. Irruption on the Romans, vi. 308, e. Invade North Britain, 400, d, e. Receive and aſſiſt the Picts, vii. 403, c. Their origin, 404, b. Whether different from the Caledonians, 414, c. When firſt diſtinguiſhed in hiſtory, 435, b, (Q). Submit to Julian, ibid. Invade the Romans, ibid. c. Repulſed by Conſtantine, 436, e. By Honorius, 437, c—e. Freſh Invaſions, 438. & ſeq. Retire into Ireland, 439, d. Repulſed by the Saxons, 443, b.
† Scour river, the battle at, vii. 424, (D).
Scribonia, divorced by Octavian, v. 275, (N).
— the wife of Craſſus put to death, 499, b.
Scribonius ſeizes on Dynamis's kingdom, v. 315, b. Put to death, ibid. d.
— Proclus murdered by the ſenate, 480, b.
— Driven out of Boſphorus, iii. 843, f.
Scudilio, ſent to fetch Gallus into Italy, vi. 292, f. Hatches his downfal, 293, d.
Scutarii, among the Romans, what, vi. 347, c.
Scothes, I. Mediates a Peace for Perdiccas, iii. 280, f. Mounts the Odryſian throne, 281, 791, & ſeq. II. III. & IV. Their wars with the Macedonians, ibid. & ſeq.
Scydrotheus ſends the Serapis into Egypt, iii. 628, a, b.
† Scylaceum, retaken from Pompey, v. 279, a.
† Scyras river in Macedon, whence ſo named, ii. 397, c.
† Scyros iſland, where, ii. 482. Taken by Cimon, ibid. f.
† Scyrii, who, vi. 396, b. Defeated by Theodoſius, ibid. in Thrace, 459, e. In Corſica, &c. 833, & ſeq. & (Q).
Scytha, a fabulous founder of Armenia, iii. 696, c.
Scytale, Spartan, what, ii. 604, not.
Scythes, the fabled father of the Scythians, ii. 281.
— king of Scythia, kill'd for introducing of Greek cuſtoms, 285, & ſeq.
— king of Zancte baniſhed, 198, b.
† Scythia, deſcribed, ii. 266, & ſeq. Uninhabited towards the North, 267.
— in Europe deſcribed, ibid. f. & ſeq. The Extent of both, 268, d.
— ſubmits to Attila, vii. 466, c.
† Scythians, the opinion of the fathers about their origin, i. 167, d. Whence ſo called, ii. 266, a. Deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. Deſcended from Magog, 241, & ſeq. Different from the Celtes, 242, & ſeq. Their migrations towards Europe, 244. Territories deſcribed, 266, & ſeq.
† Royal Scythians, where ſituate, 269, a. Their government, laws, &c. 270, paſſ. Character, valour, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Why miſrepreſented by the Greeks, 273, b. Very populous, 274. Language, trades, &c. 275. Diſcovery of the Amazons, 279, not. Kings, 280, & ſeq. Conqueſt of Aſia, 281, & ſeq. Diſpoſſeſſed by treachery, 282, 282. Their return oppoſed by their ſlaves, ibid. & ſeq. Invade Media, 16. Prevented from conquering Egypt, 17, a. Plunder the temple of Aſcalon, 282, a. Puniſhed ibid, &c. Invaded by Darius, 105, & ſeq. 283. Meſſage to him, 283, e, & not. Brave defence againſt him, ibid. & ſeq. Force him out of Scythia, 285, a. Betrayed by the Ionians, ibid. Outwit the king of Macedon, 286, c, d. & ſeq. Overthrown by him, 287, b. Some account of the other Scythian tribes, 386, not.

— driven out of Bactria, iii. 846. Defeated by Alexander, 351, c, d. and reduced, 370, f, & ſeq. Peace with him, 372, e. Friendſhip to the Jews, iv. 67, e. Invade the Romans, vi. 110, e. Driven back by ſtorms, ibid. Invade Aſia, 171, c. Deſperate defence, 586, c. d. New invaſion, 611. Total defeat, 612, a. New war, ibid. d, e. Repulſed before Adrianople, ibid. f. & ſeq. By John Comnagen, 618, a.
— of Bede, who, vii. 403.
— Hunns, their bloody character, &c. 457, b, c. Government, ibid. e, f. The reſt ſee under Hunns.
† Scythopolis, Bethſhean in Judea, ſo called by the Scythians, ii. 282. Betrayed to Hircanus, iii. 614, f. iv. 94, b. Made the metropolis of Paleſtina Secunda, vi. 372. d.
Sea, Salt, and dead, ſee Aſphaltite, i. 576, & ſeq.
— overflows in Gallienus's reign, iv. 180, b.
Seal royal, ſacred among the Macedonians, iii. 264, c.
† Seba, where ſited, i. 164, d. By whom founded, vii. 230, a.
† Sebaſta, ancient Samaria, its ruins, i. 588, c. Why ſo called, iv. 114, a. 141, (R).
† Sebaſte, a city in Cilicia, ii. 240, d.
† Sebaſtia, the ſecond city in Armenia, iii. 693, b.
— in Pontus, 721, b.
Sebaſtian, Julian's general perſecutes the chriſtians, vi. 331, b. The orthodox, 354 e. Supplies Jovian with Proviſions, 342, f. Succeſs againſt the Goths, 382, & ſeq.
— made collegue to Jovinas 467, e. Murdered by Ataulphus, ibid. f.
Sebat, the fifth Jewiſh month, anſwering to our January, i. 611, (K).
† Sebta, Ceuta, a maritime town in Afric, i. 126. Said to have been built by them, ibid. (Z).
Sects, among the Jews, according to the Talmudiſts. i. 732. Alluded to by St. Paul, ibid. Four principal ones deſcribed, iv. 164, & ſeq.
Secular games, under Antoninus, vi. 58, b.
Secundus Satr. a tool of Sejanus, v. 423, a.
— of Nero's rapine, 550, c.
— Julius, his writings and character, 656, (D).
† Secut, the head of the Nile, vii, 187, a.
Sedechus's treachery to Anicetas, v. 636, a, b.
† Seduſii, who and where ſited, vii. 407, d.
† Segeſta, a city in Sicily, deſcribed, iii. 7, f, & ſeq. Taken by the Romans, vi. 828, d. Why ſo named, ibid. (K).
Segeſtani reduced, v. i, a. (A).
Segeſtes, a friend to the Romans, v. 372, c. Speech to Germanicus, 374, a.
† Segobria, capital of the Celtiberi, vii. 307, (K).
Segoveſus ſettles in Bohemia, iv. 561,
Seguntines ſubmit to Cæſar, vii. 426, b. Where ſited, ibid. (F).
† Seguſia, Suſa, metropolis of the Seguſians, iv. 409, a.
† Seguſiani, where ſituate, iv. 408, e, f.
Sejanus, whence his hatred to the Jews, iv. 408, e, f. Made governor of young Druſus, v. 362, c. Ill offices to Agrippina, 377, e. Great ſway, 408, a. Statue ſet up in the theatre, 414, a. Character and views, ibid. & ſeq. Attempt againſt Druſus, 416, & ſeq. Againſt the ſons of Germanicus, 418, d, 420, a. Petitions to marry Livia, 425, e. Perſuades Tiberius to retire, 426, d. Hatches Agrippina's ruin, 427, e, & ſeq. and of her two ſons 430, & ſeq. Exceſſive arrogance, 435, a, b. 439, b. Bold letter to the ſenate, 436, f. Honours decreed to him, 437, & ſeq. Choſen conſul, 438, a, b, (O). Over-reached by Tiberius, ibid. & ſeq. Forſook by his creatures, 448, b, c. Impriſoned, ibid. e. Put to death with his children, 441, & ſeq.
Sejanus L. affronting behaviour to Tiberius, v. 445, b.
Seif ebon D'hu, drives the Ethiopians out of Yaman, vii. 271, e. The laſt of Hamyar's race, ibid.
† Seir mount, the ſettlement of Eſau, i. 307.
— a Horite, who gave name to it, 308. His deſcendants reigned as dukes there, 312.
— the wilderneſs of, 527, d.
Sejus, the father of Sejanus his extract, v. 415, a.
— Carus put to death by Heliogabulus, vi. 136, e.
† Sela, Petra, a city in Edom, 309, c.
† — capital of Arabia, ibid. d. Taken by Amaziah, 316 b. and called Jockthel, ibid. c.
† Selaſia the famed paſſage of, deſcribed, ii. 648, d.
— the battle of, 649, paſſ.
Selene, wife of Antiochus, keeps Ptolemais, iii. 617. Put to death by Tigranes, 619, b.
† Seleucia, a city in Seleucis, i. 361, a.
† — in Cilicia, by whom founded, 340, d. iii. 515, a, (F). Recovered from the Egyptians, 535. f.
† — Trachiotis, by whom built, 546, f, (E).
† — on the Tigris, deſcribed, 515, & ſeq.
† — taken by Alex. Janneus, iv. 102, a.
† — ſubdued by Trajan, vi. 21, a.
† — demoliſhed by Caſſius, 65, d. by Severus, 114, b. by Carus, 204, e.
† — the famous port of, built, 277, e.
Seleucidæ, whence ſo called, iii. 509, d. A liſt of them, ibid. e. Their reign, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
— the æra of, how and whence computed, 512, c, d. 513, c.
† Seleucis. part of Syria, its ſituation, i. 361, a.
Seleucus Nicator, founder of the Syromacedonian kingdom, iii. 509, f. Various attempts againſt Eumenes, 426, d. 510, paſſ. Attachment to Antiochus, 431, d. Falls out with him, 432, a. 510, & ſeq. Reception at the Egyptian court, 511. Invades Babylon, ibid. Defeats Nicanor, 512, e. Gains Suſiana, Media, &c. ibid. c. Vaſt ſtrength, ibid. d, e. Recovers Babylon from Demetrius, 513. Aſſumes the royal title, ibid. e. Goes into India, ibid. & ſeq. Defeats and kills Antigonus, 441, 514, c, d. Builds Antioch, ibid. e. Allies with Demetrius, 516, a, b. Strips him of Cilicia, &c. 516, e. Impriſons him, 444, & ſeq. 518, d. Yields his wife and part of his dominions to his ſon, 519, & ſeq. Kindneſs to Ptol. Ceraunus, 468, Defeats and kills Lyſimachus, 469, a. 520, d. Takes the name of Nicator, 521. Baſely murdered by Ceraunus, 469, b. 521, c. His character, ibid. & ſeq. Coin, 620, (W).
— Callinicus mounts the throne by parricide, 525, & ſeq. Invaded by Ptolemy, 527, a, b. and defeated, ibid. c. d. by his own brother, 528, c. Drives him off, 529. Taken priſoner by Arſaces, ibid. d. Dies, ibid. e. Why called Callinicus, ibid. f. Coin, 620, (W).
— Ceraunus, his character and death, 530, a, b.
— Philopator's ſucceſs in Aſia, 556, b. Driven out of Pergamos, 557, c, d. Succeeds his father, 569, a. Generoſity to the temple of Jeruſalem. ibid. b. Poiſoned by Heliodorus, 570, c. His coin, 521, in fin. not. See alſo vol. iv. 45, c.
— the ſon of Demetrius Nicator murdered by his own mother, 612, a.
— the ſon of Gryphus defeats his uncle, 615, c. His defeat and death, ibid. d, e.
— king of Boſphorus, 841, e.
— Cybioſactes, why ſo called, 667, e. Sent to Rome, 617, b, c. Made king of Egypt, 620. His death, ibid. & (W). 667, f † Selga, where ſituate, iii. 550, (H).
† Selgovæ, who and where ſited, vii. 413, f.
† Selinuntines, who, and where ſited, iii. 25. Firſt war, with the Egeſtines, ibid. & ſeq. Second war, 37, & ſeq. See alſo vol. vi. 737, & ſeq. Defeated by the Carthaginians, ibid. 738, f.
Selinus king of Ægialea, gives his daughter to Ion, ii. 414, d.
† — the city of, deſcribed, iii. 6, & ſeq. Taken and razed by Hannibal, 38, b—f. vi. 741, & ſeq.
† — the river of, iii. 6.
— temples of, plundered, vi. 742, d, e.
† Selli, who, and where ſited, iii. 798, d.
† Selymbria incloſed within Anaſtaſius's long wall, vi. 521, e. Noble defence againſt the Turks, 650, c. Taken, ibid. d.
Semiramis, her birth, i. 875, a. Married and carried to Nineveh, 876, a. Goes to Ninus's camp at Bactra. ibid. e. Cauſes the city to be taken, 877, b. Married to Ninus, ibid. c. Her character, 878, a, & (Y). Builds Babylon, ibid. b. By the lake ſhe dug, 879. Temple of Belus, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Wars with the Medes, 880, a. Invaſion of India, ibid. & ſeq. Mock elphants, 881, a. Paſſes the Indus, 882, b. Routed by Strabrobates, ibid. d, e. Aſſaſſinated by an Eunuch, ibid. & ſeq. Etymon of her name, 885, (P). Her paſſing for her ſon Ninyas exploded, 877, (W). Worſhipped in the form of a dove, 862, a. Who ſhe probably was, 942, f. Her reign in Babylon, lon, accounted for, 943, b. Why ſo ſhort, ibid. e, f. Other particulars of her, 944, c, & ſeq. and fabulous exploits in Media, ii. 12, paſſ.

Semo, taken priſoner by Probus, vi. 200. f. vii. 528, c. Releaſed by him, vi. ibid. & ſeq.
† Semnones, Sennones, who, and why ſo called, vii. [410] a, (G). Ally with the Ædui, 367, (C). Invade the Cluſians, 370, a, b. Noble anſwer to the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
Sempronia's treachery to her huſband, iv. 798, e.
Sempronian Law, what, iv, 789. Cauſes new troubles at Rome, 798, b.
Sempronius Attratinus's ſpeech againſt the Agrarian law iv. 505, a. Choſen conſul, 546, e. Cenſor, 547, d. Ill ſucceſs againſt the Volſci, 551. Tried and acquitted, 552, Tried again, and fined, ibid. f.
— Sophus's ſucceſs againſt the Æqui, 627, b. againſt the Picentes, 649, c.
— Blæſus triumphs over Sicily, 667, f.
— Tuditanus ſent to ſeize on Sardinia, 681, d. Succeſs in Gaul, 723, a—c. Repulſed by Hannibal, 740, d. Defeats him, ibid. e. Killed by the Spaniards, 751, a.
— Tib. Long. defeats the Carthaginians at ſea, 693, d. Sent againſt Hannibal, ibid. f. Joins Corn. Scipio, 700, d. Defeated, 701, paſſ. Bold journey to Rome, 702, b, c.
— Tib. Gracchus, choſen conſul, 718. Defeats the Campanians, ibid. f, & ſeq.. Saves Beneventum, 720, f. Defeats the Carthaginians, 721, c. Betrayed and murdered, 724, paſſ.
— Gracchus debauches Julia, v. 358, b. Baniſhment and death, ibid. c, d.
— a valiant friend to Galba, 596, b. His death, ibid. d.
— a vile Eunuch made governor of Rome, vi. 125, b. His revolt and death, 181, e, f.
— Sextus Jul. revolts, 201, f. Defeated and put to death, 202, a, b.
— the baſe judge of Timaſius, 436, e, f, & ſeq. Delivered up to Gainas, 445, d. Baniſhed, and eſcapes to Conſtantinople, ibid. e, f.
— recalled againſt Hannibal, vii. 17, a, b. Fatal raſhneſs, 18, e, f. Defeat, 19, b, c. Watches him at Luceria, 47, a. Surprized and ſlain, 54, e, f.
Senate of Athens, ii. 430, c. Increaſed, 438, b. How choſen, 440. A new one of 400 choſen, 523, et ſeq. Augmented to 5000, 525.
— of Sparta, inſtituted by Lycurgus, ii. 560.
— of Rome, how, and when inſtituted, iv. 427, b, & ſeq. Partiality to Herod, 126, e. Diſobliged by Romulus, 434, & ſeq. Partiality to Jugurtha, v. 8. Power curtailed, 30, d. Threatned by Marius's faction, 40, f, et ſeq. Deputation to Sylla, 69, a, Cowardice to Pompey, 100. et ſeq. Fatal decree in his favour, 131, b, c. Affronted by Cæſar, 178, paſſ. Divided on occaſion of his death, 187, f. General amneſty to the conſpirators, 188, d, e. Baſe ſubmiſſion to Octavian, 281, d. and flattery to him, 282, e, f. How regulated by him, 296, a. 297, a, b. Heap new titles, &c. on him, 296, f. 298, d. and larger power, 299, f. 301, b. 304, c. Reformed by him, 311, c, d. Regulated afreſh, 322, a. Recommended to Tiberius, 345, b. Flattery to him, 354, et ſeq. Highly reſpected by him, 371, b, c. Baſe flattery to him, 388, a. 412, b, c. Honours to Germanicus, 400, e. Servility to Sejanus, 437, & ſeq. to Caligula, 468, c, d. 470, c, d. 476, c, d. Cruelly requited by him, 479, et ſeq. Makes a puſh for liberty, 481, d, e. Outwitted by Agrippa, 490, d, e, (R). Proclaims Claudius, 492, c, (S). Slaviſhneſs to Pallas, 513, b, c. to Nero, 535, c, d. 543, b. 548, b. 551, b. to Nymphidius, 583, f. to Otho, 596, a. Partiality to their own body, vi. 4, c, d. Honours to Trajan, 21, a, b. 22, f. Favour for Adrian, 46, paſſ. 54, e. Honours to Antoninus, 55, a, b. Flattery to M. Aurelius, 79, a, b. to Commodus, 92, e. Fury againſt him after his death, a, b. Acknowledge Pertinax, 96, b. and Julianus, 101. Proſcribe him, 106, d. Submiſſion to Severus, 107, e. Hatred againſt Caracalla, 130, e. Acknowledge Macrinus, ibid. f. Reſentment againſt Maximin, 154, b—d, (S). Applied to for a new emperor, 198, a, b. Chuſe Tacitus, ibid. c, d. Reſtored by Conſtantine, 247, c, d. Embaſſy to Theodoſius for the altar of Victory, 414, f. Converted to chriſtianity, 415, d, e.
— of women, inſtituted by Heliogabulus, vi. 136.
Senate-houſe burnt by the mob, 126, a.
Senators of Athens, their power, &c. ii. 440, & ſeq. Salary, 441.
Senators of Rome, the age required, iv. 491, a, (M). Degraded for luxury, 647, a. A new ſet of them raiſed, 717, e, f. Murdered by Marius, v. 65, a. Forty proſcribed by Sylla, 75, e. Butchered by Catiline, ibid. & ſeq. 82, e. Six hundred and forty degraded by Catulus, 99, d. Their number augmented to nine hundred, 178, a. Three hundred more proſcribed, 225, c. Carried away by Otho, 605, a. Ill-treated by the ſoldiers, 613, e, f. Augmented to one thouſand by Veſpaſian, 647, d. Honoured by Antoninus, vi. 56, d. Forty put to death by Severus, 113, e. Forbid to live far from Rome, 302, c. How to be tried, 378, a.
Seneca's baſe adoration of Druſilla, v. 467. Narrow eſcape, 473. Character of Caligula, 485, a. Baniſhed by Claudius, 493, b. Recalled by Agrippina, 506, e. Unjuſt character of Claudius, 517, a, b. Made one of Nero's governors, 518, d. Blamed for his remiſſneſs to him, 520, e, f. 523, d. Charged with divers ſhameful crimes, 526, e. Advice about Agrippina's murder, 533, e, f. Extortions in Britain, 557, f. Whether ever choſen conſul, 541, b. Accuſed to Nero, 542, b. Retires, ibid. d, e. Cloſe confinement and abſtinence, 550, d, e. Accuſed by Natalis, 553, b. 554, e. His death and character, ibid. & ſeq. Whether in the conſpiracy againſt Nero, 555, e, f. His writings, &c. 578, (T). Life and blemiſhes, 579, ſub not. Date of his works, ibid. Forged letters to and from St. Paul, 580, ſub not. Where born, vii. 313, f.
Senecio, a lewd favourite of Nero, v. 520, e.
— Tullus conſpires againſt Nero, 551, & ſeq. Turns informer, 523, b, c.
— put to death by Domitian, 684, e. His crime, 685, a, b.
— choſen conſul, vi. 9, a.
— treachery to Conſtantine, 254, d.
Senes, whence ſo called, vi. 825, (D).
Seniauchus murdered in Gaul, vi. 345, b.
† Senjar city, its ſite, i. 142, c, & (F). Called alſo Samara, ibid. d.
† Sennaar of Babylon, i. 142, b.
Sennani, druids, why ſo called, vii. 360, (D).
Sennacherib, Sankherib, ſucceeds Shalmanezer in Aſſyria, i. 892, b. Beſieges Lachiſh, ibid. c. Proud letter to Hezekiah, 838, a. Unſucceſsful expedition againſt the Jews, 894. One hundred and eighty thouſand ſmitten by an angel, 895, a. What is meant by it, ibid. (Z). Tyranny to the captive Jews, ibid. a. Murdered by his two ſons, ibid. &c.
† Sennar watered by the Nile, vii. 187, b. Whether different from Nubia, ibid. (E).
† Sens, where, vi. 298, d. The ſiege of, raiſed, ibid. d.
Sentius's bravery in Parthia, vi. 18, f.
† Senones, where ſituated, iv, 561, f. Invade Hetruria, 562, a. Defeat a Roman legion, 563, a. Murder the Roman deputies, 643, b. Defeated, ibid. c, d.
† Sephar and Meſha of Moſes, where ſited, i. 169, d, e. Various opinions about thoſe mounts, ibid. & ſeq.
† Sephoris made one of the five courts, iv. 114, b. Where ſituate, 188, (R). Taken and deſtroyed, 189, d. Rebuilt and fortified by Antipas, 194, d.
† Sepinum taken by the Romans, iv. 637, e.
† Septa; ſee Ceuta, vii. 139, c.
September, the month of, why called Germanicus, v. 676, d.
Septimus the baſe murderer of Pompey, v. 150, a.
— a centurion inſulted by his ſoldiers, 365, a.
— his writings and character, vi. 148, (Q).
Septuagint Verſion, when, how, and by whom made, iv. 37, & ſeq. & (O).
† Sepulchre of the kings at Jeruſalem, i. 589, a, (R). Deſcribed, ibid. & 698, b—d.
— of the common Jews, ibid. & ſeq.
— that of David ſtill to be ſeen, ibid. & 589, b. Broken up by Hyrcan, and 3000 talents taken out of it, 699, a. Another vaſt treaſure taken out by Herod, ibid. &c. The ſtory examined, iv. 91, (M).
— at Athens, Solon's laws relating to them, ii. 433.
† Sequani, who, and where ſeated, vii. 367, c. Subject to the Arverni, ibid. Invaded by the Germans, v. 118, b, (W). Faithfulneſs to the Romans, 642, f.
Sequinus, the famed ſtory of, iv. 440, d, e.
Seraia, one of the heads of the returning Jews, iv. 4, b.
† Serapeum deſcribed, iii. 628, d. The famed library of, 629, d.
Serapion murdered by Achilles, iii. 675, e.

Serapis, one of the Egyptian deities; i. 204; e. Whether the ſame with Oſiris, ibid. How repreſented, 205, e.
† — the ſtatue of, brought into Egypt; iii. 627, & ſeq. Whence ſo called; 628, (B). Broken, vi. 417, c.
— the temple of, demoliſhed by Theodoſius; vi. 416; & ſeq.
Seras, an informing philoſopher, executed, vi. 3, c. Found innocent; 4, d.
† Serbetis, Yſer river in Numidia, vii. 116, a.
† Serbonis, a dangerous lake between Egypt and Phœnice; ii. 153, a.
Serena, the celebrated daughter of Theodoſius, vi. 390, e. Married to Stilicho, 425. d. Plunders the ſtatue of Cybele, ibid. e. Put to death; 458, e.
Serenianus delivers up the city of Cyzicus, vi. 367, d. Put to death, ibid. His reaſon for ſurrendering it, 368. f.
Serenus, Vib. See Vibius, v. 419.
† Seres, the ſame with China; v. 300; b.
Sergia, a poiſoner at Rome put to death, iv. 605, a—d, e.
Sergius the martyr prayed to by Coſrhoes, iv. 364, e, (D).
— his revolt and death, vi. 530, a.
— patriarch of Conſtantinople left prime miniſter by Heraclius, 540, b.
— governor of Sicily, raiſes a revolt, 551, a.
Seriphean frogs dumb; iii. 218, b.
† Seriphians, who, and whence, iii. 218, a. Their government, &c. ibid. &c.
† Seriphus iſland deſcribed, 217, & ſeq.
Seron defeated and killed, iv. 58, c.
Serpent, the body of, why uſed to tempt Eve, i. 61, a. What kind, 62, a. Its puniſhment reaſonable, ibid. e. Suppoſed by Joſephus endued with ſpeech, 61, (N).
— Mohammedan traditions about it, ibid. & ſeq.
— fiery Serpents that annoyed the Iſraelites, their nature, 532, (S).
— craft of enchanting of Serpents conſidered, 853, f.
— a dangerous kind of them in Numidia, vi. 805, (S). which live upon duſt, ibid. ad fin. and their monſtrous ſize, 837, (T).
Sertorius ſaves himſelf in his firſt campaign, v. 28, f. Bravery in Spain, 44, e. and againſt the Allies, 49, d. againſt Cinna, 61, d. Advances againſt Marius, ibid. e, & ſeq. Proſcribed by Sylla, 76. b. Succeſs in Spain, 85, c, d. Forced into Afric, ibid. e. Shipwreck'd ibid. & ſeq. Succeſs in Mauritania, 86, b: Heads the Luſitanians, ibid. & ſeq. Excellent character, and ſucceſs, 87, paſſ. Civilizes the Luſitanians, 88, paſſ. Gains on their ſuperſtition, ibid. & ſeq. Succeſs againſt Pompey. 91, & ſeq. Defeats him, 92, e. Contemptuous ſarcaſms on him, 91, d. 93, a. Second victory, ibid. d. Forces him out of the field, ibid. e. and two other generals out of Spain, ibid. & ſeq. Filial love, 94, b. Glorious treaty with Mithridates, ibid. e, & ſeq. Conſpired againſt, 95, d, e. Severity to the Luſitanian hoſtages, 96, a. Aſſiaſſinated, ibid. e.
Servants, their condition ar Athens, ii. 438, c.
Serug, the ſuppoſed inventer of coinage, i. 131, b, & W.
† Servia taken by Baſilius, vii. 635, a.
Servianus's conſulſhip and character, vi. 17, b, c. Succeſs in Pannonia, ibid. Put to death dy Trajan, ibid. d.
— ill-offices to Adrian, 30, e. Put to death, 44, b.
† Serviere, the famed lake of in High Dauphiné, ii. 249, b.
Servii defeated, vi. 618, a.
Servilia's love-letters to J. Cæſar, v. 107, (N). Divorced by Octavius, 224, a.
— the daughter of Thraſea tried, 563, b. Noble defence before the ſenate, ibid. d. Death, ibid. & ſeq.
Servilius, C. defeated by the ſlaves, v. 3. e.
— Q. murdered by the Auſculans, 49, a, b.
— P. Vatia choſen conſul, 82, d.
— Iſauricus defeats the pyrates, 95, a.
— Nonnianus's writings and character, 57, (T).
— Sentius defeats, and takes Piſo priſoner 400, d
— ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, vii. 27, b, c. Defeated and killed, 30, f.
Servius Maluginus ſucceeded by his ſon, v. 419, d.
Seſac's conqueſt of Æthiopia, vii. 207, paſſ. Civilizes it, 208, & ſeq.
Seſhac, a Babylonian deity, i. 923, d.
Seſochris king of This in Egypt, i. 239. His monſtrous ſtature, ibid. e.
Seſoſis king of Egypt; ſee Pheron, i.
Seſoſes's fidelity to Cavades, iv. 344, d. Rewarded, 345, a. Put to death, 346, e, & ſeq.
Seſoſtris king of Egypt, i. 249, d. Whether the Sheſac of ſcripture, ibid. (H); or the Pharaoh who periſhed in the red-ſea, 251, (N); All the boys gathered that were born on the ſame day with him, 254, a: Undertakes to ſubdue the world, 255, a. Divides Egypt into thirty-ſix nomes; ibid. b. Military order; ibid. c. Conqueſt of Ethiopia, ibid. Inſtitutes the maritime order, e. Over-runs Aſia, and part of Europe; ibid. f. Plants a colony in Colchis, 256, b. His pillars and ſtatues; ibid. c, d. Return into Egypt, ibid. Miraculous deliverance from his bloody brother; ibid. f. His religious, civil, &c. works, 257; b, c; &c. Inſolence, ibid. f; & ſeq. Kills himſelf, 258, a. See alſo vol. vii. 207, d. & ſeq.
Seſſorian church, built by Conſtantine; vi. 248, f.
† Seſtiarium, the promontory of; where, vii. 145, b.
Seſtius oppoſes the Terentian law, iv. 533; c. Yields it to the tribunes; ibid. d. Made Decemvir, 534, a.
Seſtius P. Receives the faſces from Auguſtus; v. 304, b.
† Seſtos, where, ii. 476. Taken by the Athenians, ibid. d.
Seth, the ſon of Adam; when born, i. 75; d. His offſpring, ſuppoſed meant by the ſons of God; 77. Their religious life, 81, b. Defection, whence and when, ibid. b—d. Who meant by his children in Balaam's prophecy, 289, (N). His name known in Egypt; 81, (N). Line acccording to Sanchoniathon, 134, (N). Worſhipped by the Sabians, vii. 248, in fin. not.
Sethites, their impiety, i. 83, b, c.
Sethon, king and prieſt of Egypt, i. 264, e. Miraculous victory over the Aſſyrians, ibid. f. His ſtatue why repreſented with a rat, 265, a. See alſo vol. vii. 211, e. & ſeq.
Seven, ſome curious remarks on that number, vi. 684.
Severa, the wife of the emperor Philip, vi. 165, a. A good chriſtian, 167, f.
— the mother of Gratian divorced, 352, d; e. & ſeq. Recalled by him, 377; e.
Severianus made governor of Macedon, vi. 166, c. Recalled, 167, b.
— the ſon of Severus put to death, 253, e.
— defeated and killed by the Germans, 350, e.
Severinus, totally defeated by the Parthians, 63. e.
Severus's ſuceeſs in Parthia, iv. 321, e, f. Againſt the Perſians 325; e, f.
— one of Nero's architects, v. 548, c.
— Cat. made governor of Syria, vi. 33; e.
— Julius ends the war with the Jews, 39, e; & ſeq. Equity to the Bithynians, 44, d—f.
— grandſon of M. Aurelius, born, 62, c. Commendation of Peſc. Niger, 90, b. Accuſed and acquitted, ibid. d, e. Sent into Illyricum, 91, f. Funeral honours to Commodus, 94, b. To Pertinax; 99, e. Becomes ſuſpected, 102. His extract, riſe, &c. 103, & ſeq. Proclaimed emperor, 105, b. Proſcrib'd by the ſenate, ibid. c. Refuſes the copartnerſhip with Julianus, 106, a. Acknowledged by all, ibid. Reception of the hundred ſenators, ibid. e. Diſbands the prætorian guards, ibid. & ſeq. Entry into Rome, 107, c. Speech to the ſenate, ibid. & ſeq. Chuſes a new guard, 108, c, d. Succeſs againſt Niger, ibid. & ſeq. Cruelty to all his friends, 110, a—c. Treachery to Albinus, 111, c. Damned piece of witchcraft, ibid. e, f. Cruelty to Albinus, &c. 112, paſſ. Threats to the ſenate, 113. c. Cruelty to them and others, ibid. d, e. Succeſs againſt the Parthians, ibid. f, & ſeq. Baffled before Atra, 114, f. Expedition into Syria, Egypt, &c. 115, b. c. Edict againſt the Chriſtians and Jews, ibid. &c. Partiality to Plantianus, 116, & ſeq. Reformation of ſome abuſes, 117, c. Severity, parſimony, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Expedition againſt Britain, 118, & ſeq. Taken ill at York, 119, b. Behaviour to the parricide Caracalla, ibid. e. Severity to his Accomplices, 120, a. Laſt legacy and works, ibid. c. Death and funeral honours, ibid. & ſeq.
— wall in Britain, when built, vii. 415, b, c. Severe expedition againſt the Caledonians, 433, paſſ.
— one of Alexander's counſellors, 138, e.
— choſen Cæſar, 218, b, Why preferred to Conſtantine, 230, e. His extract, character, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Share of the government, 231, c. Extortions in Italy, ibid. & 233, d. Sent againſt Maxentius, ibid. e. Choſen conſul, 234, d. Deſerted by his troops, ibid. e. Impriſonment and death, ibid, & ſeq.
— the ſucceſſor of Marcellus in Gaul, 299, a.
— ſtands candidate for the empire, 352, b. Succeſs in Germany, 354, d. & ſeq. —Acilius's writings and character, 386, ſub not.
— a prieſt put to death by Theodoſius, 486, b.

— raiſed to the empire by Ricimer, 506, e. Conſulſhip, ibid. f. Death, 508, a.
— Valentinian's general ſent into Britain, vii. 435, d.
— the ſenator, ſent to treat with Genſeric, 539, e. His amiable character, ibid. b. Obtains the releaſe of the Roman priſoners, ibid. & ſeq.
† Seville, where, 488, d. Taken by Attila, ibid. By the Vandals, vii. 531, d. By Rechila, 545, f.
† — the church of, given to the Arians, 531, e.
Sewers, common, built at Rome by Tarquin, iv. 449, c, (H).
Sextia's ſignal conſtancy and death, v. 560, b—d.
Sextilia, honoured with the title of Auguſta, v. 618, f.
Sextius revives the conteſt of the Agrarian law, iv. 553, & ſeq.
— a plebeian, choſen tribune, 579, a. Conſul, 582, f.
— Tull. ſpeech to the dictator, 589.
— Subdues the Salyes, 802, b.
Sextus, Pompey's ſon's narrow eſcape, v. 150, b. Brings Cato the news of his death, 156, b. Follows him, 157, b. Kind reception of the proſcrib'd citizens, 226, e. & ſeq.
— His grandſon choſen conſul, 345, d. Swears allegiance to Tiberius, 354, b.
— Caius, a corrupt ſenator, 444, b.
— the ſtoic, an account of, vi. 82, ſub not.
— Condianus, put to death by Commodus, 88, d.
Shaddad, prince of the ancient Arabs, vii. 241, e, & ſeq.
Shallum, the murderer of Zecharia, i. 828, c. Murdered by Menahem, ibid.
Shalmanezer, ſucceeds Tigath Pileſar in Aſſyria, i. 891. Reduces Samaria after three years ſiege, ibid. b. Tranſplants the ten tribes into Aſſyria, 135, a, b. 891, b. Vain five years ſiege of Tyre, 416, f. Defeated at ſea, 892, a.
Shamar Yaraſh, twenty fourth king of Yaman, vii. 268, d.
Shammai, a famed Jewiſh doctor, iv. 119, (I). Oppoſes Herod's oath of allegiance, 144, b.
Shamgar delivers Iſrael from the Philiſtine yoke, i. 348, a. Kills 600 with an ox goad, ibid. & 742, f. This event not mentioned by Joſephus, ibid. (S).
Shanater D'hu, depoſed for his incontinence, vii. 269, d.
Shang-Ti, the ſupreme Being in the Chineſe Theology, i. 34, a.
Shrazer murders his father in the temple of Niſroch, i. 895, b. The motive of his parricide, ibid. (C).
† Sharon, the country of, deſcribed, i. 575, (A).
† Shaveh, the valley of, deſcribed, i. 574, b, & (T). Famed for the meeting of Abraham and Melchizedeck, ibid.
† Sheba, what countries peopled by him, i. 164, d.
— raiſes a revolt againſt David, 787, c. Murdered, ibid. f.
† — the queen of, viſit to Solomon, i. 801, b, (S). A doubtful tradition of her, vii. 195, b—d. Her country, religion, &c. ibid. e, f. et ſeq. The Abaſſines account of her, 206, et ſeq.
† — a city in the land of Canaan, i. 446, d. Where ſited, iv. 204, (N). Made the metropolis of Samaria, iv. 30, c. Beautified, 31. Taken by Hyrcan, 92, b.
† Shechemites, and the men of Millo, who, i. 747. Proclaim Abimelech king, ibid. c.
Shekel, Jewiſh, an account of, i. 721, b.
Shek-kia, who, i. 24, e.
Shekas, Arab, their office, power, &c. 244, d.
Shelah, Juda's ſon by a Canaanitiſh wife, i. 450, c.
Sheliah, Zibbor, his office among the Jews, iv. 25, (Q).
† Shelepe, one of Joktan's ſons, uncertain where ſettled, i. 170, a.
† Shem, and his poſterity, i. 125, a. When born, b. The pretended inventer of aſtronomy, ibid. e. Confounded with Melchiſedeck, ibid. His death and ſuppoſed works, ibid. Whether the ſame with Pluto or Typhon, ibid. (A). Countries planted by his deſcendants, 162, e, f.
Shemaia, a prophet of the Jews, i. 806, d.
Shemmata, the higheſt excommunication of the Jews, i. 674, a.
Shemeber, king of Zeboim, routed by Chedarlaomer, i. 327, b.
Shepherds, the irruption of, into Egypt, i. 247, b. Hold that country 511 years, ibid. d, e. Whence and when they were, ibid. (B). Driven out of it, 258, e. Build Jeruſalem, ibid. f. Miſtaken for Iſraelites, 259, a. (I),
Sheſhai, the ſon of Anac driven out of Hebron by Caleb, i. 334, a, et (B).
Shetarboſnai, governor of Samaria, an enemy to the Jews, iv. 9, e.
† Shewa, the mountains of, where, vii. 185, d.
Shewbread, why called the bread of faces, i. 624, b. How made, &c. ibid. &c.
— the table of, deſcribed, 658, d. &c.
Shexbazzar, whether the ſame with Zerubbabel, iv. 3, (C).
Shibboleth, a word by which the Ephramites were diſcovered, i. 753, b.
Shibkah, among the Arabians, what, vi. 668, c.
† Shibr, the country, of, where, vii. 234. Famed for its frankincenſe, ibid. d.
Shilh, what meant by Jacob in his prophecy, i. 462, (G).
Shimei's villainous behaviour to David, i. 784, b. How to be treated by Solomon, 792, a. Put to death, 793.
† Shimram, where, i. 332, e. The king of, defeated by the Jews, ibid. f.
† Shinaar, the plain of, where, i. 141, b, c. Extent, 142, a. Etymon, ibid. (D). Footſteps of it in authors, ibid. c, d.
Shipra and Shuah, two religious midwives in Egypt, i. 475, d. Rewarded for not obeying Pharaoh's bloody orders, 476, a, b, and notes.
† Shittim, the vale of, its uncertain ſituation, i. 574, a.
— wood, various opinions about it, i. 652, (Q).
† Shoaib, the ſame with Jethro, vii. 238, c.
— the cave of one of the ſtations from Egypt to Mecca, i. 305, (R).
Shobach, an Aſſyrian general defeated and killed by David, i. 382, d.
† Shur and Cadeſh, two deſarts, where ſited, i. 429, c.
† Shuſan, the metropolis of Suſiana, i. 952. Sometimes the imperial reſidence, ibid. c. See alſo Suſa, ii. 58. not:
— a gate of the Jewiſh temple, why ſo called, iv. 10, e.
Siamek, ſecond king of Perſia, according to oriental writers, ii. 175, f.
Siameſe, hold the ſtoic doctrine of the deſtruction and renewing of the earth, i. 25, a.
Sibylline books, brought to Tarquin, 462, d. By whom kept, ibid. e. (M). Conſulted, 558, a. A law for preſerving them, 580, c. 581, e. Conſulted by Sylla, v. 79, a. An account of them, ibid. (V). Purged by Auguſtus, 312, b, c. A new one propoſed by Gallus, 445, d, (V). Opened a-freſh, vi. 180, b. Anſwer to Maxentius, 246, c.
Sibyls, who, and how many, v. 79, e, & (V).
Sibyrtius, promoted by Antiochus, iii. 431.
† Sicambri, who, v. 122, c. vii. 541, a. Defeated by Druſus, v. 319, b, c. Ravaged by Cæſar, [438], d, (M). Submit to Tiberius, 541, a, b. Why ſo ſoon extinct, ibid. b, c. Some notions about them exploded, 548, a, b.
† Sicani, who and whence, iv. 415, a, b. iii. 10, f, & ſeq. Go over to the Carthaginians, vi. 759, & ſeq.
† Sicania, the ancient name of Sicily, iii. 10, f.
Sicanus, a fabulous king of Spain, vii. 320, d.
Sicarii, in Judea, their cruelties, iv. 264, c, & (C). Horrid inſolence, 267, b. Join with the zealots, 269, & ſeq.
— a new ſet of them, 276, a.
Sicca venerea, an ancient deity, probably Succoth Benoth, vi. 697, a.
† — city, where ſited, vii. 110, e.
Siceleus, a fabulous king of Spain, vii. [321], a.
Sichæus, prieſt of Hercules, murdered by his brother Pygmalion, i. 415, f.
† Sicily, iſland, deſcribed, iii. 1 & ſeq. Whether ever joined to the continent, 2, b. Famed for learning, 10, b. Its firſt inhabitants, 11, & ſeq. Invaded by the Athenians, 25, c. By the Carthaginians, 40, & ſeq. 50, et ſeq. 86, et ſeq. Invite Pyrrhus, 88, et ſeq. Oppreſſed by him, ibid. f. Drive him away, 89, et ſeq. Divide into two factions, ii. 507, b. The war of, ibid. &c. Quelled by Hermocrates, 510, f. et ſeq. Invaded by the Athenians, 517. By the Romans, iv. 655, et ſeq. Yielded to them, 678. Made a Roman province, 679, d. Revolts, 794, et ſeq. Laid waſte by the ſlaves, v. 31, et ſeq. 34, a. Subdued by Pompey, 77, a. Viſited by Adrian, vi. 36, b. Infeſted with Banditti, 180, a. Submits to Conſtantius, 285, e. Plundered by the Vandals, 485. Ravaged by the Saracens, 546, a. Subdued by Genſeric, vii. 539, d. Yielded to Odoacer, ibid.

ibid. Subdued by Totila, 764, c, d: Recovered by the Romans, 675, b.
— the Thema of, 721, c, & ſeq.
Sicinius Bellutus choſen head of the revolters, iv. 490, a and firſt tribune, 492, a. Speech againſt Corolianus, 495. b, c. Accuſation againſt him, 497, a, b.
— Sabinus defeats the Volſci, 503, d.
— Dentatus; ſee Dentatus, 529, f.
— a buffooning tribune baffled, v. 89, d, e. Aſſaſſinated, 90, a.
† Sicoris river in Spain, vii. 320, d.
Siconulphus made duke of Salerno, vii. 724, f, & ſeq:
† Siculi. who, and whence, iv. 414, a. Why ſo called, ibid. b. vi. 11, c, & ſeq. Their kings and government, 13, c. & ſeq. Various changes, 14, paſſ. Aſſiſt Hannibal before Agrigentum, 39, b. Diſmiſſed by him, 40, a.
† Sicyon gives name to a kingdom, and to Peloponneſus, ii. 349, b. 350, c.
† — the kingdom of, part of ancient Greece, ii. 344, b. Its ſite, names, &c. 349, paſſ. Kings, &c. 350, a—c. Afterwards governed by prieſts, ibid. c. Invaded by the Heraclidæ, ibid. &c. Accedes to the Achæan league, 641, & ſeq.
† Sidenici, who, and where, iv. 595, f. Invaded by the Samnites, ibid. & ſeq. Subdued by the Romans, 604, a—c.
† Sidim, Siddim, the vale of, invaded by Chedorlaomer, i. 326, e. Five of its kings defeated by him, 627. Inhabitants deſtroyed by fire from heaven, 328, b, c, (T).
Sido king of the Suevi aſſiſts Veſpaſian, v. 623, b, vii. 541, f.
† Sidon, eldeſt ſon of Canaan, the founder of that city, i. 392, b, 410, e.
— the daughter of Pontus, the inventreſs of hymns, i. 137, a.
† the metropolis of Phœnice, whence ſo called, i. 392, b. Various opinions about the etymon, ibid. (E). Its harbour deſcribed, ibid. c. Hiſtory, kings, &c. 410, e, & ſeq. None mentioned in ſcripture till Jeremiah, ibid. &c. Betrayed to Ochus by Tennis and Mentor, 411. c. Set on fire by its inhabitants. ibid. f. The aſhes of it ſold for a vaſt ſum, 412, a. Rebuilt by its abſent citizens, ibid. b. Taken by Alexander, ibid. by Antiochus, iii. 543, d.
† Sidonians, their extract, i. 392, b. 410, e. 40,000 burn themſelves and their city, 411, f. Revolt from the Perſians, ii. 151, & ſeq. Betrayed by Mentor, 152, b, c.
Sidonius, a zealous orthodox biſhop, vii. 515, e, f. & ſeq. His character of Euric, 516, e, f. Retreat from Lions, 583, f.
† Siga, where ſituate, vii. 114, f.
† Sigæum, a city in Phrygia Minor, ii. 305, b, (D). Taken by the Athenians, iii. 106, b.
Sigebert invaded by the Allemans, vii. 568, d: Murdered by his ſon, 578, b. c.
Sigeric choſen king of the Goths, vi. 470, f. Murders Ataulphus children, 471, a.
—ſucceeds him in Gaul, vii. 492, e. 509, c. Aſſaſſinated, ib. 585, & ſeq. vi. 471, b.
Sigg made king of Franconia, vii. 489.
Sigiſmund ſent to aſſiſt Manuel, vi. 646, d. Defeat and narrow eſcape, ib. f.
— made a patrician, vii. 581, e. Submiſſive Letter to Anaſtatius, 585, c—e. Murders his ſon Sigeric, ib. e, f. Retirement and penance, 586, a, b. Defeated by Chlotidis's ſons, ib. c. Death, ib. &c.
Sigiſwult's ſucceſs againſt Bonifacius, vi. 481, a.
Signet-ring, by whom firſt worn in Perſia, ii. 179, a.
† Sigtunum in Sweden, built by the famed Woden, vii. 489, e.
Sibon the Amorite diſpoſſeſſes the Ammonites, i. 294, c. and Moabites beyond Jordan, 330, a. Refuſes Moſes a paſſage, ib. b. Defeated by him, ib. c.
Silana divorced by Silius, v. 502, d. Accuſes Agrippina, 523, & ſeq. Her character, 824, a. Baniſhment, ib. d.
Silanus's ſucceſs in Spain, iv. 737, paſſ. Treaty with Maſiniſſa, ib. e.
— Jul. choſen conſul, v. 312, c.
— Caius's trial and baniſhment for extortion, 412, e, f, 413, (I).
— Appius betrayed to death by Meſſalina, 494, c, d.
— Lucius betrothed to Octavia, 505, e. Betrayed by Vitellius, 566, a, b. Kills himſelf ib. d.
— Junius put to death by Agrippina, 518, b. c.
— Torquatus put to death by Nero, 552, e. & ſeq.
† Silingians, who, and where, vii. 509, e. 530, f.
Silius's trial, v. 420, a, b, (X). Death, ib. d.
— Publius baniſhed, 422, e.
— Caius's ſpeech againſt pleaders, 500, c. (L). Becomes Maſſalina's ſtalion, 502, b, c. Marries her, ib. d, e. Put to death, 504, b.
— Italicus choſen conſul, 569, c.
— the poet; ſee Italicus, 693, ſub not.
Silk, when firſt brought into Europe, v. 300, (B). Law made againſt wearing it, ib. in fin.
Sillanus defeated in Gaul, v. 12, f. Choſen conſul, 107, a. condemns the conſpirators, ib. b.
— M. put to death by Caligula, 466, c, d.
Silo's falſhood to Antigonus, iv. 127, d, e. to Herod, 128, b.
† Siloam, the famed pool of, i. 586, b, & (E).
† Siloe where ſituate, i. 586, c.
† Silphium, the famed plant deſcribed, vii. 170, d. Where it grows, ib. & ſeq.
Silvanus Plaut. kills his wife, v. 421, a. His death, ibid. b.
— Gran. one of Nero's conſpirators, 551, & ſeq. Kills himſelf, 557, d.
† Silures, who, and where ſited, vii. 410. e. Brave defence againſt the Romans, 430, paſſ. Subdued by Frontinus, 431, a.
— in Britain, who, v. 510, b. Treachery to the Romans, ib. & ſeq. Succeſs againſt them, 512, & ſeq.
Simeon, Jacob's ſecond ſon born, i. 441, b. Kept by Joſeph in Egypt, 454, b. Jacob's prophecy againſt him, 462, a. How fulfilled, ib. (F). His tribe, why omitted in Moſes's bleſſing, 543, a. His lot in the promiſed land, 569, a.
— his teſtimony of the child Jeſus, iv. 163, b. Who he was, ib, (E).
— a ſeditious Jew burns and waſtes Judæa, 188, e, & ſeq. Beheaded, 189, a.
— wars againſt the Romans, vi. 574, e. Cruelty to them, ib. & ſeq. New invaſions, 577, & ſeq. Alliance with Romanus, 579. e, f. Succeſs and ravages in Macedon, vii. 629, d. Defeated, ib. e. Treachery to Leo, ib. & ſeq. Peace with him, 630, a, b, Falls out with Alexander, ib. c. Takes Adrianople, ib. d, e. Defeats the Romans, ib. & ſeq. Cruelty to Leo, 631, d, e. Beſieges Conſtantinople, ib. e, f. Peace with Romanus, 632, a. Defeated by the Chiobati, ib. b. Dies, ib.
Simeonitts defeat and deſtroy the Amalekites, i. 321, d.
Similis promoted by Adrian, vi 33, c. His character, ib. & ſeq: Reſigns and retires, 34, e.
† Simois river deſcribed, ii. 306, e, f. & ſeq.
Simma adopts Semiramis, i. 876.
Simon the Juſt, High Prieſt of the Jews, his character, writings, &c. iv. 36. a, & (N).
— IId, Onias's ſucceſſor's excellent character, 42, d, e. Death, 45, b,
— the Maccabees's exploits againſt Demetrius, iii. 603, c. d. Succeeds Jonathan, 604, c. Allies with Demetrius 605, d. with Sidetes, 606, d, e. Succeſs in Galilee, iv. 64, d. Made general by Antiochus, 81, e. Takes Bethzurah, 82, b. Joppa, 83, b. Outwitted by Tryphon, 84, b. c. Sundry alliances, ib. e, f, Letter to Demetrius, ib. & ſeq. Takes the title of Prince, 85, a, (A). His character, 86, & (D). Alliances with Rome, &c. 87, a. Coin, deſcribed, ib. (E). Anſwer to Antiochus, 87, d. Riches and death, ib. & ſeq, — a Benjamite falls out with good Onias, 45, & ſeq. & (V). Betrays the temple treaſure to the Syrians, 64, a.
— father-in-law to Herod, made high Prieſt 142, d, e. Depoſed, 153, b.
— Peter the apoſtle; ſee Peter, 119, & ſeq.
— the Canaanite, why ſo called, 208, (T).
— a proud Phariſee, offended at Chriſt's charity, 210, & ſeq.
— the lepper entertains Chriſt at ſupper, 232, b. (I).
— a Cyrenian bears the croſs of Chriſt after him, 239, a.
— Magus converted, 254, b. Gives a new name to an old ſin, ib. &c,
— Cantharas made high prieſt, 261, b,
— a ſurly lawer molified by Agrippa, 261, (V).
— the ſon of Judas Gallileus crucified, 263, d.
— a Jew of Scythopolis, his deſperate end, 269, (M).
— head of the Sycarii, raiſes an army againſt the zealots, 276, b. Invades Idumea, ib. d. Marches againſt Jeruſalem, ſalem, ib. & ſeq. Beſieges John in the temple 277 b. Holds the city againſt him and the Romans, 280, a—e. Bloody ingratitude to Mathias, 283, b. Taken priſoner 288, f. His puniſhment, 289, c.

Simonides's wife inſtructions to Hiero, iii. 22, c, d.

— two worthies of that name at Coos, 217, a, & (V).

† Simple-Gades, two dangerous rocks, where, ii. 384, H).

Simplicius's opinion of theEleatic ſyſtem, i. 7, a. Contender for the world's eternity, 14, a. Reflections againſt the Moſaic creation, ib. &c.

— his baniſhment, vi. 305, f.

— vicar of Rome, his cruelties there, 361. Put to death, 377, f.

† Sin, the famed deſart of, vii. 227 c.

† Sinai the ſacred mount of, vii. 227, d.

† Sindia, where ſituate, vii. 224, (B).

Sinex's treachery and death, vi. 481, a.

† Singana, where ſituate, vi. 308. Taken by Sapor, ib. b. Demoliſhed, ib. c. Yielded to the Perſians, 341, f. & ſeq.

— the famed battle of, 278, c—e.

† Singara, the city and mountain of. i. 142, b c.

† Singidunum taken by Atilla, vii. 465, f. Deſcribed, ib. & ſeq. ſub not.

— Singillic Bay in Macedon, iii. 260, a.

Sinnaces conſpires againſt Artabanus, iv. 314, f. Put to death, 315, b.

† Sinope where, iii. 725. Taken by Phraartes, ib. c. by Lucullus, 748, c. & (O).

Sintula carries off part of Julians forces, vi. 309, & ſeq. Brings them back to him, 310, d.

† Sion Mount deſcribed. i. 573, b.

† Siphnus iſland, its riches, &c. iii. 192, e. Plundered by the Samian exiles, 193, a. 219, paſſ.

† Sipilus, a city in Phrygia, ii. 293, c.

† Sippara, the city of the ſun, where, i. 91, d.

Sira, a chriſtian lady married to Coſrhoes IId, iv. 365, a.

† Sirbon, the famed lake of, in Egypt deſcribed, i. 244, (B).

† Syriad, the land of, where ſituate, i. 81, b. & (N).

† Sirmium, metropolis of Pannonia, v. 336, a. Beſieged by them, ib. Burnt with lightning, vi, 364, f. Taken by the Avari, 534, a by Attila, vii. 465, f. Deſcribed, 466, (L).

† Siroco, the wind of, deſcribed, vii. 29, in fin. not.

Siro's treaſon and parricide, iv. 368, f, & ſeq. Peace with the Romans, 369, d. Death, ib. & ſeq. Vid. & vi. 542, a—e.

Siromus king of Salamis, iii. 177, c.

Sirpicus, the centurion, whence ſo called v. 362, b. (Z).

Siſachthia at Athens, what ii. 429. a—e.

† Siſaris, a river in Numidia, vii. 115, f.

Siſebulus, Siſenand, kings of the Viſigoths, in Gaul. vii. 492, e.

Siſera, general of Jabin, routed by Deborah, and Barac, i. 335, & ſeq. Killed by Jael, 336, c.

Siſhac, king of Egypt, ſtrips the temple of Jeruſalem, i. 806, d.

Syſigambis, how treated by Alexander, iii. 336, & ſeq. 355. c. Her death, 419, a.

Siſyphus, the ſuppoſed founder of Corinth, ii. 390, b. His puniſhment in hell, ib. (A).

† Silana, where ſited, vi. 833, Taken by the Romans, ibid. c.

Sitalces put to death for oppreſſion, iii. 403.

— Iſt king of the Odryſſæ, iii. 791.

— IId, his warlike reign, ib. e, f.

† Sittacene, a province of Aſſyria, i. 858, b.

Sittas king of the Deuceletæ, wars againſt the Baſtarnæ, iii. 790.

— the betrayer of Martyropolis to the Perſians, iv. 360, c. Burnt alive, 363, f.

Sittas defeated by the Perſians, vi. 523, d, e. Succeſs againſt them, 524, e, f.

† Sitiſi, where ſituate, vii. 115, a,

Sitius's ſignal ſervices to Jul. Cæſar, v. 165, c. and rewarded, ibid. d.

— Publ. ſucceſs in Numidia, vii. 136, & ſeq. Death, ib. (V).

— ſucceſs againſt Juba, rewarded. 137, d, e.

† Sittiorum, Colonia, Cirta, whence ſo called, vii. 296.

† Sittones, who and where ſited, vii. 486, d.

Sivan, the month of, anſwering to our May, i. 611, (K).

Skiold, made king of Jutland, vii. 489, e.

Slaves how uſed at Athens, ii. 438, d.

— at Sparta, 567, a, & not.

— favoured by Servius, iv. 455, c.

— their conſpiracy and puniſhment at Rome, 480, b. A new one formed to burn the city, 553. A third diſcovered by Errius. 660, b.

— inliſted into the army, 713, e.

— raiſe a rebellion in Sicily, 749, & ſeq.

— their deſperate end, v. 31, f.

— raiſe a new war, ib. & ſeq.

— defeated by Licinius, 39, d.

— revolt over to Cinna, 63, e.

— butcher the Romans, 64, d.

— 10000 made Roman citizens by Sylla, 72, & ſeq.

— new revolt in Italy, 97, d. Defeated by Craſſus, 98, d, e.

— generoſity of ſome to ſave their maſters, 226, & ſeq; 228, & ſeq.

— their oaths how admitted in courts, 322, b.

— a ſevere law concerning them, 526, a. 400 of them executed by it, 540, e, f, & ſeq.

— forbid to inform againſt their maſters, vi. 3, c.

— Adrian's law concerning them, 47, e.

— their manumiſſion facilitated by Conſtantine, 255, d.

— encouraged by Honorius to take up arms, 453, c, d.

— 40000 deſert over to Alaric, 460, a.

Slavonians, Sclavonians their ſignal hoſpitality, vii. 389, (D).

† Sleſwick, the antient ſeat of the Angles, vii. 441, a.

† Smenus river in Lacedemon, ii. 397, c.

Smerdis put to death by Cambyſes, ii. 98, d.

— the Mage, ſubſtituted to the real one on the throne, 100, & ſeq. Diſcovered by the want of ears, 101, paſſ. Murdered by the Perſian nobles, 102. Called Artaxerxes in ſcripture, 103, not.

— king of Cappadocia, iii, 764.

— Smoke, the ſelling of, at Rome, what, vi. 141, a. Its puniſhment, ib. d.

† Smyrna, a city in Lydia, ii. 289, c. By whom built, 750, b. Deſcribed, ib. d.

— the modern one deſcrib'd, 751. Subject to earthquakes, ib (D). Confederates with Seleucus, iii. 528, a. Beſieged by Antiochus, 545. Repaired by M. Aurelius, vi. 79, f.

Smyrneans, build a temple to Tiberius, v. 419, d. Their conteſt with ten other cities about it, 428, c, (F).

So, in ſcripture, probably the ſame with Sabbaco, i. 264, b. Surpriſed by the Colophonians, ii. 751, paſſ.

Socrates Prytanis, of Athens's, ſingular integrity, ii. 528, f. Character and accuſation, 552, & ſeq. Defence, 534. Glorious death, ib. & ſeq. & (O). Courted by Archelaus, iii. 284, b. Vindicaced from Cynædiſm, 635, e. His writings and character, vi. 491, (S).

† — iſland, where, vii. 239, d.

† Sodom, and Gomorrah, where, &c. i. 327, c. Taken by Chedorlaomer, 327, c. Deſtroyed by fire from heaven, i. 284, & ſeq. 429, c.

Soemis, the mother of Heliogabalus, vi. 132, & ſeq. Signal bravery, 133, f. Vile character, 134, f. Made preſident of the petticoat ſenate, 136, c. Murdered, 137, b.

† Sogdia, where, iii. 369. Invaded by Alexander, ibid. & ſeq.

† Sogdian rock, taken by him, iii. 383, & ſeq. Deſcribed, ibid. & (B), Sogdians revolt againſt Alexander, iii. 382, & ſeq.

Sogdianus murders Xerxes, ii. 134, a. Mounts the throne, ibid. d. Cruel death, ibid. & (O).

† Sohar, where ſited, vii. 235, e.

Sohemus betrays Herod's bloody orders to Mariame, iv. 138, b, c. Put to death for it, 139, d.

— made king of Sophene, v. 519, e.

— king of Edeſſa, declares for Veſpaſian, 621, a. Driven from his throne, vi. 63, e. Reſtored by M. Verus, 65, a.

Soily, Henry de, erects a new monument to king Arthur, vii. 449, ſub not.

† Soiſſons, erected into a ſmall kingdom, vi. 507, f.

— city, made metropolis by Clovis, 567, b.

Soldiers, Roman, their pay, &c. v. 360, (R). Raiſe Otho to the empire, 595, & ſeq, Become too powerful under him, 596, f. Relieved from a grievous impoſt, 597. a, b.

— eſteemed by the Spartans, ii. 564, a. Lycurgus's laws concerning them, 565, & ſeq. How regulated at Macedon, iii. 267, & ſeq.

Soldari, among the Gauls, what, vi. 88, (D).
Soleciſm, whence derived, ii. 340, e.
† Soli, Solæ, a city in Cilicia Propria, ii. 340; e.
— of Cypreſs, why ſo called, iii. 173, a.
† Solicinium, where ſituate, vi. 354, e.
— the battle of, ibid. d, e.
† Solis mons, the promontory of, vii. 145, c.
Solomena and her ſeven ſons martyred, iv. 54, b, c. & (I).
Solomon, ſeveral kings of that name before Adam, according to oriental writers, i. 51, b.
— king of Judea born, i. 780, d. Proclaimed, 790, c. Puts Adonijah and Joab to death, 192, d. and Shimei, 793; a Marries Pharaoh's daughter, ibid. b. Signal proofs of his wiſdom, ibid. c, d, Magnificence, ibid. e; Builds the temple, 795, and dedicates it, 797, & ſeq. Its utenſils, &c. ibid. (M) Vaſt number of victims, 798, c. Palaces 799, a, &c. Navy, 800, paſſ. Viſit from the queen of Sheba, 801; b. Defection from God, 802, c: Idolatries, ibid. &c. Death, 803. Whether he ever repented, 801, (W).
Solon, the Athenian lawgiver's extract and character, ii. 424, a. Elegy on the loſs of Salamis, 425. Recovers it from the Megareans, ibid. & ſeq. Gains his Cauſe againſt them, 426, e Stratagem againſt the Cyrreans, 427. Choſen archon, 428, e. Legiſlator, 429, e. & ſeq. Builds the city of Soli, 430. His body of laws, ibid. & ſeq. Regulation of the Athenian months, 434, b, & not. Travels into Egypt, Cyprus, &c. 435. Interview with Thales, ibid. With Cræſus, 335, c. 445; not. Quells the Athenian factions, 446, a. Juſt reproof to Theſpis, ibid. e. Letter to Epaminodas, 447, f Anſwer to Piſiſtratus, 448. Death, ibid. & ſeq.
— his laws introduced at Rome, iv. 532, e, f.
† Solos, in Cyprus, whence ſo called, iii. 445; c.
† Solva, the metropolis of Noricum Mediterraneum, v. 314, in fin. not.
Solyman's irruption into Thrace, vi. 551, c. Death, ibid.
— the ſon of Cutlumeſes, makes peace with Rome, 609, d. Attempts to ſave Nice, 615, c—e.
— the ſucceſſor of Orchades, invades Europe, 645, e, & ſeq.
Sons of God, who meant by, i. 81; b, c, & ſeq.
Sopater's writings and character, vi. 274, ſub not, Put to death, ibid. ad fin.
† Sopheme, where ſituate, vi. 215, c. Yielded to the Romans, ibid. b. See alſo Zobah, i. 731, & ſeq.
Sophia, the empreſs, inſtigates Juſtin to cruelty, vi. 531, f; & ſeq. Moving letter to Coſrhoes, iv. 357. vi. 532, e. Obtains a three years truce from him, iv. 357, d. Cabals againſt Tiberius, vi. 533, c. Stript of her treaſure for it, ibid.
† — the famed church of, built by Conſtantine, vi. 316, b. By whom burnt, 414, d.
Sophoniſba married to Sypax, iv. 740, b. to Maſiniſſa, 743, d. Her character and death, 744, b. See alſo vii. 75, b. 124, f.
Sophronia yielded to Maxentius, vi. 241, d. Kills herſelf, ibid. c.
Sophronius Tigellin, baniſhed by Caligula, v. 477, a.
† Sora, where, iv. 618. Taken by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
Soranus Bareas unjuſtly accuſed, v. 562, e. Condemned, 563, paſſ. Signal intrepidity and death, ibid.
Sorex, a companion of Sylla's debauchees, v. 83, e.
† Sofia, the metropolis of New Dacia, vi. 195, a.
Soſibius, Philopater's wicked miniſter, iii. 643, & ſeq. Murders the queen, 646, e. Turned out, ibid. e. Made guardian of Epiphanes, 647, d. His character, ibid. e, f.
— the falſe accuſer of Valerius, v. 499, & ſeq. (H). Put to death by Agrippina, 508, a.
Soſipater's ſpeech to the Syracuſans, iii. 106, c.
— Char. his writings and character, vi. 478, not.
Soſis head of a faction at Syracuſe, iii. 103, f.
Soſiſtratus tyrant of Syracuſe, depoſed, iii. 80. Oppoſes Tœnion, 88, e. Revolts from Pyrrhus, 90, b. vi. 788, e. Applies to the Carthaginians, ibid. f. Received again at Syracuſe, 789, a, b.
Soſius left governor of Syria, iv. 129, d. Aſſiſts Herod, 130, c. Contempt of Antigonus, ibid. d.
— the Conſul, retires to M. Antony, v. 286, a. Defeated and killed, 289, e.
Soſthenes choſen general of Macedon, iii. 470, c. Slain by the Gauls, ibid. e.
Soſtratus builds the tower of Pharos, iii. 626, f. Outwits Ptolemy in the inſcription, ibid. & ſeq.
— forotels Titus's advancement, v. 620, b.
Solades the Cynedic poet put to death, iii. 635, a.
Sothymus king of the Odryſæ, iii. 793, a.
Soul of man, a ſpiritual ſubſtance, i. 46, a. How infuſed, ibid. d. Various opinions about it, ibid. & ſeq.
Sous king of Sparta, his valour and conqueſts, ii. 403, & ſeq.
Sow ſacrificed in ratifying of treatiſes, iv. 441, (S).
— with pig, ſacrificed to Juno, 595, e.
Sozomen's account of Saphor, IId, iv. 332, (H). Other writings and character, vi. 491, (S).
† Sozopetra deſtroyed by Theophilus, vi. 569, e.
† Sozopolis taken by ſtratagem, vi. 617. f.
† Spain deſcribed, vii. 294, a. Its limits, names, &c. ibid. & ſeq. How divided, 205, c, d. Its cities, colonies, &c. 296, & ſeq. How governed under the Romans, 311, & ſeq. Suffers a twenty-ſix years drought, [323], a, b. By what nations invaded, ibid. & ſeq. When, and how ſubdued by the Carthaginians, [325], & ſeq. by the Romans, [326]: Stript of its immenſe riches, ibid. & ſeq. & (A). Abandoned by the Vandals, 530, a, b. Its dreadful ſtate occaſioned by it, ibid, d, &c.
— firſt inhabited by Celtes, ii. 247, b, c. Why called Iberia, 244, E; (vii. 294. & paſſ.)
— its total reduction by Scipio, iv. 738, paſſ.
— made a Roman province, 750, & ſeq.
— ſundry revolts, 751, a, 767, paſſ.
— recovered by Metellus, 781, b,
— viſited by Adrian, vi 35, d.
— invaded by the Franks, 182, a.
— ſubmits to Conſtantius, 285, e. to the Britiſh Conſtantine, 455, d, e.
— invaded by the Barbarians, 462, d, — cruelly ravaged, ibid. e, f. How divided amongſt them, ibid. & ſeq.
— part of, ſubdued by Attila, 488, d. by the Goths and Suevi, 514, a.
— when firſt invaded by the Carthaginians, 729, & ſeq.
† Spalato, the palace of, deſcribed, v. 218, d.
‡ Spaniards, their extract, &c. ii. 247, & ſeq. vii. 295, & ſeq. Declare for the Pompeii, v. 171, b. Subdued by Auguſtus, 299, d. antienly brave ſoldiers, vi. 731, a. Begin to court the Romans, vii. 58, e. Revolt under their Reguli, 71, f. Defeated, 72, a, b. Take up arms, 73, c, d. Forced to peace, ibid. & ſeq. Their religion, 309, & ſeq. Government, 311, paſſ. Laws, 312, b—d. Valour and diſcipline, ibid. e, & ſeq. Why ſo hardly conquered, 313, a—d. Arts, ſciences, &c. ibid. e, & ſeq. Ancient language, 314, c—f. Why mixed with Hebrew, 315, a—c. When exchanged for the Latin, ibid. d—f. Writing. 316, a—c. Odd way of computing time, ibid. c—e, & not. Education of children, ibid. f, & ſeq. Riches and commerce, 317, b—d. Character, ibid. e, f. Fabulous hiſtory, 319, & ſeq.
Spaniſh Biſhops zeal for their flocks, vii. 530, c.
— women, their hardineſs, 302, d, e.
† Sparta, whence ſo called, ii. 395, a. Deſcribed, 396, & ſeq.
— their kings; ſee ſub Lacedemon.
— betrayed to the Heraclidæ, 403. Damaged by an earthquake, 594, b. Defended by the valour of her women 623, paſſ. Burnt by the Heruli, vi. 84, d.
Spartacus, Iſt king of Boſphorus, iii. 841, d.
— IId, ibid. e.
— IIId, 842, f.
— head of the Capuan ſlaves, v. 97, d. Defeats the conſul, ibid. e. Defeated and killed, 98, d, e. vii. 397, b, c.
† Spartans, whence ſo called, ii. 395, b, c. Treatment of Darius's heralds, 111, e. Brave defence againſt Xerxes, 120, & ſeq. Defeat, 121, & ſeq. The reſt ſee under Lacedemonians.
Spartianus's writings and character, vi. 220, (G).
Spartus, whoſe ſon he was, ii. 395, c.
† Spauhan, Hiſpahan, the metropolis of Perſia, deſcribed. ii. 33, not.
— by whom built according to oriental writers, 192, b.
Speech, the origin of, i. 149, a, b. How formed, ibid. c, 150, a. Whether under more tongues before the flood, 151, b, c. Which was the original one, ibid. (V), & ſeq.
Speluncæ, in great uſe among the Romans, v. 430, (B).
Spendius raiſes a tumult among the Carthaginian mercenaries, vi. 854. Sent againſt Hamilcar, 859, c, d. Defeated, 860. b, & ſeq. Seized by him, 862, e, f.
Spendoſthalbus makes peace with the Romans, vi. 586, f, & ſeq.

† Spermatophagi, their ſite, food, &c. vii. 184, c.
† Sphacteriæ iſlands, where ſited, iii. 242. Taken by the Lacedemonians, ii. 508, d. Retaken by the Athenians, 509, e.
Sphinxes, ſhew'd the beginning of the Nile's riſing, i. 179, a. Some relics of them, ibid. b.
Sphodrias, king of Sparta's attempt on the Pyræum, ii. 615, d.
Spider, immenſe, the cauſe of all things, according to the Pendets, i. 23, d.
Spies, twelve ſent to view the promiſed land, i. 526, a. Bring an ill report of it, ibid. c, d. Deſtroyed by ſudden death, 527, a. Jewiſh faſt kept on that account, ibid. &c.
Spies, ſent by Joſhua to Jericho, i. 554, a. Concealed by Rahab, ibid. b. Their return and brave report, 555, a, b.
† Spina, by whom built, iv. 414, d.
Spinoſa, the firſt who reduced atheiſm into a ſyſtem; i. 6. c. Monſtrous ſyſtem of the univerſe, 8, c. Of the ſun ſtanding ſtill, confuted, 559, b.
Spintriæ driven from Rome, v. 461, c.
† Spire, taken by the Vandals, vi. 453, f.
Spirits, good, ſee angels, i. 48, & ſeq.
— evil, not mentioned by Greeks or Romans 51, c.
Spitamenes, offers to deliver up Beſſus to Alexander, iii. 369, c, & ſeq.
— Beſieges Maracanda, 371, f, & ſeq. Defeats Pharnaces, 372, f. Driven off by Alexander, 373, c. Heads the revolted Sogdians, 382, b. Defeated by Cænus, 383, b. Murdered by the Scythians, ibid. c, & (A).
Spoils, among the Romans, how beſtowed, iv. 487, (I.)
Spoleto, made the capital of Umbria, vii. 620, d. Taken by Beliſarius, 670, e. Confiſcated by Sylla, v. 76, d.
— the dukes of, 696, b, 701, d. Extent of their territories, 721, a.
Spolia opima, ſee Opima, iv. 430, a.
Spoliarium, among the Romans, what, iv. 804. (Z).
† Sporades iſlands in Ethiopia, vii. 190, b. Whence ſo called, iii. 203, b. Deſcribed, ibid.
Sporus, a Catamite married to Nero, v. 546, d. Accompanies him in his flight, 575.
Spurinna, the augur's warning to Cæſar, v. 181, b.
— Veſtrius, commands in Placentia for Otho, 606, c.
† Squirri, Scirri, who and where, vii. 462, a. Defeated by the Romans, ibid. b. Submit to Attila. 466, c. Regain their liberty, 482, a. Settled in Mæſia, &c. 518, d. Defeated by the Oſtrogoths, 519, d. Settled in Scythia minor, vi. 496, b.
† Stabæ, where ſituate, v. 52, Taken by Sylla, ibid. c.
Stabrobates king of India, defeats Semiramis, i. 882, c.
Stabuli præfectus, his office, vi. 346, b.
† Stæni, who, and where ſituate, v. 3, a. Their deſperate end, ibid. b. vii. 395, d, &c.
† Stagira, a city in Macedon, iii. 256, c.
Standards, Roman, why abhorred by the Jews, iv. 195, b. brought into Jeruſalem by Pilate, ibid, c.
— How reſpected by the Romans, 490, ſub not.
Staquinſam's interview with Adrian, vi. 37, a.
Star, miraculous, at the birth of Chriſt, iv. 161, & ſeq. & (C).
— a blazing one before Valentinian's death, vi. 364, f.
— fixed, why worſhipped by the Arabs, vii. 246, a, b. Their names, worſhip, &c. ibid. d, &c.
Stater, Roman, what, iv. 220, (Q).
— a beautiful Cyzican coin, ii. 324, b.
Statianus cut off by the Parthians, iv. 310, & ſeq.
Statilia, ſee Meſſalina, v. 559, e.
Statilius, a young Roman's bravery, v. 162, c. (H). His death prevented, 165. b. 180, c. Anſwer to Brutus, ibid. d, Slain by the Triumvirs army, 253, c.
— Taurus lands in Sicily, v. 278, a. Choſen conſul, 298, f.
— falſely accuſed, 515, a. Kills himſelf, ibid, b.
Statira, the wife of Artaxerxes's power and cruelty, ii. 137, d. Poiſoned by Paryſatis, 140, c.
— her death and burial, iii. 349, paſſ.
— daughter of Darius, married to Alexander, 405, c. Murdered by Roxana, 418, d.
Statius, Geſſ. taken priſoner, iv. 626, f.
— the poet, an account of, v. 692, ſub. not.
— Priſcus, ſee Priſcus, vi. 64, & ſeq.
Stator, Jupiter, whence ſo called, iv. 431, b.
Statorius ſent to diſcipline the Numidian youth, vii. 50, a—c.
Statuary, in great perfection in Egypt, i. 221, f.
Statues, how and to whom erected by the Romans, v. 401, (Z).
— of emperors become ſanctuaries, 409, a. The exceſs of them regulated, 498, b.
— heatheniſh, demoliſhed in Egypt, vi. 417, paſſ. At Rome by the Goths, 464, f.
† Stella, a famed mount in Pontus, iii. 721, b.
† Stelliates, who, iv. 760, f. Subdued by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
Stembal, the ſon of Maſiniſſa, vii. 126, e.
Stenobia, the unchaſte wife of Prœtus, ii, 354, b.
Stephanio whipped out of Rome, v. 312, e.
Stephanophoros, the prieſt of Ceres, why ſo called, ii. 732, ſub not.
Stephanius conſpires againſt Domitian, v. 689, e. Stabs him, 690, d. Killed in the fray, ibid. e.
Stephen the protomartyr, his character and death, iv, 253, c, d.
— a cruel miniſter of Juſtinian, vi. 547, d, e. Burnt alive, 548, b.
— the ſon of Baſilius turns monk, 573, a. Made patriarch of Conſtantinople, 574, e.
Stephen the ſon of Romanus crowned, vi. 579, c.
— over-reaches Baſilius, 589, f, & ſeq.
— king of Hungary's ſucceſs in Bulgaria, vii. 639, b.
— IIId pope, makes peace with the Lombards, 710, b, c. Invaded by Aſtulph, 711, paſſ. Goes to king Pepin, 712, a, b. Stirs him up againſt the Lombards, ibid. & ſeq. Inriched by him, 714. Bought off by Deſiderius, 715, d, e.
Stertinius's ſucceſs againſt the Bructeri, v. 374, d. Sent againſt Arminius, 382, b. againſt the Cheruſci, 384, b.
Stesagoras king of the Dolonci, iii. 789.
Steſanor's lot after Alexander's death, iii, 423, e.
Steſenor king of Curium's treachery to the Salaminians, iii. 178, b.
Steſichorus the poet, where born, iii. 8, c.
Steſimbrotus, an account of him, iii. 237, d.
Sthenelaides decrees war againſt Athens, ii. 596, a.
Sthenelus king of Argos, ii. 353, b.
Sthenis's brave anſwer to Pompey, v. 77, d.
Stilicho's revenge on the Baſtarnæ, vi. 419, d. Commands the Romans againſt Eugenius, 424, a. Plunders Jupiter's temple, 425, e, f. Made guardian to young Honorius, 430, f. His riſe and character, 431, d. Avarice, ibid. & ſeq. Hatred againſt Rufinus, 432, b, c. Aſſumes an unlimited power, 433, b. Peace with the Germans, ibid. e, f. Stopt ſhort by Arcadius, 434, a, b. Defeats Alaric in Greece, 435, d. Suffers him to eſcape, ibid. d, e. Undermined by Eutropius, 436, a, b. Falls out with St. Ambroſe, 438, a. Succeſs againſt Gildo, 439, & ſeq. Treachery to Maſcezel, 440, e, f. Exploits in Britain, 441, b—d. Choſen conſul, 445, b. Suſpected to have ſtirred up Alaric, 449, b, c. Marches againſt him, 450, a, b. Peace with him, ibid. e, f. Succeſs againſt Radagaiſus, 451, & ſeq. Invites the Northern nations into Gaul, 453. c, d. Private correſpondence with Alaric, 455, f. Secures Britain againſt the Picts, vii. 436, c, (R). Succeſs againſt the Hunns fruſtrated, 460, b. March againſt the Goths ſtopt, 505, c. Partiality to them, 506 a, b. Diſgraced and put to death, vi. 456, a. and all his friends after him, ibid. b, c. His character, ibid. c, d. Eſtate confiſcated, 457, a, b.
Stilpo held the eternity, &c. of the world, i. 6, d.
† Stoboreum, the promontory of, in Numidia, vii. 111, d.
Stoics, their two principles, one active and one paſſive, i. 22, d. Notion of the deity, ibid. & ſeq. Confounded it with nature, 23, a. Their notions not unlike thoſe of the Pendets, ibid. c. and of the Suffies of Perſia, ibid. d.
Stonehenge, by whom reared, vii. 338, c—e. Whence ſo called, 339, b. Not a temple, ibid. & ſeq. Errors about it confuted, 340, paſſ. & (P). The fabric deſcribed 341, & ſeq. New conjectures concerning it, 342, & ſeq. Its ſtones, whence brought, 343, f. Huge bulk and weight, 344, c—e. Diſpoſition, &c. 345, & ſeq.
Stones, rain of, on the Canaanites, i. 564, b. Inſtances of the like nature, ibid. e, 565, a. How engendered, ibid. b—e.
— their growth ſeen at Olearos, iii. 219, e.
Stoning, the capital puniſhment of the Jews, i. 672, c. How performed, 673, a.
† Stora, the gulph of, where, vii. 109, e.
Strabo's writings and character, v. 458, ſub not.
Strangers, Solon's law about their naturalization. ii. 437, d.
Strangling, one of the capital puniſhments of the Jews, i. 673, d. How performed, ibid.
† Strata Julia & Marcella, by whom made, vii. 420, a.

Strategi,

Strateges, their office at Athens, ii. 644, c.
† Strathern, the battle of, v. 671, paſſ.
Strato of Lampſacus's opinion of the origin of things, i. 7, c, d.
— a lewd king of Sidon, deprived by Alexander, i. 412, d, e.
— king of Tyre, how raiſed to the throne, i. 417, & ſeq.
— king of Aradox ſubmits to Alexander, iii. 337, d.
— the murderer of Brutus, v. 253, f.
Stratocles's device to alter the months, ii. 555, e.
† Straton's tower, by whom built, iv. 141, (R). See alſo Cæſarea.
— a gallery in the royal palace ſo called, 97, (C).
Stratonice builds the famed temple at Hierapolis, i. 374, d. her ſtory with relation to Combabus, ibid. & ſeq.
— married to Seleucus, iii. 441, c. d. Yielded by him to his ſon, 519, & ſeq.
† — three cities of that name, where, iii. 784. (F).
† Stratzburgh, the metropolis of the Trebocci, vii. [415], a. (R). Taken by the Vandals, vi. 453, f.
— the battle of, vi. 301, c. vii. 591.
† Strombolo, the iſland of, deſcribed, iii. 10, d.
† Strophades iſlands deſcribed, iii. 242, c.
† Strompitza, where, vii. 635, e. Taken by Baſilius, ibid. f.
† Struthophagi, who, and where ſited, vii. 183, e.
† Strymon, a river in Macedon, iii. 260, d. The boundary of it, v. 242, d.
† Strymon, a river in Thrace, iii. 787.
† Strymonic Bay, where, iii. 260, a.
Stuff the Saxon arrives in England, vii. 449, c.
Stukely's noble deſcription of Stonehenge, vii. 388, & ſeq.
Stylita, the hermit foretells the ill-ſucceſs of the Vandals, vii. 537, c.
Stymphalian Birds killed by Hercules, ii. 356, not. 376, a.
Styrax defeated and ſent priſoner, vii. 483, a.
† Styx River, why the Gods ſwear by it, i. 17, d.
——— in Arcadia deſcribed, 376, a.
† Suani, who, vii. 680, e. Defeat the Saxons, ib. f.
† Subalpine Gaul deſcribed, iv. 408, paſſ.
† Sublicius's bridge, how, and by whom built, iv. 446, a. (C).
† Subur River in Tingitania, vii. 145, a.
——— in Gætulia, 160, c.
† Suburbanicæ provinciæ, what, vi. 271, b.
Suburbanus, Trajan's ſpeech to, vi. 7, d.
† Succoth, a city in Canaan, why ſo called, i. 446, c.
——— one of the encampments of the Iſraelites, 502, a. Different from the former, 509, (O). Called by Joſephus, Lalopolis, ib. Severely puniſhed by Gideon, 745, d, e.
Succoth Benoth, the Aſſyrian Venus, i. 916, c. Conjectures concerning it, vi. 697, a.
† Succoſi, who and where ſited, vii. 140, d.
† Suedava, the famed paſs of, vi. 313, d. Taken by Julian, ib.
† Sueſſa, Pometia, where ſituate, iv. 451, (L). Taken by Tarquin, ib. b. Ruined by the Romans, 487, a.
† Sueſulani, invaded by the Samnites, iv. 480, d.
Suetonius diſgraced by Adrian, vi. 35, d. His writings and character, 51, ſub not.
——— Paul his ſucceſs in Britain, vii. 430, e. See alſo Paulinus, v. 493, & ſeq.
† Suevi, who and where ſited, v. 122, (D). Invade the Romans, 674, a. Rhætia, vi. 290, e. Enter Gaul, 453, d, e. Spain, 488, f. Submit to Theodoric, 503, b. Chuſe Malra their king, ib. d. Fall out among themſelves, 505, c. Reconciled by him, ib. e. Other ſettlements, vii. [409], d. 440, b— d. 441, a. Submit to Attila, 466, b. Defeated in Spain, 512, c—f. Retire into Galicia, 513, b. Aſſiſt the Vandals, 529, c—e. Re enter Spain, 530, b. Their territories there, ib. f. & ſeq. Various tribes, 540, c. Whence called Suevi, ib. c. d. Their government, ib. & ſeq. Submit to Auguſtus, 541, a. Part ſettle in Gaul, ib. b—d. Some in Friſia, ib. f. Defeat the Romans in Pannonia, 542, a, b. Defeated in Italy, ib. c. Divide Spain, ib. e. Defeated by Wallia, 543, a. Shut up in Biſcay, ib. Defeated in Germany ib. b. Ravage Galicia, ib. c. d. Submit to Theodoric, 545, a, b. War againſt each other, ib. & ſeq. Kill the Romans on Eaſter-day, 546, b. Turn Chriſtian, ib. e Infected with Arianiſm, ib. &c. Ravage Spain, 547. paſſ. Settle in Galicia, ib. d.
† Suevus river, where and why ſo called, vii. 540, d.
Suffeius adviſes the burning of the capitol, v. 43, a. His death, ib. c.
Sufes at Carthage, what, iii. 547, d.
Suffetes, judges who governed at Tyre for ſome year, i. 417, d. Etymon of that name, ib. (C).
——— at Carthage, their office, vi. 674, & ſeq. & (E, F.) Whence ſo called, 677, & (I).
Suilius's trial and baniſhment, v. 526, e, f.
† Suizzers invade Gallia Narbon, v. 28, b. Italy, 34, c.
† Suiones, who and where ſited, vii. 486, d.
Suinthila, king of the Viſigoths, vii. 492, e.
† Sukkim, who and where ſited, i. 165, d.
Sulmona, confiſcated by Sylla, v. 76, d.
Sulpitia, famed for her chaſtity, v. 4, d.
——— writes a bitter ſatyr againſt Domitian, 636, e.
Sulpitianus Flav. brings up Pertinax's ſon, vi. 96, d. Sent to quell the Pretorian troops, 98, d. His baſeneſs to them, 99, d.
Sulpitius the Roman prætor, deſeats Philip at Elis, ii. 666. Invades Sicyon, 706, b. Retires into Ægina, 707, a. Aſſiſts the Athenians againſt Philip, 734, d. Sent againſt Macedon, iii. 147, c. Relieves Athens, ib. d.
——— ſent to Antiochus, 551, & ſeq.
——— P. his ſad character, v. 53, b. Popular laws, ibid. c, d. Treacherous attempt on the conſuls, ib. f. & ſeq. Proſcribed and beheaded, 55, e.
— Serv. ſubdues the Marruccini, 53, d.
— Apollinar's writings and character vi. 60, ſub not.
— the conſul ſubdues Sardinia, 834, & ſeq.
Sun, when created, i. 35, b. Its inverted courſe out of Herodotus, 67, (N). When begun to be worſhipp'd, 86, (N.) Its ſtanding ſtill at Joſhua's Prayer, 558, b. (G). Maimon's and Spinoſa's account of it exploded, 559, a. &c. of Grotius and Le Clerc's, &c. confuted, 560, & ſeq. Its going back ten degrees, how underſtood, 838, (T).
— in what ſenſe worſhipped by the Perſes, ii. 72, a. The deity of the Perſians, 103, c.
Sun, darkened at the crucifixion of Chriſt, iv. 240, (C). Worſhipped by the Parthians, 291, a.
— ſtrangely darkened in Gallienus's time, vi. 180, b.
— worſhipped at Carthage, 689, c. By the Mauritanians, vii. 150, d. By the Gauls, 353, & ſeq. Germans, [418], & ſeq. Saxons, 442. d.
† — the famed temple of, conſecrated, vi. 194.
† — the fountain of, vii. 169, a.
Sunday work, forbidden on, vi. 256, f.
Suniator, a betrayer of his country, vi. 679, (K), 773, f.
Sunieric's ſucceſs in Luſitania, vi. 506, d. Againſt the Suevi, vii. 513, e. 545, e, f. Ravages, 546, b.
† Sunium, the promontory of ii. 521, a. Fortified by the Athenians, ib.
Suomarius ſues to Julian for peace, vi. 304, b. vii. 592, a, b.
Sunno, king of the Franks, vii. 550, b. Ill-ſucceſs againſt the Romans, 557, f, & ſeq.
Suovetauraiia, the ſacrifice of, iv. 457, b.
Suphian repulſed before Conſtantinople, vi. 551, d. Defeated by Florus, 546, c.
Suphis, king of Memphis, ſtrange things reported of him by the Egyptians, i. 239, (G).
† Sur, the famous deſart of, deſcribed vii. 227, c.
† Sura, a city in Iberia, iii. 835, c.
Sura, choſen conſul, vi. 12, e. His extract, &c. ib. f. & ſeq. Death, 13, a.
Surena's character, iv, 297, e, f. Recovers Meſopotamia, 298, b. Stratagem againſt the Romans, 299, d, e, 300, e. Defeats them, 302, & ſeq. Takes Craſſus, 304, d, e. Mock cavalcade, 305, d, e. Put to death by Orodes, 306, b.
Sureta's Notitia, when firſt publiſhed, vi. 429. ſub not.
Surgery, when firſt brought into Rome, iv, 691, f.
† Suſa, Shuſhan, metropolis of Perſia, ii, 58, ſub not. Taken by Alexander, 166, & ſeq. iii. 354, & ſeq. Taken by Adrian, vi. 22, d. by Conſtantine, 245, b.
† Suſiana, a part of Elam, taken to be part of Aſſyria, i. 162, e. Deſcribed, ii. 55, a.
† Suſſex ſeized on by the Saxons, vii, 445, d. 446, d.
Suburbulus, made guardian of Bulgaria, vii. 632, b. c.
† Suthul, where ſituated, vii. 110, f.
† Sutrium, where ſituate, v. 265, a. Taken by V. Agrippa, ib.
Swine abhorred by the Scythians, ii. 272, f.
——— the herd of, drowned by the devils, iv. 213, a. (E).

Syagrius, governor of Soiſſons, vii. 566, d. Defeated by Clovis, 567, a. Beheaded by him, ib. b. See alſo vol. vi. 507, f.
Syagrus's eſcape and diſgrace, vi. 555, b.
Syavec, Prince of Perſia, according to oriental writers, his ſignal chaſtity, 192, f. Aſſaſſinated at Turkeſtan, ibid. His death revenged by Ruſtan, ib, &c.
† Sybarites, an antient people of Italy, ii. 492. Defeated by the Crotonians, ib. ſub not. Reſtored by the Athenians, ib. Join in the Achæan league, 642, a.
† Sybota iſland, where ſituate, iii. 241, b.
Sydic in the Phænician records, who, i. 134, (E).
† Sydon the antiquities of, to be ſtill ſeen, i. 395. c.
—— ſeries of the kings of, 407, paſſ. Aſſiſt the Jews, iv. 8, b.
† Sydra, a city in Cilicia Aſpera, ii. 346. d.
† Syeby, who, and where ſituate, vii. 489.
† Syene, an antient city of Thebais, i. 175, c.
Syeneſis, Iſt, IId, and IIId kings of Cilicia, ii. 343, a.
Sylla ſent againſt Mithridates, ii. 737, b. Beſieges Athens, ib. & ſeq. Plunders the Greek temples, 738. Turns the ſiege into a blocade, 740, c. Takes it, 741. paſſ. Severity to the Athenians, ib. & ſeq. Vaſt tribute extorted by him, 767, paſſ. Choſen dictator, iii. 665, e. Succeſs againſt Mithridates, 733, & ſeq. Peace with him, 737. Return to Rome, 838, paſſ. Haughty behaviour to the Parthians, iv. 293, d. Sent into Numidia, v. 22, e. His character and bravery, ib. & ſeq. Choſen proqueſtor, 24, f. Whence ſirnamed the Fortunate, 25, e. Interview with Bocchus, ibid, & ſeq. Succeſs in Gaul, 31, a. Rivals Marius at Rome, 45, & ſeq. Public ſhews, 46, d. Receives an embaſſy from Arbaces, ib. & ſeq. Defeats Marucius, 50, e. Baffles the Allies, 52, c. Defeats the Samnites, ib. f. Conſulate and triumph, 53, a. Retires from Rome, ib. f. & ſeq. Marches with an army againſt it, 54, e. Enters it 55, a. His new laws, ib. d. Proſecution of Marius, 56, & ſeq. Sails for Aſia, 60, d. Proſcribed, 65, c. Succeſs in Pontus, 66, d. Expoſtulatory letter to the ſenate, ib. e. Marches againſt Fimbria, 68, d, e. Anſwer to the ſenate, 69, e. Lands in Italy, ib. e. Outwits L. Scipio, 70. b. Defeats young Marius, 71, d. e. Enters Rome, 72, a. Defeats the conſuls over and over, ib. & ſeq. Defeated by the Samnites, 73, & ſeq. Bloody revenge on them, 74, & ſeq. Speech to the ſenate, ib. e, f. Barbarity to the Preneſtines, 75, b, c. Horrid proſcriptions and butcheries, ib. & ſeq. Perpetual dictatorſhip, 77, & ſeq. New ſet of laws, 78, & ſeq. Tyrannic ſpeech, ib. c. Grand triumph, 80, b, c. Title of Fortunate, ib. et (W). Grows jealous of Pompey, 80, e. Profuſe conſulſhip, 81, a, b. Marries Valeria, ib. c. Envy to Cæſar, 82, b. Abdicates his dictatorſhip, ib, f. & ſeq. Speech to young Pompey, 83, d. Debauched life, ib. c. d. Death, and character, ib. & ſeq. Funeral honours and epitaph, 84, c, d.
— P. Cornel. conſpires with Catiline, v. 102, e, f.
— Fauſtus, Pompey's ſon-in law, defeated, 165, c. d.
— Cornel. unjuſtly baniſhed, 527, d, (D). Aſſinated by Nero, 542, e.
Syllæus's hatred to Herod, whence, iv. 150, (K). Accuſation of him to Cæſar, ib. c. Put to death ib. L).
—— treachery to Auguſtus, v. 301, & ſeq.
—— to Ælius Gallus, vii. 282, e. Puniſhment, ib. f.
Sylianus Jun. accuſed by the Macedonians, iii. 506, e. Condemned by his own father, 507, a. Hangs himſelf, ib. &c.
——retires from Antony, v. 287, e.
——joins with Gordian, vi. 153, f.
——left to awe the Spaniards, vii. 59, e. Brings Maſiniſſa over to the Romans, 70, e. Retires to Tarraco, ibid. & ſeq.
Syloſon Iſt, inſlaves the Samians, iii. 189, f.
—— IId, invades Samos, 196, b, & ſeq. Cruelty to them, 197, c.
Sylvanus raiſes a revolt in Gaul, vi. 176, c. Put to death, ibid. d.
—— goes over to Conſtantius, vi. 284, a. Betrayed by Arbetio, 294, f. Aſſumes the Purple, 295, c. Acquitted, ibid. d. Murdered, 296, a. His character, ibid. c, d.
Sylvius, the ſon of Lavinia, born, iv. 421, b. Made king of Alba, ib. d. His ſucceſſors, ib. & ſeq.
Symmachus intercedes for the Cæſareans, vi. 359, c. Anſwer to Theodoſius, 414, f. Recalled and promoted by him, 415, a, b. Sent by the heathen to Valentinian, 419, e. His writings and character, 427, (M). Extract and riſe, 428, ſub not.
— Pope, confirmed by Theodoric, vii. 643, e, f. Put to death by him, 645, & ſeq.
Synaſemus's ſucceſs againſt the rebel Andronicus, vi. 639, e, f, & ſeq.
Synagogue, the grand, the Rabbies account of, confuted, iv 13, (X).
Synagogues, when firſt brought into uſe, i. 730, d. iv. 25, b. How regulated, ib. (Q).
† Syneda, a city in Phrygia Salutaris, ii. 293, d.
Syncellus's ſeries of kings conſidered, i. 234, et 240.
Syphax allies with the Romans, vii. 50, a. Flattering letter to the ſenate, 61, d. Gain'd by Scipio, 71, c. Brought off by Aſdrubal, 75, a. Letter to Scipio, ib. b, c. Defeated, 77, & ſeq. Joins Aſdrubal with freſh forces, 78, b, c. Taken priſoner, 79, c. Defeated by the Numidians, 122, e. Succeſs againſt Maſiniſſa, 123, & ſeq. Dethroned by him, 125, b. His end, ib. c. Defeated by the Maſſylians, iv. 723, & ſeq. Whether led in triumph, 748, e.
Sypilene, the Cybele of the Lydians, ii. 330, f.
† Sypilus mount in Lydia, ii. 329, b.
† Syracuſe, head of the Doric faction, ii. 507, b. Beſieged by the Athenians, 518, a. Relieved by Gylippus, ib. e, f. Metropolis of Sicily deſcribed, iii. 4, & ſeq. Its harbour, &c. 5, b. By whom founded, 11, e. Adorned, 17, c. Beſieged by the Athenians, 28, c. by the Carthaginians, 52. Surpriſed and plunder'd by Nypſius, 70, & ſeq. Put to the ſword, 71, c. Beſieged by Marcellus, 111, & ſeq. Under a grievous peſtilence, 118, e. Forced to capitulate, 119, & ſeq. Taken, 121, & ſeq. Plundered by the Saracens, vi. 546, b. Taken by them, 573, d. By the Franks, vii. 553, d. By Totila, 574, d, e. The reſt ſee under Syracuſians.
— a three-headed monſter born at, v. 590, a. How interpreted, ib. b.
† Syracuſians, their origin, government, &c. iii. 14, & ſeq. Chuſe Gelon their king, 18, e. Defeat the Carthaginians, ib. & ſeq. Set up a popular government, 23, & ſeq. Repeal the law of Petaliſm, 24, b, c Tyranniſe in Sicily, ib. d, e. Why invaded by the Athenians, 25, & ſeq. Outwitted by Nicias, 27, f. Streightly beſieged by him, 28, e, f. Defeat the Athenians by land, 29, e. Beaten at ſea, ib. f. Beat them before Syracuſe, 31, a, b. and at ſea, 32, & ſeq. Force them to ſurrender, 33, & ſeq. Cruelty to their priſoners, 36, e, f. Enſlaved by Dionyſius, 45, & ſeq. Revolt from him, 46, c. 47, b. Reduced, 48, & ſeq. Defeat the Carthaginians at ſea, 52, f. Crown Dionyſius II. 63, c. Joy at Dion's reception, 67, b. Make him their general, ib. c, d. Mutiny againſt him, 68, & ſeq. Butchered by Dionyſius, 70, c. 71, c, d. Enſlaved by Calyppus, 73, d. By Hipparinus, ibid. Reſtored by Timoleon, 77, paſſ. Repeopled by the Corinthians, 79, d, e. Gratitude to Timoleon, ib. d—f. Enſlaved by Soſiſtratus, 80, d. Maſſacred by Agathocles, 81, & ſeq. Groan under ſeveral tyrants, 88, d, e. Under new troubles, 103, & ſeq. Regain their liberty, 105. Put the royal family to death, 106, e. Invaded by the Romans, iv. 654, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt Carthage, vi. 739, & ſeq. New preparations againſt them, 746, b. Go to the relief of Agrigentum, 747, b. Receive the fugitives, 749, b, c Send Dionyſius againſt Imilcar, 750, a. Diſarmed and enſlaved by him, 754, a, b, & ſeq. Approve of his war againſt Carthage Cruelty and injuſtice to them, ibid. d—f. Victory and rejoicings, 766, paſſ. Peace with them, 789. Beſieged by Hamilcar, 793, & ſeq. Deceived into a belief of Agathocles's death, 799, c, d. Undeceived and raiſe the ſiege, ib. f. Revenge on the Carthaginian general, 81, c, d Get freſh ſupplies from Agathocles, 810, e, f. New peace with Carthage, 812, & ſeq. Divided between Thinyon and Soſiſtratus, 814, a. Beſieged by the Carthaginians, ib. b, &c. Plundered by the Franks, vii. 553. Subdued by Totila, 674, c, d.
Syrgianes, a wicked tool of Andronicus, vi. 638, e, f. Abandoned by the Turks, 639, f.
† Syria, from whom named Aram, i. 360, a. Where ſituate, ſituate, ib. b. How divided, ib. d, e. Under the Romans, 361, d. Its climate, ſoil, ib. & ſeq. Natural rarities, 362, paſſ. Artificial, 363, b, c.

— the kingdom of, deſcribed, iii. 509, a—c. Its boundaries after Alexander's death, ib. c, d. & 515, b. Kings, 509, e. Why called Tetrapolis, 515. Surrendered to Alexander, ii. 161, e. Conquered by the Perſians, according to oriental writers, 202, b. Invaded by Eumenes and Attalus, iii. 528, e. Invaded by the Parthians, iv. 305, & ſeq. Revolts from the Romans, 307, d.
— Ravaged by Choſroes, 366, b. By Vologeſes, vi. 63, f. Sides with Caſſius, 79, b. Forgiven by Aurelius, ibid. c. Threatened by the Perſians, 139, d, e, 141, e. By Sapor, 176, f. By famines and peſtilence, 264. Under Theodoſius, 403, c. Invaded by the Goths, 433, d. Perſians, 526, e, & ſeq. Subdued by the Saracens, 543, e, f.
† Syria Dea, her temple at Hierapolis, i. 372, c. Its ſtatues, lake and oracle, deſcribed, 373, & ſeq. Different ſorts of prieſts, 374. e. Sacrifices, &c. How performed, 375, a, b.
— How worſhipped at Carthage, vi. 691, b.
Syriac, the antienteſt oriental tongue, i. 152, a, (X). Where uſed in Jacob's time, 377, c.
— character in vogue 300 years before Chriſt, i. 377, e—f. Two kinds, ib. c. Without points till the eighth century, 378. By whom reſtored to its primitive purity, 379, a. Grammar, &c. ib. d &c.
Syrian Goddeſs, See Syria Dea. i. 372, & ſeq.
— coins deſcribed, iii. 620, & ſeq. (W).
† Syrians, ancient, their origin, i. 370, e. Monarchy in Saul's time, 371, b. Various kingdoms, ib. c, d. Changeable religion, 372, a, b Idols, temples, &c. 374, c, d. ſacrifices, feſtivals, &c. 375, a—c. Traditional cuſtoms, ib. & ſeq. Temper, arts and ſciences, 377, b, c. Alphabet, 378. Trade, 379, b, c. Chronology, ancient kings, &c. 380—383. Kingdom, when aboliſhed, 390, b.
— older than the Aſſyrian, 868, f.
— defeated by the Maccabees, iv. 58, & ſeq. By the Romans, 754, paſſ. 50000 ſlain by Scipio Aſiaticus, 755, c.
† Syringes, a place ſo called, where, i. 81, (N).
Syrophenician woman, her ſingular faith, iv. 217, d. Country, ib. (K).
† Syrophœnicians, who, i. 392, (B).
† Syros iſland, deſcribed, iii. 224.
† Syrtica regeo, deſcribed, vii. 170, e. Its limits, 175, a, b. Nations, mountains, 176, paſſ.
† — iſlands, ib. d. f, & ſeq. To whom ſubject, 177, a, b.
Sytalces's war and peace with Macedon, iii. 280, d, e, & ſeq.

T.

TAautus, the ſame with the Thoyt or Hermes of Egypt, i. 11, a. The firſt inventer of letters according to the Phœnician records, 134, a.
† Tabæ, where ſited, iii. 583, c, (Z).
Tabellæ Votivæ deſcribed, iii. 212, (T).
† Taberah, burning, a murmuring ſtation of the Iſraelites, i. 524, b.
Tabernacle ſet up at the foot of Mount Sinai, i. 523, b. Built by God's direction, 651, b. Whether borrowed from the Egyptians, ib. d, e. Deſcribed, 652, & ſeq. 659, & ſeq.
Tabernacles the feaſt of, why inſtituted, i. 606, b. How celebrated, 607, & ſeq.
Tabili, the Scythian name for Veſta, ii. 272, a.
Tables, the ten, when firſt introduced, iv. 534, e. Augmented to twelve, 536, b.
— eating, how regulated at Rome, v. 12, d.
Tables of Cain's deſcendants from Sanchoniatho and Moſes, i. 89, b, c. of the Chaldean kings before the flood, 90, & ſeq. of the gods and demi-gods of Egypt, 93.
Tables; Whiſton's computation of mankind down to the flood, 105. of the poſtdiluvians down to Abraham, according to the Hebrew, 110, & ſeq. according to the Septuagint, 111. and the Samaritan pentateuch, 112.
— of the Deſcendants of Noah, 117. Increaſe of men after the flood, 159, & ſeq.
— of the Egyptian dynaſties, from the old Egyptian chronicle, 228.
— from Manello, out of Joſephus, i. 234.
— of the Theban kings, out of Eraſtothenes, ibid.
— of the Egyptian kings, out of Syncellus, ibid. & ſeq. out of Herodotus and Diod. Siculus, 235.
— of the Iſraelitiſh judges, 737.
— of the Jewiſh kings before Jeroboam's revolt, ibid.
— of the decalogue, Talmudic comments on them, i. 519, (A). How written and given to Moſes, 519, a, b. Fables of the Mohammedans about them, ib.
† Tabracca in Numidia, its ruins, &c vii. 110, c, d.
† — iſland, where ſited, 12, d.
Tabrimon king of Damaſcus's friendſhip with Judah and Iſrael, i. 383, a. Who he was, ib. (B).
Tacalhaimanout, a Coptic ſaint and apoſtle, vii. 218, a. Etymon of his name, 219, a.
† Tacatua, where ſituate, vii. 110, a.
† Tacaza river falls into the Nile, vii. 187, b. Deſcribed, 189, (I).
Tacfarinas raiſes a revolt in Afric, v. 393, d. Defeated, ib. e. by Apronius, 407. Bold embaſſy to Tiberius, 414, b. Narrow eſcape, ib. c, d. Defeated and killed. 421, c. See alſo vol. vii. 158, & ſeq.
Tachos king of Egypt, i. 277, d. Impolitic conduct towards Ageſilaus, ib. d. Driven out by his ſubjects, ib. & ſeq. Flight into Perſia, ib. & vol. ii. 149, a—d.
Tacitus's conſulſhip. vi. 4, e. Account of the Germans, 8, e, f. His writings and character, 28, ſub not. Character of Felix, iv. 264, in fin. (B) of Auguſtus, v. 350, (F). of the chriſtians, 549, c—e, & (O). His own, 550, a. A ſad chaſm in his annals, 564, b. Funeral oration of Virginius, 573, f. Character of Agricola, 682, & ſeq.
— emperor choſen by the ſenate, vi 198, b, c. High reſpect for the hiſtorian, ib. f. Character, laws, &c. 199, a—c. March againſt the Barbarians, ibid. d. Death, ibid. e.
† Taci, Tavi Oſtium, where ſituate, vii. 413, f.
Tafia and her daughters turn nuns, vii. 709, e.
Tagonius Gallo's rank flattery to Tiberius, v. 443, b.
Tagus, a fabulous king of Spain, vii. 319, b.
† — a river in Luſitania, 299, a.
— the golden ſand of, ibid. b.
Tahmurah, a fabulous king of Perſia, ſaid to have warred with the Genii, i. 342, a.
Tahmuraſh, 4th king of Perſia, according to oriental writers, ii. 177, a.
† Taifalæ, who, and where, vii. 498, e. Their inroads into the empire, 499, d, e. in Sarmatia, vi. 303, d. Driven out by Athanaric, 380, e. Join with the Greuthongi, ibid. & ſeq.
† Talabrica, a city in Luſitania, vii. 296, e.
† Talabriſſa ſurrendered to the Romans, iv. 784, d.
† Taloura, where, iii. 757, f. The vaſt riches of, ibid. & ſeq.
Talicius's ſucceſs againſt the Scythians, vi. 611, d, e.
Talmai, the ſon of Anac, driven out of Hebron, i. 334, a, & (B).
— king of Geſhur, gives his daughter to David, 391, c.
Talmudiſts, their extravagant notions of the firſt man, i, 44, c.
† Taluda river in Tingitania, vii. 144, e.
Tallutius defeated by the Olynthians, iii. 285, c, d.
Talus's reign in Crete, iii. 165, a.
Tamar, Er's wife, married to Onan, i. 450, c. Overreaches Judah, 451, c. Condemned and afterwards abſolved by him, ibid. & ſeq. Brings forth twins, 152, a, & not.
— David's daughter raviſhed by Hammon, 781, a.
† — the mouth of, near Plymouth, vii. 407, e.
† Tamna, a city in Arabia Fælix, vii. 231, e. 239, a.
Tamocofrhoes defeated by Mauritius, vi. 533, e.
Tamſapor treats for peace with the Romans, vi. 299, f. 302, e.
Tamus baſely murdered by Pſammitichus IId, i. 276, c. d.
Tanaim among the Jews, their office, iv. 37, a.
Tanais worſhipped by the Armenians, iii. 697, b. Her ſtately temple at Acileſina, ibid. c.
† — an ancient city in lower Egypt, i. 176.
† — river, parts the two Scythias, ii. 266, e, & not.
Tanaquil, Tarquin's wife, her proud character, iv. 446. Politic ſtratagems in favour of Servius, 452, f, 453, d. 454, f.

— her diſtaff hung in Hercules's temple, 455, a.
† Tanara, the promontory of, in Lacedemon, deſcribed, ii. 396, c, & (C).
Tancred the Norman, his riſe and progeny, vi. 609. e.
† Tanfana, the temple of, what, and where, v. 369, c, (P). vii. [418]. b. (C). Deſtroyed, v. 369, c.
— worſhipped by the Saxons, vii. 442, e.
Tangier; ſee Tingis, vii. 140, &c ſeq.
— the famed cave of, 148, d.
Tangripermes repulſed by Alexius, vi. 616, c.
Tangrolipix's ſucceſs againſt Mohammed, vi. 598, f, & ſeq. Made king of Perſia, 599, b. Ill-ſucceſs againſt the Arabians, ibid. c. Huffing meſſage to the emperor, ibid. f. Excurſions into Iberia, 600, c, d.
Tanitic mouth of the Nile, why abhorred by the old Egyptians, i. 243, e.
Tantalus king of Sypilus in Phrygia, ii. 296, b. His reſentment againſt Tros, 313, Subdued by Illus, 315, — defeated by the Romans, iv. 784, b.
† Taphene given to the fugitive king of Edom, i. 314. e.
† Taphiæ iſlands deſcribed, iii. 241, d.
Taran, the Gauliſh Jupiter, why ſo called, vii. 353, c.
Tarbigil; ſee Trebigil, vi. 442, d.
Tarcon, king of Hetruria, iv. 418, e.
† Tarentines invite the Epirots into Italy, iv. 599, e. Their extract and character, 642, & ſeq.
— ſtir up freſh enemies againſt Rome, 643. Hoſtilities againſt them, 544, a, b. Invite Pyrrhus to their defence, 645. Subdued by Papyr. Curſor, 648, b. by Fabius, 733, b. Their miſerable ſtate, ibid. d, e. Invite Hannibal, vii. 48, b. Surrendered to Valerius, 51, & ſeq. Beſiege the citadel, 54. a. Annoyed by the Carthaginians, 59, a. Their ſad cataſtrophe, 62, d, e.
† Tarentum, where, and whence ſo called, iv. 642. Diſmantled by the Romans, 648, b. Betrayed to Hannibal, 723, f. Retaken by Fabius, 733, c. See alſo vol. vii. 62, c, d. Betrayed by Milo to the Romans, vi. 819, e, f. Retaken by Beliſarius, vii. 670, e. by Totila, 673, e.
† Tarichæ iſlands where ſited, vi. 671, (E).
† Tarichea, where, iv. 272, (V). Taken by the Romans, ibid. c.
Taricheutæ, the embalmers of Egypt ſo called, i. 215, a.
Tarpeia betrays the Roman citadel, iv. 430, d. Her death, ibid.
† Tarpeian mount, why ſo called, 430, d. Jupiter's temple built on it, 452, a.
Tarpeius made governor of the Roman citadel, 430, c.
Tarquin, his pedigree, iv. 446, d. Gallantry, 447, a, b. Choſen king, ibid. d. Defeats the Latins, ibid. & ſeq. the Hetrurians, 448, & ſeq. Outwitted by an Augur, 450, c, d. Wars with the Sabines, ibid. & ſeq. Murdered, 452, e, f.
— Lucius married to Tullia, 455, e. Inceſtuous marriage with the younger, 458. Plots againſt Servius, ibid. & ſeq. Murders him, 459, c, d. His tyranny, 460, b. Treachery to Herdonius, ibid. e, f. War with the Volſci, 461, b. With the Sabines, ibid. c. Outwits the Gabini, ibid. & ſeq. Buys the Sibylline books, 462, e. Conſults the Delphic oracle, 463, & ſeq. Baniſhed by the ſenate, 466.
— Sextus's ſhameful ſtratagem againſt the Gabini, 461, e. Cruelty to them, 462, b. Rape of Lucretia, 464, paſſ. Baniſhment, 446. Plot againſt the Roman conſuls, 468, paſſ. Eſtate confiſcated, 470, b, c. Defeated by Valerius, 472. Attempt on the Roman ladies fruſtrated, 476. Conſpiracy defeated, 479, & ſeq. His death, 484, d.
— Accuſation of Craſſus, v. 106, f. Puniſhment, 107.
† Tarquinienſes, who, iv 588, f. Defeat the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated by Quinctius, 591, d. Make a forty years truce with Rome, 592, d.
Tarquinii, their fruitleſs embaſſy in favour of Tarquin, iv. 468, paſſ. Diſcover a plot againſt Rome, 480, c. d.
† Tarraco, Tarragona, metropolis of Tarracon, vii. 303, b. Deſcribed, 305, d. Viſited by Adrian, vi. 35, d. Taken and deſtroyed by the Franks, 183, e. vii. 552, e. By the Viſigoths, 514, f, & ſeq.
† Tarracon, the province of, deſcribed, vii. 303, c. & ſeq. Its various nations, ibid. & ſeq. & notes.
— the city of, where ſituate, 305, d, (F). Councils held at, 306 By whom built, [324], a.
† Tarſenſes, who, v. 233, a. Heavily fined by Caſſius, ibid. b.
† Tarſhiſh, where ſettled, i. 168, e. Gave name to Cilicia, ibid.
— ſometimes denotes Carthage, vi. 722, a.
† Tarſus, a city in Cilicia Propria, i. 168, e, ii. 340, f. By whom built, ibid. & ſeq. Taken by Alexander, 158, b. Taken and plundered by Sapor, vi. 177, a. Deſigned for Julian's reſidence, 327, a. Proved the place of his burial, 335, c. 343, a.
Tartan, the Aſſyrian, takes Aſdod from the Philiſtines, i. 359, c, d. 896, b.
† Tartars, who, vi. 630, d. Their ſucceſs againſt the Turks, ibid. & 632, a, b. 634, & ſeq.
† Tartary, part of ancient Scythia, ii. 267, paſſ.
† Tarteſa, where ſited, ii. 262, a, & not. Jupiter defeated at, by the Titans, ibid. Often miſtaken for Gadir or Cadiz, vi. 730, in fin. (A).
† Tarteſſus, where ſituate, vii. 301, b. (G).
† Taſm, an ancient Arabic tribe, vii. 243, b.
Taſſilo, duke of Bavaria, revolts againſt the emperor, vii. 485, d, e.
Taſter, the office of, its origin, v. 516, (Z).
Tatian's character of the heathen philoſophers, vi. 81, d. (H).
Tatianus's friendſhip to Adrian, vi. 25, f. Severe advice to him rejected, 31, c. Promoted by him, 33, c. Made a ſenator, 34, d, e.
— Attil. baniſhed for treaſon, 56, d.
— bravery in Syria, 64, b, c.
— accuſed by Rufinus, 421, d. Baniſhed, ibid. e.
Tatienſes, the order of, whence ſo called, iv. 423, a.
Tatilius, deſtroys the cruſado fleet, vi. 616, b.
Tato, and Caco, murdered by Gregory, vii. 688, d, e.
Tatus, king of the Lombards's, ſucceſs againſt the Heruli, vii. 617, a. Death, ibid. b.
Taverns, ſuppreſſed by Tiberius, v. 371, f.
† Taulantii, who and where ſited, iii. 254, a, (C).
† Tauraſia, metropolis of the Taurini, iv. 408, e, f.
† Tauri, who and where ſited, iii. 840, f, & ſeq.
† Taurian Scythians, their ſite, cuſtoms, &c. ii. 277.
† Taurin, the ancient Ecbatane, ii. 2. (B). Famed for its wines, 4, a.
† Taurinum, where ſited, iv. 648, a. Taken by Hannibal, ibid. and put to the ſword, vii. 16, c, d.
Taurinus, choſen emperor, vi. 139, f. Flees and drowns himſelf, ibid. & ſeq.
† Tauriſci, who and where, v. 4. Ravaged by the Cimbrians, ibid. f, & ſeq.
† Taurominium, a city in Sicily deſcribed, iii. 3, c. Delivered up to the Romans, iv. 654, e. Seized by the revolted ſlaves, 796, a. Retaken by Rutilius, ibid. d. Taken by the Saracens, vi. 575, e, f. Yielded to Dionyſius, 770, e.
† Taurominius river, deſcribed, iii. 3, c.
† Tauropolium, Diana's temple, why ſo called, iii. 212, a.
Taurus, baniſhed by Julian, vi. 325, d.
† — mount in Scythia, ii. 267, d. The biggeſt in all Aſia, 338, b. Where ſituate, vi. 761, (L).
Tauſias, the murderer of Pertinax, vi. 98, f.
Taxes, regulated by Nero, v. 528, a. By Conſtantine, vi. 256, e.
† Taxila, a city in India, deſcribed, iii. 390, (D).
Taxiles's ſubmiſſion and preſents to Alexander, iii. 385, & ſeq. 390, a. Speech to him, ibid. (D). Sent back to his dominions, 393, b.
Taygeta, daughter of Atlas, raviſhed by Jupiter, ii. 395, (A).
Taytæ, kings of Hira, 275, c.
† Tackoa, its ſituation, &c. iv. 76, (M M). The famed battle of, ibid. & b, c.
† Tectoſagi, who and where ſited, vii. [412] (I). Defeated by Sylla, 396. Their treaſure, whether brought from Delphos, v. 27, e.
† Tegea, metropolis of Arcadia, ii. 379.
— Oreſtes buried at, 380, a, & not.
— the battle of, 380, 560.
Tegean women, their ſignal bravery, ibid.
† Tehama, the province of, where, &c. vii. 238, e, & ſeq.
Teia, choſen king of the Oſtrogoths, vii. 493, a. 677, a. Cruelty to the Romans, ibid. d, e. Goes to relieve Cumæ, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and ſlain, 678, c, d.
Teichomerus, choſen king of Bulgaria, vii. 637, e, f. Stoned to death, 638, a.
— betrayed and murdered, vi. 596, f, & ſeq.
† Teios, where ſited, iii. 725, f. Taken by Leocritus, ibid. & ſeq.
Telamon's ill treatment of Heſione, ii. 317, b. 318, c.
— king of Salamis, iii. 245, b.

† Telchinæ,

† Telchinæ, who and where ſited, iii. 131, e. The firſt inhabiters of Rhodes, ibid.
† Telcines, who and where, iii. 238, in fin. (E).
Teleſtes, one of the artiſts of Apollo Pythius's ſtatue, i. 221, f.
Teleſtus, king of Sparta's character and reign, ii. 569, & ſeq.
Telemachus, a hermit, ſtoned to death, vi. 450, b.
Telephus, the ſon of Hercules, king of Myſia, ii. 327, b.
— the fable of him, 379, (I).
— writings and character, vi. 60, ſub not.
Teleſinus, Pont. outwits Sylla, v. 72; f. Marches to Rome, 73, a. Defeats Sylla, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated and killed, 74, c.
— Lucius baniſhes himſelf from Rome, 686, b.
Teleſis choſen king of Bulgaria, vii. 626, b.
Teleſtes laſt king of Corinth murdered, ii. 392, e.
Teleucias ſlain by the Olynthians, ii. 514, f.
Telias the ſoothſayer's ſtratagem againſt the Theſſalians, ii. 367, b.
Teliſſila's bravery againſt the Lacedemonians, ii. 585, not.
Telinus made high-prieſt of the Jeleans, iii. 15, ſub not.
† Tellus, the temple of, built, iv. 649, (D).
— the Athenian, why counted the happieſt man, ii. 335, d.
Telmeſſans, great ſouth-ſayers, iii. 353, b. ii. 301, b.
† Telmeſſus, where ſited, ii. 337. iii. 332, d. Taken by Alexander, ibid. & ſeq.
† Teman, a famed city of Edom, i. 309, b.
† Temani, the country of one of Job's friends, ibid. c.
Temenus one of the Heraclidæ, made king of Argos, ii. 360, c. Murdered, ibid.
— the fabulous ſtory of, iii. 272, (A).
† Tempea, the valley of, in Theſſaly, deſcribed, ii. 381, d.
† Temple of Jeruſalem, built by Solomon, i. 795, a. Dedicated, 797, a. Its ornaments, utenſils, &c. ibid. & (M). Vaſt number of victims, 798, c. Twice plundered by Nabuchadnezzar, 848, a—c. Burnt to the ground, 850, d. Deſcribed, according to the ſacred books, append. after page 796, 1, & ſeq. The rebuilding of it begun, iv. 5, & ſeq. Dimenſions, 4, & ſeq. Diſparity from the old one, 6, b, & (K). Diſcontinued, 9, a, b. Reſumed, ibid. c, d. Dedicated, 10, c. by Nehemiah, 22, a, b. How, ibid. (K). Prophaned by Sanballat, 24, a. by Antiochus, 50, c, d. Its worſhip ſuppreſt, 51, d. polluted with Jupiter's ſtatue, 52, d, (H). Purified by Judas Maccabeus, 61, paſſ. Walls demoliſhed by Alcimus, 76, d, (N). Moſt ſacred place entered by Pompey, 126, b. Rebuilt by Herod, 144, & ſeq. (Y), (Z). Deſcribed, ibid. & ſeq. & (B). Dedicated, 150, b. Polluted by the Samaritans, 193, paſſ. Force by the Zelots, 274. Defended by Giſchala, 286, c. Gates burnt, 283, & ſeq. Sanctuary burnt, 285, & ſeq. & not. Plundered and filled with blood, 296, & ſeq. Demoliſhed and ploughed, vi. 39, d, e. Its materials uſed to build a heathen temple, 41, e.
† — of Samaria, built on Mount Gerizzim, iv. 29, & ſeq.
† — in Egypt, built by the ſchiſmatic Jews, iv. 79, paſſ. Deſcribed, ibid. (T). Shut up and plundered, 290, e, (G).
† Temples of Egypt, their ſtructure, i. 112, d.
— of Greece, deſtroyed by Darius, ii. 109, d. 112, a. 127, e. by Xerxes, why, 471, f. by Sylla, 738, a.
— of Thermæ, burnt by Antigonus, 658.
— hated by the Scythians, 272.
— at Rome, ſtript by Carbo, v. 71, b. by Nero, 550, b, c.
— How built in honour of the Roman emperors, 424, (C).
— pagan, ſuppreſſed by Gratian, vi. 396, e, f. Forſaken under Theodoſius, 415, d—f.
— demoliſhed under Arcadius, 444, e, f. Turned into churches, 445, a.
† Tempyrium, a city in Thrace, iii. 787, d.
† Tenctteri, who, and where ſited, vii. [407], d. Defeated by Cæſar, [438], b—d. by Druſus, v. 319, c—d.
Tenedian Piper, a proverb, ii. 308.
† Tenedos iſland deſcribed, ii. 307, d. Why ſo called, ibid. &c.
Tenes, his character, &c. ii. 307, d, (D).
† Teneriff, the pike of, its height, i. 102, (N).
Tennes king of Sidon, i. 410, f. Conſpired againſt by his ſubjects, 411, a. Joins Ochus againſt them, ibid. c—e. Put to death, ibid. 9, ii. 152, c.
† Tenos, iſland deſcribed, iii. 225. Famed for its wines, 226, a. Subdued by the Perſians, ib. c, d.
— metropolis of the iſland, 226, a.
Tents, Macedonian, how made, iii. 269, f.
† Tentyris, an antient city of Thebais, i. 175, e.
† Teos, by whom founded, ii. 369, d. The ſtate of it, 752, & ſeq.
— deſcribed, iii. 559, c.
Terah, the father of Abraham, his age at his ſon's birth, i. 112, a, b, (N). Affirmed the inventer of coinage, &c. 131, (V). Suppoſed the Azer of the Aſiatics, 132, a. Sundry traditions about him, ib. (Z), (A). Leaves Ur, 133, a, (B). Dies in Haran, 422, a, (B).
Teraphim, what meant by, in the Hebrew, i. 443, a.
Terebinthus, a heretic; ſee Buda, iv. 328.
Terence, the poet, taken captive, iv. 748, e. In high eſteem, 765, b. His plays father'd upon Scipio Æmilianus, 775, c. His writings and character, vi. 710, (N).
Terentia, Mæcenas's wife, her intrigue with Auguſtus, v. 313, b.
Terentian Law, what, iv. 519, c. 520, a. Oppoſed by Q. Cæſo, ib. b. Revived by the Tribunes, 529, e, f. Paſſed, 532, & ſeq. Ratified, 534, d, e.
Terentianus's writings and character, v. 693, ſub not.
Terentius, Arſa, propoſes fixing a body of laws, iv. 519, c, d.
— Varro ſides with Minucius. 706, e. Choſen conſul againſt Hannibal, 709, b. Defeated, horſe and foot, 710, & ſeq. Flees to Venuſia, 711, b. To Canuſium, 712, e. Reception at Rome, 713, c, d.
— Marc. noble defence before the ſenate, v. 444, c. d. Acquitted, 445, a.
— ſent into Iberia, vi. 373, d. Sacrificed to the mutinous ſoldiers, 460, e.
Teres, a warlike king of the Odryſſæ, iii. 791.
Tereus, the fable of, ii. 389. not.
— a long-lived king of Characene, iii. 853, a.
Terillus, invites the Carthaginians into Sicily, vi. 733, f.
Termatians defeat the Romans, iv. 782, c.
Terminalia, the feſtival of, iv. 437, a.
Termini Dii, not impunedly removed, ib.
† Terra Sigillata, of Lemnos, famed, iii. 234, c.
Terracina the port of, repaired by Antoninus, vi. 56, c.
Terrible Jupiter, why ſo called, iv. 492.
Tertullian's judicious remarks on Trajan's perſecution, vi. 27, c, d.
Tertullus, one of Fauſtina's gallants, promoted, vi. 78, d. Expoſed on the ſtage by a mimic, ib. e.
† Tervingæ, war againſt the Vandals, vi. 209, c.
Teſamenes, king of Thebes, ii. 375, b.
Teſta, an antient king of Spain, vii. [321], c.
Tethy's care for her ſon Achilles, ii. 385, b.
Tetractys, God why ſo called by the Pythagoreans, i. 26, b, c.
Tetramneſtus, king of Sidon, i. 410. Aſſiſts Xerxes with 300 gallies, ib. f.
Tetricus, declared emperor in Gaul, vi. 184, b. Sacrifices his men to Aurelian, 192, c. d. Led in triumph by him, ib. e. And promoted by him, 193, c.
— his ſon alſo promoted, ib. c. Houſe deſcribed, ib. d. See alſo vol. vii. 403, d, e.
Teucer, ſuppoſed the firſt king of Troy, ii. 308, a, 311, c.
— the ſon of Telamon ſettles in Cyprus, 321, f.
— founds the kingdom of Salamis, iii. 176, d.
— Introduces human ſacrifices, ibid. e.
† Teucria, ſee Troas, ii. 308, b.
Teuta, queen of Illyricum's treachery to the Roman ambaſſadors, iv. 685, b. Invaded by the conſuls, ib. e. Shameful peace with them, 686, c.
Teuthras, king of Myſia, ii. 327, a.
Teutobocchus defeated by the Romans, v. 36, b. His gigantic ſtature, ib. (L), & 39.
† Teutoburgium, the foreſt of, where ſituate, v. 374, d.
Teutones, Germans, why ſo called, vii. [406], c, [411], (M). Invade Italy, [435], d, e, & ſeq. See alſo vol. v. 4, e, f. Their taunts to the Roman army, 34, & ſeq. Above one hundred thouſand killed by Marius, 36, b.
† Tezaga, taken by Scipio Æmilianus, iv. 774, d. By Manil. Nepos, vii. 100, f.
† Thabir mount, where ſited, vii. 237, e.

† Thabor

† Thabor mount, deſcribed, i. 571, a. In high veneration, ib. (A). Whether Chriſt was transfigured upon it, 572, a.
Thaddæus, ſee James the leſs, iv. 208, (T).
† Thaiſa, a city in Hejax, vii. 237, e, & ſeq.
Thair's wars with Perſia, iv. 380, b. Betrayed by his daughters, and put to death, ib. c.
Thais, the Athenian harlot, cauſes Xerxes's palace to be burnt, ii. 168, d.
† Thala, where ſituate, vi. 670, c. Taken by the Romans, v. 20, c, d. Its dreadful fate, vii. 132, b, c.
† Thalana, a city in Lacedemon, ii, 397, b.
Thalaſſus's pride exaſperates Gallus, vi. 290, b.
Thales, prince of the Ionic philoſophers, i. 17, e. His firſt principle of all things, ib. & ſeq. The firſt who foretold an eclipſe, 218; d. New diviſion of the year, ii. 434, note. Converſe with Solon, 445. Prophecy concerning the Mileſians, 757, e.
— a Lyric poet, companion of Lycurgus, ii. 559, c.
† Thambes mount in Numidia, vii. 111, c.
Thammuz, Adonis, how worſhipped by the Phænicians, i. 402, c, d, 403. a.
Thammuz, the month of June of the Jews, i. 611. (K).
† Thamud, a tribe of antient Arabs, vii. 242, e. & ſeq. Their impiety, 243, a, b.
† Thamydeni, who and where ſited, vii. 233, c.
Thamyris, a boaſting muſician puniſhed, iii. 790, f.
† Thanet iſland, where, vii. 440, b. Given to the Saxons, ibid.
† Thapſacus, a city in Arabia Deſerta, vii. 230, a.
† Thapſus, where ſituate, vi. 669, d.
— the battle of, v. 160, & ſeq.
Tharamis, worſhipped by the Saxons, vii. 232, d.
Tharymbas, a wiſe king of Epirus, iii. 800.
† Thaſians, who and where ſituate, ii. 483, f. Reduced by Cimon, ib. & ſeq. War with the Athenians, iii. 237, b, c.
† Thaſos iſland, deſcribed, iii. 236, & ſeq By whom inhabited, 237, a. Subdued, ib. &c.
† Thaſus, taken from the Athenians, ii. 529, c.
Theano, wife of Antenor, prieſteſs of Pallas, ii. 315, d.
Thearides, made admiral by Dionyſius, iii. 65. f. His Deſcent on Lippari, 57, a.
Theatres, at Rome, divided into factions, v. 359, (P). Regulated, 380, paſſ.
† Thebais, Upper Egypt, why ſo called, i. 175, b. And in ſcripture, Pathros, ib. Deſcribed, ib. & ſeq. Worſhipped the eternal Cneph, 204, d. Deſtroyed by Diocleſian, vi. 213, d.
† Theban kingdom, part of antient Greece, ii. 344, b. By whom founded, 372. Its government, kings, &c. ib. & ſeq Diſſolution, 375. e. Cauſe and ſucceſs of its war, 358, & ſeq. Fatal cataſtrophe, 374, & ſeq.
† Thebans, their treachery to the Greeks, ii. 112. Part join with the Ionians in queſt of new ſettlements, 369.
— war with the Athenians, 488, c. Surpriſe Platea, 500. Kindneſs to the fugitive Athenians, 551. Subdued by the Lacedemonians, 539, e. Reject the common peace, 441, d. Separate one with Perſia, ib. & ſeq. war with them, 442. Subdued by the Spartans, 614, e. By the Romans, 696, c. Join with Philip againſt Sparta, iii. 298, d. Join the Greeks againſt him, 307, a. Defeated, ib. d, e. Revolt from Alexander, 320, c. Defeated by him, 321, paſſ. The reſt ſee under the next article.
† Thebes, metropolis of Thebais, i. 175, e. Why called Dioſpolis and Hecatompylos, ib. Deſcribed, ib. & ſeq. Deſtroy'd by Lathyrus, iii. 663, f, & ſeq.
† — in Bœotia, by whom founded, i. 499. Enlarged by Amphion and Zetus, ib. & ſeq. Made capital of Bœotia, ii. 372, a, b. Why ſo called, ib. (C). Fortified by Amphion, 373, c. Deſtroyed by the Epigoni, 375, b. Plundered by Cambyſes, 97, f. By Alexander, 549, paſſ. Betrayed to the Lacedemonians, 614, e. Abandoned to the Romans, 696, c. Deſtroyed by Alexander, iii. 321, & ſeq. By Caſſander, 459, b. Taken by Demetrius, 466. Stripp'd by C. Gallus, v. 300. b.
† — capital of Phthiotis taken by Alexander, ii. 662.
Thebet Month, the Jewiſh December. i. 611, (K),
Theft, how far capital among the Jews, i. 683, c.
— other thefts, how puniſhed, ib. & ſeq.
— a capital crime among the Scythians, ii. 270.
— Solon's laws againſt it, 433, a.
— how far allowed by the Spartans, 564, f.
† Thema, a city in Arabia Deſerta, vii, 230, a.
Themata in Italy, what, vii. 721, c, (C).
Themis, the firſt diviner, iii. 163, b.
† Themiſcira, a city in Pontus, deſcribed, iii. 720, d, & ſeq. Surrendered to the Romans, 746, c.
Themiſon, tyrant of Oropus, iii. 251, e.
Themiſtas plots againſt the Republicans, iii. 105, f. Put to death, 106, b.
Themiſtius the philoſopher, raiſed by Conſtantius, vi. 294, d. Flattery to him, ib. e. Sent with a golden crown to him, 299, b. His reward and gratitude, ib. c, d. Sent ambaſſador to Gratian, 378, e. Worthleſs ſpeech to the ſenate, ib. f. Embaſſy to Theodoſius from the Conſtantinopolitans, 392, c. Fifteenth oration addreſſed to him, 395, c. His extract, riſe and character, 429, ſub. not.
Themiſtocles choſen admiral againſt the Perſians, ii. 460, & ſeq. 124, f. His power againſt Ariſtides, 466, & ſeq. Sails againſt Xerxes, 468. Stratagem to detain the fleet at Salamis, 123, c. 472, paſſ. Succeſs againſt the Perſians, ib. & ſeq. Highly rewarded by the Athenians, 124, f. 476, b. Outwits the Lacedemonians, 477, & ſeq. Why baniſhed Athens, 480, b. Goes into Perſia, ib. & ſeq. His ſpeech to Artaxerxes, 481, not. Reception and death, ib.
† Thena, where ſituate, vi, 670, a.
Theoclymenes king of Lydia, ii. 332.
Theocritus, where born, iii, 108, not.
— a worthleſs ſlave made captain of the guards, vi. 125, b. Defeated in Armenia, 127, b.
— executed for treaſon, 523, a, b.
Theodatus's treachery to Amalaſunta, vii. 650, & ſeq. War againſt Juſtinian, 653, paſſ. Depoſed, 654, c, d. Murdered, ib. e.
Theodemir king of the Oſtrogoths, vii. 493, a. Serves under Attila, 518, d. Defeats the Suevi, &c. 519, e, f. Invades Illyricum, 520, b. His death, ib. c.
Theodemir, where ſettled with his Goths, vi. 496, c. Invades the eaſtern empire, 511, e. His death, ib. f.
— king of the Franks, vii. 550, b. The ſame with Pharamond, ib. & 551, b, c.
Theodora married to Conſtantius, vi. 209, f. 226, e.
— her magnanimity ſupports the frighted Juſtinian, 526, a, b. Inclined to Eutychianiſm, 631, b.
— widow of Theophilis, takes the adminiſtration, 570, c. Severity to the Manichees, ib. & ſeq. Reſigns, 571, b, c. Dies, ib. d.
— Conſtantine's daughter raiſed to the imperial government, 597, d, e. Mounts the throne, 601, a, b. Her good but ſhort reign, ib. b, c.
Theodore's treachery to Ptolemy, iv. 42, f.
Theodoret's treachery to the Goths, vii. 655, d, e. 661, b—d. Retires loaden with ſpoil, ib. & ſeq.
— cenſure on Porphiry, vi. 223, & ſeq. ſub not. Character of Julian, 335, & ſeq.
Theodoric ſucceeds Vallia in Spain, vi. 473, a. Beſieged by Littorius, 484, c. Takes him priſoner, ib. d. Peace with the Romans, ibid. e, f. Succeſs againſt Attila, 494, & ſeq. Bravery at the battle of Chalons, 495, d, e. Death, ib. f. See alſo vol. vii. 474, & ſeq. Funeral, ib. 477, c.
Theodoric, the murderer and ſucceſſor of Thoriſmond, vi. 597, f, & ſeq.
— embaſſy to Requiarius in Spain, 503, a, b. Defeats him, ib. e. Returns to Toulouſe, 505, b.
— defeated by Majoranus, ib. e, f. Sues for peace, ib. f, & ſeq. Murdered by his brother, 508, b. See further under Theodoric Iſt. The ſon of Triarius, invades Zeno, 515, c. Enters Macedon, ib e. Peace with Zeno, 516, a. Succeſs againſt Leontius, ib. c. New treaty with Zeno, 516, d, e. Invades and ſubdues Italy, 517, & ſeq. Acknowledged king of it, 519, b. With a ſubmiſſion to the emperor, ib. c. Aſſiſts Mundon againſt him, 521, a; b. Favours the Arians, 523, f. See under Theodoric IId.
— Iſt king of the Viſigoths in Gaul, vii. 492, e. Reduces Italy, 493, a. Peace with the Romans, 510, b. Repulſed before Narbonne, ib, c, d, Defeated by OEtius, ib. d. e. Defeats Littorius, ib. & ſeq.
— IId Peace with Rome, 511, f. His death, 512, b. See under Theodoric IIId.
— IId, his character, 511, f. Alliance with Rome, 512, a, b. Succeſs againſt the Suevi in Spain, ib & ſeq. Ravages in Luſitania, 513, b. Conqueſts in Gaul, ib. &c. Death, 514, c.
— IIId, ſent hoſtage to Leo, 519, c. Returns richly loaden, ib. f, & ſeq.

— ſucceſs

— ſucceſs againſt the Sarmatians, 520, a. Invades the empire, ib. b. Succeeds his father, ib. c. Careſſed and deſerted by Zeno, ib. d, e, & ſeq.
—ravages Thrace, &c. 521, b, c. Defeated, 522, a, b. Goes to Conſtantinople, ib. c, d. Retires, ib. & ſeq.
— marches into Italy, 523, c, d. Victories and conqueſts there, 524, a, b. Betrayed and ſhut up in Pavia, ib. c. Aſſiſted by the Viſigoths, ib. c, d. Reduces all Italy, ib. & ſeq.
— treachery to Odacer, 525, c. Subdues Sicily, ib. e.
— confirms the Roman laws, &c. 526, a—c. His courts of judicature, ib. d, e.
— protects the Allemans, 568, f. Letter to Clovis in their behalf, 571, a, b. Outwits him, 572, e, f, & ſeq. Interpoſes between him and Alaric, 573, e, f. Second letter to Clovis, 574, a—c. To Gundebald, ib. c, d. To the Heruli, ib. & ſeq. Oppoſes the Franks, 576, & ſeq. Falls out with Sigiſmond, 585, & ſeq. Outwits the Franks, 587, d, e. His glorious reign, 639, & ſeq. Acknowledged by the emperor, 640, a——c. Vaſt territories, ib, d, e. Great moderation, ib. & ſeq. With regard to the Romans, 641, a—d. To religion, ib. & ſeq. Singular juſtice, 642, b, c. Temperance, ib. c, d Generoſity to his captive ſubjects, ib. & ſeq. War with Anaſtaſius, 643, a—c. Peace, ib. d. Entry into Rome, ib. f, & ſeq. Munificence there, 644, a, b. War with the Burgundi, ib. e. With Clovis, ib. d. Choſen guardian to Amalaric, ib. f. Reſtores him to his crown, 645, a—c. Cruelty to Boetius and Symmachus, ib. & ſeq. Great grief for it. 646, d. Death and offspring, 647, a—b.
— ſucceſs againſt the Hunns, 485, paſſ.
— Baſiliſcus's general's treaty with Theodoric IIId, 520, e, f. Forces Zeno to ſhameful articles, 521.
Theodorician Laws, whence ſo called, vii. 517, c. d.
† Theodoropolis, where, and why ſo called, vi. 587, f.
Theodorus's noble ſpeech againſt Dionyſius, iii. 53, c.
— the betrayer of Antony's ſon to Octavian, v. 292, b.
— put to death for magic and treaſon, vi. 374, c, d.
— Manilius's conſulſhip, 441, e. Riſe and character, ib. & ſeq.
— the Reader, his hiſtory imperfect, 491, (S).
— joins in Longinus's revolt, 518, e. Taken and beheaded, ib. & ſeq.
— prefect of the eaſt, put to death, 538, a.
— the Cappadocian, conſpires againſt Phocas, 538, e. Put to death, ib. f.
— the brother of Heraclius, his ſucceſs againſt Sais, 541, d, e. Defeated by Haumar, 543, b.
— revolt and baniſhment, 601, c, d.
— deſpot of Epirus, 629, e. Treachery to Peter, 630, a. Aſſumes the purple, ib. d. Defeated by John, ib. e. His eyes put out, ib. & ſeq. Reſtored by Azen, 631, d.
— Calliopa, choſen exarch, vii. 691, d.
Theodoſiolus, put to death by Valens, vi. 376, a. Not the ſame with Theodoſius the great, 378, c.
† Theodoſiopolis, where, iii. 623, (A). Burnt by the Turks, ib. Defended by Eumenius againſt the Perſians, vi. 474, e. Taken by Cabades, 520, c. Retaken by Conſtantine IV. 555, c.
Theodoſitius, driven out of Spain, vi. 455, d.
Theodoſius, left under the gaurdianſhip of Iſdegertes, iv. 338, b. War againſt the Perſians, 340, & ſeq.
— ſent into Britain, vi. 353, c. Succeſs there, ib. d, e. In Mauritania, 359, d—f. Outwitted by Firmus, ib. & ſeq. Succeſs againſt him, 360, c, d. Triumphs over him, 361, b. Unjuſtly put to death by Gratian, 378, b, c. Honours conferred on him after his death, ib. & ſeq. See alſo vol. vii. 435, & ſeq.
— his ſon's bravery againſt the Sarmatians, 362, c, d. Retires into Spain, 378, d. Sent for back by Gratian, 388, e. Succeſs in Sarmatia, ib. & ſeq. Raiſed to the throne, 389, c. Signal modeſty and valour, ibid. d, e. Extract and riſe, 390, a—c. Why called Theodoſius, ibid. d. Addreſſed to by ſeveral cities, 392, b, c. Succeſs againſt the Goths, ibid. & ſeq. In Thrace, 393, a. Sickneſs, baptiſm, and recovery, ibid. b—d. Zeal for orthodoxy, ibid. e. Wholeſome laws, 394, a—c. Victory over the Goths, ibid. d—f. Honours to their king, 395, d, e. Summons an œcumenic council, ibid. e, f. Succeſs againſt the Goths, 396, b. Subdues and ſettles them, 397, b, c. Allies with the revolted Maximus, 402, b. Succeſs againſt the Saracens, ibid. c. Great ſway over Valentinian II. 403, a. Severe laws againſt idolatry, ibid. d, e, & ſeq. Againſt inceſtuous marriages, 404, c, d. Againſt heretics, ibid. e. and Jews; ibid. f. Supplies of corn to Rome, 406, c. Clemency to the conſpirators, ibid. e. Succeſs againſt the Greuthongi, 407, a, b. Clemency to them, ibid. & ſeq. Marries Galla, ibid. d. A noble wiſh of his, 408, a. inſulted by the Antiochians, ibid. b, c. Severity to the ungrateful city, ibid. f, & ſeq. Yet mitigated by him, 409, a, b. Wholly forgives them, 411, e, f. Letter to them, ibid. et ſeq. Succours Valentinian, 412, c, d. Succeſs againſt Maximus, ibid. & ſeq. Clemency to his adherers, 414, a. To the Arians, ibid. e, f. Laws againſt Heretics, 415, a, b. Entry into Rome, ibid. b, c. Proves the means of converting it, ibid. & ſeq. Clemency to the Alexandrian pagans, 416, f. Demoliſhes idolatry there and in Egypt, 417, paſſ. His ſilver ſtatue reared, 418, b. Laws againſt apoſtates and heretics, ibid. c. Dreadful havock of the barbarians, ibid. & ſeq. In great danger from them, 419, a, b. Laws againſt extortion, 421, e, f. Againſt the Lycians, ibid. & ſeq. March againſt Eugenius, 422, d. Freſh laws againſt heretics, &c. ibid. e, f. Forces the Alps, 423, e, f. Defeats Eugenius, 424, paſſ. Suppoſed by a miracle, ibid. e, f. Clemency to the revolted, 425, a, b. To Eugenius's family, ibid. b, c. Divides the empire between Arcadius and Honorius, 426, c, d. Death, obſequies and character, ibid. et ſeq. Maſſacre of the Theſſalonians, 427, a—c. Repentance for it, ibid. d, e.
— his ſquare and column finiſhed at Conſtantinople, 423, b.
— IId. the ſon of Arcadius baptized, 448, e. Created emperor, 449, a. But eight years old when his father dies, 454, f. Peaceful ſtate of his empire, 458, f. 459, a, b. Piouſly brought up by his mother, 470, c, d. Removes to Eudoxiopolis, 472, b. Refuſes to acknowledge Conſtantius, 473, d. Marries Eudocia, ib. e, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt the Perſians, 474, c, & ſeq. Peace with them, 475, d. Kind reception of Placidia, ib. f, & ſeq. Proclaimed emperor of the Weſt, 478, a. Sends Placidia thither, ib. & ſeq. Makes her ſon emperor, 480, a. Peace with the Vandals, 483, a. Deſtroys all the relics of paganiſm, ib. d. His code publiſhed, 484, b, c. Jealouſy of Eudocia, 485, & ſeq. Sends a fleet to Valentinian, 486, c, d. Shameful peace with the Hunns, 487, e. Slavery to Attila, 488. More ſhameful peace with him, 489, c—e. See alſo vol vii. 465, & ſeq. Treachery to him, 470, a, b. To Conſtantius, ib. d, e. Receives the Goths into Thrace, 502, f. Blamed for it, 503, b, c. Death and character, vi. 490, d—f.
— the ſon of Ataulphus born, 470, a. Dies in Spain, ib. d, e.
— of Mauritius, put to death by Phocas, 536, e.
— brother of Conſtantius IId. put to death by him, 545, b.
— an obſcure perſon proclaimed emperor, 550, e. Enters Conſtantinople, ib. f. Reſigns to Leo, 551, a.
Theodota, married to Conſtantine Porphyr, vi. 559, a. Brought to bed of a prince, ib. c.
Theodotus's ſurpriſing conſtancy on the rack, iii. 101. a. Becomes head of a faction, 103, f, & ſeq.
— Iſt founder of the Bactrian kingdom. 525, b. 846, c. Invades Syria, 528, e.
— IId, allies with Arſaces againſt Seleucus, 528, & ſeq. Defeated by Eutydemus, 541, e. 846, c.
— Ptolemy's general goes over to Antiochus, 536, a, b. Made governor under him, ib. e. Attempts on his life, 538, b, c.
— the Egyptian rhetorician adviſes the murdering of Pompey, 673, d. Preſents his head to Cæſar. v. 151, a. His miſerable end, 152, d. 239, b, c.
Theodotus, ſtript of his immenſe treaſure by the Maccabees, iv. 102. e.
— defeats Æmilianus, vi. 181. Why not promoted, ibid. f.
— forgiven and careſſed by Julian, 327, d.
— king of Italy's reign, &c. 493, a.
Theodulus's writings and character, vi. 517, (V).
Theodulus, a cruel miniſter of Juſtinian, vi. 547, d, e. Burnt alive, 548, b.
Theognes, the Arian, baniſhed, vi, 260, e. Recalled, 262, e.
Theomeſtor, tyrant of Samos, iii. 198.
Theon's writings and character, vi. 430, in fin. not.
Theophanes, perſuades Pompey to ſteer for Egypt, v. 148, d, e.
——put to death, vi. 537, f.
Theophania, married to Saturatius, vi. 561, e. Retires from the world, 562, e.

Theophano, takes the government upon her, vi. 582. Intrigues with Nicephorus, 583, c. Married to him, ibid. e. Treachery to him, 584. d. Baniſhed, 585, b. Recalled, 587. f.
Theophilus, of Edeſſa, the ſuppoſed introducer of Syriac points, i. 378.
—— made high-prieſt, iv. 255, a.
Theophobus, his extract and ſucceſsful ſtratagem againſt the Saracens, vi. 568, e, f. Singular fidelity to Theophilus, 569, d, e. Death, 570, c, d.
Theophylact, the ſon of Romanus, deſigned for the Church, vi. 579, c. Dethrones him, 580, c. Falls out with his brother, ib. d. Baniſhed, ib. e.
—— cut off by the Bulgarians, vii. 635, f.
Theophylus's writings and character, vi. 84. ſub not,
—— governor of Syria, murdered by Gallus's treachery, 291, a, b.
—— bp. of Alexandria exaſperates the heathen, 416, d, e, & ſeq.
—— one of the compilers of the Juſtinian Pandects, 530, e.
—— ſtratagem to find out the murderers of Leo, 567, e, f. Ingratitude to Manuel, 569, a. Great honours done to him, ib. c, d. Pardons the revolted Perſians, ib. e. Grief for the loſs of Amorium, 570, b. Death and character, ib. c. Burns his wife's ſhip, ib. d.
Theopompus, king of Lacedemon invades Meſſenia, ii. 571. Creates the Ephori, 574, & not. Takes Ithome by ſtratagem, 576, a. His character and death, ib. c, d.
—— the fabuliſt gratified by Cæſar, v. 149, a.
—— where born, &c. iii. 108, & not.
Theoris, the name of the Delian ſhip, iii. 230, e.
Theotechnes, a magician, put to death, vi. 253, e.
† Theora the iſland of, deſcribed, iii. 214, & ſeq.
† —— city, the ruins of, iii. 216, b.
—— the ſon of Auctesion, the ſtory of, iii. 214, b.
Theramenes, Athenian admiral, ii. 526. Treachery to his collegue, 528, & ſeq. One of the thirty tyrants, 530. Put to death, ib.
Therapeutes, their ſect, life, &c. iv. 171, a, &c. Prophetic ſpirit, 172, a, b. Auſterity, ib. c, d. Whether Jews or Chriſtians, 173, d, e.
Thereans, their wars, iii. 215, d, & ſeq.
Thermantia, the celebrated daughter of Honorius, vi. 390, c.
† Thermæ, where ſituate, ii. 658. Taken and burnt by Antigonus, ib. In Sicily, by whom founded, vi. 745, d, where ſited, 832, (P).
† Thermeſſa, the hot waters of, deſcribed, iii. 10, d.
† Thermeus bay, deſcribed, iii. 260, b.
† Thermodon, a river in Pontus, iii. 722, e.
—— the famed battle of, ii. 279, not.
Thermophoria, one of the feaſts of Ceres, ii. 731, not.
Thermophorion, what, ib.
† Thermopylæ, the ſtreights of, deſcribed, ii. 371, a. Guarded againſt the Goths, vi. 180, c.
—— the famed battle of, ii. 588, paſſ. & not.
† Thermus, metropolis of Ætolia, deſcribed, ii. 410, b. Why called Panætolium, ib.
—— his ſtratagem againſt the Ligurians, iv. 753, f. Defeats them, 754. d, e.
Thermuſa, married to Phraates, iv. 314, a. Poiſons him, ib. c.
Theron's monument ſtruck down with lightning, vi. 746, e.
Therſander, king of Thebes, killed before Troy, ii. 375, b.
Therwingi, driven out by the Huns, vi. 379, e. Fall foul upon the Romans, 381, b. The reſt ſee under Viſigoths, vii. 459, & ſeq. 504, a.
Theſeus, where born, ii. 364, c. Firſt adventures, ib. & not. Sails with the unhappy victims to Crete, 365. Kills the Minotaur, ib. Forgets to hang out his victorious flag. ib. & ſeq. Succeeds his father, 366, a. Becomes a follower of Hercules, ib. b. Expedition againſt the Amazons, ib. (K). Steals Helen away, ib. & ſeq. Dangerous attempt upon Proſerpine, 367, a. Unerdmined at Athens, ib. b. His death, ib. &c. Cruelty to Hippolytus, ib. (M). Suppoſed the founder of the Iſthmian games, 391, (G).
—— his famous pillar on the Iſthmus, 366, d.
—— temple at Athens; 436, c. Made a ſanctuary, 438.
—— tomb diſcovered, and bones brought to Athens, 482.
Theſmotelæ, at Athens, their office, ii, 417, 443.
† Theſpia, a city in Bæotia, ii. 371, a.
† Theſprotia, the cities of, iii. 796, b.
† Theſſalians, who and where ſeated, ii. 344, b. 381, paſſ. Brave warriors and horſemen, 382. c. Their government, 383, a. Kings, ib. & ſeq. Drive out the Bæotians, 386, a. Hatred and wars againſt the Phocians, ib. & ſeq. Highly rewarded by Alexander, 161. Treachery to the Athenians, 487, & ſeq. Puniſhed by Myronides, 489, a. Over-reached by the Macedonians, iii. 286, paſſ. Defeats Alaric, vi. 449, b. The reſt ſee under Theſſaly.
† Theſſaliotis, part of antient Greece, ii. 344, b. Part of ancient Theſſaly, 381, a.
† Theſſalonica, by whom founded, iii. 256, c, (F). Taken by the Romans, 493, f. Beſieged by the Goths, vi. 180, c. Taken by the Saracens, 575, f. Betrayed to the king of Sicily, 622, b. Taken by the Bulgarians, vii. 634, b.
Theſſalonicans, ſeven thouſand maſſacred by Theodoſius, vi. 427, b—d.
Theſſalus, the ſon of Græcus, ii. 381, a.
—— a name uſed by antient poets for poiſonous drugs, 382, a.
† Theſſaly, part of antient Greece, ii. 344, b. Whence ſo called, 381, a. Its ſite, diviſion, &c. ib. b, c. Famed for oxen and horſes, &c. 382. Subdued by Acilius, iv. 754, c. By Æmilius, 763, e. By the Macedonians, 774, c. Ravaged by the Goths, vii. 496, f.
Theſta's noble anſwer to Dionyſius, iii. 53, f.
Thetes, the loweſt rank of Athenians, ii. 430, a.
Theudas, a Jewiſh impoſtor, beheaded, iv. 263, c, (Z).
Theudelinda, takes Agilulf for her huſbaud, vii. 684, b. and converts him, ib. d.
Theudis, king of the Goths in Gaul, vii. 492, e.
Theudiſalus, king of the Goths in Gaul, vii. 492, e.
Theutat, one of the names of Mercury, its etymon, ii. 264, (A). Worſhipped in Gaul, vii. 367, a, b, (T), & ſeq. by the Saxons, 492, e.
† Thia, a new iſland, deſcribed, iii. 215, e.
† Thiaſus river in Lacedemon, ii. 397, c.
Thief, the penitent, why abſolved, iv. 240, b, c, (B).
Thieves crucified with Chriſt, who, iv. 239, (A).
Thimbrio defeated and crucified, iii. 421, b.
† Thimnatha, where, iv. 76, c. Fortified by Bacchides, ib.
† Thirmido, its true ſituation uncertain, vii. 110, f,
This, an antient city in Thebais, i. 175, e.
Thoas, king of Corinth, ii. 334, (M).
—— king of Lemnos, iii. 236, b.
—— prætor of Ætolia, oppoſes the Romans, 711. Convenes the general aſſembly in favour of Antiochus, 712, Haughty anſwer to the Roman conſul, 713, b. Sent to ſurprize Chalcis, 714, b. Diſappointed, 715, paſſ. Goes over to Antiochus, ib. e, Famed ſpeech to him, iii. 553, f.
—— his ſpeech againſt Hannibal, vii. 89, a, b.
† ——river in Ætolia; ſee Achelous, ii. 409.
Thola, the ſon of Phuah, 6th judge of Iſrael, i. 750, a.
† Tholoſan Temple and Treaſury, by whom built, vii. 355, c. (R). Plundered by Cœpio, 396, a, b. Deſcribed, 350, (F), 537, (M). Taken by the Viſigoths, 509, a.
† Tholus, where ſited, iv. 741, e. Taken by Syphax. ib. & ſeq.
Thomas, Didymus, one of the twelve apoſtles, iv. 208, (T). His incredulity reproved, 245.
—— uſurper, his extract, treaſon, and conqueſts, vi. 565, a, b. Repulſed before Conſtantinople, ib. c, d. Defeats and kills Gregory, ib. e. Defeated by the Bulgarians, ib. e, f. Impriſonment and death, 566, a.
Thor worſhipped by the Saxons, vii. 442, d.
Theranius ſacrificed by the triumvirs, v. 224, a.
Thoriſmond's bravery at the battle of Chalons, vi. 495, & ſeq. vii. 476, paſſ. Narrow eſcape, 477, b. Proclaimed king of the Goths, ib. c. vi. 496, a. Returns to Gaul, ib. c, d. vii. 477, e, f. 511, b. Succeſs againſt Attila, 480, c, d. Succeeds Theodoric in Gaul, 492, & ſeq. 511, b. Wars with Rome, ib. d. Murdered, ib. e.
—— king of the Oſtrogoths, his ſhort reign and death, vii. 518, d, Thomyris queen of Scythia's encounter with Cyrus, ii. 87, 283. Bloody revenge on him, ib.
† Thoulouſe; ſee Toulouſe, vi. 469, & ſeq.
† Thrace, the kingdom of, deſcribed, iii. 786, paſſ. Its ſoil, cuſtoms and government, 788. Invaded by Philip, 298, a, & not. Subdued by the Romans, 791, f. Made a Roman province, v. 650, d. Ravaged by the Goths, vi. 169. paſſ. 180, c. 181, d. Abandoned to them, 382, a, b. Deſtroyed by the Quadi, 388, c. Freed by Theodoſius, 393, a. Ravaged by the Hunns, 480, c. Repeopled by the Barbarians, 498, b. Waſted by the Hunns, 513, a. by the Turks, &c. 636, e, f, 637, b. c. by Attila, vii. 468, e, f.
† Thracians greatly ſkilled in muſic, iii. 795, b. in eloquence, ib. c.
Thraſamond king of the Vandals in Afric, vii. 427, d.
† Thraſea Pætus; ſee Pætus, v. 562, & ſeq.
† Thracians, where ſituate, iii, 261, a.
Thraſo, unjuſtly put to death, iii. 101.

Thraſybulus, victorious at ſea, ii. 526. Endeavours to reſcue Attica, 531, b. Recovers Pyreum, ib. Peace with Sparta, ib. f, & ſeq. Hopeful expedition into the Helleſpont, 537. Slain at Aſpendus, 538, a.
— tyrant of Miletum's ſtratagem to obtain a peace, ii. 334, e. Advice to Periander, 758.
— king of Syracuſe, his cruel reign, iii. 22, f. Baniſhment, 23, b.
Thraſybulus foretels Alexander what death he ſhould die, vi. 145, b.
Thraſydeus, tyrant of Agrigentum, defeated by Hiero, iii, 21, c. Kills himſelf, ib. d.
— the murderer of the king of Cyprus, 181, d.
— made king of Theſſaly for his flattery, 310, (L).
Thraſydras of Elis procures a peace with Sparta, ii. 600, a.
Thraſyllus unjuſtly put to death, ii. 528, & ſeq.
— a famed aſtrologer beloved by Tiberius, v. 330, c. Deceives him, 453, d, (D). His death and character, 458, not.
† Thraſymenus, the battle of, iv. 704, & ſeq.
† Thronium, metropolis of Locris Epichnem, ii. 413, a.
† —— city and promontory of Cyprus, iii. 173, d.
† —— in Abantis, built by the Eubæans, iii. 251, a.
Thucydides deſcended from the Sapean kings, iii. 794, e. Commands in Macedon, ii. 511, paſſ. Saves the city of Jone, ib. f.
† Thule iſland diſcovered, v. 672. Where ſituate, vii, 598, d.
Thundering Legion, an account of, vi. 72, paſſ.
Thurians revolt from the Carthaginians, vii. 50, d. Receives them afreſh, 54, paſſ. Plundered by Hannibal, 77, a.
† Thuringians, who, vii. 566, (G). Oft confounded with the Tongrians, ib. Where ſeated, 567, b.
Thurimus third king of Macedon, iii. 272, b.
† Thurium in Sybaris, whence ſo called, ii. 493, (E), in fin. Taken by the Tarentines, iv. 644.
Thurneldis carried off by Arminius, v. 372, c. Her ſignal bravery, 373, b, c. Deliverance, 374, b. (A).
Thuſcus Arbian, his treaſon forgiven, vi. 132, a.
Thya, a feaſt of Bacchus deſcribed, ii. 406, (D).
† Thyatira, a city in Lydia, ii. 329, a.
Thyeſtes brother of Atreus, his inceſt, ii. 336, b. & not,
† Thymaterium, where ſituate, vii. 142, b.
† Thymbria, where, and by whom founded, ii. 312, b.
† Thyni; ſee Bithynians, iii. 729, & ſeq.
Thyras, the ſon of Japhet, ſettles in Thrace, iii. 786, b.
† Thyrrea iſland, where, iii. 193, a. Given to the Samian fugitives, ib.
† —— city taken by the Athenians, ii. 510, f.
† Thyſdras, where ſituate, vi. 153, d. Gordianus proclaimed at, ib. e.
† Tiber river boundary of Etruria, iv. 410, d. Whence ſo called, 412, e. Its ſpring-head, &c. 413, b. Overflows, 679, f. Drowns part of Rome, v. 451, d. under Otho, 604, e. Freſh overflows, vi. 26, e. 58, f. More dreadful, 63, b, c. Lays Rome under water, 365. Reckoned ominous, ib. b.
† Tiberias, the ſea of, deſcribed, i. 577, b. Whence it had all its other names, ib. (P). and that of Tiberias, iv. 194, d, (A).
—— city by whom built, iv. 194, d. Taken by the Romans, 272, d, (V).
Tiberinus king of Alba drowned, iv. 421.
Tiberius, Claud. Nero, ill-ſucceſs in Campania, v. 267, d, e. Flight into Sicily, ib. & ſeq. Return to Rome, 273, e. Cruelty to the Aſtures, 299, b.
—— Auguſtus's ſon in-law made queſtor, v. 301, c. Succeſs againſt the Germans, 314, b. Succeeds Agrippa, 318, d. Marries the infamous Julia, ib. e. Reduces the Pannonians, ib. f, & 320, a. Sent againſt the Germans, 322, f. Triumphs over them, 324, a, b. Sudden retreat to Rhodes, ib. f, & ſeq. Behaviour there, 325, paſſ. Forbid to return, 326, a. Divorces Julia, 327, a, b. Letters to Auguſtus, 328, d. Return to Rome, 330, c. Adoption, 332, c. Succeſs againſt the Germans, 333, d, e. 334, b, c. Slow expedition againſt the Marcomani, 335, b, c. Jealouſy of Germanicus, ib. e. Surprized by the Dalmatians, 339, c, d. Triumphs over them, 340, b. 342, c. Quinquennial tribuneſhip renewed, 345, c. Recalled from Illyricum, 346, f. Aſſiſts at Auguſtus's laſt moments, ib. & ſeq. Declared his ſucceſſor, 347, e. Why, ib. (E). Murders young Agrippa, 351, a. 354, a, (H). Declared emperor, 354, & ſeq. His extract, &c. 356, (L). Where born, 357, not Ingratitude to his mother, ib. b. Cruelty to Julia, 358, a, (M). Letter to the revolted legions, 362, & ſeq. Jealouſy of Germanicus, 370. b, c. Signal modeſty, ib. & ſeq. Reformation, 375, f. Jealouſy of Agrippa, 377, d, e. Affected popularity, 378, & ſeq. Severely lampooned, ib. (H). Outwits the Veterans, 380, & ſeq. Saluted emperor by Germanicus, 384, c. Grows ſuſpicious of him, 386, b, c. Treachery to Libo, ib. & ſeq. to Archelaus, 390, d. Liberality to the twelve ruined cities, 392, c. to that of Rome, 402, b. Edict againſt mourning for Germanicus, 404, a, b. Speech to the ſenate about Piſo's trial, ib. & ſeq. Partiality to Plancina and hers, 406, c, d, (E). Fourth conſulate, 408. Excuſe for not going againſt the Germans, 410, b. Law for reprieving criminals ten days, 411, b. (H). Speech againſt ſuppreſſing luxury, ib. c. Diſſimulation to Livia, 412, e. Speech in favour of young Druſus, 416, e, & ſeq. on the greatneſs of his army, &c. 417, (S). Why nick-named Callipedes, ib. in fin. not. Honoured with a temple, 419, d. Singular knowledge of mankind, 422, e. Anſwer about building temples to him, 424, & ſeq. to Sejanus's petition, 425, & ſeq. Suſpicions againſt Agrippina, 427, & ſeq. Conteſt between eleven cities about building a temple to him, 428, d, (F). Retires from Rome, 429, paſſ. His motives, ib. & (G), (H), & (I). His life ſaved by Sejanus, 430, b. Grows ſuſpicious and cruel, ib. & ſeq. Retires to Caprea, 432, b, c. Letter on the execution of Sabinus, 434, a. Hatred to his mother, 435, & ſeq. Letters againſt Agrippina and Nero, 436, paſſ. Cruel uſage of them, 437, a, b. Informed of Sejanus's deſigns, ib. e, f. Letter to the ſenate againſt him, 439, & ſeq. Butchers all his friends, 441, b, c. Other cruelties, 442, & ſeq. Dreadful condition, 444, & (T). Murders all his old friends, 445, & ſeq. Sham approach towards Rome, 446, b. Seizes on Marius's eſtate, 447, a. His baſeneſs and cruelty, & ſeq. Generoſity to the Roman ſufferers, ib. 451, e. Publick buildings, ib. (C). Taken ill out of Caprea, 452, b, (C). Deceived by an Aſtrologer, 453, d, (D). Whether, and how he ſettled the ſucceſſion, 554, & ſeq. Foretells Gemellus and Calligula's deaths, 455, c. Stifled by Macro, ib. & ſeq. Burial, 456, f. Character, 457, a, (F). Anniverſary inſtituted, 478, c. The twelfth year of his reign, how computed, iv. 194, b. Embaſſy and defeat of Coſrhoes, 358, b, c, d. An error about him corrected, vii. 348, (G).
—— Gemellus Nero, whether named to ſucceed his grandfather, v, 454, & ſeq. Adopted by Caligula, 463, c. His diſmal end, ib. d, e.
—— the ſon of Brutus, cabals againſt him, iv, 468, b. His death, 469. e.
—— an obſcure uſurper of the empire, vi, 266, b.
—— Juſtin's prime miniſter governs during his madneſs, 532, e. Created Cæſar, ib. f. Choſen emperor, 533, c. Creates Anaſtaſia empreſs, ib. d. Generoſity to Hormiſdas, ib. e. Death, ib. & ſeq. Character, 534, a.
—— brother of Conſtantine IIId, diſfigured by him, 545, & ſeq.
—— Apſimar depoſes and confines Juſtinian, 548, c. Driven out by him, 549, a. Put to death, ib. b.
—— the ſon of Juſtinian IId, murdered in a ſanctuary, 549, f, & ſeq.
—— an impoſtor proclaimed emperor, vii. 707, d.
Tibites ſent to raiſe diſturbances in Bithynia, iii. 1, 5, e. Dies in his journey, ib.
—— king of Bithynia depoſed by his brother, 829.
Tibni elected king of Iſrael, i. 808, e. Builds Samaria, ib. A wicked perſon, ib. & ſeq.
† Tibur, put to the ſword by Attila, vii. 668, a.
† Ticinum, Pavia, fortified by Scipio, vii. 17, c.
—— the battle of, ib. & ſeq.
Tidius Sextus, goes over to Pompey, v. 138, c.
Tigellinus's ſumptuous banquet for Nero, v. 546, b, c. Judges the conſpirators, 553, f, & ſeq. 556, a. His reward, 557, & ſeq. Treachery to Nero, 575, b. and eſcape by dint of bribery, 588, paſſ. His death, 601, f, & ſeq.
Tigellius promoted by Nero, v. 541, f. Leud character, 542, a. Bloody advice to him, ib. e.
Tigillum ſororium, the yoke under which criminals were made to paſs, iv. 442, d.
Tiglath-Pileſar, king of Aſſyria, who, i. 890, a, (A). Carries the Jews into captivity, ib. b. and the whole tribe of Napthali into Aſſyria, ib. c.
Tigranes I. king of Armenia, iii. 699, f. Invades Cappadocia, ib. & ſeq. Choſen king of Aſſyria, 617, a. 700, a. Driven out by Pompey, 619. e. 700, b. His conqueſts, ib. c. Alliance with Mithridates, 699, f. 700, e. f.

Cold

Cold reception of him, ibid. & ſeq. vid. & 748, a, (N). New conqueſts, 701, b, c. Exceſſive pride, ibid. c, d. Anſwer to Lucullus, ibid. & ſeq. Invaded by him, 702, b. Defeated by Sextilius, ibid. c, d. By Lucullus, 703, paſſ. Jointly with Mithridates, 705, c. Defeats his rebellious ſon, 706, e, f. Submits to Pompey, 707, a, b. Strong attachment to the Romans, ibid. d, e. Death, ibid. f. See alſo vol. iv. 104, c. 318, c.
—— his ſon, rebels againſt him, 706, f. Leads Pompey into Armenia, 707, a. Sent in chains to Rome, ibid. d, e.
——IId, crowned by Tiberius, iii, 709, b. Put to death, ibid. & v. 308, b. 329, c. 351, d.
—— IIId, defeated by Caius, v. 329, c.
—— promoted by Nero, v. 336, b. His extract, ibid. (F).
—— yields his ſhare of Armenia to Theodoſius, vi. 487, b.
† Tigrano-certa, by whom built, iii. 693, b. 700, d. Beſieged by Lucullus, 703, b, c. Betrayed to him, 704, d, (L). Taken by the Parthians, iv. 318, d.
† Tigre, the mountains of, where, &c. vii. 185, d.
† Tigris river deſcribed, i. 55, d, e. & ſeq. 858. Why ſo called, ibid. (H).
——in Armenia, deſcribed, iii. 694, a—e.
—— Trajan's bridge over, vi. 18, f.
† Tiguri, who, v. 19, d. Defeat the Romans, ibid. c.
Timæus Locrus's account of the origin of things, i. 27, c.
—— Siculus's writings and character, vi. 739, (F).
Timarchus, king of Atropatene, iii. 844, f.
— a tool of Antiochus put to death for oppreſſion, 591, e.
Timaſius ſent againſt Maximus, vi. 412, f. Commands the Romans againſt Eugenius, 424, a. Betrayed by Eutropius, 456, e, f. Dreadful Baniſhment, 437.
Timea, the wife of Agis debauch'd by Alcibiades, ii. 600, c.
Timius, the accuſer of Propidius, v. 481, e.
Timo, prieſteſs of Ceres, her advice to Miltiades, iii. 223, Cleared by the oracle, 224, a.
Timolaus reigns jointly with his father Odenatus, vi. 183, d, &c. 189, d. His death, 192, e.
Timoleon's averſion to tyranny, iii. 73, & ſeq. Kills his brother, 74, c, & not. Sent general into Sicily, ibid. e. Takes Syracuſe, ibid, & ſeq. Repeoples it, 77, d, e. eſtabliſhes democracy in it, ibid. &c. Defeats the Carthaginians, 78. Peace with them, 79, a. Clears that iſland of its tyrants, ibid. b, c. vol. vi. 775, & ſeq, Succeſs againſt Icetas, 776, paſſ. Outwits the Carthaginians, ib. & ſeq. Defeats them, 777, b, c. Takes Meſſana, 780, c. His merry cry after the Carthaginians, ibid. f. Storms Icetas, ibid. & ſeq. Depoſes the Sicilian tyrants, 781, b—d. Quells the mutinous mercenaries, 782, c—e. Defeats the Carthaginians, 783, & ſeq. Gets an immenſe plunder, 785, a—c. Freſh defeat of Icetas, 786, a. Puts him and his family to death, ibid. b. Defeats Mamercus, ibid. c. Peace with Carthage, ibid. d. Death and funeral honours, iii. 79, e, & ſeq.
Timotheus's epitome of the Orpheic coſmogony, i. 16, a. Teſtimony of Orpheus, ibid. c.
— Athenian general, his character, ii. 540. Defeats the Lacedemonians, ibid. & ſeq. Succeſs in Macedonia, 541. Diſgrace and death, 543, b.
— tyrant of Heraclea, iii. 824, e.
— governor of the Ammonites, defeated by Judas Maccabeus, iii. 587, b. iv. 59, e. Afreſh and killed, 63, a.
— invades Gilead, and defeated, 64, b. A ſecond time, 66, & ſeq. Taken priſoner, 67, c.
— the Eutychian raiſes new troubles in the empire, vi. 521, f.
Tin, fetched from Britain by the Phœnicians, vii. 401, & ſeq. Diſcovered by the Greeks, 405.
† Tina the true Peluſium, i. 166, a.
† Tinda, the metropolis of the Biſtones, iii. 790, d.
† Tingis, Tangier, metropolis of Maurit. Tingitania, v. 493, d, (W). vii. 139, a. When and by whom built, 140, e, f. A gigantic corps dug up at, 141, a. Its other names, ibid. b, c. Taken by Sertorius, v. 86, b.
† Tingitania, ſee Mauritania, vii. 139, & ſeq. When made a roman province, 157, b.
† Tingitanum, taken by Theodoſius, vi. 360, c.
† Tipaſa, where ſituate, vii. 113, e.
† Tiras and his deſcendants, where ſettled, i. 169, b.
Tirhakah, king of Ethiopia, probably the ſame with the Sabbaco of Herodotus, i. 893, (V). viii. 211, f, & ſeq.
Tiribaſus, the Perſian general, invades Cyprus, ii. 145. Recalled and diſgraced, 146, c. Saves Artaxerxes and his army, ibid. &c. Reſtored, 147, b, c. Put to death for treaſon, 149, & ſeq. See vol. iii. 180, & ſeq.
Tiridates, oppoſed by Corbulo, iii. 713, & ſeq. Driven out of Armenia, 714. & ſeq. Sues to Rome for the Crown, 716, b. Interview with Corbulo, ibid. & ſeq. Crowned by Nero, 717, b, c. v. 304. & ſeq. Rank flattery to him, ibid. 564, c, d. Narrowly eſcapes the Alani, 650, c. His ſucceſſors, iii. 717, d, e. See alſo vol. iv. 319, & ſeq.
— Set upon the Parthian throne, iv. 313, b. Wars with Phrahates, ibid. & ſeq.
— the ſon of Phrahates ſet up by Tiberius, 315, b, c. Outed by Artabanus, ibid. & ſeq.
— kills the king of Armenia, vi. 63, e. Taken priſoner; ibid.
— reſtored to the Armenian crown, 131.
Tirſhata, its office, iv. 3. (C).
† Tiſata, where ſituate, vii. 44. Hannibal's camp at, ibid. & ſeq.
† Tiſidium, where ſituate, vii. 131, (N).
Tiſamenes, king of Lacedemon, outed by the Heraclidæ, ii. 403, e.
Tiſamenus king of Mycenia, ii. 357, f. Killed in Achaia, 416, b.
Tiſri, the ſept of the Jews, i. 607, a. The firſt month of the civil year, 609, a.
Tiſſaphernes's expedition into Greece, ii. 140, e. Influenced by Alcibiades, 521. Cowardice, 141, b. Treachery to Ageſilaus, ibid. d. Put to death, 142, e. 610, a.
Tit, the Celtic name for the earth, ii. 159, a, & not.
Titan, brother of Saturn, diſputes the crown with him, ii. 260, d. and with Jupiter, 261, & ſeq.
Titanic war, an account of, ii. 261, & ſeq.
Titanides, Artemides, the ſeven daughters of Aſtarte, i. 136, b.
† Titans, ancient Gomerians, ii. 245, b. War againſt Jupiter, 261, & ſeq. Defeated in Spain, 262. In Crete, deſcribed, iii. 162, & ſeq.
Titea, the jealous wife of Uranus, ii. 259, & ſeq.
Tithes, the chief income of the Levites, i. 627, b. Which to be redeemed, ibid. c. The manner of decimating the cattle, 628, c.
Tithrauſtes embroils the Grecian ſtates, ii. 610, b.
Titianas Salvus, left to govern in Rome, v. 605, e. Sent to ſucceed Paulinus, 607, e, f. Raſh advice to Otho, 608, c, d. Defeat, 510, d. Surrenders, ibid. & ſeq. Pardoned by Vitellius, 615, b, c.
— inſulting meſſage to Conſtantius, vi. 283, f. Breaks his heart at his kindneſs to him, 288, b.
Titinius Caius, betrays the revolted ſlaves, v. 31, f.
— Caſſius's friend, the unfortunate cauſe of his death, 246, c. Kills himſelf, ibid. e.
Titius Sextus baniſhed, v. 43, e.
— Marc. defeats Pompey, 283. Murders him, ib. e. Made conſul, 289, a.
Titles, unknown among the ancient Jews, i. 695, c.
Tintanus, king of Lydia, ii. 328, 332.
† — mount, 328.
Titonus, the ſon of Laomedon, ii. 315, f. His bravery, ib. & ſeq.
Titus Tatius, king of the Sabines, wars with Romulus, iv. 430, & ſeq. Peace with him, 431, d, e. Dies, 433, b.
— the ſon of Brutus cabals for Tarquin, 468, f. Put to death, 469, e.
— the ſon of Veſpaſian joins his father in Judea, iv. 276, a, b. Puts off his journey to Rome, 277, e. Left commander in Judea, 278, a. Gratitude to Joſephus, ibid. f. Marches againſt Jeruſalem, ibid. b, c, & ſeq. Order of his army, ibid. (I). Beſieges the city, 279, b, &c. Offers of peace rejected, 280, paſſ. Swears the deſtruction of it, 282. Endeavours to ſave the temple, 285, b, c. Enters the ſanctuary, ibid. e. Carries off the ſacred utenſils, ibid. & ſeq. Mercy to many Jews, 286, d, (Y) and (Z). Enters the city, 287, b. His triumph and trophies, 289, c, (C). Cuts off the relics of the houſe of Judah, 290, d. His fondneſs for Berenice, 291, c. Sent to congratulate Galba, v. 582, e, f. 620, b. Is promiſed the empire at Paphos, ib. c. A further account of his Jewiſh war, 638, c, and triumph, 649, e. Saluted emperor, ib. & ſeq. Private life recapitulated, 657, paſſ. Pathetic apology for his worthleſs brother, 657, b, c. Private character abhorred by the people, ibid. e, f. Public one as much admired, 658, a, b. Diſcards his dear Berenice, ibid. c. Profuſe generoſity and clemency, ib. d, e, & ſeq. Succeſs ceſs in Britain, vii. 429, e. Triumphs over it, v. 659, f. Munificence to the Campanians, 660, c. To the city of Rome, ibid. d. His death and excellent character, 662, & ſeq.

— ſtately amphitheatre dedicated, 660, f. Other famous buildings, &c. 661, d.
— triumphal arch ſtill extant, 649, f, & ſeq.
† Tivoli, Adrian's palace at, vi. 47, a.
Tlepolemus ſettles in Rhodes, iii. 132, d. Made king of it, 133, a.
— Alexander's general's lot after that monarch's death, 423, e.
— prime miniſter of Philopater, 646, e, f. Falſely accuſed, 467, b, c. Cleared, ib. e.
† Tob, the land of, where, iv. 63, c. The Jews of, maſſacred, ib. e. Country invaded by the Maccabees, 67, a.
Tobiah, endeavours to obſtruct the rebuilding of the Jewiſh temple, i. 298, d. Prophanes it, iv. 24, paſſ.
† Tocolositia, where ſituate, vii. 143, c.
† Tocas, where ſituate, vi. 808, (Z). Taken by the Sicilians, ib. d.
Todasius, choſen king of the Heruli, vii. 600, b.
Tonion, tyrant of Syracuſe, iii. 88, e.
† Togarmah, the laſt Son of Gomer, where ſettled, i. 167, a. Peoples Cappadocia, iii. 762, e.
† Togata Gallia, whence ſo called, vii. 322, a. Deſcribed, ib. &c.
Togodumus, defeated by the Romans, vii. 428, b—d. Killed, 429, a.
Toi, Thœnus, king of Hamath in Syria, i. 390, c. Delivered by David from Hadadezer, ib. d.
† Toletum, Toledo in Spain, where ſited, vii. 306, d, & ſeq.
Tolmides, the Athenian's expedition into Laconia, ii. 489, a. Defeated and killed in Bœotia, 491, d.
† Toloſa, Toulouſe, metropolis of the Viſigoths, vi 47, a, e, f, vii. 510, b. Taken and plundered by the Romans, v. 27, d. By Ataulphus, vi. 469.
† — its temple and treaſure, ſee ſub Tholouſan, 350, (F), 557, (M), & alib.
Tolumnius kills the Roman ambaſſadors, iv. 548, e. Slain by Cornel. Coſſus, ib, f.
† Tomos, metropolis of Lower Mœſia, v. 242, (A).
† Tongres, where ſited, vii. 473. Taken by Attila, ibid. d.
† Tongrians, who, 567, a. Subued by Cloris, ib. d.
† Tongues, the confuſion of, at Babel, whether a puniſhment, i. 144, a. How effected, 154, c. d. Whether a new language was form'd from them, 155, a—c.
† Topiris, a city of Thrace, iii 786, a.
Torch bearers at Athens, their office, &c. ii. 464, not.
Toriſin's ſignal fidelity to Ildiſgus, vii. 389, (d).
† Torone, a city in Macedon, iii. 257, a. Taken by the Athenians, ii. 542, a.
† — the bay of, iii. 260, b. Taken by Braſidas, 282, a.
Torpedos, their ſtrange effects, vii. 189, (I).
Torquatus, Tit. Man. an inſtance of his great juſtice, iii. 507, a. The reſt ſee under Manlius, iv. 586, & ſeq.
— ſent againſt Antony, v. 208, c, d.
— Silanus condemned to death by Nero, 545, e, f.
† Toryne, where ſited, v. 289, b. Surpriſed by Octavian, ib. Cleopatra's pun upon it, ib. (T).
Toſothrus, king of Memphis, the Egyptian Æſculapius, i, 239. Other of his diſcoveries, ib. (F).
Totila, choſen king of Italy, vii. 493, a, 665, b. Defeats the Romans, 666, b—d. His other conqueſts, ib. e. & ſeq. Letter to the ſenate deſpiſed, 667, e, f. Purſues his victories, 668, paſſ. Enters Rome, 669. d, e. Stern ſpeech to the ſenate, 670, a. Carries them priſoners, ib. d. Second attempt upon Rome abortive, ib. & ſeq. Takes it afreſh, 672, e, f. Repairs it and the ſenate, 673, c—e. Conqueſts in Sicily, ib. & ſeq. Reduces it, 674, c, d. Plunders Greece, ibid. & ſeq. Offers to the emperor rejected, 675, b. Subdues Sardinia, ib. c. and Corſica, ib. d. Marches againſt the Romans, ib. f, & ſeq. Defeated and killed, 676, d, e. His character, ib. & ſeq.
Touran-dukt, princeſs of Perſia, cauſes the uſurper to be aſſaſſinated, iv. 402, b. Mounts the throne, ib. d. Her reign and character, ib. f. & ſeq.
† Tournay taken by Clodio, vii. 560. f, & ſeq. & not.
† Tournefort's account of Mount Ararat, i. 112.
Tours, Gregor. de, his hiſtory defective, vii. 572, & ſeq.
Tower of Babel; ſee Babel, i. 123, & ſeq.
Towers for ſieges, by whom invented, iv. 604, b.
† Toxandria, where ſituate, vi. 303, e, f.
Toxatæ at Athens, their office, ii. 443, c.
Trachalus's conſulſhip, v. 569, d.
Trachondimotus follows Antony, 288. Defeated and killed, 389, e.
† Trachonitis, where ſituate, iv. 158, (W). Given to Herod, 143, b, (V). Infeſted with Banditti, 150, b, c, 158, c. Deſtroyed by Zamaris, ib. d. Bequeathed to Philip, 184, a.
Trading forbid to men of quality, vi. 457, f.
Tragedy, by whom invented, ii. 446, d.
Tragicus lets Hannibal into Tarentum, vii. 51, f.
Trajan ſent againſt Japhia, iv. 272, b, (R). Succeſs againſt Coſrhoes, 319, & ſeq. Subdues Parthia, 320, a, b. Adopted by Nerva, vi. 5, d. Created Cæſar, ib. e. His extract and character, 6. paſſ. Failings, 7, f, & ſeq. Why called Parietarius, 8, a. Saluted emperor, ibid. d—f. Entry and reception at Rome, 9, b, c. Signal generoſity there, ibid. & ſeq. Modeſty, 10, b. Impartiality, ibid. d, e. Firſt war with the Dacians, 11, d. Triumph, 12, c. Finiſhes the port of Centum Cellæ, 13, b, c. War againſt Decebalus, ib. f, & ſeq. Bridge over the Danube, 14, b. Subdues Dacia, ib. & ſeq. Cities built by him there, 15, d, e. Triumph and conqueſts, ib. & ſeq. Conſpired againſt, 16, d. Expedition into Parthia, ib. & ſeq. Entry into Antioch, 17, a. Preſents brought to him, ibid. d, e. New conqueſts, ib. & ſeq. Whether he returned to Rome, 19, d, e. Why ſirnamed Parthicus, 20, & ſeq. Vaſt and ſwift conqueſts, 18, & ſeq. Hurt by an earthquake, ib. e, f. Sails to the Perſic gulph, 22, b, c. Expedition againſt Hagareus, 24, d. Narrow eſcape before Atra, ib. e, f. Falls ill and embarks for Italy, 25, a. His death, obſequies, &c. ib. b. c. Stately works, ibid. & ſeq. Misfortunes following his death, 26, e, f. His character. 27, & ſeq. Fruitleſs attempt againſt Arabia, vii. 282, f, & ſeq.
— ſquare and column, 26, e.
— triumphal arch, 23, a.
† — the caſtle of, repaired by Julian, 302, a.
† — canal of, cleanſed by Julian, 332.
— cotemporary authors, 27, & ſeq. ſub not.
— the ſon of Decius, vi. 168, b. His death, 170, d.
— general of Valens, defeats the Perſians, 374, a. Muders the king of Armenia, 376. Sent againſt the Goths in Thrace, 381, e. Defeated by them, ib & ſeq. Degraded, 382, e. Noble ſpeech to Valens, ibid. f. Death, 384, b.
† Trajanopolis Selinus, whence ſo called, vi. 25, b.
† Thralles, where ſituate, iii. 329, f. Razed by Alexander, ibid, & ſeq.
† Tranſilvania, part of ancient Dacia, vii. 611, a.
† Trapeſa made the metropolis of Arcadia, ii. 379, d.
† Trapeſond, the empire of, when, and by whom founded, vi. 628, b. vii. 288, & ſeq. The emperors of, 289, & ſeq. Subdued by the Turks, 293, & ſeq.
† Trapezontines, their religion, cuſtoms, &c. vii. 289, & ſeq.
† Trapezus, a city in Pontus, iii. 722, a. The reſidence of the Comneni, ib. b, c. Taken by the Scythians, vi. 174. c. made metropolis of the empire, 288, d, e. Deſcribed, ib. (A). See below Trebiſond.
† Trauſtila, the aſſaſſin of Valentinian, 499, f.
Treacle, by whom invented, v. 302, c. Made by Demetrius, for M. Aurelius, vi. 61, f.
Treaſon, High; vid. ſub. Majeſty, v. 378, & ſeq. How puniſhed in men of quality, vi. 394, b, c. Laws againſt it, mitigated, 423, a.
Treaſury, Roman, their decrees preſerved in, v. 411, (H).
Treaties, how ratified at Rome, iv. 441, (S).
† Treballi, who, and where, iii 305, b. Defeated by Philip, ibid. &c. Make peace with Alexander, 319, & ſeq.
Trebatius defeated by Coſconius, v. 52, b.
Trebellis's kindneſs to Juſtinian, vi. 548, f. Rewarded, 549, a, b. Succeſs againſt him, ib. c, d.
Trebellius Annius's revolt and death, vi. 182, e.
† Trebia river, the boundary of Liguria, iv. 410, a.
† — the battle of, vii. 19, & ſeq.
† Trebiſond, the temple of Mercury, at, by whom built, vi. 41, f. The port of, begun, 42, b.
Trebonian Law, what, iv. 294, c. When firſt introduced, 545, e, & paſſ. v. 128, b.
Trebonianus, a compiler of the Juſtinian Code, &c. vi. 530, & ſeq.
Trebonius rewarded by Marius, v. 33, a. Beſieges Marſeilles, 135, d.
— Caius, one of Cæſar's Conſpirators, v. 180, b. Amuſes Antony, 184, a, (D). His cruel death, 203, & ſeq. & (N). Character, 204, a.
— one of Cæſar's murderers, 179, & ſeq. Reception of Brutus, 217, e.

Tree of knowledge, in paradiſe, why ſo called, i. 63, b. The heathen retained ſome notions of it, ibid. &c.
† Tremitus, a city in Cyprus, deſcribed, iii. 173, b.
† Treves, revolts againſt Galba, v. 398, d. Rebuilt by Conſtantine, vi. 328, d. Stands up for Conſtantius, 285, f. Burnt by the Franks. 468, c. vii. 558, e, f. By Attila, 474, e.
† Treviri, cauſe a revolt in Gaul, v. 126, d, e. Subdued, 128, e. Who and where ſited, vii. [407] e, f. (C). Subdued by Cæſar, 400, d. New wars againſt the Romans, [438], d, e, & ſeq.
Triarii, amongſt the Romans, whence ſo called, iv. 600, (T).
Triarius, ſucceſs againſt Mithridates, iii. 743, e. 746, c. Takes Heraclea, 747. Defeats and Defeated, 749 c—e. Counſel to Pompey cenſured by Cæſar, v. 144, (T).
— ſlain at Argentaria, vi. 387, b.
† Triballi, who and where ſited, v. 10, c, (E). Defeated by the Romans, ib. d.
Tribelin aſſiſts Anaſtatius, vii. 625, c.
Tribes, at Rome, increaſed to twenty five, iv. 569, e. Two more added 604, e. Increaſed to thirty oue, 617, c. The laſt augmentation, 680, b. All but one disfranchiſed, 691, e.
Tribigil, revolts againſt Arcadius, vi. 442, & ſeq. In great diſtreſs, 443, a, b. Succoured by Gainas, ib. c. Plundering march againſt Conſtantinople, 445, c. Death, 446, a. See alſo vii. 506, & ſeq.
Tribocci, who and where ſited, vii. [408]. a.
Tribunals, how reared among the Romans, v. 360, c. (S).
Tribune, whence that word, iv. 455, b.
Tribunes, when firſt created, iv 492. Their office, &c. ib. c. & ſeq. Conteſt with the ſenate, 493, & ſeq. Againſt Coriolanus, 495, et ſeq. Increaſed to ten, 528, e. Suppreſſed by the decemvirs, 541, & ſeq. Reſtored, 543, e. Strengthened by new laws, 544, a. Ambitious views, 445, c, d. 546, b, c. 549, et ſeq. Cabals againſt the Patricians, 579, et ſeq. Obtain ſeats in the ſenate, 798, b. Sylla's laws againſt them, v. 78, f. Humbled by Curio, 89, e, f. Regain their power, 92, b.
—— in Britain, their office and ſtations, vii. 418.
—— military choſen by the army, iv. 543, b. Inveſted with conſular power, 546, d. Lay it down, ib. e. Reſume it, 548, et ſeq. Defeated by the Æqui, 553, c. Their office ſuſpended, 561, et ſeq. Choſen from among the plebeians, 577, a.
—— legionary, their office, 621, b, Y).
Tribute, whence that word, iv. 455, b. How levied, 485, et ſeq.
† Triers, capital of the Treviri, [407], f. By whom built, [415], e.
† Trinacrea, Sicily, why ſo called, iii. 1. Deſtroyed by the Syracuſans, 14, a, b.
† Trinaſſus, a ſea-port in Lacedemon, ii. 396, c.
† Trinobantes, who, and where ſeated, vii. 426, a. Subdued by Cæſar, ib. et ſeq.
Trio, Fulcin. put to death, v. 450, d. His ſatyr againſt Tiberius, ib.
† Triocala, where, v. 32. Made the capital of the revolted ſlaves, ibid. e.
Triopas, king of Argos, ii. 353, a.
† Triphalians, who, ii. 655, not. Invaded by the Achæans, ibid.
Tripod, an immenſe one preſented by Gelon, vi. 736, b.
† Tripolis, where and whence ſo called, i. 394, a. Deſcribed, ibid. & iii. 588, d. vi. 349, c.
†——another in Pontus, iii. 722, a.
† Tripolitana Lybia, where, vi. 349, a. Haraſſed by the Aſturians, ibid.
Tripudium, a kind of augury among the Romans, iv. 428, (S).
† Triquetra, Sicily, why ſo called, iii. 1.
† Triſanto, ancient Southampton, vii. 407, f.
† Triſidis, where ſituate, vii. 143, c.
Triſmegiſtus, Hermes, ſecretary to Cronus, i. 135, a.
Triton, worſhipped at Carthage. vi. 691, d.
†——river deſcribed, 670, e, f.
† Tritum, a promontory in Numidia, vii. 111, d.
† Triventum, taken by the Romans, iv. 635, a. Where, ibid.
Triumph of Tarquin deſcribed, iv. 449, b.
Triumphs forbid by Auguſtus, v. 318, f. 319, f.
Triumvirate, how and by whom firſt hatched. v. 112. d, e. The ſecond, 122, & ſeq. Their firſt edict, 124, b, c. Butcheries, ibid. & ſeq. Extortions and cruelties, 232, c, d. Their army in ſad diſtreſs, 243, b. In a worſe caſe after the battle of Philippi, 248, paſſ. Defeated at ſea, ibid. & ſeq. Victory over the republicans, 255, & ſeq. Cruelty to them, 257, & ſeq.
Triumphiri monetales, their office, v. 355, (I).
Triumvirs, firſt choſen at Rome, iv. 517. e. A new ſet choſen for the Sempronian law, 791, f.
——capitales, their office, iv. 641, c.
† Troas, where ſituate, ii. 288, c.
—— called Phrygia minor, ii. 304. Its rivers, cities, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
—— Alexandria deſcribed, ii. 306, e.
——taken by the Mitylenians, iii. 106, a.
Trochilus, a bird of the ancients, the Sackſack of Egypt, i. 182. The only creature with which the crocodile is at friendſhip, ibid.
† Trocmi, Trogmi, Trocmeni, who and were ſituate, i. 167, b. Deſcribed, ii, 762, c.
Trocondus ſent againſt Zeno, vi. 514, d. Revolts, ibid. e. Beheaded, 516, c.
† Troeſen in Argos, the ſeat of Pittheus, ii. 351, b.
† Trogilorum portus, deſcribed, iii. 116, (V).
† Trogilus, a port in Sicily, iii. 5, b
† Troglodytes, why called in ſcripture Ziyim, i. 167, b. Where ſituate, ibid. & vii. 183, paſſ Their country barren, 184, a, b. Way of living, 201, b, c. (B). Inhuman cuſtoms, ibid. d.
Trogus Pomp. an account of his works, vi. 59, (E).
† Trojan kingdom, its extent, ii. 304, c. Origin, &c. 308. Blended with other nations, 309, b. Government, religion, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Kings, 311.
——war, the cauſe of, 318. Fatal end of, 321, e.
——horſe, how explained, ibid. d.
† Trojans, who, iv. 419, d. Settle in Latium, ibid. e. Deify Æneas, 420, c. Follow Remus and Romulus, 423, c.
† Troies, Troyes in Gaul, forſaken, vii. 478, d Burnt by the Goths, 495, b. Repeopled by the Franks, vi. 212, b.
† Trophæus, Jupiter, his temple built by the Dores, ii. 414, a.
Trophies, miſtaken for idols by the zealous Jews, iv. 141, c.
† Trophonian cave in Bœotia, deſcribed, ii. 371, a, & not.
Tros, king of Troas, the founder of Troy, ii. 305. Unſucceſsful war with Tantalus, ibid. & ſeq. Numerous progeny, 314, b.
Troſſulum, where, iv. 637, e. Taken by the Romans, ibid.
Troy built and deſcribed, ii. 305. Different fates, 206, a. 213, & ſeq. Its walls, how, and by whom built, 317, a. & not. Taken and burnt, 321. By whom rebuilt, 323, a. Its poor condition at the coming of Scipio, iii. 563, (N). Taken by Fimbria, 736, f. and burnt, ibid. & ſeq.
Trumpets, the feaſt of, among the Jews, i. 609, b. Why inſtituted, ibid. How kept, 610, a.
Tryphæna married to Gryphus, iii. 613, a. Cruelty to her ſiſter, 614, c, d. Puniſhed, ibid. e.
Tryphon's character, iii. 601. Sets up the ſon of Balas, 602, b, (L). Treachery to Jonathan, 604, b, c. to Simon, ibid. d, e. (iv 83, & ſeq). to Antiochus, 605, a. Seizes the crown, ibid. b. Rejected by the Romans, ibid. d. Forſaken by his forces, 606, c. Flight, 607, c. Death, ibid. e. Coin, 622, (W).
† Tubal, where ſettled, i. 169, d. Whether he peopled Spain, ii. 244, (E). 266, e. Said to have been the firſt inhabiter of Iberia, iii. 835, f. Coming into Spain confuted, vii. 318, & ſeq. & (A).
——Cain, the Vulcan of the Gentiles, i. 77, (N). 94, c.
† Tubantes, who, and where ſituate, v. 370, (R). Defeated by Germanicus, ibid. a, b.
Tubero Sejus's ſucceſs againſt the Germans, v. 384, e. Accuſed of Treaſon, 422, a.
† Tubieni Jews whence ſo called, iv. 67, a.
Tubulus, C. Hoſt. ſaves the Salentines, vi. 65, d. Sent to reinforce Fulvius, ibid. &. ſeq.
† Tubuſuptius, where ſituate, vii. 115, c.
—— the battle of, 359, e.
Tuſa's double treachery, vii. 524, b.
† Tugurt, metropolis of Wad-Reag, vii. 163, f.
Tuiſco worſhipped by the Saxons, vii. 442.
Tulga king of the Viſigoths, vii. 492, e.
Tulis king of Egypt, in whoſe reign Abraham came thither, i. 280, d.
Tulliæ, Servius's two daughters married to Tarquin's grandſons, iv. 455, e. Their different characters, &c. ibid & ſeq. The younger plots againſt her father, 458, paſſ. Cruelty to him, 459, d, e.

Tullius

Tullius M. Cicero's ſon's friendſhip to Brutus, v. 215, b. Defeats Caius, 216, f. Returns to Rome, 273, e.
Tullus Hoſtil. ſucceeds Numa Pompilius, iv. 438, c. Generoſity to the Romans, 439, a. Wars with the Albians, ibid. & ſeq. Subdues the Fidenates, &c. 442, & ſeq. the Sabines, 443, e. 444, b. His death and character, ibid. c, & (Y).
——Servius made commander under Tarquin, 451, e. Allies with him, 452, d. Mounts the throne, 453, a, b. His extract and character, ibid. c, d. Liberality, 454, b. Choſen king by the Curiæ, ibid. e, f. His laws, 455, b. Alliance with Tarquin's ſons, ibid. e. Wiſe regulations, ibid. & ſeq. Curtails the regal power, 457, & ſeq. Undermined by his family, 458, & ſeq. Murdered, 459, e. His character, ibid. & ſeq.
——Attius; ſee under Attius, v. 498, & ſeq.
† Tunes, Tunis, the city of, deſcribed, vi. 665, & ſeq. By whom founded, 666, a, b. Taken by the revolted Africans, 769, c. Taken and razed by Agathocles, iii. 84, b. vii. 795, e. Beſieged by the Carthaginians, 800, b. Relieved, ibid. e. Taken by the Romans, iv. 664, b. vii. 838, c. Invaded by the Mercenaries, 852, & ſeq. Taken by Scipio, iv. 743, a. Abandoned by him, vi. 78, f.
† Tungarians, who, v. 640, b. Revolt from the Romans, ibid.
† Tungri, Tongri, who, and where ſeated, vii. [407], e.
Tunica Palmata among the Romans, what, iv. 449, (G).
Turbo's ſucceſs againſt the Jews, vi. 23, f. Sent governor of Pannonia, 34, c.
† Turdetani, where ſited, iv. 722. Severely treated by the Romans, ibid. & vii. 49, c. Go over to Scipio, 70, c. Settled in Luſitania, 296, b, c.
† Turduli, whether the ſame with the Turdetani, vii. 296, b, c. 299, (A).
Turdulus Gallus's writings and character, vi. 203, (A).
Turf, tribunals made of, v. 360, c, (S).
† Turin, where ſited, vi. 245, c. Opens her gates to Conſtantine, ibid. d.
Turinus, Vetr. put to a new kind of death for extortion, vi. 141, b—d.
Turk, the ſon of Japhet, an account of, from oriental writers, ii. 239, b.
† Turks, whence ſo called, ii. 381, f. Wars with Perſia, ibid. & ſeq. Subdued by them, 192, b. iv. 384, b—d. Their firſt appearance, vi. 598, e, f. Conqueſts, 603, d. Defeated by Diogenes, 604, b—e, f. New inroads, 609, c. Succeſs in Aſia, 610, f. Defeated by the Cruiſadors, 615, e, f. by Alexius, 617, b. by John, ibid. f. Peace with Manuel, ibid. & 620, b, c. Totally defeated by him, ibid. d. Driven out by the Tartars, 630, d. 632, a, b. Succeſs on the Mediterranean, 635, e, f. Firſt invited into Europe, 636, c, d. Betrayed by the Greeks, ibid. e. Revenge on them, ibid. f. Victory over Paleologus, 637, b, c. Defeated by Philes, ibid. e, f. Shut up by ſea and land, ibid. & ſeq. Totally cut off, 638, a, b. New invaſion, 639, c, d. Succeſs againſt Andronicus, 641, & ſeq.
Turma, among the Romans, how compoſed, v. 369, (N).
Turnus, the ſatyriſt, his writings and character, v. 369, ſub. not.
—— goes over to the Rutuli, iv. 419, d. Killed, ibid, e.
† Turoni, who, and where, v. 409, e. Defeated by the Romans, ibid.
Turpentine tree, why abhorred by the Jews, vi. 40, b.
Turpilianus Petron. his quiet government in Britain, v. 540, d. Honoured by Nero, 557, & ſeq. Put to death by Galba, 585, c.
Turpilio ſacrificed to the mutinous ſoldiers, vi. 460, c.
Turpilius betrayed by the Vaccæ, v. 17, b. Unjuſtly put to death, ibid. e.
† Turſel, the ſuppoſed capital of the Turdetani, vii. 300, d, (D).
† Tuſca river, one of the boundaries of Africa Propria, vi. 664, e. Whether the modern Zaine, vii. 107, b. 112, b.
† Tuſcans, their account of the creation of the world, i. 31, a. The reſt ſee under Hetrurians, iv. 430, & ſeq.
Tuſcany; ſee Hetruria, iv. 410, & ſeq.
† Tuſculans, who and where, iv. 575, f. Join with the Wolſci, ibid. & ſeq. Forgiven by Camillus, 576, b. Waſted by the Latins, 578, b. Relieved by Quinctius, ibid. c.
Tuſcus, king of the Hetrurians, iv. 418, e.
Tuta ſucceeds her huſband in Illyria, iii. 474, d.
Tutia, a veſtal, condemned to death, iv. 683, f.
Tutor, Julius, heads the revolted Gauls, v. 642, a. Succeſs againſt the Romans, ibid. d, e. & ſeq. Defeated by Felix, 643, d. By Cerealis, 644, b, c.
† Twont, an Algerine frontier, vii. 107, c.
† Tyana, where ſituate, vi. 190, b, c. Made the metropolis of Cappadocia ſecunda, 372, d. Betrayed by Heraclamon, 190, b.
† Tyannæans, who and where, v. 698, b. Worſhip their Appollonius, ibid. c. Spared by Aurelian on his account, ibid. d, e.
† Tyburtes, who and where, iv. 587, e. Join with the Gauls, ibid. &c. Defeated by P. Libo, 588, d. Subdued, 590, c.
† Tyge, one of the four poets of Syracuſe, iii. 46, c. Taken by the Romans, 117, c.
Tycheus aſſiſts Hannibal, vii. 81, b. At the battle of Zama, 82, c.
Tydæus's, ſucceſs at Argos, ii. 358, a. Bravery againſt the Thebans, ibid. e. Wounded by Menalippus, 411, a. Eats his brains in revenge, ibid. b.
Tyndareus, the father of Helen's oath to her ſuitors, ii. 318, f. Made king of Lacedemon, ibid. & ſeq.
† Tyndences, defeated by Theodoſius, vi. 359, e. Who and where, ibid. f.
Typhon, who, i. 94, b.
—— the Egyptian, brother to Oſiris, 204, c. His hiſtory, 241, paſſ. Kills his brother, 243, d—f.
Typhonian, in Egypt, a name given to the men that were ſacrificed, i. 212, a.
Tyrach defeated by the Romans, vi. 600, a, b.
Tyrannus Talus, one of the heads of the Sabines, iv. 431, c.
Tyrants, the xxx. ii. 530, paſſ. Expelled, 331, d.
—— Tyrannis, its ancient meaning, vii. 368, (D).
† Tyras river in Scythia, ſee Nieſter, ii. 268, c.
† Tyre, in Phenice, its ſite, i. 393. a. Three different cities in order of time, ibid. Its name, ibid. b. (I). Four places of that name, ibid. (K), (L). Heighth of its walls, ibid. Beſieged by Shalmaneſer, 416, c. The Siege raiſed, ibid. f. Taken and razed by Nabuchadnezzar, 417, a, b. Rebuilt by its fugitive inhabitants, ibid. c, d. Governed by Suffetes, ibid. d. Regal dignity reſtored, ibid. e. Taken by Alexander, 418, d, e. ii. 162, a. iii. 339, & ſeq. The dreadful cataſtrophe of it, i. 420. Rebuilt by him, and ſettled, ibid. & iii. 341, & ſeq. Now called Sur, i. 393, b. Its preſent forlorn ſituation, ibid. (O). Deſcribed in all its parts, ibid. a, (M). Remaining antiquities, 345, a. Solomon's wells there, ibid. b. Its kings, judges, &c. 407. Their hiſtory, 413, & ſeq. Taken by Antigonus, iii. 432, c. By Ptolemy, 433, b, c. Betrayed by Antiochus, 537, d. Why made independant, 611, (T). Noble defence againſt the Romans, v. 269, b. Declares for Niger, vi. 109, c. Taken and put to the ſword, ibid. d.
† Tyrians with twelve veſſels diſperſe the Aſſyrian fleet, i. 416, e. Five years defence againſt Shalmanezer, ibid. f. Tributary to the Aſſyrians ſeventy years, 417, e. All murdered in one night by their ſlaves, 417, f. Except Strato raiſed to the crown, 418, a—c. Stout defence againſt Alexander, iii. 319, 340, et ſeq. Cruelly butchered by him, 342. Murder king Demetrius, 611, c, & (T). Aſſiſt the Jews, iv. 8, b. Why ſpared by Herod, 123, b. Build ſeveral cities in Spain, vi. 658, c, d. bloody worſhip of Hercules, 690, b. Embaſſy to the Carthaginians, 787, e, f.
† Tyrin, the kingdom of, where, ii. 354, c. Severed from that of Argos, ib.
† Tyrrenians, who and whence ſo called, ii. 331, d. The reſt ſee under Hetrurians, iv. 410, & ſeq. 430, & ſeq.
Tyrrennius's arrival into Italy, iv. 415, e.
Tyrteus, the lame Athenian ſchoolmaſter, choſen general of Sparta, ii. 577. His ſignal wiſdom and bravery, 578, b. 579, b.
Tzachas erects a principality at Smyrna, vi. 612, a. Treachery to Delaſſenus, ib. c. Death, ib. d.
† Tzana lake, croſſed by the Nile, vii. 187, a—e, (F).
† Tzani, who, iv. 347, e. Revolt to the Romans, ib.
Tzibas, Tzibus, outwits the Lazi to a revolt, iv. 353, b. vi. 527, d. Driven out by Coſrhoes, iv. 353, d.
† Tzyim, in ſcripture, what, and who, i. 167, b. vii. 184, a, b.

V.

† VABAR, the promontory of, where, vii. 115, d.
† Vacca, where ſited, vii. 131, a. Taken by Metellus, ib. & v. 14. c. Betrayed to Jugurtha, 17, b. Retaken by the Romans, ib. d. & vii. 131, b, c.
† Vaccæi, who, iv. 753. Defeated by Fulvius, ib. By Sempronius, 760, b. Defeat Lepidus, 785, d.
† Vacuata, where ſituate, vii. 140, d.
Vacuum, ſee Matter, i. 2, & ſeq.
Vadomarius's treachery to Julian, puniſhed, vi. 312, e. Sent againſt Procopius, 367, e.
† Vaga, in Numidia, deſcribed, vii. 109, d.
Vageſes's noble anſwer to Craſſus, iv. 297, d.
† Valachia, part of ancient Dacia, vii. 611, a.
† Valemir, king of the Goths, where ſettled, vi. 496, c.
—— a great favourite of Attila, vii. 466. e. 518, d. Serves under him, 473, a, b. Defeats the Hunns, 482, b. 519, a. Slain by the Squirri. ibid. e.
Valens, king of Perſia, ſubdues the Hunns, iv. 343, a.
—— Fabius, ſtirs up Vitellius to revolt, v. 592, a, b.
—— ſalutes him emperor, ib. f, & ſeq. Sent againſt Otho, 599, e, f.
—— his ſucceſs through Gaul, 600, paſſ. Extortions and degeneracy, ib. & ſeq. Paſſes the Alps, 601, b. Defeated, 606, b. Joins Cecina, 607, f. Repulſed at Bedriacum, 629, f. Infamous rapines, 623. f, & ſeq. Retires into Hetruria, 628, e. Deſign againſt Veſpaſian fruſtrated, ib. e. Taken priſoner, ib. f. His head ſtruck off and expoſed, 630, e, f. See alſo vol. vii. 402, e, & ſeq. & notes.
—— Pinar. choſen commander of the guards, vi. 157, e.
—— ſent againſt Macrianus, vi. 179, c. Aſſumes the purple, ib. Murdered, d.
——created Cæſar, and depoſed, 254, e, f.
——brother of Valentinian, where born, 346, e. Promoted by him, 348, b. Choſen his colleague, ib. c, d. His ſhare of the empire, ib. f. & ſeq. Goes into Syria, 366, b, c. Sends to oppoſe Procopius, ib. d—f. Baffled before Chalcedon, 367, a, b. Succeſs againſt Procopius. ib. f, & ſeq. againſt Marcellus, 369, a. Severity to the revolted, ib. b, c. Baptized into Arianiſm, 370, a. Succeſs againſt the Goths, ib. & ſeq. Peace with them, 571, c, d. Cruelty to the orthodox, ib. f. & ſeq. Sends forces againſt Sapor, 373, c, d. Severity againſt philoſophers, &c. 374, & ſeq. againſt the Theodoſians, 375, f, & ſeq. againſt Paras, 376, d, e. Peace with Perſia, 377, a. Settles the Goths in Thrace, 380, a—c. Aſſaulted by them, 381, paſſ. New offers to Sapor, ib. e. March againſt the Goths 382, e. Defeated and killed, 384, b—d. His character, 305, paſſ. Fatal jealouſy of Gratian, 387, d—f.
— ſucceſs againſt the Goths, vii. 501, & ſeq. Peace with them, 502, a, b.
† Valentia, the province of, in Spain, deſcribed, vii. 303, & ſeq.
† — the city, by whom built, 306, b. Deſcribed, ib. c. & (G). 321, d, e.
† — the colony of, when, and by whom, ſettled, iv. 784, c.
† — a new province in North-Britain, vi. 353, e. Whence ſo called, vii, 416, e. f. Governed by Conſulars, 417, b. Made a fifth province, 435, e.
Valentine's revolt in Britain ſuppreſſed, vi. 353, e. vii. 436, a.
— general of Honorius, his narrow eſcape, vi. 460, a Promotion, ibid. c.
— marches againſt the Quadi, vii. 604, b. His ſudden death, ibid. c.
Valentinian Iſt, caſhiered, by Barbetio, vi. 300, c. Narrow eſcape, 345, b, c. Choſen emperor, 346, b. His extract, riſe, &c. ibid. & ſeq. Zeal for chriſtianity, 347, a. Ill uſed on that account, ibid. b, c. Proclaimed, ib. e. Intrepid ſpeech to the ſoldiers, ib. f, & ſeq. Divides the empire with Valens, 348, f. Succeſs againſt the Germans, 351, b—d. Creates his ſon emperor, 352 b. Whether guilty of bigamy, ib. f, & ſeq. Betrays his cruel temper, 353, f, & ſeq. Enacts ſome excellent laws, 354, b. &c. Succeſs againſt the Allemans, ib. & ſeq. Countenances Maximin's cruelties, 356, f. Favours the pagans, 357, e. Vain attempt againſt the Allemans, ib. f, & ſeq. Severity to Hymetius, &c. 358, b—d. March againſt the Germans, 361, d. Peace with Macrianus, 362, e. March into Illyricum, ib. & ſeq. Ravages the Quadi, 364, b. Harſhneſs to their ambaſſadors, ib. c. Sudden death, ibid. e. Omens foregoing it, ibid. f, & ſeq. Buried by Theodoſius, 365, b. His character, ibid. & ſeq.
— IId, choſen emperor, vi. 377, d, e. Governed by his mother, 403, a. Defeats the Sarmatians, 405, c. Rebuilds St. Paul's church at Rome, 407, e. Invaded by Maximus, 412, b, c. Perſuaded to renounce Arianiſm, ibid. d, e. Succoured by Theodoſius, ibid. & ſeq. Reſtored by him, 414, b, c. Rejects the requeſts of the heathen, 419. e. Deſires St. Ambroſe to baptize him, ibid. Murdered, ibid. & ſeq. His character, obſequies, &c. 420, d—f.
— IIId, the ſon of Placidia, born, vi. 473, b. Created Cæſar, 449, c. Crowned emperor, 480, a. Marries Eudoxia, 483. e. Yields part of Illyricum to Theodoſius, ibid. f, & ſeq. His offering by Eudoxia, 484, a. Firſt embaſſy to Attila, 494, b, c. Second, and truce with him, 497, b, c. Murders OEtius and his friends, 499. b, c. Over-reached by Attila, vii. 472, & ſeq. Preparations againſt Genſeric, 534, paſſ Peace with him, ibid. d, e. Murdered by Maximus, vi. 499, d, & ſeq. His character, 500, b.
Valentinian, a tribune racked by Conſtantius, vi. 305, b.
— Galata, 369, c. His death, 372, b, c.
Valentinus Tullius excites the Treverians againſt the Romans, v. 643, a, b. Defeated and taken priſoner, ibid. c.
Valeria's noble advice to the Roman matrons, iv. 500, f. and ſpeech to Veturia, 501, b.
— married to Sylla, v. 81, c.
— the wife of Galerius, ill-treated by Maximin, vi. 240, paſſ. Her wandering, flight, and death, 253, e, f.
— Severa, the wife of Valentinian, 346, e. Her offspring by him, ibid.
† — New Pannonia, why ſo called, vi. 211, a.
Valerian Law, what, iv. 481, d.
Valerianus, one of Niger's generals, defeated, vi. 109, e.
— Petus put to death by Heliogabulus, 136, e.
— choſen cenſor, 169, f. Sent againſt Ammianus, 171, c. Proclaimed emperor, ibid. f. His riſe, character, &c. 172, d—f. Raiſes the eight perſecution, 173, e, f. Marches againſt the Perſians, 174, a. Taken priſoner by Sapor, ibid. d. Cruel treatment and death, ibid. e, f. See alſo iv. 327. d, (D).
— maſter of the horſe ſlain, 384, b.
— killed before Rome, vii. 657, c.
Valerius ſent into Sicily, iii. 96, e. Succeſs there, ib. &c.
— Voleſus, one of the heads of the Sabines, iv. 431, e.
— Poplicola takes an oath againſt the Tarquins, 468, b. Surprizes the conſpirators, 469, a. Choſen conſul, 471, d, (Y). Defeats the Tarquins, 472, c, d. His laws, 473, paſſ. Rechoſen conſul, 474, a. Valour againſt the Sabines, 477, e, f. 478, c, d. His death and character, ibid. e. f.
— his brother's bravery at the battle of Regillus, 483, e, f.
— Marius choſen dictator, 488. c. Defeats the Sabines, 489, a. Reſigns, ibid. d. Advice to the ſenate, 490, c, d.
— Publius, choſen conſul, 522. Stirs up the Romans to a brave defence, 524, e. Slain by the Sabines, 425, a.
— Potitus's ſpeech againſt the decemvirs, iv. 536, & ſeq. 538, a. Choſen conſul, 543, f. Defeats the Volſci, 545.
— Poplicola IId, general to Camillus, 570, b. Defeats the Hetrurians, ibid. e, f. Choſen prætor, 593.
— Corvus, why ſo called, 593, f. Choſen conſul, 594, b. Defeats the Volſci, 595, d. Rechoſen conſul, nem. con. 628, f. His death and character, 529, a.
— Manlius Flacc. triumphs over Sicily, 654, & ſeq.
— Falto, choſen Prætor Peregrinus, 677, c. Defeated by the Gauls, 681, c.
— Maximus, his writings and character, v. 457, (G).
— Aſiaticus's brave ſpeech to the ſenate, 489, d. Accuſed of treaſon, 499, a. Noble defence, ibid. d, (H). Death, 500, a, b, (I).
— declares for Vitellius, 399, d, e.
— Marinus ſet aſide by Vitellius, 618, a.
— Feſtus cabals in favour of Veſpaſian, 622, d.
— Catul. ſent againſt Severus, vi. 105, c. Sides with him, ibid. d.
— Flaccus reſcued by Probus, 173, f. Succeſs in Sicily, 826, & ſeq.
— ſucceſs againſt the Carthaginians, vii. 64, e. 69, c.
Valhala, Odin's paradiſe deſcribed, vii. [419], paſſ. & not.
Valhall, among the Saxons, what, vii. 442, e, & ſeq.

Vallia chosen king of the Goths, vi. 471, a. Peace with Honorius, 472, a. Wholsome advice to him, ibid. b. Succeſs againſt the Silingi, ibid. c. and Albani, ibid. His reward and death, ibid. f, & ſeq.
† Valloq river in Tingitania, vii. 144, c, (C).
† Vandals, their origin, &c. vii. 527. Over-run Pannonia, vi. 69, b. Repulſed by Aurelian, 488, f. Enter Gaul, 458, d. Defeated by the Franks, ibid. e. Over-run Gaul, 462, b. and Spain, ibid. d. Defeated by Ætius, 480, b. Over-run Afric, 482, c, d. Peace with the Romans, 483, b. Conqueſts in Afric, 485, a. Repulſed by Majoranus, 505, d. Defeated by the Goths, vii. 498, f, & ſeq. Driven out of Andaluſia, 509, f, & ſeq. Their character, religion, &c. 527, & ſeq. Alliances, conqueſts, &c. 528, a. Defeats and repulſes, ibid. & ſeq. Settled in Cambridgeſhire, 529, a. Others in Thrace, ibid. b. Revolt and defeated, ibid. Horrid ravages in Gaul, ibid. c, d. Defeated by Conſtantine, ibid. e, f. Enter Spain, 530, a, b. Divide it with the Alans and Suevi, ibid. & ſeq. Humbled by Vallia, 531, b, c. Freſh ravages, ibid. d. In Afric, ibid. e, f. Refuſe to return into Spain, 533, a. Repulſed before Hippo, ibid. b, c. Beat the Romans, ibid. c, d. Defeated in Campania, 535, f. Vain attempt on Alexandria, 537, c. Settled in Afric, 559, & ſeq.
† Vandaluſia, Andaluſia, whence ſo called, vi. 463, a. vii. 531, a.
† Vandelſburg, in Cambridgeſhire, whence ſo named, vii. 529, a.
Vangio and Fido, reign over the Suevi, vii. 541, e, f.
† Vangiones, who and where ſited, vii. [408], a.
Vannius, driven from his kingdom, v. 396, b, c. Made king of the Suevi, 508, c. Driven out, ibid. d. vii. 541, e, f.
Varanes's ill ſucceſs againſt the Romans, iv. 360, d. Revolt againſt Hormiſdas, ibid. e, f. Diſdainful anſwer to Coſrhoes, 362. Conſpired againſt, 363, d. Defeated, 364, d. Poiſoned, 365, c.
Varanes I. king of Perſia, iv. 329, a.
— II. kept under by the Romans, 329, & ſeq.
— III. why ſirnamed Senganſaa, 330, b.
— IV. why ſirnamed Cermaſaa, 338, b.
— V. Perſecutes the Chriſtians, 340, a. Wars with Theodoſius, ibid. d, e. Invites the Saracens, ibid. e, f. Defeated by the Romans, 341, b—d. Makes peace with them, ib. f.
— VI. obſcure reign, 342, a.
Vardanes, when he reigned in Parthia, v. 694, e.
† Vardei, who, iv. 786, a. Subdued by Flaccus, ibid.
Varguntejus, ſlain by the Parthians, iv. 303, c.
Varbanes betrays his own father, iv. 350, a.
† Varica, a city in Iberia, iii. 835, c.
Varius Alphenus defeats Otho's gladiators, v. 610, c.
Varranes ſues Probus for Peace, vi. 201, d. Succeſs againſt the Segetani, 204, d. Defeated by Carus, ibid. e. Reſtores his conqueſts to Diocleſian, 207, f. Murdered, 242, a, b.
— choſen conſul of the eaſt, 463, b. Renews the war againſt the Romans, 474, paſſ. Repulſed before Theodoſiopolis, ibid. e. Defeated, 475, c, d. Makes a hundred years peace with him, ibid. & ſeq.
Varro commands in further Spain, v. 135, e. Surrenders to Cæſar, 127, a. Put to death by Antony, 257, d.
— Terentius ſent againſt the Salaſi, 298, f.
— Cigeh, put to death by Galba, 585, a, b.
— character and fatal raſhneſs, vii. 28, & ſeq. Defeat and flight, 30, & ſeq. Ill advice to the Romans, 33, b, c.
Varus Quintil. extortions in Germany, v. 340, c, d. Defeated, 346, b. His death, ibid. c. Buried ſix years after, 375, b, c. Monument demoliſhed by the Germans, 381, c. Standard recovered from them, 385, f.
— accuſed of treaſon, 432, a, (G).
— Arrius defeated by Primus, 625, b. Sent to guard the Appenine paſſes, 629, e. Choſen prætor, 635, d. Undermined by Mucianus, 646, a.
Vaſe, golden, preſented to the delphic oracle, iv. 559, e.
† Vaſſo, the famed temple of, in Gaul, vii. 351, & ſeq.
Vataces, John Ducas, the ſecond emperor of Nice, vii. 287, c, d.
Vates, among the Carthaginians, in great eſteem, vi. 706, a.
— among the Gauls, their office, 365, b.
† Vatican church, built by Conſtantine, vi. 248, e.
Vatinius, affronted by Pompey's men, v. 139, a.
— a man of wretched character, 545, d, e, (K).
† Ubii, who and where ſeated, v. 122, a, 364, (D). vii. [407], e. [415], c. Outwitted by Cæſar, 438, d, (M). build an altar to Auguſtus, v. 367, (K).
Uchanias, king of Edeſſa, iii. 847, c.
Uchoreus, king of Egypt, i. 249, a. Removes the imperial ſeat to Memphis, ibid. b.
Ve, We, one of the ſons of Woden, vii. 489, d.
Veadar, the intercalar month of the Jews, i. 611, (K).
† Vecliones, who, iv. 753, b. Defeated by Fulvius, ibid.
† Vediantii, who, and where ſeated, iv. 408, e.
Vegdeg, Wegdeg, made king of Eaſt Saxony, vii. 489, e.
Vegetius's writings and character, vi. 429, ſub not.
† Veientes, who, and where ſited, iv. 433, (H). Defeated by Romulus, ibid. c. Treachery to Tullus, 442, d, e. Severe puniſhment, 443, a, b. Defeated by C. Servilius, 505, e. Return with fire and ſword, 506, f. Defeated by Mamercus, 548, f. by Priſcus, 549, b. Defeat the Romans, 550, e. Expel their ambaſſadors, 555. Alter their government, 556, c. Subdued, 559. Their lands divided among the Romans, 561, a.
† Veii, where ſituate, iv. 556. Beſieged by the Romans, ibid. Taken after a ten years ſiege, 559, c.
Veil of the tabernacle deſcribed, i. 653, a.
— of the temple, rent at the death of Chriſt, iv. 242, a.
Velir, one of the ſons of Woden, vii. 489, d.
† Veliterni, who, and where, iv. 574, c. Revolt from the Romans, ibid. &c. Defeated by Papyrius, ibid. c. Totally ſubdued, 579, f.
Valleius, Caius, kills himſelf, v. 267, f.
— Paterculus, his ſhameful partiality againſt Pompey, 272, f. Follows Tiberius into Germany, 333, d, e. His writings and character, 457, (G).
Valleius Publius's ſucceſs in Thrace, v. 409, d.
† Velpi, mountains in Cyrenaica deſcribed, vii. 170, c.
† Venedi, who, vii. 502, c. Subdued by Hermanaric, ib.
† Venedic Bay, whence ſo called, vii. 486, c.
† Venedotia, the antient name of South Wales, vii. 454, a.
Venephes, king of This, builds the Pyramids at Cochome, i. 238, (C).
† Veneti, antient Ligurians, iv. 410, c. Subdued, vii. 399, a.
† Venetia, the country of, abandoned, vi. 496, f. The reſt ſee under Venice and the Venetians.
† Venetians, their origin, &c. vi. 497, a. Their low beginning, vii. 479, (L) Territories, trade, &c. 720, c, d. Support Gregory IId. vi. 552, & ſeq. Succeſs againſt Rob. Guiſcard, 610, a. 611, b. Aſſiſt young Alexius, 625, & ſeq. at the ſiege of Conſtantinople, 627, d, e. Their ſhare of the empire, 628, a. Settle at Conſtantinople, 634, c. Recover the iſlands of the Archipelago, ibid. e, f.
† Venice, the foundation of, vi. 495, f, & ſeq. vii. 479, c. Taken by the Franks, 672, e.
Vennones made king of Parthia, v. 334, b. Depoſed, 391, a. Sent to Pompeiopolis, 395, f. Slain, 396, d, (R).
† Venta Bulgarum, Wincheſter, vii. 407.
† — Silurum, Kaerwent, 411, a.
Ventidius ſent againſt the Parthians, iv. 307, f. Defeats them, 308. Stratagem againſt Pacorus, ib. d. Defeats him, ibid. f. Sent back to Rome, 309, b, c. His triumph, riſe, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
— P. an infant led in triumph, v. 52, a.
— a ſoldier, raiſes forces for Antony, 205, a. Surpriſed and diſmiſſed by Octavian, 208, e. Made conſul, 225, b, (B). Succeſs in Parthia, 273, & ſeq. Diſmiſſed by Antony, 274, e.
Ventilianus ſucceeds Libo in Syria, vi. 65, e.
† Venus the Aſſyrian, why called Succoth-Benoth, i. 916, c. Her name maſculine and feminine, ibid. d—f. Whether the ſame with the Phænician Aſtarte, 919, b.
— the worſhip of, introduced into Perſia, ii. 71. Condemned by their Magi, ibid. Worſhipped by the Scythians, 272, (B). by the Trojans, 310.
— her temple at Aſcalon, plundered, 282.
— at Aphrodiſia, a ſtately building, 410, c.
— at Cyprus, by whom built, 379, d.
— at Sparta, 402, & (M). Statue, why bound with chains there, ibid. a.
— at Erix, iii. 7, d, e.
— at Soli, in Cyprus, 173, b, at Amathus, ibid. e.
— at Paphos, how worſhipped, ib. & ſeq.
— in Cytherea, 174, f.
— at Cyprus, 176, b.
— her feſtival at Delos, 231, a.
— temple at Scandia, 243, a.
— Apatura near Phanagoria, 840, b, c.
— at Erica, iv. 676, c.
— Verticordia, the temple of, why ſo called, v. 4, d.
— at Paphos, deſcribed, 620, b.
— Calvæ, her temple at Aquileia, vi. 159, b.
— at Carthage, how worſhipped, 686, paſſ.
† Veruſia, where ſituate, vii. 23, d. Taken by Hannibal, ibid.

† Verulſium,

† Venuſium, where ſited, iv. 649, f. Taken and colonied by the Romans, ibid. & ſeq.
Venutius's bravery againſt the Romans, v. 512, & ſeq.
Ver Sacrum, what, iv. 705, f.
† Verbica, where ſituate, vii. 140, d.
Vercingetorix defeated by Cæſar, v. 126, f. vii. 399, e. 340, a, b. Surrenders Aleſia to him, v. 127, d. Led in triumph by him, 167, b.
Vergiliauus killed by an earthquake, vi. 21, d, e.
Verginius, his ſucceſs againſt the Gauls, v. 573, a—c. Unſpotted character, ibid. & ſeq. Refuſes the empire, ibid. e. Faithfulneſs to the ſenate, 582, b—e, f. Coldly received by Galba, 583, b. Undermined by T. Vinius, ibid. c. Saved by Otho, 612, e. Rejects the ſecond offer of the empire, 613, c, d. In danger for it, ibid. e, f. Saved by Vitellius, 617, a.
Verianus killed by the Heruli, vi. 184, c.
— driven out of Spain, 455, c. Put to death, ibid. e.
Verina obtains Baſiliſcus's pardon, vi. 509, f. Conſpires againſt Zeno, 512, a, b.
Vermina joins Hannibal in Africa, vii. 81, b. Defeated, 83, b, c—f. Succeſs againſt Maſiniſſa, 124, d, e.
† Verona, where ſituate, vi. 245, d. Taken by Conſtantine, ibid. e. The Romans ſhameful attempt againſt, vii. 665, paſſ. Taken by the Hunns, 479, b. By the French, 717, f.
Verres, his villainy to Antiochus, iii. 617, & ſeq. Comes over to Sylla, v. 70, e.
Verronianus's extract and character, vi. 340, a. Made his ſon's colleague, ibid. b. Death, ibid.
— the ſon of Jovian made Cæſar, 340, e, f, & ſeq.
† Verrugo taken by the Volſci, iv. 554, e.
Verſotina worſhipped by the Ethiopians, vii. 197, a, b.
Vertabiets, in Armenia, their office, iii. 698, a, (F).
Vervain, uſed in ratification of treaties, iv. 441, (S).
† Verves, who and where ſited, vii. 140, d.
† Verulam, St. Albans, taken by J. Cæſar, vii. 409, b, c. 426, b, c.
Verulamians, maſſacred by the Britains, v. 538, f.
Verus ſent againſt the Parthians, iv. 321.
— Aurel. Commod. adopted by Adrian, vi. 43, e. Choſen conſul, 44, a, b. Sickneſs and death, ibid. f, & ſeq. Apotheoſis and character, 45, e, f.
— L. his ſon adopted by Antoninus, 45, a. 54, e. Takes the manly robe, 47, f. Deſpiſed by Antoninus, 58, b. Made quæſtor, 59, a. Conſul, ibid. b. Savage diſpoſition, 62, d, e. Created Cæſar, and colleague with M. Aurelius, ibid. e, f. Sent againſt Parthicus, 63, c. Againſt the Parthians, ibid. f, & ſeq. Horrid Debaucheries and neglect, 64, b, c. Succeſs and triumph, ib. & ſeq. Spreads a plague wherever he comes, 65, f, & ſeq. Goes with Aurelius into Germany, 66, c. Dies, 67, a, b. His obſequies and character, ib. &c. Suppoſed to have been poiſoned, ibid. f. Letter concerning Caſſius, 75, c, d.
— Martius's bravery in Syria, 64, b, c. Informs Aurelius againſt Caſſius, 76, a. Suppoſed to have been defeated by him, ibid. d. His generoſity, &c. ibid. & ſeq.
— L. Ann. the ſon of Aurelius, dies in Paleſtine, 68, f.
Veſpaſian Flavius, ſent into Judea, iv. 270, e. Enters Galilee, 271. Reception of Joſephus, 272, a. Politic way at Cæſarea, 257, d, (C). Waſtes Idumea, 277, d. Goes for Rome upon his election, ibid. & ſeq. Baſe flattery to Caligula, v. 476, b. 477, e, (X). Bravery and ſucceſs in Britain, 497, b, (vii. 429, e.) In danger from Nero, v. 559, b. Sent againſt the Jews, 566, b. Sends 6000 of them captives to him, ibid. d. and his ſon to congratulate Galba, 582, e. 619, a. Declares for Otho, ibid. d. 620, b. Diſſimulation to Vitellius, ibid. d. Saluted emperor at Alexandria, ib. f. In Judea, Syria, &c. 621, a, b. Succeſs againſt the Vitellians, 622, & ſeq. 625, & ſeq. At Cremona, 626, & ſeq. Proclaimed in Spain, &c. 629, a, &c. By the Samnites, 630, c. By the ſenate, 635, d. His extract and private life, 636, & ſeq. Prodigies foretelling his riſe, 637, & ſeq. (C). Gratitude to his friends, 638, b, c. Timely ſupplies Rome with corn, ibid. d, e. Second conſulſhip, 644, f. Miracles at Alexandria, 646, b, c. Conſults, ibid. d. Reception at Rome, ibid. e, f. Wholeſome regulations there, 647, a, b. Cenſorſhip, ibid. d. Beautifies the city, ibid. e. Recovers three thouſand records, ibid. & ſeq. Clemency and contempt of titles, 648, a. Of informers, ibid. b. Of injuries, ibid. e. Of money, ibid. d. Jokes upon it, f, & ſeq. Signal generoſity, 649, b—d. Triumph over Judea, ibid. e, f. Publiſe edifices, ibid. d—f. Kindneſs to Antiochus, 650, b. Diſobliges Vologeſes, ibid. b, c. Reduces ſeveral provinces, ibid. & ſeq. Takes a new cenſus, 651, b. Severity to Sabinus, 654, d, e. To two conſpirators, ibid. e, f. Death and character, 655, a—c. Obſequies, ibid. d. Colonies, ibid. e, f. Cotemporary authors, ibid. & ſeq. (D). Converſe with Apollonius Tyaneus, 695, d.
Veſpilio, Q. Luc. choſen conſul, v. 308, e.
Veſpronius Candid. ſent againſt Severus, vi. 105, c. Confirms him in the empire, ibid. d. Defeats Niger, 109, b.
Veſta worſhipped by the Scythians, ii. 272, a. Challenged as their progenitrix, 283, e. Worſhipped by all the Greeks, 310, a. Eſteemed the firſt builder, iii. 163, c. Worſhipped in Latium, iv. 420, a. Said to have affrighted Nero, 545.
† — the temple of, at Rome, iv. 420, a, 680. Burnt, ibid. & v. 548, a. vi. 92, b. The fire of, carried to that of Heliogabalus, 136, e.
Veſtals, inſtituted by Æneas, iv. 420, a. Their office, 436, c. Puniſhment for breach of vows, 452, c. Remove to Cæræ, 563, d. Puniſhed for incontinence, v. 4, b—d. Their ſeat at the theatre, 419, e. Four of them condemned for inceſt, 666, c. Deflowered and put to death, vi. 26, f, et ſeq. Executed by Caracalla, 124, f. Suppreſſed by Gratian, 396, e, f.
Veſtilius kills himſelf, v. 445, b, c.
Veſtilla's ſignal impudence, v. 401, c. Baniſhment, ibid. et ſeq.
† Veſtini, their country deſcribed, iv. 411, f. Subdued by the Romans, 608, c.
† Veſuni, who, and where ſeated, vi. 160, (B).
† Veſuvius mount, where, v. 659, b. A dreadful eruption of, ibid. c, d. Another, vi. 511, d.
† Vetera, the old camp of, where ſituate, v. 368, b, (L).
† Veteræ, the Roman ſtation of, deſcribed, vii. 412, d.
Veteranio's revolt in Pannonia, vi. 281, b. Deputation to Conſtantius, 282, c. Outwitted by him, ibid. e, f. His pious end, ibid. et ſeq.
Veterans regulated by Auguſtus, v. 316, e, f. Who were properly ſuch, 359, (Q). Revolt in Pannonia, 360, et ſeq. and in Germany, 364, c, d. Diſcharged by Germanicus, 366, b. Whence called Vexillarii, ibid. (G). Freſh revolt, 368, b. Quelled by Germanicus, ibid. et ſeq. Outwitted by Tiberius, 380, et ſeq. Shamefully diſmiſſed by Caligula, 474, d.
Vetienus Montanus baniſhed, v. 426, d, e, (E).
Vetilus defeated and killed, iv. 774, a.
Veto, the tribune's word, to ſignify his diſſent, iv. 492, c.
Vettius raiſes a revolt at Capua, v. 31, c. His death, ibid. d.
— Cato's victory over the Romans, 49, e. Defeated by Pompey, 52, a. Betrayed and ſtabbed, 53, d.
† Vettones, who, vi. 866, b. Their pretended ſtratagem againſt Hannibal, ibid. c.
Veturia's anſwer to the Roman matrons, iv. 501, b, c Speech to her ſon Coriolanus, 502, a. Succeſs and reward, ibid. &c.
Veturius, C. choſen conſul, iv. 529, c. Fined by the people, 532, b.
— T. choſen decemvir, 534, a.
— conſul ſhamefully defeated by the Samnites, 611, et ſeq.
— his ſon cruelly treated by Plotius, 641, e, f.
— one of the conſpirators againſt Galba, v. 593, a.
Vetus acquitted of adultery, iv. 409, b. Baniſhed for treaſon, ibid. c.
— his noble project obſtructed by Gracilis, 428, c, d. Put to death by Nero, 560, c, d.
Vexalla, the eſtuary of, vii. 407, d.
Vexillum, among the Romans, what, iv. 490, ſub. not.
Vezina's narrow eſcape, v. 676, c.
Uffa, founds the 7th Saxon kingdom, vii. 452, e. His ditch, 453, e.
Vhabalet, the ſon of Odenatus, vi. 183, d. His joint reign, ibid. e, & 189, d. Spared by Aurelian, 192, e. Made king of Armenia, 193, b.
Vibidia, interceeds for Meſſalina, v. 503, c—f.
Vibius, a noble exploit performed by, iv. 724, b.
— Serenus condemned by Tiberius, v. 419, a. Re-accuſed by his own ſon, 421. & ſeq. & (A). Baniſhed, 422, c.
— a noted informer, 424, b.
— Vir, poiſons himſelf at Capua, vii. 58.
† Vibo, the name of, ancient Hippo, vi. 773, a.
Vibulenus's mutinous ſpeech to his general, v. 361, c, d. Put to death, 364, a.
Vicars, among the Romans, their office, vi. 271, a.
— in Britain, vii. 417, a, b. Enſigns, ibid. d.
— the firſt, 419, a.
Vicellius goes to view the dead body of Nero, v. 576, d. His ſurpriſing ſpeed to bring Galba the news of it, 582, b.
Victims, human, offered by the Romans, &c. vi. 27, a, b. Forbid by Adrian, 47, f. The prieſts of them crucrucified, ibid. & seq. When utterly abolished, 48, a. Practiced by Severus, 111, f. By Heliogabalus, 136, e, f. By the Carthaginians, 679, a, b. 681, d. Abolished by Tiberius, 695, c. The horrid excess of them, ibid. &c. especially in calamitous times, 696, a, b, (A).

— Used by the Gauls, vii. 329, a. 353, & seq.
— by the Germans, [421], & seq. & (I), [432], a—c.
† Vibobates, who and where, vi. 285, c. vii. 609, b. Receive the Sarmatians, vi. 281, c.
Victor Aurelius, made governor of Pannonia secunda, vi. 313, e. His writings and character, 317, sub not.
— made general of Julian's foot, 329, b. Sent to make peace with Persia, 378, e. Advice at the battle of Adrianoble rejected, 383, d. Bravery and death, 384, b.
— the son of Maximus made his colleague, 399, f, & seq. Put to death by Theodosius, 413, e.
— the younger, his writings and character, 428, sub not.
Victorina's great sway in Gaul, vi. 184, b.
Victorinus declared partner by Posthumius, vi. 182, d. His motly character, ibid. e. Murdered by his men, 184, a.
Victory, the temple of, demolished, vi. 277, a,
— the altar of destroyed by Gratian, 396, e.
† Victumviæ, where situate, iv. 702, b. Taken by Hannibal, ibid. vii. 20, e.
Vidimir, king of the Ostrogoths, serves under Attila, vii. 418, d. Settled in Pannonia, ibid. & seq. Invades the empire, 520, a. His death, ibid. b.
† Vienne, fined and disarmed by Valens, v. 600, d. Taken by Gerontius, vi. 466, a. Yielded to the Burgundi, vii. 583, d, e.
Vigilantius sacrificed to the mutinous soldiers, vi. 460. c, d.
Vigilius's ingratitude to Cicero, v. 116, b, (S).
— obtains a peace from Attila, vii. 469, b, c. Ordered to murder him, 470, a. Forgiven by him, i c.
Villian law, received at Rome, iv. 760, a.
Villius, P. sent to Hannibal, vii. 87, f. Undermines him, 88, d.
† Viminiacum, where situate, vi. 488, a. Taken by the Hunns, ibid. & vii. 465.
† Vindebona, Vienna, capital of Austria, vii. [408], b.
Vindicius discovers the conspiracy of the Equilii, iv. 469. His reward, 470, b.
Vindelici, who and where sited, vii. [408], b. Quelled by Aurelian, vi. 194, e. Subdued by Oetius, 481, e, f.
† Vindelicia, where situate, v. 4. (C). Described, 13, (E). Subdued by Tiberius, 314, b.
Vindimir invades Italy, vi. 511.
— his son abandons it, ibid. f.
Vindemius's writings and character, vi. 317, sub not.
Vindex Jul. his character, v. 569, f. Revolt in Gaul, ibid. & seq. Biting edicts against Nero, 571, d. Contempt of him, 572, b. Interview with Verginius, 573, a. Defeat and death, ibid. b, c. See also vol. vii. 402, pass. & (X).
— defeated at Aquileia, vi. 66, c.
Vine, a rich golden one sent a present to Pompey, iv. 108, & seq
Vinegar, why given to Christ, iv. 239, (Z)
Vinicius M. chosen consul, v. 437, d. Marriage with Julia, ibid. e. Poisoned by Messalina, 498 b.
— forms a conspiracy against Nero, 569, b.
Vinius confirms the news of Nero's death, v. 582, d. Treachery to Verginius, 583, b. Ill advice to Galba, ibid. d, e. Great sway over him, 585, pass. His motly character, ibid. & seq. Cabals in favour of Otho, 590, c, d. Assassinated by his troops, 595, f, & seq.
Viomald procures Childeric's liberty, vii. 563, b. And restauration, 564, d.
Vipsania, one of the three daughters of Agrippa, v. 406, e. The only one who died a natural death, ibid. e, & seq. & (F).
Virgil writes his ecclogue Salonicus, iv. 127, (X). His narrow escape, v. 2 c. Goes to Rome, ibid. e. His death, monument, &c. 309, c, (D). Whether guilty of anachronism in coupling Dido and Æneas, vi. 722, & seq.
Virgilianæ sortes, how imitated by the Jews, iv. 229, e.
Virginia, her excellent character, iv. 539. Treachetously claimed by Claudius, 540. Her noble defence, ibid. & seq. Killed by her father, 542.
Virginity, how far encouraged by Octavian, v. 338, c.
Virginius's prosecution against young Cæso, iv. 520, & seq. Hellish plot against the Patricians, 522, c, d. Speech to the senate, ibid. e, f. Raises new trouble, 528, et seq.
— why recalled from the Veii, 557, b, c. Fined ibid. e.
— the father of Virginia, see Virginia, iv. 539, & seq.
— Rufus's consulship and death, vi. 4, e.
Virgins, Phrygian, obliged to wash in the Scamander before marriage, ii. 307, b.
— Spartan, their immodest dress, ii. 363, a.
— Roman, not to be executed till deflowered, v. 442, b, (Q).
— sacred, protected by Jovian, vi. 344, d.
Viriathes defeats the Romans, iv. 774, a. 776, pass. Defeated by Fabius, ibid. & seq. Obliges the Romans to make peace, 782, f. Murdered by Cæpio, 784. See also vol. vii. [327], b—d.
Virius's desperate advice to the Capuans, iv. 729, c.
† Virocomium, capital of the Cornavii, vii. 410, d.
† Visigoths, who, and where seated, vi. 496, b. Defeated by Ægidius, 507, d. More successful in Spain, ibid. e. and in Gaul, ibid. f.
— permitted to settle in Thrace, vii. 459, c, d. Invade Italy, 493, d. Found a kingdom in Gaul, ibid. e. Where seated, 492, d. Settled in Thrace, 504, a. Serve under Theodosius, ibid. e, f. War with the Romans, 509, & seq. in Spain, 510, & seq. Return into Gaul, 513. d. Defeated, by the Romans, ibid. & seq. Conquests in Gaul, 515, & seq. Profess Arianism, ibid. f, & seq. The end of their Gaulish kingdom, 518, b.
Vistmar killed by the Goths, vi. 265, b.
Vistnow, the Supreme deity among the Bramins, i. 33.
† Vistula river in Sarmatia, ii. 368, c.
† — in Germany, vii. [414], e, f.
Visumar defeated by the Goths, vii. 499, a.
† Visurgis river in Franconia, vii. [415], a.
Vitalianus put to death by Gordian, vi. 153, f.
— raises a revolt in favour of the orthodox, 522, a, b. Over-reached by Anastasius, ibid. b, c. Consulship and death for treason, 523, b, c.
Vitellii cabal in favour of Tarquin, iv. 468, f. Put to death, 470, b.
Vitellius's arrival in Judea, iv. 254, c. Kindness to, ibid. d. Depose Pilate, ibid. e. Comes with Herod to Jerusalem, 255, a.
— dismal journey down the Amasia, v. 377. f. Arraignment of Piso, 404, & seq. Rewarded by the senate, 406, e.
— Publius's arraignment and death, 441, d, e.
— L. chosen consul, 449. e. Sent into Syria, 450, c. Forces the Parthians to peace, 462, c, d. Saves himself by his baseness, 472, & seq. Left governor of Rome, 497, (B). Fulsome flattery to Messalina, 498, d, (F). Treachery to Valerius, 500, b. to Claudius, 503. to Silanus, 506, a. Accused of high treason, 509, b, &c.
— Aulus, the emperor, made governor of Lower Germany, 589, f. on the bare merit of his gluttony, ibid. & seq. His behaviour there, 598, a. Revolt against Otho, ibid. &c. Saluted emperor, ibid. f, & seq. Assumes the purple, 599, c, d. Displays his voluptuousness and sloth, 600, & seq. Messages to and from Otho, 602, b, c. Gains many cities in Italy, 605, c, d. Defeats Otho's army, 610, & seq. Congratulated on it by the senate, 614, pass. Comes to Lions, 615, b, c. Severity to Otho's Centurions, ibid. d. to Dolabella, ibid. e, f. His monstrous gluttony, 616, a, b. Raises a degeneracy and discord in his army, ibid. f, & seq. Disbands part of it, 617, b. Inhuman delight in viewing his slain enemies, ibid. d, e. Other instances of his cruelty, ibid. e, f. Shameful imitation of Nero, 618, a. Corrupts his whole army, ibid. c, d. Which murders the whole populace in their cups, ibid. e. Entry into Rome, ibid. f, & seq. Aukward function of the pontificial office, 619, a. Swayed by two sycophants, ibid. b, c. Profuseness in his gluttony, ibid. d—f. Preparations against Vespasian, 622, pass. 623, f, & seq. His statues overthrown, 624, e, f. Cavalry routed, 625, d. Army defeated, ibid. & seq. Resumes his gluttony, 628, e. Conceals his defeats from the senate, 629, a, b. Guards the Appenine passes, ibid. e. Marches to Mevania, ibid. f. Threatned by sundry omens, ibid. (X). Returns to Rome in a fright, 630, First assumes the title of Cæsar, ibid. c. Exhorted a. to resign, ibid. e, f. Hindred by the people, 631, b. Treachery to Sabinus, ibid. d, (Y). Burns the capitol, 632, a, b. Offers to Primus rejected, 633, c. Abandoned and discovered, 634, b, c. Grievously insulted, ibid. d. Executed, ibid. e. His character, ibid. f, & seq.

— his ſon murdered by Mucianus, 645, a.
Vitheric abandons his country to the Huns, vii. 459, b. 502, d. Retires into Podolia, 518, c.
Vithicabius murdered, vi. 353, b. vii. 593, d.
Vitthimir, king of the Oſtrogoths, vii. 502, d. Slain by the Hunns, 459, b. 518, c.
Vitia barbarouſly executed, v. 445, c.
Vitiges, Vittiges, king of the Goths, ſtirs up Coſrhoes againſt Juſtinian, iv. 350, d.
— king of Italy, vii. 493, a. His election, 654, c. Betrayed by Mataſuenta, ibid. & ſeq. Wars with the Romans, 655, paſſ. Marches againſt Beliſarius, ibid. f, & ſeq. Repulſed by him, 656, a—d. Ill ſucceſs before Rome, 658, a—c. Repulſed before Rimini, 659, a, b. Embaſſy to Coſrhoes, 660, e, f. Beſieged in Ravenna, 662, d, &c. Offers of peace rejected, 663, a, b. Carried off priſoner, ibid. e, f. His death, 664, a.
Vittrius Vaccus put to death, iv. 6, d.
Vitulus, Q. Man. ſucceſs in Sicily, vi. 829, & ſeq.
Vitus defeated in Spain, vi. 488, f. by the Suevi, vii. 544, a.
Vixerunt at Rome, a word to ſignify they are dead, v. 107, e.
Vladiſlaus defeated and killed, vi. 648, d.
Uldes defeats Gainus, and ſends his head to Arcadius, vi. 467, d, e.
Uldin ſent againſt the Goths, vi. 452, d. Driven out of Thrace, 459, e.
— king of the Huns, vii. 458, a. Aſſiſts the Romans, 461, c. Defeats and kills Gainas, ibid. e, f. Invades the Romans, ibid. & ſeq. Defeated, 462, a, b.
Ulyſſes's adventures, an account of, ii. 322, b, &c.
Ulitheus defeated and killed, vii. 658, b.
† Ulia, where, v. 172, b. Beſieged by Cn. Pompeius, ibid.
Ulphilas, a Gothiſh biſhop, infects them with Arianiſm, vi. 380, a, b. Stratagem againſt Conſtantine, 466, f.
Ulpianus, Dom. made counſellor to Papianus, vi. 117, c. to Alexander, 138, d. Murdered by the Pretorian guards, 139, e.
Ulpius, Marcel. ſucceſs in North-Britain, vi. 87, d. Ill requited by Commodus, ibid. e.
Ulpius, Julianus's timely advice to Macrinus, vi. 128, d. Sent againſt Heliogabulus, 133, b. His head ſent to Macrinus, ibid d.
† Ulprana, where ſited, vii. 550, b. Taken by Theodoric, ibid.
Ulus, a fabulous king of Spain, vii. [321], b.
† Umbri, a branch of the Gomerians, ii. 246. Firſt inhabiters of Italy, ibid. e, & ſeq. Their names and extract, iv. 416, c. Defeated in the ſocial war, v. 51, a. Reckoned the Aborigines of Italy, vii. 323, e.
† Umbria, part of Italia Propria, iv. 410, d. Deſcribed, ibid. f. Invaded by the Sennones, 562, b. by the Romans, 623, e. Plundered by Hannibal, vii. 22, c. Made a dutchy by Alboinus, 620, d.
Unclean Meats, the prohibition of, whence, i, 108, & 687, b. How diſtinguiſhed, ibid. c. The fat of beaſts eſteemed ſuch, ibid. (E).
† Unelli, who, and where ſited, v. 121, (A). Defeated by Cæſar, ibid. a. Subdued, vii. 399, a.
† Univerſe; ſee World, i. 2, & ſeq.
Unulf's fidelity to Partharit, vii. 694, a, b.
Voconian Law at Rome, what, v. 338, (X). Abrogated by Auguſtus, ibid. b, c.
† Vocontii, who, and where, v. 600, c. Oppreſſed by Valens, ibid. e.
Vocula, Dell. ſent againſt the revolted Batavians, v. 640, f. Defeated by them, 641, a. Fortifies his camp, ibid. d Marches againſt Civilis, ibid. e. Betrayed and murdered by his troops, 642, b, c.
† Volana, where ſituate, iv. 637, e. Taken by the Romans, ibid.
† Volaterra in Hetruria, reduced by Sylla, v. 82, d.
Volero raiſes a new faction at Rome, iv. 513, e, f. Choſen tribune, 514, b. His law oppoſed by the conſuls, ibid. & ſeq. Forced upon them, 516, b.
† Volga, a river in Scythia; ſee Rha, ii. 267.
† Voliba, ancient Falmouth, vii. 407, d.
Vologeſes, Iſt king of Parthia, aſſiſts his brother Tiridates, iii. 713, d, e. Wars againſt the Romans, 715, c, d. Drives them out of Armenia, ibid. & ſeq. Sends an embaſſy to Rome, 716, b. Oppoſed by the Romans, iv. 318, paſſ. Succeſs againſt them, ibid. & ſeq. Alliance with Veſpaſian, 319, b. Death, ibid. c. See vol. v. 638, e. Kindneſs to Antiochus's ſons, ibid. 650, a, b.
— IId, invades Armenia, 321, a. Confirmed by Antoninus, ibid. c. His death, ibid. d, — IIId, wars with ſeveral ſtates, 321, e, f. Death, 322.
— a Thracian prieſt ſeizes on Cherſoneſus, iii. 790, c.
— ſucceſs in Thrace, v. 320, a, b.
— refuſes Nero's invitation to Rome, 564, d.
— complaint to Adrian, vi. 45, a. Revolt, 63, d. Signal victory over the Romans, ibid. e, f. Defeated by Caſſius, 65, b, c. Wars againſt Severus, 113, & ſeq. Peace with him, 114, d.
† Vologeſocerta, where, and by whom built, iv. 319, c.
Volones, ſlaves, whence ſo called, iv. 713, e.
† Volſcæ, Volſci, their ſite, cities, &c. iv. 411, d. vii. 11, b, (E). Origin uncertain, iv. 415, b. Alliance with Tarquin the Proud, 461, a. War with the Romans, 484, & ſeq. Defeated, 487, a. by Virginius, 489, a. Driven out of Rome, 499, a. Defeat Appius Clodius, 516, d. Defeated by Valerius, 545, a. by Rutilus, &c. 555, b—d. by Camillus, 575. Plunder the Roman camp, 577, b. Waſted by the Romans, ibid. e.
† — Tectoſagi, ſubdued by Marcius, vii. 395, d. The reſt ſee under Tectoſagi, iv. 27, 31, & alibi.
† Voloſcentes, who, and where, vii. 62, b. Submit to the Romans, ibid.
† Volſciani, who and where, vii. 8, e. Noble anſwer to Q. Fabius, ibid. &c.
† Volſcinii, where ſited, iv. 561, b. Oppreſſed by the freemen, 561. Taken and razed, ibid. f.
Volſcius's malicious accuſation of Cæſo, iv. 526, d. Baniſhed, 528, a.
† Volubiliani, who, and where ſited, vii. 140, d.
† Volubilis, where ſituate, vii. 143, b.
Volumnia goes with Coriolanus's mother to him, iv. 501, f.
Volumnius condemns Herod's two brave ſons to death, iv. 151, b.
— defeats Hardonius, 525, b.
— Flammas's ſucceſs againſt the Samnites, 630, e. Falls out with Appius, 631, b. Defeats the Hetrurians, ibid. e, f. Sent to cover Samnium, 632, f.
— a biting buffoon, put to death, v. 250, b.
— the hiſtorian's account of Brutus, ibid. e.
Voluſenus ſent into Britain, v. 122, c. vii. 121.
Voluſianus declared Cæſar, vi. 170, e. Various names, 171, a. Death, ibid. d.
Voluſius, Quint. his extreme old-age and death, v. 525, f.
— Proculus diſcovers the conſpiracy againſt Nero, 551, & ſeq.
Voluſius, Caius's bravery before Cremona, 627, a.
Vonones, Iſt king of Parthia, defeated by Artabanus, iv. 314, d. Killed by Remmius, ibid. e.
— IId, his ſhort reign, 318, b.
— king of Armenia, driven out, iii. 710, b.
Vopiſcus, Caius, animadverted upon, iv. 329, (F). His character of Suetonius, vi. 52, ſub not. Other writings, &c. 220, c.
Vortigern conſents to invite the Saxons, vii. 440, a, b. Heads them againſt the Picts and Scots, 443, b. Depoſed by his ſubjects, 444, c, d. Taken priſoner by the Saxons, 445, b, c. Retirement and death, ibid. d, e.
Vortimer's ſucceſs and valour againſt the Saxons, vii. 444, d, & ſeq. Death and laſt command, 445, a, b. Where buried, ibid.
Vortipora's wicked reign, vii. 451, e.
Vows, of a two-fold nature among the Jews, i, 630, a—c. Of things vowed to deſtruction, ibid. e, & ſeq. Laws concerning all ſorts of vows, 630, a, b.
† Ur, the land of, where ſituate, vi. 342, f.
Uraia ſent againſt Beliſarius, vii. 661, a, &c. againſt Thomas, 662, f. Refuſes the Gothiſh crown, 664, b. Murdered by Ildebald, ibid. d.
† Urania, worſhipped at Carthage, vi. 685, & ſeq.
† — a city in Cyprus, taken by Demetrius, iii. 183.
Uranus, why ſo called, i. 89, a. The heaven, ibid. His ſons, 134, b. Killed by his ſon Chronus, or Ilus, 137, b.
Uranus, ſecond king of the Celtes, ii. 159, a. Impriſoned by his ſon, and breaks his heart, ibid.—His revolt and defeat, vi. 139, f.
— defeats the Bulgarians, vii. 633, c.
Urban, IId. Pope, encourages the Holy war, vi. 613, e, f.
— IVth, ſupports the tyrant Paleologus, 634, f.
† Urbinum, and Urbiventum, where ſited, vii. 659, d. Taken by Beliſarius, ibid. e.
† Urce, part of the country of the Baſtitani, vii. 300, d.
Urgulania, caſt by the brave Piſo, v. 388, e, f, (A).
Uriah, killed by David's direction, i. 779, d.
— the prophet put to death by Jehoiakim, 846, d.
Urim and Thummim, an appendage of the Jewiſh high-prieſt's garment, i. 537, (C). The meaning of thoſe two two words, ibid. How and by whom conſulted, ibid. Various opinions about its origin, form, &c. 638, a, b, & ſeq.

Urſacius exaſperates the Germans into a revolt, vi. 350, c.
Urſicinus oppoſes Gallus's miſconduct, vi. 291, f, & ſeq. Goes to Rome, 292, c. Narrow eſcape, 294, a. Sent againſt Sylvanus, 295, e, f. Treacherouſly murders him, ibid. et ſeq. Stripped of his power, 297, a, b. Reſtored and ſent into the eaſt, 299, f. et ſeq. Betrayed by Euſebius, 306, b—d. Gallant behaviour there, ibid. et ſeq. Tried and diſgraced, 307, e, f, et ſeq.
Urſinus ſent againſt Sapor, iv. 334, c.
Urſula, ungratefully put to death by Julian, vi. 325, b, c.
— the martyr and her 11000 virgins, the ſtory of, exploded, 401, a, b.
Urſus ordered to aſſiſt the African clergy, vi. 251, f.
— the murderer of Maximus, 501, a.
† Uſargates mountains deſcribed, vii. 163, d—f.
† Uſcudama, metropolis of the Beſſi, iii. 790, b.
Uſdrilas, ſlain by the Oſtrogoths, vii. 675, e.
† Uſentine tribe, whence ſo called, iv. 617, c.
Uſher, archbiſhop, vindicated and cleared up, vi. 719, (B). Procures ſeveral copies of the Samaritan pentateuch, iv. 34, (D).
† Uſipetes, who and where ſited, v. 122, (B), 370, (S). Defeated by Cæſar 122, b. By Druſus, 319, c. By Germanicus, 370, a, b.
† Uſipii, Uſipians, who, and where ſeated, vii. [407], c. Defeated by Cæſar, [438], c. Dangerouſly toſſed round Great Britain, v. 677, c—e.
Uſous, in the Egyptian Coſmogony, who, i. 87, b, & (N).
† Uſtrigoths, who and whence, vii. 597, c. Refuge among the Lombards, ibid.
Uſury, how far forbid by Moſes, i. 685, c. How puniſhed, ibid. &c.
Utber, whether the ſame with Nazaleod, vii. 447, & ſeq.
† Utica, taken by the Romans, iv. 664, b. Evacuated, 666, d. Beſieged by Scipio, 741. Abandoned by him, 742. Blocaded, ibid. f. Surrendered to the Romans, 780, e. Defended by Cato, v. 161, a. Her grief for his death, 164, d. Surrendered to Cæſar, ibid. e. See alſo vol. vii. 97. b.
— Deſcribed, vi. 665, c. Becomes the metropolis of Afric, ibid. e. Taken by Agathocles, 807, et ſeq. By Regulus, 838, c. Revolts to the Mercenaries, 861, c, d. Deſtroy'd by peſtilence, vii. 127, c, d.
Uticans come to congratulate Dido's arrival, vi. 721, d
Utilis, one of Fauſtina's gallants promoted, vi. 78, e.
† Uturgurian Hunns, whence ſo called, vii. 456, b. Where ſited, ibid c. Fall foul on their Cuturgurian brethren, 483, f, & ſeq.
Vulcan one of the demi-gods that reigned in Egypt, i. 93, a. Invents the working of metals, 94, c. Suppoſed the ſame with Tubal Cain, ibid. &c.
— his reign in Crete, iii. 165, a. Why worſhipped at Lemnos, 234, b. And in what ſenſe by the ancient Germans, vii. [421], 6, (H).
† Vulcania iſland, where, vii. 19, d. Seized on by the Carthaginians, ibid.
Vulcatius Terentius's writings and character, vi. 220, (C).
Vulger heads the Bulgarians into Mœſia, vi. 623, f.
† Vulſinii, a city in Etruria deſcribed, v. 415, a, (P).
Vulſo, L. Manlius's deſcent into Afric, iv. 662, e. Sent into Sicily, 668, e, f.
— Cn. Manlius's ſucceſs againſt the Galatians, iv. 755, et ſeq.
Vulturius, one of Catiline's conſpirators, ſeized, v. 106, d.
Vulturnus invaded by Hannibal, vii. 23, f. Whence ſo called, 29, (L). Why worſhipped by the Etruſcans, ib.
† —— the wind of, whence ſo called, 29, b, & not.
Vultures appear at Auguſtus's inſtallation, v. 213, e.
Vulphilas, the apoſtle of the Goths, vii. 500. (A). His old Gothic character deſcribed, 489, a. 490, b.
† Vurglah, a city in Gætulia, vii. 164, a.
† Uxellodunum, where ſituate, v. 128, e. Taken by J. Cæſar, 129, a. vii. 400, d, e.
† Uxians, who and where ſited, ii. 167, c. Subdued by Alexander, ib. iii. 355, a.
Uyſtacy, what meant by, in the Bramin phyſiology, i, 33, b.
Uz, the ſon of Aram, the founder of Damaſcus, i. 163, c.
† —— the country of Job different from this, ib. Where ſituate, 309. b. 482, d.
† Uzal, one of Jocktan's ſons, i. 170, a. His name given by the Jews to the capital of Yaman, ib. &c.
Uzians, who, and where ſited, vi. 603, d. Invade the Romans, ib. Defeated by the Hungarians, ib. e, f.
† Uzita, where ſituate, vi. 670, c.
Uzzah, ſmitten with death for touching the ark, i. 776, a.
† Uzziah, king of Judah diſmantles the cities of the Philiſtines, i. 358, d. Builds fortreſſes to keep them in ſubjection, ib. &c.

W

WACHO, his reign, wives, &c. vii. 617, a, b.
† Wadd-reagh, the diſtrict of, vii. 163, e. How ſupplied with water, 164, a.
Walamir, king of the Viſigoths, vii. 493.
† Waleka, the mountains of, where, vii. 185, d.
† Wales, retains the pure antient Celtic, vii. 377, e, f, The reaſon of it, 378, b. Its antient inhabitants, 410, e. & ſeq. Whence ſo called, 453, e. Its ſix regions, ibid. & ſeq. Diſmembred of ſome of its provinces, 454, a, b.
Valid, firſt king of Egypt, of the race of Amalek, i. 280, f. Why ſirnamed Pharaoh, ib. & ſeq. Suppoſed the Pharaoh of Moſes, 281, c.
† Wall built by Seſoſtris in Egypt, i. 257, c.
† Wall's-End, Finis Walli, in Northumberland, vii. 419, a.
Wallia, king of the Viſigoths, vii. 492, e. Succeeds Sigeric, 509, d. Peace with the Romans, ib. e. War with the Vandals in Spain, ib. & 531, b, c. Settles in Aquitain, 510, a. His death, ib. b.
Walterus, king of the Lombards, vii. 617, b.
Wamba, king of the Viſigoths, vii. 492. e.
† Wanaſbreeſe mountain in Numidia, vii. 116, d.
Wandalar, king of the Oſtrogoths, vii. 493, a. 518, d.
War, Holy in Greece, why ſo called, ii. 388, & ſeq.
—— Theban, an account of, 358.
—— Peloponneſian, the hiſtory of, 499, & ſeq.
—— Æginean, 484, & ſeq.
—— Macedonian, 542.
—— Social, ib. & ſeq.
—— Meſſenian, the firſt, 470, & ſeq.
—— —— the ſecond, 577.
—— Bæotian, 615, & ſeq.
—— Cleomenic, 630, & ſeq.
—— Confederate, 652.
—— Athenian, in Sicily, iii. 25—36.
—— Carthaginian, 37, & ſeq.
—— Mithridatic, 727, & ſeq. Renewed, 639. The length of it, 756, in fin. not.
—— how declared among the Romans, iv. 445, (A).
—— ſocial, the cauſes of, v. 46, b. 47, b. The ſucceſs of, ib. & ſeq.
—— noble why ſo called, vi. 556, a.
—— holy, ſee Cruſade, 613, & ſeq.
—— unjuſt, the æra of. vii. 286, a, (F).
—— Carthaginian, and other nations, ſee under their reſpective names.
Wards, Solon's laws concerning them, ii. 432, d—f.
Warne Cant, duke, put to death, vii, 685, e.
Warnefrid, defeated and killed, vii. 696, e, f.
† Warni, who, and where ſited, vii. 513, b.
† Warnſdike, the battle of, vii. 453, b.
Waſhing the feet, how and whence the ceremony among the Jews, i. 692, a.
Water, ſuppoſed by many antients the original of all things, i. 17, d. Why the Gods ſwore by it, ib.
Waters, what is meant by thoſe above the firmament, i. 98, (N).
—— turned into blood by Moſes, 496, a. How long they continued ſo ib. b, c. & notes.
—— of jealouſy, inſtituted by Moſes, i. 676, c. How the ceremony was performed, ib. & ſeq.
—— Solon's laws concerning them, ii. 432, d—f.
—— mineral of Hierapolis, 293.
—— of Thermopylæ, deſcribed, 371, b.
† Watling-ſtreet, where and why ſo called, vii. 419, f. Its extent, ib. & ſeq.
Wayel, ſixth king of the Arabs, vii. 267, e.
Weeks, the Jewiſh feaſt of, how computed and kept, i. 606, a, & (Y).
Welcar, made duke of Friuli, vii. 696, f.
† Weſtphalia, where ſituate, vii, 441. Inhabited by the Saxons, ib.
Weſtrogoths, Viſigoths, who, and why ſo called, vii, 487, c. Where ſeated, 492, d.
† Wetalla-heedh, Cimbrian iſlands, where and why ſo called, vii, 484, e.
Whales, a particular kind of in the Mediterranean, iv, 212, (C).
† Whallop caſtle, the ruins of, extent, vii. 412, e.
Whips, why preſented by the Muſcovite brides to their huſbands, ii, 283, not.
Whiſton's theory of the earth examined, i. 38, b, c. & ſeq

Account of its changes after the fall, 67, a, b. & seq. and after the flood, 110, c.
† White Huns, see Nephthalites, vii. 456, & seq.
Widimer, king of the Visigoths, vii. 493, a.
Widows forbid to marry during the year, vi, 394, a.
† Wight island, where, v. 497, c. Taken by Vespasian, ib. Inhabited by Jutes, v. 441, e. Put to the sword by Cerdic, 450, a. Given to his nephew, ib. d.
William, lord of Sicily, wars against Andronicus, vi, 622, b, c.
Wills, Solomon's laws concerning them, ii. 431, d.
† Wine, the making of, ascribed to Bacchus, ii, 373, (D). How and when introduced into Persia, 177, e. Mulcate of Tenedos, famed, 308, in fin. (D). Of Lampsacus, 324, d. Of Tmolus, 329, c. Of Lydia, 350, c. Forbid the Carthaginian soldiers whilst in the field, vii, 705, c, and to the magistrates during their office, 706, b.
—— mingled, why given to malefactors, iv, 239, (Z).
Winitar, king of the Visigoths, vii. 493, a.
Wiomand's signal fidelity to Childeric, vii. 473, c.
Wisemen, from the east, come to pay homage to Christ, see Magi, iv. 160, & seq.
Wisbnown, a deity of the Malabarians, i. 33, d.
Wisimar, king, defeated and killed, vii. 609, a.
Witgar, the Saxons arrival in Britain, vii. 449, c.
Witchcraft, some account of its origin, i, 853, c, d, & seq.
Witness, false, Moses's law against, i. 686, a. Who excepted from being witnesses, ib. (B).
Witteric, king of the Visigoths in Gaul, vii. 492, e.
Wittizia, king of the Visigoths vii. 492, e.
Woden, king of the Goths. See part of his character under Odin, vii. [419], & seq. His reign and conquests, 489, c, d. Settles and dies in Sweden, ib; e. His character, acts, &c. ib. & seq. When he reigned, 460, c, d. Worshipped by the Saxons, 442, d.
Wolf, why adored by the Egyptians, i. 211, a.
Wolves, a reward for destroying them, ii. 432, d.
—— Nerians, famed to turn once a year into Wolves, 278, b.
—— the fable explained, vii. [427], (R).
Women, Solon's laws concerning them, ii. 431. Against the infamous sort, ib. &c.
—— esteemed great propheteſſes amongst the antient Celtes, &c. 278, not. Held in common amongst some Scythians, ib. a. Their martial bravery, 273, c. 276, a. Way of preserving their beauty, 279.
—— Sarmatian, their martial genius, 277, e. Treachery to their husbands, 282. Punishment, 283.
—— Spartan, their dress, ii. 563, a. Singular hardiness, 565, a. Bravery, 566, d.
—— Arcadian, their surprising valour, 376, c.
—— Tegean, defeat the Lacedemonians, 38.
—— of Argos, drive the Spartans from it, 585, not.
—— Roman a number of them turn poisoners, iv. 604, e.
—— two die for joy at the unexpected sight of their sons, iv. 605, d. Turn gladiatrices, 805, sub not.
—— their inheritance confined by the Voconian law, v. 338, (X). Degeneracy in Nero's reign, 535, d.
—— Gaulish, in high repute, vii. 348, b. Their signal bravery, ib. & seq.
—— German, their bravery, &c. v. 373, (Z), vii. 375, c, d.
—— old, supposed propheteſſes, [417], a, (B).
—— married their slavish fidelity, [430], b—d, (W). Hard laws against them, ib. & 432, b.
—— old esteemed in Æthiopia, vii. 201, d.
Wonderful, one of the peculiar characters of the Messiah, iv. 157, a. 159, b. 160, a.
Wood, carried to the temple once a year, iv. 222, e.
Wool of Laodicea, famed, ii. 291, e.
—— of Carmania drops off the sheep, 28, not.
—— rains down in Artois, vi. 354, b.
Work-houses among the Romans abused, vi. 48, a, Regulated by Adrian, ib. b.
World, how created, i. 2. Its origin, 3. & seq. Whether possible to be eternal, 5, & seq. Opinions of philosophers about its matter and form, 6 & seq. Whether eternal 9, & seq. Its creation of a late date, 11, pass. & seq, and liable to dissolution, 31, & seq.
—— its creation as delivered by Moses, 35, & seq. Whether completed in six days, 48, b. In what season of the year, ib. c. Whether any thing before it, ib. d. Destroyed by the flood, 85, c. d. Changes made in it according to Burnet and others, 110, & seq.
—— its production according to the Phœnicians, Egyptians, Chaldeans, &c. See under their respective names.
† Worms, a city in Germany, vi. 453, f. Taken by the Vandals, ib. & seq.

X

Xaolxis's reign in Thrace, vii. 487, e. Who he was, 611, b, c.
† Xanthians, who, and why so called, iii. 338, a. Their brave defence against the Romans, v. 237, pass. Betrayed by the Oenoandes, ib. d. Their desperate end, ib. e, f, & seq. Dreadful instances of their love of liberty, 238, a. b. Favoured by M. Antony, 260, d.
† Xanthus, metropolis of Lycia, v. 236, d, (F). Besieged by Brutus, ib. e, f. Burns by its inhabitants, 237, e, f.
— king of Bœotia's contest with the Athenians, ii. 368, e.
— prince of Pelasgia, comes to Lesbos, iii. 105, c.
† — river in Troas, 306, c. The same with Scamander, 307, e.
Xantippus, Athenian general, defeats the Persians, ii. 126, & seq. 475, e, f. Conquers the Thracian Chersonesus, 128. Takes Sestos, 476, c. Impales Artayactes for sacrilege, 476, f.
— the son of Pericles dies of the plague, 593, c.
— general of the Carthaginians, iv. 664, & seq. Defeats the Romans, 665, f. Retires to Lacedemon, ib. & seq. New-disciplines the Carthaginians, vi. 839, c—e.
Xenagoras measures the height of Olympus, iii. 259, a.
Xenarchus, the Achæan Prætor, declares for Perses, ii. 686, b.
Xene sent prisoner to Constantinople, vii. 639, e. Released, 640, a.
Xenias, the Elean, expelled by Thrasydorus, ii. 599.
Xenidochus, general of the Agrigentines, vi. 802, a. His success in Sicily, ib. b. Defeated by Demophilus, 808, b.
Xenoclydes's descent on Corcyra, ii. 496, e.
Xenocrates, his principle of indivisible particles, i. 20, a. Character, writings and death, iii. 450, (A).
Xenoetas, general of Antiochus, defeated and killed, iii. 531, e.
Xenoi, strangers so called at Athens, ii. 438, b.
Xenon's noble speech to the Roman deputies, ii. 688, & seq.
Xenophanes held God and the world to be the same, i. 6, c. Founder of the Eleatic sect, ib. How far he held the eternity, &c. of the world, ib. d, e.
— sent from Philip to Hannibal, vii. 42, c. Treaty with Carthage, ib. & seq. Forced by the Romans, 43, & seq.
Xenophon's noble retreat out of Persia, ii. 139, & seq.
— Claudius's physician, highly extolled by him, v. 514, (X).
— a Commander under Arrianus, vi. 41, f.
† Xerolybia, where situate, vii. 178, e.
Xerxes succeeds his father Darius, ii. 114, & seq. Confirms all his grants to the Jews, 115, pass. Dissuaded by his uncle from invading Greece, ib. & seq. Pushed on by a threefold dream, 116, pass. Allies with the Carthaginians, ib. & seq. Grows insolent, 117. His army and fleet, 118, Defeats the Spartans at Thermopylæ, 121, & seq. Engages the Athenians at sea, ib. & 124. Outwitted by Themistocles, ib. His fleet defeated at Salamis, ib. & seq. Flees to Sardis, ib. & seq. The hardship of his army, 125, & seq. Goes into Persia, 127. Burns all the Grecian temples, ib. pass. Passion for his brother's wife, ib. e, f. His wife's cruelty to her, ib. & seq. His barbarity to his brother, 129. to the body of the Spartan king, 588, d. Killed by Artabanus, 129, d. See also vol. iii. 276, b. Disjoins Athos from the Land, 258, (G), & 276, c.
— IId, his short reign, ii. 134, b. Murdered by Sogdianus, ib.
Xeuxes's salutary advice to Antiochus, iii. 533, b.
† Xibam, Shibam, a city in Arabia Felix, vii. 231, c.
Xipharès put to death by his father. iii. 754, c.
Xiphias, Niceph. saves Basilius from the Bulgarians, vii. 635, d.
Xiphilin's abridgment of Dio. Cassius imperfect, vi. 19, c. 150, sub not. Account of Antoninus Pius, 55, & seq. of the Thundering Legion, 72, pass. His character, 150, sub not.
— the patriarch, outwitted by Eudocia, 604, d, e.
Xiphius's revolt and submission, vi. 593, a.
Xisuthrus, the tenth of the Chaldean kings, according to Berosus, i. 90, d. Reigned before the flood, ib. & 92, a.
† Xois, one of the chief cities of Lower Egypt, i. 176, c.
Xuthus, the grandson of Deucalion, ii. 363. Adjudges the Athenian crown to Cecrops, ib. d. 414, d. Settles in Achaia, ib. e.
Xylophoria, a festival of the Jews, so called by Josephus, i. 650, d. How kept at Jerusalem, iv. 222, e.
Xystos, or Olympic stadium of Elis, described, ii. 405, c, & not.

Y.

Yā, emperor of China, i. 34, c.
Yafar, eight king of Yaman, vii. 267, e.
Yagudh, an idol of the Arabs, vii. 248, c, d.
† Yamama, the province of, described, vii. 239, b.
— city, ib. Princes, ib. Fountain, ib.
† Yaman, or Arabia Felix, described, i. 164, e. The meaning of that name, 170, d. By whom inhabited, vii. 205, b, c. Its extent, &c. 230, e, f. Description, 234, d. Towns, soil, &c. ib. & seq. Mountains, &c. 235, & seq. By whom founded, 245, c. Its kings, 267 & seq.

End

End of their kingdom, 271, e, f. Seized by the Abaſſines, 285, d.
† Yambo, Yanbo, a port in Arabia, vii. 238, a, b.
Yarab, ſucceeds Joktan in Arabia, i. 169, f. vii. 265, b, c. 267, b.
† Yarab, the ſon of Joktan, gives name to Arabia, i. 131, a, and to the Arabic tongue, ib. b. Founder of the Yamanik kingdom, ib. & ſeq.
Yaſdejird, king of Perſia; ſee Yiſdegerdes, vi. 442, b.
Yaſhub, the ſucceſſor of Yarab, vii. 267, b.
† Yatreb, the antient name of Medina, whence, vii, 237, d, e.
— Yauk, worſhipped by the Arabs, vii, 248, & ſeq, ſub (R).
Year, how amended by Numa, iv. 473, e, f. Of the Carthaginians, how computed, vi. 712, d, e.
Years, Antediluvian, how computed, i. 110, (N). Four ſorts diſtinguiſhed by the Moſaic law, 611, c. Thoſe of the Jews, how long, ibid. (K)
— Sabbatic and Jubilee; ſee under thoſe words.
— Macedonian, how calculated, iii. 266, paſſ.
Yimen, the king of, his war with Keykaus king of Perſia, ii. 192, c. Subdued by him, iv. 385, d.
Yezad, Jezadan, the good principle among the Perſian Magi, i. 31, d. ii. 76, c. Some accounts of him, 207, & not.
Yiar, the 8th month, or April, of the Jews, i. 611, (K).
Yn, in the Chineſe phyſiology, what, i. 34, b.
Yoke, priſoners of war, made to paſs under, iv. 442, d.
Youth, now educated at Sparta, ii. 363, d, & ſeq. In Macedon, iii. 265.
— the goddeſs of, iv. 452, b.
— her temple, 455, b.
— prince of the Roman Youths, his office, dignity, &c. v. 324, (G).
† Yſel, Iſala, river in Germany, vii. [415], b.
Yuſef, introduces judaiſm, in Yaman, vii. 252, a. Perſecutes the recuſants, 269, d.

Z.

† Zaab, the diſtrict of, where, vii 163, e.
† Zab, river in Aſſyria, i. 859, (I).
— king of Perſia, ii. 183, d.
† Zabache, the ſea of, where, &c. vi. 379, c.
Zabas defeated by the Romans, vi. 190, e.
Zabdie! murders Alexander Balas, iii 599, a.
Zabians, corrupt the Perſic religion, ii. 71, a.
† Zabu'un, Jacob's ſixth ſon by Leah, born, i. 442, a. His lot in the promiſed land, 463, a. (I).
Zachariah, the Jewiſh high-prieſt, ſlain by Joaſh, i. 824, c.
— the Baptiſt father's viſion in the temple, iv. 153, & ſeq. Noble canticle at the birth of his ſon, 158, b.
— patriarch of Jeruſalem, carried priſoner into Perſia, 366. c. (vi. 539, e.) Releaſed by Siroes, 369, d.
— the ſon of Barachias, murdered by the zealots, 275. Some conjectures about him, ib. (B).
— pope's embaſſy to Luitprand, vii. 708. Sway over him, ib. e, f. over Rachis, 709, d, e. His death, 710, a.
† — the famed ſepulchre of in the vale of Jehoſhaphat, i. 592, c, & (M).
Za-cha-ne, a remarkable fruit in the plain of Jericho, i. 583, b.
Zacinthus peoples the iſland of that name, ii. 313, a.
† — the iſland of, deſcribed, ii. 677, not. Reduced by the Athenians, 489, c. Waſted by the Peloponneſans, 504. Bought by the Achæans, 677, c. Given to the Romans, ibid.
Zadeſprates put to death, iv. 363, & ſeq. &. (D).
Zadoc, the ſon of Ahitub, high-prieſt of the Jews, i. 791, c.
Zadriates, one of the founders of the Armenian monarchy, iii. 698, & ſeq. 718, e.
Zagan diverts Mohammed from raiſing the ſiege of Conſtantinople, vi, 652, b.
† Zagoria, where ſited, vi, 549, b. Given to Trebelis, ib. &c.
† Zagreuſii, who and where ſited, vii. 140, d.
† Zaine, river in Numidia, vii. 112, b.
† Zaitha, Zantho, where ſited, vi. 164, b. Gordian buried at, ib. His tomb at, 331, d.
Zala, a famed old woman, i. 107, b. Traditions of the orientals about her, ib. &c.
† Zalacus mount, where ſited, vii. 115, e.
† Zaliſſa, a city in Iberia, iii. 833, c.
† Zalmonah, a place ſo called from the brazen ſerpent there erected, i. 532, d.
Zalmunna's cruel war againſt the Jews, i. 304, a. Defeated and killed by Gideon, ibid. & 305.
Zalzer, Zal-zer, the father of, Ruſtan, his hiſtory, ii. 184. Recovers the Perſian crown from the Turks, 187, d. Taken priſoner by the Perſians, 223, e.
† Zama, where ſituate, iv, 745, e. The battle of, 746, paſſ. vii. 82, & ſeq. Beſieged by the Romans, v. 16, a.
— Hannibal's camp at, vii. 81, c.
— the fountain of, 112.
† Zamar, the city of, where ſituate, vii. 112, d.
Zamaragdus's ſucceſs againſt the Lombards, vii. 681, b.
Zamarga, defeated by the Romans, vii. 484, b. c. By Zandilichus, ib. d, e.
Zambades, choſen king of Perſia, iv. 344, a. Depoſed and puniſhed, 345, a.
Zames, prince of Perſia, why excluded the ſucceſſion, iv. 346, c. Plots againſt his brother, 349, c.
Zamolxis, a dacian philoſopher and lawgiver, v. 676, f.
Zamzummim, a gigantic race driven out by the Ammonites, i. 292, e.
Zamara, queen of the Saccæ, a famed heroine, ii. 13, f. Her exploits and ſtately monument, ib, & not.
† Zancle, Meſſina, antiently ſo called, iii. 2, d. When and by whom built, 12, a.
† Zancleans, who and where ſited, iii. 2, & ſeq. Defeated by Anaxilas, iii. a. Invite the Samians to ſettle among them, 197, f. Outed by them, 198, a.
Zangruf, duke of Verona, put to death, vii. 685, e.
Zantiches, king of the Jazyges's ſubmiſſion to M. Aurelius, vi. 73, d.
Zantichus's peace with the Romans, vii. 606, d.
Zantzaz, removes the mart to Theſſalonica, vii. 629, c, d.
Zaphir, Moſes's rod, ſo called by the Jews, i. 489. Their fables concerning it, ibid. (Z).
Zaphnath paaneh, the name given to Joſeph in Egypt, i. 453, b. Its meaning, ib. &c.
Zarah, the ſuppoſed father of Job, i. 481, a. The brother of Phares born to Judah, 452, a.
Zarbienus, king of the Gordians put to death, iii. 702, b. His funeral obſequies, 705, a.
† Zarcæum, a mountain ſaid to have been levelled by Semiramis, i. 880, c.
† Zarethan, ſince Zeredathan, where ſited, i. 553, e. Famed for the copper-works caſt there for Solomon's temple, ib. & (Y).
Zarmar the gymnoſophiſt, burns himſelf, v. 368, f.
† Zarvaſpa, whether the ſame with Bactra, iii. 845, c. Surrendered to Alexander, 373, d.
† Zarvaſpa, a river in Bactria, iii. 845.
Zarxas joins with the revolted mercenaries, vi. 862, e, f.
† Zea, St. the famed church of, built by Marcian, vi. 504, c.
Zeal, the right of, among the Jews, its extent, i. 675, c.
† Zealand, where ſited, 441, a. Inhabited by the Saxons, ib.
Zealots, in Judea, the ſpawn of the Gaulonitiſh faction, iv. 193, paſſ. Join with the Sicarii, 298, & ſeq. Defeat the Romans, 259. Put all to the ſword, ibid. & ſeq. Their curſed character, 273, e, f. Seize the temple, 274, Set up a high-prieſt of their own, ibid. a, & (Y). Their horrid butcheries, ibid. & ſeq. Abominable crimes, 277, (E). Joſephus's character of them, 281, b. Their deſperate defence, 283, & ſeq. Suit to Titus rejected, 286, c, d. Seized with a fatal deluſion, 287, a, b. Raiſe new troubles in Egypt, 290, (G).
Zebah heads the Midianites, &c. againſt the Jews, i. 304, a. Defeated and killed by Gideon. ib. &c.
Zebedee, the ſons of, become apoſtles, iv. 208, (T).
Zebina, Alexander, ſee Alexander, iii. 611, & ſeq.
Zebul kills Abimelech by his command, i. 749, d.
Zebulun, Jacob's bleſſing to, i. 463, a. His lot in the promiſed land exactly fulfilled, ib. (I).
Zechariah ſucceeds his father Jeroboam IId, i. 827, c. Maſſacred after a ſix months reign, 828, b.
— prophecies to the returned Jews, iv. 10, b. Aſſiſts Ezra, in his reformation, 13, (Y). His character and prophecies, 24, (P). Thoſe particularly which concern Chriſt's ſufferings, 235, (P). And the deſtruction of the Jewiſh common-wealth. 284, (S).
— the ſon of Baruc, 275.
Zedekiah's impious reign, i. 849, a. Deceived by his falſe prophets, ib. b, c. Rebels againſt Nebuchadnezzar, ib. d. Carried into captivity, 850, a, b. His miſerable end, ib. c.
Zeeb, prince of Midian, defeated and killed, i. 304. paſſ.
† Zeira, where ſited, iii. 294, a. Taken by Philip, ib.
† Zela, a city in Pontus, iii. 721, c.
— king of Bithynia, killed by the Galatians, 829, c.
† Zelis, where ſituate, vii. 141, c. Whether the Roman Arzilla, ib. d.
† — river in Tingitania, 144, e.
Zelophehad's five daughters obtain an inheritance from Moſes, i. 537, a. A law made on that occaſion, ibid. b.
Zelotes, Simon, the apoſtle, whence ſo called, iv. 208, (T).
Zelus, Belus, Baal, &c. one of the Phœnician deities, i. 397, b.

Zembla, north part of ancient Scythia, ii. 267, c.
Zemzem, the famed well of, at Mecca, vii. 236, d. The Turks tradition about it, 237, c.
Zenadika, a Mohammedan sect hold that whatever we see is God, i. 8, a.
† Zenderu island, said to be governed by a dog, vii. 194, (S).
† Zenderoud, a river in Persia described, ii. 32.
Zendevasta, the famed book of, ii. 26, a, & (O).
Zengitæ, the third rank among the Athenians, ii. 430, a.
† Zengiza, a promontory in Ethiopia, vii. 190, a.
Zeno held the eternity, &c. of the world, i. 6, d. His notion of the origin of things, 23, b, c. Where born, ii. 759, a, iii. 174, c.
Zeno, general of Antiochus, defeated, 531, c.
— king of Armenia, see Artaxias IIId, 710, b.
— emperor marries Ariadne, vi. 510, a. His extract and rise, ib. b, c. Promotion opposed by the Romans, 511, f. Declared his son's colleague, 512, a. His wicked character and flight, 513, a, b. Pursued into Isauria, 514, d. Dethrones Basiliscus, ib. & seq. Shameful peace with Theodoric, 515, c. Besieged by Marcian, ib. d. Yields Italy to Theodoric, 516, c. Horrid cruelties, ibid. e, f. Treachery to Constantius, vii. 470, d. To Theodoric, 520, d—f. Rejects his offers, ib. d. Bestows great honours on him, 522, b, c. Treaty with Genseric, 529, e. Death and character, vi. 516, f, & seq.
— a priest, his zeal for Cunipert, 698, c—e.
Zenobia's adventures, iii. 712, f. Married to Odenatus, vi. 177, c. Created queen, 178, b. with the title of Augusta, 182, b. Whether accessary to her husband's death, 183. d. Her reign, ibid. & seq. Conquest of Egypt, 187. Pedigree, learning and valour, 189, c—e. Noble exploits, ib. e, f. Defeated by Aurelian, 190, d, e. Brave defence of Palmyra, ib. e, f. Letter to Aurelian, 191, a. Pursued, and taken in her flight, ibid. c. Led in triumph under a huge load of Jewels, 192, c. Her retirement and death, 193, a, b.
Zenobius's writings and character, vi. 51, sub not.
— bishop, whether descended from queen Zenobia, 193, b.
— Oppresses the Chiams, iii. 211, d.
— Library-keeper to Ptolemy Soter, 630, & seq.
Zenodorus, why stript of his toparchies, iv. 143, b, c, & (V).
† Zenodotia, where sited, iv. 296, b. Taken by Crassus, ibid.
Zenodotus, the first corrector of Homer's works, iii. 638, b.
Zenonides, Zeno's empress, declared Augusta, vi. 513, b, c. Her death, 515, a.
Zenus's success against Alexander, vi. 241, c.
† Zephyrian Venus, her temple, iii. 639, e.
† Zephyrium and other cities submit to Antiochus, iii. 544, e.
Zerah the Ethiopian, at the head of 10,000,000 men defeated by king Asah, i. 807, e. vii. 194, b. 220, d.
† Zerbi island, where sited, vii. 176, (F).
† Zermisegethusa, where, and by whom founded, vi. 15, d.
Zerubabel heads the returning Jews, iv. 4. His genealogy, 3, b.
Zethus, tyrant of Athens, killed by his own mother, ii. 373.
Zeuda Crarta, where, iii. 361, b. Surrender'd to Alexander, ibid.
† Zeugitania described, vi. 665, b, c.
— the sea and inland towns of, 667, & seq.
† Zeugma, where situate, iv. 298, (E)
Zeus, Belus, the son of Chronus, whether the same with Mizraim, i. 137, (R).
Zeuxdias, Prætor of Acarnania, attached to the Romans, ii. 745, e. Deposed, ib.
Zeuxippus, last king of Sicyon, 350, c.
— a Roman kills the Bœotian Prætor, 744, b.
† Zia island, where situate; see Cea, iii. 216.
Ziba, the treacherous servant of Mephibosheth, outwits him and king David, i. 784, a, &c.
† Zidon; see Sidon, i. 410, & seq.
† Ziglag, David's retreat, taken and burnt, i. 321, b. 769, f. 770, a.
Zilpah, Leah's maid, bears Jacob two sons, i. 441, d.
Zimisces, John's success against the Saracens, vi. 583, f. Ill requited by Nicephorus, 584, c. Murders him, ib. Submission to Polyencius, ib. f. Crowned, 585, a. Takes Romanus for his colleague, ibid. b. Success against the Rossi, ib. & seq. Peace with them, 587, a. Poisoned, ib. e. His character, ib. f, & seq.
Zimri brings a Midianitish princess into the Jewish camp, i. 535. Slain with her by Phinees, 536, a.
† Zin, the famed wilderness of, i. 531, b, vii. 227, d.
† Zion, the fortress of, where, i. 775, a. Taken by Joab, ib. Enlarged and fortified by David, ib. &c.
Zipetes, Ist king of Bithynia, wars with the Heracleans, iii. 228. Dies for joy, ib. & 522, c.
— IId, defeated by his brother, 522, d. Dies in banishment, 829, a.
Zipporah married to Moses, i. 301, c. Falls out with, and parts from him, ib. d. Reconciled, ibid. &c. Why called a Cushite by Miriam, 489, (Y). Circumcises her child, 492, a. Comes with her father and children to her husband, 512, c.
Zisais, Zizais, made king of Sarmatia, vi. 303, d, e, vii. 609, f.
— put to death by Phocas, vi. 538, a.
† Zyim, Troglodites so called in Scripture, who, and where sited, i. 165, d.
† Zoa, where, and by whom built, vii. 172, d.
Zoak, a tyrant of Persia; see Debac, ii. 179.
† Zoar, the country of, where, i. 327, b.
— the king of, defeated by Chedorlaomer, ibid. &c.
† Zobah, the kingdom of, in Syria, i. 371, b. On the ruins of which rose up that of Damascus, ib. c. The chronology of its kings, 380, pass. Why called also Sophene, ibid.
Zobair's vain attempt and insignificant aqueduct, vii. 236, d, e.
Zoberes king of Albanes, defeated by M. Antony, iii. 839, a.
Zocbares defeated before Antioch, vi. 585, b.
Zoe Ist, married to Leo, and dies, vi. 575, b.
— IId, the mother of Constantine, ib. Banished by Alexander, 577, f. Recalled by her son, 578, c. Assumes the government, ib. d. Defeated by the Bulgarians, 578, f, & seq. (vii. 630, d, e.). Confined by Romanus, vi. 579, c.
— Constantine's daughter married to Romanus IId, 594, b. Poisons and murders him, 595, c, d. Marries Michael, and makes him emperor, ib. e, f. Over-reached by his brother, 596, b, c. Confined by Calaphates, 597, c. Recalled, ib. d, e. Married afresh, 598, a. Dies, 600, f.
Zegarus, commands at the siege of Constantinople, vi. 650, d. e.
Zohair Ist, a wise prince of Kelab, vii. 278, d.
Zohair IId, murdered, 279, a.
Zoilus's revolt from Syria, iii. 615, b
— the Critic, writes against Homer, 638, b. His miserable end, ib. d.
Zolilus, Heliogabulus's beastly husband, vi. 135, c.
Zonara's abridgment of Dion Cassius, vi. 150, sub not. Account of Macrianus's usurpation, 179.
Zonobarus, king of Iberia, baptized, iii. 837, a.
Zophasemem, in the Phœnician cosmogony, what, i. 12, b.
Zopyrus's stratagem to betray Babylon to Darius, ii. 105, Amply rewarded, ibid. f.
Zoroaster, Zoroastres, Zerdust, his Chaldean cosmogony from their antient oracles, i. 15, b. Description of the supreme deity, 31, b. Introduces learning into Persia, ii. 62, e. Reforms the Persic religion, 71, (c.) Had his own from the Mosaic writings, 74, b. His life, doctrine, &c. according to oriental writers, 204, & seq. Said to have been brought up under one of the prophets, 207. Converts the king of Persia, 211, & seq. His miracles, ib. Religion, 214, & seq. Liturgy, 215, d. Laws, writings, &c. ib. & seq. Foretold the coming of the Messiah, 217. His death, 218.
Zoroaster king of Bactria's reign, ii. 846.
Zorus's expedition to Carthage, vi. 658, b, c.
Zosimus, an enemy to the Christians, vi. 166, d. His history truncated, 220, c. Partiality against Constantine the Great, 269, c, d. Censured and confuted, ib. e. Against Theodosius, 392, e.
Zotto, first duke of Benevento, vii. 683, f. His death, 684, c.
Zoub, king of Persia; see Zab, ii. 187, d.
† Zorw-aan, mount, where situate, vii. 800, (M).
† Zuchabari, the spring of, in Syrtes, vii. 176, e.
† Zuphons, a tribe of Numidians, where sited, vi. 804, (Q).
Zur, king of Midian, i. 303, a. Sends his daughter to debauch the Israelites, ib. b.
Zuxidamus king of Sparta, ii. 576, e, f.
† Zydretæ, who, and where sited, vi. 37, a.
Zygritæ, who, and where sited, vii. 168, b.

FINIS.

ADVERTISEMENT

Concerning the following Chronological TABLES to the Seven Volumes.

AT our firſt ſetting out in this work (Pref. to Vol. I. pag. 1.) we gave our readers the chronology of the world from the creation to the flood, according to the various ſyſtems of the moſt eminent chronologiſts in all nations, after which we ſubjoined our reaſons for preferring that of the Samaritan pentateuch to that of the Hebrew ſeptuagint, Joſephus's, &c. as far as relates to that remote and impenetrable epocha; upon which account we were induced to compute all the events from the latter period by the years of the flood, rather than by thoſe of the world. (Preface ibid, pag. ult.) We need not repeat our reaſons at large here, but only remind our readers, that as we engaged to ſubjoin the year of the world to that of the flood in the chronological tables, whenever they came to be printed, ſo we have accordingly performed our promiſe in thoſe that follow.

AS for the Julian period, we have in purſuance of our reaſons there given wholly omitted it, as imaginary, and therefore uſeleſs. Thoſe readers who retain a fondneſs for it, may, however, ſupply it all along, by adding its complement to they are of the world; only let them remember, that it is not (according to theſe tables) that of 710, which is the Hebrew computation, but of 408, which is the Samaritan, that we have here followed. The reader will find our reaſons for all theſe in the preface above-mentioned.

IT is neceſſary to obſerve furthermore in this place, that we had purpoſed in our original plan to inſert at the end of each volume a chronological table of its particular contents: But upon mature conſideration, we have thought it much more eligible to comprize the whole in one general table, that our readers may ſee at one view all the ſynchronological events of each nation and kingdom, by which means a great deal of trouble, confuſion, and needleſs repetitions will be avoided, eſpecially as the moſt material are purpoſely made ſo full and explicit, that a reader who even is but moderately verſed in Hiſtory may, by the help here afforded, frequently ſpare himſelf the labour of conſulting the volumes; whilſt thoſe that are leſs acquainted with it will, by the help of the two laſt columns in the table, be eaſily directed to the volume and page where the point in queſtion is more fully diſcuſſed.

THE great difficulties which the authors of the foregoing volumes have met with in the carrying on of this arduous and extenſive work have occaſioned a number of anachroniſms to creep into ſeveral parts of the hiſtory, to ſay nothing of typographical overſights, which are almoſt unavoidable in a work of this nature. For this reaſon the greateſt care hath been taken to make the following tables ſo exact, that the accurate reader may, if he pleaſes, by the help of them rectify and adjuſt every error or inadvertency he meets with in the text.

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
1		4305	GOD creates the world, and with it, time and man. Places him in Paradiſe. Forbids him eating of the tree of knowledge, and gives him Eve for his wife.	I	59
1		4305	Adam, by the perſuaſion of his wife, eats the fruit of the forbidden tree, and thereby introduces ſin, miſery, and natural death - - - - -	I	59
1		4305	Cain, the eldeſt Son of Adam, born within this year - - - -	I	72
2		4304	Abel, Adam's ſecond ſon, born - - - - - - -	I	73
129		4177	Cain ſlays his brother Abel, and is condemned by God to be a fugitive and a vagabond, &c. - - - - - - - - -	I	74
130		4176	Seth (or the appointed one) born to ſupply the place of Abel, whom Cain ſlew, &c.	I	75
235		4071	Enos, the ſon of Seth, born in the 105th year of his father's age - -	I	71
325		3981	Cainan, the ſon of Enos, born in the 90th year of his father's age - -	I	71
395		3911	Mahalaleel, the ſon of Cainan, born in the 70th year of his father's age - -	I	71
460		3846	Jared, the ſon of Mahalaleel, born in the 65th year of his father's age - -	I	71
522		3784	Enoch, the ſon of Jared, born in the 62d year of his father's age - - -	I	71
587		3719	Methuſelah, the ſon of Enoch, born in 65th year of his father's age - - -	I	71
654		3652	Lamech, the ſon of Methuſelah, born in the 67th year of his father's age - - - -	I	71
707		3599	Noah, the ſon of Lamech, born in the 53d year of his father's age - - -	I	71
887		3419	Enoch, the ſon of Jared, the father of Methuſelah, as a reward for his extraordinary piety, is tranſlated from earth to heaven alive, without firſt dying naturally, in the 365th year of his age - - - - - - - -	I	78
930		3376	Adam, the firſt man, and common parent of mankind, dies a natural death in the 930th year of his age - - - - - - - - -	I	79
1042		3264	Seth dies in the 912th year of his age - - - - - -	I	71
1140		3166	Enos dies in the 905th year of his age - - - - -	I	71
1187		3119	Noah begins to preach repentance, and forewarn the people of the univerſal deſtruction of the world - - - - - - - -	I	85
1207		3099	Japhet, the ſon of Noah, born in the 500th year of his father's age - -	I	71
1209		3097	Shem, the ſon of Noah, born in the 502d year of his father's age - -	I	71
1235		3071	Cainan, the ſon of Enos, dies aged 910 years - - - -	I	71
1290		3016	Mahalaleel, the ſon of Cainan, dies aged 895 years - - -	I	71
1307		2999	Jared, the ſon of Mahalaleel, dies aged 847 years - - -	I	71
1307		2999	Methuſelah, the ſon of Enoch, dies aged 720 years - - - -	I	71
1307		2999	Lamech, the ſon of Methuſelah, dies aged 653 years - - - -	I	71
1307		2999	The flood, after 120 years preaching by Noah, is brought upon the earth; and Noah, and his family, by God's command, goes into the Ark, which he had built by God's own appointment, and with them all kind of beaſts and fowls, and every thing that creepeth on the earth; of the unclean by pairs, and of the clean by ſevens, male and female, with proper quantities of food, &c. on the 17th day of the ſecond month, anſwering to our December - - - -	I	95
1308	1	2998	The waters being ſufficiently abated, and the dry land viſible, Noah, by God's direction, with all that were with him, comes out of the Ark on the 27th day of the ſecond month (or December) having been in it a year and ten days, &c. - -	I	108
1309	2	2997	Arphaxad, the ſon of Shem, born in the 100th year of his father's age - -	I	112
1444	137	2862	Salah, the ſon of Arphaxad, born in the 135th year of his father's age - -	I	112
1574	267	2732	Eber, the ſon of Salah, born in the 130th year of his father's age - -	I	112
1657	350	2649	Noah dies in the 950th year of his age, and is ſuppoſed to be buried in Meſopotamia	I	116
1708	401	2598	Peleg, the ſon of Eber, born in the 134th year of his father's age - -	I	112
1708	401	2598	The building of Babel; the confuſion, or multiplicity, of languages, and the diſperſion of mankind all over the earth - - - -	I	129

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
1738	431	2568	Nimrod, the ſon of Cuſh, is ſuppoſed to drive his couſin Aſhur, the ſon of Shem, out of Shinaar, in Babylon, aud ſettle in it, making it the foundation of a large kingdom, over which he reigned	I	124
1738	431	2568	Aſhur, the ſon of Shem, being driven out of Babylon, by his couſin Nimrod, retires (no doubt with a large number of hands) into Aſſyria, and builds the cities of Nineveh, Rhoboth, Calah, and Reſen, and founds the Aſſyrian monarchy	I	126
1747	440	2559	Arphaxad, the ſon of Shem, dies in the 438th year of his age	I	112
1809	502	2497	Shem, the ſon of Noah, dies in the 600th year of his age	I	112
1838	531	2468	Reu, the ſon of Peleg, born in the 130th year of his father's age	I	112
1877	570	2429	Salah, the ſon of Arphaxad, dies in the 433d year of his age	I	112
1947	640	2359	Peleg, the ſon of Eber, dies in the 239th year of his age	I	112
1970	663	2336	Serug, the ſon of Reu, born in the 132d year of his father's age	I	112
1978	671	2328	Eber, the ſon of Salah, dies in the 404th year of his age	I	112
2077	770	2229	Reu, the ſon of Peleg, dies in the 239th year of his age	I	112
2100	793	2206	Nabor, the ſon of Serug, born in the 130th year of his father's age	I	112
2179	872	2127	Terah, the ſon of Nabor, born in the 79th year of his father's age	I	112
2200	893	2106	Serug, the ſon of Reu, dies in the 230th year of his age	I	112
2216	909	2090	Ægialeus, the ſuppoſed firſt king and founder of the kingdom of Ægialea, ſince called Sicyon and Peloponneſus, began to reign and reigned 52 years	II	350
2247	940	2059	Ninus, ſon of Belus, is ſuppoſed to be the firſt king of Aſſyria, who governed that kingdom 52 years	I	876
2248	941	2058	Nabor, the ſon of Serug, dies in the 148th year of his age	I	112
2268	961	2038	Europs, the ſecond king of Ægialea, (or Sicyon) began to reign, and reigned 45 years	II	350
2289	982	2017	Began the 16th dynaſty of the Egyptians, which was of five Theban kings, that reigned 190 years	I	229
2299	992	2007	Semiramis, wife of Ninus, ſucceeds her huſband in the kingdom, as guardian of her ſon Nynias, (by ſome called Zameis) ſhe is ſaid to have built the great city of Babylon, and other extraordinary and magnificent works; and to be killed by her ſon for tempting him to lie with her, after reigning 42 years	I	880
2309	1002	1997	Abram, the ſon of Terah, born in the 130th year of his father's age	I	112
2313	1006	1993	Telchin or Selchin, the third king of Ægialea, (or Sicyon) began to reign, and changed the name of it into Telchinia, and reigned 20 years	II	350
2320	1013	1986	Iſcah, the daughter of Haran born, who was afterwards wife of Abram, and called Sarai and then Sarah	I	132
2333	1026	1973	Apis, (by ſome ſaid to be a ſtranger, that came out of Ætolia, and by medicines and charms rid the country of all ſorts of vermin that formerly annoyed it) the fourth king of Sicyon, changed its name into Apia, during his reign of 25 years	II	350
2341	1034	1965	Nynias or (Zameis the ſon of Ninus and Semiramis) began to reign, and reigned 38 years in Syria, whoſe capital city was Nineveh	I	883
2358	1051	1948	Thelxion or Thelaſion, the fifth king of Sicyon, began to reign, and reigned 52 years	II	350
2372	1065	1934	Chedorlaomer, king of Elam, invades the inhabitants of the vale of Siddim, (governed by five kings) where Sodom and Gomorrah ſtood, conquers and makes them tributaries	I	327
2379	1072	1927	Arius ſucceeded Ninyas in the throne of Aſſyria, and reigned 30 years	I	883
2383	1076	1923	Terah, Abram, and Lot, went from Ur to dwell at Haran	I	113
2384	1077	1922	Terah, the ſon of Nabor, dies in the 205th year of his age	I	112
2384	1077	1922	This ſame year Abram, by God's immediate command, leaves Haran, and takes his wife and family, and Lot and his family, and goes and ſettles in the land of Canaan, builds an altar at Sichem, where the Lord appears to him, promiſes to beſtow the Land of Canaan upon his poſterity	I	112
2385	1078	1921	Abram is drove out of Canaan into Egypt by a great famine, where Pharaoh the king, and his houſe, are puniſhed, for taking Sarah, Abram's wife, upon which ſhe is returned; and the plague being over, Abram and his family return into Canaan again	I	327
2393	1086	1913	Bera, and the other four kings of the vale of Siddim, having revolted from Chedorlaomer, to whom they were tributaries, he comes againſt them, and ſlays great numbers, and carries away the reſt captive, among whom was Lot and his family, upon which Abram arms, purſues the conqueror, recovers his kinſman, and with him a great deal of plunder	I	327
2394	1087	1912	Iſhmael, Abram's ſon, by his maid Hagar, born	I	426
2407	1100	1899	Abram's name changed to Abraham, and his wife Sarai to Sarah; and circumciſion inſtituted by God's immediate command, upon which he circumciſes all the males in his family	I	426
2407	1100	1899	Iſaac, promiſed by God to Abraham and Sarah, upon his entertaining three angels at a feaſt	I	428
2408	1101	1898	The cities of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim, with their inhabitants, for the unnatural ſin of Sodomy, are deſtroyed by a rain of fire and brimſtone, or a prodigious ſtorm of thunder and lightning, and the whole valley of Siddim from thenceforward became the Dead or Salt Sea, called ſometimes the lake Aſphaltites	I	328
2408	1101	1898	Iſaac, ſon of Abraham by his wife Sarah born, and at eight days old circumciſed, Abraham being an 100, and his wife 90 years of age	I	429
2409	1102	1897	Aralius ſucceeds Arius as king of Syria, and reigns 40 years	I	883
2410	1103	1896	Ægydrus, or Ægyrus, the ſixth king of Sicyon, now Peloponneſus, begins to reign, and reigns 34 years	II	350
2414	1107	1892	Iſaac is weaned, (here begins the 400 years that Abraham's ſeed were to be ſtrangers, and to have no country of their own)	I	430
2415	1108	1891	Iſhmael mocking Iſaac, Sarah, the mother of the latter, requeſts Abraham, the father of both of them, to ſend Iſhmael quite away from him, he heſitating, God aſſures Abraham he would make Iſhmael a great nation, and thereupon he ſends both him and his mother away	I	430
2434	1127	1872	Abraham, by God's command, takes his ſon Iſaac, and goes to mount Moriah, to ſacrifice him there, but is prevented by a voice from Heaven, and the victim offered

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			offered, that was found in a neighbouring thicket; upon this the covenant or promiſe that God had formerly made with Abraham, is again renewed, &c. —	I	431
			Thurimachus, the ſeventh king of Sicyon, begins to reign, and reigned 45 years —	I	883
2444	1137	1862	Sarah, the wife of Abraham, dies in the 127th year of her age, in the city of
2445	1138	1861	Arbah, where Abraham mourns for her, and buries her with great funeral ſolemnity, in the cave of Machpelah, which he had bought of Ephron the Hittite, for that purpoſe —	I	432
2449	1142	1857	Abraham firſt ſwears, and then ſends, his chief ſteward or ſervant to Meſopotamia, where his brother Nahor dwelt, with large preſents, to demand one of his daughters to be the wife of his ſon Iſaac, who was now forty years of age, upon receiving the meſſage, and the preſents, Nahor ſends him his daughter Rebecca, a very beautiful virgin, who became the wife of Iſaac accordingly —	I	433
2449	1142	1857	The ſame year Abraham marries Keturah, (which is ſuppoſed to be Hagar, the mother of Iſhmael), and, though he was then 141 years old, had ſix ſons by her —	I	434
			Xerxes, called alſo Baleus, ſucceeds Aralius as king of Syria, and reigned thirty years	I	883
2449	1142	1857
2450	1143	1856	Inachus founded the kingdom of Argos, and was the firſt king thereof, and reigned fifty years, having by his ſiſter Meliſſa, whom he took to wife, two ſons, Phoroneus and Ægialeus, and a daughter called Io, ſuppoſed to be Iſis, the goddeſs of the Egyptians, whom Jupiter turned into a cow; and from her ſwimming over the Thracian ſtrait, it was called the Boſphorus —	II	351
2469	1162	1837	Rebecca, after having been childleſs for twenty years, brings forth twins, and calls the firſt-born, Eſau, (a child remarkably hairy) and the other Jacob, who came into the world, holding his brother by the heel —	I	437
2469	1162	1837	Apis, Oſyris, or Iſis, the chief God of the Egyptians, now began to be worſhipped under the form of a bull —	I	206
				I	883
2479	1172	1827	Armamitres ſucceeds Xerxes as king of Syria, and reigned 38 years —	I	229
2479	1172	1827	The ſeventeenth Egyptian dynaſty of paſtors for 130 years —
2483	1176	1823	Abraham being 175 years old, dies, and is buried by his ſons Iſaac and Iſhmael, in the cave of Machpelah, along with his wife Sarah —	I	434
2489	1182	1817	Leucippus, the eighth king of Sicyon, began to reign, and reigned 53 years, having one only daughter Chalcinia, upon whom Neptune got a ſon, called Eratus —	II	350
2499	1192	1807	Phoroneus, ſon of Inachus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Argos, was the firſt that ſacrificed to Juno, and the firſt that made laws, and governed by them, and therefore by ſome called, or ſaid to be, the firſt man: He collected the people that were ſcattered up and down the country into a body, and incorporated them in a city, built by him, and called Phoroneum; he is ſaid to have a ſon by the nymph Laodice, named Apis, and a daughter called Niobe, who was the firſt paramour of Jupiter, and had by him a ſon called Argos —	II	352
2501	1194	1805	Iſaac is forced to leave his habitation upon account of a great famine; and by God's direction, he goes to Abimelech, king of Gerar, who entertains him and all his family, very kindly; after ſtaying there ſome time, he enters into covenant with Abimelech, and then goes and lives in the valley of Gerar —	I	438
2509	1202	1797	Eſau, at forty years of age, marries Judith, the daughter of Beeri, and Baſhemath, the daughter of Elon, both Hittites, at which his parents are much grieved —	I	438
2517	1210	1789	Belochus ſucceeds Armamitres in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and takes his daughter Atoſſa, called alſo Semiramis, a partner with him in his kingdom, for twelve years —	I	883
				II	352
2517	1210	1789	The Telchines and Caryatæ, make war againſt Phoroneus and the Parrhaſii —	II	352
2525	1218	1781	Apis and Niobe, born to Phoroneus	III	2
2540	1233	1766	The Ogygian flood in Attica and Bœotia, 248 years before Deucalion's flood in Theſſaly	I	96
2542	1235	1764	Meſapus, the ninth king of Sicyon, began to reign, and reigned 47 years —
2544	1237	1762	Meſſana in Sicily, was built and called Zancle, till the Meſſenians got it, and called it Meſſana, afterwards the Mamertines got it, and called it Mamertina, and now Meſſina —	II	350
2546	1239	1760	Iſaac being 137 years old, and grown very dim-ſighted, calls his ſon Eſau (who was a great hunter) to him, and deſires him to go and get him ſome veniſon for ſupper; and that then he would give him his particular bleſſing, which Rebecca hearing, prepares a ſavoury diſh of meat, and obliges her favourite ſon Jacob to diſguiſe himſelf, and perſonate Eſau, and carry the meat in to his father, in order to obtain the promiſed bleſſing, which he doing with ſome difficulty, ſucceeds juſt before Eſau returned from hunting —	I	439
2546	1239	1760	Eſau threatning to kill Jacob, Iſaac, by the inſtigation of Rebecca, ſends Jacob to
2547	1240	1759	his uncle Laban in Padan Aram, whom he agreed to ſerve ſeven years, to have his beautiful daughter Rachel to wife, to which the father conſents; but cheats him, and in the dark puts her eldeſt ſiſter Leah to bed to him in her ſtead, upon which complaining next day to Laban, he agreed he ſhould have Rachel alſo, provided he would ſerve him ſeven years more, which he agreeing to, has both the ſiſters for his wives —	I	440
				I	441
2548	1241	1758	Reuben, the firſt ſon of Jacob, by his wife Leah, born —	I	441
2549	1242	1757	Simeon, the ſecond ſon of Jacob, by his wife Leah, born —	I	441
2550	1243	1756	Levi, the third ſon of Jacob, by his wife Leah, born —	I	441
2551	1244	1755	Judah, the fourth ſon of Jacob, by his wife Leah, born
2552	1245	1754	Rachel very ſorrowful that ſhe had no children, deſires Jacob to take her maid Bilhah, and what children Bilhah might have, ſhe would adopt for her own; this agreed to, Bilhah conceives, and brings forth a fifth ſon to Jacob, whom Rachel called Dan —	I	441
				I	883
2552	1245	1754	Baleus ſucceeds Belochus as king of Syria, and reigned 52 years —
2553	1246	1753	Bilhah, Rachel's maid, conceives again, and brings Jacob a ſixth ſon, whom Rachel calls Naphtali —	I	441
2554	1247	1752	Leah ſeeing the ſucceſs of her ſiſter, and having ceaſed ſometime from child-bearing herſelf, takes her maid Zilpah, and deſires Jacob would grant her the ſame favour he had allowed her ſiſter; he conſents, the maid conceives, and brings Jacob, a ſeventh ſon, whom Leah calls Gad —	I	441
2555	1248	1751	Zilpah, Leah's maid, conceives again, and bears Jacob the eighth ſon, whom Leah calls Aſher —	I	441

Y of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
2556	1249	1750	Reuben, Leah's eldeſt ſon, having been in the fields, bringing home ſome mandrakes to his mother, Rachel deſires them, and agrees, that Jacob ſhould lie with Leah that night, provided ſhe gave her the mandrakes; all parties agreed, and Jacob lying with Leah, ſhe conceives: And,
2557	1250	1749	Leah brings forth Jacob's ninth ſon, (but the fifth of her own body) and calls his name Iſſachar, (or the man of reward)	I	442
2558	1251	1748	Leah brings forth her ſixth ſon, (Jacob's tenth) and calls his name Zebulun	I	442
2559	1252	1747	Leah bears Jacob a ſeventh child, (Jacob's eleventh) which being a daughter, ſhe called her name Dinah, after whom ſhe bore no more	I	442
2559	1252	1747	Apis, ſon of Phoroneus, ſucceeds his father as king of Argos, from whom the country was called Apia, and the people Apidones	I	442
2561	1254	1745	Rachel, to her great joy, brings forth a ſon, and calls his name Joſeph; this was Jacob's eleventh ſon	II	352
2564	1257	1742	The Telchines, being driven out of Peloponneſus, planted Rhodes, from them called Telchini	I	442
2567	1260	1739	Jacob having ſerved Laban his father-in-law 20 years, and his own ſeperate family being grown numerous, while Laban was gone to his ſheep-ſhearing, moves off with all his houſe-hold, &c. in his way to Canaan, he has a viſion of the angelick hoſt, by whom he is comforted, &c. but hearing his brother Eſau was coming towards him, he ſends a very great preſent before him to pave the way, that he might have a friendly reception, &c. in the mean time an angel appears to him in the common ſhape of a man, and wreſtles with him, touches his thigh, and he grows lame: at his departure, Jacob inſiſts upon his bleſſing, and then the angel changed his name from Jacob to Iſrael, at a place from that time called Peniel	III	131
2574	1267	1732	Shechem the ſon of Hamor, falls in love with Dinah Jacob's daughter, and forces her, to revenge which affront, after having prevailed with Hamor and Shechem, to have themſelves and their ſubjects circumciſed, the brothers of Dinah enter the city, and put all the males to the ſword, while they were yet ſore	I	445
2577	1270	1729	As Jacob (now Iſrael) was marching towards Ephrath, Rachel fell in labour, and was delivered of her ſecond ſon (Jacob's twelfth) whoſe name ſhe called Benoni (or the ſon of my affliction) and died preſently after, and was buried at Ephrath; ſhe being dead, Jacob changed his name from Benoni into Benjamin, (or the ſon of my right-hand)	I	329 447
2578	1271	1728	Jacob ſhewing a particular fondneſs for Joſeph and Benjamin, the other brothers are ſo much diſpleaſed, that they take Joſeph and ſell him to ſome travelling merchants, who carried him into Egypt, and ſold him to Potiphar, a principal officer belonging to king Pharaoh	I	448
2588	1281	1718	Sparta the capital of the kingdom of Sparta, built by Spartus, ſon of Phoroneus king of Argos	I	449
2589	1282	1717	Eratus, tenth king of Sicyon, ſon of Chalcinia, daughter of Leucippus, eighth king of Sicyon, began to reign and reigned 46 years	II	395
2589	1282	1717	Joſeph having been enticed by his miſtreſs, Potiphar's wife (one of Pharaoh king of Egypt's great officers of ſtate) to incontinency, he refuſes her, whereupon ſhe accuſes him of attempting the crime, ſhe would have perſuaded him to, in conſequence whereof, he is caſt into priſon; and there interpreting the dreams of two ſtate priſoners that were under diſpleaſure, is greatly taken notice of, &c.	II	352
2590	1283	1716	Iſaac now 180 years old, worn out with labour and age, dies, and his two ſons, Eſau and Jacob, buried him in the cave of Machpelah, with Abraham his father and Sarah his mother	I	450
2591	1284	1715	Pharaoh, king of Egypt, has two extraordinary dreams, which his magicians or wiſe men, not being able to interpret, Joſeph is ſent for, who explained them ſo amply and ſatisfactorily, that from that moment he's advanced to be the ſecond man in the kingdom, &c.	I	448
2591	1284	1715	This, and the following ſix years, make up the ſeven years of extraordinary plenty that Joſeph had foretold would happen, in which he laid up immenſe ſtores of proviſions, making prodigious magazines all over the kingdom	I	453
2594	1287	1712	Argus ſucceeds Apis as king of Argos, from whom all Peloponneſus was called Argos, he reigned ſeventy years	I	453
2596	1289	1710	Pelaſgus, brother of Niobe, is ſaid to have now founded the kingdom of Arcadia, and to be the firſt king thereof	II	352
2598	1291	1708	This, and the following years, make up the ſeven years of dreadful famine, according to Joſeph's prediction	II	378
2599	1292	1707	Ten of Joſeph's brethren go out of Canaan into Egypt to buy corn, which he lets them have, but detains Simeon, and charges the others, that when they came again, they ſhould bring Benjamin their other brother with them	I	453
2600	1293	1706	The famine compels Jacob to ſend his ſons again, and with them Benjamin, &c. after ſome artificial trials of them, Joſeph makes himſelf known to them, ſends preſents to his father, and invites him and all his houſehold into Egypt	I	454
2601	1294	1705	Upon the arrival of Jacob and his family in Egypt, Joſeph acquaints Pharaoh with it, who orders them the land of Goſhen to dwell in, this happened in the 130th year of Jacob's age	I	457
2604	1297	1702	Altadus, the tenth king of Aſſyria, began his reign, and reigned 32 years	I	865
2604	1297	1702	According to the ſet time appointed by Joſeph, he told the Egyptians, the following year the land would be fruitful as in common; that the Nile would overflow and reſtore all things to its uſual courſe, &c. which accordingly happened	I	459
2607	1300	1699	Chebron, king of Egypt, began to reign, and reigned thirteen years	I	230
2617	1310	1689	Jacob now advanced to the 147th year of his age, growing weak and ſickly, ſends for his ſon Joſeph, tells him his departure (or death) was at hand, and makes him ſwear not to bury him in Egypt, but in the cave of Machpelah, in the land of Canaan, &c.	I	460

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
2617	1310	1689	Joseph brings his two sons to his father Jacob, now on his death bed, and desires him to bless them, which he not only does, but adopts them to be his sons instead of grandsons, and makes them the heads of two tribes, &c.	I	460
2617	1310	1689	Jacob, after having given each of his children his particular blessing, and prophetically declaring what would happen to them, dies, and with the utmost funeral pomp and solemnity is carried and interr'd (according to his desire) in the cave of Machpelah	I	461
2619	1312	1687	Prometheus, the inventor of striking fire, the use of metals, and other arts and sciences among the Greeks	II	163
2620	1313	1686	Amenophis king of Egypt began to reign, and reigned 21 years	I	230
2635	1328	1671	Plemneus, 11 king of Sicyon, son of Eratus, succeeds his father, and reigned 48 years	II	350
2636	1329	1670	Mamitus, king of Assyria, begins to reign, and reigned 30 years	I	865
2641	1334	1665	Mephres, Amersis, or Miphris, king of Egypt, began to reign, and reigned 12 years	I	230
2653	1346	1653	Mispharmutosis, Misaphris, or Misphragmuthosis, succeeds Mephres as king of Egypt, and reigns 26 years	I	230
2664	1357	1642	Criasus, son of Argus, succeeds his father as king of Argos, and reigns 54 years	II	352
2666	1359	1640	Mancaleus succeeds Mamitus as king of Assyria, and reigns 30 years	I	865
2671	1364	1635	Joseph, being arrived to the 110th year of his age, found himself so weakned with the laborious station he had been in, for now near 80 years, that he foresaw his departure was at hand, and sending for his brethren (being divinely inspired) told them, that God would certainly bring their posterity out of Egypt into the land of Canaan, and charged them absolutely not to leave his bones in Egypt, but to take his body with them, and bury it in the spot of ground that Jacob had given him by his last will, and then gave up the ghost, &c.	I	467
2679	1372	1627	Thomosis succeeds Misphartumosis as king of Egypt, and reigned 9 years	I	230
2683	1376	1623	Orthopolis, son of Plemneus, succeeds his father as 12th king of Sicyon, and reigned 63 years	II	350
2688	1381	1618	The famous Colossus, or groaning statue, called Memnon after the name of him it was made to honour, was now supposed to be set up by Amenophis, king of Egypt	II	316
2688	1381	1618	Amenophis succeeds Thomosis as king of Egypt, and reigned 31 years	I	230
2696	1389	1610	Spherus succeeds Mancaleus as king of Assyria, and reigns 20 years	I	865
2716	1409	1590	Mamitus succeeds Spherus as king of Assyria, and reigns 30 years	I	865
2717	1410	1589	Epidaurus, a famous sea-port in Argos, built (by Apollo or Hercules)	II	396
2718	1411	1588	Phorbas, son of Criasus, succeeds his father as king of Argos, and reigned 35 years	II	352
2719	1412	1587	Horus succeeds Amenophis as king of Egypt, builds the famous city of Memphis, (others say 'twas built by Memes their first king, Vol. I. 176.) and several others, and having reigned 38 years, dies	I	230
2725	1418	1581	Miriam born, (sister of Moses) the daughter of Amram, the son of Kohath, grandson of Levi by his wife Jochabed	I	477
2726	1419	1580	Hæmon, son of Pelasgus, becomes the first king of Thessaly, so called from his son Thessalus	II	381
2728	1421	1578	Phorbas, son of Lapithas, reigned at Ophiusa (now Rhodes) having first cleared the country of serpents	III	129
2732	1425	1574	Aaron, brother of Miriam and Moses, son of Amram, born	I	477
2733	1426	1573	Pharoah king of Egypt, publishes an edict under the severest penalties, that every Hebrew male child, should be drown'd in the Nile as soon as it was born	I	477
2735	1428	1571	Moses, brother to Miriam and Aaron, son of Amram is born, and conceal'd three months, after which time, being forced to expose the child in a cradle, or ark of bulrushes to the mercy of the waters, Pharoah's daughter (Thermuthis by name) attended with her maids, coming to the river Nile to bathe, seeing him to be a beautiful child, ordered him to be put to nurse, (through ignorance to his own mother) and as he grew up, caus'd him to be instructed in all the learning of the Egyptians	I	477
2739	1432	1567	Cydon, king of Crete, began to reign	III	164
2746	1439	1560	Sparetus succeeds Mamitus as king of Assyria, and reigns 40 years	I	865
2746	1439	1560	Marathus succeeds Orthopolis as 13th king of Sicyon, and reigned 30 years	II	350
2749	1442	1557	Cecrops, the first king of Athens, by birth an Egyptian, brought into Attica a colony of Saits, gathered his people into 12 tribes, dedicated his city to Minerva, and set up the Areopagus, or high court of judicature. He is said to be the first that deified Jupiter, and offered sacrifices to him as the supreme Deity	II	362
2753	1446	1553	Triopas succeeds Phorbas as king of Argos, and reigned 46 years. (His son Xanthus first planted or peopled Lesbos, a famous Greek Island. Vol. III. 205.)	II	352
2756	1449	1550	Lycaon, son of Pelasgus, reigned in Arcadia, built Lycosura in Mount Lycæus, instituted the Lycæan games, where he is said to offer up living children to Jupiter, &c.	II	378
2757	1450	1549	Acencheres succeeds Horus as king of Egypt, and reigns 12 years	I	230
2759	1452	1547	The Curetes and Corybantes built Cnossus in Crete. (Note W. Vol. II. 298.)	II	299
2760	1453	1546	Scamander from Crete came into Phrygia. (See the Note of this Page.)	II	311
2761	1454	1545	Lesbos, planted by Macar, one of the 7 brethren called Heliadæ, that built Jalysus in Rhodes	III	205
2769	1462	1537	Achoris succeeds Acencheres in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 9 years	I	230
2775	1468	1531	Moses seeing the cruelties used towards his countrymen, particularly by the task-masters, one day killed one of them, and buried him in the sand, upon which he was forced to fly into Midian, or Arabia Petrea	I	479
2775	1468	1531	Moses coming into Midian, (where he is supposed either to have composed or purchased the book of Job) Jethro, the priest or prince there, taking a liking to him, gave him Zipporah, one of his daughters to wife, with whom he lived forty years in her father's house, &c.	I	302
2776	1469	1530	Caleb, the son of Jephunneh born, who was one of the 12 persons Moses sent to view the land of Canaan	I	526

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
2776	1469	1530	Marathus ſucceeds Marathus in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigns 20 years	II	350
2778	1471	1528	Cenchres ſucceeds Achoris in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 16 years	I	230
2785	1478	1521	Eryſichthon, ſon of Cecrops, begins building Apollo's temple at Delus, which was afterwards enlarged and embelliſhed at the common charge of all the ſtates of Greece	III	228
2788	1481	1518	Deucalion's flood in Theſſaly, (note N)	I	95
2794	1487	1512	Acherres ſucceeds Cenchres as king of Egypt, and reigns 8 year	I	230
2796	1489	1510	Echyreus, or Coronus, ſucceeds Marathus in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigns 55 years	II	350
2799	1492	1507	Cranaus ſucceeds Cecrops in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns 9 years, (from his Daughter Atthis dying a virgin, the country was called Attica)	II	362
2799	1492	1507	Crotopus ſucceeds Triopas as king of Argos, and reigns 21 years	II	352
2801	1494	1505	Apteras, ſon of Cydon, (by ſome called the Saturn of Crete) reigns as king in Crete	III	164
2802	1495	1504	Cherres ſucceeds Acherres in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 15 years	I	230
2804	1497	1502	Teucer, the ſon of Scamander, reigned in Phrygia over that People, from him called Teucri, afterwards Trojans	II	311
2808	1501	1498	Amphictyon, ſon-in-law to Cranaus, began to reign (having firſt expelled his father-in-law, who thereupon fled to Eleuſis, and reigned there) and reigned as king of Athens (or Attica) 10 years	II	362
2812	1505	1494	Cadmus having built a city, and called it Cadmea, and afterwards Thebes, became the king therefore, and reigned 62 years	I	409
2815	1508	1491	God appears to Moſes in a burning buſh upon mount Horeb, which, though viſibly all in flames, not a leaf is either burned or ſcorched, and commands him to return back into Egypt, to do miracles before Pharaoh, and to deliver his people.	I	484
2815	1508	1491	This year the Paſſover was inſtituted and kept, and the people thruſt out of Egypt	I	500
2816	1509	1490	In the firſt ſix months of this year the tabernacle was ſet up, and in it the Ark of the covenant, and the altar, &c	I	523
2816	1509	1490	The Decalogue delivered by Moſes, &c	I	514
2816	1509	1490	Aaron and his ſons conſecrated and appointed for the performance of the prieſt's office for ever	I	523
2816	1509	1490	Nadab and Abihu, Aaron's two eldeſt ſons, ſtruck dead for preſuming to burn incenſe in the tabernacle with ſtrange fire	I	524
2816	1509	1490	Quails ſent to ſatisfy the people's hunger for 30 days	I	525
2816	1509	1490	The meſſengers ſent by Moſes to view the land, report it, if not impoſſible, very hard and difficult to conquer, whereupon a general murmuring aroſe among the people, which ſo diſpleaſed God, that by Moſes he aſſur'd them, that not one above 20 years of age ſhould go into the promis'd land, except Joſhua and Caleb	I	526
2817	1510	1489	Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, three principal perſons, rebel againſt Moſes, whoſe undutifulneſs is rewarded by the earth's burſting aſunder and ſwallowing up them, their families, and ſubſtance	I	530
2817	1510	1489	The prieſthood confirmed to Aaron and his family, by a miraculous budding of Aaron's rod	I	530
2817	1510	1489	Armais (called by the Greeks Danaus) ſon of Cherres, ſucceeded his father in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned there 5 years	I	230
2817	1510	1489	Lacedæmon (or Sparta) built by Lacedæmon, ſon of Jupiter, &c	II	395
2818	1511	1488	Erichthonius, ſon of Vulcan, drives out Amphictyon, and becomes king of Athens in his ſtead, and reigns 50 years	II	362
2820	1513	1486	Arcas, the reputed ſon of Jupiter, ſucceeds Nyctimus, and calls his kingdom Arcadia	II	376
2820	1513	1486	Stheneleus, ſon of Crotopus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Argos, and reigns 11 years	II	352
2822	1515	1484	Rameſſes (called by the Greeks Egyptus, from whom the land took its name of Egypt, being before called Aeria, or Aetia, from the river called firſt Æetius, then Egyptus, and now Nile) ejected his brother Armais, and became king of Egypt in his ſtead: and reigned 68 years	I	230
2826	1519	1480	Amyntas, king of Aſſyria, begins to reign, and reigns 45 years	I	865
2826	1519	1480	Dardanus, ſon-in-law to Teucer, reigns as king of Troy for 31 years, in which time he builds a capital city called Dardania	II	311
2831	1524	1475	Gelanor, the ſon of Sthenelus, after he had reigned ſome time, yielded up the kingdom of Argos to Danaus, who was come thither from Egypt in a ſhip of 50 oars, being the firſt ſhip in Greece, where before that time they only uſed rafts. Gelanor reigned 59 years	II	352
2834	1527	1472	Buſiris (ſon of Neptune by Lybia) now exercis'd his cruelty upon ſtrangers	I	211
2835	1528	1471	Oenotrus, youngeſt ſon of Nectymus, led the firſt colony out of Greece into Italy, where he reigned as king	IV	416
2838	1531	1468	Clymenus comes from Crete into Elis, and there held the firſt Olympick games. (For an explanation of them ſee note K, p. 599. vol. IV.)	I	264
2844	1537	1462	Tat, ſon of Triſmegiſtus, ſon of Hermes, flouriſhed
2851	1544	1455	Corax, ſon of Coronus, ſucceeds to the throne of Sicyon, which he enjoyed 30 years	II	350
2854	1547	1452	The temple of Delphos burnt by Xerxes	II	123
2854	1547	1452	Miriam, the ſiſter of Aaron and of Moſes, dies	I	532
2854	1547	1452	The Iſraelites defeated by Arad, one of the Canaanitiſh kings	I	531
2854	1547	1452	Moſes ſmites with his rod, brings water out of a rock to ſatisfy the thirſt and murmuring of the people; but being vex'd, and uſing ſome cholerick expreſſions, God tells him that he and Aaron ſhould only ſee, but not enter the promis'd land	I	532
2854	1547	1452	Moſes commanded to take Aaron and his ſon Eleazar to the top of mount Nebo, and in the ſight of all the people ſtrip the father of, and clothe the ſon with, the prieſtly robes; this done, Aaron died immediately, and was buried ſo ſecretly, that the place of his interment was never publickly known	I	532
2854	1547	1452	Balak, king of Moab, ſends for Balaam, ſon of Beor, a famous prophet or diviner, to curſe Iſrael	I	288
2855	1548	1451	Moſes goes to the top of mount Nebo (having firſt ſettled all the publick and private matters relating to him) and from thence views the promis'd land, and preſently ex pired,

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			pired, being 120 years old, and was ſucceeded by Joſhua in the command of the army, and as head of the civil government, Joſhua being now 93 years old —	I	543
2855	1548	1451	Joſhua ſends two ſpies to Jericho, who are ſaved by the artifice of Rahab, to whom they promiſe ſafety and protection by an oath; at their return they make an encouraging report, and tell Joſhua all they had done — —	I	551
			On the 10th day of Niſan (our 30th April) all Iſrael paſſed over the river Jordan into the land of Canaan — — —	I	554
			The 11th of the month Niſan the whole camp was circumciſed, that ceremony having been omitted for ſome years paſt — —	I	554
			The 14th of the month Niſan (our 4th May) the paſſover was celebrated, which had been now diſcontinued near 40 years — —	I	555
			Jericho beſieged, and by being only gone round with ſome prieſts, &c. ſounding rams horns, the 7th day the whole army making a grand ſhout in conſort, the city walls fall down, and the beſiegers enter and put every creature to death, except Rahab — — —	I	556
2857	1550	1449	Erichthonius, ſon of Dardanus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Troy, and reigned 75 years, he is reported to be the richeſt king of his time —	II	311
2860	1553	1446	Europa, daughter of Phœnix, (brother of Cadmus) is ſtole from Sarepta by the Curetes, in their ſhip called the Bull, and carried to their king Aſterius, by whom ſhe had three ſons, Minos, Rhadamanthus, and Sarpedon — —	I	408
2861	1554	1445	Joſhua, having conquered Canaan, and ſettled the diſtricts of land each tribe was to have, call'd the heads or governors of Iſrael together, wiſh'd them carefully to obſerve the laws Moſes had given them, and particularly caution'd them againſt idolatry, died in the 110th year of his age, and was buried at Timnath-ſerah in mount Ephraim, a part of his own inheritance — —	I	738
2868	1561	1438	Pandion, ſon of Amphictyon, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigned 40 years — — —	II	362
2871	1564	1435	Belochus, king of Aſſyria, begins his reign, and reigned 25 years —	I	865
2874	1567	1432	Polydorus, ſon of Cadmus, under his guardian Nycteus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Thebes, and reigns a ſhort time, and leaves the kingdom to his ſon Labdacus (which he had by Nycheis, daughter of Nycteus) under the guardianſhip of his grandfather Nycteus — — —	I	409
2876	1569	1430	Bacchus ſon of Jupiter, by Semele daughter of Cadmus, famous for finding out the art of making wine: He built Nyſa in India, was reputed a God whilſt alive, but was not ſolemnly deified till 100 years after his death — —	III	372
2881	1574	1425	The burning of Ida — — —
2881	1574	1425	Epopeus ſucceeds Corax as king of Sicyon, where he reigned 35 years —	II	350
2881	1574	1425	Lynceus, king of Argos, ſucceeds Danaus to the crown: He is ſaid to be the only perſon out of 50 brothers that eſcaped being murdered by his wife; for his great ſkill in mining, he is ſaid to ſee thro' ſtone walls — —	II	352
2882	1575	1424	King Tereus from Thrace, ſettled at Daulis above Chæronea
2887	1580	1419	Athens has war with Thebes, in which Tereus having been very ſerviceable, Pandion king of Athens beſtows his daughter Progne upon Tereus, as a reward for his valour, by whom he had a ſon called Itys — — —	II	389
2893	1586	1413	Micah, a great man in the tribe of Ephraim, erects a chappel, puts up images, and encourages idolatry — — —	I	739
2896	1589	1410	Cuſhanriſhathaim, king of Meſopotamia, ſubdues and keeps Iſrael in ſubjection 8 years — — —	I	742
2896	1589	1410	Belleparес, ſon of Bellochus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns 30 years — — — —	I	865
2896	1589	1410	Corinth built by Siſyphus (Son of Æolus;) its antient name was Ephyra —	II	390
2899	2592	1407	Minos I. reign'd in Crete, and built Cydonia — —	III	166
2899	1592	1407	Side in Cilicia, built by Orion, which he called by the name of his wife Side, the daughter of Danaus — — —	II	340
2900	1593	14 6	The inhabitants of Gibbeath in the tribe of Benjamin, having expreſs'd their deſires in a brutiſh manner, to have a Levite delivered to them who happened to be travelling that way, ſo abus'd the woman that was with him, that ſhe was found dead at the door in the morning; this occaſioned a civil war, &c. —	I	740
2900	1593	1406	Cinyras, ſon of Sandochus, reign'd at Byblus, the firſt city that was built in Phœnicia	I	135
2904	1597	1402	Othniel, the ſon of Kenna, Caleb's youngeſt brother, is choſe the firſt judge in Iſrael, raiſes an army, and marches againſt Cuſhanriſhathaim, overthrows him, and delivers Iſrael to their full liberty — —	I	742
2908	1601	1398	Erechtheus, ſon of Pandion, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, the people whereof till now were called Cecropii, but from henceforward Athenians, and the race of kings from this time Erecthidæ; he reigned 50 years — —	II	362
2910	1603	1396	The firſt jubilee among the Jews obſerved — —	I	614
2912	1605	1394	Cinyras built Old Paphos in Cyprus, and married king Pygmalion's daughter —	I	402
2914	1607	1392	Labdacus, king of Thebes, killed in a tumult, leaving Laius his ſon (1 year old) under the guardianſhip of Nycteus his grandfather, who died next year of grief for the loſs of his daughter Antiope — — —	I	409
2915	1608	1391	Epopeus, king of Sicyon, in the 35th year of his reign received Antiope, then with child and flying from Thebes from her father Nycteus, his brother Lycus in revenge made war againſt him, in which war Epopeus was killed — —	II	350
2916	1609	1390	Lamedon ſucceeds his brother Corax in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigned 40 years	II	350
2916	1609	1390	Lycus, brother to Labdacus, ſucceeds in the guardianſhip of his nephew Laius king of Thebes, for the ſpace of twenty years, in the firſt whereof Lamedon his brother delivers up Antiope and her two twin ſons, Amphion and Zethus; Lycus uſed her cruelly, and expoſed the twins, but in vain — —	I	409
2922	1615	1384	Phryxus and Helle (from whom the Helleſpont had its name) went to Colchis in a ſhip called the ram — —	II	305
2922	1615	1384	Abas, the ſon of Lynceus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Argos. He built Abæ in Phocis, from whence came the Abantes in Eubœa; he reigned 23 years —	II	352

Ceres

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
2922	1615	1384	Ceres came to Athens, and both civilized the people and taught them husbandry, being the first that regularly planted corn there, and sent it out by Triptolemus her favourite to be dispersed to other countries	I	421
2925	1618	1381	Triptolemus plants corn in Raria at Eleusis, for the first time
2926	1619	1380	The rape of Ganymede	I	865
2926	1619	1380	Lamprides succeeds Bellepares in the kingdom of Assyria, where he reigned 30 years
2930	1623	1376	This year is fixed for the beginning of the 19 Egyptian dynasty of 194 years, in which they began to have kings of their own, the first whereof was Sethos, who reigned 55 years	I	230
2932	1625	1374	Adonis (the son of Cynaras and his wife Metharme) born, called also Thammuz or Shammuz, and Osiris	I	402
2932	1625	1374	Tros, the son of Erichthonius, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Teucri, which from this time forward was called Troy; he reigned 60 years	II	311
2936	1629	1370	Amphion and his brother Zethus rebel, and in a battle having killed Lycus, the guardian of Laius king of Thebes, is set up by the people, and reigned 35 years: He named the metropolis of the kingdom Thebes, which he inclosed with a wall, &c.	II	373
2943	1636	1363	Tantalus, king of Sipylus in Phrygia, before called Mæonia, was as famous for his great riches as he was infamous for his notorious wickedness	II	297
2944	1637	1362	Eglon, king of Moab, &c. invades the eastern parts of Israel, takes Jericho, and obliges them to pay tribute 18 years	I	291
2945	1638	1361	Prætus, son of Abas, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Argos, and reigns 17 years	II	352
2956	1649	1350	Sicyon succeeds Lamedon in the kingdom of Sicyon; from him the city Ægiale was called Sicyon. He reigned forty-five years	II	350
2958	1651	1348	Sosares succeeds Lamprides as king of Assyria, and reigned 20 years	I	865
2958	1651	1348	Cecrops II. son of Erechtheus, succeeds his father as king of Athens, and reigns 40 years. It was now agreed that the Erechthidæ should be kings, and the Eumolpidæ priests	II	362
2961	1654	1345	Prætus is driven out of his kingdom of Argos (where he had reigned 17 years) by his brother Acrisius, and flies to his wife's father, Jobates king of Lycia, who to accommodated the matter, that from this time the kingdom was divided into two parts, the one called Mycenæ, the other by its old name Argos	II	354
2962	1655	1344	Acrisius, brother of Prætus, is made the first king of Mycenæ, and reigned 31 years	II	354
2962	1655	1344	Prætus is made king of Argos, as divided, (which contained Midea, Heræum, and Tiryns,) and reigned 14 years	II	354
2962	1655	1344	Ehud, the son of Gera, a Benjamite, and famous for his left-hand dexterity, is chose second judge or principal governor in Israel; he going with the annual present or tribute, gets accession to Eglon king of Moab, privately stabs him, makes his escape, raises an army, and frees his country, and under him Israel enjoyed peace 40 years	I	742
2974	1667	1332	Amphion, king of Thebes, his family, and multitudes of the people, died of the great plague that at this time raged there	II	373
2975	1668	1331	Laius, son of Labdacus, succeeds Amphion (who had invaded his right) in the kingdom of Thebes, and reigned 55 years	I	409
2975	1668	1331	The city of Ilion, or Ilium, built by Tros king of Troy, who also called this city Troy after his own name, and Ilium from his son Ilus; it was seated on a rising ground near mount Ida, about 5 miles from the shore	II	305
2976	1669	1330	Janus, or Saturnus Albanus, becomes the first king of the Abrogines in Italy, who reigned 33 years.	II	261
2976	1669	1330	Bacchus deified, and Pentheus the son of Echrion was torn in pieces by his mother and sisters for profaning his rites	III	372
2976	1669	1330	Prætus king of Argos died	II	354
2977	1670	1329	Acrisius, king of Mycenæ, sets up the court of the Amphictyons, or general court of Greece, at Delphos, and endowed them with very great powers and privileges	II	388
2977	1670	1329	Megapenthes, son of Prætus, who was king at Tiryns, changes it for Argos, where his sons Argæus and Anaxagoras reigned after him, and with him in two thirds of the kingdom. Melampus, son of Amythaon and brother of Bias	II	354
2978	1671	1328	Lampares succeeds Sosares in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigns 30 years	I	865
2978	1671	1328	The city of Crete built. (See Note (K)	III	164
2984	1677	1322	Pelops, son of Tantalus, a little king in Phrygia, failing in an attempt upon Ilium, fled into Greece, and being wise, valiant, and rich, acquired the greatest part of the country which was afterwards (from him) called Peloponnesus	I	407
2985	1678	1321	Ramses succeeds Sethos in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 66 years	I	230
2986	1679	1320	Shamgar, the son of Anath, was the third judge among the Israelites; he is said to have slain 600 Philistines with an ox-goad	I	742
2992	1685	314	Perseus, son of Acrisius, killed his father, king of Mycenæ, and changed Argos with Megapenthes for Tiryns. He built the city of Mycenæ for his seat, and reigned 32 years	II	355
2992	1685	1314	Ilus, the son of Tros, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Troy, where he reigned 54 years	II	311
2992	1685	1314	Apollo and his mother Latona are said to come from Hyperborei to Delphi; Olen Hyperboreus was the first prophet there	III	228
2998	1691	1308	Pandion II. succeeded Cecrops as king of Athens, and reigned 25 years: In this king's reign the sacrifice of man's flesh and Lycea were shewn (perhaps revived) in Arcadia	II	362
2999	1692	1307	In memory of king Oenomaus, whom he had driven out of Pisa, Pelops held his Olympic, which by his son Atreus was revived 100 years after	II	406
3001	1694	1305	Polybius succeeds Sicyon in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigned 40 years	II	350
3001	1694	1305	Jabin, king of Hazor, conquers Israel, and sorely harrasses them for twenty years, &c.	I	335
3005	1698	1301	The 1st lustration at Athens	IV	457
3008	1701	1298	Panyas succeeds Lampares in the kingdom of Assyria, and reigned 45 years	I	865

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3009	1702	1297	Cyzicus of Cyzicum, built; this city was the capital of an iſland of the Propontis of the ſame name, which Alexander the Great joined to the continent by two great bridges	II	323
3009	1702	1297	Picus or Jupiter Albanus, the ſecond king of the Aborigines, began to reign, and reigned 37 years	II	261
3010	1703	1296	Melaithus, partner with Megapenthes in the kingdom of Argos, dies	II	354
3012	1705	1294	Marſyas, liv'd at Celænæ, a city in Phrygia Major; he invented the bagpipe, with which he challenged Apollo, and for his inſolence was flay'd	II	292
3012	1705	1294	Oedipus, the ſon of Laius king of Thebes born, and expoſed on mount Cithæron, and found by the ſhepherd's of the king of Sicyon, and by him brought up	II	374
3012	1705	1294	Bias, brother of Megapenthes, and one of his partners in the kingdom of Tyrins, dies. (Note D)	II	382
3018	1711	1288	Miletus built by Sarpedon	II	756
3021	1714	1285	Deborah, a propheteſs, the wife of Lapidoth, raiſes an army of 10,000 Iſraelites, with which Barak her general engages and conquers Siſera, Jabin's general, who in his flight goes to the tent of Heber, where was Jael, Heber's wife, who gave him refreſhment, and he being wearied lay down to ſleep, at which time Jael drove a large nail into his temples, and ſo killed him. This victory obtained Iſrael a forty years peace	I	336
3023	1716	1283	Ægeus, the ſon of Pandion, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns 48 years	II	362
3025	1718	1281	Orpheus, Muſæus, and Linus flouriſhed; the laſt of the three was the maſter of Hercules	II	384
3025	1718	1281	The three brothers Electro, Meſtor, and Sthenelus, reign as kings of Mycenæ in common	II	355
3028	1721	1278	Eupilamus invented the anchor
3030	1723	1276	Laius, king of Thebes, going to the oracle at Delphos to enquire after his ſon, is killed by his ſon Oedipus ignorantly, who was alſo come thither to enquire who was his father, &c.	II	374
3030	1723	1276	Creon, brother of Jocaſta the wife of Laius, ſucceeds his brother-in-law in the kingdom of Thebes, and reigns about ten years	II	373
3031	1724	1275	Meſtor, one of the three kings of Mycenæ, dies	II	355
3032	1725	1274	Electro, another of the three kings of Mycenæ, dies	II	355
3032	1725	1274	Hercules, the ſon of Amphytrion, born; ſaid to be the ſon of Jupiter by Alcmena, wife of Amphytrion. (Note H)	II	355
3032	1725	1274	Sthenelus becomes king of Mycenæ alone, his two brothers Meſtor and Electro being dead, who were partners with him in the kingdom, and reigned alone 8 years	II	355
3036	1729	1270	Audrogeus, the ſon of king Minos, killed at Athens, as it was thought, by the procurement of king Ægeus, upon which followed war, plague, and famine: The oracle being conſulted, bid the Athenians ſatisfy king Minos for his ſon; he demanded, that every 8th year, at his Ludi held in memory of his ſon, there ſhould be ſent him 7 young men and 7 virgins, to be given as rewards to the victors at theſe ſports	II	364
3037	1730	1269	The firſt colony of the Aborigines goes out of Italy into Sicily five years before the laſt colony	IV	414
3039	1732	1267	Jaſon and his Argonauts went now from Iolchus over the Euxine ſea to Colchis, in ſearch of the golden fleece, from whence this is called the Argonautic expedition	II	383
3040	1733	1266	Atreus and his brother Thyeſtes (ſons of Pelops) reigned in Mycenæ 65 years	II	355
3040	1733	1266	Oedipus married his mother Jocaſta, at that time not knowing ſhe was his mother, and became king of Thebes	II	355
3042	1735	1264	The ſecond colony goes out of Italy into Sicily, called the Ligures, or Siculi, from their leader Siculus	IV	416
3042	1735	1264	Meleager killed the Calydonian boar	II	410
3043	1736	1263	The firſt Pythia, or games in honour of Apollo for his killing the ſerpent Python, were now held by Adraſtus	II	382
3046	1739	1260	Faunus, or Mercurius Albanus, 3d king of the Aborigines, begins to reign, and reigned 44 years	IV	414
3046	1739	1260	Laomedon ſucceeds Ilus in the kingdom of Troy, and reigned 36 years	II	315
3051	1744	1265	Amenophis ſucceeds Rameſes in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 40 years	I	230
3053	1746	1263	Soſarmes ſucceeds Panyas in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigned 19 years	I	865
3054	1747	1252	The firſt tribute-children ſent to Crete	II	364
3054	1747	1252	Tyre built; the metropolis of Phænicia, formerly called Sor, and commonly the daughter of Sidon	I	393
3061	1754	1245	Zebah and Zalmunnah, two confederate kings of Midian, waged ſo cruel a war againſt the Iſraelites that they were not able to ſtand againſt them, but forced to fly into holes and corners, &c. this continued ſeven years	I	743
3062	1755	1244	The ſecond tribute of children ſent to Crete	II	364
3062	1755	1244	The Arcadians enter Italy, and ſettle there	IV	414
3068	1761	1238	God raiſed up Gideon, who by ſtratagem frightned and diſcomfited the hoſt of the confederate princes with the ſlaughter of 120,000 men, and many priſoners, particularly the two kings, Zebah and Zalmunnah, who were by him put to death; took immenſe ſpoil, and delivered Iſrael by deſtroying four kings, &c. ſo that they had peace 40 years, that is, all the remainder of Gideon's government	I	743
3070	1763	1236	At the third ſending of the Athenian children to Minos king of Crete, Theſeus, ſon of Ægeus king of Athens, went to fight the champion that Minos had appointed, called Minotaur, whom Theſeus killed, by the help of Ariadne daughter of Minos, and brought her away with him to Athens	III	167
3071	1764	1235	Theſeus, ſon of Ægeus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Thebes, and reigned 30 years; this firſt year was called the year of Theſeus and the Minotaur	I	409
3072	1765	1234	Carthage, a capital city of Africa, built by Eliſa, called alſo Dido, ſiſter of Pygmalion king of Tyre	I	415

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3072	1765	1234	Mitreus ſucceeds Soſarmes in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns 21 years	I	865
3072	1765	1234	The Pan-athenaica and Iſthmia revived by Theſeus	II	391
3076	1769	1230	Hercules having killed Augeas, held an Olympic Agon at Elis	II	401
3078	1771	1228	Oedipus is turn'd out of the kingdom of Thebes, and his ſon Eteocles and his brother Polynices reign jointly in his ſtead	II	374
3080	1773	1226	The Nemea inſtituted by Adraſtus, &c. ſacred to Jupiter and Hercules	II	251
3081	1774	1225	Eteocles and Polynices die, and Creon (as guardian of Laodamas, ſon of Eteocles,) governs the kingdom of Thebes	I	409
3081	1774	1225	The Theban war	II	488
3082	1775	1224	Priamus (alſo called Podarces) the ſon of Laomedon, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Troy, and reigned 40 years	II	411
3083	1776	1223	Phæſtus, the ſon of Hercules, ſucceeds Janiſcus in the kingdom of Sicyon; he reigned 8 years and went to Crete	II	350
3084	1777	1222	Hercules (held his Olympic for Pelops) kills himſelf, by jumping into the Flames of a great fire, he had made upon mount Oeta	II	401
3090	1783	1216	Latinus, the ſon of Faunus, ſucceeds his father as king of the Aborigines, and reigns 36 years: Some ſay he was the ſon of Hercules by a daughter of Faunus	II	261
3091	1784	1215	Epigoni, having killed Laodamas king of Thebes, gave the kingdom to Therſander ſon of Polynices	I	409
3091	1784	1215	Adraſtus left the kingdom of Argos to his ſon Ægialeus, and went himſelf to Sicyon	II	352
3091	1784	1215	Ammenemes ſucceeds Amenophes in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 26 years	I	230
3091	1784	1215	Adraſtus (coming from Troy ſucceeds Phæſtus in the kingdom of Sicyon (who was gone to Crete) and reigned 4 years	II	350
3093	1786	1213	The Amazonian war	II	366
3095	1788	1211	Polyphides ſucceeds Adraſtus in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigns 31 years	II	350
3098	1791	1208	Euryſtheus, king of Mycenæ, and five of his ſons, killed in battle with Theſeus king of Athens	II	365
3098	1791	1208	Atreus ſucceeds Euryſtheus in the kingdom of Mycenæ, and reigns 6 years	II	352
3099	1792	1207	Tautanes ſucceeds Mitreus in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigned 32 years	I	865
3100	1793	1206	Herophile (called alſo Sibylla Troica) prieſteſs of Apollo Smintheus, lived about this time	V	79
3101	1794	1205	Meneſtheus ſucceeds Theſeus in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns 23 years	II	362
3104	1797	1202	Hercules and Æſculapius deified	III	212
3105	1798	1201	Agamemnon, ſon of Atreus, becomes king of Mycenæ, and reigns 18 years	II	352
3107	1800	1199	Eli made high prieſt, though of the houſe of Ithamar	I	754
3107	1800	1199	Abimelech, Gideon's baſtard ſon, ſets himſelf up for a judge or king in Shechem, and puts his father's 70 ſons to death	I	749
3108	1801	1198	After Gideon's death, Iſrael fell to worſhip Baal-berith, the God of Beritus	I	749
3108	1891	1198	The rape of Helen by Paris, which occaſioned the famous ten years Trojan war, and the deſtruction of Troy	II	366
3110	1803	1196	The Shechemites revolt from Abimelech's government, he conquers them, and burns 1000 perſons in the temple of Baal-berith, whither they flew for ſafety, then razed the tower and city. Thebez, a city of Judah, had alſo revolted, whither he went and beſieged it; but a woman, by throwing a great ſtone upon him, wounded him ſo ſorely, that he commanded Zebul his ſervant to kill him: Tholah the ſon of Phuah, the ſon of Dodo, of the tribe of Iſſachar, ſucceeds Abimelech, who reigned 23 years as judge of north and eaſt Iſrael	I	749
3112	1805	1194	Laodamas, king of Thebes, went to Aulis to meet the Greek princes going againſt Troy	II	371
3113	1806	1193	The Trojan war began with the Greeks	II	318
3113	1806	1193	King Laodamas of Thebes is killed by Telephus king of Myſia, where the Greeks by miſtake firſt landed	II	319
3113	1806	1193	Meneſtheus king of Athens goes with Agamemnon to the ſiege of Troy, and dies in his return after it was ended, at Melos	II	320
3113	1806	1193	Tiſamenes becomes king of Thebes	I	409
3117	1810	1189	Thuores began to reign in Egypt, and reigned 7 years	I	865
3118	1811	1188	Caſtor and Pollux deified	II	402
3121	1814	1185	Peneleus Spartus, guardian of Tiſamenes king of Thebes, killed in the Trojan war by Eurypylus. Tiſamenes had a ſon called Auteſion, who after his father's death, by the direction of the oracle, went to the Heraclidæ in Doris, and left his kingdom to Damaſichton, ſon of Opheltas and grandſon of Peneleus; next after Damaſichton reigned Ptolemeus, laſt of all reigned Xanthus	II	409
3122	1815	1184	At night between the 23d and 24th of Thargelion, viz. between the 11th and 12th of June, after midnight, the Greeks entered and took Troy, when king Priam and all his children (except two or three that were made captives) were killed; thus Troy was taken 408 years before the firſt Olympiad	II	321
3122	1815	1184	Æneas enters into Thrace	II	322
3123	1816	1183	Æneas goes from Thrace into Sicily	II	322
3123	1816	1183	Agamemnon killed by Ægyſthus, who reigned at Mycenæ	II	357
3123	1816	1183	Cynipus dies, by means whereof all Argos comes to Cyllabarus, ſon of Sthenelus	II	352
3124	1817	1182	The 20th Egyptian dynaſty begins, being the 3d of the Dioſpolites for 178 years; Dioſpolis was Thebes, and there king Polybus and his wife Alcandra are ſaid to have entertained Menelaus and Helen	I	230
3124	1817	1182	Demophoon, ſon of Theſeus, ſucceeded his father in the kingdom of Athens, and in his return from the ſiege of Troy, he was caſt on the coaſt of Thrace: Queen Phillis received him kindly, but having got his kingdom, he neglected her, upon which ſhe ſtrangled herſelf. He reigned 33 years	II	362
3124	1817	1182	Æneas, with 22 ſhips and 600 men, goes from Sicily to Laurentum, king Latinus being at war with the Ardeans, begged his aſſiſtance, which being granted, he gave him 500 acres of land to ſettle in	IV	419

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Pag.
		1181	Latinus is killed in the war againſt the Rutili, by king Turnus	IV	419
3125	1818	1181	Æneas ſucceeds Latinus as king of the Latini, marries Lavinia the daughter of Latinus, and calls the city which he had now finiſhed after her name Lavinium, and then reigns by her right	IV	419
3126	1819	1180	Pelaſgus becomes king of Sicyon, and reigns 20 years	II	350
3128	1821	1178	Anchiſes, father of Æneas, dies	IV	420
3129	1822	1177	Æneas, king of the Latins, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Aſcanius, who reigned 38 years in Latium	IV	420
3130	1823	1176	Ægyſthus king of Mycenæ, and his wife Clytemneſtra, killed by Oreſtes, ſon of Agamemnon, who reigned 15 years	II	357
3130	1823	1176	Oreſtes having loſt his wife Hermione, daughter of Menelaus, (who in his return from Troy took her with him to Sparta) runs mad	II	357
3131	1824	1175	Tauteus, or Teuteus, ſucceeds Tautanes in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns 40 years	I	865
3131	1824	1175	Oreſtes being cured of his madneſs, went to Athens to be tried for the murder of Ægyſthus and Clytemneſtra, and was acquitted by the vote of Minerva	II	403
3131	1824	1175	While Oreſtes was gone to Athens to take his trial, Aletes, the ſon of Ægyſthus, ſet himſelf up for king of Mycenæ, for which Oreſtes kills him. Soon after he got Argos, Cyllabarus being dead without heir	II	403
3131	1824	1175	Jeſſe, (the ſon of Obed) the father of king David, born
3133	1826	1173	Tholah dies, and is ſucceeded by Jair, who judged north and eaſt Iſrael 22 years; a man of vaſt poſſeſſions, having 30 cities, which he gave to his 30 ſons	I	750
3135	1828	1171	During this time the Iſraelites were in bondage to the Ammonites for 18 years	I	750
3135	1828	1171	Eli now judged ſouth and weſt Iſrael 40 years, during which time they were oppreſſed by the Philiſtines	I	754
3135	1828	1171	Æneas was worſhipped under the name of Jupiter Indiges, by the Latins	IV	420
3135	1828	1171	Sampſon born. In this year the 18 years oppreſſion of north and eaſt Iſrael by the Ammonites began, and the 40 years of ſouth and weſt Iſrael by the Philiſtines	I	755
3141	1834	1165	Hophni and Phineas, the two ſons of Eli the high prieſt, and judge of ſouth and weſt Iſrael, make the people, by their extraordinary wickedneſs, forſake and abhor the worſhip of God	I	755
3142	1835	1164	Pyrrhus is killed at Delphi, and ſo Oreſtes recovers his wife Hermione	III	799
3143	1836	1163	Tiſamenus, the ſon of Oreſtes, by his father's conſent, reigns as king at Mycenæ, and afterwards he gave him Argos alſo	II	352
3143	1836	1163	Menelaus dies, his natural ſons ſet up at Lacedæmon, but were diſpoſſeſſed by Oreſtes, who drove them out and reigned in right of his wife	II	400
3146	1839	1160	Zeuxippus ſucceeds Pelaſgus in the kingdom of Sicyon, and reigned 32 years. With him died the kingly government, it being upon his demiſe changed into the government of the prieſts of Apollo Carneus	II	350
3149	1842	1157	Jeptha, in a quarrel with the tribe of Benjamin, cut off 42,000 of their men	I	753
3152	1845	1154	Cleodæus, the ſon of Hyllus, killed in the third attempt of the Heraclidæ to get Peloponneſus
3153	1846	1153	Alba Longa, built by Aſcanius, the ſon of Æneas king of Lavinium, which he made the capital of his dominions, and his chief reſidence the laſt 12 of his 38 years reign	IV	421
3154	1847	1152	God raiſed up Sampſon, who judged ſouth and weſt Iſrael 20 years, &c. in partneſhip with Eli	I	754
3154	1847	1152	Jephtha, the baſtard ſon of Gilead, quarrelling with the Ammonites about ſome of his land, aſſembles an army, goes againſt and overcomes the Ammonites, and with a prodigious ſpoil regains his country's liberty: Upon his return his daughter goes out to meet and congratulate him, for which ſhe is ſacrificed, in performance of a vow he had raſhly made before the battle. He judged north and eaſt Iſrael 6 years	I	751
3157	1850	1149	Oxyntes, the ſon of Demophoon, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns 12 years	II	362
3158	1851	1148	The temple of Diana at Epheſus, the moſt magnificent ſtructure in the world, burnt by Eroſtratus	II	753
3159	1852	1147	Jephtha dies, and is ſucceeded by Ibzan as judge of north and eaſt Iſrael, who continued in that ſtation 7 years	I	753
3164	1857	1142	The firſt Agon of the Lycæa held on the top of mount Lycæus, the Arcadian Olympus: The victors were rewarded with brazen arms
3166	1859	1140	Sylvius Poſthumus ſucceeds his father Æneas as king of Latium, and reigned 29 years: From him the kings of his race were called Sylvii, upon account of his mother Lavinia retiring into a wood to grieve for his father Æneas, during which time he was born there. Now the Latins and Albans joined both their dominions into one kingdom	IV	421
3166	1859	1140	Elon ſucceeds Ibzan, and judged north and eaſt Iſrael 10 years	I	753
3169	1862	1137	Aphidas, ſon of Oxyntes, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns but one year, being killed by Thymetes, his baſtard brother	II	362
3170	1863	1136	Thymetes, the baſtard ſon of Oxyntes, ſucceeds Aphides in the kingdom of Athens, and reigned 8 years, and was the laſt of the Erecthidæ	II	362
3171	1864	1135	Samuel becomes known to all Iſrael as a prophet, by foretelling Eli the high prieſt's death: He was a ſecond Moſes for 40 years, in all extraordinary caſes, over Iſrael, and probably now over ſouth and weſt Iſrael in all ordinary caſes	I	756
3171	1864	1135	Thineus ſucceeds Tautes in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns 30 years	I	865
3174	1867	1132	Sampſon pulls down the temple of Dagon at Gaza, and deſtroys both himſelf and a vaſt number of Philiſtines by the fall thereof	I	349
3174	1867	1132	The Iſraelites engage the Philiſtines, and loſe 30,000 men, and the ark at Shiloh which was carried by the Philiſtines to Aſhdod	I	756
3174	1867	1132	Eli the high-prieſt, being now 98 years of age, hearing of the ark being taken, falls backwards in a ſwoon, breaks his neck and dies, upon which Samuel ſucceeds him as judge of ſouth and weſt Iſrael, and Ahitub as high-prieſt	I	756

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3175	1868	1131	The Philiſtines ſend back the ark with preſents; upon its coming to Bethſhemeſh, the people's curioſity prompts them to look into it, for which 50070 is ſaid to be ſtruck dead; from thence it was carried to Kiriath Jearim, and lodged in the houſe of Abinadab, where it continued 20 years
3176	1869	1130	Abdon ſucceeds Elon in the judges ſeat of north and eaſt Iſrael, and ſat therein 8 years	I	757
3177	1870	1129	Melanthus king of Athens kills Xanthus king of Thebes in a duel, and upon the death of Xanthus the kingdom of Thebes devolves into a democracy	I	753
3178	1871	1128	Melanthus drove Thymetes out of the kingdom of Athens, and reigned there 37 years	II	375
3178	1871	1128	Archelaus, prieſt of Apollo Carneus, reigns as chief magiſtrate in Athens one year	II	362
3179	1872	1127	Automedon ſucceeds Archelaus in the magiſtracy of Athens for one year	II	350
3180	1873	1126	Pheoclytus ſucceeds Automedon in the magiſtracy of Athens, and holds it four years	II	350
3181	1874	1125	Penthilus, baſe ſon of Oreſtes, reigned 22 years in Mycenæ	II	350
3182	1875	1124	The Bæoti being driven out of Arne by the Theſſali, went to live in Cadmei, which they called Bæotia after their own name	II	357
3182	1875	1124	The Æolian migration under Penthilus from Aulis, the famous ſea port in Bæotia, where the Grecian chiefs met and ſwore the deſtruction of Troy	II	370
3184	1877	1122	Euneus, prieſt of Apollo Carneus, is made chief magiſtrate of Athens, in which ſtation he continued 6 years	II	371
3184	1877	1122	Abdon dies, upon which, 'tis ſuppoſed, Samuel become judge over north and eaſt as well as ſouth and weſt Iſrael, in all caſes, both ordinary and extraordinary	II	350
3190	1883	1116	Theonomus ſucceeds Euneus in the magiſtracy of Athens, and holds it nine years	I II	753 350
3195	1888	1111	Æneas Sylvius ſucceeds his father Sylvius Poſthumus in the kingdom of Latium, and reigned 31 years	IV	421
3195	1888	1111	By Samuel's prayers, ſacrifices, and encouragement, the Iſraelites engage the Philiſtines at Mizpeh, and obtain a complete victory, by which they are delivered from the yoke of bondage they had long groaned under, and a ſtone called Ebenezer ſet up in memory thereof	I	757
3199	1892	1107	Amphigyes ſucceeds Theonomus as chief magiſtrate of Athens, and holds it 18 years	II	350
3200	1893	1106	Oreſtes dies at Tegea, Ægyptus being then king of Meſſenia	I	865
3201	1894	1105	Dercilus ſucceeds Thineus in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns 40 years	I	758
3201	1894	1105	Ariromachus, ſon of Cleodeus of the Heraclidæ, aſking the oracle the way of entering into Peloponneſus, was anſwered, by the Straights, which he interpreting to be the Iſthmus, was ſlain in the attempt; his ſons Temenus, Creſphontes, and Ariſtodemus, enquiring again, was anſwered, by the ſtreights of the ſea; and then they built ſhips at Naupactus, formerly Ætolia in Elis	II	759
3201	1894	1105	Carnia were now inſtituted to Apollo, upon Hippote's killing a prophet of Apollo Carneus, which was followed by a plague, and he baniſhed for 10 years	II	760
3202	1895	1104	The Heraclidæ (or deſcendants from Hercules) return after two years, and out the Pelopidæ	II	761
3202	1895	1104	Temenus, &c. having finiſhed their ſhips, they paſſed the Streights, and landed at Rhium Promontory, where meeting with Oxylus, king of Ætolia, he became their guide and commander, and in a ſhort time made themſelves maſters of Peloponneſus	II	762
3204	1897	1102	Euryſthenes and Procles, ſons of Ariſtodemus, reigned jointly at Lacedæmon	II	359
3204	1897	1102	Now the Heraclidæ ſhared the country by lot thus; Temenus had Argos and Mycenæ Creſphontes, Meſſenia, and the ſons of Ariſtodemus, Lacedæmon	II	359
			Oxylus would have had Elis, but is refuſed	II	360
3211	1904	1095	Samuel ſacrifices as high prieſt of the Jews	I	758
3211	1904	1095	Saul the ſon of Kiſh, of the tribe of Benjamin, anointed by Samuel the firſt king in Iſrael, over whom he reigned 40 years	I	758
3211	1904	1095	This year Nahaſh, king of the Ammonites, beſieged Jabeſh Gilead; the people deſirous to capitulate, are anſwered they muſt conſent to have each man his right eye put out; they ſend word to Saul, who comes with a great army and relieves them	I	759
3212	1905	1094	Jonathan, ſon of king Saul, ſurprizes and defeats the Philiſtines at Geba	I	760
3213	1906	1093	Saul, by the fearfulneſs of the people, was reduced ſo low, that not a ſmith was to be found in Iſrael; he aſſumes the prieſts office, for which Samuel foretells the loſs of his kingdom to his family	I	761
3213	1906	1093	Abia officiates as high prieſt of the Jews	I	762
3215	1908	1091	Codrus, ſon of Melanthus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Athens, and reigns 21 years, in which time the Iones being driven out of their country, come to Athens, are kindly received, and allowed to ſettle there	II	362
3216	1909	1090	Abiathar, the ſon of Abimelech, born
3217	1910	1089	Charidemus held the magiſtracy one year in Sicyon, then Phalces took the city, and made it a part of Argos, and from this time the Sicyonians were called Dorians	II	350
3218	1911	1088	The Æoles, conſiſting of a mixture of Achæi and others, brought by Penthilus into Thrace in 1124, now under his youngeſt ſon Archelaus move out of Thrace into Aſia, and fixed themſelves about Diſcyleum in Cyzicena, and as far as the river Granicus	II	323
3218	1911	1088	Another colony of the Æolians, under Cometes ſon of Tiſamenes, and Clenas ſon of Dorus, both deſcendants of Agamemnon, planted themſelves about mount Phricius in Locris	II	763
3221	1914	1085	David, the ſon of Jeſſe born, who afterwards became king of Iſrael and Judah
3227	1920	1079	In the 27th year of Dercilus, king of Aſſyria, the Amazons and Cimmerians make an incurſion into Aſia together	II	303

Abdes,

Y. of world	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3232	1925	1074	Aletes, ſon of Hippotes and grandſon of Hercules, expels the race of Syſiphus from the government of Corinth, and becomes king of Corinth, and reigned there 38 years: From him his deſcendants called themſelves Heraclidæ	II	392
		1074	Ereſus in Pityuſa, built by the Phœnicians	VII	308
3232	1925	1074	Zadock, ſon of Ahitub heir of Eleazer, born	I	791
3235	1928	1071	Codrus, king of Athens, falling a voluntary victim for his country in the war with
3236	1929	1070	the Peloponneſians, the people aboliſh kings and chooſe archons for life	II	362
3236	1929	1070	Medon, ſon of Codrus, is choſe firſt archon of Athens, and continued in that ſtation 20 years	II	362
3236	1929	1070	After the death of Codrus was the great remove out of Athens, under his ſon Nileus, of the Iones, together with the other ſons of Codrus: Nileus ſettled at Miletus, and liv'd and died there	II	369
3237	1930	1069	Syndus, Jalyſſus, and Camirus, in the iſland of Rhodes, built by Althemenes ſon of Cliſſus	III	129
		1068	Miletus built by the Iones, in the Leſſer Aſia	II	369
3238	1931	1065	Eupates ſucceeds Dercilus in the kingdom of Aſſyria, where he reigns 38 years	I	865
3241	1934	1063	Saul having deſtroyed the Amalekites deceitfully, is rejected by God, and Samuel or-
3243	1936		dered to anoint David, the youngeſt ſon of Jeſſe, to be his ſucceſſor	I	763
3243	1936	1063	David engages and kills Goliah, upon which the Iſraelites fall upon, overthrow and quell the Philiſtines, with a great ſlaughter	I	764
3244	1937	1062	Saul grows melancholy through vexation, is relieved by David's muſical performances, but at laſt endeavours to kill David, upon which he flies to the deſerts of Juda	I	765
		1060	Mephibosheth, the ſon of Jonathan born	I	778
3246	1939	1060	Abia dies, and his brother Abimelech is high-prieſt, whom Saul in a fury, for
3246	1939		having ſuccoured David at Nob, kills, with all his family, except his ſon Abiathar, who ſaved himſelf by flying to David, and afterwards ſucceeded his father as high-prieſt	I	767
3246	1939	1060	Procles having adopted Sous for his ſon, who reigned (likewiſe in partnerſhip in the kingdom of Lacedæmon, which had now two kings) after Procles's death 32 years	II	938
3247	1940	1059	In the reign of king Agis was the third remove of the Æoles, under Grays the youngeſt ſon of Echelatus, they poſſeſſed themſelves of all the country between Ionia and the Myſi, now called Æolis	II	288
3247	1940	1059	Euriſthenes dies, and his ſon Agis ſucceeds him in the partnerſhip of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, but reign'd only one year: From him the deſcendants of Euriſthenes were called Agidæ. The Helots rebelled againſt him upon account of a tax he impoſed on them, for which he reduced them into a ſtate of perpetual villenage	II	400
3248	1941	1058	Echeſtrates, ſon of Agis, ſucceeds his father as partner in the kingdom of Lacedæmon which he held for the ſpace of 35 years	II	400
				I	768
3248	1941	1058	The prophet Samuel dies	II	763
3249	1942	1057	The Iones diſtributed themſelves to make other plantations	II	369
3249	1942	1057	Myus and Priene built, by Nileus, &c. Codrus's ſon
3250	1943	1056	David flies to Ziklag to avoid Saul's fury, from whence he makes frequent excurſions againſt the enemies of Iſrael, and totally deſtroys men, women, and children	I	769
3251	1944	1055	Ziklag plunder'd and burnt by the Amalekites; David purſues after the Amalekites, ſlew their army, and brought back the ſpoil	I	770
3251	1944	1055	King Achiſh goes againſt Iſrael, upon which Saul (being terrify'd) goes to conſult the witch of Endor	I	770
3251	1944	1055	King Achiſh engages Saul upon mount Gilboa, where he and his three eldeſt ſons are ſlain	I	772
3251	1944	1055	Upon Saul's death the 12 tribes divide, and Judah receives David, and the other tribes ſet up Iſhboſheth, Saul's only ſon that was living, and they reign together 7 years and 6 months	I	773
3252	1945	1054	Grays paſſes over with the greateſt part of his army into the iſle of Leſbos	II	305
3252	1945	1054	Mytilene in Leſbos built	III	204
3253	1946	1053	Magneſia (at mount Sipylus) planted	II	381
3253	1946	1053	War begun between Joab and Abner	I	773
3254	1947	1052	Cumæ in Italy built by Hippoctes and Megaſthenes	II	606
3256	1949	1050	Acaſtus, ſon of Medon, declared archon of Athens, which he enjoyed 36 years	II	362
3257	1950	1049	Androclus, ſon of Codrus, led his great colony to Epheſus, where having drove out the Leleges and Lydi, he added it to Samos and other neighbouring iſles: The Samians flying from Samos planted themſelves in Dardania, and called it Samothrace	III	237
3258	1951	1048	Iſhboſheth being murdered by Baana and Rechab, as he lay on his bed they cut off his head, and carry'd it to David, who having ordered them to be put to death, becomes king over all Iſrael	I	774
3258	1951	1048	Joab kills Abner treacherouſly	I	774
3261	1954	1045	Hadar-Ezer, king of Zobah, ſo totally twice routed by David's army, under the command of Joab, that his very kingdom was diſſolved	I	382
3261	1954	1045	The ark brought up from Kiriath-Jearim, firſt to the houſe of Obed-Edom, where it ſtaid three months, and then was placed in Sion, upon which occaſion David compoſed the 68th pſalm	I	775
3262	1955	1044	The firſt meeting of the cities or ſtates at the Pan-Ionia, or common council of the Ionian colonies, held at mount Mycale	III	189
3262	1955	1044	Toi king of Hamath ſends his ſon with great preſents to David king of Iſrael	I	391
3263	1956	1043	Hiram, with his father Abiblus, reign in Tyre together 19 years	I	774
3263	1956	1043	Abimaaz, ſon of Zadock heir of Eleazar, born
3266	959	1040	Edom ſubdued by Joab, David's general	I	314

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3268	1961	1038	Nahaſh, king of the Ammonites dies, and war is made with his ſon and ſucceſſor Hanun, for ſhamefully treating David's ambaſſadors, &c.	I
3270	1963	1036	Ixion ſucceeds Aletes in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned there 38 years	II	778
3271	1964	1035	Rabba, the metropolis of the Ammonites, beſieged and taken, where Uriah, the huſband of Bathſheba was ſlain	II I	390
3272	1965	1034	David reproved by Nathan for taking Uriah, the Hittite's wife, being ſenſibly ſmote with the heinouſneſs of his crime, in a very penitential mood compoſes the 51ſt pſalm	I	779
3273	1966	1033	Solomon is born to David by his wife Bathſheba	I	779
3276	1969	1030	Ammon killed by the command of his brother Abſalom, for having deflowered his ſiſter Thamar two years before	I	780
3277	1970	1029	Latinus dies, and is ſucceeded in the kingdom of Albany (or Latium) by his ſon Alba, who reigned 39 years	I	781
3278	1971	1028	Eurypon, ſon of Sous, upon the death of his father ſucceeds him in the partnerſhip of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, which he held ſeven years: From him the deſcendants of Procles were called Eurypontidæ	IV II	421
3279	1972	1027	Laoſthenes ſucceeds Eupales in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns 45 years	I	400
3279	1972	1027	Abſalom after three years returns to Jeruſalem from Geſhur, whither he flew upon his killing his brother Ammon, having been protected by his grandfather Talmai king of Geſhur, and lived two years privately	I I	805
3281	1974	1025	Abſalom being reſtored to favour, conſpires againſt his father David	I	391
3282	1975	1024	Abiblus, joint king of Tyre dies, and Hiram his ſon reigned alone 34 years, was great with David and Solomon	I	783
3283	1976	1023	Abſalom having collected an army, breaks out into open rebellion againſt his father king David, and is defeated and ſlain by Joab	I	783
3283	1976	1023	Echeſtratus dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Labotas in the partnerſhip of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, which he enjoyed 377 years. In his reign the Lacedæmonians firſt declared war againſt the Greeks	I II	786
3284	1977	1022	Amaſa, king David's general, killed treacherouſly by Joab; and Sheba, who was in open rebellion, beheaded by the people of Abel, and his head thrown over the wall of the city to Joab, who thereupon rais'd the ſiege, and the rebellion ceaſed	I	400 827
3285	197-	1021	Famine brought upon the Iſraelites 3 years, for Saul's killing the Gibeonites	I	788
3285	1978	1021	Eurypon dies, and his next ſon Prytanis ſucceeds him in the partnerſhip of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, which he enjoyed 35 years	II	400
3289	1982	1017	David, out of pride, numbers his people, and thereby offends God, who ſends the prophet Gad to rebuke him, and give him his choice of three ſorts of puniſhments; David chooſes the plague, of which 70,000 die in three days	I	789
3290	1983	1016	Rehoboam, the ſon of Solomon born
3291	1984	1015	The two books of Samuel ſuppoſed to be wrote by the prophets Nathan and Gad about this time
3291	1984	1015	David dies, and is ſucceeded in the whole kingdom of Iſrael by his ſon Solomon, who reigned 40 years	I	792
3292	1985	1014	Adonijah and Joab both put to death for rebellion againſt Solomon, and Abiathar degraded from being high-prieſt	I	792
3292	1985	1014	Archippus ſucceeds Acaſtus (as archon or chief magiſtrate) in Athens, and reigned 19 years	II	362
3292	1985	1014	Abiathar deprived of the high-prieſthood, for conſpiring with Adonijah againſt Solomon, and Zadock put into his place. From this time the high prieſthood went out of the family of Ithamar, and returned into the family of Eleazar, wherein it continued, according to what had been foretold, 1 Sam. xi. 35.	I	792
3294	1987	1012	The Temple founded by Solomon, 480 years after the Iſraelites departure out of Egypt.	I	795
3295	1988	1011	Shimei put to death for breaking his confinement	I	793
3301	1994	1005	The famous temple at Jeruſalem built by Solomon king of Iſrael, finiſh'd.	I	795
3302	1995	1004	The firſt Jewiſh temple at Jeruſalem dedicated by king Solomon, with the utmoſt ſolemnity and magnificence, on the 8th day of the 7th month of the ſacred year, and which was the firſt month of the civil year, anſwering to the latter end of our October	I	795
3302	1995	1004	The 21ſt dynaſty of the Egyptians began, called the dynaſty of the Tanites, the firſt king whereof was called Semendis, who reigned 26 years	I	230
3308	2001	998	Agelaus ſucceeds Ixion in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned 38 years	II	390
3311	2004	995	Therſippus ſucceeds Archippus in the archonſhip of Athens, which dignity he held 41 years	II	362
3311	2004	995	Homer, the famous Greek poet, was brought up by Phemius of Smyrna, who had married Homer's mother	III	108
3316	2009	990	Balbazer, ſon of Hiram, ſucceeded his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigned 7 years	I	414
3316	2009	990	Ahimaaz ſucceeds his father Zadock in the high prieſthood of the Jews	II	332
3316	2009	990	Medon, king of Argos dies, and is ſucceeded in his kingdom by Lacidaus	IV	421
3316	2009	990	Capetus ſucceeds Alba in the kingdom of Latium, and reigns 26 years	III	187
3320	2013	986	Samos built, and Smyrna enlarged into the form of a city
3320	2013	986	Doryſſus or Doryſſæus, ſon of Labotas, ſucceeds his father in the partnerſhip of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigns 29 years	II	400
3320	2013	986	Eunomus, ſon of Prytanis, ſucceeds his father in the partnerſhip of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigned 79 years	II	400
3323	2016	983	Abdraſtus, ſon of Balbazer, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 9 years	I	414
3324	2017	982	Pyritiades ſucceeds Laoſthenes in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns 30 years	I I	865 802
3326	2019	980	Solomon drawn into idolatry, out of complaiſance to his many wives and concubines	I	230
3328	2021	978	Pſeuſennes ſucceeds Semendis in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 41 years
3331	2024	975	Phialus, ſon of Bucolion, began to reign in Arcadia, and changed the name of Phigialia into Phialia	II	378

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3331	2024	975	Solomon repenting, writes the Eccleſiaſtes, and is aſſured his ſeed ſhould reign over only Juda and Benjamin, 1 Kings, XL. 13. 32.	I	802
3331	2024	975	Solomon dies, whereupon the tribes divide themſelves, ten forſaking Reboboam his ſon, and ſet up a kingdom of their own, under the command of Jeroboam, which from this time forwards was called the kingdom of Iſrael; and two tribes adhere to Reboboam, under the title of king of Juda 17 years	I	803
3331	2024	975	Jereboam becomes the firſt king of Iſrael, and reigns 21 years, during which time he ſets up two golden calves at each end of his kingdom for the people to worſhip, inſtead of going up to Jeruſalem, &c. From his introducing idolatry in the firſt year of his reign, the 300 years of Iſrael's iniquity is to be reckoned, mentioned Ezekiel iv. 5. 9.	I	803
3332	2025	974	Iſthomius, ſon of Glaucus, began to reign in Meſſenia	II	355
3332	2025	974	Abdaſtartus, king of Tyre, is killed by the four ſons of Narſes, the eldeſt of whom reigned 21 years	IV	414
			The Thracians ſettle themſelves in Bebrycia, now called Bithynia	III	827
3334	2027	972	Shiſhak king of Egypt goes againſt Jeruſalem, takes it, and plunders the temple of all	I	806
3335	2028	971	the golden veſſels, &c.	IV	421
3342	2035	964	Capys ſucceeds Capetus in the kingdom of Latium, where he reigned 28 years
3344	2037	962	Aſtartus, ſon of Delæaſtartus, becomes king of Tyre, and reigns there 12 years	I	414
3345	2038	961	Proymnes, or Prymnes or Prumnis, ſucceeds Agelaus in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigns 35 years	II	390
3348	2041	958	Azariah ſucceeds his father Ahimaaz in the high-prieſthood at Jeruſalem
3348	2041	958	Abijah, one of the ſons of Reboboam, ſucceeds in the kingdom of Judah upon the death of his father, and in a pitch'd battle with Jeroboam overthrew him; and killed 500,000 of his men. He reigned only 3 years	I	807
3349	2042	957	Ageſilaus, ſon of Doryſſus, ſucceeds his father in the partnerſhip of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigned 44 years	II	400
3351	2044	955	Abijam, or Abijah, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Aſa in the kingdom of Judah, where he reigned 41 years: He was a prince of extraordinary piety, and purged out the idolatry that had crept in during the three foregoing reigns	I	807
3352	2045	954	Jeroboam dies, and is ſucceeded in the kingdom of Iſrael by his ſon Nadab, who reigned about two years	I	807
3352	2045	954	Phorbas ſucceeds Therſippus in the archonſhip of Athens, and holds that dignity 31 years	II	362
3353	2046	953	Baaſa, of the tribe of Iſſacher, kills Nadab king of Iſrael at the ſiege of Gibbiton, and ſucceeds him in the kingdom of Iſrael, where he reigns 24 years, during which time he deſtroyed the whole race of Jeroboam	I	807
			Ophrateus ſucceeds Pyritiades in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns 20 years	I	865
3354	2047	952	Aſtharymus ſucceeds his brother Aſtartus in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 9 years	I	414
3356	2049	950		II	352
3356	2049	950	Meltas began to reign at Argos	I	809
3357	2050	949	Jehoſophat (ſon of Aſa king of Judah) born
3365	2058	941	Aſa king of Judah commands all the idols that had been ſet up in his kingdom to be broken down, and depoſed his mother from the regal dignity for being an encourager of them	I	807
3365	2058	941	The Cuſhites attack Aſa's kingdom with 10,000,000 men, commanded by Zerah the Ethiopian; Aſa encounters them at Mareſhah, totally routs them, and returns to Jeruſalem loaden with prodigious ſpoil, is met by a prophet who aſſures him of future ſucceſs, &c.	I	807
3365	2058	941	Pheles ſucceeds his brother Aſtharymus in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 8 months	I	414
3366	2059	940	Ithobalus, prieſt of Aſtarte, ſucceeds Pheles in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns there 32 years	I	415
3366	2059	940	Aſa king of Judah ſends ambaſſadors and large preſents to Benhadad king of Damaſcus, who thereupon makes war with Baaſha king of Iſrael, and takes ſeveral of his frontier towns, &c.	I	383
3366	2059	940	Aſa king of Judah builds Geba and Mizpeh, with the materials that he took from Baaſha king of Iſrael, which were by him deſigned for the building of Ramah. Aſa throws the prophet Hanomi into priſon for reproving him	I	808
			Nephercheres ſucceeds Pſeuſennes in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 4 years	I	230
3369	2062	937	Calpetus ſucceeds Capys in the kingdom of Latium, and reigns 13 years	IV	421
3370	2063	936	Amenophis ſucceeds Nephercheres in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 9 years	I	230
3373	2066	933	Ophratenes ſucceeds Ophrateus in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigned 50 years	I	865
3374	2067	932	Dotadas, ſon of Iſthmius, began to reign in Meſſenia
3375	2068	931	Meltas dies, and thereupon the regal government of Argos becomes a democracy	II	360
3376	2069	930	Ela ſucceeds his father Baaſha in the kingdom of Iſrael, and reigned only one year, being then murdered by Zimri	I	808
3376	2069	930	Zimri, the general over Ela's chariots, conſpires againſt Ela and kills him, and then proclaims himſelf king, and as ſuch reigns 7 days at Tirzah, but being attacked by Omri (another general officer) Zimri, to avoid being taken, burns the king's houſe and himſelf in it: Upon this the kingdom of Iſrael was rent in twain, part following Thibni the ſon of Ginath, and the other part Omri, for 4 years they reigned together	I	808
3377	2070	929	Lycurgus, (ſon of Eunomus by his ſecond wife Dianiſſa) the famous Lacedæmonian lawgiver born
3380	2073	926	Bacchis, ſon of Prorymnes, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned 35 years: From him came the Bacchiadæ	II	390
3380	2073	926	Thibni, the partner king with Omri in the kingdom of Iſrael, being killed, Omri reigned alone 8 years	I	808
3381	2074	925	Onſochor ſucceeds Amenophis in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 6 years.	I	230
3382	2075	924

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3382	2075	924	Omri having bought the hill of Someron or Samaria, of one Shemer, for two talents of silver, built the famous city of Samaria thereon, and removed the royal palace from Tirzah to Samaria, and made it the metropolis of the kingdom of Israel
3382	2075	924	Joram (the son of Jehosophat the son of Asa king of Juda) born	I	808
3383	2076	923	Tiberinus succeeds Calpetus in the kingdom of Latium, and reigned 8 years	IV	421
3383	2076	923	Megacles succeeds Phorbas in the archonship of Athens, and held that dignity 30 years.	II	362
3388	2081	918	Pfinaspinaces succeeds Onsochor in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 9 years.	I	230
3388	2081	918	Ahab, the son of Omri, upon the death of his father succeeds him in the kingdom of Israel, where he reigned 22 years; and having married Jezabel, daughter of Ethbaal king of the Zidonians, greatly encouraged idolatry, particularly the worship of Baal, by human sacrifices, &c. 1 Kings, xvi. 31.	I	809
3390	2083	916	The Rhodians become masters of the sea, by their expertness in navigation; and the Rhodian laws for many ages were the standard to decide all maritime affairs; the Romans esteemed them so highly as to incorporate them into their pandect of laws, &c.	III	132
3391	2084	915	Tiberinus, king of Latium, being killed at the river Albula and drowned, that river from him was, and still is, called the Tiber	IV	421
3391	2084	915	Agrippa (by Ovid called Remulus) succeeds Tiberinus in the kingdom of Latium, where he reigned 41 years	IV	421
3392	2085	914	Jehosophat, upon the death of his father Asa, succeeds him in the kingdom of Judah, and reigned 25 years: He began his reign with purging away idolatry, &c.	I	809
3393	2086	913	Archelaus succeeds his father Agesilaus in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedæmon and reigned 60 years. In this year the Lacedæmonians took Teyea, and raz'd it to the ground, to prevent their revolting to the Arcadians	II	400
3395	2088	911	Jehosophat caus'd a competent number of priests and Levites to attend some of his chief offices with copies of the Pentateuch, to go through his kingdom and teach the real law of Moses, which was then greatly corrupted	I	809
3397	2090	909	Psusennes succeeds Pfinaspinaces in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 35 years	I	230
3398	2091	908	Bazorus, son of Ithobalus succeeds his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigned 8 years	I	415
3399	2092	907	Polydectes succeeds his father Eunomus (who was killed in a riotous tumult) in the partnership of the kingdom of Lacedmmon	II	400
3399	2092	907	Ahaziah, son of Joram, (son of Jehosaphat king of Judah, by his wife Athalia daughter of Ahab king of Israel) born	I	383
3405	2098	901	Benhaaad king of Syria, and his thirty-two confederate kings beaten off from Samaria, by Ahab king of Israel, with prodigious slaughter	I	415
3406	2099	900	Metinus, son of Bazorus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 9 years	I	384
3406	2099	900	Benhadad, king of Syria, is a second time defeated by Ahab king of Israel, with a mighty slaughter, &c.	II	558
3408	2001	898	Polydectes, half king of Lacedmmon, is succeeded by his half brother Lycurgus, who reign'd as guardian to his son Charilaus, who was born 8 months after his death	I	812
3408	2101	898	Ahab takes his son Ahaziah into partnership with him in his kingdom of Israel	I	813
3409	2102	897	Ahab king of Israel, and Jehosaphat king of Judah agree to besiege Ramoth-Gilead, and retake it from the Syrians, where Ahab is slain, &c.	I	813
3409	2102	897	Ahaziah, upon the death of his father Ahab, reign'd alone in the kingdom of Israel about one year	I	814
3409	2102	897	Amariah, or Azariah, succeeds his father Azariah in the high priesthood at Jerusalem. 2 Chron. xix. 11.	I	814
3409	2102	897	The Moabites revolt, (who from David's time till now had been subject to Israel) but are entirely defeated by the united force of Israel and Judah	I	814
3410	2103	896	Johanan, or Jehoiada, the son of Amariah, succeeds his father as high-priest at Jerusalem	I	809
3410	2103	896	Elias being taken up into heaven alive, is succeeded by Elisha in the prophetical Office	I	813
3410	2103	896	Joram, or Jehoram, the brother of Ahaziah king of Israel, (who was killed by the bruises he received in a fall) succeeds him in the kingdom of Israel, and reigned 12 years	II	399
3412	2105	894	Lycurgus abdicated his government of the Lacedæmonians, and began his 10 years travel, to see the customs and manners of other nations	II	362
3413	2106	893	Diognetus succeeds Megacles in the archonship of Athens, which he held 28 years	I	814
3414	2105	892	Joram is taken into partnership in the kingdom of Judah, by his father Jehosaphat	I	390
3415	2108	891	Agelas, or Agelastes, succeeds Bacchis in the kingdom of Corinth, where he reigned 30 years	I	416
3415	2108	891	Pygmalion, the son of Mettinus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Tyre, and reigns 40 years: He is said to have built the city of Carpasia in the island of Cyprus, and to present the temple of Hercules in the island of Gades, with an olive tree made of massive gold, whose berries were emeralds, &c.	I	814
3417	2110	889	Joram (upon the death of his father Jehosaphat) reigns alone 4 years, during which time he debauched the peoples manners, and introduced idolatry	I	315
3417	2110	889	Edom now revolted from the Israelitish government (to which they had been subject from David's time) and having expelled or assassinated their vice-roy, set up a king of their own again	I	815
3418	2111	888	The Philistines and Arabians invade Judah, and take and plunder Jerusalem, and among others carry away Jehoram's wives, and all his sons, (except Jehoahash) and Ahaziah, captive	II	378
3419	2112	887	Pompus, son of Simus, began to reign in Arcadia

Y. of World.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
		886	Jeboram king of Judah takes his ſon Ahaziah partner with him in his kingdom	I	815
3420	2113	885	Upon the death of Joram his ſon Ahaziah reigned king of Judah alone, for about
3421	2114		the ſpace of one year, being then killed by Jehu, one of the officers of Jeho-
			ram.	I	819
3421	2114	885	Samaria being beſieged by Benhadad king of Syria, the city is reduced to the ut-moſt extremity by famine, &c. and is miraculouſly delivered by the prophet
			Eliſha	I	816
3421	2114	885	Hazael murders Benhadad king of Syria at Damaſcus, and ſucceeds him in the kingdom of Syria, which he raiſed to its meridian of glory	I	388
3422	2115	884	Eliſa, ſiſter of Pygmalion king of Tyre, (called alſo Dido) flying from Tyre upon the murder of her husband Sichæus prieſt of Hercules, in company with many others, goes and ſettles in Africa, and builds the famous city of Carthage	I	415
3422	2115	884	Joram king of Iſrael killed by his ſervant Jehu, who reigned 28 years, and deſtroyed all the houſe of Ahab, and caus'd queen Jezabel to be thrown out of a window, &c.	I	819
3422	2115	884	Hazael king of Damaſcus (or Syria) warring againſt Jehu king of Iſrael, overcame him, and took almoſt all his kingdom from him, having ſlain and taken captive an infinite number of his ſubjects	I	389
3422	2115	884	Ahaziah dies, and his mother Athaliah (daughter of Ahab) reigns 6 years in Ju- dah, during which time ſhe practiſed and promoted idolatry with all her might, and killed all his children; except Joaſh, whom Jehoſheba (ſiſter of king Ahaziah and wife of Jehoiada the high-prieſt) ſaved, being then but one year old	I	822
3422	2115	884	Lycurgus returns to Lacedæmon from his travels, and ſettles the government by excellent laws	II	559
3422	2115	884	Iphitus began accounting or computing time by Olympiads, 108 years before the firſt
			Olympiad	I	86
3424	2117	882	Ocrazapes ſucceeds Ophratanes in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns there 42 years	II	357
3425	2118	881	Sybotas, ſon of Dotadas, was now king of Meſſenia
3428	2121	878	Jehoiada the high-prieſt ſhews young Joaſh (the ſon of their late king Ahaziah) to the heads and people of Judah, who being tired with the cruelty and wickedneſs of Athaliah, proclaimed Joaſh king; and the high-prieſt having anointed him and crowned him, ſlew Athaliah; Joaſh reigned 40 years. &c.	I	825
3432	2125	874	Begins the 22d Egyptian dynaſty of the Bubaſtites, the firſt king whereof was Sen-
			ſoris, who ſucceeded Pſuſennes, and reigned 21 years, &c.	I	230
3432	2125	874	Agrippa, king of the Latins dies, and is ſucceeded by Allades, or Alladius, who
			reigned 19 years	IV	422
3433	2126	873	Charilaus takes the government of Lacedæmon upon himſelf, and reigned 64
			years	II	400
3437	2130	869	Carthage, the famous metropolis of Africa, built by queen Dido: Phidon now governed at Argos, and made meaſures and ſcales, and coined ſilver money at
			Ægina	I	415
3441	2124	865	Pherecles ſucceeds Diognetus in the archonſhip of Athens, and reigned 19
			years	II	362
3444	2137	862	Jonas propheſied againſt Niniveh
3445	2138	861	Eudemus ſucceeds Agelas in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned 25 years	II	390
3449	2142	857	Joaſh repairs the temple of Jeruſalem, &c.	I	823
3450	2143	856	Jehoahaz ſucceeds his father Jehu (now dead) in the kingdom of Iſrael, and
			reigned 17 years	I	822
3451	2144	855	Allades king of the Latins, together with his palace, is ſwallowed up by an earthquake, as he was imitating thunder, and was ſucceeded by Aventinus, who
			reigned 37 years	IV	421
3452	2145	854	The Lacedæmonians, by the help of the Eleans, overthrew the tyrant Phidon	II	400
3453	2146	853	Teleclus ſucceeds Archelaus in the partnerſhip of the kingdom of Lacedæmon, and
			reigns 40 years	II	400
3453	2146	853	Oſorthon ſucceeds Sethoris in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 15 years	I	230
3456	2149	850	Jehoiada the high-prieſt dies, at 130 years old, and is ſucceeded in that office at Je-
			ruſalem by his ſon Zachariah	I	824
3458	2151	848	Polymeſtor, ſon of Æginetas king of Arcadia, overcame the Lacedæmonians, and took Charilaus priſoner, whom they obliged to take an oath that he ſhould not make war any more on the Tegæans, but ſome time after he broke it	I	569
3460	2153	846	Ariphron ſucceeds Pherecles in the archonſhip of Athens, and reigned 20 years	II	362
3464	2157	842	Jonas propheſies of Iſrael's deliverance
3465	2158	841	Jehoahaz, king of Iſrael, takes his ſon Joaſh partner with him in the regal government	I	825
3466	2159	840	Zachariah the high-prieſt having reproved Joaſh king of Judah for falling into and encouraging and promoting idolatry, &c. is, by that king's command, ſtoned to death	I	824
3466	2159	840	Tonoſconoleros, or Sardanapalus, ſucceeds Ocrazapes in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and
			reigned 20 years	I	865
3467	2160	839	Hazael, king of Syria, (or Damaſcus, he being called by both titles) after taking
			Gath and conquering the king of Judah's army, was about inveſting Jeruſalem, but by large preſents, &c. departed for that time, but ſoon after ſent a part of his great army, who (overthrowing Joaſh, &c.) ſack'd Jeruſalem, ſlew the princes, and ſent a prodigious ſpoil to Damaſcus	I	388
3467	2160	839	Joaſh being murdered on his bed by his ſervant, is ſucceeded by his ſon Amaziah,
			who reigned 29 years as king of Judah	I	824
3467	2160	839	Jehoahaz, king of Iſrael dies, and Joaſh his ſon reigns alone 3 years
3468	2161	838	Amaziah overcomes the Edomites, ſlaying 10,000 in battle, and throwing 10,000
			priſoners down from the rock whereon Selah their capital city was built, &c.	I	316
3468	2161	838	The prophet Eliſha dies	I	825
3468	2161	838	Tachelotis ſucceeds Oſarthon in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 13 years.	I	230

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3470	2163	836	Ariſtodemus ſucceeds Eudemus in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigns 35 years	II	390
3470	2163	836	Joaſh king of Iſrael takes his ſon Jeroboam to be a partner with him in his kingdom	I	389
3470	2163	836	Hazael king of Syria dies, and was deified; but being ſucceeded by his ſon Benhadad the 3d, he was thrice defeated by Jehoaſh, the ſon of Jehoahaz the king of Judah, and made a tributary	I	389
3471	2164	835	Phintas, ſon of Sobytas, was king of Meſſenia, in his time the Meſſenians firſt ſent their ſacrifices to Apollo at Delos, with a chorus of men
3472	2165	834	Eumelus compoſed the hymn called the Proſodium, to be ſung by the Meſſenians in their ſacrifices to Apollo at Delphos
3480	2173	826	Theſpieus ſucceeds Ariphron in the archonſhip of Athens, and governed 27 years	II	362
3480	2173	826	Amaziah, king of Judah, challenging Joaſh king of Iſrael, is taken by him, and a very large ranſom ſet upon him	I	826
3481	2174	825	Joaſh king of Iſrael dies, and Jeroboam his ſon reigned alone 41 years	I	827
3481	2174	825	The twenty-third dynaſty of the Egyptians, called the Tanites, the firſt king whereof was Petubaſtes, who ſucceeded Tachelotis, and reigned 25 years	I	230
3483	2176	823	Arbaces, prefect of Media, and Beleſis, a prieſt of Babylon and a famous aſtronomer, revolt againſt Sardanapalus king of Aſſyria, and beſieged him with a vaſt army in Niniveh; in the 3d year of the ſiege, the river overflowed and threw down a great part of the wall, through which breach they entered and took the city, upon which Sardanapalus burnt both his palace and himſelf in it; Arbaces and Beleſis divided the empire between them, Arbaces taking Media, Perſia, and Aſſyria; and Beleſis, Babylon, whoſe ſucceſſors are not known till the time of Nabonaſſar.	I	887
3485	2178	821	Media now freed from the yoke of the Aſſyrians by Arbaces, is govern'd by him 28 years	II	12
3488	2181	818	Aventinus dies (and being buried upon a mountain, it was called from thence mount Aventine) and is ſucceeded in the kingdom of the Latins by Procas, who reigned 23 years	IV	421
3492	2185	814	Caranus (one of the Heraclidæ) coming to Macedonia, founded the kingdom ſo called, and reigned over it 28 years	III	271
3493	2186	813	Teleclus, half king of Lacedæmon, is ſlain by the Meſſenians in the temple of Diana Limnas, and ſucceeded by his ſon Alcamenes, who reigned 37 years.	II	400
3496	2189	810	Amariah, the high-prieſt of the Jews, dies, and his ſon Ahitub II. ſucceeds him in that office
3496	2189	810	Amaziah, king of Judah, is driven from Jeruſalem by a conſpiracy that was formed againſt him, and which followed and killed him at Lachiſh, when he was ſucceeded by his ſon Uzziah, or Azariah, who reigned 52 years	I	826
3497	2190	809	Nicander, the ſon of Charilaus, ſucceeds his father in the half kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigns 39 years	III	400
3505	2198	801	Agamemnon, brother of Ariſtomedes, ſucceeds him in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigns 16 years	III	390
2505	2198	801	Capua, a noble city in Campania, built (but now in ruins) about 12 miles diſtant from the preſent city of that name	IV	412
3506	2199	800	Foel propheſied about this time
3506	2199	800	Oſorthon the II. ſucceeds Petubaſtes in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 9 years	I	230
3507	2200	799	Agameſtor ſucceeds Theſpicus in the archonſhip of Athens, and governed 20 years	II	362
3509	2202	797	Ardyſus, king of Lydia, reigns 36 years, was one of the Heraclidæ or deſcendants of Hercules	II	333
3511	2204	795	Amulius, ſon of Procas, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Latium, having firſt put by his elder brother Numitor, to whom Procas had left the kingdom, and reigned 42 years	IV	421
3513	2206	793	Soſarmes ſucceeds Arbaces as king of Media, and reigns 30 years	II	12
2515	2208	791	Pſammis ſucceeds Oſorthon in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 10 years	I	230
3519	2212	787	Amos propheſied againſt Jeroboam king of Iſrael	I	828
5520	2213	786	Cænus ſucceeds Caranus in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigned 12 years	III	271
3520	2213	786	The Corinthians now firſt of all the Greeks had Trirems, or boats with 3 oars on each ſide
3521	2214	785	Alexander ſucceeds Agamemnon in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned 25 years	II	390
3521	2214	785	Hoſea propheſied againſt Iſrael	I	827
3522	2215	784	Jeroboam king of Iſrael died, upon which followed an interregnum of 11 years
3525	2218	781	Begins the 24th Egyptian dynaſty of the Saites, when Bocchoris ſucceeds Pſammis in the kingdom, and reigned 44 years	I	230
3527	2220	779	Æſchylus ſucceeds Agameſtor in the archonſhip of Athens, and reigns 23 years	II	362
3530	2223	776	Polydorus ſucceeds Alcamenes in the half kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigned 52 years	II	400
3530	2223	776	This is commonly eſteemed the beginning of the firſt Olympiad, (vulgarly ſo called.)	III	271
3532	2225	774	Thurimas ſucceeds Cænus in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 45 years
3533	2226	773	Zachariah, ſon of Jeroboam, the 4th and laſt of the houſe of Jehu (according to the prophecy 2 Kings, xv. 10.) ſucceeds in the kingdom of Iſrael, and reigned but 6 months, being killed by Shallum ſon of Jabeſh, one of his own domeſticks, who reigned in his ſtead one month, and was killed by Menahem, Zachariah's general	I	828
3534	2227	772	Ahitub, the high-prieſt of the Jews dying, is ſucceeded by his ſon Zadock, (called alſo Azariah)	I	828
3534	2227	772	Menahem ſucceeded Shallum in the kingdom of Iſrael, and reigned 11 years
3535	2228	771	Uzziah, king of Judah, was ſtruck with a leproſy by Azariah the high-prieſt, till his death, for preſuming to burn incenſe; and his ſon Jotham governed the kingdom for him 13 years	I	829
3535	2228	771	Pul in ſcripture appears to be the firſt king of Aſſyria	I	858
3535	2228	771	Pul king of Aſſyria, invading Iſrael, Menahem gives him 1000 talents of ſilver as homage-money	I	889

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3536	2229	770	Theopompus, ſon of Nicander, ſucceeds his father in the half kingdom of Lacedæmon, and reigned 47 years	II	558
3543	2236	763	Medinus (or Mandauces) ſucceeds Soſarmus in the kingdom of Media, and reigns 40 years	II	12
3545	2238	761	Pekaia, ſon of Mehanem, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Iſrael, and reigned two years	I	830
3545	2238	761	Halyattes ſucceeds Ardyſus in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigned 14 years	II	333
3545	2239	760	Eſay began to propheſy
3546	2239	760	Teleſtes, ſon of Ariſtomenes, having killed Alexander, ſucceeds him in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigned there 12 years	II	390
3546	2239	760	Theopompus ſets up the Ephori at Lacedæmon, which conſiſted of five perſons, arm'd with power to check even the king, as well as govern the people	II	574
3547	2240	759	Peka kills Pekaia king of Iſrael, in his royal palace at Samaria, and reigned in his ſtead 20 years	I	830
3548	2241	758	Uzziah king of Judah dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Jotham, who reigned alone 16 years	I	830
3548	2241	758	Nahum propheſied againſt Niniveh, foretelling the dreadful deſtruction of it, which afterwards happened in the days of Joſiah	I	830
3550	2243	756	Alcmæon ſucceeds his father Æſchylus in the archonſhip of Athens, and reigns 2 years when that office for life was diſſolved, and perſons choſe to hold it for 10 years only	II	36
3552	2245	754	Charops begins the archonſhip of Athens, upon the new regulation of holding that office 10 years	II	36
3552	2245	754	Romulus kills Amulius, and ſets up Numitor	IV	420
3553	2246	753	Romulus having built and finiſhed the city of Rome, is choſen king, and tranſlates the kingdom from Alba to Rome, where he reigned 37 years	IV	42
3554	2247	752	Romulus inſtituted his year of 10 months, of which March was the firſt; this calendar was corrected by Numa, his ſucceſſor, as is more particularly related and deſcribed	IV	427
3554	2247	752	Daicles now firſt crowned in the olympic games	IV	429
3556	2249	750	The rape of the Sabine virgins by the Romans
3557	2250	749	Teleſtes king of Corinth is killed, and the kingly government changed for yearly magiſtrates, of which Automenes was the firſt.
3557	2250	749	War between the Romans and the Sabines upon account of the rape: Romulus encounters and kills with his own hand Arcon their king, diſperſes their army, razes their city, and incorporates the priſoners among his own people.	IV	429
3559	2252	747	The Romans and Sabines conclude a peace, and become one people; and Tatius, then Sabine king, reigned jointly with Romulus, and the people were called Quirites	IV	431
3559	2252	747	Tiglath-pileſer becomes king of Aſſyria as ſucceſſor to his father Pul	I	890
3559	2252	747	Nabonaſſar, king of Babylon, lays the foundation of the firſt of the four great monarchies, and reigns 14 years	I	940
3559	2252	747	Melles ſucceeds Halyattes in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigns 12 years	II	333
3462	2255	744	Æſimedes ſucceeds Charops in the archonſhip of Athens, for 10 years	II	362
8563	2256	743	Androcles, one of the kings of Meſſenia, killed in a quarrel with his brother Antiochus, ſoon after which accident Euphaes reigned in Meſſenia	II	570
3564	2257	742	Tatius, joint king with Romulus, killed by the Lavinians at the foot of the altar, while he and Romulus were offering a ſacrifice to the tutelary Gods	IV	432
3565	2258	741	Ahaz ſucceeds his father Jotham in the kingdom of Judah, and reigned 16 years; but being a wicked prince and committing idolatry, &c. was very unſucceſsful	I	831
3565	2258	741	Peka king of Iſrael warring againſt Judah, kills 120,000 in one day, and carries 200,000 away priſoners	I	832
3566	2259	740	Tiglath-pileſer, king of Aſſyria, invades Damaſcus, takes Rezim their king, tranſplants the inhabitants, and diſſolves the kingdom of Syria, and made Ahaz king of Judah tributary	I	390
3567	2260	739	Peka king of Iſrael is killed by Hoſea, ſon of Ela, upon which followed a ſtate of anarchy for 9 years	I	830
3568	2261	738	The Romans make a triumph for their victory over the Camerini	IV	433
3569	2262	737	The 25th Egyptian dynaſty called the Æthiopes, the firſt king whereof was Sabacon, who reigned 12 years	I	232
3571	2264	735	Candaules ſucceeds Melles in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigns 17 years	II	333
3572	3265	734	Clidicus, the ſon of Æſimedes, ſucceeds his father in the archonſhip of Athens, for the ſpace of 10 years	II	362
3573	2266	733	Naidius ſucceeds Nabonaſſar in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 2 years	I	940
3573	2266	733	Naxus in Sicily built by the firſt Greek colony that came from Chalcis in Eubæa to ſettle in Sicily	II	220
3574	2267	732	The Romans make triumph for their conquering the Veientes	IV	433
3574	2267	732	Syracuſe, formerly the metropolis of all Sicily, was built by Archias of Corinth	III	4
3575	2268	731	Cincirus and Porus ſucceed Nadius in the kingdom of Babylon	I	940
3576	2269	730	Euphaes being killed in battle, was ſucceeded by Ariſtodemus in the kingdom of Meſſenia	II	573
3576	2269	730	Hoſea becomes king of Iſrael, and reigns 9 years	I	833
3577	2270	729	Perdiccas ſucceeds Thurimas in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 51 years	I	558
3578	2271	728	Salmanazar, king of Aſſyria, conquers and makes Hoſea king of Iſrael tributary	I	833
3579	2272	727	Ahaz, king of Judah, takes his ſon Hezekiah partner with him in the kingdom: The prophet Eſay foretels the birth of Emanuel (or Chriſt) and that he ſhould be born of a virgin	I	831
3579	2272	727	Leontinis in Sicily built by the inhabitants of Naxus, and afterwards Catana, another famous city of the ſame iſland	III	3

Upon

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3580	2273	726	Upon the death of Ahaz king of Judah, his ſon Hezekiah reigns alone 28 years: he endeavours to reform Judah by purging away idolatry, ſolemnizing the paſſover, &c in which Azariah the high-prieſt was greatly ſerviceable
3580	2273	726	Jugæus ſucceeds Cincirus in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 5 years	I	833
3581	2264	725	So, king of Egypt, intices Hoſea king of Iſrael to rebel againſt Salmanaſar king of Aſſyria	I	945
3581	2274	725	The Prophet Hoſea declared his laſt prophecy	I	833
3581	2274	725	Sevicus ſucceeds Sabacon in the kingſhip of Egypt, and reigns there 12 years
3582	2275	724	Hippomenes ſucceeds Clidicus in the archonſhip of Athens, which he enjoyed 10 years	I	230
3582	2275	724	The Lacedæmonians end the long war with the Meſſenians with the taking of Ithome, upon which the Meſſenians ſerve the Lacedæmonians 39 years	II	362
3582	2275	724	Polydorus being killed by one Polemarchus, a perſon of mean extract, is ſucceeded by his ſon Eurycrates in the joint kingdom of Lacedæmon for 17 years	II	575
3582	2275	724	Ariſtodemus kills himſelf at his daughter's tomb, whom he had ſacrificed 13 years before	II	558
3583	2276	723	Cardiceas ſucceeds Medidus in the kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigns 13 years
3583	2276	723	Theopompus, one of the partner kings of Lacedæmon, dying, is ſucceeded by his grandſon Zeuxidamus, (ſon of Archidamus, who died before his father Theopompus) who reigns 33 years	I	865
3585	2278	721	Mardokempad ſucceeds Jugæus in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 12 years. (In ſcripture this prince is called Merodak Baladan.)	II	558
3585	2278	721	Salmanaſar, king of Aſſyria, takes Samaria after a ſiege of three years, and carried away the ten tribes of Iſrael into captivity, and ſo put an end to the kingdom of Iſrael, after it had ſtood 234 years divided from Judah	I	945
3586	2279	720	Azariah, the high-prieſt of the Jews dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Shallum	I	835
3588	2281	718	Candaules being by Gyges (the firſt of the Mermnadæ, who ruled 170 years) is ſucceeded by him in the kingdom of Lydia, who reigned there 38 years. Gyges ſends many rich preſents to the oracle at Delphos, &c.
3588	2281	718	The Tyrians intirely defeat Shalmanaſar king of Aſſyria's fleet	II	353
3589	2282	717	Salmanaſar, king of Aſſyria, beſieges Tyre, which held out 5 years againſt him	I	892
3589	2282	717	Hezekiah, king of Judah, revolts and refuſes to pay tribute to the king of Aſſyria any longer	I	192
3589	2282	717	Romulus killed, upon which followed an interregnum for upwards of one year in Rome	I	592
3591	2284	715	Numa becomes king or governor in Rome, but more like Pontifex than Rex, for the ſpace of 43 years	IV	434
3592	2285	714	Leocrates ſucceeds Hippomenes in the archonſhip of Athens, and ruled there 10 years	IV	435
3593	2286	713	Senacherib, king of Aſſyria, goes up againſt Hezekiah king of Judah, who being ſick of the plague, upon his earneſt prayer to God has an addition of 15 years made to his life, and Senacherib goes away againſt Egypt	II	362
3593	2286	713	Taracus ſucceeds Sevicus king of Egypt, and reigns 20 years in that kingdom	I	836
3596	2289	710	Numa Marcius is made the firſt Pontifex Maximus among the Romans	I	230
3596	2289	710	Tirhaka, king of Ethiopia, helps the Egyptians and Jews againſt Senacherib king of Aſſyria	IV	436
3596	2289	710	Senacherib, king of Aſſyria, returns from Egypt and beſieges Lachiſh; Hezekiah buys his peace, but Senacherib breaks his promiſe, and returns againſt Jeruſalem with his whole army, of which God by his angel deſtroys 185,000 in one night	I	893
3596	2289	710	Senacherib, king of Aſſyria, returning to his royal palace at Niniveh, grew ſullen and tyrannical upon his defeat at Jeruſalem, and thereby becoming hateful to all about him, Adrammelek and Sharazer, two of his ſons, killed him, as he was worſhipping his God Niſroch, and Eſarhaddon, his third ſon, reigned in his ſtead	I	838
3597	2290	709	Pityuſa firſt planted with a colony of Carthaginians	I	895
3597	2290	709	An order of 12 prieſts inſtituted among the Romans called Salii	VII	308
3597	2290	709	Arcianus ſucceeds Mardokempad in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 15 years	I	946
3598	2291	708	Ecbatana (the metropolis of all Media, and ſeat of the Median and Perſian monarchs) built by Dejoces, and Sybaris by the Thurians	I	941
3599	2292	707	The Parthenians under Phalantus build Tarentum	II	14
3602	2295	704	Arcianus dies, and an interregnum follows in the kingdom of Babylon for two years	I	945
3602	2295	704	Axinotles of Corinth built for the Samians their firſt trirems, or galleys with 3 oars on a ſide	I	946
3602	2295	704	Apſander ſucceeds Leocrates in the archonſhip of Athens for 10 years	II	362
3603	2296	703	Corcyra built by the Corinthians	III	240
3604	2297	702	Belibius ſucceeds, after an interregnum of 2 years, in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 3 years	I	946
3607	2300	699	Apronadius ſucceeds Belibius in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 6 years	I	949
3607	2300	699	Dejoces is choſen the firſt real king of Media, (thoſe before this time being only nominal ones) and ſets about reforming abuſes, &c. (Marſhal's tables calls him the ſon of Phraortes, and puts his creation in 710.) He reigned 54 years	II	14
3608	2301	698	Hezekiah, the good king of Judah dies, and is ſucceed by his ſon Manaſſeh, a youth of 12 years old, who reigned 55 years in the moſt wicked infamous manner poſſible	I	839
3609	2302	697	Midas king of Phrygia dies	II	301
3612	2305	694	Eryxias ſucceeds Apſander in the archonſhip of Athens for 10 years	II	369
3613	2306	693	The 26th Egyptian dynaſty of the Saites begins with the reign of Merres, who governed that kingdom 12 years. and ſucceeded Taracus	I	230
3613	2306	693	Rigebelus ſucceeds Apronadius in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned but one year	I	946

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page
3614	2307	697	Meſeſſimordachus ſucceeds Rigebelus in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns four years	I	946
3616	2309	690	Anaxidamus, ſon of Zeuxidamus, ſucceeds his father as one of the two kings of Lacedæmon	II	577
3618	2311	688	Dejoces, king of Media, extended his empire to the river Halys. Uſſher
3618	2311	688	Upon the death of Meſeſſimordachus king of Babylon, follows an interregnum, which laſted 8 years	I	946
3619	2312	687	Gela in Sicily built on a river of the ſame name, by Antiphemus a Rhodian, and Entimus a Cretan, who each of them heading a colony of their countrymen, came and ſettled here	III	11
3619	2312	687	Anaxander, ſon of Eurycrates, ſucceeds his father as one of the two kings of Lacedæmon	II	577
3620	2313	686	Archilochus, the famous inventor of Iambick verſe, a native of Paros, now flouriſhed; he wrote ſo ſatyrically againſt Lycambes, his father-in-law, for taking his daughter from him, that Lycambes hanged himſelf	III	223
3621	2314	685	The Meſſenians rebel againſt the Lacedæmonians which occaſions a ſecond war, which laſted 18 years, in which the Lacedæmonians are beat at Deræ, where Ariſtomenes for his bravery was made general, and offered the kingdom of Meſſenia	I	577
3622	2315	684	The government of Athens is now changed into annual archons, choſe from among the moſt conſiderable of the citizens; the firſt was Creon	II	369
3623	2316	683	The Lacedæmonians are beaten again by the Meſſenians, under their general Ariſtomenes	II	578
3624	2317	682	Lyſias is archon at Athens	II	417
3624	2317	682	The Meſſenians are betray'd by the Arcadians to the Lacedæmonians	II	578
3624	2317	682	The Lacedæmonians conſult the oracle at Delphos about the ſucceſs of the Meſſenian war, and are anſwered, they muſt have an Athenian leader; upon which, applying to Athens, they ſend one Tyrtæus, a ſchool-maſter, who did them mighty ſervice	II	577
3625	2318	681	Stephinates ſucceeds Merres in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 7 years	I	230
3625	2318	681	Ariſtomenes, the Meſſenian general, celebrates a ſecond time the Hecatomphonia, or ſacrifice appointed for thoſe who had killed 100 of the enemy with their own hands; after which he lived to do it a third time	II	580
3626	2319	680	Ardyſus, or Ardyes ſon of Gyges, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigned 49 years; during which time the Cimmerians over-run all Aſia Minor	II	333
3626	2319	680	Aſſaradinus, or Eſarhaddon, (king of Niniveh or Aſſyria) makes himſelf king of Babylon, for the ſpace of 13 years	I	895
3628	2321	678	Argæus ſon of Perdiccas, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Macedonia, and reigns 38 years	III	271
3629	2322	677	Manaſſes, king of Judah, being conquered by Eſarhaddon king of Babylon, is bound with chains, and ſo carried priſoner to Babylon, and caſt into a dungeon	I	840
3629	2322	677	Eſarhaddon tranſplants the remnant of the Iſraelites, and ſupplies their country with ſtrangers; ſo that from this time forward it was no more a kingdom in name or thing	I	896
3630	2323	676	Manaſſes king of Judah returns from his Babyloniſh captivity, and reigns 38 years in Judah, where he wrought a great reformation	I	841
3631	2324	675	Chalcedon, a famous city of Bythinia, built on the Boſphorus which parts Europe from Aſia, and joins the Propontis with the Euxine ſea	III	822
3632	2325	674	Nechepſos ſucceeds Stephinates in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 6 years	I	230
3633	2326	673	Eſarhaddon, king of Babylon, reduces the Ethiopians and Egyptians to be his tributaries	IV	438
3635	2328	671	Leoſtratus archon at Athens	II	417
3637	2330	669	Piſiſtratus archon at Athens	II	417
3638	2331	668	Necho ſucceeds Nechepſos in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 8 years	I	230
3638	2331	668	Eſarhaddon dies, and is ſucceeded in the kingdom of Babylon by his ſon Saoſduchinus, who reigned 20 years	I	897
3638	2331	668	Ira taken by the Lacedæmonians, and Ariſtomenes dies, which puts an end to the war by driving the Meſſenians out of Peloponneſus	II	580
3638	2331	668	Autoſthenes is made archon at Athens	II	517
3638	2331	668	The ſecond Meſſenian war ends, and Ariſtocrates, king of the Arcadians, is ſtoned to death by his people	II	581
3639	2332	667	The Meſſenians being invited by Anaxilas, tyrant of Rhegium, they go into Sicily, ſettle there, and build the famous city of Meſſene, now called Meſſina	II	581
3640	2333	666	Tullus Hoſtilius ſucceeds Numa as king of the Romans (after a ſhort interregnum) and reigned 32 years	IV	438
3642	2335	664	Miltiades archon at Athens	II	417
3642	2335	664	The Meſſenians aſſiſt Anaxilas, and take Zancle, and change its name into Meſſena or Meſſene	III	3
3642	2335	664	A ſea-fight between the Corinthians and Corcyrians, wherein the latter are beat, and the former take the city of Epidamnum	III	280
3642	2335	664	Eurycrates the ſon of naxander, and Archidamus (or Hegiſicles) the ſon of Anaxadimus, ſucceed their father jointly in the kingdom of Lacedæmon	II	582
3643	2336	663	The famous battle between the three Horatii and Curiatii, by which the kingdom of Alba was joined to Rome	IV	442
3643	2336	663	Suffetius, the Alban king, ordered by the Romans to be ty'd to two chariots, and torn to pieces by horſes, for treachery, and all his accomplices to be put to the ſword	IV	443
3644	2337	662	The Romans triumph upon their conquering the Fidenates	IV	443
3 44	23 7	662	Acræ in Sicily built by the Syracuſans upon the mouth of the Eurotas, &c.	III	12
3646	2339	660	Pſammiticus ſucceeds Necho in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 44 years	I	263

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3647	2340	659	Miltiades archon at Athens	II	417
3647	2340	659	Cypselus began to tyrannize at Corinth; he reigned 30 years, (being the first king after the aristocracy)	III	393
3648	2341	658	Byzantium built (by Pausanias, a Spartan captain) in Thrace, now called Constantinople	VI	263
3649	2342	657	Alcmæon and Lesches flourished	III	256
3650	2343	656	Acanthus and Stagira built, (the latter famous for the birth of Hipparchus and Aristotle, who is called the Stagyrite philosopher)	II	324
3651	2344	655	Istrus, Borysthenes, Lampsacus and Abdera built	IV	442
3652	2345	654	The Romans and Sabines make war	II	15
3658	2351	648	Phraortes, son of Dejoces, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Media, and reigns 22 years, during which time he subdued Persia and Asia	I	935
3659	2352	647	Chyniladanus (called also Nebuchadonozor in the scripture) succeeds Saosduchinus in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigns 22 years	II	417
3661	2354	645	Dropilus made archon of Athens	I	841
3661	2354	645	Terpander wrote	I	841
3663	2356	643	Ammon, the son of Manasses, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Judah, and reigned 2 years. (He was an idolater.)	III	271
3665	2358	641	Ammon king of Judah killed by his servants, and was succeeded by his son Josiah, (but 8 years old) who reigned 31 years, and was the best king ever Judah had	II	577
3666	2359	640	Philip, son of Argæus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigned 38 years	II	417
3666	2359	640	Tyrtæus, the lame Athenian school-master flourished	II	434
3667	2360	639	Damasias chose archon of Athens	I	898
3668	2361	638	Thales, the prince of the Ionic philosophers, born, &c.	I	901
3670	2363	636	Chyniladan (or Nebucdadonosor) conquers and kills Arphaxad king of Media, and makes his kingdom tributary	IV	444
3670	2363	636	Holofernes, the chief general of Nebuchadonosor (Chyniladan) besieges Bethulia with a prodigious army, is charmed by the beauty, &c. of Judith; she cuts off his head, his army flies and is plundered, &c.	IV	445
3673	2366	633	Tullus Hostilius, king of the Romans, and all his family, is destroyed by lightning, upon which a short interregnum follows, and then the senate chose Ancus Marcus, grandson of Numa by his daughter Pompilia, king, who reigned 24 years in Rome	III	725
3673	2366	633	Aneus wars with the Sabines, takes Politorium, and lays it waste	I	846
3674	2367	632	Sinope and Lipara built, (famous Greek cities on the coast of Paphlagonia	III	215
3675	2368	631	Jeremiah began to propiesy	II	334
3675	2368	631	Battus, son of Polymnestes, founded and built the city and kingdom of Cyrene, and reigned 40 years	I	843
3675	2368	631	Sadyattes, the son of Ardysus, succeeds his father in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigns 15 years	IV	445
3676	2369	630	Josiah, king of Judah, begins a reformation in Judah and Jerusalem	II	393
3676	2369	630	Zephaniah began to prophesy	III	254
3677	2370	629	Prusias in Bythinia built	I	947
3677	2370	629	Periander succeeds Cypselus in the kingdom of Corinth, and reigns 40 years	IV	445
3679	2372	627	Epidamnis (or Dyrrachium) built, and the Megarians send a colony into Sicily	IV	447
3680	2373	626	Nabopolassar succeeds Chyniladanus in the kingdom of Babylon, (or Chaldæa) and reigns 21 years; during which time he transferred the kingdom of Assyria to Babylon	II	16
3680	2373	626	The Fidenates and Sabines rebel against the Romans	II	421
3680	2373	626	Lucumo Tarquin (called Priscus) an Etrurian, got a command among the Romans, and did great service against the Latins	I	843
3681	2374	625	Cyaxares succeeds his father Phraortes in the kingdom of Media, and reigns 40 years: He conquered all above the river Halys, and destroyed Niniveh	I	844
3682	2375	624	Draco (the bloody law-giver) is chose archon at Athens, and publishes his laws, which he called Sanctions	IV	445
3683	2376	623	Hilkiah, the high-priest of the Jews, finds a true copy of the original book of the law, as they were repairing and purging the temple	VII	391
3683	2376	623	All Israel kept the passover, and utterly destroyed idolatry	IV	445
3684	2377	622	The Veientes conquered by the Romans	IV	446
3684	2377	622	The Gauls, (under Ballovesus, nephew of Ambigatus king of Celtgallia) crossed the Rhosne and the Alps, and settled themselves in that spot of Italy now called Piedmont and Lombardy, then inhabited by the Hetrurians	IV	446
3686	2379	620	Hilkiah the high-priest of the Jews dies, and is succeeded in that office by his son Azariah III.	III	190
3686	2379	620	The Veientes conquered by the Romans again	I	264
3686	2379	620	The city of Ostia (a sea-port) built by the Romans	II	417
3687	2380	619	Tarquin made a patrician and a senator, as a reward for his bravery against the Veientes	I	845
3690	2383	616	The Samians hinder the Corinthians from carrying away 300 youth of the principal families of the Corcyrians to be made eunuchs
3690	2383	616	Necho, son of Psammiticus, (called in scripture Pharoah-Necho) succeeds his father in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigned 16 years
3691	2384	615	Heniochides chose archon at Athens
3692	2385	614	Panætius was the first tyrant (or absolute prince) in Sicily
3696	2389	610	Pharaoh-Necho, king of Egypt, goes against the king of Assyria, to besiege Carchemish, a city upon the banks of the river Euphrates
3696	2389	610	As Pharaoh-Necho was going against the king of Assyria, in his march through Palestine, Josiah king of Judah rashly opposes him, and is slain in battle, upon which the people set up his son Shallum (or Jehoahaz) who after a reign of three

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			three months, is carried away priſoner to Egypt by Pharaoh-Necho, who ſet up his elder brother Eliakim (or Jehoiakim) who reigned 11 years —	I	845
3697	2390	609	Lucumo Tarquin, the Greek, who fled from Corinth to ſave his wealth and his life, took ſhelter at Rome, is choſe to ſucceed Ancus (now dead) as king of the Romans, whom he governed 38 years — — —	IV	447
3697	2390	609	The Romans conquer the Apiolani, and build the Circus for the Roman games —	IV	447
3697	2390	609	Habakkuk propheſied the Jewiſh captivity — —	I	847
3697	2390	609	Jeremiah propheſies the Jewiſh captivity, and likewiſe Uriah, whom king Jehoiakim puts to death — —	I	846
3698	2391	608	Tarquin having overthrown the Hetrurians, &c. Rome, being now at peace, ſets about beautifying, cleanſing, and fortifying Rome, by building the walls with hewn ſtone, the famous aquaducts, &c. —	IV	449
3699	2392	607	Nebuchadnezzar drives the Egyptians home, and beſieges and takes Jeruſalem, &c. — — —	I	848
3700	2393	606	Jehoiakim burns the roll of the prophecy wrote by Baruck from the mouth of Jeremiah — — —	I	847
3700	2393	606	Nebuchadnezzar puts Jehoiakim king of Judah in irons, but ſoon releaſes him, and leaves him king under tribute, takes away Daniel and many others to Babylon: This begins the ſeventy years captivity foretold by Jeremiah the prophet — — —	I	848
3700	2393	606	Pittacus, the Mytilenæan commander, kills Phrynon the Athenian commander, in ſingle combat — — —	II	422
3701	2394	605	Ariſtocles archon at Athens — —	II	417
3702	2395	604	Critias I. made archon at Athens — —	II	417
3702	2395	604	Nabocolaſor (in ſcripture Nebuchadnezzar) becomes king of Babylon, and reigns 43 years — — —	I	948
3703	2396	603	Daniel interprets king Nebuchadnezzar's dream, is made governor of the whole province of Babylon, &c. — —	I	951
3703	2396	603	Jehoiakim, king of Judah, depending upon aſſiſtance from Egypt, rebels againſt Nebuchadnezzar, who ſends a great army againſt him, overthrows him, kills him, &c. — — —	I	848
3704	2397	602	Sappho (the famous poeteſs, the inventreſs of the Sapphick verſe) now flouriſhed	III	204
3704	2397	602	Æropas, ſon of Philip, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 26 years — — —	III	271
3705	2398	601	The Medes and Lydians being at war, while they were engaged in a battle very furiouſly together, happens an eclipſe of the ſun and parts them. —	II	18
3706	2399	600	Cylon, and his companions are killed in an attempt of aſpiring to the government of Athens — — —	II	422
3706	2399	600	Pſammis ſucceeds his father Nechus in the throne of Egypt, and reigned 6 years	I	265
3706	2399	600	Nebuchadnezzar's army over-runs and deſtroys all Judah, and takes Jeruſalem	I	848
3706	2399	600	Azariah the high-prieſt of the Jews dies, and is ſucceeded in that office by his ſon Seraia — — —
3707	2400	599	Mordecai, queen Eſther's uncle, and Ezekiel carried into captivity —	I	848
3707	2400	599	Jehoiakim king of Judah taken, and killed by Nebuchadnezzar, who buries him with the burying of an aſs, as propheſied by Jeremiah, &c. Nebuchadnezzar ſets up his ſon Jehoiachim (called alſo Conias, or Jeconias) king in his ſtead; but after a reign of three months and 10 days, Nebuchadnezzar takes him and all Jeruſalem captive to Babylon, and ſets up his uncle Mattaniah king in his ſtead, and changed his name into Zedechiah, who reigned tributary to Nebuchadnezzar 11 years — — —	I	848
3707	2400	599	Cyrus, the ſon of Cambyſes king of Perſia, and of Mandane daughter of Aſtyages king of Media, born. (He was ſirnamed Cyrus the Great) —	II	88
3707	2400	599	The Romans, under king Tarquin, conquer the Fidenæ and the Camerini —	IV	448
3708	2401	598	The Romans entirely conquer the Latins — —	IV	449
3709	2402	597	The Sabines and Romans make a drawn battle — —	IV	449
3709	2402	597	Camarina (a famous city in Sicily) built by the Syracuſans —	III	12
3709	2402	597	Anaxandrides and Ariſton jointly reign in Lacedæmon — —	II	582
3709	2402	597	The Sabines defeated, beg a truce of 6 years, which is granted —	IV	449
3711	2404	595	The deſtruction of Babylon by the Medes and Perſians, and the reſtoration of Iſrael foretold by Jeremiah the prophet, Ch. L. LI. and Baruch in captivity read his book, and Ezekiel being in captivity, had his firſt viſion — —	I	846
3711	2404	595	Epimenides the Phetian is ſent for to Athens from Crete, to expiate the Athenians, &c. — — —	II	423
3711	2404	595	Philombrotus archon at Athens — —	II	417
3712	2405	594	Apries (the Pharoah-Hophra of ſcripture) ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Egypt — — —	I	267
3712	2405	594	Solon, the wiſe law-giver, archon at Athens — —	II	417
3714	2407	592	Eucrates archon at Athens — —	II	417
3714	2407	592	Anacharſis having vowed to introduce the worſhip of the mother of the Gads among the Scythians, is ſlain in the midſt of his ceremonial performance —	II	285
3715	2408	591	Zedechiah, king of Judah rebelling, Nebuchadnezzar went up againſt Judea, lays all the country waſte, and comes up againſt Jeruſalem — —	I	849
3715	2408	591	Archeſilaus ſucceeds Battus in the kingdom of Cyrene, and reigns 16 years —	III	215
3716	2409	590	About the middle of winter Nebuchadnezzar begins the ſiege of Jeruſalem in form —	I	849
3717	2410	589	Jeruſalem cloſely beſieged for 360 days; from hence the 70 years of indignation, mentioned Zech. I, 12. VII. 5. are ſuppoſed to commence —	I	848
3717	2410	589	Pſammitichus ſucceeds Periander in the government of Corinth for 3 years —
3717	2410	589	Jeremiah being in priſon, has his own deliverance revealed to him by God. Jer. xxxix. 15. 18. — — —	I	849

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3718	2411	588	Jeremiah carried captive as far as Ramah, is there releaſed by Nebuchadnezzar, upon which he returns home, (and, 'tis ſuppoſed, wrote the two books of the Kings)
3718	2411	588	The famine prevailing, Jeruſalem is broken up by Nebuchadnezzar, upon which king Zedekiah flies, but is purſued and taken, and his ſons firſt ſlain in his preſence, then his own eyes are put out, and afterwards he is carried in chains captive to Babylon: On the third day after the taking and plundering the city, by Nebuzar-adan Nebuchadnezzar's general, being the 10th of the 4th month, (our 27 Auguſt) the temple, palace, and whole city was burnt to the ground, &c. the walls and fortifications all demoliſhed, and the people carried away captive: Such was the dreadful end of that glorious kingdom, and of the Iſraelitiſh monarchs, after it had ſtood 468 years from the beginning of David's reign, 388 from the revolt of the 10 tribes, and 134 from the exciſion of the Iſraelitiſh commonwealth	I	850
3718	2411	588	Seraia, the Jewiſh high-prieſt, killed at Riblah by Nebuchadnezzar, and his ſon Jozadek carried captive to Babylon	I	850
3718	2411	588	Nebuzar-adan leaves Gedaliah governor of Judah, with the power of life and death, who, about three months after was treacherouſly killed by one Iſhmael, &c.	I	851
3719	2412	587	Obed propheſied againſt the Edomites
3720	2413	586	The Pythia (or games in honour of Apollo) exhibited at Delphos, where the victors were crowned with oak leaves	II	382
3722	2415	584	Aſtyages (called in ſcripture Ahaſuerus) the ſon of Cyaxeres, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Media, and reigns 35 years	II	20
3722	2415	584	Nebuchadnezzar beſieging Tyre, was the laſt carrying away of the Jews by Nebuzar-adan, the Babyloniſh general	I	955
3724	2417	582	The victors at the Pythian games are now firſt crowned with laurel, from whence ſome call this the firſt Pythias	II	382
3724	2417	582	The Iſthmean games now reſtored, (firſt inſtituted by Theſeus at Corinth in honour of Neptune;) the victors were crowned with pine leaves	II	366
3724	2417	582	Damaſcas archon at Athens	II	417
3730	2423	576	Alcetas, the ſon of Æropas, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 29 years	III	271
3731	2424	575	Battus II. ſucceeds Arceſilaus in the kingdom of Cyrene, and reigns 21 years	III	215
3734	2427	572	Phalaris, the cruel tyrant of Agrigentum, begun his 16 years reign	III	128
3734	2427	572	Tyre, after 13 years ſiege, yields to Nebuchadnezzar. Ezek. xxix. 18.	I	955
3734	2427	572	Tarquin, king of Rome, treacherouſly murdered, and ſucceeded by his ſon-in law Servius Tullius, who reigned 44 years	IV	455
3735	2428	571	The Jews in Egypt carried to Babylon	I	956
3735	2428	571	Servius Tullius defeats the Veientes, &c. for which he has a triumph, and is legally elected king by the Curiæ	IV	454
3735	2428	571	Apries, king of Egypt, is drove out of his kingdom by Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon	I	956
3736	2429	570	Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the great tree, &c. and Daniel's interpretation, &c.	I	962
3736	2429	570	Servius a ſecond time defeats the Hetrurians, and has a ſecond triumph, and then enlarges the city of Romé, &c.	IV	455
3736	2429	570	Ariſtomenes made archon at Athens	II	417
3737	2430	569	Apries king of Egypt gives battle to Amaſis, Viceroy of Nebuchadnezzar, but is defeated, taken priſoner and ſtrangled, and Amaſis reigned 44 years as king of Egypt	I	956
3737	2430	569	Nebuchadnezzar becomes mad, and is driven out of his kingdom for ſeven years	I	963
3739	2432	567	The Nemean games renewed
3744	2437	562	Nebuchadnezzar throws his ſon Evil-merodach into priſon, for male adminiſtration during his illneſs	I	964
3744	2437	562	Cræſus, ſon of Hallyattes, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Lydia, and reigned 14 years	II	334
3744	2437	562	Nebuchadnezzar is reſtored to his ſenſes	I	964
3744	2437	562	The firſt comedy at Athens made by Suſarion, and acted upon a moveable ſcaffold
3745	2438	561	Iloardudamus (called in ſcripture Evil-merodach) becomes king of Babylon, and reigns 2 years, when he is murdered by Nerigliſſar (his ſiſter's huſband) who ſucceeds him in the kingdom	I	965
3745	2438	561	Comias made archon at Athens. During his reign, Piſiſtratus ſet up his tyranny or abſolute government in Athens	II	417
3745	2438	561	Evil-merodach prefers Jeconiah king of Judah above all his captive kings	I	966
3745	2438	561	The prophet Daniel obtains great favour in the eyes of Nebuchadnezzar	I	951
3745	2438	561	Æſop the famous fabuliſt dies
3746	2439	560	Piſiſtratus, Solon's kinſman, having obtained a guard for his private perſon, ſeizes the citadel of Athens, and turns the commonwealth into a kingdom, reigning alone under the name of a tyrant, (though a very good prince)	II	446
3746	2439	560	Theſpis the Athenian poet, the inventor of tragedy, about this time introduced it into Athens, together with the uſe of maſks or painted faces, &c.	II	446
3746	2439	560	Servius Tullius having ſpent his time in regulating the kingdom by good laws, &c. eſtabliſhed a Cenſus (or valuation of each man's eſtate to be taken, and the poſſeſſors to be eſteemed of ſuch and ſuch a rank, in proportion to the value thereof,) every five years, at which time a ſolemn luſtration, or expiatory ſacrifice for all the people, was performed: From this inſtitution the Romans computed time, making this firſt an Æra to reckon from. Servius is ſuppoſed to coin the firſt money in Rome with the figures of the animals that were then ſacrificed upon it	IV II	457 417
3746	2439	560	Hegeſtratus made archon at Athens

Y. of world	Y. of Rhod.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3746	2439	560	Cyrus (ſon of Cambyſes, by Mandane daughter of Aſtyages) began to reign over Perſia,	II	82
			Solon dies, aged 79 years.	II	448
3747	2440	559	Niricaſſolaſſarus ſucceeds Evil-merodach in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 4 years.	I	935
3747	2440	559	Servius Tullius makes a law to form a fourth tribe among the Romans, and abridges the royal power, by giving the judgment of all common matters to the ſenate, and reſerving only ſtate crimes to the crown.	IV	457
	2442	557	Simonides born.	III	217
3749	2443	556	Phalaris kill'd by the Agrigentines, for his extraordinary cruelty and tyranny.
3750	2443	556	Euthydemus made archon at Athens.	III	128
3750	2443	556	Chilo, one of the ſeven wiſe men of Greece, was Ephorus.	II	417
3750	2443	556	Laboroſoarchod, ſon of Niricaſſolaſſarus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 9 months.	I	935
3751	2444	555	Daniel has the viſion of the four monarchies.	I	958
3751	2444	555	Nabonadius (in ſcripture called Belſhazzar) ſucceeds Laboroſoarchod in the kingdom of Babylon, and reigned 17 years.	I	935
			Arceſilaus II. becomes king of Cyrene, and reigns 4 years.	III	215
3752	2445	554	Barce (a ſea port of Cyrenaica) built by the brothers of Arceſilaus king of Cyrene.	VII	151
3752	2445	554	Daniel ſees the viſion of the Perſian and Grecian monarchies.	I	958
3753	2446	553	Confucius born.
3755	2448	551	Battus III. ſucceeds in the kingdom of Cyrene, and reigns 24 years.	III	215
3756	2449	550	Cyaxares II. ſon of Aſtyages, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Media, and
3757	2450	549	reigns 24 years. (In ſcripture called Darius the Mede. Dan. ix.).	II	16
3758	2451	548	Cræſus paſſing the river Halys upon a bridge built by Thales, is taken by Cyrus at Sardis, who carried him away captive, put an end to the kingdom of Lydia, after it had ſtood 248 years under the government of 9 kings, and made it a province of Perſia.	II	336
3758	2451	548	Thales dies, aged 90 years, and is ſucceeded in his ſchool by Anaximander.	I	18
3759	2452	547	Amyntas, ſon of Alcetus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 53 years.	III	271
			Anaximander dies, aged 64 years, and is ſucceeded by Anaximenes in his ſchool.	I	19
3759	2452	547	The Medes go againſt the Ionians.	II	109
3761	2454	545	The united fleets of the Carthaginians and Etruſcans engage the Phocæans in the
3768	2456	543	Sardinian ſea, and ſink or diſable their whole fleet, upon which the Phocæans are obliged to quit the iſland of Cyrnus (now Corſica) to the Carthaginians and Etruſcans.	VI	724
3768	2461	538	Daniel interprets the hand-writing upon the wall to Belſhazzar, and is promoted to be the chief of the three princes over the whole kingdom of Babylon.	I	971
3768	2461	538	Daniel is caſt into the lion's den, but is preſerved, and ſees the viſion of the 70 weeks, &c.	I	972
3768	2461	538	Cyrus takes Babylon and kills Belſhazzar; Darius (or Cyaxares) becomes king of Babylon for 2 years.	II	92
3769	2462	537	Machæus, the Carthaginian general, gains great advantages for his countrymen over the Africans.	VI	713
3770	2463	536	Cyrus makes a decree, and ſends Zerubabel (or the ſupreme judge over all that returned) of the ſeed of David, and the high-prieſt Jeſhua, with a great number of Jews to Jeruſalem, with authority to rebuild the temple, and to have the free exerciſe of their religion.	II	94
			Athenæus made archon at Athens.	II	417
3770	2463	536	The firſt great monarchy of Babylon diſſolved, after it had ſtood 210 years under
3770	2463	536	21 kings and two interregnums.	II	92
			Cyaxares (or Darius the Mede) dies, and is ſucceeded by Cyrus, whoſe father, Cambyſes king of Perſia, dying likewiſe, he unites the two kingdoms, and forms the ſecond great monarchy, under the name of the Perſian monarchy, over which he reigned 7 years.	II	93
3770	2463	536	Machæus, the Carthaginian general, reduces a great part of the iſland of Sicily to the obedience of Carthage.	VI	724
3771	2464	535	The foundation of the new temple at Jeruſalem is laid, and Jeſhua the ſon of Jozadek made high-prieſt: The Cuthim offer to aſſiſt in building, but being refus'd, get a ſtop to be put to it.	II	94
3771	2464	535	The plague makes dreadful havock at Carthage, whereupon the Carthaginians ſacrifice their children to appeaſe the Gods.	VI	725
3772	2465	534	Daniel ſees his laſt viſion, as recorded in the X. XI. and XII. chapters of the book of Daniel	II	93
3774	2467	532	Polycrates and his brother Pantagrotus tyrants together at Samos, but Polycrates ſoon reigns alone.	III	190
3776	2469	530	Machæus, with the Carthaginian army, leaves Sicily, and invades Sardinia, where he is defeated and half his army deſtroyed, upon which the ſenate baniſhes the general and the remainder of his army, who revenge themſelves by beſieging Carthage, and crucifying Cartalo, the ſon of Machæus; and after the ſurrender of the city, they put 10 ſenators to death, and ſo re-eſtabliſh the publick peace.	VI	726
3777	2470	529	Cambyſes (in ſcripture alſo called Ahaſuerus) ſon of Cyrus, ſucceeds his father in the united kingdoms of Perſia and Media, or the 2d great monarchy, and reigns about 8 years.	II	92
3777	2470	529	Tarquin (ſirnamed the proud) ſon-in-law to Servius king of the Romans, conſpires againſt his father and murders him, aſcends the throne, and reigns very arbitrarily and cruelly 25 years.	IV	458
3778	2471	528	Piſiſtratus the tyrant of Athens dies, after 33 years reign, though twice interrupted, and is ſucceeded by his ſons Hipparchus and Hippias.	II	453

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3780	2473	526	Arceſilaus III. ſucceeds Battus III. in the kingdom of Cyrene, but after one year's reign he yields his kingdom to Cambyſes king of Perſia.
3781	2474	525	Pſammenitus ſucceeds his father Amaſis in the kingdom of Egypt, but after a reign of ſix months is conquered by Cambyſes king of Perſia, and the whole country becomes tributary to Cambyſes.	II	93
3782	2475	524	Cambyſes king of Perſia marches with a great army againſt Ethiopia, and is ſo diſtreſſed for food, that every tenth man in his army is ſlain by lot to feed the other nine. On his return to Thebes he cauſed all the temples to be pillaged and burnt to the ground; there was 300 talents of gold and 2300 talents of ſilver ſaved out of the flames; he likewiſe carried away the famous gold circle that encompaſſed the tomb of king Ozymandyas, which was 365 cubits in circumference, and had upon it the repreſentation of the motions of the ſeveral conſtellations, &c.	II	96
3782	2475	524	Cambyſes firſt marries, and then murders his own ſiſter Meroe, by kicking her on the belly while great with child	II	97
3783	2476	523	Polycrates, tyrant of Samos, is treacherouſly murdered by Oroetes the Perſian governor of Sardis (under Cyrus) at Sardis; upon hearing whereof Meandrus, ſecretary to Polycrates, ſets himſelf up for his ſucceſſor, and being eſtabliſh'd in the ſupreme power, offers to reſtore the Samians to their former liberty, &c.	II	98
3783	2476	523	Machæus the Carthaginian general endeavours to overturn the government of Carthage, and introduce arbitrary power, for which he was put to death, and ſucceeded in the generalſhip by Mago.	III	195
3783	2476	523	Cambyſes king of Perſia orders his brother Smerdis to be murdered, for fear he ſhould, during his abſence, take the kingdom from him.	VI	714
3784	2477	522	Cambyſes king of Perſia dies, and is ſucceeded by Smerdis, brother of Patizithes, who being perſonally like Smerdis the ſon of Cyrus and brother of Cambyſes pretended to be the real perſon, and ſo got himſelf eſtabliſhed in the empire, and reigned about 8 months	II	98
3784	2477	522	Darius ſon of Hyſtaſpis, a noble Perſian of the royal family of Achæmenes, governor of the province of Perſia, with 7 other lords, conſpire againſt and murder the impoſtor Smerdis, the then reigning Perſian monarch, and is choſen king in his ſtead: To ſtrengthen his intereſt he married Atoſſa and Artyſtona, the two daughters of Cyrus; alſo Parmys the daughter of Smerdis the real ſon of Cyrus, (who was murdered by order of his brother Cambyſes) and Phedyma the daughter of Otanes, (one of the ſeven lords who aſſiſted Darius, and who detected Smerdis the impoſtor.) He reigned 36 years.	II	100
3786	2479	520	Arceſilaus III. king of Cyrene, revolts from Perſia, but being purſued to Barce was killed there; upon which his mother Pheretyme, getting an army in Egypt, returns to Cyrene, and reigned there 6 years.	II	103
3788	2481	518	Darius, king of Perſia, makes a decree to enable the Jews to go on with rebuilding the temple at Jeruſalem.	VII	173
3789	2482	517	The Babylonians revolt from Darius king of Perſia, upon which Darius comes with a great army and beſieges Babylon; the Babylonians to make their proviſions hold out, collect the women, old men, and children, and ſtrangle them without diſtinction.	IV	10
3790	2483	516	The temple of Jeruſalem finiſhed by Zerubabel, the civil governor under Darius, king of Perſia, and Jehu the high-prieſt, in the month Adar, anſwering in part to our February	II	105
3791	2484	515	Darius king of Perſia puts away his wife Vaſhti, and promotes Eſther, a Jeweſs, to be queen in her ſtead	IV	10
3791	2484	515	Darius takes Babylon, by the aſſiſtance and artifice of Zopyrus, one of his chief commanders, and broke down the walls that were 200 cubits high to 50 cubits high	IV	11
3792	2485	514	Pheretyme dying in Egypt, is ſucceeded by Battus IV. in the kingdom of Cyrene, where he reigned 48 years	II	105
3793	2486	513	Hipparchus, one of the tyrants of Athens, is killed by Harmodius and Ariſtogiton; and then Hippias reigned alone in ſo cruel a manner, that the people expelled him in three years afterwards	VII	173
3796	2489	510	Cleomenes and Demaratus jointly reign kings in Lacedæmon	II	453
3797	2490	509	Haman, an Amalekite, having got into favour at Darius's court, out of ſpite to Mordecai, queen Eſther's uncle, he gets an order to deſtroy all the Jews on the 13th of the month Adar; but Eſther petitions the king, and gets an order for the Jews to kill all their enemies, on that and the following days, throughout all the provinces of his vaſt dominions, upon which Haman was hang'd, &c. In memory of this deliverance the Jews keep the feaſt of Purim to this day, on the 13th and 14th days of Adar	II	558
3797	2490	509	The tyrant Hippias flies from Athens to Darius king of Perſia	IV	12
3797	2490	509	In the bloody war between the Crotonians and Sybarites, Milo, the general of the Crotonians, conquers 300,000 Sybarites with 100,000 Crotonians; upon which Milo deſtroys Sybaris, &c. This Milo was the diſciple of Pythagoras, and had been ſix times victor in the Olympic games, and often in others. (See note E.)	III	275
3798	2491	508	The Carthaginians and Romans make a league of amity together for the firſt time	II	492
3800	2493	506	Pythagoras the famous philoſopher died. (Note O)	VI	714
3800	2493	506	Tarquin, king of the Romans, buys the Sibyline books, and appoints two perſons, called the Duumviri, to be their guardians, and orders them to be lock'd up in a vault under the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, (the moſt magnificent and expenſive building that ever was erected) where they remain'd till they and the temple were burnt together	IV	194
3800	2493	506	Upon a raging plague breaking out at Rome, Tarquin ſends his two ſons to conſult the oracle at Delphos, who being ask'd, who ſhould be prince of Rome, anſwer'd, he that firſt kiſs'd his moth[illegible]	IV	463

[illegible] explained

Y. of world	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			plained myſtically, by falling down upon the ground as ſoon as he came within the limits of Italy and kiſs'd the earth, the common parent of mankind.	IV	464
3501	2494	505	Tarquin, king of the Romans, having raviſhed Lucretia, the wife of Collatinus, ſhe aſſembles her father, &c. tells them what had happened, and then ſtabs herſelf; upon which Junius Brutus aſſembles the ſenate, inveighs bitterly againſt Tarquin, &c. ſo that the ſenate and people deprived Tarquin of the crown, baniſhed him and all his family for ever, and diſſolved the regal government, and turned it into a commonwealth under the management of two annual conſuls, &c., the firſt whereof were Junius Brutus and Tarquinius Collatinus, &c.	IV	466
3802	2495	504	Collatinus is obliged to reſign the conſulſhip with ſhame, and Publius Valerius is choſe in his ſtead.	IV	471
3802	2495	504	Tarquin raiſes the Veientes, &c. and comes againſt Rome: The conſuls command the Roman army; Brutus is ſlain, but Valerius comes off conqueror.	IV	472
3802	2495	504	Valerius ſummons the people, and they chuſe Sp. Lucertius his colleague; but he dying in a few days, Valerius reigns alone, and from his love to the real intereſt of his country was called Poplicola or Popular.	IV	473
3803	2496	503	Poplicola and T. Lucretius choſe conſuls; they revive the Cenſus and Luſtrum, and find 130,000 men in Rome paſt the age of puberty.	IV	473
3803	2496	503	Naxus, the famous and fruitful city of the Cyclades in Sicily, beſieged by Ariſtagoras, governor of Miletus in Ionia, aſſiſted with 200 ſhips and a conſiderable army of land forces from Darius king of Perſia; but after four months the ſiege was raiſed, &c. by their being forwarned of the deſign, by Megabates the Perſian general, out of pique to Ariſtagoras, with whom he had quarrelled.	III	221
3804	2497	502	Hiſtæus, tyrant of Miletus in Ionia, perſuades Ariſtagoras to revolt from Darius, which he does, and gets many of the Greeks on his ſide.	III	221
3804	2497	502	Porſena, king of Cluſium, at the head of a great multitude of Hetrurians, eſpouſes Tarquin's cauſe, which defeat and intimidate the Romans for a while; but by the bravery of Horatius Cocles the Romans were ſupported, and by means of Mutius Scævola's extraordinary courage a peace is made, and the Tarquins rejected by Porſenna, &c.	IV	476
3805	2498	501	Spurius Lartius and T. Herminius choſe conſuls at Rome for this year	IV	477
3806	2499	500	M. Valerius and P. Poſthumius being conſuls, twice defeat the Sabines, who invaded the Roman territories, for which they were decreed a triumph, and extraordinary honours and privileges	IV	477
3806	2499	500	Gorgus, brother of Oneſilus, being king of Salamis in Cyprus, Oneſilus raiſes a party, drives out Gorgus, and ſhakes off the Perſian yoke	III	477
3807	2500	499	Zeno Eleates, the famous Athenian philoſopher, born at Pergamus, now flouriſhed and taught the doctrine of Xenophanes, viz. That God and the world is one and the ſame thing, &c.	I	6
3807	2500	499	Poplicola being the 4th time conſul of Rome, the Sabines reſolve to renew the war; upon which Attius Clauſius, the greateſt man in all Sabinia, with 5000 familie, comes over to the Romans, and changes his name for Appius Claudius: Poplicola engages and entirely routs the Sabines, is honoured with a triumph, and dies, &c.	IV	478
3808	2501	498	Ariſtagoras, the Ionian, killed in Thrace, by the Perſians in battle, from whom he had perſuaded the Ionians to revolt	II	110
3808	2501	498	The Sabines again attack the Romans, and are entirely defeated by Menenius the conſul, for which he is granted a triumph, and his colleague Poſthumius an ovation	IV	479
3809	2502	497	Hiſtiæus, the Ionian, crucify'd at Sardis by Artaphernes, general of the Perſian army under Darius king of Perſia	II	111
3809	2502	497	Hippocrates began his tyranny at Gela,	III	15
3809	2502	497	The Sabines being troubleſome, the new conſul Caſſius Ucellinus overthrows them in a pitch'd battle, kills 10,000 upon the ſpot, upon which they ſue for peace, which is granted them upon condition of their paying great ſums of money, and furniſhing large quantities of corn, and yielding up 10,000 acres of arable land.	IV	479
3809	2502	497	Alexander, the ſon of Amyntas, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigned 43 years	III	271
3810	2503	496	The conſpiracy of the Tarquins to murder the ſenators, and eſtabliſh themſelves upon the Roman throne again, is diſcovered by Publius and Marcus, upon which the conſpirators were taken aud put to death, &c.	IV	481
3811	2504	425	Darius, king of Perſia, firſt reduces the Greek iſlands under his dominions, and lays a tribute on all the provinces, (Eſther X) which before only paid a free gift.	III	197
3812	2055	494	Mardonius, the Perſian general, loſes 300 ſhips about mount Athos, and more than 20,000 men, by a violent ſtorm that drove about half his fleet on ſhore, &c.	III	275
3813	2506	493	The dignity of dictator, or abſolute governor in the Roman commonwealth for ſix months, is created, and Lartius the conſul is made the firſt dictator, who promoted Sp. Caſſius general of the horſe, or ſecond man in the government, which office died with the dictatorſhip	IV	482
3813	2509	493	Lartius the dictator, having made a truce with the Latins for a year, lays down the dictatorſhip before the expiration of the time appointed for the continuance of that office.	IV	482
3814	2507	492	Poſthamius, the Roman conſul, being made dictator goes againſt and engages the Latins, kills 33,000 men, and their three generals, and ſo ended the war entered into to reſettle Tarquin on the Romans throne, who hereupon retired to Cumæ, and died there in the 90th year of his age and 14th of his exile.	IV	484
3815	2508	491	Hybrilides made archon (or Judge) at Athens this year	II	453
3815	2508	491	Cleomenes, joint king of Sparta, thruſts out his colleague Demaratus, and Leotychides ſucceeds and reigns with Leonidas	II	558
3815	2508	491	Cleomenes, joint king of Sparta, kills himſelf, and is ſucceeded by Leonida, the ſecond ſon of Anaxandrides	II	558

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Pag.
3815	2508	491	The Romans make a law, that all persons entring themselves into the army should be free from all prosecutions for debt, upon which the army under P. Servilius the consul becomes very numerous, with which he engages the Volsci and defeats them entirely; whereupon demanding a triumph, he is denied it, but gives himself one by force of arms.
3815	2508	591	Miltiades, the Athenian general, with only 10,000 men overcomes the Persian general Datis, with 100,000 foot and 10,000 horse, in the plains of Marathon, killing vast numbers, and driving the rest on board their ships, many of which he also burnt and destroyed.	IV	486
3816	2509	490	The book of Esther is now supposed to be wrote by Mordecai, uncle to Esther the Jewess, queen of Persia instead of Vashti, who was put away for disobedience.	II	112
3816	2509	490	Pausanias, king of Sparta, conspires with Artabazus the Persian general to make himself sovereign of all Greece, for which the allies deprive him of his command of the allied army, and even besiege him in Byzantium, from whence flying to Heraclea he returned to Sparta, where the Ephori try him, but pass him by for a time; but continuing his male practices, and being pursued, flew into the temple of Minerva Chalcidica, where he was starved to death	II	593
3816	2509	490	Manius Valerius, brother of Poplicola, is chose dictator of Rome; by whose wise management the publick dissentions between the people and patricians were appeased, and all the foreign enemies of Rome subdued; for which he was decreed a triumph.	IV	848
3816	2509	490	The city of Eretria in Eubœa being treacherously delivered into the hands of the Persians, was by them first pillaged, then burnt, and the inhabitants sold for slaves	II	460
3817	2510	489	Leotychides, king of Sparta, takes bribes of the Thessalians, professed enemies of his country; but being detected, he flies to Tegea, and dies there in exile	II	594
3817	2510	489	Valerius lays down the dictatorship, and the Roman people rise in arms upon account of the law of indemnity from debt, not being confirmed, &c.	IV	490
3817	2510	489	Mago, having thoroughly introduced a strict military discipline into the Carthaginian troops, and behaved in an unexceptionable manner in all his great posts and employments, dies, and is succeeded in his honours and estates by his two sons Asdrubal and Hamilcar	VI	714
3817	2510	489	The Carthaginians endeavour to free themselves from paying an annual tribute to the Africans for the ground whereon their city of Carthage stood, are beat by the Africans, and the tribute fixed more firmly than before	VI	728
3818	2511	488	The Roman senate agrees to pass the law of indemnity from debt, and choose five officers out of the people, or plebeians, called them tribunes, whose office was to examine and disannul all laws pass'd by the senate that were injurious to the people; upon which the people return to their duty, &c.	IV	492
3818	2511	488	Miltiades (one of the ten Athenian generals) going against the Persians, miscarries; at his return to Athens he is tryed, and condemned to pay fifty talents, (the whole charge of the expedition; but not being able to pay, is cast into prison, &c.	II	465
3818	2511	488	Darius king of Persia sends ambassadors to Carthage, to desire those people to abstain from human sacrifices, and the eating of dogs flesh, to burn their dead and not to bury them, and to furnish him with a body of auxiliary troops against the Greeks; all which they comply'd with, except the last	VI	728
3819	2512	487	Cominius the Roman consul honours Caius Martius with the firname of Coriolanus, for his taking Corioli, the metropolis of the Volsci, and being greatly instrumental in defeating the armies of the Volscians and Antiates; this consulship ended with a census and lustrum, when it appeared there were but 100,000 men in Rome fit to bear arms	IV	493
3820	2513	486	A great famine in Rome breeds a civil dissention, upon which the Antiates make incursions into the Roman territories, and even threaten Rome itself; upon which Coriolanus assembles a band of volunteers, advances into the enemies country, defeats them several times, and returns loaded with booty, &c.	IV	493
3820	2513	486	Xerxes (son of Darius Hystaspis, by Atossa the daughter of Cyrus) succeeds his father in the kingdom of Persia, and reigned 21 years. Artamenes, his half brother, son of Darius by the daughter of Gobryas, opposed him, pleading his primogeniture, but finding himself too weak to contest it, yields the kingdom to him	II	114
3820	2513	486	Coriolanus, after a long dispute between the senate and people, is condemned to banishment; upon which he goes over to the Volsci	IV	493
3820	2513	486	Asdrubal, the Carthaginian general in Sardinia, dying of his wounds, the command of that army falls upon his brother Hamilcar	VI	714
3821	2514	485	Xerxes, king of Persia, renews, confirms, and enlarges the former privileges granted to the Jews	IV	11
3821	2514	485	Coriolanus, as general of the Volscian army, besieges Rome, is wrought upon by his mother, wife, and the Roman matrons, to raise the siege, for which he was stabbed in the Volscian senate, when he appeared to answer the complaints exhibited against him	IV	502
3821	2514	485	Gelon (a native of Gela in Sicily) upon the death of Hippocrates, under pretence of defending the rights of Hippocrates's children, after several engagements with, and overcoming the Syracusans, &c. was declared the first king thereof, and reigned 18 years with great applause, striving all that time to do all the good possible.	III	18
3831	2514	485	The Sicilians beg the assistance of Leonidas, the Athenian general, against the Carthaginians, but are refused; whereupon Gelon defends himself, &c.	VI	723
3822	2515	484	Xerxes king of Persia goes against the Egyptians, who had revolted from him, overcame them, and fixed his brother Achæmenes viceroy, and then returns to Susa.	II	115

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page
3823	2516	483	Ariſtides is baniſh'd Athens, by oſtraciſm; viz. a writing the accuſed perſon's name upon a ſhell by the freemen, which, if they amounted to 6000, baniſhed the perſon for ten years	II	467
3823	2516	483	Aquilius Tuſcus and Sicinnius being conſuls at Rome, Tuſcus gains a complete victory over the Hernici, and is voted an ovation. Sicinnius overcomes the Volſci, kills their general, and takes their camp, for which he is decreed a triumph, &c.	IV	508
3824	2517	482	The Agrarian law for dividing the conquered lands among the people, &c.	IV	503
3825	2518	481	Caſſius is accus'd by his own father of aſpiring to the Roman ſovereignty, and is condemned and executed, by being caſt headlong from the Tarpeian rock	IV	505
3826	2519	480	The Roman ſenate order the conſecration of the temple of Caſtor and Pollux	IV	505
3826	2519	480	Themiſtocles buys off Epicydes from ſolliciting to be made general of the Athenian forces, and gets himſelf elected; procures an act to recall all the baniſhed, by which means Ariſtides returns home, at the end of 3 inſtead of 10 years	II	468
3826	2519	480	Joſhua the Jewiſh high-prieſt dies, and is ſucceeded in that office by his ſon Joiakim, who held that office 36 years	IV	11
3826	2519	480	About this time the Rhodians laid aſide the monarchic form of government, and introduced the republican form among them	III	134
3826	2519	480	Xerxes makes his firſt expedition into Greece, whoſe army, when he arrived at Thermopylæ, a narrow paſs that divides Theſſaly from Greece, conſiſted of 2,641,610 ſoldiers, excluſive of ſervants, eunuchs, women, ſutlers, &c. computed at as many more	II	118
3826	2519	480	Leonidas joint king of Sparta, and 300 Spartans, reſolutely reſiſt the Perſians at Thermopylæ, and are all ſlain; and is ſucceeded in the kingdom by his ſon Cleombrotus, who dying very ſoon, was ſucceeded by his ſon Pauſanias, tutor to Pliſtarchus ſon of Leonidas	II	121
3826	2519	480	Xerxes takes Athens, and burns the city and all its temples down to the ground, and lays waſte and deſtroys the country all about; but being ſoon after engaged by the united confederate Grecian fleet, (conſiſting of 380 ſail, under the ſole command of Themiſtocles the Athenian commander) at Salamis), the Perſians and their confederates, being 2000 ſail, Themiſtocles took and deſtroy'd upwards of 200 ſail, with all the men and ammunition, and diſperſed the reſt, &c.	II	132
3826	2519	480	Hamilcar, the Carthaginian general, is killed by Gelon the Syracuſan tyrant, and his army intirely defeated; whereupon his ſon Giſco is baniſhed, and a peace concluded	VI	714
3827	2520	479	The Spartans decree the prize of prudence to Themiſtocles the Athenian general, honour him with a crown of olive leaves, and beſtow a moſt magnificent chariot upon him, and eſcort him home with a guard of 500 men, an honour never by them paid to any one before	II	474
3828	2521	478	Athens laid in aſhes by Mardonius, the Perſian general, a ſecond time, who was ſoon after killed at Platea in a general engagement, where the Greeks overcame the Perſians with ſo great a ſlaughter, that they left but 3000 perſons alive out of 300,000; and the ſame day the Perſians were alſo defeated at Mycale in Ionia, by the Greeks, under the command of Xanthippus, &c.	II	126
3828	2521	478	Diſputes ariſing among the Romans about chooſing conſuls, S. Atratinus is appointed chief governor, and is ſucceeded by Sp. Lartius a few days afterwards, by whoſe good management C. Julius Julus, and Q. Fabius Vitulanus were choſe conſuls	IV	506
3829	2522	477	The Athenians take Seſtos, and purſue and take Oibazus, one of the Perſian generals, and put him and his men to death; and alſo Artayctes, another Perſian general, who offered to ſacrifice 100 talents to Proteſilaus, and pay 200 talents for his own and his ſon's life, but is refuſed; he being impaled, and his ſon ſtoned before his face	II	476
3830	2523	476	Themiſtocles rebuilds Athens, and makes Pyræum the Athenian port, inſtead of Phalerum, it being larger and more commodious	II	478
3830	2523	476	Anaxillas, the tyrant of Rhegium, (a famous city over-againſt Sicily on the coaſt of Italy) dies
3830	2523	476	The Romans with great difficulty defeat the Hetrurians, the conſul Cn. Manlius, Cincinnatus, &c. being ſlain	IV	508
3831	2524	475	The Fabii undertake the defence of the Roman frontiers againſt the Veientes, at their own expence	IV	509
3832	2525	474	Cæſo Fabius is made the firſt proconſul, which office gave him conſular power over the troops that he commanded	IV	509
3832	2525	474	Pauſanias, the Spartan king, behaved ſo inſolently and tyrannically towards the Greek confederates, that they unanimouſly choſe Ariſtides the Athenian to be their chief commander, and voluntarily tax themſelves, and acknowledge Athens to be the chief city of Greece	II	479
3834	2527	472	Gelon, tyrant, (king) at Syracuſe, dies, and is ſucceeded by his brother Hiero, who reigned 13 years	III	20
3834	2527	472	Epicharmus, a famous Syracuſan poet, that either invented or introduced comedy among them, flouriſh'd in the times of Gelon and Hiero, kings of Syracuſe. ——— Marſhall
3834	2527	472	The Roman conſuls, Virginius and Servilius, intirely defeat the Hetrurians, who beſieged Rome, and cauſed a famine, by which overthrow, plenty, liberty, &c. was again reſtored to the city, and the inhabitants thereof	IV	512
3832	2529	470	The Roman conſul Manlius, without any loſs, reduces the Veientes to ſue for peace, and a truce of forty years is granted them: For this unbloody victory, he is granted an ovation	IV	513
3832	2529	470	Democritus, the ſuppoſed author of the Atomic ſyſtem, (vol. I. page 19.) and of Fatal Neceſſity, &c. now flouriſhed. He was a great aſtronomer and geometrician; he us'd to ridicule the Athenians unreaſonable purſuit after wealth, by laughing at them; he made himſelf blind, by looking upon a brazen globe when the ſun ſhone upon it: He was born at Abdera in Thrace, and called the Abderite	III	786

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
3837	2530	469	Pauſanias joint king of Sparta dies, and is ſucceeded by Pliſtarchus, who reigned three years
3837	2530	469	Cimon the Athenian, (ſon of Miltiades by the daughter of the king of Thrace) a man of conſummate wiſdom, integrity, and courage, choſe admiral of the Grecian fleet, and ſent againſt the Perſians	II	558
3837	2530	469	Leotychides, joint king of Sparta, (Lacedæmon) dies in exile, and was ſucceeded by his grandſon Archidamus, the ſon of Zeuxidamus, who died before his father Leotychides	II	482
3838	2531	468	Diagoras the Greek philoſopher, born at Melos, one of the iſlands in the Ægean ſea, was the firſt that affirmed that there were no Gods, (for which he was called an atheiſt) now flouriſh'd.——Marſhall.	II	558
3838	2531	468	Cimon, the Athenian general, taking the city Eion from the Perſians, the Perſian commander burnt the palace, his gariſon, all his wealth, and himſelf	II	482
3838	2531	468	A moſt dreadful earthquake happened at Sparta, in which 20,000 inhabitants and all the houſes but five, were deſtroyed; upon which the Helotes and Meſſenians, &c. revolt	II	594
3838	2531	468	Cimon performs great things in Caria, ſails to Cyprus, and obtains a complete victory over the Perſian fleet, takes 100 of their ſhips, purſues and attacks them on land, routs them, and ſo gains two victories in one day	II	483
3838	2531	468	Cimon, with only four ſhips, takes 13 of the enemies gallies, reduces all Cherſoneſus, conquers the revolted Thaſians, recovers the gold mines from them, lying between the rivers Nyſſus and Strymon, upon which the Athenians ſend a colony to ſettle in Amphipolis, a famous city of Thrace	II	484
3838	2531	468	The Lacedæmonians ſolicit the Athenians for help againſt their revolted ſubjects, the Helotes, &c. upon which Cimon is ſent with an army, and does wonders	II	484
3839	2532	467	Ariſtides, the great Athenian commander, dies. (Note C)	II	488
3840	2533	466	Arceſilaus IV. ſucceeds Battus IV. in the kingdom of Cyrene, and reigned 35 years	VII	172
3840	2533	466	Upon the death of Hiero, tyrant of Syracuſe, his brother Thraſybulus ſucceeded him, but after 11 months reign, the people drove him out, and thereby enjoyed their liberty ſixty years	III	23
3840	2533	466	Pliſtoanax ſucceeds Pliſtarchus in the joint kingſhip of Lacedæmon, and reigned 58 years	II	558
3841	2534	465	Appius, now out of his conſulſhip, is cited to appear before the people of Rome, to anſwer the complaints exhibited againſt him; he being conſcious of his own guilt, murders himſelf	IV	517
3842	2535	464	The Roman conſul Servilius, defeats the Sabines, and Quinctius, the Equi and Volſci, and takes the city of Antium, and has a triumph decreed him	IV	517
3842	2535	464	Xerxes king of Perſia giving himſelf up to luxury, &c. Artabanus, the captain of his guards, conſpires againſt him, with Mithridates his chamberlain, and murders him upon his bed	II	129
3842	2535	464	Artaxerxes I. (called Longimanus) ſucceeds his father Xerxes in the kingdom of Perſia, after having killed his uncle Artabanus, who had uſurped the crown ſeven months, and reigned 41 years	II	130
3842	2535	464	Cimon the Athenian commander, after all his heroic actions, is rewarded with oſtraciſm or baniſhment for 10 years	IV	487
3843	2536	463	The Bactrian rebellion gives riſe to the Libyan rebellion of Inarus, and the Egyptian rebellion of Amyrteus	II	131
3846	2539	460	The Carthaginians war againſt the Moors, Numidians, &c. the ſucceſs whereof was, that they were excus'd the annual tribute they formerly paid, &c.	VI	714
3847	2540	459	After ten years war, the Spartans reduce the Helotæ, and expell the Meſſenians from Ithome	II	595
3847	2540	459	Ephialtes, one of the great ſticklers for liberty at Athens, having gained over a conſiderable party, became a great check upon the Areopagite court, for which he was murdered by Ariſtodicus, a Tanagrian, in the ſtreet	II	487
3847	2540	459	A dreadful plague broke out in Rome, which ſwept away the flower of their youth, the fourth part of the ſenators, the greateſt part of the tribunes, the two conſuls, and the two augurs, &c.	IV	518
3848	2541	458	Ezra the Jew ſent by Artaxerxes king of Perſia, in the ſeventh year of his reign, to Jeruſalem, with great preſents for the temple, and full power to rectify the Jewiſh church and ſtate, &c. and alſo to have power over life and death	IV	12
3848	2541	458	The conſul Lucretius Tricipitinus, at the head of a large army, goes againſt the Equi and Volſci, to revenge the affronts they had given the Romans during the plague, engage and kill both their generals, and 13,460 men	IV	519
3849	2542	457	The Athenians engage the Lacedæmonians at Tanagra, and are overcome with a great ſlaughter; ſoon after they engage again, but both ſides ſuffering greatly, a truce is made for a ſhort time	II	488
3849	2542	457	The Spartans take the Thebans into their protection, and give them Bœotia, &c. upon which the Athenians ſend a ſmall army againſt them, under Myronides, who gained a compleat victory over a very great army, then marches to Tanagra, and took it by ſtorm, and razed it to the ground, then plunders Bœotia, and overthrows an army of the inhabitants; falls upon the Locrians, pierces into Theſſaly, and chaſtiſes their treachery, and then returns to Athens, laden with riches and glory	II	489
3850	2543	456	Tolmides, the Athenian admiral, takes Methon, (a ſea port in Laconia, belonging to the Spartans;) but being forced to quit it, takes Gythium, another ſea-port, which he burnt, with all the ſhipping and naval ſtores; then he reduced Zacynthus, and all the neighbouring cities, and alſo Naupactus, by compoſition, turns out the Spartans, and plants a colony of Meſſenians in their ſtead	II	489

Y. of wor.d.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
3850	2543	456	Appius Herdonius, a Sabine, attempts the reduction of Rome by ſurprize, puts all to the ſword he meets with, and lodges himſelf in the capitol, from whence he kills the conſul Valerius, who went againſt him, &c.	IV	525
3850	2543	456	Quinctius Cincinnatus, father of Cæſo, is ſent for from his country ſeat, where he practis'd farming, to be the Roman conſul: As ſoon as his time was out, he left the city, and went home to farming again	IV	525
3850	2543	456	The Perſians, with a great army under Megabyzus, go to raiſe the ſiege of Memphis; Inarus and his confederates engage him, but are overthrown with a great ſlaughter, by which Egypt was again reduced to the ſubjection of Perſia, and Sartamus was made governor thereof	II	130
3851	2544	455	Pericles the Athenian invades Peloponneſus with fifty ſhips, &c. and burns and ſpoils all before him; but Cimon being recalled from baniſhment, a peace is concluded	II	489
3851	2544	455	The Roman conſul L. Cornelius Maluginenſis intirely reduces the Equi, and the conſul Fabius Vibulanus the Volſci, and make both become tributaries to the Romans, for which the two conſuls have a triumph	IV	526
3852	2545	454	Perdiccas II. ſucceeds his father Alexander in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns 41 years	III	271
3852	2545	454	Inarus, and the Athenians that eſcaped at Memphis, having long defended themſelves in the city of Byblus in the iſland of Proſopotis, were at laſt forced to ſurrender upon honourable terms, and were carried priſoners to Suſa	II	132
3853	2546	453	Cimon the Athenian commander, with 200 ſail of ſhips, attacks the Perſians with 300 ſail, takes 100, deſtroys many others, lands in Cilicia, defeats Megabyzus, the Perſian general, with 300,000 men, and concludes a peace for 51 years between the Greeks and Perſians	II	133
3854	2547	452	The Romans again make Quinctius Cincinnatus dictator, and ſend for him from his rural retirement: He goes with an army to the relief of the conſul Minucius, who was ſhut up by the Equi, who had revolted, overcomes them, and makes them paſs under the yoke; returns in triumph to Rome, with the enemies general at the head of his chariot, and a great number of the enemies officers in chains, &c. He abdicates his office the ſixteenth day, &c	IV	527
3854	2547	452	The tribunes of the people are increaſed from five to ten perſons, to be all choſe new every year	IV	528
3856	2549	450	The two books of the Chronicles in the Old Teſtament are now ſuppoſed to be wrote by Ezra; the two laſt verſes are the beginning of the book of Ezra. ——Marſhall.——
3857	2550	449	Themiſtocles, the famous Athenian commander, after having done abundance of noble acts for his country, was ingratefully baniſh'd; and retiring to the Perſian court, became a great favourite with king Artaxerxes, who gave him a Perſian wife and a large eſtate, which after enjoying ſome years, he died, and was honourably buried. (Note A.)	II	481
3857	2550	449	Cimon the Athenian general takes Citium, (where he died of his wounds) and Malus in Cyprus, defeats the Phœnician fleet, beats the Perſian army under Megabyzus, and beſieges Cyprus, upon which the Perſians conclude a peace greatly advantagious to the Greeks	II	490
3857	2550	449	Inarus the Libyan king, contrary to agreement, is delivered to the mother of king Artaxerxes, who caus'd him to be crucify'd, and all his companions be-headed; upon which Megabyzus the Perſian general revolts, raiſes a great army in his province of Syria, and defeats Oſiris, who was ſent againſt him with 200,000 men	II	134
3857	2550	449	The Romans make a law, to impower magiſtrates to puniſh ſuch as were wanting in reſpect to their dignity, 2 oxen and 30 ſheep	IV	532
3857	2550	449	The Romans ſend meſſengers to Greece, to collect a body of laws from all thoſe uſed in the Greek cities, eſpecially Athens	IV	532
3858	2551	448	Megabyzus (the rebel Perſian general) defeats Menoſtanes, the king's nephew; upon which the king ſends him his pardon, and he lays down his arms and returns to the king at Suſa	II	133
3858	2551	448	A great plague in Italy ſweeps away abundance of all ſorts of people, the conſul, and him named to ſucceed him, the high prieſt of Jupiter, the augur, and four of the tribunes	IV	533
3859	2552	447	Tolmides, the Athenian commander, and his army, are cut to pieces at Cheronea by the Bœotians, &c. To redeem their priſoners, the Athenians for ever quit claim of all right over them	II	492
3860	2553	446	Pericles, the Athenian general, enters the iſland of Eubœa, takes the city of Heſtcia, turns out the inhabitants, and puts a colony of Athenians therein; upon which the whole iſland ſubmits to the Athenians, and a peace is concluded between them and the Spartans for 30 years	II	492
3860	2553	446	The decemvirs choſe at Rome, to compoſe a body of Roman laws, and to have the execution thereof; at firſt they governed daily and alternately, &c.	IV	534
3861	2554	445	The Roman people being aſſembled, the decemvirs cauſe the laws they had collected and compoſed, wrote in ten tables, to be read; which being approved, were ordered to be tranſcribed on pillars of braſs, and ſet up in the forum, as the foundation of all judicial determinations	IV	534
3361	2554	445	Artaxerxes, king of Perſia, in the 20th year of his reign, in the month Niſan, (about the 21 of our April) ſends Nehemiah (who was his cup-bearer, tho' a Jew) governor over the Jews in Judea, &c. and commands him to rebuild Jeruſalem, which he did with great expedition, the wall being rebuilt in 52 days, tho' ſtrongly oppoſed by Sanballat the Horonite: From this year begins the 70 prophetical weeks, or 490 years, in which time was to be accompliſhed the 7 weeks of propheſying and anointing our great high-prieſt Jeſus Chriſt, called alſo the cutting off the Meſſiah, and laſtly, the covenant with many till the ceaſing of the ſacrifice, &c	IV	21

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
3861	2554	445	Jehoiakim, the Jewiſh high-prieſt, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Eliaſhib, who enjoyed that office 34 years
3862	2555	444	The Athenians give the Sybarites (a people of Italy, who were a ſecond time drove out by the Crotonians) the aſſiſtance of ten ſhips, with a conſiderable number of men, under the command of Lampo and Xenocrates, and likewiſe proclaim free liberty for ſuch as were deſirous to go and ſettle with them, which many did: The Sybarites being re-eſtabliſhed, called their new built city Thurium, and themſelves Thurians	IV	26
3863	2556	443	The decemvirs appointed time being expired, inſtead of propoſing the election of new magiſtrates, propoſe adding two tables of laws more to the former ten, ſo that there was now the twelve famous tables of Roman laws, and continue themſelves by force	II	492
3864	2557	442	The decemvirs acting quite contrary to their inſtitution, the people and Roman army revolt: the ſenate aſſembles, and aboliſhes the decemvirs, and choſe L. Valerius and M. Horatius conſuls for the year enſuing, who, to ingratiate themſelves with the people, made many popular laws	IV	541
3864	2557	442	The Equi, Volſci, and Sabines, having revolted, are reduced by the conſuls Valerius and Horatius, for which the Roman people give them a triumph, in oppoſition to the ſenate, who refuſed it to them	IV	543
3866	2559	440	The Athenians declare war againſt the Samians, and having conquered them, their general Pericles changed their government into a democracy, which occaſioned great tumults; the Samians being ſupported by Piſſuthnes, the Perſian general, they revolt, and expel the Athenian gariſon; Pericles going againſt them, defeats them at ſea, &c. and after nine months ſiege, takes Samos, demoliſhes the walls, ſeizes their ſhips, &c	IV	545
3866	2559	440	Pindar, the famous Theban poet, dies; he was chief of all the lyric poets, and ſo valued by Alexander, that his houſe only remained unburnt at his taking the city of Thebes	II	495
3866	2559	440	The Roman patricians and plebeians renewing their old diſpute about ſuperiority; the Equi and Volſci revolt, and ravage the county, even to the gates of Rome; upon which the conſuls Quinctius and Fabius head an army of Romans, engage and defeat them	II	321
3867	2560	439	Pericles, the Athenian general, pronouncing an excellent oration in praiſe of the ſlain in the ſeveral engagements he had been in, for their countries ſervice, is crowned with garlands by the ladies at Athens	IV	516
3868	2561	438	The office of conſulſhip at Rome made void, and military tribunes choſe; which government laſting but a very ſhort time, T. Quinctius is named for the interrex, who ſummoned the people, who reſtored the conſulſhip again in the perſons of T. Quinctius Capitolinus and M. Gregamus; the cenſorſhip was alſo revived again, conſiſting of two perſons, impowered every five years to review the eſtates and perſons of all the Roman people; Papirius and Sempronius were now choſe into that office	II	495
3868	2561	438	The Corcyrians beat the Corinthians and their confederates, and take Epidamnum by ſtorm, &c.	IV	547
3868	2561	438	Iſocrates, the famous Athenian philoſopher, born: His panegyrick upon Evagoras king of Salamis, was ſo well received, that his ſon Nicocles gave him twenty talents as a reward for it. He died at 98 years of age	II	495
3869	2562	437	The Athenians aſſiſt the Corcyrians, &c. againſt the Corinthians, &c, they engage, and both ſides getting alternate advantages, both gain the victory	III	181
3869	2562	437	Sp. Mælius, a Roman knight, aſpires to the ſovereign power. At this time a great famine happening in Rome, the ſenate creates a new magiſtrate, called the Super-intendant of proviſions; who endeavouring to procure corn from the neighbouring countries, was diſappointed by Sp. Mælius's having monopolized it before; and who, to ſtrengthen his party, diſtributed it among the meaner people gratis, &c	II	497
3870	2563	436	Anaxagoras, the famous philoſopher and preceptor to Pericles, is baniſhed Athens, under pretence of introducing novelties in religion	IV	547
3870	2563	436	Quinctius Cincinnatus is made dictator, and having appointed Servilius Ahala his general of horſe, cites Sp. Mælius before him in the forum, who refuſing to appear, is arreſted by the lictors, but reſcued by the people, upon which Servilius ruſhes in among the crowd and kills Mælius upon the ſpot, and then his houſe was razed to the ground, and the vaſt quantities of corn he had amaſſed was ſold to the people at low rates	IV	548
3870	2563	436	Pericles gets Thucydides, his competitor, baniſh'd by oſtraciſm	II	497
3870	2563	436	The Potideans revolt from the Athenians, upon which Callias, with an Athenian army, engages and defeats them; Callias is killed in the battle, and Phormis becomes a general in his ſtead, who inveſts the city of Potidea, and the inhabitants obſtinately defend it	II	497
3871	2564	435	Diſputes running very high at Rome, three military tribunes are choſe for the officers of this year, inſtead of two conſuls	IV	548
3872	2565	434	The Fidenæ revolting from the Romans, L. Sergius the conſul being unſucceſsful againſt them, Mamercus Æmilius is made dictator, overcomes them and their allies, kills Tolumnius, and overcomes the united forces of the Faliſci, Fidenates, and Veientes, returns in triumph, and depoſites the Spolia Opima in the temple of Jupiter Feretrius	IV	548
3873	2566	433	Nehemiah having finiſhed his work at Jeruſalem, dedicates the temple with great joy, and afterwards goes to give king Artaxerxes an account of his proceedings, &c. Here the Old Teſtament hiſtory ends	IV	23
3874	2567	432	The Peloponneſian war breaking out, the Athenians and Lacedæmonians both ſolicit the friendſhip of Artaxerxes king of Perſia, which he artfully evaded	II	133

Yr of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3874	2567	432	A grievous plague raging in Rome, the Veientes and Fidenates revolt again, upon which Q. Servilius Priscus is made dictator, who engages and overcomes them, and took the city of Fidenæ, &c. A census this year	IV	548
3875	2568	431	The Athenians do infinite mischief along the Peloponnesian shore, infest the Locrians, and eject the inhabitants of Ægina, and people it with Athenians: They enter Megara, &c. and burn and destroy all before them, as the Spartans had done in Attica; thus the first year of the war did immense damage to all parties	II	501
3875	2568	431	The Peloponnesian war actually begins in the spring of this year	II	499
3875	2568	431	Arcesilaus IV. king of Cyrene, being killed by his subjects, his son endeavoured to succeed him, but being repulsed by the Cyrenians, was forced to retire into the Hesperides, where he died, and so ended the kingdom of Cyrene, after it had stood 200 years, under the government of 8 kings	VII	173
3876	2569	430	Jeremiah is supposed to write his book or prophecy about this time
3876	2569	430	The consuls laid aside, and three military tribunes chose for this year's government of Rome	IV	549
3877	2570	429	Three military tribunes govern Rome this year	IV	549
3878	2571	428	The consulship restored again to T. Quinctius and C. Julius Mento, who go against the Equi and Volsci, who had revolted, but through disagreement between themselves are defeated, near mount Algidus; upon which Posthumius Tubertus was chose dictator, who going against the rebels, defeated them; and returning to Rome in triumph, laid down his commission	IV	550
3878	2571	428	Anaxagoras the great philosopher dies: He mended the Ionic philosophy, and first admitted an intelligent Being, distinct from matter; and also supposed the air to be the first principle of the universe. He was the first that wrote of the eclipse of the moon	I	19
3878	2571	428	Pericles, the famous Athenian partizan, with all his family, dies of the plague at Athens	II	504
3878	2571	428	Archidamus, king of Sparta, besieges Platæa, with a great army	II	504
3878	2571	428	The Peloponnesian navy wastes the island of Zacynthus, and does abundance of damage	II	504
3878	2571	428	The Lacedæmonians solicit the king of Persia to assist them against the Athenians, and also Sytacles king of Thrace; but Sytacles having been admitted a citizen of Athens, he delivers up the Spartan ambassadors to the Athenians, who put them to death	II	505
3879	2572	427	Archidamus invades Attica a third time, and wastes and destroys with implacable hatred whatever belonged to the Athenians, upon which Lesbos and Methymne revolt from the Athenians	II	505
3879	2572	427	Agis succeeds his father Archidamus as joint king of Lacedæmon, and reigned 27 years	II	558
3879	2572	427	A law made at Rome to turn the fines for disrespect to magistrates into money; the ox to be rated at 100 asses of brass, and the sheep at 10 asses	IV	450
3880	2573	426	The Lacedæmonians, after a siege of two years, take Platæa, put all the garison to the sword, and sell the women for slaves; and so put an end to one of the bravest and most generous of all the Grecian people; and a while after the city was razed, and so remained till rebuilt by Alexander the Great	II	506
3880	2573	426	The famous Corcyrian sedition	II	506
3081	2574	425	The plague rages extravagantly at Athens, and carries off great numbers of all sorts of people	II	507
3881	2574	425	An extraordinary drought occasioned a famine, which was followed by a dreadful plague in Rome	IV	550
3882	2575	424	Archidamus, king of Sparta, returns home from his intended invasion of Attica being frightened by abundance of earthquakes that now happened	II	507
3882	2575	424	Upon the death of Artaxerxes, his only legitimate son Xerxes II. succeeded him in his kingdom of Persia, who having drank immoderately at a great entertainment, retired to his bed-chamber to sleep, whither being followed by one of his bastard brothers, named Sogdianus, whom Pharnacus the eunuch let in, Sogdianus killed him there, after he had reigned 45 days, and set himself up in his stead	II	134
3882	2575	424	Sogdianus, (by the murder of Darius his lawful king, and Bagorazus, his father's most faithful eunuch) became so odious and hateful, that he endeavoured to murder all those he suspected, and therefore sent to Ochus (one of his bastard-brothers, at that time governor of Hyrcania) to murder him, who being appriz'd of his intent, rais'd a great army, being joined by several of the governors of the provinces: They put the Tiara upon the head of Ochus, and proclaimed him king; upon which Sogdianus came to an accommodation with Ochus, who as soon as he got hold of him, ordered him to be smothered in ashes, after a reign of 6 months and 15 days; then Ochus changed his own name into Darius, and is commonly called Darius Nothus, or Darius the bastard. He reigned 19 years as king of Persia	II	134
3883	2576	423	The consuls were laid aside this year, and four military tribunes governed Rome in their stead	IV	550
3883	2576	423	Three of the tribunes go against the Veientes, who had revolted; but differing among themselves, the Veientes defeat them; upon which Mamercus Emilius was again chose dictator, who entirely routed the Veientes and the Fidenates, took the city of Fidenæ, and the Veientine camp, the whole being performed in sixteen days. Æmilius returns to Rome, had the honours of a triumph, and laid down his dictatorship	IV	551
3883	2576	423	The Athenians having taken the island Pylus from the Lacedæmonians, and carried away all the Spartans prisoners, people it with a colony of Messenians, whom the Spartans had cruelly drove out of their own country	II	508
3884	2577	422	The Athenians having overcome the Corcyrians, drew them out by 20 at a time, and put them to death with the utmost cruelty, for assisting the Spartans against them	II	509

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3884	2577	422	The Athenians ſuſpecting the Chians intended to revolt, ſent a fleet with orders to break down the walls of the city of Chios, which was done accordingly. —	II	510
3884	2577	422	The conſulſhip again laid aſide, and four patrician military tribunes choſe at Rome	IV	551
3885	2578	421	This year the government of Rome was alſo by four patrician military tribunes	IV	551
3885	2578	421	The beginning of this year a great earthquake, and an eclipſe of the ſun, happened at Athens together — — —	II	510
3885	2578	421	The Lacedemonians and Bœotians having engaged the Athenians, who beſieged Megara, got poſſeſſion of the city, and drove out all thoſe who ſided with the Athenians, and then called home the exiles, who ſeized and got put to death 100 of their opponents, and then changed the democratic form of government into an oligarchy — — —	II	511
3886	2579	420	The Lacedæmonians ſurprize, engage, and kill 600 Athenians, and rout the reſt, with the loſs only of ſeven men: In this battle both armies loſt their generals, Braſidas for the Spartans, and Cleon for the Athenians — —	II	512
3886	2579	420	A peace concluded between the Athenians and Spartans, which continued 50 years: This was called the Nician peace, from one Nicias, a great man of Athens who brought it about — — — —	II	512
3886	2579	420	The conſulſhip again reſtored at Rome, in the perſons of C. Sempronius Atratinus and C. Fabius Vibulans — — —	IV	551
3887	2580	419	Upon the concluſion of the peace, the Athenians, at the requeſt of the Spartans, remove the Helotes and Meſſenians from Pylus to the iſland of Cephalenia —	II	513
3888	2581	418	The Athenians conclude a league with the Argives, &c. for 100 years —	II	514
3889	2582	417	Agis king of Sparta grants a truce of 4 months to the Argives, for which the Ephori mulct him a great Fine, and threaten to raze his houſe, &c. —	II	599
3889	2582	417	The Athenians bring back the Helotes and Meſſenians, and reſettle them in Pylus	II	515
3889	2582	417	Agis king of Sparta and his confederates defeat the Argives, Athenians, &c. and gain a compleat victory over them — — —	II	599
3889	2582	417	The tribunes oppoſing the election of conſuls at Rome, L. Papyrius Mugellanus is choſe inter-rex, who prevailed to have military tribunes choſe inſtead of conſuls, and two new queſtors to be added, to make up their number four —	IV	552
3890	2583	416	Four military tribunes govern Rome this year, in which a plot for ſetting fire to the city, and ſeizing the capitol by the ſlaves, was diſcovered and prevented, &c.	IV	553
3890	2583	416	Agis king of Sparta enters Argos, where the confederate Greek army lay; and juſt as the engagement was going to begin, a truce was clapp'd up, &c. —	II	515
3890	2583	416	The Athenians invade Sicily, and beſiege Syracuſe, which defends itſelf bravely, and after being reduced to extreme neceſſity, is relieved by Gylippus, general of the Corinthians, their confederates — — —	III	29
3890	2583	416	The Athenians joining the Argives, &c. they break the truce concluded with the Spartans, the Spartans engage and overthrow them, and thereupon erect a tropny	I	515
3890	2583	416	The Argives deſert the Athenians, and make a league with the Spartans for 50 years, upon which they demoliſhed democracy (or popular government) and eſtabliſh ariſtocracy (or government by the nobles) among themſelves — —	II	515
3891	2584	415	The Argives diſliking their new ariſtocratic government aboliſh it, and return to democracy again, and fall upon the Spartans, and ſuch citizens as were their friends, kill ſome and baniſh others, renounce their new league with the Spartans, and confirm their old one with the Athenians — —	II	516
3891	2584	415	Three military tribunes govern Rome this year, when the city Labicum and the Equi revolt; the two tribunes who went againſt them, quarrelling, are entirely defeated by the Equi; upon which Q. Servilius is again choſe dictator, goes againſt the enemy, engages and defeats them, and takes Labicum, returns to Rome in 8 days after his departure from it, and lays down his dictatorſhip — —	IV	553
3891	2584	415	The Athenians finding themſelves betrayed by Perdiccas king of Macedon, renounce their league with him, and declare war againſt him — —	II	516
3892	2585	414	The Lacedæmonians begins the 10 years Declean war — —
3892	2585	414	The Athenians take Melos, and put every man able to bear arms to the ſword, and carry the women and children captive to Athens —	II	516
3892	2585	414	Rome enjoyed profound peace this year under four military tribunes —	IV	553
3893	2586	413	Four military tribunes govern this year, when the 10 tribunes of the people create great diſputes about (the Agrarian law, or) the diſtribution of the lands taken from the enemy — — —	IV	553
3893	2586	413	The Hermæ, or ſtatues of Mercury, (of which there were abundance ſet up) were all in one night defeated in Athens, but could not be diſcovered by whom —	II	517
3893	2586	413	Piſuthnes, governor of Lydia, revolts from Darius king of Perſia, being ſupported by a great army of Greek mercenaries; againſt whom Darius ſent Tiſaphernes, who bought the mercenaries, and forced Piſuthnes to ſurrender upon promiſe of Life; which he doing, Darius ordered him to be ſmothered in aſhes —	II	135
3893	2586	413	Archelaus, the ſon of Perdiccas king of Macedon, upon the reſignation of his father, ſucceeds him, and reigns 14 years — —	III	271
3893	2586	413	Alcibiades, an Athenian general, being wrongfully accuſed, runs away to the Spartans, who entertain him courteouſly — —	II	517
3893	2586	413	Egypt revolts from the Perſians, and Amyrteus Saites, being joined by the inhabitants, came out of the Fens, and drove the Perſians out of Egypt, and reigned over the whole country — — —	II	131
3894	2587	412	Demoſthenes, the Athenian general, attacks Epipolæ, in the night, but is repulſed with a mighty ſlaughter — —	II	518
3894	2587	412	The Syracuſans attack, overthrow, and kill and take priſoners Demoſthenes the Athenian general, and his whole army;—and a few days afterward attack Nicias, the other Athenian general, who was taken priſoner, and his whole remaining army. The two generals, and many of the ſoldiers, contrary to the capitulation, were put to death at the inſtigation of the people. Thus ended the Sicilian war, with great diſgrace and prodigious loſs to the Athenians —	II	522

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3894	2587	812	The four military tribunes keep all things quiet at Rome this year	IV	553
3895	2588	411	P. Poſthumius, one of the military tribunes that governed this year, going againſt the Equi that had revolted, promis'd his ſoldiers the ſpoil of Bala, if they took it, but breaking his word after the reduction of the place, for it, and other diſagreeable behaviour, was ſtoned to death by his legions, being the firſt general that was killed by his own ſoldiers ſince the foundation of Rome	IV	554
3895	2588	411	The Athenian fleet engages and overcomes the Peloponneſian fleet; they take a part, and a ſtorm diſperſes the reſt	II	526
3895	2548	411	The Athenians reduce the revolted Leſbians, Clazomenians, &c. to their obedience again	II	521
3895	2588	411	Alcibiades, &c. twice defeat the Spartans, &c. and in the laſt engagement gained two victories in one day, one by ſea, the other by land; took the enemies whole fleet, and more ſpoil than his and the remains of theirs could carry	II	526
3896	2589	410	The conſulſhip was again reſtored at Rome, in the perſons of A. Cornelius Coſſus, and L. Furius Medullinus. In this and the three following years, nothing remarkable but a plague happened	IV	554
3896	2589	410	Antiphon (an Athenian of ſuch extraordinary parts and eloquence, was ſo feared, that he was prohibited ſpeaking in publick,) and Piſander induce the Athenians to aboliſh democracy, to chooſe five prytanes (or chief magiſtrates) who ſhould chooſe 100, and each of theſe 100 ſhould chooſe 3 colleagues, and that theſe 400 ſhould be a ſenate with ſupreme authority	II	523
3896	2589	410	The Spartans defeat the Athenian fleet, and take 22 ſhips out of 36, and kill moſt of them in the reſidue, upon which Eubœa revolts from the Athenians	II	524
3896	2589	410	The Spartans and Athenians engage again, the latter takes 21 of the former's fleet, which conſiſted of 73 ſail, under Mindarus; and the Athenians but of 55 under Thraſybulus, and of theſe 19 were ſunk or taken in the beginning of the fight; a few days after the Athenians took 8 Spartan gallies coming from Byzantium, which had revolted, and reduced the city, and Alcibiades took nine more	II	525
3896	2589	410	The Lacedæmonians beſiege Pylus by land and ſea; the Athenians ſend Anytus to relieve it, with a ſquadron of ſhips, &c. but the wind not proving favourable, he returned to Athens, where he is condemned to death for not performing his orders, and the Spartans take Pylus	II	527
3896	2589	410	Alcibiades takes Byzantium, and puts all the Spartan gariſon to the ſword, except 500 which he ſent priſoners to Athens	II	527
3896	2589	410	Eliaſhib high-prieſt of the Jews dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Joiada (or Judas) who officiated in that ſtation 36 years	IV	26
3896	2589	410	Mindarus the Spartan admiral defeated and killed	II	526
3897	2590	409	The expiration of the firſt ſeven weeks of the ſeventy weeks of Daniel's prophecy	IV	27
3897	2590	409	Alcibiades and Theramenes return to Athens in triumph, with 200 ſhips, and an immenſe ſpoil	II	527
3897	2590	409	Antiochus, the lieutenant of Alcibiades, breaks his maſter's orders, and in his abſence attacks the Spartan fleet, is defeated and killed, and 15 of his ſhips taken by the enemy; upon which Alcibiades is accuſed, and depoſed by the Athenian ſenate, and goes into voluntary baniſhment	II	528
3898	2591	408	Pauſanias, the ſon of Pliſtonax, ſucceeds his father in the joint kingdom of Lacedæmon	II	599
3898	2591	408	Hannibal (the ſon of Giſco the Carthaginian) makes an expedition into Sicily, takes and razes Selinus aud Himera	VI	715
3898	2591	408	Conon the Athenian general engages Callicratides the Spartan general in a ſea-fight, is overcome, and loſes 30 ſhips, and afterwards was cloſely beſieged in Mitylene	II	528
3898	2591	408	The Athenians engage Callicratides a ſecond time, and overcome and kill him, take and deſtroy 79 Spartan ſhips, with the loſs of 19 of their own	II	528
3899	2592	407	Lyſander, the Spartan general, ſurprizes Conon the Athenian general, and intirely defeats him both by land and ſea, upon which he fled to Cyprus, with only eight gallies full of men: This put an end to the maritime power of Athens at once. Lyſander viſits all the neighbouring cities, and reduces them to the Spartan ſubjection, changes their form of government, and puts Spartan governors in them to keep them in ſubjection	II	602
3899	2592	407	Darius king of Perſia inveſts Cyrus his youngeſt ſon, though but a youth of 16 years old, with the ſupreme command of all the provinces of Aſia Minor	II	136
3900	2593	406	Three of the four quæſtors at Rome were this year, for the firſt time, choſe out of the plebeians	IV	554
3901	2594	405	This year Rome was governed by three patrician military tribunes; but the Volſci, &c. revolting, P. Cornelius Rutilus was made dictator, who gained a compleat victory over the enemy, returned to Rome, laid down the dictatorſhip and the military tribunes reſumed their government	II	555
3901	2594	405	Artaxerxes II. eldeſt ſon of Darius II. ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Perſia, and reigned 46 years; before his aſcending the throne, he was called Arſaces, (whom the Greeks for his extraordinary memory called Mnemon, that is, *the Remember*er)	II	136
3901	2594	405	Artaxerxes (Arſaces) upon the death of his father Darius, went to Paſargada, to be there inaugurated after the Perſian cuſtom, by the prieſts of Bellona, where he was informed his brother Cyrus intended to murder him; upon which Cyrus was ſeized and condemned, but at the interceſſion of their mother Paryſatis, he was both pardoned and reſtored to his government of Aſia Minor	II	137
3902	2595	404	Dionyſius Miles, ſon-in-law to Hermocrates the great Syracuſan, began his tyranny at Syracuſe, having by many inſinuations got himſelf made generaliſſimo, and a guard allowed him for his own perſon, therewith ſeized the government, and held it with great cruelty 38 years	III	45
3902	2595	404	Hannibal, the Carthaginian general, dies, with a great part of his army, of the plague, as they lay before Agrigentum in Sicily	VI	714

Imilcar,

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
3902	2595	404	Imilcar, the Carthaginian general, after Hannibal's death, takes Agrigentum and Gela, and puts an end to the war, by concluding a treaty with Dionyſius the Syracuſan tyrant	VI	715
3902	2595	404	Four patrician military tribunes govern Rome this year. The Volſci retake Verrugo, and put the Roman gariſon to the ſword; upon which the military tribunes go againſt them, ſurprize the Volſci while in queſt of Booty, and cut them all to pieces	IV	555
3903	2596	403	Lyſander, the Spartan general, having put Philocles the Athenian general, and 300 captives, with all their officers, to death, took Athens, and pulled down the walls, and eſtabliſhed an oligarchic government of 30, called the 30 tyrants, and ſo compleated the ruin of Athens. Lyſander growing inſolent, the ephori ſend him the ſcytale, or counter-tally, to recall him	II	529
3903	2596	403	Lyſander ſends immenſe treaſure, which he had taken from the Athenians, to Sparta, by Gylippus, who ſtole a part of it, but being detected, was baniſhed and branded with infamy	II	603
3903	2596	403	Four patrician military tribunes are again choſe, and revenge the affront offered to the Roman ambaſſadors, by taking Anxur by ſtorm, &c. This year pay was firſt given to the plebeian foot ſoldiers	IV	555
3904	2597	402	Six military tribunes choſe to govern Rome, &c. this year	IV	556
3905	2598	401	Six military tribunes choſe to govern Rome, &c. this year, who cloſely beſieged Veii, (one of the greateſt cities in Italy) and took and razed the city of Artena, after having defeated the Volſci	IV	556
3905	2598	401	Thraſybulus, the Athenian general, marches with his army into Athens, where laying down their arms, they ſacrifice with the citizens, and reſtore the old democratic government, and expel the 30 tyrants	II	532
3905	2598	401	Socrates, the great philoſopher and ſoldier, wrongfully put to death by the Athenians	II	533
3905	2598	401	Plato pleads for Socrates at Athens, but is forced to deſiſt by the people, who would not permit him to go on	II	535
3905	2598	401	Cyrus, the younger brother of Artaxerxes (Arſaces) king of Perſia, aſpires to the throne, and wars againſt him, with the help of Xenophon, the famous Greek commander, with 13,000 Greeks; but Cyrus being overcome, and killed, Xenophon, with his remaining Greeks, returned home, 2325 miles through the enemies country, though continually harraſſed by their army	II	139
3906	2599	400	The Lacedæmonians make war with the Perſians	II	140
3906	2599	400	Conon the Athenian made admiral of the Perſian fleet: He engages the Lacedæmonians, kills their admiral, and totally defeats their whole fleet, conſiſting of 90 ſail, and takes 50 of them, and 500 priſoners, and reduced many of the ſtates dependant on Sparta to change ſides	II	536
3906	2599	400	Agis king of Lacedæmon dies, and is ſucceeded by his brother Ageſilaus, who reigned 41 years	II	558
3906	2599	400	Conon, after defeating the Spartans, returns to Attica, and in his way brings over the Cyclades to join the Athenians, and reduces Cythera, and confirms the Corinthian league; and upon his arrival at Athens, ſets about rebuilding the walls, refortifying the city, &c. for which the Perſian general puts him in priſon	II	537
3906	2599	400	The ſiege of Veii ſtill carried on with great vigour, by the ſix military tribunes of
3907	2600	399	this year, who are now ſaid to invent lines of circumvallation and contravallation, and kept the army in the field all winter in wooden barracks covered with ſkins.
3908	2601	398	This year a law was made, that the Roman cavalry ſhould be paid out of the publick treaſure	IV	556
3907	2600	399	Ageſilaus, king of Sparta, routs the Perſians under Tiſaphernes, takes a great deal of ſpoil, and over-runs all Lydia; upon which Tiſaphernes was put to death
3907	2600	399	Amyntas ſucceeds Archelaus in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns only one year, and is then ſet aſide	III	271
3908	2601	398	Pauſanias ſucceeds Amyntas in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigns only one year	III	271
3908	2601	398	Ageſilaus, king of Sparta, invades Phrygia, took many cities, amaſſed great ſums, marched into Paphlagonia, joins Spithridates, a revolted Perſian lord, then returns and takes Daſcylium, a ſtrong city of Phrygia, and winters in the palace of Pharnabazus the Perſian general	II	142
3909	2602	397	Dionyſius, the Syracuſan tyrant, having defeated his enemies, and confirmed himſelf by ſlaughter, cruelty, and bribery, in the government, addicts himſelf to poetry and other polite arts, in which he imagined himſelf a nonpareil	III	58
3909	2602	397	Amyntas is reſtored, and ſucceeds Pauſanias in the kingdom of Macedon, and reigned 6 years
3909	2602	397	Six new military tribunes were choſe to govern Rome this year; but by the diſagreement of two that commanded at the ſiege of Veii, they are routed by the Faliſci and Capenates, and the ſallies of the Veientes; which occaſioned the depoſition of all the ſix military tribunes, and the choice of ſix new ones	IV	557
3909	2602	397	Dionyſius the Syracuſan breaks his faith with the Carthaginians, and ſeizes the perſons, houſes, and effects of all their ſubjects, which was very large, then trading at Syracuſe	VI	755
3910	2603	396	Dionyſius the Syracuſan inveſts Motya (a very ſtrong city, in league with the Carthaginians, built in a ſmall iſland about half a mile from the ſea-ſhore, where the Carthaginians kept their military ſtores and proviſions) and ravaged and reduced moſt of their other confederate cities and provinces; after ſome time ſpent in the ſiege, and ſeveral times attempting to ſtorm it, was as often repulſed, with great loſs on both ſides, but at laſt he takes it, and puts every perſon to the ſword, exept ſome that ſheltered themſelves in the Greek temples: here he got immenſe riches	VI	75[illegible]
3910	2603	396	The Carthaginians enter the port of Syracuſe in the night, with 10 gallies, and ſunk moſt of the ſhips then there, and returned without the loſs of one man	VI	[illegible]

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
3910	2603	396	Five patrician and one plebeian (P. Licinius Calvus) military tribune choſe for the government of Rome this year.	IV	557
3910	2603	396	Thraſybulus reduces Byzantium and Chalibis; then he goes to Lesbos, and reduces all the revolted cities to the ſubjection of Athens; after which he goes to Rhodes, and exacts a great ſum of money; the Rhodians, ſet upon him in the night, and kill him, and drive his army on board their ſhips.	II	568
3911	2604	395	Nepherees (or Nepherites) of the Mendeſſi, becomes king of Egypt, and reigns 6 years.	I	274
3911	2604	395	Licinius behaved ſo well this laſt year, that five plebeians and one patrician were choſe to be the military tribunes for governing Rome this year.	IV	557
3911	2604	395	The Carthaginians under Himilco retake Moyta, reduces Lipara, the capital of the iſland Lipara, the principal of the 7 Æolian iſlands; then they inveſt Meſſana, take it, and raze it; upon this the Siculi revolt from Dionyſius, and join Himilco: Leptines, the Sicilian admiral, engages Mago the Carthaginian, and is entirely defeated with great ſlaughter, loſing 100 gallies, and more than 20,000 men. Himilco marches to Syracuſe, lays all the country about it waſte, takes Acradina, and plunders the rich temples of Ceres and Proſerpina, then beſieges Syracuſe; but a plague breaking out, carries off 150,000 of his men; Dionyſius attacks the remainder by land and ſea, and entirely routs them, killing, burning, taking and deſtroying, almoſt all their vaſt fleet and army; Hamilco is forced to pay 300 talents for leave for himſelf and the citizens of Carthage to get away in the night. Upon Hamilco's return to Carthage, he kills himſelf.	VI	759 to 768
3911	2604	395	Upon Hamilco's defeat, the Africans revolt from the Carthaginians, and with an army of 200,000 men they take Tunis, and come to Carthage: but mutinying among themſelves, they return home again.	VI	769
3911	2604	395	The Carthaginians imagining all their misfortunes happened to them for violating the temple of Ceres and Proſerpina at Syracuſe, to appeaſe them they dedicated temples, and ſet up magnificent ſtatues to their honour, and ſelect prieſts out of the greateſt families to ſacrifice them.	V	769
3912	2605	394	Upon a great mortality that happened in the Roman army, by the ſudden change of the weather from extreme cold to exceſſive heat, the Sybilline books were conſulted: The Duumviri (who were their keepers) pretended to find a new expiation, called the Lectiſternium; viz. three beds were placed in a temple, round a plentiful table, and the ſtatues of Apollo, Latona, Diana, Hercules, Mercury, and Neptune taken down from their niches, were laid on the beds, and ſerved with magnificent repaſts for eight days; Theſe ceremonies were imitated in private families; open houſes were kept for friends, ſtrangers, and enemies; all law-ſuits, diſputes, &c. were ſuſpended, and even the priſoners releaſed, to partake of theſe publick rejoicings.	IV	558
3913	2606	393	Conon comes to Athens with 80 ſhips, and 50 talents, and repairs the city of Athens and offers a ſacrifice of 100 oxen.	II	144
3913	2606	393	Six military tribunes, all patricians, choſe this year, out of a ſuperſtitious notion that plebeians were of too low an extract, however well qualified, for the diſcharge of ſo high a ſtation.	IV	558
3914	2607	392	Six patricians choſe military tribunes for this year, who cauſe (in conformity to the anſwer of the oracle at Delphos) pioneers to make a canal to carry off the waters of the lake Albano, and convey them all over the fields in trenches, which wonderful work ſubſiſts to this day: The auguries being not auſpicious, theſe ſix tribunes lay down; and after a ſhort interregnum ſix new ones are choſe in their ſtead, all plebeians.	IV	558
3914	2607	392	Mago the Carthaginian endeavours, by popular means, to retrieve their affairs in Sicily, uſes the inhabitants courteouſly, encourages all deſerters from Dionyſius, &c. but engaging with Dionyſius, is drove out of the field, with the loſs of 800 men, and retires into Abacænum, and Dionyſius returns to Syracuſe.	VI	770
3915	3608	391	Dionyſius the Syracuſan tyrant, and Mago, the Carthaginian general, conclude a peace.	VI	770
3915	2608	391	The two military tribunes that carried on the war were intirely defeated; upon which M. Furius Camillus was made dictator, who puſhes on the ſiege ſo vigorouſly, that after ten years ſiege, Veii was taken by ſtorm, and the dictator entered the city in triumph, drawn in a chariot by four milk white horſes, and his own face painted with vermillion, which gave great offence, &c.	IV	559
3915	2608	391	The Roman ladies, for voluntarily bringing in their golden toys to make a vaſe to preſent to Apollo, were allowed to have funeral orations for illuſtrious women, like thoſe of the men, and liberty to ride in chariots at the publick games.	IV	559
3915	2608	391	Evagoras king of Cyprus revolts from the Perſians.
3915	2608	391	Amyntas king of Macedon is depoſed by the Illyrians, who brought in Argæus, but two years after Amyntas was reſtored again, and reigned 19 years.	III	271
3916	2609	390	Six patrician military tribunes rule this year, in which a propoſal is made, that half the ſenators, knights, and people of Rome ſhould remove to Veii; but after vaſt ſtruggles and much arguing, 'tis over-ruled.	IV	559
3917	2610	389	Camillus (general of the Roman army, and one of the military tribunes) by an act of juſtice and generoſity towards the children of the nobles of Faliſci, and their tutor, ſo wrought upon them, that they ſubmit voluntarily to the Romans.	IV	560
3917	2610	389	Acoris ſucceeds Nephereus as king of Egypt, and reigned 13 years.	I	274
3918	2611	388	The conſulſhip at Rome is reſtored again in the perſons of L. Lucretius Flavius, and Severus Sulpitius Camerinus. This year great diſputes happened between the tribunes of the people and the ſenate; who at laſt decreed that ſix acres of the Veii land ſhould be given to every father of a family and every freeman that was ſingle.	IV	561
3919	2612	387	L. Valerius Potitius and M. Manlius Capitolinus choſe conſuls at Rome, and begin their office with celebrating the great games in honour of Jupiter, Juno, and Minerva, &c. but a contagious diſtemper happening, with which the conſuls were affected,

Y. of world.	Year flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			the people depoſed them, and an interregnum followed, during which three preſidents ruled alternately, day by day, for a ſmall time; and then ſix military tribunes were again choſe.—A cenſus being taken, the number of people fit to bear arms was reported to be 152,583.
3919	2612	387	The Spartans and Perſians conclude the peace, called the peace of Antalcidas, greatly prejudicial to the Greeks.	IV	561
3919	2612	387	Camillus, the great Roman commander, goes into voluntary baniſhment, and reſides at Ardea.	II	144
3919	2612	387	Evagoras expels Abdymon the Citian, the Perſian governor for Artaxerxes, and takes poſſeſſion of his paternal kingdom of Cyprus, by the help of the Athenians.	IV	562
3920	2613	386	Brennus, king of thoſe Gauls called the Senones, ſituate between Paris and Meaux, comes into Italy, and beſieges Cluſium; the Cluſini beg aſſiſtance of the Romans, who ſend the three Fabii ambaſſadors to Brennus; who behaving haughtily, the ambaſſadors go into the town, and head the beſieged in a ſally, wherein they kill a principal Gauliſh officer; this enrages Brennus, upon which he demands of the Roman ſenate, that the Fabii ſhould be delivered up to him; but inſtead thereof, the people chuſe them military tribunes for the year enſuing; upon which Brennus marches towards Rome.	II	145
3920	2613	386	Dionyſius, the Syracuſan tyrant, fond of being thought a great poet, ſends his verſes and chariots to the Olympic games, where he is deſpiſed, which makes him mad, and cauſes him to break out into extravagancies, killing ſome of his friends, and baniſhing others.	IV	562
3920	2613	386	The Lacedæmonians fall upon the Thebans, and ſeize their capital; 400 principal Thebans fly to Athens for ſuccour, where they are kindly received, and by their aſſiſtance retake Thebes.	III	59
3920	2613	389	The Perſians, under the command of Tiribazus, invades Cyprus with 300,000 men, and 300 ſhips, and after an engagement with Evagoras king of Cyprus, obtain a great victory; upon which Evagoras flies to Salamine, whither the Perſians purſue, and beſiege him by land and ſea, where he is forced to yield on very hard terms.	II	539
3921	2614	385	The military tribunes aſſemble a Roman army of 40,000 men, and go to meet Brennus, king of the Gauls, whoſe army was 70,000: They meet and engage, upon the banks of the river Allia, where the Romans were entirely defeated; upon which the people fled from the city of Rome into the neighbouring cities, and 4 days after the battle Brennus entered Rome, killed all the people he met with, ravaged and burnt the city, demoliſhed the temples and publick edifices, and razed the walls to the ground, and beſieged the capitol.	II	146
3921	2614	385	The Gauls beſiege Ardea, with a conſiderable force; but thinking themſelves ſecure, neglect diſcipline; whereupon Camillus, the great Roman general, heads the Ardean youth, and ſallies out in the night, ſurprizes the Gauls drowned in wine, and makes a dreadful ſlaughter; whereupon the ſcattered Romans ſend deputies to beg Camillus to take upon him the command of all the remaining Roman forces, but he refuſing, the ſenate reverſe his ſentence of condemnation, and proclaim him dictator.	IV	564
3921	2614	385	The Gauls beſieging the capitol, find a private paſſage of very difficult aſcent, get up it undiſcovered in the night; but ſome geeſe that were kept in the court of the capitol in honour of Juno, and near her temple, making a noiſe at the Gauls approach, Manlius (a gallant ſoldier, who had paſs'd the conſulate) attacks them and beats them off the walls, and ſo ſaves the capitol; for which he was highly honoured, and geeſe were ever after had in honour at Rome, a flock of them, being always kept at the publick expence: A golden image of a gooſe was erected in memory of them, and a gooſe every year carried in triumph, upon a ſoft litter finely adorned. From this time the dogs were held in abhorrence, and every year one impaled on a branch of elder.	IV	564
3921	2614	385	Gaus, admiral of the Perſian fleet, revolts from Artaxerxes, is joined by the Egyptians and Lacedæmonians; but while vaſt preparations were making to ſupport him, Gaus was murdered by one of his officers, and the whole affair dropt.	IV	565
3921	2614	385	The plague and famine rage in Brennus's army, and ſo many of them died in one quarter of the city, as occaſioned it to be called Buſta Gallica, or the place where the dead bodies of the Gauls were burnt. Both ſides ſuffering extremely, 'twas agreed upon oath, that upon the Romans paying 1000 l. weight of gold, the Gauls ſhould raiſe the ſiege, and quit the Roman territories: When the gold was brought, the Gauls ſcales and weights were found to be falſe; upon which Sulpicius, one of the Roman military tribunes, complaining, Brennus, inſtead of excuſing it, threw his ſword and belt into the ſcales where the weights were, crying out, Væ Victis, or Woe to the Conquered. This continuing the diſpute, Camillus with his army comes up, and he with a few followers gets into the city, and orders the gold to be carried back to the treaſury; upon which a ſcuffle happens, and in the following night, Brennus and his army retires to the Gabinian way, eight miles from Rome, and encamp there; in the morning Camillus purſued, engaged, and totally overthrew them, with a great ſlaughter, and the remainder were cut off, as they wandered up and down the fields by the inhabitants; ſo that there was not one left to carry the news home; and Camillus returned to Rome in triumph, loaded with ſpoils, the ſoldiers in their ſongs calling him Romulus, father of his country, and ſecond founder of Rome, at which ſome of the great men being offended, the tribunes ſpeak diſreſpectfully of Camillus, inſinuating he aimed to make himſelf king; but the ſenate voted his continuing in the dictatorſhip for one whole year, to put their confuſions to rights, which ended in a decree for rebuilding the city, which Brennus had burnt down.	IV	567
3922	2615	384	Camillus laying down the dictatorſhip, an interregnum followed, wherein Camillus and P. Cornelius Scipio ruled alternately; and after ſome time, ſix military tri-

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			bunes were choſe, who immediately ſet about collecting what monuments, tables, of laws, treaties with nations, &c. that could be found in the ruins, &c.	IV	567
3922	2015	384	The Ædiles have the care of rebuilding the city of Rome: The expence of building the private houſes was defrayed out of the publick treaſury; but through haſte, ignorance, and covetouſneſs, the plan was very illy projected and executed.	IV	567
3922	2615	384	Artaxerxes, king of Perſia, goes in perſon againſt the Caduſians, (a people inhabiting the mountain between the Euxine and Caſpian ſea) with an army of 300,000 foot and 20,000 horſe; but the country being unable to furniſh proviſions, a famine enſues, whereby all the horſe, and abundance of the foot, &c. were loſt; but the Caduſians, by the artful negotiations of Tiribazus were brought to ſubmit to the Perſians.	II	147
3922	2615	384	Achoris king of Egypt dies, and is ſucceeded by Pſammuthis who reigned only one year.	II	147
3922	2615	384	Sphodrias, the Spartan commander at Theſpis, attempts in the night to ſeize the fort of Pyræum at Athens; but the ſun riſing when he came to Eleuſina, his men refuſed to march any farther; upon which the Athenians declare war againſt the Spartans.	II	539
3923	2616	383	The Lacedæmonians, under Ageſilaus, one of their kings, invade Bœotia, and brave the Thebans and their allies, in the neighbourhood of their own city.	II	540
3923	2616	383	The hardſhips and misfortunes of the Romans encourage their tributaries to revolt, upon which Camillus is again choſe dictator, who, at the head of an army, attacks and defeats the Volſci and Latins, takes their camp and the city of Bola, the capital, of the Equi; from whence he marches againſt the Volſci, whom he entirely reduced; from thence he went to Sutrium, (which the Hetrurians had taken, and turned out all the inhabitants, and in which they were revelling without guard) entered the city, put many to the ſword, took a vaſt number of priſoners, and reſtored the natives again, and then returned to Rome in triumph a third time. Upon his return, the captives were ſold, and with part of the amount of the ſale the Roman ladies were repaid for their jewels they had formerly contributed, to make a preſent to Apollo; and the remainder bought three gold vaſes, which, with Camillus's name inſcribed on them, were put at the feet of Juno in the temple of Jupiter	IV	569
3923	2616	383	Nicorceon, tyrant of Salamis, taking offence at a ſatyrical expreſſion of the philoſopher Anaxarchus, ordered him to be pounded to death with iron peſtles in a great mortar.	III	179
3923	2616	383	Nepherotes ſucceed Pſammuthis in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns only four months.	I	275
3924	2617	382	Nectanebis (the firſt of the Sebennytic race) ſucceeds Nepherotes in the kingdom of Egypt, and reigns 12 years.	I	275
3224	2617	382	The Romans lay the country of the Equi waſte, to prevent their revolting, and demoliſh the two cities of Cortuoſa and Contenebra, and repair and ſtrengthen the capitol.	IV	569
3924	2617	382	Dionyſius, the Syracuſan, makes a deſcent into Hetruria, plunders a rich temple in the ſuburbs of Agylla, from whence he carries off 1000 talents in money, and rich ſpoils that he ſold for 500 more.	III	60
3924	2617	382	The Carthaginians having declared war againſt Dionyſius king of Syracuſe, he engages Mago the Carthaginian general, and kills 10,000 of his men, takes 5000, and obliges the reſt to ſue for peace, which is refuſed.	VI	771
3924	2617	382	The Carthaginians having recruited under Mago's ſon, engage and defeat the Syracuſans at Cronion, and kill Leptines, the king's brother, and 14,000 Syracuſans on the ſpot; upon which, to obtain peace, Dionyſius was forced to pay 1000 talents, and deliver up the city and territories of Selinus, and part of the territories of Agrigentum.	III	60
3924	2617	382	Chabrias, the Athenian, engages the Lacedæmonian fleet, and after a very long and doubtful battle, at laſt gained an abſolute victory, though with the loſs of 18 gallies, the Lacedæmonians loſing 24, beſides 8 that were taken with all their men.	II	540
3924	2617	382	Chabrias, the Athenian general, after delivering the Abderites, while he was ſettling the affairs of the city was aſſaſſinated.	II	540
3925	2618	381	The Athenians and Lacedæmonians make a peace, wherein it was concluded that all the Grecian cities ſhould be free, which was neither long nor well kept, the Thebans proteſting againſt it, &c.	II	540
3925	2618	381	The Perſian army and fleet come upon the coaſts of Egypt, and attack Peluſium; but Nectanebis, king of Egypt, having well fortified and garriſoned it, the Perſians could not get any conſiderable advantage, and quarrelling among themſelves ended the war and returned home.	I	275
3925	2618	381	A temple, which in the Gauliſh war had been vowed to Mars, is now built, and conſecrated at Rome, and four tribes of the people beyond the Tiber added to make up the whole number of tribes 25, who all enjoyed the ſame common rights and privileges.	IV	569
3926	2619	380	Camillus choſe by the Romans one of the military tribunes for this year, with full power to preſide and direct in all warlike affairs; upon which he heads an army, and engages the Antiates, Latins, and Hernici, who had revolted, and overthrows them; after which, going to the relief of Sutrium. (then beſieged, and in part taken by the Hetrurians) he makes a dreadful ſlaughter of the enemy, conquers the city, and goes to Nepet, which had ſubmitted to the Hetrurians, and took it by aſſault, and put all the Hetrurian ſoldiers to the ſword, and condemned thoſe citizens to die by the lictors axes, that had promoted the diſaffection.	IV	516
3929	2622	377	Manlius, one of this year's military tribunes, endeavours by all poſſible acts of popularity to engage the peoples affections, in order to graſp the ſupreme power;

upon

Y. of world.	Y. of flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			upon which the Volci revolting, A. Cornelius Coſſus is choſe dictator, who marching againſt the Volſci, defeats them; then returning to Rome, cites Manlius before him, and condemns him for an incendiary, &c. after which he was honoured with a triumph; upon which the ſenate orders a colony of Roman citizens to be ſent to Sutrium; and allotted each man 2 acres and a half of arable land.
3929	2622	377	The Carthaginians land an army in Italy, and reſtore the inhabitants of Hippo (built by the Locri) to their city, from whence they had been expelled for being the allies of Carthage.	IV	572
3930	2623	376	A moſt terrible plague breaks out at Carthage, which ſwept away an infinite number of people, and almoſt depopulated the whole country; this diſtemper made the people ſo mad as to cauſe the afflicted to ſally out of their houſes, ſword in hand, and kill all they met with: Upon this the Africans and Sardi revolt, and are reduced with difficulty: This diſtemper is ſaid to afflict the Carthaginians ſeveral years.	VI	772
3930	2623	376	Ageſilaus, king of Sparta, comes ambaſſador to Nectanebis king of Egypt, to ſollicit ſuccours for the Lacedæmonians againſt the Thebans.	VI	773
3930	2623	376	Camillus again choſe one of this year's military tribunes, and Manlius condemned for aſpiring to the regal dignity, and thrown headlong from the capitol; but a plague happening ſoon after, the populace aſcribe it to be a judgment, for unjuſtly puniſhing Manlius.	I	272
3931	2624	375	The plague ſweeping away great numbers of the Romans, the Volſci, &c. revolt, the military tribunes aſſemble an army, but cannot go againſt them, through the violence of the plague; upon which the Volſci, &c. commit great ravages upon the Roman allies.	IV	574
3932	2625	374	Six military tribunes govern Rome this year; and the plague being ceaſed, they reduce part of the revolters to their obedience again.	IV	574
3932	2625	374	Nicocles killed Evagoras king of Cyprus, and reigned in his ſtead.
3933	2626	373	Camillus is a 6th time choſe military tribune, much againſt his will, and with L. Furius, his colleague, goes againſt the revolted Volſci, who overcome Furius, but are entirely defeated by Camillus.	IV	375
3933	2626	373	Johanan (or John) ſucceeds his father Joiada in the Jewiſh high-prieſthood; but Bagoſes, governor of Syria, &c. having promiſed it to Jeſhua, (or Jeſus his brother) upon his coming to act, Johanan raiſed his paſſion ſo high, that he killed him in the inner court of the temple; for which Bagoſes (the Perſian general) ſeverely mulcted the temple ſeven years.	IV	28
3934	2627	372	The Roman patricians oppoſe the choice of cenſors, which occaſions ſo great a diſturbance, that the Præneſtines revolt, and come up to the very gates of Rome; upon which Titus Quinctius was choſe dictator, and the Præneſtines retire from the city to the banks of the Allia; whither the dictator followed, and overthrew them: Afterwards he purſued them, and overtook them before they reached Præneſte, and overthrew them a ſecond time, took all their ſtrong holds, and appearing before Præneſte, it capitulated. The dictator returned to Rome in triumph, bringing from Præneſte the ſtatue of Jupiter Imperator, which was placed in the capitol between Jupiter Capitolinus and Minerva, and then laid down his dictatorſhip, which laſted but 25 days; upon which three patricians and three plebeians are choſe military tribunes.	IV	576
3934	2627	372	The Volſci draw the Roman generals into an ambuſcade, and kill many of their men, and take their camps.	IV	577
3934	2627	372	The Athenians and Lacedæmonians make peace again, proclaiming all the Grecian cities free, againſt which the Thebans again proteſt, &c.	II	541
3934	2627	372	The Thebans and Lacedæmonians being at war, the Thebans demand help of the Athenians, who ſend Iphicrates to their aſſiſtance, who ſucceeds but badly.	II	41
3935	2628	371	The Spartans having made a truce with the Thebans, &c, in their return home meeting Archidamus coming to their aſſiſtance with a great reinforcement, return, break the truce, engage, and are totally overthrown in the battle of Leuctra, whereby they loſt the empire of Greece, which they had held for 500 years. This fatal news coming to Sparta, while the Ephori were ſuperintending the Gymnic ſolemnities, they went on without taking any notice of the calamity.	II	616
3935	2628	371	The Volſci entering the Roman territories, lay them waſte; upon which the Romans enter the enemies country with two armies at once, and lay it waſte, and return to Rome with great booty. Two cenſors are this year choſe, but ſuſpend their office upon account of their publick troubles.	IV	577
3935	2628	371	Cleombrotus, king of Lacedæmon, is killed in battle at Leuctra, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Ageſipolis.	II	558
3936	2629	370	The Latins and Volſci join againſt the Romans, but are overthrown by the military tribunes P. Valerius and L. Æmilius.	IV	578
3936	2629	370	The Latins remaining obſtinate againſt the Romans, enter the country of the Tuſculans, and put many to the ſword, and take their city: The Romans come to their relief, take the place by aſſault, and put every Latin to the ſword, and return back to Rome, having reinſtated the Tuſculans.	IV	578
3936	2629	370	Ageſipolis king of Lacedæmon dies, and is ſucceeded by his brother Cleomenes, who reigned about two years.	II	558
3936	2629	370	Ageſilaus is made dictator at Sparta. with power even over the laws: He raiſes an army, marches into the Arcadian territories, ravages the country, takes ſome towns, and returns home.	II	617
3936	2629	370	The Mantineans rebuild their city, and fortify themſelves therein; and the Arcadians rebuild Megalopolis, to which they repair from all their villages: The Lacedæmonians go againſt them, kill Lycomedes, the Mantinean general, and 200 men; upon which the Thebans ſend them aſſiſtance, under Epaminondas and Pelopidas; the Spartans being retired, they invade Laconia, and come even to

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			Sparta; but by the wise management of Agesilaus, are forced to retire; and in their return laid waste the country as they marched off	II	617
3936	2629	370	Two hundred Spartan rebels seize the temple of Diana at Issorion; but Agesilaus having artfully dispersed them, all were taken and put to death, without any trouble	II	617
3936	2629	370	Epaminondas, the Theban general, upon his leaving Sparta rebuilt the city of Messena, and recalled and replaced the ancient inhabitants, after they had been dispossessed 300 years	II	617
3937	2630	369	Epaminondas, the Theban general, attacks and forces the lines of the Spartans and their confederates, and wastes the country of Peloponnesus, reduces Sicyon, and attacked Corinth	II	618
3937	2630	369	Tachos, king of Egypt, (the successor to Nectanebis) while he was gone to oppose the Persians in Phœnicia, was deposed at home, and Nectanebus his kinsman set up in his stead	I	275
3937	2630	369	The Roman state fall into a sort of anarchy for four years, by the contentions of the tribunes, there being only tribunes and ædiles chose governors during that time	IV	579
3938	2631	368	The Lacedæmonians kill 10,000 Arcadians, without the loss of one man	II	618
3938	2631	368	Agesilaus defeats the Mendesian that opposed Nectanebus, being king of Egypt, and thereby settles him upon the throne	I	276
3938	2631	368	Dionysius the Syracusan breaks the peace, and falls upon the Carthaginians, takes several cities from them in Sicily, &c. but growing secure and negligent, the Carthaginians surprize his gallies in the port of Eryx, and take and destroy most of them, upon which a peace ensues	VI	773
3938	2631	368	Cleomenes succeeds his brother Agesipolis as joint king of Sparta, which he held only one year	II	618
3939	2632	367	Cleomenes acts as first magistrate of Sparta, and Archidamus (son of Agesilaus) has the command of the army: He goes into Arcadia, takes Caryæ, and puts all to the sword. Cissidas, general of Dionysius, declaring his time was out, and that he must return home, which attempting, he was in part surrounded by the Messenians; hereupon he sends to acquaint Archidamus with it, who comes to his assistance, falls upon the Arcadians, and utterly defeats them, and kills 10,000 upon the spot, without losing one Spartan; which for that reason was called the tearless battle	II	618
3941	2634	365	The Velitræ declaring war against Rome, and over-running the Roman territories besiege Tusculum, whose inhabitants were now admitted as Roman citizens. Six military tribunes are chose, who raise an army, defeat the enemy, relieve Tusculum, and invest Velitræ	IV	579
3942	2635	364	The disputes between the patricians and plebeians at Rome arise to so great a heighth, that Camillus is chose a fourth time dictator; but the faction for the people was so strong, that he could do but little good, and therefore laid down his office; upon which, after a short inter-regnum, P. Manlius succeeded	VI	581
3943	2636	363	Six military tribunes govern Rome this year; but upon an information that the Gauls were in full march against Rome, Camillus was a fifth time made dictator, though now 80 years of age; he goes against the Gauls, encamped upon the banks of the Anio, and by stratagem puts them into confusion, and entirely routs them; then goes against Velitræ, which immediately submits; then returns to Rome, where he is decreed a triumph both by senate and people. Rome being now delivered from publick danger, the private disputes rising too high to be allay'd, the senate is forced to enact the three following laws, the 1st. for suppressing the military tribuneship and restoring the consulate, one of which was to be a plebeian, the other a patrician; the 2d. that what interest any person in debt had paid, should be esteemed as so much principal, and his debts so much reduced, and the remainder to be paid by equal payments; the 3d. that no Roman should hold more than 500 acres of land; the surplus to be divided among the poorer citizens	IV	582
3944	2637	362	The consulate restored in the persons of L. Æmilius Mamercinus, a patrician, and L. Sextus, a plebeian. The senate orders the great games, and a new officer, called a Prætor, is chose out of the patricians, to be a judge in all civil matters: Likewise two patrician Ædiles are chose to take care of the temples, theatres, games, markets, tribunals of justice, &c.	IV	583
3944	2637	362	New commotions break out in Peloponnesus, between the Tegetæans and Mantineans, which draw in the Athenians and Spartans	II	619
3945	2638	361	Epaminondas, in a very obstinate battle with the Lacedæmonians, &c. is killed, and a great number of men on both sides	II	542
3945	2638	361	Dionysius, the Syracusan tyrant, having caused a tragedy composed by himself to be acted at Athens, for the prize of poetry at the feast of Bacchus, was proclaimed victor, upon which he treated all Syracuse for several days, and drinking excessively, contracted a violent disorder, for the cure of which requiring an opiate, his physicians gave him one from which he never awoke	III	61
3945	2638	361	Perdiccas, king of Macedon, goes against the Illyrians; they engage, and the Macedonians are routed with a great slaughter; among the slain was Perdiccas himself, with many of the officers; his son Amyntas, then a child, was declared his successor	III	287
3945	2638	361	L. Genucius, a plebeian, and Servilius Ahala, a patrician, being consuls this year at Rome, a dreadful plague broke out, which carried off great numbers of the people, one censor, three tribunes of the people, and one Curule ædile, and the great Camillus, whose character was, that he never fought a battle without getting a complete victory, never besieged a city without taking it, nor ever led an army into the field which he did not bring back loaded with glory, honour, spoil, and booty, &c.

Y. world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3946	2639	360	Dionyſius II. (the ſon of the late Dionyſius, by his wife Doris, the Locrian) ſucceeds his father in Syracuſe, and ſends to Athens for Plato the philoſopher, to inſtruct him in polite literature, who came accordingly	III	63
3946	2639	360	Dion, a great man in Syracuſe, being baniſhed, conſpires againſt Dionyſius, and comes with 800 well diſciplined troops, who were immediately joined by a vaſt multitude of malecontents; they enter Syracuſe without oppoſition, take Epipolæ by ſtorm, and ſet all the citizens at liberty who were priſoners in the fort, and then block up all the tyrant's friends	III	67
3946	2639	360	Dionyſius returns from Caulonia in Italy, and finding his affairs deſperate, offers the Syracuſans to reſtore the government of the democracy	III	67
3946	2639	360	The parties of Dion and Dionyſius engage, wherein many being killed on both ſides, Dion at length prevails; upon which Dion is preſented with a gold crown, &c. Soon after Dionyſius offers to ſurrender the citadel, all the troops in gariſon, and money to pay them five months, and to retire into Italy; but this not being granted, he eſcaped in a ſingle veſſel, with his treaſure, &c. into Italy, leaving his ſon Apollocrates governor in the citadel.	III	69
3946	2639	360	The Macedonians, under their king Philip, defeat Mantius, the Athenian general, who was aſſiſting Argæus, Philip's competitor for the crown of Macedon	II	542
3946	2639	360	Philip, brother of the deceaſed Perdiccas, returns from Thebes, and (though at firſt he pretended to act as guardian to his nephew) preſently takes upon him the kingdom of Macedon, with the free conſent of all parties; and to ſtrengthen his intereſt, declares Amphipolis a free city, makes large preſents to the great men of Peonia, and to Pauſanias king of Sparta	III	288
3946	2639	360	C. Sulpitius, a patrician, and C. Licinias Stola, a plebeian, are choſe conſuls at Rome: The plague continuing, to appeaſe the Gods they uſe the Lectiſternium, and conſtitute new ſports, called the Scenici, or pantomime dances, and revive the ceremony of driving a nail by the dictator T. Manlius, who was now named for that purpoſe) into that part of the wall of Jupiter Capitolinus's temple which divided it from the chappel of Minerva, under the ſame roof; which being performed, he offers to raiſe an army to go againſt the Hernici, but is oppoſed by the tribunes, who compel him to lay down his office, then impeach him for his ill conduct.	IV	586
3947	2640	359	Ageſilaus, one of the famous Spartan kings, dies in his return from Perſia, and is ſucceeded in the joint kingdom of Sparta by Archidamus the 2d. who reigned 23 years	II	620
3947	2640	359	Dion is ſhamefully and ingratefully forced to fly, with his adherents, from Syracuſe	II	69
3947	2640	359	Ochus, ſon of Artaxerxes, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Perſia, the moſt cruel and wicked prince that ever reigned in Perſia, cauſing all of the blood royal of all ages and ſexes to be murdered	II	150
3947	2640	359	Argæus (a pretender to the crown of Macedon) comes with an army as far as Ægæ; the inhabitants oblige him to retire, upon which Philip purſues him, engages and defeats him, with great ſlaughter	III	289
3947	2640	359	Philip, king of Macedon, concludes a peace with the Athenians, invades the Peonians, takes their city, and reduces them to become his tributaries; then marches againſt the Illyrians, engages, totally routs, and kills 7000 upon the ſpot, and conſtrains them to buy a peace, at the expence of all their former conqueſts in Macedonia	III	290
3947	2640	359	A terrible earthquake making a chaſm that could not be ſtopped up at Rome, the augurs declared it could not be done till what the ſtrength and power of the Roman people conſiſted in was thrown into it, and that ſuch victim would ſecure the eternal duration of the Roman ſtate: M. Curtius, a brave young patrician, explained this anſwer by arms and valour, puts on his habiliments of war, and rideing upon a fine horſe, richly capariſoned, jumped into the gulph. Upon this, Genucius the plebeian conſul goes againſt the Hernici, but falls into an ambuſcade, and the legions flying, he is killed; upon which Appius Claudius is made dictator, who with great loſs and difficulty beat the Hernici, but is refuſed a triumph	IV	586
3948	2641	358	Nypſæus comes to the port of Arætuſa, with a reinforcement of men and ſupply of corn, encourages the tyrants friends to hold out to the laſt extremity: The Syracuſans ſet upon his ſhips, taking ſome, ſink others, and diſperſe the reſt; then give themſelves up to debauchery; upon which the army of Nypſæus falls upon them in the night, takes the city, and kills all they meet with, &c. and then retires into the citadel; upon which the citizens that were left ſend deputies to Dion, who makes all the haſte poſſible to their relief: The next night Dionyſius's ſoldiers ſally out of the citadel, murder all they meet with, and ſet fire to the city; in the midſt of this confuſion Dion comes with what Peloponneſian troops he had, and marching through fire, blood, and dead bodies, attacked the enemy with the greateſt fury imaginable; after many hours fight with a much ſuperior number, the Peloponneſians forced the Dionyſians into the citadel, after great loſs on both ſides: After ſome time, Apollocrates is allowed to retire, with all his friends and relations, to his father in Italy. Then Dionyſius, having nobly rewarded thoſe who had aſſiſted him, diſmiſſed his guards, lived like a private citizen, and ſoon after is murdered by one Calippus, an Athenian	III	72
3948	2641	358	Aſia Minor, Syria, Phœnice, and many other provinces, revolt from Ochus, now king of Perſia, through their hatred of his cruelty	II	150
3948	2641	358	Philip king of Macedon beſieges and takes the city of Amphipolis by ſtorm, puts all the partizans againſt his intereſt to death, and uſes all the common inhabitants kindly: Then he reduced Pydna, and Potidæa, which laſt having an Athenian gariſon, he diſmiſſed with all the marks of military honour, and delivers up the city to the Olynthians	III	290
3948	2641	358	C. Licinius Stolo, a plebeian, and C. Sulpitius (ſirnamed Peticus) being choſe conſuls at Rome, beſiege and take Terentinum from the Hernici: In their return to Rome, the gates of Tybur are ſhut againſt them, the Tyburtes being in alliance with the

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			Gauls, who were in motion again; upon which T. Quinctius Pennus is made dictator; the Gauls advance, and encamp upon the banks of the Anio, within three miles of Rome, and the Romans oppoſite to them. A Gaul of gigantic ſize and ſtrength, challenging all the Romans to a ſingle combat, Manlius accepts the challenge, engages and kills him; and tearing off a gold collar from his neck, put it on his own all bloody; from whence he was ſirnamed Torquatus. The following night the Gauls abandoned their camp, and retired into Campania	IV	583
3949	2642	357	Orontes, governor of Myſia, being choſe general of all the provinces of Aſia Minor, and upon his receiving money ſufficient to raiſe troops, to maintain them in their revolt, makes his peace with Ochus, by delivering up thoſe who had brought it; and Rheomitres, another chief, inſtead of uſing the help from Egypt, where he had collected 500 talents and 50 ſhips of war, aſſembles the ring-leaders, and delivers them into the hands of Ochus king of Perſia	II	151
3949	2642	357	Philip king of Macedon takes Crenides, the capital city of the country, lying between the river Strymon and Neſſus, famous for its gold mines; makes great alterations in the city, and new names it Philippi, directs the working the mines, more advantagiouſly than heretofore, and gets 10,000 talents a year from them	III	291
3949	2642	357	C. Petilius Libo and M. Fabius Ambuſtus, the two Roman conſuls, having each an army, Libo goes againſt the Tyburtes, and Ambuſtus againſt the Hernici, who continued their revolt upon the Gauls coming into the neighbourhood of Rome, and block up the gate Collina; upon which Servilius Ahala is made dictator, who engaged the Gauls under the walls of Rome, from whence, after much blood ſhed on both ſides, the Gauls are forced to run away, &c. Fabius overthrows the Hernici in a general battle. Libo has a triumph, Fabius an ovation; and Servilius lays down the dictatorſhip	IV	588
3950	2643	356	The Chians, Rhodians, Coans, and Byzantines, revolt from Athens, and form the ſocial war	II	542
3950	2643	356	The Rhodians join in the ſocial war againſt the Athenians, ravage the iſlands of Imbros and Leſbos, take many ſhips, and raiſes contributions ſufficient to pay their fleet and army	III	135
3950	2643	356	Chares, the Athenian general, accuſes Timotheus and Iphicrates, his colleagues, for neglect of duty; upon which they are recalled, fined, and caſhiered; Timotheus unable to pay the mulct laid on him, retired to Chelos, and there broke his heart with grief at his diſgrace	II	543
3950	2643	356	Advice is brought to Philip king of Macedon, then in the field, that his wife Olympias (daughter of Neoptolemus king of Epirus) was brought to bed of a ſon at Pella, whom he named Alexander, and who was afterwards ſirnamed the Great; at the ſame time he received alſo advice, that his chariot had gained the prize at the Olympick games, and that Parmenio his general had beaten the Illyrians	III	291
3950	2643	356	The Tyburtes come in the dead of the night to the very gates of Rome; in the morning the two conſuls march out at two different gates of the city againſt them, and drove them away immediately	IV	588
3950	2643	356	The Phocian, or ſacred war breaks out, about the temple of Apollo, and the things therein dedicated to his uſe	II	543
3951	2644	355	C. Fabius Ambuſtus the conſul goes againſt the Tarquinenſes, and is defeated, they taking 307 Romans priſoners, firſt treat them barbarouſly, and then cut their throats. C. Plautius Proculus, the other conſul, goes againſt and entirely ſubdues the Hernici	IV	588
3951	2644	355	The Boii (or Gauls) advance to Pedum, ten miles from Rome; Sulpitius is made dictator, who with his allies the Latins go againſt the Gauls, and after an obſtinate fight obtain a complete victory, and kill and drive all away, for which he is honoured with a triumph, and lays down his dictatorſhip	IV	590
3952	2645	354	Philip king of Macedon beſieges Ithome, which makes a ſtout defence, but at laſt ſurrendered, with leave to depart the place; which being done, Philip razed the city and divided the land among the ſoldiers: He is ſaid to loſe an eye in this ſiege	III	291
3952	2645	354	Intereſt of money is now ſettled at Rome, at one per cent, which heretofore had been arbitrary, according to the avarice of the lender, and neceſſity of the borrower. Licinus Stolo, the late plebeian conſul, is fined 10,000 aſſes of braſs, for having more than 500 acres of land. The Privernates having revolted, are defeated, and their city taken by the conſul Marius. The tribunes get a law paſſed, prohibiting any magiſtrate upon pain of death, to aſſemble the Comitia any where but at Rome	IV	590
3953	2646	353	Upon the death of Dion, the deliverer of Syracuſe, Calippus (or Gylippus) got into the ſupremacy of that territory, and practiſed all manner of cruelties, even greater than the former tyrants had done	III	73
3953	2646	353	Gylippus marching his forces againſt Catana, Syracuſe revolts, and going to Meſſana, the inhabitants ſhut their gates, and take up arms againſt him, and in a ſally cut off the Zacynthian troops that had murdered Dion; and all the Syracuſan cities refuſing him admittance, he retired to Rhegium, where he was ſlain by Leptines and Polyperchon.	III	73
3953	2646	353	Philip king of Macedon, having partly by fraud, and partly by force, gained poſſeſſion of the Straits of Thermopylæ, Demoſthenes, to rouſe the Athenians, compoſed the firſt of thoſe inimitable orations, ſtill in being, called the Philipics	II	545
3953	2646	353	Artabazus, governor of one of the Aſiatic provinces, revolts from Perſia, and gets Chares the Athenian to join him with a fleet and body of troops: Ochus, king of Perſia, ſends an army of 70,000 men againſt the rebels, which Chares cut all to pieces; for which ſervice Artabazus gives him large gifts, &c. Ochus threatens the Athenians to join the Chians, Rhodians, &c. with whom they were at war, if they did not recall Chares; for fear whereof they recall him, his army and fleet, with which he returns home	II	151

Y. of world	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3953	2646	353	At the requeſt of the Aleuadæ, or chiefs, Philip marches his Macedonians againſt Lycophron, the tyrant of Theſſaly, and engages him and the Phocians, his allies, who were defeated by Philip, and the Phocians driven out of Theſſaly, but Onomarchus (the Phocian general) coming with his whole army to the aſſiſtance of Lycophron, diſcomfits Philip in two general battles, and forces him to retire out of Theſſaly in great diſtreſs
3953	2646	353	Philip again engages Lycophon, and his allies the Phocians, obtains a compleat victory, kills the Phocian general, and 6000 men, obliges Lycophron and his brother Pitholaus to ſurrender the capital city Phærea into his hands, and ſwear to be quiet; then he reſtores all the cities to their liberty	III	292
3953	2646	353	All the Hetrurians taking up arms, the Romans chuſe the plebeian C. Marius Rutilus dictator, and he named C. Plautius Proculus, a plebeian, for his general of horſe; which ſo enraged the patricians, that they uſed their utmoſt intereſt to hinder his having neceſſaries for the war; but the people being pleaſed with this promotion (it being the firſt time a plebeian had been made dictator) haſten the levies and ſtores, which being ſoon ready, he marches againſt the enemy, ſurprizes and forces their camp, kills a great number, and takes 5000 priſoners; for which, in ſpite of all oppoſition, he entered Rome in triumph	III	293
3953	2646	353	The Athenians conclude the ſocial war, upon very advantagious terms to the revolters, leaving Rhodes, Chios, Cos, and Byzantium, entirely freed from any dependancy upon them	IV	591
3953	2646	353	Mauſolus king of Caria, who had aſſiſted the Rhodians and Coans againſt Athens, declares for an ariſtocratic government, and makes himſelf maſter of the two iſlands Rhodes and Cos	III	136
3954	2647	352	Hipparinus, brother of Dionyſius, arriving at Syracuſe, poſſeſſed himſelf of the city, and held it for the ſpace of two years	III	136
3954	2647	352	Artabazus, the revolted Perſian, gets 5000 Thebans, under the command of Pammenes, to aſſiſt him, by whoſe help he gained two victories over the king's forces; upon which Ochus bribes Pammenes, with 300 talents, to return home; which they doing, Artabazus is forced to fly to Philip king of Macedon for refuge	III	773
3954	2647	352	Philip king of Macedon being angry with the Athenians, arms a great number of light veſſels, which continually harraſſed their trade, and took large prizes	II	151
3954	2647	352	After great ſtruggles and an interregnum, two patricians are choſe conſuls at Rome this year, after having for 11 ſucceſſive years one of them plebeians	III	293
3955	2648	351	Nectanebus, king of Egypt, and the Phænicians, revolt from Perſia, and drive the Perſians ſent againſt Phænice out of their territories	IV	591
3955	2648	351	The Sidonians being betrayed by Mentor the Rhodian, and Tennes their king, to Ochus king of Perſia, as ſoon as they ſaw the Perſians within their walls, ſhut up themſelves in their houſes, to the number of 40,000, and burnt them and themſelves together; upon which Ochus ordered Tennes throat to be cut, and marched into Judea, took Jericho, and ſent many Jews captive, ſome into Egypt, and others into Hyrcania, along the Caſpian ſea	II	152
3955	2648	351	Ochus makes peace with the Cyprians, redreſſes their grievances, and ſettles their 9 kings in their reſpective governments	II	28
3955	2648	351	After great oppoſition, M. Fabius Ambuſtus and T. Quinctius Pennus, both patricians, are choſe conſuls to govern Rome this year. Fabius totally ſubdues the Tyburtes; and Quinctius in a bloody battle defeats the Tarquinenſes, who put all the priſoners to the ſword (to revenge the death of the 307 Romans they had murdered) except 358 which he ſent to Rome, where, after they had been ſcourged with rods, were beheaded: Upon this the Samnites (a people of Italy) enter into alliance with the Romans, who promiſe them protection, &c.	II	152
3955	2648	351	Mauſolus king of Caria dying, the nobility and people of Rhodes drive out the Carian gariſons, and recover their former liberty and government	IV	591
3955	2648	351	The Rhodians make a deſcent upon Caria; Q. Artemiſia (widow of Mauſolus) orders the Halicarnaſſians to expreſs a readineſs to ſurrender by clapping of hands, &c. upon which the Rhodians leave their ſhips, and go unguarded into the city; the queen ſeizes the Rhodian fleet, mans it with Carians, ſails to Rhodes, gets poſſeſſion of the city, and puts the chief magiſtrates to death: But Artemiſia dying ſoon after, they recovered their city and liberty again	III	136
3956	2649	350	Dionyſius comes with foreign troops, and defeats Nypſæus, governor of Syracuſe, reinſtates himſelf in the government, and acts with the utmoſt revenge and cruelty towards the people, who apply themſelves to Icetas, a Syracuſan by birth, and at that time tyrant of Leontini	III	137
3956	2649	350	Ochus, with his Greek aſſiſtants, overcome Nectanebus king of Egypt, who is forced to fly into Ethiopia, ſo that henceforward Egypt became a province of Perſia. Ochus having now quelled all diſturbances in his great empire, gives himſelf up to eaſe and luxury, and the direction of publick affairs to his two favourites, Bagoas and Mentor	III	73
3956	2649	350	Philip king of Macedon wars againſt the Olynthians, takes Zeira, a town in Chalcidia, and razed it to the ground; then takes Mycalerna and Torone, defeats the Olynthians twice in the field, and ſhuts them up in their city of Olynthus	II	153
3956	2649	350	The patricians keep the conſulate, and promote T. Manlius Torquatus to the dictatorſhip, though he had never been conſul, contrary to law; he goes againſt the Cærites, who had revolted, who immediately ſubmit, and for former kindneſſes to the Romans were forgiven, and a truce made with them for 100 years	III	294
3957	2650	349	The diſputes run ſo high, that to avoid a civil war, P. Valerius Poplicola, a patrician, and C. Marcius Rutilus, a plebeian, are choſe conſuls at Rome this year, who choſe five perſons, called bankers, to regulate they payment of debts	IV	592
3958	2651	348	Almoſt all the cities of Chalcidia, fell into the hands of Philip king of Macedon	IV	592
3958	2651	348	Two patricians are choſe conſuls at Rome this year, during which the Tarquinenſes and Faliſci ſubmit to the republick, and obtain a truce for 40 years; and Marcius	II	546

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			Rutilus, a plebian, and Cn. Manlius, a patrician, are chose censors; and a law is passed to deprive the consuls of the power of filling up the senate, and giving it to the censors	IV	592
3959	2652	347	Demosthenes pronounces three most excellent orations, still in being, to persuade the Athenians to assist the Olynthians against the Macedonians	II	546
3959	2652	347	Olynthus is betrayed to Philip king of Macedon, by Euthycrates and Lasthenes: Philip plunders the citizens houses, and sells the citizens, and celebrates Olympic games for joy of this victory, exhibiting splendid shews, making magnificent feasts, and bestowing great largesses upon those who had behaved gallantly in the siege	III	294
3959	2652	347	L. Cornelius Scipio, one of the consuls, falling sick, M. Popilius Lænas his colleague, being a plebeian, to the great mortification of the patricians, became sole general of the Roman troops: The Gauls having entered Latium, and laid the country waste, were advancing towards Rome; Popilius marches against them. and tho' desperately wounded himself, after a bloody battle overthrew them, forced them to retire with precipitation, takes and plunders their camp, and returns to Rome loaded with booty, for which he is decreed a triumph	IV	593
3960	2653	346	A peace concluded between the Athenians and Macedonians for seven years	III	295
3960	2653	346	L. Furius Camillus (son of the great Camillus) and Appius Claudius, both patricians, are chose consuls to govern Rome this year; but Appius dying, and the Gauls invading Latium, plundered it from the mouth of the Tyber to Antium. Camillus raises a great army, and encamps in the Pomptin territory, in sight of them; a fierce Gaul, cloathed in very rich armour, challenges any Roman to single combat, which is accepted by M. Valerius, a legionary tribune; they engage, but an eagle flying in the face of the Gaul, Valerius killed him; and to prevent his being stripped of his arms, the Gauls surround and defend him; this occasions a general engagement, wherein the Gauls were entirely defeated. Valerius was rewarded by Camillus with a crown of gold and two oxen, and sirnamed Corvus	IV	594
3961	2654	345	Philip king of Macedon subdues the Phocians, and so puts an end to the sacred war, orders the walls of their city to be demolished, and the people to live only in villages, and to pay 60 talents as a yearly tribute, their arms are taken from them, and their double voices in the council given to the Macedonians, by the Amphyctions, or great council of Greece, who had no voice before now	III	296
3961	2654	345	Popilius Lænas, and M. Valerius Corvus, (though but 23 years of age, and even too young to sit in the senate) are chose consuls to govern Rome this year, in which the Romans and Carthaginians make a treaty of commerce and navigation	IV	595
3962	2655	344	The Syracusans send to Corinth to beg assistance against Dionysius and the Carthaginians, who send Timoleon with an army to their assistance	III	74
3962	2655	344	Dopethes, the Athenian governor in Thrace, enters king Philip of Macedon's adjacent territories, and lays all waste with fire and sword	III	297
3962	2655	344	C. Plautius Hypsæus and T. Manlius Torquatus being chose consuls to govern Rome this year, peace being abroad, the consuls set about regulating the civil government at home, and reduce interest from one per cent to one half per cent, and allow the debtors, upon paying one quarter of their debts down, three years to pay the remainder by annual equal payments	IV	595
3963	2656	343	Dionysius surrenders the citadel of Syracuse into the hands of Timoleon, with all his treasure, arms, &c. and escapes to Corinth in a single vessel	III	76
3963	2656	343	Timoleon attacks and takes the city of Syracuse from Icetas, then assembles the citizens, who demolish the citadel, &c. and causes several edifices to be rebuilt, and proclamations to be made over all Greece, Asia, &c. to recall all the Syracusans that had fled from the cruelties of the several tyrants, promising the restoration of their lands, &c. these repair to Corinth, and with some Corinthians, &c. come and repeople Syracuse, &c.	III	77
3963	2656	343	Timoleon goes against Icetas, tyrant of Leontini, and compels him to renounce his alliance with Carthage, demolish his forts, and resign the sovereignty	III	78
3963	2656	343	The Illyrians harrass the frontiers of Macedon, but are soon quelled by Philip	III	298
3963	2656	343	The Volsci revolting from the Romans, Valerius Corvus, now a second time consul, goes against them, defeats them, takes and burns Satricum, sparing only the goddess of Mantua; for which he was honoured with a triumph, in which 4,000 captives marched before his chariot, and the secular games were for the 2d time celebrated	IV	595
3964	2657	342	Dionysius, from a wealthy powerful prince becomes so poor, as to be necessitated to keep a school at Corinth to get a maintenance	III	76
3964	2657	342	Phocion, the Atnenian general, arriving at Megara, rebuilds the long walls, and joined that city to its port Nicæa, and so secures it to the Athenians	II	547
3964	2657	342	L. Furius Camillus is a second time chose dictator at Rome, upon account of the Arunci becoming enemies to Rome, (a petty nation on the confines of Latium, on the coast of the Tyrrhenian sea.) Furius overthrew them in battle, and at his return to Rome built a temple, (which, during the action, he had vowed to Juno Moneta) on the capitol, in the place where the house of the rebellious Manlius formerly stood, and which afterwards became a publick mint, from whence the medals stamped for trade were called money	IV	595
3965	2658	341	Philip king of Macedon sends his forces into the Negropont, and demolishes Porthmos, the strongest city of those parts, leaving the country to the government of three lords, or tyrants: He likewise takes Orchus, and puts it under the direction of 5 magistrates, called also tyrants	III	299
3965	2658	341	Jaddua succeeds his father Johanan in the Jewish high-priesthood	IV	28
3966	2659	340	Philip king of Macedon marches with 30,000 men into Thessaly, and invests Perinthus, one of the most considerable cities in Propontis	III	300
3966	2659	340	P. Valerius is appointed dictator at Rome, to solemnize the festival called Feriæ Latinæ	IV	595

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3967	2660	339	Mago, the Carthaginian general, returns with his troops to Carthage, and there murders himſelf, to prevent being called to an account for his return without leave or command	III	77
3967	2660	339	Philip endeavours to ſtorm the city of Perinthus, but after a vaſt effuſion of blood on both ſides, is obliged to raiſe the ſiege both of it and alſo of Byzantium	III	304
3967	2660	339	Phocion, the Athenian general, takes ſeveral of Philip's ſhips, and retakes ſeveral towns, and raiſes contributions throughout the maritime provinces of Macedonia	III	305
3968	2661	338	The Athenians very much harraſs and diſtreſs the Macedonians by ſea, permitting none of their ſhips to ſtir out of their ports, by keeping large ſquadrons always cruiſing to take all they met with	III	305
3968	2661	338	The enmity between the Romans and Samnites breaking out, upon account of the Campanians, who threw themſelves into the protection of the Romans, by ſurrendering wholly up to them; upon which the Romans, under their conſul Valerius, and the Samnites engage, and after a moſt deſperate battle, the Samnites retire in the night, and leave the Romans maſters of the field and their camp	IV	596
3968	2661	338	Cornelius Coſſus, (ſirnamed Arvina) the other conſul, being ſurrounded, and much harraſſed and endangered by the Samnites, was delivered by P. Decius Mus, a legionary, and by a very bold ſtratagem ſurprized the Samnites, took and plundered their camp, after having cut 30,000 of them to pieces; upon which the conſul honours Decius with a gold crown, 100 oxen, and a white bull with gilt horns, and to his men he aſſigned a double quantity of corn during their life, and gave them two Saga, or military habits; the legions crown Decius with an obſidional crown, made of the graſs growing on the ſpot, and his own men crowned him with a crown of oak leaves, called the civic crown; thus crowned with three crowns, he offered up the white bull to Mars, and diſtributed the 100 oxen among his companions that ſhared the danger and glory with him	IV	597
3968	2661	338	The Samnites recruit, and Valerius goes againſt them at Sueſſula, a town ſituate between Nola and Capua, where engaging, the Romans are conquerors; 40,000 bucklers are taken from the enemy, and 120 ſtandards, and both conſuls are honoured with a triumph, and the Carthaginians preſent a crown of gold of 20 pounds weight to Jupiter Capitolinus, as a thankſgiving for this victory. This year ended with a cenſus that ſhewed 160,000 perſons fit to bear arms were in the city of Rome, and the whole cloſed with a Luſtrum	IV	598
3968	2661	338	Ochus having diſpleaſed Bagoas by robbing the Egyptian temples, and killing their god Apis, and carrying away the ſacred records from thence, 12 years afterwards kills him, cauſes his fleſh to be cut to pieces and given to the cats and made handles of knives of his bones, then puts Arſes, Ochus's youngeſt ſon, on the throne, and murders all the reſt, ſo gives Arſes the name of king, and himſelf all the power	II	154
3969	2662	337	The Macedonians engage and defeat the Athenians and Thebans in the neighbourhood of Cheronæa, with great ſlaughter, and thereby obtained the ſovereignty of Greece; after which they made a peace with the Athenians, and put a good gariſon into Thebes, and then left the reſt of the Bæotians unhurt
3969	2662	337	A rebellion breaking out at Rome, the rebels ſeize T. Quinctius (an excellent commander that had retired to his country ſeat to die in peace) in his bed, and compel him to be their captain. Valerius Corvus is choſe dictator, and goes againſt them, and pacifies them, and the ſenate not only pardons them all, but conſents to paſs the following laws: 1ſt. That no perſon who was a legionary tribune one year, ſhould be a centurion next; 2. That no Roman ſhould lend money upon intereſt, and uſury abſolutely forbidden at Rome; 3d. That both the conſuls ſhould be plebeians; 4th. That no man ſhould bear the ſame office twice in ten years, or hold two different employments the ſame year	IV	599
3970	2663	336	Philip king of Macedon convokes a general aſſembly of the Greeks, wherein he was recognized generaliſſimo of all the Greeks, is endued with power to go againſt the Perſians; and after appointing each ſtate its quota, diſmiſſes them	III	308
3970	2663	336	Philip king of Macedon repudiates his wife Olympias, mother of Alexander the Great, and eſpouſes Cleopatra, the niece of Attalus; upon which Alexander quarrels with his father, and retires with his mother into Epirus, the kingdom of his grandfather	III	310
3970	2663	336	Philip king of Macedon calls home his ſon Alexander from Epirus, and is friends with him, and alſo marries Cleopatra (the daughter of his wife Olympias) to Alexander king of Epirus, her brother	III	312
3970	2663	336	Philip king of Macedon murdered by Pauſanias, captain of his guard, at a publick feſtival made for the celebration of the marriage of his daughter Cleopatra with Alexander king of Epirus, and is ſucceeded in his kingdom of Macedon by his ſon Alexander by his wife Olympias, ſirnamed the Great, from his great natural, and acquired parts, and from his extraordinary exploits and conqueſts in war	III	314
3970	2663	336	Upon the death of Philip king of Macedon, the Grecian cities and ſtates revolt from his ſon Alexander	II	549
3970	2663	336	Bagoas, to prevent Arſes bringing him to an account for his father's death, murders him, and all his family, and then puts Darius the third upon the throne, before called Codomanus, governor of Armenia	II	154
3970	2663	336	Darius not being ſo tractable as Bagoas wiſhed him to be, purpoſed to poiſon him, of which Darius having notice, when he came with the poiſoned potion, he compelled Bagoas to drink it, and ſo ſettled himſelf upon the throne	II	154
3970	2663	336	The Privernates revolt from the Romans, but are reduced by the conſul Plautius; and the Samnites are ſo harraſſed, by Æmilius his colleague, that they ſue for peace and an alliance with Rome, which was granted	IV	599
3971	2664	335	Alexander, now king of Macedon, rejects the Athenian ambaſſadors with ſcorn, but upon their ſending Phocion; he was ſo influenced as to make a favourable peace

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			with him for the Athenians: At the ſame time Alexander contracts a great intimacy with and friendſhip for Phocion	II	549
3971	2664	335	Attalus, general of the Macedonian army in Aſia, is killed by order of king Alexander for aſpiring to the crown of Macedon	III	318
3971	2664	335	Alexander king of Macedon engages and defeats the Triballians, Thracians, &c. upon which all the neighbouring nations make peace with him	III	319
3971	2664	335	Alexander king of Macedon defeats Clytus king of Illyria, that had revolted, and Glaucias king of the Taulantii, who was come to his aſſiſtance, twice, and forces them to fly into the mountains for ſhelter	III	320
3971	2664	335	Alexander king of Macedon takes Thebes by ſtorm, kills all he meets for ſeveral hours, without regard to age or ſex, and razes all the city but the houſe of Pindar the poet; the lands he ſhared among his ſoldiers, and the priſoners he ſold for ſlaves, whereby he put 440 talents into his treaſury; this ſeverity was uſed towards the Thebans under pretence they were the allies of the Perſians, and ſo enemies to Greece. As an attonement for razing Thebes, he orders the cities Orchemenus and Platea to be rebuilt; upon which all the ſtates of Greece ſubmit to him, and he is made generaliſſimo of all Greece, &c.	III	321
3971	2664	335	Manlius Torquatus, a patrician, and Decius Mus, a plebeian, are choſen conſuls at Rome, when Alexander king of Epirus, uncle to Alexander the Great, came into Italy, being invited by the Tarentines to aſſiſt them againſt the Brutians, and concludes an alliance of friendſhip with the Romans	IV	599
3971	2664	335	The conſuls ſummon 10 of the chiefs among the Latins to declare their reaſon for their warlike preparations: The Latins demand, that one of the conſuls and half the ſenate be choſen from among them; which being rejected, both ſides fly to arms. Titus Manlius, the ſon of one of the reigning conſuls, having engaged one Gemenius Metius, a Latin, and overcome him in ſingle combat, is puniſhed with death by the conſul his father, for fighting without leave, &c.	IV	601
3971	2664	335	The Latins and Romans engage, and the conſul Decius Mus devoting himſelf to the Dii Manes, is ſlain in the midſt of the Latins: The Romans having made a prodigious ſlaughter of the Latins, at length gain the victory over them at the foot of mount Veſuvius; after which Numicius their general recruits, and again engages the conſul Manlius at a village called Triſana, where he is a ſecond time overthrown; upon which Manlius lays all Latium waſte; and all the Latin cities ſurrender at diſcretion, likewiſe Privernum among the Volſci, and all Campania, with Capua its capital; the conſul takes their lands from them, and diſtributes them among the Romans, except the lands of the Laurentini and the Campanian knights, who were not concerned in the revolt	IV	602
3971	2664	335	The Campanian knights, to the number of 1800, for their faithfulneſs to the Romans, were made citizens of Rome, but without right of ſuffrage; and this privilege was engraved on braſs, and fixed up in the temple of Caſtor and Pollux; and an annual portion of 45 denarii aſſigned each of them out of the public revenues of Campania. Manlius falling ſick, L. Papirius Craſſus is made dictator, and goes with his troops into the country of the Antiates, who had revolted, where he ſtays ſome months, living at free quarter, and then returns to Rome, to chuſe conſuls.	IV	603
3972	2665	334	Anaximenes, the great hiſtorian, comes to meet Alexander, and to intercede for Lampſacus, a city that Alexander had determined to deſtroy, for ſiding with the Perſians. Upon ſeeing him, Alexander ſwears he would not grant him what he ſhould require; whereupon Anaximenes begs him to burn Lampſacus, and ſo ſaved it	III	325
3972	2665	334	Alexander croſſing the river Granicus in Aſia, engages the Perſian army, and defeats them with great ſlaughter, and the taking many priſoners.—Then marching to Sardis, it immediately ſurrenders, and with it all Lydia. Then he goes to Epheſus, and reſtores the democracy, and orders the tribute heretofore paid to the Perſians, to be applied to the rebuilding the temple of Diana; and by another edict, he ordered the reſtoration of the popular government in all the Greek cities, and ſent Alcimalus with a body of troops to ſee it executed	III	326
3972	2665	334	Miletus is taken by the Macedon troops by ſtorm; Alexander treats the citizens with great humanity, and ſells all the ſtrangers for ſlaves	III	327
3972	2665	334	Alexander beſieges, takes, and demoliſhes Halicarnaſſus, and makes Ada governeſs of all Caria. Upon this, moſt of the Aſiatic princes revolt from Darius, and ſubmit to Alexander; among whom was Mithridates king of Pontus	III	330
3972	2665	334	The Marmarians harraſs Alexander's army, upon which he purſues and beſieges them; and after defending themſelves ſome time, the young men murder the old men, women and children, burn their houſes, and cut their way through Alexander's guards, and fly to the mountains	III	330
3972	2665	334	Alexander, ſon of Æropus, general of the Theſſalian horſe, correſponds with Amyntas, who was in the ſervice of Darius. Amyntas promiſes him, in Darius's name, 1000 talents of ſilver, and the kingdom of Macedon, to murder the king. Parmenio, the Macedonian general, communicates it to the king; upon which Alexander is ſeized and put to death	III	331
3972	2665	334	Q. Publius, a plebeian conſul, goes againſt an army of the Latins, that had revolted; overcomes them, and is honoured with a triumph: but Æmilius the patrician, his colleague, gaining only ſome ſmaller advantages againſt another Latin army, is denied that honour, which makes him exclaim extremely againſt the Patricians: They order him to name a dictator, and he chooſes Publius, a plebeian, who alſo choſe Brutus Scævola, a plebeian, for his general of the horſe	IV	603
3973	2666	333	The Macedonians take the city of Aſpendius, receive 100 talents, a great number of horſes, and a conſtant tribute, for its redemption, and Alexander marches through Phrygia, to meet the reſt of his troops at Gordium	III	332

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3973	2666	333	Darius, by the perſuaſion of the Perſian Lords puts Charidemus to death, who had long been a famous Athenian officer under Philip king of Macedon, for upbraiding them with cowardice, &c.	III	332
3973	2666	333	Alexander king of Macedon, waiting at Gordium for the arrival of the reſt of his troops, undoes the knot in their cord, by which Gordius's chariot hung in the palace of Midas their king; concerning which the oracle is ſaid to have declared, that he that could undo it, ſhould reign over all Aſia.	III	333
3973	2666	333	L. Furius Camillus, a patrician, and C. Mænius, a plebeian, being conſuls at Rome this year, overcome the united forces of the Latins, take the town of Pedum by aſſault, and bring all Latium into ſubjection; having finiſhed the war, the conſuls return to Rome, have a triumph, and two Equeſtrian ſtatues in the forum	IV	603
3973	2666	333	Upon Alexander's arriving at Ancyra, a city of Galatia, the province of Paphlagonia ſubmits; he then proceeds to reduce Cappadocia, and poſſeſs himſelf of Cilicia; ſoon after is taken with a violent illneſs, of which he is cured by Philip his phyſician, who was accuſed with deſigning to poiſon him	III	333
3973	2666	333	Harpalus, one of Alexander's commanders, having miſbehaved, flies from Aſia, where he was governor, with prodigious wealth to Athens, from whence he is baniſhed by the ſenate	II	550
3973	2666	333	The Latins, from allies, become ſubjects to the Romans, and are indifferently treated, according as their cities had been more or leſs vigorous in the late revolt, &c.	IV	604
3974	2667	332	Alexander totally defeats Darius, with an army of 600,000 men, at the battle of Iſſus, in which about 100,000 were killed, and the tent of Darius taken, wherein was his mother, wife, two daughters, and his little ſon, whom Alexander ordered to be treated with the utmoſt tenderneſs and reſpect, and by his univerſal good uſage wrought upon all the provinces of Cælo-Syria to ſubmit: Parmenio, one of Alexander's generals, takes all Darius's baggage, treaſure, and equipage, left at Damaſcus	III	337
3974	2667	332	Alexander takes Tyre by ſtorm, after a long ſiege, kills about 8,000, ſells 30,000 for ſlaves, and pardons king Azelmicus, and ſuch Tyrian lords as were taken with him in the temple of Hercules, where Alexander, aſſiſted with his whole army, offered ſacrifice	III	341
3974	2667	332	Darius offers 10,000 talents of ſilver for the ranſom of his mother, wife, and children, that he would conſent to the marriage of his daughter with Alexander, and would acknowledge him both for his friend and confederate	III	343
3974	2667	332	Alexander goes with anger towards Jeruſalem, where he is met by Jaddua the high-prieſt, and all the other prieſts in their veſtments, at Sapha, or Tzaphah, an eminence that commanded a proſpect of the whole city and temple, where Alexander pays them great reſpect, remits that year's tribute, and confirms them in all their privileges granted them by the kings of Perſia, upon which many of the Jews liſt themſelves in his army, &c.	II	28
3974	2667	332	Gaza (about five miles from the ſea) a large and ſtrong town at the entrance into Egypt, and the bridle of Paleſtine, after a ſtout reſiſtance and great ſlaughter, is taken by Alexander, and thereby all Syria was loſt from Darius	III	344
3974	2667	332	Alexander goes into Egypt, Peleſium is ſurrendered by the Perſians, without any oppoſition; from thence he ſails up the Nile, lands and marches through the deſarts to Heliopolis, croſſes the river and comes to Memphis, and there offers ſacrifice to all the Grecian deities, and to the Egyptian Apis, and celebrates magnificent games, ſails down the river to the ſea, paſſes round the city Canopus, and wherever he came, orders the erection of publick temples and ſtructures	III	345
3974	2667	332	Demoſthenes the Athenian orator being convicted of bribery by the court of Areopagus, was fined 50 talents, and to avoid impriſonment flew to Ægina	II	550
3974	2667	332	The Rhodians ſubmit voluntarily to Alexander the Great, which pleaſed him ſo much, that he ſhewed them upon all occaſions marks of his eſteem and friendſhip, and is ſaid to have depoſited his laſt will in their archives	III	137
3974	2667	332	Publius, a plebeian, is choſe prætor at Rome, which is the firſt time any of that order had been admitted into that dignity, which reconciled the people and nobility	IV	604
3975	2668	331	Alexander goes to the temple of Jupiter Ammon, and ſacrifices, then returns to Memphis, and ſettles the government of Egypt	III	348
3975	2668	331	The Samaritans having killed Andromachus, governor of Samaria under Alexander, by burning his palace and him in it, and his attendants, Alexander revenged it by putting to death all who had any manner of concern in it, and drove out the reſt, and then peopled the city with Macedonians, and granted the reſt of their territories to the Jews	II	30
3975	2668	331	Alexander engages Darius at the village of Guagamela, and routs his army conſiſting of 1,000,000 horſe and foot, with great ſlaughter, and many priſoners, and purſues Darius himſelf 10 miles; Parmenio taking the enemies baggage, elephants, and camels, and ſo abſolutely decided the fate of Aſia	III	351
3975	2668	331	Alexander marches againſt Babylon, upon whoſe arrival Mazæus the Perſian governor retires, and the Babylonians come out joyfully to ſubmit to Alexander	III	353
3975	2668	331	Agis, king of Sparta, having revolted from Alexander's authority, is engaged by Antipater the Macedonian general, and killed, with 5,500 of his men, and the reſt diſperſed; which confirmed Alexander in his ſupremacy over all Greece	III	354
3975	2668	331	Alexander marches to Suſa, where was Darius's palace and treaſure, which had been delivered into the hands of his general Philoxenes; here he received 50,000 talents, being upwards of 9,000,000 ſterling, and furniture and curioſities of immenſe value; then he reduces all the provinces as he paſſes	III	354
3975	2668	331	Beſſus, governor of Bactria, Barzaentes, preſident of Aracoſia, and Nabarzanes, a general of horſe, ſeeing Darius's misfortunes, revolt from and ſeize him, with intent to ſet up themſelves: Upon Alexander's hearing of it, he purſues the rebels, and upon his coming up to them, they ſtab and kill Darius, and then fly	III	359

The

Y. of world.	Y. of flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3975	2668	331	The Sidicini and Auſones, who had infeſted the country of the Arunci, at this time in alliance with Rome, are defeated by the conſuls, &c.	IV	604
3976	2669	330	A conſpiracy is formed againſt the life of Alexander, which being diſcovered, Dymnus, the perſon who was to have killed the king, upon his being apprehended ſtabs himſelf.	III	364
3976	2669	330	Alexander, after vaſt marches in a very rigorous ſeaſon, and through difficult ways, comes into Media, and orders a city to be built, which he called Alexandria.	III	368
3976	2669	330	Beſſus, the Perſian rebel, having changed his name into Artaxerxes, upon hearing of Alexander's march againſt him, waſtes all the country as he paſſes, and burns his ſhips, then retires to Nautaca, a city of Sogdia: Alexander continuing his march, reduces all Bactria, and Beſſus is delivered into his hands.	III	370
3976	2669	330	The Abii, a people of Scythia, having revolted, and taken many cities, Alexander goes againſt them at Gaza, takes it by ſtorm, burns the city, kills all the males, and gives all the plunder and women to his ſoldiers, and went ſo on from place to place, deſtroying and conquering all where-ever he came.	III	371
3976	2669	330	Pharnaces, one of Alexander's generals, with 2,300 men, horſe and foot, is cut off by Spitamenes, all but 340; upon which Alexander goes againſt him in perſon, but he flying, Alexander waſtes and deſtroys all the country, and puts the people to death; then he marched to Zariaſpa, and went into winter quarters; here he ordered Beſſus to be brought into court, to have his noſe and ears cut off, and then ſent him to Ecbatana, to be tried according to the laws of the Medes and Perſians, for the murder of Darius late king of Perſia.	III	373
3976	2669	330	M. Valerius Corvus, now a fourth time conſul, takes Cale, the metropolis of the Auſones, by means of covered galleries and moveable towers, which he invented to ſcreen his men from their darts and ſtones.	IV	604
3977	2670	329	Alexander changes the anniverſary feſtival of Bacchus into the feſtival of the Dioſcuri, i. e. Caſtor and Pollux; here at a ſumptuous feaſt were preſent all the principal commanders, and particularly Clytus, the king's favourite, whom the king, in a fit of drunken madneſs, killed.	III	376
3977	2670	329	Alexander king of Macedon, now called the Great King, receives divine honours, with which being much elated, a conſpiracy is formed to kill him, by ſeveral young noblemen; but being diſcovered, the conſpirators are ſtoned to death.	III	381
3977	2670	329	The king of Scythia offers an alliance to Alexander, which he declines, but accepts of the offer of Pharaimanes king of the Choraſmeni, a people bordering on the Euxine ſea, and makes an alliance with him.	III	381
3977	2670	329	The new Roman conſuls enter the enemy's country, and lay it waſte, and then return to Rome; when it being reported the Samnites had joined the Sidicini, P. Cornelius Rufinus was appointed dictator; but the augurs declaring his nomination defective, he was obliged to abdicate. A plague being now at Rome, they declared the inauguration of the conſuls was faulty, upon which they were diſplaced, and an interregnum followed.	IV	604
3978	2671	328	Alexander marches into Sogdia, beſieges and takes a fortreſs built on a rock, and thereby cuts off the retiring place of the revolters, wherein was Roxana, the wife of Oxycrates, the greateſt beauty in the world, whom Alexander married; upon which Oxycrates ſurrenders, and with him all Sogdia, and is received with all the marks of eſteem and friendſhip.	III	384
3978	2671	328	Alexander coming to the river Cophenes, ſends a herald to Taxiles, and all the other princes on this ſide of the river Indus, to come and meet him, which Taxiles does, with great preſents; from thence Alexander goes to the river Choe, beſieges and takes a city double walled with ſome difficulty, and razes it; then proceeds to Andaca, which was ſurrendered on terms; he goes on, and at laſt engages a great army of the natives, which he entirely conquered, killing 40,000 upon the ſpot, and taking 230,000 head of cattle, part of which, for their extraordinary ſize, goodneſs, and beauty, he ſent to Macedon, to mend the Grecian breed, and to perpetuate the memory of this great victory.	III	387
3979	2672	327	Alexander paſſes the river Indus, and from thence goes to the rive. Hydaſpes, where his paſſage is long hindered by king Porus; but having by a ſtratagem croſſed the river, engages, overthrows, and kills 20,000 foot, and 3,000 horſe, hacked 300 chariots to pieces, killed and took all the elephants and two of Porus's ſons, and moſt of the officers of rank were alſo killed; Porus ſubmits, and is received with the utmoſt civility by Alexander, who not only returned him his own kingdom, but added very large provinces and kingdoms to it, &c. To perpetuate the memory of this victory, Alexander ordered two cities to be built, one on the field of battle, called Nicæa, and the other on this ſide of the river where he encamped, called Bucephala, in honour of his horſe, which died here of age, being 30 years old.	III	392
3979	2672	327	Several Indian princes confederate together; Alexander engages them before the city Sangala, ſeated on the top of a hill, defeats them with great ſlaughter, and takes the city by ſtorm, kills 17,000, and takes 70,000 priſoners, 300 chariots, and 500 horſe, razes the city, and goes to the river Hyphaſis.	III	394
3979	2672	327	Alexander's army mutiny, and inſiſt upon returning home, to which he conſents, and having made proper preparations, embarks his troops, &c. In his paſſage he reduces the Malli, by taking their city by ſtorm, and putting all to the ſword he finds in it; he then paſſes the river Hydraotis, and engages a large army, which defeating, he beſieges and ſtorms the city where they had retired, and being deſperately wounded, is with great difficulty preſerved alive; the ſoldiers in revenge put all they meet with to the ſword; the Malli and Oxydracæ ſubmit, and make great preſents, whoſe example ſeveral other kingdoms and provinces follow and do the like.	III	399
3979	2672	327	It being groundleſly reported the Gauls were coming againſt Rome, Papirius Craſſus is named dictator, the City, now greatly encreaſed, two new tribes, viz. the Mæcian and Scaptian, are added to thoſe that were already in being.	III IV	399 604

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3980	2673	326	A great number of Roman ladies conſpire and poiſon their huſbands, which being diſcovered by a woman ſlave, the ladies drink the poiſon they were preparing, and ſo kill themſelves.	IV	605
3981	2674	325	The Privernates and Fundi revolt from Rome, but after a long ſiege Privernum ſurrenders, and Vitrius, the author of the revolt, being delivered up, was firſt beaten with rods, and then beheaded. The two conſuls upon their return to Rome have a triumph, and Æmilius is ſirnamed Privernas: After puniſhing ſome of the ringleaders, Privernum was declared a Municipium, and incorporated into the Roman ſtate.	IV	606
3981	2674	325	Alexander loſes a vaſt number of his troops, &c. as he is paſſing through Gedroſia, by drought and famine, &c. Upon his coming into Camerania, puts Clitander, Sitalces, and Heracon to death, for male adminiſtration during his abſence: Orſines the Perſian governor is crucified, and Peuceſtas appointed in his ſtead. Atropas, governor of Media, is put to death, for aſſuming the regal title and wearing the royal tiara.	III	404
3981	2674	325	Calanus the Indian philoſopher, tutor of Lyſimachus, obtains leave of Alexander to have a funeral pile, on which laying himſelf at full length, remained without voice or motion in the midſt of the flames till he was conſumed.	III	405
3981	2674	325	Alexander goes to Suſſa, where Abulites and his ſon Oxathres being proved guilty of male adminiſtration, are put to death; and then he gives a looſe to luxury, pleaſure and eaſe, takes Barſine, or Statira, the daughter of Darius, and Pariſatis, the daughter of Ochus, for his wives: To Hepheſtion, Craterus, &c. he gave the greateſt Perſian ladies, to the number of 80, all which marriages were ſolemnized at once: Next, he ordered all his troops to make their demand, which coming to 20,000 talents, he pays them, and orders a crown of gold to be given to each of his favourites.	III	406
3981	2674	325	Alexander being returned to Opis, a city on the Tygris, he makes proclamation for ſuch as were infirm, or deſirous to have leave, to lay down their arms, &c. A mutiny ariſing, he orders 13 of the ringleaders to be put to death on the ſpot, and ſo prevented its ſpreading further.	III	406
3981	2674	325	The Macedonians come to the king's palace, and lay down their arms, proteſting they would remain there day and night till he had compaſſion on them; which ſo melted him, that he came and kiſſed them, and ordered a publick feaſt, at which 9000 perſons were preſent; the Macedonians ſat next the king, next them the Perſians, and next them people of all nations.	III	407
3982	2675	324	Harpalus having again robbed the king's treaſury of 5000 talents, for fear of puniſhment, raiſes 6000 mercenaries, leaves them at Tenarus, and goes himſelf to Athens; but being forced away from thence, returns to his troops, where he is killed by Thimbro, his intimate friend.	III	407
3982	2675	324	Alexander, upon Harpalus's revolt, marches immediately to Ecbatana, where he offered ſacrifice, and exhibited ſolemn ſports; but Hepheſtion dying, makes him melancholy; he honours him with great marks of his eſteem, and orders him a monument at the expence of 1000 talents.	III	408
3982	2675	324	Near Ecbatana was a rude and barbarous people, called the Coſſeans, who had never been conquered by the Perſians, and who continually made incurſions, and committed robberies upon the neighbouring countries; theſe Alexander, after ſeveral encounters, forces to ſubmit to his mercy.	III	408
3982	2675	324	Ambaſſadors come from all parts of Greece to Babylon, with garlands on their heads, preſenting golden crowns to Alexander, thereby intending him divine honours.	III	410
3982	2675	324	Alexander quitting his throne to quench his thirſt, a mean fellow a priſoner ruſhes through the eunuchs, and ſeats himſelf thereon, for which preſumption he is put to death.	III	410
3983	2676	323	The Palæpolitans, who were originally Eubæans, coming into Italy, built Cumæ, and Naples, or Neapolis, make an irruption into the Roman territories: The Samnites alſo break the peace; Publius the late conſul, a plebeian, is made Proconſul, and by ſtratagem takes Palæopolis, and diſperſes the Samnites, and in ſpite of the nobles enters Rome in triumph, which is denied the two conſuls, though they alſo had gained great advantages over the Samnites.	IV	607
3983	2676	323	Alexander dies at Babylon of a raging fever, ſaid to be occaſioned by poiſon given him by Antipater, &c. He left behind him a ſon named Hercules, by his wife Barſina, daughter of Artabazus, and widow of Memnon, who was afterward murdered; by Roxana daughter of Oxycrates the Bactrian, a poſthumous ſon named Alexander, who for a time had the title of king; by Cleophes queen of part of India, a ſon named Alexander, who ſucceeded his mother in her kingdom. He died lord of a multitude of fair provinces, ſovereign of many large kingdoms, and held empire more extenſive than any before him: Macedon was his hereditary kingdom; great part of Thrace and Illyria he ſubdued, and all Greece was under his protection: In Aſia his conqueſts reached from the Helleſpont to the Indian ocean, and Egypt and Libya were his.	III	414
3983	2676	323	Upon the death of Alexander king of Macedon, (called the Great King) all the great men, having various intereſts to promote, are much divided about a ſucceſſor; at laſt name Aridæus, brother to Alexander, and change his name to Philip.	III	415
3983	2676	323	Perdiccas, maſter of the horſe, cauſes a luſtration of the army, takes 300 out of the phalanx of foot, and throws them to the elephants, who were openly devoured and deſtroyed; then purſues Meleager into a temple, whither he had fled for ſafety, and orders him to be murdered, and ſo eſtabliſhes himſelf in the power he aim'd at for a time.	III	416
3983	2676	323	Alexander, the new-born ſon of Roxana, (the late king Alexander's wife) is joined with Aridæus (now Philip) in the regal authority; and the ſeveral kingdoms and provinces diſtributed to the late king Alexander's favourites, generals, &c.	III	417

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
3983	2676	323	Perdiccas and Roxana (for her ſon) govern without controul. Roxana ſends letters under Alexander's ſeal for Statira, and Drypatis the daughter of Darius, wives to the late king Alexander, and Hepheſtion, to come to Babylon immediately, where being arrived, they are murdered.	III	418
3983	2676	323	The mercenary Greeks aſſemble themſelves under one Philip, to the number of 20,000 foot and 3000 horſe, and endeavour to march home. Perdiccas ſends one Pithon againſt them, with orders to deſtroy them all, and to give their effects to the ſoldiers under him; which was accordingly executed.	III	419
3983	2676	323	The Rhodians revolt from Macedon, drive out all the Macedonian gariſons, and become a free people.	III	137
3984	2677	322	Violent ſtorms of rain, hail, thunder, &c. happen at Rhodes, whereby abundance of the inhabitants are killed and drowned, and the wall of the city broke down, which gives vent to the waters, and ſaves the city and people from intire deſtruction.	III	137
3984	2677	322	Seuthes, deſcended of the antient race of the Odryſſian kings, comes againſt Lyſimachus, governor of Thrace, with 20,000 foot and 8000 horſe; which Lyſimachus is forced to engage, with 4000 foot and 2000 horſe, and behaved ſo gallantly, that he kept the field, and preſerved his government.	III	419
3984	2677	322	Jaddua the Jewiſh high-prieſt dies, and is ſucceeded in that office by his ſon Onias, who enjoyed that dignity about 21 years.	IV	30
3984	2677	322	Upon the death of Alexander the Great, the Athenians and their allies, under Leoſthenes, go againſt the Macedonians with a great army; they engage Antipater, who, being much inferior in number, is beaten, and forced to fly to Lamia (a city of Theſſaly,) whither Leoſthenes follows, and beſieges him; where Leoſthenes being killed by a ſtone, Antiphalus is choſen general in his ſtead; who engaging the Macedonians under the command of Leonatus, overthrew them; upon which growing careleſs and ſecure, Leonatus, being joined by Antipater and Craterus, they engage and overthrow Antiphalus and Memnon, which ſo diſpirited the confederate Greeks, that they ſued to Antipater for peace, which he granted them ſeparately, and thereby reduced the power of Athens ſo much, as to force them to conſent to the delivering up of Demoſthenes and Hyperides, and that the old method of taxing in the city ſhould be reſtored, that they ſhould receive a Macedonian gariſon into Munichia, defray the charges of the war, &c. This being agreed to Demoſthenes poiſoned himſelf.	II	551
3984	2677	322	Timoleon, full of age and poſſeſſed of the love of all the people, dies, and is buried with great pomp at the public expence, 200 Minas being decreed for that purpoſe: 'Twas likewiſe enacted, that the day of his death ſhould annually be honoured with publick ſports, horſe-races and Gymnaſtic games; and whenever the Syracuſans were engaged in a war with the Barbarians, they ſhould ſend to Corinth for a general.	III	79
3984	2677	322	Perdiccas goes againſt Ariarathes king of Cappadocia; upon the frontiers they engage, and Perdiccas kills 1000, takes Ariarathes and 6000 more priſoners, and diſperſes the reſt; crucifies Ariarathes, and ſettles Eumenes governor under the two kings of Macedon, &c.	III	420
3984	2677	322	Perdiccas, to revenge the death of Balacrus, the governor of Lauranda, and Iſſaurus, whom the people had killed, aſſaults and takes Lauranda by ſtorm, puts all able to bear arms to the ſword, and ſells the youth, women, and children, for ſlaves, then beſieging Iſſaurus, a ſtrong and populous city, which was long defended with great bravery, but at laſt, rather than be taken, the Iſſaurians burnt the city, with their parents, wives, and children.	III	420
3984	2677	322	The Lucanians are drawn, by a ſtratagem, to declare for the Samnites againſt Rome.	IV	608
3984	2677	322	The Roman ſenate make a law to abrogate the power of creditors over their debtors, appointing, that no citizen's perſon ſhould be impriſoned for debt, but only for criminal matters.	IV	608
3985	2678	321	Agathocles, a potter by trade, being firſt a common ſoldier, for his beauty, ſtrength, and activity, was by Demas the Agrigentine general made a Chiliarch (or commander of 1000 men) and upon Demas's dying, married his widow, and ſo became the richeſt citizen of Syracuſe: But Soſiſtratus having uſurped the ſupreme authority, drove him out of Syracuſe; from whence he retired to Italy, and ſettling at Crotona, attempted the ſovereignty thereof, but was forced to fly from the rage of the multitude to Tarentum, from whence he was likewiſe driven for the like practices, and now all cities refuſing him, he collected a body of exiles, and lived by robbery and plunder. Soſiſtratus coming into Italy beſieged Rhegium; Agathocles and his band unexpectedly fell upon him, and obliged him to return home, where he was ſoon after forced to abdicate the ſovereignty, and quit Syracuſe, with about 600 citizens ſuſpected of deſigning to demoliſh Democracy, and ſet up Oligarchy; upon which they apply to the Carthaginians, who eſpouſe their cauſe; and the Syracuſans call home Agathocles, and make him their commander in chief, who overthrows Soſiſtratus and the Carthaginians in a pitch'd battle, wherein he received ſeven wounds: Upon this beginning to exerciſe ſovereign power, the Syracuſans have recourſe to Corinth, who ſent Aceſtorides to command their army, who commanded Agathocles to go out of the city; but he got a young man that reſembled him to go in his ſtead, who was ſeized, murdered, and buried, as ſoon as he came without the city, thinking him to be Agathocles, but were ſoon undeceived by Agathocles making his eſcape privately, and raiſing troops in the heart of Sicily; upon which the Syracuſans offered to recal him home, if he would diſband his troops, which he agreed to, and being conducted to the temple of Ceres, ſwore to do nothing prejudicial to the eſtabliſhed Democracy, then conſiſting of 600 of the chief citizens: He was again made commander in chief of the forces going againſt the revolted Erbitans; he employs his army to ſeize Syracuſe, under pretence of ridding them of the 600 tyrants, and their abettors, and murders all they meet with, without regard to age, ſex, or rank, plundered the houſes, and committed all manner of cruelties; ſo that a few hours ſtrewed the ſtreets with upwards of 4000 dead carcaſes. This horrid work continued two days; the third day Agathocles ſummons thoſe citizens that were left alive, tells them his deſign was only to eſtabliſh the Democracy free, and that he would live a private life: This ſaid, his adherents proclaimed him king, with an abſolute power. His firſt law was, that all the lands ſhould be equally divided between the rich and the poor, which gained him the populace, and then behaved very mildly, freely, and equitably; and thus, in about two years time, he made himſelf maſter of all Sicily, when he behaved as cruelly and inhumanly as ever any before him had done.

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
3985	2678	321	Perdiccas firſt murders Cynane, the daughter of Philip late king of Macedon, and promotes her daughter Ada (or Eurydice) to be the wife of king Aridæus (or Philip;) upon which Antigonus, governor of Pamphilia, &c. retires to Greece, to accuſe Perdiccas to Antipater and Craterus.	III	82
3985	2678	321	Ptolemy, governor of Egypt, ſends Ophellas againſt Thimbro; who conquers, takes, and crucifies Thimbro, and ſo adds Cyrene to Egypt.	III	421
3985	2678	321	Aridæus (one of Alexander the Great's commanders) after two years preparation for the burial of Alexander, late king of Macedon, &c. carries his body from Babylon into Egypt: Ptolemy goes as far as Syria in perſon, to meet and do honour to his dead maſter; and conducting his corps to Alexandria, buries him in a rich temple, built there on purpoſe.	III	421
3985	2678	321	Perdiccas hearing that Ptolemy, Craterus, and Antipater deſigned to unite and take his power from him, (which he exerciſed to the diſlike of every body) raiſes a great army, takes the two kings with him, and goes into Egypt; where, after loſing a great many of his men, by death and deſertion, &c. he is murdered by the remainder in his tent; upon which Ptolemy comes and treats the army with great tenderneſs; and Aridæus and Pithon were choſe protectors of the kings perſons and chief miniſter of ſtate.	III	421
3985	2678	321	Eumenes obtains two victories over Craterus and Antipater for Perdiccas, in which Craterus, and Neoptolemus, the revolted governor of Armenia, were ſlain; upon hearing whereof, in two days after Perdiccas's death, the ſoldiers put all the friends of Perdiccas to death, proſcribed Eumenes and 50 men of quality with him, and then left Egypt and returned into Cælo-Syria, under the command of Aridæus and Pithon. At their arrival at Tryparadiſus, Antipater, governor of Greece, &c. join them. Aridæus and Pithon lay down their office, and Antipater is choſen protector, with ſovereign power: But Eurydice, wife of king Philip, behaving imperiouſly, is check'd by Antipater; upon which, in a ſet oration, ſhe accuſed him to the army, which occaſions great diſorders; but after ſome days matters were ſettled, and Antipater continued in the adminiſtration; upon which he made a new diviſion of the provinces, and declared Eumenes a publick enemy, and ordered Antigonus, general of the houſhold troops, to proſecute the war againſt him; then returns with the two kings into his own province, highly commended and admired by all the Macedonians.	III	423
3985	2678	321	The Veſtini (a people on the Adriatick ſea) take arms againſt Rome: The conſul D. Junius Brutus goes againſt them, defeats them, and takes the cities Cutina and Cingalia from them,	IV	608
3985	2678	321	The other Roman conſul L. Furius Camillus falling ſick, names L. Papirius Curſor to be dictator, and to act againſt the Samnites. He took the field, but was obliged to return home upon account of the auſpices being reported unfavourable, and ordered Fabius, his general of horſe, not to engage the enemy in his abſence: He diſobeys, and overthrows the Samnites, and kills 20000 of them on the ſpot; ther burns the ſpoil, inſtead of lodging it in the hands of the Quæſtor, that they might not encreaſe the pomp of the dictator's triumph. The dictator commands Fabius to be ſtripped, &c. which while the lictors are doing, he eſcapes, and great commotions and mutinies are in the army. Fabius goes to Rome, and appeals to the people; but the dictator gets the better of him; but all the orders of the people joining with Fabius's ſubmiſſion, the dictator pardons him, and ſo all is quiet again.	IV	609
3986	2679	320	Eumenes collects the beſt army he can, but when engaged with Antigonus, is betrayed by Apollodorus his general of horſe, loſes 8000 men, and is totally routed, but with the remains of his army returns into the field of battle, burns the bodies of the ſlain, makes two heaps of their aſhes, and covers them with earth; then diſmiſſes his army, all but 600 men, takes poſſeſſion of the caſtle of Nora, (exceedingly ſtrong, ſituate on the top of an inacceſſible rock, which Antigonus not able to take, builds a ſtrong wall round the bottom, leaves men to defend it, and goes againſt Alcetas and Attalus, who ſided with Eumenes.	III	424
3986	2679	320	Antigonus marches into Piſidia, engages and overcomes Alcetas, who flying to Trenneſſus with 6000 troops, is there murdered, and his carcaſs delivered to Antigonus. Attalus, Decimus, and Polemon were taken priſoners, &c. Upon this Antigonus endeavours to make himſelf ſupreme in Aſia.	III	425
3986	2679	320	Papirius being continued dictator, engages the Samnites, totally overthrows them, and then over-run Samnium, and forced the enemy to ſue for peace, which was granted them upon hard terms: Upon his return to Rome he is decreed and honoured with a triumph.	IV	610
3987	2680	319	The Samnites being joined by the Apulians, declare war againſt Rome: The conſuls go againſt them, but they ſhutting themſelves up in their ſtrong holds, little could be done with them this year.	IV	610
3987	2680	319	The Carthaginians ſend Imilcar with a great fleet and army againſt Agathocles, which is much ſhattered by a violent ſtorm, and the remainder Agathocles attacks near Himera, forces his trenches, and cuts moſt of his troops to pieces:

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			But while his men were greedy after plunder, an unexpected reinforcement comes from Carthage; they fall upon and rout Agathocles, who was forced to fly into his metropolis, whither they follow and beſiege him	III	83
3987	2680	319	Agathocles engages the Carthaginian fleet, beats and diſperſes them, then lands his men in Carthage, and burns his own ſhips, to make his men reſolutely deſperate, takes and plunders a place called the Great City, and likewiſe Tunis, which he razed to the ground; then advanced towards Carthage, and engaged Hanno and Bomilcar, kills Hanno, and defeats Bomilear	III	84
3987	2680	319	Æacides king of Epirus is depoſed, by a decree of the ſtate; Pyrrhus his ſon, an infant, was conveyed to Glaucias king of Illyrium, by ſome Epirote lords, and by him brought up and protected againſt Caſſander, who offered 200 talents for him. The Epirots enter into an alliance with Caſſander, governor of Macedon, who ſent Lyciſcus his general to take the government in his name; but the Epirots, being ſoon weary of the Macedonian yoke, recal their king again, who is ſlain in a battle with Philip, brother to Caſſander	III	803
3988	2681	318	The Romans and Samnites engage; the Romans by ſtratagem defeat and cut off almoſt all the Samnites, both horſe and foot, and their general. Upon this the Samnites ſubmit to the Romans, and order Erutulus Papius, the ringleader of the revolt, to be delivered up to the Romans, to avoid which he killed himſelf. For this eminent ſervice the Romans honour the conſuls with a triumph	IV	611
3988	2681	318	A. Cornelius is made dictator at Rome, to preſide at the games, in the abſence of the conſul and ſickneſs of the prætor	IV	611
3988	2681	318	Caſſander, ſon of Antipater, puts Nicanor in as governor of the gariſon in Athens, who being oppoſed by Polyſperchon, Caſſander enters the port of Athens, with a great fleet; upon which the Athenians ſubmit to have the gariſon, and Caſſander appoints Demetrius Phalereus, an Athenian, to be governor of the city; which office he diſcharged ſo well, that the citizens ſet up 300 ſtatues in honour of him in the ſeveral parts of the city and publick buildings	II	554
3988	2681	318	Antandrus, governor of Syracuſe, ſallies out upon Hamilcar ſuddenly, and routs his army of 120,000 men, which had long beſieged Syracuſe, and took Hamilcar priſoner, whom after torturing terribly, they cut off his head	III	85
3988	2681	318	Polyſperchon and Olympias create Eumenes general in Aſia, for the two kings; but to avoid contention and take away ſedition, he propoſed all the commanders ſhould be equal, and conſult in common upon the publick buſineſs	III	426
3989	2682	317	Jeruſalem being beſieged by the Egyptians, through a ſuperſtitious fear of breaking the Sabbath-day, ſuffer the city to be taken by ſtorm on that day, without reſiſtance, and 100,000 Jews are carried into Egypt captive, &c.	IV	31
3989	2682	317	Agathocles having greatly encreaſed his army, by a large addition of Cyreneans, calls himſelf king of Africa, and beſieges Carthage, the conduct whereof he leaves to his ſon Archagathus, and returns into Sicily to quell and conquer the revolters there, which he ſoon did, and moſt places acknowledged his ſovereignty	III	86
3989	2682	317	The Romans refuſing the Samnites peace, each ſide raiſe an army; the Samnites by ſtratagem bring the Romans into great diſtreſs, and oblige them to deliver up 600 Roman knights as hoſtages for performing a very advantagious peace for the Samnites; then the conſuls and ſoldiers paſs under the yoke, man by man; and if any Roman but returned a fierce look, he was immediately knocked down or killed. This ſo diſpirited the conſuls and ſoldiers, that at their arrival at Rome, each man as it were baniſhed himſelf, by ſhutting themſelves up in their houſes. The conſuls name Q. Fabius Ambuſtus dictator, but ſome defect being found in his nomination, Æmilius Papus was ſubſtituted in his room; but the people being highly diſſatisfied, an interregnum follows; and Papirius Curſor a ſecond time, and Publius Philo a third time, are choſen conſuls, who refuſe to perform the Samnian peace, &c.	IV	612
3990	2683	316	Agathocles makes his eſcape from before Carthage, with a few friends. His two ſons are murdered, and his army capitulate for themſelves. Upon Agathocles's return to Sicily, he reduces Egeſtæ, that had revolted in his abſence, and put every perſon in it to the ſword; and at Syracuſe put all the relations of thoſe he left in Africa to death; and even in Sicily, all that were related to the African army, from the great-grandfather to the ſuckling child, were killed	III	87
3990	2683	316	Antigonus marching to Suſa, and finding the caſtle held by Xenophilus, he left Seleucus with a corps of troops to beſiege it, and marched to engage Eumenes; but having a part of his army cut off before his face, which had croſſed the river, he retired and marched toward Media, but ſuffers greatly by the harraſſments of the Coſſeans, through whoſe country he choſe to paſs for the ſake of nearneſs	III	426
3990	2683	316	Eumenes and his army at Perſepolis are all magnificently feaſted, by Peuceſtas; and to prevent any defection, contrives a letter to be wrote to Peuceſtas, as from Orontes governor of Armenia, acquainting him that the intereſts of the kings encreaſed every where, and that a great army of Macedonians were marching into Aſia: This confirmed Eumenes in his authority	III	427
3990	2683	316	Eumenes and Antigonus engage; Eumenes is conqueror, killing 8000 of Antigonus's army, with the loſs of only 1500 of his own men	III	428
3990	2683	316	Aridæus (called Philip) joint king of Macedon, &c. is murdered by Olympias and Alexander Ægus, ſon of Alexander the Great, bears the royal title alone	III	435
3990	2683	316	Alcetas, brother of Æacides, ſucceeds his brother in the kingdom of Epirus, from whence after two battles with Lyciſcus, general under Caſſander, he is driven out, and the city of Eurymenas is taken, plundered and razed: After ſome time, peace being concluded with Caſſander, Alcetas gets the government again	III	803
3990	2683	316	Satricum revolts from the Romans, and joins the Samnites, who ſurprize Fregellæ, a Roman colony, where the women and children fight in their own defence; upon which the Samnites offer quarters to all thoſe who ſubmitted, which many do, but

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol	Page
			are burnt alive; a few only eſcaped, that with great deſperation cut their way through the enemies troops
3990	2683	316	The Capuans endeavours to ſhake off the Roman yoke; C. Mænius is named dictator, with orders only to examine and puniſh crimes againſt the ſtate, which ſo frightened the Capuans, that the chief conſpirators killed themſelves. Then all being quiet, Mænius lays down his dictatorſhip	IV	615
3990	2683	316	Cornelius Lentulus is declared dictator, and leads his army againſt the Samnites; the Romans fall upon them with ſo much fury, that they rout them at the firſt onſet, take and plunder the Samnian camp, and put all to the ſword they meet with	IV	615
3990	2683	316	Papirius, general of the horſe to Lentulus, beſieging Luceria, where the 600 Roman knights delivered as hoſtages were kept by the Samnites, Lentulus comes to his aſſiſtance; the Samnites keep themſelves intrenched in their camp; the Romans force it, and put all they get hold of to the ſword: The Lucerians diſtreſſed for food, offered to capitulate, and to releaſe the 600 hoſtages; but Papirius inſiſted that all the ſoldiers ſhould paſs unarmed under the yoke, with Pontius their general at their head; all which was complied with	IV	616
3991	2684	315	Q. Aulius Cerretanus, now conſul a ſecond time, defeats the Samnites in Apulia, and takes Ferentum. And Papirius, now a third time conſul, reduced Satricum and put the Samnite gariſon to the ſword: The authors of the revolt were firſt whipped and then beheaded. At his return home he enters Rome in triumph	IV	616
3991	2684	315	Agathocles engages Dinocrates, puts him to flight, and obtains a complete victory. The remains of Dinocrates's army capitulate; but no ſooner was their arms laid down, but their throats were cut to a man	IV	617
3991	2684	315	Eumenes is treacherouſly delivered to Antigonus, who after keeping him priſoner ſome time puts him to death. Likewiſe Pithon, governor of Media, depoſes Peuceſtas governor of Perſia, and takes 5000 talents out of the treaſury of Suſa, and 10,000 out of other places	III	87
3992	2685	314	Many Samnite cities deſire peace, but are only granted two years truce. Plautius the conſul ſo frightened the cities of Teanum and Canuſium, that they ſurrendered and gave hoſtages. The Capuans beg of the Romans to give them a governor, and new laws: Upon this Campania becomes a Roman præfecture. Two new tribunes are added to the Roman ſtate, being now made 31. A cenſus being taken this year, 250,000 men fit to bear arms are found in Rome	III	430
3992	2685	314	The conſuls reduce all Apulia to the obedience of Rome. Antium deſires a Roman governor and laws, which is granted	IV	617
3992	2685	314	Agathocles goes into Italy, and ſubdues the Brutii; from thence goes to the Lipari iſlands, and compels the inhabitants to pay him 100 talents, and afterwards plunders and ſtrips the temples, lading 11 ſhips with their gold and ſpoil, and returns to Syracuſe; but in his paſſage 10 of them are loſt by ſhipwreck	IV	617
3992	2685	314	Antigonus marches with a great army to Babylon, where he pretends to call Seleucus the governor to account; upon which Seleucus flies to Ptolemy in Egypt, raiſes a great army, engages Demetrius, Antigonus's ſon, defeats him at Gaza, and kills and takes abundance of his men. They then take Tyre, and recover Babylon, Media, and Suſiana	III	87
3993	2686	313	L. Æmilus being dictator, he beſieges Saticula, a city of Campania. The Samnites their allies come with a numerous army to its relief; the dictator engages and defeats them; upon which they retire in the night, and leave their camp to the Romans	III	432
3993	2686	313	Cilles, Ptolemy's general, being negligent, Demetrius ſets upon him, overthrew and took Cilles, and 7000 men priſoners, and conquers Syria, Phœnicia, and Judea	IV	617
3994	2687	312	Q. Fabius Maximus being dictator, continues the ſiege of Saticula; the Samnites come again to relieve it: The two armies engage; the Samnites loſe their general, and the Romans their general of horſe; the Samnites are defeated, and Saticula capitulates. From thence he goes to beſiege Sora, that had revolted and maſſacred a Roman colony, and in his way engages the Samnites, overthrows them, and takes and plunders their camp, and then forms the ſiege of Sora	III	433
3994	2687	312	The king of Egypt by great largeſſes, privileges, and immunities, prevails with abundance of Jews to come and reſide at Alexandria in Egypt	IV	618
3995	2688	311	Sora is taken by ſtratagem, and abundance put to the ſword. The conſuls ſend 250 conſpirators to Rome, where they are firſt whipped and then beheaded	VI	35
3995	2688	311	The Auſones being accuſed of deſigning to revolt from Rome, the conſular army takes Auſona, Minturnæ, and Veſcia in one day, and put all to the ſword; Luceria was alſo taken by aſſault, and all the defendants, whether inhabitants or Samnites, killed; and a colony of 25,000 Romans put in it	IV	619
3995	2688	311	Antigonus ſends Athenæus his general to ſeize Petra, (a chief city of the Arabs) while the men were gone to a fair, from whence he carries away a prodigious booty, and 5000 talents in ready money. The Arabs being informed of it, purſue, ſurround, and cut off all Athenæus's army, and recover the booty, &c.	IV	619
3996	2689	310	The Campanians revolt, and C. Mænius the dictator goes againſt them, now joined by the Samnites; they engage, the Samnites are defeated, with the loſs of 30,000 men, by the conſul Sulpitius, for which he is honoured with a triumph at his return to Rome	III	434
3997	2690	309	A peace is concluded between Antigonus and Ptolemy, &c. wherein it was agreed, that Caſſander ſhould hold Macedonia; Lyſimachus, Thrace; Ptolemy, Egypt; and Antigonus, Aſia; and that all the Greek cities ſhould be free. Soon after this, Caſſander puts the young king and his mother to death	IV	619
3997	2690	309	C. Pætilius Libo (ſirnamed Viſolus) is choſe dictator, and reduces Fregellæ, Nola, and the cities of Atina and Calatia, and keeps Bovianum blocked up	III	435

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
3998	2691	308	C Sulpicius Longus is chosen dictator, upon a report that all Hetruria would revolt; but they keeping quiet, the dictator did not think fit to meddle with them —	IV	620
3998	2691	308	Claudius Appius, the Roman censor, introduces into the senate the sons of freed slaves, and slaves into the Potitii, or priests of Hercules, whose rites till now were only executed by noblemen, for which he was much hated. He made the famous aquæduct at Rome, seven miles long, which supplied Rome with constant fresh water; and the famous road from Rome to Capua, which lasted 800 years; the remains whereof are the admiration of all nations to this day	IV	620
3999	2692	307	Antigonus (one of Alexander's greatest captains) in opposition to Cassander, sends his son Demetrius with a great fleet to Athens, where he proclaims the city free, then takes the fortress of Munichia by storm, &c. for which the Athenians honour him and his father with the title of king, and pay them divine honours, and appoint them a priest, and call the year by the name of this priest, and put the figures of Antigonus and Demetrius his son among the gods, &c. adjudge Demetrius Phalereus (their former governor, who had deserved so well of them) to death, &c. order all his statues to be thrown down, and him to be way-laid and murdered, and democracy again restored —	II	555
3999	2692	307	Cleopatra, the sister of Alexander the Great, is put to death, by order of Antigonus governor of Asia, (now called king) for her endeavouring to make her escape from the confinement he had put her under —	III	436
3999	2692	307	Alcetas governing tyrannically and cruelly, the Epirots make a general insurrection, and murder both him and his two young sons, Hesioneas and Nisus; but Alexander and Teucer made their escape, upon which Glaucias king of Illyria sends Pyrrhus at the head of a great army, and sets him upon the throne —	III	804
3999	2692	307	The new senators at Rome introduced by Appius last year, are turned out, and the senate put upon its old footing: A law is likewise made, impowering the people to choose 16 legionary tribunes out of the 24; likewise two officers, called Duumviri Navales, are chosen, to take care of sea affairs —	IV	621
3999	2692	307	Q. Emilius Barbula, the Roman consul, goes against the Hetrurians, who had revolted; whom he engaged, and after a very obstinate fight the Hetrurians retire in the night, and leave Æmilius the field and their camp, for which he is honoured with a triumph. Brutus the other consul took from the Samnites first Clavia, and put all able to bear arms to the sword; then Bovianum was plundered by the soldiers, but the citizens lives are spared: The Samnites endeavoured to draw the Romans into an ambuscade, but the bravery and fury of the Romans cut their way through all difficulties, and killed 20,000 of them upon the spot, for which Brutus had also a triumph at his return to Rome —	IV	621
4000	2693	306	Demetrius (son of Antigonus governor of Syria) makes a descent into Cyprus, takes Urania and Carpasia, engages Menelaus brother of Ptolemy (now king of Egypt) defeats him, kills 1000 of his men, and takes 3000, and besieges Salamis, defeats Ptolomy's fleet and army coming to relieve it, took 40 ships of war, and sunk 80, also 100 transports with 8000 soldiers on board; also the city, &c. Antigonus upon receipt of this news puts a crown of gold upon his own head, and assumes the title of king, and gave the same to his son, and they reign jointly; upon which the Egyptians also give the title of king to Ptolemy, and Lysimachus and Seleucus do the same in Thrace and Babylon; Cassander at Corinth received the title of king, but did not use it in his writing —	III	437
4000	2693	306	The Athenians make a law, that no philosopher should teach, unless licensed by the senate and people; upon which Theophrastus the successor of Aristotle shut up his school. This law being soon found hurtful was repealed, and the philosophers recalled, &c. —	II	555
4000	2693	306	Fabius, now consul at Rome a second time, engages the Hetrurians near Sutrium, totally overthrows them, takes 58 standards, their camp and all their baggage: The remains of them took refuge in the Ciminian forest, whither he followed them, and got great advantages over them: But some time after he again engages them near Sutrium, surprizes and defeats them, kills and takes 60,000, and seizes and plunders their camp: Upon this, three Lucumonies immediately send deputies to Rome, who obtain a suspension of arms for 30 years —	IV	623
4000	2693	306	A Roman fleet (the first they had ever sent out) under the command of P. Cornelius, making a descent beyond cape Palinurus, suffering his troops to go too far up the country, had his retreat cut off; several of the Romans being slain, were forced to quit their booty, and were driven to their ships. Upon this the Samnites engage the consul Marcius; the battle was extremely obstinate and doubtful, abundance of Roman knights and several legionary tribunes were killed, and a lieutenant-general, and the consul much wounded. Upon this Papirius is made dictator, goes with an army to the assistance of Marcius, engages the Samnites, intirely overthrows them, takes and burns their camp, and upon his return to Rome has a triumph —	IV	624
4001	2694	305	Cassander (now king of Macedon) besieges Athens; Demetrius (joint king of Syria) relieves it, and bestows several cities that he recovered from Cassander upon them, for which they honour him with lodgings behind the temple of Minerva, and thereby prostitute the virgins devoted to her service to his lust —	II	555
4001	2694	305	Damocles, the most beautiful youth in all Greece, jumps into a very large cauldron of boiling water, and was drowned, to avoid the unnatural lust of Demetrius —	II	555
4001	2694	305	The Roman consul Q. Fabius takes Nuceria, a city in alliance with the Samnites, and defeats them in a battle; and Decius Mus, the other consul, gained such advantages over the Hetrurians, that they all offered to be allies; but he only grants them a truce for a year, upon the condition of paying his troops, and finding every soldier with two suits of cloaths —	IV	624
4001	2694	305	The Umbrians arm all their youth, with a design to march directly to Rome; Decius marches into the Pupinian field between Umbria and Rome, and Fabius marches and encamps near Mevania, a city on the banks of the Clitumnus

in

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			in the heart of Umbria, where he ſubdued them without ſcarce drawing blood, making their whole army priſoners; upon which the reſt of the nation ſubmitted
4002	2695	304	The time of Fabius's conſulate being expired, he is appointed proconſul, and ſo continued general of the army. He engages the Samnites at Alliſæ on the banks of the Vulturnus, and gains ſo compleat a victory, that to ſave their lives and have the liberty of going home, they paſſed under the yoke with only one garment on: Their allies, to the number of 7000, were made ſlaves, and ſold by auction, &c.	IV	625
4002	2695	304	Antigonus (now king of Syria) beſieges Rhodes by his ſon Demetrius, for its attachment to Ptolemy king of Egypt; but after a year's time, and the loſs of abundance of ſhips and men, is forced to raiſe the ſiege and make peace: upon which the Rhodians dedicate a grove to Ptolemy king of Egypt, where they offer him divine honours, and call it Ptolemeum, and him Soter, (our ſaviour) for the great aſſiſtance and relief he gave them during the ſiege	IV	625
4002	2695	304	Antigonus and Demetrius (now kings of Syria in Aſia) invade Egypt by land and ſea with a great fleet and army, but are forced to retire with great loſs and ſhame	III	143
4003	2696	303	Marcius the Roman conſul, in a few days, took three different camps from the Hernici, and obliged them to ſurrender at diſcretion	III	439
4003	2696	303	Marcius and P. Cornelius Arvina, the two Roman conſuls, engage and defeat the Samnites, and kill 30,000 of them, take and burn their camp; and while this is doing a freſh body of recruits arrives, which are alſo diſperſed with great ſlaughter: Upon this they ſue for peace; the conſuls firſt oblige them to pay the ſoldiers of both armies one year, to furniſh 13 months proviſions, and give each ſoldier one habit, and then referred them to the ſenate at Rome	IV	625
4003	2696	303	Demetrius and the Rhodians conclude a peace	IV	626
4003	2696	303	Demetrius ſails for Attica with 330 gallies and a great army againſt Caſſander, whom he overthrew, and has 6000 Macedonians revolt to him; elated with ſucceſs, Demetrius grows proud, lives voluptuouſly, and very wickedly, and will be called a god	III	144
4003	2696	303	Demetrius is admitted into the fraternity of the prieſts of Ceres, for which purpoſe the Athenians change the month of March firſt into the month of November, and then into Auguſt	III	439
4004	2697	302	The cities of Alatrium, Ferentinum, and Verulum, belonging to the Heruſci, which had remained faithful to Rome, had the liberty either to remain under their own laws (which they choſe) or have the rights of Roman citizens: The other cities were governed by the laws of Rome, and the people declared Roman citizens, but without right of ſuffrage	II	555
4004	2697	302	Deputies come to Rome from Carthage, with a compliment and preſents, which the Romans accept, and return others	IV	626
4004	2697	302	The Romans engage the Samnites, and overthrow them with a dreadful ſlaughter, and took one and twenty enſigns. Soon after they engage again, where the battle being very bloody and obſtinate, the Roman conſul Minucius was killed, and Statius Gellius the Samnite general was taken; but the Romans got the day, and took twenty-ſix enſigns from the enemy. Fulvius Corvus being made conſul in the room of Minucius, takes Bovianum and other cities, and has a triumph	IV	626
4004	2697	302	Caſſander, Lyſimachus, Seleucus, Ptolomy, &c. confederate themſelves againſt Antigonus, &c. and take ſeveral provinces from him in Aſia	III	439
4004	2697	302	Pyrrhus, king of Epirus, goes to Illyria, to be preſent at the nuptials of one of Glaucias's ſons, when the Moloſſians revolt, drive all his friends out of the kingdom, and crown Neoptolemus his great uncle; upon which Pyrrhus retired to Demetrius joint king of Syria	III	804
4005	2698	301	Onias the high prieſt and governor of the Jews dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Simon, who for his extraordinary virtues was ſirnamed the Juſt	IV	36
4005	2698	301	Antigonus and Demetrius are ſo puffed up with pride, that all the ſucceſſors of Alexander confederate againſt them, and drive them out of Greece into Aſia, where Antigonus in one battle loſt both his life and kingdom
4005	2698	301	Demetrius after his defeat in Aſia, ſailing from Epheſus towards Athens with a ſmall ſquadron of ſhips, is met by ambaſſadors from the Athenians in the Cycladian iſlands, acquainting him, that, for all his extraordinary ſervices, they had juſt made a law that prohibited all crowned heads entering their city; upon which he only deſired his ſhips and queen Deidamia, which he had left with them, ſhould be delivered to him; which they comply'd with, and he ſailed to Cherſoneſus	II	556
4005	2698	301	Lacharis, an obſcure citizen, ſeizes the ſovereignty of Athens, and forces them to ſubmit	II	556
4005	2698	301	Antigonus engages Seleucus king of Babylon, &c. at Ipſus, a town and river ſo called in Aſia, where Antigonus is killed, his army cut to pieces, and his kingdom loſt, which was divided among the confederate princes, his ſon Demetrius retaining little more than the title	III	441
4005	2698	301	The Samnites deſire to be admitted into their antient alliance with Rome, which the ſenate agrees to conditionally	IV	627
4005	2698	301	The Equi having revolted, the Romans under their conſuls go againſt them; but they retire into their city, which being inveſted, the conſuls over-run all their country, and in 55 days become maſters of 41 towns, moſt of which they razed or burnt, and ſo almoſt exterminated the whole nation. The conſuls had a triumph, and the Marſi, Peligni, Frentani, and Marrucini demand an alliance with Rome, which is granted	IV	627
4006	2699	300	Seleucus king of Babylon builds the famous city of Antioch, upon the river Orontes, equally diſtant from Conſtantinople and Alexandria in Egypt	III	441

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4006	2699	300	Seleucus king of Babylon demands Stratonice, the daughter of Demetrius, in marriage; upon which he fits out a fleet to convey her to him, and in his paſſage ſeized and took away 200 talents at Quinda, then went to Roſſus, where Seleucus and Stratonice were eſpouſed	III	441
4008	2701	298	The art of painting was introduced this year at Rome, by C. Fabius, afterward conſul, who painted the wall of a new temple dedicated to the goddeſs of health; from whence he was ſurnamed Pictor	IV	627
4008	2701	298	Pyrrhus king of Epirus, being at the court of Ptolemy king of Egypt an hoſtage for Demetrius, ſo far ingratiates himſelf into his queen Berenice's favours, as to marry her daughter by a former huſband; upon which he is furniſhed with troops, and recovers his kingdom	III	804
4009	2702	297	Rome had no conſuls this year, but was governed by two dictators created ſucceſſively, viz. Q Fabius and Valerius Corvus. Fabius marched againſt the Marſi, who had revolted, and reduced them to obedience in one ſingle battle; and Valerius againſt the Hetrurians, who had beat Sompronius Sophus his general of the horſe, and taken ſome ſtandards, but are ſo mauled by Valerius, that they ſue for peace, but can only obtain a truce for two years	IV	627
4010	2703	296	Conſuls choſen at Rome this year, where great conteſts are agitated about chooſing pontifices and augurs, but at laſt 'twas agreed, four new pontifices ſhould be choſen out of the plebeians, to make their number eight, and five new augurs to encreaſe their number to nine	IV	628
4011	2704	295	The conſul Fulvius goes to carry on the ſiege of Nequinum, built on the edge of a ſteep rock, almoſt ſurrounded by the river Nar, and deemed almoſt impregnable, but by the treachery of the Nequinians, the conſul took it by ſurprize: The name of this city was changed into Narina. For this exploit the conſul had a triumph	IV	628
4011	2704	295	The conſul Manlius being killed by a fall from his horſe, Valerius Corvus was a ſixth time made conſul, who goes againſt the revolted Hetrurians, who fly to their cities, while he ravages their country, not daring to meet him in the field	IV	629
4011	2704	295	Demetrius beſieges Athens, and forces them through famine to ſurrender at diſcretion, when entering with his forces commands all the Athenians to be aſſembled in the publick theatre, which ſurrounding with his army, when they expected to be put all to the ſword, Demetrius, after upbraiding them with their ingratitude, gave them 100,000 buſhels of corn, and named magiſtrates agreeable to them	II	556
4012	2705	294	Upon the death of Caſſander king of Macedon, his two ſons Antipater and Alexander get the kingdom between them	III	442
4012	2705	294	Alexander king of (part of) Macedon, endeavours to murder Demetrius, but falls into the ſnare himſelf, and is diſpatched by Demetrius, who ſucceeds him in the whole kingdom of Macedon, his brother Antipater being depoſed by the people	III	442
4012	2705	294	Antipater and Alexander, two of Caſſander's ſons, conteſting for the whole crown of Macedon, Pyrrhus king of Epirus comes to the aſſiſtance of Alexander, and has a great part of the country and abundance of money for his reward	III	465
4012	2705	294	Demetrius king of Macedon beſieges and makes Thebes ſurrender at diſcretion, after a very obſtinate reſiſtance: He only puniſhes 13 of the principal revolters	III	466
4012	2705	294	The Hetrurians and Samnites, having revolted from Rome, were both overthrown by Fulvius the plebeian conſul, for which he had a triumph	IV	629
4013	2706	293	Mænon having dipped a tooth-picker that Agathocles cleaned his teeth with after meals into poiſon, his teeth and gums putrified, and his whole body was tortured with moſt racking pains, in the heighth of which he was hurried away to the funeral pile, and burnt while he was yet alive; and Mænon uſurped the ſupreme authority, under the name of Prætor of Syracuſe	III	88
4013	2706	293	The conſul Fabius by ſtratagem beats the Samnites; they fly, and he takes 23 ſtandards; and Decius, the other conſul, gains a conſiderable victory over the Apuleians, as they were marching to join the Samnites; then both conſuls laid Samnium waſte; Fabius took the city of Cimetra, and razed it, and put all that bore arms to the ſword	IV	629
4013	2706	293	Seleucus king of Macedon builds 16 cities in Leſſer Aſia, in which large colonies of the Jews ſettled, with great privileges. eſpecially at Antioch	IV	35
4014	2707	292	The Mamertini being diſbanded the ſervice of Syracuſe, are received into the city of Meſſana: After a ſmall time they unexpectedly fell upon the inhabitants, killed all the men, and married the women, and not only defended themſelves, but reduced the neighbouring country to their obedience	III	88
4014	2707	292	Decius, being proconſul, ſo haraſſed the Samnites army, that he made them diſband, and retire into the neighbouring countries: Then he took Murgantia, where he made 1110 priſoners: In Romulea he put 2300 to death, and took 6000 priſoners; and at Ferentinum 3000 that defended it deſperately were killed on the ramparts	IV	630
4014	2707	292	The two conſuls engage the revolted Hetrurians, and overthrow them with great ſlaughter, the enemy leaving 7300 dead in the field; their camp was taken and plundered, and 2000 taken priſoners; and as Volumnius was returning into Samnium, he ſurprized the Samnites as they were ravaging Campania, engaged them, ſlew 600, and retook all the ſpoil they had taken	IV	631
4015	2708	291	Decius the conſul ſeeing the enemy very numerous and bold, devoted himſelf to the Dii Manes, as his father had done before, and riding into the midſt of the enemies troops, was there cut to pieces: Upon this the pontifex Livius cries out, We have conquered, &c. and renews the battle with great fury, and at laſt obtained a compleat victory, killing 25,000, and taking 8000, &c. for which the conſul Fabius had a triumph	IV	634

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4015	2708	291	Fabius returns again into Hetruria, attacks them, killed 4500 upon the ſpot, and took 1740 priſoners: This quelled them a while
4015	2708	291	The Samnites ſtill remained very troubleſome, ſo that the proconſul Volumnius and the prætor Appius having engaged them, kill 16,300	IV	634
4016	2709	290	The Samnites retire upon Poſthumius the conſul's coming to his colleague Attilius's aſſiſtance, upon which the Romans pillage and lay waſte the whole country, and take Milionia by aſſault, and kill 3200 Samnites upon the ramparts, and make 4200 priſoners; then they take Triventum without ſtriking a blow, the inhabitants having deſerted it. A few days after, Attilius again engages the Samnites, and after loſing 7300 Romans, overthrows them, kills 4800, and takes 7000 priſoners, which he made paſs under the yoke: Afterwards, in his return to Rome, he falls upon another body of Samnites, that had been ravaging the Volſci, cuts them to pieces, recovers the booty, and releaſes many Roman priſoners, whom they had taken	IV	634
4016	2709	290	Poſthumius marches into Hetruria without orders from the ſenate, took Ruſſellæ, and obliged the three Lucumonies of Volſinii, Perüſia, and Arretium to ſue for peace. The ſenate refuſes him a triumph, but the people give him one in ſpite of all oppoſition	IV	635
4017	2710	289	The Samnites make a law, that all perſons capable of bearing arms that did not appear at Aquilonia (a city of Hirpinia) upon the firſt ſummons of the general of their nation, ſhould be put to death immediately: 40,000 were aſſembled, out of which 16,000 bound themſelves by a ſolemn oath to do extraordinary matters under a linen canopy, and were therefore called the linen legion, &c. The Roman conſul Corvilius enters Samnium, takes Amiternum, (a city in Sabinia) cuts 2800 men to pieces, and takes 4270 priſoners. Papirius, the other conſul, takes Furconia, and both lay the country waſte where-e'er they come. Papirius engages the Samnites, kills 12,000, and diſperſes the reſt. Corvilius obliged Cominium to ſurrender at diſcretion, in which remained 15400 perſons after 4380 had been killed in its defence. Afterwards, to complete the utter deſtruction of the Samnites, Corvilius took Volana, Palumbinum, and Herculaneum; and Papirius took Sepinum, deemed impregnable. Corvilius returns to Rome, which he enters in triumph	IV	636
4017	2710	289	The Hetrurians being again in arms, Corvilius goes againſt them, take Troſſulum by aſſault, forces the Faliſci to ſue for peace, but grants them only a year's truce, for which they pay 390,000 aſſes of braſs, and then returns to Rome, whither alſo Papirius was come from Samnium, and has a triumph, graced with the ſpoils of the linen legion	IV	637
4018	2711	288	Pyrrhus and Lyſimachus divide the kingdom of Macedon between them, by conſent, to avoid a war	IV	637
4018	2711	288	A plague raging in Rome, and two conſuls not well qualified for military affairs being choſe governors this year, encourage the Faliſci to break their truce, and the remaining Samnites to take arms, and enter Campania: The conſul Brutus over-ran Hetruria, defeated the Faliſci, and returned to Rome loaded with ſpoils: But the other conſul Fabius attacking the Samnites, is defeated, has 3000 of his men killed on the ſpot, and more wounded, who died ſoon after: Upon this, Fabius the father of the conſul goes with his ſon, and again engages and kills 20,000 Samnites upon the ſpot, and takes their general Pontius and 4000 priſoners	III	468
4018	2711	288	Demetrius preparing to recover his kingdom of Syria, is attacked by Seleucus, Lyſimachus, Ptolemy, and Pyrrhus; Demetrius is forced by his own army to fly to Caſſandria, and ſo abdicate Macedon: Upon this his wife Philla poiſoned herſelf	IV	638
4019	2712	287	Demetrius goes to Thebes, raiſes an army, aſſumes the regal authority, and reſtores democracy. The Athenians inſulting him, he beſieges Athens, and reduces them to the neceſſity of begging his pardon, &c.	III	443
4019	2712	287	Pyrrhus wars againſt Demetrius, and takes Athens, &c. from him, uſes the inhabitants extremely well, and ſacrifices in their city with them, &c.	III	443
4019	2712	287	Pyrrhus drives Demetrius out of Macedon, and becomes king thereof, but is forced to admit Lyſimachus a partner with him in that kingdom	III	468
4019	2712	287	The Sibyline books having been conſulted upon account of the plague, the anſwer was, that the God Æſculapius muſt be fetched from Epidaurus in Peloponneſus, where he was worſhipped under the figure of a ſerpent, which being done, the plague is ſaid to ceaſe	III	468
4019	2712	287	Poſthumius the Roman conſul deſpiſes the commands of the ſenate, and forces himſelf into the ſiege of Cominium, which Fabius, for the publick good, ſubmits to; it is taken, and alſo Venuſium, Lucania, and Samnium. Young Fabius is allowed a triumph, but Poſthumius is refuſed, &c.	IV	638
4020	2713	286	Demetrius going into Aſia, marries Ptolemaida at Sardis; many of Lyſimachus's forces revolt to him, and bring a large ſum of money with them: He takes the city, &c. but a plague breaking out ſweeps away moſt of his army, and he is relieved by Seleucus, &c.	IV	639
4020	2713	286	Seleucus being influenced by his miniſter Patrocles, not only withdraws his kindneſs from Demetrius, but actually endeavours to take him by force, and by various ſucceſſes at laſt compels Demetrius to ſurrender himſelf at diſcretion	III	444
402-	2713	286	Poſthumius's conſulate being out, he is brought to a trial before the Comitia, by tribes, and accuſed of employing part of his troops in grubbing up a foreſt in his own eſtate, for which he is condemned to pay a conſiderable fine	III	446
4021	2714	285	Lyſimachus drives Pyrrhus out of Macedon, and reigns king there alone	IV	639
4021	2714	285	The Romans having ravaged the country, and taken the city of the Samnites, obliges them to ſue for peace, which being granted, put an end to a war that had laſted 49 years. The conſul Manius Curius Dentatus returned to Rome, in triumph	III	468
				IV	640

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4021	2714	285	The conſul Curius goes againſt the Sabines, who had joined the Samnites, reduces them intirely, and returns to Rome, where he has a ſecond triumph — — — —	IV	641
4022	2715	284	The Romans ſend colonies into Adria, a maritime town that gave name to the Adriatick ſea, to Caſtrum in Picenum, and to Seno at the mouth of the Sene —	IV	641
4022	2715	284	Mænon the Syracuſan governor going againſt the Agrigentines, who had revolted, as ſoon as he was out of the city of Syracuſe, one Tænion poſſeſſed himſelf of the ſovereign power, in which he was oppoſed by one Soſiſtrates, between whom a civil war was raiſed and carried on — — —	III	88
4022	2715	284	Three new judges, called Triumviri Capitales, were added to the Roman prætor, who had only the power of inflicting pecuniary fines, as likewiſe the care of the priſons where the greateſt criminals were, and the direction of their execution; they were choſen annually in the Comitia by tribes, and from their ſentence lay no appeal. This year a cenſus being made, the number of Roman citizens fit to bear arms was found to be 273,000 — —	IV	641
4022	2715	284	Ptolemy, being by his father admitted joint king of Egypt, was ſirnamed Philadelphus, by many favours beſtowed upon the Jews in general, and great largeſſes to the prieſts and learned men in particular, obtained from them the Greek verſion of the Old Teſtament called the Septuagint — —	IV	37
4022	2715	284	The famous watch-tower in the iſland of Pharos, eſteemed one of the wonders of the world, is now finiſhed — —	III	626
4022	2715	284	Demetrius being the priſoner of Seleucus in the Syrian Cherſoneſus, dies, upon which Seleucus makes one empire of all Demetrius held in Syria and Aſia —	III	51[illegible]
4023	2716	283	The ſtatue of Serapis is brought from Sinope (a city of Pontus) to Alexandria, and ſet up in a magnificent temple on purpoſe — —	III	628
4023	2716	283	A great diſpute and commotion happens at Rome about repealing the debtors law, which cauſes all the common people to leave the city; whereupon Q. Hortenſius is named dictator to compoſe their differences, but dying before the matter was compleated, Q. Fabius Maximus was raiſed to that dignity, who ſettled all things to the people's intire ſatisfaction, and laid the foundation of Rome's future greatneſs — — —	IV	642
4023	2716	283	Demetrius being dead in captivity, his aſhes are carried into Greece, where being put into a golden urn by his ſon Antigonus, all the honours of royalty were paid to them — — — —	III	447
4023	2716	283	Simon, the juſt high-prieſt of the Jews, dies, in the 19th year of his pontificate, much regretted by all for his repairing and fortifying the temple and city, and finiſhing the canon of the Old Teſtament: He was ſucceeded by his brother Eleazer in the prieſthood, and in the civil government by Antigonus of Socho, the chief of the Sadducean ſect — — —	IV	36
4024	2717	282	Ptolomy Soter, joint king of Egypt, dies, (and leaves his ſon ſirnamed Philadelphus, abſolute king) after having reigned 39 years alone, and two years in partnerſhip, being 84 years of age — — —	III	631
4024	2717	282	The Tarentines, originally a colony of Spartans that ſettled in the ſouth part of Italy, ſtirs up the Boii, Senones, and Hetrurians, againſt Rome; the Senones go againſt the Aretini, the allies of Rome, upon which the Romans ſend ambaſſadors to diſſuade them from their enterprize; but they murder them, and immediately march their troops before Aretium; the conſul Lucius Cæcilius engages them, is killed in the battle, and ſeven legionary tribunes, moſt of the Roman knights, and 13,000 private men: The ſenate immediately ſends the famous Curius Dentatus againſt them, who goes into the country of the Senones, where he plundered and burnt their houſes, put all able to bear arms to the ſword, and carried the women and children away captive, and ſo rendered the whole country quite deſolate — — —	IV	643
4024	2717	282	Lyſimachus engages Seleucus at Corupedion in Phrygia, where himſelf and children are ſlain, and Seleucus becomes king of Macedon, &c. — —	III	469
4025	2718	281	The Romans, under the conſul Cn. Domitius Calvinus, meet and engage the Senones in their march towards Rome, and entirely overthrow them, ſo that only a few eſcapēd into the country of the Boii, who together with the Hetrurians raiſed another large army, whom the other conſul P. Cornelius Dolabella meets in their march towards Rome, engages them on the bank of the lake Vademonis, now Il Lago di Baſſano, kills moſt of the Hetrurians and Boii, and almoſt entirely takes away the very name of the Senones as a nation — —	IV	643
4025	2718	281	Several ſtates of Italy having confederated together againſt Rome, the conſul C. Fabricius goes into Lucania, and engages them, kills their general Statilius, and 25,000 ſoldiers, and makes himſelf maſter of their camp, for which the Romans return the God Mars publick thanks, &c. — —	IV	643
4025	2718	281	The Tarentines fall upon Valerius the Roman admiral and his fleet, now at the mouth of their harbour, with ten ſhips, ſunk one and took four, all the priſoners fit to bear arms they put to the ſword, and ſold the others for ſlaves. The Romans ſend to demand ſatisfaction, but the ambaſſadors are treated with the utmoſt contempt and diſreſpect, and then beſiege and take Thurium, defended by a Roman gariſon, and ſend and invite Pyrrhus king of Epirus to aſſiſt them — —	IV	644
4026	2719	280	Antiochus (ſirnamed Soter) ſucceeds his father Seleucus in his kingdom of Aſſyria, and reigned 19 years — — —	III	522
4026	2719	280	Ptolomy Ceraunius ſtabs Seleucus, and flying to Lyſimachia, raiſes a company, and proclaims himſelf king of Macedon, &c, — — —	III	469
4026	2719	280	Ptolomy Ceraunus applies to his ſiſter Arſinoe, (widow of Lyſimachus, who was fled to the ſtrong caſtle in the rich city of Caſſandria) promiſes her marriage, to adopt her children, and make her the partner of his kingdom. She accepts the offer, puts Caſſandria into his poſſeſſion, and the day he celebrated the nuptials he murders her children, and turns her out, with only two ſervants, to lead a ſolitary

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			a ſolitary life in Samo-Thrace, from whence ſhe went into Egypt, where ſhe married her other brother, Ptolemy Philadelphus — — —	III
4026	2719	280	The Boii being defeated by the Romans, are forced to ſue for peace —	IV	469
4026	2719	280	The Achæans having rendered themſelves famous for their regularity, juſtice, and impartial behaviour, induced moſt of the Greek cities to join their democracy, and firſt Patra and Dyma ſhewed the example — — —	II	643
4026	7219	280	The inhabitants of Patra and Dyma begin the Achæan league — — —	II	642
4026	2719	280	Lyſimachus king of Thrace, and Seleucus king of Macedon, &c. engage, and after a long and bloody battle, Lyſimachus is killed at the head of his troops —	III	632
4026	2719	280	Seleucus is murdered by Ptolemy Ceraunus, whom the ſoldiers proclaim king of Macedon, and Antiochus Soter, ſon of Seleucus, enjoys his empire of Aſia 19 years — — — —	III	521
4026	2719	280	The Romans, under the conſul L. Æmilius Barbula, take cities, ſtorm caſtles, and lay the country of Tarentum waſte, force their army out of the field to ſhelter themſelves within the walls of their city, &c. The Tarentines admit Cyneas, general of Pyrrhus king of Epirus, with 3000 Epirots into their citadel, and depoſe their governor Agis for his ſuppoſed attachment to Rome — — —	III	522
4027	2720	279	Nicomedes ſucceeds his father Zipætes in the kingdom of Bythinia, and puts two of his brothers to death; Zipætes the younger brother flies, and ſeizing part of the kingdom, wars with his brother, who calls in the Gauls, and by their aſſiſtance gets the whole kingdom, and beſtows part of Aſia Minor upon them, as a reward for their help: This part of the country was afterward called Galatia, and the inhabitants Galatians — — —	IV	645
4027	2720	279	Ptolomy Ceraunus, king of Macedon and Syria, engages the Gauls under the command of Belgius, is taken priſoner, and had his head cut off, &c. — —	III	522
4027	2720	279	The Macedonians chooſe Meleager, the brother of Ptolemy, king; but finding him unfit for government, after two months, depoſe him, and chooſe Antipater the ſon of Philip, the brother of Caſſander, who held it only 45 days —	III	470
4027	2720	279	Patrocles, general of Antiochus Soter king of Syria, entering into the country of the Bythinians, and committing great hoſtilities, is engaged by Zipætes, who drew him into an ambuſh, and cut off both himſelf and his whole army, for joy whereof Zipætes, being 76 years old, died in a tranſport, in the 41ſt year of his reign — — — —	III	470
4027	2720	279	Q. Marcius Philippus the Roman conſul has a triumph, for vanquiſhing the Hetrurians; and Pyrrhus king of Epirus comes to Tarentum, where he is received with great joy: He ſets himſelf to reform the Tarentines, and inure them to the uſe of arms, and proclaims thoſe guilty of death, who either abandoned their country or abſented from the common muſters — —	III	522
4027	2720	279	The Proletarii, or meaneſt of the people, who till now had never been inliſted in the Roman army, nor ſuffered to bear arms, were inrolled in the army along with the other Roman people — — —	IV	646
4027	2720	279	The Roman conſul P. Valerius Lævinus ravaging the Lucanians, &c. is engaged by Pyrrhus, and after a ſtubborn fight the Romans are forced to quit the field, with the ſlaughter of many thouſands on both ſides, and 1800 Roman knights taken priſoners. Then Pyrrhus plunders and ravages the Roman territories, and poſſeſſes himſelf of Campania — — —	IV	646
4027	2720	279	Pyrrhus ſurprizes Fregellæ, ſits down before Præneſte, and views Rome; but Coruncanius the other conſul returning victorious over the Hetrurians, Pyrrhus returns into Campania, where he is met by Lævinus, who being recruited, again offers to engage him, but he declines it, and retires to Tarentum — — —	III	810
4027	2720	279	Ptolomy Philadelphus, king of Egypt, repudiates his wife Arſinoe, for a conſpiracy, and marries his half ſiſter Arſinoe, though paſt child bearing —	III	811
4028	2721	278	Soſthenes, a young Macedonian nobleman, aſſembles a body of able youths, and diſciplines them, and by degrees drives away the Gauls. He refuſed the royal honours, contenting himſelf with the name of general — —	III	633
4028	2721	278	The Romans and Pyrrhus, &c. engage near Aſculum, where the Roman conſul Decius Mus is killed, but at length the Romans got the day, and both armies parting, they go into winter quarters — — —	III	470
4029	2722	277	Nicias, phyſician to Pyrrhus king of Epirus, writes a letter to the Roman conſuls C. Fabricius and Q. Æmilius Papus, wherein for a large reward he offers to poiſon the king; they abhorring the action, inform the king of it, without naming the perſon — — —	III	813
4030	2723	276	Brennus king of the Gauls comes into Macedonia, with 140,000 foot and 10,000 horſe, againſt whom Soſthenes makes a vigorous defence, but is at laſt killed, and moſt of his army, and then Brennus gluts himſelf and army with ſpoil —	III	814
4031	2724	275	The inhabitants of Eginum having driven out the Macedonian gariſon, acceded to the Achæan alliance; and the inhabitants of Bura did the ſame, and alſo the Ceraunians — — —	III	470
4033	2726	273	The Romans under their conſul Curius Dentatus engage Pyrrhus, and finally overthrow him, killing 30,000 upon the ſpot, and take 12000 priſoners and eight elephants, the camp and all the baggage, &c. for which the conſul has the moſt magnificent triumph that had ever yet been ſeen — —	II	642
4033	2726	273	The conſul Lentulus having entirely defeated the Samnites, &c. was alſo honoured with a triumph, and the year ended with a cenſus and luſtrum, when 271,224 citizens were found in Rome fit to bear arms — —	III	815
4034	2727	272	Pyrrhus returning to Epirus from Italy, recruits his army, and engages Antigonus Gonatus, king of Macedon, overcomes and takes all Macedonia from him, particularly Ægæ, the royal ſeat of the late kings of Macedon, where he is again proclaimed king, and uſes the people with great ſeverity: The gariſon of Gauls which he left in it break open the tombs of the kings, take out the riches buried with them, and ſcatter their bones about the ſtreets, which gave great offence —	IV	647
				III	816

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4034	2727	272	Ptolemy Philadelphus ſends ambaſſadors for the firſt time to Rome, to conclude an alliance with that republick. The Romans return the compliment, and ſend four ambaſſadors to Ptolomy, and conclude an alliance — — —	III	634
4034	2727	272	Ptolemy, ſon of Pyrrhus, reigns in Macedon as vicegerent of his father; Antigonus Gonatus attacks him, but is entirely routed, flying only with ſeven attendants — — — — — —	III	472
4034	2727	272	Pyrrhus warring againſt the Lacedemonians, has the rear of his army cut off by Areus king of Sparta, together with his ſon Ptolemy, &c. — — —	III	817
4034	2727	272	Pyrrhus, contrary to his word, having entered Argos with his army, an engagement enſues, wherein Pyrrhus was killed, and ſo Antigonus recovered the kingdom of Macedon again. — — — —	III	473
4034	2727	272	Upon the death of Pyrrhus, Milo the Epirot general ſurrenders the citadel of Tarentum into the hands of Papyrius Curſo, the Roman conſul, and the inhabitants alſo ſurrender themſelves. — — — —	III	820
4034	2727	272	Alexander, the ſon of Pyrrhus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Epirus, invades Macedon, and engaging Antigonus, defeats him, and takes away his kingdom from him; upon which Antigonus is forced to fly into Greece for ſhelter.	III	820
4035	2728	271	Demetrius, ſon of Antigonus, raiſes an army, engages Alexander king of Epirus, and not only drives him out of Macedon, but alſo out of Epirus, and forces him to fly to the Acarnanians, from whence coming with a large army into Epirus, Demetrius retires into Macedon — — — —	III	820
4036	2729	270	Alexander reigned ſeveral years in peace, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Ptolemy, and grandſon Pyrrhus, who both died young, and alſo by his great grand-daughter Deidamia, who being murdered, the kingdom became a republick, &c.	III	821
4036	2729	270	Claudius Carina, the Roman conſul, defeats the Samnites, &c. and has a triumph given him at his return to Rome — — —	IV	647
4037	2730	269	Antigonus Gonatus, king of Macedon, firſt waſtes the territories of the Athenians, and then beſieges and takes Athens, and makes them accept a Macedonian garriſon, &c. — — — — —	II	557
4039	2732	267	News coming to Samnium, &c. of the death of Pyrrhus king of Epirus, the Samnites, Lucanians, and Brutians, in deſpair engage L. Papirius Curſor and Sp. Corvilius (ſirnamed Maximus) the two Roman conſuls, and their armies, and are totally overthrown and ſubdued: Thus ended this bloody war, which had laſted 72 years, and produced the Roman generals 31 triumphs — — —	IV	647
4039	2732	267	Molo the Epirot general ſurrenders Tarentum to the conſul Papirius, who diſarmed all the inhabitants, took their ſhips from them, diſmantled the city, and made it tributary to Rome — — — —	IV	648
4040	2733	266	The Roman conſul L. Genucius Clepſina goes againſt the Roman garriſon at Rhegium, where they had, under falſe pretences, maſſacred all the chief men of the city at a banquet, and either put the reſt to the ſword, or elſe forced them to fly the city; and obliged the women to marry the murderers of their huſbands and fathers: The rebels ſtood out vigorouſly, till their number from 4000 was reduced to 300, who were brought priſoners to Rome, and put to death by fifties. — — — — — —	IV	648
4041	2734	265	Acrotatus king of Sparta engages Ariſtodemus prince of Megalopolis, is ſlain, and his army routed: His young ſon Araeus ſucceeds him in his kingdom, who dies in the 8th year of his reign, under the government of Leonidas — —	II	625
4041	2734	265	C. Genucius being conſul, led the Romans againſt the Sarcinates, (a people of Umbria) whom he conquered, and had a triumph — — —	IV	648
4042	2735	264	The conſuls Q. Ogulnius Gallus and C. Fabius Pictor, go againſt one Lollius, a Samnite hoſtage who had made his eſcape from Rome, and being joined by the Caracini, laid the country under contribution; but at laſt, after an obſtinate ſtruggle, they take the city of the Caracini, &c. — — — —	IV	649
4042	2735	264	The Romans for the firſt time coin ſilver money, in the temple of Juno Moneta, for the uſe of commerce, which heretofore were only pieces of braſs, with the figures of a bull, a ram, and a boar ſtamped on them — — — —	IV	649
4043	2736	263	Margas, half brother to Ptolemy king of Egypt, being governor of Libya and Cyrene, revolts and makes himſelf king in thoſe provinces — — —	III	635
4043	2736	263	Antigonus Gonatus king of Macedon beſieges and takes Athens, through the miſunderſtanding between the Spartans and Egyptians that come to its relief — —	III	634
4043	2736	263	Patrocles the Egyptian general orders the poet Sotades to be wrapped up in a ſheet of lead, and caſt into the ſea, for writing invectives againſt his maſter Ptolemy Philadelphus — — — — — — —	III	634
4043	2736	263	The conſul Appius with his Roman legions entering the country of the Umbrians, made himſelf maſter of the city of Camerinum, the people whereof, contrary to his agreement, he ſold for ſlaves, and put the money into the publick treaſury, and ſeized their lands; but the ſenate cauſed the people to be ſought out, gave them the privileges of Roman citizens, granted them part of Mount Aventine for an habitation, and allotted each man as much land as they loſt in Umbria. —	IV	649
4043	2736	263	The Roman conſul Sempronius Sophus takes Aſculum, the capital of Picenum, and the whole nation of the Picentes gave themſelves up to Rome; this added to the ſtrength of Rome 360,000 men fit to bear arms — —	IV	649
4043	2736	263	The Romans to ſecure their conqueſts ſend two colonies of their own people, one into Arminium in the country of the Picentes, the other into Beneventum among the Samnites — — — — —	IV	649
4043	2736	263	The Sabines are this year admitted to the right of ſuffrage, and made entirely Romans, enjoying before only the right of incorporation into the Roman army, inſtead of ſerving as auxiliaries. — — — — —	IV	649
4043	2736	263	Antiochus, king of Syria engaging and entirely overthrowing the Gauls that were ſettled in Aſia, by Nicomedes king of Bythinia, thereby delivered the neighbouring princes from their frequent incurſions; for which he is ſirnamed Soter, or the Saviour — — — —	III	523

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
4044	2737	262	Antiochus Soter, upon the death of Philæterus prince of Pergamus, invades his dominions, designing to add them to his own; but Eumenes, nephew and succeſſor to the deceaſed, engages and overthrows him, and not only ſettles himſelf in his own country, but adds ſeveral provinces to it — — —	III	523
4045	2738	261	The conſuls, Numerius Fabius and D. Junius Pera, compleated the conqueſt of the Salentines and Sarcinates, and were each honoured with two triumphs at their return to Rome, for the conqueſt of two nations which made Rome miſtreſs of all the countries in Italy, from the remoteſt part of Hetruria to the Ionian ſea, and from the Tyrrhenian ſea to the Adriatick — — — —	IV	649
4045	2738	261	Apolonia, a city in Macedon, ſends ambaſſadors to Rome to deſire her protection: Fabricius and Apronius (two young patricians, Ædiles for this year) having inſulted the ambaſſadors, are degraded, and delivered into the hands of the ambaſſadors, to be carried into Macedon to be tried there; and a law was made, that if any perſon whatever inſulted a foreign ambaſſador, he ſhould be delivered up to that people, to be puniſhed at their pleaſure — — — —	III	523
4045	2738	261	Antiochus Soter upon his return to Antioch puts one of his ſons to death, for attempting to raiſe a rebellion in his abſence, and proclaims his ſon Antiochus king with himſelf — — — — — —	III	523
4045	2738	261	Antiochus Soter, king of Syria, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Antiochus, ſirnamed Theos, ſo called by the Mileſians for delivering them from the tyranny of Timarchus, governor of Caria for Ptolemy; who having revolted, choſe Miletus for the ſeat of his government; Antiochus engaged, defeated, and ſlew him — —	III	523
4046	2739	260	Now flouriſhed Beroſus, the famous Babylonian hiſtorian, and dedicated his hiſtory to Antiochus Theos, which contained the aſtronomical obſervations of 480 years: While he taught at Athens, his reputation for aſtrological predictions was ſo great, that the Athenians erected a ſtatue to him in the Gymnaſium, with a golden tongue — — — — — —	III	523
4046	2739	260	Rome having divided her conqueſts into four provinces, four new officers, called provincial Quæſtors, are created, to take care of the publick revenues —	IV	650
4046	2739	260	A plague breaking out at Rome, and the Sybiline books being conſulted, the anſwer was, ſome ſecret crimes had drawn the wrath of heaven upon the commonwealth. Upon ſearch, a veſtal named Carparania was charged with incontinence, and condemned to be buried alive, to avoid which ſhe ſtrangled herſelf. Upon a cenſus being taken, and a luſtrum made, notwithſtanding the havock the plague had made, there were found in the city 292,224 men fit to bear arms — — — — — —	IV	650
4046	2739	260	The Volſinienſes, one of the twelve Leucomonies of the Hetrurians, beg the aſſiſtance of Rome, to free them from the tyrannical and abominable government of their magiſtrates; upon which the conſul Fabius Gurges goes againſt them with a ſmall army, and is killed in a battle with them — — — —	IV	651
4047	2740	259	M. Fulvius Flaccus, the Roman conſul, forces the Volſinienſes to ſurrender at diſcretion, and puts all that had been guilty to death: The antient citizens not concerned in the revolt were tranſplanted to another place, and the city razed. Flaccus at his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph — — —	IV	651
4047	2740	259	The Romans and Carthaginians declare war againſt each other, called the firſt punic war. In the beginning the Roman general Claudius going to the aſſiſtance of the Mamertines at Meſſana, over-reaches Hanno the Carthaginian general, and gets the town and citadel from him; for which Hanno was crucified at his return to Carthage — — — — — — —	IV	653
4047	2740	259	Another Hanno the Carthaginian admiral comes into Sicily, and beſieges Claudius and his Romans; and upon his refuſing to ſurrender Meſſana, orders all the Italians in his army to be maſſacred. The conſul Appius coming to Rhegium, ſends from thence to Hiero king of Syracuſe to deſire him to withdraw his forces that he had joined Hanno with; but Hiero, inſtead of complying, reproaches the Romans with encouraging tyrants and treachery, rebellion, &c. but Claudius having overthrown Hiero in an engagement with him, thinking himſelf betrayed by the Carthaginians, returns with his troops to Syracuſe; upon which Claudius ſallying out upon the Carthaginians, routed them with great ſlaughter, and ſo raiſed the ſiege of Meſſana, then over-run and laid waſte the country of the Syracuſans to the gates of Syracuſe, for which he is ſaid to have a triumph at his return to Rome — —	IV	654
4048	2741	258	War breaks out between the Rhodians and Byzantines, upon account of the latter's laying a tax upon all ſhips trading to the Pontic ſea, but is ſoon after compoſed by the mediation of Cavarus king of the Thracian Gauls — —	III	145
4048	2741	258	The two Roman conſuls, with each a large army under his command, go into Sicily, where 68 cities and towns heretofore ſubject to the Carthaginians ſubmit to them; then beſiege Syracuſe, upon which Hiero deſires peace, which the conſuls grant, upon condition that he releaſe all the Roman priſoners without ranſom, and pay the republick 100 talents of ſilver; this Hiero performing, the Romans contract to acknowledge Hiero for a friend, and to protect his dominions from all hoſtilities — — — — — — —
4048	2741	258	The inhabitants of Segeſta and Aliena maſſacre the African gariſon, and open their gates to the Roman conſuls. The cities of Hilara, Tyrita, and Aſcela are beſieged, taken by aſſault, and treated with great rigour. Upon Valerius's return to Rome, he has a triumph. This year Cn. Fulvius Centumales was made dictator, to drive a nail into the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, to ſtop the plague now raging at Rome — — — — —	IV	655
4049	2742	257	Leonidas becomes king of Sparta, and, after a reign of 13 years, was outed by his ſon-in-law Cleombrotus, who reigned in his ſtead; upon which his daughter fled with him, leaving her huſband for the ſake of her father — —	II	627
4049	2742	257	The conſuls L. Poſthumius Magellus and Q. Manlius Vitulus go into Sicily, and beſiege Agrigentum, which the Carthaginians had made their magazine for arms and

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			and proviſions, a place rendered almoſt impregnable by art and nature, defended by a numerous gariſon under the command of Hannibal, beſides 50,000 inhabitants: After five months ſiege comes Hanno from Carthage, with an army of 50,000 ſoldiers, &c. to whom Erbeſſa (a city where the Romans had their magazine) ſurrenders: After the city had been beſieged ſeven months, both armies engage, and the Romans defeat the Carthaginians, with great ſlaughter on both ſides; upon which Hannibal in the night ſallies out, and cuts his way through the Roman camp, and eſcapes; upon which the Agrigentines maſſacre all the remaining Carthaginians, and the conſuls deliver up the city to be plundered, which had not ſurrendered at diſcretion, and 25,000 free perſons are made ſlaves: This important ſiege, battle, &c. coſt the Romans and their allies upwards of 30,000 men — — — — — —	IV	656
4050	2743	256	About this time a dreadful earthquake happened at Rhodes, which threw down the great Coloſſus, the arſenal, and moſt part of the walls of Rhodes, towards repairing which, all the Grecian ſtates and other princes ſent them very large preſents, which enabled them in a ſmall time to appear in their former ſplendor — — — — — —	III	146
4051	2744	255	The Roman conſul Cn. Cornelius Scipio, with a ſquadron of 17 galleys full of men, are drawn into a ſnare by Hannibal, and are all taken priſoners; but 103 more Roman gallies ſoon after fall upon, ſink, take, and diſperſe Hannibal's fleet, himſelf eſcaping with great difficulty: Quickly after the Romans, under the conſul Duilius, attacked the Carthaginian fleet again, and by help of an engine called the Corvus, they grappled the Carthaginians, and boarding them, overcame and took 80 of them, and 7000 priſoners, and killed 7000 men in the two engagements, and ſunk 13 ſhips or galleys; Hannibal a ſecond time eſcaped with difficulty, and is degraded by the Carthaginian ſenate; then the conſul going on ſhore, relieves Segeſta, beſieged by Hamilcar, takes Marcella, and returns to Rome, where he was honoured with a triumph, in the moſt magnificent and extraordinary manner, by medals, &c. — — —	IV	657
4051	2744	255	During the abſence of Duilius the Romans and Sicilians quarrel, and part from one another; whereupon Hamilcar attacks the Sicilians, and puts 4000 of them to the ſword, drove the Romans from their poſts, took ſeveral cities, and over-run great part of the country — — — — —
4052	2745	254	The Roman ſlaves form a conſpiracy to burn Rome, &c. and are joined by 4000 Samnites; but the plot is diſcovered by Erius Potitius, the commander of the confederates: The ſlaves were put in irons, and the Samnites impriſoned —	IV	650
4052	2745	254	The conſul C. Aquilius Florus having the command of the Roman navy, ſails to Corſica, and ſoon made himſelf maſter of the iſland: Afterwards going to Sardinia, he beſieged Olbia, where Hanno the Carthaginian general was killed, whom Aquilius, after taking the city, honoured with magnificent obſequies, attending his burial in perſon; after which he took moſt of the maritime cities, driving the Carthaginians away where-ever he came — — —	IV	660
4053	2746	253	The Carthaginians deſiring aſſiſtance of the Egyptians againſt the Romans, are denied by Ptolemy — — — — —	III	634
4053	2746	253	Aquilius being made proconſul, and going into Sicily, recovers what Hamilcar the Carthaginian general had taken, and drove him quite out of the field; and beſieging Myſiſtratum, reduced it to ſuch ſtraits, that it ſurrendered to the conſul Attilius ſoon after his arrival; and both Aquilius and his colleague Cornelius are honoured with triumphs upon their return to Rome, for their extraordinary ſervices — — — —	IV	660
4053	2746	253	The conſul Attilius falls into an ambuſcade, from which M. Calpurnius Flamma, with only 300 men, relieved him, but with the loſs of all his men, and himſelf extremely wounded, for which he was rewarded with a crown of gramen. Attilius takes Camerina, and ſells all the Carthaginians for ſlaves; then he goes to Enna, where the people open their gates to him, and deliver up all the Carthaginians, whom he puts to the ſword. Sittana he took by aſſault, and put the army ſent to relieve it to flight. Then he went into Agrigentum, and drove the Carthaginians quite out of the country. — — — —	IV	661
4053	2746	253	Sulpicius, the Roman conſul and admiral, engages Hannibal the Carthaginian admiral, but they are parted by a ſtorm, which drove both of them into the Sardinian harbours; the ſtorm abating, Sulpicius ſurprizes, ſinks, and takes moſt of the Carthaginian ſhips, for which the remainder crucify their admiral. Sulpicius returns to Rome, and is honoured with a triumph — — —	IV	661
4054	2747	252	Aratus comes to Athens, and prevails upon Diogenes the Macedonian governor to give up the three fortreſſes, Pyræum, Munichia, and Muſæum, for 150 talents, towards which he paid 20 out of his own fortune, and then left the Athenians abſolutely free, under the protection of the Achæans to guard their freedom —	II	557
4054	2747	252	C. Attilius Regulus, conſul for this year, having the command of the Roman fleet, goes with 10 gallies to reconnoitre the Carthaginian fleet, is ſurrounded, and moſt of them taken, but with great difficulty he eſcapes to the remainder of his fleet, with which he attacks the enemy, and routs them, taking 10 gallies and ſinking eight, with all their crews, forces the reſt to fly to the port of Lipara. Both conſuls at their return to Rome are honoured with a triumph; and Q. Ogulinus is created dictator to preſide at the Feriæ Latinæ, now revived upon account of ſome prodigies that had appeared during the campaign — — — —	IV	662
4055	2748	251	The conſuls L. Manlius Vulſo and Maras Attilius Regulus, with a fleet of 330 Roman gallies, each manned with 120 ſoldiers and 300 rowers, engage the Carthaginian fleet, conſiſting of 360 ſail, (and better manned than the Romans) near Heraclea in Sicily, and after an obſtinate and very bloody battle the Carthaginians were entirely routed, 30 of their ſhips being deſtroyed, and 63 taken with

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			with their crews, and the Romans had 24 ſunk. After this the Romans ſailed for Carthage, and took Clupea (or Apis) which they fortified, and made a key to Africa, ravaged the country, and returned with immenſe booty and 20,000 priſoners
4055	2748	251	Arſaces, in revenge for an affront upon the modeſty of his brother, by Agathocles governor of Parthia, &c. gets ſome friends and murders him, and at laſt he drove out the Macedonians, and made himſelf king, &c.	IV	663
4055	2748	251	Theodotus governor of Bactria revolts from Antiochus, and makes himſelf king, &c.	III	525
4055	2748	251	Eleazer the Jewiſh high-prieſt dies, and is ſucceeded by Manaſſes, uncle of Simon the Juſt	III IV	525
4056	2749	250	Sicyon, by the perſuaſion of Aratus becomes a member of the Achæan league	II	41
4056	2749	250	Attilius, now proconſul of the Roman army, beſieges Adis, or Adda, not far from Carthage, and engages the Carthaginian army, kills 17,000, takes 5000 and 18 elephants: This victory brought the ſubmiſſion of 80 towns to the Romans, of which Utica was one. Then Regulus (Attilius) beſieged Tunis, but nine miles from Carthage, and took it; upon which the Numidians entered the territories of the Carthaginians, laid all the country waſte, which ſoon brought a famine in Carthage, the metropolis of the whole country, which Attilius had now inveſted, and offering conditions of peace too hard for the ſenate to accept, they put their army under the command of Xantippus, a Lacedæmonian auxiliary, who engaging the Romans, routs them intirely, cuts off about 30,000, and takes Attilius priſoner, with whom he enters Carthage in triumph, who was treated with all the ſcorn, &c. that an enraged enemy could invent, and ſoon after Xantippus himſelf was forced to retire to Lacedæmon in diſgrace privately.	II	643
4057	2750	249	Manaſſes the Jewiſh high-prieſt dies, and is ſucceeded by Onias, the ſon of Simon the Juſt, who, by his avaricious ſordid way of behaving himſelf, had well nigh ruined the whole nation of the Jews	IV	666
4057	2750	249	The Roman fleet under the conſuls Fulvius and Æmilius engage the Carthaginian fleet of cape Hermea, or cape Mercury, and ſunk 104 of their ſhips, took 30, and killed 15,000 men; then proceed to Clupea, where, as ſoon as landed, they are engaged by the two Hannos, father and ſon, whom they defeat, and kill 9000 of their men, but for want of proviſions are forced to quit Clupea and Utica, and inſtead of returning home, they go to the northern coaſt of Sicily, where the fleet is almoſt entirely deſtroyed by a prodigious ſtorm, ſaving but 80 (and they much ſhattered) out of 370 ſail, loſing the crews, army, and riches of Africa which they had taken: This was the greateſt loſs that Rome had ever yet met with	IV	41
4058	2751	248	The Romans, after recruiting their fleet and army, ſend their conſuls and proconſuls into Sicily, where the city of Cephalædium, near the mouth of the Himera, was delivered to them by the inhabitants; then beſieging Panormus, they reduced the inhabitants to ſuch extremities, as to give 6*l.* 9*s.* 2*d. per* head for their ranſom; and thoſe who could not do it, to the number of 30,000, were ſold for ſlaves; but in their return to Rome, the tranſports that carried the money and ſpoils were taken by the Carthaginians	IV	666
4059	2752	247	The Romans make deſcents upon the eaſtern coaſts of Africa, where they ſurprize and plunder ſeveral towns and villages, and returning with great booty, were overtaken by a violent ſtorm, and loſt 160 galleys and a great number of tranſports; upon which the ſenate enact, that no more than 50 veſſels ſhould be equipped at a time for the future	IV	667
4060	2753	246	Antiochus, king of Syria and Macedon, makes peace with Ptolemy Philadelphus king of Egypt, and contracts to put away his wife Laodicea, and marry Berenice, Ptolemy's daughter, and ſettle the crown upon her children	III	525
4060	2753	246	The Romans take Himera in Sicily, and afterwards Lipara, by ſtorm, and put moſt of the inhabitants to the ſword	IV	668
4060	2753	246	Tib. Coruncanius was this year made Pontifex Maximus, though a plebeian, who concurred with the conſuls and the cenſors to puniſh the profane, irreligious, and diſobedient; 13 ſenators were ignominiouſly ſtruck off the liſt, and 400 knights degraded. By the cenſus 297,797 men fit to bear arms were found in Rome	IV	668
4062	2755	244	The Roman conſul Metellus artfully draws Aſdrubal the Carthaginian general into a diſadvantagious piece of ground, near Panormus in Sicily, then ſets upon him, kills 20,000 upon the ſpot, and many elephants, and takes ſeveral, which made his triumph at Rome very remarkably magnificent; but Aſdrubal upon his return to Carthage is crucified for his misfortunes.	IV	669
4062	2755	244	Ptolemy Euergetes (or the Beneficent) ſucceeds his father Ptolemy Philadelphus in the kingdom of Egypt, who is ſuppoſed to have died of grief at the death of his beloved wife Arſinoe	III	637
4062	2755	244	Ptolemy Euergetes king of Egypt takes Seleucia, a famous city 15 miles from Antioch, from the Syrians near the mouth of the Orontes, and puts a ſtrong Egyptian garriſon into it	III	635
4062	2755	244	Conon the mathematician, to appeaſe Ptolomy's wrath againſt the prieſts of the Zephyrian Venus, for loſing the hair his queen Berenice cut off from her own head as a token of joy for his Syrian victory, points out to him ſeven ſtars, near the tail of the lion, declaring them to be Berenice's hair, and which ſtill remain a conſtellation under that name	III	639
4062	2755	244	Antiochus Theos, as ſoon as he heard Ptolemy Philadelphus was dead, removed his daughter Berenice from his bed, and recalled Laodicea and her children, Seleucus Callinicus and Antiochus Hierax. Laodicea firſt poiſons her huſband, and then gets her ſon Seleucus Callinicus proclaimed king of Syria; ſhe then endeavoured to murder Berenice and her ſon, who fled to Antioch, where ſhe was beſieged, taken, and murdered, with all the Egyptians that attended her, before her bro-

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			ther could come with his army to her relief: But the Aſians joining the Egyptians, ſeverely revenge the murder, by conquering moſt of the provinces, and carrying away 40,000 talents of ſilver, a prodigious quantity of gold and ſilver veſſels, and 2500 ſtatues, &c.	III	527
4063	2756	243	Demetrius, the ſon of Antigonus Gonatus, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Macedon, which he enjoyed 10 years, full of much trouble and many wars. &c.	III	474
4063	2756	243	The Carthaginians ſend the conſul Regulus (their priſoner, having ſworn him to return) to Rome, with other ambaſſadors, to treat of a peace; Regulus perſuades the Romans to continue the war, for which the Carthaginians put him to death with extreme torments, and the Romans ſeverely revenge his death upon the Carthaginian priſoners	IV	669
4063	2756	243	Ptolemy king of Egypt, in his return from Syria comes through Jeruſalem, and offers ſacrifice to the God of Iſrael	III	640
4063	2756	243	Agis and Cleombrotus, kings of Sparta, go where the Ephori were ſitting, remove them from their ſeats, and put others in their ſtead, and then propoſe a cancelling of debts, and an equal diſtribution of lands; upon which the bonds and obligations for debt were brought in and burnt, &c.	II	627
4063	2756	243	The Carthaginians ſally out of Lilybæum in Sicily, where the Romans had long beſieged them, and burn all the Roman engines, and deſtroy all their works, &c. which diſaſter raiſed ſuch high diſputes in the Roman ſenate, that they come to blows, and one ſenator was killed for zealouſly perſuading the reſt to conclude a peace	IV	672
4064	2757	242	The Roman conſul Claudius Pulcher, upon hearing the ſacred chickens refuſe feeding, takes up the coop and throws it and them into the ſea, ſaying, If they won't eat, let them drink; and then engaging Adherbal, is defeated, with the loſs of 90 veſſels, 8000 men killed, and 20,000 taken priſoners, without the loſs of one Carthaginian: Claudius eſcaping with 30 gallies, the ſenate order him to name a dictator; he names Claudius Glycias, (a very mean perſon, a viator or tipſtaff of his own;) this highly affronts all, but Glycias laying down, M. Attilius Calatinus was choſen. The conſul Junius Pullus goes with a great fleet towards Lilybæum, but by a mighty ſtorm the whole is intirely deſtroyed by being ſhipwreck'd	IV	674
4064	2757	242	Aratus takes Acro-Corinth by ſurprize, and Megara, from the Macedonians, and unites them to the Achæans. Træzene, Epidaurus, and Megalopolis, by his perſuaſion, alſo join the league, and the Argives, &c.	II	643
4064	2757	242	The conſul Junius takes Eryx (a ſtrong city ſituate on the declivity of the mountain Eryx, the higheſt in Sicily except Ætna:) To ſecure it he built a fort at the foot of the mountain, and put a gariſon of 800 men in it; but Carthalo ſoon after took it by aſſault, and put the gariſon to the ſword, and killed Junius in the defence of it, &c.	IV	674
4065	2758	241	Carthalo, the Carthaginian general, being forced out of Italy, his mercenaries murmured for want of pay, for which he puniſhed ſome by tranſporting them to deſolate iſlands, and others he ſent to Carthage, where they were executed, &c. but this ſeverity begat a general hatred, ſo that Carthalo was recalled, and Hamilcar (ſirnamed Barcas) ſent into Italy in his ſtead, who firſt appeaſed the diſcontent in the army, and took an immenſe booty from the Locrians and Brutians, &c.	IV	675
4066	2759	240	Private perſons in Rome build and fit out ſhips that make deſcents upon the African coaſts, and do great miſchiefs by ravaging the country, entering into the port of Hippo, firing the ſhips and houſes, and bringing off great booty	IV	675
4066	2759	240	The Romans and Carthaginians exchange priſoners, and the difference in number is made up by money to the Romans. The Roman citizens appear to be but 251,220 by this year's cenſus	IV	675
4067	2760	239	Leonidas is reſtored to his kingdom of Sparta again, and Cleombrotus ſentenced to perpetual baniſhment; and Agis the other king is ſtrangled by order of the Ephori, together with his mother and grandmother, and Leonidas reigned alone	II	628
4068	2761	238	Leonidas dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Cleomenes III. in the whole kingdom of Sparta, who enjoyed it 16 years, when he was outed by Antigonus	II	629
4068	2761	238	Cleomenes king of Sparta, having built a fortreſs in the territories of the Megalopolitans, occaſioned the war called the Cleomenic war	II	645
4068	2761	238	Claudia, a Roman lady, is forced to appear before the tribes, and fined 25,000 aſſes of braſs, for ſpeaking contemptibly of the Roman populace, with which a chappel was built on the hill Aventinus, dedicated to liberty	IV	675
4068	2761	238	The Roman privateers gain a conſiderable victory over the Carthaginian fleet, and are afterwards daſhed in pieces by a ſtorm	IV	676
4068	2761	238	Hamilcar takes the ſtrong city and forts of Eryx from the Romans by ſurprize, and puts all in arms to the ſword, and ſends the others priſoners to Drepanum	VI	849
4069	2762	237	The Achæans under Aratus, and Spartans under Cleomenes, engage, and the Achæans are defeated; but Aratus rallying part of his troops, goes to Mantinea, and takes that important place belonging to Sparta; but the two armies meeting again, the Achæans are again terribly beaten under Lyſiades	II	645
4069	2762	237	The Gauls deliver a fort in Eryx to the Romans, and are admitted into the Roman ſervice, being the firſt time the republick took foreign forces into their pay	IV	676
4070	2763	236	The Romans having choſe C. Lutatius Catulus one of this year's conſuls, the Pontifex Maximus would not let him exerciſe the office of a general, becauſe he was high-prieſt of Mars, upon which a ſecond prætor was choſe, one to command in the army, and the other to diſtribute juſtice in the city	IV	677
4070	2763	236	The Romans having by a voluntary contribution built 200 quinqueremes, hired the moſt ſkilful of all nations to help to man them; with this fleet the prætor Valerius Falto embarked for Sicily, where, in conjunction with the conſul Lutatius,

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			they beſieged Dreſanum; but Lutatius being much wounded as he was entering a breach, was carried back to the camp, and the attack given over
4070	2763	236	The Romans attack the Carthaginian fleet, conſiſting of 400 ſail, overcome and defeat it, take 73 ſhips and their crews, and ſink 125, and diſperſe the reſt, then advance to Eryx, and cut off 2000 Carthaginians, and ſo put an end to the firſt punic war. The conſul propoſed a peace upon the following terms: 1ſt, That the Carthaginians ſhould intirely evacuate Sicily: 2d. That they ſhould pay 110 talents of ſilver yearly for 20 years: 3d. That they ſhould reſtore all the Roman captives and deſerters without ranſom, and redeem their own with money: 4. That they ſhould not make war upon Hiero king of Syracuſe, or his allies. But the Roman ſenate would have two new articles added, viz. 1000 talents down, and 220 talents yearly for 10 years, and that the Carthaginians ſhould quit all the little iſlands about Italy and Sicily, and never come near them with ſhips of war, or raiſe mercenaries there. Hamlicar was forced to comply, but went home with a ſettled hatred of the Romans. The peace was ratified by the ſolemn ſacrifice of a ſow, and the mutual oaths of both nations. In this war the Romans loſt 700 ſhips, and the Carthaginians 500 — —	IV	677
4070	2763	236	The diſbanded mercenaries of the Carthaginian army revolt for want of their pay, and encamp before Tunis, invite all the city to accede to them, and throw off the Carthaginian yoke, by which means their number is increaſed to 72000. Guiſco, their former general, coming to appeaſe them, is ſeized and put in chains, and the military cheſt broke open and divided, the women of the ſeveral African cities furniſh Mathos and Spendius (the rebels generals) with all their toys and ornaments to make money, &c. beſiege Utica and Hippacra, and treat every Carthaginian with great cruelty, &c. that falls into their hands. Hanno goes againſt them at Utica, engages and defeats them; but being negligent, they rally and fall unexpectedly upon him, take his camp, and all the proviſion brought for the relief of the city, &c. the like he was guilty of at Gaza, where he twice defeated the enemy, for which he is depoſed, and Hamilcar put in his ſtead, who with only 10000 horſe and foot, and 70 elephants, engages Mathos, defeats him, kills 8000 upon the ſpot, and takes 2000 priſoners: A while after, 2000 Numidians revolting to Hamilcar, he engages the rebels again, and after an obſtinate battle intirely routs them, with the ſlaughter of 10,000 and 4000 priſoners, of whom Hamilcar took ſo many into his own army as were willing to enter, and the reſt he ſet at liberty. Upon this the rebels put Guiſco and 700 Carthaginians to death, &c. Utica and Hippacra join the rebels, and put the Carthaginian gariſon to death, conſiſting of 500 men, and then the rebels went to Carthage, and beſieged it: The Carthaginians recal Hanno, and ſend Hannibal in his ſtead, into their army under Hamilcar, who ſo haraſſed the rebels, that they were forced to raiſe the ſiege, and ſoon after Hamilcar ſurrounded them upon a mountain, and reduced them to eat one another, when a peace was concluded, that ten of the rebel ringleaders ſhould be delivered to Hamilcar, and that the whole army ſhould be diſbanded, every man retiring with a ſingle coat: This agreed to, Hamilcar ſeized the negotiators, &c. the army not knowing the agreement, fly to arms; Hamilcar ſurrounds them, and cuts 40,000 of them to pieces; after which ſcouring the country, moſt of the revolted cities return to their duty: But Mathos with the remains of the army got into Tunis, where Hannibal and Hamilcar beſieged them, and crucified Spendius and the reſt of the priſoners near the walls in open view: Mathos makes a ſudden ſally into Hannibal's quarter, routs them, kills many, and takes many priſoners, and among them Hanninal, whom, after having taken Spendius down from the croſs, he put on it in his ſtead, and thirty Carthaginians round him, who all died in exquiſite torture. Many ſkirmiſhes afterwards happened, in which the rebels generally were defeated; but at laſt coming to a general battle, moſt of them were killed upon the ſpot, and Mathos and his attendants purſued and taken alive. Upon this the reſt of the revolted towns ſubmitted, except Utica and Hippo, which Hamilcar ſoon reduced, and ſo put an end to this bloody and deſtructive war, called the Libyan war, after it had laſted three years and a half. Mathos, firſt adorning the publick triumph, was afterwards put to moſt exquiſite torments, and ſo died — — — —	I	679
4070	2763	236	The mercenaries in Sardinia revolt from the Carthaginians, ſeize upon Boſtar, and the gariſon in Olbia, and maſſacre them. Hanno goes againſt them, and is deſerted by his men, who crucify him, and put all the Carthaginians they can get to death: But the inhabitants having drove them out, the Romans aſſiſt them, and replace them, forcing the Carthaginians to pay the expence, and a fine of 1200 talents — — — — — —	VI	864
4070	2763	236	The Faliſci having revolted from the Romans, the conſuls go againſt them, and in ſix days have two pitch'd battles; in the firſt both ſides were equal, but in the ſecond the Romans entirely defeat the Faliſci, kill 1500 on the ſpot, force them to lay down their arms, and ſurrender theie capital, built on a mountain, which was razed, but they are allowed to build another in the plain; their arms, horſes, and half their lands were confiſcated; for which the conſuls had a triumph at their return to Rome — — — — —	VI	864
4070	2763	236	The whole iſland of Sicily, except the kingdom of Syracuſe, is declared a Roman province, and a prætor is ſent annually to govern in civil cauſes, and a quæſtor to receive the revenues — — — — —	IV	679
4070	2763	236	The Tyber at Rome ſuddenly overflowed with ſuch violence, as to overturn a great many houſes in the lower grounds; and the water ſtagnated ſo long in the forum, as to damage the foundations of the houſes there; and then a fire broke out in the upper city, and ſpread to the forum, in both which diſaſters a prodigious number of people are ſuppoſed to have loſt their lives; for by this year's cenſus the inhabitants are ſaid to be but 160,000 fit to bear arms — — —	IV	679 680

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
4071	2764	235	Livius and Andronicus reform the Roman ſtage, by introducing the Grecian manner of acting at Rome	IV	680
4071	2764	235	Archidamus, brother to Agis late king of Sparta, is recalled; but upon his arrival at Sparta is murdered	II	629
4071	2764	235	Cleomenes returns with part of his army to Sparta, ſeizes the Ephori at ſupper, kills four of them, proſcribes 80 citizens of the greateſt rank, then makes proclamation for an equal diſtribution of lands, &c. raiſes a great army, and diſciplines them in a new method, then aſſociates his brother Euclidas in the kingdom, and ordains that there ſhall be two kings for the future, as uſed to be heretofore; prohibites all luxury, both of furniture and living, in his own court, and throughout the kingdom, and reigns with the greateſt oeconomy, juſtice, and affability	II	630
4072	2765	234	Cleomenes king of Sparta being attacked by Aratus the Achæan general, marches into the territories of Achaia, and takes many cities from them, but treats the inhabitants with great mildneſs, &c.	II	631
4072	2765	234	Ennius the poet born at Rudes, a city in Calabria near Tarentum, the inventor of hexameter verſe among the Latins, though himſelf a Greek; the life of Scipio Africanus was his maſter-piece; he alſo wrote the hiſtory of Rome in 18 books in verſe	IV	680
4072	2765	234	Hamilcar the Carthaginian general ſwears his ſon Hannibal, a boy of but nine years old, by laying his hand upon the altar, that he would be an eternal enemy to Rome	VI	685
4073	2766	233	The Italic Gauls, called the Boii, join the Faliſci, and defeat the conſul Q. Valerius Falto, and kill and take 3500 of his men; but Valerius falls upon the enemy again, and kills 14,000, and takes 2000 priſoners; and Sempronius the other conſul gains a victory over the Ligurians: Then Sempronius goes into Sardinia, obliges the Carthaginians to reſign that iſland, pay the expence of this expedition, and a fine of 1200 talents	IV	682
4073	2766	233	Antigonus, ſirnamed Doſon, brother of Demetrius late king of Macedon, being appointed tutor and guardian to Philip the ſon of Antigonus, now but two years old, ſo ingratiates himſelf with the people, and the widow, whom he married, that he is ſoon after ſaluted by the name of king, in which character he performed many extraordinary actions, as appears by his life	III	477
4074	2767	232	The conſul Cornelius engages the Ligurians, kills 24,000 of them, and takes 5000 priſoners, for which he is honoured with a triumph upon his return to Rome	IV	682
4075	2768	231	The Boii make a truce with the Romans, and engage their countrymen the Tranſalpine Gauls, who came in great numbers to join them, kill their two generals or kings, Atys and Galatius, and a vaſt number of men, and put the reſt to flight, for fear they ſhould diſpoſſeſs them of their Italian habitations; upon which Lentulus the Roman conſul ſubdues both the Boii and Ligurians, &c.	IV	682
4075	2768	231	The Corſicans being inſtigated by the Carthaginians revolt, and Claudius Glycias being ſent with a Roman ſquadron, makes a peace; but the conſul Lentulus refuſes to confirm it, and reduces the iſland by force of arms: Claudius is delivered to the Corſicans, who ſend him to Rome, where he is put to death, and then dragged by an iron hook from the Scalæ Gemoniæ, and then thrown into the Tiber	IV	682
4075	2768	231	Arſaces having eſtabliſhed himſelf king of Parthia, engages, overthrows, and takes Seleucus king of Syria his maſter priſoner. The day of this victory was annually obſerved by the Parthians for many ages afterwards with great ſolemnity	III	529
4076	2769	230	T. Manlius Torquatus the Roman conſul recovered Sardinia that had revolted, and made it tributary. Rome being now univerſally at peace, the temple of Janus was ſhut	IV	683
4077	2770	229	The Sardinians, Corſicans, and Ligurians league together, and revolt from Rome. The conſul Carvilius firſt reduces the Corſicans, and then defeats and ſubdues the Sardinians, &c. The cenſors finding the number of Rome's inhabitants decreaſe, obliged all the citizens to ſwear they would marry only with a view of getting children: This occaſioned Corvilius Ruga, a man of diſtinction to divorce his his wife, whom he paſſionately loved, upon account of her being barren, and marry another: This is the firſt inſtance of a divorce ſince the foundation of Rome; which introduced marriage contracts, to ſecure the womens portions in caſe of a divorce, &c. This year the poet Nævius introduced the firſt regular comedy after the Greek manner on the Latin ſtage	IV	683
4077	2770	229	Hamilcar the Carthaginian general goes with an army into Spain, and fixes his head-quarters at Gades, (now Cadiz) where he continued nine years, and gained great advantages, and took abundance of ſpoil, which he divided among his troops and the great men at Carthage; but at laſt was ſlain in battle, with abundance of his men; upon which Aſdrubal his ſon-in-law is choſen general in his ſtead	VI	867
4077	2770	229	Seleucus Callinicus, fits up a mighty fleet, and goes to recover what Ptolemy had taken from him in Syria; but a violent ſtorm deſtroys almoſt all of it, himſelf and few more eſcaping with great difficulty; however, the Syrians pitying him, many of them voluntarily ſubmit: He raiſes a great army, and engages Ptolemy, but is intirely defeated, and flies to Antioch, where promiſing his brother Antiochus the Leſſer Aſia, he prepares an army to aſſiſt him, upon which Ptolemy makes a truce for ten years	III	528
4078	2771	228	The conſul Fabius drove the revolted Ligurians out of the plain country, and forced them to ſhelter themſelves among the Alps; and Pomponius the other conſul gaining conſiderable advantages over the Sardinians, was honoured with a triumph	IV	684
4078	2771	228	A new tribunal of juſtice eſtabliſhed among the Romans, called the Centum Viri, though their true number was 105, who were divided into four courts or chambers, under whoſe cognizance came proſcriptions, guardianſhips, laſt-wills, inheritances,

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			heritances, &c. In future times theſe courts conſiſted of 180 perſons, but ſtill bore the name of Centum Viri — — — —	IV	684
4079	2772	227	Seleucus king of Syria, having been priſoner in Parthia four years, dies by a fall from his horſe, as he was riding to take the air — — —	III	529
4079	2772	227	Seleucus (ſirnamed Ceraunus, or the thunderer) ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Syria, who after a diſagreeable reign of three years was poiſoned — —	III	530
4080	2773	226	The conſuls M. Pomponius Matho and C. Papirius Maſo finiſhed the conqueſt of Sardinia and Corſica, and reduced them to a Roman province. Papirius being refuſed a triumph, marched at the head of his victorious army, crowned with myrtle inſtead of laurel, to the temple of Jupiter Latialis, on the hill of Alba, in a triumphant manner, which method was afterwards followed by many others — — — — — — —	IV	685
4081	2774	225	Teuta, queen of Illyricum, having commiſſioned her ſubjects to pirate upon all ſhips that came upon her coaſts, the Romans ſend ambaſſadors to her to demand ſatisfaction for themſelves and allies; the queen anſwers haughtily, they reply, and ſhe orders them to be put to death; which being done, the Romans order a fleet and army to go and revenge the affront: upon which the queen ſubmits, denies the fact, and offers to deliver up the murderers; but in the mean time her fleet having got an advantage over the Achæans, and taken Corſica, &c. ſhe forgets to perform her promiſe — — — —	IV	685
4082	2775	224	The Romans equip a fleet of 100 gallies, and raiſe an army of 20,000 foot, beſides a body of horſe, and ſend them under the command of the conſuls Cn. Fulvius Centumalus, and P. Poſthumius Albinus: Upon Fulvius's coming with his fleet to Corcyra, Demetrius of Pharos, governor for queen Teuta, puts the city and iſland into his hands, and perſuades the inhabitants of Appollonia to drive out the Illyrian gariſon, and ſubmit to the Romans. Upon this Poſthumius penetrates into the heart of the queen's dominions, while the fleet cruiſed along the coaſt, and the Andyæans, Parthini, and Atintanes ſubmit to the Romans; after which, Poſthumius takes Nutria, a place of great ſtrength, though with great loſs, and 40 Illyrian veſſels laden with booty in their return home — — — —	IV	686
4082	2775	224	Upon the death of Seleucus king of Syria, the army and ſeveral provinces offer the crown of Syria to Achæus, but he generouſly refuſes it for Antiochus, the brother of Seleucus, a youth of 15 years of age, who, for his illuſtrious actions, was ſirnamed the Great — — — — —	III	530
4083	2776	223	Molo and Alexander (two brothers, governors of Media and Perſia) revolt, and ſet up for themſelves. They firſt defeat Zeno and Theodotus, Antiochus's generals, and afterwards in a ſecond engagement cut off Xenætus and his whole army, and thereby acquire the province of Babylonia and all Meſopotamia without oppoſition — — — — — —	III	531
4083	2776	223	Epigenes, general of Antiochus, is treacherouſly accuſed, and falſly put to death, by Hermias the king's prime miniſter — — — —	III	532
4083	2776	223	Queen Teuta ſues for peace, but the Romans refuſe to treat with her; but make peace with the young king upon ſevere terms. She lays down the regency, and Demetrius ſucceeds her in it — — — —	IV	686
4083	2776	223	Rome growing jealous of her rival Carthage, upon account of her great acquiſitions in Spain by Aſdrubal their general, and his building the famous city of Carthage, to ſecure his conqueſts they agree, that Carthage ſhould not extend her conqueſts beyond the river Iberus, and that Saguntum (a colony of Zacynthians) ſhould remain free — — — — —	IV	686
4083	2776	223	Cleomenes king of Sparta invades Achæa, takes Pellene by ſurprize, then maſters Phenæon and Penteleon, and Argos, and by this means raiſes Sparta to greater power than it ever had — — — — —	II	631
4084	2777	222	Cleomenes king of Sparta engages Antigonus king of Macedon, &c. at Sellaſia, where, through the ſuperiority of the enemies troops and the treachery of Damoteles, he is defeated, with a vaſt ſlaughter of his mercenaries, and almoſt all his own troops, having but 200 left out of 6000; after which he retires to Egypt, where Ptolemy Euergetes entertains him kindly: In him ended the Herculean race of Spartan kings, and Sparta fell under the government of Antigonus — —	II	632
4084	2777	222	Antiochus king of Syria goes againſt the rebel Molo, governor of Media, overcomes his army, and purſues him; Molo for fear of falling into the king's hands kills himſelf, as do alſo ſeveral of his attendants: Neolaus, or Nicholas his brother, eſcaping, fled to his other brother Alexander, the rebel governor of Perſia, who, upon hearing of the defeat, &c. of his brother Molo, they firſt killed their mother, afterwards their wives and children, and then diſpatched themſelves. The rebel provinces returned to their dury, and the king was eſtabliſhed in his authority — — — —	III	534
4085	2778	221	Two Greeks, a man and a woman, and two Gauls, a man and a woman, are buried alive at the Ox-market in Rome, by command of the conſuls, to appeaſe the ſuperſtition of the commonalty — — — — — —	IV	687
4085	2778	221	Aſdrubal, the famous Carthaginian general, after having done his country the greateſt ſervices for eight years ſucceſſively with extraordinary ſucceſs, was publickly murdered by a Gaul, whoſe maſter he had put to death; and Hannibal ſucceeded him as general of the Carthaginian army in Spain, with univerſal applauſe — — — — — —	VI	686
4085	2778	221	Antigonus king of Macedon having engaged the Illyrians, &c. who had in his abſence invaded Macedon, behaved with ſo much wiſdom and valour as gained him a complete victory; but overſtraining himſelf in the fight, died ſoon after of a ſpitting of blood — — — —	III	477
4085	2778	221	Philip ſon of Antigonus, ſucceeds his uncle in the kingdom of Macedon, where he reigned more than 30 years; but behaving diſagreeably at laſt fell into the hared of his people, and a ſlave to Rome, who obliged him to ſend his ſon Deme-

Y. of world	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			trius a hoſtage, to deliver up his ſhips of war, pay 1000 talents, and ſuffer many provinces to be clipped from his kingdom —	III	478
4086	2779	220	Hannibal conquers the Olcades, a people near the Iberus, and taking Althæa their capital, the reſt ſubmit: Hannibal divides the ſpoil among his ſoldiers, and pays them all their arrears, which fixed him immoveably in their affections —	VI	869
4086	2779	220	The Romans having raiſed an army of 274,000 Romans, and 526,000 auxiliaries, the conſul Attilius Regulus was ſent with a part of it into Sardinia, and the other conſul L. Æmilius Papus againſt the Gauls, who invaded the Roman territories with an army of 200,000 men, commanded by the two kings Concolitanus and Aneroeſtus, who haraſſed the country terribly in their paſſage, and took great ſpoil; and then engaging an army commanded by a Roman prætor, killed 6000 of his men, and obliged the reſt to fly in confuſion to a neighbouring hill, which the Gauls inveſted, and reduce them to great ſtraits. The conſul Attilius engaging the enemy, was killed, and his head was carried through the enemies files ſtuck upon a launce; but at laſt the Gauls were defeated, with the ſlaughter of 40,000, and 10,000 taken priſoners, among whom was Concolitanus: Aneroeſtus eſcaped to a neighbouring village, where he killed himſelf, and moſt of his officers did the ſame: Then Æmilius plundered the country of the Boii, and when his ſoldiers were loaded with plunder, he marched to Rome, where his triumph was as pompous as his victory was great —	IV	688
4086	2779	220	Achæus being falſely accuſed of entertaining treacherous deſigns againſt king Antiochus, after he had taken from Attalus king of Pergamus what he had wreſted from Syria, in his own defence proclaims himſelf king of Aſia, &c. where he was governor —	III	535
4086	2779	220	Antiochus beſieges and takes Seleucia from Ptolemy king of Egypt, reſtores the inhabitants to their antient privileges, and uſes them with great humanity —	III	536
4087	2780	219	Theodotus, general for Ptolemy, having been ill uſed, out of revenge delivers up the cities of Tyre and Ptolemais, the magazines, and 40 ſail of ſhips to Antiochus —	III	536
4087	2780	219	Cleomenes king of Sparta is ſhut up in priſon at Alexandria, and failing in an attempt to get his liberty, &c. himſelf and friends kill one another; upon which Ptolemy ordered his body to be flead, and hung up on a croſs, and ſentences his mother Cratiſclea, his children, &c. to death —	III	644
4087	2780	219	The Spartans revolt from the Macedonians; but upon the arrival of an army under Philip the ſon of Antigonus, they ſubmit —	II	634
4087	2780	219	The Romnn conſuls are hindered from paſſing the Po, and following the Gauls into their own country, by a great plague that raged in Rome and in the army —	IV	688
4087	2780	219	Hannibal beſieges and takes Salmantica, and after a very reſolute defence Arbucala: The Olcades and Carpetani, to the number of 10,000, endeavour to fall upon him; but he croſſing the Tagus in the night, they purſue him irregularly, and are moſt of them deſtroyed in the water, &c. Then Hannibal lays the country of the Carpetani waſte, upon which they all ſubmit —	VI	870
4087	2780	219	The Carthaginians beſiege Saguntum, with 150,000 foot and 20,000 horſe, which the inhabitants defend with incredible bravery, by frequent ſallies, and drive the Carthaginians away with prodigious ſlaughter, when they attempted the place by ſtorm; but a ſmall time after they take the city by ſtorm, and put moſt of the inhabitants to the ſword, &c. —	VII	5
4088	2781	218	The Ephori murdered by the Spartans, who chooſe Ageſipolis and Lycurgus to be their kings: Lycurgus drives out Ageſipolis; Chilo conſpires againſt him, murders the Ephori, and forces Lycurgus to fly; but Chilo not being beloved, was obliged to retire to Macedon, and Lycurgus returned and reigned many years —	II	635
4088	2781	218	Antiochus defeats Nicholaus the Egyptian general, takes many cities, and ſome provinces, and then winters in Ptolemais with his army —	III	538
4089	2782	217	Theodotus the Ætolian going in the night into Ptolemy's camp, went to his tent and killed his phyſician, thinking it was the king, but Ptolemy that night lay elſewhere, and ſo eſcaped —	III	538
4089	2782	217	Antiochus and Ptolemy come to engagement, wherein Antiochus is defeated, with the loſs of 10,000 killed and 4000 taken priſoners; upon which he is forced to withdraw to Antioch, and quit all his conqueſts —	III	538
4089	2782	217	Ptolemy being addreſſed and congratulated by all the cities of Cœle-Syria, that through force had ſubmitted to Antiochus, goes a progreſs through them, reſtoring all to their former privileges, comes to Jeruſalem, offers ſacrifice to the God of Iſrael, and beſtows great gifts upon the temple, but attempts to enter the holy of holies, and is ſtruck with a ſort of madneſs and terror, upon which he reſents it highly, and uſes the Jews ill, &c. —	III	539
4089	2782	217	The Romans deny peace to the Inſubres, croſs the Po, and beſiege Acerræ, whereupon the Gauls croſs the Po, and with an army of 90,000 men inveſt Claſtidium; upon which Marcellus the conſul comes with a detachment to relieve the place; they offer to attack him; both armies are ready, when Viridomarus, the Gauliſh king, challenges Marcellus to a ſingle combat, which he accepts, and kills him, und afterwards routs the whole army. While this was doing, Scipio the other conſul took Acerræ, Mediolanum, &c. and ſo all Italy from the Alps to the Ionian ſea became Roman provinces. Marcellus is decreed an extraordinary triumph at his return to Rome, and carries the rich armour and ſpoils of Viridomarus, and dedicated the 3d and laſt Opima Spolia to Jupiter Feretrius; a gold cup was ſent to Apollo at Delphos, and great preſents to Hiero king of Syracuſe —	IV	690
4089	2782	217	The Romans having croſſed the Po, engage the Gauls, kill 9000, and take 17000 priſoners, and thereby obtain a compleat victory —	IV	689
4089	2782	217	Ptolemy Philopator ſucceeds his father Euergetes in the kingdom of Egypt, murders his brother Magos, and then gives himſelf up to all manner of vicious living, &c.	III	642

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
4089	2782	217	Antiochus king of Syria beſieges and carries by aſſault the city of Seleucia, (then held by the Egyptians) treats the inhabitants with the utmoſt humanity, and reſtored them to their antient privileges	III	536
4090	2783	216	Antiochus cedes Cœle-Syria to Ptolemy, and concludes a peace with him	III	535
4090	2783	216	The Iſtrians having taken ſome Roman ſhips, the conſuls M. Minutius Ruſus and P. Cornelius Scipio Aſina go againſt them, and reduce all Iſtria, but with the loſs of much blood on both ſides	IV	690
4091	2784	215	A cenſus being taken at Rome, the number of Roman citizens fit to bear arms are found to be 272,213	IV	691
4091	2784	215	Demetrius of Pharos, whom the Romans had appointed governor of Illyricum, acts againſt their orders, and ſets up for himſelf, perſuading the Atintanes alſo to revolt, and alſo ſent 50 ſhips of war to pillage the Cyclades. The Romans ſend an army againſt him, who take Dimalum, a city he imagined impregnable, in ſeven days: They then go to Pharos with a large fleet, which they take, plunder, and raze, and Demetrius eſcapes to Macedon. The conſuls at their return to Rome are accuſed of keeping the ſpoil for their own uſe, &c. L. Æmilius Paulus is acquitted; but M. Livius Salinator is condemned; upon which he retires to his country houſe, and lives private	IV	691
4091	2784	215	This year the art of ſurgery was introduced into Rome, by one Archagathus a Peloponneſian	IV	691
4092	2785	214	The ſecond punic or Carthaginian war breaks out. The Roman and Syracuſan fleet engage the Carthaginian fleet, and defeat them; take ſeven ſhips, kill abundance of men, and take 1700 priſoners, with a very ſmall loſs	IV	693
4092	2785	214	Hannibal marching from Spain to Italy, went about 1000 Engliſh miles in five months and a half, and loſt by ſickneſs, deſertion, fatigue, and various engagements 30,000 foot, and 3000 horſe, having upon a review in the fruitful plains of Inſubria no more than 26,000 effective men. The Taurini refuſing to conclude a treaty with him, he enters their territories, and takes their capital by ſtorm, and puts all to the ſword that made any reſiſtance; upon which all the Gauls ſurrender at diſcretion. Soon after Hannibal and Scipio engage, and after a very ſtubborn fight the Romans are routed, the conſul being wounded, and the greateſt part of the army cut off; the reſt fly precipitately. Upon this the Gauls join Hannibal, recruit his army, and give him all manner of neceſſaries	IV	694
4092	2785	214	The Romans and Carthaginians engage on the banks of the Trebia, where the Romans are beaten with great ſlaughter, &c. A ſmall time after Hannibal takes a ſmall city of Inſubria, called Victumviæ, and commits moſt monſtrous cruelties upon the gariſon and inhabitants	IV	702
4092	2785	214	Hannibal marches his army through marſhy ground, where for the ſpace of four days and nights they were in mud and water up to the thighs, during which time many of his men and moſt of his horſes die with cold, and himſelf loſes one of his eyes, but at laſt gets into Hetruria	IV	703
4092	2785	214	Cneius Scipio brother to the conſul P. Cornelius Scipio, goes into Spain with an army of Romans, &c. and reduces all the country from the Pyrenees to the Iberus, then engages and entirely routs the Carthaginians under the command of Hanno, whom he takes priſoner, together with Indibilis, a Spaniſh prince intirely devoted to the Carthaginians; their camp was forced, 6000 ſlain, and 2000 taken priſoners; all the heavy baggage was taken, and many of the Spaniſh nations conclude an offenſive and defenſive alliance with Scipio	VII	20
4092	2785	214	Achæus, after having ſuſtained the ſiege of Antiochus and Attalus king of Pergamus above a year in Sardis, was betrayed into the hands of Antiochus, by the treachery of two Cretans. Achæus is put to death, and all Aſia ſubmits to Antiochus	III	541
4092	2785	214	Antiochus drives Arſaces out of Media, which he had taken from Antiochus while he was employed in Egypt	III	541
4092	2785	214	Philip king of Macedon forces the Ætolians to make peace upon very diſadvantagious terms	II	707
4093	2786	213	Antiochus gains great advantages over Arſaces in Parthia and Hyrcania, but at laſt peace is made between them, upon condition that Arſaces ſhall aſſiſt Antiochus in reducing all the revolted provinces, except Parthia and Hyrcania	III	542
4093	2786	213	The Romans under the raſh conduct of the conſul Flaminius are drawn into an ambuſh, where 15,000 are killed, and Flaminius himſelf, and 6000 taken priſoners; and of thoſe that eſcaped moſt of them died of their wounds	IV	705
4093	2786	213	Hannibal ſends Adherbal after 6000 Romans that had eſcaped from the late defeat, who ſurrender upon condition of giving them their lives and liberty; but Hannibal orders all the Romans to be put in chains, and ſets the auxiliaries at liberty, declaring he fought only againſt Rome. The conſul Servilius having ſent a detachment of 4000 Romans to reinforce his colleague, they come too late, and 2000 are killed and the reſt ſurrender	IV	705
4093	2786	213	The Romans raiſe Fabius Maximus (ſirnamed Verrucoſus) to the power of dictator, but call him pro-dictator, as not being choſe in the ordinary way; and alſo named Minucius Rufus for his general of the horſe. Fabius conſulting the Sybiline books, is told the preſent calamities are for the non-performance of a vow of Aulus Cornelius to Mars, to ſacrifice all the pigs, lambs, kids, and calves that ſhould be brought forth in one ſpring, viz. from 1ſt March to 1ſt May, called Ver Sacrum: This vow being renewed, and others made, he goes to head the army Servilius had commanded, to which he added two new legions, and appoints the city of Tybur for the rendezvous, from whence he ſent orders to the country people to burn their houſes, &c. He only watched and followed Hannibal, haraſſed his rear, and took all advantages. The ſenate call him home, and make his general of the horſe his equal, who venturing upon a battle, is defeated and ſurrounded by Hannibal; Fabius ſaves him from being cut to pieces, and drives away the enemy with great ſlaughter	IV	708

The

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4093	2786	213	The Ilergetes in Spain, notwithſtanding they had given Scipio hoſtages for their fidelity, declare for the Carthaginians. Scipio inveſts their capital city Athanagia, and takes it, pardons the people, and takes freſh hoſtages, after exacting a good ſum of money from them. While this was doing he cut off 12,000 Auſenaians, who came to their aſſiſtance: Soon after the Roman and Carthaginian fleets engage; the Romans forced the Carthaginians in the mouth of the Iberus, killed abundance of ſeamen and marines, and carried off 35 gallies — —	VI!	27
4093	2786	213	After the naval defeat, Scipio advancing to Honoſca took it by ſtorm̃, and razed it; then makes a deſcent into Africa, ravages all about Carthage, burning houſes up to the walls and haven, and returned loaded with ſpoil; then landed in the iſland Ebuſus, now Yvica, plundered it, and burnt ſome ſtreets in the capital city; upon this 120 different cantons of the Spaniards ſubmit to Rome, who afterwards overthrow Aſdrubal twice, kill him 15,000 men, and take 4000 priſoners, and three fortreſſes by aſſault	VII	27
4093	2786	213	Philip king of Macedon beſieges and takes Thebes, or Phthiotis, and after having plundered the town, and ſold the inhabitants, repeopled it with a colony of Macedonians, changing its name into Philippopolis —	II	662
4094	2787	212	Hannibal having fixed a price upon his priſoners, which the Romans refuſing to pay, part he ſent to Carthage, and the remainder he made gladiators of, forcing even relations to fight together for the diverſion of his army. Capua ſurrenders to Hannibal; they kill the Roman gariſon, &c. — —	IV	714
4094	2787	212	Hannibal ſends his brother Mago to acquaint the ſenate at Carthage, that in ſix pitched battles he had killed 200,000 Romans, and taken 50,000 priſoners; and that Apulia, Brutia, Lucania, and Campania had ſubmitted to Carthage, and preſented them with three buſhels of rings taken from the Roman knights —	IV	715
4094	2787	212	The two Scipios in Spain engage and entirely defeat Aſdrubal, and thereby prevent the Carthaginians in Spain joining Hannibal in Italy	IV	715
4094	2787	212	The dictator Marcellus ſallies out upon Hannibal, now beſieging Nola, and cuts off 5000 of his men, and drives all away in confuſion —	IV	716
4094	2787	212	Hannibal after a long ſiege takes Caſilinum, and obliges each freeman to pay ſeven ounces of gold for his redemption, and then takes Petilia, after an obſtinate defence	IV	717
4094	2787	212	M. Fabius Buteo is made dictator at Rome, to name new ſenators to ſupply the place of thoſe killed, &c. and names 177 to the people's ſatisfaction, and then lays down his dictatorſhip —	IV	718
4094	2787	212	The Romans and Carthaginians engage at Cannæ, a ſmall city in Apulia on the banks of the Auſidus; the Romans are entirely routed, and the conſul Æmilius, the two proconſuls Servilius and Attilius, two military quæſtors, 29 legionary tribunes, 80 ſenators, and 45000 ſoldiers are killed, and about 34.000 eſcaped in the night to Canuſium. Hannibal is ſaid to loſe but 4000 Gauls, 1500 Africans and Spaniards, and 2000 horſe —	IV	711
4094	2787	212	Aratus the Achæan prætor is poiſoned by order of Philip king of Macedon —	II	665
4094	2787	212	Ptolemy Philopator, king of Egypt, reverſes the former decrees that gave great privileges to the Jews at Alexandria, and uſes them cruelly, putting many to death, and expoſing a great number of them to be deſtroyed by 500 elephants, from which they are miraculouſly preſerved, which ſo affected Ptolemy, that he ordered all in chains and priſon to be releaſed, and reſtored them to all their former privileges, and reverſed all his ſevere decrees —	III	685
4095	2788	211	The conſul Poſthumius Albinus and all his army are cut off by the Boii, in a vaſt foreſt through which he was obliged to paſs —	IV	718
4095	2788	211	The conſul Sempronius engages the revolted Campanians, kills their general Alfius with 2000 ſoldiers, and puts the reſt to flight, and then retires to Cumæ, where Hannibal beſieges him, but after loſing 1300 men, is forced to raiſe the ſiege. The other conſul Marcellus engages Hannibal, kills him 5000 men, takes 600 priſoners, 19 ſtandards, and two elephants: Upon this 1270 horſe revolt from Hannibal to Marcellus	IV	719
4095	2788	211	The Roman prætor Manlius Torquatus defeats the Sardinians, who had revolted, and a Carthaginian army under Aſdrubal, killed 12,000, took Aſdrubal, Hanno, and Mago, his chief officers, priſoners, with many ſoldiers	IV	720
4095	2788	211	The Romans and Ætolians ſign a peace, which was concluded two years before	II	703
4095	2788	211	Philip king of Macedon twice defeats the Ætolians, under the command of Pyrrhus in conjunction with Attalus king of Pergamus —	II	666
4096	2789	210	Sempronius with an army of Volones (or ſlaves) engages Hanno the Carthaginian, overthrows him, and out of 18,200 horſe and foot, only 2200 eſcaped; and Marcellus defeated Hannibal, killing him 2000 men with the loſs of only 400 Romans. Then Marcellus beſieges and takes Caſilinum, and puts all to the ſword that made any reſiſtance: Then Fabius lays waſte great part of Campania, and killed and took 25,000 men —	IV	722
4096	2789	210	Hiero king of Syracuſe by will bequeaths the kingdom to his grandſon Hieronymus, who being but 15 years old, he appointed him 15 guardians; and now, being 90 years old, he dies in the 54th year of his reign, exceedingly bewailed and beloved by all his ſubjects, who honoured him with a pompous funeral —	III	100
4096	2789	210	Hieronymus king of Syracuſe becomes vain, debauched, cruel, and exceedingly vicious, joins the Carthaginians, and breaks from the Romans: His ſubjects hate him, conſpire againſt and kill him in the ſtreet, where they leave his mangled carcaſs to rot; and ſoon after all the royal race were alſo diſpatched	III	106
4096	2789	210	Marcellus the Roman conſul goes againſt the revolted Leontines, and takes the city by aſſault, and puts 2000 Roman deſerters to death, but reſtores the inhabitants both their goods and their liberty. — — —	III	109

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4096	2789	210	Hippocrates and Epicydes (two Carthaginian generals) ingratiate themſelves into the Syracuſan mercenaries, get into Syracuſe, put the ſenators to the ſword, and reign arbitrarily — — —	III	111
4096	2789	210	Marcellus the Roman conſul beſieges Syracuſe (a city in Sicily 22 miles in circumference) which is defended by the engines contrived by the famous mathematician Archimedes 3 years, againſt the whole art, courage, and induſtry of Rome, with ſuch deſtructive methods and engines as were never heard of before —	III	112
4096	2789	210	Hamilco coming from Carthage into Syracuſe, with 20,000 foot and 3000 horſe, and 12 elephants, takes many cities that had ſubmitted to Marcellas. Hippocrates breaks out of Syracuſe with 10,000 foot and 1500 horſe to join Hamilco; Marcellus meets, engages, and kills 8000 of them, and then returns to the ſiege of Syracuſe — — — —	III	114
4097	2790	209	The conſuls having laid the country round Capua waſte, Hanno goes to their relief, and is intirely routed by the Romans under Fulvius, who killed him 6000 men, and took 7000 priſoners, with an exceeding great booty of corn, forage, waggons, horſes, Hanno's baggage, &c. Hanno himſelf eſcaping to Brutium, attended only with a ſmall body of horſe — — —	IV	724
4097	2790	209	The proconſul Sempronius is deceived by one Fulvius a Capuan, ſurrounded and killed, with moſt of his men. Hannibal pays his corps all the military honours due to a great commander — — —	IV	724
4097	2790	209	The Romans in Spain having hired 30,000 Celtiberians into their ſervice, Aſdrubal the Carthaginian bribes them, and they deſert. Scipio is engaged by a conjunct army of Numidians, Carthaginians, and Spaniards, is killed, and his army almoſt cut to pieces: Soon after his brother Cneius was likewiſe killed, and moſt of his men; thoſe who eſcaped retired under T. Fonteius into a neighbouring tower, where they all periſhed by fire — —	IV	726
4097	2790	209	Marcius, a young Roman nobleman, collected the ſcattered troops of the Romans in Spain together, &c. and being attacked by Aſdrubal, repulſed him, and the next night ſet Aſdrubal's camp on fire, and killed him 37,000 men, and took 1830 priſoners — — —	IV	727
4097	2790	209	Hannibal takes Metapontum, and the inhabitants put all the Romans to the ſword; Heraclea did the ſame, and ſubmitted to the Carthaginians; and Thurium treacherouſly ſhut the gates, and denied the Romans entrance at their retreat from a ſally, whereby they were all cut to pieces by Hanno, except Atinus the commandant, and a few with him — —	VII	54
4098	2791	208	The Romans now at war with the Carthaginians, ſend ambaſſadors to Egypt to deſire a renewal of their old alliance of friendſhip, with great preſents —	III	646
4098	2791	208	As the Romans were irregularly ſtraggling about Capua, and ravaging the country, Mago overtakes them, and kills 1500 of them, and recovers all the booty, takes many priſoners, and diſperſes the reſt. Soon after Hannibal meets with M. Centenius Penula with 16,000 men, and cuts off Centenius and 15,000 of his men: Quickly after Hannibal engages Cn. Fulvius the prætor with 18,000 men, cut off 16,000, ſo that only the prætor and 2000 eſcaped —	VII	55
4098	2791	208	The Romans and Ætolians join, and lay waſte all the fertile country between Sicyon and Corinth; but upon Philip king of Macedon's coming againſt them, they retire with great precipitation — —	II	706
4098	2791	208	Hannibal attempts the relief of Capua, and the gariſon ſallies out at the ſame time; but both are defeated, Hannibal having 8000 men killed, and the Capuans 3000; 15 colours taken from the firſt, and 18 from the laſt —	IV	727
4098	2791	208	Hannibal marches up to the gates of Rome, but durſt not attempt to ſtorm it, or run the hazard of a battle, but ſuddenly marches back to Capua, and fell upon Appius's camp, and kills a great many of his men, and then marches off: Soon after Capua ſubmitted, the Carthaginian gariſon were made priſoners of war, but the ſenators were tried by the proconſuls, out of whom 25 were ſent to Galo, and 28 to Teanum, to be confined till their fate ſhould be determined; but Fulvius went and put them all to death. Rome kept the fruitful plains as its own property, and tranſplanted freed-men thither to manure the land, and annually ſent a præfect for their governor — — —	IV	729
4098	2791	208	Philip king of Macedon and the Achæans beſiege Elis, into which the Romans had flung 4000 men under Sulpitius: A bloody conflict happens, Philip is unhorſed and near being taken, but eſcapes, and after much bloodſhed is obliged to retire, but next day takes a ſtrong hold of the Eleans, with 20,000 head of cattle and 4000 Eleans, whom he ſold for ſlaves — —	II	667
4099	2792	207	Scipio the ſon of the deceaſed proconſul, beſieges and takes New Carthage, where he kills abundance of Carthaginians, &c. and takes 10,000 freemen and a prodigious number of women, children, and ſlaves priſoners, 120 great and 281 leſſer Catapultas, 23 large and 52 ſmaller Baliſtæ, 74 enſigns, an immenſe quantity of gold and ſilver both in money and plate, &c. —	VII	60
4099	2792	207	The plague rages extravagantly in and about Syracuſe, of which Hamilcar, Hippocrates, and almoſt all the Carthaginian army die. The ſenate ſends Bomilcar with 130 gallies, 7000 tranſports, and a large army into Sicily, againſt Marcellus, who goes with the Roman fleet againſt him, upon which Bomilcar runs home, and Syracuſe ſubmits to Marcellus, after a ſiege of three years —
4099	2792	207	Marcellus takes Salapia in Apulia, and cuts off all the Carthaginian gariſon but 50 who ſurrender themſelves: Then he goes into Samnium, takes upwards of 3000 Carthaginians priſoners, and reduces abundance of towns to the obedience of Rome — —	IV	730
4099	2792	207	The Tarentine fleet intirely defeat a Roman ſquadron of ſhips that were coming to ſupply the citadel with proviſions; and Hannibal ſurprizes and kills the proconſul Fulvius Gentumalus, and cuts off 11 legionary tribunes, with 13,000 men, upon which Marcellus comes up and gives him battle; but the loſs on both ſides was nearly equal, and the night obliged them to part —	IV	730

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood	Before Chrift		Vol.	Pag.
4099	2792	207	After the taking of Syracuſe, Marcellus engages Epicydes and Hanno, who puts them to flight at the firſt onſet, and purſues them to Agrigentum, killing many thouſands, and takes eight elephants, and then goes to Rome.	III	125
4099	2792	207	Sulpitius the Roman general, and Attalus king of Pergamus firſt ſail to Lemnos, and then go to Orcum, a chief city in Eubæa, which Plator the Macedonian commander treacherouſly delivers up to them.	II	667
4099	2792	207	Attalus king of Pergamus beſieges and takes the city of Opus in Achaia; Philip king of Macedon preſently after comes to its relief, upon whoſe approach Attalus quits it, and retires with precipitation to his ſhips.	II	667
4100	2793	206	Marcellus being choſe conſul at Rome, gets the Syracuſans an edict of the ſenate to reinſtate them in their antient laws and liberties; in return for which the Syracuſan ſenate make a decree, that whenever Marcellus or any of his poſterity ſhould come to Sicily, the people ſhould walk before him crowned with garlands, and celebrate the day with ſacrifices.	III	126
4100	2973	206	The conſul Lævinus, with an army of Romans coming into Sicily, is invited by Mutines to Agrigentum, whither Hanno, Epicydes, and the Carthaginians were retired, takes it, and puts all the Carthaginians to the ſword; the chiefs of the Agrigentines he firſt beat with rods, and then beheaded, and the common people were made ſlaves and ſold; and all Sicily was reduced to the ſubjection of Rome, and became one of its provinces.	III	127
4101	2794	205	Lævinus being ordered to name a dictator refuſes it; upon which the tribunes of the people take upon them that office, and named Fulvius Flaccus the proconſul. Lælius arriving at Rome from Spain, with Mago, the ſenators of New Carthage, and the rich booty taken there, Scipio is continued proconſul, not as uſual for one year, but till an order ſhould be made for recalling him	IV	732
4101	2794	205	Hannibal engages Marcellus, and routs him, and kills 2700 of his men on the ſpot, four centurions, two military tribunes, and takes ſix ſtandards. The next day they engage again, when Hannibal is defeated, with the loſs of 8000 of his beſt troops; but Marcellus having 3000 of his legionaries killed, and almoſt all wounded, could not purſue him. Fulvius recovers Lucania, Hirpinia, and great part of Brutium, without loſs of blood.	IV	733
4101	2794	205	Fabius takes Tarentum, out of which the quæſtors are ſaid to have received for the publick treaſury 87,000 l. of gold, and 3000 talents of ſilver, 30,000 inhabitants that eſcaped the maſſacre were ſold for ſlaves, &c.	IV	733
4101	2794	205	Scipio engages Aſdrubal, kills him 8000 men, and takes 10,000 foot and 2000 horſe, gives the Carthaginian camp to the Roman ſoldiers to plunder, releaſed all the Spaniſh priſoners without ranſom, but ſells the Carthaginians for ſlaves.	VII	63
4102	2795	204	Marcellus (now a fifth time conſul) projects the taking of Locri a ſtrong city in the intereſt of Hannibal: The troops encamped before Tarentum go to beſiege it; Hannibal falls upon them, kills 2000, and takes 1200 priſoners. Soon after Marcellus falls into an ambuſh, as he was viewing an eminence with hi scolleague, and is killed; Hannibal firſt takes his ring off his finger, then burns the body, puts the aſhes into a ſilver urn, and puts a crown of gold and a crown of laurel on it, and ſo ſent it to his ſon, honoured with the higheſt marks of reſpect: Quinctius alſo, the other conſul, was mortally wounded.	IV	735
4102	2795	204	Hannibal, now maſter of Marcellus's ring, ſends a feigned letter to Apuleia ſealed therewith by a Roman deſerter, ſignifying that he would be with them as on the morrow, when he ſent a detachment to ſurprize the town, moſt of them Roman deſerters; the Salapians admit about 600 of them within the gates, draw up the bridge, fall on and kill them, and from the walls diſperſe the reſt, Quinctius having ſent them and the country round word of the death of Marcellus, for fear of ſuch accidents, and ſo they eſcaped being ſurprized.	IV	735
4102	2795	204	Lævinus the Roman admiral makes a deſcent on Africa with 100 ſail of ſhips, and brings away immenſe booty, after having defeated the Carthaginian fleet, conſiſting of 83 ſail, and taking 18 of them. About the ſame time the Romans having beſieged Locri, Hannibal marches to its aſſiſtance, upon whoſe arrival Mago ſallies out, ſo that the Romans were forced to raiſe the ſiege, and leave all the military engines, &c. behind them.	VII	64
4102	2795	204	The Ætolians conclude a very diſadvantageous peace with the Macedonians and Achæans.	II	669
4102	2795	204	Ptolemy Philopater dying, is ſucceeded by his ſon Ptolemy Epiphanes, a child between four and five years old; upon which Antiochus the great king of Syria, and Philip king of Macedon join, in order to take and divide his kingdom: The Jews ſide with Antiochus, who obliged them in every thing they requeſted, and preſented them with 20,000 pieces of ſilver, 1400 meaſures of fine wheat, and 375 meaſures of ſalt, &c.	IV	45
4103	2796	203	Claudius Nero being conſul with M. Livius Salinator, engages Hannibal, defeats him, kills 8000 of his men, and takes 7000 priſoners; then purſues him, in his retreat; they engage again near Venuſia, and he kills 2000 more, when Hannibal makes the beſt of his way to Metapontus to join Hanno.	IV	736
4103	2796	203	Aſdrubal having paſſed the Alps in order to join Hannibal, is met by the two conſul,, and forced to fight in Umbria upon the banks of the Metaurus, where he has 56,000 men killed, and himſelf and abundance of priſoners are taken: Nero cuts off his head, and carries it with him to his camp at Canuſium, from whence he ſent ſome of the Carthaginian priſoners in chains to Hannibal's camp, to inform him of the matter: Afterwards Hanno and Mago joining their forces, many of which being new raiſed troops, were attacked by the Romans and diſperſed; and Hanno and Mago, coming to their aſſiſtance, were likewiſe defeated and Hanno taken priſoner.	VII	68
4103	2796	203	The Rhodians join Attalus, king of Pergamus, and declare war againſt Philip king of Macedon. who gains ſome advantages over them.	III	146

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4104	2797	202	Philip king of Macedon engages Attalus and the Rhodians at ſea, over againſt Chios, but is defeated, with the loſs of 300 Macedonians and 600 allies, and 2700 taken priſoners, while the Rhodians loſe but 60 and Attalus 70 men.
4104	2797	202	Machanidas having ſome how got the ſovereignty, was called the tyrant of Sparta, who with a great army went to Mantinæa in Achaia, where he was engaged by Philopæmen, who intirely routed his army and killed himſelf: To perpetuate the memory of this victory, the Achæans caſt a brazen ſtatue of Philopæmen, in the ſame attitude he killed Machanidas, and ſet it up in the temple of Apollo at Delphos.	III	146
4104	2797	202	Scipio engages the united force of Carthage in Spain, under the command of Mago, Aſdrubal the ſon of Giſco, and Maſſiniſſa king of Numidia, and intirely deſtroys their army, conſiſting of 70,000 foot and 4500 horſe, ſcarce 6000 eſcaping.	II	669
4105	2798	201	Scipio engages Syphax king of the Maſæſyli to abandon the Carthaginians, and enter into an alliance with Rome; took Elliturgi by ſtorm, that had revolted, and levelled it with the ground, and put all the inhabitants to the ſword. Caſtulo is ſurrendered, and a Carthaginian garriſon made priſoners of war, &c. Ataſpa being beſieged by Marcius, the inhabitants ſally out, and all die fighting except 50, who were left in the city to guard their wives, children, and effects, who upon hearing what had happened, ſet fire to a great pile, upon which they had put the women and children and moſt valuable effects, and then jumped into the flames themſelves, and ſo all periſhed, and left the Romans an empty city.	IV	737
4105	2798	201	Scipio being taken very ill, a report was ſpread that he was dead; upon which Indibilis and Mandonius (two petty Spaniſh kings that had come over to the Romans) revolted, and raiſed an army of 20,000 foot and 2500 horſe; and 8000 legionary troops alſo revolt, and chooſe themſelves commanders: Scipio ſoon recovering, gets the two chiefs of his own men that had rebelled, and cuts off their heads, upon which the reſt ſubmit. He goes againſt the princes, engages them, and obtains a complete victory by killing 17,000. Soon after he took Gades, and ſo became maſter of all Spain.	VII	71
4106	2799	200	Scipio is recalled from Spain to Rome, where with P. Licinius Craſſus he is choſe conſul, and ſent to Sicily, from whence he ſent Lælius to Africa, where he greatly incommoded the Carthaginians, and returned to Sicily, and Scipio took Locri by ſurprize.	IV	738
4106	2799	200	Scipio being recalled from Spain, Mandonius and Indibilis revolt; the proconſuls go againſt them, kill 17,000, and Indibilis, and take 8000 priſoners. Soon after the Spaniards take and ſurrender Mandonius to obtain their own pardon. In Italy the plague made dreadful havock in both armies.	IV	739
4107	2800	199	Hannibal attacks the conſul Sempronius, kills 1200 Romans, and obliges the reſt to retire in diſorder; A few days after they engage again, when 4000 Carthaginians are ſlain, and 300 taken priſoners, with 11 ſtandards, and then Sempronius returned to Rome to erect a temple to Fortune, which he had vowed before the laſt battle.	IV	740
4107	2800	199	Scipio lands in Africa, where he firſt encounters Hanno, a young Carthaginian nobleman, and cut him off, with moſt of the troops under his command, and lays waſte the country to the very gates of Carthage, and took an opulent city in its neighbourhood, which he pillaged, and made 8000 inhabitants priſoners; then defeats another Hanno with a body of 4000 men, and kills and takes 3000 of them.	IV	740
4108	2801	198	Scipio in the night-time ſets fire to the barracks of the armies under Syphax king of Numidia, and Aſdrubal, by which means he deſtroyed men, beaſts of burthen, and elephants, by the fire and by the ſword, to the number of 40,000, and took 5000 priſoners; but Syphax and Aſdrubal eſcaped with 2000 foot and 500 horſe, who ſoon after recruited to the number of 30,000 men, whom Scipio again engages and intirely overthrows; Lælius and Maſſiniſſa purſue Syphax into the heart of Numidia, where they engage him alone, defeat his army, and take himſelf and his ſon Vermina priſoners; upon which Cyrtha his capital city ſurrenders, where his queen Sophonisba is taken priſoner, and Maſſiniſſa marries her, but ſhe is poiſoned by order of Scipio, who honours Maſſiniſſa with the title of king and robes of royalty.	VII	76
4109	2802	197	The Romans and Carthaginians engage, and after a very obſtinate battle, Mago being mortally wounded, the Romans became maſters of the field, killed 5000, and took 18 ſtandards. Mago embarked his troops for Africa, but died of his wounds on the coaſt of Sardinia.	IV	744
4110	2803	196	Hannibal being recalled to Carthage, has an interview with Scipio about a peace; but differing about the conditions, they come to a battle at Zama, where the Carthaginians were entirely routed, 20,000 being killed, and as many taken priſoners, among whom was many Macedonians, and Soſipater their commander: Hannibal eſcaped with a few attendants, and agrees with Scipio to conclude a peace, which was confirmed by both ſenates on the following terms, viz. 1. The Carthaginians ſhall live according to their own laws, and enjoy all the cities and provinces which they had in Africa before the war; but the Romans ſhould hold Spain, with all the iſlands in the Mediterranean. 2d. The Carthaginians ſhall deliver up all the Roman deſerters, fugitive ſlaves, priſoners of war, and all the Italians Hannibal forced to follow him. 3. That they ſhould deliver to Scipio all their ſhips of war, except 10 trirems (which being done, Scipio burnt to the number of 500) and all their tamed elephants, and tame no more; (theſe Scipio ſent part to Rome, and gave part to king Maſſiniſſa.) 4. Carthage ſhould enter into no war without the conſent of Rome. 5. That they ſhould reſtore to Maſſiniſſa all they had taken from him or his anceſtors, and enter into an alliance with him. 6. That they ſhould ſupply the Romans with corn, and pay their auxiliaries, till their ambaſſadors returned from Rome. 7. That they ſhould poy the Romans 200 talents a year for 50 years. 8. That	VII	80

they

Y. of world	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			they ſhould deliver up 100 ſuch hoſtages as Scipio ſhould chooſe, the youngeſt not under 14, and the oldeſt not more than 30 years of age. 9. Neither the peace nor the truce ſhould take place, 'till the Carthaginians had reſtored the ſhips and effects they had taken from the Romans at their breaking the laſt truce, (for which they paid 25,000 pounds weight of ſilver.) 10. That the Roman army ſhould leave Africa within 50 days after the concluſion of the treaty, Scipio treated the Latin and Roman deſerters with extreme ſeverity, beheading the former and crucifying the latter. Thus in the 18th year ended the ſecond punic war, one of the moſt remarkable in hiſtory for its wonderful viciſſitudes and prodigious expence of blood and treaſure.	VII	84
4110	2803	196	Upon Scipio's return to Rome, he brought into the publick treaſury 120,000 pounds weight of ſilver; his triumph was the moſt magnificent that had ever yet been at Rome; the ſenate offered him the perpetual dictatorſhip, but he refuſed it, contenting himſelf with the glorious name of Africanus.	IV	749
4110	2803	196	The conſul Ælius Petus ſends Oppius againſt the Boii, who ſurprized him, and killed 7000 of his men: But the conſul forces the Ingauni to make an alliance with Rome; and the ſenate ſends Lævinus with a fleet into Macedon, &c.	IV	751
4110	2803	196	Nabis ſucceeds Machanidas in the government of Sparta, in which he behaved ſo monſtrouſly cruel, as no tyrant ever before him had done.	II	636
4111	2804	195	The Boii, &c. ſpirited up by Hamilcar, a Carthaginian captain, make a ſudden irruption, and ſeize Placentia, and put all the inhabitants to the ſword; the Romans under the prætor Furius Purpureo march againſt them, and at Cremona engage and intirely defeat them, by killing Hamilcar and 30,000 of them upon the ſpot, for which at his return to Rome he is honoured with a triumph.	IV	750
4111	2804	195	Maſſiniſſa makes himſelf maſter of part of the Carthaginian territories in Africa, which the Romans oblige them to cede to him, and to enter into an alliance with him by the 5th article of the peace.	VII	85
4111	2804	195	Simon II. high-prieſt of the Jews dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Onias III. a perſon of great piety and clemency.	IV	45
4112	2805	194	The Carthaginians ſending 50 Euboic talents to pay their annual fine, upon examination they are found too light by one fourth part, which the ambaſſadors are forced to borrow and make up the full ſum.	VII	85
4112	2805	194	Hannibal has the command of the Carthaginian forces taken from him, and is made prætor, in which office he reformed abundance of abuſes that had crept into the ſtate, and got a law paſſed, that the civil judges ſhould be choſe annually, who before had thoſe places for life, and acted very cruelly and unjuſtly: Theſe reformations drew the hatred of the nobility upon him, ſo that he was forced to fly to Epheſus to king Antiochus, who received him very graciouſly.	VII	86
4113	2806	193	The Achæans joins the Romans and Attalus king of Pergamus againſt Philip king of Macedon in the ſiege of Corinth, but are forced to raiſe the ſiege.	II	671
4113	2806	193	The Ætolians join the Romans againſt the Macedonians, and with king Aminander make an irruption into Macedon and Theſſaly, committing great ravages; but lying careleſly without encamping, are ſurprized by king Philip, who cuts moſt of them to pieces.	II	708
4114	2807	192	Philocles the Macedonian general, joined by Nabis tyrant of Sparta, marches into the heart of Achaia, and takes Argos, which being ceded by Philip to Nabis, he plundered it of all its wealth, and then obliged the ſenate to paſs two decrees, 1. That all old debts ſhould be cancelled; 2. That there ſhould be an equal diſtribution of lands, &c.	II	672
4114	2807	192	The Ætolians enter Theſſaly, take and plunder many cities, deſtroying in the flames what they could not carry away, and kill many of the inhabitants, and ſell the reſt for ſlaves.	II	700
4114	2807	192	The Achaians attack Androſthenes, Philip's general over 6000 men, in his camp, after he had detached a good part of them into the country to ravage it, overthrew him, and kill the greateſt part of the moroders, and thereby delivered Achaia from all fear of Macedon.	II	672
4114	2807	192	Flaminius the Roman conſul engages Philip king of Macedon in Theſſaly, upon the plains of Cynocephalæ, and entirely defeats him, killing 8000 of his men, and taking 5000 priſoners: Upon this a peace is concluded between Rome and Macedon, obliging Philip to evacuate all the places he poſſeſſed in Greece, and withdraw his garriſons before the celebration of the Iſthmian games: Upon commencement of the games, freedom was declared to all Greece, by the publick herald, for which the Achæans voluntarily purchaſed the redemption of all the Roman ſlaves that had been ſold by Hannibal, to the number of 12,000, for 100 talents, and preſented them to the Roman proconſul Flaminius, who upon his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph that laſted three days.	II	674
4114	2807	192	Cethegus the Roman conſul engages the revolted Gauls in Italy, and gains a complete victory over them on the banks of the Mincius, and kills 30,000 on the ſpot, and takes 57,000 priſoners: And Minucius the other conſul over-run the country of the Ligures and Boii, and laid it waſte; the ſenate orders publick thankſgivings for theſe ſucceſſes in all the temples at Rome for four days, and increaſe the number of prætors to ſix, appointed two for Spain, having divided it into two provinces, Hither Spain and Further Spain. The Spaniards revolt, and cut off Sempronius, prætor of Hither Spain, with moſt of his troops, and almoſt a total defection prevails in Further Spain.	IV	751
4115	2808	191	The Roman conſuls deſtroy two Gauliſh armies in Italy, plunder their country, and return to Rome loaded with booty. A new ſacerdotal college is erected at Rome, called Epulones, whoſe office was only about religious feaſts.	IV	749
4115	2808	191	Nabis tyrant of Sparta beſieges Gythium, a ſea-port now belonging to the Achæans; Philopæmen the Achæan prætor raiſes an army, and fits out a fleet to relieve it; Nabis defeats him by ſea, at the firſt onſet taking ſome of his ſhips and ſink-

ing

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
			ing others, eſcaping with great difficulty himſelf; but ſoon after he ſets upon Nabis, in the night-time, fires his camp, and deſtroys all his forces then at Pleiæ; nevertheleſs Nabis took Gythium, upon which Philopæmen goes towards Lacedæmon; Nabis purſues him, a battle follows, and Nabis is intirely defeated; and almoſt all his troops cut off; the Ætolians ſend him a reinforcement, who inſtead of aſſiſting, murdered him, and the Spartans cut off all the Ætolians, and join themſelves to the Achæans.
4116	2809	190	The Appian law, whereby the Roman women were forbid wearing more than half an ounce of gold in their cloaths, or about their perſons, &c. repealed.	II	639
4116	2809	190	The conſul M. Porcius Cato engages the revolted Spaniards, and drives them out of the field; upon which all the neighbouring cities ſend their ſubmiſſions: He orders all the fortifications of Hither Spain to he demoliſhed, and then goes into Further Spain, taking ſeveral towns and prodigious booty in his paſſage; he beſtows a pound weight of ſilver on each ſoldier, then returns to Rome, and is honoured with a triumph, and then retired to a private life, ſpending his time in ſtudy, and writing the origin of the cities in Italy, and ſeveral books of Agriculture.	IV	752
4117	2810	189	The conſul Tib. Sempronius Longus engages the Ciſalpine Gauls, and gains a victory over them, killing 11,000 at the expence of 5000 Romans.	IV	753
4117	2810	189	The Lacedæmonians endeavour to revolt from the Achæans, but are diſcovered, and ſeverely puniſhed, and have their walls demoliſhed, their mercenaries disbanded, &c.	IV	679
4118	2811	188	Three ambaſſadors come to Rome from Antiochus king of Syria, to propoſe an alliance; but the ſenate requiring his renunciation to Thrace, Æolis, and Ionia, they return diſſatisfied.	IV	753
4118	2811	188	P. Cornelius Scipio (ſirnamed Naſica) gained a conſiderable victory over the Luſitanians, (now called Portugal) and Fulvius defeated the united forces of the Vaccæi, Vectones, and Celtiberians, (in Further Spain) and took Hilermus, one of their kings, priſoner. In Hither Spain Flaminius took Illucia, a ſtrong town, and cleared the country of banditti. In Ciſalpine Gaul the conſul Merula defeated the Boii near Mutina, killed 14,000 upon the ſpot, took 2000 priſoners, three generals, 212 colours, and 36 Gallic carts loaded with baggage.	IV	753
4119	2812	187	The Ligurians are engaged by the proconſul Thermus, and defeated with the loſs of 9000 men, and their camp taken and plundered.	IV	753
4119	2812	187	Ptolemy king of Egypt preſents the Achæans with 6000 ſhields and 200 talents, and renews an alliance with them: Eumenes king of Pergamus offers 120 talents to them for an alliance, but they refuſed him; and Seleucus king of Syria offers them 10 ſhips of war completely equipped, which they accept.	II	679
4119	2812	187	Antiochus king of Syria goes into Greece with 10,000 foot, 500 horſe, and 6 elephants, having firſt ſacrificed to Minerva at Ilium, takes Chalcis and winters there, where he married Cleoptolemus, a beautiful woman about twenty years old, in whoſe houſe he lodged.	III	554
4119	2812	187	The Romans coming into Greece, engage Antiochus at Thermopylæ, and entirely defeat him there with a great ſlaughter, Antiochus himſelf eſcaping with great difficulty to Epheſus.	III	554
4119	2812	187	The Syrian and Roman fleet engage near Cyſſus, where the Romans are conquerors, ſinking ten and taking thirty of Antiochus's ſhips.	III	555
4119	2812	187	Scipio Naſica having reduced the Boii abſolutely, their lands were divided among the Roman colonies ſent thither, and he honoured with a triumph, adorned with all ſorts of ſpoils, chariots made after the Gallic faſhion, ſtandards, vaſes of braſs, 1470 collars of gold, 1220 horſes, 2340 pounds weight of gold, and many captives. At the ſame time Fulvius had an ovation for his victory in Spain, adorned with ſpoils of great value, 130.000 pieces of ſilver money, 1000 pounds of ſilver in bars, and 125 pounds of gold in ingots, &c.	IV	754
4120	2813	186	Polyxenidas, admiral of the Syrian fleet, deceives Pauſiſtratus admiral of the Rhodian fleet, kills him, and takes and deſtroys his fleet. Antiochus and his ſon
4121	2814	185	Seleucus invade the kingdom of Pergamus, but are drove out again.	III	557
4121	2814	185	Scipio the Roman conſul engages Antiochus king of Syria at Magneſia, totally overthrows him, kills 50,000 foot, 4000 horſe, and takes 1500 priſoners, and 15 elephants; the ſpoil of the camp was inexpreſſible; the Romans loſt but 300 foot and 25 horſe: All the neighbouring country ſubmitted, and the conſul was ſirnamed Aſiaticus. Antiochus ſues for peace, which is granted upon the following conditions; 1. That he ſhould quit all pretenſions to Europe, and confine himſelf to Aſia beyond mount Taurus, pay 15,000 Euboic talents, 500 down, 2500 upon the ſenate's confirming the articles, and 1000 a year for 12 years ſucceſſively. 2. That he ſhould ſatisfy Eumenes king of Pergamus, by paying 400 talents due to him, and that he ſhould deliver up Hannibal the Carthaginian, Thoas the Ætolian, Moreſicholus the Acarnanian, and Philo and Eubulus, (two Caledonians) and 20 hoſtages, ſuch as Scipio ſhould chooſe, his ſon Seleucus to be one: Antiochus ſends the hoſtages, ſtrangers, &c. to Rome, all but Hannibal and Thoas, who had retired: Hannibal
4121	2814	185	poiſoned himſelf,	III	565
4122	2815	184	Antiochus dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Seleucus in the kingdom of Syria, where he reigned upwards of 11 years, being extremely reduced by the annual ſum of 1000 talents he was forced to pay the Romans.	III	569
			The conſul Cn. Manlius Vulſo goes into Aſia, and attacks the Gallo-Grecians, or Galatians, for their paſt ſervices to Antiochus: He firſt goes againſt the Toliſtobii, who had poſted themſelves upon mount Olympus, forced their intrenchments, killed great numbers, and took 40,000 priſoners; then went againſt the Tectoſagi and Trocmi, and had the like ſucceſs, and ſo forced the whole nation to ſue for peace upon his terms.	IV	756

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
4123	2816	183	The Meſſenians having revolted from the Achæans by the inſtigation of one Dinocrates, Philopœmen marches againſt them, but is defeated, taken priſoner, and poiſoned. The Achæans to revenge his death ſend Lycortas, their moſt able general againſt them; the people frighted, immediately ſubmit, and ſurrender up the ringleaders of the rebellion, and thoſe concerned in Philopœmen's death, bound in chains, who were afterwards carried to Megalopolis to be ſacrificed on the deceaſed heroe's tomb; but Dinocrates became his own executioner. Philopœmen after being burnt as uſual, had his aſhes carried to Megalopolis, his native city, with all imaginable funeral pomp, attended by the whole army. Statues were erected for him in moſt of the Grecian cities, and the magiſtrates of Megalopolis paſſed a decree, ordering a bull to be yearly ſacrificed at his tomb, when a panegyrick was pronounced and hymns ſung by young children	II	683
4124	2817	182	The Roman conſuls go againſt and reduce the revolted Ligurians, and ſo made all quiet between Hetruria and the Alps	IV	756
4124	2817	182	The proconſul L. Fulvius Nobilior having reduced Ætolia, upon his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph, adorned with a great number of golden crowns, a vaſt quantity of gold in ingots, ſilver in bars, and immenſe ſums of Attic and Macedonian money, &c. He exhibited publick games, among which were the Athletæ, for the firſt time, and the hunting of lions and panthers	IV	758
4126	2819	180	Three commiſſioners are ſent into Greece, to terminate the diſpute of Greece and Philip king of Macedon; they appoint the vale of Tempe and Cite, the contending parties to appear there before them; the ſeats were ſo diſpoſed that the judges ſat uppermoſt, the accuſers next, and the king loweſt, as a criminal. After the pleadings of both ſides were heard, the commiſſioners declared, Our Will and Pleaſure is, That the Macedonian Garriſons immediately, evacuate all the places in diſpute, and that the Kingdom of Macedon be reduced to its antient Limits. Thus Rome began to determine the fate of monarchs, and treat them as vaſſals to their commonwealth	IV	758
4126	2819	180	The Roman prætors in Spain, Quinctius and Calpurnius, engage the Luſitanians, and are defeated with the loſs of 5000 men; but ſoon after engaging again, they obtained a complete victory, killing and taking 30,000 of the enemy, which quieted the country ſome time	IV	758
4126	2819	180	The two conſuls going againſt the revolted Ligurians, Sempronius attacks the Apuans in the eaſt of Liguria, ravaging the fields, pillaging the villages, and burning the woods, and thereby opens a way into the heart of the country, while Calpurnius fights ſeveral ſucceſsful battles with the Ingauni, takes ſix of their cities, makes many priſoners, and puts 43 of the principal ringleaders to death	IV	758
4127	2820	179	The Roman cenſors, Cato and Valerius Flaccus, degrade ſeven ſenators; Quinctius, for killing with his own hands a Boian nobleman; Manlius, or Manilius for having ſaluted his wife in the preſence of his daughters; and five others. Then fine moveables, jewels, &c. were greatly taxed	IV	759
4127	2820	179	Callicrates, Lyſiades, and Aratus, being ſent ambaſſadors from the Achæans to Rome, Callicrates having betrayed his country by ſubtle ſpeeches, brought back an anſwer, that the Achæans ſhould reſtore the Lacedæmonian exiles, and ſubmit abſolutely to the ſenate's orders, &c.	II	685
4127	2820	179	Heliodorus is ſent by Seleucus king of Syria to fetch away all the treaſure that was in the temple at Jeruſalem; the high-prieſt and people oppoſe his entry, upon which the gates were ordered to be thrown down, &c.	IV	46
4127	2820	179	Philip king of Macedon dies with grief, for having credulouſly conſented to put his ſon Demetrius to death, and by other great misfortunes ſubjecting himſelf to the Romans, and is ſucceeded by his natural ſon Perſes, notwithſtanding he had recommended his couſin Antigonus to the Macedonians, who ſent an embaſſy to Rome, to deſire their acknowledgment of his title, and to renew the alliance they had made with his father, for which he promiſed to be their faithful ally, to let his neighbours live in peace, and to make no war without their permiſſion; and at home ſtrove to ingratiate himſelf by all manner of popular artifices, by which means Antigonus was rejected, and Perſes eſtabliſhed	III	482
4127	2820	179	Orcius, a tribune of the people, got the Roman ſenate to make a law, that no man ſhould ſpend more than 100 aſſes of braſs, or 6*s.* 5*d.* at one feaſt	IV	759
4130	2823	176	Seleucus is poiſoned by Heliodorus, his treaſurer, who places the crown upon his own head, but is engaged by Antiochus Epiphanes, brother to the deceaſed Seleucus, overthrown and drove out of the kingdom, and Antiochus crowned in his ſtead, who conquered Egypt, and twice ravaged Jeruſalem, murdering the people by thouſands, and ſelling as many for ſlaves, profaned the temple, &c.	III	571
4130	2823	176	Jaſon the brother of Onias high prieſt of the Jews, taking advantage of king Antiochus neceſſity, goes to Antioch, and buys the high-prieſthood of him for 350 talents, with an order that Onias ſhould be ſent to and confined in Antioch; he likewiſe purchaſes for 150 talents more liberty to build at Jeruſalem a Gymnaſium, to train and exerciſe the Jewiſh youth in the Grecian manner, and to make them free of Antioch; which doing, the Jewiſh religion and cuſtoms were ſet aſide by theſe heatheniſh practices	IV	47
4131	2824	175	The proconſul Paulus Æmilius defeats the revolted Ligurians, and reduces the whole country to obedience: And Q. Fulvius Flaccus, prætor of Hither Spain, engages the Celtiberians, and kills 25,000, makes 4800 priſoners, and takes alſo 500 horſes and 98 ſtandards: Gentius, one of the Illyrian kings, having committed piracies in the Adriatick, ſubmits and is pardoned	IV	760
4131	2824	175	Jaſon the apoſtate Jewiſh high-prieſt ſends a great number of his partizans to Antioch, whom he had made free to aſſiſt at the Olympick games, with a great ſum of money to be ſpent in ſacrifices to the Tyrian Hercules. Antigonus going againſt Ptolemy king of Egypt, calls at Jeruſalem in his way, and is magnificently treated by Jaſon	IV	48

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4132	2825	174	Vilius Tappulus got the famous plebiſcitum paſſed, whereby it was enacted, that no man ſhould be quæſtor before he was 31 years of age, curule edile under 37, prætor under 40, conſul under 43; which law continued in force till the fall of the republick
4133	2826	173	Jaſon the Jewiſh high-prieſt ſending his brother Menelaus to Antioch, to negotiate ſomething with king Antiochus, he, inſtead of doing his brother's buſineſs, offers the king 300 talents more, and was by him granted the high-prieſthood; upon which each ſide ſtruggle with their friends to keep the poſt; but Menelaus having promiſed to renounce Judaiſm, is aſſiſted by Antiochus, and drives Jaſon away	IV	760
4134	2827	172	Menelaus, high-prieſt of the Jews, being ſent for to Antioch upon account of not paying the money he had promiſed the king, orders his brother Lyſimachus to ſtrip the temple of Jeruſalem of its golden veſſels, &c. with which he raiſes money, both to pay his arrears and to bribe the courtiers into his favour; but Onias making a great out-cry againſt him, flies to Daphne, an aſylum near Antioch; Menelaus having bribed Andronicus the king's lieutenant, he went and murdered Onias, notwithſtanding he ſolemnly ſwore the contrary	IV	48
4134	2827	172	The Egyptians demand Cæle-Syria and Paleſtine of Antiochus king of Syria, upon which, the requeſt not being comply'd with, war was proclaimed between the two nations, and carried on very vigorouſly	IV	49
4134	2827	172	Claudius the conſul, by taking Neſſatium, Mutila, and Faveria, and the loſſes they had met with in the preceding years, brought all the Iſtrian nation under the Roman ſubjection: Sempronius took and killed 20,000 of the Corſican and Sardinian rebels, for which at his return to Rome he was honoured with a triumph. The conſul Claudius going againſt the Ligurians, kills and takes 15,000 of them	III	572
4135	2828	171	Antiochus being returned from the reduction of Cilicia to Antioch, great complaints were exhibited againſt Andronicus the governor, upon hearing whereof the king ordered him to be carried to the place where he had murdered Onias, and to be put to death for ſo flagrant a villainy	IV	760
4136	2829	170	The Jews enraged at the great oppreſſion and wicked apoſtacy of Menelaus and his brother Lyſimachus, mutiny and kill Lyſimachus, and great part of the 3000 men he had for his guard. Menelaus corrupts Antiochus's courtiers with ſuch large bribes, that the three Jewiſh deputies are condemned and executed	IV	49
4136	2829	170	The conſul Petilius attempting to force the Ligurian camp, was killed by a javelin's being run through him, notwithſtanding which the Romans gained a conſiderable victory, and killed above 5000 of the enemy	IV	50
4137	2830	169	Antiochus enraged againſt the Jews, takes Jeruſalem after a ſtout defence, kills 40,000 of them, and carries away as many of them priſoners. He ſtripped the temple of all its golden veſſels, &c. and 1800 talents of gold and ſilver	IV	760
4137	2830	169	The Achæans declare war againſt Perſes, in conjunction with the Romans, by the perſuaſion of Archon their prætor	IV	50
4138	2831	168	Antiochus king of Syria iſſued out a decree, that all nations ſubject to him ſhould forſake their old religion and gods, and worſhip the kings, under the ſevereſt penalties: This was principally levelled againſt the Jews, now under a moſt violent perſecution	IV	86
4138	2831	168	The ſtreets of Rome are paved for the firſt time, having not been ſo yet ſince the building the city	IV	52
4139	2832	167	M. Popilius Lænas the conſul goes againſt the Stelliates (a people in Liguria, bordering on the river Tenarus) kills 10,000, and takes 7000 priſoners, and 82 ſtandards, with the loſs of 3000 Romans killed, and a vaſt number wounded; upon which the Stelliates ſurrender at diſcretion: Popilius takes away their arms, diſmantles their cities, and ſells the people for ſlaves; but the ſenate thinking this procedure too ſevere, decrees them to be redeemed, returns their effects, and allows them money to purchaſe new arms, cloſing their decree with ſaying, Victory is glorious when confined to the ſubduing an untractable enemy, but ſhameful when uſed to oppreſs the unfortunate	IV	760
4139	2832	167	The Samaritans diſown all right to the Jewiſh religion, and deſire Antiochus to let them dedicate their temple to Jupiter, which is granted them	IV	761
4139	2832	167	Atheneas perſecutes the Jews moſt cruelly, all over Judea, and dedicates the temple at Jeruſalem to Jupiter Olympus, and ſets up his ſtatue upon the altar of burnt offerings, &c. All who were known any way to favour or practice any of the Jewiſh rites, were cruelly tortured and put to death, unleſs they immediately became heathens, and ſacrificed to their idols, &c.	IV	52
4139	2832	167	Mattathias (an old Jewiſh prieſt, father of the Maccabees) reſolutely denies to obey the king's command by refuſing to ſacrifice to idols, draws a large number to him, eſpecially the ſect called the Aſſideans, and retires into the deſarts of Judea, where they come to a reſolution to act offenſively or defenſively, as well on the Sabbath, as any other day, having heretofore ſuffered themſelves to be killed on that day, &c. In theſe deſarts the people practiſed the pure worſhip of God according to the law of Moſes. But ſoon becoming very numerous, he marched out from city to city, overturned the idolatrous altars, opened the Jewiſh ſynagogues, collected the ſacred books, &c. all which he effected in one year's time, and then died	IV	52
4139	2832	167	Perſes engages Paulus Æmilius the Roman general, is ſo totally overthrown that all Macedonia ſubmits to Rome, upon which Æmilius turns the kingdom into a commonwealth, &c.	IV	56
4139	2832	167	The Romans having defeated Perſes, they appoint a commiſſion, and order the chiefs of all the Greek cities to appear, and condemn to death and confiſcation all thoſe who had in any capacity whatever aſſiſted Perſes; in conſequence whereof a thouſand Achæans were impriſoned, &c.	III VII	493 686

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4139	2832	167	Antiochus king of Syria goes into Egypt with his army, and engages Ptolemy's troops between mount Caſſius and Peluſium, on the frontiers of Egypt; and routs them at the firſt onſet	III	575
4140	2833	166	Judas Maccabeus ſucceeded his father Mattathias in the command of the Jews; and with an army of but 6000 drove their enemies out of their cities, towns villages, &c. Apollonius, governor of Jeruſalem for Antiochus, raiſes a great army, and goes againſt Judas, who encreaſed daily; they engage, Apollonius is killed; and abundance of his men; and Judas takes a rich ſpoil, after having routed the whole army. Antiochus ſwore the intire deſtruction of all the Jews, and Simon (deputy-governor of Cœle-Syria) marches againſt them, is killed, with 800 of his men, &c. Lyſias ſends 40,000 men to the governor to ſee the king's commands fulfilled; and to raiſe money he publiſhes that he would ſell 90 Jewiſh captives for a talent. Gorgias coming with a detachment of 5000 men to ſurprize Judas's camp, Judas falls on him, kills 3000, and diſperſes the reſt, then burns Gorgias's camp, takes his baggage, &c. which ſo diſpirited his men, that they fled, and Judas in the purſuit killed 6000 more of them. Soon after Timotheus, governor beyond Jordan, and Bacchides come againſt Judas, who by this time was grown numerous; they engage, Judas entirely overthrows them, and kills 20,000, gets much ſpoil, takes ſeveral ſtrong fortreſſes, which he manned and armed, &c.	IV	60
4140	2833	166	Two plebeians, for the firſt time, are advanced to the conſulate, viz. P. Acilines Ligus and C. Popilius Lænas, though afterwards it was common	IV	761
4140	2833	166	Perſes king of Macedon, hires ruffians to murder Eumenes king of Pergamus, (for being in alliance with Rome) as he was going to Delphos	IV	761
4140	2833	166	The commiſſioners ſent from the Roman ſenate into Achaia, to enquire who had favoured Perſes king of Macedon, cities more than a 1000 great men to Rome to anſwer the information given againſt them by Callicrates: Upon their arrival at Rome, they were all baniſhed into different cities of Italy, and there kept cloſe priſoners	II	689
4140	2833	166	Antiochus goes again into Egypt, engages and routs the Egyptians with great ſlaughter; to prevent an utter extirpation he rode about from place to place to forbid the ſlaughter, and ſo gained the love of the Egyptians; and takes Peluſium, and leads his army into the very heart of the kingdom, when all ſubmitted to him; ſo that he was maſter of Memphis and all Egypt, except Alexandria: He got Ptolemy Philopator into his hands, and pretended to act as his friend and guardian; but Antiochus ſeized all that was valuable for himſelf, pillaging the cities, and cauſing unheard of deſolations and cruelties to be committed, inriching himſelf and ſoldiers with the ſpoil	III	576
4140	2833	166	The Alexandrians proclaim the brother of Ptolemy Philometor king of Egypt, who took the name of Ptolemy Euergetes the Second, which was afterwards changed into Phyſcon (or the great bellied;) but Antiochus a while after ſets up Ptolemy Philometor againſt him, but by the mediation of Cleopatra their ſiſter, and the Roman deputies, 'twas agreed they ſhould reign jointly	III	650
4140	2833	166	Phyſcon having drove his brother Philometor out of Egypt, Philometor goes on foot to Rome, in a very mean garb and ſmall attendance; but the ſenate ordered him lodgings, &c. ſuitable to his condition, and the quæſtor to allow him every thing he wanted at the publick expence: Appearing before the ſenate, he made his ill uſage appear in ſuch a light to them, that they decreed him his crown, and ſent Quinctius and Canuleius, two of their own members, to attend him to Alexandria, to ſee their decree put in execution, ſo great was the power of Rome now become. Accordingly, upon their arrival an accommodation was brought about, and Phyſcon was put in poſſeſſion of Lybia and Cyrene, and Philometor of all Egypt and the iſland of Cyprus, and each prince was declared independent of the other	III	651
4141	2834	165	Lyſias came from Antioch into Judea, with an army of 60,000 foot and 500 horſe; Judas meets and engages him at Bethzura, with only 10,000 men, defeats him, and kills 5000. Lyſias returns home, and Judas goes to Jeruſalem, cleanſes and purifies the temple and city, and having made new altars, veſſels, and veſtments, out of the ſpoils taken from the Syrians, he began the divine worſhip with the dedication of the new altar, utenſils, &c. on the 25th of Ciſleu, having lain three years polluted and demoliſhed, &c. This feaſt laſted eight days with great joy and devotion, and was annually obſerved by the name of the feaſt of dedication by the whole nation, till the deſtruction of the temple by the Romans	IV	61
4141	2834	165	Antiochus Epiphanes being greatly bruiſed by a fall from his chariot as it was driveing furiouſly along, mortified, and bred ſuch a large number of worms that made the ſtench intolerable, the pain whereof threw him into a frenzy, in which condition he died, but before his departure ſends for Philip, his chief favourite, and appoints him guardian of his ſon, regent of the Syrian empire, during his ſon Antiochus's minority, and delivers him the ſeal of the empire, and the other enſigns of royalty; but this office was ſeized upon and uſurped by Lyſias, who had proclaimed the young Antiochus Eupator; the ſenate of Rome, thought fit to ſend three perſons into Syria to perform that office, with the cruel inſtructions, that as ſoon as they ſhould be in poſſeſſion of the guardianſhip, to burn all the ſhips with decks, that the king of Syria had, to hamſtring all his elephants, and to weaken by all means poſſible the ſtrength of that powerful kingdom	III	583
4141	2834	165	Phyſcon diſſatisfied with his ſhare, petitions the ſenate to add Cyprus to his part, which they do, but Philometor refuſes to comply. The Cyrenians diſliking Phyſcon's government, revolt; he goes againſt them and is defeated. Phyſcon ſends ambaſſadors to Rome; the ſenate confirms their former decree, orders Phi-

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			lometor's ambaſſadors to be gone in five days, and renounces all friendſhip and alliance with him: Phyſcon receiving this news, and having quelled the rebellion, behaved ſo diſagreeably to the Cyrenians, that they ſet upon and wounded him in ſeveral places, leaving him for dead; but recovering, he goes to Rome, ſhews his ſcars, and charges his brother with the aſſaſſination: The ſenate angry with Philometor for not ſubmitting to their decree about Cyprus, refuſe to hear his ambaſſadors, and ſend five ambaſſadors along with Phyſcon to ſettle him in Cyprus, requiring all their allies in thoſe parts to furniſh him with forces for that purpoſe. Philometor comes againſt him in perſon, engages and routs his forces: Phyſcon ſhuts himſelf up in Lanitho a city of Cyprus, where he is beſieged, taken, and delivered to Philometor, who forgave him, reſtored Lybia and Cyrene to him, and gave him his daughter in marriage, and other lands in lieu of Cyprus, and ſo ended the war between the two brothers	III	653
4141	2834	165	The ſenate make two laws, viz. That all under 46 years of age ſhould appear in order to be incorporated in the legions; and, That all come from Macedon within three years laſt paſt ſhould return to their duty	IV	762
4142	2835	164	Judas the Jewiſh captain falls on the Idumeans, &c. at Acrabatene, and kills 20,000, then drove the children of Bean into their two ſtrong towers, where he beſieged them; but ſome of the officers having received 70,000 drachms to let part of them eſcape, he put them to death for it, and took the fortreſſes by aſſault, put both gariſons (conſiſting of 20,000) to death, and burnt the towers to the ground	IV	63
4142	2835	164	Timotheus the Syrian general comes into Judea with a great army; Judas meets him, kills 30,500 foot, and 600 horſe, and forced him to retreat to Gazara, whither he follows and beſieges him, takes the place, and ſlays him, his brother, and Apollophanes another Syrian general. The ſucceſſes of Judas made the Jews every where hated and perſecuted, to relieve whom Judas firſt fell on the city Baſſora, took it, deſtroyed all the males, delivered his brethren, and ſet fire to the city; then engages another Syrian general, named Timotheus, ſlew 8000 of his men, and diſperſed the reſt; then went to the other Gileaditiſh cities, and ſerved them as he had done Baſſora, and then returned to Jeruſalem loaden with ſpoil and a vaſt number of delivered Jews. Simon, Judas's brother, was as ſucceſsful in Galilee; but Joſeph and his brother going againſt Jamnia, were defeated by Gorgias, having 2000 men killed. Judas goes againſt Hebron, the metropolis of Idumea, takes and demoliſhes it, with all the neighbouring towns, from whence he carried off great plunder; he then went through the land of the Philiſtines, deſtroyed their fortreſſes, and all their altars and groves dedicated to idolatry	IV	66
4143	2836	163	Perſes is intirely routed at Pydna by the Roman conſul Paulus Æmilius, who killing 20,000 of his troops, &c. then ſhips himſelf and money (amounting to 2000 talents) for Samo-Thrace: Æmilius gives the plunder of the camp to the infantry, and of the adjacent country to the horſe, but would not ſuffer the city to be meddled with; and all the royal treaſure he carried to Rome. In two days all Macedon, except Pydna, ſubmitted to Rome. Perſes is taken priſoner by the Roman admiral. Æmilius at Amphipolis changes the Macedonian government into a number of republicks, then ſtript the kingdom of its wealth, and returned to Italy with the two kings, Perſeus and Gentius, priſoners, who graced the conſul's triumph	III	498
4143	2836	163	Demetrius, ſon of Seleucus Philopator, who was kept as a hoſtage at Rome, making his eſcape from thence, upon his arrival in Syria, is univerſally acknowledged king; and Lyſias and his ward Antiochus Eupator being delivered to him, he orders them both to be put to death. He is honoured by the Babylonians with the ſirname of Soter, and is alſo acknowledged king by the ſenate of Rome	III	590
4143	2836	163	Demetrius ſets up and ſupports one Holofernes, a pretended child of the queen of Cappadocia, in oppoſition to Ariarathes, the true heir	III	592
4143	2836	163	Lyſias the Syrian, who had uſurped the regency, comes into Judea with an army of 80,000 men, all the cavalry of the kingdom, and 80 elephants, and beſieged Bethſura; but being defeated by Judas, with the loſs of 11,000 foot and 1600 horſe, ſtrikes up a peace with him, by which the Jews were allowed the free exerciſe of their religion every where; but the other neighbouring countries being diſſatisfied with it, enter Judea with 120,000 foot and 5000 horſe, under the command of Timotheus, and put all to fire and ſword; but Judas attacked him, and killed 30,000 of them, and purſuing them comes up with them again at the city of Carnion, many of them taking ſanctuary in the temple of Atargatis, he conſumed it and them with fire, and put all in the town to the ſword, to the number of 25,000, and razed the city to the ground; after which he made himſelf maſter of Idumea, and the Philiſtines country, and took Azotus, or Aſhdod; then returning to Jeruſalem, he beſieged the Syrian gariſon in the fortreſs there, to whoſe relief came 100,000 foot, 20,000 horſe, 32 elephants, and 300 chariots of war, the king in perſon, with Lyſias the regent: They firſt beſieged Bethſura, where Judas attacks them in the night, kills 4000, and puts the whole in confuſion, and retires without the loſs of one man; but after another engagement, Judas having but a ſmall army, was obliged to retire to Jeruſalem, and Bethſura forced to ſurrender, from whence Antiochus marches to Jeruſalem. In the mean time Philip, whom the late king had appointed regent and guardian of his ſon, raiſed a great army, and ſeized Antioch, the capital of Syria, and took upon him the government of the kingdom; upon this Lyſias makes peace with the Jews, and goes againſt Philip	III	588
4143	2836	163	Ariarathes, king of Cappadocia, offers the Roman ambaſſadors an army to protect their perſons, and to ſupport them in their pretended regencies, but they refuſe

it,

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			it, and go unarmed in the ſenate's name to Laodicea (a ſea-port town) and cauſed the Syrian ſhips to be burnt, and the elephants diſabled, for which Octavius was killed in the Gymnaſium there by an Affrican. Demetrius, now at Rome, petitions the ſenate a ſecond time, but is refuſed; upon which the ſenate ſends three ambaſſadors into Syria to watch the event there. Upon Demetrius's landing in Tripolis, he is acknowledged and proclaimed king; and he gave out that the Roman ſenate had ſent him, and that they would ſupport him; upon which all the army and officers came over to him; the city and ſtrong holds ſtrive who ſhall firſt ſubmit; ſo that in a few days the whole kingdom was his: Antioch threw open her gates to him, and joyfully invited him to the palace of his anceſtors. Lyſias and Eupator are ſeized and delivered to him, and both put to death. Demetrius immediately delivers the Babylonians from the tyranny of Timarchus and Heraclides, by putting the firſt to death and baniſhing the laſt, for which he is called Soter.	III	591
4143	2836	163	This year Terence the famous dramatick poet was in his higheſt reputation at Rome.	IV	765
4143	2836	163	Paulus Æmilius being one of this year's cenſors, by the cenſus taken 337,522 citizens are found in Rome fit to bear arms. Soon after he died in a private ſtation, very poor, notwithſtanding the large ſums he had taken from the enemy and brought into the publick treaſury.	IV	765
4143	2836	163	The conſul Tib. Sempronius Gracchus goes with an army againſt the revolted Ligurians; and the conſul M. Juventius Thalna ſails into Corſica, to quell a rebellion there, both which were eaſily effected.	IV	765
4144	2837	162	The Rhodians having taken Calynda, a famous city of Caria, ſend to offer it to the Roman ſenate, and ſo made up all differences between them.	III	157
4144	2837	162	The Roman ſenate, inſtead of making Illyricum and Macedon two Roman provinces, change them into two republicks, and ſend 10 commiſſioners to ſettle them. Æmilius plunders Epirus: When Anicius, Octavius, and Æmilius returned to Rome, they were all honoured with triumphs, of which Æmilius's was by much the fineſt that Rome had ever ſeen. Rome was ſo enriched by the ſpoils brought from Macedon, that ſhe had no occaſion to tax the people from this time to the time of Auguſtus.	II	157
4144	2837	162	Demetrius (now king of Syria) ſends preſents to Rome, which are accepted, and gets himſelf acknowledged king of Syria by the ſenate.	III	592
4145	2838	161	Demetrius king of Syria by the wicked miſrepreſentations of the Jewiſh high-prieſt, who went to Antioch on purpoſe to make Demetrius large preſents, and to complain of Nicanor the Syrian general, who had concluded a peace with the Jews, ſends poſitive commands for his general Nicanor to break the peace he had concluded with Judas, and not to ſheath his ſword till he had killed him.	IV	72
4146	2839	160	Nicanor marches into the neighbourhood of Bethoron with an army of 35,000 men to attack Judas, where they engage; Nicanor is killed, and his army routed, and the Jews kill them all in their flight, ſo that not one returned to Antioch: This victory was obtained on the 13th day of Adar (February) which is kept as a feſtival annually ever ſince by the name of the Day of Nicar.
4146	2839	160	Alcimus, a Jewiſh apoſtate, being general of the Syrian army and governor of Jeruſalem, was ſtruck with the dead palſy, and died immediately, after he had blaſphamed the Jewiſh religion, and ordered the wall of the temple to be demoliſhed.	IV	76
4146	2839	160	Judas, general of the Jews in Judea, ſends Eupolemus ſon of John, and Jaſon the ſon of Eleazer to Rome, with propoſals of an alliance, &c. which being accepted, the ſenate made a decree, and ſent it ingraven upon copper to Jeruſalem, importing, that the Jews were thenceforth acknowledged as friends and allies of the Romans, that both nations ſhould ſuccour each other, and their allies, &c. and they ſent a letter to Demetrius king of Syria, enjoining him to forbear hoſtilities againſt the Jews, threatning him with an invaſion by land and ſea if he did not comply with their orders.	IV	74
4146	2839	160	Demetrius ſends Bacchides and Alcimus into Gallilee, with an army of 20,000 foot and 2000 horſe, and kills a great many Jews; then goes to Eleaſa, where Judas had only 3000 men, who all deſerted him but 800, with which he was forced to engage Bacchides, but being overcome with numbers he was ſlain, in the 6th year of his generalſhip and the 3d year of his high prieſthood, and was ſucceeded by his brother Jonathan (ſirnamed Apphus) but the people through fear and famine ſubmitted to Bacchides as their governor, upon which broke out a terrible perſecution.	IV	75
4147	2840	159	Demetrius king of Syria having offered his ſiſter Laodicea to Ariarathes king of Cappadocia for his wife, which he not accepting, Demetrius ſets up one Holofernes as the right heir to the crown of Cappadocia: He goes with his army and drives Ariarathes out of Cappadocia, and ſet Holofernes on the throne, notwithſtanding he was aſſiſted by Eumenes king of Pergamus by expreſs order of the ſenate. Ariarathes flew to Rome for ſafety, whither Holofernes having ſent preſents and ambaſſadors, they are ordered to reign jointly; but Attalus aſſiſting Ariarathes, drives Holofernes out of the kingdom, and Ariarathes reigns alone, and Holofernes retires to Antioch to his patron Demetrius,	III	766
4148	2841	158	Jonathan the Jewiſh general diſcovers a plot laid againſt him and his friends, to ſeize and deliver them into the hands of Bacchides; he gets the chief of the conſpirators and puts 50 of them to death. Bacchides beſieges him in Bethbaſi, with a very numerous army: Jonathan and his brother Simon by frequent ſallies cut off great part of it, and at laſt routed him. Bacchides puts many of thoſe to death who had invited him out of Syria. Upon this a peace is concluded, and Bacchides returns to Antioch, and Jonathan is appointed governor of

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			Judea, and settled in Mickmash, and made very severe examples of the apostate Jews.
4149	2842	157	The Dalmatians bordering upon Illyricum made incursions and committed great robberies there, though tributary to Rome: Famnius being sent ambassador from the senate, they would scarce give him audience.	IV	77
4149	2842	157	Massinissa having invaded Tysca, a rich province of Carthage, ten commissioners are sent by the senate to settle the dispute; but the Carthaginians appealing to the settlement formerly made, Cato becomes their enemy, and always prompted the senate to a war.	IV	766
4150	2843	156	The consul C. Marcius Figulus having influenced the senate to proclaim war against the Dalmatians, goes against them, and is defeated.	IV	766
4151	2844	155	The consul Scipio Nasica besieges and takes Delminium, the metropolis of Dalmatia, and then brought the whole country under subjection, all in one campaign.	IV	766
4152	2845	154	The consul L. Posthumius Albinus goes into Cisalpine Gaul, to assist the inhabitants of Marseilles against the Ligurians, defeats them and the Deceatæ, and reduces their whole country, comprehending the present territory of Antibes and Grasse: This was the first Roman conquest beyond the Alps	IV	766
4153	2846	153	Demetrius having given himself up to pleasure, particularly drunkenness, neglects the government, and gains the ill-will of his people; upon which one Alexander Balas is set up by the Romans, Egyptians, &c. to be the son of Antiochus Epiphanes, who lays claim to the crown at the head of a great army, upon which Demetrius engages him, is overcome, and loses his life and kingdom.	IV	767
4153	2846	153	Q. Fulvius Nobilior and T. Annius Lucus being chose consuls, the exigencies of state requiring it, they enter upon their office the 1st of January, which from this time forward was observed instead of the 15th of March, which used to be the day. Fulvius was sent into Spain, where all things were in an uproar, where being arrived, he marched against the Segedani and Aravacæ; their general Carus with 25,000 men lay in ambush for the consul in a wood, surprized him, and killed 6000 legionaries; but pursuing them too eagerly, the Roman horse attacked him and killed him, and killed 6000 of his men. The Spaniards having chose two new generals, are again attacked near Numantia, and overthrown by the elephants sent by Massinissa; the consul endeavoured to scale the walls, but one of the elephants being wounded, made such a hideous noise, that the rest turned upon the Roman army and put them in disorder; the Numantians sally out at the same time, and defeat the consul's troops, and kill 4000 of them: After this defeat great numbers of his men perished with cold, want and fatigue, he keeping them encamped all the winter.	III	596
4153	2846	153	The Roman prætor Mummius engaging the Lusitanians, puts them to the rout; but pursuing them disorderly they rally, kill 9000 of his men, and take and plunder his camp: Being now reduced to 5000, the Romans wait in an advantageous post to retrieve their honour, from whence they cut off a Lusitanian detachment, and recover the Roman standards.	IV	767
4153	2846	153	Demetrius king of Persia, to prevent Jonathan the Jewish general's siding with Alexander Balas against him, offers him by letter great presents to accept him as his friend and ally, to give the Jews liberty all over his dominions to exercise their own religion unmolested, to set free what hostages and captives he had, &c. upon which Jonathan repairs to Jerusalem, repairs both the city and temple, &c. Balas writes to him, offers him the high-priesthood, and sends him a purple robe and golden crown, which he accepted and joined him.	IV	767
4154	2847	152	Andriscus, a native of Adramytium, pretends so be Philip, one of the late Perses's sons, sets up, and is acknowledged king of Macedon; but after various battles and successes, is at last led captive to Rome, where he was a principal trophy in Metellus the consul's triumph.	IV	78
4154	2847	152	M. Claudius Marcellus, goes into Spain with 8000 foot and 500 horse, was attacked, but put the Spaniards to flight, and made dreadful havock of the fugitives, &c. They sue for peace, which he grants, but the senate refuses to confirm it.	III	501
4154	2847	152	A war breaks out in Africa between Massinissa and the Carthaginians, and Archobarzanes, king of part of Numidia, joins the Carthaginians. The Roman senate send Scipio Nasica to compose the differences, which he does, and Massinissa was ordered to restore the lands that occasioned the quarrel; but Guisco, a Carthaginian senator, stirs up the multitude, so that Nasica was forced to fly to Rome, and 40 Carthaginian senators that approved the peace were put to death.	IV	768
4155	2848	151	The tribunes of the people of Rome went so far as to imprison the two consuls L. Licinius Lucullus and R Posthumius Albinus, for forcing some Roman youths to serve in the army designed for Spain; but Scipio Æmilianus, son of Paulus Æmilius, offering his service, the rest followed: But both the consuls in their several provinces acted most shamefully, covetous, mercenary, and vile.	IV	768
4156	2849	150	Alexander Balas (now king of Syria) invites Jonathan the Jewish chief to his marriage, where he was received with great respect at Ptolemais, when the king cloathed him in purple, set him by him, and declared him generalissimo of Judea, confirmed his former grants, &c. The Jews now had respite every where, and in Egypt Onias and Dositheus were the king's chief favourites, so that Onias built a temple, and was high priest thereof, &c.	IV	769
4156	2849	150	A bloody war breaks out between Massinissa and the Carthaginians; a battle is fought, wherein the Carthaginians lose 50,000 men, &c.	IV	79
4156	2849	150	P. Juventus Thalna and C. Cælius are sent by the Roman senate against the new king of Macedon; they engage, and the Romans are entirely routed, and Juventus and Cælius slain; and thus Macedon was again freed, and a passage opened into Thessaly, which he united to Macedon.	IV III	770 504

Three

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4156	2849	150	Three hundred of the exiles of Achaia return home from Rome, out of a thouſand, after ſeventeen years impriſonment.	II	690
4157	2850	149	The Carthaginians careſs Philip, now king of Macedon, and deſire his aſſiſtance againſt the Romans, which he promiſes, but neglects to perform it, and gives himſelf up to cruelty and vice, plundering his people, and murdering all that diſliked him or that he diſliked.	III	504
4157	2850	149	The Romans take the advantage of the Carthaginians, diſtreſs and declare war againſt them: Utica, the ſecond city in Africa ſubmits; the conſuls M. Manilius Nepos and L. Marcius Cenſorinus go againſt them with 80,000 foot, 4000 horſe, and a fleet of 50 quinquerems, &c.	VII	97
4157	2850	149	The Carthaginians ſend ambaſſadors to make their ſubmiſſion to Rome, who firſt require 300 young noblemen for hoſtages, which being delivered to the conſuls at Lilybæum, were told, when they came to Utica they ſhould know what was further required of them; accordingly, when they come there, the Romans demanded, 1. A ſupply of corn for their troops. 2. To ſurrender all their trirems, and military machines, and bring in all their arms to the Roman camp, which were all comply'd with; and then Cenſorinus ordered them to demoliſh their city, but they reſolved rather to die than yield to this. Manilius attacks Carthage by land, and Marcius by ſea, but Aſdrubal with an army of 20,000 men, annoyed Manilius very much, ſo that the ſiege went on ſlowly; but Manilius took the ſtrong city of Tezaga, killed 12,000, and took 6000 priſoners.	VII	110
4147	2850	149	Maſſiniſſa approaching his end, deſires Æmilianus to aſſiſt his three ſons, Micipſa, Guluſſa, and Maſtanabal, with his advice, and to divide his dominions among them, which he performed in the moſt prudent and equitable manner.	VII	126
4157	2850	149	Æmilianus by his addreſs gained Phameas, the general of the Carthaginian horſe, to come over to the Romans, with 2200 horſe under his command.	VII	101
4157	2850	149	The Achæans quarrelling with the Lacedæmonians, ſend Dinocrites, their prætor, againſt them, who defeats them, and kills 1000 of their men.	II	692
4158	2851	148	Apollonius, governor of Cælo-Syria and Paleſtine, revolts to Demetrius, ſon of the late king of Syria, in oppoſition to Alexander Balas, now king: Jonathan the Jewiſh chief goes againſt him; but Joppa ſhutting its gates againſt him, he took it in ſight of the enemy: He then engaged the army and routed it; the foot fled to Azotus, and took ſanctuary in the temple of Dagon; the Jews purſue them, take the town, and deſtroy it and the temple by fire. Thus he killed 8000.	IV	80
4158	2851	148	Metellus is ſent by the ſenate againſt Philip king of Macedon; they engage ſeveral times with various ſucceſs, but at laſt Metellus routed him, and he flies to the Thracians, where he raiſes another army and engages Metellus again, and is again overthrown with great ſlaughter, then he flew to Byzas, a Thracian prince, who delivered him up to Metellus, who was honoured with a triumph at his return to Rome, at which Philip was led. Metellus appointed new magiſtrates, and wholly changed the Macedonian government.	III	505
4158	2851	148	Soon after the taking Philip priſoner, one Alexander ſets himſelf up, pretending to be another of Perſeus's ſons, but is quickly defeated, and Macedonia declared a Roman province.	III	505
4158	2851	148	Diæus the Achean prætor, at the requeſt of Metellus, makes a truce with the Lacedæmonians, which Menalcidas their general breaks; the Spartans would have puniſhed him for it, but he killed himſelf to prevent it.	II	692
4158	2851	148	The Roman deputies or commiſſioners landing at Corinth, orders Corinth, Lacedæmon, Argos, Heraclea, and Orchomenes to be ſeparated from the general or Achæan league, and to be governed by their own laws independently of the confederacy. The populace enraged, fall upon all the Lacedæmonians they could find, and either ſtript them or put them to death; thoſe who flew to the commiſſioners for refuge were dragged out from thence, though the deputies threatned them with the higheſt reſentment of Rome. Upon their return they did all they could to inſtigate the ſenate againſt them, who thought fit only to ſend three new deputies for the preſent.	II	693
4158	2851	148	The conſul Calpurnius Piſo inveſts Clupea, but is obliged to abandon it with ſhame and diſgrace, the inhabitants by frequent ſallies having killed great numbers of his men. He then went to Neapolis, which, though a neutral town, and even under the protection of Rome, he plundered, &c.	IV	774
4159	2852	147	Metellus ſends deputies to Corinth, to prevail with the Achæans to be quiet with Lacedæmon, who are ill treated and drove away with all manner of affronts, and Critolaus their prætor declares open war with the Lacedæmonians, and conſequently with Rome, under whoſe protection they are. Metellus engages Critolaus, kills him and many others, takes 1000 priſoners, and diſperſes the reſt, then cuts 1000 Arcadians to pieces. Diæus the prætor ſucceeding Critolaus, orders 12,000 ſlaves to be freed and armed, all the jewels, and gold and ſilver ornaments to be brought in to raiſe money, &c.	II	696
4159	2852	147	The Roman prætor Metellus coming to Thebes, found Pythias the governor and moſt of the inhabitants were fled, ſo that he entered without oppoſition, uſed the people with great clemency, and ſaved the temples and houſes from deſtruction. The people of Megara opened their gates to him, and put him in full poſſeſſion of Achaia. Metellus ſends three deputies to Corinth to treat of peace, but Diæus impriſoned them and condemned them to die.	II	697
4159	2852	147	The conſul Scipio Æmilianus takes Megalia, a part of Carthage, which ſo enraged Aſdrubal the governor, that he cauſed all the Roman priſoners which he had to be thrown headlong from the ramparts, in the ſight of the Roman army, after having cut off their hands and feet, and pulled out their eyes and tongues.	IV	776

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4159	2852	147	Lælius, lieutenant of Æmilius, engages Diogenes the Carthaginian general at Nepherus, overcomes, kills and takes 80,000 of his men: Upon this the Africans revolt to the Romans, who take the city of Nepheris, and soon after Carthage was taken by ſtorm. Aſdrubal and many others ſubmitted to the Romans, but his wife and 900 deſerters committed themſelves to the flames, and thereby deſtroyed themſelves, the citadel, and the famous temple of Æſculapius: The plunder and ſpoil was paſt all belief.
4159	2852	147	A new pretended Philip ſets up for the throne of Macedon, and makes a great progreſs, many of the people and cities joining him. Junius Tremelius is ſent againſt him with a great Roman army; they engage, and Philip is defeated and ſlain, and Macedonia made a Roman province, which D. Junius Syllanus governing with great ſeverity and injuſtice, the Macedonians accuſe him to the ſenate, who cite him to appear; but Titus Manlius Torquatus his father got the matter to be referred to him, and to be heard at his own houſe; the deputies appear, and the father condemns the ſon, who ſoon after hanged himſelf.	VII	104
4160	2853	146	Ptolemy Philometor gives his daughter Cleopatra to wife to Demetrius, the ſon of Demetrius Soter, and goes againſt Balas near Antioch; they engage, where Balas is entirely overthrown, and eſcaping with only 500 horſe, goes into Arabia, where he is murdered by Zabdiel. Ptolemy died of his wounds, and Demetrius aſcended the throne of Syria, and called himſelf Nicanor, or the conqueror. Jonathan the Jewiſh chief being cited by Demetrius to Ptolemais, went, and there ſo anſwered the complaints exhibited againſt him, that the king annexed to Judea the three governments of Apherama, Lydda, and Ramatha, and freed the country from all future taxes for 300 talents ready money.	III	507
4160	2853	146	The conſul Mummius comes before Corinth with a Roman army, conſiſting of 23,000 foot and 3500 horſe, beſides a large number of Cretan archers. Dieus comes out, is coaxed into a ſnare, and is entirely defeated; upon which he runs full ſpeed to his houſe in Megalopolis, ſets it on fire, throws his wife and children into the flames, and poiſons himſelf; the inhabitants fly out of the city, the Romans enter it, put what men they find in it to the ſword, and ſell the women and children for ſlaves; then the city was ranſacked by the ſoldiers, and fire being put to all the corners of the city at the ſame time, reduced it all to aſhes, and afterwards the walls were demoliſhed: Thus Corinth was deſtroyed 950 years after its foundation by Aletes the ſon of Hippotes. Soon after commiſſioners came from Rome, who aboliſhed popular government in all the cities of Greece, and appointed governors under the Roman prætor, who was ſent annually. Thus Greece was reduced to a Roman province. Mummius at his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph, adorned with the fineſt paintings, ſtatues, &c. of Greece, to an immenſe value.	III	601
4161	2854	145	Demetrius king of Syria being angry with the Antiochians, demanded their arms, upon which the inhabitants revolt, and beſiege the king in his palace with an army of 120,000 men. Jonathan comes with 3000 men to aſſiſt Demetrius; they ſally out, and kill 100,000, and ſet fire to the city; upon which the reſt ſubmit, and a pardon is granted them, notwithſtanding which Demetrius put many to death, confiſcated their eſtates, and oppreſſed them with all manner of cruelty, and then breaks with Jonathan, demanding taxes, &c.	II	700
4162	2855	144	Viriathus the Luſitanian general had gained great advantages for ſeven years together in Spain, over the ſeveral prætors, in three pitched battles and ſeveral ſkirmiſhes; but this year Q. Fabius Æmilianus gained two victories over him, but the ſenate did not grant him a triumph, it being cuſtomary not to allow that honour unleſs the general had killed at leaſt 5000 of the enemy in one battle.	III	602
4162	2855	144	Tryphon comes into Syria, with Antiochus the ſon of Alexander Balas, and claims the crown, ſtiling himſelf guardian and protector of the young king. Demetrius being hated, is deſerted by many, and forced to come to a battle, is entirely routed, all his elephants taken, and he forced within the walls of Seleucia for ſhelter. Antiochus goes ſtrait to Antioch, whoſe gates being opened to him, he mounts the throne of Syria, and has the ſirname of Theos given him.	IV	780
4163	2855	144	Antiochus Theos king of Syria confirms to Jonathan the Jewiſh chief all the former grants of favour, and adds ſeveral others to them; he made Simon his brother general of all his forces, and governor of all the ſea coaſts. Jonathan and his brother croſſed the Jordan at the head of their troops, and defeated Demetrius's forces, killing 3000, &c. They ſent an embaſſy to Rome to renew their alliance with the ſenate, ordering them at their return to do the ſame with Lacedæmon and all Greece.	III	603
4163	2856	143	Tryphon prevails upon Jonathan to diſband his troops, and wheedled him to Ptolemais with only 1000 men, which being done, Tryphon murders all his retinue, and ſeizes him, demands a large ranſom for him and his two ſons hoſtages, upon the receipt whereof he murdered him and his ſons alſo. Simon his brother is declared commander and high prieſt of the Jews at Jeruſalem: Immediately he raiſed a conſiderable army, and finiſhed the walls of the city; then ſends to renew the alliance with Rome, Lacedæmon, and Greece, which was readily complied with; then ſends to Demetrius, offers to aſſiſt him in the recovery of his kingdom, and preſents him with a gold crown; Demetrius accepts the conditions, ratifies all his dignities, and ſtiled him prince and high-prieſt of the Jews, which the Sanhedrim alſo confirmed to him, and his children after him.	IV	82
4164	2857	142	The Syrian garriſon in the ſtrong fortreſs of Acra, after two years ſiege, capitulates and marches out; Simon and his men enter, with palms in their hands, trumpets and other inſtruments ſounding, accompanied with ſongs, &c. he firſt ordered it to be luſtrated and cleanſed from all idols, but afterwards he reſolved	IV	83

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Before Chr.		Vol.	Page
			to demoliſh it, and the hill upon which it ſtood, which took up three years to compleat.	IV	86
4164	2857	142	Metellus gained ſo vaſt a reputation by his ſtrict adherence to military diſcipline and generoſity to captives, that many places ſubmit voluntarily to him; and he admits the Nertobrigians in Hither Spain into an alliance with Rome; but at the ſame time the conſul Servilianus was defeated in Further Spain, by Viriathus, with the loſs of 3000 men.	IV	781
4164	2857	142	Metellus goes into Further Spain in the winter, and recovers Eſcadia, Gemella, Obolcula, &c. put ſome of the head revolters to death, and ſold 9000 for ſlaves; but hearing his ſucceſſor was near at hand, was ſo exaſperated with not having the command till the war was finiſhed, that he disbanded the beſt part of his troops, exhauſted the magazines, let the elephants die, and broke and threw into the river the arrows deſigned for the Cretan archers.	IV	782
4165	2858	141	The conſul Pompeius Rufus ſucceeding Metellus in the command of the army, was offered very advantageous terms by the Termantians and Numantines; but he inſiſting upon their delivering up their arms, a new war was begun: He beſieges Numantia, but is forced to raiſe it, and then goes towards Termantia, where his ſucceſs is worſe, loſing abundance of his men. In Further Spain Viriathus overcame the conſul Servilianus, and concludes a peace with him.	IV	783
4165	2858	141	Upon the death of Ptolemy Philometor king of Egypt, his brother Ptolemy Phyſcon, king of Cyrene, &c. marries Cleopatra, widow of the deceaſed, and immediately puts her ſon Philometor to death, in his mother's arms, on the marriage day, and continues murdering all thoſe who diſapproved of the fact, and ever after behaved in the moſt cruel and wicked manner of any of his predeceſſors.	III	546
4166	2859	140	Simon renews his alliance with Rome, and ſends a preſent of a golden ſhield weighing 1000 Minæ; (about 60,000 l. of our money;) the ſenate writes to the kings of Syria, Egypt, Pergamus, and Cappadocia in their favour, &c.	IV	87
4166	2859	140	Q. Servilius Cæpio breaks the peace with Viriathus, and at firſt reduces him to extream difficulties, and then influences with large promiſes Audax, Ditalio, and Minur, his favourites, to murder him; which they performing, he denies them their reward. One Tantalus ſucceeds him, who beſieging Saguntum, was ſurprized by Cæpio, defeated, and forced to ſurrender at diſcretion; which put an end to this troubleſome war, after it had continued 14 years.	IV	784
4167	2860	139	The Roman ſenate unjuſtly breaks the peace that Pompey had made, notwithſtanding they had delivered up the deſerters, haſtages, and money agreed upon; but Popilius who came with the Roman army againſt them, is ſo weakened by the defeat they give him, that he could not attempt any thing further this campaign.	IV	784
4867	2860	139	Cendebeus, governor of all the coaſts of Phœnicia and Paleſtine, comes with a great army, commits depredations in Judea; but John and Judas, the ſons of Simon, going againſt him, engage and rout him with a great ſlaughter.	IV	88
4167	2860	139	Cleopatra brings forth a ſon while his father Phyſcon was performing certain religious Egyptian rites at Memphis, and he called his name Memphites. At his return to Alexandria, he gave his guards (conſiſting of Greek and Aſiatick mercenaries) leave to plunder and murder the inhabitants of that city at their pleaſure, who accordingly uſed them with inexpreſſible cruelties; thoſe who eſcaped death fled away; ſo that the city was uninhabited; to ſupply it with people he invited ſtrangers from all parts to come and live there, and gave them the former citizens houſes to dwell in; and endowed them with large privileges: But ſoon after he uſed theſe new inhabitants as ill as he had done the former. He fell in love with his wife's daughter, named alſo Cleopatra, firſt debauched her, then divorced her mother and married her. Hated by all, the murmurs of the people made him dread an inſurrection; to prevent which, as the young people were aſſembled in the Gymnaſium to ſee and perform the publick exerciſes, he cauſed it to be ſet on fire, and placed his mercenaries at the avenues, ſo that what eſcaped the fire fell by the ſword: The inhabitants run to the palace ſet it on fire, and reduced it to aſhes; but Phyſcon, his young wife, and Memphitis his ſon eſcaped to the iſland of Cyprus; and the Alexandrians ſet his divorced wife Cleopatra upon the throne: He ſends for his ſon, who was governor of Cyrene, and when he came to Cyprus to him, he cauſed him to be aſſaſſinated; upon which the people pull down and daſh to pieces all the ſtatues that had been erected to him, and he in requital cauſed his young ſon to be killed, cut to pieces and put in a box, and ſo ſent to Alexandria to his mother for a preſent on her birth-day, which ſtill greatly heightened the reſentment of the people.	III	657
3168	2861	138	Attalus Philometor, ſon of Eumenes, ſucceeds his uncle Attalus in the kingdom of Pergamus, and gives himſelf up to all manner of cruelties, cauſing moſt of his relations and beſt friends to be murdered, &c. He became melancholly, and ſhut himſelf up, and after a reign of five years died, and left the Romans heirs of all his goods, in conſequence of which they ſeized his kingdom, &c. and made it a province under the name of Aſia Propria.	III	782
4168	2861	138	The rebellion of the ſlaves in Sicily breaks out, who chooſe one Eunus for their king (who took the name of Antiochus) under whom they commit extravagant cruelties, &c. and defeat Manlius the governor of Sicily, and take and plunder his camp: The like happened to P. Cornelius Lentulus and Caius Calpurnius Piſo the two following years, by which means the rebels grew very ſtrong, and were reinforced by one Cleon, a native of Cilicia, with 5000 men, ſo that when the prætor L. Plautius Hypſæus landed in Sicily, he found 200,000 of them in arms, under ſundry leaders. Hypſæus no ſooner appeared in the field with his 8000 men, but he was attacked and defeated; and ſo they went on continually for many years, taking and ſubduing all before them.	IV	796
4169	2862	137	Brutus paſſes the Minius in Further Spain, enters the country of the Bracarini, and though oppoſed with the utmoſt bravery, both by men and women, yet he

Y. of world.	Y. of flood	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
			at laſt conquers the whole country. But Mancinus the Roman conſul decamping from Numantia, is purſued but by 4000 Numantians, and has 20,0000 men killed, his camp taken, and the reſt diſperſed. A peace is concluded, to which the conſul, quæſtor, and all the chief officers ſwear for the inviolable performance.
4170	2863	136	Simon, with his two ſons John and Judas being invited to an entertainment by his ſon-in-law Ptolemy, (whom he had made governor of Jericho) the ſon of Abadus, they going, after eating and drinking very friendly and chearfully, are treacherouſly murdered by ſome ruffians Ptolemy had hired for that purpoſe: Hyrcan, another ſon of Simon's, was immediately proclaimed prince and high-prieſt of the Jews, who fortified the city and raiſed a good army.	IV	387
4171	2864	135	Antiochus comes with a great army, and drives Hyrcan into the city of Jeruſalem which he beſieged, and compelled the Jews to accept of a peace upon the conditions of ſurrendering up their arms; demoliſhing their city wall, paying a tribute for Joppa, &c. that the fortreſs of Acra ſhould be rebuilt, and that they ſhould receive a Syrian gariſon: To get off the laſt, Hyrcan paid 500 talents, 300 down, 200 ſome time after. Hoſtages are given for the due performance of this peace.	IV	89
4171	2864	135	Brutus makes great conqueſts in Luſitania, and penetrates into the country of the Callaici, engages an army of 60,000 Spaniards, kills 50,000, takes 6000 priſoners, and almoſt extirpates the whole nation. The Vardæi, a people of Illyricum, revolt, and refuſe all amicable meaſures; upon which the conſul Flaccus goes againſt and effectually reduces them, and has the honour of a triumph for his ſervices.	IV	90
4172	2865	134	Jugurtha is ſent by Mitipſal with an army of Numidians to the aſſiſtance of the conſul Scipio into Spain, where he contracts an intimacy with Marius.	IV	786
4173	2866	133	Scipio beſieges Numantia (a city difficult of acceſs, ſituate on a hill, with large fields within its walls, and about three miles in compaſs) with 60,000 men. The Numantines ſue for peace; Scipio requires them to deliver up the city, themſelves and arms, at diſcretion; the Lutians would have come to their aſſiſtance, but Scipio being informed of it, demanded the ringleaders, who to the number of 400 young men were delivered up, whoſe right-hands he cut off: The city reduced by famine ſurrenders, and all Spain ſoon after ſubmits.	IV	786
4173	2866	133	Tib. Gracchus, tribune of the people, endeavouring to put the Licinian law in execution, which forbids any one holding more than 500 acres of land) a great ſtruggle and riot being ſeveral times raiſed, he was at laſt killed, and 300 of his friends, and their bodies thrown into the Tiber: Caius Lilius was ſhut up in a caſk with ſnakes and vipers, and ſo periſhed.	IV	788
4173	2866	133	L. Calpurnius Piſo the Roman conſul goes againſt the rebel-ſlaves in Sicily, and attacks them under the walls of Meſſana, which they had inveſted, put them to the rout, obliged them to raiſe the ſiege, and killed 6000 of them upon the ſpot.	IV	793
4174	2867	132	The conſul P. Rupilius goes into Sicily, beſieges the ſlaves in Tauromínium, which being of a difficult acceſs on all ſides, he reduced it to ſuch ſtraits by famine that they eat one another: At laſt, the city being betrayed by a Syrian ſlave named Serapion, the conſul ordered the governor and all his gariſon to be thrown headlong from the top of the rock. From hence the conſul went to Euna where king Eunus was, which after an obſtinate defence was treacherouſly delivered up to the conſul, who put all the ſlaves to the ſword: In theſe two places 20,000 rebels were killed; Eunus eſcaping with 600 guards, being ſurrounded by the Romans, kill one another; but Eunus was taken alive, who ſoon after died of ſickneſs in priſon.	IV	796
4174	2867	132	Upon the death of Attalus Philometor, Ariſtonicus (the ſon of Eumenes brother to the deceaſed king by an Epheſian courtezan) claims the crown of Pergamus, and with a great army ſettles himſelf in the kingdom.	III	783
4175	2868	131	Rupilius continuing in Sicily in the quality of proconſul, retook all the cities from the rebels, delivered up the ſlaves to their maſters, and drew up a new code of laws for the Sicilians, that were ever after obſerved: Thus having ſettled his province in peace, he returned to Rome.	III	784
4175	2868	131	P. Licinius Craſſus, who was Pontifex Maximus, and Valerius Flaccus, who was Flamen Martialis, (or the high-prieſt of Mars) two perſons devoted to religion, were for the firſt time choſe conſuls; and Q. Cæcilius Metellus, ſirnamed Macedonicus, and Q. Pompeius, both plebeians, were alſo for the firſt time choſe cenſors, which for 220 years before, were one a patrician and the other a plebeian: They found 317,823 men in Rome able to bear arms. Theſe cenſors got a law paſſed obliging all Romans to marry at a certain age.	IV	795
4175	2868	131	Craſſus the Roman conſul, with the united forces of Pontus, Cappadocia, Bythinia and Paphlagonia, goes againſt Ariſtonicus, who had ſeized the crown of Pergamus, and having laid the country waſte, and taken immenſe ſpoil, was attacked by Ariſtonicus, defeated and entirely routed; Ariarathes king of Cappadocia was killed, and the conſul in his flight was taken and killed, and all the ſpoil recovered.	III	784
4176	2869	130	M. Perperna being choſe conſul, comes againſt Ariſtonicus, defeats him, and afterwards beſieged him in Stratonice, where the gariſon and people being reduced to great ſtraits, ſubmit to the conſul, and deliver up Ariſtonicus, who afterwards having graced his triumph, was murdered by order of the ſenate.	III	784
4176	2869	130	Antiochus king of Syria being killed, Demetrius, who had been nine years driven out, reaſſumes the crown, and reigns three years; but behaving diſagreeably to his ſubjects, was oppoſed by an impoſtor ſet up by Ptolemy Phyſcon, called Alexander Zebina, who engaging him at Damaſcus, intirely routed him; and he flying to Ptolemais, they ſhut the gates againſt him, from whence he went to Tyre, where he was murdered.	III	611

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4176	2869	130	Antiochus being ſlain and his army defeated, John (Hircan) threw off the Syrian yoke, and the Jews continued free from it ever after, taking ſeveral cities ſuitable for him, and alſo takes Shechem and mount Gerizim from the Samaritans, and the temple built by Sanballat, and deſtroyed it, after it had ſtood 200 years.	IV	92
4177	2870	129	John, captain of the Jews, takes all Idumea, and makes proclamation that all ſhould depart, unleſs they ſubmitted to be circumciſed, which they doing, are incorporated into the Jewiſh commonwealth.	IV	92
4177	2870	129	Scipio Africanus (one of the greateſt men Rome ever bred) is found dead in his bed, ſuppoſed to be murdered by the treachery of his wife Sempronia and the Triumvirs appointed to divide the lands among the people.	IV	798
4177	2870	129	The conſul Tuditanus goes againſt the revolted Japidians, whom he intirely reduced, and made all quiet; for which he was honoured with a triumph.	IV	799
4177	2870	129	The conſul Aquilius having reduced all Pergamus to the ſubjection of Rome; the ſenate appoints ten commiſſioners, with Aquilius at their head, to ſettle Pergamus into a Roman province, and to make the proper ſubdiviſions; each to depend on the metropolis, where the Roman prætor reſided.	III	786
4177	2870	129	Laodice, wife of Ariarathes 6th king of Cappadocia, poiſons five of her ſix children; but the youngeſt eſcaping, ſhe is put to death by her ſubjects, who ſet up her ſon Ariarathes VII. who marries Laodice, the daughter of Mithridates the great king of Pontus, who got him poiſoned, and ſeized the kingdom under pretence of being guardian to his children; but having held the kingdom till the children were grown up; the Cappadocians drove him out, and ſet up Ariarathes VIII.	III	766
4178	2871	128	Hyrcan governor of the Jews ſends an embaſſy to renew the alliance with Rome, with large preſents, which are accepted, and the ſenate gives him Joppa and Gazara.	IV	92
4178	2871	128	Marſyas, general for queen Cleopatra, engages Phyſcon's army under Hagelothus, is entirely defeated and taken priſoner, moſt of their army being cut to pieces.	III	657
4179	2172	127	Cleopatra ſends to her ſon-in-law Demetrius, now king of Syria, for help, and promiſes him the crown of Egypt for his reward: He comes with a great army and beſieges Peluſium, but being forced to raiſe the ſiege, and return into Syria to quell a rebellion there, Cleopatra puts all her valuables aboard a ſhip, and flies to her daughter at Ptolemais, and ſo Phyſcon was reſettled in Alexandria, and reigned over all Egypt.	III	658
4179	2172	127	Hyrcan ſends another embaſſy with freſh preſents to the Roman ſenate, with thanks for their laſt favours, and to beg their ratification, which the ſenate grants.	IV	93
4180	2873	126	Upon the death of Demetrius, Alexander Zebina gets poſſeſſion of the greateſt part of the kingdom of Syria, and concludes an alliance with Hyrcanus prince of the Jews.	III	611
4181	2874	125	Seleucus, eldeſt ſon of the late Demetrius, ſets up for the kingdom of Syria; and goes by the title of king in thoſe parts his mother Cleopatra held; for which ſhe, haveing invited him to a feaſt, killed him with her own hands, after he had bore that character one year.	III	612
4181	2874	125	M. Fulvius Flaccus the Roman conſul goes againſt the Salyes, who had ravaged the country of the Maſſilians; and during his abſence from Italy, Fregellæ (a city of the Volſci) revolts; but they being prevailed on to ſubmit, the ringleaders were put to death, and the city razed to the ground.	IV	800
4181	2874	125	A great part of Africa being covered with locuſts, deſtroyed all the produce of the earth, &c. and being afterwards blown into the African ſea, were thrown upon the ſhore in prodigious quantities and bred a plague, which ſwept away an infinite number of men and all kind of animals; and in Numidia only 800,000 people periſhed, in Africa Propria 200,000 and 30,000 Roman ſoldiers about Utica and in that city 1500 a day.	VII	127
4183	2876	123	Gracchus being choſe a tribune of the people, ſtrives by all popular methods to gain the affections of the populace; he firſt ſet up ſtones or columns at every mile's end, and put ſtones along the roads to aſſiſt travellers to mount their horſes; got the law paſſed to give lands to the poor allies, &c. then got a law paſſed to build publick granaries, and to fill them with corn at the publick expence, and that monthly diſtributions of it ſhould be made to the poor at low rates; and other laws relating to the ſervice and cloathing of the troops, by which means, in ſpite of the ſenate, &c. he was choſe tribune a ſecond time.	IV	801
4183	2876	123	The conſul Metellus landing in the Balearick iſlands, who had revolted, overthrew and ſlaughtered them ſo terribly, that out of 30,000 he ſcarce left 1000 alive: Then he built Palm (now Majorca) and Pollentia, and was forced to bring 3000 Romans from Spain to people them.	IV	802
5583	2876	123	The proconſul Sextius gained a compleat victory over the Salyes, took their capital, and ſold the inhabitants for ſlaves; then built a new city, and called it Aquæ Sextiæ, from the hot and cold ſprings in and about it now (called Aix) in Provence; then returned to Rome and had a triumph.	IV	802
4183	2876	123	Gracchus ſtudied all means poſſible to humble the patricians; he got a law paſſed to make 600 Roman knights (who were the moſt wealthy plebeians) ſenators; and another, that the judging of all private laws ſhould belong to the knights, excluſive of the ſenators.	IV	802
4183	2876	123	Cleopatra, now queen of part of Soria, ſends to Athens for her ſon Antiochus, commonly called Grypus, who was gone thither for education, and proclaims him king, reſerving the power in her own hands; he being under twenty years of age, ſubmitted to wear only the title for ſome time.	III	612
4184	2877	122	A civil war breaks out at Rome between the plebeians and patricians, the firſt headed by Gracchus and Fulvius, and the laſt by the conſul Opimius: A ſkirmiſh happens in Rome, wherein many are killed; upon which the conſul proclaims an anneſty for all, except Gracchus and Fulvius; for whom he offers their weight

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			in gold; the mob diſperſe, Fulvius and his ſon is killed, and 3000 of his party; but Gracchus is ſaid to retire to a ſacred wood dedicated to the furies, and there orders his ſlave to kill him, who as ſoon as he had diſpatched his maſter killed himſelf. The head of Gracchus was carried to the conſul, who gave 17 pounds and a half of gold for it. The conſul puniſhed all concerned in the riot with great ſeverity; and ſo the patricians got again the ſuperiority they had before loſt.
4184	2877	122	Domitius, the Roman proconſul in Spain, overthrows the Allobroges at Vindalia upon the Rhone, and kills 20,000 Gauls, and takes 3000 priſoners.	IV	809
4184	2877	122	C. Gracchus, tribune of the Roman people, conducts a colony of 6000 Roman citizens in Africa (being the firſt colony that was ever ſent out of Italy) and a large number of workmen, and begins to rebuild Carthage in Africa, calling it Junonia.	IV	810
4185	2878	121	The Averni, under their king Bitultick, with 200,000 men come againſt the Roman proconſul Q. Fabius Maximus, who was encamped in the plains of Cavari: The Gauls are routed with the ſlaughter of 120,000 men, and their king taken priſoner by ſtratagem, and ſent to Rome; upon which peace was ſettled in the eaſtern part of Gaul. Bitultick was made a publick ſhew at the conſuls triumph, and kept a priſoner all his life at Alba.	VII	105
4186	2979	120	Phyſcon king of Egypt gives his daughter Tryphæna to Grypus king of Syria to wife, and demands of Zebina (whom he had made king of great part of Syria) homage, and an annual tribute for his dominions; which Zebina refuſing, he ſends a great army under Grypus againſt him; they engage, Zebina is routed, and flies to Antioch, where robbing the temples to pay his men, the inhabitants drive him out with great ſlaughter; and Phyſcon's army coming againſt him, he flies into a ſhip, with intent to go to Greece, but is taken by a pirate, who delivers him up to Grypus, who puts him to death, and ſo ſettles himſelf upon the throne of Syria.	IV	811
4187	2880	119	Grypus now acting as king, as well as bearing the name, his ambitious mother took it into her head to poiſon him; but he being advertiſed of her treachery, when ſhe offered him the cup he deſired her to drink firſt, which ſhe refuſing, he called in ſome lords of the court and charged her with it; they inſiſt upon her drinking the preparation, which ſhe doing, dies in a few minutes. She had been the wife of three kings of Syria, and mother of four.	III	613
4187	2880	119	Antiochus Cyzicenus, half brother to Antiochus Grypus, ſets up for the throne of Syria, by the aſſiſtance of his wife Cleopatra (daughter of Phyſcon late king of Egypt) who had been divorced from her brother Lathyrus, the preſent king of Egypt: They engage, Cyzicenus is defeated, and flies to Antioch that had declared for him; Grypus takes Antioch, and in it Cleopatra, who, though own ſiſter to his wife Tryphæna, ſhe cauſed to be murdered in a temple where ſhe flew for ſanctuary. Soon after Cyzicenus engaged and overthrew Grypus, and took and ſacrificed Tryphæna, and drove Grypus out of the kingdom.	III	614
4187	2880	119	The conſul L. Cæcilius Metellus was ſent into Illyricum to reduce the Segeſtani, who had ſhaken off the Roman yoke: He defeated them in the field, and made himſelf maſter of their city and territory; and then he unjuſtly made war upon the Dalmatians, who were forced to ſubmit to his ſuperior ſtrength. At his return to Rome he took the ſirname of Dalmaticus, and was honoured with a triumph.	V	1
4887	2880	119	L Licinius Craſſus, a young orator of twenty years of age, accuſed Papirius Carbo at the tribunal of the prætor Q. Fabius Eburnus, and pleaded ſo ſtrongly againſt him, that to avoid puniſhment he poiſoned himſelf: This oration was ſo highly valued, that it was put into the hands of all learners of oratory, as a copy for them to imitate; and Cicero called it the inimitable.	V	1
4187	2880	119	Marius, though of obſcure birth among the Volſci, began now to appear as a publick perſon, (a man of extraordinary ſize, great ſtrength, uncommon underſtanding, courageous and enterprizing, and of a fine aſpect and ſavage manners) being tribune of the people, threatens the conſul L. Aurelius Cotta to ſend him to priſon for oppoſing a law he had propoſed about collecting the ſuffrages for curule magiſtrates, and ſo becomes the idol of the people.	V	II
4188	2881	118	The Roman conſul Marcius, ſirnamed Rex, opens a way from the Alps to the Pyrenees for the Roman army, and founds a city called Narbo-Marcius, ſince Narbonne. The people called the Stoeni, at the foot of the Maritime Alps, finding themſelves by this means furrounded by the Roman troops, and that they could not eſcape, ſet fire to their houſes, killed their wives and children, and then threw themſelves into the flames. Marcius was honoured with a triumph at his return to Rome.	V	3
4188	2881	118	Grypus returns, and overcomes Cyzicenus, and then they agree to part the kingdom, and Cyzicenus reigned at Damaſcus over Cæle-Syria and Phœnice; and Grypus at Antioch, over all the other provinces. Peace being now eſtabliſhed, both brothers give themſelves up to all manner of debaucheries and luxurioufneſs, &c. they likewiſe continually quarrel between themſelves about the extent of their dominions, and neglect the due adminiſtration of juſtice, which gives opportunities to ſeveral cities to revolt, and ſet up ſeignieuries in themſelves independant of the kingdom of Syria, viz. Tyre, Sidon, Ptolemais, Gaza, and Theodorus cauſed himſelf to be called ſovereign lord of Gadara and Amathus,	III	615
4189	2882	117	C. Marius choſe prætor by open bribery, for which he was tried, but came off.	V	3
4190	2883	116	C. Marius is appointed governor of Further Spain, where he behaved unblameably, and cleared the country of the banditti, and cured the people of their old way of living by rapine.	V	3
4191	2884	115	Æmilius Scaurus and L. Cæcilius Metellus being conſuls, Scaurus reforms Rome by proſcribing games of hazard, concerts of muſick, reſtraining luxury, &c. In his time a cenſus being made, 394,336 citizens were found able to bear arms

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			in Rome. He ſubdued the Gentiſci and Carni, and made a fine road from Rome to the Alps, for which he is honoured with a triumph	V	3
4192	2885	114	C. Porcius Cato, conſul, going into Macedon againſt the Scoriſci, a people of Thrace that had invaded that province, was by them drawn into narrow paſſes, &c. and all his army cut off to a man, Porcius ſaving himſelf alone by flight. Upon his return to Rome he was baniſhed to Farracon in Spain, where he ſpent the remainder of his life	V	4
4192	2885	114	Some veſtal virgins are detected with polluting themſelves; for which they are puniſhed by being buried alive, and their gallants are whipped to death	V	4
4193	2886	113	The Cimbri from the northern part of Germany near Jutland, attempt invading the Roman provinces, and defeat the conſul Papirius's army; then they invade Helvetii, and enter Tranſalpine Gaul, and commit great ravages	V	5
4193	2886	113	Jugurtha, Hiempſal and Adherbal ſucceed Micipſa in the kingdom of Numidia: Jugurtha hires the chief officer of Hiempſal's guards to murder him, and gets the kingdom divided between himſelf and Adherbal	VI	129
4194	2887	112	Druſus the conſul prevails with the Scordiſci to quit the country they now poſſeſſed, and repaſs the Danube, which river ever after was a barrier between them and the Roman provinces; for which Druſus at his return to Rome was honoured with a triumph	V	5
4194	2887	112	Jugurtha makes war upon Adherbal, overcomes and diſperſes his army, and beſieges him in Cirtha, his capital; who appealing to Rome, they ſend commiſſioners, who return without doing any thing; whereupon Adherbal capitulates, but as ſoon as Jugurtha enters the city he puts Adherbal to death with cruel torments, and kills the ſoldiers and inhabitants, &c.	VII	129
4194	2887	112	Upon the death of Phyſcon king of Egypt, he bequeathed the kingdom of Cyrene to his natural ſon Apion, Egypt to his queen Cleopatra and one of her own ſons; ſhe prefers Alexander the youngeſt, but the people oblige her to take Lathyrus, the eldeſt, whom ſhe compels to divorce Laodice his eldeſt ſiſter, whom he had married, and to take Selene, his younger ſiſter; and after the death of her daughter Cleopatra, ſhe gave Cyprus to her youngeſt ſon Alexander	III	659
4195	2888	111	The ſenate of Rome reſolve to make war upon Jugurtha, upon which Jugurtha ſends his ſon to Rome to ſollicit for him, who is ſent back without ſucceſs	V	9
4195	2888	111	Beſtia and Scaurus, the Roman generals, clap up a peace with Jugurtha, upon very diſhonourable terms, for the ſake of large ſums paid themſelves	VII	129
4196	2889	110	Jugurtha ſummoned to appear at Rome, appears, but through bribery eſcapes, and gets Maſſiva (the natural ſon of Guluſſa, brother to Micipſa) murdered, to prevent his getting the crown from him. The ſenate diſannuls the peace, and ſends the conſul Albinus againſt Jugurtha, who does nothing conſiderable, Jugurtha delaying the time by amuſements	VII	130
4196	2889	110	Aulus marches into a defile, where Jugurtha obliges him and the whole Roman army to paſs under the yoke, and to quit Numidia in 10 days; from whence he went into Africa Propria to winter	VII	130
4196	2889	110	Hyrcan high-prieſt of the Jews beſieges and takes Samaria, defeats Antiochus, (who came with a great army to relieve it) and ſo made himſelf maſter of all Paleſtine, and the provinces of Galilee and Samaria	IV	94
4197	2890	109	Scaurus at the head of the commiſſion appointed to examine into Jugurtha's affair, ended their enquiries, and baniſhed ſeveral conſular men and one pontifex, &c.	V	12
4197	2890	109	The Cimbri and Teutones defeat and rout the Romans under the conſul M. Junius Silenus, in Narbonne Gaul, at the firſt onſet	V	12
4197	2890	109	The conſul Q. Cæcilius Metellus reduces Vacca, (a large opulent city, and the greateſt mart in all Numidia) and defeats Jugurtha's army in a pitch'd battle	VII	131
4198	2891	108	Jugurtha is again ſeveral times defeated by Marius, lieutenant-general of the Roman army under Metellus the general and proconſul; upon which Jugurtha ſends his ſubmiſſion to Metellus, who ordered him to ſend the Romans 200,000 pounds weight of ſilver, all his elephants, a number of horſes and arms, and deliver up all the deſerters, &c. which he performing, was ordered to go to Tiſidium: Upon this he flies to arms again, and the Numidians maſſacre the Romans in a city called Vacca, which Metellus revenges very amply	V	17
4199	2892	107	Marius becomes an enemy to Metellus, and uſes all poſſible means, both juſt and unjuſt, to undermine and defame him; gets himſelf declared one of the conſuls for this year, and is appointed general in Numidia inſtead of Metellus by the people, and behaves moſt audaciouſly impudent to all the nobility, &c. L. Caſſius Longinus the other conſul is defeated and killed, and the Roman army ſhamefully made to paſs under the yoke in Narbonne Gaul by the Tigurini	V	19
4199	2892	107	Jugurtha is defeated by Metellus before Marius's arrival from Rome with his army, who alſo purſued Jugurtha, and beſieged him in the city Thala, whither he had carried moſt of his treaſure: He flies from thence, and when the gariſon found they muſt be priſoners, they take all the valuable effects they can find and put them into the king's palace, and burn it, the treaſure, and themſelves. Upon Metellus's return to Rome he is honoured with a triumph, and the ſirname of Numidicus	V	21
4199	2892	107	Marius marches to Capſa in the middle of the burning ſands of Africa, takes it, levels it, puts all the citizens able to bear arms to death, and ſells the reſt for ſlaves, &c. Then he took Mulucha, (ſituate on the ſummit of a rock, and the ſtrongeſt fortreſs in the world) puts the inhabitants to the ſword, and ſeized the king's treaſure	V	22
4199	2892	107	Sylla and Marius defeat Jugurtha and his confederates ſeveral times, and kill a prodigious number of people each time	V	24
4199	2892	107	Hyrcan dying, his eldeſt ſon Ariſtobulus ſucceeded him in all his dignities, to which he added that of king, &c. At firſt he admitted his brother Antigonus a partner with him in his kingdom, but ſoon after put him to death, and kept his

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			other three brothers priſoners during his reign, and murdered his mother, all in one year	IV	97
4200	2893	106	Bocchus king of Mauritania having made a truce with Marius, which is confirmed by the ſenate, promiſes Sylla to deliver up his ally Jugurtha	V	26
4200	2893	106	Jugurtha is treacherouſly delivered up to Sylla, by Bocchus: Jugurtha, loaden with chains, is carried by Sylla under a ſtrong guard to Marius, who was then at Cirtha, from whence Marius ſent him to Rome, where he is impriſoned	V	27
4200	2893	106	Q. Servilius Cæpio the Roman conſul recovers Toulouſe from the Cimbri, and plunders the temple of Apollo of 100,000 pounds weight of gold, 100,000 pounds weight of ſilver, &c.	V	27
4200	2893	106	Pompey the Great born at Rome, and Cicero the orator in Arpinum, a city of the Volſci	V	28
4200	2893	106	Ariſtobulus king of the Jews dies, and is ſucceeded by his brother Jannæus, who puts his brother to death for raiſing a commotion againſt him, then marches to Ptolemais, but is forced to raiſe the ſiege and come back to oppoſe Ptolemy Lathyrus, who beſieged and took Azochis in Galilee, and carried off 10,000 priſoners	IV	98
4201	2894	105	The Cimbri, &c. cut off all the Roman army under M. Aurelius Scaurus, and make him priſoner	V	28
4201	2894	105	Cæpio the proconſul, and Mallius, having quarrelled and ſeparated, are engaged, and ſo intirely defeated by the Gauls and Cimbri, that out of the two Roman armies under their command but 10 men and two generals eſcaped, above 110,000 being ſlain, &c. The conquerors deſtroyed all the ſpoils they took, purſuant to a vow they had made before the battle; the gold and ſilver they threw into the Rhone; the horſes they had taken they drowned; and the priſoners they put to the ſword. The people frighted and enraged at Rome, depoſe Cæpio, and declare him for ever incapable of ſerving the ſtate	V	29
4201	2894	105	The conſul Rutilius for the firſt time introduced fencing maſters into Rome, and obliges all the inhabitants without diſtinction to take up arms	V	29
4202	2895	104	Marius, upon the ſame day that he entered his ſecond conſulate, alſo had his triumph for his Numidian conqueſt: He was preceded by 3700 l. weight of gold in ingots, 5775 pounds weight of ſilver in bars, and 287,000 drachmæ in ſpecie, and by Jugurtha and his two ſons in chains, &c.	V	30
4202	2895	104	Vettius, a young Roman knight, having ſpent his fortune in debaucheries, encourages all the ſlaves in and about Capua to make an inſurrection, and proclaimed himſelf their king. The prætor Lucius Lucullus goes againſt him, and is ſtrongly repulſed; but having gained one Apollonius, general under Vettius, he got the city; but Vettius to prevent his being puniſhed laid violent hands upon himſelf. Another inſurrection upon the like account happened in Sicily, where the prætor Vicinius cut off vaſt numbers of them; but others aſſembling, choſe one Salvius a flute player for their king, who engaging, Vicinius killed 600 and took 4000 priſoners	V	30
4202	2895	104	Jannæus (or Alexander) king of Jeruſalem, and Ptolomey Lathyrus, king of Egypt, engage, wherein Jannæus loſes 30,000 men: Cleopatra comes to his aſſiſtance, and ſaves him from utter deſtruction	IV	98
4204	2897	102	Alexander king of Judea goes to Ptolemais to wait upon Cleopatra queen of Egypt, to return her thanks and make her preſents for her aſſiſtance, and makes an alliance with her	IV	98
4204	2897	102	The famous orator M. Antonius is ſent with a Roman fleet againſt the Cicilian pirates, who had carried his daughter into captivity: He ſoon cleared the ſeas of the robbers, and is honoured with a triumph	V	34
4204	2897	102	Marius engages, defeats, and cuts off a vaſt number of Ambrones; purſuing them, their wives arm and fight violently; but being overcome, offer to ſurrender upon aſſurance given them that their honour ſhould be ſafe; which being denied, they firſt killed their children and then themſelves. Three days afterwards the Teutones fall upon the Romans, even in their camp; but after a long diſpute they are intirely defeated. In theſe two battles more than 100,000 Gauls were killed, and their king Teutobocchus taken priſoner: Their camp was plundered, &c. For this Marius was a fifth time elected conſul, and allowed a triumph	V	35
4205	2898	101	Publius Malleolus having killed his mother, (this was an unheard-of crime, which the law had appointed no puniſhment for) the parricide was ordered to be ſewed up in a leathern ſack, and with a thouſand execrations caſt into the Tiber	V	37
4205	2898	101	Marius and Catulus engage and gain a compleat victory over the Cimbri, kill 120,000, and take 60,000, with two of their kings or generals, who were all ſold for ſlaves: They alſo took 33 colours, and the brazen bull that they worſhipped, for which both the conſuls had a triumph upon their return to Rome	V	38
4205	2898	101	Athenio, the captain of the revolted ſlaves in Sicily, attacks the Roman prætor, defeats him, routs his army, takes his camp, and then beſieges and takes Macella. The ſenate ſends Aquilius the conſul with an army againſt him, who reduced him to great ſtraits for want of proviſions; and being continued proconſul the next year, he engaged him and put an end to the war by firſt killing Athenio in ſingle combat, and then a prodigious number of his men, only 10,000 eſcaping to their camp, where they killed one another rather than ſurrender: Being reduced to 1000, one Satyrius capitulated with the proconſul; he promiſed them their lives; but afterwards ſent them to Rome to fight the wild beaſts in the ſhews in the Circus; but they choſe rather to kill one another. Thus ended a rebellion that had laſted four years, at the expence of near 1,000,000 of ſlaves. For this Aquilius had only an ovation, the ſenate not allowing triumphs for the conquering of rebels	V	40
4205	2898	101	Cleopatra wickedly and falſly accuſes her own ſon Lathyrus with offering violence to her perſon; for which the Alexandrians ſet on him with an intent to kill him; but he eſcapes into a ſhip, and flies; then Cleopatra proclaims Alexander her colleague in the crown of Egypt, and obliged Lathyrus to accept of Cyprus	III	660

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	age
4206	2899	100	Nonnius being choſe tribune, his competitor Apuleius ſtabbed him, and got himſelf proclaimed tribune, which Marius (now a 6th time conſul) confirmed, and by treachery got the great Metellus baniſhed, and then they governed the ſtate juſt as they pleaſed	V	42
4206	2899	100	Theodotus, the ſon of Zeno tyrant of Philadelphia, having laid up an immenſe treaſure in Ammathus, Jannæus king of the Jews (Alexander) beſieges it and takes all the treaſure; but the prince coming with a great army, ſuddenly falls upon him, kills him 10,000 men, routs the reſt, and recovers the plunder, with a very conſiderable addition made thereto by Alexander's baggage, which he likewiſe took and carried off	IV	99
4206	2899	100	Julius Cæſar born, in the ſixth conſulate of Marius, on the 12th day of the month Quintilis, which afterwards occaſioned that month to be called July in honour of him	V	643
4207	2900	99	Glaucia being diſappointed of being choſe conſul, kills Memmius, who was nominated: Then he and Apuleius break into open rebellion; but after much miſchief done they ſubmit to their friend Marius, the then conſul, who, notwithſtanding the orders of the ſenate expreſsly againſt it, he let march out of the capitol great numbers of their adherents; but the people ſeized Glaucia, and cut off his head; and Marius ſhut up Apuleius and many of his followers, and placed a guard over them to preſerve them from the rage of the people, as if he intended to puniſh them; but the ſenate drives away the guards, and murders Apuleius and the heads of his gang. The new conſuls begin their year with purifying the city, polluted with much bloodſhed in the late troubles	V	43
4207	2900	99	By the careful and diligent management of the conſul Antonius, the factious Sextius Titius is baniſhed, and the great Metellus with all poſſible marks of eſteem is recalled from baniſhment, which ſo enrages Marius, that he retires into Aſia to ſtir up diſturbances	V	44
4207	2900	99	Alexander king of Jeruſalem after a year's ſiege takes Gaza, and murders the people moſt cruelly, and then razed the city	IV	99
4208	2901	98	The conſul Didius overcomes the revolted Spaniards of Nether Spain, and cuts off 20,000 in a pitched battle; then treacherouſly invited a colony of Spaniards that were ſettled five years before by a Roman general, into his camp, and ſeparating the men, women and children, into three companies, orders every one of them to be maſſacred, not one eſcaping	V	45
4208	2901	98	Mucius Scævola in Pergamus puniſhed very exemplarily the publicans, or Roman knights, for miſapplying the publick money, uſing extortions, &c	V	45
4210	2903	96	Grypus is aſſaſſinated by Heracleon, and is ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon Seleucus; but his uncle Seleucus having ſeized Antioch, Seleucus goes againſt him with an army, and defeats him and kills him, takes Antioch, and makes himſelf king over all Syria: But Antiochus Euſebes (the ſon of the deceaſed ntiochus) having eſcaped, fled to Aradus, and was proclaimed king of Syria, and goes againſt Seleucus, and having cut great part of his troops to pieces, Seleucus ſhut himſelf up in Mopſueſtia, a city of Cilicia; but uſing the people ill, they inveſt his palace and ſet fire to it, and ſo deſtroy him and all his attendants. Antiochus and Philip, the twin ſons of Grypus, to revenge the death of their brother Seleucus, raiſe an army and march againſt Mopſueſtia, took it by aſſault, put all the inhabitants to death, and razed the city. Their couſin Euſebes engages them at their return, upon the banks of the Orontes; Antiochus was drowned, but Philip retreated and diſputed the kingdom with Euſebes a long time. Euſebes married Selene, the widow of Grypus, which made Lathyrus king of Egypt (whoſe wife ſhe had been) angry, ſo that he ſent to Cnidus for Demetrius the fourth ſon of Grypus, and makes him king of Damaſcus. Philip at laſt conquered Euſebes, and forced him to fly to the Parthians; ſo that now all Syria was divided between Philip and Demetrius; but Demetrius ſtriving to depoſe Philip, was conquered and driven out himſelf, and died a priſoner in Parthia. The Syrians quite tired out with the continual wars between the princes of the Seleucan family, reſolved to baniſh all of them, and choſe Tigranes king of Armenia to be their king, who governed them 18 years with great peace and humanity	III	617
4211	2904	95	Tigranes at the death of his father was a hoſtage among the Parthians, who ſet him at liberty and let him ſucceed his father in the kingdom of Armenia, upon condition of yielding up to them a good part of his kingdom for his ranſom: This done he enters into a league with Mithridates, king of Pontus, againſt the Romans, agreeing, that the conquered cities and countries ſhould be Mithridates's, and the captives and plunder Tigranes's. Upon this Tigranes marries Cleopatra, daughter of Mithridates; then marches into Cappadocia, and takes all the kingdom immediately, Ariobarzanes their king flying to Rome; upon which he proclaims Ariarathes (the ſon of Mithridates his brother-in-law) king of Cappadocia, to the ſatisfaction of all the people, who was ſoon after diſpoſeſſed by the Romans, and Ariobarzanes reſtored	HI	700
4211	2904	95	The Romans declare Cappadocia and Paphlagonia free, upon which the Cappadocians affirm they can't live without a king, and chooſe Ariobarzanes, whom the Romans acknowledge and confirm. He was three times driven out of his kingdom, and as often reſtored to it by the Romans	III	767
4211	2904	95	Alexander being both high-prieſt and king of the Jews, and having quarrelled with the ſect of Phariſees, as he was performing his office at the great altar, was pelted and ignominiouſly uſed by that ſect; which ſo enraged the pontiff, that ceaſing from his office he was then about, orders his ſoldiers to fall upon the mob, who by his command killed 6000 of them, and diſperſed the reſt; a while after theſe commotions broke out into a civil war that laſted 6 years, in which time he killed 50,000 of the rebels, and loſt abundance of men himſelf: However, pitying the people, he promiſed to grant any thing reaſonable that

they

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			they would ask, for the sake of peace; but the Pharisees required him to cut his own throat: They join Demetrius, sirnamed Eucharus, who comes against Alexander with an army of 3000 horse and 40,000 foot; Alexander is defeated, and forced to fly into the mountains with a few attendants
4213	2906	93	Tigranes invades Armenia Minor, kills king Artanes, routs his army, and conquers his whole kingdom in one campaign. From hence he marches among the Asiatick Greeks, and obliged all to acknowledge him for their sovereign where-ever he came, inriching himself with vast booties and great spoils; and then invades Cappadocia a second time, and plunders the country and carries off 300,000 captives; with these and other prisoners he builds and peoples a new and large city called Tigranocerta	IV	100
4213	2906	93	Bocchus king of Mauritania sent Sylla a present of 100 lions, and some Mauritanian hunters to fight them in the Roman circus: This sight vastly pleased the Romans, and contributed much to Sylla's promotion	III	700
4214	2907	92	Arbaces king of Parthia sends an embassy to Sylla as he was returning from Cappadocia, where he had resettled Ariobarzanes in his kingdom, desiring to make an alliance with the Romans	V	46
4214	2907	92	Apion king of Cyrene bequeaths his kingdom (consisting of Cyrene, Berenice, Arsinoe, Ptolemais and Apollonia) to the Roman republick	V	47
4215	2908	91	Drusus the tribune with great difficulty got a law passed, that a sufficient quantity of bread should be given to the poor citizens in Rome gratis; alledging the publick treasury could afford it, being then loaded with 1,620,829 pounds weight of gold: Shortly after he was murdered	III	662
4216	2909	90	The Marsi, Peligni, Samnites, Campanians, and Lucanians revolt at once, and erect themselves into a separate republick, choosing consuls, prætors, and 500 senators to govern them. Corfinium (a great and strong town of the Peligni) is made their capital. The proconsul Q. Servilius, governor of the province of Picenum, is cut off, his lieutenant and all the Romans, by the revolters. Cn. Pompeius comes with an army from Rome against them; but they put them to flight with great slaughter. The consul Rutilius and the Marsi engage, and after a long obstinate battle the Romans fly with the loss of 4000 men. A few days after they have another engagement, wherein the Romans lose 3000 men, the consul and many officers of distinction. A small time after Pompedius Silo (chief commander of the Italians) deludes Q. Cæpio the Roman general, draws him into narrow defiles, and then kills him and the greatest part of his army. The confederate revolters had great successes in other places: The consul L. Julius Cæsar, uncle to the emperor Julius Cæsar, at first was defeated at Samnium, by Vettius Cato, which with the revolt of many of his men, so imboldened Ascinius, that he braved the Romans at the gates of their camp, who sallying suddenly, put him to the rout and killed him 6000 men, which occasioned such joy, that the soldiers saluted Cæsar by the name of Imperator, which the senate confirmed. Marius likewise defeated the Maracini under Herrius Asinus, and forced him to fly into the strong holds, where Sylla attacked them, killed their general, and cut off most of their troops, and so completed the victory. Servius Sulpicius also defeated the Peligni in a pitched battle, and reduced their whole country; then marched to the relief of Pompey, who was besieged in Fiernum by Afranius, whom he killed, and the greatest part of his men: But Marius was overcome by the Marsi, upon which he retired to Rome and laid down his command. The Umbrians and Hetrurians revolt, and are defeated	IV	48
4216	2909	90	Selene having prevailed with many of the Syrian cities to join her against Tigranes, he goes against her with an army of 50,000 men, besieges her in Ptolemais, takes it, and carries her to Seleucia in Mesopotamia, where she was put to death	IV	50
4216	2909	90	Mithridates king of Pontus invades Bythinia, and drives out Nicomedes, the natural son of the late king just now deceased, and seizes the kingdom, but is driven out again by the Roman legates, and Nicomedes reinstated, who enters Pontus, laying waste whole provinces, and destroys all with fire and sword: Mithridates complains first to the legates, and then to the senate, but without redress. All sides arm, and as Nicomedes was going to take possession of an advantagious post, Mithridates engages and defeats him, by cutting off almost his whole army and forcing the rest to fly; he takes all their money, baggage, provisions, &c. He then attacks the Roman general Aquilius, kills 10,000 of his men, takes 300, and disperses the rest: Soon after, his admirals takes the greatest part of the 300 ships that guarded the passage of the Euxine sea at Byzantium: The Romans retiring, he over-run all Asia to Ionia, the people readily submitting to him, calling him their deliverer, their god, &c.	III	617
4216	2909	90	The consul Julius Cæsar got a law passed, That all the Nations of Italy, whose Alliance with Rome was indisputable, should enjoy the Rights of Roman Citizens. (This ever after was called the Julian law.) As war was begun for refusing this privilege, it caused many to remain friends that would have deserted, and some to return who had	III	730
4217	2910	89	The consul Cn. Pompeius Strabo (father of Pompey the Great) went to carry on the siege of Asculum, and destroyed the whole army of Marsi that came to relieve it, with their general Francus. The tribunes got the Julian law amended, ordaining, That all the Citizens of the allied Cities that were in Italy at the Promulgation of this Law, should be deemed Citizens of Rome if they registred their Names with any of the three Prætors in 60 Days. This brought great numbers, and the censors incorporated them into new tribes. This likewise took the authority from the Roman knights, who had most shamefully abused it, and ordered each tribe to choose 15 of their own members to administer justice in	IV	51

civil

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			civil matters. The conſul Pompeius defeated Vettius Cato, and put an end to the war of the Veſtini. The conſul Porcius Cato attempting to force the camp of the Marſi, was killed, and the whole Roman army routed with great ſlaughter. But the proconſul Coſconius defeated and killed the famous Samnite, Marius Egnatius, and his ſucceſſor Trebetius, killing him 15,000 men, and reduced the countries of the Larinates, Venuſians and Pediculi, to obedience	IV	52
4217	2910	89	Sylla took Stabiæ in Campania by aſſault; then incorporates the Roman army that had killed their general Poſthumius into his legions, and beſieges Pompeii; Cluentius, general of the allies, coming to relieve it, he repulſed him with great loſs; but ſoon after coming with a great reinforcement of Gauls, Sylla cut off 30,000 of them, and took Pompeii: He then went after Cluentius to Nola, and fought him under the walls, killed him and 20,000 Samnites, plundered his camp, and went into Hirpinia, and reduced the capital Aſculana and the whole country; then paſſed into Samnium, where he was reduced to great diſtreſs by Aponius, but got away by night and conquered the enemy, and took Bovianum by ſtorm. The conſul Pompeius reduced the city of Aſculum, puniſhed the inhabitants with the utmoſt ſeverity for the murder of a Roman prætor, and ſaved only a few chiefs to grace his triumph, and confiſcated all the lands	IV	53
4217	2910	89	Q. Oppius, governor of Pamphilia, is delivered into the hands of Mithridates by the people of Laodicea upon the Lycus: The Leſbians alſo ſend him Marius Aquilius in chains, with many other Romans of diſtinction, who upon his arrival at Pergamus, he orders firſt to be whipt, and then hot liquid gold to be poured down his throat. All places wherever he came ſubmitted to him, ſo that his wealth was ſo great as to keep his vaſt army five years without taxing his ſubjects	III	731
4218	2911	88	The rebels are generally reduced, but a civil war breaks out in Rome, between Sulpicius and Marius againſt Sylla, now conſul. Sylla comes from the ſiege of Nola, enters Rome, and kills abundance of Marius's partizans, then propoſes the following laws; 1. That no law ſhould be brought before the people till it was approved of by the ſenate. 2. That the Comitia ſhould be held by centuries, and not by tribes. 3. That no citizen who had been tribune of the people ſhould be capable of any other magiſtracy. 4. That Sulpicius's laws ſhould be void; which were all agreed to. Impeachments were drawn up againſt Marius, his ſon, Sulpicius, and many others; they were all proſecuted, declared enemies to Rome, and a reward ſet upon their heads. Sulpicius was taken and beheaded; but Marius being taken and carried to Mitulnæ, the citizens help him to eſcape	IV	58
4218	2911	88	Mithridates king of Pontus beſieges Rhodes with a vaſt fleet and a great land army, which by the aſſiſtance of the Romans were defeated and the ſiege raiſed	III	158
4218	2911	88	Mithridates orders all the Italians, men, women and children, all over Aſia, to be murdered, promiſing great rewards to them that did it; upon which 150,000 ſuffered death. He then went to Rhodes, whither the Romans that eſcaped flew, but was twice defeated: But Archelaus his general goes to Athens, takes it, puts all the Romans and their friends to death; and ſo went on, till Mithridates was maſter of all Aſia, Greece, and the adjacent iſlands, except Rhodes	III	733
4219	2912	87	Cinna (one of the preſent Roman conſuls) cites Sylla the late conſul to anſwer for his conduct: Sylla retires to the eaſt; Cinna orders the new citizens to come armed into the forum; Octavius the other conſul orders the old citizens to do the like; a battle enſues; and much blood is ſpilt; at laſt the new citizens are drove out of the city, and the conſul Cinna and ſix tribunes. The ſenate depoſes Cinna, and choſe L. Cornelius Merula in his room. Cinna raiſes a great army, and the revolted Italians join him in vaſt numbers. He ſends for Marius, to whom abundance of ſlaves, &c. reſort: They beſiege Rome; Marius takes all the maritime places; Oſtia he took by treachery, pillaged it, put moſt of the people to the ſword, built a bridge over the Tiber, and cut off the city's communication with the ſea, and blocked up Rome on the ſide of the Janiculum	IV	63
4219	2912	87	Athens ſides with Mithridates againſt the Romans, is beſieged, and holds out long, but at laſt is taken by ſtorm by Sylla the Roman general, when the ſlaughter was ſo mercileſs, that the very channels of the ſtreets ran down with blood, &c.	II	736
4219	2912	87	Rome by its inteſtine diſturbances is brought to a moſt deplorable condition, the plague deſtroying great numbers, famine more, but the ſword moſt; for when the gates were opened to let Cinna and Marius in, all manner of butcheries and cruelties were committed, particularly by a band of ſlaves that conſtantly attended Marius, which he ealled Bardiæans; but Cinna in the night-time ordered them all to be cut off. Cinna, Marius, and Sertorius conclude to murder all the ſenators, &c. who had oppoſed them, which for five days they executed, killing moſt of them and ſticking their heads upon poles, and their mangled bodies being dragged into the forum, were left there to be devoured by dogs	III	65
4220	2913	86	Cinna, without the choice of the people, declares himſelf and Marius a ſeventh time conſuls for the year enſuing. Sylla writes to Rome, acquaints the ſenate of his victories, &c. and threatens to be revenged of the conſuls and their adherents, for the perſonal injuries done him, his wife and family; upon which Marius gave himſelf up to exceſſive drinking, and ſo killed himſelf: Cinna aſſociated with him in the government young Marius, (but not in the conſulſhip) who put all the ſenators he could find to the ſword. Valerius Flaccus (one of their creatures) was nominated to the conſulſhip, who to ingratiate himſelf to the people, publiſhed a law declaring all debtors free from their debts upon paying a crown in the pound	III	67
4220	2913	86	Alexander king and high-prieſt of the Jews engages the rebellious Jews, and defeats them with great ſlaughter; the remainder fly to Bethome, which he be-

ſiege;

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			ſieges, and after a year's time takes and treats the people with all manner of cruelties, crucifying 800 in one day, and cauſing their wives and children to be butchered before their faces as they hung upon the croſſes; after this he continued victorious, and took many places and cities, and vaſt ſpoils
4220	2913	86	Sylla, with an army but of 1500 horſe and 15,000 foot, engages Mithridates king of Pontus at Chæronea, with 120,000 men, and kills him 110,000, with the loſs only of 12 men. Soon after Dorylaus, chief favourite of Mithridates, engages Sylla again, who in two engagements intirely overthrew Dorylaus, and a mighty army cut to pieces	IV	101
4221	2914	85	Fimbria, lieutenant to the conſul Flaccus, revolts from him, and draws the greateſt part of the army along with him; then beſieges him in Nicomedia, takes it by ſtorm, and puts Flaccus to death, and makes himſelf commander in chief, and commits all manner of cruelties. Mithridates ſends a great army againſt him, which he engages and entirely routs, and purſues young Mithridates and the other generals to Pergamus; he enters it ſword in hand, but the king being fled to Pritane, he purſues and beſieges him there, from whence he eſcapes to Mytilene: Fimbria took Pritane by ſtorm, and reduced moſt part of Aſia, ſetting large fines on them; then beſieges and takes Old Troy in 11 days, and puts moſt of the people to the ſword, and burns the temple of Minerva, with many of the inhabitants who had fled thither for ſanctuary, levelled the walls, and reduced the city to a heap of aſhes; then racked and murdered the remainder of the people he met with	III	734
4221	2914	85	Sylla and Mithridates have an interview, and conclude a peace, by which it was ſtipulated, that Mithridates ſhould relinquiſh all his conqueſts and content himſelf with Pontus; that he ſhould releaſe all the priſoners and captives he had taken ſince the war, without ranſom, and pay the Romans 2000 talents: Thus in three years time Sylla drove him out of Greece, Macedon, Ionia, and the province of Aſia, and killed above 160,000 of his beſt troops, without loſing 1000 of his own. After this Sylla rebuilt Troy, and declared the Chians, Rhodians, Lycians, Magneſians and Trojans, free people and the friends of Rome; but all the other cities he fined heavily, condemning them to pay 20,000 talents in one year, and quartering his ſoldiers upon them	III	736
4221	2914	85	Cinna declares himſelf a third time conſul, and choſe Papirius Carbo for his colleague; all the other offices were filled with their creatures, and the whole government of Rome ſubverted. All the friends of Sylla were murdered, and their eſtates confiſcated; which occaſioned moſt of the men of honour and fortune to fly from Rome to Sylla for protection	III	739
4221	2914	85	Sylla and Mithridates having concluded a peace, Sylla goes againſt Fimbria, the lieutenant under the late conſul Flaccus, and ſummons him at Thyatira in Lydia to ſurrender up his troops, upon which many revolt from Fimbria to Sylla: Fimbria hires a ſlave to murder Sylla, which is diſcovered. Sylla marches his troops againſt Fimbria, who retires into Pergamus and ſtabs himſelf	III	67
4222	2915	84	Cinna and Papirius Carbo declare themſelves conſuls again: Cinna marries his daughter Cornelia to the famous Julius Cæſar. Sylla marches towards Rome with great threatnings; Cinna goes againſt him; the ſoldiers mutiny and kill him. Carbo now reigned alone, and raiſed 200,000 men to keep Sylla out of Italy. Sylla harangues his army, who take a new oath to him, and promiſe to commit no devaſtations in Italy: They are firſt met and joined by Metellus Pius and his men. Sylla ſends offers of peace to the conſul Narbo, who uſes his meſſengers ill; upon which a battle enſues, wherein Narbo has 6000 killed, and then abundance deſert the conſul and join Sylla. Pompey raiſes an army and does the ſame. Scipio the other conſul coming againſt Sylla, Sylla deſires peace; a truce is agreed on, during which Sylla draws off his men, then takes the conſul and his ſon priſoners, but ſets them at liberty, with a guard to eſcort them ſafe to their friends. The conſul Scipio raiſes a new army and goes againſt Pompey, but is a ſecond time deſerted, and his men go over to Pompey, who joined Sylla.	V	68
4222	2915	84	Ptolemy Alexander tired with his mother Cleopatra's uſage, retires from Alexandria to live privately: She coaxes him to return, with a deſign to murder him; but he being informed of it, murders her; and the Alexandrians expel him; whereupon Lathyrus comes from Cyprus, and becomes king over the whole dominions of Egypt by himſelf	V	70
4223	2916	83	The temple of Jupiter Capitolinus at Rome burnt, and with it the Sibyline books, which two years afterwards Sylla ordered to be reſtored, by collecting the fragments and copies, &c, and thereout to make new books, which was the work of the quindecemvirs, five members being added to the former ten	III	662
4224	2917	82	The conſul Narbo and C. Marius rob all the temples at Rome of their gold and ornaments, to raiſe money to pay their troops. Carinas for the conſuls engages Metellus Pius, and is defeated with great loſs: This ſo exaſperates young Marius, one of this year's conſuls, that he ſends orders to Junius Brutus the prætor in Rome to murder all the friends of Sylla, which was immediately executed, among whom was Carbo the conſul's brother, Pompey's father-in-law, and Mucius Scævola pontifex maximus; upon which Sylla advancing towards Rome, is met by the conſul Marius at Setia upon the banks of the Liris, where they engage a long time, but at laſt Marius being deſerted by ſeven cohorts at once, is intirely overthrown and routed with a dreadful ſlaughter, Sylla then marches to Rome, which opens its gates to him. His generals gained continual victories over the conſular armies, which by ſlaughter and deſertion was greatly decreaſed. Teleſinus, a noble Samnite, raiſes a great army and joins all the ſcattered forces of the conſuls, and marches to Rome with an intent to maſſacre all the inhabitants and raze the city: Sylla goes and engages him, but is defeated with great loſs: But Craſſus, another Roman general, defeated the	V	79

Samnites,

Y. of world	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			Samnites, and killed Telesinus, and took Carinas, Brutus and Censorinus, (who were soon after beheaded) and routed the rest: 3000 of them come to Sylla to beg for their lives; he orders them to kill of their countrymen so many as refused to join them; they kill vast numbers, and then 6000 of them he carries to Rome, puts them into the circus, and while he was haranguing the senate, orders all to be killed there. Marius kills himself, and all the Samnites and Prænestines able to bear arms are put to the sword that were in the city of Prænesle, and the city plundered: This so terrified the inhabitants of Norba, that they set fire to their houses, and perished in the flames. The civil war now ended; Sylla put governors into all the Italian provinces, and kept small armies in several places to keep them in awe: Then he assembled the Comitium at Rome, and told them that he would put every person to the sword that had bore arms against him, proscribed 40 senators and 1600 knights, with severe penalties against any that concealed or assisted them: Catiline was the executioner of his vengeance, who slew a great many even before they knew they were proscribed. All ranks and degrees were murdered in vast numbers in Rome, and in the adjacent parts; some cities were dismantled; others excessively taxed; some demolished, and all the citizens proscribed, &c. Thus he became master of Rome, and all its provinces except Spain; after which he got himself proclaimed continual dictator — —	V	78
4224	2917	82	Muræna the Roman general having broke the peace with Mithridates, and taken many towns, &c. Mithridates engages him, overthrows him, and drives him into Phrygia: But Sylla being now dictator, orders Muræna to return home, and sent M. Thermas to be prætor in Asia, and Gabinius to settle all things with Mithridates — — —	III	739
4224	2917	82	Alexander late king of Egypt, after divers defeats, dies, and leaves a son named also Alexander — — —	III	662
4224	2917	82	Thebes (a great city in the Upper Egypt) refusing to submit to Lathyrus, he besieged it, and after three years took it, and gave it to be plundered by the soldiers, who so destroyed it that it never after was famous — —	III	663
4225	2918	81	Sylla makes great changes in the laws of Rome, and restores the patrician power very much, and gives the right of citizenship to 10,000 slaves, and calls them Cornelians; and gave his legionaries the lands of the Municipia, and colonies that had declared against him; and then orders himself a triumph for his conquests in Asia, Greece and Pontus, which lasted two days; on the first, 15,000 pounds weight of gold and 115,000 of silver, brought from Greece and Asia, were carried before him; and on the second, 13,000 of gold and 7000 of silver, which young Marius had saved out of the fire of the capitol, &c. — —	V	80
4225	2918	81	Sylla sends Pompey (who had reduced all Sicily) against Domitius, who had stirred up Hiarbas (king of part of Numidia) against Sylla in Asia; they come to an engagement; Domitius has 17,000 men killed on the spot; Pompey pursues him to his camp, which he forces, kills Domitius, and takes Hiarbas prisoner, and thereby recovered all the revolted cities of Africa. Sylla orders Pompey to disband his troops and come to Rome, which he does, and is received with the highest honour, and sirnamed the Great — — —	V	80
4226	2919	80	Sylla (though dictator) names himself and Q. Cæcilius Metellus for consuls, and are chose, upon which he treats all the city of Rome for many days with great profusion. Pompey requires a triumph, and after much opposition from Sylla has it. Sylla reduces Nola in Campania, and Volaterræ in Hetruria, the two only cities that held out against him — —	V	81
4227	2920	79	Cicero pleads for the first time in favour of Roscius, and having used too much freedom against Sylla, retires to Athens to compleat his studies — —	V	82
4227	2920	79	Alexander king and high-priest of the Jews dies, in his camp before Ragaba, which he was then besieging, and left the kingdom to his queen Alexandra, and upon her death to which of his two sons she should choose — —	IV	102
4227	2920	79	Sylla, after having destroyed above 100,000 Roman citizens, 90 senators, and proscribed or murdered 2600 Roman knights, and buried numberless multitudes of the allies in the ruins of their cities, assembles the people, mounts the rostra, and making a speech to them, concludes with, Romans, I resign my Office, divest myself of the unlimited Power you have conferred upon me, and am ready to answer in a private Capacity whatever can be alledged against me; then dismissed his lictors, came down from the rostra, and went to his own house in the rank of a private man, and so continued to his death — — —	V	83
4228	2921	78	The quarrels between the consuls threatning Rome with another civil war, Sylla retires to his country-house, and gives himself up to all manner of debaucheries, which threw him into a violent disease that bred an imposthume in his bowels, which produced vast quantities of vermin that in a small time determined his life: His burial was honoured with all the pomp and publick respect possible —	V	83
4228	2921	78	Towards the end of the consular year, Lepidus comes with a great army against Rome to force them to chuse him a second time, but is repulsed by his colleague and Pompey, and obliged to save himself by a shameful flight into Hetruria: M. Junius Brutus espousing his cause, Pompey marches against him into Cisalpine Gaul, besieges and takes Mutina, forcing him and all his army to surrender at discretion: Pompey ordered Brutus to be beheaded, but used the troops with great humanity. Lepidus having recruited his army, went a second time to Rome, but was again forced to retire, first into Hetruria and then into Sardinia, where he soon died, and his rebellion with him — — —	V	85
4229	2922	77	Alexandra (queen of the Jews) having restored the Pharisees to that power from which her husband had reduced them, they used it so exorbitantly as to compel her to reverse all the former decrees made against them, and to persecute the Sadducees with great cruelty — — —	IV	103

Y. of world	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
4230	2923	76	Julius Cæsar appears for the first time at the bar, and impeaches Cn. Cornelius Dolabella, formerly prætor of Macedonia, by which he gained great reputation, tho' the accused was excused
4230	2923	76	Ptolemy Lathyrus king of Egypt dies, and is succeeded by his only legitimate child, Cleopatra Berenice. Sylla being now perpetual dictator of Rome, sends Alexander, the son of Ptolemy Alexander late king of Egypt, to take possession of the crown of Egypt: The Alexandrians persuade him to marry Cleopatra, that now reigned, which he does, but orders her to be murdered 19 days afterwards; then reigned very cruelly for 15 years, at the end of which time the Alexandrians expel him the kingdom; upon which he went to Tyre, and died a few months after	V	90
4231	2924	75	The consul Aurelius Cotta consents to abolish one of Sylla's laws, and to admit the tribunes to be advanced to superior offices	III	665
4231	2924	75	Sertorius having for many years supported the Marian faction in Spain, and advanced Lusitania into a commonwealth, and continually harrassed and defeated Metellus, Hirtuleius, one of his lieutenants, is attacked by Metellus, who defeats and kills him 20,000 men. Sertorius engages and defeats Pompey; a small time after he defeated him again, and killed 6000 of his men, and soon after reduced both Pompey and Metellus to the utmost straits. Mithridates king of Pontus sends Sertorius 5000 talents, and 40 ships completely armed; and Sertorius sends him a body of troops, under the command of Marcus Marius	V	92
4231	2924	75	Mithridates and his son-in-law Tigranes join; Tigranes besieges Cappadocia, and Mithridates Paphlagonia, with 120,000 foot, 16,000 horse, and 100 chariots armed with scythes. Paphlagonia submits; then he goes into Bythinia	V	95
4232	2925	74	M. Antonius the Roman admiral going against the Cretan pirates, is defeated, and sees many of his ships taken, and his men hung upon the enemies masts; which so affects him, that he dies of grief soon after	III	740
4232	2925	74	Mithridates advances with two large armies, and a fleet of 400 ships of 30 oars, and abundance of smaller vessels; the one under Diophantus Matharus marches into Cappadocia; the other, consisting of 150,000 foot, 12,000 horse, and 100 armed chariots, Mithridates commanded in person; and a third army commanded by Marius and Eumachus, near Heraclea in Pontus; Lucullus commanded Cotta to keep the fleet in the harbour of Chalcedon; Cotta sends his legate Rutilius to watch Mithridates's motions, whom Marius and Eumachus meet, who slew him and cut his army in pieces; Mithridates serves several other officers in the same manner, and orders his admiral to sail into the harbour of Chalcedon, where he burnt some and sunk others, and took the remainder of the Roman fleet without opposition; 8000 sailors are killed, and 4500 taken prisoners, and 5300 land forces, all Italians. Lucullus following Mithridates to the siege of Cyzicum, kills 10,000 of his men, and takes 13,000; Lucullus a while after cuts off a large detachment of Pontines, and got the mastery of a mountain whereby he cut off all communication by land from Mithridates; this caused both a famine and a plague in his army, They endeavour to break up the siege and retire; but Lucullus falls upon them as they were passing the river Rhyndacus, took 600 horse, and all the beasts of burthen, 15,000 men, and put the rest to the sword: He also took Aristonicus, the king's admiral, and a large sum of money. The king breaks up the siege, and embarks in the night. Marius goes by land with 30,000 men for Lampsacus; Lucullus follows, engages, and kills him 20,000 men. Upon Lucullus's return to Cyzicum, the people pay him the highest honours, and institute sports, and call them Lucullea; he declared the city free, and the senate gave them the same privileges with Rome. Mithridates is said to lose 300,000 men by this siege. Lucullus comes up with the king's fleet of 50 ships, and 10,000 land forces on board, and takes 32, and puts most of the land forces to the sword: The next day Marius, Alexander, and Dionysius, three generals, are taken in a cave, and carried to Lucullus; Marius he ordered to be put to death. The king encamps near to Lucullus: but his detachments being several times defeated, at last his whole army run away without being attacked, and leaves only a small guard to go with the king to his son-in-law Tigranes. In his passage he sends Bacchides to Pharnacia, to put his sisters, wives, and concubines to death, which was done accordingly. All the governours of towns, &c. in Pontus submit to Lucullus. Heraclea, a chief city of Pontus, having vigorously stood a two years siege, was at last betrayed by their governor Conacorix, who delivered up one of the gates in the night: The Romans under Cotta and Triarius murder most of the people, and plunder the town, with its temple, &c. and then reduced it to ashes. Thus was all Pontus subdued, and made a Roman province. Then Lucullus went against Armenia Minor, who all submit	III	747
4232	2925	74	Perperna cabals against Sertorius in Spain, and strives by all means to bring him into disgrace with the people, and at last treacherously murdered him. Perperna commands the army of Sertorius, is defeated, and taken prisoner by Pompey, and by him put to death, which put an end to the war in Spain	V	97
4233	2926	73	The Italian slaves, under one Spartacus a gladiator, make an insurrection; they first defeat the Capuan militia, then the Roman prætor Claudius Pulcher with 30,000 men, and then overthrew the prætor Varinus	V	97
4234	2927	72	Cnixus, one of the chiefs of the Gaulish slaves, separates from Spartacus, and is cut to pieces with his whole army in Apulia, by the consul Gellius; upon which Spartacus falls upon the other consul Lentulus, and gave him a total overthrow; and then marched against Gellius, and defeated him. Spartacus sacrificed all the Roman prisoners round Cnixus's funeral pile
4234	2927	72	Tigranes engages Lucullus, and is entirely defeated: But Mithridates recovers a great part of Pontus, and overthrew Fabius the Roman governor of that province, but was soon after defeated by Triarius, another Roman general	III	749

Mithridate

Y. of world	Y. of Rom	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4235	2928	71	Mithridates and Triarius engage again; the Romans are defeated with great slaughter; but the king being greatly wounded by a Roman, who was one of his own men, occasioned a retreat to be sounded, which gave the remaining Romans an opportunity to escape, having lost 7000 men, 150 centurions, 24 tribunes: After the king was recovered from his wound, he ordered all the Romans in his army to be formed into one body, and when they were retired to their tents, he ordered every man of them to be cut to pieces.	III	750
4235	2928	71	The Roman senate appoints Licinius Crassus general of the forces sent against the rebel-slaves: He dispatches Mummius, his lieutenant with two legions to watch their motions; but he offering Spartatus battle, is put to flight at the first onset. Crassus soon after falls in with 10,000 of the rebels, who were laying the country waste, fell upon and cut them all to pieces. Spartacus posted himself in a peninsula near Rhegium, where Crassus shut him in with a ditch from one sea to the other, 300 furlongs long, 15 foot broad, and 15 foot deep; but Spartatus one snowy night filled up part of it, and forced his way through the enemies army, and again encamped in the open country. Part of the slaves quarrel with their leader, and separate: Crassus attacks them, and kills 12,300. Soon after Crassus engages Spartacus, kills him and 40,000 rebels: A party of them retired under the conduct of one Publipot into Lucania, where Pompey intirely defeated them, and so put an end to this rebellion.	V	98
4236	2929	70	Pompey and Crassus are made this year's consul's at Rome. Pompey refuses to disband the troops brought out of Spain, till he has a triumph; and Crassus would not part with the command of his army, till Pompey laid down his arms, affirming that Pompey aim'd at the sovereignty, and, like Sylla, to govern by a standing army; but with great difficulty they are both prevailed upon to disband their armies, and are seemingly reconciled; but each of them strove to make themselves friends; Pompey by popularity, reinstating the tribunes in their former power, and restoring the power of judging civil causes by the Roman knights. Crassus, though naturally covetous, entertained the people with prodigious profusion at 10,000 tables, and gave corn to the populace sufficient to maintain their families three whole months, he being the richest man in all Rome, being worth 7000 talents, or 1,356,250 l. sterling. This year the censorship was again revived, and the number of the Roman citizens fit to bear arms was found to be 450,000.	V	99
4236	2929	70	Queen Alexandra dies, and her son Hyrcanus, then high-priest of the Jews, is proclaimed king of the Jews by the Pharisees; but his brother Aristobulus opposes him; they come to a battle, Hyrcan is defeated and flies to Jerusalem, whither Aristobulus follows him, and obliges him to surrender the crown and priesthood to him, which he did, after a reign of three months, and by the artifice of Antipater, the father of Herod, was persuaded to fly to Aretas king of Arabia for safety and protection	IV	107
3237	2930	69	Aretas king of Arabia comes with an army to resettle Hyrcan in Judea: Aristobulus engages him, is defeated, and flies to Jerusalem, whither Aretas, &c. follows him, and besieges him in the precinct of the temple	IV	107
4238	2931	68	The Cretans send 23 of their chief members to Rome to appease the senate; but P. Lentulus Spinther opposes them, and Metellus is sent against them, who intirely overthrew Lasthenes, and besieged Cydonia, the metropolis of the island, which the governor Panares surrendered: Then Metellus went to Gnossus, whither Lasthenes was flown, which after setting on fire, Lasthenes withdrew; so that Metellus conquered the whole island of Crete in one campaign.	III	172
4239	2932	67	The Cretans and Cilician pirates, upon account of Metellus's severity, send a deputation to Pompey, and offer to submit to him, (who was vested with an absolute power for three years, by the senate, to act and do whatever he thought advantagious for the commonwealth:) He receives their hostages, and promises them an advantagious peace, and declares Metellus had no right of acting within his proconsulate; this caused a sort of civil war between the Roman generals and troops; but Metellus taking Lappa (a strong city of Crete) put all the Cretans and Cilicians to the sword he found in it: Having absolutely conquered the island, and Lasthenes and Panares laid down their arms, all the inhabitants submitted to the yoke: Metellus changed the form of government, obliged them to live by the Roman laws, imposed an annual tribute on the whole island, and made it a Roman province. At his return to Rome, Metellus was honoured with a triumph, and the sirname of Creticus.	III	172
4239	2932	67	At the instigation of Gabinius the Roman tribune, the people impower Pompey to equip 500 ships, raise 120,000 foot and 5000 horse, and to choose twenty senators for his lieutenants: He had also two quæstors, and 6000 Attic talents paid him before he left Rome. In four months time he quite cleared the seas of the pirates, taking and sinking 1300 of their ships, cutting 10,000 of their men to pieces, and taking 120 towns and castles on the sea coasts from them, setting an incredible number of captives free, and taking 20,000 prisoners, whom he sent to repeople the deserted cities of Mallus, Adana, Epiphania, and Soli in Cilicia: These successes occasioned the passing the Manilian law at Rome, whereby Pompey was made absolute governor of all the armies, fleets and provinces belonging to Rome.	V	102
4239	2932	67	Lucullus is deposed, and the Roman consul Glabrio sent to command in his stead, during which time Mithridates and Tigranes recovered the greatest part of Pontus, Bythinia, Cappadocia, and Armenia Minor.	III	750
4240	2933	66	Pompey having made peace with the Cilician pirates, offers the same to Mithridates, upon condition of his laying down his arms and surrendering up the deserters: This being refused, and both armies encamped on two hills opposite to one another, Pompey cuts a ditch 150 furlongs in circuit at the foot of the king's hill,

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			which extremely ſtraitened the king's army, forcing them to live upon their dead horſes, which periſhed for want of forage: He reſolves to break through the Roman fortifications; and firſt he put all the ſick and diſabled to the ſword, to prevent their falling into the enemy's hands, and then in the night forces his way into the open country, and marches towards Armenia Major, where Tigranes waited for him: Pompey purſues him with his whole army, overtakes and kills 40,000 of his men, with the loſs of about thirty Roman ſoldiers and two centurions. Mithridates, forſaken by all his attendants, flies with his wife Hypſicratia, his daughter Dripetine, and one officer; meets a body of mercenaries that were coming to join him, to the number of 3000, who eſcort him to the caſtle of Sinoriæ, on the borders of the two Armenias, where his treaſures were; he rewarded them very liberally, took 6000 talents and retired into Armenia, from whence he ſends to Tigranes; but he being about clapping up a peace with the Romans, put his ambaſſadors in irons. Pompey built a city called Nicopolis in the field of battle, which he beſtowed upon his old and diſabled ſoldiers; and many reſorting to it from all parts, it ſoon became noted.
4241	2934	65	Catiline, at the head of a great number of extravagant debauchees, conſpires the death of the conſuls, and the ſeizing the government of Rome by the murder of the ſenate; but giving the ſignal at a wrong time, it proved abortive.	III	753
4241	2934	65	Julius Cæſar is this year made ædile at Rome: He courts the people by all acts of popularity poſſible; he finiſhes the Appian way, almoſt wholly at his own expence, and entertained the people with 320 couple of gladiators, and the Megaleſian games, running himſelf 251,875 l. ſterling in debt.	V	103
4241	2934	65	Ariſtobulus ſend ambaſſadors to Scaurus, one of Pompey's generals, and offers him 400 talents for his aſſiſtance: Scaurus writes to Aretas, ordering him to raiſe the ſiege of Jeruſalem, upon pain of being declared an enemy to Rome. Aretas immediately decamps, and returns homewards: Ariſtobulus purſues and overtakes him at Papyrion, overthrew him, killed 7000 of his men, and quite diſperſed the reſt. Pompey being come to Damaſcus, embaſſadors are ſent to him from Judea, Syria, and Egypt, with great preſents: Ariſtobulus ſent him a golden vine, with fruit on it, upon a ſquare mount, with deer, lions, &c. about it, all of moſt exquiſite workmanſhip, valued at 5000 talents, which Pompey ſet up in the temple of Jupiter at Rome: Pompey orders the two brothers to appear perſonally before him at Damaſcus.	V	103
4242	2935	64	Ariſtobulus and his brother Hyrtan appear at Damaſcus before Pompey, who after hearing each ſide, defers the umpirage till he ſhould come into Judea himſelf, intending firſt to ſubdue Aretas king of Arabia. Ariſtobulus goes away in a huff, and raiſes an army: Pompey goes after him, and at Corea ſends for Ariſtobulus; who going to him, and after ſeveral conferences Pompey demands all his fortreſſes, &c. Ariſtobulus, to get his liberty, conſents; but as ſoon as he got from him, flies to Jeruſalem, whither Pompey follows him: Ariſtobulus comes out, offers him a large ſum of money, and proſtrate at his feet begs for peace: Pompey ſends Gabinius with his troops to receive the money, but the gariſon ſhuts the gates, and refuſes their conſent: Ariſtobulus is clapt in chains, and the city beſieged. Hyrcan's party opens the city to him, but the others retire within the precincts of the temple; but falling into a ſuperſtitious obſervation of the ſabbath, were attacked on that day, and the place taken, with the ſlaughter of 12,000 by the Romans, and abundance murdered themſelves, the prieſts all the while continuing their ſacrifices. Pompey puts multitudes of the captives to death, who had eſpouſed Ariſtobulus's cauſe, while others deſtroyed themſelves by ſetting fire to their houſes, and leaping from precipices, &c. Thus the whole kingdom of Judea was at once ſubdued by the Romans.	IV	109
4242	2935	64	Mithridates ſues to Pompey for peace, but is anſwered, he muſt come in perſon; which he refuſing, enters Pontus, and takes ſeveral places from Pompey; but Caſtor, whom he had made governor of Phanagorium, having killed Trypho, the king's favourite, to avoid the king's anger ſtirs up the inhabitants to revolt; but the king having four ſons there, they maintained the caſtle againſt Caſtor, who beſieged, and took it and them, with their ſiſter Cleopatra, and ſent them all to the Romans. Mithridates ſends eunuchs ambaſſadors to the Parthians, with the offer of his daughters to ſuch princes as would aſſiſt him; but their guard murders them, and delivers up the girls to the Romans, as well as themſelves: Soon after Pharnaces his ſon was proclaimed king by the ſoldiers, &c. who grew weary of his ſevere government, upon which he poiſoned himſelf, and ſuch of his daughters and concubines as remained with him; the women died, but he ſurvived, and was forced to ſtab himſelf to get rid of his life, at the Panticapæum in the Cimmerian Boſphorus, in the 60th year of his reign; during which time he ſubdued 24 nations, and could ſpeak all their languages fluently; he was an excellent ſcholar, and wrote many books of phyſick, and as great a ſtateſman and general as the age he lived in afforded, &c.	IV	111
4243	2936	63	Pompey beſtows the kingdom of Boſphorus upon Pharnaces, ſon of Mithridates late king of Pontus, and honours him with the title of friend and ally of Rome; upon which he orders all his governors, &c. in Pontus to ſubmit to Pompey, and deliver all the treaſure to him. In the city of Talaura Pompey found 2000 onyx cups ſet in gold, and a vaſt number of rich ſaddles ſet with jewels, &c. the ſtatues of Minerva, Mars and Apollo, of pure gold, &c. Pompey having reduced Pontus into a Roman province, goes to Epheſus, and in a fleet of 700 ſhips ſails for Italy; and coming to Brunduſium, to take off all ſuſpicion, diſbands his army. His triumph (which laſted two days) was attended with 124 captives of diſtinction; he would not ſuffer any of them to be put to death, but ſent moſt of them back to their reſpective countries, detaining only thoſe of royal extraction; delivered 20,000 talents into the publick treaſury, notwithſtanding he had diſtri-	III	756

buted

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chrift		Vol.	Pag.
			buted 16,000 talents among the officers of his army, and given every ſoldier 50 ſeſtertiums	III	758
4243	2936	26	Cicero, the now conſul, acquaints the ſenate of Catiline's conſpiracy to his face; upon which it is enacted, that the conſuls ſhould take care that the republick ſuffered no detriment, by an antient form, that inveſted them with abſolute power to raiſe men and money for war, &c. Catiline prompts Cethegus, Lentulus, &c. to ſet the city on fire; goes into Hetruria, takes upon him the command of an army, is declared an enemy to Rome by the ſenate, and his companions ſeized and executed.	V	108
4243	2936	63	Hyrcan is reſtored to his pontifical dignity at Jeruſalem, with the ſecular title of prince tributary to Rome, but forbid to reſume the diadem, or royal ſtile, or to extend his dominions beyond the old borders of Judea. Pompey, to mortify the Jews, orders the moſt holy places in the temple to be opened to him and his attendants, where he viewed the golden table, candleſticks cenſers, lamps, &c. the ſpices and rich perfumes, &c. and 200 talents in the treaſury, all which he left untouched, and ordered the prieſts to purify it, and go on with their uſual worſhip: Then he commanded the walls of Jeruſalem to be pulled down, and left Scaurus with a ſufficient force governor of it, and returned with Ariſtobulus, his two ſons and two daughters captive; but Alexander, one of the ſons, made his eſcape.
4244	2937	62	Alexander (ſon of Ariſtobulus, the depoſed king and high-prieſt of the Jews) is defeated by the Roman general, with the loſs of 3000 men killed, and many taken priſoners, who afterwards followed and beſieged him in Alexandrion, where he ſurrenders up all the fortreſſes he had ſeized, which the Romans demoliſhed, and then divided the Jewiſh ſtate into five diſtricts, and appointed ſeparate courts of judicature at Jeruſalem, Gadara, Amath, Jericho, and Sephoris, changing the government from monarchical into ariſtocratical	IV	114
4244	2937	62	The proconſul Antonius pretends to be ſick, and reſigns the command of his army to Petræus, his lieutenant, who engages Catiline, kill shim and 3000 of his troops, and ſo quaſhed the rebellion; by puniſhing the guilty heads wherever they were taken	V	109
4244	2937	62	Julius Cæſar is made Pontifex Maximus, and divorces his wife Pompeia, for her amorous intrigues with P Claudius, a debauched young patrician	V	110
4245	2938	61	Ptolemy Auletes (or the flute-player) the natural ſon of Ptolemy Lathyrus, ſucceeds in the throne of Egypt, by the choice of the Alexandrians: He was the moſt effeminate king that ever had been in Egypt: He purchaſed an alliance with Rome at the price of 6000 talents, or 1,162,500 pounds ſterling, but was ſoon after drove out of the kingdom by the Alexandrians, who ſet up his daughter Berenice, who marrying Seleucus king of Syria, ſoon after cauſed him to be ſtrangled, and married Archelaus, high-prieſt of Comana in Pontus	III	666
4246	2939	60	Cæſar being appointed governor of Further Spain, compriſing Luſitania and Bætica, viz. Portugal and Andaluſia, was ſtopped by ſome of his creditors; Craſſus pays ſome, and becomes ſurety to others for 830 talents, or 160,812 pounds ſterling. When he arrived in Spain, he ſubdued ſeveral nations that had never yet been ſubject to Rome, and returned home, bringing with him ſufficient to diſcharge all his debts, amounting to 1,600,000 l. ſterling. Pompey and Craſſus being at variance, he undertakes to reconcile them, and propoſes all things to be managed by them three, called the firſt great triumvirate.	V	112
4247	2940	59	C Julius Cæſar being choſe conſul, propoſes to divide the lands belonging to the ſtate in Campania among ſuch poor Roman citizens as had three children or more: The ſenate oppoſed it to the utmoſt, but the people paſs it tumultuouſly	V	114
4248	2941	58	C. Julius Cæſar gets himſelf the government of Tranſalpine and Ciſalpine Gaul for five years, with the command of four legions, contrary to all law, &c.	V	114
4248	2941	58	Clodius being advanced to the tribuneſhip at Rome, uſed all his power againſt Cicero, who had accuſed him about Cæſar's wife, and got him baniſhed, burnt his fine palaces at Rome, and his country houſes, and confiſcated all his eſtate	V	116
4248	2941	58	Cæſar engages the Hetrurians, who had burnt down their own towns and houſes with a reſolution to enter Gaul, cuts off 130,000 of them, and the reſt ſubmit: Cæſar obliges them to lay down their arms, and ſends them back into their own country. Soon after he engaged Arioviſtus, intirely defeated him by cutting off moſt of his troops; himſelf eſcaped with difficulty croſs the Rhine, but his two wives and one of his daughters periſhed; and another of his daughters, and a great many Germans of diſtinction were taken priſoners	V	118
4249	2942	57	Cicero is recalled from baniſhment with all the demonſtrations of joy poſſible, and received with the greateſt reſpect at Rome, where he has his palace rebuilt at the public expence, &c.	V	119
4249	2942	57	The ſeveral nations of Belgium conſpire againſt the Romans: Cæſar marches againſt them; the Rhemi ſubmit, but the reſt appoint Galba king of the Sueſſones their commander, being 150,000. Cæſar attacks them as they are croſſing the Axona, now the Aiſne, and made ſuch a dreadful ſlaughter of them, that they reſolved to diſperſe and return home. Several places ſubmitted; but the Nervii (a very fierce people) fell upon Cæſar's army, and killed abundance of them; but at laſt, Cæſar having deſtroyed almoſt all of the young men, the old men, women, and children ſurrendered. Then going againſt the Aduatici, they pretended to give up their arms and ſubmit; but having concealed a third part of them, attacked the Romans in the night, for which Cæſar the next day broke down the city gates, put many to the ſword, and ſold the reſt (to the number of 53,000) for ſlaves. This brought the ſubmiſſions of ſeveral nations beyond the Rhine, and vaſt ſpoil and treaſure to Cæſar.

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4249	2242	57	Ariſtobulus and his ſon Antigonus eſcape out of priſon at Rome, and return into Judea, who with 8000 men that he had collected, ſets about building the caſtle of Alexandrion; but the Romans engage, defeat, and kill 5000 of his men, and force him to fly with 1000 into the ruinated caſtle of Macheron, where after two days ſtout reſiſtance, they take him by aſſault, and ſend him and his ſon priſoners to Rome, where he remained to his death, but the reſt of his family was ſet at liberty
4250	2943	56	Alexander ſon of Ariſtobulus raiſes a large army and comes again into Judea, and conquers all before him; but being at laſt engaged by Gabinius, the Roman general, near mount Tabor, is intirely defeated with the loſs of 10,000 men killed on the ſpot, and the reſt diſperſed	IV	114
4250	2943	56	Gabinius governor of Syria undertakes to reſtore Ptolemy Auletes to the throne of Egypt for 10,000 talents, or 1937,500 l. ſterling, one half to be paid down, which is agreed to. Accordingly, he ſends Mark Antony, who marches into Egypt and takes Peluſium, and Gabinius marches into the heart of the country, and is met by Archelaus, the huſband of Berenice; they engage, the Egyptians are all cut off, and Archelaus taken, who is ſet at liberty for a large ranſom, and being ſeveral times defeated, is at laſt beſieged in Alexandria, where after defending the place to the laſt extremity, he marches out, and engages the Romans, who killed him and routed his army, and ſo re-eſtabliſh Auletes again upon the throne of Egypt, who firſt puts his daughter Berenice to death, for accepting the throne from the Alexandrians, and then deſtroyed moſt of the great men for driving him away, confiſcating their goods to raiſe money to pay Gabinius, &c.	IV	115
4250	2943	56	Galba, one of Cæſar's lieutenants, being attacked at Octodurus by a great body of Gauls, he defeats and kills 10,000 of them. Cæſar having appointed Brutus his admiral, ſends him againſt the Veneti, who engages their fleet, and obtains a compleat victory; whereupon the Veneti ſubmit, but Cæſar puts the chiefs to the ſword and ſells the reſt for ſlaves. Craſſus goes againſt part of the Aquitani, and kills 30,000 in one battle, and ſo reduced all Aquitane	IV	671
4251	4944	55	Cæſar attacks the Uſipites and Tenctheri, of whom he cut off almoſt 400,000; then ordered a bridge to be built over the Rhine, entered Germany, plundered and ſacked the Sicambri, and frightened the Suevi, and returned in 18 days to Gaul again, and broke down the bridge	III	121
4251	2944	55	Cæſar prepares to invade Britain; the Britains ſend ambaſſadors into Gaul to him, offering to ſubmit and give hoſtages: He marches into Picardy, and from thence ſails into Britain, lands, is oppoſed, and defeats the Britains: They ſue for peace, and deliver hoſtages. A ſtorm ſhatters his ſhips; the Britains fall on his ſeventh legion; he comes to their aſſiſtance, and intirely overthrows the Britains with great ſlaughter ſeveral times, and then returns to Gaul. The ſenate order a ſupplication or general thankſgiving, for 20 days, for Cæſar's ſucceſs in Britain	V	112
4251	2944	55	The Trebonian law (ſo called from Trebonius, the tribune of the people) paſſed at Rome, whereby Cæſar had the command of Gaul, &c. given him for five years; Craſſus Syria, Egypt and Macedon; and Pompey the two Spains for the ſame time, abſolutely, (ſo that no power could reach them for that time) with full power to raiſe men, money, &c.	VII	413
4251	2944	55	Ateius (one of the tribunes of the Roman people) ſtrove with all his might to hinder Craſſus, the conſul, and one of the triumvir's, going into Aſia; but being oppoſed, went ſo far as even to arreſt his perſon; but eight of his colleagues delivered Craſſus from the officer who had ſeized him; Pompey conducted him out of Rome with a ſtrong guard; but Ateius coming to the city gate through which he was to paſs, threw perfumes into a fire he had cauſed to be kindled there, and curſed Craſſus with a thouſand imprecations and invokings of the infernal gods. Craſſus leaves Rome, and coming into Syria (the province aſſigned him) marches to Jeruſalem to ſeize all the treaſures that Pompey had left untouched: Eleazer, one of the prieſts in order to ſatisfy his avaricious temper, diſcovers to him a golden rafter, weighing 3000 Hebrew, or 750 common pounds; but though he had ſolemnly ſwore he would meddle with nothing elſe, as ſoon as he had got that, he plundered the treaſury of 2000 talents, and the temple of all elſe that was valuable, to the amount of 8000 talents more: From hence he went into Parthia, though then in alliance and peace with Rome; he beſieges Nicephorium, which Dio the governor offered to ſurrender; but when Craſſus ſent a party to take poſſeſſion, Dio ſurrounded and cut them all to pieces. Craſſus takes the city by aſſault, ſold the inhabitants for ſlaves, and confiſcated their goods	IV	296
4252	2945	54	Cæſar lands a ſecond time in Britain, without oppoſition, the people being frighted at his great number of ſhips, pretending they had not ſent the hoſtages agreed upon: He marches againſt and defeats the Britons; a ſtorm deſtroys and ſhatters a great part of his fleet; the Britons often attack him, but are always defeated with great loſs. Having ravaged the country he returned to Gaul	VII	426
4252	2945	54	Julia (the daughter of Julius Cæſar and wife of Pompey) dies, who while living behaved with ſo extraordinary a prudence, as to keep her father and huſband from coming to an open rupture, which ſoon after broke out between them, and was ſo highly honoured and eſteemed by all ranks of people, that ſhe was buried in the field of Mars, an honour allowed only to great heroes, and never to any woman before	V	124
4252	2945	54	The Gauls make a general inſurrection: Cæſar upon account of a famine that then was, being forced to divide his army and place them in different parts in ſmall parties, ſeveral of them are cut off, but at laſt he reduced them again to obedience, having a reinforcement of two legions from Pompey	V	124

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
4252	2945	54	Craſſus ſpends much of his time in improving, by all ſcandalous methods, the annual income of his province, by robbing the temples, extorting extravagant ſums from the people, &c. and by neglecting military diſcipline his ſoldiers became effeminate. Orodes the Parthian king ſends ambaſſadors to Craſſus, complaining of his uſage, and deſires his reaſons for it; but Craſſus anſwering very haughtily, is at length attacked at Carrhæ, by Surenas the Parthian general, his ſon is killed, himſelf defeated, and his army routed with great ſlaughter, and his camp took and plundered; and purſuing Craſſus, takes him by a treacherous propoſal of conferring about a peace, kills him and his attendants, and cuts off his head, and brings it to Orodes, who ordered his mouth to be filled with melted gold, thereby reproaching his avariciouſneſs. In this battle 20,000 Romans were killed, and 10,000 taken priſoners —		IV	306
4253	2946	53	Pompey poſtponed the election of new conſuls for ſeven months, and his creature C. Luceius the tribune propoſed to the people to make Pompey dictator; but Cato, &c. oppoſing it ſtrongly, Domitius Calvinus and Valerius Meſſala were choſe conſuls for the remaining five months; but corruption was ſo notoriouſly ſettled at Rome, that the candidates for the curule offices brought their money openly, and the heads of the faction employed force, ſo that many maſſacres happened in the inſtalling them in their offices —		V	124
4253	2946	53	Orodes king of Parthia having made peace with Artabazes king of Armenia, and becoming jealous of the growing power of his general Surenas, who had lately defeated the Romans and killed Craſſus, orders him to be put to death —		IV	306
4254	2947	52	Orſaces general of Orodes king of Parthia enters Syria, and conquers all the country from Euphrates to Antioch, and beſieged it: Cicero meets a large party of Parthian horſe, and cuts them all off to a man; this forces them to raiſe the ſiege, and Cicero falls upon them and cuts off great numbers, and their general Orſaces, as they were making their retreat —		IV
4254	2947	52	Caſſius the Roman general beſieges Tarichæa (a city on the ſouth ſhore of the lake Genneſareth) where Pitolaus with the remains of Ariſtobulus's party were; he takes and carries off 30,000 Jews priſoners, and Pitolaus he puts to death —		IV	116
4254	2947	52	Pompey and his faction create great diſturbances and doe much miſchief, and he is declared ſole conſul at Rome, a thing never known before; and new troops, with 1000 talents to pay them, are allowed him: But he having married Cornelia, the daughter of an eminent ſenator, Q. Cæcilius Metellus, aſſociates him with him in the conſulſhip, which greatly pleaſed the patrician ſenators —		V	127
4254	2947	52	Cæſar, after having reduced the revolted Gauls in Tranſalpine Gaul, ſends vaſt ſums of money to be diſtributed among his partizans in Rome, and the populace, paying the debts of ſome, lending money without intereſt to others, and obliging and careſſing all, he himſelf ſtaying in Inſubria, during which the Gauls revolt again, and though winter, goes againſt them, beſieges Noviodunum; prince Vercingetorix, the Gauliſh generaliſſimo, comes to its relief; Cæſar defeats him, takes the town, and marches to Avaricum and takes it by ſtorm, and out of 40,000 Gauliſh troops, kills all but 800. The Edui revolt, and kill all the Italians in their capital, ſeize Noviodunum, and in it Cæſar's military cheſt, baggage and proviſions, and then ſet fire to the town: In return, Cæſar beſieges Aleſia, in which was Vercingetorix, with 80,000 men; 160,000 Gauls come to his relief, who engaged three times, but were as often defeated with great loſs: The city, being compelled by famine, ſurrenders at diſcretion; and ſo he reduced the Gauls once more, for which 20 days thankſgiving to the gods were ordered at Rome — —		V	127
4255	2948	51	The Parthians return, and beſiege Antioch a ſecond time, but are obliged to raiſe the ſiege, to ſuppreſs a rebellion raiſed by one of their own noblemen —		IV	306
4255	2948	51	Several of the Gauliſh communities revolt, which Cæſar continually defeats, and reduces Uxellodunum, a ſtrong place, holding out a long ſiege againſt Caninius, one of his generals: Cæſar goes himſelf, reduces the place, and cuts off the right hands of all able to bear arms; and having now reduced all Gaul from the Pyrenees and Alps to the Rhine, turns it into a Roman province. He is ſaid to have taken 800 cities, and ſubdued 300 different nations, and defeated 3,000,000 men, 1,000,000 killed, and 1,000,000 taken priſoners, in his ſeveral expeditions againſt the Gauls —		V	129
4255	2948	51	Ptolemy Auletes, king of Egypt, dies, and makes the Romans executors of his will, by which he bequeathed his crown to his eldeſt ſon and eldeſt daughter, ordering them to inter-marry: Pompey is appointed guardian; but Photinus the eunuch, and Achillas, general of all the forces, depoſe Cleopatra, with intent to reign abſolutely; the young king being but thirteen years old: She retires into Syria and Paleſtine, raiſes a great army, and heads it herſelf, being about ſeventeen years of age		III	678
4256	2949	50	Scribonius Curio, a great enemy to Cæſar, is by Pompey ſet at the head of the tribunes; the moſt debauched and extravagant patrician in Rome, who, though but young, had contracted debts to the amount of 600,000 great ſeſterces, or 4,843,750 l. ſterling. A cenſus is made by which 320,000 citizens fit to bear arms are found in Rome, which is ended with a luſtrum: This is the laſt cenſus under the republick — —		V	129
4256	2949	50	Cæſar for 1500 talents, or 310,625 l. ſterl. buys over the conſul Æmilius Paulus, and the tribune Curio for great ſums — —		V	129
4257	2950	49	The Roman ſenate makes an order, declaring Cæſar an enemy if he did not reſign his office of proconſul, at a ſhort limited time; and ordering the conſuls, &c. to provide for the publick ſafety. Both ſides arm powerfully againſt each other, and the commonwealth, Pompey reigning with the abſolute uncontroulable power of a king, under the name of generaliſſimo, and his friends nominated to all the poſts of honour and profit in Rome and all its provinces —		V	131
4257	2950	49	Mark Antony, Caſſius Longinus, and Curio, three of the tribunes, are driven out of Rome for ſpeaking in Cæſar's favour: They fly to his camp in the diſguiſe of

ſlaves:

Y. of world.	Y. of Rome.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			ſlaves: Upon their arrival Cæſar ſhews them to the legion he had with him, exaggerating their and his ill uſage, &c. begs their defence and protection, which they all promiſe; upon which he croſſes the Rubicon into Italy, and ſeizes Arminium, and orders all his army in Gaul to come to him there
4257	2950	49	Rome and all its inhabitants are in the utmoſt conſternation at Cæſar's taking Arminium. Pompey retires to Capua, and declares all ſhould be treated as traytors that did not attend him: Upon which the conſuls, ſenators, and magiſtrates left Rome to wait on Pompey. Cæſar takes all places where he arrives, with little reſiſtance. pardons all the ſenators he takes, and uſes great mildneſs to all degrees of people, Pompey quits Capua, and retires to Brunduſium, whither Cæſar followed and beſieged him; from whence Pompey and his army eſcapes by ſtratagem on board his fleet, and left Cæſar maſter of all Italy from the Alps to the ſea; then ſends Curio with three legions into Sicily, which Cato abandoned as ſoon as Curio landed, and ordered Valerius his lieutenant to go into Sardinia, where the inhabitants join him, and drive away Aurelius Cotta, who commanded there for the ſenate, and ſubmit to Cæſar, who ſent for all the ſenators he could come at to come to him at Rome, particularly Cicero, but could not prevail on him to come. To ſo many as came he propoſed to ſend a deputation to Pompey, and to ſettle all things amicably, as hitherto no blood was ſpilt; but none of the ſenators would take upon them the meſſage. Cæſar goes to the publick treaſury, breaks open the doors, and takes out ('tis ſaid) 300,000 pounds weight of gold: With this money he raiſed troops all over Italy, and ſent governors to all the provinces ſubject to Rome: This occaſioned a general war in all parts of the known world, Pompey having done the ſame. Cæſar goes into Spain, where many declare for him: But violent rains and the melting ſnow ſo overflowed the two rivers between which his army lay, that his bridges were broken down, and his communication cut off from thoſe towns that ſupply'd his army, ſo that a famine raged among them, a buſhel of wheat being ſold for 50 Roman denarii, or 1 l. 2 s. 3 d. $\frac{1}{2}$ ſterl. Upon this Cicero and many ſenators at Rome haſten to join Pompey. However, Cæſar (by the help of boats and great labour) got ſuccours and forced Afranius and Petreius out of Hither Spain, without a battle, and obliged them to diſband their troops, and ſwear never to make war upon Cæſar. One legion in Further Spain deſerted from Varro, Pompey's governor in Further Spain, which obliged him to ſurrender his other legion, and all his money. Cæſar, now maſter of all Spain, appoints Caſſius Longinus governor of both provinces, with four legions to defend them, and returns to Marſeilles, which ſurrendered; he grants them their lives and liberties, but ſtrips them of all their arms and their ſhips; and then returned to Rome, when M. Æmilius Lepidus names him dictator, which he accepts, without abuſing his power: He grants to all the Gauls beyond the Po the rights of Roman citizens, and got himſelf and Servilius Iſauricus declared conſuls —	V	132
	49		Cæſar releaſes Ariſtobulus, the captive king and high-prieſt of the Jews, out of priſon, and ſends him with two legions into Paleſtine, to keep Syria in awe; but Pompey's party find means to deſtroy him by poiſon: Alexander his ſon coming with ſome troops to his father's aſſiſtance, Q. Metellus Scipio, Pompey's governor in Syria, takes him and beheads him — —	V	137
	48		Cæſar confirms Hyrcan in the Jewiſh high-prieſthood, and makes Antipater procurator or lieutenant of Judea, and citizen of Rome; and adds abundance of favourable privileges to the Jews, and that they might be publickly known, cauſes his grant to be engraved on tables of braſs, and hung up in the temples of Tyre, Sydon, Aſkalon, and the capitol at Rome — —	IV	116
	48		Cleopatra cauſes herſelf to be conveyed to Cæſar, in Alexandria, where enamoured with her beauty, he eſpouſes her cauſe, has a ſon by her called Cæſarion, afterwards obliges her to marry her younger brother Ptolemy, a lad of 11 years old, by which means ſhe reigned abſolutely over Egypt — —	IV	117
	48		Cæſar goes in queſt of Pompey, and is reinforced by all nations and people. Pompey had likewiſe a vaſt army and fleet. Pompey and 200 ſenators reſide at Theſſalonica, where they aſſemble and give orders as if at Rome, from whence all the great men flew to him, calling him the Good Cauſe, and Cæſar and his adherents the Abettors of Tyranny. Cæſar firſt goes to Oricum (a ſtrong city in Epirus) which ſurrenders as ſoon as he approaches: Then he marches to Apollonia, on the confines of Macedon, another important place, which does the like: From hence he goes to Dyrrachium, another ſtrong town in Macedon, the magazine for Pompey's arms and proviſions. In the mean time Cæſar is informed a ſquadron of Pompey's fleet had attacked his fleet, taken 30 of them, and burnt them with the men in them. Cæſar ſends Vibullus Rufus, a friend of Pompey's, whom he had taken priſoner, to propoſe the diſbanding both their armies in three days, renew their former friendſhip, with ſolemn oaths, and return to Italy. Pompey refuſes: Cæſar again ſends Vatinius to treat with him; but while he was treating with Labienus, Pompey's men attacked and wounded them. Gabinius and his men endeavouring to go through Illyrium to join Cæſar, is killed by the Illyrians, who had declared for Pompey, and all his army to a man cut off. Soon after, Cæſar being ſtrongly reinforced, beſieges Pompey and his army, and reduces them to great ſtraits for want of forage. Pompey gains advantages ſeveral times in ſkirmiſhes, ſo that Cæſar is obliged to decamp, and retire to Apollonia, where he paid his men, and left the wounded, and then marches into Macedon, is joined by Domitius with three legions; then goes into Theſſaly, which all ſubmit to him: Pompey follows him, and at laſt by the importunity of his commanders, contrary to his own inclinations, comes to a general battle in the plains of Pharſalia, near Thebes; Pompey's people were ſo confident of victory as to lay in their claims for their reſpective offices in the ſtate, &c. depending upon their numbers, being 45,000 foot, 7000 horſe, well armed, and	III	678

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Page
			a great number of dartmen and ſlingers. Cæſar had but 20,000 foot and 1000 horſe: They engage, and Cæſar intirely defeats them with great ſlaughter, and Pompey gets away in diſguiſe	V	146
4258	2951	48	In the battle of Pharſalia, Cæſar is ſaid to loſe but 200, thirty whereof were centurions, which he buried with great ſolemnity. Pompey had 25,000 ſlain, ten of which were ſenators, and forty Roman knights, and 24,000 were taken priſoners, eight eagles and 180 enſigns. Cæſar ordered all the citizens immediately to be ſet at liberty, and then purſues after Pompey to Lariſſa, and from thence to Tempe in Theſſaly, from thence to Mytilene, where he took into his ſhip his wife Cornelia and his ſon Sextus, and ſails to Attalia in Pamphilia, and from thence goes to Egypt, where he is ſlain, and his head cut off and embalmed. Cæſar purſuing him, upon his arrival at Alexandria Pompey's head is preſented to him, which he cauſed to be buried with great pomp in the temple of Nemeſis, the goddeſs of revenge, in the ſuburbs of Alexandria. Cæſar demanding the money that Auletes owed him, Photinus the young king's miniſter put him off with delays, and ſtirs up the mob againſt him, who had now only 3200 foot and 800 horſe; whereupon Cæſar is forced to take ſhelter in the king's palace, ſummons Cleopatra and her brother Ptolemy to come before him, that he might determine the difference between them, and orders them to diſband their armies. Cleopatra cauſes herſelf to be carried privately, and ſo enamoured him that he declared on her ſide, ſends for Ptolemy, and preſſes him to make up all difference with his ſiſter: Ptolemy runs into the ſtreet, takes the diadem off his head, tears it to pieces, and throws it on the ground, and complains to the people of being ill uſed, who all riſe againſt Cæſar; but Cæſar appeaſed them with fair words, and bringing Ptolemy and Cleopatra out before the people, cauſed Auletes' will to be read, and declared they ſhould reign jointly; and then alſo declared that Ptolemy the younger ſon and Arſinoe the youngeſt daughter ſhould reign jointly in Cyprus; but Photinus the chief miniſter uſes all his ſkill and power among the people, and Achillas the general beſieged Cæſar with 20,000 in Alexandria, and murdered one and abuſed another ambaſſador Cæſar ſent to him. Cæſar was forced to burn what ſhips were in the port, ſome of which when on fire run aſhore, and ſet fire to the famous library that at an immenſe expence was collected by ſeveral kings, to the amount of 400,000 volumes. Cæſar detects Photinus in correſponding with Achillas, and puts him to death; upon which the eunuch Ganymedes conveys young Arſinoe to the army, who proclaim her queen, and putting their general Achillas to death, Ganymedes ſucceeds him in that office: Cæſar defeats him in two ſea engagements, with great loſs: The Alexandrians demand their king, and offer to ceaſe all hoſtilities; Cæſar complies, but the young king ſtrives to intercept Cæſar's proviſions; this occaſioned a third ſea fight, wherein the Romans came off victorious	III	6
4258	2951	48	Mithridates, Antipater, and Hyrcanus jointly come to the aſſiſtance of Cæſar: They take Peluſium, and advance towards Alexandria, and are engaged by the Egyptians, whom they totally rout. Cæſar goes out of the city, and joins Mithridates and Antipater: Ptolemy with his whole army engages them, has 20,000 cut to pieces, 12,000 taken priſoners, and the king himſelf was drowned in the Nile, after three years and eight months reign: Upon this Cæſar returns to Alexandria, proclaims Cleopatra queen, and obliges her to marry her younger brother, a lad of eleven years old
4258	2951	48	Upon Pompey's death, the ſenate and people of Rome declare Cæſar conſul for five years, dictator for one year, tribune of the people and head of that college for life, with power to make peace and war at pleaſure, to levy what ſums he thought fit, &c.
4258	2951	48	Pharnaces, (king of the Cimmerian Boſphorus,, ſon of Mithridates the Great) taking advantage of the civil war between Pompey and Cæſar, ſeizes a great part of his father's dominions. Cæſar ſends Domitius againſt him; He engages Domitius the Roman general, defeats him, and cuts off moſt of his army; but Cæſar himſelf marching againſt him, he deſires peace, ſends him a crown of gold, offers him his daughter, and to ſubmit to any thing he ſhould require. Cæſar ordered him to retire from Pontus immediately, releaſe all his priſoners, and to reſtore the Romans all their goods he had ſeized: He promiſed, but delayed: Cæſar attacks and defeats him, cuts off or takes moſt of his army, and that ſo expeditiouſly as to make him uſe this memorable ſentence, I came, I ſaw, I conquered, in a letter to Anitius at Rome. After this he made Mithridates Pergamenus king of Boſphorus inſtead of Pharnaces	III	706
4259	2952	47	Pharnaces having raiſed ſome recruits, is engaged by Aſander, whom he had made governor in Boſphorus, and who had ſeized the crown while he was in Pontus, and is ſlain, and his army cut to pieces, after he had reigned in Boſphorus 15 years, which Pompey gave him, Upon his death Pontus was again reduced to the form of a Roman province	III	707
4259	2952	47	Cicero, upon Cæſar's return to Italy, goes to make his court and ſubmiſſion to him, for having eſpouſed Pompey's cauſe: Cæſar meets him with the higheſt reſpect, civility, and good-nature; the like he did to all the other great men who came to ſee him; and coming to Rome, he reſtored peace and tranquillity; but thoſe particular perſons who ſtill remained in arms againſt him, he confiſcated their goods and ſold their eſtates.	V	156
4259	2952	47	Cæſar again choſe conſul, goes into Africa, where Pompey's party were ſtill very numerous. He ſummons Conſidius, commander of Adrumetum, to ſurrender, who kills his meſſenger, and goes out againſt him. Cæſar being but illy provided with troops, decamps; Conſidius purſues and harraſſes him, till he got to Leptis, where part of his troops from Sicily were come, from whence he ſent orders for the reſt to come; but in the mean time is greatly diſtreſſed for want

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			of forage, and frequently defeated in parties; but receiving more ſuccours, he went to Utica to beſiege it, and was himſelf beſieged by three armies under Juba king of Mauritania, Scipio general of the Roman forces, and Labienus his lieutenant. Cæſar having offered the enemy battle, and they refuſing, he decamps and goes to Thapſus, whither he is followed by the three armies. Cæſar falls upon Scipio firſt, and puts him to flight; then Labienus, and defeats him; and then Juba, and routs him, killed 50,000 men, takes the three camps, and loſes but 50 of his own men, Thapſus ſurrendered, and all the heads of the party either laid violent hands on themſelves, or were taken priſoners, and put to death, except Labienus, who eſcaped. Cato maintained Utica, where he governed with a ſenate of 300 Romans, who upon the approach of Cæſar reſolve to ſubmit: Cato ſtabs himſelf, and Utica ſurrenders. All Africa being now Cæſar's, from hence he goes into Mauritania and Numidia, reduces both kingdoms, and makes them Roman provinces, which he ordered to be pillaged and plundered, to prevent their revolting
4259	2952	47	Herod, ſon of Antipater, being made governor of Gallilee, goes againſt and ſubdues the banditti that infeſted the country round about, killed many, and took ſome priſoners, whom he put to death, for which he is cited to anſwer to the Sanhedrim at Jeruſalem, who would have condemned him, but he made his eſcape to Damaſcus, and remained there under the protection of Sextus Cæſar, the Roman governor of the province	V	165
4261	2954	45	Cæſar returning to Utica, orders the rebuilding of Carthage and Corinth, (which two years afterwards were repeopled by Roman colonies, ſent to ſettle in them) and ſet ſail for Italy; and upon his arrival at Rome he is received with all poſſible marks of joy and honour, and publick thankſgivings are made in all the temples for 40 days for his ſucceſſes: He is decreed four triumphs, in which kings, princes, &c. went before him in chains, and veſſels of gold and ſilver, to the amount of 65,000 talents, which is more than 12,000,000 ſterl. and 1820 golden crowns, weighing 15,033 pounds: Out of theſe ſums he firſt paid his ſoldiers, then gave every private ſoldier 150 l. ſterl. 300 l. to each centurion, and 900 l. to each tribune and commander of the cavalry; and to the commonalty of Rome he gave ten buſhels of corn, and ten meaſures of oil, and 400 Denarii per man, then entertained them at 20,000 tables with 6000 murenas, and a vaſt profuſion of uncommon dainties, and repreſentations of land and ſea fights, &c. then ſets about reforming Rome by many good laws, and invites learned and ingenious men of all nations with great privileges and encouragements to come and ſettle at Rome	IV	120
4261	2954	45	Cæcilius Baſſus, a Roman knight, raiſes an army, ſeizes Tyre, and gives out that Cæſar was killed in Africa, and that the ſenate at Rome had appointed him preſident of Syria: But Sextus Cæſar, governor of the province, goes againſt him, and entirely defeats him. Baſſus retires to Tyregeti, is cured of his wounds, inveigles Sextus's army, who kill their general for his lewd way of living, and join Baſſus, who by the aſſiſtance of Alaccaudonius, an Arabian prince, kept up the revolt for many years	V	169
4261	2954	45	Young Ptolemy king of Egypt, now 14 years old, claims a ſhare in the government, according to the cuſtom of the country, with Cleopatra his wife and ſiſter, for which ſhe ſoon after poiſoned him	V	170
4261	2954	45	The Roman year now conſiſting of but 12 lunar months, the pontifex maximus and his colleague intercalated once in two years a month of 22 and 23 days alternately, between the 23d and 24th of February; but this was oftentimes omitted, &c. therefore Cæſar, by the advice and aſſiſtance of learned men, reduced the year to the form we now have it	III	679
4261	2954	45	Cæſar ſets out for Spain againſt Pompey's two ſons, who had got great footing there. He beſieges Ategua, the parties magazine, and having reduced it to great ſtraits, the Roman garriſon cuts the throats of all the inhabitants, ſets fire to the city, and by a general ſally endeavours to break through Cæſar's line; but being drove back into the town with great ſlaughter, L. Minucius Flaccus ſurrenders upon honourable terms. From hence Cæſar goes to Burſabolis, took it by ſurprize, and put great numbers of the inhabitants to death. Soon after, near the city, both parties come to a general engagement, where after a moſt bloody and obſtinate battle from morning till night, Cæſar by ſtratagem gains the victory, kills 30,000 of Pompey's men, (among which were the famous generals Labienus, and Attius Varrius) and 300 Roman knights, 17 great officers, and takes the camp, the enemies eagles and enſigns, and Pompey's faſces, which he had aſſumed as governor of Spain, with the loſs only of 1000 killed and 500 wounded on Cæſar's ſide. The elder Pompey fled, but was ſoon after taken, and put to death. Several engagements, ſieges, and other warlike exploits, in ſeven months reduced all Spain; and Cæſar returned to Rome with immenſe treaſures that he had taken from the Pompeian party. Soon after his arrival at Rome he gave himſelf and his two lieutenants each a triumph, at which great exception was taken by many, who were but to outſide ſhew his friends	V	171
4262	2955	44	The ſenate make Cæſar conſul alone, and dictator for life, ſubjected all the magiſtrates, even the tribunes, to him; impowered him, alone, to levy troops, command armies, declare war, make peace, &c. and conferred the title of Cæſar and Imperator (or emperor) to him and his poſterity: He governed moſt excellently and mildly, and ſtrove by all acts of kindneſs to gain over his enemies: He increaſed the prætors to 16, and the quæſtors to 40: He made ſix new ædiles, and increaſed the other magiſtrates proportionably, making the ſenate conſiſt of 900 members	V	173

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4262	2955	44	Aurelius Cotta, one of the keepers of the Sybiline books, declares that the Parthians, againſt whom Cæſar was going, could never be overcome but by a king; therefore it was propoſed that Cæſar ſhould bear the name of dictator in Italy, but king every where elſe: But a conſpiracy being formed by many of the chief ſenators againſt Cæſar. Artimedorus, a rhetorician, puts into Cæſar's hands an account thereof, as he was going to the ſenate-houſe; but he neglecting to read it, as ſoon as he had taken his place the conſpirators ſtab and kill him, after he had fought ſucceſsfully 56 pitched battles, and killed 1,192,000 men.	V	185
4262	2955	44	The death of Cæſar occaſioned ſuch an extraordinary ferment in the ſtate, that no one knew what to ſay or do. Mark Antony, Cæſar's colleague in the conſulſhip, got a guard of 6000 veterans, under pretence of ſecuring his perſon from inſult, &c. Octavianus, Cæſar's great nephew and adopted ſon, being declared his heir by Cæſar's will, comes to Rome and claims his eſtate, where being oppoſed by Mark Antony the then conſul, Octavianus ſells his own patrimony and bribes the people; upon which Anthony pretends to be reconciled to Octavianus; they quarrel and are friends ſeveral times, ſo that at laſt they both arm, and Octavianus enters Rome with a large body of men; the ſenate declare for Octavianus; Antony invades Ciſalpine Gaul, and beſieges Mutina, which the ſenate order him to raiſe; Antony refuſes, and is declared an enemy to his country.	V	203
4262	2955	44	Brutus, Caſſius, and ſeveral others of the murderers of Cæſar, retire into Greece, Aſia, &c. and raiſe large armies; and keep up the Pompeian faction, and make themſelves maſters of thoſe provinces, which were confirmed to them by the Roman ſenate.	V	220
4262	2955	44	The Jews renew their alliance with Rome: Hyrcan petitions Dolabella, one of this year's conſuls, for the diſcharge of ſome Jews that were impreſſed into the Roman ſervice: Dolabella ſends a letter to the governor of Epheſus, ordering the diſcharge of the Jews, and a free exerciſe of their laws and religion. Baſſus having ſeized the governorſhip of Syria, was ſoon after driven out by Caſſius, who laid a tribute of 700 talents upon Judea: Herod ſoon after carried the 100 talents for his diſtrict. and his brother quickly after brought his quota, by which means they gained favour; but the others not coming with theirs, ſo irritated Caſſius, that he ordered the inhabitants of Gophna, Emmaus, Lydda, Thamma, &c. to be ſold by auction, and their governor Malichus to be put to death, to prevent which the high-prieſt purchaſed his life and liberty at 100 talents. Upon Caſſius's going againſt Dolabella, he left the government of Cælo-Syria to Herod. Malichus hired the high-prieſt's butler to poiſon Antipater as he was at dinner with his maſter, and ſeized upon the government of Jeraſalem, but was ſoon after cut off by the garriſon of Tyre, as he was going to wait on Caſſius at Laodicea: His brother eſpouſed his cauſe, and got Felix with ſome Roman ſoldiers to join him; but Phaſael drove him away, and Herod ſoon after coming to his aſſiſtance, they forced him to ſurrender Maſſada and the other fortreſſes, and to capitulate for his life: They upbraided Hyrcan as privy to all the diſturbance; but his fair daughter, whom Herod had married, named Mariamne, reconciled all their differences.	IV	123
4263	2956	43	The conſul Panſa goes againſt Mark Antony in Ciſalpine Gaul; they engage; the conſul is mortally wounded, and his army defeated; but Hirtius the other conſul falls upon and defeats Anthony, whither Hirtius and Octavianus go after him; they engage again, and Hirtius is killed, but Octavianus gained a compleat victory, and obliged Anthony to ſhelter himſelf behind his intrenchments, and to raiſe the ſiege of Mutina. Panſa, dying of his wounds, is carried with his colleague Hirtius to Rome, and interred with great pomp Octavianus demands a triumph, which the ſenate refuſes, but grants it to Decimus Brutus; upon which Octavianus ſends back a great number of officers he had taken to Anthony, and reſolves to be reconciled to him. Brutus goes againſt Anthony, and forces him to paſs the Alps; upon which the ſenate ſeizes and confiſcates all his eſtate. Pollio and Plancus join Anthony with their armies. Octavianus privately agrees with Anthony, and makes uſe of the power he was inveſted with by the ſenate for their deſtruction. After raiſing an army, he harangues them; they ſend deputies to the ſenate to chooſe him conſul; they refuſe it, and he marches his army to Rome, declares he comes as a friend, and is choſe conſul, and Quintus Pædius his colleague. Octavianus (who was afterwards called Auguſtus) was ſcarce twenty years old when he entered upon the conſulate.	V	213
4263	2956	43	Octavianus, now conſul, firſt gets his adoption by Cæſar confirmed; and his colleague Quintus gets a law paſſed for impeaching and trying Cæſar's murderers; upon which they were all ſummoned to take their trial. Octavianus gets the decree againſt Mark Anthony and Lepidus revoked: They go againſt Decimus Brutus at Mutina, where the greateſt part of his army revolt to Anthony and Lepidus, and Brutus is taken and killed by one Camillus, a free-booter: Upon this Anthony, Lepidus, and Octavianus meet in a ſmall iſland formed by the river Rhenus, now Reno, where they agree to divide all the Roman provinces between them, and are called the ſecond great triumvirate; and in order to ſupport their uſurped authority they agree to cut off all poſſeſſed of great eſtates, or were any ways friends to liberty and law. They and their armies go to Rome, and get their uſurped authority confirmed for five years by law, having firſt ſent and murdered many of the greateſt ſenators; then they proſcribed 3000 ſenators, and upwards of 2000 knights: Rome was filled with blood, many mangled carcaſſes, and the moſt horrid ſcenes of cruelty; then they ſeized the goods and eſtates of the victims, without any concern for their widows or orphans; and thus, and by exceſſive taxes, propoſing to make up the ſum of 200,000 talents, which falling ſhort of, they make a liſt of 1400 of the richeſt ladies in Rome, and taxed them all alike in a great ſum: They come all in a body to the ſenate, where Hortenſia made ſo moving a ſpeech, that the number was reduced from 1400 to 400; but to make up the propoſed ſum they taxed above 100,000 men, as well ſtrangers as natives, prieſts as laymen; in levying whereof the ſoldiers committed unheard of cruelties. The triumvirs having ſatiated themſelves with blood and plunder, declared to the ſenate the proſcription was at an end, and appointed M. Æmilius Lepidus and Lucius Munacius Plancus conſuls for the enſuing year; and becauſe they were going into the eaſt againſt Brutus and Caſſius, the triumvirs named conſuls, prætors, and ædiles, for ſeveral years to come.

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ		Pag.	Vol.
4264	2957	42	Cleopatra hearing of Mark Anthony and Octavianus's coming into Syria with a great army, ſets out with a great fleet &c. to meet and join them; but falling ſick on the way, and having loſt abundance of her ſhips in a ſtorm, is forced to return home.	V	232
4264	2957	42	Caſſius ſends a body of horſe into Cappadocia againſt Ariobarzanes, for having ſided with Cæſar and his friends, overcomes, takes, and puts him to death, and raiſes great contributions upon his ſubjects.	III	679
4264	2957	42	Caſſius goes againſt the Rhodians, for aſſiſting the triumviri: They ſue to him for peace; he requires their fleet and city, &c. to be delivered up to him; they refuſe; have two engagements at ſea, and are beat both times with great loſs: Then he takes their city, puniſhes the great men with death, plunders the treaſury, temples, and city, puniſhing with death thoſe who concealed any part of their wealth, extorted from them 8000 talents, taxed the city at 500 talents, and leaves L. Varus there with a ſtrong gariſon to exact it.	III	768
4264	2957	42	Brutus beſieges Xanthus, the ſtrongeſt city in Aſia, which, after the ſlaughter of many Romans, he took. The Xanthians ſet fire to the town, and burn their own houſes and goods, and deſtroy their wives, children, and themſelves, in the flames, chooſing death rather than ſlavery.	III	159
4264	2957	42	Brutus and Caſſius, with 19 legions and 20,000 horſe, meet Anthony and Octavianus, with 19 legions and 13,000 horſe, in the plains of Philippi, the boundary of Macedon and Thrace: They engage; Brutus falls upon Octavianus, kills abundance of his men, and takes his camp, a great many enſigns, and three eagles. In return, Anthony defeats Caſſius, kills many of his men, takes his camp, and entirely routs the reſt; Caſſius only with a few attendants retiring to the top of a hill, Brutus coming towards him, Caſſius imagining it was Anthony, killed himſelf, and then both armies retire. The ſame day the admirals and fleets of both parties meet and engage; Anthony's is entirely defeated, and moſt of his ſhips being taken or deſtroyed, together with a vaſt quantity of ſtores and proviſions they were bringing: This ſo ſtraitened Anthony, that day after day he offered Brutus battle, which at laſt by the importunity of his men he conſented to. Anthony having maſſacred all the priſoners he had taken in the laſt battle, Brutus now orders only all the ſlaves he had priſoners to be killed: They engage, and Brutus is intirely defeated, and his army routed; upon which he kills himſelf.	V	237
4264	2957	42	Upon Mark Anthony's coming into Bythinia, after the defeat of Brutus and Caſſius, the governors and heads of provinces come to make their ſubmiſſion and court to him: The Jews come and accuſe Phaſael and his brother Herod; but they being there likewiſe, had ſo prepared the conqueror by large gifts, that he would not hear them, When Anthony arrived at Epheſus, Hyrcan petitions for the releaſement and lands of thoſe Jewiſh priſoners Caſſius had ſold; which Anthony readily grants. Upon Anthony's coming to Daphne, near Antioch, the Jews again petition him againſt the two brothers, Phaſael and Herod; but Hyrcan appearing in their behalf, Anthony makes them both Tetrarchs; but the Jews at Jeruſalem ſent a third embaſſy of a thouſand perſons to Tyre, who were killed, wounded, and diſperſed, &c.	V	25
4264	2957	42	Anthony and Octavianus having conquered their greateſt enemies, disband part of their troops and ſeparate. Octavianus for Italy, and Anthony for Aſia: In his paſſage thither Anthony paſſed through Greece, and aſſiſted in the ſchools and academies, adminiſtering juſtice with great equity, and making large preſents: Leaving Lucius Cenſorinus, one of his lieutenants, governor of Greece, he went into Aſia, where he was met by all the kings and princes ſubject to the Roman power, who brought their wives and daughters with them to tempt him with their charms, who ſtrove among themſelves to render themſelves moſt agreeable to him by great preſents and compliances; Epheſus ſeemed moſt to hit his taſte; the women dreſſed in the habits they celebrated the feaſts of Bacchus, and the men and boys like fauns and ſatyrs. Anthony cites queen Cleopatra to come and clear herſelf for giving aſſiſtance to Brutus; ſhe obeys, and appears at Tarſus in Cilicia: Her wit and beauty ſo bewitched him, that he ſpent all the winter in ſoftneſs with her in Egypt, neglecting all buſineſs both of the camp and court.	IV	122
4265	2958	41	Octavianus coming into Italy, ſets about diſtributing the lands promiſed to the ſoldiers, which raiſed great complaints, as many were injured and beggar'd: The ſoldiers were as much diſpleaſed as the people, and ſet againſt Octavianus. Fulvia, the wife of Anthony, with the preſent conſuls, join to raiſe the publick diſcontent againſt him ſtill higher. He divorces Clodia, the daughter of Fulvia, declaring ſhe was for him ſtill a maid. The ſtate is divided into two powerful and inveterate parties; and cruel murders, &c. were daily committed in Rome, by the populace and ſoldiers. All things thus in a flame, a famine encreaſed their diſtreſs, each ſide blaming the other. Fulvia	V	262

retires

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			retires to Præneſte, and heads the troops and acts like a general: Octavianus did all in his power to harraſs and diſtreſs her and her troops, which were numerous. Lucius, brother and general for Fulvia having loſt abundance of his men by famine and a vigorous defence, ſallies out of Peruſia, goes to Octavianus, who promiſes a free pardon for all his troops provided he ſurrendered the town; Lucius orders his men to march out, and acknowledge the conqueror for their general; but the ſenators, &c. to the number of 300, were carried in chains to an altar, and there ſacrificed to the manes of Julius Cæſar, and then ordered the city to be plundered: But one Cæſtius ſetting fire to his own houſe, the wind being high, communicated the flames, ſo that the whole city was reduced to aſhes. Upon this Fulvia and her adherents flew, ſome to one place and ſome to another; and ſo ended this war, called the war of Peruſia. Fulvia retiring to Sicyon, died there of grief ſoon after.	V	269
4266	2959	40	Anthony's negligence occaſioned an univerſal revolt in Aſia, where his lieutenants were defeated ſeveral times; upon which he comes into Greece, and in his croſſing the Ionian ſea is joined by Ahenobarbus and his fleet; upon their arrival at Brunduſium, the gariſon ſhuts the gates againſt them; upon which Anthony invites Pompey in Sicily to join him againſt Octavianus: He comes immediately, and they make a deſcent upon Italy, and take many cities. But by the mediation of Cocceius, Pollio and Mæcenas, all diſputes are adjuſted, and the two triumvirs make a new diſtribution of the Roman empire, and Octavia (the ſiſter of Octavianus) and Anthony are married together. Pompey by his fleets and armies prevented corn coming from Sicily to Italy, ſo that there was a famine in Rome. Anthony at laſt prevails upon Octavianus to make peace with Pompey, and to ſettle all their diſputes amicably; which being done, plenty is again reſtored to Rome, and many of the proſcribed nobility come home, and are reſtored to their former dignities.	V	273
4266	2959	40	Antigonus the ſon of Ariſtobulus, by the aſſiſtance of Ptolomy and Pacorus, invades Judea, and goes to Jeruſalem, where they had ſeveral skirmiſhes, with great loſs on both ſides. Phaſael and Hyrcan are prevailed on to go to Barzapharnes, the general of the Parthians, where they are ſurprized by treachery, and Herod forced to fly into Idumea: The Parthians plunder Herod's palace, the city and country round about, and Mariſſa, (an opulent city) which they entirely deſtroyed, and then inſtalled Antigonus upon the Jewiſh throne; and Phaſael and Hyrcan are ſoon after brought to him in chains; Hyrcan's ears were cut off, which diſqualified him for the office of high prieſt, and Phaſael killed himſelf. Herod went to Rome, where by the ſenate he is made king of Judea, and Anthony having ordered Ventidius to aſſiſt him, he went to the relief of Maſſada, now beſieged by Antigonus; in his way he took Joppa, and made Antigonus raiſe the ſiege of Maſſada; from whence he marched to Jeruſalem.	IV	129
4267	2960	39	While Herod was gone to wait on Ventidius the Roman general at Samoſata, his brother Joſeph was defeated and killed by Antigonus, and Galilee taken. Herod upon his return engages Antigonus, and defeats him with very great ſlaughter, and recovered Galilee, &c. Then he went to Samaria, to conſummate his marriage with Mariamne, whom he had betrothed four years before.	IV	130
4267	2960	39	Pompey and Octavius quarrelling, renew their hoſtilities againſt each other: Menas, governor of Corſica and Sardinia for Pompey, and alſo admiral of his fleet, being diſguſted with his maſter, goes over to Octavius with three legions, the whole fleet, and ſurrenders the two iſlands: Octavius entertains him with great reſpect, and makes him commander of his whole fleet. Pompey ſends Menocrates to ravage the coaſt of Italy, which he doing, is met by Calviſius and Menas; a bloody engagement enſues; Menas wounds, boards Menocrates galley, and takes it; Menocrates jumps into the ſea, and is drowned; Demochares takes the command, took ſeveral of Calviſius's galleys, and drove moſt of the reſt on the rocks, where they were loſt. Octavius going to Meſſena, is attacked, and moſt of his ſhips ſunk or daſhed to pieces, and a violent ſtorm the next day deſtroyed a great part of the remainder.	V	275
4267	2960	39	Anthony having reſtored the Rhodians to their antient rights and privileges, which Caſſius had taken from them, beſtows alſo upon them the iſlands of Andros, Naxos, Tenos, and the city of Myndus: But the Rhodians tyrannizing over them very extrrordinarily, Anthony is forced to take their ſovereignty over them away.	III	159
4267	2960	39	Cleopatra going as far as Tarſus, to meet and inchant Anthony, ſtrove with all the temptations of luxury, preſents, and complaiſance to gain him which ſhe did ſo effectually, that no requeſt of her's, however diſhonourable, was deny'd: nor any complaint, however juſt againſt her, heard ſo as to be redreſſed: So bewitched was he to her charms, that, inſtead of putting his troops into winter quarters, he marched over hills, rocks, &c. to the loſs of 60,000 of his men, by the length and ſeverities of the march, in the depth of winter, to go to her.	III	687
4268	2961	38	Anthony and Octavius, by the mediation of Octavia, ſettle all their differences, and mutually aſſiſt each other, and by their own authority continue themſelves five years longer in the triumvirate; and Julia, Octavius's daughter, is betrothed to Antyllus, Anthony's ſon. Octavius having again got a large fleet under the command of Agrippa, (Menas having left him and returned to Pompey) they ſet out in July, but a violent ſtorm ariſing, deſtroyed many of their ſhips; but ſoon after repairing his damages, they land in Sicily: Several ſkirmiſhes happen by land and ſea, with various ſucceſs: but at laſt a general action at ſea happening, Pompey is entirely defeated, loſing 333 ſail of large ſhips, making his escape with only 17 galleys. Soon after Octavius and Lepidus quarrel so so high as to come to blows; but Octavius bribing his soldiers, Lepidus is deserted, and begs his life of Octavius, which he grants him. Octavius now has 45 legions under his command, 25,000 horse, 160,000 light-armed foot, and 6000 ships of war. The war in Sicily being ended, his soldiers mutiny, demanding great rewards; he discharges 20,000, and pacifies the others with large promises, and a present of 500 drachmas a man. At his return to Rome he is greatly flattered, and made perpetual tribune of the people.

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Pg.
4268	2961	38	Herod besieges Jerusalem, with the assistance of Sosius the Roman general; and after five months resolute defence, takes it by assault: A terrible slaughter is made of the inhabitants by the Romans, to whom Herod made a large present, to prevent their further plunder. Antigonus was carried in chains to Anthony, and afterwards put to death. by the instigation of Herod.	V	283
4269	2962	37	Herod, now absolute king of Judea, seizes and confiscates the estates of the most wealthy Antigonians, and put 45 of the head men to death. Herod having advanced one Ananel, a private obscure babylonish priest, to the pontifical dignity, is continually teazed by his mother-in-law Alexandria to depose Ananel, and advance her son Aristobulus; he does it, but in less than a year's time has him stifled as he was bathing.	IV	131
4270	2963	36	Anthony goes against the Parthians, but fails in his attempt, losing more than 70,000 men by war, famine, and excessive cold weather.	IV	135
4270	2963	36	Pompey flying to Lesbos, and there hearing of Anthony's ill success against the Parthians, raises great disturbances in the east, where he got an army, and took several cities; but being engaged by Marcus Titius, is defeated, taken, and put to death.	IV	312
4274	2967	32	Anthony early in the spring sets out for Syria, in order to go to Parthia: Cleopatra will attend him to the Euphrates; he bestows all Cyrene, Cyprus, Cælo-Syria, Iturea, and Phenice upon her, with great part of Cilicia and Crete; but not satisfied, she sollicits him to put Herod king of Judea and Malchus king of Petræa to death, to have their kingdoms also, which he refused: In her return home, she came by the way of Jerusalem, where Herod treated her very splendidly; she pretends to be in love with him, and strove to entice him to familiarity; which so exasperated Herod, that he would have put her to death, but was persuaded and advised to the contrary.	V	283
4274	2967	32	Anthony, contrary to the most solemn oaths, takes Artabazes king of Armenia prisoner, and reduces the whole country; then makes a match for Alexander, one of his sons by Cleopatra, and a daughter of the king of Media; and then returned to Alexandria, entering it in a triumphal chariot, his booty, king Artabazes, his wife, children, &c. being carried before him in the Roman manner: Cleopatra seated on a golden throne, &c. sits to receive him, to whom the captive king, &c. in golden chains, were presented, and ordered to kneel to her; but they refuse: and all the Romans are angry at the whole procedure.	III	682
4274	2967	32	Anthony treats all the Alexandrians at an immense expence; and being seated on one golden throne, and Cleopatra on another, in the Gymnasium, he makes an oration to the people, and proclaims Cæsarion (Cleopatra's son by Julius Cæsar) king of Egypt and Cyprus in conjunction with his mother; and having three children by her himself, viz. Alexander, Ptolomy, (sirnamed Philadelphus and Cleopatra, to Alexander he gave Armenia, Media, Parthia, &c, from the Euphrates to India; to Cleopatra, Alexander's twin-sister, Lybia and Cyrene; and to Philadelphus, Phenice, Syria, Cilicia, and all Asia Minor, from the Euphrates to the Hellespont, with the title of King of Kings; makes queen Cleopatra change her name to Isis, and he takes the name of Osiris, the great god and goddess of the Egyptians.	III	683
4274	2967	32	Cleopatra resolves upon the destruction of Herod,, sends an army under the command of her general Athenion, pretending to assist him against Malchus king of Arabia, who, when Herod and Malchus was engaged, falls upon Herod's army, and cut most of it to pieces, himself escaping with difficulty.	III	136
4274	2967	32	Octavius sends his sister Octavia to his colleague Anthony her husband, who was revelling in the arms of Cleopatra at Leucopolis: Octavia sends him word of her arrival at Athens; he orders her to return to Rome, and goes to Clexandria with Cleopatra, and spends the winter in a shameful manner with her: She returns to Rome; Octavius is highly incensed, but Octavia strives to moderate between them. Anthony declares Cleopatra queen of Egypt, Cyprus, Africa, and Cælo-Syria, joining Cæsarion (her son by Cæsar) her colleague with her. Octavius and Anthony reciprocally accuse each other to the people of Rome; and Anthony collects 800 ships at Ephesus, with a great army and a vast sum of money; From hence he goes to Athens, and Cleopatra with him. The consuls C. Sosius and Domitias Ahenobarbus fly from Rome to Athens, and so inrage Anthony against Octavius, that he divorces Octavia, and sends officers to turn her out of his house at Rome. Cleopatra using some of Anthony's friends ill at Athens, they forsake him. Anthony having made a will in favour of Cleopatra, in prejudice to Rome, and lodged it with the vestal virgins, Octavius comes and seizes, first reads it himself, and then assembles the senate, where it is read publickly; and Anthony is accused by Calvisius of many faults; and Cleopatra behaving very haughtily, many of his friends desert him. Octavius declares war against Cleopatra, and deposes Anthony from his commands, &c.	IV	136
4275	2968	31	Anthony and Octavius come to an engagement at sea near m*Ætium*, which remained long doubtful; in the midst of the fight Cleopatra comes with 60 sail of ships, stands for some time between both fleets, and then sets sail for Peloponnesus;	V	287

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			Anthony is ſo infatuated as to leave his fleet and army, and go after her; 300 of his ſhips yield to Octavius, and his land forces did the ſame, after ſtanding out ſeven days without leaders	V	293
4275	2968	31	A terrible earthquake happens at Jeruſalem, which deſtroyed a vaſt number of people and cattle; upon which Herod is forced to ſue to the Arabians for peace, who refuſe it, and murder his ambaſſadors, and come in great numbers to invade Judea: Herod gave them two ſignal defeats, and after forcing them to accept of peace upon his own terms, returns to Jeruſalem in triumph	IV	137
4275	2968	31	Artaxias II. the eldeſt ſon of Artuaſdes, is proclaimed king of Armenia, in oppoſition to Alexander, Cleopatra's ſon, whom he defeated, but did not hold his kingdom long, being ſtrangled by his pretended friends	III	709
4276	2969	30	Tiberius the Roman general ſets Tigranes (the ſon of Artaxias) upon the Armenian throne, putting the crown upon his head with his own hands, and honours him with the title of friend and ally of the Roman people; but this did not laſt long, Tiberius ordering him ſoon after to be put to death	III	709
4276	2969	30	Auguſtus ſets up Artuaſdes for king of Armenia; but the people drive him away, and chuſe Phrahates king of Parthia: But a Roman army comes againſt him under Caius, Auguſtus's adopted ſon: Phrahates retires, and ſues for peace, which is granted, and Artuaſdes reſtored; he dying ſoon after, Tigranes III. ſeizes the kingdom, but is drove out by Caius	III	710
4276	2969	30	Anthony being defeated by Octavius, Herod king of Judea ſends advice to him to murder Cleopatra, and to come into Egypt and raiſe an army, and promiſes to aſſiſt him with all his own force of money, troops, ſtrong holds, &c. but Anthony refuſes. Hyrcan the former high-prieſt being ſtill alive, Herod orders him to be beheaded, in the 80th year of his age, for fear the people ſhould prefer Hyrcan's to Herod's title to the crown	IV	137
4276	2969	30	Herod king of Judea goes to Octavius now at Rhodes, and offers his ſervice to him againſt Anthony and Cleopatra, who ſend meſſengers to Octavius to make up the breach between them, but are refuſed by him; at laſt they offer to reſign up all, and live a private life in Athens, or where elſe ſoever he ſhould think fit to appoint them: Octavius receives the queen's preſents, and promiſes to pardon her, if ſhe would put Anthony to death; but would not hear the ambaſſadors of Anthony, though he ſent his own ſon with a vaſt ſum of money, and offered to kill himſelf if he would ſettle Egypt on Cleopatra's children. Cleopatra betrays Anthony, and he kills himſelf; ſhe is taken by Octavius, and kills herſelf, after reigning 22 years. Octavius turned Egypt into a Roman province. Auguſtus is met by Herod at Ptolemais; Herod treats him and his whole army with great magnificence, and preſents him with 800 talents in money, beſides bread, wine, &c. for his army; in return for which Octavius gave him ſeveral towns, &c.	III	690
4277	2970	29	Octavius ſpends the whole winter in ſettling the provinces of Aſia Minor and the adjacent iſlands: In the ſpring, he firſt goes into Greece, and from thence to Rome, where he had three triumphs for three ſucceſſive days, and afterwards he had the title of emperor, with ſovereignty and uncontroul'd power; but to deceive the people, continued the uſual magiſtrates with only ſuch power as he thought fit to allow them, having overcome his qualm of laying down his uſurped authority: However, he courted the populace by many ſeeming acts of kindneſs; the ſenate he encreaſed to a thouſand members, and advanced all his own creatures: He raiſed many publick buildings, repaired the old ones, and added many ſtately ornaments to the city, which was now ſaid to be 50 miles in compaſs, and contained 4,000,000 ſouls	V	296
4277	2970	29	Mariamne, Herod's favourite wife, and Herod have great quarrels; ſhe is falſely accuſed of adultery, and of corrupting his cup-bearer to poiſon him, is tried, condemned and executed, by means of the furious hatred of Salome, Herod's ſiſter	IV	140
4278	2971	28	A great plague breaks out in Judea, which ſweeps away multitudes of the people: Herod grows prodigious uneaſy, and frenzical for the loſs of his Mariamne: Being now informed of her innocence, he revenges himſelf upon many of his beſt friends and neareſt relations, and puts them to death, and among them Alexandra, the mother of Mariamne	IV	140
4278	2971	28	Tiberius gives Armenia to Mithridates Iberus. Artabanus invades Armenia, who was defeated and drove away by Tiberius	III	710
4279	2972	27	Octavius in open ſenate offers to lay down his authority, and to retire to a private life; but they in return deſire him to take upon him the whole government, which with much ſeeming reluctance he does, and has the title of Auguſtus conferred on him. Thus ended the greateſt commonwealth, and began the greateſt monarchy ever known, infinitely excelling all others in power, riches, extent, and continuance, whoſe yearly revenue is ſaid, upon a moderate computation, to be 40,000,000 l. ſterl.	V	297
4280	2973	26	Salome, Herod's ſiſter, quarrelling with her huſband Ceſtobares, governor of Idumea, firſt ſends him a bill of divorce, and then accuſes him of treaſon to Herod, who puts him, Lyſimachus, Doſitheus and Antipater, to death. Being now delivered from all fear of the Aſmonean race, he aboliſhes ſeveral Jewiſh ceremonies and cuſtoms, and introduced foreign ones that were forbidden; builds a ſtately theatre in the city of Jeruſalem, and a ſpacious amphitheatre in the ſuburbs; and ordered publick games there every fifth year in honour of Auguſtus, and by large rewards to the conquerors drew vaſt numbers of people of all nations thither: This ſo diſpleaſed the zealous Jews, that they no longer looked upon him as their king, but as a heatheniſh tyrant: Ten Jews go into the theatre to kill Herod; but being diſcovered, were put to death with the moſt exquiſite torments; but the people tore the informer to pieces, and gave his flesh to the dogs; which so exasperated Herod, that he put whole families to death, tormenting the women to make them discover the men, &c.

Y. of world.	Y. of flood	Before Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4280	2973	26	Augustus takes a census of Gaul, now divided into three districts, being the first ever made out of Italy; then he goes into Spain, and defeats the revolted Cantabri, and soon after his general C. Antistius defeated again the united strength of the Cantabri and Asturians, and then besieges them upon the hill of their retreat, where they were so much straitened for provisions, that the women eat their children, and the young men the old ones; the Asturians are for surrendering, the Cantabri will not; they fight with one another, and kill many on both sides, and 10,000 Asturians are drove to the Roman intrenchments; Tiberius (the emperor's son-in-law) will not admit them; many kill themselves with their swords, others light fires and jump into the flames, and the rest poison themselves	IV	141
4281	2974	25	This year Spain, after a struggle for its liberty of 200 years, is entirely subjected to Rome. The Cantabrians to the number of 23,000 surrendering at discretion, 10,000 are incorporated among the auxiliaries, and the rest sold for slaves, most of whom destroyed themselves, preferring death to slavery: Most of the Asturians are cut to pieces, and all their towns and strong places taken: Augustus built several cities to keep the natives in awe, as Cæsar Augusta, (now Saragossa) and Augusta Emerita, (now Merida:) He likewise built a stone bridge over the Iberus, for his troops to march out of one province into another	V	299
4281	2974	25	Crassus overcomes the Mæsians, a fierce and savage people beyond the Danube. Terentius Varro reduced the Salassi, obliging them to submit to his terms, who after they had delivered up their arms, sent 40,000 of their youth to Emporedia, (now Ivrea) to be slaves for 20 years	V	299
4281	2974	25	Cornelius Gallus having tyrannized over the people of Egypt, where Augustus had sent him governor, and stripped all the cities, particularly Thebes, of all valuable in it, was recalled and deposed; for which he inveighing against Augustus, the senate condemned him to banishment; upon which he killed himself	V	299
4281	2974	25	Amytas king of Pisidia dies; he had been secretary to old king Dejotarus, and raised by Marc Anthony to the throne: Upon his death Pisidia, Galatia, and Lycaonia were reduced to a Roman province, and first governed by M. Lollius, in quality of proprætor	V	230
4281	2974	25	Marcellus (the adopted son of Augustus) son to Octavia, sister of Augustus, by her first husband, marries Julia the daughter of Augustus by Scribonia; and Juba king of Getulia marries Cleopatra Celene, daughter of Cleopatra queen of Egypt by Marc Anthony	V	300
4282	2975	24	The senate free Augustus from the restraint of all law, and allow him to govern absolutely by his will, and that Marcellus (the adopted son of Augustus) might, though but sixteen years old, have a place among the senators of the pretorian rank, and might stand for the consulate 10 years sooner than the law allowed; and that Tiberius his son-in-law might stand for the curule offices five years sooner than usual, upon which Marcellus was immediately made ædile, and Tiberius quæstor	V	301
4282	2975	24	The Asturians and Cantabrians revolt, surprize a considerable body of Romans, and cut them all off; but Ælius Lama, governor of that part of Spain, lays their whole country waste with fire and sword, and kills most of their young men, and so, absolutely reduced them again in about a month's time	V	302
4282	2975	24	Ælius Gallus makes an expedition against Arabia-Felix, with 10,000 men given him by Augustus, 500 out of Herod king of Judea's guards, and 1000 given him by Obodes king of the Nabathean Arabs, under the command of Sylleus, Obodes's chief favourite, who pretended to be Gallus's guide, but led him out of the way on purpose; at last he got thither, and took the metropolis of the country by assault; then falling in with a large number of the natives, he kills 10,000 of them, with the loss of only two men; and so went on, taking all the cities he came at; but his men being sick, he returned back to Egypt, having lost but seven men in all his assaults and battles, but almost all his army by fatigue and sickness; so that at the end of two years arriving in Egypt, this expedition was never after attempted any more by the Romans	V	303
4282	2975	24	Candace, queen of Ethiopia, invades the province of Thebais in Upper Egypt, surprizes several cities, carries the Roman garisons away prisoners, throws down Augustus's statues, and laid the whole country waste. C. Petronius assembles 10,000 foot and 800 horse, attacks Candace at Pselcha in Ethiopia, upon the banks of the Nile, defeats her army of 30,000 men, takes Pselcha, the key of Ethiopia on the side of Egypt, and then went 800 miles up into the country; then went to Napata, the metropolis, and took and destroyed it; then put a garison of 400 men into Premnis, with provisions for two years; and then returned with many 1000 captives, which he sold for slaves. Candace attacked Premnis, Petronius goes to its relief, defeats Candace, and forces her to a very disadvantagious peace; but some time after Augustus remitted the tribute, and gave her the cities, &c. again.	V	303
4283	2976	23	Augustus being very ill, sends for the curule magistrates, and senators of equestrian order, and in their presence delivers to Calpurnius Piso his colleague his will, and a book of his own writing, containing a distinct account of the towns, provinces, allies, forces, riches and taxes, of the whole Roman empire: But Antonius Musa, a famous Greek physician, restored him unexpectedly to his health, for which he and all his profession were allowed to wear a gold ring, and to live tax-free	V	304
4283	2976	23	Augustus resigns the fasces to P. Sestius, a man of unblameable character, upon which the senate confer the title of continual proconsul of the Roman empire upon him, with power to assemble the senate when he pleased, and to exercise the authority of tribune in Rome, and in all its distant provinces. His successors

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
			ſucceſſors would never part with this power, that rendered them uncontroulable by, and unaccountable to any power whatever	V	334
4283	2976	23	Marcellus (the adopted ſon of Auguſtus) dies, highly lamented of all, and is honoured with the utmoſt funeral magnificence in the Campus Martius, Auguſtus himſelf pronouncing his funeral oration	V	305
4283	2976	22	Herod king of Judea growing cruel and exceſſively ſevere to the people, they ſhew a general diſlike to him; wherefore, to prevent a revolt, he fortifies Jeruſalem, rebuilds Samaria, and garriſons the ſtrong fortreſſes of Judea. This year there happened a great drought, which brought on a famine, and ended in a raging peſtilence, of which multitudes die for want of help and ſuſtenance. Herod is forced to melt down his plate to buy corn in Egypt, &c.	IV	142
4283	2976	22	Herod depoſes Jeſus, the ſon of Phabæus, from the high-prieſthood, and advanced Simon, the ſon of Boethus, a Jewiſh prieſt of Alexandria, to that dignity, for the ſake of his beautiful daughter Mariamne, whom he married	IV	142
4284	2977	22	A dreadful plague rages in Rome and all over Italy, which occaſioned the lands to be untilled, ſo that a general famine attended it: The Tiber overflowed, and laid a great part of the city under water: Lightening daſhed ſeveral ſtatues in the Pantheon to pieces. The populace imagining theſe puniſhments happened becauſe Auguſtus laid down the conſulſhip, oblige the ſenate to name him dictator; but he refuſed it, but accepted the office of general purveyor, but would in no wiſe accept of being perpetual cenſor	V	305
4284	2977	22	A conſpiracy is formed againſt Auguſtus by Murena, a man of unblemiſhed character, and Fannius Cæpio, the greateſt debauchee in Rome: 'Tis diſcovered, and they are put to death; after which Auguſtus delivered to the ſenate Cyprus and Narbonne Gaul, which were turned into proconſular provinces	V	306
4284	2977	22	The Cantabrians and Aſturians revolt again, but were ſoon reduced by C. Furius: The people finding they could not ſhake off their ſlavery, many of them deſtroy themſelves	V	306
4284	4977	22	Gallia is divided into 16 provinces	VII	401
4284	2977	22	Herod ſends his two ſons to Rome, to be educated under the care and directions of Auguſtus, who gives Herod ſeveral additional provinces, and leave to name either of his ſons to be his ſucceſſor	IV	143
4285	2978	21	Great uproars and much miſchiefs are committed by the partizans of L. Silanus and Q. Æmilius Lepidus, candidates for the conſulſhip for this year; to prevent which for the future, Auguſtus creates a new magiſtrate, whoſe province was to maintain peace and tranquility in the city; for this purpoſe he marries his daughter Julia to Agrippa, with the utmoſt ſplendor, and gave him that office, which he diſcharged to the entire ſatisfaction of the ſenate and the people	V	306
4285	2278	21	Zenodorus, from whom Auguſtus had taken ſeveral provinces, accuſes Herod of male adminiſtration: Auguſtus appoints a day to hear the cauſe, but ſhews ſo much partiality in favour of Herod, that he poiſons himſelf, and his adherents deſtroy themſelves various ways, for fear of falling into Herod's hands, and then Auguſtus makes Herod procurator of Syria	IV	143
4285	2978	21	Herod to ingratiate himſelf with the Jews, in a ſet ſpeech propoſes to pull down the temple at Jeruſalem, and to rebuild it equal or ſuperior to Solomon's; and to convince them of it, propoſes to have all the materials for the new one ready upon the ſpot, before he pulls down the old one: They conſent; he immediately ſets 10,000 men to work under the direction of 1000 prieſts, and 1000 carts are imployed in fetching materials: So much expedition was uſed, that in two years time they begin to pull the old one down; and in a year and half's time more the carcaſs of the new one was erected in a moſt ſumptuous manner, and in eight years the whole finiſhed for uſe	IV	147
4285	2978	21	Auguſtus goes into Sicily, and ſettles matters there; then goes into Greece, and beſtows the iſland of Cithera and five other cities on the Lacedæmonians, and puniſhes the Athenians for erecting ſtatues to Brutus and Caſſius, and took from them the iſland of Ægina and the city of Eretria, and then went to Samos, and wintered there	V	307
4286	2979	20	Auguſtus goes into Aſia, deprives the Cyzicans of their liberty, for having whipt and put to death ſome Roman citizens: The ſame he did by Tyre and Sidon, and ſo frighted Phrahates king of Parthia, that he ſent all the enſigns and captives to him taken in the war with Craſſus and Anthony, and ſubmits to all the conditions Auguſtus required of him	V	307
4286	2979	20	Julia, the daughter of Auguſtus and wife of Agrippa, brings forth a ſon, who was named Caius, on whoſe birth-day a perpetual ſacrifice, &c. was decreed by way of thankſgiving to the gods	V	308
4287	2980	20	Auguſtus is named conſul, but he refuſes: The diſputes between the candidates riſe ſo high, that abundance on both ſides are killed: To quiet all diſturbances Auguſtus names Q. Lucretius Veſpillo to be the colleague of C. Sentius Saturnius. The conſuls and Agrippa, puniſh the rioters with great ſeverity	V	308
4287	2980	20	Porus king of India ſends to Auguſtus to deſire an alliance and an interview, offering all his ſtrength and the ſtrength of his 600 kings, over whom he reigned, to aſſiſt him: Zarmar, one of the ambaſſadors, follows Auguſtus to Athens, and there burnt himſelf before him	V	309
4287	2980	20	Upon Auguſtus's return to Rome, the ſenate decree him three triumphal arches, erected an altar to Fortune, and ordered that this day ſhould be annually ſolemnized with ſacrifices, ſhews, ſports, &c.	V	309
4287	2980	20	Virgil, the prince of Latin poets, dies, in the 51ſt year of his age: By his will he ordered his Æneid to be burnt, not having put the finiſhing ſtroke to it; but Auguſtus preſerved it	V	309
4287	2980	20	The ſenate prevail upon Auguſtus to be cenſor for five years, and confer the conſular power on him for life: He ſends Agrippa againſt the revolted Cantabrians

in

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			in Spain, and the Germans, who had croſſed the Rhine and committed horrid diſorders; but upon his approach they retire, and he goes into Spain, where after a very obſtinate fight, all the Cantabrians fit to bear arms were cut off, their caſtles and ſtrong holds razed, and the women, children, and old men brought out of the mountains and forced to live in the plains
4287	2980	19	Agrippa returns to Rome, refuſes a triumph, and lays out vaſt ſums of money to embelliſh the city, and build and repair aqueducts, of vaſt beauty, expence, and ſerviceableneſs	V	310
4287	2980	19	Auguſtus grants a triumph to Lucius Cornelius Balbus, for having ſubdued the Garamantes, a people of Africa before unknown: Balbus was the firſt foreigner that ever had a triumph, he being a Spaniard by birth	V	310
4288	2981	18	Auguſtus prorogued his abſolute authority for five years more, his firſt ten being near expired, and takes Agrippa to be a partner with him in his power, and made him tribune for five years; then ſets about reforming the ſenate, by reducing them from 1000 to 500 members; he names thirty, and impowers each to name five, out of which one was choſen by lot, &c. then proceeds to reform many abuſes, &c. Julia brings forth a ſecond ſon, named Lucius, and Auguſtus adopts both of them	V	311
4289	2982	17	The ſecular games, which had been diſcontinued for 100 years, were exhibited by Auguſtus and Agrippa with great pomp and magnificence: They encourage a great number of ſtage-players, but ſeverely correct their immorality	V	312
4290	2983	16	Auguſtus pretends to go into Gaul to quel diſturbances, but it was really to have an opportunity of enjoying Terentia, the wife of Mecænas, whom he took with him, where he ſtaid this and the following year, though all was quiet	V	312
4290	2983	16	Herod goes to Rome, where Auguſtus receives him with all poſſible marks of friendſhip, and returning ſuitable preſents and thanks, receives his two ſons, now grown up, and vaſtly poliſhed and improved: At his return he married Alexander to Glaphyra, daughter of Archelaus king of Cappadocia; and Ariſtobulus to Berenice, daughter of his ſiſter Salome	V	313
4291	2984	15	The Rhæti invade Italy, and make a dreadful havock, putting all the males they meet with to the ſword: Againſt theſe went Druſus, 2d ſon of Livia, who, though but a youth, gained a great victory over them, and cut great numbers of them to pieces: The remainder of them join the Vindelici, and go to invade Gaul; Tiberius, brother of Druſus, meets them at the lake Brigantium (now Conſtance) gave them a total overthrow, and forced the whole nation to accept of his conditions, and planted two colonies in two cities to keep them in awe	IV	147
4291	2984	15	Agrippa goes into Syria to quel diſturbances that were riſen there; Herod invites him into Judea, and entertains him with vaſt ſplendor and honour; which ſo pleaſed Agrippa, that he beſtowed many gifts and favours on the Jews; and while he was at Jeruſalem he offered up a whole hecatomb at the temple. When he went againſt the Boſphorean rebels, Herod met and joined his fleet at Leſbos, with another of his own, repleniſhed them with men, arms, proviſions, money, &c.	V	314
4291	2984	15	Auguſtus orders Agrippa a triumph for his ſucceſſes in the eaſt. Auguſtus takes upon him the office of Pontifex Maximus, which he held to his death, as did all of his ſucceſſors, both Chriſtian and heathen, till the year 375 of the Chriſtian æra	IV	147
4292	2985	14	The Ligures Comati, who inhabited the maritime Alps, are ſubdued, their country made a Roman province, and Auguſtus returns to Rome, and then he made a law, that the veterans ſhould not be rewarded with lands, as had formerly been done, (to the great oppreſſion and diſturbance of the publick) but with money	V	316
4292	2985	14	Herod returning from the Boſphorus, remits the people of Judea a fourth part of the tribute. Salome his ſiſter ſtrives by wicked ways to accuſe his two ſons of treaſon againſt him: Herod at laſt carries them to Aquileia to Cæſar, and there accuſes them: Alexander pleads his own and his brother's cauſe ſo effectually, that they are honourably acquitted, and Herod blamed for his raſh belief and ill will againſt his own children	V	316
4293	2986	13	Auguſtus as Pontifex Maximus corrected a great error that had crept into the kalendar, it being uſual to reckon the leap year every third year, which he ſet to rights, and ordered it, as it now is, every fourth year. Agrippa returns, and brings Herod's ſon Antipater with him to Rome, is graciouſly received, but refuſes the honour of a triumph	IV	148
4294	2987	12	Agrippa goes againſt the revolted Pannonians; they ſubmit upon his terms; he takes away their arms, and has hoſtages for their peaceable behaviour, but dies in Campania as he was returning to Rome	V	317
4295	2988	11	Auguſtus takes Tiberius partner with him in the empire, and ſends him againſt the Pannonians, who upon the death of Agrippa revolted: He overcomes them, diſarms them, takes hoſtages, and all their towns and ſtrong holds, laid waſte the fields, plundered the cities, and ſent their young men into other countries, and then returned to Rome	V	318
4295	2988	11	Druſus ſo ingratiates himſelf with the Gauls, that they lay aſide their intention of revolting, and erect a temple to Auguſtus at Lions, and pay him divine honours, while living, and games like the Nemean games inſtituted in honour of him. Druſus then gains great advantages againſt the Germans, who were croſſing the Rhine to come into Gaul, whom he drove back, and followed them into Germany, and then returned to Rome, and was made prætor	V	319
4296	2989	10	The city of Cæſarea having been 12 years in building, is now finiſhed, and Herod dedicates it with the utmoſt pomp, and appointed games to be performed every fifth year: He alſo built Antipatris, Cypros, and many others	IV	148

Yr of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Pag.
4296	2989	10	Druſus conquers many German nations, who joining together, ſurrounded him, but at laſt he overthrew them, and found in their camp abundance of chains, with which they intended to load the Romans, &c.	V	319
4296	2989	10	Octavia, ſiſter of Auguſtus, dies, a lady of the moſt conſummate wiſdom, and greateſt pattern of virtue in her time: Auguſtus honoured her ſo far as to pronounce her funeral oration himſelf	V	320
4297	2990	9	The Jews of Aſia and Cyrene ſend a deputation to Auguſtus, who obtains a redreſs of their grievances, and a decree very favourable to them	IV	148
4297	2990	9	Tiberius ſubdues the Daci, a German nation, and tranſplants 40,000 into Gaul. Druſus ſubdued all from the Rhine to the Elbe, and died	V	321
4298	2991	8	Herod's jealouſy having carried his warm temper to a great pitch of rage againſt his two ſons, he puts to death, rack, and torment, all that he ſuſpects; but Archelaus king of Cappadocia (whoſe daughter Herod's ſon Alexander had married) interpoſes, and makes peace, ſo that he is forced to go to Rome to clear his ſons from the accuſations he had laid againſt them there	IV	150
4298	2991	8	The Sicambrians and Sueves ſubmit to Auguſtus, who orders 40,000 of them to be tranſported into Gaul, to repeople ſeveral places depopulated by the wars	VII	541
4298	2991	8	Auguſtus pretends to lay down his power, but the ſenate renews it for ten years more: He makes a cenſus, and finds 4,233,000 Roman citizens in Rome. This year the famous Mecænas dies, Horace the noted poet, and one Caius Cæcilius Iſidorus, remarkable for his extraordinary wealth, leaving behind him 4116 ſlaves, 3600 yoke of oxen, 200,057 head of other cattle, and 300,000 l. ſterling in money	V	324
4299	2992	7	Herod's new temple at Jeruſalem being completely finiſhed, he cauſed it to be dedicated with great ſolemnity	IV	150
4299	2992	7	A dreadful fire happens at Rome, occaſioned by the debtors ſetting fire to their creditors houſes, to eſcape from their cruelty. To prevent the like for the future, Auguſtus divides the city into fourteen wards, under proper governors	V	324
4300	2993	6	Auguſtus confers the honour of tribune for five years on Tiberius, but he begs to lay down all his dignities, and to retire to Rhodes, to live there privately, which with great difficulty Auguſtus yields to: He ſpends his time in ſtudy, and converſes only with philoſophers, &c. but after living ſo upwards of a year, he grows weary of his retirement, and petitions Auguſtus for leave to return to Rome; but is abſolutely refuſed it till 17 years after	V	327
4300	2993	6	Herod, through the inſtigation of his ſiſter Salome, again complains to Auguſtus againſt his ſons; Auguſtus orders them to be tried at Berytus before the governors of Syria; he gets them condemned, and executes them himſelf	IV	151
4301	2994	5	Antipater, Herod's ſon is diſcovered plotting againſt his father; many perſons are put to death and baniſhed, and Mariamne (Herod's preſent wife) baniſhed, and her father depoſed from the high-prieſthood	IV	153
4304	2997	2	Auguſtus is a thirteenth time conſul: Having conferred the higheſt honours upon his two grandſons, Lucius and Caius, (ſons of his daughter Julia) is ſo mortified by account of her wicked behaviour, that he ſhut himſelf up ſeveral days, refuſing to be ſeen or to ſpeak to any body; then he baniſhed Julia to Pandataria, a deſart iſland on the coaſt of Campania (now called Santa Maria) and puniſhed by baniſhment and death many of thoſe who had been her partners in lewdneſs, debauchery, &c.	V	326
4304	2997	2	Auguſtus, to divert his melancholy upon account of his family diſgrace, exhibits all manner of expenſive and magnificent ſhews, ſuch as chariot-races, gladiators, &c. and cauſed a canal, 1800 paces long, and 200 broad, to be dug, and let in the Flaminian water, which was covered with crocodiles, 36 of which were killed by Egyptians, brought there on purpoſe, and then two fleet of ſhips repreſenting a ſea-fight ſucceeded, &c.	V	327
4305	2998	1	John the baptiſt (the ſon of Zachary, a prieſt of the courſe of Abiah, and Elizabeth his wife) born	IV	154
4306	2999	0	Peace being ſettled in all the world, and the temple of Janus ſhut at Rome, Auguſtus orders a freſh ſurvey of the Roman empire to be taken, and as it was executing Chriſt is born at Bethlehem in Judea. Soon after Herod ordered all the male-children from two years old to a day old to be murdered, in order to kill Jeſus Chriſt, who was miraculouſly ſent into Egypt before this cruel maſſacre was put in execution	IV	159
		Y. of Chriſt
4307	3000	1	Antipater, Herod's ſon, ſends Batillus (one of his ſervants (from Rome into Judea with poiſon for Herod his father; 'tis diſcovered, and Antipater, now arrived at Rome, is arreſted, and tried before Quintilius Varus, and caſt and impriſoned	IV	182
4307	3000	1	Herod being very ill, 'tis reported he was dead: Judas the ſon of Sariphæus, and Matthias the ſon of Margalothus, (two learned Jewiſh doctors) raiſe the youth in Jeruſalem, and throw down the ſtatues that Herod had ſet up, particularly a golden eagle of an extraordinary ſize and workmanſhip over the temple gate: The two chiefs and 40 others are taken, and carried before the dying king, where they juſtify their proceedings, and are burnt for their pains. Herod's diſeaſe made him loathſome to himſelf, as well as to his attendants; and ſo croſs and cruel, that he iſſued his ſummons for all the heads of the people to meet in the circus at Jericho at a ſet day, and gave his ſiſter Salome and her huſband Alexas ſtrict charge to butcher them all as ſoon as the breath was out of his body: The meſſengers return from Rome with Auguſtus's confirmation of Antipater's ſentence of death, which was immediately executed	IV	184
4307	3000	1	Five days after the death of his ſon Antipater, Herod dies himſelf, but in the mean time alters his will, and left his kingdom to his ſon Archelaus, &c. Salome and her huſband Alexas, inſtead of executing his cruel orders, ſets the priſon-door open. Archelaus is proclaimed king, and he indulges the people

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Var.	Pa.
			with granting all their requeſts: But a mutinous mob did much miſchief, and made great demands; and killed the ſoldiers ſent againſt them; but Archelaus ſends the whole army, kills 3000, and diſperſes the reſt; then goes to Rome, where being oppoſed by Herod's other children, Auguſtus gives him half the kingdom, viz. Judea Propria, Idumea, and Samaria, with the title of Ethnarch, and divides the reſt between his two ſons, Philip and Antipas, and his ſiſter Salome
4307	3000	1	Many of the Jews ſide with one Alexander, who pretended to be the ſon of Herod, but being detected he is ſent to the gallies	IV	191
4308	3001	2	Tiberius is allowed to return to Rome, and Lucius Cæſar dies, which brings Tiberius again into Auguſtus's favour	IV	191
4308	3001	2	Archelaus upon his return to Jeruſalem depoſes Joazar from the high-prieſthood, and puts Eleazar in his ſtead; then divorces his wife Mariamne, and marries his brother Alexander's wife Glaphyra, contrary to the Jewiſh law; then he depoſes Eleazar, and advances Jeſus the ſon of Sias to the high prieſthood; he beſtows immenſe ſums upon beautifying his palace at Jericho	V	330
4309	3002	3	The famous temple of the mother of the gods at Rome is reduced to aſhes	IV	192
4310	3003	4	Numidia revolts from Rome, but is again reduced by Piſo and Caſſus. The Parthians invade Armenia: Caius goes againſt them, and is treacherouſly wounded at Artagera by Addo the governor, as they were in conference; for which the Romans aſſault the city, take it by ſtorm, and diſmantle it, putting the governor and the whole gariſon to the ſword, and died ſoon after of the wound he had received from Addo, at Limgra, in the 24th year of his age, as he was returning to Rome; and Auguſtus adopts Tiberius, and beſtows the tribunitial power on him for five years	V	331
4310	3003	4	Cinna (grandſon to Pompey) with many other great men, conſpire againſt Auguſtus; it is diſcovered; Auguſtus pardons Cinna and his colleagues, and nominated Cinna to the next year's conſulate	V	332
4311	3004	5	Tiberius goes into Germany, and conquers abundance of the revolted nations, and returning to Rome is highly honoured and careſſed	V	333
4311	3004	5	This and the following year the famine is ſo extravagant at Rome, that all foreigners, gladiators, wreſtlers and ſlaves, (except phyſicians and ſchool-maſters) are driven out of the city to 80 miles diſtance. Auguſtus procured proviſions from Sicily, Sardinia, &c. at the publick expence, and ſold them at a low rate. The Parthians deſire Auguſtus to give them a king; he names Vonones, ſon of Phrahates, who is gladly received by the Parthians	V	333
4312	3005	6	Tiberius returns into Germany, and ſubdues the revolted Germans wherever he comes. Cornelius Coſſus goes againſt the Getuli, who revolting from king Juba, maſſacred all the Romans they found in his country, and committed dreadful ravages; he defeated them with vaſt ſlaughter, and obliged them to accept of what conditions he thought fit to grant them. Auguſtus baniſhes his grandſon Poſthumius, for his ſcandalous and wicked behaviour	V	334
4312	3005	6	The Jews and Samaritans complain to Auguſtus againſt Archelaus for his wicked and tyrannical reign; Auguſtus ſends for him to Rome, and hears both his accuſers and him, condemns him to baniſhment, and confiſcates all his goods, and makes Judea a Roman province, and Cyrenius the governor of Syria is ſent to tax it, and then ſells Archelaus's palaces, ſeizes upon all his treaſure, and returns to Antioch	IV	192
4313	3006	7	One Judas and one Saducus ſpirit up ſome of the Jews to commit the moſt horrid butcheries and devaſtations upon the Gentiles, and the other Jews that did not join them; this brought on a grievous famine, and that a peſtilence	IV	193
4313	3006	7	The Samaritans, out of ſpite to the Jews, privately ſtrew dead men's bodies up and down the temple at the time of the paſſover: So that the prieſts are forced to leave off their ſolemnity till it was repurified	IV	194
4313	3006	7	Tiberius goes again Marcoboduus king of the Marcomanni, a prince of vaſt perſonal ſtrength, who with an army of 70,000 foot and 4000 horſe, threatened Italy with an invaſion. Meſſalinus going out of Pannonia and Dalmatia to reinforce Tiberius, the Pannonians and Dalmatians under the two Bottas, with each 100,000 men, revolt, and penetrate into Macedon, and kill all the Romans they meet with. Auguſtus raiſes a very large army, and puts Germanicus the ſon of Druſus at the head of it	V	335
4314	3007	8	A famine rages to ſuch a degree in one of the Bottas camp, that he offers Tiberius to treat of peace; which being granted, this Botta engages and kills the other Botta, which ſubdued moſt of the revolters	V	337
4314	3007	8	Auguſtus, upon hearing the petitions of the Roman knights about the Papian Popæan law, he doubly rewarded thoſe who were married and had children, and heavily fined the unmarried debauchees	V	338
4315	3008	9	After various battles and different ſucceſſes, Tiberius and Germanicus proved too hard for the Pannonians and Dalmatians, diſarmed them, and reſtored peace; and returning to Rome, are received with great honour	V	340
4315	3008	9	Quintilius Varus being now appointed governor in Germany, by his cruelty and covetouſneſs ſtirred up the people to revolt; Arminius deceives Varus, perſuades him to remove to the diſtant provinces, then pretends to be his guide againſt the revolters, conducts him into a large foreſt, ſurrounded on all ſides with ſteep hills, where he is attacked, and not finding it poſſible to get away, he and moſt of his officers kill themſelves; the enemy cut off almoſt three complete legions, and ſix cohorts, a few eſcaping by favour of the night: Auguſtus was ſo extremely concerned at this loſs, that in fits of frenzy he would tear his hair, and knock his head againſt the wall, crying out, Reſtore the Legions Varus; which he continued ſeveral months, letting his hair and beard grow, and kept this as a day of mourning annually during his life	V	342

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
4316	3009	10	Tiberius passes the Alps, enters Germany, forces the Germans from the neighbourhood of the Rhine, and so secures Gaul from their inroads, and having celebrated Augustus's birth-day in his camp, &c. returns to Rome	V	342
4317	3010	11	The poet Ovid is banished to Tomos, a cold barren country, by Augustus, where he continued to his death, though he often petitioned Cæsar for relief	V	343
4317	3010	11	Augustus publishes a law, forbidding all augurs, astrologers, and fortune-tellers to utter publickly or privately predictions concerning the death of any person whatever, upon account of the disturbance among the nobility those practices had already bred	V	344
4317	3010	11	Augustus growing old and declining, causes the senate to declare Tiberius his colleague in the government, with power equal to himself	V	344
4318	3011	12	Augustus publishes a law against the authors of all lampoons and satirical writings, declaring it high-treason, and punishable with death; and causes the ædiles in the city, and the governors in colonies, to make strict search after such books and writings, and to commit them to the flames, and to punish the authors with great severity	V	345
4318	3011	12	Augustus writes two letters, one to Tiberius in favour of the senate, the other to the senate in favour of Germanicus, desires them to choose 24 of their members with whom he may advise, and begs to be excused coming to the senate-house upon account of his age; they agree, that what the twenty senators, the consuls for the year, the consuls elect, Augustus, and his adopted son and nephew should enact, should be accounted the edict of the senate	V	345
4319	3012	13	The senate desires Augustus to accept of another ten years absolute government, his former being near expired, which doing, he confers the tribunitial power on Tiberius for the same term	V	345
4320	3013	14	Augustus takes Tiberius into the censorship with himself, and makes a census, by which the people in Rome appeared to be 4,137,000	V	345
4320	3013	14	Augustus leaves Rome, and goes to Naples to assist at the solemn sports that were to be exhibited on his birth-day: Soon after they were over he was seized with a Diarrhœa (or flux) leaves Naples and returns towards Rome; but growing too weak to travel, stops at Nola in Campania, and is confined to his bed: Livia attending him, sends for Tiberius, who comes; Augustus declares him his successor, and desires him to pursue his steps in the government: He died 19th of August, aged 75 years, 10 months, and 26 days, and reigned from his first consulship 56 years, but from the battle of Actium only 43: He was carried to Rome with great honour and solemnity, where Tiberius ordered the senate to meet, and the vestal-virgins to bring out his will, which began thus; Since the Gods have been pleased to deprive me of my grand children, Caius and Lucius, I declare Tiberius my Heir, &c. His body was carried with the utmost pomp, and burnt in the Campus Martis, his wife Livia and some of the chiefs of the Roman knights watching the pile and gathering up the bones and ashes, which they put into a golden urn, for five days together, and then buried it in the pompous mausoleum he had prepared for that purpose in his life-time	V	349
4320	3013	14	Tiberius orders the tribune who had young Agrippa in his custody to murder him, which he doing, Tiberius denies he gave any such orders, but it was afterwards smothered	V	354
4320	3013	14	The two consuls, Sextus Pompeius and Sextus Apuleius, first take the oath of fidelity to Tiberius, and then administer it to the senate, people, and soldiery: The senate offers Tiberius the government; he pretends inability; they humbly beg him to accept it; he complies, beginning his reign in the 56th year of his age, invested with the same unbounded power that Augustus died in possession of: He would not let his mother receive the honours voted her by the senate, and took away Julia's pension, so that she died miserably, in the 15th year of her banishment, and Sempronius Gracchus, one of her chief favourites, he put to death	V	358
4320	3013	14	Percennius raises a mutiny in the army in Pannonia, which plunder all the country round Blessus: Their general strives to reduce them, but is not able: Tiberius sends his son Drusus, with his governor Sejanus, against him, who strives to appease them, but is not able; but an eclipse of the moon happening the night of that day Drusus had harangued them, the mutineers (being ignorant of the cause) thought 'twas a signal of the god's displeasure, and so were easily prevailed upon to return to their duty, and the authors of the revolt were executed, and all things being settled amicably, Drusus returned to Rome	V	364
4320	3013	14	The legions in Germany revolt, kill some of the centurions and drive away the rest: Germanicus, the emperor's nephew, strives to appease them; they offer to make him emperor; he strives to get from them, is stopped and threatned to be murdered; but at length by stratagem quits them, and some are executed: Then he goes against the Germans, and comes upon the Marsi, and destroys all for 50 miles round, without the loss of one Roman; but as he returned several nations attacked him, but he defeats them all, and goes into winter quarters, loaded with booty. Tiberius, jealous of Germanicus, strives by all arts possible to make himself popular, refuses many of the honours offered him, forbids priests or temples to be decreed him, lessens the taxes, &c.	V	372
4321	3014	15	The Germans quarrelling among themselves, Germanicus enters the country of the Catti, puts vast numbers to the sword; some submit, and others fly into the woods, so that he laid waste all the open country, burnt their villages, and reduced Mattium their capital to ashes	V	373
4321	3014	15	Arminius the German quarrels with and besieges Segestes in his camp: Germanicus goes to the relief of Segestes, engages Arminius, and puts him to flight; and among the many prisoners that were taken was Thusneldis, the wife of

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			Arminius, great with child; but Arminius gets recruits, and ſkirmiſhes with Germanicus, and gets advantages over him and Cerſina, but at length is put to flight — — — —
4321	3014	15	Tiberius recals Rufus, and ſends Valerius Gratus governor of Judea, who continued in that poſt 11 years — — —	V	379
4322	3015	16	Germanicus again engages Arminius, aſſiſted by many German princes, and defeats him with great ſlaughter and ſpoil, aſcribes the whole glory to Tiberius, and cauſed him to be declared emperor in the field of battle; and raiſing a mount, put the arms of the enemy on it as trophies, with the names of the conquered nations under each: This ſo enraged the Germans that they come to a ſecond battle, wherein they are again defeated with prodigious ſlaughter; upon which the Angrivarii ſubmit, are pardoned, and ſuffered to live quietly under their own laws. The war being over, Germanicus imbarques himſelf and a good part of his army on board 100 tranſports: a ſtorm ariſing, the fleet is diſperſed; ſome ſwallowed up by the waves, ſome daſhed to pieces againſt the rocks, &c. ſo that abundance of damage was done, and very great loſs ſuſtained; but upon his landing he made good his loſſes, by defeating and plundering the Marſi — — —	IV	194
4322	3015	16	A ſlave of Poſthumius Agrippa gives out that he was the prince, and had eſcaped death; and as he was like him, cauſed great commotions in Italy; but being ſeized by ſtratagem, he was put privately to death, and ſo the affair dropt —	V	387
4323	3016	17	Tiberius ſoon after the return of Germanicus to Rome, orders him a moſt magnificent triumph, and ſhews him all poſſible outſide marks of favour and eſteem, but ſecretly ſtrove and reſolved to deſtroy him —	V	389
4323	3016	17	Archelaus, king of Cappadocia, coming to Rome to make his ſubmiſſions to Tiberius, is by him accuſed, but excuſed by the ſenate; but being ſlighted, is ſaid to die of grief, after having reigned 50 years, and his country reduced to a Roman province. At the ſame time dies Antiochus king of Comagene, and Philopator king of Cilicia. The provinces of Syria and Judea apply for a relief in their taxes; all which occaſions great diſturbances in the eaſt, whereupon Germanicus is ſent thither to regulate them — — —	V	390
4323	3016	17	The moſt dreadful earthquake ever known happens this year in Aſia, which overturned twelve very famous cities, moſt of whoſe inhabitants were buried in the ruins of their houſes, and thoſe that fled to the fields ſwallowed up by the opening of the earth: Tiberius remits the taxes of theſe cities for five years, to come, and gave large ſums to rebuild the cities —	V	391
4323	3016	17	Tacfarinas the Numidian having drawn his countrymen and ſeveral other African nations into a revolt, was overthrown by Furius Camillus, in a pitched battle, though Camillus had but one legion and a few auxiliaries, and the other a very numerous army — —	V	392
4323	3016	17	The poet Ovid dies at Tomos in Pontus, whither he was baniſhed by Auguſtus; and the hiſtorian Livy, at Padua in Italy, his native city —	V	393
4324	3017	18	Germanicus at his arrival in Armenia, with the conſent and approbation of the nobility and people, puts the diadem upon the head of Zeno, the ſon of Polemon king of Pontus, and then reduced Cappadocia and Comagene to two Roman provinces, their kings being dead. Piſo being the declared enemy of Germanicus the king of the Nabatheans at a grand entertainment preſenting Germanicus and Agrippina with large and heavy golden crowns, gives Piſo one much leſs, as his publick character was much lower; Piſo throws it away with much contempt and provoking behaviour —	V	394
4325	3018	19	Maroboduus king of the Suevians, whoſe power Rome dreaded, was this year drove out of his kingdom, and obliged to live the laſt 18 years of his life at Ravenna in Italy. Some of the Sueves are allowed to ſettle beyond the Danube, to whom Tiberius gives one Vannius to be their king —	V	395
4325	3018	19	Germanicus blaming Piſo for his ill conduct, Piſo poiſons him, of which he dies at Antioch in his return to Rome, in the 34th year of his age —	VII	541
4325	3018	19	Occia, the preſident of the veſtal virgins at Rome, after having governed that ſociety 57 years, dies, and Tiberius puts Aſinius, Pollio's daughter, in that office. Corn being very ſcarce and dear, he fixed the price; and that the ſeller ſhould not loſe the advantage of the advanced price, paid himſelf two Nummi, or 14 pence per buſhel, to make it good — — —	V	398
4326	3019	20	Piſo coming to Rome, is accuſed of Germanicus's death, debauching the army, &c. upon which great commotions are among the populace, and Piſo is ſaid to lay violent hands upon himſelf, though highly favoured by Tiberius —	V	402
4326	3019	20	Tacfarinas having again ſtirred up commotions in Africa, is put to flight by L. Apronius the preſent governor of that province, who decimated a Roman cohort for giving ground at the firſt onſet, and put them to death; this ſeverity ſo animated the Romans, that 500 of them put a large body of the enemy to flight, and their whole army was routed by Apronius Ceſianus, the proconſul's ſon —	V	405
4326	3019	20	Valerius Gratus governor of Judea depoſes Ananus (or Annas) the high-prieſt, in the 15th year of his pontificate, and raiſed Iſhmael the ſon of Fabas to that dignity — — —	V	407
4326	3019	20	Tiberius publiſhes a decree forbidding all Jews and Egyptians ſtaying any longer in Rome, upon account of the ſcandalous behaviour of many of the meaner ſort of the Jews and Egyptians — — —	IV	194
4327	3020	21	The Gauls, under Julius Florus, (a native of Treves) revolt, and are defeated by Acilius Aviola; they are again defeated by Julius Indus, after which Florus killed himſelf with his own ſword; this put an end to the inſurrection of Treves; but the Edui under Sacrovir appear 40,000 ſtrong, but are likewiſe overthrown by Silius, and then Sacrovir kills himſelf — —	IV	195
				V	414

Y. of Japh.	Y. of Rome.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4327	3020	21	Valerius Gratus depoſes Iſmael from the high-prieſthood at Jeruſalem, and gave it to Eleazar, the ſon of Ananus the late depoſed high-prieſt	IV	194
4328	3021	22	Valerius Gratus depoſes Eleazar the Jewiſh high-prieſt, and advances Simon the ſon of Camith to that dignity	IV	194
4328	3021	22	Blaſus the Roman general engages Tacfarinas the Numidian prince, defeats him, follows him into the mountains, kills many of his men, and took his brother priſoner, and then returned to Rome	V	414
4329	3022	23	Sejanus poiſons Druſus, and debauches his wife Livia, and ſets about the deſtruction of Agrippina and her two ſons	V	416
4329	3022	23	Tiberius moves the Roman ſenate in favour of the cities of Cytra in Aſia, and Ægyra in Achaia, both overthrown by an earthquake, and they decree an exemption from taxes for three years	V	419
4329	3022	23	Tiberius complains to the Roman ſenate againſt the ſtage-players ſo effectually, that they are prohibited acting in, and baniſhed from Rome and Italy	V	419
4329	3022	23	Simon the Jewiſh high-prieſt is depoſed, and Joſeph (ſirnamed Caiaphas, ſon-in-law to Annas) put in his ſtead	IV	194
4330	3023	24	Tacfarinas the Numidian king is utterly routed and killed, and his ſon and many of his nobles taken priſoners, by P. Dolabella, proconſul of Africa. One Curtiſius ſtrove to raiſe a ſervile war, but was happily prevented before much miſchief was done	V	421
4331	3024	25	Cremutius Cordus, a celebrated hiſtorian, is accuſed and tried for praiſing Brutus in his Annals, &c. apprehending the revenge of Tiberius would fall heavy upon him, ſtarved himſelf to death, and his books were publickly burnt at Rome, though privately read afterwards	V	423
4331	3024	25	The Cyzicans are accuſed of neglecting the worſhip of the deified Auguſtus, and of committing violence upon ſome Roman citizens, for which they are deprived of their liberty granted them for their aſſiſtance in the Mithridatic war	V	424
4331	3024	25	The Lacedæmonians and Meſſenians ſend ambaſſadors to the Roman ſenate to decide their pretenſions to the temple of Diana, which is done in favour of the latter	V	426
4332	3025	26	Poppæus Sabinus is honoured with the enſigns of a triumph, for entirely defeating the revolted Thracians	V	427
4332	3025	26	Ambaſſadors from Aſia come to Rome to have it there determined in which of the eleven contending cities the temple decreed to Tiberius ſhould be erected, which by the ſenate is given to Smyrna, and a legate extraordinary appointed to ſuperviſe the the building	V	428
4332	3025	26	Tiberius leaves Rome, under pretence of going to Capua to dedicate a temple to Jupiter, and one at Nala to Auguſtus, but really with an intention never to return to it again; attended by Sejanus, Cocceius Nerva, Curtius Atticus, and ſome learned Greeks, and lived retired eleven years. Sejanus maliciouſly accuſes young Nero and his brother Druſus of conſpiring againſt Tiberius	V	429
4332	3025	26	Pontius Pilate is made governor of Judea inſtead of Valerius Gratus, which office he held 10 years, and made it one continued ſcene of venal juſtice, rapine, tyranny, and every wicked action: At his firſt coming he ordered his ſtandards to be carried into Jeruſalem, and his army quartered there in the night-time, but next morning ſets them up publickly, which occaſioned great diſturbance and conſternation among the Jews, who eſteem them idolatrous; they go in a body to him at Cæſarea, and continue proſtrate before his houſe five whole days and nights, beſeeching him to remove them; the fifth day he comes out, mounts on his tribunal, as if come to hear and redreſs them, but orders his troops to murder all that did not depart immediately; but at laſt on their offering to ſuffer, without making any reſiſtance, he promiſes to remove the ſtandard from their metropolis	IV	194
4333	3026	27	Atilius having built an amphitheatre at Fidenæ, to exhibit ſhews of gladiators, vaſt numbers of people from Rome, &c. coming thither, by their weight pull down the building about their ears, ſo that 50,000 perſons were killed and maimed; this occaſioned a law, that no perſon worth leſs than 400,000 ſeſterces ſhould exhibit the ſhew of gladiators. At the ſame time a fire breaks out on Mount Cælius, which burnt with ſo much rage and fury, that it utterly conſumed all the houſes in that part of the city of Rome; and Tiberius makes good the loſs out of his own treaſury, for which the ſenate ordered the name to be changed from Cælius to Mount Auguſtus. After this Tiberius retires to Capreæ, an iſland of very difficult acceſs, and lived there 10 years, and then died, during which time he gave himſelf up to all manner of lewdneſs and debauchery	IV	195
4334	3027	28	The Friſians ſhake off the Roman yoke, and defeat L. Apronius, who was ſent againſt them. This year dies Julia, the grand-daughter of Auguſtus, in the iſland of Trimætus, 20 years after her baniſhment	V	434
4335	3028	29	Livia, the mother of Tiberius, dies, in the 86th year of her age, commonly ſtiled Julia Auguſta, becauſe adopted by Auguſtus in his laſt will into the Julian family; a woman of very extraordinary parts, wiſdom and ambition	V	435
4336	3029	30	Sejanus, Tiberius's chief miniſter and favourite, had now ſo fixed himſelf in power, that the ſenate enacts that his birth-day ſhould be annually celebrated, that his ſtatues that were ſet up in every quarter of the city ſhould be adored, that vows and ſacrifices ſhould be offered for his ſafety, &c.	V	438
4336	3029	30	This being the 30th and laſt Jewiſh Jubilee ſince its firſt celebration in the land of Canaan, Chriſt enters upon his miſſion of preaching the goſpel of peace and ſalvation, is baptized by John, turns water into wine at a marriage in Cana, drives the traders out of the temple, confers privately with Nicodemus, &c.	IV	202
4337	3030	31	The diſciples of Chriſt baptize their proſelytes by the command of Chriſt, and have a diſpute about it with the diſciples of John, while Chriſt goes into other parts of Judea, preaching the goſpel and working miracles, &c.	IV	203

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ.		Vol.	Pag.
4337	3030	31	John the Baptist beheaded, by order of Herod Antipas tetrarch of Galilee, to gratify the revenge of Herodias his wife, who had been the wife of his brother Philip, and was grand-daughter to Herod the Great	IV	203
4337	3030	31	Tiberius makes himself and his favourite Sejanus conſuls this year; this occaſions the ſenate to heap new honours upon Sejanus; they join his name with Tiberius's in all inſcriptions, erect new ſtatues to him, and ſlay victims before them, and paſs a decree to confirm to him and Tiberius the conſulate for five years. Tiberius forbids Sejanus to come to him, though he had reſigned the conſulate, and began to take publick notice of Caius (ſirnamed Caligula) the only ſurviving ſon of Germanicus and Agrippina; which ſtung Sejanus, who found his power much decreaſed and his honours leſſened. Tiberius takes the command of the prætorian guard from him, and in a letter to the ſenate deſires them to impriſon him, which is done, and he is condemned and executed in the ſame day, which was followed by a general ſlaughter of his children, relations, friends and adherents
4338	3031	32	Tiberius grows inſatiable for blood, ſuſpicious of every body, and puts vaſt numbers to the moſt exquiſite torments and cruel deaths	V	441
4339	3032	33	Tiberius cauſes his grandſon Druſus to be ſentenced to be ſtarved to death, which was executed, and many others diſpatched themſelves the ſame way	V	445
4339	3032	33	This being the fourth year of Chriſt's miſſion, the Jews crucify him	V	448
4340	3033	34	Several of the great men and ladies at Rome deſtroy themſelves to avoid the cruelty of Tiberius and his favourite Macro, who make dreadful havock upon every ſlight pretence. The two conſuls having ſolemnized the 19th of Auguſt, on which the 20th year of Tiberius reign ended, with publick vows and ſacrifices, he ordered them to be tried for taking upon them to confirm his authority for ten years more, for which he has them condemned and executed	IV	227
4341	3034	35	Orodes, ſon of Artabanus, is firſt, and the father afterwards, overthrown by Pharaſmanes, and forced to fly to the Carmanians; upon which Lucius Vitellius, governor of Syria, comes with his legions, and drives away Pharaſmanes, and ſets Tiridates on the throne of Parthia, who ſoon after was driven out again by Artabanus	V	449
4342	3035	36	Tiberius's cruelty ſtill continuing, Tigranes (grandſon of Herod king of Judea, and of Archelaus king of Cappadocia, who himſelf had been king of Armenia) was like a private perſon, without any regard to his publick character, condemned and executed among other pretended criminals. This year Rome ſuffered greatly by the overflowing of the Tiber, and by fire, which burnt down that part of the circus contiguous to Mount Aventine: Upon this occaſion Tiberius paid above 100,000 great ſeſterces, to make up the loſs to the owners of the houſes	IV	316
4343	3036	37	Tiberius dies in his retirement, on the 16th day of March, having reigned 22 years, ſix months, and 26 days, aged 77 years, 4 months, and 9 days: Caius Caligula, his adopted grandſon, (ſon of Germanicus) ſucceeds him, by virtue of Tiberius's declaration in his favour while living; he enters his government with releaſing and pardoning all ſtate priſoners, remitting fines, reducing taxes, &c. and to the univerſal joy of all, in his firſt ſpeech to the ſenate, promiſed to govern with juſtice and moderation, to do nothing without their advice, and to follow their directions in all things	V	452
4343	3036	37	In the month of July Caius Cæſar Caligula enters upon the conſulſhip with his uncle Claudius; the ſame day he told the ſenate he greatly diſapproved of the diſorders of the late adminiſtration, promiſed to avoid them, and ſolemnly proteſted that making his people happy was his whole deſire and care. During this year he reſtored the kingdom of Comagene, reduced to a Roman province 18 years ago by Tiberius, to Antiochus, ſon of that Antiochus then driven out, and paid him 100,000,000 ſeſterces, or about 1,000,000 l. ſterling for the neat revenue during that time	V	461
4343	3036	37	Pontius Pilate having great complaints exhibited againſt him by the Jews; he is ſent for to Rome to anſwer them, and the emperor Caius Caligula ſends Marcellus in his ſtead: Caligula alſo gave Agrippa, ſon of Ariſtobulus and grandſon of Herod the Great, whom Tiberius had impriſoned) his liberty, and the tetrarchy of his late uncle Philip, and added to it Great Abylene in Syria, with the title of king: Agrippa ſtaid a year after this at Rome, and then returned in great ſplendor to his kingdom	IV	258
4343	3036	37	The governor of Alexandria having uſed the Egyptian Jews in a very cruel manner, for refuſing to worſhip Caligula as a god, Agrippa informs the emperor of the true ſtate of the caſe; Caligula ſends Beſſus to ſeize that bloody governor and bring him to Rome, where he was ſtripped of all his riches, then baniſhed into an iſland of the Archipelago, where ſome time after he was put to death	IV	253
4343	3036	37	Herod Antipas, before whom Chriſt appeared, envying Agrippa's good fortune and honour, of being a king, goes to Rome to beg the ſame favour; but Agrippa ſending Caligula word that he had laid up arms for 70,000 men to have aſſiſted Sejanus, he was ſtripped of his tetrarchy, after he had enjoyed it 43 years, and Caligula beſtowed it and his treaſure upon Agrippa, and ſends Herod priſoner to Lyons in France	IV	259
4343	3036	37	Caligula orders Petronius governor of Syria to ſet up his ſtatue in the temple of Jeruſalem; the Jews in the moſt humble manner ſupplicate the forbearance; Agrippa goes to Rome, and with great difficulty gets Caligula to countermand his order	IV	260
4343	3036	37	Caligula is taken ſo ill that his life was much deſpaired of; and having done many endearing things for the people, the greateſt demonſtrations of ſorrow are ſhewn; he recovers, and then joy takes its turn; But it is ſuppoſed his ſickneſs had affected his brain, for ever after he acted like a wild tyrant and furious madneſs, committing the moſt monſtrous, abſurd and cruel ravages	V	463

Yr. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
4343	3036	37	Caligula adopts Tiberius the ſon of Druſus, now 18 years old, and commands him to kill himſelf, and ſends meſſengers to ſee it performed; this being done, he gives a full looſe to his furious and mad paſſions, and commences an open enemy to mankind, a complete tyrant, and outrageous monſter, committing the moſt horrid butcheries, cruelties, and inhumanities, cauſing his neareſt relations, greateſt friends, beſt ſubjects, and moſt innocent perſons to be put to death in his preſence, to gratify his ſavage madneſs; marries and divorces ſeveral ladies, and claims divine honours, inſtitutes prieſts to his own deity, builds temples, and has ſacrifices offered to him	V	463
4344	3037	38	Caligula aſſumes the ſecond conſulſhip, and has Lucius Apronius Ceſianus for his colleague; after 30 days he lays down the faſces, and when he entered upon and laid down his conſulſhip, like a private perſon took the uſual oaths; the people, fearful of his cruelties, not appearing at the publick ſhews which he daily exhibited with ſo much aſſiduity as he required, he ordered the publick granaries to be ſhut up with an intent to ſtarve them all, and wiſhed that they had all but one neck, that he might butcher all at one ſtroak: His horſe Incitatus he frequently invited to his table, and fed him with gilt oats, and preſented him with the richeſt wines in gold cups; his ſtable was marble, his manger ivory, his collar pearls, and his coverings purple; he gave him many attendants with rich liveries, and made him one of the college of his prieſts, and collegue to the chief nobility, and purpoſed to have made him conſul; he revived the law of majeſty, and did every thing that might make him feared and hated	V	464
4345	3038	39	Caius cauſes all his ſhips he had ready built, and orders great numbers to be built, and all to be link'd together in a creſcent, from the point of the bay of Baiæ to Puteoli in Campania; upon theſe were laid planks, and upon them earth; then houſes were built, ſtreets and roads made, &c. which rendered ſhipping ſo ſcarce that a dearth followed, which carried off great numbers of the poorer people. The work being finiſhed with all expedition, Caligula, attended with the heads of the city and army, firſt offers ſacrifices to Envy at Puteoli, then magnificently arrayed, armed with the breaſt-plate of Alexander the Great, and a civic crown on his head, rode to Puteoli, and ſtayed there a night and a day, illuminated the bridge, ſtreets, &c. with an infinite number of lights, boaſting he had turned the ſea into land, and the day into night: The next day at his return back, in the midway mounted a magnificent throne, and made an oration in praiſe of this mad action, and then ordered a vaſt number of people of all ages and conditions to be thrown promiſcuouſly into the ſea, many of which periſhed; then returned to Rome in triumph, and the bridge was broke down, and the ſhips he had borrowed reſtored, &c. and thus in two years he ſquandered away 18 millions, beſides his ordinary income: To raiſe money he obliged the greateſt part of the inhabitants to repurchaſe their freedoms, made void wills, confiſcated the goods of thoſe he thought fit, and obliged the nobility to purchaſe them at his own price, &c.	V	470
4345	3038	39	Caius Cæſar Caligula depoſes both the conſuls, for which one killed himſelf; then raiſes an army of 200,000 men, and pretends to go againſt the Germans, does nothing, and returns into Gaul, and ruins all the people by extortions, &c. Lentulus and Getulius are charged with and executed for treaſon, and Caius's two ſiſters baniſhed for adultery. The Germans are defeated by Galba, and Caius takes the honour to himſelf	V	471
4346	3039	40	Caius takes upon himſelf the conſulſhip a third time alone, for 12 days, being at Lyons, where he had magnificent ſhews, &c. At the end of twelve days he laid down the conſulſhip, and two new conſuls were nominated. Caligula having invited Ptolemy king of Mauritania, couſin-germain to his father Germanicus, to his court, and for a time treated him with great magnificence and civility; but imagining that he was in the people's favour, firſt arreſted and condemned him to baniſhment, and then ordered him to be privately maſſacred as he was carrying along; and alſo ordered Mithridates king of Armenia to be arreſted and baniſhed, which was performed, with abundance of other extravaganeies and unjuſt extortions, &c.	V	478
4347	3040	41	The Mauritanians ſoon after the death of their king revolt, but after the loſs of ſeveral battles they are ſubjected to the Romans, and ruled by their governors like other provinces, and not by their own princes	VII	159
4347	3040	41	Caius holds the conſulſhip for the fourth time only ſeven days. Caſſius Cheræa, tribune of a prætorian cohort, a brave and gallant officer, being frequently made the executioner of Caius's cruelties, is ſo moved with pity for his country, and deteſtation of his vileneſs, that he and ſeveral others conſpire to deſtroy the monſter, which they did in his palace, and are ſaid to have cut off and eat part of his fleſh, the 24th of January, after he had reigned three years, nine months, and 28 days; the next night Julius Lupus diſpatched his wife Cæſonia, by ſtabbing her, and his infant daughter, by daſhing out her brains againſt the walls. Some of the ſenators were for ſeizing the government and reducing it to a commonwealth again, but Caius is ſucceeded by his uncle Claudius, ſon of Druſus, (who died in Germany) and grandſon of Mark Anthony and Octavia the ſiſter of Auguſtus, whom the ſoldiers and people proclaimed emperor	V	491
4347	3040	41	Claudius is adviſed to puniſh Cheræa, Lupus, and a few others with death; but all the other conſpirators were pardoned. He aboliſhed the law of majeſty, called home the exiles, eaſed the tributes, reſtored the eſtates illegally forfeited, refuſed the honours he was complimented with, &c. gains the love of the people, but being naturally timorous, was inſulted by ſome bravos	V	492

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4347	3040	41	Agripp king of the Jews having greatly contributed to the promotion of Claudius to the empire, is rewarded, with the addition of Judea, Samaria, and the ſouthern parts of Idumea to his kingdom, and a confirmation of all Caligula's favours with great additions, making a ſolemn alliance with him, and paſſing ſeveral edicts in favour of the Jews. Claudius beſtows the kingdom of Chalcis upon his brother Herod. Agrippa has the honour of conſulſhip, and Herod the prætorſhip, beſtowed upon them; all which grants were engraven on copper, and ſet up in the capitol
4347	3040	41	Claudius reſtores Mithridates the Iberian to his kingdom, Antiochus to the kingdom of Comagene, and Mithridates the Cilician to the kingdom of Boſphorus, of which they had unjuſtly been deprived by Caligula	IV	261
4348	3041	42	A great famine being in Rome, Claudius forms a large and commodious harbour at the mouth of the Tiber, and completed it; but ſoon after his death 'twas through neglect choaked up with ſand: At the ſame time alſo he ſet about draining the lake Fucinus in the country of the Marſi, and conveying its waters by deep canals into the Tiber, employing 30,000 men continually for 11 years, but without ſucceſs	V	493
4348	3041	42	Meſſalina, wife of Claudius the emperor, ſolliciting Silanus to lewdneſs, he refuſing ſhe falſely accuſes him of deſigning to murder the emperor; upon which he is executed: This occaſions a conſpiracy of the nobility and gentry againſt Claudius, the head of which was Annius Vinicianus, who had a great ſhare in the murder of Caius. Camillus, governor of Dalmatia, writes him a letter full of reproaches, and threatens him with a cruel death if he did not reſign; but the ſuperſtition of thoſe times getting into the ſoldiers heads, they imagined ill omens, and fell upon their officers and killed them. Camillus making his eſcape, was afterwards ſtabbed in the arms of his wife, after he had bore the title of emperor five days. This gave Meſſalina a handle to execute many innocent perſons, for the ſake of their eſtates, and paſs by the guilty for large ſums of money, &c. but ſome of them were executed. Otho ſucceeded Camillus in Dalmatia, and cut off the heads of thoſe ſoldiers who had murdered their officers	V	494
4349	3042	43	Claudius deprives the Lycians of their liberty, for murdering ſome Roman citizens in a tumult; and to quiet the differences that had ariſen among them, and added their country to the province of Pamphilia. Meſſalina out of ſpite perſuades Claudius to put his niece Julia, the daughter of Germanicus, and his niece Julia, the daughter of Druſus and grand daughter of Tiberius, to death	V	496
4349	3042	43	Claudius by the inſtigation of one Bericus, a fugitive Briton, ſends Plautius the Roman governor in Gaul to invade Britain; which he did, and vanquiſhed them in ſeveral battles, and gariſons ſeveral towns, and writes to the emperor, who comes himſelf with a large army engages and defeats the Britains with great ſlaughter, takes their ſtrong holds, and gariſons them, and makes Plautius governor of Britain, &c.	V	496
4349	3042	43	Agrippa upon his return to Jeruſalem ſhews a much greater zeal for the Jewiſh religion than his predeceſſor; depoſed Theophilus from the high-prieſthood, and gave it to Simon Cantharas; but ſoon after depoſed him, and offered it to Jonathan the ſon of Annas, who had been depoſed, but he refuſed it	VII	429
4350	3043	44	Claudius at his return to Rome is honoured with a triumph and the ſirname of Britannicus; Veſpaſian and Titus behaved ſo gallantly under Plautius, as to fight thirty battles, and ſubdue two powerful nations of the Britains, and reduced 20 towns, with the Iſle of Wight. Plautius encreaſed his conqueſts, and at his return to Rome has an ovation, &c.	IV	261
4350	3043	44	Claudius after his triumph reſtored to the ſenate the provinces of Achaia and Macedon, which thenceforth were governed by proconſuls: He gave the title of king to Cottius, prince of the Alps; and took away the liberty of the Rhodians, for their crucifying ſome Roman citizens	VII	429
4351	3044	45	The dreadful fame, foretold by Agabus, rages in Judea, againſt which the new Chriſtian churches planted at Antioch ſends the believers at Jeruſalem a liberal relief, by the hands of Paul and Barnabas	V	497
4351	3044	45	Rome being now very full of ſtatues, Claudius enacts that no more ſhould be ſet up without the ſpecial appointment of the ſenate, and orders ſeveral to be taken down, he likewiſe puniſhed very ſeverely ſome governors of provinces that had miſbehaved, &c.	IV	263
4352	3045	46	M. Vicinius, brother-in-law to Claudius, dies of poiſon given him by the empreſs Meſſalina, for refuſing her unchaſt deſires. Aſinius Gallus, ſon of Agrippina, Tiberius's firſt wife, conſpired againſt Claudius to make himſelf emperor; is detected, and only baniſhed, which gained Claudius great applauſe	V	498
4353	3046	47	Many of the greateſt men in Rome are put to death by Claudius, to gratify the revenge and covetouſneſs of Meſſalina his wife	V	498
4353	3046	47	The Cheruſci, or inhabitants of Brunſwick, deſire Claudius to give them a king; he ſends them Italicus, nephew of the famous Arminius; but though they at firſt received him with great joy, yet they drove him from the throne ſome time after for living after the Italian manner; but he being again reſtored by the Longobards, cruelly oppreſſed the Cheruſcans	V	499
4353	3046	47	One Cneius Novius, a Roman knight, comes armed with a dagger into the audience-room, with an intent to kill Claudius, but being ſeized and tormented on the rack, confeſſes his intention, but will not diſcover any accomplice or abettor	V	501
4354	3047	48	Claudius as cenſor creates ſeveral new patrician families in the room of thoſe that were extinct, ſupplies the vacancies in the ſenate, promotes ſome of the Gauliſh nobility to the ſenatorial dignity, and by a cenſus finds 6,900,000 citizens in Rome	V	501 502

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4354	3047	48	Meſſalina the Roman empreſs grew ſo monſtrous in her luſt, that to have one Caius Silius (a very beautiful young man) to herſelf, ſhe forced him to divorce his wife Silana, and kept him company openly: Silius propoſes to kill Claudius and to marry her, and to adopt Germanicus: She approves all; firſt divorces herſelf from the emperor, and then marries Silius openly. Calpurnia and Cleopatra (two of Claudius's courtezans) tell him of it; he is at firſt frighted, but by the management of Narciſſus, Silius, Meſſalina, and ſeveral others are executed, and all things ſettled quietly	V	506
4355	3048	49	Agrippa (king of the Jews) ſpends great ſums in rebuilding, beautifying, and ſtrengthening a new quarter of the north ſide of Jeruſalem, intending to wall it in, but is forbid by Claudius the Roman emperor: He grows ſo conſiderable, that as he was making a progreſs to Tiberias he is met and complimented by the king's of Comagene, Emeſa, Leſſer Armenia, Pontus and Chalcis; But Vivius Marſus, governor of Syria, jealous of what they might conſult about, came thither himſelf, and commanded them to return each to his own kingdom. Upon his return to Jeruſalem he depoſed Matthias the high-prieſt, and put Elionæus in his ſtead, and begins to perſecute the Chriſtians by beheading James the leſs, ſirnamed Boanerges, and impriſoning Peter, Going to Cæſarea with a vaſt train of nobility, to exhibit publick games in honour of Claudius, where declaring he received the governors of Tyre and Sydon again into favour, the people cried out, 'twas the voice of god, and not of man; which puffing him up with pride, he fell ſick, and died in five days, and Claudius turned his kingdom again into a Roman province, and made Cuſpius Fadus the governor thereof; but Herod king of Chalcis got the ſuperintendancy of the temple, and power of nominating the high prieſt, and accordingly depoſed Cantharas, and ſubſtituted Joſeph the ſon of Cami in his room	IV	262
4355	3048	49	Claudius marries Agrippina, his brother's daughter; a law is paſſed the day before to make ſuch marriages lawful: She governed the emperor and the ſtate with an uncontroulable power, went with Claudius into the ſenate, and ſet herſelf with him on the ſame tribunal in all publick ceremonies, and in the courts of juſtice: She got L. Annæus Seneca recalled from baniſhment, and made him tutor to her ſon Domitius, &c. and betrothed her ſon (now 12 years old) to Claudius's daughter Octavia; and cauſed Lollia Paulina to be beheaded, for attempting to get Claudius for a huſband	V	507
4355	3048	49	Claudius widens the circumference of Rome by encloſing Mount Aventine	V	507
4356	3049	50	Claudius is perſuaded by Pallas the freed-man, who had conducted the affair of Agrippina's marriage, and was now criminally correſpondent with her, to adopt Domitius her ſon, and give him the preference to his own ſon Germanicus, becauſe Domitius was three years older, who from this time was called Nero-Claudius Cæſar-Druſus-Germanicus; the ſenate confirmed the adoption and called Agrippina Auguſta	V	508
4356	3049	50	Agrippina gets a colony of veterans to be ſent to Cologn, the capital of the Ubii, where ſhe was born, and called it Colonia Agrippinenſis. The Catti making incurſions into the Roman territories, are repulſed with great ſlaughter by Pomponius Secundus, commander of the legions in Upper Germany	V	508
4356	3049	50	Vannius, king of the Suevians, being for his haughty and inſolent behaviour, after 30 years reign, driven out of his kingdom by the Hermunarians and Ligians, Claudius gives him lands and leave to live in Pannonia. Vangio and Sido, his nephews, part his kingdom between them	VII	541
4357	3050	51	Nero, though but 14 years old, is preſented with the manly robe, which qnalified him for honours and employments: The ſenate decree, that in his 20th year he ſhould be conſul of Rome, and be now ſtiled prince of the Roman youth; but the friends and truſty ſervants of Britannicus are ſome put to death, and the others removed, &c. A great famine makes the people at Rome outrageous, and affront Claudius as the cauſe of it; but in 15 days time he gets a ſufficient ſupply of corn and other neceſſaries, which makes them eaſy	V	509
4357	3050	51	P. Oſtorius Scapula being ſent into Britain, fell unexpectedly upon the Britains who had broken into the Roman conqueſts, put great numbers to the ſword, and diſperſed the reſt; built forts on the Severn, Avon, and Nen, and made that part ſouth of theſe rivers a Roman province, and Camalodunum a Roman colony. The Iceni engage Oſtorius, and after an obſtinate battle are put to flight with great ſlaughter; but after many engagements, loſing ſome part of his honour, he died of grief, and was ſucceeded by Aulus Didius	VII	430
4358	3051	52	This year Claudius finiſhed, at an immenſe charge, the aqueduct at Rome, begun by Caligula 14 years before: 4060 perſons with large ſallaries were appointed to keep it in repair: Likewiſe the great canal was finiſhed, deſigned for draining the lake Fucinus, which had conſtantly employed 30,000 men for 11 years; before the waters were let out, Claudius exhibited a naval fight, in which 19,000 condemned criminals engaged on board 100 large gallies, repreſenting the Sicilian and Rhodian fleets, and after an obſtinate conteſt, many wounds, and much bloodſhed, ſuch of them as remained alive the emperor pardoned: When the water was let off 'twas found the canal was not deep enough; and when it was deepened, bridges were built and gladiators fought upon it; but the water breaking out with incredible violence, bore all down before it	V	514
4358	3051	52	Ventidius Cumanus ſucceeded Alexander in the government of Judea: It being Paſſover time, he put guards before the gates of the temple, one of which ſhewing his nudity publickly, occaſioned an uproar; he firſt tried by fair means to appeaſe it, but not ſucceeding, he ordered all his troops to come to the place; this frighted the Jews ſo exceſſively, that flying in confuſion more than 10,000 are ſtifled and cruſhed to death by running over one another	IV	254

Y. of world.	Y. of flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pg.
4358	3051	52	Some Galilean Jews going to a feaſt were inſulted, and one killed; a ſkirmiſh enſues, in which many of them are killed by the Samaritans: They go to complain of the Samaritans to Cumanus, who refuſes to do them juſtice: The matter being brought before Quadratus, governor of Syria, he ſends the Samaritans and Cumanus to Rome; where the Samaritans were condemned to die, Cumanus baniſhed, and Celer (one of his tribunes) dragged through the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, and then put to death
4359	3052	53	Nero, now about 16 years old, marries Octavia, whom he had betrothed three years before. He pleads for the Ilians, and obtains for them an immunity from all taxes and tributes, and prevails with Claudius to reſtore the Rhodians to their antient liberty, gets many favours beſtowed on ſeveral others, &c. Claudius confers univerſal juriſdiction on the equeſtrian order	IV	264
4359	3052	53	Claudius Felix is made governor of Judea, in the room of Ventidius Cumanus; without, the land ſwarmed with robbers and banditti; and within, with falſe prophets, &c. which occaſioned Felix to uſe all manner of ſeverities and unjuſt ſeizures upon the innocent as well as the ſeditious; for which being reproved by Jonathan the high-prieſt, he hired one Doras (a confident of Jonathan's) to murder him, which was done accordingly	V	515
4360	3053	54	The empreſs Agrippina poiſons the Roman emperor Caius Tiberius Claudius Nero, in the 64th year of his age, of which he dies the 13th of October, after he had reigned 13 years, 8 months, and 21 days, and his wife Agrippina's ſon Nero is declared emperor in his ſtead. Agrippina forces Narciſſus the great favourite of Claudius to kill himſelf, who was the moſt profuſe and rapacious creature living, ſurpaſſing Cræſus in wealth, his friendſhip being courted with large preſents by foreign kings, cities and provinces. She alſo got Junius Silanus proconſul of Aſia murdered, (a wealthy great-grandſon of Auguſtus) to prevent his being emperor. Nero pronounces Claudius's funeral oration	IV	266
4361	3054	55	Nero, though but 18 years old, aſſumes the conſulſhip, and reſtores Plautius Lateranus to his antient rank, who had been degraded for adultery with Meſſalina, Nero falls in love with Acte, a beautiful ſlave, and ſlights his mother; ſhe grows outragious at Pallas her confident's being turned out of the treaſury, utters dreadful complaints and curſes againſt Nero, publiſhes Britanicus's virtues, and title, &c. Nero cauſes Britanicus to be poiſoned, and beſtowed his eſtate in preſents among his favourites, and baniſhes Agrippina his mother from the court, and confined her to her grandmother Antonia's houſe; ſhe is unjuſtly accuſed, tried, acquitted, and received into favour again	V	517
4362	3055	56	Nero, by the prompting and advice of his two companions, Otho and Senecio, falls into all manner of debauchery and exceſs, going diſguiſed like a ſlave in the nighttime, and committing great riots and diſorders	V	524
4364	3057	58	Suilius, a noted informer and accuſer of great men in the reign of Claudius, is proſecuted and baniſhed. Nero falls in love with Poppæa Sabina, whoſe mother was put to death by Meſſalina; ſhe was the wife of Rufinus Criſpinus, extremely beautiful, witty, and lewd: She forſook her huſband, and lived publickly with Otho, the emperor's favourite: Nero takes her, and forbids Otho the court, and ſent him governor to Luſitania, where he ſtaid ten years with reputation. Cornelius Sylla, huſband of Antonia daughter of Claudius, is falſly accuſed of treaſon, and baniſhed to Marſeilles, &c.	V	525
4364	3057	58	The Armenians tired with the continual invaſions of the Iberians on the one hand, and the Parthians on the other, ſend a ſolemn deputation to Nero at Rome, praying him to appoint them a king; Nero ſends Domitius Corbulo into Armenia, who drives away Tiridates, and ſets up Tigranes, the grandſon of Herod the Great, upon the throne of Armenia; but Vologeſes king of Parthia drove him out, and again ſet his brother Tiridates upon the throne, but ſent him to Rome to receive the crown from Nero, who put it on his head with his own hands, and ſo all differences were made up	V	527
4365	3058	59	The Sicarii (or robbers) commit horrid murders and diſorders in ſeveral parts of Judea, even in the temple itſelf: Feſtus being made governor in the room of Felix, takes great pains to ſuppreſs them; but Agrippa having the year before depoſed Ananias from, and advanced Iſhmael to the high-prieſthood, ſeveral of theſe depoſed prieſts claiming an equal quantity of tythes, occaſioned great diſturbances by their partizans. Upon the arrival of Feſtus, St. Paul was brought before him; but he appealing to Cæſar, was continued a priſoner	III	717
4365	3058	59	Poppæa having got the aſcendancy over Nero, endeavours all ſhe can to get rid of Agrippina his mother, who is murdered in her bed by Nero's order, after having eſcaped an attempt to deſtroy her at ſea. After this he gave himſelf up to all manner of lewdneſs, and introduced debauchery every where, ſo that it became univerſally faſhionable	V	532
4366	3059	60	Agrippa having advanced Ananias, a proud Sadducee, to the high-prieſthood, and Feſtus being dead, he called a council before Albinus the now prætor came, and condemned and ſtoned to death St. James, and many other Chriſtians	V	553
4366	3059	60	Nero inſtitutes conteſts of eloquence and poetry, and other games, to be exhibited every fifth year. A comet appears, and the people talk of Rubellius Plautus to ſucceed Nero	III	717
4366	3059	60	Agrippa depoſes Ananus from, and advances Jeſus the ſon of Damneus to the high-prieſthood at Jeruſalem. The Sicarii or robbers and banditti were grown ſo bold as to come into Jeruſalem, and carry off Eleazar ſon of the late high-prieſt, who was ſecretary of the temple; they ſend Eleazar word, that for his ſon's ranſom he muſt get ten of their companions releaſed; which for a large ſum he does, &c.	V	535
4366	3059	60	Agrippa taking the high-prieſthood from Jeſus, the ſon of Damneus, gives it to Jeſus the ſon of Gamaliel; each raiſe armed men, and commit the vileſt	IV	267

outrages

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Before Christ		Vol.	Page
			outrages. The Levites obtain leave of Agrippa to wear white robes, like the priests — — —	IV	267
4367	3060	61	The Britons having been extremely abuſed by the covetouſneſs of the Roman governors, revolt under Boudicea their queen, and kill abundance of the Romans: Petilius Cerealis going to the Romans aſſiſtance with the ninth legion, the Britons fall upon him, rout him, and cut every man of the infantry to pieces; afterwards the Britons went to London, then inhabited chiefly by Romans, took it, and maſſacred all the Romans they found; the like they did elſewhere, killing 70,000 of the Romans, and their confederates. Suetonius the Roman governor collects his army together, and gives the Britons battle, overthrows them, and kills 80,000 of them, with the loſs of only 400 Romans — — —	V	539
4367	3060	61	Pedanius Secundus, governor of Rome, being murdered by ſome of his ſlaves, it was inſiſted upon that all dwelling under his roof, guilty or innocent ſhould be executed, which was done, to the number of 400 — — —	V	541
4368	3061	62	Burrhus, one of Nero's teachers, who had been greatly inſtrumental in preventing much miſchief, is ſaid to die of poiſon — —	V	541
4368	3061	62	Tigellinus gets to be Nero's intimate (a perſon of great viciouſneſs) and adviſes him to murder Sylla, who was accordingly aſſaſſinated at his own table: Then Plautus is likewiſe diſpatched, and Nero marries Poppæa publickly; ſhe accuſes Octavia of incontinency, who is baniſhed into Campania, but is ſoon after recalled, but again accuſed, baniſhed and murdered — — —	V	543
4368	3061	62	Nero recals Albinus from, and ſends Geſſius Florus into Judea, who behaved ſo cruelly as occaſioned the total deſtruction of the Jewiſh ſtate and people, who upon a computation now made, are found to be 2,556,000 — —	IV	267
4369	3062	63	The city of Pompeii in Campania was in a great meaſure overturned by an earthquake, and many others damaged. This year Poppæa brings forth a daughter, which is called Auguſta, but dies when four months old — —	V	544
4369	3062	63	The Sarmatians begin to threaten the Roman empire; but Plautius Sylvanus Ælianus getting aſſiſtance from the kings of the Baſtarnians and Roxolanians, prevents their invaſion — — —	VII	603
4370	3063	64	Nero grows ſo monſtrouſly wicked, that he approved of thoſe who made profeſſion of obſcenity, and condemned as hypocrites thoſe who behaved with any degree of modeſty. This year Rome is burnt, ſome ſay by Nero's expreſs order, but he charges it upon the Chriſtians: Upon part of the ruins he built a moſt magnificent palace, called the golden palace; upon the reſt the city was rebuilt in a very commodious and grand manner, much ſuperior to what it was before for beauty and convenience — — —	V	648
4370	3063	64	Nero having accuſed the Chriſtians (who were very numerous at Rome) with burning it, they were perſecuted with all manner of cruelties and torments poſſible to be invented; and to ſupply his exchequer he robbed all the temples of his vaſt dominions, and melted down the images to make money	V	554
4370	3063	64	Cæſarea being now adjudged to belong to Syria, the Jews revolt, and pelt their governor Florus with ſtones, and nothing was to be ſeen but robberies, murders and all manner of cruelties: The Cæſarians murder 20,000 Jews in their city, 2000 are murdered at Ptolemais, and 50,000 at Alexandria, Florus murdering all he met with at Jeruſalem, ſo that fire and ſword reduced all the country to the utmoſt deſolation — — —	IV	269
4371	3064	65	Nero's abominable behaviour occaſioned a conſpiracy againſt him, at the head of which was Caius Piſo; but being diſcovered before the execution, Nero puts many of the chiefs to death, among whom was Seneca his tutor, the conſul Veſtinus, Lucan the poet, &c. — —	V	558
4371	3064	65	Poppæa being again with child, and finding fault with Nero, for ſome exceſſes, he kicks her on the belly and kills her; he would then have married Antonia, the daughter of Claudius, but ſhe refuſing, he orders her to be put to death, and married Statilia Meſſalina, widow of the late conſul Atticus Veſtinus —	V	559
4371	3064	65	This year Campania was damaged with dreadful tempeſts, violent whirlwinds, and earthquakes, by which whole villages were overturned, &c. At Rome a plague ſwept off 30,000 perſons in a ſmall time —	V	560
4372	3065	66	Nero goes into Greece, with a vaſt retinue of fidlers, ſongſters, &c. and has the prize allowed to him, for which he rewarded the judges with rich preſents and the citizenſhip of Rome; he alſo reſtored the Acheans to their former liberty	V	565
4372	3065	66	Ceſtius governor of Syria beſieges Jeruſalem, but they corrupting ſome of his generals, the ſiege was raiſed, and the Jews purſued him, ſurrounded and cut off 4000 of his foot, and 400 horſe, &c. Upon this Nero ſends Veſpaſian into Judea with a great army to revenge the affront — —	V	270
4373	3066	67	Veſpaſian enters Judea with upwards of 60,000 diſciplined men, beſides ſervants, relieves Sephoris, burns Gadara, and beſieges Jotapa, which Joſephus gallantly defended 47 days, when Veſpaſian took it by aſſault, and deſtroyed it with fire and ſword, not one Jew eſcaping, 40,000 being killed, and only 12,000 made priſoners: Joſephus ſurrendered himſelf, and was well received, and then propheſied to Veſpaſian his ſucceſſion to the empire. Japha was alſo taken, and all the men put to the ſword, and the women and children carried away captive. Gamala was alſo taken, and 4000 put to the ſword, but more deſtroyed themſelves. Giſcala alſo loſt 6000 men, and 3000 taken priſoners; and ſo all Galilee was ſubdued — — —	IV	273
4373	3066	67	Nero plunders the province of Achaia, putting all the wealthy Greeks to death under various pretences, and ſeizing their effects: The like he does by Italy and Rome. Having loaded his fleet with all the riches of Greece, he returns towards Italy; but a ſtorm robbed him of his ſhips and his plunder, few of them eſcaping: He enters Naples, Antium, Albanus, and Rome, through a breach in the wall, as a victor in the Olympick games, &c.	V	568

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4374	3067	68	The zealots at Jeruſalem divide themſelves into two different parties, and deſtroy one another by thouſands, committing the moſt horrid cruelties, &c.
4374	3067	68	Nero having tired all his people with his cruel butcheries and injuſtice, Julius Vindex, governor of Celtic Gaul, revolts, as does Galba, governor of Hiſpania Tarraconenſis, but refuſes the name of emperor, &c. Auguſtus Nero depoſes the two conſuls, and takes that office upon himſelf; then prepares to go againſt the revolters, with an army of fidlers, players, &c. and arms his concubines like Amazons, and appoints them for his guard. Virginius governor of Upper Germany comes againſt Vindex; an enaagement happens, contrary to the two generals orders, 20,000 Gauls are killed, and Vindex murders himſelf: Virginius is declared emperor, but he will not accept it	IV	276
4374	3067	68	A famine being in Rome, and ſhips coming in from Egypt, with ſand for the gladiators inſtead of corn, ſo exaſperated the common people that they threw down Nero's ſtatues, tore his images, plundered the houſes of his friends and favourites, &c. At the ſame time news was brought that the German legions had revolted; being in a great fright, Nero flies from Rome; the ſenate aſſembles, and declares Galba emperor; and Nero cauſes himſelf to be ſtabbed and dies	V	573
4374	3067	68	Galba being far advanced in years, and at a great diſtance from Rome, Nymphidius Sabinus aſpires at the empire, and by gifts, treats, &c. gets the prætorian bands, &c. on his ſide, and takes upon him the ſupreme command: The ſenate fearing his power, conferred extraordinary honours upon him, and called him their protector, and went to him to have their decrees confirmed; but the ſoldiers reject him, and declare Galba anew, kill Nymphidius, and drag his body through the camp: Galba orders ſeveral great men to be put to death unheard, which frightened the people very much: Being now at the Milvian bridge, 25 furlongs from the city, a body of marines met him to addreſs him for a confirmation of their legion; but he putting them off, they grew mutinous; he orders his horſe to ride in among them, and do military execution, and decimates thoſe that were left alive, and was in all things governed by his three favourites, who behaved very ſcandalouſly. He called the miniſters of Nero to account, and puniſhes ſome of them with death, and pardons others, &c.	V	576
4374	3067	68	The Jews being divided among themſelves; one party was for ſubmitting to the Romans immediately, to prevent their total deſtruction; but the other would hear of no accommodation, and murdered and plundered all who oppoſed them, whether Jews or others: This occaſioned many terrible maſſacres and devaſtations. The zealots are headed by Zachariah and Eleazar, who entered Jeruſalem and were as ſtrongly oppoſed by Ananus, the late depoſed high-prieſt; the zealots garriſoned in the temple, from whence they continually ſallied, and committed the moſt horrid butcheries: Ananus beſieges them; the zealots ſend for and let into the city 20,000 Idumeans, who torture and murder vaſt numbers with unſpeakable cruelties, of which 12,000 were perſons of diſtinction, among whom was Ananus himſelf, and Jeſus the ſon of Gamaliel, &c. In the mean time Placidus the Roman general killed about 15,000 factious Jews, and takes Gadara, &c.	V	586
4375	3068	69	An expreſs arrives from Belgic Gaul, informing Galba that the legions in Upper Germany demanded another emperor, to be choſe by the free election of the ſenate and people of Rome; upon which Galba adopts Piſo Licianus for his ſucceſſor: This drives Otho to attempt the ſovereignty, being encouraged thereto by an aſtrologer. He chooſes two ſoldiers to bribe and debauch the reſt, and furniſhes them with money for that purpoſe, and makes them large promiſes: The 15th of January Otho is ſaluted emperor by a ſmall party of the guards, which ſoon increaſe, and preſently he is proclaimed by the whole camp, and Galba and Piſo are murdered. The ſenate, knights, and people of Rome acknowledge Otho, and honour him with the title of Cæſar and Auguſtus with the uſual pomp and formalities	IV	275
4375	3068	69	The armies in Germany declare Vitellius (commander of the legions of Lower Germany) emperor; he exerciſes the ſovereign power, and puts ſeveral perſons to death at the requeſt of the ſoldiers. Vitellius is joined by two Gauliſh governors and their forces, by an Italian legion and a body of horſe at Lyons, the forces of Rhætia and Britain. Vitellius addicts himſelf to gluttony and drunkenneſs. Cæcina, one of Vitellius's generals, ravages the fields, ſacks the cities, and makes dreadful havock of the inhabitants of Helvetia, many thouſands are cut off, and many ſold for ſlaves In Italy a ſquadron of horſe and many cities go over to Vitellius. Otho ſends meſſengers and letters to Vitellius, offers him immenſe ſums, and any place of retirement he ſhould chooſe, and at laſt to make him a partner with him in the empire, and to marry his daughter; and Vitellius does the like to Otho. Moſt of the foreign provinces declare for Otho, and he ſtudies to gain their affections. Otho fits out fleets and armies to oppoſe Vitellius, and orders the chief of the nobility to follow him into the field, takes his leave of the ſenate, and leaves Rome. Otho's fleet gains advantages in Narbonne Gaul, but all the country between the Alps and the Po ſubmit to Vitellius: Cæcina attacks Placentia, but after loſing a great many men, is forced to retire. At laſt the two contending parties engage, and Otho's army is routed with great ſlaughter near Bedriacum: Next day Otho's generals deliver up their camp, upon receiving the news whereof Otho kills himſelf, though intreated to the contrary by his ſoldiers, and armies from all the eaſtern provinces were in full march to his aſſiſtance: Otho being dead, all his troops ſubmit to Vitellius, and the ſenate acknowledge him for their emperor	V	597
4375	3068	69	Simon heading one part of the Jewiſh zealots, gains advantages over the other, and invades Idumea with 20,000 men: The Idumeans oppoſe him vigorouſly; but Simon	V	615

bribing

Y. of world	Y. of Rome	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
			bribing their general, has Idumea and the troops delivered up to him, and put all to fire and ſword: The other zealots in one of their ambuſhes takes Simon's wife priſoner; but he going to Jeruſalem obliges them by his exceſſive cruelties to return her: Thus John within, and Simon without, deſtroy all that comes in their way. The people let Simon in the night into the city, who reigns over them in the moſt tyrannical manner, and beſieges John in the temple	IV	276
4375	3068	69	The Roxolanians enter Mœſia, defeat the two Roman cohorts, and return unmoleſted; but returning again with nine thouſand horſe, Marcus Aponius Saturninus falls upon them, and cuts them off almoſt to a man	IV	276
4375	3068	69	Italy ſuffers greater calamities than ever; the ſoldiers being very numerous, and ſcattered up and down, plunder, ravage, and murder whoever they pleaſe without reſtraint. Vitellius ſends an edict to Rome, forbidding them at preſent to confer either the name of Auguſtus or Cæſar upon him. All the centurions that had behaved gallantly for Otho were put to death: Delabella he ordered to be maſſacred privately: Being naturally addicted to gluttony and drunkenneſs, he indulged the ſame in the ſoldiers, which occaſioned great calamities and diſturbances to others, and among themſelves. Arriving at Rome, he puts off his general's, and put on the ſenator's dreſs, and marches in great pomp to the capitol to offer ſacrifice to Jupiter, where being met by his mother Sextilia, he embraces and honours her with the name of Auguſta; next day he met the ſenate, and made a ſpeech to them, containing great promiſes of what he would do for them, but gave himſelf up entirely to gluttony and profuſeneſs, and remits all buſineſs to his favourites, Valens and Cæcina	V	619
4375	3068	69	The legions in Judea, Egypt, and Syria declare Veſpaſian emperor; Tiberius Alexander brought the legions at Alexandria to ſwear to him on the firſt of July, thoſe in Judea ſwore to him in perſon on the third, and Mucianus governor of Syria and his ſoldiers about the 15th; Sohemus king of Edeſſa, Antiochus king of Comagena, and Agrippa king of Ituræa acceded; and all the inland provinces extending to Aſia and Achaia, and the inland countries bordering upon Pontus, and the two Armenias, took the oath of allegiance. Veſpaſian eſtabliſhes a council for the diſpatch of buſineſs at Berytus. Troops were every where raiſed, and gold and ſilver in great quantities coined at Antioch, and ambaſſadors ſent to Vologeſes king of Parthia, and Tiridates king of Armenia; Titus was to carry on the war in Judea, Veſpaſian to ſeize the Straits leading to Egypt, and Mucianus to go againſt Vitellius. The Illyrian and Pannonian legions declare for Veſpaſian; the fleet at Ravenna revolts, and comes over to Veſpaſian. The partizans of each ſide have ſeveral engagements with various ſucceſs, but at laſt the fatal battle at Cremona determined Vitellius's fate; the city was large, and very rich, and 40,000 ſoldiers, &c. entered it, killed, raviſhed, plundered and burnt it for four days ſucceſſively, till it was all reduced to aſhes; this happened 286 years after its foundation. Vitellius for all this gives himſelf up to voluptuouſneſs; his favourite Valens is taken priſoner, and Gaul, Spain, and Britain, declare for Veſpaſian: With difficulty Vitellius is prevailed on to leave Rome, and go to the camp at Mevania, but gives himſelf up to drunkenneſs, and publickly betrays his ignorance and fear. The Samnites, Peligxians, and Marſians, declare for Veſpaſian; Valens being taken priſoner, the whole army goes over to Veſpaſian. Vitellius is offered ſafety for his perſon, and a competency to live on, if he would reſign the ſovereignty; he comes into the ſenate clad in mourning, and offers to reſign; but the ſoldiers will not permit him, and beſiege Sabinus, &c. brother to Veſpaſian, in the capitol, which was now reduced to aſhes; many great men were ſlain, and Sabinus and Atticus the conſul taken priſoners; Vitellius ſtrove all he could to ſave them, but the fury of the ſoldiers was ſo great, that cutting off Sabinus's head, they dragged his trunk through the ſtreets. Soon after Primus, &c. for Veſpaſian comes to Rome, where ſeveral bloody engagements gave Veſpaſian the city, and Vitellius being taken priſoner, is firſt inſulted, then killed, and his head carried upon a pole through the chief cities, having reigned 8 months and a few days; and Domitian (a ſon of Veſpaſian) ſaluted Cæſar. Lucius, the brother of Vitellius, coming with his troops to Rome, ſubmits, and is put to death; the conquerors filled the ſtreets with carnage and mangled carcaſſes; all the private houſes and places of publick reſort are broke open and plundered	V	635
4376	3069	70	The ſenate confirms Veſpaſian in the ſovereignty, makes him conſul, and his ſon Titus his colleague; Domitian is made prætor, and has conſular authority, &c.	V	635
4376	3069	70	The Jazygians, a Sarmatic nation, broke into Mœſia, killed Fonteius Agrippa, governor of that province, and laid waſte the country far and near. Rubrius Gallus goes againſt them, cuts great numbers of them to pieces, and forces the reſt to repaſs the Danube, the bank of which river he carefully fortified	VII	605
4376	3069	70	Veſpaſian orders his ſon Titus to go from Cæſarea to beſiege Jeruſalem, and to utterly deſtroy it; this he goes about with the greateſt expedition: When he came and inveſted the place, he found three different factions within it, furiouſly deſtroying one another; they pretended to make a peace among themſelves, and it being the feaſt of the Paſſover, Eleazar, who was poſſeſſed of the temple, opened the avenues of his court to the great concourſe that came to ſacrifice, among whom ſome of John's men went in privately armed, and cut off moſt of Eleazar's party, and took poſſeſſion of the place; Titus makes them offers of peace, which they reject a firſt and ſecond time; by their inteſtine diviſions all the proviſions were either burnt or eat, ſo that a terrible famine and continual butcheries were within, and no poſſible eſcape without. The beſiegers having taken the city, ſet on fire the temple the 10th of Auguſt, in the 2d year of Veſpaſian and 2 1ſt of Agrippa, being the ſame fatal day and month 'twas formerly burnt by Nebuchadnezzar; this was followed by a terrible ſlaughter of

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			the people, and the burning and deſtruction of the city: In this war 1,854,490 are ſaid to be killed, and 108,000 carried from Jeruſalem captive, and all the buildings were levelled with the ground
4376	3069	70	Anicetus, formerly commander of king Polemon's navy, raiſed a party in Pontus, under pretence of favouring Vitellius, ſeized the city of Trebizond, burnt the fleet which guarded the coaſts, makes an alliance with the Barbarians, and commits dreadful ravages on the coaſts of Aſia; but Virdius Geminus being ſent againſt him by Veſpaſian, he is defeated, and Anicetus and all his followers are delivered up by Sedochus king of the Lazians, to whom he flew for protection	IV	289
4376	3069	70	The Germans and Gauls revolt from the Romans during the civil war, and various ſucceſs attends both ſides, and vaſt numbers are ſlain; but at laſt they univerſally declare for Veſpaſian, and peace is reſtored. Veſpaſian arriving at Brunduſium, is met by the ſenate and all the great men of Rome, and by them conducted thither, where he was met by the whole people, and honoured with all expreſſions of joy and ſatisfaction, where he revived the antient diſcipline of the army, allowed the ſenate to debate and ſpeak freely their ſentiments, rectified the law, and purged the courts of judicature, ordered the city and capitol to be rebuilt, and behaved in all things as a father of his country ought towards the people he loved and governed	V	636
4376	3069	70	Vologeſes ſends ambaſſadors to Veſpaſian, and offers him 40,000 Parthian horſe, but being already ſettled in the empire, has no occaſion to accept them; ſo both parties renew their alliances, and Veſpaſian ſends back the ambaſſadors with thanks, loaded with rich preſents. Being at peace, Vologeſes ſets about building a city, calling it Vologeſocerta, but died before it was completed	V	648
4377	3070	71	Veſpaſian and his ſon Titus have a triumph at Rome, for the reduction of Jeruſalem, and Titus has a triumphal arch erected, which ſtill remains almoſt intire; as ſoon as the triumph was over, the gate of the temple of Janus was ſhut, the empire enjoying a perfect peace every where, and the temple of peace was begun to be built, to put the rich ſpoils in that were brought from Jeruſalem	IV	319
4378	3071	72	Ceſennius Pætus, governor of Syria accuſed Antiochus king of Comagene with an intent to revolt; Veſpaſian gives him a commiſſion at large, upon which Pætus both takes his kingdom and himſelf, and reduces Comagene to a Roman province; but the king and his two ſons lived at Rome at the publick expence, in a manner ſuitable to their character, and were familiarly entertained by Veſpaſian	V	649
4378	3071	72	The Alani, a people beyond the Tanais and Palus Mæotis, make a ſudden irruption into the territories of the Medes and Armenians; Tiridates narrowly eſcaping, and Pacorus king of the Medes was forced to fly, the Barbarians carrying off an immenſe booty, and a great number of captives, and among them Pacorus's wife	V	650
4379	3072	73	Veſpaſian reduces Greece, which Nero had declared free, and Lycia, Rhodes, Byzantium, Samos, Thrace, and Cilicia, to Roman provinces. Helvidius Priſcus for exciting the people againſt Veſpaſian, is firſt baniſhed by the emperor, and by an order of the ſenate executed	V	650
4381	3074	75	Veſpaſian conſecrates the temple of peace, and raiſes a Coloſſus of braſs 110 feet high, which had been deſigned for Nero, but he put the head of his ſon Titus on it, though ſome ſay it was the figure of the ſun	V	651
4384	3077	78	The celebrated Cneius Julius Agrippa ſucceeds the ſucceſsful Julius Frontinus in the government of Britain, which in ſeven ſucceſsful campaigns he entirely reduced, and parted Caledonia by forts and gariſons upon the Iſthmus between the friths of Glota and Bodotria, and made Britain a Roman province, cultivated the people, and introduced arts and ſciences, which ſoon civilized the natives	V	651
4385	3078	79	Julius Sabinus having ſtirred up the Gauls, and proclaimed himſelf Cæſar, after being defeated ſet his country-houſe on fire, and gave out that he voluntarily periſhed there in the flames, but conveyed himſelf and his vaſt wealth into a cave, where he lived 9 years, and had two children by his wife Epponia; but being diſcovered, he was ſeized and ſent to Rome, loaded with chains, with his wife and two children; he and ſhe were condemned and executed, but the children were very carefully brought up at the publick expence	VII	431
4385	3078	79	Alienus Cæcina, formerly Vitellius's favourite, and Epirus Marcellus, a noted informer in Nero's time, conſpire againſt Veſpaſian, but are diſcovered: Titus cauſes Cæcina to be murdered at a banquet he had invited him to, and Marcellus is condemned by the ſenate, but cuts his own throat. Veſpaſian is taken ill with a pain in his bowels, and goes to Campania to drink ſome very cold waters, but grows worſe, and dies the 24th of June, aged 69 years, 7 months, and 7 days, having reigned 10 years wanting 6 days, and was ſucceeded by his ſon Titus, whoſe character ſtood in a very bad light with the people; but when he came to reign alone, he acquired the greateſt reputation of any of the Roman emperors	V	654
4385	3078	79	A moſt dreadful eruption of mount Veſuvius laid waſte Campania to a great diſtance, conſuming many cities and their inhabitants, and is ſaid to turn day into night ſuddenly at Rome	V	658
4386	3079	80	Vologeſes king of Parthia dies, and is ſucceeded by Artabanus III. who eſpouſed the cauſe of the counterfeit Nero	V	659
4386	3079	80	Titus ſends two conſulars into Campania with large ſums to rebuild the cities and relieve the diſtreſſes that the late eruption of Veſuvius had occaſioned, and went himſelf alſo to comfort and relieve the unhappy ſufferers; while he was thus doing, a terrible fire broke out in Rome, and burnt with great fury for three	VI	16

days

Y. of world.	Y. of flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
			days and three nights, during which time a vaſt number of private houſes, palaces, and publick edifices were reduced to aſhes; the library of Auguſtus with all the books, great part of the capitol, the theatre of Pompey, &c. all which Titus rebuilt and reſtored at his own expence. The moſt dreadful plague ever known in Rome followed this conflagration, during all which he behaved in the moſt tender and compaſſionate manner to the afflicted. The famous amphitheatre being finiſhed this year that was begun by Veſpaſian, Titus dedicated it with magnificent ſhews for 100 days together, to raiſe the ſpirits of the people ready to ſink under the calamities they had ſuffered	V	660
4387	3080	81	Titus is taken ill of a burning fever, and is carried to Curtiæ, his paternal eſtate, and dies on the 13th of September, in the ſame room where his father died, in the 41ſt year of his age, having reigned two years, two months, and twenty days: Some ſay he was poiſoned by his brother Domitian, who ſucceeded him, and who placed him among the gods, and was himſelf the firſt that paid divine honours to him; his loſs was exceedingly lamented by all the people, to ſoften which Domitian begins his reign with popular acts, and great diſſimulation	V	662
4388	3081	82	Domitian puts Flavius Sabinus to death, huſband of Julia Sabina his niece, and daughter of the late emperor Titus, becauſe the publick crier through miſtake had proclaimed him emperor inſtead of conſul	V	665
4389	3082	83	Domitian forbids caſtration under ſevere penalties, and regulates the price of eunuchs already made: This year he likewiſe puniſhed four veſtals for inceſt, cauſing three of them to be whipt to death in the Comitium, and Cornelia, who had been once pardoned before, was buried alive	V VII	668 541
4389	3082	83	A colony of Sueves are ſettled in Friſia by the Romans
4390	3083	84	Agricola engages the Caledonians, or Scots, defeats and routs them, and with the loſs only of 340 Romans, kills 10,000 of the enemy, and takes many priſoners, and this intirely reduced Britain	V VII	672 542
4391	3084	85	The Sueves revolt from and defeat the Romans in Pannonia
4391	3084	85	Domitian orders the nativity of all the illuſtrious perſons in Rome to be caſt, and all ſuch as the aſtrologers ſaid were born for empire, he deſtroyed: He encouraged the informers, who enriched themſelves and the emperor with the lives and properties of many thouſands of innocent perſons. This year multitudes of ſenators and knights were accuſed of treaſon, and ſentenced to death by the ſenate, or ordered to murder themſelves by Domitian. All the profeſſors of philoſophy, and every uſeful ſcience were baniſhed the city; and all manner of cruelty and injuſtice committed	V	675
4391	3084	85	The cruelty uſed, and heavy taxes demanded, cauſe the Naſamonians (a people of Africa) to revolt; they defeat Flaccus, governor of Numidia, ſtormed his camp, and put great numbers of his men to the ſword; but giving themſelves up to revelling, Flaccus rallies, and falls upon the enemy drunk and aſleep, and cuts them off to a man: Upon this Domitian brags to the ſenate that he had cut off a whole nation, and is ſo preſumptuouſly wicked as to begin one of his ordinances thus; Our Lord and our God orders and commands, &c. and would be called the ſon of Minerva	V	676
4392	3085	86	The Capitoline ſports inſtituted and exhibited in honour of Jupiter Capitolinus, the emperor preſiding in perſon, attended by the prieſts of Jupiter and the college of Flamintian prieſts, the beginning of every fifth year. The Dacians break their alliance and invade Mæſia, defeat, rout, and kill, with great ſlaughter Appius Sabinus the governor, commit great devaſtations, and ſeize the caſtles and forts built by the Romans on their borders. Domitian goes againſt them himſelf; Decebalus their chief ſends to treat of peace, but Domitian won't hearken to them, but ſends Tuſcus with the flower of his army againſt them; they engage, Tuſcus is killed, and his army routed intirely; the Dacians took one eagle, a great quantity of arms, all the engines of war, and a vaſt number of captives: Domitian made the ſame havock of the ſenate and people at Rome as the Dacians had done of his ſoldiers. Domitian ſends freſh armies againſt them; many bloody battles are fought, with various ſucceſs, but at laſt Julianus gave the Dacians a compleat overthrow. Decebalus ſues again for peace, which Domitian again refuſes	V	678
4392	3085	86	The emperor Domitian making war upon the Marcomans and Quadians, both nations earneſtly ſue for peace; but inſtead of granting it to them, he put their ambaſſadors to death; which ſo exaſperated the Marcomans, that flying to arms, and raiſing a conſiderable body of troops, they engage the emperor, and put his army to the rout	VII	601
4394	3087	88	The ſecular games are this year celebrated, ſo called becauſe they were ſolemnized but once in an age, or 100 years. Domitian murders all of birth or virtue that gave him the leaſt umbrage, L. Antonius, governor of Upper Germany, revolts; but being engaged by Appius Maximus, Antonius is ſlain, his head cut off and ſent to Rome, and his whole army cut to pieces. Domitian executes and baniſhes great numbers of perſons, under pretence of having been privy or aſſiſtant in Antonius's rebellion	V	680
4394	3087	88	A counterfeit Nero appears in Aſia, and with a multitude of followers retires to the Parthian king, who ſeemed to eſpouſe his cauſe; but Domitian found means to prevail with him to deliver up the impoſtor to his governor of Syria	V	680
4396	3089	90	Domitian being defeated by the Marcomans, &c. makes peace with Decebalus king of Dacia, and allows him a yearly penſion	VII	512
4397	3090	91	Ulpius Trajanus and M. Acilius Glabrio were this year's conſuls; Glabrio was eſteemed a man of prodigious ſtrength, and therefore notwithſtanding his dignity the emperor obliged him to fight a huge lion in the Arena, which he did, and killed

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			killed him; the people applauded this victory with ſuch loud and repeated ſhouts, that the emperor jealouſly baniſhed, and ordered him to be murdered in his exile. This year Domitian exhibited extraordinary ſhews of ſea and land fights, &c. but the feaſt he invited the ſenators and knights to is moſt remarkable; at the entrance of the palace the gueſts were received with great ceremony, and conducted into a large gloomy hall, hung with black and filled with coffins, each of which had the name of a ſenator or knight upon it; immediately the doors are burſt open, and a great number of naked men daubed all over with black, with a torch in one hand and a naked ſword in the other, ruſhed in upon them, and danced round them for ſome time, and then proclamation was made all were at liberty to retire home — — —
4398	3091	92	This year wine being very plentiful, and corn very ſcarce, Domitian orders half the vines to be rooted up, and no more to be planted: The Aſians ſend deputies to beg their being excuſed obedience to this law; Scopelianus being admitted, pleaded their cauſe ſo well that Domitian repealed the law abſolutely. This year the kingdom of Chalcis was united to the empire — —	V	681
4399	3092	93	Agricola, the famous governor of Britain, dies, greatly lamented by all, ſuſpected of being poiſoned by order of Domitian — —	V	681
4399	3092	93	The Sarmatians cut a Roman legion with its tribune to pieces —	V	682
4400	3093	94	Domitian's fury and cruelty ran now ſo high, that 'twas treaſon to be noble, capital to be rich, and criminal either to have born or declined honours; the moſt infamous informers are highly careſſed and greatly rewarded. Helvidius, Senecio, and Ruſticus are put to death unjuſtly, and great numbers of lower people butchered and baniſhed, and the philoſophers and profeſſors of all virtuous and commendable ſciences baniſhed Rome by an order of the ſenate —	VII	605
4401	3094	95	Juvenius Celſus heads a conſpiracy againſt Domitian, is diſcovered and pardoned. Domitian put vaſt numbers of Chriſtians to death, and baniſhed many more, upon account of their religion, both in Rome and in all the provinces: Among the ſlain were the emperor's couſin and colleague in the conſulſhip, Flavius Clemens, and his wife and niece, both named Flaviæ Domitillæ, among the baniſhed —	V	685
4402	3095	96	Many prodigies are ſaid to happen this year at Rome and in the provinces; the city was alarmed for eight months ſucceſſively with dreadful claps of thunder and flaſhes of lightning; the capitol, temple of the Flavian family, and emperor's own chamber, were thunder-ſtruck: The oracle at Prænesſte preſages ſlaughter and calamities; Domitian dreams that Minerva had forſaken him; the aſtrologers declare publickly that the 18th of September Domitian would die. Domitian having wrote the names of ſeveral great perſonages upon a paper, his wife Domitia reading it, finds herſelf at the head of them; upon which ſhe communicates it to the reſt; they conſpire and kill him, after he had reigned 15 years and 5 days, and was the laſt of the 12 Cæſars — —	V	687
4402	3095	96	As ſoon as the death of Domitian was known, the ſenate aſſembles and proclaims M. Cocceius Nerva emperor, which the ſoldiers and people confirm: He was a native of Narina in Umbria, a prince of a moſt ſweet and humane temper, &c. under whom the Romans lived as happy as in the former reigns they had been miſerable: He pardons all impriſoned for treaſon, calls home the baniſhed, reſtores the ſequeſtred eſtates, puniſhes informers, aboliſhes the law of majeſty, redreſſes all grievances, and acts with univerſal beneficence towards all ſorts of people — — —	V	690
4403	3096	97	Nerva and L. Virginius Rufus are conſuls: Rufus riſing at the receipt of the faſces to pronounce an oration in praiſe of the emperor, lets fall a book out of his boſom, and ſtooping to take it up, fell down himſelf and broke his leg; being then in the 83d year of his age, the agony whereof occaſioned his death; the emperor orders his obſequies to be made with the utmoſt pomp and magnificence; Cornelius Tacitus the famous hiſtorian pronounces his funeral oration, and ſucceeded him in the conſulate. L. Calpurnius Caſſius is diſcovered in conſpiring againſt Nerva, by whom he and his wife are only baniſhed to Tarentum: Then the prætorian guards, headed by Ælianus Caſpericus their commander, under pretence of revenging the death of Domitian, beſiege Nerva in the palace; he offers himſelf to be ſlain, but they inſiſt upon the conſpirators being delivered up; they cut ſome of them to pieces, and Nerva is forced to deliver up the reſt: He adopts Ulpius Trajan for his ſucceſſor, then commander of a powerful army in Lower Germany, to whom he wrote a letter with his own hand, and preſented him with a very large diamond, aſſociated him in the empire, and loaded him with all the honours of power and majeſty — —	VI	3
4404	3097	98	January 21ſt Nerva dies, in the Saluſtian gardens, after having reigned 16 months and 8 days, is ranked among the gods, and ſucceeded by Trajan, by birth and extraction a Spaniard, lately adopted by Nerva, about 41 years old, well ſkilled both in martial and cabinet affairs, courteous, affable, humane, and juſt: The Germans and Barbarians compliment him upon his advancement, and remain quiet as to the Romans; but the Bructerians are expelled by the Chamavians and Angrivarians by a deciſive battle, in which 60,000 perſons were cut off — — —	VI	5
4405	3098	99	Trajan comes to Rome, and is received with all the demonſtrations of joy poſſible, attended by his wife Pompeia Platina, a lady of extraordinary virtue, wiſdom, and goodneſs: He accepts the title of Optimus, and beſtows plentiful largeſſes upon the ſoldiers and common people, and diſcourages informers —	VI	9
4406	3099	100	Trajan being a third time choſe conſul, binds himſelf by ſolemn oath to obſerve the law; baniſhes Marius Priſcus, proconſul of Africa for extortion, and his accomplices alſo, the accomplices of Claſſicus, proconſul of Bætica, Claſſicus having killed himſelf to avoid being puniſhed —	VI	10
				VI	11

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4406	3099	100	Julia Sabina, grand-daughter to Marciana the emperor's ſiſter, marries Adrian, ſon of Ælius Adrian Afer, couſin to Trajan	VI	11
4407	3100	101	Trajan refuſes to pay the Dacians their annual ſum, therefore king Decebalus croſſed the Danube, and committed hoſtilities: Trajan goes into Dacia, and lays it waſte far and neat, and after much bloodſhed on both ſides, obliged Decebalus to accept of ſuch terms of peace as he thought fit to give him. At his return to Rome he was honoured with a triumph	VII	613
4408	3101	102	Trajan and the ſenate make a law, prohibiting all pleaders taking any fee, preſent, or reward, of their clients, under ſevere penalties	VI	13
4409	3102	103	Trajan builds a noble harbour at Centumcellæ (now Civita Vecchia) and called it by his own name. The governors of Pontus and Bythinia having committed great diſorders, he takes the provinces from the ſenate, and gives them Pamphylia in the room of them, and ſends Pliny as his lieutenant to reform the civil affairs of Pontus and Bythinia	VI	13
4410	3103	104	Sauromates, king of Boſphorus, ſends a ſolemn embaſſy to Trajan, and concludes an alliance with him; and Decebalus king of the Dacians breaks the peace; Trajan goes againſt him, and overcomes him, and builds a bridge over the Danube	VII	613
4411	3104	105	A dreadful earthquake in Aſia overturns the cities of Elea, Myrine, Pitane, and Cumæ; and in Greece the cities of Opus and Oritæ. Adrian attending upon Trajan in his Dacian war, performs wonders, for which Trajan preſents him with the diamond Nerva had given him at the time of his adoption. Trajan takes Zermizegthuſa, the capital of Dacia, and entirely defeats Decebalus, who thereupon put an end to his own life, and Trajan reduces the whole country, and its allies, into a Roman province, governed by a proprætor, and plants Roman colonies in it to keep the people in awe. At his return he had a triumph a ſecond time, and exhibited publick ſhows, &c. for 123 days. Ambaſſadors from India come to congratulate Trajan upon his extraordinary ſucceſs, make him preſents, and conclude an alliance with him	VI	16
4411	3104	105	Aulus Cornelius Palma, governor of Syria, intirely reduces Arabia Petræa to the Roman yoke, which till now was governed by king's of its own	VI	16
4412	3105	106	The Capitoline ſports eſtabliſhed by Domitian are exhibited, when a lad but 13 years old, named L. Valerius Pudens, won the prize of poetry. Trajan at a vaſt expence makes a road through the Palus Pontina, called Via Trajana, the remains whereof are ſtill to be ſeen. A conſpiracy againſt Trajan is diſcovered, and the ſenate baniſh the conſpirators	VI	16
4413	3106	107	Coſrhoes king of Parthia having driven out Exadares from the kingdom of Armenia, to whom Trajan emperor of Rome had given it, and ſet his eldeſt ſon Parthamaſiris upon that throne, Trajan goes to Antioch, where he receives the ambaſſadors and ſubmiſſions of many of the neighbouring princes, and then goes unexpectedly into Armenia, recovers the whole country; and takes Parthamaſiris priſoner. He then goes into Meſopotamia, and reduces it into a Roman province, and is honoured by the ſenate with the ſirnames of Armenicus and Parthicus. Having taken Babylon by ſtorm, and made himſelf maſter of all Chaldea and Aſſyria, he marched to Cteſiphon, the metropolis of the Parthian empire, and took it, and then aſſembling the chief men of the nation, made Parthanaſpales, one of the blood royal, king of Parthia, but tributary to Rome	IV	320
4414 to 4420	3107 to 3113	108 to 114	During this ſpace of time the famous highway from Beneventum to Brunduſium was made by Trajan. The Pantheon at Rome was burnt by lightning, and ſeveral cities in Galatia were overturned by an earthquake, and the great ſquare at Rome was dedicated	VI	20
4418	3111	112	Adrian is made archon or chief magiſtrate of Athens	VI	20
4421	3114	115	A moſt terrible earthquake, attended with dreadful ſtorms of thunder and lightning, deſtroys the greateſt part of Antioch, where the emperor Trajan with his great army, and a vaſt number of ambaſſadors and their retinue were; the buildings are generally thrown down, or ſwallowed up, and great numbers of people killed and wounded; among the wounded was Trajan himſelf	VI	21
4422	3115	116	The ſenate and people of Rome return the emperor Trajan ſolemn thanks for his making the port of Ancona. Trajan reduces Arabia Felix to a Roman province. The Jews revolt in Alexandria. and all Egypt, Syria, and the other provinces, committing moſt horrid ravages and monſtrous barbarities; Marcius Turbo is ſent againſt them, and defeats them, but does not quiet them	VI	23
4422	3115	116	In Cyprus the Jews are all cut off to a man, and Luſius Quietus defeats them in a pitched battle in Meſopotamia, cuts great numbers of them to pieces, and drives the reſt out of the country. Moſt of the conquered nations in the eaſt revolt, and cut the Roman gariſons to pieces, but after much bloodſhed are again reduced	VI	24
4423	3116	117	Trajan beſieges Atra, the metropolis of the Hagareni in Arabia, who had revolted, but is ſo vigorouſly oppoſed, that he is forced to raiſe the ſiege; and upon his return to Selinus, (afterwards called Trajanopolis) in Cilicia, was taken violently ill with a dropſy, palſy, and a flux, ſo that he died there, after he had reigned 19 years, 6 months, and 15 days: Upon news of his death Adrian cauſed himſelf to be proclaimed emperor at Antioch, where he then was. Trajan's body was burnt at Selinus, and his aſhes carried to Rome by his wife Plotina and his niece Matidia, in a golden urn, where they were received with the higheſt honour, and depoſited under the ſtately column himſelf had erected, though within the walls, where no one before had been buried	VI	25
4423	3116	117	Adrian writes to the ſenate, deſires them to confirm to him the title of emperor, promiſes to rule with juſtice, &c. abandons Armenia, Meſopotamia, and Aſſyria,

Y. of world	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pg.
			making the Euphrates the bound of the Roman empire: He allowed the Armenians liberty to chooſe them a king, permitted the Parthians to recal Coſrhoes, ſent him his daughter, whom Trajan had taken priſoner, and all his priſoners without ranſom; and Parthamaſpates he made king of another place; he would have abandoned Dacia, but was over-ruled, but broke down the famous bridge Trajan had built over the Danube; then appointed Catilius Severus governor of Syria, and ſet forwards towards Rome
4424	3117	118	Adrian comes to Rome, is received with great reſpect by all degrees of people, refuſes the triumph decreed him, remits all debts whatſoever, and burns all bonds, &c. to the amount of upwards of 7,000.000 l. ſterl.	VI	31
4425	3118	119	The European Sarmatians break into Illyricum with great fury; but upon Adrian's arriving at Mæſia, they retire and paſs the Danube, and the Roman horſe ſwimming after them, ſo terrifies them, that they ſue for peace, which is granted them	VI	34
4325	3118	119	Adrian writes to the ſenate from Illyricum, complaining of Cornelius Palma, Celſus Nigrinus, and Quietus, as if they had formed a conſpiracy againſt him, and tho' they were all conſular men, the ſenate put them to death, without ſo much as acquainting them they were accuſed. The emperor coming into Campania, relieves with great generoſity the poor in all the cities he paſſed through	VII	606
4426	3119	120	Adrian begins a progreſs, in order to viſit all the provinces of the empire, and enquire into the ſtate and condition of all his people; and firſt he viſits Gaul, then Germany, then Britain, where being informed what troubleſome neighbours the Caledonians, or Scots, were, ordered a mighty wall to be built from the river Eden in Cumberland to the Tine in Northumberland, 80 miles in length; then returns to Gaul, and goes into Spain, and from thence returns to Rome	VI	34
4429	3122	123	Adrian goes to Athens, and builds a bridge over the Cephiſus, that had overflowed and greatly damaged the city of Eleuſina, and from Athens he goes into the eaſt.	VI	35
4430	3123	124	Adrian returning from the eaſt, comes through Cilicia, Lycia, Pamphylia, Cappadocia, Bythinia, and Phrygia, ordering temples, ſquares, and other publick buildings to be erected at his expence in moſt of the great cities through which he paſſed	VI	35
4431	3124	125	Adrian having viſited the iſlands in the Archipelago, from thence goes to Achaia, and winters at Athens, where he is initiated in the rites of Ceres and Proſerpine, called the Eleuſinian myſteries	VI	36
4432	3125	126	Adrian after preſiding at the publick games at Athens, ſailed to Sicily, and goes to the top of Mount Ætna, to view the riſing ſun, ſaid to exhibit the various colours of the rainbow, and then returns to Rome	VI	36
4435	3128	129	The cities of Nicomedia, Cæſarea, and Nicæa in Bythinia, were overturned by an earthquake, but rebuilt at the emperor's expence, for which he was called the reſtorer of Bythinia	VI	36
4435	3128	129	Adrian leaves Rome and goes into Africa, where upon his arrival, it rained plentifully, after a five years droughth; here and in all places he comes to he gains the affections of the people by his humanity and good-nature: Upon his return to Rome, Plotina dying, the emperor honours her with the greateſt funeral ſolemnity, bewails her, compoſes verſes in honour of her, and ranks her among the gods	VI	36
4436	3129	130	Adrian builds a moſt ſumptuous temple at Rome in honour of the city and Venus, called the temple of Rome, and he changed the name of the annual feaſt kept for the foundation of Rome on the 21ſt of April from Palilia to Romana: When the temple of Rome was finiſhed, Adrian ſends the model of it to the famous architect Appollodorus to examine, who finding ſome juſt but great fault in it, ſpoke his mind freely, and was firſt baniſhed and ſoon after put to death, for the liberty he took, though ordered ſo to do	VI	37
4436	3129	130	Adrian goes again through Greece into Aſia, where he invited all the neighbouring kings to a conference, ſeveral of which came perſonally, and are treated with great magnificence. In Syria he went to the top of Mount Caſſius near Antioch to view the riſing ſun, and to ſacrifice to Jupiter: From thence he goes into Paleſtine, Arabia, and Egypt	VI	37
4437	3130	131	Salvius Julianus, a very learned civilian, compoſed the ſeveral Roman edicts and laws then in force into one, called the Edictum perpetuum, which was to be a ſtanding rule for the whole empire. Adrian orders Alexandria, the capital of Egypt, to be in part repaired, and in part rebuilt, and the privileges of the inhabitants to be reſtored, and increaſed the antient Muſeum in the palace, with the addition of a new one, endowed with large revenues, &c.	VI	38
4438	3131	132	Adrian in his paſſage through Lybia Cyrenaica hunts and kills a mighty lion that had deſtroyed great numbers of the people. Antoninus, a moſt beautiful youth that that was pathic to Adrian, is drowned in the Nile; Adrian bewails his loſs with great grief, gets him placed among the gods by the Greeks, and at Mantinea in Arcadia Adrian erected a magnificent temple to him, inſtituted ſolemn ſports, and appointed prieſts to offer victims to him	VI	38
4441	3134	135	The Jazygians ſend ambaſſadors to Rome to renew their alliance with Adrian, who receives them very graciouſly, and complies with their requeſt	VII	706
4441	3134	135	Adrian having formerly been made archon of Athens, being now there, aſſumes the habit peculiar to that office, celebrates the great feſtival of Bacchus, and diſtributes large quantities of corn and money among the populace, and embeliſhes the city with ſeveral ſtately buildings, particularly a library of wonderful ſtructure, and conſecrated by himſelf and finiſhed the magnificent temple of Jupiter Olympus, begun 560 years before. One quarter of the city from him was called Adrianopolis: Theſe matters ended, he returned towards the cloſe of the year to Rome	VI	42

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4441	3134	135	Pharasmanes king of Iberia being complained of by Vologeses king of Armenia to Adrian, he comes to Rome, with his wife, son, and a great retinue, to answer the complaints, making great presents to Adrian; Adrian returns them with more magnificent ones, and after entertaining him very splendidly, sends him home with great honour	VI	43
4442	3135	136	Adrian having changed the name of Jerusalem into Ælia Capitolina, after the name of his own family, and erected a temple to Jupiter Capitolinus upon the spot where the Jewish temple formerly stood, and also planted a Roman colony in the city, so provoked the Jews, that they broke out into a rebellion under one Barcoquebas, or Cozeb, who pretended to be the Messiah, whom they chose for their king, and over-run all Judea and Syria, committing dreadful outrages, but particularly exerted their utmost cruelties against the Christians. Tinnius Rufus, commander in Judea, being reinforced, falls upon the rebellious Jews, and puts all to the sword, men, women, and children, that fell into his hands; but the Jews growing formidable by the accession of other people to their party, Adrian sends Julius Severus governor of Britain against them. The Jews took Jerusalem, and massacred all the Romans settled there: Severus retakes it, and reduces it to ashes, and ploughs up the ground whereon the temple had stood. In the month of August in this year vast numbers of the Jews retired to Bether, a strong city a small distance from Jerusalem, where Severus besieged them so straitly that vast numbers were starved to death, and the rest taken a small time after. In a general battle Barcoquebas was taken prisoner, and his army utterly routed. In this war the Romans demolished 50 strong castles, 985 towns, and killed 580,000 men, besides an innumerable quantity that perished by famine, fire, and sickness: The Romans lost likewise abundance of their best troops: Those Jews that remained were sold for slaves; and the emperor and senate publish an edict, forbidding them for ever upon pain of death to set foot in Jerusalem, or any place from whence it might be seen; even those Jews that embraced Christianity were also prohibited, which quite delivered the church from the servitude of the law, for till that time the bishops of Jerusalem had often been chosen from among the circumcised Christians, who joined the observance of the law to that of the gospel	VI	41
4442	3135	136	Adrian now in the 60th year of his age, and in a very infirm state of health, names L. Aurelius Annius Ceionius Commodus Verus to be his successor, upon which largesses were given to the soldiers and people, and publick shows exhibited. Verus is made prætor, and sent governor into Pannonia, which he discharged with great applause	VI	43
4442	3135	136	Adrian retires to Tibur (now called Tivoli) and builds a magnificent Villa, the ruins whereof are still to be seen. Here he falls into a flux, and lets loose his natural cruelty, which till now he had restrained, and ordered several illustrious persons to be arraigned and executed, and others to be privately murdered: Among the former was his brother-in-law Servianus, aged 90 years, and his great nephew Fuscus, aged 18 years	VI	44
4442	3135	136	Julius Severus after his reduction of the rebellious Jews was made governor of Bythinia, which office he discharged so well, that his name was honoured by the people for 100 years after his death	VI	44
4443	3136	137	Adrian orders Jerusalem to be again rebuilt by the name of Ælia Capitolina, and peoples it partly by a Roman colony he sent thither, and partly by such of the neighbouring people as were not Jews	VI	41
4443	3136	137	Verus returns from Pannonia to Rome, and being greatly indisposed, takes a medicine, which proving too strong for him, kills him: He was buried with great pomp, and placed among the gods. This done, Adrian adopts Titus Antoninus. The empress Sabina dies, and Adrian places her among the gods. Adrian's illness increases with such acute pains, that he begs to be stabbed, poisoned, or any way dispatched; but can neither get it done by others, nor means to do it himself: He orders several persons to be put to death, whom Antoninus saves. Removing to Baiæ in Campania, he died, 10th of July 138, after he had reigned 20 years and 11 months wanting one day, being 62 years, 5 months, and 17 days old: His body was burnt at Puteoli, and his ashes carried to Rome, and deposited in the magnificent Mausoleum he had built for himself near the Tiber, and ranked among the gods, and divine honours decreed him	VI	46
4444	3137	138	The church at Jerusalem being now composed only of converted Gentiles, or native Christians, St. Mark was appointed bishop there, in which office he continued 18 years	VI	41
4444	3137	138	The Dacians revolt, but are immediately reduced to their duty by the Romans	VII	613
4444	3137	138	Lollius Urbicus, the Roman governor of Britain, having driven back the Barbarians that had broke into the Roman territories, built a new wall from Brampton in Cumberland to the river Esk	VII	432
4444	3137	138	Antoninus succeeds Adrian in the empire, whom the senate honour with various names of distinction, and his wife Faustina with that of Augusta. He enters and continues his reign with paying great respect to the senatorial and equestrian orders, lessens the tributes, promotes men of merit, favours men of learning, and builds many magnificent structures, &c.	VI	56
4445	3138	139	Antoninus marries his daughter Annia Faustina to Marcus Aurelius, whom he created Cæsar, and though but quæstor, by request of the senate, named him for the next year's consul with himself	VI	57
4446	3139	140	Antoninus finishes the famous aqueduct begun three years before by Adrian in New Athens in the island of Delos	VI	57
4447	3140	141	Faustina the empress dies; and though she had lived but a lewd life, Antoninus honours her with divine worship, priests, temples, gold and silver statues, publick games, &c.	VI	57

Ys of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pa.
4448	3141	142	Antoninus inſtitutes ſolemn ſports at Puteoli in honour of Adrian, called Pia and Pialia, which were to be celebrated the 2d year in each Olympiad
4451	3144	145	Antoninus conſecrates the temple he had built to the honour of Adrian, and upon this occaſion diſtributes large ſums of money among the populace	VI	57
4452	3145	146	Diſturbances being raiſed in Germany and Dacia, are compoſed by the care of the governors of thoſe parts; and the Alani attempting to invade the Roman dominions, are drove back with great loſs	VI	57
4453	3146	147	This being the 900th year of Rome, Antoninus celebrates the ſecular games, with great pomp and magnificence	VI	58
4454	3147	148	The Moors take up arms againſt the Romans, but are driven out of their own country, and forced to ſhelter themſelves in the moſt diſtant parts of Lybia, beyond Mount Atlas	VI	58
4458	3151	152	Juſtin Martyr publiſhed his firſt Apology in behalf of the Chriſtians, and preſented it to the emperor, his adopted ſons, and the ſenate; which had ſo good an effect, that the emperor Antoninus wrote to the governor of Aſia in favour of them throughout the whole province	VI	58
4459	3152	153	The Tiber overflowing its banks, laid the lower parts of Rome under water; a great fire deſtroyed a large part of the city, and a famine ſtarved a great number of its inhabitants: The ſame year the cities of Narbonne in Gaul, Antioch in Syria, and the great ſquare at Carthage were in great part conſumed by accidental fire, but ſoon reſtored to their former ſplendor by the care and at the expence of Antoninus	VI	58
4459	3152	153	L. Verus, one of Antoninus's adopted ſons, being quæſtor, exhibited publick ſhews on that occaſion, preſiding at the ſame, ſitting between the emperor and M. Aurelius	VI	59
4462	3155	156	The cities of Cos and Rhodes, with ſeveral others in Lycia and Caria, were overturned by a violent earthquake; but by the munificence of Antoninus ſoon reſtored to their former ſplendor	VI	59
4467	3160	161	M. Aurelius Cæſar the 3d time, and L. Verus the 2d, are this year's conſuls at Rome, during whoſe conſulates the emperor is taken ill of a violent fever at Lorium, one of his country ſeats, and dies the 7th of March, aged 73 years, 5 months, and 16 days, having reigned 22 years, 7 months, and 26 days, having firſt confirmed the adoption of M. Aurelius, and ordered the golden image of fortune to be removed out of his own chamber into that of Aurelius's, in the preſence of the two captains of the prætorian guards: He left his paternal eſtate to his daughter, and legacies to all his friends and domeſticks: He died univerſally lamented, and was honoured with the utmoſt funeral pomp, and buried with Adrian in his magnificent Mauſoleum; both Aurelius and Verus pronounced a funeral oration for him; the ſenate deified him, built him a temple, and appointed him prieſts, ſacrifices, and annual ſports	VI	59
4467	3160	161	Upon the death of Antoninus, M. Aurelius takes Lucius Verus partner with him in the ſovereignty; ſo that now Rome was governed by two emperors: Lucius acts ſubordinately to Aurelius, and both with great unanimity and gentleneſs	VI	59
4468	3161	162	A dreadful inundation of the Tiber overthrows many private and ſome publick buildings, carries away a great number of cattle and people, and lays the country for a great diſtance under water; this was followed by earthquakes, conflagrations in ſeveral provinces, and a general infection in the air, and a famine in Rome, which the two emperors took great care to ſupply with corn, &c. from diſtant places, at their own expence, &c.	VI	63
4468	3161	162	Commotions and revolts being in Britain, the emperor Aurelius ſends Calpurnius Agricola thither, who ſoon quieted and brought them to ſubjection	VII	432
4468	3161	162	The Alani breaking into Media, at that time ſubject to the Parthians, committed great devaſtations; but being bribed by Vologeſes II. with large ſums of money to return home, Vologeſes fell unexpectedly upon Armenia, and drove out Sohemus, the king the Romans had ſet up, and cut the Roman legions all off to a man, under the command of Severinus, a Gaul, governor of Cappadocia, who came to the aſſiſtance of Sohemus, and then invaded Syria, and defeated with great ſlaughter Attilius Cornelianus, governor of that province, and advanced to Antioch, putting all the Romans and their favourers to the ſword, upon account that Antoninus had not returned the golden throne formerly taken from the Parthians, and promiſed to be reſtored by Adrian: Upon this the emperor Verus comes into Syria, drives out the Parthians, and ſends Statius Priſcus into Armenia, and Caſſius and Martius Verus into Parthia. Priſcus drove the Parthians out of Armenia in one campaign, though with great loſs of his own men. Caſſius in ſeveral encounters with Vologeſes, though he had an army of 400,000 men, in four years time reduced all the provinces that had ſubmitted to Trajan, having in the laſt deciſive battle at Europa in Syria, on the Euphrates, killed him 370,000 men, with the loſs only of two Romans; he took Seleucia, and burnt and plundered Babylon and Cteſiphon, with the ſtately palaces of the Parthian monarchs, and ſtruck terror into the moſt diſtant provinces. Having thus put an end to the war, in his return he loſt above half of his men by ſickneſs and famine, the emperor Verus remaining all the while at Antioch, or Daphne, wallowing in pleaſures and debaucheries, and in his return to Italy carried the plague with him, that deſtroyed a vaſt number of his own men, and many more of the Italians, &c.	IV	321
4469	3162	163	Sohemus king of Armenia is reſtored to his kingdom by the wiſe and prudent management of Martius Verus the Roman general, under the protection of the Romans, to whom he paid tribute	VI	65
4470	3163	164	The Roman emperor Aurelius ſends his daughter Lucilla into Syria, to be married to his colleague in the empire, Lucius Verus, then at Antioch, attended by many noble perſonages	VI	65

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Pag
4471	3164	165	Cassius the Roman general having universally subdued Vologeses, comes to Seleucia, where the city immediately submits, and opens its gates, but Cassius orders the inhabitants to the number of 400,000 to be put to the sword, and the city to be utterly demolished	VI	65
4471	3164	165	The Marcomans and Romans having been at war many years, now terminate all differences, and conclude a peace	VII	601
4472	3165	166	The two emperors, M. Aurelius and Lucius Verus, triumph at Rome upon account of the great conquests obtained over Vologeses, &c. and by the senate are surnamed Parthicus. L. Verus begs that the title of Cæsar might be conferred on the two sons of Aurelius, viz. Commodus and Annius Verus, which was accordingly done the 12th of October	VI	65
4473	3166	167	Many German nations having revolted from the Romans, both the emperors go with great armies against them, upon whose approach the Germans are so terrified, that they repassed the Danube, and put the ringleaders of the revolt to death, and beg for peace	VI	66
4475	3168	169	The Germans having again renewed the war, and committed great ravages, laid waste provinces, and defeated Vindex the Roman general, and cut both him and most of his troops to pieces, both emperors leave Rome, and repair in the depth of winter to Aquileia, but are forced to retire upon account of the plague raging there vehemently; in their return L. Verus was taken with an apoplectic fit, and died; he is carried to Rome, and interred with great funeral pomp in the Mausoleum of Adrian	VI	67
4476	3169	170	The Romans and Germans engage with incredible fury, but at last the Romans are put to flight with the loss of 20,000 men; upon which the Marcomans enter Italy, and make dreadful devastations. The plague having much weakned the Romans, they are forced to admit the slaves, gladiators, and banditti into the army; and to raise money Aurelius sells the furniture of his palace, melts his gold and silver images, &c. The emperor marries his daughter Lucilla, widow of Verus, to Claudius Pompeianus, a knight of great fame for his wisdom, and integrity. This year the emperor's son Annius Verus Cæsar dies at Palestrina, in the 7th year of his age	VI	69
4476	3169	170	M. Aurelius drives the Vandals (who were a part of the Goths originally, but thus called from the word Vandelem, a wanderer, they roving from place to place in great numbers to find a better country than their own,) out of Pannonia, where they had settled, pursues them to the Danube, and cuts many of them to pieces as they attempted to cross that river	VII	528
4476	3169	170	The emperor again going against the Germans (over whom he obtained several victories) leaves his son Commodus under the care of Pitholaus, his chief chamberlain at Rome, ordering him to employ no other physician (if he should want one) than Galen, who now resided there	VI	69
4476	3169	170	The Egyptians revolt, and kill many Romans and their friends, but by the address and management of Cassius are reduced. The Moors invade Spain, and commit horrid devastations, but are at last subdued by the several lieutenants of the provinces	VI	70
4477	3170	171	The emperor Aurelius having gained several victories over the Germans, is stiled Germanicus, and so is his son Commodus	VI	70
4480	3173	174	Aurelius and his army being blocked up among impassable mountains by the Germans, are ready to perish for thirst, and are miraculously relieved by a violent storm of thunder, lightning and rain, obtained by the prayers of the Christian soldiers in the Melitine legion; whereby instead of being conquered he became conqueror; as a reward for which the emperor soon after enacted a law, that those who accused a Christian upon account of religion should be severely punished	VI	72
4481	3174	175	The emperor leaves 20,000 men in the country of the Marcomans and Quadi, which so harrass them, that they resolve to quit their native country and settle somewhere else; but being prevented by the emperor, and reduced by famine, the Quadi send ambassadors to sue for peace, and with them 13,000 prisoners they had taken, which was granted them; but they soon broke it, and deposed their king Furtius for opposing them, and set up one Ariogeses in his room; which Aurelius so resented, that though they offered to set 50,000 prisoners they had taken at liberty, if he would conclude a peace and confirm Ariogeses, both which he refused, and set a price upon the head of Ariogeses; they being joined by several other nations, a general battle is fought, wherein the Germans are entirely overthrown, and Ariogeses taken prisoner, upon which they offer to accept of peace upon such terms as the emperor thought fit to grant them, which put an end to this destructive war	VI	73
4481	3174	175	Cassius the famous Roman general that had reduced the Parthians, &c. revolts, and sets up for emperor in the east, and is joined by a great number of soldiers and neighbouring princes: M. Aurelius sets out to go against him, but receives word that he was killed and soon after has his head brought to him, and so for this time ended the war in the east	VI	77
4481	3174	175	Aurelius goes into the east, and takes his wife Faustina and his son Commodus with him, and made his son-in-law Pompeianus consul: Faustina dies at Halala, a village at the foot of Mount Taurus, said to be a very vicious woman, yet he honoured her by placing her among the gods, &c. and built a city, and put a colony in the place where she died, calling it Faustinopolis, and erected a temple in it to her honour	VI	79
4482	3175	176	Aurelius arriving in the east, pardons all that had joined Cassius except the inhabitants of Antioch, who had been more than ordinary zealous for Cassius; he deprived them of their privileges, suppressed their publick assemblies, and took their shew from them, but soon after forgave them, and restored to them all he had

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			taken from them; and then going into Egypt, he not only forgave, but added ſeveral privileges to Alexandria; from hence he went to Smyrna, and then to Athens, where his beneficence was greatly diſplayed by eſtabliſhing publick profeſſors with large ſalaries, in all ſciences, and then returned to Italy, and on the 23d of December he and his ſon Commodus entered Rome in triumph	VI
4483	3176	177	Aurelius Commodus Cæſar (the emperor's ſon) and Quintillus being conſuls, the emperor forgave all debts due to himſelf and the treaſury, and gave a large ſum to the Smyrnians to rebuild their city, which had lately been deſtroyed by an earthquake	VI	79
4484	3177	178	Aurelius marries his ſon Commodus to Criſpina, the daughter of Bruttius Præſens, and then marches with his ſon Commodus againſt the Marcommanni the 5th of Auguſt	VI	79
4485	3178	179	The Romans under the command of Paternus engage ſeveral revolted nations of the Germans, and intirely defeat them	VI	80
4486	3179	180	The emperor M. Aurelius dies at Sirmium, now Sirmich, in Sclavonia, of the plague, that had been in Italy for ſeveral years paſt, the 17th of March, aged 58 years, 10 months, and 22 days, having reigned nineteen years and ten days, univerſally lamented, and his aſhes were depoſited in Adrian's Mauſoleum; he was immediately ranked among the gods, a temple erected, and prieſts appointed, and whoever had not ſome ſtatue or image of Aurelius was eſteemed a ſacrilegious perſon	VI	80
4486	3179	180	Commodus ſucceeds his father in the Roman empire, being the firſt emperor born in his father's reign, and the ſecond that ſucceeded his father in the empire; he is commonly called L. Ælius Aurelius Commodus, and ſometimes Commodus Antoninus, and though educated with great care by his father, proved a moſt lewd, cruel, and wicked tyrant; he grants the Quadi and Marcommanni peace, and of others nations he purchaſed peace, &c. to return to Rome, where he is met by the ſenate with the higheſt marks of honour; he was, after viſiting the capitol and other temples, the 22d of October conducted to the palace	VI	80
4490	3173	184	Ulpius Marcellus, governor in Britain, drives the Caledonians, or Scots, out of the Roman province in Britain, where they had committed horrid ravages, and cut off a Roman army, and ſo ſettles all things quiet again	VI	87
4490	3173	184	Commodus diſcards all his father's friends and counſellors, and employs only his debauched companions, or their friends, whereby he gains the hatred of all his ſubjects by means of the cruelties and hardſhips put upon them by his debauched officers: His ſiſter Lucilla, with ſeveral great men, conſpire to kill him; but not ſucceeding, they are put to death. The empreſs Criſpina, for imitating her huſband's debaucheries, is firſt baniſhed, and afterwards murdered in the iſland Capreæ. Four conſulars of great note are falſly accuſed and put to death this year, and the ruling conſuls baniſhed	VII	432
4492	3175	186	While Commodus was aſſiſting at the Capitoline ſports, a perſon dreſſed like a cynic philoſopher told the emperor, that Perennis (his great favourite and prime miniſter) and his children were plotting his death: Perennis ſeized him as a madman, but burnt him alive: Soon after the matter was plainly diſcovered, and Perennis, his wife, ſiſter, and two ſons were put to death; but the emperor being in great fear changed the captain of his guards almoſt daily	VI	89
4493	3176	187	Maternus, a common ſoldier among the Romans, having deſerted, is joined by many more and the banditti; at laſt, being very numerous, he over-run and plundered a great part of Gaul and Spain: Peſcennius Niger with a proper force is ſent againſt him, and brought him into great ſtraits; upon which Maternus divides his army into many ſmall parties, and ſends them privately into different parts of Italy with a view to kill the emperor at the annual feaſt of the mother of the gods, and to ſeize the empire: They all arrive at Rome undiſcovered, and mix with the emperor's guards; but being betrayed by ſome of their own party, Maternus was ſeized and executed, which put an end to the whole affair. A dreadful plague broke out that laſted three years, and which, in Rome only, frequently carried off 2000 in a day	VI	89
4494	3177	188	Commodus gave out that he was going to Africa, and therefore extorted large ſums to defray his expences, and ſuffered the people to offer up ſolemn vows for his ſafe return, but ſtaid in Rome or its neighbourhood, ſquandering all the money away in debauchery	VI	90
4494	3187	188	Great part of the capitol, a famous library, and ſeveral contiguous buildings in Rome were deſtroyed this year by lightning; ſome ſay it deſtroyed whole quarters of the city, and therein ſeveral libraries. At the ſame time a dreadful famine was in Rome, occaſioned by Cleander the emperor's favourite's buying up all the corn, &c. to ingratiate himſelf with the ſoldiers and people by diſtributing it among them gratis, and ſo get to be choſe emperor; but being univerſally hated for his cruelty and tyranny, the people roſe againſt him, and could not be appeaſed till the emperor cut off his head, and ſent it to them, which they treated with all the inſults poſſible, and murdered his wife, children, and friends, with the utmoſt fury	VI	91
4495	3188	189	Pertinax is recalled from being governor of Britain, at his own requeſt, and charged with the care of providing the city with corn, &c. inſtead of Dionyſius Papirius, who was put to death, and all his accomplices, for concurring in the monopolizing thereof to the publick detriment	VI	91
4496	3189	190	Commodus being now a ſixth time in the conſulate, and being jealous of every body upon account of the ſeveral plots that had been diſcovered againſt him, he abandoned himſelf to bloodſhed and cruelty without controul, putting to death Petronius Mamertinus, his brother-in-law Antoninus, his ſon Annia Fauſtina, (couſin-germain to M. Aurelius) Sulpicius Craſſus, proconſul of Aſia, and

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
			six consulars, besides many more of lesser rank, in one day, and all who were related to Avidius Crassus to be burnt alive	VI	91
4497	3190	191	The magnificent temple of peace built at Rome by Vespasian, wherein he put all the riches he brought from the temple of Jerusalem, is burnt by lightning; it was used as a common repository for the rich to lodge their jewels, &c. in, and for the merchants to house their spices and rich drugs brought from Egypt, Africk, &c. the fire spreading, consumed many other stately and common buildings, with the temple of Vesta, and good part of the palace	VI	92
4498	3191	192	The Romans are defeated by the Saracens, for the first time mentioned in history	VI	92
4498	3191	192	Severus, who commanded in Illyricum, and Nonius Marcus, another general, aspiring at the sovereignty, Commodus appointed Clodius Albinus governor of Britain, and in a letter wrote to him with his own hand, allowed him to take the name of Cæsar, and the ornaments peculiar to that dignity, in case any disturbance arose, but he refused them. Commodus gives himself up to all manner of folly, acting among the players, changing the names of the months, all which the senate indulge him in, and comply with; but having communicated to his beloved Marcia and the two captains of his guards, that he would have the two consuls elect for the ensuing year murdered, and that he would be consul himself, and would march the next morning from the school of the gladiators, in their dress, attended only by that set of men, and not from the palace, like a magistrate, &c. Marcia gave him poison, but that not working effectually quick enough, his favourite Narcissus strangled him the last night of the year, being the 31st of December 192, aged 31 years and 4 months, having reigned 12 years, 9 months, and 14 days: In a palace that stood on Mount Cælius 'twas given out, that he died of an apoplexy; the senate immediately assembled, declared him a publick enemy, loaded him with curses, ordered his statues to be thrown down, his name to be razed out of all publick inscriptions, and demanded his body that it might be dragged through the streets and thrown into the Tiber	VI	94
4499	3192	193	Pertinax is prevailed with to accept the empire, but the prætorian guards murmur, and on the 28th of March following 300 of them went to the palace armed, and murdered him, after he had reigned only 87 days; Septimius Severus succeeded him in the empire, and took the name also of Pertinax, and punished with great severity all those who were concerned in the murder of the late Pertinax, and disbanded the prætorian guards, gave the deceased prince great funeral honours, ranked him among the gods, and appointed his son to be his chief priest; the day of his accession was annually celebrated with the Circensian games, and his birthday with other sports for many years after	VI	99
4499	3192	193	The soldiers cutting off the head of Pertinax, set it up, and proclaimed the empire to the best bidder. Fulvius Sulpicianus, father-in-law to Pertinax, and Didius Julianus bid against one another; at last Julianus bids 6250 drachmas a man, to be immediately paid down, and was proclaimed by the whole camp, and at their request appointed Flavius Genialis and Tullius Crispinus commanders of the prætorian guards, and takes himself the title of Commodus; after the usual ceremonies the prætorian guards accompanied him in battle array to the senate; the people made no opposition, but gave no sign of joy or approbation; the senate acknowledge him, and next morning he receives them very graciously, when he went to the capitol, the people cursed him, and openly threw stones at him: While this was doing at Rome, Pescennius Niger, governor of Syria, revolted, and is declared emperor in the east. Severus was declared emperor in Illyricum, and sends the title of Cæsar to Albinus governor in Britain, and promised to adopt him; Albinus takes the title, cloathed with all the badges of his new authority, at the head of his army; the senate declare Severus an enemy to his country, and all his soldiers likewise, if they did not forsake him by a certain time. Julianus prepares to receive Severus, fortifies the palace, ordered Marcia and Lætus (authors of the death of Commodus) to be murdered; and hired abundance of assassins to murder Severus, caused an incredible number of children to be butchered to mingle their blood with magick rites. Severus comes to Ravenna, takes the city and the fleet riding there. Severus is declared partner with Julianus in the empire by the senate; Severus rejects the offer, and cuts Crispinus, captain of the prætorian guards, who brought it, to pieces. Julianus writes to Pompeianus, son-in-law to M. Aurelius, to take him in a partner in the empire, but he refuses. The troops Julianus sent to guard the passes of the Apennine mountains go over to Severus, and the guards also revolt from him who set him up; upon which he retires into the palace, and the senate meet, depose him, and sentence him to death, declaring Severus emperor, and bestow divine honours upon Pertinax. Julianus was beheaded, when he had reigned two months and six days. 100 persons of distinction go to meet and congratulate Severus in the name of the senate, &c. Severus severely punished all who had any hand in the death of Pertinax, and ordered the soldiers of the prætorian guards to meet him unarmed, when he degraded and banished them 100 miles from Rome. Severus entered Rome attended with all his troops under arms, and the prætorian standards reversed. At the gate he dismounted, and put on the senatorial robe, and marched on foot, attended by the senators in their robes, with crowns of laurel on their heads, he wearing the same, being cloathed in white, the streets strewed with flowers, and the windows adorned with tapistry; after visiting the capitol, and the usual temples, he retired to the palace; but the soldiers quartering in the temples, porticoes, &c. spread all over the city, and commit great disorders: when Severus went next day to the senate, the soldiers with a dreadful cry demand of the senate the like sum that

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			was paid to the troops of Auguſtus; the emperor could not pacify them without promiſing them 250 drachmas a man in part of 2500. Severus promiſes the ſenate to govern with equity, gentleneſs, &c. the ſenate confer all the titles belonging to the imperial dignity on him, and inveſt him with the tribunitial and procontular power, and make him high pontiff, &c. He begs the ſenate to confirm the title of Cæſar to Clodius Albinus, gave large ſums among the ſoldiery, and enrolled the late emperor Pertinax among the gods, with extraordinary pomp, &c. put to death, &c. all the friends and adherents of the late depoſed and murdered Julianus, and choſe four times as many guards as thoſe he had depoſed. Severus married his two daughters to Probus and Aetius, and gave them both conſular dignity. Having ſettled all things in Rome, he goes againſt Niger in the eaſt; Niger having made himſelf maſter of all Greece, Macedon, and Thrace, offers to take Severus a partner with him in the empire —	VI	108
4500	3193	194	Æmilianus, general of Niger's troops, is engaged by the generals of Severus, defeated, and afterwards taken in Cyzicus and killed. Niger and Candidus, one of the generals of Severus, engage with great fury, but at laſt Niger is forced to fly beyond the Straits of Mount Taurus. Severus offers Niger his life and ſafety if he would lay down his arms; but being diverted by Aurelianus, whoſe daughters were betrothed to his ſons, retired to Antioch. Laodicea and Tyre declaring for Severus, Niger ſends a body of Moors, who pillaged theſe cities, put the inhabitants to the ſword, and ſet fire to the houſes. Severus and Niger engage again, on the very ſpot where Alexander the Great beat Darius, near the city of Iſſus, called Pylæ Ciliciæ, where Niger is entirely routed with the loſs of 20,000 men: Niger retires to Antioch, and from thence was flying to Parthia, but was overtaken and beheaded; Severus cauſed his head to be firſt ſhewn to the Byzantines, and then ſent to Rome. Severus puniſhes with extream rigour all thoſe who had ſided with Niger, ſo that a prodigious number of all ranks were put to death, and many baniſhed, and their eſtates confiſcated —	VI	110
4501	3194	195	Severus, at the entreaty of his eldeſt ſon, reſtores the city of Antioch to all the privileges he had taken from it upon account of eſpouſing the cauſe of Niger; and obliged all the cities that had furniſhed Niger with money, to give him four times as much as they had given Niger —	VI	110
4502	3195	196	Severus takes Byzantium, after a ſiege of three years, the Byzantines being forced to ſurrender after having in part devoured one another: The magiſtrates and ſoldiers were all put to death; the city, the moſt wealthy, large, ſtrong and magnificent, reduced to aſhes; the inhabitants ſtript of all their effects, and ſold for ſlaves, and the walls razed —	VI	111
4502	3195	196	Severus writes to Albinus governor of Britain a very complimental letter, profeſſing great friendſhip, &c. but orders the meſſengers to ſtab or poiſon him; but he diſcovering the plot, declares himſelf emperor, and comes into Gaul, where Albinus is joined by many great men, both Gauls and Spaniards. Severus haſtens into Gaul, and at Viminacium declares Baſſianus his eldeſt ſon Cæſar, and calls him M. Aurelius Antoninus. Albinus defeats the troops of Severus; The ſenate declares Albinus a publick enemy. One Numerianus, who kept a grammar ſchool in Rome, goes into Gaul, pretends to be a ſenator endowed with power to raiſe troops for Severus, does ſo, and gains ſome advantages over Albinus: Severus ſends him a commiſſion at large; he forms an army, and defeats Albinus, and takes a great ſum of money, which he delivers to Severus, who offers him great honours, which he refuſes, and only accepts a ſmall penſion, and lives retired on it the remaining part of his life —	VI	112
4503	3196	197	Severus going to Lions, where Albinus was, Albinus defeats one of his parties; then they both engage with their whole ſtrength, amounting to 150,000 men; they both fought with incredible fury, but at laſt Albinus's men were routed with great ſlaughter, and were followed into Lions by the conqueror, who plundered and reduced it to aſhes, and Albinus killed himſelf; Severus triumphed over the dead carcaſs, &c. ſent his head to Rome, where it was ſet upon the Forum at the end of a long pole: At firſt Severus pardoned his wife and children, but ſoon after maſſacred them and all his family, friends, and relations of both ſexes, and moſt of the great men of Gaul and Spain underwent the ſame fate, ſo that Severus amaſſed immenſe riches by their eſtates which he confiſcated: He ſoon conquered all the cities that had held out, and divided Britain into four provinces. Upon his return to Rome he maſſacred 42 ſenators of the higheſt rank, and a vaſt number of the common people, pretending they were friends to Albinus —	VI	113
4504	3197	198	Vologeſes III. king of Parthia, having ſided with Niger againſt Severus, as ſoon as Severus had gratified his revenge at Rome he goes againſt Parthia, and beſieges Vologeſes in Cteſiphon, his metropolis, where, after a gallant reſiſtance, the city was at laſt taken by aſſault; the king's treaſures, wives and children were taken by the emperor, but Vologeſes eſcaped; the city was plundered, the men all put to the ſword, but the women and children to the number of 100,000 ſold for ſlaves. Severus ſends an account to the ſenate of his ſucceſs; but as ſoon as Severus was gone, Vologeſes returns with a great army, and recovered all that had been taken from him but Meſopotamia —	IV	321
4504	3197	198	The Caledonians make dreadful havock in the Roman territories in Britain, ſo that Lupus the governor was obliged to purchaſe peace of them for a large ſum of money —	VI	114
4504	3197	198	Caracalla, the emperor Severus's eldeſt ſon, is declared partner with him in the empire; and Geta, his ſecond ſon, is intituled Cæſar	VI	114

Y. of world.	Y. of flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4505	3198	199	Severus the Roman emperor in his return from Parthia attacks the city Atra, becauſe Barſemus the king thereof had aſſiſted Niger, but is forced to quit the enterpriſe, after loſing a great many men, and moſt of his warlike engines: After recruiting and refreſhing his army he returns to the ſiege of Atra again, but is again forced to raiſe the ſiege after 18 days, loſing an incredible number of men, and moſt of his engines	VI	115
4506	3199	200	All ſuch perſons as gave Severus any umbrage for their birth or wealth he put to death, and confiſcated their eſtates, under various pretences	VI	115
4507	3200	201	Severus gives the manly robe to his eldeſt ſon, then 14 years old, and names him conſul for the year enſuing	VI	115
4508	3201	202	Severus and his ſon enter upon the conſulſhip in Syria; he goes into Arabia, and thence into Paleſtine, and remits the taxes he had impoſed for the people's adhering to Niger, and publiſhes an edict forbidding under the ſevereſt penalties any of the people's embracing Judaiſm, or Chriſtianity, which occaſioned the fifth general perſecution. At his arrival at Alexandria he granted the city a publick council or ſenate	VI	115
4509	3202	203	Septimius Geta, brother of Severus, and Fulvius Plautianus his great favourite, were conſuls this year. Plautianus exerciſed more authority, had more ſuitors, greater wealth, and lived with more magnificence than the emperor himſelf; this power he abuſed ſhamefully, putting to death and baniſhing many illuſtrious perſons, without the knowledge of Septimius; but this being ſecreted from Severus, he married his ſon Caracalla to Plautianus's daughter Fulvia Plautilla, and gave the manly robe to his ſecond ſon Geta, now entered his 14th year	VI	116
4510	3203	204	Severus thinking the number of Plautianus's ſtatues too great, ordered ſome of them to be taken down; this occaſioned a report that the miniſter was fallen into diſgrace, and the example was followed by the governors of ſeveral provinces, who paid dear for their over-haſty zeal, ſome being deprived of their governments, and others condemned to baniſhment, Severus declaring no one ſhould affront him without puniſhment; but being informed he deſigned to murder both himſelf and his ſon Caracalla, and make himſelf emperor, Caracalla ſeized his ſword, and ordered him to be murdered in the palace, and his body to be caſt into the ſtreet, and all his friends and creatures were put to death; his daughter Plautilla and his brother Plautius were baniſhed to the iſland of Liparis, where they were afterwards murdered by order of Caracalla; after whoſe ſucceſſion to the empire this year the ſecular games were celebrated with extraordinary pomp at Rome	VI	117
4511	3204	205	The empire of Rome enjoying univerſal peace, the emperor's two ſons Caracalla and Geta were conſuls this year, during which Severus continued at or near Rome, adminiſtring juſtice with great impartiality, and reformed many abuſes, enacted excellent laws, and repaired the publick edifices, and built many new ones in Rome, Antioch, Alexandria, and Byzantium, and moſt other great cities of the empire	VI	117
4512	3205	206	This year is remarkable for the inhuman maſſacre of a great number of the Roman ſenators, by the emperor's orders, and ſome of the greateſt and wealthieſt of them without any trial	VI	117
4513	3206	207	The northern Britons revolt, and invade the Roman territories, committing dreadful ravages, driving the Roman legions before them where-ever they came; upon which the governor Virius Lupus ſends to the emperor, who prepares to go thither in perſon	VI	118
4514	3207	208	The emperor's two ſons, Caracalla and Geta, are again conſuls; Severus inveſts the younger with the tribunitial power, and conferred the title of Auguſtus upon him, ſo that there were now what had never been before, three Auguſtas's, and then takes both his ſons with him into Britain, where after having drove the Caledonians into their own diſtricts, he ordered a new wall to be built from ſea to ſea	VII	433
4516	3209	210	Caracalla attempts to murder his father publickly at the head of his army, while he was taking the ſubmiſſions of the Britons and granting them peace, but is prevented	VI	119
4517	3210	211	Severus growing old and infirm, the Mæatæ and Caledonians revolt, upon which he ſends Caracalla with the whole army againſt them, who puts to the ſword all he meets with, and then ſtrives to debauch both officers and ſoldiers with a deſign to depoſe his father, who ſoon after died naturally at York, on the 4th of February, aged 65 years, 9 months, and 25 days, having reigned 17 years, 8 months, and 3 days; his body was burnt at York, and his aſhes carried in a golden urn to Rome, and depoſited in Adrian's Mauſoleum; ſoon after he was ranked among the gods with the uſual ceremonies	VI	120
4517	3210	211	Caracalla and Geta, by the will of Severus, ſucceeded him jointly in the empire; but Caracalla would fain have ſet his brother aſide; he went againſt the Caledonians and Mæatians, and concluded a treaty with them, withdrew his men from the forts erected in their country, and reſtored the lands his father had taken from them, diſcharged Papinian the captain of the guards, cauſed Caſtor, his father's chamberlain and chief favourite, to be put to death, and ſent aſſaſſins into Italy, to murder his wife Plautilla, and her uncle Plautius, whither they had been baniſhed 7 years before; likewiſe his father's phyſicians for refuſing to poiſon him, and all thoſe who ſtrove to reconcile him to his brother; as the brothers came from Britain to Rome, Caracalla endeavoured to murder Geta, which occaſioned them for the future to march with their ſeparate guards, lodge in ſeparate houſes, &c. They were received with great pomp at Rome, but their privateanimoſities roſe ſo high, that a ſeparation of the empire was propoſed, but fruſtrated by their

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			mother Julia. Caracalla at the feast of Saturn in the close of the year again attempted to murder Geta, which occasioned much bloodshed
4518	3211	212	Caracalla finding Geta so well taken care of, that he could not get him dispatched either by poison or by force, pretends to be reconciled to him, and invites him to an interview in his mother's chamber; Geta goes unarmed, but as soon as he was in the room he was stabbed and murdered in his mother's arms, who was also wounded: Caracalla runs as if frighted to his army, returns thanks to the gods for having escaped from the conspiracy, bestows 2500 drachmas a man, and doubles their pay; by which means he secured all the soldiers to him, who saluted him sole emperor. Next day he goes to the senate, attended by his guards, and accuses his murdered brother with a design to kill him, buries his brother with great pomp, and gets the senate to rank him among the gods, with the usual solemnities; notwithstanding which he massacred all Geta's friends and domesticks, to the number of 20,000, and punished with death the bare mention of his name, and ordered the money coined with his name to be melted, and the publick inscriptions to be erazed. He likewise put to death Papinian, the greatest lawyer Rome ever bred, and his son the quæstor; and a daughter of the emperor M. Aurelius, for weeping for Geta; Septimius Severus Afer, his first cousin; Pompeianus, grandson of M. Aurelius; Helvicus Pertinax, son of the emperor Pertinax; and some of the vestal virgins were also put to death: He universally loaded the people with exorbitant taxes, and at Rome caused vast numbers of them to be put to death, sometimes for diversion, and sometimes for revenge; he shewed the utmost contempt for the senate, and intirely neglected the administration of justice, raised the meanest persons to the highest stations, and was himself ruled and the empire controuled by two of his favourite slaves, setting all things to sale, offices, provinces, publick revenues, publick justice, and the lives both of the innocent and guilty	VI	122
4519	3212	213	Caracalla finding himself generally hated in Rome, goes into Gaul, orders the proconsul of Narbonne to be put to death, and made dreadful havock of the people, ordering the very physicians who had recovered him from a dangerous malady to be put to death as soon as he was well	VI	125
4520	3213	214	Caracalla ordered Gaiobomar, king of the Quadians, to be treacherously murdered, and all the young men that were with him, which he often boasted of as a work of great merit, but for what is not mentioned	VI	125
4520	3213	214	Caracalla having taking some German women prisoners, asked them, whether he should put them to death or sell them for slaves? they chose death; but he selling them, they destroyed themselves and children. He was forced to buy peace at a dear rate of these people, which reduced him so low as to force him to coin false money	VII	603
4520	3213	214	The Alemans made their first appearance being a collection of people of various nations, whose chief seat or country was in the present country of Wintemberg. Caracalla made war upon them, and defeated them, and then made peace with them	VI	126
4521	3214	215	Caracalla the Roman emperor quarels with the Goths	VII	588
4521	3214	215	Caracalla leaves Rome, and goes into Asia, and offers up prayers and sacrifices to Æsculapius at Pergamus, to be cured of his diseases, but went away unanswered to Ilium, and visits the tomb of Achilles, and pays great honour to his memory, and then goes into Macedon, appearing in the garb and using the customs of each place he came to	VI	493
4522	3215	216	Caracalla (now at Nicomedia) goes to Antioch, whither inviting the kings of Osrhoene and Armenia, causes them unjustly to be imprisoned; the Armenians resented the affront, and overthrew Theocritus the Roman general with great slaughter, and preserved their freedom. After which Caracalla went to Alexandria, and made dreadful havock of the people for lampooning him, ordering his troops to enter into the houses in the night-time, and kill all they met without distinction, and continued the slaughter all the following day, stripped the city of all its privileges, suppressed the body of learned men, and ordered all strangers to depart, and stopt the communication of the streets by building high walls guarded by soldiers	VI	126
4522	3215	216	Caracalla demands the daughter of Artabanes king of Parthia in marriage, which being agreed to, Caracalla goes under the pretence of celebrating the nuptials, and is very splendidly received where-ever he came; Artabanes and his nobility going out unarmed to meet him, Caracalla orders his troops to fall upon them, which they do, and make a most terrible slaughter, few escaping. Artabanes raises a very large army, invades Syria, and puts all to fire and sword: Macrinus, the captain of the guard, meets him; they engage, and fight two days, killing 40,000 between them, when Macrinus informs Artabanes Caracalla was dead; they make a peace, and the prisoners Caracalla had taken are returned	VI	127
4523	3216	217	Caracalla the Roman emperor is stabbed by one Martialis, an exempt in the army, by the instigation of Macrinus, the captain of his guards, on the 8th of April, as he was going from Edessa to Carrhæ to visit a temple of the moon, aged 29 years and four months, having reigned six years, two months, and four days, and Opilius Macrinus is declared emperor, who gives the soldiers large sums, and makes them larger promises: After proclaiming a free pardon for all accused of treason, he took the names of Severus and Aurelius, orders the body of Caracalla to be burnt with the usual solemnity, and sent his ashes in an urn to his mother Julia at Antioch, who starved herself to death. The senate orders all the gold and silver statues of Caracalla to be melted down, and his inscriptions to be erazed, annulled his acts, and de-	IV	322

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vo.l	Pag.
			clared his memory infamous: They declare Macrinus emperor, rank his family among the patricians, proclaim his ſon Cæſar, and his wife Nonia Celta Auguſta	VI	321
4524	3217	218	Macrinus having by his extream ſeverity exaſperated the ſoldiers near Emeſa againſt him, they declared Heliogabalus, couſin to Caracalla, emperor, a youth of 13 years old, by the name of M. Aurelius Antoninus. Macrinus ſends Julianus from Antioch againſt them, who is betrayed and beheaded, and many of his ſoldiers go over to the revolters. Macrinus promiſes the ſoldiers 5000 drachmas a piece, and pays 1000 down, and writes to the ſenate, who declares Heliogabalus a publick enemy. Heliogabalus being greatly ſtrengthened by an acceſſion of more troops, goes to attack Macrinus at Antioch, where after a very obſtinate battle, Macrinus left his men and fled, when what was left alſo joined Heliogabalus, and Macrinus and his ſon were taken and put to death. Heliogabalus enters Antioch, and writes to the ſenate, acquainting them with the death of Macrinus, &c. promiſes to conform to the inſtitutions of Auguſtus and M. Aurelius, and do nothing without their conſent; they agree, and confirm his titles, &c. who, though ſo very young, proved the greateſt monſter of cruelty and profligateneſs that ever lived; and though he reigned but four years, he married and divorced ſix wives	VI	321
4525	3218	219	Artabanus king of Parthia having loſt the flower of his army in the war with the Romans, &c. Artaxerxes (a perſon of a mean birth, but a good ſoldier) ſpirits up his countrymen, who were tributaries to Artabanus, to take this opportunity to free themſelves: They revolt, and Artaxerxes becomes their leader, who engages Artabanus for three days together, and at laſt the Parthians were routed, and moſt of Artabanus's troops were cut off in their flight, and himſelf taken priſoner, and ſoon after put to death: Thus the Parthians, who had commanded the Perſians 475 years, became tributaries to the Perſians, and Artaxerxes became king of Perſia and Parthia, &c.	VI	135
4525	3218	219	Heliogabalus is conſul for the firſt time, and leaves the eaſt, and enters Rome with great pomp, and is received with univerſal joy by the ſenate and people: Next day he went to the ſenate, and ſet his grandmother Mæſa next the conſuls, and ordered her name to be regiſtered among the ſenators, and appointed her to vote with the reſt, &c. and inſtitutes a ſenate of women, and ſets his mother Soæmis at the head of it, whoſe buſineſs was to regulate the dreſs of the Roman matrons, their ranks, dignities, viſits, ceremonies, &c. belonging to the ladies	IV	323
4527	3220	221	Heliogobalus adopts his couſin Alexianus, and declares him Cæſar, who took the names of Alexander and Severus, and ſtriving to debauch his manners, Alexianus refuſed to comply, which he reſents ſo much as to order him to be privately murdered; but being diſappointed, he orders the ſenate to degrade him, and annul the adoption, and ordered aſſaſſins to murder him, but the guards eſpouſed the young prince's cauſe, ſo that Heliogobalus had much ado to pacify them, and promiſes amendment, &c.	VI	136
4528	3221	222	Heliogobalus pretends to be reconciled to Alexander; takes the conſulſhip the third time, and chuſes Alexander for his colleague He orders all the ſenators to depart the city, then ſhut up Alexander in the palace, and gave out he was ſuddenly taken ill; and paſt recovery; the ſoldiers fly to arms, and demand a ſight of Alexander; who being brought forth, was received with univerſal joy by all, which ſo vexed the emperor, that he ordered them all to be puniſhed as traytors. Upon which an engagement happens between the partiſans of the two princes, in which many were ſlain, and the emperor himſelf, with his mother, had their heads cut off, and their bodies dragged about the city, and then thrown into the Tyber the 11th of March, aged about 18, having reigned 3 years, 9 months and 4 days. The ſenate order the name of Antoninus, which he had aſſumed, to be eraſed out of the public regiſters, &c. the ſoldiers proclaimed Alexander emperor, which was confirmed to him by the ſenate, who was born at Area in Phœnicia; his mother Mamæa is ſuppoſed to be a chriſtian, or at leaſt a favourer of them, and brought him up with great care, and when advanced to the empire, he would not ſuffer the Chriſtians to be perſecuted; and cauſed the famous rule, Do as you would be done by, to be ſet over the gates of his palace, and on many other public edifices, and ſquared all his actions thereby; made ſtrict enquiry into the conduct of the governors of the provinces, and baniſhed thoſe who had miſbehaved, and ſupply'd their places with the moſt virtuous and fit perſons, &c. the like he did in all the public offices of the empire	VI	139
4528	3221	222	The Romans pay the Goths an annual ſum to keep them quiet	VII	493
4529	3222	223	The emperor married Sulpicia Memmia, daughter of Sulpicius, and grand-daughter of Catullus; the nuptials were celebrated with extraordinary pomp and magnificence	VI	139
4532	3225	226	Artaxerxes having ſettled himſelf upon the Perſian throne, and taken the name of King of Kings, and conceiving himſelf to have an undeniable title, as ſucceſſor to Cyrus, to all the leſſer Aſia, commanded all the Roman generals immediately to quit thoſe provinces; raiſes a great army, and invades them; Alexander raiſes a great army to oppoſe him; and while he was at or near Meſopotamia, Artaxerxes ſends 400 choſen men, richly dreſs'd, of great ſtature and ſtrength, and commiſſions them to ſay to the emperor, That the great king Artaxerxes commands the Romans and their prince to depart out of all Syria and Aſia Minor; &c. the emperor orders the equipage of theſe embaſſadors to be taken from them, and ſends them into Phrygia to cultivate farms there for their ſubſiſtence, and then advanced and recovered Meſopotamia without oppoſition Artaxerxes meets Alexander with 120000 horſe, 10000 heavy-arm'd ſoldiers, 1800

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			chariots armed with ſcythes, 700 elephants, and an innumerable number of foot; but is defeated by the Romans, and forced to retire into the heart of Perſia. The Roman army was divided into three parts, one of which going into Armenia, grew ſo licentious, that they ſlew their general Flavius, and then became an eaſy prey to Artaxerxes
4534	3227	228	The emperor Alexander having advanced Domitius Ulpianus, a famous civilian, to be captain of the Prætorian Guards, who endeavouring to reſtore the ancient diſcipline, ſo exaſperated them, that they murdered him in the preſence of the empeperor; the principals were puniſhed with death, and the moſt noted of the factious ſoldiers ignominiouſly diſcharged. The troops quartered in Meſopotamia mutinied, murdered their general, and revolted to the Perſians. The troops in Syria proclaimed one Taurinus emperor, who refuſed the offer, and flying from among them, being purſued, threw himſelf into the Euphrates, and was drown'd. At Rome the prætorian guards would have ſet up one Antoninus to be emperor, but he modeſtly withdrew, and never appeared in the city again; but one Ovinius Camillus, ſtriveing to ingratiate himſelf with the ſoldiers, &c. Alexander ſends for him, and allows him to be his partner in the empire; who ſoon after reſigned	IV	326
4535	3228	229	The emperor Alexander and Dion Caſſius are conſuls at Rome this year, he puniſhes his favourite Vetronius Turinus with death, for abuſing his power, and for extortion, &c.	VI	140
4539	3232	233	Artaxerxes the Perſian having made himſelf maſter of Meſopotamia, &c. Alexander goes againſt him, and defeats his mighty army, and returns to Rome, and triumphs with great magnificence	VI	145
4540	3233	234	The Alemans, &c. having paſſed the Rhine, and ſeized the forts built on the banks of that river, entered Gaul, and committed moſt horrid ravages	VI	144
4541	3234	235	The emperor Alexander going to ſuppreſs the mutinous Germans, one Maximinus, by nation a Goth, whom Alexander had raiſed to the command of a body of Pomeranians, conſpires againſt him, murders his mother Mamæa, and what few ſoldiers the emperor had with him, and then they killed him in his tent, being twenty-ſix years, five months, and nineteen days old, highly lamented of all, in the 14th year of his reign	VII	589
4541	3234	235	Maximinus, upon the death of Alexander, was proclaimed emperor by his Pannonian troops; and the reſt of the ſoldiers, ſeeing no other candidate, joined them, and took the uſual oaths to him; upon which he declared his ſon Maximinus, Cæſar and prince of the Roman youth, and inveſted him with the tribunitial and proconſular power, and his colleague in the empire, which the ſenate confirmed. He was of very mean extract, but being eight foot ſix inches tall, and every way proportionable, his natural ſtrength was ſo great as to tear up trees by the roots, crumble pebbles between his fingers, &c. could eat 60 lb. of Fleſh, and drink ſix gallons of wine at a meal, without being guilty of any exceſs. He diſplaced all the officers of Alexander, and put in all his own creatures, and murdered all thoſe who knew him in, and had been inſtrumental in raiſing him from his low condition. One Magnus, a conſular, conſpired with ſome of Alexander's ſoldiers, to expoſe him to the enemy, for which he maſſacred 4000 of them without trial or examination: This exaſperated the Oſrhoenians ſo much, that they revolted, and proclaimed T. Quartinus emperor; but one Macedo murdered him in his tent, and carried his herd to Maximinus, who cauſed the meſſenger to be executed, and all things were again quiet	VI	152
4541	3234	235	Maximinus enters Germany, at the head of a mighty army, and ravaged the country far and wide, burnt their habitations, carried off their cattle, and took an incredible number of priſoners, and killed abundance of people in ſeveral battles	VII	589
4543	3236	237	Maximinus goes againſt the Dacians and Sarmatians, and gains ſeveral victories over them, and obliged them to ſubmit to his own terms. At Rome, being monſtrouſly cruel, and inſatiably avaricious, he encouraged informers, made plots, and condemned without diſtinction of age, or ſex, or quality, all the accuſed, and ſeized the confiſcated eſtates &c.	VI	153
4543	3236	237	The people revolt in Africa from Maximinus, and proclaim Gordianus, at that time their proconſul, emperor. Gordianus was deſcended of an illuſtrious family, was immenſely rich, and extreamly beloved both in Rome and in the provinces, many of which he had governed; but being upwards of 80 years of age, begs to be excuſed; but the people will take no denial, whereupon he aſſociated his ſon (whoſe name was alſo Gordianus) with him in the empire. He goes to Carthage, and writes to the ſenate; they confirm him and his ſon, and publiſh a great reward for any one to murder Maximinus. The people pull down all his ſtatues, uttering dreadful execrations againſt him and his ſon: The ſenate paſs ſentence upon all his friends, and the miniſters of his cruelty, and many of them were maſſacred by the enraged populace at Rome, and in all the other provinces. It being reported the two Maximinuſes were killed, the ſoldiers ſubmit to the two Gordians. Maximinus hearing of theſe commotions, marches with his army out of Thrace into Italy: In the mean time Capelianus, governor of Mauritania, comes with a great army to Carthage, engages the young Gordianus, kills him, and cuts off all his army, and the old one upon the news thereof ſtrangled himſelf, after having reigned one month and ſix days. Upon this the ſenate at Rome proclaims M. Clodius Pupienus Maximus and Decimus Cælius Balbinus joint emperors. Maximus marches againſt Maximinus, who threatened deſtruction to all oppoſers. Through raſhneſs a quarrel was kindled between the ſoldiers and people at Rome, that occaſioned the loſs of abundance of lives, and the deſtruction of great part of the city by fire, plunder, &c.	VI	151

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4544	3237	238	Maximinus's ſoldiers begin to mutiny, and he puniſhes the ringleaders with great ſeverity, which exaſperates the reſt. He beſieges Aquileia, which baffles all his attempts; he uſes the officers ill, and at laſt the Albanian ſoldiers go reſolutely at noon day, and kill both the Maximins in their tents, and cutting off their heads ſent them to Rome, and threw their bodies into the river. They likewiſe killed Anolinus, his captain of the guards, and moſt of his friends, having reigned three years and ſome days, and the whole army ſubmitted to Maximus and Balbinus, who reigned with great humanity, juſtice, gentleneſs, and impartiality	VI	159
4544	3237	238	The prætorian guards pretending they had loſt their privilege of nominating the emperors, come to the palace, ſeize and murder both the emperors, who had reigned only one year and two months, and proclaim young Gordian emperor, who was called the ſon of the ſenate, the child of the ſoldiery, and the darling of the people	VI	161
4544	3237	238	The Carpi break into Mæſia, and having ravaged the province, utterly deſtroy the city of Iſtria, and return unmoleſted	VII	607
4544	3237	238	The Goths break into Mæſia, and lay the whole province waſte, to revenge the death of the emperor Maximinus, who was of Gothick extraction, and had been murdered by his own ſoldiers	VII	493
4545	3238	239	Young Gordianus, now but 14 years old, is conſul, and exhibits magnificent ſports, to pleaſe the people	VI	161
4546	3239	240	Sabinianus revolts in Africa, and proclaims himſelf emperor of Rome, &c. but by the diligence of the governor of Mauritania, Sabinianus is delivered up, and the uproar is quieted	VI	161
4547	3240	241	The emperor is a ſecond time conſul, and marries Furia Sabina Tranquillina, daughter of Miſitheus, a man of great learning, virtue, and integrity, by whoſe advice the emperor diſcharged and baniſhed from the court Maurus and other great officers, who had abuſed their truſt	VI	161
4547	3240	241	A dreadful earthquake overturns a great many cities, and deſtroyed an infinite number of people	VI	162
4548	3241	242	Artaxerxes king of Perſia having now ſettled his empire, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Sapores, or Sapor, who makes war upon the Romans, by the advice of one Cyriades, ſon of a Roman general of that name, who having many followers, takes the cities of Antioch and Cæſarea Philippi; upon which Cyriades takes the names of Cæſar, and afterwards of emperor	IV	326
4548	3241	242	The emperor ſets out from Rome to quell the revolt in the eaſt, and paſſing through Mæſia, the Goths and Sarmatians oppoſe him, and he defeats them, and forces them to abandon their conqueſts, and to return home, was overcome in a tumultuary engagement with the Alani, but was no great loſer: Afterwards he overcame the Perſians in ſeveral battles, recovered Niſibis and Carrhæ, and obliged Sapor to abandon the Roman dominions	VI	163
4548	3241	242	The emperor Gordian obliges the Sarmatians and Goths to quit Mæſia, and retire beyond the Danube	VII	607
4549	3242	243	Miſitheus, the emperor's father-in-law, dies, and is ſucceeded as captain of the guards, and commander in chief of all the army under the emperor, by one Philip who ſtirs up the ſoldiers to mutiny, and to depoſe Gordian, whom Philip ordered to be murdered in the furtheſt borders of Perſia on the 14th of March, when he had reigned five years and eight months, in the 19th year of his age, and Philip reigned in his ſtead, who was an Arabian by birth, of very mean extract, but is ſaid to be the firſt Chriſtian emperor. He wrote to the ſenate, who immediately confirmed his title; he took his ſon for his colleague, though but ſeven years old. Philip concludes a peace with the Perſians, goes to Rome, and is received with all poſſible tokens of joy by the ſenate and people	VI	166
4550	3243	244	Philip is conſul at Rome for the firſt time, and goes againſt the Carpi, who had invaded Mæſia, and laid waſte great part of that province, overthrew them in two battles, and obliged them to repaſs the Danube, and ſue for peace, which he granted them, and then returned to Rome	VI	160
4551	3244	245	Oſtrogotha king of the Goths beſieges Marcianopolis, the capitol of Mæſia; but for a large ſum of money paid him by the inhabitants, he raiſes the ſiege and goes home	VII	494
4551	3244	245	The Gepidæ (a Gothic nation) under the conduct of their king Faſtida, gain a complete victory over the Burgundians, and almoſt extirpate them	VII	595
4552	3245	246	An accidental fire happens at Rome, whereby Pompey's theatre, and another building called Centum Columnæ, or the hundred pillars, were burnt	VI	166
4552	3245	246	Philip and his ſon were conſuls this and the following year, whom he honoured with the title of Auguſtus, and inveſted him with the tribunitial power, to celebrate with the greater pomp the 1000th year of Rome, which begun the following year the 21ſt of April, 247. Extraordinary rejoicings were made at Rome, and publick ſhews exhibited for ten days together, &c. Philip publiſhed an edict, forbidding unnatural luſt, under the ſevereſt penalties	VI	166
4554	3247	248	The eaſtern provinces being grievouſly oppreſſed by Priſcus their governor, revolt from Rome, and ſet up one Papianus for emperor; but he being killed, all was ſoon quiet again. Mæſia and Pannonia revolt, and ſet up one P. Corvillus Marinus; but being an unfit perſon, his own creatures murdered him ſoon after. Philip recals his father-in-law, who was governor of Pannonia, and ſends one Decius, a noble ſenator, againſt his will in his ſtead, and immediately the ſoldiers proclaimed Decius emperor	VI	167
4554	3247	248	Faſtida enters the territories of the Goths, and begins to lay them waſte; upon which king Oſtrogotha returns out of Mæſia, meets Faſtida, and gives him a complete overthrow	VII	596

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
4555	3248	249	Philip goes againſt Decius; they engage; Philip is defeated, and flies to Verona, where he is killed, the 18th June, having reigned 5 years, 3 months, and ſome days; upon hearing whereof the prætorian guards at Rome kill his ſon. The Chriſtian religion was publickly preached during his reign. Decius is again proclaimed by the ſoldiery emperor, and ſoon after by the ſenate and people, by birth a Pannonian, of a good family, and an excellent prince; he declares his ſon Decius Cæſar, and raiſed the moſt cruel perſecution againſt chriſtianity the church ever underwent
4556	3249	250	The Goths under their king Cniva inveſted with 70,000 men the city of Euſterium; but being gallantly repulſed by Gallus, they went to Nicopolis, another city of Lower Mæſia. Young Decius fell upon them, and cut 30,000 of them to pieces, and obliged the reſt to retire beyond mount Hemus. Soon after being recruited, they came before Philippopolis, againſt whom Decius marches again, but Cniva falling upon him at unawares, the Romans were all cut to pieces, and Decius ſaved himſelf by flight, upon which Cniva took Philippopolis, and put 100,000 ſouls to the ſword, ravaged Thrace and great part of Macedon. Priſcus, who was governor in Macedon, joined the enemy, and proclaimed himſelf emperor	VI	168
4557	3250	251	The emperor Decius and his ſon Decius are conſuls this year, and gain ſeveral battles againſt the Goths; the ſenate declare Priſcus a public enemy, who was ſlain; the emperor gives the ſenate leave to chuſe a cenſor, who nominate Valerian to that office; the emperor again obtained great advantages over the Goths, who offered to reſign all their booty, if he would let them return home; but he, bent upon utterly deſtroying them, goes againſt them with his whole army, and after a long and bloody battle, himſelf and ſon are both killed, and a great part of his army cut to pieces: upon which the remaining ſoldiers proclaimed Gallus emperor, which the ſenate confirm'd. Gallus concludes a peace with the Goths, and agrees to pay them a yearly ſum	VII	494
4558	3251	252	Gallus and his ſon Voluſianus are conſuls, and revive the edicts of the late emperor againſt the Chriſtians, which are put in execution with the utmoſt rigour; a terrible plague breaks out firſt in Ethiopia, and ſpreads all over the Roman provinces, ſweeping off prodigious numbers of people, as well at Rome as elſewhere. A great famine, general drought, and univerſal wars raged every where	VI	171
4558	3251	252	The Goths, &c. break into Mæſia and Pannonia; the Scythians over-run Aſia and the Perſians lay waſte Syria, and take Antioch; Æmilianus, governor in Mæſia, drove out the Barbarians with great loſs, and forced them to quit the Roman dominions; upon which he proclaimed himſelf emperor, and marched directly into Italy. Gallus and his ſon meet him at Interamna, now Terni, about thirty-two miles from Rome, with a gallant army; but their own ſoldiers murder them both, after a reign of one year and ſix months, and go over to Æmilianus, whom the ſenate confirm; he was by birth a Moor, of very mean deſcent	VI	171
4559	3252	253	The Goths enter the Roman territories; but being engaged by Æmilianus, they are defeated, and drove quite out of the empire	VII	494
4559	3252	253	Valerian's army, upon hearing of the death of Gallus, proclaim their own general emperor; upon which Valerian comes into Italy, where Æmilianus's army firſt killed him at Spoletum, after reigning four months, and then declared for Valerian, whom the ſenate confirmed with great joy, and gave the title of Cæſar to his ſon Gallienus. Valerian was nobly deſcended, and highly eſteemed and greatly beloved by all degrees, for his many great virtues and excellent qualifications. He enacted many excellent laws, and greatly reformed the diſorders of thoſe times, and advanced only men of merit	VI	173
4560	3253	254	Valerian and his ſon Gallienus are conſuls this year, and he alſo takes Gallienus a partner with him in the empire	VI	173
4560	3253	254	The Franks or Sicambri, (for the firſt time) inhabitants of Weſtphalia, &c. make an irruption into Gaul, with a ſmall army, and commit dreadful havock and ravages; but being oppoſed by Aurelian the tribune, he kills 700, takes 300, and ſells them for ſlaves, and obliges the reſt to quit their booty and retire	VII	551
4561	3254	255	Valerian and his ſon Gallienus are again conſuls; Gallienus obtains a great victory over the revolted Germans, and thereupon takes the title of Germanicus Maximus	VI	173
4562	3255	256	The Franks, &c. break into Gaul, but are entirely defeated by Gallienus, who for this victory was ſirnamed Germanicus	VII	552
4562	3255	256	The Alemans ſuddenly break into Gaul and Italy; in Gaul they were defeated, and forced to repaſs the Rhine. In Italy they advanced as far as Milan, deſtroying all with fire and ſword	VII	588
4562	3255	256	The Heruli firſt began to invade the empire, but are driven back by Gallienus	VII	599
4562	3255	256	The Goths, &c. again enter the empire, and lay it waſte, &c.	VII	495
4563	3256	257	Aurelian, who was afterwards emperor, drove the Goths out of Illyricum with great ſlaughter, and took abundance of priſoners	VII	495
4563	3156	257	The eighth terrible perſecution broke out againſt the Chriſtians, that laſted three years, during which they ſuffered the moſt extravagant tortures and ſhameful deaths the malice of their enemies could invent	VI	173
4563	3256	257	Aurelian drove the Goths out of Illyricum and Thrace, took an incredible number of them priſoners, and purſued them beyond the Danube; laid their country waſte, and returned to Mæſia loaded with ſpoil; and Probus was as ſucceſsful againſt the Sarmatians and Quadi	VI	173
4563	3256	257	The Quadians join the Sarmatians, and break into Illyricum, and ravage part of it, but are defeated by Probus	VII	603
4566	3259	260	The Franks, &c. break into Gaul, and having ravaged the moſt wealthy provinces there, made an irruption into Italy	VII	552

The

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4566	3259	260	The Quadians make a ſudden irruption into Pannonia, but Regillianus, the Roman commander in that country, attacking them, gained ſeveral victories in one day	VI	603
4566	3259	260	Valerian having recovered great part of Syria, engages Sapores, is treacherouſly taken priſoner, and uſed in the moſt ignominious manner poſſible by Sapores, king of Perſia; who, upon his death, flea'd him, dy'd his ſkin red, and expoſed it in one of his temples	IV	327
4566	3259	260	Ingenuus proclaims himſelf emperor in Pannonia; Gallienus goes againſt him, overcomes him, and puts all the males in Mæſia to death for joining him. Upon which the troops of Ingenuus, and the inhabitants that eſcaped, declared Q. Nonius Regillianus emperor, by birth, a Dacian, and deſcended from king Decebalus; he gained conſiderable advantages over the Sarmatians, but his own men fearing Gallienus, revolted from and murdered him, and ſubmitted to Gallienus. M. Caſſius Labienus Poſthumius, governor of Gaul, revolted; he was but of mean extract, but had excellent qualifications; for which the ſoldiers under his command proclaimed him emperor; he beſieged Cologn, and took Sylvanus, governor of Salonius, ſon of Gallienus, and his ward, and put them both to death. Gaul, Spain, and Britain acknowledge him; he reigned ſeven years with ſo much gentleneſs and equity, that he was even adored; he drove the Germans out of Gaul, and freed it from all the calamities of war	VI	175
4567	3260	261	Odenatus aſſiſted by Baliſta engages the Perſians, frequently defeats them, and among other ſpoils takes Sapores's wives priſoners. This greatly mortified him; ſo that entering Syria, he took Antioch, and levelled all the publick buildings of that ſtately city; then went into Cilicia, and plundered Tarſus the capital; goes into Cappadocia, and took Cæſarea, and cut the inhabitants, to the number of 400,000 to pieces, but Odenatus and Baliſta falling upon his rear, made a dreadful havock of them, and obliged Sapores to pay the Roman gariſon all the Syrian money he had amaſſed for leave to return home	VI	178
4567	3260	261	One Macrianus, by birth an Egyptian, by the aſſiſtance of Baliſta, is declared emperor. Egypt and other eaſtern countries ſubmit to him at Alexandria. The contentions roſe ſo high, that commerce and converſe was ſtopped, and this introduced a general famine and terrible plague, ſo that the numerous inhabitants were ſoon reduced to a ſmall number. Valens being ſent as proconſul into Greece, took the title of emperor likewiſe. Macrianus ſends Piſo againſt him to ſuppreſs him; but Piſo ſets up for himſelf, and would be emperor likewiſe, but was ſoon killed by ſome of Valen's ſoldiers. Valens had the ſame fate a few days afterwards. The Illyrican ſoldiers ſet up Manius Acilius Aureolus to be emperor. From Illyricum he goes into Italy, and made himſelf maſter of Milan. Gallienus goes againſt him, but is at length obliged to make a truce with him	VI	180
4567	3260	261	The Scythians break into Bithynia, lay the country waſte, level ſeveral cities with the ground, and carry off vaſt booty and a great number of captives. In Sicily great bands of robbers or banditti commit terrible ravages and devaſtations, which coſt a great deal of blood to ſuppreſs	VI	180
4568	3261	262	Odenatus takes the name of king of Palmyra, and Gallienus made him commander of all the Roman troops in the eaſt. Odenatus deſirous to deliver Valerian from his ſhameful ſlavery, engages Sapores, defeats him, and forces him to take ſhelter in Cteſiphon, his metropolis, where he beſieged him, and defeated the Perſians ſeveral times who came to his relief, and took ſeveral of the great men priſoners, which he ſent to Gallienus	VI	181
4568	3261	262	Many parts of the empire of Rome are overcaſt with thick clouds, and a great darkneſs for ſeveral days together, attended with a dreadful earthquake, and terrifying claps of thunder, the earth opening in many places, and ſwallowing up the people and their habitations, the ſea ſwelling uncommonly, broke in upon the continent, and drowned whole cities, and the plague raged with great violence in Egypt. Greece and Rome, at which laſt place it ſwept off 5000 perſons a day for ſome time	VI	180
4568	3261	262	Macrianus comes from Syria towards Italy with 45,000 men. Meets and engages Aureolus in Illyricum, and himſelf and ſon being killed, what ſoldiers were left liſt under Aureolus; and Odenatus has his ſon Quietus's head cut off; upon which Baliſta aſſumes the title of emperor, and puts the inhabitants of Emeſa almoſt all to the ſword for refuſing it to him. At the ſame time Æmilianus ſets up for emperor in Egypt; ſeizes all the granaries in Alexandria, and cauſes a famine in ſeveral provinces	VI	181
4568	3261	262	Gallienus and Aureolus goes againſt Poſthumius, who had now reigned undiſturbed three years in Gaul, one while one party, and anon the other get the advantage, which ſpins out the war	VI	181
4568	3261	262	The Goths ravage Aſia, &c. and plunder the temple of Diana at Epheſus	VII	495
4569	3262	263	Gallienus goes into the eaſt, and being admitted within the walls of Byzantium, contrary to his expreſs oath and agreement, put the gariſon and inhabitants to the ſword; he returned to Rome, and triumphed tho' he had fought no battle. This year P. Sempronius Saturninus was proclaimed emperor, and did great feats againſt the Barbarians; but upon account of the ſtrictneſs of his diſcipline, was murdered by his own ſoldiers that had raiſed him	VI	181
4569	3262	263	Gallienus ſends Theodotus, a native of Egypt, againſt Æmilianus, who now reigned in Egypt. Theodotus overcomes him, and ſent him priſoner to Rome, where he was ſtrangled by the emperor's orders	VI	181
4570	3263	264	Gallienus rewards Odenatus for his exploits againſt the Perſians with the titles of Cæſar, Auguſtus, and Emperor, and took him in partner with him in the empire. Baliſta, who held ſome provinces in the eaſt, was killed by a ſoldier ſent by Odenatus for that purpoſe	VI	182

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4571	3264	265	The Iſaurians revolting in Aſia minor, choſe C. Annius Trebellianni for their leader, who took the title of Auguſtus, coin'd money, and reigned ſometime in Iſauria and Cilicia, but was ſoon after defeated and killed in battle. But the Iſaurians maintained their freedom and independency many years after	VI	182
4571	3264	265	The Goths conquer Dacia, which had been made a Roman province by Trajan	VII	614
4571	3264	265	The Franks having ravaged Gaul, paſs into Spain, where they take by ſtorm and plunder Tamaco, the principal city of many provinces	VII	552
4572	3265	266	Odenatus enters the Perſian territories, and puts all to fire and ſword, overcame Sapor in ſeveral battles, &c.	VI	182
4572	3265	266	The Goths over-run Aſia-Minor, Lydia, Pontus, &c. ravage the country, deſtroy the houſes, palaces, churches, temples, &c. and uſe the people cruelly, and carry off an immenſe booty, and vaſt numbers of captives	VII	495
4573	3266	267	The Heruli in 500 ſhips paſs from the Palus Mæotis to the Euxine ſea, and landed at Byzantium and Chryſopolis, where they were defeated by Venerianus; but rallying, they croſs the Boſphorus, ſurprize and plunder Cyzicus, and great part of Aſia, with the iſlands Lemnos and Scyros; then coming into Greece, they burn Athens, Corinth, Sparta, and Argos: In their retreat the Athenians fall upon and cut great numbers of them to pieces; but as the remainder returned homeward, they committed great ravages in Bæotia, Acarnania, Epirus, and Thrace. Gallienus overtakes and engages them in Illyricum, and overthrows them with great ſlaughter, and purſues them, cuts 30,000 to pieces as they attempted to croſs the river, and took Naulobat their king priſoner	VII	599
4573	3266	267	Many of the Goths are drowned by the Roman fleet, as they were returning home with their prey out of Aſia, &c.	VI	183
4573	3266	267	Odenatus and his eldeſt ſon Herod are ſlain, and his wife Zenobia reigns by the name of queen of the eaſt, guardian of her four ſons, whom ſhe arrayed in purple garments and the other enſigns of royalty, acting independantly, and inſtead of aſſiſting the Roman army ſent by Gallienus, oppoſed, defeated, and obliged it to return home	VI	183
4573	3266	267	One Ælianus took the title of emperor at Mentz, who was ſoon overcome by Poſthumius, who reduced the rebellious city, but reſtraining his men from plundering it, they mutiny, and kill him and his ſon, and Lollianus is proclaimed emperor in his ſtead, but was ſoon after murdered by his ſoldiers for the ſtrictneſs of his diſcipline, upon whoſe death Victorinus (the partner of Poſthumius) became maſter of all Gaul, but was ſoon after murdered at Cologn, by one whoſe wife he had debauched, and the Gauls ſet up M. Aurelius Marius, who was killed the third day, and then the Gauls ſet up P. Piveſus Tetricus for emperor, then governor of Aquitain; he was acknowledged in Spain, Gaul, and Britain	VI	184
4574	3267	268	The Juthongians, or Alemans, that dwelt on the banks of the Rhine, break into Italy, and rove near Verona: Claudius marches againſt them, and in a pitched battle defeats them with great ſlaughter, and forces them to quit their booty, and ſave themſelves by a precipitate flight	VII	589
4574	3267	268	The firſt of Claudius's reign the Sueves, &c. broke into Italy, and advanced as far as Verona; but being there encountred by the emperor, were intirely defeated	VII	589
4574	3267	268	Aureolus being taken by Gallienus a partner with him in the empire, takes the opportunity of his being in the eaſt to march toward Rome, with an intent to make himſelf ſole emperor and depoſe Gallienus; but Gallienus hearing of his march, flies after him, overtakes, engages, and defeats him, follows him to Milan, and beſieges him, where Gallienus, the father and ſon, and Valerian and Egnatius his brothers were killed, upon which Claudius is proclaimed emperor; the ſenate declared Gallienus a publick enemy, and ordered moſt of his friends and miniſters to be thrown from the Tarpeian rock, and cauſed his name to be erazed out of the publick inſcriptions, having been one of the moſt wicked princes that ever reigned in Rome	VI	185
4574	3267	268	The ſenate received Claudius's letter, acquainting them what had happened at Milan the 24th of March; they aſſemble immediately, and confirm Claudius emperor, upon which he attacked Aureolus, and took him priſoner, whom the ſoldiers killed without orders; then went againſt the Germans, and defeated them with incredible ſlaughter, and drove the remainder out of Italy, then returns to Rome, and ſpends the remaining part of the year in reforming the ſtate	VI	186
4575	3268	269	Zenobia overcomes Probus, a Roman commander in Egypt, and takes and deſtroys Bruchium, the citadel of Alexandria, upon which Probus kills himſelf	VI	187
4575	3268	269	The Goths, Heruli, &c. invade the Roman empire with a great fleet and an army of 320,000 men, which are repulſed, beaten, and almoſt all deſtroyed by the emperor Claudius, partly by the ſword, and partly by famine	VII	496
4576	3269	270	The Goths enter and ravage Pannonia, but being engaged by the emperor Aurelian, paſs the Danube in the night, ſue for peace, and have it granted	VII	497
4576	3269	270	Claudius prepares to go againſt Zenobia, but is prevented by a terrible plague that breaks out in his army, of which great part and himſelf die, at Sirmium in Pannonia, having reigned two years and one month; the ſenate paid him divine honours, and hung up a golden ſhield, with his image on it, in the place of their aſſembly, to keep the good he had done always in their minds	VI	187
4576	3269	270	The ſenate proclaim Quintillus the brother of Claudius emperor, then at Aquileia, who was murdered by his ſoldiers, after a reign of 17 days, for attempting to introduce too ſevere a diſcipline; upon which the ſenate confirm the election of Aurelian, a native of Sirmium in Pannonia, of a mean deſcent, but admired for his great ſtrength and courage	VI	188

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt.		Vol.	Pag.
4576	3269	270	Aurelian comes to Rome, and by his great ſeverity gets the diſlike of both ſenate and people; he began the repairing and extending the walls of the city to 50 miles in compaſs	VI	189
4576	3269	270	The Alemans return into Italy, and commit great ravages, going as far as Placentia before Aurelian could come up with them: As the emperor approached they concealed themſelves in the neighbouring woods, whence ſallying out upon him in the night, they obtained a complete victory; but the emperor having got freſh recruits, overthrew them at Fano, and ſuch as eſcaped this battle were intirely defeated by two others that quickly followed	VII	590
4577	3270	271	The Vandals paſſed the Danube, and having laid waſte great part of Italy, the emperor Aurelian goes againſt them, engages and overcomes them, cuts many of them to pieces, and obliges the reſt to ſue for peace, which he readily grants them	VII	528
4578	3271	272	Aurelian having ſettled peace at Rome, Pannonia, and Italy, goes into the eaſt againſt the famous Zenobia, ſaid to be well verſed in all the branches of polite literature and martial diſcipline, couragious, prudent, and wiſe, and a Jeweſs by religion. Aurelian in his way to Syria put ſeveral barbarous nations to flight, paſſed the Danube, engaged Caunabaud, a Gothic prince, and ſlew him and 5000 of his men; then going to Tyana in Cappadocia, they ſhut their gates againſt him, which ſo inraged him, that he ſwore he would not leave a dog alive in it: After a reſolute defence he took it, but ordered all the inhabitants to be ſaved, and all the dogs to be killed. From hence he went to Antioch, defeated Zenobia's troops in its neighbourhood, and entered the city in triumph. He again defeated Zenobia near Emeſa, took the city, and followed her to Palmyra, where after a long ſiege and reſolute defence, &c. the queen is taken priſoner, and all ſubmit to Aurelian	VI	191
4579	3272	273	Sapores king of Perſia having been lately defeated by Aurelian emperor of Rome, upon his return home died, after having reigned 31 years, and was ſucceeded by Hormiſdas, who having reigned one year and ten days, died in peace	IV	329
4579	3272	273	As ſoon as Aurelian was gone, Palmyra revolts, ſets up one Antiochus, and put the Roman governor and gariſon to the ſword: Aurelian goes back into Syria, and came ſuddenly to Palmyra, put all the inhabitants, old and young, rich and poor, male and female to the ſword. Soon after Egypt revolted, and ſet up one Firmus to be emperor, a native of Seleucia in Syria, but who had a vaſt eſtate in Egypt: Aurelian goes againſt and defeated him, ſtormed a ſtrong hold to which he fled, took it and him, and ordered him to be publickly executed, and ſo ſettled peace in the eaſt, and returned to Europe, and fighting with Tetricus near Chalon on the Marne, Tetricus ſurrendered himſelf, and his troops being cut to pieces, all Gaul was again united to the Roman empire; and Aurelian returned to Rome, and had the moſt magnificent triumph ever ſeen	VI	192
4579	3272	273	The Franks make an irruption into Gaul, but being attacked by the emperor Aurelian, they are driven back with great ſlaughter, &c.	VII	553
4580	3273	274	Hormiſdas king of Perſia dying, is ſucceeded by Varanes, who reigned over the Perſians three years	IV	329
4580	3273	274	Aurelian's triumph being over, he entertained the people with magnificent ſhews, &c. for many days, and uſed his royal and noble captives with humanity and generoſity: To Zenobia he gave lands in Tivoli, to maintain her ſuitable to her rank, and beſtowed her daughters in marriage to the greateſt men in Rome; he made Tetricus governor of Lucania, and paid him high honours, and allowed his ſon young Tetricus to remain among the ſenators, &c.	VI	193
4580	3273	274	Aurelian ſtaid this year at Rome, and ſpent it in regulating the ſtate, and reforming abuſes, and doing every thing that might endear him to the people, by forgiving debts, beſtowing gifts, &c. He built a moſt magnificent temple to the ſun, and embelliſhed it with golden veſſels weighing 1500 pounds weight. The moneyers having abuſed their truſt, and coined a great deal of falſe money, to prevent their puniſhment bred a ſedition, ſo that the emperor was forced to ſend his troops againſt them, who after killing 7000, were overcome, and puniſhed with great ſeverity. The emperor called in all the bad money, and exchanged it for good money	VI	194
4580	3273	274	Aurelian withdraws his troops out of Dacia, and carries moſt of the natives with him, ſettling them in Mæſia and Dardania, and called their habitation New Dacia	VI	194
4580	3273	274	The Roman emperor Aurelian, retiring from Dacia, the Goths re-enter and ſettle there	VII	498
4580	3273	274	The emperor goes into Gaul, and allays a commotion there, and forced the Barbarians to repaſs the Danube that were come into Vindelicia, and rebuilt the city of Orleans; then going into Illyricum, gave the inhabitants of Dacia that were driven out by the Barbarians part of Mæſia and Dardania to ſettle in	VI	195
4581	3274	275	Mneſtheus, one of Aurelians freedmen and ſecretaries, being afraid of his maſte.'s reſentment againſt his extortions, counterfeits his hand, wrote a roll of the names of the chief officers of the army, and told them he found it in the emperor's cloſet, and that they were all doomed to deſtruction; they believing it, fell upon and killed the emperor between Byzantium and Heraclea, at a place called Cænophrurium (or the New Caſtle) the 25th of January: Soon after his death the matter was diſcovered; upon which they threw Mneſtheus to the wild beaſts, built a magnificent tomb and temple to the murthered emperor in the place where he was killed, and the whole army ſolemnized his obſequies with the utmoſt pomp; all who were concerned in his death were cut to pieces on the ſpot, or executed by his ſucceſſors: The ſenate ranked him among the gods, and all bewailed his loſs	VI	19

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4581	3274	275	The army refer the chooſing a ſucceſſor to Aurelian to the ſenate, and they back again to the army, and ſo backwards and forwards three times, ſo that eight months was thus ſpun out when the ſenate choſe Tacitus, on the 25th of September, which the ſoldiers and people joyfully confirm: Tacitus the hiſtorian being his kinſman; the emperor ordered ten copies of his works to be tranſcribed annually, and laid up in the publick libraries: The publick rejoicings being over, he went into Aſia, and defeated ſeveral barbarous nations, and compelled them to return home
4581	3274	275	The Goths enter Pontus, Cappadocia, Galatia, and Ciliſia, in order to ſettle in thoſe countries; but the emperor Tacitus prevails upon ſome with money to return home, and thoſe that ſtaid behind were moſt of them cut to pieces by the emperor's brother Florianus, and the reſt drove quite out of the empire	VI	199
4582	3275	276	Tacitus dies at Tarſus in Cilicia: As he was preparing to return to Italy he was taken ill of a violent diſtemper, ſay ſome; and killed by the ſoldiers, ſay other; when he had reigned only ſix months. Florianus his brother proclaims himſelf emperor, and is acknowledged by all the provinces of Europe and Africa; but Syria, Phœnicia, Paleſtine, and Egypt declared for Probus, who was commander of all the forces in the eaſt. Probus comes againſt Florianus; Florianus is killed by his own men, after he had reigned two months, and all proclaim Probus at Tarſus	VII	498
4583	3276	277	Probus being acknowledged by the ſenate, and univerſally by all the provinces, he goes againſt the Franks and other German nations, who had broke into Gaul, and committed terrible ravages; but proving ſucceſsful in ſeveral battles, writes to the ſenate that nine kings lay proſtrate at his feet, that he had cut 400,000 of the Barbarians to pieces, and incorporated 16,000 among his own troops, that he had recovered ſixty great cities, and had intirely freed Gaul, and taken an immenſe ſpoil, &c.	VI	199
4583	3276	277	Varanes the I. king of Perſia dies, and is ſucceeded by Varanes II. who hearing the Roman emperor Probus was come into the eaſt, ſent ambaſſadors and preſents to him, and to treat of peace: Probus received them very haughtily, and refuſed the preſents, but granted them peace. In his return to Rome paſſing through Thrace, he gave lands to 100,000 Baſtarnæ, a Scythian people, who ever afterwards remained faithful to him. When the Gepidæ, Juthongi, and Vandals revolted, at Rome he triumphed, and entertained the people with all manner of diverſions	VI	200
4583	3276	277	The Franks, &c. croſſing the Rhine, entered Gaul, reduced about 70 of the principal cities to their ſubjection; but Probus ſending ſome of his beſt generals againſt them, gave them a fatal overthrow, and obliged them to quit their booty and return home, whither he followed them, croſſing the Rhine after them, laid waſte their territories far and near, and even built forts in their country, which ſo terrified them, that nine of their kings ſubmitted to him, and ſued for peace, which he granted	IV	329
4583	3276	277	Probus the Roman emperor having gained a complete victory over the Burgundians, and Vandals, they ſue for peace, which he grants, upon condition they returned the booty and priſoners they had taken	VII	553
4584	3277	278	Saturninus being declared emperor by the Egyptians, Probus ſends ſome troops againſt him, who engage and put him to flight, and purſue, beſiege, and take him by ſtorm in Apamea, and put him and the whole garriſon to the ſword	VII	582
4584	3277	278	The Goths enter Thrace, ravage the country, and get great booty; but upon their hearing that the emperor Probus was coming againſt them, they retire precipitately and leave their plunder behind them	VI	202
4584	3277	278	The Sarmatians upon hearing of the emperor Probus's marching againſt them, retire from Thrace, where they had committed great ravages, abandon the booty they had taken, and ſue for peace, which he grants	VII	498
4585	3278	279	The emperor Probus grants the Sarmatians lands in Thrace, upon their promiſe of living quietly like other ſubjects of the empire	VII	607
4586	3279	280	Some of thoſe Franks Probus had allotted lands to on the coaſts of the Euxine ſea having ſeized ſome ſhips, ſailed to Sicily, took and plundered Syracuſe, and put moſt of the inhabitants to the ſword, and reimbarked with an immenſe booty for their own country	VII	596
4586	3279	280	Proculus and Bonoſus revolt; Proculus was declared emperor at Cologn, and acknowledged in Narbonne-Gaul, Britain, and Spain: He defeated the Alemanni in ſeveral battles, but was overcome by Probus, who purſued him to the Franks, who ſurrendered him to Probus, who put him to death. Bonoſus, by birth a Britain, and the ſon of a common ſchool-maſter, having ſuffered through neglect the Germans to ſeize and burn the Roman fleet upon the Rhine, fearing to be puniſhed, cauſed himſelf to be proclaimed emperor, and fought ſeveral battles with Probus, but being at laſt reduced to great ſtraits, he killed himſelf	VI	533
4587	3280	281	Probus being every where at peace, employs the army in planting vineyards on the hills of Gaul, Pannonia, and Mæſia, and cutting a canal to drain the marſhes of Sirmium into the ſea, and in building and repairing ſeveral great cities	VI	202
4588	3281	282	The army being enraged againſt Probus for obliging them to work, fall upon and kill him in Illyricum, having reigned five years and four months, greatly lamented by the ſenate and people for his extraordinary goodneſs, courage, and ſucceſs. The army declared Carus, the then captain of the prætorian guards, emperor in his ſtead, whom the ſenate with ſome difficulty confirmed	VI	203

V. of world.	V. of Rome.	V. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4589	3282	283	The Quadians and Sarmatians break into Illyricum and Thrace, and after ravaging those provinces advanced towards Italy; but Carus meeting them gave them a total overthrow, killed 16,000, and took 20,000 prisoners	VII	603
4590	3284	285	The Roman emperor Carus goes against Varanes II. king of the Persians, enters Mesopotamia, and carries all before him, and advanced even beyond Ctesiphon, the capital of Persia; but Carus dying soon after, having reigned one year and four months, and his son Numerianus being proclaimed emperor, was by his father-in-law privately murdered, having reigned only eight months: The Roman army proclaimed Diocletian emperor, (at that time commander of the late emperor's body-guards) at Chalcedon, the 17th of September	IV	330
4591	3284	285	Diocletian coming to Venitia, overcame and slew there one Julianus, governor of that province, who had caused himself to be declared emperor	VI	207
4591	3284	285	Diocletian and Carinus (the son of the late emperor Carus) have several battles in Illyricum for the empire; at last Carinus is killed, and Diocletian universally acknowledged, after which he gained several advantages over the Germans and Britains	VI	207
4592	3285	286	Diocletian takes Maximian for his colleague and partner in the empire; then he goes into the east, to whom Varanes returned all Armenia, &c. and Maximian goes into Gaul, where he was very successful	VI	208
4593	3286	287	Carausius, a Gaul by nation, goes into Britain, and is proclaimed emperor, and supports himself with great bravery about seven years, when he was murdered by one Alectus, who proclaimed himself emperor	VII	434
4593	3286	287	The Franks join the Saxon pirates, and plunder the coasts of Gaul, and carry off an immense booty, and an incredible number of captives	VII	553
4593	3286	287	The Heruli join the Chaibons and Cavions, enter Gaul, and lay waste the provinces bordering on the Rhine; but Maximian gave them so fatal an overthrow, that there was scarce one left to carry home the news of their defeat	VII	597
4593	3286	287	The Burgundians, &c. break into Gaul afresh, with prodigious numbers of men; but a famine and plague happening among them, they became an easy prey to Maximian, Diocletian's partner in the empire	VII	582
4594	3287	288	Maximian crossing the Rhine, entered Germany, and having laid the enemies country waste all about, returned to Gaul with a prodigious booty, and a great number of captives	VII	554
4595	3288	289	Maximian allots lands to a great number of Franks and Lætes, who submitted to him, in the neighbourhood of Treves and Cambray, which was almost dispeopled by many battles and ravages	VII	554
4595	3288	289	The Roman emperor Diocletian entirely destroys the Sarmatians, or Goths, and reunites Dacia to the empire	VII	498
4595	3288	289	Maximian sends a large fleet against Carausius, into Britain; Carausius beats and destroys the whole fleet and army, and is by treaty settled governor and emperor in Britain	VI	208
4597	3290	291	A war broke out between the Burgundians and Alemans, in which the first got a great part of the latter's country	VII	582
4598	3291	292	The Persians broke into Mesopotamia, and threatned Syria: Five nations join and over-ran Asia; and M. Aurelius Julianus revolted in Italy, and proclaimed himself emperor; and Achillæus did the same in Alexandria in Egypt. Upon this Diocletian chose Maximinus Galerius for his successor in the east; and Maximian Constantius, surnamed Chlorus, for his successor in the west, and endowed each with the title of Cæsar, and the tribunitial and proconsular power: They put away their then wives, and Constantius married Theodora the daughter of Maximian, and Galerius the daughter of Diocletian	VI	209
4598	3291	292	In this and some following years, Galerius orders several large forests to be grubbed up in Lower Pannonia, and a lake to be discharged into the sea, which drained a vast tract of land, which he formed into a new province, and named after his wife Valeria. The chief cities were Mursa, Sopianum, and Valeria	VI	211
4598	3291	292	Maximian completely defeated the Quinquegentiani in Africa, and reduced Julianus in Italy to such straits, that he killed himself. Constantius besieges and takes Gesoriacum, or Boulogne, in Gaul, and incorporates all the garison into his troops	VI	211
4598	3291	292	Carausius emperor in Britain is murdered by Alectus, his bosom friend and prime minister, who was proclaimed emperor in his stead, and held it three years	VII	434
4599	3292	293	Constantius cleared Batavia of the Franks that had settled there, and transplanted them with their wives and children into other parts of the empire that were destitute of inhabitants	VI	211
4600	3293	294	Constantius repaired and rebuilt, at an immense charge, with its former lustre of temples, baths, &c. the famous city of Augustodunum, now called Autun, in Gaul, that in 269 had been destroyed by Tetricus	VI	211
4600	3293	294	Varanes II. dying, is succeeded by his son Varanes III. who having conquered a people called the Segani, incorporated them into his monarchy, and was called Seganshaa, or Seganshah, but reigned only four months	IV	330
4600	3293	294	Varanes III. dies, and is succeeded by Narses, who over-run Mesopotamia, &c. but Galerius defeated him in two battles, upon which Galerius growing secure, Narses falls unexpectedly upon him, cuts his army all to pieces, and recovers Mesopotamia, &c.	IV	331
4601	3294	295	The Carpi are entirely reduced by Galerius, and by Diocletian transplanted into Pannonia, and other parts of the empire	VI	212
4602	3295	296	Constantius sends Asclepiodotus the captain of his guards with a fleet and an army into Britain; Alectus the then emperor there engages him, but is killed, and his army cut to pieces, so that Constantius again reunited Britain to the

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
			empire; and returning into Gaul, transplanted great numbers of Franks to people Amiens, Beauvois, Troies, and Langres, &c. — — —	VI	213
4602	3395	296	Diocleſian recovers Egypt from Achilleus, puts him and many others to death, and gave up Alexandria to be plundered by his ſoldiers for ſiding with him. The cities of Coptos and Buſiris in Thebais were utterly ruined for joining Achilleus	VI	213
4603	3396	297	Maximianus goes into Africa, and cuts the armies of the rebellious Moors to pieces, and forced them to deliver up their ſtrong holds, arms, &c. and tranſplanted them into other countries — — —	VI	213
4603	3396	297	Narſes king of Perſia takes all Armenia from the Romans, defeats Galerius, and cuts off his army, himſelf eſcaping with great difficulty — — —	VI	214
4607	3300	301	Galerius comes againſt Narſes again, and defeats him, takes all his baggage, and papers, his queen, ſiſters, children, and concubines; upon which he reſigns up five provinces to have peace and his queen again; but his ſiſters, children, and concubines, &c. are carried to grace a triumph at Rome; which vexed him ſo much, that he broke his heart and died with grief, and was ſucceeded by Midates, otherwiſe called Hormiſdas the ſecond — — —	IV	331
4607	3300	301	The Alemant invade Gaul, but Conſtantius Chlorus going againſt them, gained a complete victory, and cut off 60,000 of them — — —	VII	589
4609	3302	303	The 10th and laſt general perſecution of the Chriſtians breaks out the 23d of February this year, which raged ten years with a fury not to be expreſſed in or by words — — — —	VI	216
4609	3302	303	One Eugenius aſſumed the title of emperor at Seleucia in Syria, and went to Antioch, where the townſmen roſe unanimouſly and cut him and his companions off to a man; notwithſtanding which Diocleſian ordered the magiſtrates of Seleucia and Antioch to be put to death, as conſpirators with Eugenius — — —	VI	217
4611	3304	305	Diocleſian at Nicomedia, and Maximian at Milan, reſign the ſovereignty the 1ſt of May to Galerius and Conſtantius, who take Severus and Maximin for their Cæſars. Gaul, Italy, Africa, Spain, and Britain, are appointed to be the immediate care of Conſtantius: Illyricum, Pannonia, Thrace, Macedon, Greece, Aſia Minor, Egypt, Judea, Syria, and all the eaſtern provinces, to the care and government of Galerius. Conſtantius yielded to Severus Italy and Africa; and Galerius gave to Maximin Syria and Egypt — — —	VI	231
4611	3304	305	The whole nation of the Carpi ſubmits to the Romans, whom Diocleſian tranſplants into the Roman territories — — —	VII	608
4612	3305	306	The Franks having paſſed the Rhine, and made an inroad into Gaul, while they were plundering the country Conſtantine fell upon them, cut great numbers of them to pieces, and took two of their kings priſoners, Aſcaric and Gaiſus, whom he expoſed to the wild beaſts at the publick ſhews, &c. — —	VII	534
4612	3305	306	The Alemans make inroads into Gaul, which ſo provoked Conſtantine, that he expoſed their kings that were taken priſoners to be devoured by the wild beaſts at his publick ſhews — — —	VII	590
4612	3305	306	Conſtantius goes into Britain, and overcomes the Picts and Caledonians, that made continual irruptions into Britain, and dies ſoon after at York, viz. the 25th of July, his ſon Conſtantine being with him, who ſucceeded him in the empire —	VII	435
4612	3305	306	Severus reigning with intolerable cruelty in Rome and Africa, Maxentius, ſon of Maximian, the late reſigned emperor, proclaims himſelf emperor, and was acknowledged by the Roman people. Maximian goes to Rome, and is a ſecond time declared emperor by the ſenate, and made colleague with his ſon Maxentius	VI	234
4613	3306	307	Severus is ordered to go againſt Maxentius by Galerius, but upon his arrival his army revolts, and goes over to Maximian their old maſter; upon which Severus flies towards Milan, but is purſued and beſieged in Ravenna, where he ſurrenders to Maximian, who put him to death, and then married his daughter Fauſta to Conſtantine, who thereupon took the name of Auguſtus — — —	VI	235
4613	3306	307	Galerius creates Licinius emperor, the 11th of November, a perſon of mean birth, but a very good military officer, covetous, tyrannical, cruel and vicious, ſo that now there were ſix emperors at one time of the Roman dominions — —	VI	236
4614	3307	308	Maxentius the 20th of April declares himſelf and his Son Romulus conſuls, and gave himſelf the title of Cæſar and Emperor, refuſing to acknowledge Galerius and his father Maximian who had been named for conſuls. — —	VI	237
4614	3307	308	Sapores, or Sapor II. is declared king while he is yet in his mother's womb —	IV	336
4615	3308	309	Maxentius having promoted his ſon Romulus to the conſulſhip, who died ſoon after, he placed him among the gods, &c. — — —	VI	237
4615	3308	309	Maximian pretends a ſecond time to lay down the purple, and retires to his ſon-in-law Conſtantine in Gaul, who entertains him with all imaginable reſpect; but ſome Franks revolting, he perſuades Conſtantine to purſue them with a ſmall part of his army, and while he was gone Maximian declares himſelf emperor a 3d time at Arles, and bribes Conſtantine's troops to revolt. Conſtantine returns unexpectedly, and forces Maximian to fly to Marſeilles, where he is taken priſoner and forgiven. In Africa, Alexander, lieutenant of that province, is declared emperor with the uſual ceremonies at Carthage, which he ſupported for three years — — — —	VI	238
4616	3309	310	Maximian teazes his daughter Fauſta, the wife of Conſtantine, to betray her huſband Conſtantine, by leaving her chamber door open, &c. She tells her huſband, who orders one of his eunuchs to lie in his bed; Maximian comes in the dark and kills the eunuch, crying out, Conſtantine was dead, and he was emperor; but finding himſelf miſtaken, when his death was put to his choice, he choſe to be hanged, which was accordingly performed — — —	VI	239
4616	3309	310	The Franks endeavour to croſs the Rhine, and ſo to penetrate into Gaul: Conſtantine attacks them, drives them back, and croſſing the Rhine, deſtroys all before him

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
			him; and taking a vast multitude of captives, exposes them all to be devoured by the wild beasts — — —	VII	533
4616	3309	310	The Alemans, &c. having passed the Rhine, laid the neighbouring provinces waste; but Constantine marches against them, engages and defeats them, recovers the booty and obliges them to repass the Rhine — —	VII	59
4617	3310	311	The emperor Galerius dies in the greatest torments, about the beginning of May, by degrees, and in a measure devoured by lice; and being persuaded this was a punishment for his cruelties to the Christians, revoked the decree, which revocation was signed by Valerius, Constantine, and Licinius, three of the emperors, and set up the 13th of April in Nicomedia, and his provinces were divided between Licinius and Maximin — — —	VI	240
4618	3311	312	Constantine coming to Autun, found the people heavily oppressed with taxes, first forgave what they owed, and abated 25 per cent. for the time to come —	VI	241
4618	3311	312	Maxentius sends Rufus and Zenus with an army into Africa, to depose Alexander: They engage, and Alexander's army is routed, and himself taken prisoner, and put to death, and with him all the men of birth and fortune that had sided with him, and laid Carthage in ashes: The same cruelties Maxentius committed at Rome, murdering the senators, debauching the ladies, and ruining the commonalty by the licentiousness of his soldiers, and the cruel extortions of his taxgatherers — — — —	VI	241
4618	3311	312	Maxentius having a desire to reign alone, quarrels with Constantine, who being inclined to favour Christianity, begs devoutly for a sign, and sees that of the cross in the heavens or sky, with this motto, In this conquer; he makes some standards accordingly, and becomes himself, wife, and family, professors. He passes the Alps, and takes Segusium, now Susa, by storm, but won't permit it to be plundered, nor the people hurt: Then he meets, engages, and defeats Maxentius's army: All the cities between the Po and the Alps submit to him. Soon after he meets and engages Pompeianus, utterly defeats and kills him. Soon after he took Verona by storm, and made all the soldiers prisoners at discretion. Aquileia and Mutina surrendered: Then marching to Rome, Maxentius marches out against him; they engage, and Constantine gets the victory: Maxentius flies, and crossing a bridge he had laid cross the Tiber, it broke, and he and many of his officers were drowned, the 29th of October. Constantine at the head of his army, entered Rome, carrying the head of Maxentius stuck upon a pole, where he governed with so much gentleness and justice, that the people wanted words to express their joy — — —	VI	247
4618	3311	312	An edict is issued in November in the names of Constantine and Licinius, putting a stop to the great persecution that had raged for ten years past against the Christians: They sent it also to Maximin, who in complaisance published it likewise all over the east — — —	VI	248
4619	3312	313	A Christian council for the regulating of matters belonging to the church was held at Rome, in the apartment of the empress Fausta: Constantine builds a great number of Christian churches, and endows them — —	VI	248
4619	3312	313	A terrible famine and plague breaks out in the east, which particularly fell in the eyes, and rendered abundance blind — —	VI	250
4619	3312	313	Constantine and Licinius are consuls this year: Constantine goes from Rome to Milan, where he is met by Licinius, who marries his sister Constantia: Here they publish an edict in favour of the Christians. The Franks coming with a design to invade the Roman dominions, Constantine falls upon them, kills vast numbers, and follows them over the Rhine, laid waste their lands, burnt their habitations, and having taken a vast number captive, exposed them to be devoured by the wild beasts in the shews then exhibited to please the people. Africa having submitted, he grants great privileges to the Christians among them — —	VI	251
4619	3312	313	Constantine assembles a council of Christian bishops this year at Rome, to consider about the doctrine and persons of Donatists — —	VI	252
4619	3312	313	Maximin displeased with the good understanding between Licinius and Constantine, comes against Licinius, and takes Byzantium, and then Heraclea by storm. Licinius engages him, being told in a dream he should conquer if he became a Christian: Most of Maximins troops were cut to pieces, and the rest came over to Licinius. Maximin made his escape in the habit of a slave. Licinius going to Nicomedia, ordered solemn thanks to be given to the true God, and published the decree made by himself and Constantine in favour of the Christians: Then he pursued Maximin, who poisoned himself, which occasioned him to die a lingering, painful, miserable death, about the middle of August; and so Licinius became master of all the east. Maximin was declared a publick enemy, his statues pulled down, his inscriptions erased, his wife drowned in the Orontes, his children and relations publickly executed, and likewise his ministers and favourites put to death: The sons of Galerius and Severus were also both put to death — — —	VI	253
4620	3313	314	Valeria, the widow of Galerius and daughter of Diocletian, with her mother Prisca, being discovered at Thessalonica, were seized, executed, and thrown into the sea, by order of Licinius — — —	VI	253
4620	3313	314	Constantine publishes an edict, declaring all those free that Maxentius had condemned to slavery, ordering those who held them in captivity to set them free, upon the severest penalties — —	VI	253
4620	3313	314	Constantine goes to Arles, and holds a Christian council of all the bishops in the west, to suppress the Donatists — —	VI	254
4620	3313	314	Licinius and Constantine quarrel, and engage near Cibalæ in Pannonia, where Constantine kills him 20,000 men, and Licinius flies to Sirmium, and from thence goes with his wife, children, and treasures into Dacia, where he raised Valens,

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
			one of his officers, to the dignity of Cæsar. Constantine purſues him into Thrace; they engage upon the plains of Mardia, but neither ſide gaining the advantage, they conclude a peace, upon the condition that Valens ſhould be depoſed, and that Syria, Egypt, Lybia, Aſia, Thrace, Mæſia, and the Leſſer Scythia, ſhould remain in the poſſeſſion of Licinius; but Illyricum, Dardania, Macedon, Greece, and Mæſia, (now Servia) ſhould be ceded to Conſtantine
4621	3314	315	Conſtantine and Licinius are conſuls; Conſtantine aboliſhes the puniſhment of crucifixion; likewiſe he orders the receivers of his revenue to receive and educate all ſuch children whoſe parents could not by reaſon of poverty bring them up: This law was engraved in braſs, and hung up publickly in all the cities of Italy: He likewiſe forbids the Jews moleſting thoſe among them who ſhould profeſs Chriſtianity, and ſtrictly forbids any not born ſo to become Jews	VI	255
4622	3315	316	The empreſs Fauſta is delivered of a ſon, the 13th of Auguſt, at Arles in Gaul. This year Conſtantine made a law, that all perſons of whatever rank guilty of rapes, extortions, &c. ſhould be tried by the governors of the provinces where they lived, and executed without appealing to Rome	VI	255
4623	3316	317	The emperors Licinius and Conſtantine create Criſpus and Conſtantine, the ſons of the emperor Conſtantine, and Licinius, the ſon of the emperor Licinius by Conſtantia ſiſter of Conſtantine, Cæſars	VI	255
4623	3316	317	Auguſt 7. Conſtantius, ſon of the emperor Conſtantine, by Fauſta the ſiſter of Maxentius was born in the city of Sirmium in Illyricum	VI	256
4624	3317	318	Conſtantine revives the old Roman law againſt parricides, comprehending therein not only the murder of a father or mother, but alſo of a ſon	VII	256
4626	3319	320	Conſtantine and his ſon Conſtantius are conſuls, and abrogate the Papian and all other laws againſt celibacy: He forbids all married men to keep concubines, and orders judges to diſpatch the cauſes of criminals, and jaylors to uſe their priſoners well, upon pain of death. His ſon Criſpus gains a victory over the Franks, and concluding a peace with them, returns to his father	VI	256
4627	3320	321	Criſpus and Conſtantine, the emperor's ſons, are conſuls. The emperor forbids all ſorts of work to be done on Sundays, and ordered Friday to be kept holy	VI	256
4627	3320	321	The Goths again invade the empire, and are overcome by the emperor Conſtantine	VII	499
4628	3321	322	Conſtantine ſeveral times defeats the Sarmatians, kills their king Tauſimodes, and takes vaſt numbers captive	VI	257
4629	3322	323	Conſtantine being buſy at Theſſalonica in building a port, the Goths enter Thrace and Mæſia, and commit dreadful ravages: Conſtantine goes againſt them, overthrows them with great ſlaughter, and purſues them into the dominions of Licinius; which he reſents ſo far, that both parties prepare for war, Conſtantine with 130,000 men and 2200 veſſels; Licinius had 115,000 men and 350 gallies: They came to an engagement on the 3d of July near Adrianople, on the banks of the Hebrus, where Licinius had 33,000 men killed on the ſpot. Licinius with a ſmall army flies to Byzantium, and the reſt ſubmit to Conſtantine, who purſues Licinius, and beſieges him in Byzantium, from whence he withdrew to Chalcedon. Criſpus engages Abantus, admiral of Licinius's fleet, and utterly defeated him, killing him 5000 men, and taking and deſtroying 130 ſhips, Abantus narrowly eſcaping. Conſtantine leaves Byzantium, and follows Licinius to Chalcedon, where they conclude a peace, which Licinius preſently breaks: Conſtantine goes againſt him again, engages, and kill him 25,000 men. Licinius flies to Nicomedia; Byzantium and Chalcedon ſubmit to Conſtantine, who purſues Licinius, and beſieges him in Nicomedia: Conſtantia, ſiſter of Conſtantine, begs her huſband's life, who yields up the ſovereignty, and is ſoon after ſtrangled by Conſtantine's orders	VI	258
4630	3323	324	Conſtantine purges the eaſt as faſt as poſſible of idolatry and heatheniſm, and promoted Chriſtianity with all his might	VI	260
4631	3324	325	Conſtantine aſſembles the famous council at Nice, and aſſiſted in it perſonally, where Arius, Euſebius of Nicomedia, Theognis of Nice, &c. were condemned to baniſhment	VI	260
4631	3324	325	On the 25th of July Conſtantine celebrated the 20th year of his reign with extraordinary pomp, invited all the biſhops that compoſed the council of Nice to an entertainment in his palace, and gave them large preſents, diſtributed great ſums to the poor, &c.	VI	260
4632	3325	326	Conſtantine being at Rome, is ill-treated for his introducing Chriſtianity, which he ſo reſented, that he could never be prevailed upon to go there again	VI	261
4632	3325	326	The empreſs Fauſta envying Criſpus, Conſtantine's eldeſt ſon by his former wife, accuſes him with ſolliciting her to his bed, and aſpiring at the empire, which ſo enraged his father, that he cauſed him to be put to death without being heard. Licinius, the ſon of the late emperor Licinius, was alſo put to death. Fauſta was ſoon after diſcovered of falſely accuſing Criſpus, and of really proſtituting herſelf with mean perſons; for which Conſtantine ordered her to be ſuffocated in the ſteam of a hot bath	VI	261
4633	3326	327	The emperor Conſtantine in honour of his mother Helena, called the village of Dopranum in Bythinia Helenopolis, and endowed it with all the privileges of a royal city. About this time ſhe is ſaid to diſcover the ſepulchre and croſs of our ſaviour. He alſo called a city in Paleſtine by the ſame name	VI	262
4635	3328	329	On the 26th of September Conſtantine began to build the famous city of Conſtantinople; and recalled from baniſhment the two Arian biſhops, Euſebius and Theognis	VI	262
4636	3329	330	Conſtantine dedicates his new city of Conſtantinople the 11th of May to the god of martyrs, in which he built an incredible number of churches, erected croſſes in all the ſquares and publick places, a moſt ſumptuous palace, and other publick buildings, appointing a ſenate, and all other privileges as at Rome, &c.

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
			The ſolemnity laſted 40 days, during all which time he ordered an immenſe quantity of proviſions to be daily diſtributed to the populace, and fixed his reſidence here, never returning to Rome again, which by degrees brought on the deſtruction of the empire	VI	263
4638	3331	332	The Sarmatians notwithſtanding the great aſſiſtance they had received from Conſtantine, as ſoon as he was gone, invade and ravage Mæſia and Thrace; but Conſtantine returns ſuddenly, and cutting great numbers of them to pieces, forces the reſt to accept of ſuch terms as he thought fit to give them	VI	264
4638	3331	332	The Goths again invade the empire, and are again beat by Conſtantine, who kills 100,000 of their men	VII	499
4639	3332	333	Conſtantine creates his youngeſt ſon Conſtans Cæſar. Syria, Cilicia, and Thrace are grievouſly afflicted with the plague and famine, which ſweep off great numbers of the people, a buſhel of wheat being ſold for 400 pieces of ſilver. Conſtantine ſent to the biſhop of Antioch 30,000 buſhels of wheat, and a prodigious quantity of corn, oil, &c. to the other churches, to be divided among the widows, orphans, eccleſiaſticks, &c.	VI	265
4640	3333	334	The Sarmatians being ſore oppreſſed by their enemies the Goths, arm all their ſlaves, by whoſe aſſiſtance they obtain a complete victory: But the ſlaves combining together, fall upon their maſters, overcome them, and drive them out of their country, and ſeize it for themſelves; upon which the emperor Conſtantine receives 300,000 of them, and incorporates ſome of them among his troops, and gave lands to others in divers diſtant places	VI	609
4641	3334	335	Conſtantine celebrates the thirtieth year of his reign on the 25th of July, with extraordinary magnificence, in Conſtantinople, and aſſembles a council at Tyre, and another at Jeruſalem, to reconcile the diſturbances in the church: That at Tyre condemned and depoſed Athanaſius, biſhop of Alexandria; and that at Jeruſalem admitted Arius and his followers to the communion of the church. Conſtantine baniſhed Athanaſius, and three other biſhops, who oppoſed Arianiſm, he himſelf being a great favourer of it	VI	265
4641	3334	335	Conſtantine gives Gaul, Spain, and Britain to his eldeſt ſon; Aſia, Syria, and Egypt to Conſtantius his ſecond ſon; Illyricum, Italy, and Africa to Conſtans his youngeſt ſon; Thrace, Macedon, and Achaia, to his nephew Dalmatius; and to his nephew king Annibalianus, Armenia minor, Pontus and Cappadocia, with the city of Cæſarea for his capital	VI	266
4641	3334	335	One Calocerus proclaims himſelf emperor in Cyprus, and makes himſelf maſter of the whole iſland; but Dalmatius, Conſtantine's general, reduces the iſland to its duty, takes Calocerus priſoner, and condemns him to be burnt alive at Tarſus in Cilicia	VI	266
4642	3335	336	The famous hereſiarch Arius dies, and ſoon after Alexander biſhop of Conſtantinople to whom Paul ſucceeds, but was afterwards baniſhed by Conſtantine into Pontus. This year Conſtantius, the emperor's ſecond ſon, marries his couſin, daughter of Julius Conſtantius, his father's brother	VI	266
4643	3336	337	Sapores king of Perſia ſends Conſtantine a memorial, and demands ſeveral provinces. Both ſides provide for war: many battles were fought with various ſucceſs, but at Singara Sapores loſt his ſon, himſelf was wounded, and forced to retire with all his forces	IV	333
4643	3336	337	The emperor Conſtantine falls ill, and is cloathed in white, and baptized by Euſebius biſhop of Nicomedia, and would not afterward ſo much as ſee his purple robes, but ſpent his time in religious diſcourſes with the biſhops, or in pious meditations, &c. by himſelf. Before he died he ordered Athanaſius to be recalled from baniſhment, bequeathed revenues to the cities of Rome and Conſtantinople, left his will in the hands of Arian, an eccleſiaſtic, to deliver to his ſon Conſtantius, and expired on Whitſunday the 22d of May, in the caſtle of Achyrona near Helenopolis in Bythinia, aged 63 years, two months, and 25 days, having reigned 32 years, 9 months, and 27 days, univerſally lamented by all degrees of people: His body, and purple robes, and diadem were put into a gold coffin, and carried to Conſtantinople	VI	267
4643	3336	337	Notwithſtanding Conſtantine's diviſion of the empire between his three ſons and two couſins, while living, and confirmation of it by his laſt will, all the ſoldiers and the ſenate of Rome unanimouſly proclaim the three ſons only emperors, and leave out the two couſins, Dalmatius Cæſar and Annibalianus king of Pontus. The ſoldiers fly to arms, (by the inſtigation of Conſtantius, as 'tis ſuppoſed) and cut in pieces Julius Conſtantius, brother to the deceaſed emperor Dalmatius Cæſar and Annibalianus, his two ſons, Optatus, who had married Anaſtatia ſiſter to the late emperor, five of his nephews, and moſt of his miniſters, and ſo reduced his numerous family to his three ſons and two nephews, Gallus and Julian	VI	275
4643	3336	337	One Antoninus, a Roman officer of great credit, revolted to Sapor king of Perſia, who received him with great honour, and by his advice beſieges Amida, which after attacking 73 days, and loſing 30,000 men, he took by ſtorm; he hanged the officers, and ſent the men into ſlavery. Then he goes into Meſopotamia, Singara, and demoliſhes it, &c.	IV	334
4644	3337	338	The three brothers emperors meet in Pannonia, where they agree and divide the provinces allotted to Dalmatius and Annibalianus by the late emperor, among them	VI	275
4645	3338	339	March 31 a law is publiſhed in the name of the three emperors, forbidding upon pain of death marriages between uncles and nieces, which had before been authoriſed by the ſenate, in favour of Claudius and Agrippina	VI	276
4646	3339	340	Conſtantine deſiring all or part of Italy, which his brother Conſtans refuſing, he enters with a great army, and takes ſeveral places. Conſtans comes againſt him, draws him into an ambuſcade, near Aquileia, and cuts both him and his army to

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt.		Vol.	Page
			pieces. Upon this the other brother Conſtantius yields all Conſtantine's dominions to Conſtans, thereby making him emperor of all the weſt
4647	3340	341	Many cities in the eaſt were overturned by a violent and dreadful earthquake. This year a law was publiſhed in the name of the two emperors, forbidding all idolatrous worſhip. Conſtans ordered ſeveral temples to be demoliſhed, with the celebrated altar of victory in the ſenate at Rome. Conſtantius rebuilt the city of Amida upon the Tigris in Meſopotamia	VI	276
4647	3340	341	The Franks make an irruption into Gaul, and ravage the country every where, but are forced out by Conſtans	VI	277
4649	3342	343	Auguſt 27, Conſtantius declares eccleſiaſtics and their domeſtics exempt from all new impoſitions; and ſuch whoſe poverty obliged them to work for a livelihood were freed from all cuſtoms	VII	555
4650	3343	344	A violent earthquake intirely overthrew all the buildings, and ſwallowed up all the people of Neocæſarea in Pontus, except the church and biſhop's houſe and family	VI	277
4651	3344	345	The city of Duras in Greece, with all its inhabitants, was ſwallowed up by an earthquake, and twelve cities in Campania were overturned	VI	277
4653	3346	347	The council of Sardica was held, at which Athanaſius and Oſius aſſiſted. A law was made this year that confirmed great privileges to the biſhops and clergy, and to their wives, widows, children, and domeſtics. Conſtantius builds a harbour at Seleucia, at an immenſe charge; and rebuilt the cities of Seleucia in Syria, and Antardus in Phœnicia	VI	277
4654	3347	348	Conſtans writes to his brother Conſtantius, to acquaint him, that unleſs he recalled from baniſhment thoſe orthodox biſhops he had deprived of their ſees, he would reſtore them by force of arms; upon which Conſtantius recalled them	VI	277
			Conſtans ſends Macarius and Paulus into Africa, with large ſums to relieve the poor, and to endeavour to reconcile the Donatiſts to the church, which they very happily effected, to the great joy of both parties	VI	278
4654	3347	348	The Perſians having poſted themſelves in the neighbourhood of Singarus, a city of Meſopotamia, and fortified themſelves in their camp; the Roman forced it, after great oppoſition, cut great numbers of the Perſians to pieces, and forced the reſt to fly, or took them priſoners, among whom was Sapor's ſon, whom they put to death, having firſt beat him with rods, and took the enemies camp, baggage and treaſures	VI	278
4655	3348	349	A terrible earthquake overturned a great part of the city of Berytus, which ſo frightned all thoſe that had not embraced Chriſtianity, that they came and were baptized	VI	278
4656	3349	350	The Perſians beſiege Niſibis a third time, with a vaſt army and a great number of military engines: It was defended with all imaginable bravery by Lucilianus, father-in-law to Jovian, afterwards emperor; but the ſoldiers and people truſted more to the prayers of their biſhop James, than in their own valour. The Perſians ſtopped the river Mygdonus that run through the city, and laid the country round it under water, and at laſt ſtopping the river with a great wall, which by a mighty fluſh ſuddenly broke it down, and by the violence of the ſudden guſh of water, broke the city walls down, for the ſpace of 100 cubits; but it was ſo well defended, that Sapor after loſing 20,000 men, many elephants, engines, &c. was forced to raiſe the ſiege, and in the tranſport of his rage put many of his officers and great men to death, for adviſing him to this war	VI	278
4656	3349	350	Magnentius, ſon of Magnus, a German, commander of ſome troops on the Rhine, conſpires with Marcellianus, receiver of the revenues in Gaul: They invite all the officers to a feaſt in the city of Autun, where Magnentius puts on the purple, and is ſaluted the 18th of January with the title of Auguſtus. He immediately ſeized the imperial palace in Autun, and diſtributed what money he found there among the populace, and ſends one Gaiſo (a principal commander in the army) to murder Conſtans, who purſued and overtook him at Helena, a ſmall village at the foot of the Pyrennees, and killed him there with many wounds, in the tenth year of his reign, a prince extremely devoted to promote the catholick faith, and ſuppreſs hereſies, &c.	VI	279
4656	3349	350	Before the death of Conſtans was publiſhed, Magnentius ſent and murdered all ſuch officers as he thought attached to the deceaſed prince's intereſt. Magnentius ſoon made himſelf maſter of all the countries beyond the Alps, Italy, Sicily, and Africa. Veteranio, general of the foot in Pannonia, cauſed himſelf to be ſaluted Auguſtus at Sirmium, the firſt of May; Conſtantius is ſaid to confirm the title of emperor to him, and to ſend him the diadem. A third pretender ſtarts up, one Flavius Popilius Nepotianus, ſon of Eutropia ſiſter to Conſtantine the Great, who having aſſembled a number of gladiators, and perſons of deſperate fortunes, aſſumes the purple, and on the 3d of June preſents himſelf before the gates of Rome. Anicetus, who commanded there for Magnentius, goes out againſt him: Nepotianus defeats him, and ſoon after takes the city, and filled it with blood and ſlaughter. Magnentius ſends his chief favourite Marcellinus againſt him: A bloody battle enſues, in which Nepotianus was killed, after a reign of 28 days. Marcellinus carries his head through all the cities of Rome upon a ſpear, and put all thoſe to death who had declared for him, and commanded a general maſſacre of all thoſe who were any ways related to Conſtantine	VI	281
4656	3349	350	Magnentius and Veteranio agree to oppoſe Conſtantius, and ſend deputies to him to treat of peace, which he refuſes, but upon his arrival at Sardica makes a ſeperate peace with Veteranio, who joins him againſt Magnentius; but the ſoldiers depoſed Veterania the 25th of December, who ſpent the remainder of his life in acts of devotion at Pruſia-Bythinia, where Conſtantius made him an allowance ſuitable to his dignity	VI	281

Y. of world	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4657	3350	351	Conſtantius marries his ſiſter Conſtantia to his couſin Gallus, creates him Cæſar, allots him all the eaſt, and Thrace and Conſtantinople, and ſent him to Antioch to watch the Perſians	VI	282
4657	3350	351	Conſtantius ſtirs up the Franks and Saxons to attack Magnentius in Gaul, and ſends them large ſums of money and great quantities of arms for that purpoſe. Magnentius gives the title of Cæſar to his brother Decentius, and ſends him into Gaul, where he engages the Barbarians, but is overthrown, and the country reduced to a deplorable condition	VI	283
4657	3350	351	Conſtantius and Magnentius have divers encounters with various ſucceſs. Sylvanus, with a large body of troops under his command, revolts to Conſtantius. Magnentius attacks and takes Sciſcia by aſſault, and levelled it, laid the whole country waſte along the Save, and then beſieged Murſa, whither Conſtantius went and attacked him, cut off the greateſt part of his army, and took and plundered his camp; but Magnentius got off, and retired into Italy	VI	285
4658	3351	352	Conſtantius publiſhes an edict, impowering eunuchs to make wills: Then he goes into Italy, and maſters all Aquileia, and goes into Pavia,, where Magnentius obtained a victory over him; but ſoon after was obliged to ſurrender all the country bordering on the Po to Conſtantius, being deſerted by his men in troops, who delivered up the places they gariſoned. Magnentius goes to Rome, and finding the people generally inclined to favour Conſtantius, put vaſt numbers of them to death, and then retired into Gaul, ſo that Conſtantius became maſter of Rome and all Italy by the beginning of November, and ſent a powerful fleet to Africa and Carthage, which immediately ſubmitted, as did Sicily and Spain, and Treves, and ſeveral other cities in Gaul. Magnentius offers to reſign, but is refuſed an anſwer	VI	286
4658	3351	352	Magnentius ſends aſſaſſins into the eaſt to murder Gallus Cæſar, who are diſcovered and put to death. The Jews in Paleſtine riſe in the night, and cutting the throats of the ſoldiers, ſet up one Patricius for their prince	VI	286
4659	3352	353	Conſtantius marries Euſebia, a native of Theſſalonica, a lady highly commended for her chaſtity, and for the great care ſhe took of the education of her children after her huſband's deceaſe: The emperor had ſo great an eſteem for her, that in honour of her he made a new dioceſe, comprehending Bythinia, &c. and called it Pietas, the import of the word Euſebia	VI	286
4659	3352	353	Conſtantius engages Magnentius near Mons Seleucus in Gaul, and routs his army, who flies to Lions, where being apprized his ſoldiers intended to deliver him up, firſt with his own hand murdered his mother, his brother Deſiderius, and many of his friends and relations, and then himſelf. Decentius Cæſar ſtrangles himſelf, and Conſtantius pardons all the reſt	VI	288
4659	3352	353	Paulus Catena, a noted informer, is ſent into Britain by Conſtantius, to make an inquiry after all thoſe who had ſided with Magnentius, and commits many cruelties by condemning the braveſt and moſt innocent men, purpoſely to have a colourable pretence of ſequeſtring their eſtates and confiſcating their effects	IV	435
4659	3352	353	Conſtantius ſummoned a council at Arles, where he ſhewed himſelf a great enemy to the orthodox, and particularly Athanaſius and Paulinus, Gaul was terribly ravaged by the Barbarians and diſbanded ſoldiers of Magnentius. At Rome the populace roſe, and committed great diſorders upon the account of the ſcarcity of proviſions. In Aſia the Iſaurian robbers over-ran Lycaonia and Pamphilia, and beſieged Seleucia, the capital of Iſauria. The Saracens committed dreadful ravages in Meſopotamia; and Gallus governed the eaſt with intolerable pride and cruelty	VI	289
4660	3353	354	Conſtantius ſends one Domitian in the quality of præfect of the eaſt, whom Gallus murdered, with Montius, then quæſtor, and many others at Antioch, and threw their bodies into the Orontes	VI	291
4660	3353	354	Gallus Cæſar having been invited into Italy by Conſtantius, goes, and upon his arrival at Petavium in Noricum, is arreſted and carried to Flanona in Dalmatia, where he was put to death	VI	293
4661	3354	355	The emperor Conſtantius publiſhes a law, forbidding the marriage of a brother or ſiſter-in-law, and declaring the children of ſuch marriages illegitimate; and another, ordaining biſhops to be judged by biſhops, and not by the civil magiſtrates. He ſummoned a council at Milan, and baniſhed Liberius, biſhop of Rome, into Thrace	VI	294
4661	3354	355	Conſtantius gives the title of Cæſar to his couſin Julian, brother to Gallus, and makes him governor of Gaul, and marries him to his ſiſter Helena, but ſets ſpies over him	VI	296
4661	3354	355	The Alemans attempted to break into Italy; the emperor Conſtantius ſends Arbetio with the flower of his army againſt them, who falling into an ambuſcade, was defeated with great loſs; but ſome of his officers engaging them a few days after, put them to flight	VII	591
4661	3354	355	The Franks joining with the Alemans and Saxons, croſs the Rhine, take and pillage above 40 cities on the banks of that river, lay waſte the neighbouring provinces, and carry off a prodigious number of captives and immenſe booty	VII	556
4661	3354	355	The Quadians break into Pannonia and Mæſia, and having pillaged both provinces, return with immenſe booty unmoleſted	VII	603
4662	2355	356	Conſtantius gains ſo many advantages over the Germans that they ſue for peace, which he grants them. The empreſs Euſebia viſits Rome, and is received with all imaginable reſpect. The emperor, to ſhew his zeal for Arianiſm, drives Athanaſius from his ſeat at Alexandria, and puts Girgius an Arian in his place. This year he paſſed a law, condemning thoſe to death who ſhould ſacrifice to, or worſhip idols; and ſentenced many perſons for being convicted of conſulting the magicians and publiſhed a law to have all magicians devoured by wild beaſts	VI	299

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4662	3355	356	Conſtantius for the firſt time, with his wife Euſebia and his ſiſter Helena, viſit Rome, which he enters in a gilt chariot adorned with precious ſtones, attended by the ſenate and whole nobility: During his ſtay here he is preſented by ſeveral cities with gold crowns of an extraordinary weight	VI	299
4663	3356	357	Julian with 13,000 men marches againſt the Germans, conſiſting of 35,000, headed by ſeven kings, ten princes, and many great lords: He engages them near Strasbourg, put them to flight, and purſued them, and killed 8000 with the loſs of only 247 men, and many of the Germans were drowned in the Rhine; by which victory Gaul was freed from the Barbarians
4663	3356	357	Conſtantius enacted a law dated the 3d of July, confiſcating the effects of all thoſe who ſhould renounce the Chriſtian, and embrace the Jewiſh religion; and by another, he obliged all ſenators to reſide in or near Rome; and by a third he exempts all merchandizing eccleſiaſtics, their wives, children, and domeſtics, from taxes	VI	301
4664	3357	358	Narſes, ambaſſador from Sapor king of Perſia, comes with a letter and preſents it to the emperor, demanding thoſe countries the Romans had taken from the Perſians, calling himſelf King of Kings, Brother of the Sun and Moon, &c. The emperor ſends ambaſſadors to Sapor to ſoften him, but he remains inflexible	VI	302
4664	3357	358	Auguſt 28. a moſt dreadful earthquake was felt in Aſia, Pontus, and Macedon, which greatly damaged 150 cities, and utterly ruined Nicomedia by overturning all the houſes at once, and buried all its inhabitants under its ruins	VI	303
4664	3357	358	Conſtantius publiſhes a law, declaring all magicians, aſtrologers, augurs, aruſpices, and pretenders to the art of divination, enemies to mankind: and if any were found in the prince's court, they ſhould be adjudged guilty of high-treaſon	VI	304
4664	3357	358	The Quadians, &c. laid waſte great part of Pannonia and Mæſia; but Conſtantius marching againſt them, they repaſs the Danube and return home, and the emperor after them, who beſieging them lays waſte their country; they ſue for peace which is granted upon their ſetting at liberty their priſoners, and pledging hoſtages for their good behaviour	VII	603
4664	3357	358	The emperor Conſtantius having driven out the Limigantes, or ſlaves, that had ſeized upon the Sarmatians country, reinſtates the Sarmatians	VII	603
4665	3358	359	Euſebius and Hypatius, brothers to the empreſs Euſebia, are conſuls. Julian obliges ſeveral German nations to quit Gaul, and ſue for peace	VII	610
4665	3358	359	Conſtantius honours Conſtantinople with a præfect or governor, and makes Honoratus the firſt præfect	VI	305
4665	3358	359	Julian paſſing the Rhine, unexpectedly advanced to the moſt diſtant parts of the country of the Alemans and Burgundians, deſtroying all with fire and ſword; whereupon Macrianus and Heriobaldus, two of their kings, ſue for peace, &c.	VI	306
4666	3359	360	Sapor entering Meſopotamia, ſummons's Reman and Buſan, two ſtrong forts, and the Romans that gariſoned them ſurrendered: Then he beſieged Amida, which after a long and gallant defence was taken and razed, the chief officers crucified, and the ſoldiers and inhabitants put to the ſword or carried into captivity	VII	592
4666	3359	360	Conſtantius determining to have a very great army to go againſt Sapor king of Perſia, ſends into Britain and Gaul, to draught off the flower of thoſe troops: When aſſembled at Paris, they refuſed to go, and proclaim Julian emperor, which he declining, they threaten him with death if he does not immediately comply; He writes to the emperor an account of what had happened, and deſires him to confirm his title, which he refuſes. Julian goes againſt the Athuarii, (inhabitants of Cleves and Munſter) laid their country waſte, and cut many of them to pieces, and forced them to ſubmit to ſuch laws as he thought fit. His wife Helena, ſiſter of Conſtantius, dies	VI	307
4667	3360	361	Julian pretends a great reſpect for the Chriſtians, though he had privately abjured that religion, and ſacrificed to the old Roman gods. He goes againſt the Alemans, cuts great numbers of them to pieces, and forced the reſt to accept his terms. Then he made himſelf maſter of all Italy and Sicily, which without ſtriking a blow ſubmitted to him	VI	312
4667	3360	361	Conſtantius returns from the eaſt to go againſt Julian, comes to Mopſucrene on the borders of Cilicia, where he is taken ſo very ill, that he can go no further, and dies the 3d of November, in the 45th year of his age, ſuſpected to be poiſoned by means of Julian: Juſt before he died he was baptized by Euzoius, an Arian biſhop, he being a great favourer of that ſect: Upon which Julian enters Conſtantinople the 11th of December following, where he ordered Conſtantius to be buried in the church of the apoſtles, with the utmoſt ſolemnity, and is himſelf proclaimed emperor by the ſenate, &c.	VI	314
4667	3360	361	Juſt before the death of Conſtantius, Julian renounced the Chriſtian religion in Illyricum, opened the temples of the gods, offered ſacrifices according to the antient rites, and exhorted all perſons to follow his example	VI	324
4667	3360	361	Julian erects a court of juſtice at Chalcedon, to enquire into the conduct of the miniſters of the late emperor, where many of them are condemned and executed, ſome very juſtly and others very wrongfully. He made a great reformation of officers and offices, and eaſed the people very much of their taxes. The cities ſend their congratulations to him, and crowns of gold	VI	326
4668	3361	362	Julian enriches the metropolis of Conſtantinople, the place of his nativity, with many privileges; made a large harbour to ſhelter the ſhips from the ſouth wind, built a ſtately library and porch, and goes into the eaſt, orders large ſums for the rebuilding Nicomedia, enriched the temple of Cybele at Peſſinus with offerings of great value, and appointed Calixenes prieſteſs of the temple. Arriving at the palace in Ancyra, he beſtowed large gifts upon the pagan prieſts, and ſo went to Antioch, where he adminiſtered juſtice impartially	VI	327

Dreadful

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4668	3361	362	Dreadful earthquakes were felt in every province; moſt of the cities of Paleſtine, Lybia, Sicily, and Greece, were overturned; Nice was utterly ruined, and Conſtantinople greatly damaged. The temples of Apollo at Rome and Daphne, were conſumed by fire. The ſea broke in, and deſtroyed whole cities with their inhabitants. At Alexandria the ſea laid ſeveral towns and villages under water, and drowned the people. A general drought produced a famine, and that was followed by a dreadful plague	VI	328
4669	3362	363	Julian entering upon his fourth conſulſhip the 1ſt of January, viſited the temple of Jupiter, performing the heatheniſh ſacrifices for the ſafety of the empire, which had now been long diſcontinued	VI	332
4669	3362	363	Sapor king of Perſia being defeated, propoſes peace to Julian, who rejects it; but being miſled by falſe guides, is reduced to great ſtraits, but attacked the Perſians, defeats them in ſeveral encounters, and at laſt in a general battle routs them with great ſlaughter; but being in great diſtreſs for want of proviſions, decamps, and is continually haraſſed by the enemy; and in one of theſe ſudden onſets, haſtening to repulſe the enemy without his armour, Julian is wounded, carried to his tent, and dies, the 26th of June, in the 32d year of his age. The Chriſtians received the account of his death with inexpreſſible joy, and the Pagans with as great grief. The officers of the army choſe Jovian to ſucceed him, who concluded a thirty years peace with the Perſians	VI	341
4669	3362	363	Jovian arriving at Antioch, repeals all Julian's laws made againſt the Chriſtians, greatly eſpouſed the orthodox cauſe, and invited Athanaſius to court, and received him very graciouſly, after which he returned to his biſhoprick	VI	344
4670	3363	364	Jovian arriving at Ancyra, the metropolis of Galatia, enters his firſt conſulſhip, taking his ſon, then an infant, for his colleague. Going towards Conſtantinople, he is met at Dadaſta by Themiſtius and others from the ſenate, to conduct him thither, but was found dead in his bed the 16th or 17th of February, having reigned ſeven months and 20 days. His body was carried to Conſtantinople. and buried in the church of the apoſtles, with the uſual ſolemnity	VI	345
4670	3363	364	After nine or ten days interregnum, Valentinian (ſon of Gratianus, count of Africa, a Pannonian,) was choſen and proclaimed emperor by the army, the 26th of February, at Nice, the metropolis of Bythinia: He was a zealous orthodox Chriſtian, and going to Conſtantinople, he proclaimed his brother Valens, colleague with him in the empire the 28th of March following, and about the 18th of June following parted the empire at Mediana in Dacia, aſſigning Aſia, Egypt, and Thrace to Valens, and retaining Illyricum, Gaul, Spain, Italy, Britain, and Africa to himſelf; and then they parted, Valentinian to Milan, and Valens for Conſtantinople	VI	346
4670	3363	364	The Goths breaking into Thrace, the emperor Valens ſends them a large ſum of money, upon which they return home	VII	500
4671	3364	365	The Goths breaking into the empire under pretence of ſiding with Procopius, who had cauſed himſelf to be proclaimed emperor, are defeated, and obliged to lay down their arms, and yield themſelves priſoners	VII	500
4670	3363	364	The emperor Valentinian being very ill at Rheims, great conteſts ariſe about who ſhould be his ſucceſſor; but he recovering names his ſon Gratian for his colleague at the city of Amiens, the 24th of Auguſt, in the ninth year of his age	VI	352
4671	3364	365	A dreadful earthquake happens at Cæſarea in Cappadocia, which overturned ſeveral cities in Sicily, Paleſtine, and Crete. Procopius, a relation of the late emperor Julian, revolts, and being joined by a diſcarded eunuch of Valens poſſeſſed of great wealth, gained over the officers and ſoldiers, was proclaimed Auguſtus at Conſtantinople, and carried to the imperial palace, where he was acknowledged by the people, and ſoon after gained over a party of Valens's men that were ſent againſt him, and ſeized Nice and Chalcedon, and took Cyzicus. Elated with this ſucceſs, Procopius grew proud and tyrannical	VI	360
4672	3365	366	The empreſs Albia Dominica, wife of Valens, the 18th of January was delivered of a ſon called Valentinian, and ſirnamed Galata, for being born in Galatia	VI	369
4672	3365	366	Valens and Procopius come to a battle at Nicolia, a city of Phrygia, in which many of Procopius's men deſerting him, he fled, but was ſeized and carried to Valens, and that emperor ſtruck off his head the 27th of June, after he had born the title of emperor eight months, and ſent it to his colleague Valentinian in Gaul: The two perſons that ſeized and delivered him up were alſo put to death	VI	368
4672	3365	366	Marcellus governor of Nice ſeizes Chalcedon, and proclaims himſelf emperor; but is ſeized, loaded with chains, and he and his accomplices next day tortured to death	VI	369
4672	3365	366	The Alemans having paſſed the Rhine upon the ice, are attacked by the Romans, whom they intirely defeat, and take the ſtandards of the Batavians and Heruli: But Jovinus going againſt them, overthrew them three ſeveral times with great ſlaughter, and took their kings and their camp, ſo that very few eſcaped; and the emperor fortified both ſides of the banks of the Rhine, to prevent a ſurprize	VII	593
4673	3366	367	The emperor Valens, by perſuaſion of his empreſs, is baptized by Eudoxius, the Arrian biſhop of Conſtantinople, who obliged him to ſwear to treat as enemies all thoſe who oppoſed that doctrine	VI	370
4670	3363	364	The Picts, Scots, Attacots, Saxons, &c. breaking into the Roman provinces of Britain, committed great devaſtations, killed Nectaridus, Severus, and Jovinus, but are repulſed, and vaſt numbers of them cut off, and all of them driven out by Theodoſius, and peace again reſtored to the inhabitants, who alſo took one

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			Valens, or Valentinian, who had proclaimed himſelf emperor, and delivered him up to the civil magiſtrate
4673	3366	367	The Alemans unexpectedly paſs the Rhine, take and plunder Mentz, and commit dreadful ravages in the neighbouring provinces, under the conduct of Rhando, one of their princes	VI	353
4673	3366	367	The emperor Valens paſſing the Danube, ravages the country of the Goths	VII	593
4674	3367	368	A moſt dreadful earthquake utterly ruined Nice, and left but two houſes ſtanding in Germa, a city in the Helleſpont	VII	501
4674	3367	368	The emperor Valentinian goes againſt the Alemans into their own country, and after an obſtinate battle near Solicinium (now Sultz) on the Neckar, puts them to flight, and kills moſt of them	VI	371
4675	3368	369	The emperor Valentinian fortifies the Rhine, from its riſe in Rhætia to its mouth, with a vaſt number of caſtles on both ſides, and particularly one at the confluence of the Rhine and Neckar, where the city of Manheim now ſtands. The Germans ſolicit the emperor to forbear, and upon his refuſal fall upon the ſoldiers and workmen, and kill them. This year the emperor cauſed ſeveral ſenators, governors of provinces, judges, &c. to be put to death, for receiving bribes and oppreſſing the people	VI	354
4675	3398	369	Complaint being made to the emperor Valentinian, by a widow whoſe eſtate Rhodanus the eunuch had unjuſtly ſeized, he was immediately apprehended, and burnt to death in the circus	VI	355
4675	3368	369	The Marataceuprians near Apamea in Syria turn robbers, and commit great diſorders; Valens ſends ſome ſoldiers againſt them, who kill them all, both old and young	VI	355
4675	3368	369	Valens going into Leſſer Scythia, paſſed the Danube at Novidunum, and after having overcome the Goths in ſeveral encounters, they ſue for peace, which he readily grants	VI	371
4676	3369	370	The emperor Valentinian built a bridge over the Tiber, then called the bridge of Gratian, afterwards the bridge Ceſtius, at preſent Ponto di. S. Bartholomeo	VII	502
4676	3369	370	A terrible famine forced moſt of the inhabitants of Phrygia to fly out of the country into other places	VI	355
4676	3369	370	The Saxons break into the empire, and defeat count Nannienus, and commit dreadful ravages; but Severus reduces them to beg a peace, which he grants them, but as they were returning home fell upon them, and cut them all off	VI	372
4676	3369	370	Eudoxius the Arrian biſhop of Alexandria dies; the Arians, with Valens approbation, put Demophilis into that ſee: The orthodox chuſe Evagrius, but the emperor ſends a party of ſoldiers to drive him out. The Arians perſecute the catholicks; they ſend 80 eccleſiaſtics to Valens; but he, inſtead of redreſſing them, put them all to death	VI	356
4676	3369	370	Ermenic, king of the Oſtrogoths, falls upon the Heruli, conquers and makes them his tributaries	VI	372
4677	3370	371	Valentinian paſſes two laws, greatly encouraging Paganiſm and its profeſſors	VII	499
4677	3370	371	Valentinian Galata, the only ſon of Valens, being ſick, he applies to St. Baſil for his prayers, who promiſed to reſtore the child to health if he would let him be baptized by an orthodox biſhop, which Valens refuſing, and being baptized by the Arians he died immediately	VI	357
4678	3371	372	Firmus, a Mooriſh prince, revolts from the Romans, and is crowned king, ravages Africa and Mauritania, making himſelf maſter of Cæſarea (now Algier) where he ſeized a large ſum of money	VI	372
4678	3371	372	Sapor king of Perſia ſtrives to gain over the grandees of Armenia, and invites Arſaces their king to a banquet, where he ſeized him and put out his eyes, and ſent him in chains to a caſtle called Agabana, where he was murdered, and his country ruined	VI	359
4679	3372	373	Theodoſius goes againſt Firmus (king of the Moors;) Firmus offers to ſubmit; Theodoſius requires hoſtages; Firmus delays the performance, and Theodoſius falls upon Maſcezel, &c. his allies, and defeated them with greot ſlaughter; Firmus again pretends to ſubmit, but his ally Maſcezel ventures a ſecond battle, and is again defeated; and then Firmus ſends the hoſtages, and a peace is concluded: But Firmus breaking out again, is at laſt ſo ſtraitned, that he ſtrangled himſelf to prevent falling into the hands of the Romans	VI	361
4679	3372	373	Sapor king of Perſia invades the Roman dominions in the eaſt, but is overthrown by Trajan, a Roman general, and Vadomarius, formerly king of the Alemans	VI	374
4680	3373	374	Many are taken up at Antioch, for practiſing magic in order to know the name of the ſucceſſor of Valens: Theodorus his ſecond ſecretary was named and accuſed and convicted of treaſonable and illegal practices to take away the emperor's life, for which he was put to death, and vaſt numbers of innocent people racked, murdered, and baniſhed, as his aiders and abettors	VI	474
4680	3373	374	Gabinius king of the Quadi, in the weſt, and Paras king of Armenia, in the eaſt, are both treacherouſly murdered by the Romans	VI	376
4680	3373	374	Macrinus king of the Alemans is killed in an ambuſcade by the Franks, with whom he was at war	VII	594
4680	3373	374	Marcellianus, duke of Valeria, having treacherouſly murdered Gabinius king of the Quadians, to revenge his death, the Quadians paſs the Danube, lay all waſte for a great ſpace, murder many of the people, and carry away a prodigious number captive	VII	603
4681	3374	375	The emperor Valentinian ravages the country of the Quadi, and drives them all before him; and while their embaſſadors were ſuing for peace, and he anſwering them roughly, ſuddenly falls down in convulſion fits, and dies in extream agonies, the 17th of November, in the 55th year of his age, and 12th of his reign	VI	364

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4681	3374	375	Valentinian, youngeſt ſon of the deceaſed emperor Valentinian, is declared emperor by the officers of the army the 23d of November, which his brother Gratian and uncle Valens confirmed; giving him Italy, Illyricum and Africa, for his ſhare of the empire; to Gratian, Gaul, Spain and Britain, for his ſhare; and then Gratian reſtores his mother Severa to her former honours, who had been divorced and baniſhed	VI	377
4682	3375	376	The body of the emperor Valentinian, after being embalmed, was ſent to Conſtantinople to be interred among the other Chriſtian princes, where it arrived the 28th of December, but was not buried till the 21ſt of February, 382, following. He is variouſly characterized by different authors	VI	365
4682	3375	376	Gratian puts Maximius (prefect of Gaul) to death, for his cruelties exerciſed both in Italy and Gaul, likewiſe Simplicius and Dorypherianus for the ſame fault in Rome	VI	377
4682	3375	376	The emperor Gratian is ſo rigid againſt the Arians, Donatiſts, &c. that he allowed the Pagans greater liberties than they	VI	379
4682	3375	376	The Goths being driven out of their country by the Hunns and Alans, are allowed by the emperor Valens to ſettle in vaſt numbers in Thrace	VI	380
4682	3375	376	Athanaric, a chief among the Goths, being driven out of his own country, with his people, by the Hunns, retires to Caucalanda, then inhabited by Sarmatians, drives out the inhabitants, and ſeizes it for themſelves, where they ſettle	VII	610
4682	3375	376	The Hunns paſs the Palus Mæotis, and diſperſe themſelves into diverſe countries, and particularly diſplace the Goths	VII	459
4683	3376	377	The Goths lately ſettled in Thrace, being reduced to great ſtraits for want of proviſions, began to mutiny, when Count Lupicinus, governor there, commanded them to march from the banks of the Danube, and ordered his ſoldiers to drive them on the Greuthongi, croſſed the river, and when they came to Marcianopolis to Lupicinus, he invited the two chiefs to a banquet, but would let none of their people in with them; they being hungry, flew on the Roman guards, and cut moſt of them to pieces, for which the attendants of the two chiefs were put to death. The chiefs coming away, head their men, and declare war. Next day Lupicinus goes againſt them, but being but few in number, the Goths cut moſt of them to pieces, and forced him to fly into the city. Thoſe likewiſe at Adrianople join them. Gratian ſends his uncle aſſiſtance, but they are all cut off or deſert; but ſoon after the Goths are overcome, and vaſt numbers ſlain	VI	382
4683	3376	377	Gratian makes a law vaſtly in favour of the clergy, and all any ways belonging to the church. A terrible plague ſwept away vaſt numbers of people in all the weſtern provinces	VI	382
4683	3376	377	Mallobaudes, king of the Franks, is raiſed to the conſular dignity by the emperor Gratian, who was himſelf his colleague	VII	557
4684	3377	378	The Goths lately ſettled in Thrace go into Macedonia and Theſſaly, and commit dreadful ravages, advance to Conſtantinople, plunder the ſuburbs, and block up the city for ſome time. As Valens was going againſt them, Gratian ſends to inform him, he was coming to his aſſiſtance with a large army, and therefore deſired him to forbear engaging the enemy till he joined him; and at the ſame time Fritigern, chief of the Goths, ſues for peace, both of which he refuſes, comes to an engagement, and has his beſt generals and two thirds of his army cut to pitces, and the other routed, and Valens himſelf killed	VI	384
4684	3377	378	The next day the Goths beſiege Adrianople, but are forced to raiſe it with great loſs, and then march to Conſtantinople, where after ſpending ſome time, they are alſo forced to retire with great loſs, then they over-run Thrace, Scythia, Mæſia, and Illyricum, without oppoſition	VI	385
4684	3377	378	The Quadi and Sarmatians enter the Roman territories, and deſtroy all with fire and ſword, wherever they come	VI	388
4684	3377	378	There being great numbers of Goths in the Roman armies in the eaſt, Julius, the governor of Aſia, fearing they ſhould revolt, and join their brethren already too numerous, ſent private orders to maſſacre them all at the ſame time, in the ſeveral places where they were quartered, which was executed without reſiſtance. A great body of Sarmatians coming to join the Goths, are moſt of them cut to pieces by the Romans, and the reſt forced to repaſs the Danube	VI	388
4684	3377	378	Gratian, by the death of Valens, becoming emperor of the eaſt, as well as of the weſt, recalled all the catholic biſhops, and reſtored them to their ſees, from whence Valens had baniſhed them, and publiſhed liberty of conſcience to all Chriſtians, except the Manichees, Photinians, and Eunomians, to whom he would allow no churches	VI	389
4684	3377	378	The Sarmatians intending to join the rebellious Goths, paſs the Danube; but being met by Theodoſius in Thrace, they are entirely overthrown	VII	610
4684	3377	378	The Alemans paſſing the Rhine, began to lay waſte the neighbouring provinces. Count Nannius and Mallobaudes, king of the Franks, attacked them, and gained a compleat victory, killing 30,000 on the ſpot, and ſlaying and taking the reſt priſoners in purſuing them	VII	594
4685	3378	379	Gratian proclaims Theodoſius, a perſon of extraordinary accompliſhments, and univerſally admired for his courage, piety, &c. his colleague in the empire, the 19th of January, at Sirmium, and committed to his care Thrace, and the reſt of the provinces that Valens had in the eaſt	VI	389
4685	3378	379	The emperor Gratian coming to Milan, contracts a familiarity with count Ambroſe, and by his influence recalls his law of liberty of conſcience, eſpecially to the Rebaptizers	VI	391
4685	3378	379	The Lombards growing too populous, leave their native country Scandinavia, to ſeek new ſettlements, and firſt overcome the Vandals, under their two chiefs Iboreas and Aionus	VI	391

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt.		Vol.	Pag.
4685	3378	379	The emperor Theodoſius receives the congratulations and homage of all the cities in the eaſt at Theſſalonica, and promiſes them all the ſervice in his power; then goes againſt, and in ſeveral battles defeats, and at laſt entirely delivers Thrace from the ravages of the Goths	VI	393
4685	3378	379	Artaxerxes, ſuppoſed to be the 4th ſon of Sapor, proclaimed king of Perſia, upon that prince's death, and lived quietly four years	IV	337
4686	3379	380	Theodoſius being taken extreamly ill at Theſſalonica in February, deſires to be baptized, which was accordingly performed by Aſcolus biſhop of Theſſalonica. Gratian comes into Illyricam to watch the Goths, who were preparing to croſs the Danube: Gratian concludes a peace with them, which Theodoſius upon his recovery confirmed	VI	393
4686	3379	380	Gratian makes a law, whereby any woman obliged to act upon the ſtage becoming a Chriſtian, ſhould be exempt from that obligation: But ſhe that behaved miſbecoming a Chriſtian, ſhould be condemned to act on the ſtage for the remaining part of her life	VI	393
4686	3379	380	Theodoſius publiſhes a law at Theſſalonica, the 28th of February, wherein he declares he will have all his ſubjects adhere to the faith Rome had received from St. Peter, and taught by Damaſus biſhop of that city, and Peter biſhop of Alexandria, viz. confeſs the divinity of the father, ſon, and holy ghoſt; and all that did not not ſhould be treated as hereticks. Alſo another law, forbidding capital trials in Lent; and another, prohibiting widows to remarry during their time of mourning, viz. 10 or 12 months	VI	393
4686	3379	380	The Goths again return under Fritigern, Alatheus, and Saphrax, break into Thrace and Pannonia, advance to Macedon, and deſtroy all with fire and ſword: Theodoſius goes againſt them, and overthrows them: Then going in triumph to Conſtantinople, depoſes Demophilus the Arian biſhop, and appoints Gregory Nazianzen biſhop in his ſtead; and drove the Arians out of all churches which they had held for 40 years paſt	VI	395
4687	3380	381	The Hereticks are every where all over the eaſt put out of the churches they held, and the Catholicks put in their place: And to reconcile all differences, the emperor Theodoſius ſummons's the ſecond oecumenical council at Conſtantinople, where all the biſhops of his dominions aſſembled	VI	395
4687	3380	381	Athanaric, king of the Goths, flies from the Hunns to Conſtantinople, where the emperor goes out to meet him, and receives him with great honours, and treats him nobly, &c.	VII	503
4688	3381	382	Gratian orders the altar of Victory, which ſtood in the palace where the Roman ſenate met, to be removed, and confiſcated the revenues thereof: It had been before removed by Conſtantius in 357, but reſtored by Julian in 361, where it remained till now. He likewiſe took away the privileges of the Pagan pontiffs and veſtal virgins. The Hereticks were alſo ſeverely uſed, declaring them guilty of death	VI	396
4688	3381	382	The emperor Theodoſius I. upon the ſubmiſſion of the Goths, allows them lands in Thrace and Mæſia, and leave to ſettle there, thoſe two provinces having been almoſt diſpeopled by the frequent incurſions of the ſeveral ſorts of Barbarians	VII	503
4689	3382	383	A dreadful famine raged in Rome, and Magnus Clemens Maximus revolts in Britain, and is proclaimed emperor by the ſoldiers; and coming into Gaul, perſuades them to revolt likewiſe. Gratian goes againſt him, but is deſerted by great numbers of his ſoldiers, to ſupply which he took in foreigners, ſo that the reſt alſo forſook him: He flies, is refuſed admittance into ſeveral cities, and is at laſt taken at Lions, and put to death by order of Maximus, in the 25th year of his age	VI	398
4689	3382	383	Maximus upon the death of Gratian takes his ſon Flavius Victor for his colleague with him in the empire, and gave him the title of Auguſtus, though then but an infant, and fixed the ſeat of his government at Treves. Maximus ordered Merobaudes, one of this year's conſuls, to put himſelf to death, and Balio ſtrangled himſelf, being condemned to be burnt to death for his inviolable attachment to Gratian	VI	400
4689	3382	383	Theodoſius, rather than go to war with Maximus, and fearing the inroads of the Barbarians, allows him to be his colleague in the empire, and orders him to be proclaimed at Alexandria in Egypt. The beginning of this year Theodoſius proclaimed his ſon Arcadius emperor, with extraordinary pomp, at the palace of Hebdomon, ſeven miles diſtant from Conſtantinople, then about ſix years old	VI	402
4689	3382	383	The Hunns having over-ran Meſopotamia, lay ſiege to Edeſſa; but being repulſed by the Roman gariſon, are obliged by the Goths to retire	VII	504
4690	3383	384	Proculus count of ths eaſt, being accuſed of extortion, &c. at Daphne near Antioch, was ignominiouſly depoſed, &c. This year a dreadful plague raged in Antioch, and moſt cities of Syria. A law is publiſhed, forbidding all on pain of death or perpetual baniſhment, to offer ſacrifices to idols, or to conſult aruſpices, &c.	VI	403
4690	3383	384	Cynegius, præfect of the eaſt, by order from Theodoſius ſhuts up all the heathen temples, and aboliſhes ſuperſtition there and in Egypt	VI	404
4690	3383	384	The emperor Theodoſius publiſhes a law, prohibiting the marriage of couſin-germans, commanding the contracting parties to be burnt alive, their eſtates to be confiſcated, and their children to be illegitimate	VI	404
4690	3383	384	The Sarmatians make an irruption into the dominions of Valentinian, who were drove back with great ſlaughter, and many taken priſoners, who were ſent to Rome to be maſſacred in the ſhews of the gladiators, or deſtroyed by the wild beaſts	VI	405

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4690	3383	384	Valentinian the 22d of March, being Good Friday, publiſhes pardon to all criminals, ſome few excepted, in honour of the approaching feaſt of Eaſter	VI	405
4691	3384	385	A plot is diſcovered againſt the emperor Theodoſius at Conſtantinople, and moſt of the conſpirators put to death. The empreſs Flacilla and her daughter Pulcheria both die	VI	406
4691	3384	385	Artaxerxes king of Perſia dying, Sapor his ſon ſucceeds him, called Sapor the third, who reigned five years	VII	338
4692	3385	386	The two emperors Theodoſius and Arcadius obtain a great victory over the Greuthongi, in which king Odotheus was killed, and carry a vaſt number of them captive to Conſtantinople, which they enter in triumph	VI	407
4692	3385	386	The Goths break into the empire, in order to ſettle in ſome of its provinces, but Theodoſius engaging them, entirely overthrows them	VII	504
4693	3386	387	Theodoſius publiſhes a law, addreſſed by way of letter to all the cities in the eaſt, to ſet all priſoners free (unleſs for very enormous crimes) at the feaſt of Eaſter then next coming	VI	408
4693	3386	387	Theodoſius wanting money to celebrate the 5th year of his ſon Arcadius, and the tenth of his own, laid a tax upon all the provinces to raiſe money, to which all but Antioch ſubmit. The rabble break out into fury, and miſſing the governor, pull down all the ſtatues of the emperors, &c. but being diſperſed by the ſoldiery, many of the mutineers were puniſhed, by the governor, with extreme ſeverity, ſo that the greateſt part of the people fled into the mountains, &c. beſides which the emperor ſent commiſſions to enquire into the riot, who puniſhed many likewiſe with great ſeverity; but thro' the mediation of ſaint Chryſoſtom and Flavianus, biſhop of Antioch, the emperor forgave them, and reſtored the city again to the privileges he had deprived them of	VI	411
4693	3386	387	Maximus paſſes the Alps, and goes to Milan. Valentinian flies to Theodoſius for protection at Theſſalonica, where Theodoſius comes to comfort and aſſure him of help, and prevails on him to renounce Arianiſm; then he ſends embaſſadors to Maximus, deſiring him to be content with Gaul, Spain, and Britain; but he refuſes, and beſieges and takes Aquileia, and many other cities in Italy	VI VII	412 594
4694	3387	388	The Alemans ſubmit to Maximus voluntarily
4694	3387	388	Maximus is acknowledged emperor in Rome, and all the provinces of Africa. Theodoſius raiſes a great army, chiefly of Goths, Hunns and Alans, and goes againſt, engages him, and entirely defeats one of his generals in Pannonia. Soon after he engages and utterly defeats Marcellinus, brother of Maximus, with an army more numerous than his own. Theodoſius purſues Maximus to Aquileia, which is taken, and Maximus in it, who is carried in chains to Theodoſius. After which he was beheaded the 27th of Auguſt; then ſending Arbogaſtes into Gaul, againſt Victor the ſon of Maximus, Arbogaſtes overcame and put him to death, and ſo ended the war. Theodoſius publiſhes a general amneſty for all perſons whatſoever that had ſided with Maximus, and reſtored Valentinian to the full poſſeſſion of all the weſtern provinces	VI	413
4694	3387	388	Upon a report that the emperor Theodoſius had been beaten by Maximus, the Arians at Conſtantinople riſe in the night, and ſet fire to the houſe of Nectarius, the orthodox biſhop of that city, and burnt it and him in it; but upon their humble petition to the young emperor Arcadius, he forgave them, and got his father to confirm their pardon	VI	414
4694	3387	388	Theodoſius publiſhes a law, forbidding the Apollinarians to hold aſſemblies, to have biſhops or clergy, to live in cities, to appear at court, or to preſent a petition to the emperor. Another prohibiting all religious diſputes. Another declaring the marriages between Jews and Chriſtians unlawful, and the contracting perſons ſubject to the laws againſt adultery, &c.	VI	415
4694	3387	388	The Franks ravage Gaul fiercer than ever. Nannius and Quintinus having defeated thoſe parties of Franks that were left in Gaul, Quintinus purſues them to the Rhine, which he paſſes, but is there with his army cut all to pieces	VII	557
4695	3388	389	Theodoſius goes to Rome, with his ſon Honorius and young Valentinian, and entered it in triumph; and by his extraordinary candid behaviour, is greatly inſtrumental in converting the ſenate and people to chriſtianity	VI	415
4695	3388	389	The Pagans at Alexandria fall upon the Chriſtians, for expoſing ſome of their obſcene figures, found in one of their temples, and making the temple of Serapis their gariſon; they ſallied out from thence, and dragging what Chriſtians they met with into the temple, forced them to ſacrifice to their idol, or elſe rack'd them to death; the emperor, to ſtill the riot, forgave the Pagans, but ordered all the temples in Alexandria to be demoliſhed	VI	417
4696	3389	390	Theodoſius, by a law, orders all who profeſſed a monaſtic life, to retire out of all cities, and to live in deſerts; and by another, that all found guilty of unnatural luſt ſhould be publickly burnt alive.	VI	418
4696	3389	390	Sapor, third king of Perſia, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Varanes, who reigned eleven years	IV	338
4696	3389	390	An obelisk, twenty-four cubits high, was raiſed in the Circus at Conſtantinople, and a column before the church of Saint Sophia, on which was a ſilver ſtatue of Theodoſius, weighing 7400 ounces	VI VII	418 460
4697	3390	391	The Hunns commit great ravages in Mæſia and Thrace
4697	3390	391	Theodoſius orders the heretics to be driven out of all cities, and that all who renounced the Chriſtian religion, after baptiſm, ſhould be incapable of giving or receiving any thing by will, or being a legal witneſs	VI	418
4697	3390	391	Theodoſius unexpectedly falls upon, and cuts to pieces many of the Barbarians, that concealed themſelves in the marſhes and woods, in the province of Macedonia; and from thence ſallied out and did great damage: but while the ſoldiers were

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			were refreſhing themſelves, the Barbarians fell upon them with great fury and killed abundance of them. Next day the emperor attack'd them again and overthrew them with ſo great a ſlaughter, that very few of them eſcaped	VI	419
4697	3390	391	Theodoſius goes to Conſtantinople, and orders all the heathen temples that remained in that city, to be demoliſhed, and all the Arians to be driven out of that and all other cities in his dominions	VI	419
4698	3391	392	The emperor Valentinian ſends to St. Ambroſe, biſhop of Milan, to come into Gaul to baptize him; but before he could get to him, the emperor was murdered by Arbogaſtes, the 15th of May, aged twenty years and ſome months	VI	420
4698	3391	392	Upon the death of Valentinian, one Eugenius was proclaimed emperor in Gaul, a creature of Arbogaſtes, who ſoon over-run Weſt Illyricum, Italy, Gaul, Spain, and Britain, but Africa ſubmitted to Theodoſius	VI	421
4698	3391	392	Theodoſius receives the embaſſadors ſent to him by Eugenius very civilly, and ſends to conſult one John, a hermit, by nation an Egyptian, who adviſes him to make war upon Eugenius, and aſſures him of victory; and that he ſhould ſoon after die in Italy, and leave his ſon emperor of the weſt	VI	422
4699	3392	393	Theodoſius proclaims his ſecond ſon Honorius Auguſtus, in the palace of Hebdomon, near Conſtantinople, with great magnificence.	VI	423
4699	3392	393	Eugenius having obtained great advantages over the Franks, leaves Gaul and goes into Italy, where, after repeated ſollicitations, he re-eſtabliſhes Paganiſm	VI	423
4700	3393	394	Theodoſius goes to the Alps, the paſſes whereof he found guarded by Flavianus, prefect of Italy; he attacks him; Flavianus is killed, and his ſoldiers run away; but as he came down thoſe hills, he was met by Eugenius at the bottom, with a numerous army; they engage, and Theodoſius loſes above 10,000 of his auxiliaries; they are parted by the night. Next morning Theodoſius renews the fight, kills many of the enemy, and forces the reſt to ſave themſelves by a precipitate flight. Eugenius is carried to Theodoſius in chains, where his head is cut off, and carried about on a ſpear, and the reſt ſubmitted to Theodoſius, who ordered the children of Arbogaſtes and Eugenius to be inſtructed in the Chriſtian religion, and taken great care of them, gave them their paternal eſtates, and raiſed them to great offices and employments	VI	425
4700	3393	394	Theodoſius publiſhes a general amneſty, and ſends for his ſon Honorius, and proclaims him emperor of the Weſt, giving him Italy, Gaul, Spain, Britain, Africa, and Weſt Illyricum, and ſends Stilicho to Rome with this declaration, accompanied by his wife Serena, niece to the emperor. She goes to ſee the ſtatue of Cybele, and ſnatches a fine necklace that was on the image; an old veſtal curſed her, her huſband, and children, for which ſhe was puniſhed ſeverely	VI	425
4700	3393	394	The Roman ſenate congratulate Theodoſius on his victory, and beg the next conſulſhip for the two brothers Olybrius and Probinus, which the emperor grants, and exhorts them to embrace the Chriſtian religion. This year dreadful earthquakes were felt almoſt all over the empire every day, from the beginning of September to the end of November. Violent and inceſſant rains laid whole countries under water, and great darkneſs	VI	426
4701	3394	395	Theodoſius prepares to return to Conſtantinople, but is ſeized with a dropſy, whereupon he made his will, bequeathing the eaſtern part of the empire to his ſon Arcadius, and the weſtern part to his ſon Honorius, and died at Milan the 17th of January, in the 16th year of his reign, and 50th year of his life. St. Ambroſe pronounced his funeral oration; his body was embalmed, and ſent to Conſtantinople, where it was interred the 9th of November following, in a tomb of porphyry, in the mauſoleum of Conſtantine the Great, near the church of the apoſtles: he is characterized to be endowed with every virtue becoming a prince, in a very eminent degree	VI	426
4701	3394	395	Arcadius, upon his father's death, comes out of the eaſt to Conſtantinople, where he reigned under the direction of Ruſinus, whom his father had made his guardian, being then in the 18th year of his age; and Honorius continued at Milan, being in the 11th year of his age, under the guardianſhip of Stilicho; the two miniſters jealous of one another, Stilicho pretends Theodoſius had left the care of both to him, and therefore endeavours to deſtroy Ruſinus	VI	432
4701	3394	395	The emperor Honorius allowed a colony of Alemans, to ſettle in the preſent Switzerland	VII	594
4701	3394	395	The Hunns break into the eaſtern provinces of the Roman empire, and commit unſpeakable ravages	VII	460
4701	3394	395	Eucherius, uncle to Arcadius, complained to him of Lucianus, count of the eaſt, who is very differently characterized. Ruſinus goes privately to Antioch, calls Lucianus to his tribunal, and condemned him to be beat to death with leaden balls, faſtened to cords; the Antiochians murmuring at it, he ordered the moſt ſtately portico to be built that was in all Syria, to appeaſe them	VI	432
4701	3394	395	Ruſinus propoſes his daughter for a wife to Arcadius, but he chuſes Eudoxia, daughter of count Bauto, a Frank, and the nuptials were ſolemnized the 27th of April, ſhe had a vaſt influence over Arcadius	VI	433
4701	3394	395	Ruſinus diſappointed in the marriage, and fearing the arms of Stilicho, and the influence of the eunuch Eutropius, the favourite both of the emperor and the empreſs, reſolves to put all into a flame, and ſtirs up the Hunns and Goths, who penetrated into the empire as far as Antioch	VI	433
4701	3394	395	Stilicho renews the ancient alliances with the Germans, and goes with a great army to the aſſiſtance of Arcadius; but Ruſinus influenced Arcadius to ſend for the eaſtern troops that were with Stilicho, and to order him to return home with the weſtern troops, which he did. Gainas, that commanded the eaſtern troops, was met at the palace of Hebdomon by Arcadius, and Ruſinus, who paſſed his ward to proclaim him his colleague; but Gainas ordered his troops

Y. of world	Y. of flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
			to cut him to pieces, which they did the 27th of November; cut off his head, and carried it upon a ſpear to Conſtantinople, where every one rejoiced at the ſight; and was ſucceeded by Eutropius the eunuch, who was originally an Armenian ſlave, very covetous, cruel, &c. who uſed all wicked means to convey the wealth of the empire into his own coffers	VI	434
4701	3394	395	The Goths under Alaric ravage a great part of the empire, and even threaten Conſtantinople itſelf, continuing two years in Greece, &c. deſtroying all with fire and ſword, and ſending away multitudes of captives, with the whole wealth of the ravaged country	VII	505
4702	3395	396	Eutropius ſo far influences Arcadius, that Stilicho is ſolemnly declared a public enemy, and all his lands and palaces in the eaſt confiſcated, and endeavoured to ruin all his friends. Eutropius prevails with the emperor to enact a law forbidding any body flying into the church for refuge, and that thoſe who did ſo ſhould be dragg'd out and puniſhed more grievouſly than if they had not flew thither; this drew the general hatred upon him	VI	437
4702	3395	396	Dreadful earthquakes were felt in moſt of the eaſtern provinces of the empire, the ſky appearing all on a flame, over Conſtantinople, terrified the emperor and the people ſo much, that they flew out of the city to lie in the fields	VI	437
4702	3395	396	Fritigil, queen of the Marcomans, by means of ſaint Ambroſe, is converted to the Chriſtian religion, and influences her huſband to make peace with the Romans, and to favour the Chriſtians	VII	602
4703	3396	397	Eutropius, the emperor Arcadius's favourite and prime miniſter, ſtirs up Gildo, brother to the famous Firmus, commander of the Roman troops in Africa, to revolt from Honorius, and come over to Arcadius, which he doing, they oblige Carthage and the whole province of Africa to declare for Arcadius	VI	438
4703	3396	397	Saint Ambroſe, biſhop of Milan, dies, univerſally lamented by all degrees of people throughout the whole empire. Honorius publiſhes a law forbidding the Romans to follow foreign faſhions. Arcadius baniſhes all the Apollinarian preachers out of Conſtantinople, and confiſcates all their houſes; and paſſes a law in favour of the Jews; and ſentences to death all domeſtics that ſhould bear witneſs againſt their maſters, in caſes of treaſon; the empreſs Eudoxia is delivered of a daughter, who was named Flaccilla, the 17th of June	VI	439
4704	3397	398	Maſcezel is ſent by Stilicho againſt his rebellious brother Gildo in Africa, where he engages and entirely overthrows him; Gildo flies, is purſued, taken, and put into priſon, where he ſtrangled himſelf; and all Africa returned to Honorius again, and the two brothers are reconciled to one another	VI	440
4704	3397	398	Maſcezel returns to Italy, where Stilicho ſeemingly receives him with great marks of eſteem; but being jealous of his growing greatneſs, orders him to be puſhed into the river, as they were both going over the bridge at Milan, in which he was drowned	VI	440
4704	3397	398	Stilicho marries his daughter Maria, an infant, to the emperor Honorius, now in his 13th year; he aſſiſts the Britains againſt the Danes, Saxons and Picts, and ſettles a legion in Britain for their defence	VI	441
4704	3397	398	A violent earthquake overthrows abundance of houſes in Conſtantinople and Chalcedon, and ſeveral buildings are conſumed with lightning, and the ſea breaks in and lays whole countries under water	VI	441
4705	3398	399	Eutropius prevails upon Arcadius to create him a patrician, intitle him Father to the Emperor, and to raiſe him to the conſulate, being the firſt aud laſt eunuch ever advanced to that dignity	VI	441
4705	3398	399	Tribigild, the Goth, commander of a great army of thoſe people as auxiliaries to Arcadius in Nicotia in Phrygia, coming to court, is highly affronted at the haughty behaviour of Eutropius, and is influenced by Gainas, general of all the Roman horſe and foot, to revolt; at his return to Nicotia, he plundered it and ſeveral other cities, and put all to the ſword that fell into his hands, threw the whole province of Aſia into confuſion and conſternation. Eutropius ſtrove to bring him back by large preſents and promiſes; but failing ſends one Leo, a creature of his, at the head of an army againſt him. Tribigild was cut off all to 300 men by the Piſidians; but Gainas ſupplies him with a freſh army, who fell upon and defeated Leo, who periſhed, and moſt of his men were cut to pieces; and then he demands Eutropius to be delivered up to him, who after being degraded, was firſt baniſhed to the iſland of Cyprus, and afterwards put to death, as the cauſe of all theſe troubles	VI	444
4705	3398	399	Tribigild, and Gainas, two officers in the Roman pay, revolt, and with their countrymen the Goths, do great miſchief	VII	506
4705	3398	399	Abundance of heathen temples were ſhut up and pulled down, both in the eaſtern and weſtern empires, and ſome turned into churches; and ſevere laws enacted againſt all manner of idolatrous worſhip	VI	445
4706	3399	400	Alarit king of the Goths, and Radagaiſus king of the Huns, entered Italy and committed vaſt ravages	VII	504
4706	3399	400	Upon the death of Eutropius, the empreſs Eudoxia, a bold, enterprizing, avaritious woman, ſo influenced her weak huſband Arcadius, that the ſtate was reduced to the utmoſt miſeries, by the enormous wickedneſs of her creatures	VI	445
4706	3399	400	Gainas makes a pretended peace with Tribigild, and they united their forces together, and went to Sardis in Lydia, plundered that metropolis; and then ſeparated; Tribigild goes to Lampſacus, and Gainas towards Chalcedon, plundering the countries through which they paſs. The emperor offers Gainas whatever terms he required. He firſt demanded the three greateſt officers of the ſtate to be delivered to him, which was done; then, that the emperor and he ſhould have a private conference, which was likewiſe held in the church of St. Eu-

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pa.
			phemia in Chalcedon, where it was agreed, that they ſhould lay down their arms and be advanced to the higheſt dignities in the ſtate, which were both done accordingly
4706	3399	400	Gainas having filled Conſtantinople with his countrymen the Goths, revived and greatly encouraged Arianiſm, and formed a deſign to ſeize all the wealth of the city, and ſet fire to the palace; but miſtaking the time of the ſignal, moſt of the Goths were cut to pieces by the inhabitants; upon which Gainas flies again into open rebellion. Fravitus, who commanded in Aſia, oppoſes and kills ſeveral thouſand of his men, and forces him back from that province; and upon his arrival in Thrace, he and all his ſoldiers were cut to pieces by the Roman ſoldiers, and ſo this diſturbance ceaſed	VI	446
4707	3400	401	The empreſs Eudoxia being created Auguſta, orders her image to be carried through all the provinces, to receive the ſame homage that is paid to the images of the emperors, which no empreſs before had ever preſumed to do	VI	447
4707	3400	401	The empreſs Eudoxia is delivered of her third daughter Arcadia, on the third of April.	VI	447
			This year, Conſtantinople was ſhaken with violent earthquakes for three days together, upon which abundance of Pagans deſire to be, and are baptized into the Chriſtian religion
4707	3400	401	Varanes, king of Perſia, dies, and is ſucceeded by Iſdigertes, whom Arcadius, emperor of the eaſt, declared guardian of his ſon Theodoſius, which begot a great intimacy and friendſhip between the two courts	VI	447
4708	3401	402	Theodoſius, ſon and ſucceſſor of Arcadius, was born the 10th of April, and ſoon after baptized and declared Cæſar, with extraordinary pomp and ſolemnity. This year the Euxine ſea was frozen over for the ſpace of twenty days. A band of ſlaves and deſerters pillaged Thrace, pretending to be Huns; but Fravitus cuts moſt of them to pieces, and diſperſes the reſt	IV.	338
4708	3401	402	Honorius forgives all debts due to his exchequer, contracted ſince his firſt conſulate in 386, and orders all legal proſecutions for debt to ſtop, commenced ſince 395, the time of his coming to the empire, till he had examined into the circumſtances thereof.	VI	449
4709	3402	403	Arcadius promotes his ſon Theodoſius to the imperial dignity, in his palace of Hebdomon, on the 10th of January, with extraordinary magnificence	VI	449
4709	3402	403	Alaric enters Italy without oppoſition, and ravages the provinces of Venetia and Liguria, and threatened to beſiege the court; whereupon Honorius retires from Milan to Ravenna, which from this time became the ordinary place of his reſidence	VI	449
4709	3402	403	The empreſs Eudoxia is delivered of her fourth and laſt daughter Marina. On the 10th of February a ſtatue of ſilver was erected to the empreſs, upon a column of porphyry, near the church of St. Sophia in Conſtantinople, where ſports were exhibited in honour of the empreſs, which occaſioned a miſunderſtanding between St. Chryſoſtom, biſhop of the city, and the empreſs. This year a ſtatue was reared to Arcadius, in the ſame city, and he built the city of Arcadiopolis in Thrace	VI	449
4709	3402	403	Stilicho engages and overcomes Alaric king of the Goths, at Pollentia, takes his camp, with all the rich plunder of ſeveral provinces, and his wife and children; upon which Alaric ſues for peace, which is granted: He repaſſes the Po, and goes to Verona, where committing acts of hoſtility, he is purſued, and forced into the mountains, and ſo retires into Pannonia; upon which Honorius goes to Rome, which he enters in triumph, with Stilicho in the ſame chariot with him, about the beginning of December, where he was received with all the marks of joy and reſpect poſſible	VI	450
4710	3403	404	The empreſs Eudoxia dies of a miſcarriage, the 6th of October, a few days after ſhe had prevailed on Arcadius to baniſh St. Chryſoſtom: That day he went out of Conſtantinople a fire conſumed the great church, the palace where the ſenate aſſembled, and many other adjoining edifices	VI	451
4710	3403	404	The Huns break into Thrace, and eaſt Illyricum, and having amaſſed great booty, retired beyond the Danube: And the Iſaurian robbers commit great ravages in Aſia and Syria; but Arbazatius going againſt them, cut moſt of them to pieces, and ſhuts up the reſt on all ſides, but for the ſake of a great bribe let them eſcape, when they over-run the provinces of Cilicia, Pamphilia, Lycia, Lycaonia, Piſidia, Cappadocia, and Lower Syria, pillaging all the open country, and then retired into their inacceſſible mountains with their vaſt booty	VII	461
4711	3404	405	Radagaiſus king of the Goths, a Pagan, comes with a mighty army into Italy, and offering ſacrifices to Jupiter every morning, vows all the Romans to deſtruction. The Pagans all over the empire, but eſpecially at Rome, lay all their ſufferings upon the Chriſtians, for deſpiſing the gods and their ſervice. Stilicho aſſembles 30 Roman legions at Pavia, and reinforced them with a great number of Goths, Huns, and Alans, under Sarus, a Goth, and Uldin king of the Huns, and goes towards Florence, which Radagaiſus had beſieged, and orders his auxiliaries to fall upon one of the diviſions of Radagaiſus's army, which doing, they kill him 100,000 men without the loſs of one man; upon which he retired to the mountains of Feſulæ, where Stilicho cloſely beſieged him, and reduced him to ſuch ſtraits, that he attempted to eſcape and leave his men behind, and ſo was taken and put to death: His army ſubmitted to the Romans, who ſold them for ſlaves in droves, at a crown per head; but all died in a few days, being almoſt ſtarved to death before in their camp	VI	453
4712	3405	406	A dreadful fire reduced great part of Conſtantinople to aſhes on the 25th of October; and ſuch multitudes of graſhoppers infeſted Egypt, that turned the day into night; and by the ſtench of them after they were dead occaſioned a great plague, which carried off abundance of the people	VI	453

Y. of world.	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4712	3405	406	December 30th prodigious number of the northern nations entered into and ſettled in Gaul, which at length utterly ruined the weſtern empire, ſaid to be invited and ſupported by Stilicho, with an intent to make his ſon Eucherius emperor of the weſt	VII	452
4712	3405	406	The Franks fall upon the Vandals, as they were preparing to march into Gaul, and cut of 20,000 of them	VII	556
4713	3406	407	The Gauls are terribly ravaged by the Vandals, Alans, and Sueviens, and are joined by the Burgundians. They took Mentz by ſtorm, and levelled it to the ground, after having murdered many thouſands of the inhabitants in the churches, whither they flew. Worms, Straſburgh, and Spires, underwent the ſame fate; then they maſtered all Aquitan, Gaſcony, Lions, and Narbonne	VI	453
4713	3406	407	The Britains ſet up an emperor of their own, named Mark, who was murdered a few days after: Then they advanced one Gratian to that dignity, who after a reign of four months was alſo murdered; and then one Conſtantine, a common ſoldier, was choſen, who forced the Picts and Scots out of the Roman province, and then formed a deſign of reigning over the whole empire: He goes into Gaul, with all the youth of Britain and what Roman forces were in the country, and after various ſucceſſes ſettled at Arles, but leaving the Britains defenceleſs, they were terribly ravaged by their ſettled enemies, the Scots and Picts	VI	454
4714	3407	408	Arcadius emperor of the eaſt dies on the 1ſt of May at Conſtantinople, in the 31ſt year of his age, and was buried in the church of the apoſtles near his wife Eudoxia. He was naturally inclined to virtue, but being of a weak underſtanding, ſuffered his people to be grievouſly abuſed by his miniſters and his wife's favourites. He was ſucceeded by his ſon Theodoſius, then about eight years old, under the guardianſhip of his mother	VI	455
4714	3407	408	Conſtantine the Britain made himſelf maſter of all Gaul; he cauſed his ſon Conſtans, who was a monk, to quit his retirement, and created him Cæſar, and ſent him under Gerontius into Spain, where he cut moſt of Honorius's troops to pieces, and took Didymius and Verinianus their generals, and their wives, priſoners: They were brothers, and related to Honorius. This reduced all Spain, where Gerontius ſtaid, and Conſtans returned into Gaul, and preſented his father with the illuſtrious priſoners, who ordered them to be privately murdered, and created his ſon Auguſtus, and gave him a diadem, and ſends ambaſſadors to Honorius, demanding to be aſſociated with him in the empire, who was forced to ſend him the imperial purple, and honour him with the title of Auguſtus, upon condition of his helping him againſt Alaric	VI	455
4714	3407	408	Alaric being privately encouraged by Stilicho, threatens to lay waſte all Italy unleſs the Romans paid him a large ſum of money. The ſenate at laſt were compelled by Stilicho to ſend him 4000 pounds weight of gold	VI	455
4714	3407	408	One Olympius pretending great ſanctity, thereby ingratiated himſelf ſo far into Honorius's favour, as to wait immediately upon his perſon where-ever he went; and in the emperor's journey from Pavia, ſo thoroughly convinced him of the treachery of Stilicho, that he ſent two orders to Ravenna, where Stilicho was, the one to ſecure, and the other to put him to death, both which were executed. The army flew to arms, and ſlew all Stilicho's friends and creatures. The emperor having married Thermantia, Stilicho's ſecond daughter, ſent her back to her mother Serena untouched. Eucherius his ſon fled to a church, but was dragged out and executed. Stilicho's eſtate, and the eſtates of all his partizans, were confiſcated; and Olympius ſucceeded as prime miniſter. This year the Roman nobility were forbid all traffick. The Roman ſoldiers upon Stilicho's death murdered the wives and children of ſuch heathen auxiliaries as he had hired; upon which 30,000 of them joined Alaric, who thereupon ſends to Honorius, and offers to retire, and never return again, if he would give him money to pay his army their arrears; which he refuſing, he ſends his brother-in-law Ataulphus into Italy, and goes himſelf and beſieged Rome. A famine ſoon began in the city, and that was followed by a plague. The Romans ſend out deputies to treat with Alaric, who agrees to raiſe the ſiege, and for ever to continue faithful to the Romans, upon their delivering to him hoſtages, and paying him 5000 pounds weight of gold, 30,000 l. of ſilver, 4000 ſilk garments, 3000 purple ſkins, and 3000 l. of pepper; all which was done, and ratified by Honorius, and the ſiege accordingly raiſed	VI	458
4714	3407	408	Uldin king of the Huns taking diſlike to the Romans, croſſed the Danube, and entered Thrace with a numerous army; but behaving in a very haughty manner towards his officers, they deſert to the Romans who forced him to retire with great loſs and precipitation	VII	462
4714	3407	408	Anthemius is choſen prime miniſter in the eaſt, to govern it and Theodoſius, which he did with great integrity and ſkill, to the intire ſatisfaction of the people of all degrees. The Squiri and Huns break into Thrace; but ſome of their officers abandoning them to join the Romans, they retire with great precipitation, but the emperor's troops overtaking the Squiri before they reached the Danube, cut great numbers of them to pieces, and took the reſt priſoners; ſo that by this overthrow that nation was nearly extirpated	VI	459
4715	3408	409	Honorius emperor of the weſt neglecting to deliver up to Alaric the hoſtages agreed on, he returns and beſieges Rome a ſecond time, and is encreaſed by 40,000 ſlaves, who made their eſcape out of the city. Honorius ſends 6000 troops to the aſſiſtance of Rome, whom Alaric intercepts, and cuts them almoſt all off. Honorius engages Ataulphus, and kills about 1200 of his men, but can't ſtop his going to Rome and joining his brother Alaric	VI	459

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4715	3408	409	Olympius, the prime miniſter to Honorius, is diſgraced and diſcharged, and is ſucceeded by Jovius præfect of Italy. The ſoldiers at Ravenna mutiny, and demand the heads of their two generals, and of the emperor's two chamberlains. The ſenate ſend a ſecond meſſage to preſs Honorius to perform the articles of peace, among whom was Innocent biſhop of Rome, but without ſucceſs. Alaric ſends ſeveral biſhops to him without effect. Then he goes to Rome, and in a few days the inhabitants open their gates to him, when he obliges them to proclaim Attalus, then præfect of the city, emperor, and to renounce Honorius, which they do: Attalus was an Arrian, and promoted all of that opinion, making Alaric his generaliſſimo
4715	3408	409	Attalus ſends Conſtans into Africa, to ſecure that province; but he and all his men are cut off by Heraclianus, who hinders all manner of proviſions going to Rome, which reduces them ſoon to great ſtraits. Attalus goes from Rome to beſiege Honorius in Ravenna: Honorius ſends Jovius his prime miniſter, Valens the general of his foot, Potamus the quæſtor, and Julian his firſt ſecretary, to wait Attalus's coming to Rimini, and to offer him the partnerſhip in the empire. Jovius betrays his maſter, and Attalus offers him only his life, and liberty to retire to what iſland he pleaſed. Attalus ſends another body of troops more numerous than the former into Africa, who were alſo cut off by Heraclianus, who alſo ſent Honorius a ſeaſonable ſupply of money, which he immediately diſtributed among the ſoldiery, with good effect. Alaric reduced Liguria and Æmilia, except Bononia, and proclaimed Attalus every-where, and forced the people to ſwear allegiance to him	VI	461
4715	3408	409	Gerontius revolts from Conſtantine in Spain, and ſets up one Maximus for emperor; upon which the Vandals, Suevians, and Alans, that Conſtantine had permitted to remain in Gaul, flew to arms, and took ſeveral cities	VI	463
4715	3408	409	The Vandals, &c. break into Spain, and proving too hard a match for the Romans, then commanded by Conſtans, ſon of the emperor Conſtantine, ſettle there, and divide thoſe provinces among them	VI	462
4715	3408	409	All the Armorici, or inhabitants of the ſea coaſts, ſhake off the Roman yoke, and erect a new ſtate and government, which proved but ſhort-lived	VII	430
4715	3408	409	The Vandals, Alans, and Suevians quit Gaul, and enter Spain, and take ſeveral cities, and defeat Conſtantine's army that he had ſent againſt Gerontius, under the command of his ſon Conſtans, and force him to return to his father at Arles, and entered into a league with Gerontius, and then over run the country, committing the moſt horrid cruelties, and continued this ſavage treatment till 411, when having conquered the whole country, they ſet about tilling the land for their own ſubſiſtance	VI	463
4715	3408	409	The populace riſe at Conſtantinople, and burn the palace of Monaxes, præfect of the city, upon account of the ſcarcity of bread. The rich men make a voluntary contribution, and divide it among the poor, and whip the bakers through the ſtreets, and ſo appeaſe the multitude	VI	462
4516	3409	410	The Britains having often implored the Romans to aſſiſt them without ſucceſs, ſhook off all obedience to them; but not being able to withſtand the continual irruptions of their enemies, again implore the aſſiſtance of Honorius, who ſent them a legion; theſe coming unexpectedly, cut the Scots and Picts in great numbers to pieces, and drove them into their own territories; and after adviſing the natives to rebuild the wall, returned to the emperor	VI	463
4716	3409	410	Heraclian keeping the ports of Africa ſo well guarded, that the Romans could get no ſuſtenance from thence, they were reduced to the neceſſity of eating human fleſh. Alaric and Attalus go to Rome to conſult about the meaſures of relieving Rome. Alaric propoſes to ſend Gomarac, one of his officers, with a detachment of Goths to force Africa: Attalus refuſes to employ the Goths, which ſo exaſperated Alaric, that he ſent moderate propoſals to Honorius, who ſeemingly complied therewith. Alaric publick ſtripped Attalus of all the badges of ſovereignty, and ſent them to Honorius, and inſiſted on Attalus and his ſon Ampelius being pardoned; and then Alaric goes towards Ravenna, to finiſh the peace: but Sarus the Goth, with 300 men, having remained neuter, Ataulphus goes againſt him; upon which he declared for Honorius, and went to Ravenna, where being kindly received, ſo provoked Alaric, that he returned to Rome, and reinſtated Attalus again in the ſovereign power, and in a few days depoſed him again, beſieged Rome, and reduced it to extream neceſſities, and took it the 24th of Auguſt, and gave his ſoldiers leave to plunder the town, but ordered them not to kill the people. After five or ſix days ſpent in plunder, they burnt the greateſt part of the city to aſhes, and vaſt numbers of the people were maſſacred, but they ſpared all thoſe that fled to the churches for ſafety, which were the only buildings that were not deſtroyed	VII	437
4716	3409	410	Alaric goes from Rome into Campania, with his vaſt booty, and multitudes of captives, among whom was Placidia, the ſiſter of Honorius, whom he treated with great reſpect; and after laying waſte Campania, Lucania, Samnium, Apulia, Calabria, and Brutium, he went towards the Streights of Sicily, intending to go from thence into Africa; but his fleet being ſhipwrecked, he remained near Rhegium, where he was ſuddenly taken ill, and died in a few days. The Goths, for fear any inſult ſhould be offered to his bones, turned the courſe of the Buſento near Coſenza in the farther Calabria, and buried him with many rich ſpoils in the bed of the river, and then let the waters return to their old courſe, and run over him, and killed all the ſlaves they employed in the work, and then choſe Ataulphus, his ſiſter's huſband, for their king in his ſtead	VI	464 466

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt.		Vol.	Pag.
4716	3409	410	Conſtantine comes out of Gaul, where he reigned, prepares to enter Italy, under the pretence of helping Honorius; but being obliged to return into Gaul to repel Geronicus, who had purſued his ſon Conſtans out of Spain, Conſtantine ſends to beg help of the Franks and Germans. Geronicus beſieges his ſon Conſtans in Vienne, took it and him, puts Conſtans to death, and goes and beſieges Conſtantine in Arles — — —	VI	466
4716	3409	410	By the wiſe adminiſtration of Anthemius, all remained quiet and ſecure in the eaſt, where Andronicus, governor of Pentapolis, being proved guilty of extortion, &c. was firſt excommunicated by Syniſius biſhop of Ptolemais, and then degraded from his government — — —	VI	466
4717	3410	411	The emperor Honorius ſends Conſtantius with an army into Gaul againſt Conſtantine, for coming into Italy without deſire: He is joined by many of the troops of Geronicus, who forſook their maſter, upon which he raiſed the ſiege of Arles, and fled into Spain, where for his ſeverity his ſoldiers mutiny, and force him to kill his wife, his friend, and then himſelf. Maximus, whom Geronicus had ſet up in Spain, is brought by his own men to Conſtantius, who ſtripped him of his authority, but ſpared his life. Conſtantius beſieged Conſtantine in Arles, when after four months Edebicus comes with a very numerous army of Franks to his aſſiſtance, which Conſtantius engaging, preſently routed with great ſlaughter; when, upon oath promiſing to ſpare the lives of Conſtantine and his ſon, the gates of Arles were opened to him; but they being ſent to Honorius, he ordered them both to be beheaded — — —	VI	467
4717	3410	411	The Auſurians, a Mooriſh nation, broke into Pentapolis, and laid the province waſte, but were ſoon driven out by Anyſius the governor. The Saracens break into the frontiers of Egypt, Paleſtine, Phœnicia, and Syria, and carry off great booty — — — —	VI	467
4717	3410	411	The Sueves, &c. having intirely driven the Romans out of Spain, make peace with the natives, and divided the Spaniſh provinces by lot among them —	VII	541
4718	3411	412	The Goths under Ataulphus quit Italy, and go into Gaul, and ravage all the places they come to — — —	VI	467
4718	3411	412	Sarus the Goth being diſguſted at Honorius, goes into Gaul to join Jovinus, that had declared himſelf emperor there, upon the depoſition of Conſtantine; which Ataulphus hearing, meets and takes him, and ſoon after puts him to death. Jovinus finding fault with Ataulphus for it, and promoting his brother Sebaſtian to be his partner in the empire, Ataulphus ſends word to Honorius, that if he would furniſh him with a quantity of corn, he would ſet his ſiſter Placidia at liberty, and ſend him the heads of the two rebels; which being readily agreed to by Honorius, Ataulphus ſoon diſpatched Sebaſtian, but Jovinus fled to Valence, where Ataulphus beſieged and took him, and delivered him to Dardanius, prefect of Gaul, who put him to death at Narbonne — — —	VI	468
4719	3412	413	Lucius and Heraclianus were conſuls this year; but after defending Africa gallantly a long time, Heraclianus revolts from Honorius, and proclaims himſelf emperor, fits out a prodigious fleet, lands in Italy, and marches directly to Rome. Count Marinus goes out againſt him, upon which he flies, gets into one of his ſhips, and returns alone to Africa: His men ſubmit, and are pardoned, and himſelf ſoon after cut to pieces in Africa — —	VI	468
4719	3412	413	The Franks make an irruption into Gaul, ſet fire to the city of Treves, and lay the country waſte — — —	VII	558
4719	3412	413	The Burgundians, Vandals, and Alans, who entered Gaul in 407, make themſelves maſters of Alſatia, and are allowed to ſettle there, which gave riſe to the kingdom of the Burgundians in Gaul, under Gondicarius, or Guntiarius —	VII	583
4719	3412	413	Ataulphus begins hoſtilities again, took Narbonne and Toulouſe, and goes to Marſeilles, where count Bonifacius engages him, kills great numbers of his men, wounds himſelf, and makes him retire, when he went to Bourdeaux, where he was received as a friend — — —	VI	469
4719	3412	413	Lucius, a Pagan, having the command of the troops attending the court of young Theodoſius, being diſpleaſed at the zeal of the young prince for Chriſtianity, reſolves to aſſaſſinate him, but is hindered by an imaginary apparition. This year Conſtantinople was ſurrounded with walls, twenty miles in circumference, in two months time — — —	VI	469
4720	3413	414	Placidia, ſiſter to the emperor Honorius, is prevailed on to marry Ataulphus king of the Goths, at Narbonne in Gaul, after having been long his priſoner of war, in January, where the nuptials were celebrated with the utmoſt magnificence: He preſented her with 50 baſons filled with pieces of gold, and 50 filled with jewels and precious ſtones. Honorius not conſenting to this match, Ataulphus ſet up Attalus again to be emperor, to bring Honorius to his terms —	VI	470
4720	3413	414	Honorius publiſhed a law, forbidding any one to moleſt ſuch as ſhould take ſanctuary in churches, on pain of being puniſhed for high treaſon —	VI	470
4720	3413	414	Anthemius reſigns his government of the empire and emperor to Pulcheria, ſiſter to the emperor Theodoſius, for her extraordinary wiſdom and piety, on which account ſhe is honoured with the name of Auguſta — —	VI	470
4721	3414	415	Theodoſius, ſon of Ataulphus and Placidia, dies in Spain, and is buried in a ſilver coffin in a church near Barcelona, where Ataulphus was killed in Auguſt or September in his own ſtable, by Dobbius a Goth, one of his ſervants, whoſe maſter he had killed ſeveral years before. Upon which the Goths chooſe Sigeric, the brother of Sarus, for their king, who murders the ſix children of Ataulphus, by his firſt wife, in revenge for the life of his brother Sarus, and obliged Placidia with other captives to walk twelve miles before his chariot, for which he was aſſaſſinated by his own people, the 7th day after his promotion, and Vallia choſe in his room, after he had murdered all who ſtood in competition with him — —	VI	471

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4721	3414	415	Ataulphus king of the Goths being driven out of Gaul, flies into Spain, and is murdered
4721	3414	415	A great tumult happened at Alexandria; the Chriſtians and Jews, that were very numerous, quarrelling about ſome ſports that were exhibited on a Saturday. St. Cyril the biſhop of the city threatned to drive all the Jews out of it; upon this the Jews having armed themſelves, in the dead of the night cried out the great church was on fire; upon which the Chriſtians coming out of their houſes to quench the fire, were maſſacred in great numbers; for which the biſhop drove them all out of the city; Oreſtes the governor reſented it as an incroachment upon his authority: Both write to court; the hermits fly to the city for refuge, and revile Oreſtes with the names of Pagan and Idolater, and Ammonius wounded him on the head with a ſtone; the monk was ſeized, and by the prefect racked to death. The populace ſeized Hypatia, daughter of the philoſopher Theon, a perſon much famed for her great wiſdom, and becauſe ſhe was reſpected by Oreſtes, they dragged her out of her chariot into a neighbouring church, and flayed her alive, then tore her to pieces, and burnt her mangled carcaſs	VII	509
4721	3414	415	Theodoſius publiſhes a law to exclude Pagans from all employments both civil and military, and depoſed Gamaliel patriarch of the Jews, for abuſing his authority	VI	471
4722	3415	416	Vallia king of the Goths ſends a fleet out to go and reduce Africa, which is deſtroyed by ſhipwreck near the Streights of Gibraltar, and moſt of his Goths on board drowned. He treats with Conſtantius, and concludes a peace with Honorius, delivers up hoſtages, and for 600,000 meaſures of corn ſends back Placidia to her brother. Attalus is taken, has his right-hand cut off, and is baniſhed to the iſland of Lipari	VI	471
4723	3416	417	Honorius gives his ſiſter to Conſtantius his general to wife, the 1ſt of January againſt her conſent. The Armorici, who formed themſelves into a new ſort of government in 409, are reduced again to the Roman ſubjection by Conſtantius, now brother-in-law to the emperor Honorius	VI	472
4723	3416	417	Honorius goes to Rome, which he enters in triumph, cauſing Attalus to be fetched from Lipari to walk before his chariot, and then ſent him back into exile again. This year the Franks, after dwelling 200 years on the German ſide of the Rhine, are allowed to come and ſettle in Thungria, where they were governed by as many kings as they conſiſted of cities or cantons	VI	472
4723	3416	417	In the eaſt Conſtantinople, and Cybyra in Phrygia, ſuffered very much by an earthquake, which threw down a great many houſes	VI	472
4723	3416	417	Vallia in Spain cuts off thoſe Vandals called Silingi, that had ſettled in Bætica or Andaluſia, and terribly mauled the Alans, who ruled over the Vandals and Suevians in Spain, whoſe king Ata being killed, they flew to Gonderic king of the Vandals in Galicia, and ſubmitted to him: For theſe ſervices, and delivering up his conqueſts, Conſtantius gave Vallia and his Goths Aquitania Secunda, containing the preſent archbiſhoprick of Bourdeaux, and ſome neighbouring cities, and ſoon after the province of Auch and Gaſcoyn. Vallia fixed his abode at Thouloufe, which became the capital of the kingdom of the Goths	VII	513
4724	3417	418	Honorius declares by law the right and privilege of ſanctuary to all places within 50 paces of every church, and declares thoſe guilty of ſacrilege that ſhould arreſt any perſon within that ſpace	VI	473
4724	3417	418	Placidia is delivered of a ſon at Ravenna, the 2d of July, named Valentinian, who ſucceeded his uncle Honorius in the empire	VI	473
4724	3417	418	In Spain Gonderic king of the Vandals, drives Eremeric king of the Suevians into the mountains of Biſcay, where he blocked him up. Aſterius, count of Spain, and Maurocelas the vicar, cuts off great numbers of Gonderic's men, and forced the reſt to retire into Bætica	VI	473
4726	3419	420	The Franks pillage and burn Treves a 3d time	V.I	558
4726	3419	420	Honorius raiſes Conſtantius his brother-in-law on the 8th of February to the imperial dignity, and declares him his colleague, and gave his wife Placidia the title of Auguſta. Upon ſending their ſtatues to Conſtantinople, Theodoſius refuſed to acknowledge them; but Conſtantius dying the 2d of September following, put an end to all diſputes	VI	473
4726	3419	420	The emperor Theodoſius on the 17th of June marries Eudocia, the daughter of Heraclitus, an Athenian philoſopher, ſhe being firſt baptized by Atticus biſhop of Conſtantinople	VI	473
4727	3420	421	Iſdigertes, king of Perſia, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Varanes the 5th. Abdas, the Perſian Chriſtian prelate, thro' intemperate zeal, burns down a Pagan temple; and being by the king requeſted to rebuild it, refuſed, for which he was put to death. All the Chriſtian churches were demoliſhed, and a terrible perſecution followed. Theodoſius complained of this and other matters, and both ſides prepare for war. Ardaburius, the Roman general, goes into Azazene, a Perſian province, and began to lay it waſte with fire and ſword. Narſes, the Perſian general, comes and gives him battle, but is defeated, and goes into Meſopotamia, a Roman province; upon which Ardaburius blocks up Niſibis. Varanes ſollicits the Saracens to break with the Romans, which they readily comply'd with, and paſſed the Euphrates with a mighty army, and ravaged the Roman province ſo terribly, that the people joining the ſoldiers, engaged them, and cut off 100,000 of them, and forced the remainder to return home. Varanes goes with a mighty army to the relief of Niſibis; upon which the Romans retire, and the king returns to his capital. This done, the Romans engage his generals, and defeat them, and a ſecond time repulſe the Saracens, and overthrow the Perſians, killing them abundance of men and ſeven generals. Soon after a corps of 10,000, called Immortals, were attacked by the Romans, and every man of them cut off, upon which a peace was concluded for a 100 years	IV	321

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4728	3421	422	Honorius ſends Caſtinus with a fine army into Spain, to recover it out of the hands of the Barbarians; but he imprudently venturing a battle, has 20,000 of his men cut off	VI	475
4728	3421	422	The Britains being in great diſtreſs, through the ravages of the Picts, &c. implore help from the Romans, who grant it, and drive out the enemies	VII	437
4729	3422	423	Honorius, who till now had entertained his ſiſter Placidia with all the love and reſpect poſſible, ſuddenly changes his behaviour to the contrary; upon which ſhe, her ſon Valentinian, and daughter Honoria, quit the court, and retire to Conſtantinople, where they are received with great affection by Theodoſius. Soon after Honorius dies at Ravenna, upon which Theodoſius proclaims himſelf emperor: but John, the late emperor's chief ſecretary, ſets up himſelf at Rome, and is acknowledged in Rome, Italy, Dalmatia and Gaul, and ſends embaſſadors to Theodoſius, who ordered them to be impriſoned, and prepares for war	VI	478
4730	3423	424	Theodoſius creates Placidia Auguſta, and her ſon Valentinian Cæſar, and ſends them with his army againſt the uſurper John; Salonæ is taken by ſtorm, and then they go to Aquileia with the army by land, under the command of Aſpar the ſon; but Ardaburius the father going by ſea, is ſhipwreck'd and taken by John, who uſes him civilly. He gives information to his ſon Aſpar, who comes at unawares, and ſeizes the city of Ravenna, took the uſurper, and ſent him in chains to Placidia at Aquileia, where he was beheaded, after bearing the title of emperor about eighteen months	VI	480
4731	3424	425	Three days after the death of the uſurper, John Aetius comes into Italy to his aſſiſtance with 60,000 Hunns: Aſpar meets him, and a bloody engagement happens, without any conſiderable advantage on either ſide; but Aetius being informed of the death of John, makes the beſt terms he can for himſelf; Placidia not only pardons, but takes him into favour, with the title of count, (at that time a title of great note:) He ſubmits, and prevails upon the Hunns to return home. Theodoſius, upon hearing Placidia's ſucceſs, declares Valentinian her ſon, his young couſin and ſon-in-law, emperor, and Placidia regent during his minority	VI	483
4731	3424	425	The Vandals, who had ſettled in Spain, ravaged the Balearick iſlands; and the Goths, who had been permitted to ſettle in Gaul, ſeized on the neighbouring cities, and laid ſiege to Arles, which Aetius obliged them to raiſe. Thrace was laid waſte by the Hunns, but a plague raging in their army they retired	VI	480
4733	3426	427	Theodoſius tranſplanted the Goths that had been ſettled in Pannonia 50 years before into Thrace, where they continued 58 years	VI	480
4734	3427	428	Pharamond king of the Franks dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Clodio	VII	559
4734	3427	428	Count Bonifacius in Africa revolts from Valentinian; Placidia ſends a large army under the command of Mavotius, Galbio, and Sinex, who were all intirely defeated; upon which ſhe ſent Sigiſvult the Goth, who with the aſſiſtance of his countrymen, took Carthage and Hippo; Bonifacius begs the help of the Vandals under the command of Genſeric; they come from Spain, men, women, and children	VI	481
4734	3427	428	The Vandals evacuate Spain, and go and ſettle in Africa, where they commit moſt terrible ravages	VII	532
4736	3429	430	Aetius is made commander of all the troops in the weſtern empire, who gained great advantages over the Juthongi, the revolted Noricans, the Franks, and the Goths in Gaul	VI	481
4736	3429	430	A body of Sueves attempting to croſs the Rhine in order to go and join their brethren ſettled in Galicia in Spain, are attacked by Aetius the Roman general, who cut great numbers of them to pieces, and obliged the reſt to return to their own home between the Elbe and Weiſſel	VII	543
4737	3430	431	Aetius intirely reduced the Norici and Vindelici. The true reaſon of Bonifacius's revolting comes to light; Placidia and he are reconciled, when he ſtrives to free Africa of Genſeric and his companions, by offering them large ſums to return home: Genſeric rejects his offer, falls upon him, and cuts off moſt of his men, and forces him to fly to Hippo	VI	482
4737	3430	431	An oecumenical council was held at Epheſus, where Neſtorius biſhop of Conſtantinople was condemned, by upwards of 200 biſhops, for holding two perſons as well as two natures in Chriſt. St. Auſtin, biſhop of Hippo in Africa, dies in the 4th month of its ſiege by the Vandals	VI	482
4738	3431	432	Bonifacius engages the Vandals in Africa, is overthrown with great ſlaughter, many taken priſoners, and the reſt forced to ſhelter themſelves among the rocks and mountains; after which the Vandals committed ſuch dreadful ravages, that the inhabitants of Hippo quitted the city, which was firſt plundered and then ſet on fire. Bonifacius retires to Placidia, at Ravenna. Aetius perceiving his treachery was diſcovered, meets and engages Bonifacius, who being much wounded, died ſoon after. Aetius withdraws to the court of Rouas, king of the Hunns, and returns with a great army: Placidia pardons and reſtores him to his former poſt	VI	482
4739	3432	433	A dreadful fire breaks out at Conſtantinople, which laſted three days, during which it conſumed all the publick granaries, &c.	VI	482
4740	3433	434	Honoria ſiſter to the emperor Valentinian having ſuffered herſelf to be debauched by one of her domeſtics, named Eugenius, was baniſhed the court, being about 16 years old, ſhe invites Attila king of the Hunns to enter Italy with his army and marry her, &c.	VI	483
4741	3434	435	The Romans make a peace with Genſeric king of the Vandals in Africa, and yield them great part of Numidia, all the province Proconſularis, and Bizacene. Aetius gains a great victory over the Burgundians	VII	535

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4741	3434	435	The Romans after having with the Britains built on the Iſthmus between the two friths of Glota and Bodotria a wall of eight foot broad and twelve foot high, take their final leave of Britain, &c.
4741	3434	435	The Burgundians, &c. entered Belgic Gaul, made great devaſtations and dreadful ravages; but Aetius the Roman General overcame them in a pitch'd battle, and reduced them to ſuch ſtraits, that Gundicarius their king ſued for peace, and obtained it	VII	483
4742	3435	436	The Hunns attack the Burgundians, and cut off 20,000 of them in Gaul; the Goths take ſeveral places in Gaul, and beſiege Narbonne, but are obliged to raiſe it and retire	VII	583
4743	3436	437	The nuptials between Eudoxia, daughter of the emperor Theodoſius, and the emperor Valentinian, were celebrated at Conſtantinople the 29th of October	VI	483
4743	3436	437	Emeric the Suevian king makes peace with the native Galicians, and being in an ill ſtate of health, reſigns his crown to his ſon Rochila, and lives a private retired life the remainder of his days	VI	483
4743	3436	437	Clodio makes himſelf maſter of Cambray, from whence he pierced into Artois, where Aetius and Majorinus fall unexpectedly upon them, while they were celebrating the nuptials of one of their chiefs, and cut great numbers of them to pieces; but notwithſtanding this, he extended his conqueſts as far as the Somme	VII	543
4744	3437	438	Aetius removes the Burgundians from the banks of the Rhine, into the preſent dutchy of Savoy	VII	561
4744	3437	438	Aetius engages and cuts off 8,000 Goths in Gaul	VII	583
4744	3437	438	The famous code, or body of Roman laws, are publiſhed by Juſtinian	VII	510
4744	3437	438	Genſeric king of the Vandals ſurprizes and takes Carthage in Africa, the 23d of October, after it had been poſſeſſed by the Romans 585 years	VI	484
4745	3438	439	Rochila the Suevian king enters Luſitania, and takes Merida the capital of that province	VII	534
4745	3438	439	Genſeric, king of the Vandals, makes a deſcent into Sicily, ravages the country without oppoſition, and carries off immenſe booty	VII	543
4745	3438	439	The emperor Theodoſius, in a fit of jealouſy, orders Paulineus, the empreſs Eudocia's chief favourite, to be executed; upon which ſhe retires to Jeruſalem, and remains there till the time of her death, which happened twenty-one years afterwards, during which time ſhe built many churches, &c.	VI	510
4745	3438	439	Litorius, as auxiliary to the Romans, with his army of Hunns beſieges Thouloùſe, the capital of the Goths; upon which Theodoric king of the Goths goes out, gives them battle, overcomes them, and takes Litorius priſoner	VI	486
4746	3439	440	Cyrus alone was conſul, who, as he was a great proficient in polite literature, eſpecially poetry, was much eſteemed, and particularly by the emperors; and as he went into the Circus with the conſular ornaments, the people received him with ſuch acclamations, as made the emperor jealous, and a few days afterwards ſtripped him of all his employments, and confiſcated his eſtate, &c. pretending that he inclined to Paganiſm, and aſpired at the empire; but flying into a church for refuge, he got himſelf ordained a prieſt. The emperor granted him his life, and afterwards made him biſhop of Cotyea in Phrygia	VII	510
4746	3439	440	Arſaces king of Armenia dying, and leaving two ſons, Tigranes and Arſaces, by his will divided the kingdom between them; Arſaces diſliking his ſhare, appeals to Theodoſius, who eſpouſes his cauſe, and threatens Tigranes with war; upon which he reſign'd up the whole to his brother, and retired to the Perſian court, where he lived privately. Arſaces, for fear of the Perſians, ſurrendered up the whole to Theodoſius, and ſo put an end to the Armenian kingdom, after it had ſubſiſted many ages, and occaſioned many bloody wars	VI	486
4747	3440	441	The empire being vaſtly weakened, Theodoſius is forced to make peace with Attila king of the Hunns, conditioning to deliver up ſuch Hunns as had or ſhould take refuge in the Roman dominions; that every Roman priſoner that made his eſcape from the Hunns, without paying his ranſom, ſhould be delivered up, or have eight pieces of gold paid for him; that the Romans annually ſhould pay the Hunns 700 lb. weight of gold; that the Romans ſhould not aſſiſt the enemies of the Hunns, &c. In conſequence of this treaty, Attila conquered all the nations north of the Euxine ſea; then croſſing the Danube, over-run Thrace, and demands all the Hunns that ſheltered themſelves in the Roman dominions. This being refuſed, Attila began to ravage the country, and put all to fire and ſword, and forced the emperor to retire from Conſtantinople into Aſia for his better ſecurity	VI	487
4748	3441	442	Theodoſius concludes another ſhameful peace with Attila king of the Hunns, and returns to Conſtantinople, the 28th of Auguſt, where he was forced to keep Attila in temper, by making him frequently extraordinary preſents. 'Tis ſaid Attila ſent two Goths embaſſadors to the two emperors; one to Theodoſius and one to Valentinian, charging them to ſay, "Attila, my maſter and yours, commands you to get a "palace ready for his reception"	VI	487
4748	3441	442	The Sueves, under the direction and command of their king Rochila, take the city of Seville in Spain, reduce all Betica, and the province of Carthagena	VI	488
4748	3441	442	The emperor Valentinian III. makes peace with Genſeric king of the Vandals, and confirms to him all his conqueſts in Africa	VII	534
4748	3441	442	Varanes, the fifth, king of Perſia, dies, and is ſucceeded by Varanes the ſixth; by ſome called Iſdigertes, who lived peaceably with the Romans ſeventeen years and four months, and then died	V	534
4749	3442	443	Theodoſius viſits Pontus, and cauſes the public edifices and walls of Heraclea, to be repaired	IV	342
				VI	488

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4749	3442	443	Paſcaſinus, biſhop of Lilybæum in Sicily, returns from captivity in Africa, where he had been kept upwards of three years, by Genſeric king of the Vandals, in a miſerable condition	VII	534
4750	3443	444	Arcadia, the ſiſter of Theodoſius, dies, and Antiochus the eunuch, and great chamberlain to Theodoſius, is degraded from the rank of a patrician, and confined to the monaſtery of St. Euphemia at Chalcedon, ſtripped of his immenſe wealth, and deprived of all his honours, for extorting upon the people, and a law is made for ever excluding all eunuchs from the patrician dignity	VI	488
4751	3444	445	Vitus, the Roman general, is defeated in Spain by the Sueves, who under Rochila their king cut off moſt of his men, and oblige him to ſave himſelf by flight	VI	489
4752	3445	446	Aetius, being this year conſul the third time, the Britons cruelly harraſſed by the Picts and Scots, beg aſſiſtance from him, but obtain no relief. What the ſword left, the plague took away; ſo that they were forced to invite the Saxons, who come into that iſland	VII	442
4753	3446	447	A terrible plague the foregoing and this year rages in moſt of the provinces, and a violent earthquake overturned ſeveral cities, and great part of the new walls of Conſtantinople, and fifty-ſeven towers, together with many ſumptuous edifices, in Antioch and Alexandria	VI
4753	3446	447	Attila joined by the Goths, Alani, and Gepidæ, over-run Illyricum, Thrace, both Dacias, Mæſia and Scythia; took and plundered ſeventy cities, &c. extending themſelves from the Euxine ſea to the ſtraits of Thermopylæ. Arnegiſelus, governor of Mæſia, oppoſes and cuts great numbers of them to pieces; but falling from his horſe, is killed and his army put to the rout, and the ſame happened to others	VII
4753	3446	447	Rochila, king of the Suevians, dies in Spain, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Requiarius, who tho' he profeſſed himſelf a Chriſtian, yet began his reign with plundering his neighbours	VII
4754	3447	448	The Romans ſue for peace to Attila, who grants it upon condition that they pay 6000 lb. weight of gold down, and every year 200 lb. weight; that they ſhould return back all deſerters, and for the future receive none; that they ſhould pay 12 lb. weight of gold for every Roman captive that eſcaped without ranſom, or ſend them back, &c.	VI	9
4754	3447	448	Requiarius, king of the Sueves, marries the daughter of Theodoric, king of the Goths in Languedoc, and viſiting him at Thouloufe, in his return to Spain, ſurprized the city of Lerida, and carried off a great number of captives, and then pillaged the territory of Saragoſſa	VI	489
4754	3447	448	Attila falſely claims certain curious veſſels belonging to the church, pretending that one Silvatius, a Roman banker, had ſtolen them from him, and threatned Valentinian with war, if he did not ſurrender them	VI	490
4754	3447	448	Clodio king of the Franks dies, and is ſucceeded by his younger ſon Merovæus	VII	562
4755	3448	449	Attila ſends Edecon his embaſſador to Conſtantinople, where Chryſaphus, the great chamberlain, backed by Theodoſius, promiſes Edecon great rewards to diſpatch his maſter, and ſent Vigilius the interpreter with him to the court of Attila, to be aſſiſtant in the affair. Edecon diſcovers the matter to Attila; Vigilius is ſeized, and Attila ſends Oreſtes his ſecretary to reproach Theodoſius, and demand Chryſaphus; but Nomus, and ſeveral other perſons of diſtinction, make up the buſineſs	VI	490
4756	3449	450	The emperor Theodoſius is ſo much bruiſed by a fall from his horſe in hunting, that being with much difficulty carried to Conſtantinople in a chair, he died there the next day, the 28th of July, in the 50th year of his age, and the 43d of his reign from the death of his father, and buried in the ſame tomb with his father Arcadius. He is allowed to have been a prince of exemplary piety, tho' but of ſlender parts, being much governed by his eunuchs and favourites	VI	490
4756	3449	450	Pulcheria, ſiſter of the late emperor Theodoſius, declares Marcianus (a perſon of extraordinary qualifications, tho' of no great birth) emperor, which the ſenate confirms, and crowned him at Hebdomon, the 24th of Auguſt, with great ſolemnity, and then Pulcheria married him with mighty pomp	VI	493
4756	3449	450	Pulcheria, mother of Valentinian, dies at Ravenna, (where her tomb is ſtill to be ſeen) after governing the weſtern empire 26 years	VI	493
4757	3450	451	The emperor Marcian calls the council of Chalcedon, the 8th of October, and ends the firſt of November	VI	498
4757	3450	451	Attila king of the Hunns ſends to the emperor Valentinian, and demands Honoria his ſiſter for his wife, and half the empire for her dowry. He ſends embaſſadors to Attila, who ſeems ſatisfied, but only diſſembled his intentions; comes with a mighty army into Gaul, having firſt defeated the Franks, and taken Childeric and his mother priſoner, pretending friendſhip to the Romans. Several cities opened their gates to him; but his ſoldiers plundering and ravaging the inhabitants, ſhewed him to be an enemy, wherefore others oppoſed him, and then he pulled off the maſk. He beſieged and took by ſtorm Tongres, Treves, Straſburgh, Spire, Worms, Mentz, &c. and going into the open country, put all to the ſword, and laid Arras, Laon, Beſancon, Toul, and Langres, in aſhes; and laid ſiege to Orleans, and took it by ſtorm; and while his men were plundering it, Aetius, Theodoric, &c. came with a large army, and cut abundance of the Hunns to pieces, forced Attila to repaſs the Loire, in which many of his men were drowned. At laſt he reached the plains of Chalons, where they engage. Theodoric king of the Viſigoths is ſlain, and about 300,000 men on both ſides, after which Attila retired into Pannonia	VII	478
4758	3451	452	The Nubians and Blemmyes broke into the eaſtern empire, but Marcian forces them to accept of peace upon his own terms	VI	498

Y. of world.	Y. of ſidon.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
4758	3451	452	Attila invades Italy, and inveſts Aquileia the metropolis of Venetia, battering it continually for the ſpace of three months, when he took it by aſſault, and reduced every houſe in it to aſhes, and killed every perſon that fell into his hands. The cities of Treviſgio, Verona, Mantua, Cremona, Breſcia, and Bergamo, ſuffered the ſame fate. Milan, the metropolis of Liguria, he alſo took, and burnt the cities round about. Valentinian ſends Leo biſhop of Rome, and ſome others, to treat with Attila about an accommodation, who concluded a truce with him
4759	3452	453	Attila enters that part of Gaul now called Dauphiny, but is entirely routed by Sangiban king of the Alans, and Thoriſmond king of the Viſigoths. Upon his return home, he married a beautiful young woman, and drinking to exceſs, in the night bled to death; and with him ended the empire of the Hunns	VII	480
4759	3452	453	Attila by his will appointed Ellack his eldeſt ſon his ſucceſſor; but a civil war happening between him, his brethren, and the conquered nations, Ellack is killed in battle, and the Hunns entirely routed, with a great ſlaughter on the banks of the Netad in Pannonia	VII	480
4759	3452	453	Thoriſmond, king of the Viſigoths, is murdered, and ſucceeded by his brother Theodoric the ſecond	VII	481
4759	3452	453	The empreſs Pulcheria dies, and leaves an immenſe ſtock of wealth to the poor, and was honoured with the title of Saint both by the Greeks and Latins	VII	511
4760	3453	454	Aetius, now conſul the 4th time, is accuſed by Heraclius the eunuch, to the emperor Valentinian, who being a weak prince, believes the inſinuation; ſends to ſpeak with him in privacy, and himſelf and ſeveral others ſtab Aetius to death with their ſwords	VI	498
4761	3454	455	The emperor Valentinian having violently forced the chaſtity of Petronius Maximus, Maximus hires two Barbarians to murder Valentinian, who came into the Campus Martius and killed him, and his favourite eunuch Heraclius, in the face of the whole court, the 17th of March, in the 34th year of his age, and 30th of his reign. The next day Maximus aſſumed the purple, and being ſaluted by all the people with the title of Auguſtus, he immediately raiſed his ſon Palladius to the dignity of Cæſar; and his wife dying, he obliged Eudoxia, wife of the late emperor, to marry him againſt her will, and married her daughter Eudoxia to his ſon Palladius. She ſends to Genſeric king of the Vandals in Africa, and begs him to reſcue her out of the arms of the tyrant, and to revenge the murder of his friend, he comes with a mighty fleet and army to Rome. Maximus frighted flies, upon which the people purſue and kill him. Three days after, viz. the 15th of June, Genſeric enters Rome, and gave it up to be plundered, ſtrictly forbidding his ſoldiers either to burn the city, or kill the people. They pillaged the houſes, churches, and all the public edifices, for fourteen days, and carried away a vaſt number of captives, each taking as many women as he liked. Genſeric ſtript the place, and took with him Eudoxia and her two daughters, and Gaudentius the ſon of Aetius	VII	534
4761	3454	455	Flavius Mæcilius Avitus, who had been appointed, by the deceaſed Maximus, commander in chief of all the Roman forces, and was now at the court of Theodoric king of the Viſigoths, at Thoulouſe, is by him prompted to aſſume the purple; and the 8th of Auguſt following was declared emperor at Arles by all the ſoldiery; from whence he went to Rome, where he was received with the univerſal applauſe of all the people, and Marcian readily acknowledged him for his colleague	VI	502
4762	3455	456	Requiarius, king of the Suevians in Spain, wars upon the Viſigoths in Aquitain, and laid the provinces of Terraco waſte. His brother-in-law Theodoric, as ally of Rome, endeavours to perſuade him to peace and good neighbourhood; but he anſwering very haughtily, they come to blows, in which Requiriarius was entirely defeated, and forced to fly; is purſued, taken, and put to death, and the Sueves, ſubmit to Theodoric, who ſets one Aquiulphus as governor over them. Aquiulphus revolts, and proclaims himſelf king of the Sueves, but dies ſoon after	VII	544
4762	3455	456	Gunaiac king of the Burgundians joins Theodoric king of the Viſigoths, and goes with him into Spain, where they diſcomfit the Sueves; but in their return home, the Burgundians ſeized on part of Gaul
4762	3455	456	Genſeric puts to ſea with a numerous fleet and army; deſigns to ravage the coaſts of Italy and Gaul; was met and engaged by Ricimer, the Roman admiral, and entirely defeated; elated with this ſucceſs, Ricimer and one Majorianus go to Rome, and oblige the ſenate to depoſe Avitus, who was then in Gaul, but Avitus coming back, was met by Ricimer at Placentia, who there ſtripped him of all the enſigns of majeſty; upon which Avitus cauſed himſelf to be ordained biſhop of Placentia; but the ſenate inſiſting upon his being put to death, he retired towards Brioude, and died by the way	VI	503
4762	3455	456	The Burgundians dwelling amongſt the mountains of Savoy, ſeize on part of Gaul, and take Lions	VI	504
4762	3455	456	The Heruli make a deſcent upon Galicia in Spain; but not ſucceeding, they ſail to Biſcay, where they land, and commit great ravages, &c.	VII	504
4763	3456	457	Marcian, the emperor of the eaſt, dies, in the ſeventh year of his reign, and is ſucceeded by Leo, (ſirnamed the Great) with the unanimous conſent of the ſenate, people and ſoldiery, and crowned by Anatolius, patriarch of Conſtantinople, being the firſt prince that received his crown at the hands of a biſhop. The Eutychians in Alexandria roſe in a tumultuous manner, murdered the Catholic biſhop Proterus, and choſe Timotheus Elerus, one of their own ſect, in his ſtead	VI	504
4763	3456	457	Majorianus emperor of the weſt, falling upon the Vandals who were ravaging Campania, defeats and deſtroys multitudes of them, and retakes the ſpoil and plunder

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
			der they had amaſſed together, and forces the remainder to fly on board their ſhips	VII	535
4763	3456	457	After three months interregnum, Majorianus (a perſon of extraordinary merit) is declared emperor in the weſt, by the ſenate, people and ſoldiery	VI	505
4763	3456	457	Theodoric king of the Viſigoths, having entirely reduced the Sueves in Galicia, enters Luſitania, takes Merida the metropolis, and ſeveral other cities; and then goes to Thouloufe. Having left a body of troops to reduce ſome few Suevians in Galicia, who being admitted as friends into Aſtorga, a town belonging to the Romans, put moſt of the inhabitants to the ſword, plundered the houſes, ſet fire to the place, and carried thoſe that remained alive into captivity; among the reſt, the whole clergy and two biſhops that happened to be there, Palen ii met with the ſame fate	VI	505
4763	3456	457	Hengiſt the Saxon having overcome Vortigern in a battle fought in Kent, made himſelf king thereof	VII	445
4764	3457	458	The Vandals make a deſcent into Campania; the emperor Majorianus goes againſt them, defeats them, and puts great numbers to the ſword, among whom was their commander, brother-in-law to Genſeric; the reſt fly to Africa	VI	505
4764	3457	458	Mo'dra the Suevian king orders that part of Galicia, which lay on the Douro, to be laid waſte, contrary to the peace that had been concluded the year before	VI	545
4764	3457	458	Upon Vortigern's retirement, Aurelius Ambroſius takes upon him the command of the Britiſh army, and becomes their king	VII	445
4764	3457	458	Majorianus enters Gaul, and obliges the Burgundians to ſurrender Lyons, which they had taken, and to retire	VI	505
4765	3458	459	Peroſes ſucceeds his father Varanes the 6th in the kingdom of Perſia, and going againſt the Euthalites or White Hunns, was by them drawn into a ſnare, that cut off abundance of his men by famine, and compelled him to do homage to their king, and ſwear never to trouble them again	IV	342
4765	3458	459	Theodoric ſurprized ſome cities in Gaul, belonging to the Romans. Majorianus goes againſt him, engages, and in a pitch'd battle defeats him, and forces him to ſue for peace	VI	505
4765	3458	459	The city of Antioch was almoſt entirely overthrown by an earthquake	VI	505
4765	3459	460	Genſeric ſues to the Romans for peace, but is denied; whereupon attacking the Roman fleet in the bay of Alicant, took moſt of their ſhips, and carried them in triumph to Africa; and ſoon after a peace was concluded	VII	536
4766	3459	460	An earthquake overturned a great part of the city of Cyzicus	VI	506
4766	3459	460	The Franks, &c. break into Gaul, and having ravaged the moſt wealthy provinces there, made an irruption into Italy	VII	552
4766	3459	460	Ricimer gets the emperor Majorianus by treachery into his power, ſtrips him of the Imperial ornaments at Tortona in the Milaneſe, the ſecond, and put him to death the 7th of Auguſt; and proclaimed one Severus, the 19th of November following, at Ravenna	VI	506
4767	3460	461	Leo emperor in the Eaſt refuſing to pay the uſual penſion to the Oſtrogoths, allowed to ſettle in Pannonia, they fly to arms, laid waſte Illyricum, and took ſeveral cities; but Anthemius drives them into Pannonia again, and then concludes a peace with them	VI	506
4767	3460	461	Genſeric ſends a powerful fleet to pillage the coaſts of Sicily and Italy, and made himſelf maſter of Sardinia. The Viſigoths take Narbonne, and beſiege Arles. Ægidius goes againſt them, forces them to raiſe the ſiege and retire	VII	536
4767	3460	461	Marcellinus revolts from Severus, and retires into Dalmatia, where he eſtabliſhes a new ſovereignty, independant of the empire	VI	507
4768	3461	462	Ægidius gains a great victory over the Viſigoths in Gaul, killing many of them, and Frederic their general the king's brother	VI	507
4769	3462	463	Beorgor king of the Alans, having entered Italy, Ricimer meets him near Bergamo, and cuts him and all his men off	VI	507
4770	3463	464	Ægidius being murdered, the Viſigoths conquered the greateſt part of Gaul	VII	507
4770	3463	464	Childeric king of the Burgundians beſieged and took Paris, and conquered all the province, bordering upon the Rhine. The Saxons ſettled at Nantz and Bayeux; the Alemans in the country of the Helvetii, and the Britons driven out by the Angles and Scots in the territories of Vennes and Treguier, with the adjacent country, ſuppoſed to be called Bretagne, from the Britons	VI	508
4770	3463	464	Rumarius dying, Remiſmund his brother reigns over all the Sueves in Galicia alone	VII	546
4770	3463	464	The Sueves are univerſally poiſoned by one Ajax, an Arian prieſt, with that hereſy	VII	546
4771	3464	465	The emperor Severus dies in the 4th year of his reign, being ſuſpected to be poiſoned by Ricimer, and an interregnum of near two years followed, during which Ricimer reigned abſolutely without the title of emperor	VI	508
4771	3464	465	A violent fire reduced eight of the fourteen quarters of Conſtantinople to aſhes; it raging ſix days before it could be extinguiſhed	VII	503
4771	3464	465	Uric murders his brother Theodoric, king of the Viſigoths, and ſucceeds him in the government, who had reigned thirteen years	VI	514
4772	3465	466	Ricimer aſſembles a powerful fleet in order to recover Africa, but was obliged to lay aſide his enterprize, not being able to put out through contrary winds, that blew violently all the ſummer	VI	508
4772	3465	466	The Hunns, under Dengizic ſon of Attila, broke into Dacia; but were defeated firſt by Anthemius, and then by Anagaſtus general of Thrace, who ſlew Dengizic, and ſent his head to Conſtantinople	VII	482
4773	3466	467	Ricimer conſents that Anthemius count of the eaſt ſhould be proclaimed emperor of the weſt, being a native of Conſtantinople, of an ancient, illuſtrious, and wealthy family, and who had married Marciana, the only daughter of the late

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chrift		Vol.	Page
			emperor Marcian, had been conſul in 455. and general, and was a patrician, and refuſed the empire at the death of Marcian: Upon his coming to Rome he was received and proclaimed emperor by the ſenate and people, with all poſſible tokens of joy and reſpect. A few days after he gave his daughter in marriage to Ricimer
4773	3466	467	Genſeric incenſed that Leo had not preferr'd Olybrius to the weſtern empire, ſends a powerful fleet, and ravages Peloponneſus and the Greeks iſlands, and deſtroys all with fire and ſword	VI	508
4774	3467	468	Leo fits out a very great fleet, conſiſting of 1113 ſhips, with each 100 men, under the command of Baſiliſcus, his brother-in-law, and all the beſt troops of the weſt under the command of Marcellinus, who went and landed in Sardinia, and recovered the whole iſland, but was ſoon after aſſaſſinated by one of his officers. Herucilianus landed in Lybia, took Tripolis, defeated the Vandals, and reduced the whole province. Baſiliſcus arrives at cape Mercury, 30 miles from Carthage, where Genſeric ſends ambaſſadors to treat with him (and bribing him with a very large ſum of money) Baſiliſcus made a ſhort truce, during which time Genſeric ſailed out in the night with a great many fire ſhips, and ſet fire to the Roman fleet, and deſtroyed abundance of them, and put the whole into great confuſion; during which Genſeric's fleet fell upon them, took ſeveral, ſunk others, and put the whole to flight, with the ſlaughter of 50,000 men: This expedition is ſaid to have coſt both empires above 130,000 pounds weight of gold	VI	508
4774	3467	468	The Romans are totally routed out of Spain by Euric king of the Goths	VI	538
4774	3467	468	The emperor Leo marries his daughter Ariadne to one Leo an Iſaurian, to be a check upon Aſpar, and raiſed him to the patrician rank, made him captain of his guards, and commander of all the armies in the eaſt	VII	515
4774	3467	468	Remiſmund king of the Sueves ſets down before Liſbon, which the governor Luſides, a Luſitanian, betrays to him: And the Goths ſurprize Merida, and commit dreadful ravages in the country, ſparing neither Romans nor Sueves	VI	510
4776	3469	470	Ella, &c. the Saxon, comes with freſh troops, and after defeating the Britains, poſſeſs themſelves of the ſea coaſt of Suſſex	VII	547
4776	3469	470	Childeric extends his conqueſts as far as the Loire, and takes Paris, and then makes himſelf maſter of Angers, after having killed count Paul the Roman general	VII	446
4777	3470	471	Leo and Aſpar quarrelling, to reconcile them Leo marries one of his daughters to Patricius Secundus, Aſpar's eldeſt ſon, and created Aſpar Cæſar, which heightning their natural pride, they plot againſt the emperor, which being diſcovered, Aſpar is murdered by the eunuchs of the palace; upon which the Goths riſe in Conſtantinople, and do great miſchief: Zeno goes againſt them, and drove them out of the city with great ſlaughter, when they retire into Thrace, and commit great ravages; and being joined by the Goths in Pannonia, they take Philippi and Arcadiopolis: But upon the emperor's paying them a large ſum of money they lay down their arms, and reſtore the cities, &c.	VII	564
4777	3470	471	Leo publiſhes ſeveral laws againſt the Arians, deprived them of their liberty, and forbid them to hold any publick or private aſſemblies	VI	511
4777	3470	471	All the Britiſh princes engage Ella, but are defeated	VI	511
4777	3470	471	Euric king of the Viſigoths gains great advantages over the Romans in Gaul	VII	446
4778	3471	472	Ricimer revolts from Anthemius, and beſieges him in Rome: The Romans, though afflicted with famine and the plague, made a ſtout reſiſtance. Bilimer, the emperor's general in Gaul, comes to his aſſiſtance, but is overthrown by Ricimer; who then taking the city by ſtorm, permitted his men to commit the moſt dreadful ravages and cruelties: The emperor was put to death, and Olybrius proclaimed in his ſtead the 11th of July; and the 19th of September following Ricimer died of a violent pain in his bowels; Olybrius likewiſe died at Rome, the 23d of October following	VII	515
4778	3471	472	Mount Veſuvius in Campania threw up ſuch a vaſt quantity of fiery aſhes as turned night into day even at Conſtantinople; where the ſtreets and houſes were covered with aſhes three inches thick	VI	511
4779	3472	473	Glycerius at Ravenna proclaims himſelf emperor the 5th of March, ſupported by Gondibal, nephew of Ricimer. The Goths reſolve to make war upon both empires, and ſend Videmir to break into Italy; but he dying ſoon after, Glycerius by rich preſents prevails upon his ſon to retire, who goes into Gaul and joins the Viſigoths, who thus ſtrengthened, ſoon after conquer Gaul and Spain. Theodomir invades the eaſtern provinces, but dies ſoon and is ſucceeded by his ſon called Theodoric the Great	VI	511
4779	3472	473	Euric king of the Viſigoths concludes a peace with the Romans	VII	515
4779	3472	473	Leo propoſes Zeno his ſon-in-law for emperor of the eaſt, but is oppoſed by the ſenate and people of Conſtantinople. The emperor creates Leo, the ſon of Zeno and his daughter Ariadne, Cæſar, and declared him partner with him in the empire, though but between 5 and 6 years of age	VI	512
4780	3473	472	Leo the younger is conſul alone, when the emperor Leo the elder was ſeized with a bloody flux and fever, of which he died in January, having reigned almoſt 17 years; and Zeno the father was declared colleague to Leo the ſon, through the mediation of the empreſs Verina. The ceremony was performed in February following, not in the palace of Hebdomon as uſual, but in the circus at Conſtantinople; but the young prince Leo died in November following, having reigned about 10 months	VI	512
4780	3473	472	Leo the elder not approving of the promotion of Glycerius to the weſtern empire, had named Julius Nepos, a Dalmatian, nephew of Marcellinus. Nepos goes from Conſtantinople, lands at Porto, and ſeizes Glycerius, took him priſoner, ſtripped him of the imperial ornaments, and cauſed him to be ordained biſhop of Salona in Dalmatia, and reigned in his ſtead	VI	512

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ.		Vol.	Pag
4780	3473	474	Euric breaks peace with the Romans, and enters Auvergne with a great army	VII	515
4781	3474	475	Nepos having made Oreſtes general of the Roman forces that were going into Gaul, Oreſtes delays his march, and goes into Ravenna with an intent to ſeize Nepos, who being apprehenſive of his deſign, fled by ſea on the 28th of Auguſt to Salonæ in Dalmatia, where he was entertained by Glycerius, whom he had a little before depoſed. Oreſtes proclaimed his ſon Auguſtus, though very young, emperor, the 29th of October. The new prince called himſelf Auguſtus Romulus Auguſtus, and Oreſtes took the adminiſtration upon himſelf as tutor and guardian to his ſon	VII	515
4781	3474	475	The Saracens break into the eaſtern empire, and commit dreadful ravages in Meſopotamia; and the Huns in Thrace put all to fire and ſword, the emperor Zeno minding nothing but lewdneſs and debauchery	VI	513
4781	3474	475	The empreſs dowager Verina exaſperated againſt her ſon-in-law Zeno for his debaucheries, &c. whom ſhe had advanced to the empire, conſpires againſt him with her brother Baſiliſcus; he, conſcious of his deſerts, when the affair was diſcovered to him, fled firſt to Chalcedon, and then into Iſauria, and Baſiliſcus was declared emperor in his ſtead by the ſenate and people of Conſtantinople, upon which he created his wife Zenonides Auguſta, and his ſon Marcus Cæſar	VI	513
4781	3474	475	Auvergne is delivered to Euric by treaty, and a peace is concluded with the Romans	VII	517
4781	3474	475	Zeno the emperor makes peace with Genſeric king of the Vandals, and cedes Africa to him and his ſucceſſors for ever	VII	539
4782	3475	476	The ſeveral Barbarians that ſerved in the Roman army demand of Oreſtes a 3d part of Italy for their good ſervices, which he refuſing, they revolt, and chooſe one Odoacer for their leader, a private man in the guards of Auguſtus, a perſon of extraordinary parts both natural and acquired, and then marched againſt Oreſtes, who took refuge in Pavia, which Odoacer took by aſſault, and firſt plundered and then reduced it to aſhes. Oreſtes being taken priſoner, Odoacer carried him to Placentia, and put him to death the 28th of Auguſt, being the ſame day he had deprived Nepos of the empire. He then went to Ravenna, where Paul the brother of Oreſtes was with the young emperor; he put Paul to death, ſtripped Auguſtus of the imperial robes, and confined him to Lucullanum, a caſtle in Campania, and made him a handſome allowance to live on	VI	513
4782	3475	476	Genſeric makes peace with Odoacer king of Italy, and grants him the iſlands of Sicily	VII	539
4782	3475	476	Rome readily ſubmitted to Odoacer, whereupon he proclaimed himſelf king of Italy, but refuſed the purple, and ſo put an end to the title of emperor in the weſt, five hundred years after the battle of Actium, when the Roman monarchy was firſt eſtabliſhed, and 1229 years after the foundation of Rome	VI	514
4782	3475	476	Odoacer grants the Heruli leave and lands to ſettle in Italy	VII	599
4783	3476	477	Zeno being fled into Iſauria, Baſiliſcus ſends Illus and Trocondes, two of his generals, with an army after him; upon which Zeno ſhuts himſelf up in a caſtle, which they beſiege for ſome time, during which Baſiliſcus becoming hateful at Conſtantinople, the ſenate ordered Illus and Trocondes to join Zeno and bring him back againſt Baſiliſcus; which being done, Baſiliſcus diſpatches Harmatius his kinſman with a great army againſt them, who notwithſtanding he had ſolemnly ſwore to be true to Baſiliſcus, as ſoon as he had croſſed the Boſphorus joined Zeno upon conditions: Thus ſtrengthened, Zeno enters Conſtantinople without oppoſition. Baſiliſcus with his wife and ſon flies to the great church, and there reſigned his crown upon the altar, and ſoon after periſhed with hunger and cold in the caſtle of Limnos in Cappadocia, whither Zeno had ſent him and his family	VI	515
4783	3476	477	Zeno being reſtored in the month of June, according to his promiſe raiſed Harmatius to be general of the houſhold troops, and his ſon Baſiliſcus to be Cæſar, but ſoon after murdered the father, depoſed the ſon, and made him reader in a church near Conſtantinople, who was afterwards ordained biſhop of Cyzicus	VI	515
4783	3476	477	A great fire happens at Conſtantinople, that conſumed the biggeſt part of the city, with the library, containing 120,000 volumes, among which were the works of Homer, written in golden characters on the great gut of a dragon 120 foot long	VI	515
4783	3476	477	Audoacrius king of the Saxons, and Childeric king of the Franks, march againſt the Alemans ſettled among the Alps, and ſtripped them of the booty they had lately brought out of Italy	VII	595
4784	3477	478	Theodorus ſon of Triarius, who had eſpouſed the cauſe of Baſiliſcus, broke into Thrace, with a numerous army of Goths, and advanced within four miles of Conſtantinople; which ſo frightned Zeno, that he made peace with him upon his own terms	VI	515
4785	3478	479	Marcian, the ſon of Anthemius emperor in the weſt, claiming the empire in right of his wife Leontia, eldeſt daughter of the late emperor Leo, ſuddenly attacked the imperial palace at Conſtantinople, at the head of ſome deſperate malecontents; but not carrying his point, Zeno bribed his companions, and he flew into a church, from whence being dragged, he was ordained a prieſt, and confined to a monaſtery near Cæſarea in Cappadocia, by the emperor's order	VI	515
4785	3478	479	Theodoric breaks into Macedon, and goes into Epirus, where by the treachery of one Sidimont, a Goth, Duras is delivered to him: But Sabianus, Zeno's general having ſurprized and cut to pieces Theudimont, brother of Theodoric, as he was coming with a large reinforcement, and taken all their baggage, with 2000 waggons loaded with proviſions, forced Theodoric to abandon Duras, and to retire with great precipitation into Pannonia	VI	515

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
4786	3479	480	Zeno makes peace and enters into an alliance with Hunerit, son of Genseric king of the Vandals
4786	3479	480	The Goths make themselves masters of all the places the Romans held in Gaul	VI	515
4786	3479	480	The Gepidæ defeat the Hunns with great slaughter, and recover both their antient lands and liberty	VII	516
4787	3480	481	Theodoric again breaks into Macedon and Thessaly, and in two years time obliged Zeno to yield to him part of lower Dacia and Mæsia, make him general of the houshold troops, and consul in the year 483; upon these conditions in 482 he retired, restored Larissa the metropolis of Thessaly, and engaged to defend the empire with all his forces	VII	596
4788	3481	482	Clodovæus, or Clovis, upon his father Childeric's death, succeeded him in his kingdom	VI	516
4788	3481	482	Soon after the death of Varanes the 6th. who was killed in the battle by the Hunns, with almost all his whole army, the Persians chose Obolas his brother, called also Valens, to succeed him, an excellent prince, but hated because he loved peace	VI	566
4789	3482	483	Leontinus, a native of Chalcis in Syria, and commander of the troops in that province, proclaims himself emperor: Zeno sends Illus the captain of his guards against him, who instead of opposing, joined him, and ravaged Syria and Isauria. Longinus the emperor's brother goes against him; but his whole army is cut to pieces, and himself taken prisoner; and then the rebels entered Antioch in triumph. Then Zeno sends one John, his general, who prevailed upon Theodoric to join him; they go, engage, and overthrow the rebels near Seleucia	IV	343
4790	3483	484	Leontinus and Illus are besieged in the strong castle of Papyra in Cilicia by John, and Theodoric returned to Constantinople: Trocondes brother of Illus being taken prisoner by John, was beheaded	VI	516
4790	3483	484	Euric dies, after having reigned upwards of eighteen years, and conquered the greatest part of Gaul and Spain	VI	516
4791	3484	485	The Bulgarians break into Thrace, but are drove back, and forced to repass the Danube, by Theodoric the Roman general	VII	516
4792	3485	486	Zeno disobliging Theodoric, he breaks into Thrace with a great army, and puts all to fire and sword, and advanced within 15 miles of Constantinople. Zeno cedes all Italy to Theodoric, upon which he returns to Novæ in Mæsia	VI	625
4792	3485	486	Valens, or Obolas, king of Persia, dying, is succeeded by his nephew Cavades	VI	516
4793	3486	487	Hengist having joined the Picts and Scots, is engaged by Ambrosius, who gave him a total overthrow	IV	343
4793	3486	487	Clodovæus makes war upon Syagrius the Roman governor, overcomes and beheads him, after the taking of Soissons	VII	446
4794	3487	488	Theodoric enters Italy, overcomes Odoacer in several battles, and settles a new kingdom in Italy	VII	567
4794	3487	488	Leontinus and Illus having bravely defended themselves and the castle of Papyra, for four years, were at last taken by treachery and put to death, and their heads sent to Constantinople	VI	516
4794	3487	488	Hengist king of Kent dies, and is succeeded by his son Esk	VI	516
4794	3487	488	The Goths in great multitudes, with their wives and children, and all their effects, set out from Novæ in Mæsia for Italy	VII	446
4795	3488	489	Zeno puts several persons of great distinction to death, and confiscates their estates under pretence of having favoured Leontius and Illus	VII	523
4795	3488	489	The Goths encounter and defeat Odoacer, and make themselves masters of Milan, Pavia, &c.	VI	517
4796	3489	490	Zeno having been told by an astrologer that one Pelagius, a patrician of great distinction, should succeed him in the empire, put him to death	VII	524
4796	3489	490	The Goths besiege Odoacer king of Italy in Ravena	VI	517
4796	3489	490	The Burgundians, under the conduct of their king Gundebald, entering Italy under the pretence of assisting Odoacer the king against Theodoric the Ostrogoth, committed so great ravages in Liguria, that what with the number they put to the sword, and the number they carried away captive, left so few behind, that there were not sufficient to till the ground	VII	524
4797	3490	491	Zeno the emperor dies, in the 66th year of his age, and 18th of his reign, one of the most debauched weakest princes that had ever reigned in the east. Longinus his brother set up to succeed him, but was rejected upon account of his lewd and wicked life; and by the interest of the empress dowager Ariadne, Anastasius was declared emperor by the senate, and crowned the 11th of April in the Circus, by Euphemius patriarch of Constantinople, who obliged him to swear to protect the catholic church, and maintain the doctrines of the councils of Nice and Chalcedon	VII	584
4797	3490	491	The Heruli compel their king Rodulphus, without any provocation, to make war upon the Lombards, are by them overthrown with great slaughter, and the remainder obliged to live in subjection to the conquerors, or leave their own habitations; upon which many of them went and settled in the country of the Rugians, now Switzerland	VI	517
4797	3490	491	Ella founds the second Saxon kingdom in Britain, called the kingdom of the south Saxons in Essex, &c.	VII	599
4798	3491	492	Longinus, the late emperor Zeno's brother, raising disturbances in Constantinople, is seized, deprived of all his employments, and himself and all his countrymen, the Isaurians, sent back to Isauria their native place; upon which the whole people revolt, and raise an army of 150,000 men: Anastasius sends his best troops against them, who engage, cut great numbers to pieces, defeat and drive them into the mountains	VII	447
				VI	518

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vo.l	Pag.
4799	3492	493	Anaſtaſius taxing the Conſtantinopolitans againſt their inclination, they riſe, pull down his ſtatues, and drag them about the ſtreets —	VI	519
4799	3492	493	Odoacer ſubmits to Theodoric king of the Goths, and is ſoon after murdered; upon which Theodoric is proclaimed king of Italy, and acknowledged as ſuch by Anaſtaſius the emperor — —	VII	525
4800	3493	494	Diogenes, one of Anaſtaſius's generals, is beſieged in Claudiopolis, the metropolis of Iſauria, by Conon, an Iſaurian biſhop, and reduced to great ſtraits; but is relieved by John, ſirnamed Gibbus, who falls unexpectedly upon the rebels, and cuts many of them to pieces, and forces them to raiſe the ſiege: The biſhop died ſoon after of the wounds he received in the battle — —	VI	519
4802	3495	496	The Alemans out of Alſace, joined by thoſe of Switzerland, enter Germania Secunda, belonging to the Ripuarian Franks, and put all to fire and ſword —	VII	526
4803	3496	497	John the Scythian, general for the emperor Anaſtaſius, intirely defeats the Iſaurian rebels, and takes the two heads of them priſoners, viz. Longinus, brother to the late emperor Zeno, and Theodoſius, who were put to death, and their heads ſent to Conſtantinople — —	VI	519
4803	3496	497	Cavades king of Perſia intoxicated with pride and power, grew hateful to his ſubjects, particularly for an edict he made, that all the women in the empire ſhould be common to all the men therein; for which he was depoſed and caſt into priſon, and Zambades (by ſome called his ſon, by others his brother, &c.) elected in his ſtead — —	V	343
4803	3496	497	Clovis king of the Franks, with Albofleda his ſiſter, and three thouſand of his ſubjects, are baptized into the Chriſtian faith by Remigius biſhop of Rheims —	VII	569
4804	3497	498	The reſt of the chief ringleaders of the Iſaurian rebellion are taken and ſent in chains to Conſtantinople. Moſt of the cities of this province of Iſauria having been ruined during the war, which laſted ſix years, the inhabitants that were left were removed into Thrace — —	VI	519
4804	3497	498	The emperor Anaſtaſius refuſing to ſet ſome priſoners at liberty who had been taken in a riot, very narrowly eſcapes being ſacrificed in the Circus by the enraged populace, who finding themſelves oppoſed by the ſoldiery, ſet fire to the Hippodrome, which conſumed it, and ſeveral other ſtately edifices, with the ſquare of Conſtantine, in which there was not one ſingle houſe left ſtanding — —	I	519
4804	3497	498	The Arabs and Saracens break into Paleſtine and Syria, but Romanus, governor of Paleſtine, and Eugenius, commander of the Roman troops in Syria, drove them back, and recovered the iſland of Jotape in the Red Sea from the Saracens — —	VI	520
4804	3497	498	The Armorici, a people between the Loire and the Seine, having formed themſelves into a republick, ſubmit voluntarily to Clovis, and become one nation with the Franks; upon which the Roman troops ſurrender the places they held, and enter into the ſervice of Clovis, which ended the Roman dominion, after they had been maſters of Gaul more than 500 years —	VII	571
4805	3498	499	Neocæſarea, and ſeveral other cities in Pontus, are almoſt utterly ruined by an earthquake —	VI	520
4805	3498	499	The Bulgarians break into Thrace, and commit great ravages, and utterly defeat Ariſtus the Roman general, and carry off great booty and many priſoners —	VI	623
4807	3500	501	The blue and green factions quarrelling in the Circus at Conſtantinople, 3000 of the former were killed —	VI	520
4807	3500	501	Cavades, the depoſed king of Perſia, having eſcaped out of priſon by the love and loyalty of his queen, goes to the Euthalites, whoſe king entertained him courteouſly, gave him his daughter in marriage, and furniſhed him with money, &c. by which means holding correſpondence with ſome of the Perſian nobility, he was this year reſtored to his crown. Zambades had his eyes put out, and was then impriſoned, &c. —	IV	345
4808	3501	502	The Bulgarians break anew into Thrace, and the Saracens into Paleſtine, and commit dreadful ravages in theſe two provinces —	VI	520
4808	3501	502	Cavades being dunned by his father-in-law, king of the Euthalite Hunns, to repay him the vaſt ſums he had advanced for him, enters Armenia, and ſeizes upon the effects of the people, took Amida by ſtorm, cut the Roman army to pieces, and with the plunder paid his debts —	IV	345
4809	3502	503	The Romans under Celer enter Arzamene, a Perſian province, and lay it waſte. The Hunns making a ſudden irruption into Perſia, the Romans beſiege Amida, and have it delivered upon paying 50 talents —	VI	520
4810	3503	504	A truce is made between the Perſians and Romans for ſeven years, which laſted twenty —	VI	521
4811	3504	505	One Mondo, a Goth, with ſome of his countrymen, ſeized a ſtrong hold called Herta, from whence he made frequent incurſions into the Roman territories: The emperor ſends Sabinianus againſt him; Theodoric aſſiſts Mondo, and overthrows Sabinianus, and forced him to ſhut himſelf up in the caſtle of Nato —	VI	521
4813	3506	507	The emperor Anaſtaſius built the famous wall, called the Long Wall, 20 foot broad, diſtant from the city 280 furlongs, extending from ſea to ſea, at Conſtantinople, and defended the empire againſt the ſudden irruptions of the barbarous nations —	VI	521
4813	3506	507	Clovis wars upon Alaric king of the Viſigoths, and in a battle in the plain of Vougle near Poitiers, gave them a total overthrow, cutting off the greateſt part of his troops, and killing Alaric with his own hand. The emperor Anaſtaſius ſends to compliment him upon his victory, and preſented him with the conſular ornaments, and a diadem, which he accepted, and was called conſul —	VII	575

Y. of world	Y. of Rood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4814	3507	508	Anaſtaſius repairs and fortifies Daras on the Cardus, a frontier town towards Perſia, about 15 miles from Niſibis, and three from Carrhæ	VI	521
4815	3508	509	Theodoric king of the Viſigoths having defeated the army of Clovis, they conclude a peace	VII	577
4816	3509	510	Clovis being honoured with the conſular dignity from the emperor Anaſtaſius, moves his habitation from Tours to Paris	VII	577
4816	3509	510	Clovis is proclaimed king of the Ripuarian Franks, another tribe of the ſame people, whoſe territories are incorporated with thoſe of Clovis	VII	577
4816	3509	510	Clovis ſeizes and murders Chararic, king of another body of Franks, ſettled in the biſhoprics of Bologne, St. Omers, Bruges, and Ghent, and his ſon, and incorporates his ſubjects and dominions into his own	VII	579
4816	3509	510	Ragnacharius king of Cambray, having rendered himſelf odious to his own people, Clovis enters his kingdom with a great army, overcomes Ragnacharius, and kills him and his brother, and alſo another brother called Regnomer, king of Mons, and ſeizes all his dominions, and ſo becomes king of all Gaul	VII	580
4817	3510	511	Clovis orders a council at Orleans to be held, for the regulating of church affairs	VII	569
4818	3511	512	The Heruli are allowed to ſettle in Thrace, where lands are allotted them, upon their promiſe to live quietly, and aſſiſt the empire when occaſion called for their help	VI	521
4819	3512	513	The emperor Anaſtaſius favouring the Eutychians, at their inſtigation, drove Macedonius, the orthodox patriarch of Conſtantinople, from his ſee, and put Timotheus an Eutychian in his ſtead, (the like was done in many other places) who by introducing novelties in the public worſhip, created ſuch great and pernicious diſturbances, that 10,000 of the inhabitants were killed in a riot, and ſeveral houſes burnt, &c.	VI	521
4820	3513	514	Vitalianus, one of the emperor's generals, eſpouſes the cauſe of the Catholic biſhops, comes to Conſtantinople at the head of a numerous army, threatens to depoſe Anaſtaſius, if he did not reſtore the depoſed biſhops, and drive out the Eutychians; the emperor refuſes; Vitalianus conquered Mæſia and Thrace, took Cyril governor of Thrace priſoner, and then returns to Conſtantinople, where Anaſtaſius promiſed to ſtop the perſecution, reſtore the depoſed biſhops, and call and ſtand to the deciſion of an oecumenical council. Vitalianus retires and diſbands his army, and Anaſtaſius breaks his word	VI	522
4820	3513	514	Cerdic the Saxon, after having been twenty-four years in Britain, and got large territories, ſets up the third Saxon kingdom, by the name of the Weſt Saxons	VII	449
4822	3515	516	Gundebald king of the Burgundians dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Sigiſmund	VII	585
4823	3516	517	The northern Barbarians called Getæ break into Illyricum, lay Macedon and Epirus waſte, defeat Pompeius the emperor's nephew, near Adrianople, penetrate into Theſſaly, and then return beyond the Danube, with an immenſe booty, and a prodigious number of captives	VI	523
4824	3517	518	The emperor Anaſtaſius was found dead in his chamber on the 9th of July in the 88th year of his age, and 28th of his reign. The ſoldiers of the houſhold proclaimed Juſtin, then præfectus prætorio, emperor, a perſon of a mean and obſcure family in Thrace. Soon after a conſpiracy was formed againſt him; but being diſcovered, and the ringleaders executed, he reigned without oppoſition	VI	523
4825	3518	519	Juſtin reſtores all the orthodox biſhops to their ſees, and diſcourages all ſorts of hereſies; and aſſembles ſeveral ſynods, wherein Eutychianiſm was particularly condemned	VI	523
4826	3519	520	Vitalianus being made conſul, cabals againſt Juſtin, and is murdered in the palace by the emperor's orders	VI	523
4827	3520	521	Cavades king of Perſia propoſes that Juſtin the Roman emperor ſhould adopt Coſrhoes his youngeſt ſon, whom he had declared his ſucceſſor; but this being refuſed, he enters Iberia, whoſe king applies to Juſtin, who ſends an army under Sittas and the famous Beliſarius, who enter Perſian Armenia, and laid it waſte; but engaging Narſes and Aratius, two Perſian generals, were put to flight	IV	346
4828	3521	522	Narſes and Aratius, two brothers and Perſian generals, revolt from Cavades, and ſerve under Beliſarius in Italy, and then Beliſarius goes to Daras on the frontiers of Perſia	VI	523
4828	3521	522	Sigiſmund king of the Burgundians cauſes his ſon Sigeric to be inhumanly murdered	VII	585
4829	3522	523	Sigiſmund is defeated by Clodomir king of the Franks, and is delivered up by his own ſubjects, who ſubmit to the Franks. The Franks throw Sigiſmund, and his wife and children, into a deep well, where they are all drowned	VII	586
4830	3523	524	The Burgundians revolt from the Franks, and proclaim Godemar, brother of Sigiſmund, their king; upon which war breaks out between them, and in a pitched battle the Burgundians were put to flight, but the Franks following too raſhly, they, and Clodomir their king, are ſurrounded and cut to pieces, and Clodomir's head carried by the Burgundians in triumph upon a ſpear; upon which peace is concluded, and all thoſe countries that had been ſurrendered to the Franks, are returned to Godemar	VII	587
4831	3524	525	Juſtin by an edict deprives the Arians of all their churches throughout his dominions, which created a miſunderſtanding with Theodoric king of Italy, who was a zealous Arian. The city of Antioch is almoſt utterly overthrown by an earthquake, and great numbers of the inhabitants buried in the ruins, with Euphraſius their biſhop. The cities of Epidamnus, Corinth, and Anazarbus in

Cilicia,

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
			Cilicia, underwent the same fate; but were repaired at the emperor's expence —	VI	523
4832	3525	526	The Lombards under Audoinus are allowed to settle in Pannonia, by the emperor Justinian —	VII	617
4832	3525	526	Styrax and Glones, two kings of the Hunns, being stirred up by Cavades king of Persia, against the emperor Justinian, with whom he was at war, breaks into the empire with two powerful armies; but Boarex, widow of Balach, king of the Sabirite Hunns, led to the Romans assistance an army of 100,000 men, encounters the two kings, destroys their armies, takes Styrax prisoner, and sends him in chains to Constantinople —	VII	483
4832	3525	526	The Heruli having murdered their king, send embassadors into Thule or Scandinavia, to fetch them one of the blood royal, many of them residing there —	VII	600
4833	3526	527	The emperor Justin the first of April declares his nephew Justinian partner with him in the empire. Justin dies in the beginning of August following, in the 77th year of his age, and 10th of his reign, and Justinian became sole emperor —	VI	524
4833	3526	527	The fourth Saxon kingdom is founded in Britain by Erchenwen, and called the kingdom of the East Saxons —	VII	450
4834	3527	528	Justinian orders Belisarius to build a fort in Mindon, to be a check on the Persians. Cavades king of Persia comes against him, they engage, the Persians are victors, and great numbers of the Romans were killed and taken prisoners, and the Persians levelled the fort with the ground —	VI	524
4835	3528	529	Belisarius is made general of the east, and ordered to make an inroad into Persia. Peroses the Persian general meets him near Daras; they engage, and the Persians are defeated with the loss of 5000 men. The Romans were as successful in Armenia, where they take a great many Persian cities —	IV	347
4836	3529	530	The Persians under the command of Azarethes, joined by a vast number of Saracens, commanded by Alamundarius their king, engage Belisarius; and after an obstinate fight, put the Romans to the rout —	IV	347
4837	3530	531	The Persians still continued the war, and got advantages over the Romans, ravaged the country, and put all to fire and sword —	IV	347
4838	3531	532	Cavades king of Persia dies, and his youngest son Cosrhoes succeeds him in the kingdom. The Persians and Romans conclude an eternal peace, by which the Romans were to pay 1000 lb. weight of gold, and both parties were to return the places taken, &c. —	IV	349
4838	3531	532	A rebellion broke out in Constantinople, upon account of the avaricious practices of two ministers, John the præfectus prætorio, and Trebonianus the quæstor, and Hypatius the emperor's nephew was proclaimed emperor. Anastasius deposed the two accused officers; but the senators joining the populace, Hypatius was carried by violence into the Circus, and proclaimed there; but Belisarius the emperor's general, and Mundus governor of Illyricum came with their troops, and fell upon the unarmed multitude, and killed 3000 of them; took Hypatius and likewise Pompeius, another of the emperor's nephews, who were both beheaded, and the estate of those senators concerned were for the present confiscated, but soon after restored —	VI	526
4838	3531	532	The Franks break the peace with the Burgundians, and under Childebert and Clotharius enter their territories, besiege Augustodunum, now Autun, oblige Godemar their king to save himself by flight, and in 534 made themselves masters of his kingdom —	VII	587
4839	3532	533	Athalaric king of the Ostrogoths in Italy dies, and his mother reigns in his stead, and chuses Theodotus her cousin for her colleague, who imprisons her —	VII	650
4839 to 4847	3532 to 3540	533 to 541	The emperor being engaged with the Goths in Italy, the Hunns enter Illyricum, lay the country waste, take thirty-two castles, destroy Cassandria, and return home unmolested with immense booty and 100,000 captives; the Armenians shake off the Roman yoke; the Persians enter Syria, take and plunder Berœa, Hierapolis, and many other places; and then besiege and take Antioch, plunder the town, murder the people, and then reduced the city to ashes, and what few inhabitants remained, carried away captive, and sold them for slaves; and then conclude a peace, upon condition that the Romans should pay 5000 lb. weight of gold down, 500 lb. annually, &c. and in their return plundered the cities of Apamea and Chalcis, and laid waste Mesopotamia, carrying off vast booty, and a great number of captives —	IV	352
4840	3533	534	Amalasuntha, queen of the Ostrogoths, murdered by order of Theodotus, for which the emperor Justinian proclaims war against him —	VII	651
4841	3534	535	Belisarius takes Palermo from the Goths, and makes himself master of Sicily, &c.	VII	652
4843	3536	537	Theodotus king of the Goths is by them first deposed, and Vitiges proclaimed king in his stead, and then murdered —	VII	654
4843	3536	537	The Gepidæ joined by the Heruli begin to plunder the neighbouring provinces; upon which Justinian sends his best generals against them, who drive them entirely out of Illyricum, and force them into Dacia beyond the Danube —	VII	596
4844	3537	538	The Goths, after losing abundance of their men, are compelled to raise the siege of Rome by Belisarius, who cut off vast numbers of them in their retreat, and forced many into the river —	VII	658
4845	3538	539	The Franks invade Italy, though they had engaged to help the emperor —	VII	661
4845	3538	539	The Hunns pass the Danube in great multitudes, and lay waste Thrace, Greece, Illyricum, and all the provinces from the Ionian sea to the suburbs of Constantinople, &c. and return home with incredible booty, after having committed all manner of cruelties —	VII	483
4845	3538	539	The Bulgarians are defeated by the Romans, and both their kings killed —	VII	623

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4846	3539	540	The Bulgarians come again into Thrace, which they plunder and lay waſte far and near; but being attacked by Mundus governor of Illyricum, are totally overcome, moſt of them being cut to pieces, and the remainder carried priſoners to Conſtantinople, where the emperor ordered part to be incorporated among his troops, and the reſt to be tranſplanted into Armenia and Laxica
4846	3539	540	Beliſarius proclaimed king of Italy, and admitted into Ravenna, &c. but is called to Conſtantinople by the emperor, whither he carries Vigites king of the Goths and vaſt plunder	VII	624
4847	3540	541	Ildebald is choſe king of Italy; but behaving diſagreeably, Vilas one of his guards gave him ſo violent a ſtroke on the neck with his ſword, as he was feaſting his nobility, that his head dropped on the table with the meat in his fingers, and is ſucceeded by Eraric	VII	663
4848	3541	542	The Goths diſpleaſed with Eraric, murder him, and proclaim Totila king of Italy in his ſtead	VII	664
4848	3541	542	Arthur the great Britiſh king dies, and is ſaid to be ſucceeded by his couſin Conſtantine	VII	665
4848	3541	542	The Lazians, a people between the Euxine and Caſpian ſeas, being grievouſly oppreſſed by the Roman troops, revolted from the Romans to the Perſians, and delivered up all their ſtrong holds and caſtles to them, who drove out the Roman and put Perſian gariſons in their ſtead. Beliſarius the Roman general enters Perſia, lays waſte Aſſyria, &c.	VII	450
4849	3542	543	Totila king of the Goths recover Tuſcany, and ſeveral other places in Italy	IV	353
4849	3542	543	Coſrhoes invades the Roman territories afreſh; a dreadful plague rages in Perſia, yet he overthrew 30,000 Romans, as they attempted to break into Perſarmenia, with only 4000 Perſians	VII	666
4850	3543	544	Coſrhoes orders Gubazes king of the Lazians to be murdered, and the people to be tranſplanted; but before it could be executed, 'twas diſcovered, Gubazes ſubmits to Juſtinian, who ſends him 8000 men, with whom and his own people joined together he has ſeveral encounters with the Perſians, and at laſt cut off and drove them all out of his country, upon which a truce for five years is concluded between the Perſians and Romans	IV	354
4853	3546	547	Totila king of the Goths takes and plunders Rome, but ſpares the lives of the inhabitants and ſoldiers	IV	356
4853	3546	547	Ida founded the fifth Saxon kingdom in Britain, and called it the kingdom of Northumberland	VII	669
4856	3549	550	Totila takes Rome a ſecond time, by the treachery of the Iſaurians	VII	450
4856	from 3549 to 3557	550 to 558	The Perſians invade Lazica, and take the ſtrong caſtle of Telepſus, and then put the Romans to flight. Gubazes complains to Juſtinian of the cowardice of his generals, which ſo exaſperated them, that they murder him. The Lazicans are going to revolt, but Juſtinian appeaſes them by ordering all concerned in the murder to be executed, and making the brother of the deceaſed king in his ſtead. 60,000 Perſians beſiege Phaſis in Lazica; Juſtin commander of the Romans falls upon them, kills 12,000 on the ſpot, and forces the reſt to run away; upon this Coſrhoes ſues to Juſtinian for peace, which is mutually agreed to	VII	672
4858	3551	552	The Gepidæ enter the territories of the Lombards, and deſtroy all with fire and ſword; but the Lombards receiving aſſiſtance from Juſtinian the emperor, entirely overthrow the Gepidæ	IV	357
4859	3552	553	The Lombards, after aſſiſting the Romans, are ſent home loaded with rich preſents for their good ſervices	VII	579
4859	3552	553	The Goths, by ſubmitting to the Romans, put an end to their government in Italy	VII	618
4864	3557	558	The Hunns come into Thrace, &c. Beliſarius defeats and puts them to flight with a very few men; but they hearing of his diſgrace, upon his return to Conſtantinople, return again and ravage all the country, coming before the royal city. Germanus heading the imperial troops, fell upon them, ſlew great numbers, and obliged the reſt to fly	VII	678
4864	3557	558	A violent earthquake overturned many ſtately buildings and churches at Conſtantinople, which deſtroyed a vaſt number of people; and then a terrible plague broke out, that ſwept away vaſt numbers	VII	484
4865	3558	559	Beliſarius, the famous Roman general, after many years ſevere ſervice, and obtaining many extraordinary victories, falls a victim to the malicious accuſations of his enemies, and is deprived of all his honours and employments, and confined to his houſe at Conſtantinople	VI	529
4866	3559	560	Sigebert king of Mentz engage the Hunns upon the banks of the Elbe, and entirely routs them	VI	529
4867	3560	561	Ethelbert king of Kent kindles a civil war among the Saxon kings in Britain	VII	485
4867	3560	561	The emperor Juſtinian convinced of the injury done to his faithful ſervant and valiant general Beliſarius, reſtores him to all his honours and commands	VII	451
4871	3564	565	Marcellus, Sergius, and Ablavius, three chief officers in the court of the emperor Juſtinian, conſpire his death, are detected and executed, and many baniſhed, but the emperor died ſoon after, in the 39th year of his reign, and was ſucceeded by his nephew Juſtin, ſon of his ſiſter Vigilantia, who was unanimouſly proclaimed by the ſenate, and crowned by John patriarch of Conſtantinople	VI	530
4872	3565	566	The people grumbling at the diſcontinuance of the name and office of conſul, Juſtin revives it, after it had been omitted twenty-five years, and entered upon that office the firſt of January of this year	VI	530
4874	3567	568	The emperor Juſtin cauſes his kinſman Juſtin to be ſeized and carried to Alexandria, and there murdered, becauſe the people loved him	VI	531
4874	3567	568	Longinus alters the ancient manner of government in Italy, and ſettles in every city a governor, which he called a duke, and took upon himſelf the name of	VI	531

exarch

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			exarch, or governor of the whole, under the emperor, which continued till the year of Chriſt 751	VII	679
4874	3567	568	The Lombards invade Italy, and make themſelves maſters of ſeveral cities, and found a kingdom which laſted 200 years	VII	619
4875	3568	569	Alboinus king of the Lombards, having taken Friuli, erected it into a dutchy, which continues ſo to this day	VII	620
4875	3568	569	The inhabitants of Perſarmenia, being cruelly perſecuted by the Perſians, for profeſſing the Chriſtian religion, revolt to the Romans. Coſrhoes invades and overruns Syria and Meſopotamia; but Juſtin being ſeized with madneſs, the empreſs Sophia writes to him in ſuch moving terms, that in 572 a truce for three years was concluded	IV	357
4876	3569	570	Alboinus is proclaimed king of Italy, and makes Pavia his reſidence, and the metropolis of his kingdom	VII	629
4877	3570	571	Clephis king of the Lombards, and Meſſana his queen are murdered by his ſubjects, for his cruelty towards them	VII	622
4877	3570	571	The Lombards ſhake off monarchy, and are governed by dukes	VII	622
4878	3571	572	Cunimundus king of the Gepidæ enter the Lombards country with a numerous army, and commits moſt cruel ravages. Alboinus king of the Lombards raiſes a great army, and engages the Gepidæ; and after a very doubtful and obſtinate battle, the Gepidæ fly, and are purſued by the victorious Lombards, with ſo great ſlaughter, that ſcarce one is left alive. Alboinus ſlew Cunimundus with his own hand, and cutting off his head, turned his ſkull into a cup, which he uſed to drink out of upon all public occaſions. The Lombards ſeized upon all their land in Dacia, and obliged the people to ſubmit to them, or go into other countries, and ſo ended the kingdom of the Gepidæ	VII	597
4878	3571	572	The empreſs Sophia prevails on the ſenate to advance Tiberius the Thracian to the government during her huſband's illneſs	VI	532
4879	3572	573	Juſtin influenced by his wife Sophia, raiſes Tiberius to the dignity of Cæſar, and reſigns to him the whole management of affairs	VI	532
4880	3573	574	Coſrhoes king of Perſia breaks into Perſarmenia as ſoon as the truce between him and the Romans expired, and marched to beſiege Gæſarea, the capital of Cappadocia: Juſtinian the Roman general meets him, engages, and puts him intirely to the rout; which ſo affects Coſrhoes, that he ſoon after fell ſick and died of grief, after reigning 48 years	IV	358
4880	3573	574	Alboinus, the firſt Lombard king of Italy, is murdered by Helinchild, his ſhield-bearer, at the inſtigation of the queen	VII	621
4883	3576	577	Hormiſdas IId. ſucceeds his father Coſrhoes in the kingdom of Perſia, a prince every way unable to ſupport ſo great a burthen	IV	359
4887	3580	581	Juſtin dies, and is ſucceeded by Tiberius in the empire, who owned Anaſtaſia for his wife, and made her Auguſta; which ſo exaſperated Sophia the empreſs dowager, (who expected him to marry her) that ſhe conſpires to ſet Juſtinian upon the throne; but Tiberius ſtrips her of all her wealth, and puts Mauritius in the place of Juſtinian, and peace was reſtored again	VI	533
4888	3581	582	Mauritius engages and entirely overthrows Hormiſdas king of Perſia, took the camp with all the royal plate and treaſure, and an incredible number of priſoners, all which he ſent to Conſtantinople. Hormiſdas fits out another army, which Mauritius likewiſe overthrows, took an immenſe booty, and whole nations of ſlaves. Upon Mauritius's return to Conſtantinople, Tiberius gives him his daughter in marriage, and raiſes him to the dignity of Cæſar, and a peace is concluded with the Perſians	IV	360
4891	3584	585	Cerda the Saxon founds the ſeventh Saxon kingdom in Britain, and calls it Mercia	VII	453
4891	3584	585	Uffa the Saxon founds the ſixth Saxon kingdom in Britain, and calls it the kingdom of the Weſt-Angles	VII	452
4891	3584	585	The Lombards reſtore monarchy among them, and chooſe Autharis, ſon of Clephis, for their king	VII	622
4892	3585	586	The emperor Tiberius dies, greatly lamented for his extraordinary care of his people, and is ſucceeded by his ſon-in-law Mauritius	VI	534
4895	3588	589	Hormiſdas king of Perſia breaks the peace concluded with the Romans, but is defeated in ſeveral battles with prodigious ſlaughter	IV	360
4896	3589	590	A terrible earthquake at Antioch deſtroys almoſt the whole city, and buries 30,000 perſons in its ruins	VI	535
4896	3589	590	Autharis king of the Lombards poiſoned	VII	684
4897	3590	591	Sittas, the architect, a citizen of Martyropolis, betrays that great city and important place into the hands of the Perſians, from whom Germanus the Roman general ſome time after retook it	IV	360
4897	3590	591	Agilulf duke of Turin marries Theudelinda, wife of Autharis, and is proclaimed king of the Lombards	VII	684
4899	3592	593	Hormiſdas king of Perſia behaving very haughtily, cruelly, &c. is depoſed, has his eyes bored out with red hot irons, and caſt into priſon, and his ſon Coſrhoes put in his ſtead, who ordered his father to be put to death, which ſo diſſatisfied the Perſians, that they drove him out of the kingdom; who flying to the emperor Mauritius at Conſtantinople, is by him kindly received, and aſſiſted with an army that reinſtated him upon the throne, and a peace is concluded between the two princes	IV	363
4900	3593	594	The Avari having broke into Thrace, and taken many ſtrong places, the emperor Mauritius goes againſt them, and after various battles, is forced to buy a peace	VI	535
4901	3594	595	Chagan king of the Avari, together with the Gepidæ, Sclavi, &c. enter the Roman dominions, ſwearing they would utterly demoliſh the Roman name, and

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Pag.
			eſtabliſh a new empire over all people and nations, and after laying Thrace waſte, advanced towards Conſtantinople; but a violent plague breaking out in their army, ſwept off multitudes, among whom were ſeven of Chagan's ſons: Chagan offering to ſet 12,000 Romans at liberty for a ſmall ranſom, which Mauritius refuſing to pay, he put them all to death, which occaſioned a mutiny in the Roman army, and a great tumult at Conſtantinople — —	VI	536
4903	3596	597	The Avari renew their ravages, and are defeated in five ſucceſſive battles by Priſcus the Roman general, who cutting off 30,000 of them, drove the remainder out of the Roman dominions — —	VI	536
4908	3601	602	The emperor Mauritius commanding his brother Peter to croſs the Danube and winter in the enemies country, ſo exaſperated the ſoldiers, that they mutiny and proclaim one Phocas, a centurion, emperor. The populace at Conſtantinople riſe, and force Maurice to embark in diſguiſe, with his wife and children, in a ſmall ſhip; but being driven back by contrary winds, takes refuge in the church of Autonomus the martyr, about twenty miles diſtant from Conſtantinople, whither Phocas comes, and is crowned with loud acclamations in the church of St. John Baptiſt, with his wife Leontia, by the patriarch — —	VI	536
4908	3601	602	In the publick ſports at Conſtantinople a conteſt happening between the Blue and the Green, Phocas ſends his guards to quell the uproar, who uſing the tribune of the Blue roughly, they cry out, Maurice was yet alive, who would do them juſtice; upon which Phocas ordered Maurice to be dragged out of his ſanctuary, and after killing five of his ſons before his face, beheaded him, and put many of his friends and relations to death afterwards — —	VI	536
4909	3602	603	Phocas ſends his own and his wife Leontia's images to Rome, which are received by Gregory the Great, biſhop of Rome, with great reſpect, and lodged in the oratory of the martyr Cæſarius; but Phocas behaving very cruelly, he grew hateful to the people — —	VI	537
4910	3603	604	Narſes, commander of the Roman forces on the borders of Perſia, revolts, and is joined by Coſrhoes king of Perſia, who defeat and kill Germanus, who was ſent againſt them, and ſome time afterwards they alſo defeated Leontinus. Phocas by ſolemn oaths and large promiſes prevails upon Narſes to lay down his arms and return home; as ſoon as Phocas had him in his power, he ordered him to be burnt alive, to the great grief of the Romans — —	VI	537
4911	3604	605	Agiluf king of the Lombards in Italy declares his ſon Adaluald (or Aldonald) yet an infant, his colleague, and cauſes him to be openly crowned with great ſolemnity — —	VII	688
4912	3605	606	Phocas ſends ambaſſadors with large preſents to Coſrhoes king of Perſia, in order to make peace, who rejects all his offers, ravages Meſopotamia and Syria, and carries off immenſe booty — —	IV	366
4913	3606	607	Conſtantina, widow of the late emperor Maurice, is racked, and confeſſes that ſeveral of the great officers were conſpiring with her to ſet her ſon Theodoſius on the throne; for which ſhe and many of the grandees are put to death, and alſo three of her daughters, and multitudes daily impriſoned, where they died miſerably — —	VI	538
4914	3607	608	Coſrhoes lays waſte Syria, Paleſtine, and Phœnicia, putting all to fire and ſword; and having defeated the troops ſent againſt him, entered Galatia, and commits dreadful ravages, and goes to Chalcedon; and while this was doing abroad, Phocas murders all who were any ways related to, or favourers of Mauritius at home — —	VI	538
4915	3608	609	The Jews at Antioch riſe, and murder the Chriſtians in great numbers, and dragged the mangled carcaſs of Anaſtatius the patriarch about the ſtreets in a moſt ignominious manner. Bonoſus, who was going againſt the Perſians, ſtrove to quell the tumult by fair means; but not prevailing, orders his troops to fall on them, who cut great numbers to pieces, and drove the reſt out of the city — —	VI	539
4915	3608	609	Phocas being upbraided with his vices, in the Circus at Conſtantinople by the populace, he ordered ſeveral immediately to be beheaded on the ſpot, and others to be caſt into the ſea; which ſo enraged them, that they ſet the palace and publick priſon on fire. The great men having an intention to murder Phocas in the Hippodrome, are betrayed by Anaſtatius the Comes largitionum; but Phocas puts him as well as them to death — —	VI	538
4916	3609	610	Heraclius, ſon of Heraclius governor of Africa, proclaims himſelf emperor, and is as ſuch acknowledged by the Africans, who furniſh him with a great army and fleet: He comes to Conſtantinople, engages and beats the fleet of Phocas; Phocas flies into the palace, whither Photinus, whoſe wife he had debauched, followed, took and bound him in chains, and ſo ſent him to Heraclius, who orders firſt his hands and feet, then his privy members, and laſtly his head to be cut off — —	VI	539
4917	3610	611	Heraclius is proclaimed emperor at Conſtantinople, and crowned by Sergius the patriarch. The Perſians continued their ravages and deſtructions, being now arrived at Antioch, no force then on foot being able to withſtand them — —	VI	539
4919	3612	613	The Perſians over-run Cappadocia, and take and ſack Cæſarea, and carry off immenſe booty, and a vaſt number of captives. The empreſs Eudocia is delivered of a ſon, but died ſoon after. Heraclius deſires peace of Coſrhoes, and offers to pay an annual ſum, but is refuſed — —	VI VII	539 686
4921	3614	615	Agilulf dies, and is ſucceeded by Adaluald his ſon, as king of the Lombards in Italy
4922	3615	616	The Perſians come again into Syria, break into Paleſtine, and take Jeruſalem, where they ſell 90,000 Chriſtians for ſlaves to the Jews; but Zacharias the patriarch, and part of the croſs on which Chriſt was crucified, with immenſe booty, is carried into Perſia — —	VI	539

Y. of world	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
4922	3615	616	The emperor Heraclius marries his brother's daughter Martina, and cauſes her to be crowned with the uſual pomp by Sergius patriarch of Conſtantinople	VI	539
4923	3616	617	The Perſians renew their ravages; Heraclius goes into Armenia, and again offers propoſals for an accommodation, which are rejected: Then he entered Perſia, took and levelled ſeveral towns with the ground; and then went to attack Coſrhoes, who ran away, when he entered Gazycum, where he ſeized immenſe treaſure, and burnt the city, and carried off 50,000 captives: But going to winter in Albania, the weather proving very cold and troubleſome to the Perſians, he ſent them home without ranſom	IV	368
4925	3618	619	The Perſians over-run all Egypt, take and pillage Alexandria, and then come into Africa, and beſiege Carthage, and return to Perſia with the ſpoils of ſeveral provinces, and a prodigious number of captives. Heraclius begs for peace again, but is refuſed by Coſrhoes, unleſs he will renounce his crucified god, and adore the ſun	IV	366
4925	3618	619	Heraclius defeats the Perſians in two pitched battles, and cuts off great numbers, and their general Sarablacas	IV	368
4926	3619	620	Heraclius concludes a peace with the Avari, and goes againſt the Perſians in perſon: Saes the Perſian general invites Heraclius to an interview, under pretence of peace; Heraclius ſends 70 perſons of diſtinction, whom Saes loads with chains, and ſends them captive into Perſia. Coſrhoes fleas Saes alive, for having ſeen the Roman emperor and not took him likewiſe. Heraclius penetrates through Armenia into Perſia, and lays all waſte before him, engages and defeats the Perſians, and takes their camp and baggage, and then returns to Conſtantinople	IV	368
4928	3621	622	Heraclius croſſes the Euphrates, takes Samoſa, &c. and intirely overthrows Sarabazes on the banks of the Sanis	IV	368
4930	3623	624	Coſrhoes not able to beat Heraclius, raiſes a univerſal perſecution againſt all the Catholicks in his dominions, and only ſpares the Neſtorians	IV	368
4931	3624	625	Coſrhoes engages the Avari, Hunns, and Sclavonians, to invade Thrace, which they do, and deſtroy all before them, and beſiege Conſtantinople, while Heraclius enters Perſia, and lays it waſte, and Theodorus the Roman engages and gives Saes the Perſian a dreadful overthrow	IV	368
4932	3625	626	Heraclius invades Perſia again, and at Niniveh meets Rezaſtes the Perſian general, whom he engages, kills him and a great part of his army, and puts the reſt to flight, with only the loſs of fifty Romans. Coſrhoes flies to Seleucia, with his wives and children; and Heraclius deſtroyed the Perſian provinces with fire and ſword, releaſed the Roman captives, recovered the ſtandards, and carried off great part of the wealth of Perſia	IV	368
4932	3625	626	Sarabazes revolts with his whole army from Coſrhoes, who falling ill, declares his younger ſon Merdaſa his ſucceſſor; whereupon Syroes his eldeſt ſon joined bardanichas, ſeized his father, and threw him chained into priſon, where he was murdered, with Merdaſa and his other children: Then Syroes being king, concluded a perpetual peace with Heraclius, by which all the Roman provinces were again reſtored to the empire	IV	369
4933	3626	627	All the Perſians and Romans that were priſoners of war in either dominions were ſet at liberty; and Heraclius upon his approaching Conſtantinople is met by his ſon Conſtantius, the patriarch, the nobility, and people, with all the demonſtrations of joy poſſible	VI	542
4933	3626	627	Syroes king of Perſia dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Ardeſer, or Artaxerxes, a child of ſeven years old, who after reigning ſeven months, is murdered	IV	369
4933	3626	627	Adaluald and Theudelinda both die, and Ariovald ſucceeds as king of the Lombards	VII	689
4933 4934	3626 3627	627 628	Sarabazes the Perſian general having killed Ardeſer, ſets up himſelf for king in his room; but after much blood being ſpilt, the nobility depoſe him, and ſet up Hormiſdas, or Iſdigertes, (one of Syroes nephews) two years afterwards	IV	370
4934	3627	628	Heraclius goes to Jeruſalem with that part of the croſs that had been carried into Perſia, which he entered in great pomp, returned it to the great church, and inſtituted the feſtival of The Exaltation of the Holy Croſs, obſerved by the preſent Roman church on the 14th of September: Then the emperor baniſhed all the Jews, forbidding them under ſevere penalties to come within three miles of that holy city	VII	544
4935	3628	629	The emperor Heraclius coming to Edeſſa, Athanaſius, the patriarch of the Jacobites, influenced him ſo far as to embrace the doctrine of the Monothelites, who acknowledge but one will in Chriſt	VI	543
4936	3629	630	Mohammed, or Mahomet, (who called himſelf king and prophet of the Saracens) died this year having firſt reduced Mecca and Medina, and part of Arabia, and was ſucceeded by Eububezer, one of his kinſmen	VI	543
4938	3631	632	Eububezer enters Perſia, intirely defeats Iſdigertes, and puts an end to the Perſian empire, after it had continued upwards of 400 years in the line of Artaxerxes; and he and his Saracens inhabited the country: Then he broke into Paleſtine, laid waſte the territory of Gaza, and cut the governor and all his troops to pieces	IV	370
4939	3632	633	Eububezer dies, and is ſucceeded by Haumar, who conquered Boſtra, and ſeveral other cities of Arabia, and intirely defeated Theodorus, the king's brother, who went againſt him	VI	543
4940	3633	634	Boanes the Roman general is overthrown by the Saracens, who take and conquer all Phœnicia	VI	543
4941	3634	635	Haumar ſends one part of his army into Egypt, and leads the other to Jeruſalem. Cyrus biſhop of Alexandria engages to pay them 200,000 Denarii per Annum, ſo ſaves Egypt from being plundered	VI VI	543 544
4942	3635	636	Haumar took Jeruſalem after a ſiege of near two years
4942	3635	636	Ariovald dies, and is ſucceeded by Rotharis, who introduces the firſt written law among the Lombards in Italy	VII	689

Y. of world.	Y. of flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vo.	Fig.
4944	3637	638	Manuel governor of Egypt refuſes to pay the annual ſum of 200,000 Denarii to the Saracens; upon which they engage, and Manuel is beat, and they become maſters of the whole country, which had belonged to the Romans ever ſince the time of Auguſtus	VI
4944	3637	638	Rotharis engages the Romans, defeats them, and kills 8000 upon the ſpot	VII	543
4946	3639	640	Hatmar takes all Syria, with Antioch, the metropolis of the eaſt	VI	691
4947	3640	641	Heraclius the Roman emperor died, and was ſucceeded by his ſon Conſtantine, who after a reign of ſeven months died alſo, ſuſpected to be poiſoned by his ſtepmother Martina, whoſe ſon Heracleonas ſucceeded him	VI	543
4948	3641	642	The ſenate depoſe Heracleonas the emperor, after ſix months reign, cut off his noſe, and pull out the tongue of his mother Martina, and ſend them both into baniſhment, and advance Conſtans ſon of Conſtantine to the throne; upon which Pyrrhus the heretical patriarch of Conſtantinople quits his ſee, and flies into Africa, being ſuſpected of being privy to the death of Conſtantine	VI	544
4953	3646	647	The Saracens break into, and conquer the whole province of Africa	VI	544
4954	3647	648	Mabias, or Mahuvias, the Saracen admiral, falls upon Cyprus with a great fleet and army, reduced the iſland, and laid the city of Conſtantia in aſhes; then went and took the iſland of Aradus; then went and took Rhodes, and deſtroyed the famous Coloſſus of the ſun, after it had been made 1360 years, containing 900 camels loads of metal	VI	544
4958	3651	652	King Rotharis dies, who for his great wiſdom and moderation was much lamented; and though an Arrian himſelf, permitted his ſubjects to embrace orthodoxy if they liked it beſt, and appointed a biſhop of each perſuaſion in all the great cities of his dominions: He was ſucceeded by Aio his ſon, whom he had made partner with him in the government five months before	VII	691
4963	3656	657	Mahuvias prepares a mighty fleet at Tripolis in Phænicia, with an intent to beſiege Conſtantinople. Two Chriſtian captives breaking open the goal, that was very full of them, kill the governor, and ſet fire to the fleet, and make their eſcape: But Mahuvias having got another fleet, engages the imperial fleet, commanded by Conſtans in perſon, and beat him, the emperor being forced to fly to Conſtantinople in diſguiſe	VI	544
4964	3657	658	Conſtans goes againſt the Sclavi, and defeats them in ſeveral encounters; but not being able to drive them out of the country they had ſeized, returned to Conſtantinople, and the country bears the name of Sclavonia to this day	VI	545
4964	3657	658	The Saracens quarrelling among themſelves, ſend to make peace with the emperor Conſtans; to which he conſents, and cedes to them the provinces they had taken, upon their engaging to pay him 1000 Nummi a year, together with a horſe and a ſlave	VI	545
4965	3658	659	Conſtans being jealous of his brother Theodoſius, cauſes him to be ordained a deacon, and ſoon after murdered him, but was ever after ſo terrified in his mind, that he could not reſt night or day	VI	545
4966	3659	660	Mahuvias the Saracen having killed his competitor Hali, reigned alone, and broke the peace with the Romans, and ſent his ſon Izod into the Roman territories, as far as Chalcedon, took Amorium, a ſtrong city of Phrygia, put a gariſon into it, and returned to his father with immenſe booty; but Andreas the Roman general ſoon retook it, and put all the Saracens to the ſword	VI	545
4968	3661	662	The Franks and Lombards quarrelling, Conſtans goes againſt the latter with a great fleet and army, lands at Tarentum, and takes ſeveral places, and beſieges Beneventum; but Grimoald, duke thereof, coming to its relief, the emperor retired to Naples: An engagement happening ſoon after, 20,000 Romans together with their general were cut off	VI	545
4968	3661	662	Grimoald, duke of Benevento, is proclaimed king of the Lombards	VII	693
4969	3662	663	Conſtans viſits Rome, and takes away the valuable rarities, and ſends them to Conſtantinople, returns to Naples, and from thence goes to Syracuſe, where he ſtaid five years, grievouſly oppreſſing the people, and ſtripping the churches of their rich ornaments and veſſels; thus becoming hateful, he was murdered as he was bathing, by one Troilus, in the 27th year of his reign, Anno 668	VI	545
4969	3662	663	Grimoald falls upon the Franks in the dead of the night, and ſlays almoſt all of them that were come into Italy to rethrone Partharit	VII	693
4969	3662	663	Romuald, ſon of Grimoald, attacks the Romans, who were come to drive the Lombards out of Italy, and entirely defeats them, and gains many cities	VII	694
4974	3667	668	Upon the death of Conſtans, the Syracuſans proclaim one Mezizus emperor; but Conſtantine, ſon of the late emperor, comes from Conſtantinople with a great fleet, defeats, takes, and puts Mezizus to death, and got himſelf acknowledged emperor in his ſtead	VI	545
4974	3667	668	Grimoald, with the conſent and approbation of the Italians, corrects, alters, and improves the laws of Rotharis	VII	697
4974	3667	668	The Bulgarians enter the Roman territories, commit great ravages, and defeat the emperor Conſtans's army, ſo that he is obliged to allow them a large annual penſion to be quiet	VII	624
4976	3669	670	The Saracens enter Africa, and commit moſt terrible ravages, and cruelties, and carry away 80,000 captives	VI	546
4977	3670	671	The Saracens make a deſcent into Sicily, take and plunder Syracuſe, and over-run all the iſland, deſtroying every thing with fire and ſword	VI	546
4978	3671	672	The Saracens enter Thrace, and come and beſiege Conſtantinople; but after an unſucceſsful vigorous attempt, they return in September to Cyzicus, and continued for ſeven years to beſiege it in the ſummer, and go to Cyzicus in the winter	VI	546
4978	3671	672	Grimoald bleeds to death, but firſt bequeaths to his youngeſt ſon Garibald the kingdom of the Lombards, who accordingly ſucceeded him; but Partharit, who had been expelled, returning to Pavia, the Lombards re-elect him king, and depoſe Garibald	VII	697

Florus

Y. of world	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Pag.
4983	3676	677	Florus Petronius and Cyprianus gain a signal victory over Saphianus the Saracen; in Syria, and kill 30,000 of his men. The Maronites seize on mount Libanus, and fortify themselves; and by the assistance of some Christian slaves they reduce the whole country between mount Taurus and Jerusalem, and by frequent incursions force Mahuvias to sue to Constantine for peace, which was agreed to thus: 1. It should be inviolably observed for 30 years by both nations. 2. The Saracens should retain the provinces they had seized. 3. They should pay 3000 pounds weight of gold annually, 50 slaves and 50 fine horses	VI	546
4984	3677	678	The Bulgarians to the number of 100,000, cross the Danube and enter and ravage the empire, and put the Roman army to flight: The emperor agrees to pay them an annual sum, and then they retire	VI VII	546 624
4984	3677	678	A large body of Bulgarians are settled in the dukedom of Benevento
4986	3679	680	The emperor Constantine calls the sixth general or oecumenical council at Constantinople, where the doctrine of the Monothelites was condemned	VI VII	546 697
4986	3679	680	Partharit takes his son Cunipert for a partner with him in the government
4991	3684	685	The emperor Constantine dies of a lingering illness, in the 18th year of his reign, and was succeeded by his son Justinian, a youth of 16 years of age	VI	547
4992	3685	686	Abdelmelech, the new prince of the Saracens, confirms the old peace, and proposes to pay Justinian 1000 Numuti a day, and a slave and a horse, to suppress the Maronites: He agrees, and sends Magistrianus against them, who overcomes and disables them for a long time to interrupt the Saracens	VI	547
4993	3686	687	Justinian goes against the Bulgarians, who had been allowed by his father to settle in Lower Mæsia, which from them was called Bulgaria, and ravages their country: They assemble, engage, defeat, and drive him quite out of the country, and recover all he had taken from them: And then he went against the Sclavonians, over whom he got the advantage several times; so that now he would quarrel with the Saracens, though Abdelmelech strove all he could to prevent it	VI	547
4993	3686	687	Justinian II. invades the Bulgarians, overcomes them, and obliges them to quit their country or live in intire subjection, he refusing peace upon any other terms: They assemble together from all parts, and fall upon the emperor, defeat his army, force him to restore the prisoners and booty he had taken, and to confirm the annual pension his father had allowed them	VII	625
4994	3687	688	Mohammed engages the Romans, and is beat, and besieged in his own camp; but finding means to draw off the Sclavonian general with 20,000 men, the Romans were so frighted at this revolt, that they run away; and the enemy pursuing, killed abundance of them. When the emperor came to Leucate, he was so exasperated, that he ordered 10,000 Sclavonians that remained with him to be cut to pieces, with their wives and children, and their bodies to be thrown into the sea	VI	547
4996	3689	690	Partharit king of the Lombards dies, upon which Alachis duke of Trent revolts, and drives Cunipert, son of Partharit, from the throne; but Cunipert defeating and slaying Alachis, he reigned in the stead of his father	VII	697
5000	3693	694	Justinian upon his return to Constantinople, instead of raising troops, &c. spends his time in erecting new buildings, &c. which gaining him the ill-will of the people, and suffering his two chief ministers to execute many of the nobility wrongfully, and ordering Rufus, one of his generals, to fall upon the inhabitants in the night-time of a certain day, and massacre them in their houses, and to begin with the patriarch Callinicus; before the time came, Leontinus governor of Greece was declared emperor, who seizing Justinian, carried him to the Circus, where his nose was cut off, and then he was banished to Cherson, and his two favourites, Theodotus and Stephen, were burnt alive	VI	548
5001	3694	695	Sergius, who commanded the Roman troops in Lazica, betrayed that province to the Saracens	VI	548
5002	3695	696	The Saracens invade Africa, take Carthage, and over-run all the country; but John the patrician going against them, drives them out again	VI	548
5003	3696	697	The Saracens equip another great fleet, and again invade Africa, and force John to fly, who embarks his troops for Constantinople; but the fleet touching at Crete, the soldiers revolt, and proclaim Apsimar, one of Leontius's generals, emperor. Apsimar (or Tiberius) goes directly to Constantinople, surprizes the city, took Leontius prisoner, cut off his nose, and put him into a monastery in Dalmatia, in the third year of his reign	VI	548
5004	3697	698	The emperor Apsimar, or Tiberius, being settled in the empire, sends his brother Heraclius with an army into Cappadocia, to watch the Saracens, who having private quarrels, Heraclius penetrates into Syria to Samonta, put 200,000 to the sword, and returned with immense plunder	VI	548
3005	3698	699	The Saracens again break into the Roman empire, besiege, take, and fortify Mopsuestia in Cilicia	VI	548
			Boanes, sirnamed Heptadæmon, betrayed Armenia to the Saracens	VI	548
5007	3700	701	The Armenian nobility revolt from and drive out the Saracens with great slaughter,
5008	3701	702	and send to Tiberius for assistance; but Mohammed enters Armenia with a great army, recovers the country, and burns the conspirators alive. Then they invade Cilicia, but Heraclius engages, and kills, and takes 10000 of them; the prisoners he sent in chains to Constantinople	VI	548
5008	3701	702	The deposed emperor Justinian flies from Cherson to the king of the Chazari, who entertained him kindly, and gave him his sister Theodora in marriage; but Tiberius prevails with the king to deliver him up alive or dead, by large promises; which being known, Justinian flies to Trebelis king of the Bulgarians, who receives him, and uses him very respectfully, raises a great army, and goes directly to Constantinople, and besieges and takes it the 3d day. Tiberius flies with his treasures to Apollonias; but soon after, he, his	VI	548

brother

Y. of world	Y. of flood.	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
			brother, and Leontius, were taken and beheaded by Juſtinian; and the patriarch Callinicus had his eyes put out, and afterwards baniſhed to Rome	VI	549
5009	3702	703	Cunipert dies extremely lamented, and leaves his kingdom to his ſon Luitberg, who being but an infant, Ragumbert duke of Turin having defeated Aſprand his guardian, cauſes himſelf to be proclaimed king of the Lombards	VII	699
5010	3703	704	Ragumbert king of the Lombards dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Aripert; but ſeveral lords declaring for Luitberg, are defeated in a battle fought near Pavia, in which Luitberg was taken and put to death	VII	699
5011	3704	705	Juſtinian breaks the peace concluded with his friend and reſtorer Trebelis, and enters Thrace with a mighty army; but was totally defeated, and forced to fly in a light Veſſel to Conſtantinople	VI	549
5012	3705	706	Juſtinian fits out a mighty fleet, and goes againſt Cherſona and Boſphorus, for their intention of delivering him up while a priſoner among them. He orders them all to be cut to pieces, men, women, and children, which was executed upon ſo many as did not get away. Thoſe who flew went to the Chazari, who joining them, they defeated the emperor's forces ſeveral times, and proclaimed one Philippicus emperor. Juſtinian's troops revolt, and go over to Philippicus, who immediately marches to Conſtantinople, and enters it. Juſtinian being at Sinope in Paphlagonia, Elias prince of the Boſphorans goes and takes him priſoner, and cuts off his head. His ſon Tiberius takes ſanctuary in a church, from whence being dragged, he was killed in 711	VI	550
5017	3710	711	The emperor Philippicus being a favourer of the Monothelites, ſummoned a council of biſhops of that perſuaſion, who condemned and revoked the ſixth general council, and eſtabliſhed their own doctrine	VI	550
5017	3710	711	Luitprand ſon of Aſprand declared king of the Lombards	VII	701
5018	3711	712	The Bulgarians break into Thrace, and come to Conſtantinople; lay waſte the country, put prodigious numbers of people to the ſword, and return loaded with ſpoil, without interruption. The Saracens invade and take Mædæa, &c. and carry off a great number of captives. Philippicus growing hateful, one Rufus gets into the palace, and while he was aſleep, put out his eyes, and went away undiſcovered	VI	550
5018	3711	712	The people on Whitſunday proclaim Artemius (called alſo Anaſtaſius) chief ſecretary to Philippicus emperor, a man of great learning and a true catholick	VI	550
5019	3712	713	The Bulgarians enter Thrace, and advance as far as Conſtantinople; and having laid the country waſte, and put a vaſt multitude to the ſword, return home unmoleſted, with an immenſe booty, and an incredible number of captives	VII	624
5020	3713	714	Anaſtaſius having ſent out a large fleet againſt the Saracens, the ſailors mutiny, kill their admiral, and declare one Theodoſius emperor, who comes and beſieges Conſtantinople, and after ſix months takes it, and ſends the magiſtrates and patriarch to Nice to Anaſtaſius, to tell him what had happened, who upon promiſe of his life, renounced all claim to the empire, became a monk, and was baniſhed to Theſſalonica	VI	550
5022	3715	716	Leo, commander in chief of all the forces under the late emperor Anaſtaſius, refuſes to acknowledge Theodoſius, and proclaims himſelf emperor, engages and overthrows and takes priſoner, the ſon of Theodoſius, who had been ſent againſt him at Nicomedia, and then goes to Conſtantinople, where he is met by Germanus the patriarch, &c. with offers of Theodoſius's reſignation, upon ſparing his life, which he readily grants, and Theodoſius and his ſons enter into orders, and Leo was crowned by Germanus the 25th of March	VI	555
5022	3715	716	The Saracens ſurprize and take Pergamus	VI	551
5023	3716	717	Solyman a Saracen general breaks into Thrace, but he dying, Haumar ſucceeds him, but through the ſeverity of the weather, loſes moſt of his men	VI	551
5024	3717	718	Haumar, with an army of Saracens, beſieges Conſtantinople by land, and Suphian and Izeth by ſea, with two mighty fleets; but after thirteen months ſiege, and loſing moſt of their ſhips by ſtorms, &c. they raiſe the ſiege and retire	VI	551
5025	3718	719	Anaſtaſius the depoſed emperor flying to the Bulgarians, tells them, upon his approach with an army the people would reſtore him; they arm and go with him; but finding ſtrong oppoſition, they ſeize him, and deliver him to Leo, who put him to death	VII	625
5026	3719	720	Haumar prince of the Saracens, vexed at his diſappointment at Conſtantinople, raiſes a perſecution againſt the Chriſtians, and forces ſome to embrace Mahometiſm	VI	551
5026	3719	720	Sergius governor of Sicily revolts, and declares one Baſilius emperor, and changed his name into Tiberius; but Paul, an officer of the houſhold, being ſent againſt him, took him, and cut off his head	VI	551
5026	3719	720	The empreſs Maria is delivered of a ſon, to the great joy of the emperor and the whole empire, and is called Conſtantine	VI	551
5026	3719	720	The depoſed emperor Anaſtaſius comes with a great army of Bulgarians, and claims the crown, and beſieges Conſtantinople, which being vigorouſly defended, they ſeize Anaſtaſius, and deliver him up, who was put to death with all his accomplices, and then Leo cauſed his ſon to be crowned on Eaſter-day by Germanus the patriarch. The Saracens under their new prince Ized, who ſucceeded Haumar, ravaged the coaſts of Italy and Sicily, put all to fire and ſword; but inteſtine diviſions ariſing among them, they are employed at home	VI	552
5028	3721	722	Luitprand king of the Lombards takes and plunders Ravenna	VII	709
5031	3724	725	The emperor Leo by a law commands all images to be removed out of all the churches, and forbids all manner of worſhip to be paid to them. Germanus the patriarch oppoſed this law with all his power; for which Leo depoſed him, and put Anaſta-

ſius

Y. of World	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			ſius in his room. The populace become outrageous at the pulling down and turning out the images, attack the palace, but are driven back with great ſlaughter; and in the weſt the people openly revolted in defence of their images, prompted to it by Gregory II. biſhop of Rome.	VI	553
5035	3728	729	Luitprand, being ſoftened by a moving ſpeech of Gregory biſhop of Rome, gives over the ſiege of Rome, &c.	VII	707
5037	3730	731	Gregory the then pope begs the friendſhip and protection of Charles king of the Franks.	VII	708
5038	3731	732	Leo marries his ſon to the daughter of the Chazari, being firſt inſtructed in the Chriſtian religion, and baptized by the name of Irene.	VI	554
5038	3731	732	Leo fits out a mighty fleet, with an intent to chaſtize the revolted Italians; but it being ſhipwreck'd in the Adriatic ſea, he cauſed the revenues of the pope in Calabria and Sicily to be confiſcated.	VI	554
5047	3740	741	A dreadful earthquake at Conſtantinople overturns many churches, monaſteries, and private houſes, and buries abundance of people in their ruins. Soon after Leo emperor of Conſtantinople dies, in the 26th year of his reign, and was ſucceeded by his ſon Conſtantine.	VI	554
5048	3741	742	Conſtantine goes againſt the Saracens in Aſia; in his abſence Artabazdus, who had married his Siſter, gave out that he was dead, and was thereupon proclaimed emperor, who took Nicephorus his eldeſt ſon for his partner in the empire; but Conſtantine came againſt him, and defeated him ſeveral times, and beſieged Conſtantinople, and took it. Artabazdus and his two ſons were delivered up, and had their eyes put out. Anaſtaſius the patriarch was puniſhed in the moſt degrading manner poſſible.	VI	554
4049	3742	743	Luitprand dies greatly lamented, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Hildeprand or Hildebrand.	VII	709
5050	3743	744	Hildebrand is depoſed, and Ratlus duke of Friuli choſen in his room.	VII	709
5050	3743	744	Conſtantine goes again againſt the Saracens, and defeats them ſeveral times, took Germanicia and other ſtrong holds. The Saracens fit out a mighty fleet, which the emperor meets and deſtroys all but three ſhips. In Syria and Paleſtine ſuch terrible earthquakes happened as ſwallowed up whole cities, and an extraordinary darkneſs, that laſted from the 4th of Auguſt to the firſt of September.	VI	555
5050	3743	744	A terrible plague breaks out in Calabria, and ſpreads into Sicily, Greece, and the iſlands of the Ægean ſea, and then to Conſtantinople, where it laſted three years with ſuch fury, that the living could ſcarce bury the dead.	VI	555
5051	3744	745	Rachis, with the conſent and approbation of the ſtates convened at Pavia, publiſhes a new pandect of laws.	VII	709
5053	3746	747	Conſtantine proclaims his ſon Leo, about a year old, emperor, and goes into Armenia, takes Mitelene, &c. but the Bulgarians breaking into Thrace, laid the whole country waſte. Conſtantine goes againſt them in perſon, but was defeated and forced to fly to Conſtantinople, where he renews the edict againſt images, which began to be uſed again. Thoſe biſhops that oppoſed it were depoſed, and thoſe monks that preached againſt it were baniſhed, or put to death, and an edict was publiſhed, prohibiting any one to take upon him a monaſtic life; moſt of the religious houſes were ſuppreſſed, and the monks obliged to marry.	VI	555
5056	3749	750	The Bulgarians diſobliged by Conſtantine, ſirnamed Copronymus, make a ſudden irruption into the Roman territories, lay the country waſte, and carry off a great booty unmoleſted.	VII	626
5056	3749	750	The emperor enters the Bulgarians country, and begins to lay all waſte with fire and ſword; they fall upon him as he marched through a narrow paſs, called Baragaba, put him to flight, and purſued him with great ſlaughter to the very gates of Conſtantinople.	VII	627
5057	3750	751	Rachis reſigns his kingdom, and turns monk; upon which his brother Aſtulphus is choſe, and reigns in his ſtead.	VII	710
5058	3751	752	Aſtulphus invades the exarchate of Italy, and takes Ravenna, and puts an end to the name and power, and by adding all their dominions to his own, turned it into a dukedom.	VII	711
5060	3753	754	Aſtulphus king of the Lombards publiſhes a new pandect of laws.	VII	712
5060	3753	754	Pepin king of France, by the inſtigation of pope Stephen, comes into Italy with a great army, beſieges Pavia, and obliges Aſtulphus by a ſolemn oath to reſtore thoſe places he had ſeized in the Roman dukedom, the exarchate and pentapolis to the pope.	VII	712
5062	3755	756	Pepin king of France puts the pope in poſſeſſion of the exarchate, &c. of Italy.	VII	714
5062	3755	756	Aſtulphus dies, and Deſiderius duke of Tuſcany gets himſelf proclaimed king, and is ſupported by pope Stephen.	VII	714
5069	3762	763	A violent froſt begins the firſt of October, and laſts till the end of February following, ſo that the two ſeas at Conſtantinople were froze for a hundred miles from the ſhore.	VI	555
5069	3762	763	Conſtantine goes againſt the Bulgarians, and cuts them all off to a man.	VI	556
5069	3762	763	The Romans entirely overthrow the Bulgarians.	VII	626
5080	3773	774	Charlemagne entering Italy, beſieges Pavia, takes it and the king, and his wife and children, which he ſends to France, where they were never heard of more, and ſo put an end to the kingdom of the Lombards, taking the ſovereignty thereof to himſelf.	VII	719
5081	3774	775	Conſtantine is ſeized, in his march againſt the Bulgarians, with a violent fever, and dies at Strongylum in the thirty-fifth year of his reign.	VI	556
5082	3775	776	Leo III. ſucceeded his father Conſtantine in the eaſtern empire, and was crowned the latter end of April, and in May his brother Nicephorus formed a conſpiracy againſt him, which being diſcovered, he and his accomplices were baniſhed to Cherſona.	VI	556

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
5082	3775	776	Elerich king of the Bulgarians reſigns his crown, and repairs to Conſtantinople, and is baptized. The emperor creates him a patrician, and marries him to a relation of the empreſs Irene.	VI	557
5085	3778	779	Leo gaining ſome advantages over the Saracens, they, to be revenged, perſecute the Chriſtians, and demoliſh all their churches in Syria.	VI	557
5086	3779	780	Leo revives the edict againſt images, and puniſhed with great ſeverity thoſe who paid any worſhip to the virgin Mary, the ſaints or their images; being ſeized with a fever, he died this year the 16th of September.	VI	557
5086	3779	780	Conſtantine ſucceeded his father Leo in the empire, under the guardianſhip of his mother Irene, he being but ten years old. A conſpiracy was formed againſt him in favour of his uncle Nicephorus; but being diſcovered, the authors were baniſhed, and then ſhe obliged the late emperor's brother to take orders. The Saracens broke into the eaſtern provinces, but were driven out by the forces ſent by Irene againſt them.	VI	557
5087	3780	781	Heſpidius governor of Sicily revolts, but is drove out by Theodorus, whom the empreſs Irene ſent againſt him. He flies to the Saracens in Africa, who acknowledge him for emperor, and then they fell upon the eaſtern provinces with ſuch fury, that Irene agrees to pay them an annual penſion to quiet them.	VI	557
5087	3780	781	Arechis duke of Benevento revolts from the French, and changing his dukedom into a principality, cauſes himſelf to be crowned king.	VII	724
5094	3787	788	Irene breaks off the match between Rotdrudris, daughter of Charles the great, king of France, and her ſon, and obliges him to marry one Mary, a woman of mean deſcent, for which he ever after hated his mother.	VI	557
5096	3789	790	Conſtantine takes the government upon himſelf, and baniſhes his mother and her favourites from the court. A terrible fire breaks out at Conſtantinople, which conſumed great part of the city, with the patriarch's palace, in which were the comments of St. Chryſoſtom on the ſeveral books of the ſcripture, written with his own Hands.	VI	558
5097	3790	791	A violent earthquake makes the inhabitants of Conſtantinople quit their habitations, and retire into the open fields. Conſtantine is reconciled to his mother, and recals her to court, then goes againſt the Bulgarians, but meets with a dreadful overthrow.	VI	558
5097	3790	791	Conſtantine being egged on, put his four uncles eyes out.	VI	558
5098	3791	792	The Bulgarians entirely defeat the emperor Leo III.	VII	627
5100	3793	794	The emperor Charles the great, having ſeveral times defeated the Hunns, deſtroyed their cities, and by putting all to fire and ſword, compleated the utter deſtruction of that warlike people.	VII	485
5101	3794	795	Irene perſuades her ſon to divorce his wife Mary, and marry one of her maids named Theodota, which was done with the utmoſt magnificence; then he went againſt the Bulgarians, who run away.	VI	559
5102	3795	796	The emperor Conſtantine being with his mother at the baths of Pruſa in Bythinia, has word brought that his wife Theodota was delivered of a ſon, upon which he goes to Conſtantinople. Irene conſpires againſt her ſon, and ſends ſome of the officers of the army to Conſtantinople, who go to him and ſeize him, and carry him to the palace of Porphyry, where he was born, and tore out his eyes in ſo rude a manner, that he died a few days after with the anguiſh of the operation.	VI	559
5103	3796	797	The Saracens enter the empire, defeat the forces ſent againſt them by Irene, come up to Conſtantinople, and carry off immenſe booty, and vaſt numbers of captives.	VI	559
5104	3797	798	Saturacius, Irene's great favourite, conſpires againſt her, but is detected, and puniſhed only by forbidding any one to keep him company, which ſo vexed him that he died. Soon after Irene, to gain popular applauſe, remits an annual tribute the people had long paid, promoted commerce, and indulged image-worſhip, &c.	VI	560
5106	3799	800	Pope Leo III. crowned Charles the great, king of France, emperor of the weſt, on Chriſtmas-Day.	VI	560
5108	3801	802	Charles the great, now emperor of the weſt, ſends embaſſadors to Irene, empreſs of the eaſt, with propoſals of a firm and laſting peace, and to make a marriage between himſelf and her, and to unite the two empires. The nobility diſliking it, they go one night in a large body to the palace, and ſeize upon and confine Irene to her chamber; then conduct Nicephorus, (whom they choſe emperor) to the great church, and crowned him; and Irene was ſhut up in a monaſtery, which ſhe had built in the iſland of Leſbos.	VI	560
5109	3802	803	The emperor Nicephorus concludes a treaty of peace, and acknowledges Charles the Great emperor of the weſt, &c.	VI	561
5111	3804	805	Nicephorus cauſes Nicetas Tryphyllius (who had ſet him on the throne) to be poiſoned, becauſe he was beloved by the army; and then took his ſon Saturacius partner with him in the empire, and crowned him as uſual; then he marched againſt the Saracens, who had broke into the empire, but was moſt ſhamefully beaten, and narrowly eſcaped being taken.	VI	561
5112	3805	806	Three hundred thouſand Saracens invade the empire anew, take Tyana, the metropolis of Cappadocia minor, and extend their ravages to the gates of Ancyra in Galatia. Nicephorus ſends ambaſſadors with rich preſents to Aaron their kalif, who grants peace thus; the emperor to pay 30,000 pieces of gold annually, and 6000 for his own head and his ſon's, and that he ſhould not rebuild the demoliſhed forts: But as ſoon as they were gone, he rebuilt the forts; upon which they returned, and put all to fire and ſword in Cyprus, then demoliſhed all the churches, and murdered all the inhabitants.	VI	561
5112	3805	806	The Bulgarians fall upon a party of the Romans that were eſcorting 1100 pounds weight of gold to pay the army, which they take, and cut off all the guards.	VII	627

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
5113	3806	807	The Saracens make a deſcent upon the iſland of Rhodes, and take a great number of priſoners; but in their return home their fleet ſuffered much by a violent ſtorm.	VI	561
5115	3808	809	The Bulgarians ſurpriſe Sardica, a city of Mæſia, and put the whole gariſon, conſiſting of 6000 men to the ſword: Nicephorus goes againſt them, but they retired with their booty: He comes back to Conſtantinople, and taxes the people to raiſe money to repair Sardica: A tumult riſes, and attacks the palace; but the guards killing great numbers of them, quell them.	VII	276
5117	3810	811	Nicephorus goes with a great army into Bulgaria, and deſtroys all with fire and ſword: Crumus their king ſues for peace; the emperor refuſes, and goes on waſting the country, deſtroying the cities, and murdering the inhabitants. Crumus ſends a ſecond time, offering to quit the country, &c. Nicephorus will not hear; then Crumus attacks the emperor's camp and forces, cuts off the emperor, and almoſt his whole army, took all the arms and baggage, cut off Nicephorus's head, and made a drinking cup of his ſkull: Nicephorus is ſaid to have been a Manichee, one who denied providence; and to have been exceſſively lewd, cruel, covetous, and debauched.	VII	627
5117	3810	811	Saturacius ſucceeded his father Nicephorus, and was declared emperor at Adrianople by ſome few of the officers that had eſcaped; but the ſenate proclaimed and crowned Michael, that had married his ſiſter, who a few days after cauſed his wife Procopia and his ſon Theophylact to be crowned alſo; upon which Saturacius with his wife Theophania retired into a monaſtery, and died there about two years after.	VI	572
5118	3811	812	The Saracens break into the empire on one ſide, and the Bulgarians on the other: Leo drives back and defeats the firſt, and Michael goes againſt the laſt, has ſeveral ſlight skirmiſhes, but at laſt was utterly defeated, and forced to fly ſhamefully back to Conſtantinople; this ſo affected him, that he begged Leo to take the purple, which with ſome difficulty he accepted.	VII	627
5119	3812	813	Michael and his wife Procopia retire to the monaſtery of Pharus, where on the 11th of July he took the habit. Leo goes againſt the Bulgarians, and after a very obſtinate battle the Romans were put to flight; but the enemy purſuing diſorderly, the Romans rallied and engaged again, and got ſo complete a victory, that the Bulgarians did not invade the empire again for ſome years.	VI	563
5120	3813	814	The emperor Leo overcomes the Bulgarians in a pitched battle, wherein he ſlew and took a very great number.	VII	628
5126	3819	820	The emperor Leo having revived the edict againſt images, and baniſhed Nicephorus the patriarch, Theodorus, a famous monk, &c. for not complying, one Michael Balbus conſpires againſt Leo, is detected, and condemned to be burnt alive; but his accomplices fell upon Leo, as he was going to his devotions, and killed him in the chapel of the palace, baniſhed the empreſs Theodoſia and her four ſons to the iſland Prota, where they were made eunuchs, and Michael was declared emperor, and crowned by the patriarch.	VI	564
5127	3820	821	The emperor Michael recalls great numbers of biſhops, monks, and others who had been baniſhed by Leo on account of image worſhip, and reſtores them.	VI	564
5128	3821	822	A civil war breaks out in the eaſt by one Thomas, who gave out, that he was Conſtantine the ſon of Irene: Under this pretence he raiſed a great army, and over-ran all Aſia, and proclaimed himſelf emperor, and was acknowledged by the patriarch of Antioch. Michael ſends his troops againſt him; they meet and engage in Aſia, where Thomas overthrows them; then defeats Michael's fleet, and beſieges Conſtantinople, but is forced to raiſe it.	VI	565
5128	3821	822	They engage again, and Thomas is routed with great ſlaughter by land, and his fleet driven on ſhore, and ruined at ſea: Upon this Gregory one of his generals revolted with 12,000 men; Thomas goes after him, cuts moſt of his men to pieces, takes him priſoner, and puts him to death: Soon after he is put to flight with great ſlaughter by the Bulgarians, and his fleet revolts to Michael, who ſends his troops againſt him, and while they were engaged moſt of his troops deſert: Thomas flies to Adrianople, where being beſieg d, his own men delivered him up, and having his hands and feet cut off, he died in great agony.	VI	566
5128	3821	822	The Saracens who had ſettled in Spain growing too numerous, tranſport a large number into Crete. Damianus, the emperor's general, joined by Photinus, goes againſt them; they engage, Damianus is killed, and the whole army put to flight. Then the Saracens built Candax, or Candia, and ſoon became maſters of the whole iſland.	VI	566
5129	3822	823	Michael ſends Craterus againſt the Saracens in Crete; they engage, and Craterus kills great numbers, and makes them fly; but inſtead of purſuing, goes to revelling; the Saracens in the middle of the night ſally out upon them, half drunk and aſleep, and cut them all off to a man, Craterus himſelf hardly eſcaping.	VI	566
5132	3825	826	Michael emperor of the eaſt forces Euphroſyne, daughter of Conſtantine Porphyrogenitus, out of the monaſtery whither ſhe had retired, and marries her: One of his officers fancying another ſacred virgin, takes and debauches her: Complaint being made, the offender to avoid puniſhment revolts to the Saracens in Africa, where he is proclaimed emperor, and ſent with an army into Sicily, where he is beheaded; but the Saracens never quitted the iſland till they had conquered it, and then went into Italy, and conquered Calabria.	VI	567
5135	3828	829	The emperor Michael dies of a flux, the 1ſt of October, in the 9th year of his reign, and was ſucceeded by his ſon Theophilus, who puniſhed all the murderers of Leo, and ſent the empreſs Euphroſyne back to her monaſtery, and performed every part of the imperial government with unwearied diligence.	VI	568

Y. of World	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
5138	3831	832	The emperor Theophilus marries his daughter Mary to one Alexius Moſeles, an Armenian by birth, a perſon of great perſonal beauty, bravery, and endowments ;made him proconſul, created him Cæſar, and ſent him againſt the Saracens in Italy, where he did wonders; but being miſrepreſented to the emperor, he deſired leave to retire and live privately, which was granted.	VI	568
5138	3831	832	The Saracens beat the Romans who went to hinder their depredations.	VI	568
5140	3833	834	Theophilus commands the Roman forces, obtains a compleat victory over the Saracens, killing great numbers, and carrying 20,000 of them priſoners to Conſtantinople in triumph.	VI	568
5141	3834	835	Theophilus the Roman emperor is defeated by the Saracens, and reſcued with great danger by Manuel, one of his generals, whom he uſes very ill ſoon after, ſo that he was forced to fly to the Saracens for protection, who received him with great honour, for which he defeated the Cermatæ for them ſeveral times.	VI	569
5145	3838	839	The emperor Theophilus invaded Syria, ravaged the country, and after taking ſeveral ſtrong holds, returns to Conſtantinople, leaving the army under the command of Theophobus.	VI	569
5146	3839	840	Theophobus the Perſian general, commander of the Roman army in Syria, is proclaimed emperor by 30,000 Perſians ; but he refuſes, and reſigns to Theophilus.	VI	569
5147	3840	841	Theophilus having deſtroyed Sozopetra, the birth-place of the prince of the Saracens, he ſwore he would at all events deſtroy Amorium, the birth-place of Theophilus, in Cilicia : He raiſes a great army, and advances and beſieges Amorium, takes it, puts the men to the ſword, levelled the city, and carried the women and children away captive ; which ſo afflicted the emperor, that he fell ſick and died, at Magnara, in the 13th year of his reign.	VI	570
5147	3840	841	Michael the ſon of Theophilus, a child of ſix years old, ſucceeded his father in the empire of the eaſt, under the regency of his mother Theodora, who immediately recalled all thoſe that had been baniſhed for image-worſhip, and drove John the patriarch away, put Methodius, a monk in his ſtead, and is ſaid to cut 100,000 Manichees to pieces ; upon which Carbeas at the head of 4000 of that ſect revolted to the Saracens, who returned with them into the Roman territories, and diſpeopled whole nations.	VI	571
5149	3842	843	Roderick the Great became king of all Cambria or Wales, which before was divided into ſix kingdoms.	VII	453
4161	3854	855	The emperor Michael takes the government upon himſelf, and begins with murdering his guardian Theoctiſtus, then giving ear to the falſe accuſations of his uncle Bardas, locks up his mother and three ſiſters in a monaſtery, and then fell into the moſt extravagaut debaucheries and cruelties, making Nero his example.	VI	511
5162	3855	856	The emperor Michael beſieging a Saracen city on the Euphrates, one Sunday as his army was at their devotions the Saracens ſally out upon them, put the whole army to flight, and took their camp and baggage.	VI	571
5164	3857	858	The Saracens entering the empire with 30,000 men, put Michael to flight at the head of 40,000 ; but his brother Petronas falls upon the Saracens near Epirus, cut off the kalif, and his whole army, and took his ſon priſoner.	VI	572
5166	3859	860	The emperor Michael creates his uncle Bardas Cæſar, when he acted beyond all law or reaſon, firſt putting away his wife, without pretending any fault, and marrying his niece! for which the patriarch Ignatius refuſed to communicate with him ; to revenge which he calls a council, and gets Ignatius falſely condemned for the murder of his predeceſſor Methodius, for which Ignatius was depoſed and impriſoned, and Photius put in his place.	VI	572
5167	3860	861	Bardas perſuades the emperor to go againſt the Cretan Saracens : They encamp at Chorus, where on the 1ſt of April he orders Bardas to be murdered, which was done, and the 26th of May following declared Baſilius his great chamberlain, his partner in the empire, who ſtrove what he could to reclaim Michael ; but finding it impoſſible, with ſome others enters his room when in bed, and murders him, and reigns alone, to the liking of all perſons.	VI	573
5168	3861	862	Two patricians, George and Symbatius, conſpire againſt Baſilius ; but being diſcovered, have their eyes put out, and their accomplices baniſhed.	VI	573
5169	3862	863	The emperor Baſilius proclaims his eldeſt ſon Conſtantine his partner in the empire, and his ſons Leo and Alexander Cæſars ; and made his 4th ſon Stephen take orders : His four daughters took the religious habit in the monaſtery of St. Euphemia.	VI	573
5169	3862	863	Baſilius goes againſt the Manichees ſettled in Armenia, from whence they made frequent inroads into the empire, under their leader Carbeas, who was now become very numerous : He laid their country waſte, killed their beſt commanders, and returned with immenſe booty.	VI	573
5170	3863	864	The Manichees under Chryſochir break into the empire ; but the imperial troops meet, engage, and cut them all off almoſt to a man, with their leader.	VI	573
5177	3870	871	The Britains are drove out of Cornwall, ſouth of Scotland, and Carliſle, and take ſhelter in North Wales.	VII	454
5186	3879	880	Baſilius and his ſon Conſtantine invade Syria, take ſeveral ſtrong holds, with an incredible number of priſoners ; and in their return they take Cæſarea, the capital of Cappadocia : He was forced to put multitudes of the priſoners to the ſword, upon which ſeveral of their governors joined the emperor. The African and Cretan Saracens were likewiſe defeated with great ſlaughter, and their fleet deſtroyed by Nazar, the Roman admiral : But the Carthaginian Saracens took Syracuſe.	VI	573
5191	3884	885	Conſtantine being dead, Baſilius advances his ſecond ſon to be his partner, who is preſently accuſed by a favourite monk with a deſign to kill his father ; for which he was thrown into goal ; but his father dying ſoon after, he ſucceeded

him

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			him, when he ordered the monk who had falſely accuſed him to be firſt whipped, and then baniſhed to Athens, where his eyes were put out.	VI	574
5192	3885	886	Photius, patriarch of Conſtantinople, having conſpired to put one of his kinſmen on the throne, was depoſed, and Stephen the emperor's brother put in his place.	VI	574
5199	3892	893	Simeon, king of the Bulgarians entering the Roman empire, is oppoſed by the Roman army under Cremes and Curticius, which he defeats, kills their generals, and uſes the priſoners very barbarouſly and inhumanly.	VII	629
5201	3894	895	Simeon king of the Bulgarians engages the Ungri, or Hungarians, and is entirely overthrown; upon which he ſues for peace, and the emperor Leo grants it; but as ſoon as Leo was returned to Conſtantinople, Simeon falls unexpectedly upon the Hungarians, puts them to flight, ravages their country, and puts all to fire and ſword.	VI	575
5203	3896	897	The emperor Leo ſends a great army under Theodoſius a patrician againſt the Bulgarians, which Simeon their king entirely defeats, and obliges the Romans to make peace upon his own conditions.	VII	630
5206	3899	900	The empreſs Theophano dies, and Leo marries one Zoe, who had been his concubine; but ſhe dying ſoon after, he married one Eudocia; and ſhe dying in child-birth, he married another Zoe: All fourth marriages being at that time, held unlawful, Nicholaus Myſticus the patriarch excommunicated the emperor for his marrying a fourth time; which ſo exaſperated him, that he depoſed Myſticus, and put Euthymius Syncellus in his room; which occaſioned a ſchiſm, and great diſturbances in the church.	VI	575
5207	3900	901	As the emperor Leo was entering the great church on Whitſunday, a mean perſon gave him a violent blow on the head with a great club, and left him for dead; but Leo recovered, and the aſſaſſin being ſeized, was racked, and his hands and feet cut off, and then burnt alive.	VI	525
5208	3901	902	The Saracens take Taurominium in Sicily, with a mighty fleet, and then they took Theſſalonica, which Simeon, the emperor Leo's ſecretary, redeemed with a mighty ſum. Leo ſends an army againſt them, and gained ſeveral victories over them.	VI	575
5209	3902	903	The Saracens invade the empire with a great army, which is defeated by Himerius the Roman general.	VI	576
5217	3910	911	The Saracens with a great fleet commit dreadful ravages on the coaſt: Himerus goes with the Roman fleet againſt them, and is utterly defeated; which ſo affected the emperor, that on the 11th of May he died of the cholic, and was ſucceeded by his brother Alexander, who being a lewd, cruel, and diſſolute perſon, began his reign by baniſhing all the good and great, and promoting the moſt profligate and mean perſons.	VI	577
5218	3911	912	The emperor Alexander's debaucheries threw him into an inward bleeding, of which he died, after reigning 13 months, and declared his nephew Conſtantine (a child of about ſix years old) his ſucceſſor; and appointed thoſe who had indulged his own debaucheries the child's guardian.	VI	578
5218	3911	912	One Conſtantine Ducas, ſon of Andronicus, a famous general, was by many of the nobility declared emperor in the Circus; but the guards ſeized him, cut off his head, and moſt of his companions were put to death or baniſhed.	VI	578
5218	3911	912	The Bulgarians ravage Thrace, and beſiege Conſtantinople; but are forced to raiſe the ſiege and return home.	VII	630
5220	3913	914	The emperor's governors quarrelling among themſelves, the empreſs Zoe his mother is recalled to court, and made regent, who diſmiſſed all Alexander's favourites.	VI	579
5220	3913	914	The Saracens and Bulgarians both break into the empire; the latter over-ran Thrace, and beſiege Adrianople: Simeon having bribed Pancatucus the governor with rich preſents, he delivered the city up.	VII	630
5223	3916	917	A peace is concluded with the Saracens, and a great army ſent againſt the Bulgarians, who at firſt were defeated; but rallying, and falling upon the purſuing Romans, intirely overthrew them.	VII	631
5226	3919	920	Romanus Lacapenus, the Roman admiral, having by his great intereſt at court got himſelf declared Cæſar, baniſhes the empreſs Zoe to the monaſtery of St. Euphemia, and cauſed himſelf to be crowned emperor by the patriarch.	VI	579
5227	3920	921	Romanus cauſed his two ſons, Stephen and Chriſtopher, to be crowned in the great church; reſerving his third ſon Theophylactus for the patriarchal dignity.	VI	579
5228	3921	922	The Bulgarians overthrow the Romans with great ſlaughter, take many of the great men priſoners, burn the imperial palace at Pegæ, and became maſters of Adrianople a ſecond time, and torture Leo, who defended it, to death.	VII	631
5229	3922	923	The Bulgarians again enter the empire, lay waſte Macedon and Thrace, taking many ſtrong holds, and putting garriſons in ſome, and levelling others: Then they go to Conſtantinople, and offer to come to an accommodation; they conclude a peace, and return home.	VII	632
5230	3923	924	John Radenus the Roman admiral ſurprizes the Saracen fleet in the harbour of Lemnos, deſtroyed the whole fleet, and cut them all off to a man.	VI	579
5234	3927	928	Simeon king of the Bulgarians engages the Crobati, and is intirely defeated, and ſoon after dies of grief, and is ſucceeded by Peter his ſecond ſon, who breaks into Macedon, and deſtroys all with fire and ſword. Romanus going againſt him, he propoſes a peace and alliance; which being concluded, he marries Mary the grandaughter of Romanus.	VII	632
5235	3928	929	The Syrian Saracens invade the Roman territories, but are driven back by the Roman general in thoſe parts. A ſevere froſt that laſted 120 days, was followed by a plague, which ſwept off abundance of people. Earthquakes troubled ſeveral provinces, and whole cities were overthrown.	VI	580
5239	3932	933	A great fire deſtroyed many ſtately buildings at Conſtantinople, and Chriſtopher the ſon of Romanus dies.	VI	580

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
5240	3933	934	One Baſilius, a Macedonian, giving out that he was Conſtantine Ducas that had been ſlain, many followed him, but being taken and carried to the emperor at Conſtantinople, he orders one of his hands to be cut off, and then ſet at liberty; but ſtill inſiſting upon his being the ſon of Andronicus, ſeized a ſtrong hold, and made frequent incurſions; but being taken again, was burnt alive. — —	VI	580
5250	3943	944	The Roſſi, formerly called the Roxolani, and Baſternæ, fit out a fleet of 10,000 ſhips, and commit terrible ravages on the coaſts of the empire, But Theophanes the Roman admiral falling unexpectedly upon them, deſtroyed their whole fleet: of thoſe who eſcaped on ſhore, abundance were cut to pieces: ſo that very few returned home. — — — —	IV	580
5250	3943	944	Stephen, the youngeſt ſon of Romanus, ſeizes his father, depoſes and forces him into a monaſtery in the iſland Prota (where he died four years after) and proclaims himſelf emperor, and is allowed to be partner with his elder brother Conſtantine. — — — — — —	VI	580
5251	3944	945	Conſtantine the ſon of Leo being now near forty years old, and having only the name of emperor, without any ſhare in the government, invites the two brother emperors, Stephen and Conſtantine, to a feaſt, and in the midſt of their jollity ſeized them, and ſent Stephen to the iſland of Panormus, and Conſtantine to Terebinthus, and ordered them to be both ordained prieſts, and cauſed his ſon Romanus to be crowned with the uſual ſolemnity. — — —	VI	580
5254	3947	948	The Saracens break into the empire, and are defeated ſeveral times; and Leo overthrowing them in a pitched battle, took Apolaſemus, the kailif's kinſman, who being carried to Conſtantinople, the vain emperor Conſtantine trod upon his neck by way of inſult. — — — —	VI	581
5255	3948	949	The kailif of the Saracens having Conſtantine the third ſon of the Roman general Bardas Phocas in his power, uſed him moſt cruelly to make him abjure Chriſtianity; but not prevailing, poiſoned him: Phocas in return put all any way related to the kailif to death that fell into his hands, and drawing the kailif into an ambuſh, cut off his army almoſt to a man, he hardly eſcaping; and then Phocas entered his dominions, took many ſtrong holds, and laid waſte whole provinces. — — — — —	VI	581
5256	3949	950	The Cretan Saracens commit dreadful ravages on the frontiers of the empire. Conſtantine ſends an army and fleet into Crete; but through the ignorance of the commander, the whole miſcarried; great part of the army was cut to pieces, and the camp and baggage taken by the enemy. — — —	VI	581
5264	3957	958	Romanus, the emperor Conſtantine's ſon, egged on by his wife Theophano, prevails upon Nicetus to poiſon his father; but Conſtantine luckily ſpilling great part of the draught, the remainder was not ſtrong enough to kill him. —	IV	581
5266	3959	960	The emperor Conſtantine is taken ill on a journey, and brought back to Conſtantinople, where he dies the 9th of November, in the 49th year of his reign, and is ſucceded by his ſon Romanus, eſteemed one of the lewdeſt and wickedeſt princes that ever reigned; and though endowed with extraordinary natural parts, made no uſe of them, committing the whole management of affairs to his favourite Joſeph. — — — —	VI	582
5267	3960	961	Romanus the emperor orders the patriarch Polyeuctus to ſolemnly crown his youngeſt ſon Baſilius. — — — — —	VI	582
5268	3961	962	Nicephorus Phocas goes againſt the Cretan Saracens, defeats them ſeveral times, and takes all their ſtrong holds; likewiſe corrupts the kailif, and Arcemus his lieutenant, and reduced the whole iſland. Leo his brother overthrew the Saracens ſeveral times in the eaſt, where moſt of them were killed on the ſpot, or taken priſoners, and was rewarded with a triumph: But Nicephorus, by the management of Joſeph, is ſent againſt Chabdamus kailif of the Saracens, overthrew him in a pitched battle, took Beræa, and great wealth with it, and ſet multitudes of Chriſtians at liberty. — — —	VI	582
5269	3962	963	The emperor Romanus dies, the 15th of March, and the empreſs Theophano is regent for her ſons Baſilius and Conſtantine, who contrary to the will of Joſeph the prime miniſter, calls Nicephorus to court, and honours him with a triumph. — — — — —	VI	582
5269	3962	963	Nicephorus is proclaimed emperor by the army in Syria, on the 2d of July; upon which the houſes of Joſeph and his friends at Conſtantinople were levelled with the ground, and Nicephorus joyfully acknowledged emperor, and crowned at Hebdomon, by the patriarch Polyeuctus; then he baniſhed and confined Joſeph in a monaſtery in Paphlagonia, where he died two years after. — — — — — —	VI	583
5270	3963	964	The emperor Nicephorus marries the empreſs Theophano, for which the patriarch excommunicated him; but a council being called, he was reſtored to the communion of the church. — — — — —	VI	583
5271	3964	965	Nicephorus ſends an army under Manuel into Sicily, to drive out the Saracens, who drew him into the mountains, and then cut off him and his army; John Zimines cut off the Saracens in the province of Cilicia, and overthrew and drove them quite out of Cyprus, and reunited it to the empire again. —	VI	583
5272	3965	966	Nicephorus goes againſt the Saracens in Cilicia, and took three of their ſtrongeſt cities, and wintered in Cappadocia. — — — —	VI	583
5273	3966	967	Nicephorus beſieges and takes Mopſueſta, and Tarſus: A great fleet of Saracens coming to the relief of Tarſus three days after it ſurrendered, returned, but was moſt of it deſtroyed by a ſtorm, and the reſt taken by the Romans, with the ſoldiers. — — — —	VI	584
5274	3967	968	Nicephorus breaks into Syria, and reduces a great part of it; then beſieged Antioch; but the garriſon being numerous, and well provided, winter forced

him

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			him to raiſe the ſiege, after he had ſpent three months before it, when he returned to Conſtantinople: But Burtzas, a patrician, unexpectedly in the depth of winter marched his troops to Antioch, and took it, and once more added it to the empire.	VI	584
5275	3968	969	Nicephorus baniſhes Burtzas and Zimiſcis from the court for ſome groundleſs ſuſpicions, who together with the empreſs conſpire againſt him, and murder him in the palace, when John Zimiſces was proclaimed and acknowledged emperor by every body.	VI	584
5275	3968	969	The emperor John Zimiſces diſplaces all the friends of the late emperor Nicephorus, and baniſhed his brother Leo to Leſbos, recalled all thoſe that Nicephorus had baniſhed, and reſtored all thoſe he had degraded: Going to the great church to be crowned, Polyeuctus the patriarch refuſed his admiſſion till he had done penance for the crime of murdering Nicephorus; he promiſes to revoke the acts againſt the church, ſettle his paternal eſtate upon the poor, and baniſh the empreſs and Ablantius, and was then crowned on Chriſtmas-day.	VI	585
5275	3968	969	The emperor Zimiſces takes Baſilius and Conſtantine, the two ſons of Romanus, for his colleagues in the empire; and cauſed the ſenate and people of Conſtantinople to acknowledge them as ſuch.	VI	585
5275	3968	969	The Saracens with a vaſt army beſieges Antioch, but are overthrown and driven out of Syria by the Romans.	VI	585
5275	3968	969	The Ruſſi, or Roſſi, the preſent inhabitants of Podolia, break into Bulgaria, and after ravaging the country, and burning ſeveral towns, they return home loaded with booty.	VII	630
5276	3969	970	The Roſſi invade the empire with 300,000 men; having waſted all Thrace, they ſat down before Adrianople; Bardas Sclerus goes to its relief with 13,000 men, and by a ſtratagem draws a ſtrong party of them into an ambuſcade, and cuts every man of them off; and unexpectedly falling on the main body of their army, overthrew them, put a great number to the ſword, and took a vaſt number priſoners, with the loſs of only 25 men.	VI	585
5276	3969	970	Bardas Phocas, nephew to the late emperor, is encouraged by ſeveral of the nobility, takes Cæſarea in Cappadocia, and proclaims himſelf emperor. Bardas Sclerus goes againſt him to Cæſarea, where Phocas being forſaken by his prompters, flies to the ſtrong caſtle of Cyropæum, where he ſubmitted to Sclerus, upon a ſolemn aſſurance of pardon, which the emperor performed, but baniſhed him to the iſland of Chios. This year the emperor married Theodora, the daughter of the late emperor Romanus.	VI	585
5276	3969	970	The Ruſſi come again into Balgaria, and having overcome the Bulgarians, ſettle in their country.	VII	632
5277	3970	971	Zimiſces goes againſt the Roſſi who were now ſettled in Bulgaria, and inveſts Perſthalba, the capital of Bulgaria, at unawares; 8000 Roſſi attempt to get into the city, but are cut all off, and next day the city was taken by aſſault, and great numbers of the inhabitants put to the ſword: 8000 Scythians retire into the citadel, which the Romans took by ſtorm, and the Scythians all deſtroyed. Boriſes king of the Bulgarians being taken, the emperor uſed him ſuitable to his rank, and releaſed him, with his wife, children, and all the Bulgarians; but the city was deſtroyed, as belonging to the Roſſi.	VI	586
5277	3970	971	Zimiſces goes towards Deroſterum, on the Danube, where he was met by 300,000 of the Roſſi; they engage, and after a moſt obſtinate fight, the Roſſi were put to flight with great ſlaughter; they entering Doroterum, Zimiſces follows and beſieges them; a ſecond battle is fought, and they are again terribly beaten; at laſt they cut their way through the Roman camp, and many of them eſcape.	VI	586
5277	3970	971	Stephen Doſtalbas, general of the Roſſi, propoſes a peace, and to quit Bulgaria if he ſhould be acknowledged as a friend and ally of the empire, he and his countrymen permitted to return home unmoleſted, and a free trade be eſtabliſhed between the two nations; which was ſigned by both parties.	VI	587
5282	3975	976	Baſilius the eunuch, prime miniſter to the emperor Zimiſces, for fear of puniſhment for his rapine, &c. hires the cup-bearer to poiſon him in his return from the eaſt, which was done, this being the 7th year of his reign.	VI	587
5282	3975	976	Baſilius and Conſtantine were declared the ſucceſſors of Zimiſces by his will, and as they were not of age, Baſilius the eunuch took upon him the government, and recalled their mother Theophano.	VI	587
5283	3976	977	Samuel king of the Bulgarians breaks into the empire, does much damage, and carry off great booty.	VII	633
5283	3976	977	Bardas Sclerus being diſpoſſeſſed by Baſilius the eunuch of his high command of general of all the forces in the eaſt, and by him ſent into Meſopotamia, there he was proclaimed emperor by the army, and comes with a great force towards Conſtantinople, engages the imperial army, cuts great numbers to pieces, puts the reſt to flight, took their camp, and in it vaſt ſums of money, and an immenſe quantity of arms and proviſions. Soon after he engaged the emperor's army again, and gains another compleat victory, by which moſt of the officers were ſlain, and Leo the general, and many perſons of diſtinction taken priſoners. Then he took Nice, and engaging Bardas Phocas at Amorium, put his army to the rout; but having recruited, returns, and again engages and totally routs Sclerus.	VI	5
5286	3979	980	Bardas Phocas is declared emperor, and Sclerus likewiſe entering Meſopotamia, ſets up his former pretenſions, and offers to join Phocas, and divide the empire, which was agreed and ſworn to by both parties; but as ſoon as their forces were joined, Phocas ſeized Sclerus, and put him in priſon. The emperor Baſilius and his brother Conſtantine falls upon Delphinus, commander under

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			Phocas, and put his army to flight, and took him and other great officers priſoners, who were immediately nailed to ſeveral great trees on the road: Then going againſt Phocas, killed him, and put his army to flight with great ſlaughter, and took the leading men priſoners, carried them to Conſtantinople, and puniſhed them divers ways. — — — — —	VI	591
5292	3985	986	Sclerus heads thoſe that were left, but through the interceſſion of his ſon Romanus, and the promiſe of the emperor Baſilius, he is prevailed with to lay down his arms and pretenſions, and go to Conſtantinople, where he is made great chamberlain, and lived with much honour the remainder of his life. — —	VI	591
5301	3994	995	The Romans unexpectedly croſs the Sperchius in the night, and fall upon the Bulgarians in the dark, cut great numbers to pieces, took their baggage, with many priſoners, maſtered their camp, and forced their king Samuel and his ſon to hide themſelves among the ſlain, who by that means ſtole away into Bulgaria. — — — — —	VI	591
5307	4000	1001	Baſilius the emperor goes into Bulgaria, defeats king Samuel in a pitched battle, took Vidini Scopi, and ſeveral other ſtrong cities, but had liked to have been cut off afterwards, with his whole army, by Samuel, who unexpectedly fell upon them in the Streights of Cimba; but Nicephorus governor of Philoppopolis falling upon Samuel's rear, put them to flight, Baſilius purſuing them took 15,000 priſoners, and put out their eyes, leaving one to every hundred with one eye for a guide to the reſt. King Samuel was ſo ſhocked at this dreadful ſight, that he fell into a ſwoon, and died two days after. — — — —	VII	635
5307	4000	1001	Gabriel, ſon of Samuel, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Bulgaria. The emperor continued to ravage the country, and to take the ſtrong holds; but ſending Theophylact, one of his generals, to reduce the ſtrong holds among the mountains, the natives cut off him and his whole army; upon which Baſilius retires, but in his rout took ſeveral caſtles, and burnt Buteliana, the royal palace, and Gabriel was killed by Gudiſthalbus, who ſucceeded him. ———	VII	636
5323	4016	1017	Baſilius enters Bulgaria again, and took ſeveral places, and many of the people; Gudiſthalbus offers to ſubmit upon the emperor's own terms. Ibatzes draws the Romans into an ambuſh, and cuts every man of them off. Baſilius returns, deſtroys all with fire and ſword, and put out the eyes of the priſoners: But having loſt great part of his army in ſeveral encounters, he returned to Conſtantinople.	VII	636
5325	4018	1019	Baſilius reſolves never to ſheath his ſword till he had reduced all Bulgaria, and Gudiſtalbus being killed in a battle near Acridus, all the chiefs of Bulgaria ſubmitted to the emperor, who made a progreſs through the country to receive the homage of the ſeveral provinces. ——— — —	VII	637
5327	4020	1021	Xiphius and Nicephorus, the ſons of Bardas Phocas, revolt; but Baſilius found means to bring Xiphius to his duty, and to diſpatch Nicephorus, and ſo the rebellion ceaſed: But Baſilius puniſhing with too great ſeverity all that had been concerned in the diſaffection, breeds new commotions; but the ringleaders being ſeized and executed, all was quiet again. — — — —	VI	593
5331	4024	1025	The emperor Baſilius making great preparations for a war againſt the Saracens in Sicily, ſends a ſtrong body of forces under Oreſtes, his favourite eunuch, before him, intending to follow with a large fleet and army, but dies in the December of this year, and Conſtantine his brother, who had done little but bear the name of emperor in his life-time, now becomes ſole emperor; but being a weak, effeminate, and vicious prince, he ſuffered his miniſters to oppreſs and injure the provinces without controul, all of honour, reſolution, and virtue, being turned out or put to death. — — — —	VI	594
5334	4027	1028	The emperor Conſtantine VIII. dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon-in-law Romanus II. who gained the hearts of the people by eaſing their taxes in general, being vaſtly liberal to the church, and ranſoming all taken captive in the late war. — — — — — — — — —	VI	594
5336	4029	1030	The Saracens broke into Roman Aſia, the commander of the troops in thoſe parts being defeated, Romanus goes himſelf: The Saracens beg for peace, and promiſe quietneſs for the future: Romanus rejects them, and ſends a ſtrong party to obſerve their motions, who falling into an ambuſh, are every man of them cut off; after which the Saracens defeated another ſtrong body, beſieged the camp, and reduced the Romans to great ſtraits, and took all the baggage, the emperor with difficulty eſcaping to Antioch. 800 Saracens that was eſcorting the plunder, coming to a ſmall town, they ſummoned Maniaces the governor to ſurrender: He ſent them a large quantity of wine, &c. with which making too free, Maniaces ſallied out in the night, while they were either drunk or aſleep, and cut them all off to a man, and recovered 280 camels loaded with the ſpoils of the Roman army, which he ſent to the emperor, who made him governor of Media for his reward. — — — — —	VI	595
5339	4032	1033	A dreadful plague breaks out and rages ſo terribly in Cappadocia, Paphlagonia, and Armenia, that the inhabitants forſake theſe provinces: A terrible famine followed, and mighty earthquakes ſucceed the famine, which deſtroyed whole cities, and did great damage in Conſtantinople. — — —	VI	595
5340	4033	1034	The empreſs Zoe having got her huſband the emperor Romanus murdered, ſends for Alexius the patriarch, and commands him to marry her to one Michael, brother to John the eunuch, Romanus's favourite, with whom ſhe had held a criminal converſation during the life of Romanus. Alexius ſcruples, but 100 lb. weight of gold made him perform the office, when Michael was proclaimed emperor, and partner with Zoe. — — — — —	VI	595
5340	4033	1034	Tangrolipix, now maſter of Perſia, opened a paſſage for his countrymen in Armenia, and being ſtrengthened by their aſſiſtance, made war on Piſaris, kailif of Babylon, ſlew him, and annexed his dominions to thoſe of Perſia. —	VI	599

Y. of World	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
5341	4034	1035	John the eunuch governs all the eaſtern empire with an abſolute ſway, in the name of his brother Michael, who to attone for his former life, now ſpent his time in acts of devotion, religion, and piety, and advances Michael his ſiſter's ſon to the dignity of Cæſar.	VI	596
5342	4035	1036	A peace for 30 years is concluded by Michael between the Romans and Saracens, whoſe kailif being dead, his widow embraced Chriſtianity.	VI	596
5442	4035	1036	Dreadful earthquakes overturned ſeveral cities in different parts of the eaſtern empire, and twelve pretended ambaſſadors come to Edeſſa, with 5000 horſes and as many camels, pretending they were loaded with preſents for the emperor, but were full of armed men; which being diſcovered, the governor cut every one of them to pieces, and ſo ſaved the city.	VI	596
5342	4035	1036	One Delcanus, a Bulgarian ſlave at Conſtantinople, runs away from his maſter, goes into Bulgaria, and pretends to be the ſon of Gabriel, and grandſon of Samuel their late kings: The Bulgarians proclaim him king, and ſacrifice all the Romans that fell into their power. The inhabitants of Dyrrachium in Bulgaria ſet up one Teichomer for their king: Deleanus cajoled Teichomer ſo far, that the latter joined him with all his forces, when he got him ſtoned to death: Then Deleanus goes againſt the emperor Michael at Theſſalonica; Michael leaves all his baggage and treaſure with Ibatza, who revolted with it to Deleanus: Then they beſiege Theſſalonica; but the governor ſallying out unexpectedly, cut 15,000 Bulgarians to pieces, and forced the reſt to run away.	VII	638
5344	4037	1038	Tangrolipix ſends his nephew Cuthimuſes againſt the Arabians, who overthrow him in a pitched battle; and being forced to take ſhelter in Media, Stephen the Roman general refuſes him a paſſage; they engage; the Romans are beat, and Stephen taken priſoner.	VI	599
5347	4040	1041	The emperor Michael having ſubdued all Bulgaria, being grievouſly afflicted with the dropſy, reſigns the empire; retires into a monaſtery, and died the 10th of December, and was ſucceeded by Calaphates, his ſiſter's ſon; but he behaving cruelly and diſreſpectfully, the people ſent for Theodora (the emperor Conſtantine's youngeſt daughter) out of a monaſtery, and ſaluted her empreſs with her ſiſter Zoe, and Michael voluntarily reſigned, and retired into a monaſtery.	VI	597
5347	4040	1041	Tangrolipix goes againſt the Arabians himſelf, and is beat. Aſan, nephew to Tangrolipix, goes into Media with 20,000 men, and ravages the country; but being drawn into an ambuſh, was cut off with his whole army by the Roman generals. Soon after another army of 100,000 Turks comes into Media, and ravages the country. The Romans ſhutting themſelves up in their ſtrong holds, are beſieged in Artza, which the Turks ſet fire to, and deſtroyed 150,000 of the inhabitants.	VI	599
5348	4041	1042	Michael and his uncle Conſtantine taking up the religious habit, thought themſelves ſecure; but the empreſs Theodora cauſed both their eyes to be pulled out, and baniſhed them, their relations, and adherents.	VI	597
5348	4041	1042	The empreſs Zoe being preſſed to marry, ſends for Conſtantine Monomachus out of baniſhment, a beautiful man, and of noble extract, marries him, and has him crowned by the patriarch.	VI	598
5349	4042	1043	Maniaces, general of all the weſtern forces, revolts, and is joined by the Bulgarians, and declares himſelf emperor; Stephen Sebaſtophorus goes againſt him with a very numerous army, but is routed at the firſt onſet, and Maniaces a few days afterwards was killed by an unknown hand, upon which the revolters returned to their duty.	VI	598
5349	4042	1043	The Roſſi come before Conſtantinople with a mighty fleet; but being defeated by the emperor's fleet, they renew their antient alliance and return home.	VI	598
5350	4043	1044	The emperor Conſtantine goes into the eaſt, to recover what the Saracens had taken during the two laſt reigns; but while he is doing this, Leo Tornicius proclaims himſelf emperor, and at the head of a great army goes to Conſtantinople, and beſieges it; but not being able to reduce it, retires to Arcadiopolis, where being overcome, and ſent to Monomachus in chains, he pulled out his eyes, and baniſhed him, which quaſhed the rebellion and reſtored peace.	VI	598
5354	4047	1048	Abraham Halim, half brother to Tangrolipix, engages Liparites the Roman governor of Iberia; the victory at laſt was with the Romans, though their general Liparites was taken priſoner: The emperor ſends ambaſſadors with rich preſents and a large ſum to ranſom Liparites, and to propoſe an alliance with Tangrolipix; all which Tangrolipix agreed to, but generouſly gave the whole ranſom and preſents to Liparites, to repair his loſſes and furniſh his equipage.	VI	599
5355	4048	1049	Tangrolipix ſends an ambaſſador to Conſtantinople, who arrogantly requiring the emperor to ſubmit to his maſter, and acknowledge himſelf his tributary, Monomachus diſmiſſed him with ſcorn, and drove him out of the city.	VI	599
5355	4048	1049	The Patzinacæ, a Scythian nation, croſs the Danube on the ice, and enter the empire with 800,000 men, and deſtroy all with fire and ſword; but great numbers of them being ſwept off by the diſtempers that raged among them, Conſtantine Ariamites the Roman general falls unexpectedly upon them, kills many, and the reſt threw down their arms; great numbers are allowed to ſettle in Bulgaria, ſome returned home, but Tyrach and 140 of the moſt noble among them were ſent to Conſtantinople, where embracing Chriſtianity they are treated ſuitable to their rank.	VI	600
5358	4051	1052	The emperor ſends 15,000 Patzinacæ under Catalunes their own general to reinforce the army in Iberia; but they revolt, and being joined by great numbers of their countrymen, encamp on the banks of the Danube, and make continual incurſions into the empire, and frequently defeat the troops ſent againſt them; but at laſt ſue for peace, which is granted for 30 years.	VI	600
5360	4053	1054	Tangrolipix commits great ravages in Iberia, kills all the people that fall into his power, and takes many towns.	VI	600

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
5361	4054	1055	Conſtantine Monomachus the emperor of the eaſt dies, and is ſucceeded by Theodora, ſiſter to his wife Zoe. — — — —	VI	600
5362	4055	1056	The empreſs Theodora dies of a violent pain in her bowels; and bequeathed the empire to Michael Stratioticus, an old unfit perſon, who ſuffered the eunuchs to manage all things to their liking, and diſobliged every body elſe. —	VI	603
5363	4056	1057	On the 8th of June, Comnenus a famous general was by the ſoldiery proclaimed emperor. Stratioticus ſends an army againſt him, which is beat, and Comnenus marches to Conſtantinople, where Stratioticus is depoſed, and goes into a monaſtery, and Comnenus was proclaimed emperor by the ſenate and people, and crowned in the great church by Michael Cerularius the patriarch. —	VI	603
5364	4057	1058	Comnenus finding the exchequer empty, ſeizes the church-lands, &c. The patriarch threatens him, for which Comnenus depoſed him, and put Conſtantine Lichudes in his ſtead. — — —	VI	603
5365	4058	1059	The emperor Iſaac Comnenus finding himſelf very ill, reſigns the empire, and retires into a monaſtery, naming Conſtantine Ducas for his ſucceſſor, who was accordingly crowned by the patriarch, who applied himſelf diligently to reform abuſes of all ſorts, that through the unſettledneſs of the late times had crept in. —	VI	603
5368	4061	1062	The Uzians, a Scythian nation, paſs the Danube with an army of 500,000 men, and ravage the countries next it. Nicephorus Betoniates (afterwards emperor) and Baſilius Apocapes go againſt them, are put to flight at the firſt onſet, and both taken priſoners, when the Uzians laid waſte Thrace and Macedon, and penetrated into Greece, deſtroying all with fire and ſword. The emperor ſtrives to buy a peace with rich preſents, and offers to pay an annual tribute, which being refuſed, after obſerving a general faſt, he goes againſt them with a handful of men. A plague breaking out among the enemy, ſwept away great numbers, and the Hungarians falling upon the remainder, cut almoſt all off. —	VI	603
5371	4064	1065	A great earthquake overturned many fine buildings at Conſtantinople, and a comet appeared for forty days together. — — —	VI	603
5371	4064	1065	The emperor Conſtantine falling ill, obliges his wife Eudocia ſolemnly to ſign an oath, that ſhe would never marry again, which was religiouſly depoſited with the patriarch, and then he appoints her regent and guardian over his three ſons, Michael, Andronicus, and Conſtantine, to whom he left the empire. —	VI	604
5372	4065	1066	The Turks break into the empire; the empreſs gets herſelf publickly abſolved from her oath of widowhood, and marries Romanus Diogenes, who had been condemned for aſpiring to the crown, but pardoned by the empreſs, and he was thereupon proclaimed emperor. — — —	VI	605
5373	4066	1067	Romanus being informed the Turks had ſurprized, taken and plundered Neocæſaræa, purſued and overtook them, as they were carrying off their booty, fell upon them, cut great numbers to pieces, recovered the ſpoil, and purſued his march to Aleppo, which he retook, and Hierapolis; then meets and engages the Turks again, and obtains a complete victory; upon which ſeveral towns ſubmit, and he returns to Conſtantinople. — —	VI	605
5374	4067	1068	The Turks, during the emperor's abſence at Conſtantinople, defeated Philaretus, who was left to guard the banks of the Euphrates, took Iconium the capital of Cilicia. Romanus goes againſt them; they retire with their booty; the Armenians fall on them, put them to flight, and take their baggage and booty. —	VI	606
5375	4068	1069	Romanus goes again againſt the Turks; Axan the Turkiſh ſultan deſires peace, but is refuſed; they engage, and John Ducas, brother of the late emperor Conſtantine, treacherouſly cries out the emperor was put to flight, and flies himſelf with his troops to the camp. In the purſuit the Turks killed great numbers; ſo that at laſt the emperor, overcome by numbers, was taken priſoner, and uſed with the utmoſt honour and reſpect, and concluding a peace, was ſent back to Conſtantinople to have it confirm'd. In his paſſage he is informed, that John brother of Conſtantine Ducas had driven Eudocia from the throne, and proclaimed her eldeſt ſon Michael emperor, and he acted as guardian. Romanus was taken priſoner; John ordered his eyes to be pulled out, the anguiſh whereof killed him a few days after. — — — —	VI	606
5376	4069	1070	Axan the Turkiſh ſultan invades the Roman territories. Iſaac Comnenus goes againſt them, is at firſt ſucceſsful, but ſoon after is utterly defeated and taken priſoner; then John Ducas the emperor's uncle goes againſt them, and gets advantages; but Ruſelius a Gaul revolting, reduced ſeveral cities in Phrygia and Cappadocia, proclaiming himſelf emperor. John goes againſt him, but is defeated and taken priſoner; but Ruſelius, to ſtop the Turks, releaſed and joined his priſoner, and both go againſt the Turks, but are both beat and taken priſoners. — —	VI	606
5377	4070	1071	Cutlu-Moſes, couſin to Tangrolipix, comes againſt Axan with a large body of Arabians; but before they engage, the late kailif of Babylon, who now only acted in ſpirituals, brought them to this accommodation, that Axan ſhould enjoy the kingdom erected by his father, and Cutlu-Moſes ſhould enjoy ſuch other provinces as he ſhould conquer. — — — —	VI	606
5378	4071	1072	Cutlu Moſes, aſſiſted by Axan, wars againſt the empire, and in a ſmall time conquered Media, Lycaonia, Cappadocia, and Bythinia, fixing his ſeat at Nice. — — — —	VI	606
5379	4072	1073	Ruſelius being ranſom'd by his wife, was reſtored to favour, and entruſted with a command in Aſia Minor; revolts afreſh, and proclaims himſelf again emperor, and defeats the troops of Michael; at laſt Alexius gets him and ſends him in chains to Conſtantinople, and the rebels ſurrender up the cities, &c. they had taken, and return to their duty; but a famine being at Conſtantinople, the emperor to fill his coffers leſſened the wheat meaſure, by which and other avaritious actions, he became ſo hateful, that Nicephorus Betoniates proclaims himſelf emperor, ſupported by the Turks; and at the ſame time Nicephorus

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
			Bryennius, commander at Dyrrachium, did the like, and prepared to march to Conſtantinople. Michael reſigns the empire, and retires to a monaſtery, took orders, and was ſoon after made biſhop of Epheſus.	VI	607
5384	4077	1078	Betoniates enters Conſtantinople, and was crowned by the patriarch the 25th of May, and ſends Alexius Comnenus againſt Bryennius; they engage at Calaura in Thrace, where Bryennius was beaten and taken priſoner, and then goes againſt Baſilacius, who had proclaimed himſelf emperor at Dyrrhachium. They engage, and Alexius beats him, and purſues and beſieges him in Theſſalonica; takes him and ſends him to Conſtantinople, where his eyes were pulled out, and then he was put into a monaſtery.	VI	608
5387	4080	1081	Alexius Comnenus is proclaimed emperor by the army in Thrace, and goes to Conſtantinople, and ſeizes the city by ſurprize, and plunders it. Betoniates reſigns and retires to a monaſtery, and took the habit. Alexius was proclaimed and crowned by the patriarch in April.	VI	609
5387	4080	1081	Solyman, ſon and ſucceſſor to Cutlu-Moſes, ſends to treat of peace with Alexius, who at firſt refuſes, but is glad afterwards to comply, to go againſt Robert Guiſchard, duke of Puglia and Calabria, ſon-in-law to Michael the late depoſed emperor, who invaded the Roman territories, and beſieged Dyrrhachium; but the Venetians coming to the aſſiſtance of Alexius, fell upon the enemies fleet, and gave them a total overthrow; then landing and joining Palæologus, the commander of the town, deſtroyed their works, burnt their engines, and drove them to their camp, and carried off great booty; but Robert continued the attack with great reſolution. At laſt the emperor comes in perſon againſt them, and is beat, has the flower of his army cut off, and a vaſt number of officers of the greateſt rank, and was forced to fly, leaving Robert maſter of his camp and baggage, who then took the city.	VI	610
5387	4080	1081	Alexius is forced to ſtrip the churches and monaſteries to raiſe money, which gained him the ill-will of the clergy. Making an alliance with Henry emperor of Germany, gets him to invade Robert's dominions in Italy. Robert goes againſt him, relieves the pope beſieged in the caſtle of St. Angelo, retakes Rome, and drove them out of Italy. Bohemond defeats Alexius in two battles, takes Illyricum, enters Theſſaly, and ſets down before Lariſſa; but after ſeveral battles for want of money to pay his troops, he is forced to return to Italy.	VI	611
5387	4080	1081	The Venetians with a powerful fleet engage Robert as auxiliaries to Alexius, and defeat him in two ſucceſſive battles; but ſoon after Robert deſtroyed almoſt their whole fleet, and uſed his priſoners very barbarouſly. The Venetians and Alexius refit and recruit their ſhattered fleet, and engage Robert again, ſunk moſt of his ſhips, and took abundance of priſoners. Soon after Robert dies at Cephalonia, aged ſeventy-nine. Roger his ſon ſucceeded him, and recalled his troops, and ſurrenders the conqueſts to the emperor Alexius, from whom they had been taken.	VI	611
5388	4081	1082	The Scythians croſs the Danube, invade Thrace, and lay it waſte with great cruelties. Alexius ſends Pacurianus and Branas againſt them; they engage, and through the raſhneſs of Branas, the greater part of the Romans are cut to pieces, and the two generals taken priſoners. Talicius goes againſt them, cuts great numbers of them to pieces, and forces the reſt to run away.	VI	611
5389	4082	1083	The Scythians come again into Thrace; the emperor goes againſt them in perſon; and after an obſtinate fight, from morning to night, he was forced to retire precipitately, loſing a prodigious number of his men by the ſword and captivity, Alexius himſelf very hardly eſcaping. At the ſame time the Turks break into the empire, took all the principal places in Aſia and the iſland of Chios; and while the empreſs's brother was gone into the eaſt, he was again overthrown by the Scythians, who took his camp and baggage, tho' a little after he defeated them.	VI	611
5390	4083	1084	The emperor Alexius entirely defeats the Scythians, ſo that very few eſcaped, which put an end to the Scythian war; and then Alexius goes againſt the Turks, with whom his brother-in-law had had ſeveral engagements, with various ſucceſſes.	VI	612
5390 to 5399	4083 to 4092	1084 to 1093	Tzachas having married the ſultan's daughter, revolts and erects a new principality in Smyrna, &c. John Ducas beſieges Mytilene by land, and Conſtantine Delaſſenus by ſea. After much time ſpent, an engagement happens, in which Tzachas is totally defeated, and a peace concluded, which Tzachas breaking. Delaſſenus ſailed after him, ſunk moſt of his ſhips, put his men to the ſword, Tzachas flies to Smyrna, equips a new fleet, and goes to Abydos. The ſultan goes againſt him in perſon by land, and Delaſſenus by ſea. Tzachas ſurrenders himſelf to his father-in-law, who received him very graciouſly, but ordered him to be murdered, and then concluded a peace with the emperor.	VI	612
5399	4092	1093	The Scythians encouraged by an impoſtor, that pretended to be Leo ſon of the late emperor Romanus Diogenes, croſſed the Danube, and proclaimed Leo emperor, and beſieged Adrianople, where Leo is taken priſoner by ſtratagem, and 7000 Scythians cut off, 3000 taken, and the reſt run away.	VI	612
5400	4093	1094	The Scythians come into the empire again with a very numerous army, but are overthrown in two ſucceſſive battles, when a peace was made upon the emperor's own terms, and then Alexius returned to Conſtantinople loaded with booty.	VI	613
5400	4093	1094	The weſtern Chriſtians, by the inſtigation of one Peter a hermit undertake the recovery of the Holy Land from the Turks. Pope Urban II. having called a council at Clermont in France, where 310 biſhops met, and the embaſſadors of moſt Chriſtian princes, a religious war was concluded on, and an army of 300,000 raiſed under the command of ſeveral princes.	VI	614

Gautier,

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
5402	4095	1096	Gautier, with 20,000 men, began his march towards Jeruſalem, who was followed by Peter the hermit, with 20,000 more; then Godfrey of Bouillon arrives at Philippolis with 10,000 horſe and 70,000 foot, and quarrelling with Alexius, lays the country waſte, and marches to Conſtantinople, where they agree Alexius ſhould ſupply arms, proviſions, and all his forces, and he was to have the provinces that ſhould be taken from the Turks. Peter's army mutinies, and ſeparates into ſmall parties, moſt of which fall a prey to the Turks; ſo that out of Peter's 40,000 only 3,000 are left. — — —	VI	615
5403	4096	1097	Nice is beſieged by Godfrey, &c. the imperial ſeat of Solyman, the then Turkiſh ſultan, which after two months ſiege, was ſurrendered to Butumites, lieutenant to Alexius; among the captives were the wife and two of the children of Solyman, who were ſent to Conſtantinople. — — —	IV	615
5403	4096	1097	Bohemond, prince of Tarentum, is attacked by Solyman at the head of 60,000 Turks; but being joined by Hugh, brother to Philip I. king of France, beat the Turks, cut off 40,000, and forced the reſt to fly into the mountains. —	VI	615
5403	4096	1097	On the 21ſt of October, the Chriſtians ſet down before Antioch, which was garriſoned with 7000 horſe and 20,000 foot, ſo that it held out till June, 1098, following; and a few days after engaging Corbenus, the ſultan of Perſia's general, killed and took 100,000 of his men, with the loſs only of 4200 Chriſtians. — — — — — —	VI	615
5404	4097	1098	Tangripermes, a Turkiſh pirate, ſeized the cities of Smyrna and Epheſus, reduced the iſlands of Rhodes and Chios, and committed dreadful ravages; but the fleet and army of Alexius beating the pirates, they were again recovered. — —	VI	616
5405	4098	1099	The ſucceſs of Alexius over the Turks ſo elated him, that he demands Antioch from Bohemond, who was created prince thereof by the confederate princes; upon which Bohemond demanded and took Laodicea, &c. Alexius in revenge attacked the ſupplies coming from the weſt, and gave them a total overthrow, and has moſt of his own fleet deſtroyed by a ſtorm. He alſo beſieged and took Laodicea; thus a war enſued, and Bohemond beſieges Dyrrhachium, but his army being ſtraitned for want of neceſſaries, a peace was honourably concluded. — — — — — —	VI	617
5406	4099	1100	Alexius goes againſt the Turks, and totally overthrows them near Nice. —	VI	617
5407	4100	1101	The Turks come again into the empire, but are defeated in ſeveral ſucceſſive battles; ſo that they ſue for peace, which the emperor grants. — —	VI	617
5424	4117	1118	The emperor Alexius dies in the 37th year of his reign, and is ſucceeded by his ſon John, and crowned in the great church by the patriarch; and ſoon after a conſpiracy is formed in favour of his brother-in-law Bryennius, but diſcovered and diſappointed. — — — — —	VI	617
5426	4119	1120	The Turks break the peace, and again invade the empire. The emperor John goes againſt them in perſon, beats them ſeveral times, and recovers ſeveral cities, &c. and then they ſue for peace, which he grants. — — — —	VI	617
5427	4120	1121	The Scythians paſs the Danube, and entering Thrace, deſtroy all with fire and ſword. John goes againſt them, cuts a prodigious number of them to pieces, takes many priſoners, and drives the remainder over the Danube; then he overcame the Servii and the Hunns, and made them repaſs the Danube, went after them, took their ſtrong holds, and forced them to accept of ſuch terms as he thought fit to grant them. — — — — — —	VI	618
5430	4123	1124	The Turks having again broke the peace, John goes againſt and drives them every one before him, and took abundance of cities, &c. — — —	VI	618
5446	4139	1140	John goes into the eaſt with an intent to recover Antioch, then held by the Latins, but was not able to accompliſh his purpoſe. — — — —	VI	618
5449	4142	1143	John being wounded with a poiſoned arrow at Cilicia, died the 8th of April, in the 24th year of his reign. He appointed his youngeſt ſon Manuel to ſucceed him in the empire, who accordingly did ſo, and ſeized his brother Iſaac, and confined him to a monaſtery to prevent his pretenſions to the crown. — — — — — — —	VI	619
5450	4143	1144	The emperor Manuel goes againſt the Turks, and reduces ſeveral cities in Phrygia, which they had taken; returns to Conſtantinople, and married Gertrude, ſiſter-in-law to Conrade emperor of Germany. — — —	VI	619
5452	4145	1146	Conrade, &c. deſigning to go againſt the Turks in Paleſtine, Manuel promiſed to furniſh forage, &c. for the troops; but inſtead thereof, he laid waſte the countries, and ſhut up the towns through which they were to paſs, and the Greeks mixed quick lime with the flower they ſold them, which occaſioned a dreadful mortality among the Chriſtian troops, and likewiſe gave private intelligence to the Turks, &c. Roger king of Sicily, to revenge the affront, took the iſland of Corcyra, took and plundered Corinth and Thebes, &c. but through the mediation of the pope, peace is concluded, after they had done much miſchief to each other. — — — — — —	VI	619
5464	4157	1158	Manuel goes againſt the Turks with a great army, who ſue for peace, but are refuſed. Soon after the emperor is much wounded, and his army not only greatly harraſſed and killed by ſhowers of darts, but entirely ſhut up by the Turks, who then propoſe peace, and it is agreed to; but the emperor not performing the conditions, the ſultan ſends 20,000 men into Phrygia, who kill all they meet with; but the emperor's forces coming up with them, cut all off to a man, and recovered the whole booty. — — — —	VI	620
5486	4179	1180	Manuel dies in the 38th year of his reign, having for ſome time before taken the monaſtic habit, to atone for the debaucheries of his youth. He was ſucceeded by his ſon Alexius Comnenus, a youth of twelve years old, whoſe mother governed with an abſolute ſway, and neglecting the empire, ſtrove only to amaſs wealth by extortion, &c. The Turks break into Phrygia, take Sozopolis, &c. Andronicus, couſin-german to the late emperor, got himſelf pro-

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			claimed guardian of the emperor, and under that title committed moſt dreadful cruelties upon the Conſtantinopolitans, pretending great affection for the emperor, orders him to be ſolemnly crowned 1183, when his partiſans cry out long live Alexius and Andronicus, Roman emperors, and ſo both were crowned; but a few days after Andronicus ordered Alexius to be ſtrangled, and then put all the nobility to death, from whom he feared any oppoſition. — — —	VI	621
5490	4183	1184	Alexius Comnenus, brother to the late emperor Manuel, excites William king of Sicily to war againſt Andronicus, who takes Dyrrhachium, then goes to Theſſalonica, and takes it by ſtorm, and plunders and murders all the people; then he engages and defeats the army of Andronicus, which ſo provoked him, that he glutted his revenge upon all without diſtinction, which ſo alienated his ſubjects from him, that they proclaim Iſaac Angeſus emperor. Andronicus endeavours to fly into Scythia, is taken and delivered in chains to Iſaac, who cut off one of his hands, and pulled out one of his eyes, and then delivered him to the inraged populace, who after glutting their revenge upon him, killed him in the ſecond year of his reign. — — — — —	VI	622
5491	4184	1185	Iſaac now emperor, recalls all the baniſhed nobility, &c. and reſtores all the confiſcated eſtates, &c. and then ſent an army under Branas againſt the Sicilians, who cut them almoſt all off to a man, and their fleet, conſiſting of 200 ſail, being diſperſed by a ſtorm, was moſtly taken by the emperor's admiral. Vaſt numbers of priſoners were ſent to Conſtantinople, where the emperor ordered them to be ſtarved to death. — — — — — —	VI	623
5492	4185	1186	The emperor ſends a mighty fleet and army againſt Iſaac Comnenus, who had ſeized the iſland of Cyprus, but both were entirely deſtroyed; upon this the Maſſans revolt, and join the Scythians, who over-ran the neighbouring provinces. He ſends his uncle John Ducas againſt them, who gains ſeveral advantages againſt them; but being jealous, he recalls him, and ſends John Cantacuzenus in his ſtead, whoſe raſhneſs and indiſcretion gave the enemy opportunity frequently to defeat him; then he ſends Branas. Alexius gets ſome advantages, and then ſuddenly goes to Adrianople, and proclaims himſelf emperor, and marches directly to Conſtantinople, where the emperor Iſaac engages and kills him, and puts an end to the rebellion. — —	VI	623
5494	4187	1188	Frederick Barbaroſſa, emperor of Germany, marching at the head of a great army to ſupport the Cruſade, had been promiſed proviſions and ſupport while he paſſed through Iſaac's dominions; but when the biſhop of Munſter, the earl of Naſſau, and count Walram, Frederick's embaſſadors, came to Conſtantinople, Iſaac threw them into priſon, and by his armies obſtructed Frederick's paſſage, and ſeized on their proviſions; upon which the Germans go into Thrace, and ſeize all the corn they find, and then defeated Iſaac's army, and all the country between the Ægean and Euxine ſea, ſubmit to Frederick. Iſaac ſets the embaſſadors at liberty, and ſues for peace, which he obtains on very ſevere terms. —	VI	623
5498	4191	1192	An impoſtor ſets up to be the ſon of the late emperor Manuel, and being ſupported by the ſultan of Iconium, took all the cities of the Meander; but a prieſt taking the opportunity of his being drunk, ſtabbed and killed him. — —	VI	624
5499	4192	1193	The Scythians invade the empire, and deſtroy all with fire and ſword. The emperor goes againſt them, but has the greateſt part of his army cut to pieces. He then ſends Alexius Guido, who was alſo defeated; after that Batatzes Baſilius, who was killed and the greateſt part of his army on the ſpot. — —	VI	624
5500	4193	1194	The emperor again goes againſt the Scythians, and his army proclaims his brother Alexius Angelus emperor; upon which Iſaac flies to Marcia, is taken, and has his eyes put out, and caſt into priſon, in the 9th year of his reign. Alexius reigns very badly, and the Scythians and Turks laid waſte and took all the beſt provinces through his negligence, he ſuffering his wife and favourites to govern in all things. — — — — — —	VI	624
5508	4201	1202	Alexius releaſes his brother Iſaac out of priſon, and recalls his ſon Alexius, then twelve years old, to court, from whence ſome time after making his eſcape, he goes to the pope, who warmly recommended him to Philip emperor of Germany, his brother-in-law, who engaged the French and Venetians to put young Alexius upon the throne, who ſailed for Corfu. At their arrival at Dyrrhachium, the inhabitants ſwear allegiance to him, and then ſailed to Chalcedon, and landed their troops; and ſoon after taking Conſtantinople, the emperor retires to Zagora in Thrace, with the imperial ornaments and his treaſures, and then Iſaac and his ſon were both declared emperors, and crowned the firſt of Auguſt, 1203; then they purſued Alexius to Adrianople, and drove him quite away. — — — —	VI	625
5509	4202	1203	A dreadful conflagration happened in Conſtantinople, that burnt down a great part of the city. — — — — — —	VI	626
5510	4203	1204	The emperor Iſaac dies, and Alexius being forced to lay heavy taxes upon his people, to pay his deliverers what he owed them by contract, occaſioned great complaints; which being fomented by John Ducas, ſirnamed Murtzuphlus, who ſends in the emperor's name to the marquis of Monſerat, offering to deliver up the palace and fortreſs of Blachernæ in Conſtantinople, (who prepares to come) and then gives out that the emperor had ſold the city to the Latins, who were in full march to take poſſeſſion; and in the uproar goes into his chamber and ſtrangles him, and then his creatures proclaimed him emperor; this enraged the confederate princes of the weſt ſo far, that they come and beſiege Conſtantinople, which they took by ſtorm, and murdered all they met. This great revolution happened 874 years after the removal of the imperial ſeat from Rome to Conſtantinople. — — — — —	VI	627
5510	4203	1204	Baldwin earl of Flanders is elected emperor of Conſtantinople, and crowned with extraordinary magnificence in the church of St. Sophia, and is allowed Con-

ſtantinople

Y. of World	Y. of Flood.	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			ſtantinople and Thrace, and a limited power over the other provinces. Boniface, marquis of Montſerrat, has Theſſaly, which was erected into a kingdom. The Venetians had the iſlands of the Archipelago, part of Peloponneſus, and ſeveral cities in the Helleſpont.
5510	4203	1204	Theodorus Laſcaris, ſon-in-law to Alexius Angelus, eſcaping from his confinement in Conſtantinople into Bythinia, was joyfully received, and making himſelf maſter of Phrygia, Myſia, Ionia, and Lydia, took upon him the title of emperor, and fixed his imperial ſeat at Nice; and David and Alexius Comnenus ſeizing on Pontus, Galatia, and Capadocia, erected a new empire at Trapezond.	VI	628
5510	4203	1204	David and Alexius Comneni, grandſons to the tyrant Andronicus, eſcaping out of Conſtantinople, ſeized on the moſt eaſterly parts of Pontus, Galatia and Cappadocia, fixed their reſidence in the famous city of Trabezond, and erected the aforeſaid countries into an empire, called the empire of Trabezond. (Some call it a kingdom, and others a lordſhip, till the year of Chriſt 1260.	VII	286
5512	4205	1206	John king of Bulgaria marches againſt Baldwin firſt emperor of the Latins in Conſtantinople, as he was beſieging Adrianople, defeats his army with great ſlaughter, relieves the city, and carries the emperor priſoner to Ternova, the then capital of Bulgaria, where he cauſed his hands and feet to be cut off, and his body to be thrown into a neighbouring valley, and there after three days extreme miſery he died, and was devoured by wild beaſts.	VII	289
5512	4205	1206	Theodorus Laſcaris engages the ſultan Jathatines at Antioch, kills and cuts off his head; upon which the Turks fly, and leave the Greeks maſters of their camp and baggage. Alexius Angelus, author of the war, was taken priſoner, carried to Nice, and confined to a monaſtery by his ſon-in-law Laſcaris, who makes a peace with the Turks upon his own terms.	VII	639
5512	4205	1206	Henry, brother of Baldwin, ſucceeded him as emperor of the Latins at Conſtantinople, and firſt warred with the Scythians, and drove them out of Thrace, then he was at war with Laſcaris emperor of Nice, who at laſt was forced to acknowledge him; and then with Michael Angelus, who ſeized Ætolia and Epirus, and called himſelf lord or deſpot of the country, but could not diſlodge him.	VI	629
5524	4217	1218	Henry emporor of Conſtantinople dies in the 11th year of his reign, and is ſucceeded by Peter count of Auxerre, his brother-in-law, who was crowned at Rome by Pope Honorius III. on the 9th of April. From Rome he goes to Venice, and makes an alliance with that republic againſt Theodorus, who ſucceeded his brother as deſpot or lord of Ætolia and Epirus; goes and beſieges Dyrrhachium, which Theodorus had lately taken. At laſt they came to an agreement, and Theodorus promiſes him a free paſſage; but ſuddenly falls upon him, cuts moſt of his forces to pieces, took him priſoner and put him to death, and he was ſucceeded by Robert his ſecond ſon, Philip count of Namur, his eldeſt ſon, refuſing to accept it.	VI	629
5528	4221	1222	Theodoris Laſcaris emperor of Nice dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon-in-law John Ducas, ſirnamed Vataces, who was crowned by Manuel, patriarch of the Greeks at Nice, Alexius and Angelus, brothers to the deceaſed emperor, apply to the Latins, who furniſh them with an army. John engages them, cuts off the flower of their army, and takes them both priſoners. Then building a fleet, he falls upon the Latins in the iſlands of the Archipelago, drove them before him, and took moſt of the iſlands.	VI VII	630 287
5532	4225	1226	Aſſan king of Bulgaria gives his daughter Helena to wife to Theodore, ſon of the emperor Ducas, and makes an alliance with the emperor Ducas; likewiſe renews the peace between him and the ſultan of Iconium; and then takes all the places on the Boſphorus and Helleſpont, held by the Latins; and Theodorus prince of Epirus invades and takes Theſſaly and Thrace, aſſumes the title of emperor, and is crowned by the patriarch of Bulgaria; and then, though he had lately concluded a peace with John king of Bulgaria, he broke into his country; but John, after a long and bloody diſpute, routed his army, took him priſoner, and put out his eyes.	VI	630
5534	4227	1228	Robert, emperor of the Latins in Conſtantinople, dies at Achaia, and is ſuccedeed by Baldwin II. his ſon, a child of eight years old, and John Brienne, formerly king of Jeruſalem, is appointed regent.	VI	630
5541	4234	1235	John Ducas the Greek emperor, and John Azen king of Bulgaria, beſiege Conſtantinople; but the regent ſallying out very vigorouſly, put their whole army to flight, conſiſting of 100,000 men, killed a great number, forced them to raiſe the ſiege, and took a great booty.	VI	631
5542	4235	1236	Robert and John come again before Conſtantinople, and are again defeated and put to flight; but through frequent ſallies and encounters, the Latins are reduced to few in number, whereupon the regent retires into the imperial city, and ſends the young emperor to ſollicit the weſtern princes perſonally for aſſiſtance. The Venetians come with a powerful fleet, and force Azen and Vataces to raiſe the ſiege.	VI	631
5543	4236	1237	John Brienne, the regent at Conſtantinople, dies, in the 9th year of his adminiſtration. The Bulgarians and Greeks quarrel, ſo that John Azen joins the Latins, and lays ſiege to Chiorli, but ſoon after raiſes it.	VI	631
5544	4237	1238	Anne, wife of John king of Bulgaria, dying, he marries the daughter of Theodorus, late deſpot of Epirus, whom he had taken priſoner, and deprived of his ſight ſome years before; upon which Azen ſets Theodorus at liberty, and aſſiſts him to recover his dominions from Manuel his brother, which done Theodorus appoints his ſon to govern in his ſtead, cauſing him to be acknowledged emperor.	VI	631
5544	4237	1238	John Azen king of Bulgaria dying, John Vataces emperor of Nice makes an alliance with the Scythians in Macedon, enters the dominions of Theodorus, takes a great

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			a great part of them, forces him to lay down the title of emperor, and be content with that of deſpot.	VI	631
5545	4238	1239	The emperor Baldwin returning from the weſt, upon his arrival at Conſtantinople is crowned emperor by the patriarch in the church of St. Sophia, makes an alliance with the Comneni at Trabezond, and by their aſſiſtance beſieges and takes Chiorli from the emperor of Nice; who ſoon after retook it, and the iſland of Rhodes.	VII	289
5561	4254	1255	John Ducas of Vataces, emperor of Nice, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Theodorus Laſcaris II. who renewing the ancient alliance with the ſultan of Iconiam, paſſes the Helleſpont, and wars with the Balgarians, and the deſpot of Epirus, who had invaded Macedon and Thrace, and was ſo ſucceſsful as to compel them to accept of peace, upon ſuch terms as he thought fit to allow them.	VII	287
5562	4255	1256	The Tartars cut off the troops belonging to the ſultan of Iconium, and reduce him to ſuch ſtraits, that he flies to the emperor Theodorus Laſcaris, who receives him kindly, and ſends him back with an army commanded by Iſbar Ducas, a general of great note, for which the ſultan ſurrendered the city of Laodicea to Laſcaris.	VI	632
5564	4257	1258	Theodorus Laſcaris, emperor of Nice, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon John, a child of nine years old, and appointed Arſenius the patriarch, and George Muzalo, his guardians; but while the funeral obſequies were performing for the deceaſed emperor, the nobility fall upon and murder Muzalo and his two brothers, and then declared Michael Paleologus guardian, who immediately goes againſt Michael Angelus, deſpot of Epirus, who had broke into Thrace and Macedon, engages and routs him with great ſlaughter.	VII	288
5565	5258	1259	Michael Paleologus, guardian to the young emperor of Nice, is declared emperor, and crowned by the patriarch: and then he recovered Peloponneſus from the Latins, and the deſpot of Epirus.	VII	288
5567	4260	1261	Alexius Strategopulus, general under the emperor Paleologus, ſurprizes Conſtantinople, kills all he meets with, and ſets fire to it in four places at one time. Baldwin the Latin emperor of Conſtantinople, and the Latin patriarch, and ſome other of his intimate friends fly to Venice. Soon after Paleologus ſettles his affairs at Nice, and then goes to Conſtantinople, with the empreſs, his ſon Andronicus, the ſenate and the nobility, to take poſſeſſion of that imperial city, and to fix his reſidence there.	VII	635
5569	4262	1263	Baldwin, the depoſed Latin emperor, marries his daughter to Charles king of Sicily, and gave him Conſtantinople for her dowry. Charles makes preparations to come and take it. Paleologus orders himſelf to be crowned emperor a-new, and then puts out the eyes of the young emperor John, to whom he had ſworn to reſign the empire when of age; for which Arſenius the patriarch excommunicated him: And Michael deſpot of Epirus, and Conſtantine king of Bulgaria, who had married the young emperor's ſiſters, broke into Thrace, and laid it waſte. Paleologus goes againſt them, has moſt of his troops cut to pieces and taken priſoners, and hardly eſcapes himſelf. The Venetians ſeized the iſlands of the Archipelago. Paleologus ſends to pope Urban IV. and promiſes to ſubmit to the Latin church; upon which peace is made, and in a council held at Lyons, in 1274, Paleologus acknowledged the pope's ſupremacy.	VI	635
5580	4273	1274	Joſeph the patriarch of Conſtantinople, and all the clergy, oppoſe what Paleologus had done at Lyons, which ſo inraged him, that he rack'd ſome, whipped others, impriſoned many, baniſhed the patriarch Joſeph, and put Veccus in his ſtead, which occaſioned many uproars, ſeditions and a univerſal uneaſineſs.	VI	635
5581	4274	1275	Stephen, the fourth king of Hungary upon overcoming Cea prince of Bulgaria, by cutting his whole army to pieces, was acknowledged king of Hungary and Bulgaria.	VII	639
5587	4280	1281	John emperor of Trabezond goes to Conſtantinople, and marries Eudocia Paleogina, daughter to Michael Paleologus emperor of the eaſt, (as he called himſelf.)	VII	291
5589	4282	1283	Pope Martin IV. excommunicates Michael Paleologus for contributing to the famous maſſacre of the French in Sicily, commonly known by the name of the Sicilian Veſpers, on Eaſter-day, March 30, 1282, which with his other fatigues threw him into a lingring illneſs as he was marching againſt the Turks, and after receiving the ambaſſadors of the Tartars daily increaſing, he died in the 24th year of his age, and was ſucceeded by his ſon Andronicus.	VI	635
5589	4282	1283	Andronicus begins his reign with reſtoring the ceremonies of the Greek church, and refuſing to acknowledge the pope's ſupremacy: This threw the whole empire into a ferment; his brother Conſtantine was the darling of the people for overthrowing the Turks in ſeveral engagements, wherefore Andronicus orders him to be thrown into priſon, and ſeveral other perſons of great diſtinction. The Turks under Othoman take ſeveral places in Phrygia, Caria, and Bithynia, and the city of Nice. Andronicus ſends Philanthropenus againſt them, who gets ſeveral advantages over them, and then proclaims himſelf emperor. Libadarius, general for Andronicus, goes againſt him, and as they were going to engage, he was ſeized by the Cretans, and delivered to Libadarius, who put out his eyes. The mean while the Turks extend their conqueſts in Aſia, and in the Mediterranean. Andronicus hires 10,000 Maſſagetes, who do him great harm; then he hires a body of Catalans, who revolt and join the Turks, this firſt brought the Turks into Europe. Michael having been declared emperor with his father, goes with a body of Greeks, Maſſagates, &c. againſt the Catalans and Turks; but the auxiliaries become neuter, and Michael is routed; then the Catalans and Turks over-run Thrace, deſtroying all with fire and ſword.

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
			ſword. The Catalans reſolve to invade Theſſaly: The Turks acquaint the emperor, if he would let them paſs they would return home; to which the emperor conſents, and orders ſhips, &c. to be got ready; but the Greek officers longing for their booty, contrive to fall upon and cut them to pieces in the night: This being diſcovered, the Turks ſend word to their countrymen of their danger, and fortify themſelves in a ſtrong caſtle: More Turks come and deſtroy all before them; Andronicus marches againſt them with all his force; the Turks ſally out, and put the beſiegers to a diſorderly flight, took many officers, and the emperor's camp, the military cheſt, ſeveral ſtandards, the imperial crown, and all the baggage.	VI	637
5597	4296	1291	Pope Nicholas the 4th earneſtly endeavours to engage John emperor of Trebezond in the Holy War.	VII	291
5601	4294	1295	John Comnenus emperor of Trabezond dying, is ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon Alexius II. in the empire, who reigned eight years.	VII	291
5602	4295	1296	Philes Paleologus (a relation of the emperor, and a perſon of great piety, but no ſoldier) undertakes to go againſt the Turks with a ſmall body of men, and engages Chaleb the Turkiſh general, who had been ravaging the country with 1000 foot and 200 horſe, and intirely deſtroyed them.	VI	638
5609	4302	1303	Alexius II. emperor of Trabezond dying, is ſucceeded by his ſon Baſilius who reigned 17 years.	VII	291
5622	4315	1316	The emperor Andronicus tells the patriarch Geraſſimus, that as his grandſon and heir Andronicus could not by any means be reclaimed, he intended to ſecure him. The patriarch tells the young prince, and he eſcapes to Adrianople, where he is proclaimed emperor by the army; but his grandfather proclaims him a publick enemy and a traitor, and obliges the Conſtantinopolitans to take the oath of allegiance to himſelf a-freſh. The young prince ſends a body of troops againſt Conſtantinople; his grandfather diſpatches Theoleptus, biſhop of Philadelphia, and other perſons of diſtinction to him with propoſals of an accommodation, which at laſt was thus concluded; that the empire ſhould be divided, and the prince have Thrace and the ſuburbs of Conſtantinople; and the emperor the city of Conſtantinople, and all the cities and iſlands in the eaſt and weſt. The Turks in the mean time enlarge their dominions in Aſia, reduce moſt of the places on the Meander, and take Pruſa in Bythinia, which they entered in 1327, where Orchanes upon the death of his father Othoman ſettled the ſeat of the Turkiſh empire. The young and old emperors of Conſtantinople quarrel again, but at laſt matters are made up, and the grandfather admits the grandſon to be his colleague; and he and his wife Anne of Savoy, whom he had lately married, were ſolemnly crowned in the church of St. Sophia; but the young one wanting to rule alone, flew out again, committed open hoſtilities, and took Conſtantinople by treachery, and deprived his father of all rule and authority in 1328, but permitted him to live in the palace, and wear the enſigns of majeſty, and allowed him 24,000 pieces of gold for his yearly maintenance.	VI	641
5626	4319	1320	Baſilius I. emperor of Trabezond, dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Baſilius II. who after a reign of 19 years, is murdered by his wife Irene, who reigned in his ſtead.	VII	291
5634	4327	1328	The king of Bulgaria enters Thrace, and lays the country waſte, &c. but Andronicus coming unexpectedly towards him, he retires and leaves great part of his booty behind: Andronicus purſued him, and carried the war into Bulgaria, ravaged the country, and deſtroyed all with fire and ſword, and then concludes a peace.	VI	641
5636	4329	1330	Othoman being lately dead, Andronicus recovers Nice, &c. which Orcanes his ſon and ſucceſſor ſoon after retakes, and overthrows the emperor's army, who flying, leave their camp, baggage, and arms to the enemy, and all the emperor's plate and furniture.	VI	642
5636	4329	1330	The old emperor Andronicus, to make the court eaſy, retires voluntarily into a monaſtery, where having lived two years, dies.	VI	642
5644	4337	1338	Andronicus makes a very diſhonourable peace with the Turks, yielding all their conqueſts to them.	VI	642
5646	4339	1340	The inhabitants of Theſſaly revolt: The emperor marches againſt them in perſon. The Turks break the peace, and ravage the ſea coaſts, then repaſs the Streights with immenſe booty and great numbers of captives.	VI	642
5647	4340	1341	Andronicus dies, and his eldeſt ſon John ſucceeded him, who being but nine years old, John Cantacuzenus was appointed his guardian, and behaved with the greateſt uprightneſs and care poſſible; but being oppoſed by John the patriarch, who continually repreſented every thing in an evil light to Ann the empreſs, ſhe at laſt declared him a publick enemy, and a traitor; upon which the army, at the head whereof he then was at Dedimothicum, declared Cantacuzenus emperor.	VI	643
5648	4341	1342	All the friends and relations of Cantacuzenus at Conſtantinople are thrown into goal, his eſtate confiſcated, and an army ſent againſt him. He writes to the patriarch, exhorting him to peace and concord; but the meſſengers were thrown into priſon. At laſt Cantacuzenus goes to Conſtantinople; the citizens open their gates, and ſalute him emperor; and an accommodation is come to, in which the empreſs, &c. allowed him to be colleague with her ſon John, which was ſworn to by Cantacuzenus, John Peleologus, and the empreſs, on the 8th of February, 1347. He was ſoon after crowned by Iſidore, the patriarch of Conſtantinople. Cantacuzenus marries his daughter to young Paleologus, and ſo ſettled all things in quiet, and cauſed her to be crowned and acknowledged empreſs by the nobility, ſenate, &c.	VI	645

The

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Chriſt		Vol.	Page
5659	4352	1353	The Genoeſe of Galata now become very powerful at ſea, being denied the liberty to enlarge their city, ſet fire to the ſuburbs of Conſtantinople, ſeized the emperor's ſhips then riding in the harbour, and made open war on the empire, gained advantages at ſea, and ſeized ſome iſlands in the Archipelago. — — — — — —	VI	645
5663	4356	1357	Crales king of the Servians ſows diſcord between the two emperors, ſo that they come to an open repture: the young prince's army was overthrown in Thrace, and he forced to take refuge in Conſtantinople, all the other cities ſubmitting to Cantacuzenus: However, ſoon after a peace was concluded, and Cantacuzenus reſigned up all authority, and went into a monaſtery at Maugana, but his ſon Matthew, whom he had declared emperor, purſued the war. —— —	VI	645
5663	4356	1357	John Palæologus goes againſt Matthew his brother-in-law; they engage, and Matthew is defeated; and forced to quit the field, but was ſoon after taken, and upon renouncing all claim to the crown ſet at liberty. — — —	VI	645
5663	4356	1357	The Turks under Solyman, one of the ſons of Orchanes, paſſed the Helleſpont, took the ſtrong caſtle of Coiridocaſtræ; then went to Gallipolis, and defeated the governor, and took the place, which gave them their firſt ſettlement in Europe, where they have continued ever ſince. — — — ——	VI	645
5664	4357	1358	The ſultan Orchanes dying; Amurath his ſon and ſucceſſor purſued the conqueſts begun by Solyman, maſtered ſeveral parts of Thrace, and made Adrianople the ſeat of his empire in Europe. — — — ——	VI	645
5666	4359	1360	Andronicus, the emperor's eldeſt ſon, having contracted an intimacy with Centuzes, Amurath's eldeſt ſon, they conſpire to murder their reſpective fathers, and to live in ſtrict union between themſelves: They are diſcovered, have their eyes pulled out, and are then caſt into priſon. — — — —	VI	646
5668	4361	1362	Blind Andronicus, by the help of the Genoeſe of Galata, eſcapes, and makes war upon his father, takes Conſtantinople, and gets his father and brother Manuel, who had been declared his ſucceſſor, into his power, and impriſons them ———	VI	646
5670	4363	1364	Old Andronicus and Manuel eſcape out of priſon, upon which blind Andronicus yields up the empire to them, rather than engage in a civil war again. ——	VI	646
5671	4364	1365	The ſultan Amurath being treacherouſly ſlain, is ſucceeded by his ſon Bajazet, who purſuing the former conqueſts in Europe, adds Theſſaly, Macedon, Phocis, Peloponneſus, Myſia, and Bulgaria to them. — — — —	VI	646
5675	4368	1369	The Bulgarians by the aſſiſtance of the Greek emperors having ſhook off the Hungarian yoke, attempt the recovery of Adrianople, under the conduct of their king Saſmenos, from the Turks; but are utterly defeated by Amurath. — —	VII	639
5675	4368	1369	Bajazet enters Bulgaria with a great army, makes an entire conqueſt of it, and turns it into a Turkiſh province, which it remains to this day. — ——	VII	639
5697	4390	1391	Bajazet ſends to Andronicus, demands a yearly tribute, and his ſon Manuel to attend him in his wars; which, as Andronicus was now not able to reſiſt, was performed. — — — — —	VI	646
5698	4391	1392	Andronicus emperor of Conſtantinople dies, and is ſucceeded by Manuel his ſon, then at Bajazet's court, who comes away without taking his leave; for which Bajazet immediately comes into Thrace, and deſtroys with fire and ſword all the country round Conſtantinople, which he inveſted by ſea and land. The weſtern princes ſend Sigiſmund kng of Hungaria, and John count of Nevers, with an army of 130,000 men to his aſſiſtance, who beſieging Nicopolis, Bajazet raiſes the ſiege of Conſtantinple, and goes againſt them: They engage; Bajazet conquers, kills 20,000, took their camp and baggage, count Nevers, and 300 great officers, and 20,000 ſoldiers: All the officers, except count Nevers and five others, were put to death. — — —	VI	646
5699	4392	1393	Bajazet returns to the ſege of Conſtantinople, which finding reſolutely defended, privately agrees with John the ſon of blind Andronicus to ſet him upon the throne, Bajazet to have Conſtantinople, and John to remove the imperial ſeat to Peloponneſus: This ſigned and ſealed, Bajazet acquaints the inhabitants he would retire, if they would drive out Manuel and ſet John upon the throne: The city was immedately ready to fall into a civil war; Manuel for peace ſake ſends to John, then in the Turkiſh camp, and offers to reſign upon leave given him, his wife, and chidren, to retire where they thought fit: This was agreed to, and John went into the city, and Manuel went firſt to Venice, then to other courts, ſolliciting help againſt the Turks. John was crowned; Bajazet reminds him of their agreement, and preſſed him to ſurrender Conſtantinople, and retire to Peloponneſus: The citizens refuſed; Bajazet renews the ſiege, and reduced them to extreme neceſſities; but news being brought that Tamerlane the Tartar, having ſubdued all Perſia, was coming into Aſia againſt Bajazet, he raiſed the ſiege to go againſt him: They engage in the plains of Angoria in Galatia, the 28th of July 1401, where after cutting moſt of Bajazet's men to pieces, himſelf was taken priſoner, put into an iron cage, and ſhewn, where he is ſaid to have daſhed out his own brains in 1402. — — —	VI	646
5708	4401	1402	Manuel retires to Conſtantinople, where he is received with extraordinary joy, and John depoſed and baniſhed to the iſland of Lesbos. Bajazet's five ſons rend and tear the Turkiſh empire for 10 years with fierce civil wars; but at laſt Mohammed the youngeſt having overcome the others, was proclaimed ſultan of the whole Turkiſh empire. Manuel improved this time, and recovered ſeveral provinces, which Mohammed for the aſſiſtance he had given him ſuffered him quietly to enjoy till his death in 1424. —— — — —	VI	647
5730	4423	1424	John ſon of Manuel ſucceeds his father, who having ſupported one Muſtapha, a pretended ſon of Bajazet's, againſt Amurath II. ſon of Mohammed, Amurath to revenge the affront beſieges Conſtantinople; but his young brother Muſtapha, ſupported by the prince of Caaramnia, revolts in Aſia, and proclaims himſelf ſultan. Amurath raiſes the ſiege, and goes againſt him, who was	VI	647

Y. of World	Y. of Flood	Y. of Christ		Vol.	Page
			treacherously delivered up to Amurath, and by him ſtrangled. Amurath goes againſt the prince of Caaramnia, and compels him to accept of what terms he thought fit to give him. Then he entered Macedon and Greece, and took all thoſe provinces; then reduced Servia, then beſieged Belgrade, where the Chriſtians killed 15,000 Turks in one ſally, and forced Amurath to raiſe the ſiege; and in his return John Hunniades (the famous Hungarian prince) cut great numbers of Amurath's men to pieces; and ſoon after engaging him again, killed 20,000 Turks on the ſpot, and as many in the purſuit. Amurath ſends two other armies more numerous than the former into Tranſylvania, which were cut off almoſt to a man by the ſame brave Hungarian, who alſo recovered from the Turks all Bulgaria and Servia, but at laſt was overcome in the fatal battle of Varna, in the year 1444, where Uladiſlaus king of Hungaria was alſo cut to pieces. — — — — —	VI	648
5750	4443	1444	Hunniades is choſe protector of the kingdom of Hungaria during the minority of young Ladiſlaus. Hunniades engaged Amurath at Caſſana for three days together, where overpowered by numbers, the third day the Chriſtians were routed, in 1448: In this battle 38,000 Turks were ſlain, and 8000 Chriſtians, with the flower of the Hungarian nobility. — — — —	VI	648
5754	4447	1448	The Greek emperor John ſends to Adrianople to Amurath to conclude a peace; Amurath demands ſome ſtrong holds in the Euxine ſea, and 300,000 aſpers a year tribute, which he is forced to yield to. — — —	VI	648
5754	4447	1448	John emperor of Conſtantinople, in order to gain aſſiſtance from the weſtern princes, went to the council held at Ferrara, attended by the patriarch Joſeph, a great number of prelates, and the flower of the Greek nobility, in order to ſettle the diſputes between the Latin and Greek churches. The plague raging at Ferrara, the council moved to Florence, where the union was effected between the two churches, and ſubſcribed by the patriarch and the other prelates. Upon his return the people being highly diſatisfied with what had been done at the council, this with other calamities threw the emperor into an illneſs, of which he died, in the 27th year of his reign. — — — —	VI	649
5755	4448	1449	Conſtantine brother of John ſucceeded to the empire, now confined to Conſtantinople only. — — — — —	VI	649
5755	4448	1449	John II. ſon of Alexius 3d emperor of Trabezond, having murdered his father, ſet himſelf upon the throne. — — — — —	VII	292
5756	4449	1450	Amurath the ſultan dies, and is ſucceeded by his ſon Mohammed, who immediately ſtrangled all his brothers: He built a caſtle about five miles from Conſtantinople, called Genichiar, but by the Greeks, Neo Caſtram; repaired another over-againſt it called Aſpocaſtron; theſe two commanded the Streights of the Boſphorus, and ſhut up Conſtantinople, from whence the garriſons made frequent excurſions: This begot a quarrel; Mohammed ſends Caracia, who took what places the emperor had on the Euxine ſea, and beſieged Conſtantinople, took St. Stephen's tower by aſſault, and put the garriſon to the ſword; and other forts ſubmitted, Selybria only held out, which at laſt overcome by frequent aſſaults, was taken, and every man put to the ſword. — —	VI	650
5759	4452	1453	On the ſixth of April Mohammed ſits down before the imperial city of Conſtantinople with an army of 300,000 men; the beſieged behaved themſelves with the utmoſt bravery, and by frequent ſallies cutoff vaſt numbers of the enemy, and deſtroyed their works; but Mohammed encreaſing his army by continual reinforcements to 400,000, and battering the walls night and day, and a fleet of 300 ſhips block'd the city up by ſea; but four Genoeſe and one Greek ſhip ſailing into the midſt of them, ſunk ſome, diſabled others, and made dreadful havock of the whole, and brought the city relief of corn, &c. but the beſieged tired out, the emperor ſends to the ſultan, offering to acknowledge himſelf his vaſſal, and pay a yearly tribute, if he would raiſe the ſiege and go away; to which Mohammed anſwered, he was determined to have the city; but if he would deliver it up immediately, he would yield Peloponneſus to him, and other provinces to his brothers, which Conſtantine refuſes. On Tueſday the 29th of May the Turks began the attack at three in the morning, and after a prodigious number were killed, the enemy took the city by ſtorm, put the emperor, nobles, and inhabitants all to the ſword, and plundered it for three days ſucceſſively, when Mohammed entered it in triumph, choſe it for the ſeat of his empire, and promiſed all the natives that would ſtay or come there liberty to live unmoleſted, with the free exerciſe of the Chriſtian religion. Thus the death of the laſt Roman emperor, the loſs of Conſtantinople, and the final diſſolution of the Conſtantinopolitan Roman empire happened the 29th of May, this year of the Chriſtian Æra. — — — — — —
5768	4461	1462	Mohammed the great ſultan of the Turks beſieges and takes Trabezond, and murders all the royal family of Comnenus, and thereby put an end to the empire of Trabezond, 258 years after its erection. — — —	VII	293

F I N I S.